NOTES [146 words]: The plot of this song varies widely, as does the final line ("My good old man," "The meanest man in the world," "The best old fellow in the world," "Best Old Soul in the World"). But the format is constant: First the wife asks a long, involved question, e.g.
Where are you going, my good old man?
Where are you going, my honey, lovey dove?
Where are you going, my good old man?
Best old man in the world.
Then the man replies (spoken, not sung) in the shortest set of monosyllables possible.
The final element, about the ghost, disappears in many versions.
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland's Welsh text doesn't look that much like the English versions to me, at least in terms of plot; it may be an analog rather than a version of the same song. But it's filed here rather than include it in a separate entry, which it does not deserve in an English-language index. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: R426

My Good-Looking Man

DESCRIPTION: The singer warns other girls against good-looking men. When young, she saw a good-looking man and set about to marry him. Now she sees him with another woman. When he claims to have been in church, she beats him until he flees
AUTHOR: John Morgan ?
EARLIEST DATE: before 1845 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(1368))
KEYWORDS: courting marriage infidelity abuse
FOUND IN: US(MA,MW) Canada(Newf,Ont) Ireland
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 42, "My Good-Looking Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 182, "My Good-Lookin' Man" (1 text)
Peacock, pp. 302-303, "My Good-Looking Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 30, "Good Looking Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 83, "My Good Looking Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Vikár/Panagapka-SongsNorthWoodsSungByOJAbbott 19, "My Good Looking Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 7, "My Good-Looking Man" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1503, p. 103, "My Good-Looking Man" (1 reference) DT, GOODLOOK*
Roud #3340
RECORDINGS:
Nonie Lynch, "My Good Looking Man" (on IRClare01)
Mike Molloy, "Good Looking Man" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

BROADSIDES:

SAME TUNE:
Nice Young Girl (per broadside Bodleian Harding B 11(1368))

NOTES [11 words]: Broadside Bodleian Harding B 11(1368) has the author as J. Morgan. - BS

Last updated in version 5.1
File: FSC42

My Grandfather Married a Quaker

DESCRIPTION: When Judy "sung like a peacock or starling" the singer introduces himself and offers himself as a husband "so hearty" she's not likely to find such again. "Your coldness puts me in a flame I'll marry you if you have money In spite of my family name"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan4)

KEYWORDS: greed courting money humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 820, "My Grandfather Married a Quaker" (1 text)

Roud #6214

NOTES [162 words]: The singer claims to have been attracted by Judy's singing which reminds him of two very unmusical birds. He claims that "all meanality I do disdain" but, whatever that may mean, I'm not convinced.

The first verse of Greig/Duncan4 is not required for the rest of the text but its sentiments float when it is necessary to establish a seedy environment:

My grandfather married a Quaker,
My uncle made hay wi' a fork,
My mither's a great grand brog maker
In the beautiful city called Cork.

My father sold mouse-traps and rabbits
Pigs, tressle and all other game
Would you know the sweet town he inhabits?
It's jolly Dungavin by name.

Croker reported almost exactly the first four lines of this text for "I Was the Boy for Bewitching Them." For other examples close to this see "My Father's a Hedger and Ditcher," and references there, and "My God, How the Money Rolls In." If the first verse just floated here then it's fair to ask what the title [for the rest] should be. - BS

Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD4820

My Grandfather's Cock

DESCRIPTION: An ode to Grandfather's amazing sexual equipment.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1963

KEYWORDS: death bawdy

FOUND IN: US(SW) Britain Australia

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 270-271, "My Grandfather's Cock" (2 fragments)
DT, GRANDCCK*

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "My Grandfather's Clock" (tune) and references there

File: EM270

My Grave's Gonna Be Decorated On That Day

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: ("My grave's going to be decorated on that day And I know when my Jesus comes" (2x). "There won't be no more trouble in my way I know I'm going to shake my master's hand I know when my Jesus comes") Verses: liar/gambler, where you going to run?

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (USMississippi01)
KEYWORDS: death nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
Church of God in Christ, "My Grave's Gonna Be Decorated On That Day" (on US(Mississippi01)
File: RcMGGBDD

My Gray Haired Irish Mother

DESCRIPTION: Barney thinks of his childhood in Ireland and how blessed him when he left. He imagines her sorrow: "Your old Irish mother is waiting for you And when friends and companions will turn and desert you There's a place Barney darling at the old home for you"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (for USBallinsloeFair, according to site irishtune.info, Irish Traditional Music Tune Index: Alan Ng's Tunography, ref. Ng #2617)
KEYWORDS: homesickness separation Ireland nonballad mother home
FOUND IN:
RECORDINGS:
John McGettigan and his Irish Minstrels, "My Gray Haired Irish Mother" (on USBallinsloefair)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "There's No One Like Mother to Me"
NOTES [319 words]: "There's No One Like Mother to Me" and "My Gray Haired Irish Mother" are clearly related but clearly distinct. The question is: which is the original and which the derivative? The tunes are closely related though the rests in "There's No One Like Mother To Me" are filled with text in "My Gray Haired Irish Mother."
The theme of both songs is: an expatriot remembers his childhood in a "cottage far over the sea" and recalls especially the mother that blessed him with tears on her cheeks.
"There's No One Like Mother To Me" has two verses and a chorus. "My Gray Haired Irish Mother" has five verses and no chorus.
Here is the first verse of "There's No One Like Mother To Me"
Sadly I'm thinking tonight
Thinking of days long gone by Memories of childhood so bright
Come back like a dream with a sigh
I'm thinking of friends and of home
In that cottage far over the sea
Oh no matter where-ever I roam
There is no one like mother to me.
and the first two verses of "My Gray Haired Irish Mother"
How sadly I'm thinking tonight of my sire-land
Thinking of scenes and of days long gone by.
Memories of childhood so bright and so airy
Come rushing back to me with many's a sigh
I'm thinking of one whom I left far behind me
In that little thatched cottage far over the sea
Oh the one only cried Barney every noon and morning
Darling won't you come back to me.
The pattern is repeated in the remaining verse of "There's No One Like Mother To Me" and the third and fourth verses of "My Gray Haired Irish Mother."
We have sheet music dated 1885 for "There's No One Like Mother To Me" (LOCSheet sm1885 25967, by Gussie L Davis). The version recorded in 1936 by The Carter Family is almost identical to that original (source: Country Music Sources by Guthrie T Meade Jr, p. 324; the Bluegrass Lyrics site)
The John McGettigan recording of "My Gray Haired Irish Mother" in 1929 demonstrates that the songs co-existed. - BS
File: RcMGHIM
My Handsome Sailor Boy
DESCRIPTION: "As I roved out one evening down Water street I took my way." Mary Jane hopes to meet MacDonald, her true love, but is told he's gone to Halifax "for money." Her mother and father tell her to forget MacDonald but she will go to Halifax to be his bride.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: courting separation sea father lover mother
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, pp. 566-567, "My Handsome Sailor Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST Pea566 (Partial)
Roud #9795
NOTES [52 words]: Peacock says "Despite the fact that Mary Jane roves down Water Street in St John's (or Halifax) and MacDonald lives in Halifax, this song does not seem to me to be of Canadian origin. It is probably a British song with Canadian referents." Water Street is hardly a street name found only in Halifax or St John's - BS
File: Pea566

My Happy Little Home in Arkansas
DESCRIPTION: "'Tis a pretty little cottage where the grass is ever green... Come and see me, neighbors, come today... 'Tis the finest country found, I will show you all around In my happy little home in Arkansas." Praises of the farming conditions in Arkansas
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Stockard, History of Lawrence, Jackson, Independence, and Stone Counties, Arkansas)
KEYWORDS: home farming
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 868, "My Happy Little Home in Arkansas" (1 text)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 364, "My Happy Little Home in Arkansas" (1 text)
Roud #7537
File: R868

My Harding County Home
DESCRIPTION: "Not so many years ago I left old Buffalo, The place that I have always loved the best.... I'm yearning today For my Harding County home out in the west. The singer recalls the beauties of home; "As I wander down Broadway," he hears a coyote call him home
AUTHOR: Tex Fletcher
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (recording, Tex Fletcher)
KEYWORDS: home travel
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 67, "My Harding County Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Tex Fletcher, "My Harding County Home" (Flint 1782, 1948)
NOTES [122 words]: "Buffalo" here refers not to the city in New York State but to the county seat of Harding County, South Dakota.
Although this began life as a commercial recording, it does have some oral tradition behind it; the author's son tells me of a "kitchen table" recording he has of his father singing it. The mention of the coyote, while hardly South Dakota-specific, is certainly fitting for the state; according to Robert F. Karolevitz, Challenge, the South Dakota Story, Brevet Press, 1974 (I use the eighth printing from 2004), p. v. "In the past, South Dakota has been semiofficially nicknamed for the coyote, the environmentally adaptable but not universally appreciated official state animal with inhabits all 67 counties." - RBW
Last updated in version 2.5
File: Ohr067
My Head is Sair, My Back's in Twa

DESCRIPTION: "My head is sair, my back's in twa, Gar him come, gar him come, My head is sair, my back's in twa, Gar Johnnie come and see me"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad separation
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1101, "My Head is Sair, My Back's in Twa" (1 fragment)
Roud #6849
NOTES [11 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan6 fragment. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD61101

My Heart Goes Back to dear Old Pendleton

DESCRIPTION: "Now I've sailed the sea, I've seen gay Paree, I've seen the sights of old London, Though I'm far away, I never stray" from Pendleton. The singer declares that he will go back for the September roundup; "That's the place for me."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2007 (Furlong, Let 'Er Buck, according to Cohen); apparently written by 1920
KEYWORDS: home travel
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 642, "My Heart Goes Back to Dear Old Pendleton" (1 text)
File: CAFS2642

My Heart Is As Licht As a Feather

DESCRIPTION: The singer says her "heart is as licht as a feather." She will not "lat doon my heart" for any mud-splashing lad. "I'll never lie dead for them That winna lie sick for me."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: courting nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1135, "My Heart Is As Licht As a Feather" (1 text)
Roud #6825
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Farewell He" (theme) and references there
File: GrD61136

My Heart Is Woe (When That My Sweet Son Was Thirty Winter Old)

DESCRIPTION: "When that my sweet son was thirty winter old, Then the traitor Judas waxed very bold." He betrays Jesus on Maundy Thursday with a kiss. The Jews demand crucifixion. Longeus spears his body

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1537 (Richard Hill MS., Balliol Coll. Oxf. 354)
KEYWORDS: Jesus betrayal money mother MiddleEnglish
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #163, pp. 122-123, "(Whan that my swete Son was thirti wynter old)" (1 text with variants)
Sidgwick/Chambers-EarlyEnglishLyrics LXXVIII, pp. 142-143, "(no title)" (1 text)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #4023
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #6423
ADDITIONAL: Roman Dyboski, _Songs, Carols, and Other Miscellaneous Poems from the Balliol Ms. 354, Richard Hill's Commonplace Book_, Kegan Paul, 1907 (there are now multiple print-on-demand reprints), #50, pp. 40-41, "(O my harte is wo! Mary, she sayd so)" (1 text)
Edward Bliss Reed, editor, _Christmas Carols Printed in the Sixteenth Century Including Kele's Christmas carolles newly Inprinted reproduced in facsimile from the copy in the Huntington Library_, Harvard University Press, 1932, pp. 32-34 [14-16], "(no title)" (1 text)
ST MSOMHIWo (Partial)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
 cf. "Judas" [Child 23] (themes)
NOTES [900 words]: As is usual with Middle English carols, there is no evidence that this is traditional -- although one of the two surviving sources is the Richard Hill manuscript, which contains substantial folk material. The other source is the first substantial surviving book of Christmas Carols, the Kele collection of c. 1545. Based on the date, it does not appear Hill could have gotten the text from Kele, and Kele could not have gotten it from Hill. On the other hand, there is good reason to think Kele took texts from an earlier carol book by Wynkyn de Worde, and Hill might have gotten his text from de Worde; it's just that the de Worde book is almost entirely lost and we don't know what it contained. So we might have two source -- but we might not. The differences between the two texts, while not trivial, are not so substantial as to preclude a common source -- especially since many of the differences are short omissions in the Hill manuscript which could well be immediate copying errors.
So why do I include the song in the Index? Not because I'm particularly convinced that it's traditional. Instead, I'm indexing it because there are a number of references which are reminiscent of "Judas" [Child 23]. Could it be that that song survived long enough to influence this one? I'm not convinced, but I'm putting this piece in the Index to give you the evidence.
Notes on the song itself:
Chorus: The claim that Mary had no other sons is widespread in folklore, which claimed she was a perpetual virgin, but Mark 3:31 and parallels explicitly state that Jesus's mother and brothers visited him, and Mark 6:30 lists his brothers as James and Joses and Judas and Simon. Nothing is known of the latter three, but Jesus's brother James is well-attested -- e.g. Paul calls him "James the Lord's brother" in Galatians 1:19, and he is even mentioned in Josephus as Jesus's brother! The notion that Mary was a perpetual virgin was probably originated by heretics who condemned carnality, which somehow was accepted by Catholics; the official line became that James et al were children of Joseph by a previous marriage. The only evidence for this is folklore; see the discussion under "The Cherry-Tree Carol" [Child 54].
Stanza 1, line 1: Jesus is said to be "thirty winter old." Luke 3:23 says that Jesus was ABOUT (Greek, hosei, "as") 30 years old at the time he began his ministry. If he were exactly 30 years old at the time the ministry started and we accept the synoptic gospels' view that his ministry lasted only one year, then he would likely have been 31 at the time of the crucifixion. (John's chronology requires a ministry of three or more years.) However, Luke 3:1 says the ministry started in the fifteenth year of Tiberius, which is 29 C.E., so the crucifixion would have been in 30 C.E. But Luke 1:5 says that Herod the Great was king when Jesus was born (and Matthew also says Herod was king), and Herod died in 4 B.C.E. Thus Jesus must have been at least 34 at the time of the crucifixion, and since he was likely born at least two years before Herod's death, an age of 36 or 37 is much more likely -- and if John's chronology was right, an age of about 40 would be reasonable.
Stanza 1, line 3: Judas betrayed Jesus for 30 "plates" of money. Matthew 26:15 (only) says that the authorities promised Judas 30 pieces of silver (the vast majority of Greek manuscripts, plus the Latin which the English church of the period used, say only "30 of silver"); a few manuscripts -- D 1 1582 a b h q -- say "30 staters" or "30 staters of silver. The usual silver coin in the gospels was the denarius; the stater is mentioned elsewhere only in 17:27. The whole verse is a strange adaption by Matthew of Zech. 11:12, which also says "thirty of silver")
Stanza 2, line 1: "Shere Thursday" is Maundy Thursday," but note that it is the term used in "Judas."
Stanza 2, line 4: Judas betrayed Jesus with a kiss in Matthew 26:48-49 and parallels Stanza 3, line 1: The gospels agree that Jesus went before the High Priest before going before Pilate, but all agree that he ended up being tried by Pilate; Matthew 27:2 and parallels Stanza 3, line 2: Peter's denial is also in all the Gospels, e.g. Matthew 26:69fff.
Stanza 3, line 4: The call to crucify Jesus is in all the gospels, e.g. Matthew 27:22-23
Stanza 4, line 1: The name "Calvary" is from Luke 23:33, which says that Jesus was crucified at the "place of the skull" (, kranion); this was translated into Latin as "Calvariae," but it's not properly Biblical.

