

Burning of Combustible Materials/Open Flame

The campus community is reminded that the use of open flame or the burning of combustible materials is PROHIBITED in campus buildings, except where it is appropriate for academic purposes (such as in laboratories, art studios, etc.) or for Plant Operations and construction-related activities. This prohibition applies to candles, incense, charcoal, oil lamps, gas-fired cooking appliances, and all other similar devices which may be a source of ignition for an uncontrolled fire.

You are also reminded that smoking in all California State University buildings or leased spaces is PROHIBITED at all times pursuant to Chancellor's Executive Order No. 599, effective July 1, 1993. This includes all campus buildings and leased space in buildings shared by others.