Stanza 4, lines 3-4: We have (contradictory) lists of the women who were at the foot of the cross, but no men are named. John 19:26-27 however says that the "disciple that Jesus loved" was there with Mary, mother of Jesus. We do not know who the Beloved Disciple was, but it is cogently argued that it was John son of Zebedee. And the Beloved Disciple is credited as the source of the Fourth Gospel. Hence, John the Evangelist is credited in the song with being by the cross.

Stanza 5, line 2: The earthquake when Jesus died is mentioned only in Matthew 27:51, which otherwise follows Mark 15 almost verbatim in this section.

Stanza 5, line 4: John 19:34 says that Jesus's side was pierced by a spear. This is not even hinted at in the other Gospels. There is no Biblical warrant for calling the soldier with the spear "Longus" or "Longeus" or "Longinus"; that's from folklore. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: MSOMHIWo

My Heart It Never Was Afraid

DESCRIPTION: "My heart it never was afraid To go and meet my foe"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: fight
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1922, "My Heart It Never Was Afraid" (1 fragment)
Roud #15123
NOTES [11 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 fragment. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81922

My Heart's in Old Ireland

DESCRIPTION: "'My bark on the billow dashed gloriously on, And glad were the noted of the sailor-boy's song," but the singer is sad, "For my heart's in old Ireland wherever I go." He recalls its beauties, and vows never to leave leave if he ever returns to his cottage
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster)
KEYWORDS: home Ireland ship exile
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 15, "My Heart's in Old Ireland" (1 text)
Roud #25090
File: HMHS015A

My Heart's in the Highlands

DESCRIPTION: The singer bids farewell to the highlands mountains, valleys, forests, and rivers, and recalls "chasing the wild deer and following the roe My heart's in the highlands where ever I go"
AUTHOR: Words: Robert Burns
EARLIEST DATE: 1790 (according to Kinsley, _Burns_)
KEYWORDS: homesickness farewell travel nonballad animal hunting
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 521, "My Heart's in the Highlands" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: James Kinsley, editor, _Burns: Complete Poems and Songs_ (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #418, pp. 418-419, "My heart's in the Highlands" (1 text, 1 tune, from 1790)
James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume III, #259, p. 268, "My heart's in the Highlands" (1 text, 1 tune)
My Heart's Tonight in Texas [Laws B23]

DESCRIPTION: A rancher's daughter and her lover must part; the girl's father is sending her to England in hopes that she will marry a nobleman. Eventually an earl proposes to her, but she will marry none but her Texas Jack

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: separation love

FOUND IN: US(MW,So)

REFERENCES (5 citations):

Laws B23, "My Heart's Tonight in Texas (By the Silvery Rio Grande; Texas Jack)"
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 179-183, "My Heart's Tonight in Texas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 525, "My Heart's Tonight in Texas" (1 text)
ArkansasWoodchopper, pp. 38-40, "By the Silv'ry Rio Grande" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 841, HRTEXAS*

ALTERNATE TITLES:
By the Silvery Rio Grande
Texas Jack

NOTES [25 words]: A piece called "Down by the Silvery Rio Grande" was published in 1913 as by Dave Weisberg, R. F. Roden, and Charles Speidel. I have not seen it. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3

File: LB23

My Hielan Hame

DESCRIPTION: The singer will not leave his Highland home, where his parents are buried. He is not tempted to leave by promises of "wealth and ease... gold and fame... a glorious name...." "Flowers may bloom fer ayont the sea But oh, my Hielan hame for me."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1911 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 c.14(27) but see the notes)

KEYWORDS: homesickness emigration gold work Scotland father mother

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen, pp. 97, 153, "My Hielan Hame" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #21758

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 c.14(27), "My Hieland Hame" ("I canna leave my hieland hame"), J. Lindsay (Glasgow), 1851-1910; also 2806 c.11(25), "My Hielan' Hame"

NOTES [18 words]: McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen dates what is probably Bodleian 2806 c.11(25) "probably circa 1880." - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: McSc097
My Hielant Hame

DESCRIPTION: "Oh for a sprig o' my ain Hielant heather." The singer recalls parting from his "faither and mither wha near broken hearted." "Sair was my thocht when I crossed the wide ocean For I had nae friend to welcome me there" He dreams of the old folks at home.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: homesickness emigration parting Scotland father mother
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 533, "My Hielant Hame" (1 text)
Roud #6012
File: GrD2533

My Highland Lassie, O

DESCRIPTION: "I set me down wi' right guid will, To sing my Highland lassie." He prefers her to "gentle dames;" "their titles a' are empty show" If he were rich the world would know his love, but he is poor and will go to India to make his fortune. He will be true.

AUTHOR: Robert Burns
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast)
KEYWORDS: love separation money India nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #76, p. 1, "The Highland Lassie O" (1 fragment)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Deuks Dang O'er My Daddy" (tune, per Burns)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Nae Gentle Dames Though E'er So Fair
NOTES [28 words]: Greig: "His [Burns's] first reference to ["Highland"] Mary [Campbell?] is in a song, contributed anonymously to Johnson's Musical Museum, "The Highland Lassie, O" - BS Last updated in version 2.6
File: Grg076a

My Home in Fermoy

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls "those bright golden hours I spent long ago in my home in Fermoy" "far away o'er the wide spreading ocean": school, the Blackwater, Castlehyde, and the Angelus bells. He hopes to return but knows that many he left behind have died.

AUTHOR: Kate Dowling (source: OCanainn-SongsOfCork)
EARLIEST DATE: 1913 (according to OCanainn-SongsOfCork)
KEYWORDS: home travel return Ireland nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCanainn-SongsOfCork, pp. 104-105, "My Home in Fermoy" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: 0Can104

My Home in Sweet Glenlea

DESCRIPTION: Singer travels to South Africa, Hindustan, Java, and Palestine, thinking all the time "the fairest was Glenlea." After an earthquake in San Francisco, he writes home for money. He returned, is met by a great crowd, marriess and lives happily in Glenlea.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (OCanainn-SongsOfCork)
KEYWORDS: parting travel return marriage Africa America India Ireland
FOUND IN: Ireland
My Home Is on the Mountain

DESCRIPTION: The singer expresses a hope and a prayer to be reunited with mother: "I want to see my mother, O can't you call her here? / It wouldn't seem so hard to die to have my mother near...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1982
KEYWORDS: religious reunion death
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 78, "My Home Is on the Mountain" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST FSC078 (Partial)
NOTES [41 words]: Cazden et al know of no other collections of this lyric, although the melody is similar to the familiar hymn tunes "Imandra" and "Milton." They file the piece among "religious songs," but it feels a bit like a Civil War "dying soldier boy" song. - RBW
File: FSC078

My Home's Across the Blue Ridge Mountains

DESCRIPTION: "I'm going back to North Carolina (x3). I never expect to see you any more." Repeat with "I'm going to leave here Monday morning," "How can I ever keep from crying," "I'm going across the Blue Ridge Mountains."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (JAFL)
KEYWORDS: love home separation farewell nonballad parting
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (10 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 124, "I'm Goin' Back to North Carolina" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jones-MinstrelOfTheAppalachians-Bascom-Lamar-Lunsford, p. 228, "My Home's Across the Smoky Mountains" (1 text, 1 tune)
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, p. 11, "My Home's in Charlotte, North Caroline" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 278, "My Home's Across the Smoky Mountains" (1 text plus a fragment)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 278, "My Home's Across the Smoky Mountains" (2 tunes plus text excerpts)
McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, pp. 79-80, "My Home's Across the Smoky Mountains" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #55, "Icy Mountain" (1 text, 1 tune, which Roud gives its own entry, #3417, but which is clearly a version of this song)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 242, "I'm Going Back to North Carolina" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 42, "My Home's Across The Smokey Mountains" (1 text)
DT, HOMSMOK
ST Wa124 (Full)
Roud #7686
RECORDINGS:
Clarence Ashley, Garley Foster, Dock Walsh & Doc Watson, "My Home's Across the Blue Ridge Mountains" (on Ashley03, WatsonAshley01)
Frank Bode, "My Home's Across the Blue Ridge Mountains" (on FBode1)
Carolina Tar Heels, "My Home's Across the Blue Ridge Mountains" (Victor V-40100, 1929)
Carter Family, "My Home's Across the Blue Ridge Mountains" (Decca 5532, 1938/Decca X2184, n.d.)
Delmore Brothers, "My Home's Across the Blue Ridge Mountains" (Bluebird B-8247, 1939)
Kelly Harrell, "I'm Going Back to North Carolina" (OKeh 40505, 1925; on KHarrell01)
Bascom Lamar Lunsford, "My Home's Across the Smoky Mountains" (AAFS 3155 B2)
Poplin Family, "My Home Is Not In South Carolina" (on Poplin01)
Pete Seeger, "My Home's Across the Smoky Mountains" (on PeteSeeger25)
Arthur Smith, "Across the Blue Ridge Mountains" (Bluebird B-7221, 1937)
Jack Wallin, "My Home's Across the Blue Ridge Mountains" (on Wallins1)

My Home's in Montana

DESCRIPTION: "My home's in Montana, I wear a bandana, My spurs are of silver, my pony is gray. While riding the ranges my luck never changes, With my foot in the stirrup I gallop for aye."
The cowboy sketches the life of a horseman following cattle in the wilderness
AUTHOR: Words: Christine Turner Curtis (?)
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 ("Singing Days" series)
KEYWORDS: work cowboy nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 1, "My Home's in Montana" (1 text, 1 tune)
Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 247, "My Home's in Montana" (1 text, 1 tune)
Larkin-SingingCowboy, pp. 30-31, "The Cowboy's Lament" (1 text, 1 tune, with four verses that are clearly "Streets of Laredo" but an opening that is "My Home's in Montana")
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Streets of Laredo" [Laws B1] (tune & meter, floating lyrics) and references there
cf. "The Unfortunate Rake" (tune, floating lyrics)
NOTES [62 words]: This was apparently composed (based on elements of "The Streets of Laredo") as a cowboy song suitable for young people. There are reports of versions from Montana, possibly unprintable. See the notes in Ohrlin for the background.
Larkin-SingingCowboy's text may be a "missing link": It's largely "Streets of Laredo," but it starts with the "home in Montana" half-verse. - RBW

My Husband's a Mason

DESCRIPTION: The singer tells how her (husband/father/boyfriend) works all day at his trade and then comes home and plies his trade upon her, e.g. "My husband's a mason... All day he lays bricks... At night he comes home and lays me."
AUTHOR: unknown
My Husband's Got No Courage in Him

DESCRIPTION: (Two women meet); one laments, "(My) husband's got no courage in him." She describes all she has done to encourage his "courage," but all attempts have failed. (Even now she still has her maidenhead.) (She hopes he dies so she can find another)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1701 (broadside NLScotland, Ry.III.a.10(053))

KEYWORDS: wife husband sex disability

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (7 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 213, "Rue the Day" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan7 1367, "My Husband's Got No Courage in Him" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Reeves/Sharp-TheldiomOfThePeople 67, "O Dear O" (2 texts)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 171, "The Husband With No Courage In Him" (1 text)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN2114, "Of late it was my chance to walke"

ADDING: Roy Palmer, "Birmingham Broadsides and Oral Tradition" -- essay found in David Atkinson and Steve Roud, Editors, _Street Ballads in Nineteenth-Century Britain, Ireland, and North America: The Interface between Print and Oral Tradition_, Ashgate, 2014, p. 44, "O! Dear O! He's Got No Courage In Him" (1 text, probably missing some verses)

Roud #870

BROADSIDES:

NLScotland, Ry.III.a.10(053), "My Husband Has No Courage In Him," unknown, 1701

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Maids, When You're Young"
cf. "What Can a Young Lassie"
cf. "The Jolly Barber Lad" (theme)
cf. "The Old Man from Over the Sea"

NOTES [553 words]: Although this sounds like it is just a woman's lament over an impotent (or homosexual?) husband, it's just possible that there is more going on. At least if you believe Roach. Failure to consummate a marriage of course could allow for an annulment -- and, in sixteenth and seventeenth century France, could call for more. Roach, pp. 149-152, told how a man could be sued by his wife for non-performance. In such a case, he had to prove, before witnesses, that he could produce an erection. If he failed, he could be fined and forbidden to remarry -- and the dowry he had gained upon marriage would be forfeit. The inability to "put up" could thus be extremely expensive as well as embarrassing.

The use of the term "courage" for sexual potency goes back to Middle English; we find it in Chaucer's "Merchant's Tale." In this tale, the old man January has just taken a young wife May, and is trying his best to consummate the marriage:

He drynketh ypocras, clarree, and vernage
Of spices hoote t'encreesen his corage....
"He drinks hippocras, clarree, and Vernaccia
Of/with hot spices to increase his courage."

Hippocras is wine mixed with spices and sugar and strained; clarree is wine mixed with honey and spices; Vernaccia is a strong Italian wine. None of them in fact increase "courage," but the wine plus the heat of the spices was thought to do so in the Middle Ages. The lines are Fragment IV, lines 1807-1808 in the Riverside Chaucer; lines 563-564 of the Merchant's Tale in E. Talbot Donaldson's Chaucer's Poetry; lines 595-596 in the Cambridge edition of the Merchant's Prologue and Tale by Maurice Hussey; some older editions call them Fragment E, lines 1806-1807.

Chaucer didn't invent this idea; two lines after the above quote we find that January derived his ideas from "daun Constantyn," that is Constantinus Africanus, who, according to Masi, pp. 16-21, wrote among other things a book De Coitu about, well, sex. It was more philosophical than dirty, though; it was a medical text. Constantinus (1015-1087, according to Masi, p. 18) was mostly a translator of Greek and Arabic medical treatises into Latin. The Wife of Bath apparently took information from him also (Masi, pp. 20-21).

Rossignol, p. 92, described De Coitu as follows: "A treatise on sexual intercourse written by an 11th-century monk of Monte Cassino named Constantius Africanus, or Constantine the African, who was considered one of the fathers of Western medicine.... The treatise was known to contain recipes for aphrodisiacs." On p. 97, Rossignol says that Constantine was "referred to simply (and confusingly) as 'Constantyn' by Chaucer, was a merchant, physician and scholar of the 11th century. Born in North Africa, he traveled widely in the Middle East as a merchant, and later became a monk, focusing his studies on medicine and philosophy. Contantine spent his last year at the monastery of Monte Cassino in Salerno, Italy, where he translated a number of Arabic works into Latin. The medical works that he translated gave western Europe its first general view of Greek medicine.... Constantine is mentioned in Chaucer's General Prologue... as one of the medical authorities whose teacher the Doctor of Phisic had studied."

Thus the ideas behind this song are very old in English, and even older in other languages. - RBW

Bibliography

- Masi: Michael Masi, Chaucer and Gender, Peter Lang, 2005

Last updated in version 5.0
File: K213

My Irish Jaunting Car (The Irish Boy)

DESCRIPTION: "I'm Larry Mchugh, a boy so true, I belong to the Emerald Isle." He tells how the girls "Think it a trate to take a seat and be drove in my jaunting car." He offers rides to all, and guidance on the best places to buy

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: technology travel nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHennysSongsOfThePeople H592, p. 41, "My Irish Jaunting Car"
(1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #13464

NOTES [12 words]: Not to be confused with the much more common "The Irish Jaunting Car." - RBW

File: HHH592

My Irish Molly-O

DESCRIPTION: The singer, (a Scotsman,) is in love with Molly. Her parents oppose the match (because he is not Catholic). Unable to win his love, he is ready to die (and makes preparations for burial). (Common versions often lose the plot, and simply speak of courting)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1842 (Joyce, The Native Music of Ireland)

KEYWORDS: love separation death courting
FOUND IN: US(MA,SE) Ireland Australia Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (13 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #111, p. 2, "Irish Molly" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan6 1088, "Irish Mally, O"; Greig/Duncan6 1158, "The Gipsy's Warning" (11 texts, 8 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 131, "Irish Molly, O" (1 text)
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 62, "My Irish Molly-O" (1 text, 1 tune)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #234, Irish Mollie-O" (1 text)
Meredith/Coveil/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, pp. 177-178, "Irish Molly-O" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 52, "Irish Molly O" (1 text)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 606, "Irish Molly O" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 92, "Irish Molly O" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1057, p. 72, "Irish Molly, O" (1 reference)
DT, IRSHMOLL*

ADDITIONAL: Charles Gavan Duffy, editor, The Ballad Poetry of Ireland (1845), pp. 214-215, "Irish Molly"
Roud #2168

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(1787), "Irish Molly, O!" ("As I walk'd out one morning all in the month of May"), J. Pitts (London), 1819-1844; also Harding B 11(2121), Firth b.28(35) View 2 of 2[some words illegible], Johnson Ballads fol. 114, Harding B 11(4209), Harding B 17(140b), Johnson Ballads 2582, Firth c.26(181), Harding B 20(257), Johnson Ballads 2582, Firth c.26(137), 2906 c.15(243), Firth c.14(204), 2806 b.11(252), "Irish Molly, O[!]"; Johnson Ballads 340, "Irish Molly!"
LOCSinging, as106290, "Irish Molly, O," Harris (Philadelphia), 19C
NLScotland, L.C.1270(006), "Irish Molly, O," James Kay (Glasgow), c. 1845; also L.C.178.A.2(256), "Irish Molly O," unknown, c. 1860
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Often Think of Writing Home" (tune)
SAME TUNE:
The Lass of Swansea Town (Swansea Barracks) (per broadside Bodleian Harding B 11(2071))
I Often Think of Writing Home (File: RcIOTOWH)

NOTES [126 words]: Greig/Duncan6 1158's two fragments entitled "The Gipsy's Warning," Roud #7358, are female and male variants of the "never lay your love On the top of a tree. The branches will wither ..." verse. The notes quote Greig: "Thinks this may be chorus of the 'Gipsy's Warning.'" The notes also say, "The printed text [of Cox's version of 'The Gipsy's Warning' in Folk-Songs of the South, Cox-FolkSongsSouth 149 in this index] does not contain [these] words"; neither does the text of "Gypsy's Warning" at Digital Tradition GYPWARN, quoted from Folk Songs Out of Wisconsin. For lack of evidence that this verse goes anyplace else I have stowed it with "Irish Molly, O" which often includes that verse and has been found in Scotland [see Greig/Duncan6 1088]. - BS

My Jesus Led Me To the Rock

DESCRIPTION: "My Jesus led me to the rock; Oh my! Oh my! I heard such a ramblin' in the sky, I tho't 'twas my Lord comin' down"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories 31, "My Jesus Led Me To the Rock" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [10 words]: The description is the Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories text. - BS

File: Edwa031
My Johnny
DESCRIPTION: Basically a lament for Johnny, who apparently died and was buried at sea. "We're homeward bound today ... We'll drink and play (etc) but always think of Johnny" Chorus: "In the middle of the sea, my boy is floating free, so far away from me, my love."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Richard Runciman Terry, _The Shanty Book_)
KEYWORDS: foc's'le shanty lament farewell
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 539-540, "My Johnny" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [16 words]: Rather slow and sentimental for a shanty, but Terry's source said it was used at the capstan. - SL
File: Hugi539

My Johnny Was a Shoemaker
DESCRIPTION: "My Johnny was a shoemaker But now he's gone to sea." He will be a captain "Of a bold and galliant crew And then across the sea he'll roam All for to marry me ... And when I am a captain's wife I'll sing the whole day long"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1865 (broadside, LOCSinging as202550)
KEYWORDS: courting separation sailor nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(England,Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, p. 181, "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan8 1848, "Oh My Johnny Was a Shoemaker" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #110, p. 3, "My Johnnie Was a Shoemaker" (1 text)
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, p. 181, "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker" (1 text, 1 tune)
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 44, "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1514, p. 103, "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker" (1 reference)
New-Comic-Songster, p. 8, "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, JOHNSHOE
ADDITIONAL: Heywood Sumner, The Besom Maker (London, 1888 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 11-12, "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1388
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 18(366), "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker," H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864; also Harding B 18(670), "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker"
LOCSinging, as202550, "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker," H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864; also sb20295b, "My Johnny Was a Shoemaker"
NOTES [121 words]: Broadsides LOCSinging as202550 and Bodleian Harding B 18(366) are duplicates. Broadsides LOCSinging sb20295b and Bodleian Harding B 18(670) are duplicates. The description is from broadside LOCSinging as202550.
Greig/Duncan8 speculates that the Greig text is "probably from print as he does not identify any source." Greig's text is very close to the De Marsan texts but excludes the chorus "But now he's gone to reef top-sail, And sail across the briny sea, e, e, e--, My Johnny was a shoemaker." Broadside LOCSinging as202550 and Bodleian Harding B 18(366): H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS
Last updated in version 5.3
File: OLcM044

My Jolly Shantyboy
DESCRIPTION: The singer overhears a girl praising her shantyboy and lamenting that her parents dislike him. She is advised to marry a drygoods clerk rather than "throw herself away." But "If I had my will I'd love him still, my jolly shantyboy."
My Jolly Waggoner, Drive On!

DESCRIPTION: The singer won’t have a carpenter, blacksmith, cowman, shepherd, reaper, thresher or miller. She'd "rather have a waggoner", "to whip me ..." "with his whips", "on the back", "a good deal", "instead", though he be poor or "stupid as a block"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 236-237, "My Jolly Waggoner, Drive On!" (1 text)
(also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 459)
Roud #1302
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Soldier Boy for Me (A Railroader for Me" (theme) and references there NOTES [101 words]: The chorus of Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, "Way! Wo-utt! Drive on! My jolly waggoner, drive on" is reminiscent of the chorus of "The Jolly Waggoner": "And sing wo, my lads, sing wo! Drive on my lads, I-ho! And who wouldn't lead the life of a jolly waggoner!"
(source: Bell). However, that song is about the pleasures and problems of waggoning from the waggoner's viewpoint. This song is much closer to the songs that Roud lumps with it, such as "Soldier Boy for Me." On the other hand, the "whip me" line of thinking taken by the singer seems to me not at all like the approach of those other songs. - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: WT236

My Jolly-Hearted Ploughboy

DESCRIPTION: "Sailors they are fickle, And the gardeners they're nae true, But my jolly-hearted ploughboy, I'll go along wi' you." It's fine on the sea but she wishes she were in her lover's arms. He gives her "the napkin frae his neck Which cost him guineas three"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad clothes farming
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 845, "My Jolly-Hearted Ploughboy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6223
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Sailors They Are Fickle
File: GrD4845
My Kentucky Home
DESCRIPTION: "As I stand here in the woods I wonder why I ever left, I wonder if I ever did leave." The singer recalls how it was when she was a girl. She wonders about those she knew. She and her old dog head home, slowly, because they are old; the memories linger
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2001 (HCargillFamily)
KEYWORDS: home dog nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
RECORDINGS:
Acie Kargill, Ellen Wright, John Wright, "My Kentucky Home" (on HCargillFamily)
NOTES [68 words]: There are several songs on HCargillFamily which do not occur elsewhere, and they frankly have a similar style, much less effective than the traditional pieces. Because of their style, I think it likely they are by a single author. And that author was likely Hattie Mae Tyler Cargill, since this song at least is the song of an old woman (definitely a woman) looking back on her life. But I can't prove it. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: RcMyKeHo

My Lad's a Sailor
DESCRIPTION: "My lad's a sailor ... he's going to marry me." In twenty-five days "I'll trim my hat wi' velvet, and gie my lad a dram"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: marriage clothes drink nonballad sailor
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1582, "My Lad's a Sailor" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13504
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Five-and-Twenty Masons" (tune, per Greig/Duncan8)
File: GrD81582

My Lad's a Terry
DESCRIPTION: "My lad's a terry" and a toff. "He says he loves me I know it's true"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1954 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: playparty
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 84, "My Lad's a Terry" (2 texts)
NOTES [65 words]: Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame: "The song just possibly celebrates the inauguration of the Territorial Force in 1908, which caused much excitement at the time and was the source of a number of popular songs." ["The Territorial Force (TF) was the volunteer component of the British Army from 1908 to 1920, when it became the Territorial Army" (source: Wikipedia article Territorial Force )]. - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: OpGa084

My Laddie Sits Ower Late Up
DESCRIPTION: "My laddie sits ower late up, My hinny sits ower late up.... Betwixt the pint pot and the cup." The singer calls Johnny home to his bairn, lamenting the money he wastes: "When I cry out, 'Laddie, cum hame,' He calls oot again for mair beer."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland)
KEYWORDS: home drink wife husband
My Lady Went to Canterbury

DESCRIPTION: "My heart of gold as true as steel." "My lady went to Canterbury, The saint to be her bothe," Nonsense verses, ending, "Terlery lorpyn, the laverock sant, So merrily pipes the sparrow. The cow broke lose, the rope ran home; Sir, God give you good morrow."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1609 (Ravenscroft, Pammellia); c. 1545 (Kele)

KEYWORDS: nonsense humorous travel bird animal clothes

My Lagan Love

DESCRIPTION: "Where Lagan stream sings lullaby, There blows a lily fair." The singer admits the girl "has my heart in thrall. No life I own, nor liberty, For love is lord of all." The singer recalls the girl's life in the bogs and her sweet songs

AUTHOR: Joseph Campbell

EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (recording, John McCormack)

KEYWORDS: love beauty courting nonballad bug music

Last updated in version 5.3

File: EPMLWtCa
My Last Farewell to Stirling

DESCRIPTION: The convict bitterly prepares to leave Stirling for Van Dieman's Land. He laments the pheasants he will not disturb, the rabbits he cannot hunt. He bids farewell to his (Jeannie), and hopes she will find another love.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: love separation transportation hunting poaching

FOUND IN: Australia Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1534, "Farewell to Stirling" (5 texts, 3 tunes)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #171, p. 1, "Farewell to Stirling" (1 text)
Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, p. 23, "My Last Farewell to Stirling" (1 text, 1 tune)
MacColl-PersonalChoice, p. 13, "My Last Farewell to Stirling" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, FAREWLST
Roud #5160

File: PASB023

My Last Gold Dollar

DESCRIPTION: "My last (gold/ole) dollar is gone (x2), My whiskey bill is due an' my board bill too...." "Oh darling, I'm crazy about you... and another girl too..." "Oh darling, won't you go my bail?..." "Oh darling, six months ain't too long...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (American Mountain Songs)

KEYWORDS: poverty hardtimes prison courting drink

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So)

REFERENCES (7 citations):
Randolph 671, "My Last Gold Dollar" (1 text plus a fragment, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 381-382, "My Last Gold Dollar" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 671A)
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 112, "My Last Gold Dollar" (1 single-stanza fragment)
Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs, p. 96, "My Last Ole Dollar" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolksongsOfNorthAmerica 149, "My Last Ole Dollar" (1 text, 1 tune)
Spaeth-WeepSomeMoreMyLady, pp. 130-131, "My Last Old Dollar" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, OLDOLLAR*
Roud #4310

RECORDINGS:
Bascom Lamar Lunsford, "The Last Gold Dollar" (on BLLunsford01)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Wish I Was a Mole in the Ground" (floating lyrics)
cf. "New River Train" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Six Months Ain't Long" (lyrics)

NOTES [86 words]: We might note that the line "last gold dollar" had a slightly different meaning in the nineteenth century. During the Civil War, the Union government issued both gold-backed and unbacked ("greenback") dollars. The greenbacks were, not surprisingly, treated with less respect and discounted. A man who spend his last gold dollar might still have money -- but only the less valuable greenbacks.

Of course, since the song is often sung "My last OLD dollar," that may be just a bit of excessive historical analysis. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: R671
My Little Brown Mule

DESCRIPTION: "His mammy's a burro, his daddy's a horse, Of course you'll all think it's a mighty queer cuss," but it's "as smart as a cricket, my little brown mule." Always in trouble, it knows every horse and is "wise as a parson." The singer will never sell it

AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys); reportedly written 1912

KEYWORDS: cowboy horse animal commerce

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 104-105, "My Little Brown Mule" (1 text)

File: ThLo104

My Little German Home Across the Sea

DESCRIPTION: "How I love to think about the days so full of joy and glee, But they never will come back again to me." The singer recalls home and family in Germany, but now mother and father are dead and he cannot return home. He wishes he could

AUTHOR: George S. Knight

EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (Pound); reportedly copyrighted 1877

KEYWORDS: home Germany family mother father separation emigration

FOUND IN: US(MW,So) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Randolph 870, "My Little German Home Across the Sea" (1 text plus a fragment, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 536-538, "My Little German Home Across the Sea" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 870A)
Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra 57, "The Little German Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports, pp. 282-283, "My Little English Home Across the Sea" (1 text, 1 tune)
Rorrer-RamblingBlues-LifeAndSongsOfCharliePoole, p. 91, "I Left My German Home" (1 text)

Roud #7429

RECORDINGS:
Charlie Poole and the North Carolina Ramblers, "I Left My German Home" (No known Columbia release; recorded 1930)
Jim Rice, "My Little Home Across the Sea" (on MUNFLA/Leach) [the home is "English"]
Ernest V. Stoneman, "My Little German Home Across the Sea" (Edison 51909, 1927)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Little Old Log Cabin in the Lane" (tune) and references there

NOTES [46 words]: This piece is probably based on Will S. Hays's "The Little Old Log Cabin in the Lane;" it uses the same melody for the verse, although the chorus is missing. "Log Cabin" of course gave us an assortment of other parodies, including "The Little Old Sod Shanty on my Claim." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.3

File: R870

My Little Home in Tennessee

DESCRIPTION: "Ev're night I'm dreaming of that little home Down among the hills of Tennessee." It's "just a little shack," but the birds sing there, and mother lived there until she died. But another man won the singer's beloved, so he wanders broken-hearted

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)

KEYWORDS: home love rejection mother rambling

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 106, "My Little Home in Tennessee" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #11389

RECORDINGS:
Blue Sky Boys, "My Little Home in Tennessee" (Bluebird 8143/Montgomery Ward 7327)
The Carter Family, "My Little Home in Tennessee" (Victor CNV-102)
File: Brne106

My Little One's Waiting for Me
DESCRIPTION: "In the dell where the brook's gently flowing, On the bench by the old willow tree...
My little one's waiting for me." The singer describes how he happily goes home from work (or wherever) to home and the "little one"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: love home nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 850, "My Little One's Waiting for Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7450
File: R850

My Little Rambling Rose
DESCRIPTION: "They called her 'Rambling Rose' because she loved to stray... because she always had her way.... He sweetheart wrote a note:" "Someday you"ll ramble back to me, my little Rambling Rose." It takes a long time, but she finally comes home
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1981 (Bethke-AdirondackVoices)
KEYWORDS: love separation return home
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bethke-AdirondackVoices, pp. 118-119, "My Little Rambling Rose" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2979
File: Beth118

My Little Sister Dressed In Pink
DESCRIPTION: "My little sister dressed in pink, She washed the dishes in the sink. How many dishes did she break? One, two, three...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty clothes colors
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 108, "(My little sister)" (1 text)
Roud #19419
File: SuSm108B

My Little Soul's Going to Shine
DESCRIPTION: "I'm going to join the great association (x3), Then my little soul's going to shine, shine, Then my little soul's going to shine along." Other verses are shared with "Welcome Table." See notes
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)
KEYWORDS: floatingverses nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 122, "I'm Gwine to Jine de Great 'Sociation (Oh, Den My Little Soul's Gwine to Shine)" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 173 in the 1874 edition)
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, pp. 56-57, "Oh, My Little Soul'S Going to Shine" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: J. B. T. Marsh, The Story of the Jubilee Singers (London: Hodder and Stoughton, 1903 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), #28 p. 185, "Shine, Shine" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11955
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Welcome Table" (floating verses)
NOTES [81 words]: Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute has the "great association" verse, as well as "I'm going to climb up Jacob's ladder (climb up higher and higher, sit at the welcome table, feast of milk and honey, tell God how you serve me, join the big baptizing)." Work has "I'm going to tell God all my troubles," "Bury my body in the east of the garden." Marsh has "I'm going to sit at the welcome table (tell God about my trial, walk about that city)." - BS
Last updated in version 6.0
File: Dett122

My Little Yaller Coon
DESCRIPTION: "My little yaller coon Done got back here so soon, Dat I ain't yet got De big fat coon For de 'tater an' de pone, To eat in de light of de moon."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scraborough)
KEYWORDS: food animal
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 179, (no title) (1fragment)
NOTES [31 words]: Scarborough considers this a song about eating raccoons. Given the coon's diet, I rather doubt it was ever considered a delicacy; I wonder if there isn't something else going on here. - RBW
File: ScaNF179

My Lone Rock by the Sea
DESCRIPTION: "Oh tell me not the woods are fair Now spring is on the way." The singer admits the beauty of the land, "But ask me, woo me not to leave My lone rock by the sea." He describes the beauties of life by the shore
AUTHOR: Charlie C. Converse
EARLIEST DATE: 1857 (sheet music)
KEYWORDS: home sea nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 842, "My Lone Rock by the Sea" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2018, p. 135, "The Rock Beside the Sea" (1 reference)
Roud #7447
NOTES [27 words]: According to Spaeth, this tune later supplied part of the melody for "Aloha Oe." And Randolph's source noted its connection to "these fool 'Hawaiian' songs." - RBW
Last updated in version 3.5
File: R842

My Lord 'Size
DESCRIPTION: "The jailor for trial had brought up a thief" as lawyers look for work and gawkers look for sensation -- when the notice the body of Lord 'Size. Witnesses are sought and questioned. The jury is trying to reach a verdict when the body comes to life
AUTHOR: Words: John Shield
EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland)
KEYWORDS: humorous trial judge lawyer
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 142-144, "My Lord 'Size" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3164
NOTES [75 words]: According to Stokoe, this "is commemorative of an unlucky accident that actually occurred to one of Her Majesty's Judges of Assize, Baron Graham, about the year 1810." Though, in 1810, the King was George III and it wouldn't have been Her Majesty's Judge.... The whole thing reminds me very much of the Barrister's Dream in The Hunting of the Snark, though such courtroom jokes are common in English literature (see, e.g., The Pickwick Papers). - RBW
File: StoR142

My Lord Knows the Way
DESCRIPTION: "My Lord knows the way through the wilderness -- all I have to do is follow (x2). Strength for today is mine all the way, and all I need for tomorrow; My Lord knows...."
AUTHOR: Sidney E. Cox
EARLIEST DATE: 1951
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 81, "My Lord Knows the Way" (2 texts, tune under #80; sung as a medley with #80, "Heavenly Sunlight (Heavenly Sunshine)")
ST FSC081 (Full)
File: FSC081

My Lord's Riding All the Time
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "He sees all you do and He hears all you say, My Lord's a-riding all the time (x2)." Verses: "When I was down in Egypt, I heard a mighty talking about the promised land." "Come down come down my Lord come down, And take me up to wear the crown"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute); 1893 (see notes)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 150, "My Lord's a-Riding All the Time" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 98 in the 1901 edition) [for 1893 edition, see notes]
Roud #15244
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Can't Stay In Egypt Land" (theme: this world is Egypt)
NOTES [84 words]: In Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses, every alternate line is "My Lord's a-riding all the time." The index to the 1893 edition [of Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute] has "My Lord's a-riding all the time" on page 98, with the note "Fisk Jubilee Collection, by permission" (Thomas P. Fenner and Frederic G. Rathbun, Cabin and Plantation Songs (New York: G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1893)). I have not seen page 98. - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Dett150

My Love
DESCRIPTION: "My love, why art thou straying From my heart so warm and true?" The singer wonders why her love has gone to sea. Her love is not fading during his years away. She wishes she could sail with him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1879 (Journal of the Andrew Hicks)
KEYWORDS: love sailor separation nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 280-281, "My Love" (1 text, 1 tune)
My Love He Is a Sailor Lad
DESCRIPTION: "My love he is a sailor lad He's on the ocean blue." The singer says her sailor's heart is "the compass true" that points to her. She turns her head aside when landsmen smile at her and wishes for a safe breeze to bring him home.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad sailor separation
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan5 939, "My Love He Is a Sailor Lad" (1 text)
Roud #6754
File: GrD5939

My Love He Stands
DESCRIPTION: The singer thinks of when her love stood "in yon stable door ... combing down his yellow hair." He's "across the sea ... forsaken a lover true And followed the one that ye never knew" She wonders if he thinks of her.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: love separation nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1086, "My Love He Stands" (2 fragments, 1 tune)
Roud #6776
File: GrD61086

My Love in Newfoundland
DESCRIPTION: "In many lands I've wandered, In many climes I've roved... But since I crossed the water, A new light on me shine In the beauties of a daughter Of this enchanted Isle." The singer declares, "I'll toast both now and ever The Belle of Newfoundland"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1912 (Old Songs of Newfoundland)
KEYWORDS: love sailor travel beauty
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, editor, _Old Songs of Newfoundland_, James Murphy Publishing, 1912 (PDF available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 8, "My Love in Newfoundland" (1 text)
NOTES [43 words]: Murphy claims that this was written by an officer of HMS Hydra, which had been assigned to Newfoundland around 1861. He also claims it was widely sung in Newfoundland. I've seen no evidence of it being traditional, but I'm including it on that basis. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: JMOS08

My Love Is Like a Red, Red Rose
DESCRIPTION: "My love is like a red, red rose that's newly sprung in June, My love is like a melody that's sweetly sprung in June." The singer promises to love "Till all the seas gang dry" and return to his love though his voyage takes him "ten thousand mile"
AUTHOR: Robert Burns
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: love nonballad separation return beauty
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #105, "My Love Is Like a Red, Red Rose" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 140, "My Love Is Like A Red, Red Rose" (1 text)
DT, REDREDRO*
ADDITIONAL: James Kinsley, editor, Burns: Complete Poems and Songs (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #453, p. 582, "A red red rose" (1 text, 1 tune, from 1794)
Roud #12946
RECORDINGS:
Mrs. McGrath, "My Love Is Like a Red, Red Rose" (on Lomax43, LomaxCD1743)
SAME TUNE:
I Have No Pain, Dear Mother, Now (File: BrPa043B)
NOTES [50 words]: The irony of this song, of course, is that Burns himself was about as constant as -- well, we won't go into that....
I don't know if this song ever did much in tradition, but it's certainly one of the more often-printed of Burns's poems (printed, e.g., as item CXC in Palgrave's Golden Treasury). - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: FSWB140C

My Love is so Pretty
DESCRIPTION: The singer waxes lyrical in his love's praise -- telling how she turns everyone's heads with her straight, slender figure, "mouth always twittering," and "cheeks like cauliflower." He joyfully prepares for his wedding.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (Flanders/Olney-BalladsMigrantInNewEngland)
KEYWORDS: courting love marriage nonballad youth
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Flanders/Olney-BalladsMigrantInNewEngland, pp. 7-9, "My Love is so Pretty" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST FO007 (Partial)
Roud #4677
File: FO007

My Love Lays Cold Beneath My Feet
DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls telling tales by the fire. She says she would comfort her love if he appeared. But "My love's laying so cold beneath my feet." She says that he promised to marry her and no other, "but don't my love lay so cold beneath my feet".
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: early 1960s (collected from Caroline Hughes)
KEYWORDS: love death burial separation
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 61, "My Love Lays Cold Beneath My Feet" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2513
NOTES [140 words]: When Paul Stamler indexed this book, he despaired of this piece as a conglomerate. MacColl and Seeger couldn't classify it with anything, either.
Caroline Hughes seems to have been one of those unusual people who could gather together lines from all sorts of songs and produce a relatively coherent result. I strongly suspect this is the result of such a process; of the six opportunities for rhyme in the song, only three actually do rhyme, and always with the same word (e.g. "feet" is rhymed with "feet"), and stanza one has an aabc rhyme while stanza 3 is abab. (There are no rhymes in stanza two).
Most such songs have a dominant element, and we would classify them there. This song simply does not. It is, as best I can tell, absolutely unique. So I think we have to classify it separately, a de facto composition of Caroline Hughes. - RBW
File: McCST061
My Love She's but a Lassie Yet (I)

DESCRIPTION: "My love, she's but a lassie yet (x2), We'll let her stand a year or twa, She'll no be half sae saucy yet!" Singer tells of a hard courtship, calls for more drink, and concludes, "The minister kisst the fiddler's wife, He couldna preach for thinkin' o't."

AUTHOR: Words: Robert Burns
EARLIEST DATE: 1803 (_Scots Musical Museum_ #225); cf. Tom Thumb's Pretty Song Book of c. 1744
KEYWORDS: courting love youth drink nonballad clergy
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1871, "We're A' Dry wi' the Drinkin' O't" (1 text)
Meredith/Cowell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, p. 226, "My Love is but a Lassie Yet" (1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 524, "My love, she's but a Lassie Yet" (3 texts)
DT, LUVELASS*
ADDITIONAL: James Kinsley, editor, _Burns: Complete Poems and Songs_ (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #293, pp. 409-410, "My love she's but a lassie yet" (1 text, 1 tune from 1790)
James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume III, #225, p. 234, "My love she's but a Lassie yet" (1 text, 1 tune)
Robert Chambers, _The Scottish Songs_ (Edinburgh, 1829), Vol II, p. 473, "My Love, She's But a Lassie Yet"
ST MCB226 (Full)
Roud #8979
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Lady Badinscoth's Reel" (tune, per Burns)
cf. "Green Grow the Rashes" (tune, per Greig/Duncan8)
NOTES [133 words]: The verse, "We're all dry wi' the drinkin' o't... The minister kisst the fiddler's wife, He couldna preach for thinkin' o't" precedes Burns; it appeared (in a more English version) in the _Pretty Songs of Tommy Thumb_ in 1744 (see Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #23, p. 37). This is also in Herd's manuscript of 1776. Whether there is more to the piece than that I do not know. - RBW
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes: "This song fragment ... had all the while quietly been residing in the English nursery, where it appeared about 1744.... Burns also borrowed the title 'My Love, she's but a Lassie yet' The tune appears in Walsh's _Caledonian Country Dances_ (c.1740), and in Johnson's _Twelve Country Dances_ (1749) under the title 'Foot's Vagaries', as well as in the _Museum." - BS
Last updated in version 3.0
File: MCB226

My Love She's But a Lassie Yet (II)

DESCRIPTION: The singer loves beautful Jean, fears her scorn, and says "I'll love thee ... till life's last close" If he were rich he'd give "a monarch's ransom for thy hand"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: courting love beauty nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #70, pp. 2-3, "My Love She's But a Lassie Yet" (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan4 733, "My Love She's But a Lassie Yet" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6166
File: GrD4733

My Love's a Plooman

DESCRIPTION: "My love is a ploughman and follows the plough." The singer has promised the ploughman that she will love him. She says she will be true and never rue her promise.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Greig/Duncan3)
My Love's Gien Me

DESCRIPTION: "My love's gien me a gay gold ring," says the singer, "but I've gien him a better thing." In the garden there is a straw bee-hive "full o' honey The lad that loes his lassie weel Will never want for money."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: ring sex money nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

- Greig/Duncan8 1846, "My Love's Gien Me" (1 text)

Roud #13595

File: GrD81846

---

My Lovely Irish Rose

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls leaving Mary, his "lovely Irish Rose," and sailing to America. "The strangers' land is fair to see, the strangers too are kind," but he'd rather be home. Nothing compares with Mary and "those many happy days spent with my Irish Rose"

AUTHOR: Fred Kearney (source: McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen)

EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (ITMA/CapeShoreNL)

KEYWORDS: love emigration farewell home separation America Ireland

FOUND IN: Ireland Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

- McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen 51, "My Lovely Irish Rose" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
- Eta Nash, "The Lovely Irish Rose" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)

NOTES [29 words]: McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen: "This song is common all over Ireland thanks mainly to recordings of it done on 78 rpm records in the 1930' and 40's." - BS

Last updated in version 4.5

File: McB1051

---

My Lovie She's Little

DESCRIPTION: The singer says his love is little, with "handsome foot" and "weel-made middle." He wishes she would fancy him. If she were ale the sight of her would warm him on the coldest night. He would buy her new shoes.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan5)

KEYWORDS: courting love clothes nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
My Lovin' Father (When the World's On Fire)

DESCRIPTION: "My lovin' father, When the world's on fire, Don't you want God's bosom For to be your pillow? Hide me, oh thou, in the rock of ages, Rock of ages, cleft for me." (Similarly with mother and perhaps other relatives)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Carter Family)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Randolph 637, "My Lovin' Father" (1 short text, 1 tune)
- Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, p. 174, "Oh My Lovin' Brothuh" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Arnold-FolkSongsOfAlabama, p. 137, "When the World's On Fire" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST R637 (Full)

Roud #4225 and 5119

RECORDINGS:
- The Carter Family, "When the World's On Fire" (Victor V-40293, 1930; Bluebird B-1836. 1932; Montgomery Ward M-4229/Bluebird B-5006/Sunrise S-3127, 1933; Bluebird 33-0537, 1945)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "This Land Is Your Land" (tune)

SAME TUNE:
- Charlie Monroe's Boys "(New) When the World's On Fire" (Montgomery Ward M-7574, 1938)

NOTES [25 words]: The version of this recorded by the Carter Family, or one of its relatives, is probably the tune-source for Woody Guthrie's "This Land Is Your Land." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: R637

My Lucky and I

DESCRIPTION: Lucky and the singer went to the mill. Lucky fell in and drowned herself. He pulled her out by her hair but she was dead.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)

KEYWORDS: drowning hair death

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Greig/Duncan7 1515, "My Lucky and I" (1 fragment)

Roud #7174

File: GrD71515

My Lula Lou

DESCRIPTION: "On the banks of the noble Cumberland I spent many happy hours Wandering there with my Lula Lou, Kentucky's sweetest flower." "She buckled on my sabre there." "The fatal shot has done its work"; now he waits for her to join him

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands)

KEYWORDS: soldier separation love

FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, pp. 124-125, "My Lula Lou" (1 text)
ST Fus124 (Partial)
Roud #16367
NOTES [34 words]: The ending of this song, at least as found in Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, is confused: The boy is shot, "and fainted and fell, and fell as dead," but "to-day his heart faints for your voice." - RBW File: Fus124

My Lulu
DESCRIPTION: "My Lulu hugged and kissed me, She wrung my hand and cried, She said I was the sweetest thing That ever lived or died." The singer praises Lulu and threatens any who court her. (He will follow her anywhere, but she deserts him)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)
KEYWORDS: love courting separation abandonment floating verses
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 378, "My Lulu" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 178, "Lulu" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 182-184, "Lulu" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #82, "Old Corn Whisky" (1 text 1 tune)
ST San378 (Full)
Roud #3435
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Pig at Home in the Pen" (floating lyrics)
NOTES [21 words]: I suppose this could be a clean version of one of the "Bang Away, Lulu" songs, but the scansion appears slightly different. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.2
File: San378

My Ma Was Born in Texas
DESCRIPTION: "My ma was born in Texas, my pa in Tennessee," and the singer was born as they moved to California. He left home to become a cowboy. He married a girl; she proved to have seven children. He caught her with another man and shot him; he is sentenced to life
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966
KEYWORDS: courting infidelity homicide prison punishment
FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 33, "My Ma Was Born in Texas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4808
NOTES [83 words]: This was collected by Edith Fowke in Lakefield, Ontario. Don't ask me how an item about the American South got there.
Possibly this is related to an item that reportedly came from World War I: "My mama was born in Germany, My daddy was born in France, I was born in my BVD's, And I ain't gonna wear no pants."
For this, see NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, F. Roy Johnson, "A Sampling of Eastern Oral Folk Humor," Vol. XXIII, No. 1 (Feb 1975), p. 10, "(My mama was born in Germany)" (1 short text). -
RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: FCW33

My Maggie She Can Wash
DESCRIPTION: Farmer Gordie Duff met Maggie at Porter Fair and he hired her as "dairy maid and gave her right good pa.y" "My Maggie she can wash ... shew ... patch a coat ... like new ... darn ... keep a hoose and ... fireside ... she's aye my joy and pride"
My Mammy Don't Love Me

DESCRIPTION: "My mammy don't love me, She won't by me no shoes, Won't give me no cornlicker, Won't tell me no news." The man asks what he has done: "killed nobody, I've done no hanging crime." She(?) says that a man who mistreats her will treat others the same

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: hardtimes drink crime punishment execution
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 314, "My Mammy Don't Love Me" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 314, "My Mammy Don't Love Me" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
NOTES [34 words]: The text in Brown is so short as to be almost meaningless; is it the story of a wild woman separated from her husband? Of a wild boy? It may well include floating material which adds to the confusion. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Br3314

My Mammy Stole a Cow

DESCRIPTION: "Steal up, young ladies, My mammy stole a cow. Steal up, my darlin' chile, My mammy stole a cow." "Stoled that cow im Baltimo', My mammy stole a cow." "Steal all around, don't slight no one, My mammy stole a cow."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: dancetune theft animal
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 116, "My Mammy Stole a Cow" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [24 words]: Scarborough claims that the reported theft in this song is "used merely as an excuse to bring in the directions of stealing up in the dance." - RBW
File: ScaNF116

My Mammy Told Me (Don't Marry No Girl You Know)

DESCRIPTION: "My mammy told me long years ago, 'Son, don't you marry no girl you know. Spend all your money, sell all your clothes, Then what'll become of you the Lord only knows."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: marriage warning
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 316, "My Mammy Told Me" (3 short texts)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 316, "My Mammy Told Me" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
File: Br3316
My Man's Gone
DESCRIPTION: "My man's gone now. He had to go. He couldn't find no work around this town. Not for ages; used his wages. Got up this morning, and he was gone." He takes to the railroad on a rainy Monday to seek work. She wonders how John is doing as he travels.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry)
KEYWORDS: worker hardtimes poverty separation railroading
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 69, "My Man's Gone" (1 text, 1 tune) (p. 43 in the 1972 edition)
Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, p. 102, "My Man's Gone" (1 text, 1 tune)
Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, p. 164, "My Man's Gone" (1 text)
RECORDINGS:
Marilyn Bennet, "My Man's Gone" (on NZSongYngCntry)
File: Colq043

My Mary of the Curling Hair
DESCRIPTION: "My Mary of the curling hair, The laughing teeth and bashful air, Our bridal morn is dawning fair." They have been close since infancy. Even so, "My cheek is pale and wan for you," but now all is ending happily
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster_)
KEYWORDS: love marriage hair
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 68, "Mary of the Curling Hair" (1 text)
Roud #22751
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Shule Agra (Shool Aroo[n], Buttermilk Hill, Johnny's Gone for a Soldier)" (lyrics)
File: HMHS068A

My Master and I
DESCRIPTION: "Says the master to me, Is it true that I'm told, Your name on the books of the Union's enrolled?" The master says that he can't keep working with a disturber of the peace, and can't pay higher wages. The worker says there is no need to quarrel
AUTHOR: Howard Evans (source: Palmer)
EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (Henderson-VictorianStreetBallads)
KEYWORDS: farming worker labor-movement political food
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Palmer-ThePainfulPlow, #17, "My Master and I" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henderson-VictorianStreetBallads, p. 123, "My Master and I" (1 text)
ST PaPa017 (Partial)
File: PaPa017

My Master Sent Me
DESCRIPTION: "My master sent me to you, sir. For what, sir? To do with one as I do, sir."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)
KEYWORDS: nonballad playparty
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #69, "My Master Sent Me" (1 short text)
File: Newe069
My Master's Gun (I'm a Prentice Boy, My Name Is Bob)
DESCRIPTION: "I'm a 'prentice boy, my name is Bob... They bound me to a dirty 'snob.'" Resenting his master, he takes the master's gun and enlists in the Spanish army. There, he claims, he proves such a fine fighter that they label him the British Bonaparte
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Purslow-TheConstantLovers)
KEYWORDS: bragging work escape soldier
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, p. 11, "The British Buonaparte" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1657
File: PCL011

My Meg
DESCRIPTION: The singer is in the local pub telling "my great deeds And ither great things o' the nation" when his brother Jim tells him to go home "for your Meg she is gettin' a bairn." It's good to have a good wife "your joys and your sorrows to be sharin'."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: marriage bragging drink
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1274, "My Meg" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7189
File: GrD71274

My Minnehasin Come from China
DESCRIPTION: "My Minnehasin come from hina, Me lika Els 'cause she lika me." The singer wishes to marry Els, mote back to China, and eat rats and mice. He lives in Bottle Alley. He gets married; his wife gets drunk. The story is told in a strong fake accent.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah)
KEYWORDS: love courting China humorous discrimination drink marriage travel
FOUND IN: US(Ro)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #88, "My Minnehasin Come from China" (1 text)
Roud #10916
File: Hubb088

My Mither Built a Wee, Wee House
DESCRIPTION: The singer says "How can I keep my maidenhead Amang sae many men?" "My mither built a tiny house To keep me frae the men." The walls fell. "The Captain had a guinea for't,
The Colonel he bad ten." No silver: "I'll give it to a bonnie lad" as mother did.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1824 (Sharpe)
KEYWORDS: sex virginity money nonballad mother
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1727, "Hi Tak the Bonnie Lassie" (1 text)
DT, HOWKEEP
ADDITIONAL: Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe, A Ballad Book (Edinburgh, 1891, reprint of 1824 edition), Vol I, #18 p. 47, "My Mither Built a Wee, Wee House"
Roud #13128
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "There's Nae Luck Aboot the Hoose" (tune, per Greig/Duncan8)
My Mither Is Turnin' Auld
DESCRIPTION: The singer's mother is getting old and would have her child behave but if she were young again she'd behave just like the rest.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: nonballad mother age
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1422, "My Mither Is Turnin' Auld" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7266
NOTES [10 words]: The current description is based on the Greig/Duncan7 text. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD71422

My Mither Was a Cankert Fairy
DESCRIPTION: The singer complains that her ill-natured mother would not let her court Harry, who has left her. "I hae nane but Jocky only." She wishes "Jockie wad but steal me"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: courting nonballad mother
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1342, "My Mither Was a Cankert Fairy" (1 text)
Roud #7224
File: GrD71342

My Mother
DESCRIPTION: "I know a dear old lady, whose voice is soft and low, Her face is like some picture, a dream of long ago." "She is not great or famous." "Her life's a living sermon." "Her presence is a garden of ever-blooming flowers... Which time can never wither."
AUTHOR: Larry Chittenden (?) (Source: Finger-FrontierBallads)
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Finger-FrontierBallads)
KEYWORDS: mother nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Finger-FrontierBallads, p. 142, "My Mother" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #8837
File: Fing142

My Mother and Your Mother (I)
DESCRIPTION: "My mother and your mother Were hanging out clothes; My mother came to your mother And snipped off her nose."
My Mother Died A-Shouting

DESCRIPTION: "My mother died a-shouting, I hope she's gone to glory. The last words I heard her say Was about Jesualem... I'm traveling to the grave, Lord, To lay this body down."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore)
KEYWORDS: religious death nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, pp. 244-245, "My Mother Died A-Shouting" (1 text)
Roud #18155
File: KiWa244M

My Mother Gave Me a Necklace

DESCRIPTION: Mother gives a necklace, father a dime, sister a lover-boy "who kissed me all the time." Mother takes the necklace, father the dime, sister the lover-boy "and gave me Frankenstein." He makes her work so she kicks him out.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: playparty father lover mother sister monster
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame, p. 478, ("My mother gave me a necklace") (1 text)
NOTES [68 words]: Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame: "Derived from the skipping rhyme 'Nine o'clock is striking' ["My Boyfriend Gave Me An Apple"], especially the early American versions ... (JAFL, xxxix, pp. 84-5) [Winifred Smith, "A Modern Child's Game Rhymes" in The Journal of American Folklore, Vol. XXXIX, No. 151 (Jan 1926 (available online by JSTOR)), #18 pp. 84-85 ("Twelve o'clock striking") (1 text)]." I don't see it. - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: OpGa478B
My Mother Is a Baker

DESCRIPTION: "My mother is a baker, she bakes like this, Yummy, yummy." "My father is a butcher, he smells like this, Yummy, yummy, Pooey, pooey" Then, modeller sister, cowboy brother, flasher grandpa, hairdresser grannie. The last line of each verse is cumulative.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: cumulative playparty family food
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 149, "My Mother Is a Baker" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
 cf. "When Susie Was a Baby" (tune, per Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
File: 0p6a149

My Mother Said (Gypsies in the Wood)

DESCRIPTION: "My mother said that I never should Play with the gypsies in the wood. The wood was dark; the grass was green; In came Sally with a tamborine." "I went to the sea -- no ship to get across... Sally tell my mother I shall never come back."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1870 (Kilvert, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: playparty Gypsy mother separation floatingverses
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North,West)) New Zealand
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 362, "My mother said that I never should" (1 fragment)
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame, pp. 441-442, "(My mother said That I never should)" (2 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #603, p. 240, "(My mother said that I never should)"
ADDITIONAL: M.C. Balfour, County Folklore (London, 1904 ("Digitized by Google")), Vol. IV, p. 120, "("My mother said that I should not") (1 text) [see note]
John Devenish Hoppus, Riverside Papers (London, 1882 ("Digitized by Google")), Vol. I, pp. 91-92, ("My mother said") (1 text)
Neil C. Hultin, "The Songs and Ballads of R.F. Kilvert [1840-1879]" in Folklore, Vol. XXVIII, No. 2 (1981 (available online by JSTOR)), pp. 182-183 ("My Mother said that I never should") (4 texts)
Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, third edition, 1928 (type reset 1953), p. 535, ("My Mother said that I never should") (1 short text)
Roud #13187
NOTES [155 words]: The second verse of this, of course, floats in part; I have no idea whether it was originally integral to this song, which is thought to be quite old though the Baring-Goulds claim it was not published before de la Mare in 1922. The Opies also consider this the first multi-verse published version, but mention sources who seem to remember it from the nineteenth century. They also note some curious classical relatives of the tune. - RBW
The Balfour text is eight lines. The first four are "My Mother Said (Gypsies in the Wood)"; the last four are "Mrs Brown Went to Town."
The references for this song in Hultin are for "songs and games recalled [from] Kilvert's own youth and [for which] he expressed surprise at the longevity of such material." Only one of the texts quoted are Kilvert's. The others are from Brian Sutton-Smith, _The Games of New Zealand Children_ and Leslie Daiken, _Children's Games Throughout the Year_. - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: BGMG603

My Mother Said that I Must Go

DESCRIPTION: "My mother said that I must go To fetch my father's dinner, o. Chappit tatties, beef and steak, Two red herrings, and a bawbee bake."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Montgomerie)
KEYWORDS: mother father food nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
My Mother Was a Lady

DESCRIPTION: Two (drummers) come to a hotel for dinner, and harass the waitress. Eventually she bursts out, "My mother was a lady... I came to this great city To find a brother dear...." One drummer knows her brother, and offers to marry her

AUTHOR: Words: Edward B. Marks / Music: Joseph. W. Stern

KEYWORDS: family servant brother separation marriage

FOUND IN: US(MA,MW) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Pound-AmericanBalladsAndSongs, 107, pp. 218-220, "The Two Drummers" (1 text)
- Bethke-AdirondackVoices, pp. 121-122, "Mother Was a ady (Or, If Only Jack Were Here") (1 text, 1 tune)
- DT, MTHLADY
- ADDITIONAL: Robert A. Fremont, editor, _Favorite Songs of the Nineties_, Dover Publications, 1973, pp. 208-211, "Mother Was A Lady. or If Jack Were Only Here" (1 text, 1 tune, the 1896 sheet music)

Roud #2982

RECORDINGS:
- Mack Allen [pseud., for Vernon Dalhart], "Mother Was a Lady" (Harmony 721-H, 1928)
- Arkansas Woodchopper [pseud. for Luther Ossenbrink], "If Brother Jack Were Here" (Supertone 9628, 1930)
- Ted Chestnut, "My Mother Was A Lady" (Gennett 6480 [as Ted Chesnut]/Champion 15524 [as Cal Turner]/Supertone 9180 [as Alvin Bunch], 1928)
- Jerry Colonna, "My Mother Was A Lady" (Columbia 35371, 1940)
- Walter Dalton, "If Brother Jack Were Here" (Perfect 12468, 1928)
- Morgan Denmon, "The Two Drummers" (OKeh 45306, 1929; rec. 1927)
- Warde Ford, "My mother was a lady (Brother Jack)" (AFS 4201 A1, 1938; tr.; in AMMEM/Cowell)
- Beatrice Kay & the Elm City 4, "My Mother Was a Lady" (Columbia 35460, 1940)
- Jimmie Rodgers, "If Brother Jack Were Here" (Victor 21433, 1928; Bluebird B-5482, 1934; Victor 23193, n.d.; rec. 1927)
- Joan Sullivan, "My Mother Was a Lady" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
- Arnold Keith Storm, "Two Drummers" (on AKStorm01)
- Frankie Wallace [pseud. for Frankie Marvin], "If Brother Jack Were Here" (Domino 0261, c. 1928)

NOTES [299 words]: "Drummer" = "salesman." - PJS

Finson, pp. 77-78, quotes Edward Marks as writing, "It was a German restaurant on Twentieth Street, and some of the male customers were joshing a new waitress.... The girl, a comely, simple sort... burst into tears. 'No one would dare insult me,' she said, 'if my brother Jack was only here.' And she added, 'My mother was a lady.' Meyer Cohen, known as 'the Califora tenor,' a favorite ballad singer, was at our table and suggested the possibilities of this line as a song title. Stern and I wrote it that afternoon, and Meyer introduced it at [Tony] Pastor's the next day."

Jasen, p. 3, reports that "Edward B. Marks (1865-1945) was a young notions salesman who liked to write lyrics." Having published a song, "December and May," in 1893 through Frank Harding's music publishing house and being dissatisfied with the royalties, he went into business for himself. "He teamed with another salesman who could write melodies, Joseph W. Stern. They opened a small office in 1894 and issued their first collaboration, 'The Little Lost Child,' that same year. With the help of music hall singers Della Fox and Lottie Gilson, the song became a hit and established the firm of Joseph W. Stern & Company as a major voice in Tin Pan Alley. Marks also created the illustrated song slide, which was used in music theatres to help the audience visualize the lyrics through a series of action and sentimental photographs and illustrations."

The other Marks/Stein collaboration in the Index is, not surprisingly, "The Little Lost Child." Lottie Gilson, the single most important influence in popularizing this song, was known as "The Little Magnet" because of the crowds she drew. She was also responsible for popularizing "The Sidewalks of New York" (Jasen, pp. 26-27). - RBW

Bibliography
My Mother-In-Law

DESCRIPTION: Dialect song. The singer grumbles "My life is all troubles... I'd rather be sent off to jail or to Congress Dan live all my life mit my mother-in-law." He complains of her ugliness. He claims she beats him. He says he married his wife, not her family.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: family abuse humorous

FOUND IN: US(Ro,So)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 140, "My Mother-In-Law" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Randolph 395, "My Mother-In-Law" (1 text)
- High-OldOldFolkSongs, p. 16, "My Mother-in-law" (1 text)
- Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #132, "My Mother-In-Law" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #74, "My Mother-In-Law" (1 text, not in dialect)
- Roud #4650

File: R395

My Mother's Last Goodbye

DESCRIPTION: Charlie "left my dear old homestead and went away to sea" after his parents tell him "let no false pride make you forget the loving ones at home," When he returns his parents have died. "My gold it had no joy for me for all its joys was fled"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)

KEYWORDS: rambling return separation death gold father mother

FOUND IN: Ireland Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen 20, "Darling Son" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9705

RECORDINGS:
- Tom Finlay, "Mother's Last Goodbye" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
- James McDermott, "My Mother's Last Goodbye" (on Voice12)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "There's No One Like Mother to Me" (subject)

File: RcMMoLaG

My Mother's On That Train

DESCRIPTION: "Well," ("my mother/sister/father)'s on that train, Going around the mountain" (2x).) "The bells go ding, dong, The whistle go wah"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1967 (USMississippi01)

KEYWORDS: nonballad death train religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

RECORDINGS:
- Mary Alice and Alan McGowan, "My Mother's On That Train" (on USMississippi01)

NOTES [213 words]: The description is all of the three verse spiritual as sung by Mary Alice and Alan McGowan.

Regarding the symbolism of the train as death in Spirituals: "In their Prometheus' struggle towards the light, the singers saw death as a necessary prerequisite..."
in order to enter into the real world. Often the singers' symbol of death was a boat or ship crossing the river of Jordan. Here original symbols were preserved to denote death:

Tis the old ship of Zion,
Get on board, get on board.
"However, a new concept was retained by a vital symbolism in the slave's everyday experience. Death was emphasized as the 'same train.' This train carried off his mother, father, sister, and brother. The continuation of this process of death can be seen in the repetition of the term 'same train' three times. The train will be back tomorrow for him.

Same train, same train, same train
Carry my mother,
Same train be back to-morrow.
"Death was not an end, but the means of entering into God's eternity. As heaven was the true home, eternity was the true time. This view has many elements of the utopianism of Voltaire's Candide."

(Weyman B. McLaughlin, "Symbolism and Mysticism in the Spirituals" in Phylon (1960-) Vol. 24, No. 1 (1st Qtr., 1963 (available online by JSTOR)), pp. 74-75.) - BS

Last updated in version 5.1
File: RcM07ThT

My Mule

DESCRIPTION: "The other day I had some cash, And then I thought I'd cut a dash," so the singer bought a mule. The mule throws him, dirties his clothes, injures him. The singer hits the mule; it runs and kicks and throws him. It's easier to get on a mule than off.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (Morris, Southern Folklore Quarterly)
KEYWORDS: animal humorous commerce injury clothes
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
*Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #108, "My Mule" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #5030
File: Morr108

My Mummy Told Me

DESCRIPTION: "My Mommy told me" she would buy a rubber dolly if I was good. "Don't you tell her," or someone/Auntie told her "I kissed a soldier"; she won't buy me a rubber dolly.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c.1910 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: courting playparty mother
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
*Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 134, "My Mummy Told Me" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #17597
RECORDINGS:
Mississippi John Hurt, "Rubber Dolly" (on MJHurt04)
NOTES [108 words]: Andrew Kuntz's Fiddler's Companion site: "According to Bronner (1987), 'Rubber Dolly' was first collected as an Anglo-American children's game with the following words or variants (which may have come from a music-hall song of the 1890's)."
Among the recordings is "My Wubba Dolly" by Ella Fitzgerald (1939, Decca 91839-A) (source: the Ella Fitzgerald site).
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame: ".: may have been given a boost by Shirley Ellis's pop version [Congress 234, according to the Shirley Ellis discography on the Spectro Pop Express site], 'The Clapping Song', 1965 [which includes the 'Rubber Dolly' verse and 'Three, Six, Nine', among others]." - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: OpGa134
My Name is Ben Hall
DESCRIPTION: "My name is Ben Hall, from Murrurundi I came; The cause of my turn-out you all know the same... I was forced to the bush my sorrows to drown." Hall recalls his skill as a robber, and toasts his imprisoned companions
AUTHOR: Tune fitted by J. S. Manifold
EARLIEST DATE: 1964
KEYWORDS: abuse outlaw police Australia
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, p. 47, "My Name is Ben Hall" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Ben Hall" (plot, subject) and references there
NOTES [34 words]: Based on something found in Paterson's Old Bush Songs, but significantly modified by Manifold. The result probably does not qualify as traditional. For background, see the several other Ben Hall songs. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: PASB047

My Name Is Dick Bradley
DESCRIPTION: "My name is Dick Bradley, A boy as loves pleasure, In courtin' and kissin' I spends all my leisure, For Toping and Fuddling, I am always so ready, And I never will give over, While my name is Dick Bradley." The singer talks of his toping
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1981 (Cologne/Morrison-WiltshireFolkSongs)
KEYWORDS: drink travel courting
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cologne/Morrison-WiltshireFolkSongs, p. 57, "My Name Is Dick Bradley" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #23617
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, B 22(134), "The Jolly Toper, A New Song," unknown, N.D.
File: CoMo057

My Name is Edward Broderick
DESCRIPTION: "My name is Edward Broderick, I was born in Illinois." "A boiler maker I'm by trade." One day "A hot iron chip struck me in my right eye." After he recovers, another chip costs him the sight in the other eye. He hopes somehow to survive by running a shop
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Oster)
KEYWORDS: disability work hardtimes technology
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 475-476, "My Name is Edward Broderick" (1 text)
File: CAFS2475

My Name is Edward Gallovan
DESCRIPTION: Edward Gallovan from Wexford courts Mary Riley. He tells her they will sail to America with 20 pounds she has saved. He kills her intending to use her money to escape. The body is found. He is convicted and executed.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick)
KEYWORDS: courting execution homicide trial gallows-confession
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
My Name is Edward Kelly
DESCRIPTION: The early adventures of Ned Kelly, told in the first person. He turned to robbing when his sister was harassed by police. He has escaped all attempts to catch him. He hopes to die in battle like Donahue rather than be treated like a government slave
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Manifold)
KEYWORDS: outlaw Australia escape abuse
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1855 - Birth of Ned Kelly
1880 - Execution of Kelly. His last words are reported to have been "Such is life."
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 112-114, "My Name is Edward Kelly" (1 text, 1 tune)
Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, pp. 64-65, "My Name is Edward Kelly" (1 text, 1 tune)
Paterson/Fahey/Seal-OldBushSongs-CentenaryEdition, pp. 91-93, "My Name is Edward Kelly" (1 text)
Roud #22599
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Kelly Was Their Captain" (subject) and notes and references there
NOTES [96 words]: This song dates itself to Kelly's twenty-fourth year. Despite his hope to die in battle, he was captured and executed the next year. John S. Manifold, Who Wrote the Ballads? Notes on Australian Folksong, Australasian Book Society, 1964, p. 75, observing that the song mentions neither Euroa nor Jerilderie, thinks this may be one of the oldest Ned Kelly songs. Edward "Ned" Kelly and his gang are perhaps the most famous of all Australian bushrangers. For some anecdotes of his life, in addition to the cross-referenced songs, see the notes to "Kelly Was Their Captain." - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: FaE112

My Name is Laban Childers
DESCRIPTION: A song of a volunteer who served in the First World War. He describes how troops were assembled and trained, with many local young men leaving their homes and work. His friend Martin Borders is killed. He says he will not forget
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)
KEYWORDS: war soldier work separation death
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 99-100, (no title) (1 text)
File: ThBa099

My Name is McNamara
DESCRIPTION: "My name in McNamara And I come from County Clare...." "Our little farm was My Name is Yon Yonson

DESCRIPTION: "My name is Yon Yonson, I come from Wisconsin, I work in the lumber mills there, Ven I walk down the street, all the people I meet, say, 'Hello, vot's your name?' and I say...." and repeat until someone rebels

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Sinclair Lewis, _Dodsworth_)
KEYWORDS: humorous cumulative
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
- ADDITIONAL: Walker D. Wyman, _Wisconsin Folklore_, University of Wisconsin Extension (?), 1979, pp. 71, ("My Name is Yon Yonson") (1 text)
- Sinclair Lewis, _Dodsworth_, 1929

NOTES: The form quoted in the description does not appear to be original. Wyman's version is not in dialect (I've quoted James F. Leisy's text, even though I've never heard a Norwegian who could pronounce "th" but could not pronounce "w"; it's either or neither). Also, Wyman's last line is simply "All the people I meet Ask how I came to be there." I suspect the latter form would not have been remembered had not someone "circularized" the poem. But since no author is known, there are variant texts, and Leisy has a tune, this might be a folk song. So here it is.

Credit to Jim Dixon for pointing out to me the 1929 version in Sinclair Lewis's _Dodsworth_. This is a version in true Scandihoovian dialect, and properly circular: "Ven I go down de street, All de people I meet, Dey saaaaaay, 'Vot's your name?' And I sa-aaaaay: My name is Yon Yonson...."

As early as 1895, there was a play presented at the Columbia Theatre in New York, "Yon Yonson," featuring Gus Heege. Wikipedia says that this play (written in 1890) was part of Heege's "Swedish Immigrant" trilogy of plays. But I don't know if it is related to this. RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
File: xMNIYY

My Name's Been Written Down

DESCRIPTION: "How'd you know your name been written down? (x2) On the wall, oh, it's been written down. (x2) Oh, the angel told me, been written down. (x2) Well, the Lord told me, been written down. (x2) Ain't you glad your name been written down. (x2)" Etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1963
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):

- Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 67-68, (no title) (1 text); pp. 244-245, "My Name's Been Written Down" (1 tune, partial text)
My Nannie, O

DESCRIPTION: The singer hears Sandy moaning about Nannie. The young men envy him. His father recommends he marry a laird's daughter. Sandy says, "I would marry the laird's dochter I would die for my Nannie" He'd rather have Nannie "than Jenny wi' ten thousand mark"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1697 (broadside, Bodleian Johnson a.57(24c))
KEYWORDS: courting love sex money father cards
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig/Duncan4 919, "Some Delights in Cards and Dice" (3 fragments, 2 tunes)
Roud #6242
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Johnson a.57(24c)[many illegible words], "The Scotch Wooing of Willy and Nanny" ("As I went forth one morning fair"), P. Brooksby (London), 1672-1696; also Douce Ballads 2(194a) [many illegible words], "The Scotch Wooing of Willy and Nanny"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sunday Night" (some lines)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Nannie O
NOTES [440 words]: The Greig/Duncan4 fragments are all a verse and chorus or less. The differences among the three are primarily the name of the girl: Nannie, Sandy, or Mary. The Nannie version begins "Some delights in cards and dice, And some delights in brandy O, Some delights in a red red rose, The colour o' my Nannie O." Here is the corresponding verse in "Willy and Nanny": "Some takes delight in cards and dice and other some in dancing O, But I take delight in a bonny lass and her name is called Nanny O."
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame points out that Ramsay wrote a more sophisticated version of this fragment: "While some for pleasure pawn their health, 'Twixt Lais and the Bagno, I'll save myself, and without stealth, Kiss and caress my Nanny - O... I care not though the world know How dearly I love Nanny - O" (source: Allan Ramsay, The Poems of Allan Ramsay (London, 1800 ("Digitized by Google")), Vol. II, 23, pp. 151-152, "Nanny O").
Hogg and Motherwell: "We are indebted to that indefatigable collector of our Scottish Minstrelsy, Mr. Peter Buchan, for the following copy of the elder lyric, which probably awakened the muse of both Ramsay and Burns."
The two Bodleian broadsides are different issues by the same printer. Between them I can see most of the ten verses and chorus. The Buchan text of seven verses and a chorus shares most of four verses and the chorus with the broadsides. The description follows Buchan. Of the shared texts the following are connections to the Greig/Duncan4 fragments "Some Delights in Cards and Dice" ("Some delight in cards and dice, And other some in brandy, O, But my delight's in a bonnie lass, Her name is lovely Nannie, O"), and "Sunday Night" ("Nae friend nor foe shall ever know, The love I bear to Nannie, O").
See also Bodleian, Douce Ballads 1(2b), "An Answer to Nanny O" or "The Happy Agreement between the two Scotch lovers, Willy & Nancy" ("Art thou so loyal to thy love"), P. Brooksby (London), 1672-1696, an answer to Bodleian, Douce Ballads 2(194a).
The Greig/Duncan4 fragment reminds me of the fragments of "The Golden Vanity" and its parodies: "Some were playing cards and some were playing dice" (see references for "Louisiana Lowlands"). A phrase containing "cards and "dice" is also in "The Rantin' Laddie" (the singer says "Aften hae I playd at the cards and the dice, For the love of a bonie rantin laddie") and "The Sorrowful Maiden" (whose father "was so rash in his Spending ... At Cards and Dice"). Another reference is in the 1703 broadside "The Banishment of Poverty" ("I dought nor dance to pipe or harp, I had no stock for Cards and Dice") (source: NLScotland, APS.4.94.22) - BS

Last updated in version 2.6
File: GrD4919
My Native Hame

DESCRIPTION: "Far far frae thee my native hame across the mountains high." The singer misses "the heather hills and glens." He would like to return where there are "no black coal pits ... but air aye pure and clear ... where the Ythan water rins"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: homesickness travel mining nonballad home

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 523, "My Native Hame" (1 text)

Roud #6005

CROSS-REFERENCES:
f. "Go Bring My Guid Auld Harp Once Mair" (tune, per Greig/Duncan3)

File: GrD3523

My Native Highland Home

DESCRIPTION: Scotland's winters are harsh but "colder far's the Scotsmans heart" not warmed by the words "My native Highland home." The singer asks his sweetheart to go with him to live in Scotland; he describes the pleasures of Scotland's summer.

AUTHOR: Thomas Morton (source: Morton)

EARLIEST DATE: 1816 (Thomas Morton, _The Slave_, according to John S Dwight, _Dwight's Journal of Music: A Paper of Art and Literature, (Boston, 1877 ("Digitized by Google")), Vol. XXXV, p. 316)

KEYWORDS: courting home travel Scotland nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1892, "My Native Highland Home" (1 text)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 265-266, "My Highland Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1511, p. 103, "My Highland Home" (2 references)

Roud #13215

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 c.17(292), "My Native Highland Home" ("My Highland home, where tempests blow"), W. Armstrong (Liverpool), 1820-1824; also Firth b.26(103), Harding B 12(64), Harding B 17(207a)[3 verses instead of 2], "My Native Highland Home"; Johnson Ballads fol. 20, Harding B 11(342), Harding B 15(215a), "Native Highland Home"; Harding B 19(30) [some words illegible], Firth c.26(101) [some words illegible], Harding B 15(211b), Harding B 11(3761), "My Highland Home"; Johnson Ballads 1330, 2806 c.14(37), 2806 c.17(166), 2806 c.17(165), Harding B 17(128a)[6 verses instead of 2], Harding B 11(1538), "Highland Home"
LOCSinging, sb30301b, "My Highland Home" ("My Highland home, where tempests blow"), H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864; also sb20167a, as202540, "My Highland Home"
Murray, Mu23-y1:026, "My Native Highland Home," James Lindsay (Glasgow), 19C
NOTES [136 words]: Two of the Bodleian broadsides add to Morton's lines. Harding B 17(207a)[, "My Native Highland Home" ("My highland home where tempest blow"), J. Wheeler (Manchester), 1827-1847] adds a final verse: "When Charley brave, our scottish king, In the highlands braw was bred, With honor to his country To valiantly he bled, We fought the French at Waterloo, When the thistle on each brow did bloom My cottage maid I sigh in vain, And my sweet highland home." Harding B 17(128a)["Highland Home" ("My Highland home, where tempest blows"), W. Carse (Glasgow), c.1825] has it that the singer would have Mary accompany him: "My Highland Home, and Mary's love, Is bliss enough for me." He continues with further description of the pleasant spring and summer. "E'en shall thy artless smile dispel The winter's sullen gloom." - BS
Last updated in version 4.2

File: GrD81892
My Neighbors Dear (The Falling Tree)
DESCRIPTION: "My neighbors dear I pray draw near, In mourning our sad fate." "We to the forest did repair... Began the cutting down a tree Which on our father fell." "Then watch and pray... At such an hour as we think not, The Son of Man will come."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1800 (Beck-FolkloreOfMaine)
KEYWORDS: death father family warning
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1800 - Death of Beriah Randall, the subject of this piece, according to Beck-FolkloreOfMaine
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-FolkloreOfMaine, pp. 259-260, "Poetry (On the Sudden Death of Mr. Beriah Randall, of Easton...." (1 excerpt from a 36 stanza poem)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Harry Dunn (The Hanging Limb)" [Laws C14] (plot) and references there NOTES [101 words]: Beck-FolkloreOfMaine declares this to be the earliest poem of a lumbering tragedy, half a century earlier than the next known instance. It is included on that basis, although there is little evidence that it was in circulation (or was even a song).
The reference in the final verse to the coming of the Son of Man is probably an allusion to Matthew 24:44 or something similar, although there are many Biblical mentions of the coming of the end and of sudden death (e.g. the Wise Fool, Luke 12:13-21; the Little Apocalypse of Mark 13, especially 13:37; also the warning against idleness in 1 Thes. 5:6). - RBW
Last updated in version 2.6
File: BeMe259

My Nelly
DESCRIPTION: "My Nelly's a whore! My Nelly's a whore! She's got such wonderful eyes of blue.
She uses such wonderful language too, Her favorite expression is, 'Ballocks to you!' My Nelly's a whore."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: bawdy love whore
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 65, "My Nelly" (1 text)
Roud #10519
NOTES [33 words]: Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang list this as to the tune of "Three Blind Mice," but for the life of me I can't make the first line sing to that tune, so I haven't listed it as a tune match. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.5
File: BrPa065A

My Number Will Be Changed
DESCRIPTION: "Don't you know my number will be changed, will be changed... Soon as my feet strike Zion, I'm gonna lay down my heavy burden, I'm gonna put on my robe in glory... I heard the voice of Jesus say, 'Come unto me and rest. Lay down, you weary traveller...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices)
KEYWORDS: religious clothes
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, pp. 36-39, "My Number Will Be Changed" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #16264
NOTES [76 words]: There isn't much here that is actually scriptural. The reference to the weary coming to Jesus and resting clearly alludes to Matthew 11:28, where those with heavy burdens are urged to come to Jesus, who will give them rest. There are several references to robes in the Apocalypse, with 6:11 being a likely source for this song (see also 1:13, 19:13). The idea of people
My Old Cottage Home

DESCRIPTION: "I am thinking tonight of my old cottage home. It stands on the brow of the hill" where the singer used to roam. Now it is quiet; all the people who used to live there have left or died. "But I shall meet them round Heaven's bright throne".

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Abrahams/Riddle-ASingerAndHerSongs)

KEYWORDS: home death separation reunion

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Abrahams/Riddle-ASingerAndHerSongs, pp. 16-18, "My Old Cottage Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3384
File: Abri016

My Old Horse Died

DESCRIPTION: Singer tells of disasters: horse dies, mule goes lame, storm blows house away, earthquake swallows wreckage, land is repossessed. He dies, but wife & kids are comforted, because he was insured with Banker's Life [Insurance Co.]

AUTHOR: Words: advertisement; tune "Chicken Reel" (trad.), set by Dock Boggs

EARLIEST DATE: 1963 (recording, Dock Boggs)

KEYWORDS: death disaster storm humorous family horse animal

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

Roud #11580

RECORDINGS:
Dock Boggs, "My Old Horse Died" (on Boggs1, BoggsCD1)

NOTES [120 words]: Does this belong [in the index]? It's certainly narrative, and it has entered the repertoire of old-time revival performers. Toss-up, but I say yes, if only for the novelty of the thing. And most traditional performers were far less picky about including non-traditional material in their performances than their revival heirs. - PJS

And the tune, the Chicken Reel, is worth noting in its own right, although we can't really index a melody. But the Chicken Reel was popular enough that it was actually arranged for piano (by John W. Schaum) and published in a musical series which also includes Mozart, Chopin, and Bach, copyrighted 1946 by Belwin, Inc. Not that there is any chance Boggs would have encountered that.

- RBW

Last updated in version 3.6

File: RcMOHD

My Old Kentucky Home

DESCRIPTION: "The sun shines bright on my old Kentucky home; 'Tis summer, the darkies are gay...." The song lists the troubles of the poor tired slave (soon to die? far from home?), "Weep no more, my lady... We will sing one song for the old Kentucky home far away..."

AUTHOR: Stephen C. Foster

EARLIEST DATE: 1853 (sheet music by Firth, Pond & Co.)

KEYWORDS: home slave exile age

FOUND IN: home slave exile age

REFERENCES (14 citations):
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 72, "My Old Kentucky Home" (1 text)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 249-250, "My Old Kentucky Home, Good-Night!" (1 text plus a copy of the sheet music cover)
Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 134-138, "My Old Kentucky Home, Good Night" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hill-PoemsAndSongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 217-218, "My Old Kentucky Home, Good Night" (1 text)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, pp. 18-19, "My Old Kentucky Home, Good-Night" (1 text)
My Old Man's a Dustman

DESCRIPTION: "My old man's a dustman, He fought at the Battle of Mons. He killed ten thousand Germans With only a couple of bombs." The song describes the horrid casualties, concluding, Flies are bad, bugs are worse, If you sing any more I'll start to curse"

My Old Pennsylvannia Home

DESCRIPTION: Pennsylvania Dutch adaption of Foster's "My Old Kentucky Home," relocated to Pennsylvania. "Die suun schiendt hell in em alt Pennsylfawnisch heim, Sis suumer die schartzesin fro...."

My Old Pinto Pal

DESCRIPTION: The singer declares "I'm headin' once more for the prairie;" he longs for and recalls the joys of cowboy life. But his pinto pal is old; he decides to set the tired horse free, for it is "dearer to me than a gal," and "not once have I known you to fail"

My Old Wife's a Good Old Cratur

DESCRIPTION: "Every morning for my breakfast She gives me good toast and roll ... at night when work is over She brings me bacon and my beer." When times are hard she kisses me and if I get beery she has no harsh word Some folks live better but none is happier.

My Ole Mistus Promised Me

DESCRIPTION: "My ole mistus promised me When she died she'd set me free." "Good mornin', John. Howdy." "She lived so long her head got bald...." Rest involves her mistreatment: "My old mistus killed a duck, Didn't give me nuffin' but de bone to suck." Etc.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: slave hardtimes work freedom death age floatingverses

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 417, "My Ole Mistus Promised Me" (1 text)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 223-224, "My Ole Mistis" (1 short text, with a "Johnny get de hoe cake" chorus, 1 tune); there are sundry related texts with the "My ole mistus/marster" stanza on the next several pages
Finger-FrontierBallads, p. 164, "(No title)" (1 fragment, possibly this)

Roud #11723

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Raise a Ruckus" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Old Marse John" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Way Down Below" (floating lyrics)
cf. Take Your Lover in the Ring" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Steal, Miss Liza (II)" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [57 words]: The initial stanzas, about the promise of freedom at the owner's death, is common and supplies the heart of several songs. But all seem to be distinguished by their choruses. It is possible that this is one of the elements that went into the Lomax conglomeration "Old Marse John" -- but it's such a kitchen sink that proof is impossible. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2

File: Br3417

My Onery Little Roan

DESCRIPTION: "I've said goodbye to my old bunk, I'll give away my chaps.... I'll go, but no one knows just how I'll miss my little roan." The retiring cowboy recalls breaking the "Scout," He is prepared to head to the city; leaving his horse is his one great regret

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (Powder River Jack Lee songbook)

KEYWORDS: cowboy horse separation

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDitional: Powder River Jack and Kitty Lee's _Songs of the Range: Cowboy Wails of Cattle Trails_, Chart Music, 1937, pp.24-25, "My Onery Little Roan" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: PRJL024

My Only Jo and Dearie, O

DESCRIPTION: "Thy cheek is o' the rose's hue." The singer describes his sweetheart. He recalls "when we were bairnies on yon brae" and he would chase her and pull flowers for her. He wishes that they would always be together "till life's warm stream forgat to play"

AUTHOR: Richard Gall (1776-1801) (source: Eyre-Todd)

EARLIEST DATE: 1819 (according to Eyre-Todd)

KEYWORDS: love lyric nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1859, "Your Cheeks Are o' the Roses' Hue" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Robert Chambers, The Scottish Songs (Edinburgh, 1829), Vol II, p. 271, "My Only Jo and Dearie, O"
George Eyre-Todd, Scottish Poetry of the Eighteenth Century, (Glasgow, 1896 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 332-333, "My Only Jo and Dearie, O"

Roud #13588

NOTES [24 words]: Greig/Duncan8 is a fragment; Chambers is the basis for the description.
My Only Love

DESCRIPTION: "I once knew a beautiful greaser... Who played in the street for a living." He follows "And worshipped her sweet mandolin." The singer asks to marry, and offers many gifts, but is ignored. He says he will die. At last someone tells him the woman is deaf

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Finger-FrontierBallads)
KEYWORDS: music courting humorous rejection
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Finger-FrontierBallads, p. 108-110, "My Only Love" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #8826
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The German Girls" (theme of following a woman for her music)
NOTES [18 words]: So who is more deaf -- the woman who plays a mandolin she can't tune, or the man who thinks it sounds good? - RBW

My Only Woodbine

DESCRIPTION: "My only Woodbine, my double Woodbine, Don't give me Players or Craven A" or other cigarettes, but "Please don't take my Woodbine away" even though they make the singer's throat sore. Eventually, "I cannot smoke the Woodbines any more"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)
KEYWORDS: soldier drugs hardtimes derivative
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, p. 84, "My Only Woodbine" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #24974
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "You Are My Sunshine" (tune)

My Own Dear Home

DESCRIPTION: The singer thinks in turn of his childhood home, his longing for home when among strangers, his current happy home, and his home after death.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1842 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(3571))
LONG DESCRIPTION: The singer thinks "with pleasure on my first dear home." After leaving his childhood home, being among strangers, "thou would'st say to thyself, what induced me to roam?" Then he thinks of his current home, cherishing wife and children, and the comfort of returning there after a day of work. Then, after his death, "his wife and his children in sorrow will roam To see him conveyed to his last sad home"

KEYWORDS: homesickness marriage home rambling nonballad children family wife
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 240-241, "My Own Dear Home" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 212)
Roud #1306
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(3571), "My Own Dearest Home" ("Wherever I wander, wherever I stray"), T. Birt (London), 1833-1841; also Harding B 11(2578), Firth b.27(219), "My Own Dearest Home";
My Own True Handsome Bill

DESCRIPTION: "One evening very lately" the singer meets handsome Bill. They want to marry. She tells him to speak to her father. "Say you are a farmer and that you want a wife and that you dearly love me." Don't dress in Sunday best. Talk about farming and ploughing.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan4)

KEYWORDS: courting farming father clothes

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 824, "My Own True Handsome Bill" (1 text)
Roud #6215
File: GrD4824

My Ozark Mountain Home

DESCRIPTION: Singer recalls his mother sitting in "that little cabin home" "in those Ozark Hills far away." Mother is dead and buried in a "little mound of clay" and the cabin is gone. He's "going back and build a shack...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1932 ( StuffDreams2)

KEYWORDS: homesickness home return death nonballad mother

FOUND IN: US(So)

Roud #21512

RECORDINGS:
George Edgin's Corn Dodgers, "My Ozark Mountain Home" (on StuffDreams2)
Swing and Turn Jubilee, "My Ozark Mountain Home", Max Hunter Folk Song Collection, Cat #1589 (MFH #1042), accessed 18 June 2020 at https://maxhunter.missouristate.edu/songinformation.aspx?ID=1589. (1 text, 1 tune)

File: RcMOMH

My Parents Reared Me Tenderly (I -- The Soldier Boy)

DESCRIPTION: The singer tells how his parents brought him up and sent him to school. He works for a time, but -- influenced by drink -- enlists in the army. He learns the drill, but also finds he will have to serve at least twenty years. He hopes eventually to return

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: soldier drink family money loneliness separation army war

FOUND IN: Ireland Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H466, pp. 79-80, "My Parents Reared Me Tenderly" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Graham-Joe-Holmes-SongsMusicTraditionsOfAnUlsterman 54, "My Parents Reared Me Tenderly" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 1018-1019, "The Soldier Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES: [157 words]: The first two lines, "My parents reared me tenderly I being their only son But little did they ever think I'd follow the fife and drum", are in common with "The Bold Deserter" and the first line with "The Girl I Left Behind (I)" [Laws P1A/B]. There is no other connection with those ballads. - BS

The reference to serving the Queen found in Peacock (not in the Henry version) forces us to the reign of either Anne (reigned 1702-1714) or Victoria (1837-1901); there was no standing army in the time of Elizabeth.

Enlistment was still for life early in Victoria's reign, but the references to the wars inclines me to think that -- if the reference to serving the Queen is original -- the reign of Anne is meant, since Victoria's reign was relatively peaceful (at least in Europe) while Anne's reign corresponded almost exactly with the War of the Spanish Succession, with British troops in Flanders (mostly under Marlborough) the whole time. - RBW

My Peggy and I
DESCRIPTION: "I hae a wee wifie, an' I am her man, My Peggy an' I." They have a daughter: "I am sure she is hers, and I think she is mine," and "when we have siller, we dee best's we can"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: marriage nonballad baby wife
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1275, "My Peggy and I" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7190
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Howes o' Glenarchy" (tune, per Greig/Duncan7)

My Pigeon Gone Wild
DESCRIPTION: In each verse the singer asks to borrow a bird or pony "that will keep family that's mine"; his own bird or pony has "gone wild in the bush" or "gone wild on his trap" or "gone swimmin in the pool" and is usually "in the neighbor's yard"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Blind Blake Higgs: see WIHIGGS01)
KEYWORDS: poverty request nonballad animal bird chickens dog horse
FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)
RECORDINGS:
Blind Blake Higgs, "My Pigeon Gone Wild" (on WIHIGGS01)

My Pony
DESCRIPTION: "One morning bright and early, so early, so early, My shining boots my pride, Out near Miss Anna's cottage... where she could see me ride." Hoping to impress Anna, the singer spurs his pony, which throws him in the dirt. Anna laughs at him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: courting horse humorous animal
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 464, "My Pony" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 678, "Trip, Play-Mo-Blay" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #7606
File: R464
My Pretty Quadroon

DESCRIPTION: Singer, a slave, mourns for his lost Cora, "my pretty quadroon." His master had been kind, but coveted Cora, and when the slave grieves, the master sells the singer down the river. He contemplates suicide until he hears the trumpets of the Union army.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1865 (Beadle's Dime Song Book #16, according to Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer, a slave, mourns for his lost Cora, "my pretty quadroon". His master used to be kind, so much so that the singer "had not...a wish to be free" The master covets Cora, and when the slave tears his hair in grief, the master turns hard, and sells the singer down the river. He contemplates suicide, but hears the trumpets of the Union army and regains hope.

KEYWORDS: hardheartedness sex separation slavery lover Civilwar jealousy

FOUND IN: US(SE,So) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 79, "My Pretty Quadroon" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore 711, "My Pretty Quadroon" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 38, "My Pretty Quadroon" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #4965

RECORDINGS:
Beverly Hill Billies, "My Pretty Quadroon" (Brunswick 441, 1930)
Bud & Joe Billings (Frank Luther & Carson Robison), "My Pretty Quadroon" (Victor V-40282, 1930)
Dixieland Swingsters, "My Pretty Quadroon" (Bluebird B-8109, 1939)
The Happy Chappies, "My Pretty Quadroon" (Columbia 2252-D, 1930)
Jim & Ken, "My Pretty Quadroon" (Champion 16812, 1934; Champion 45074, c. 1935)
Light Crust Doughboys, "My Pretty Quadroon" (Vocalion 02992, 1935)
John James, "Pretty Squadron" (on MUNFLA-Leach)
Carson Robison Trio, "My Pretty Quadroon" (Banner 773/Challenge 785/Conqueror 7593/Jewel 6024/Romeo 1388, 1930) (Broadway 8280, n.d.; Crown 3140, 1931)
Texas Jim Lewis, "My Pretty Quadroon" (Decca 5990, 1941)
Vagabonds, "My Pretty Quadroon" (Victor 23849/Bluevird B-5072/Montgomery Ward M-4307, 1933)

Wanner & White [pseudos for W. C. Childers & Clyde White], "The Pretty Quadroon" (Champion 16306/Superior 2713 [as Holmes & Taylor], 1931)

NOTES [100 words]: In the tortured stratification of racism, a "quadroon" was someone whose ancestry was one-fourth Negro -- hence, someone with fairly light skin, and therefore of high status in the African-American community. This song was enormously popular in minstrel shows and vaudeville, well into the twentieth century. But I can't for the life of me remember the author. - PJS

The description here seems to be that of the original poem, or perhaps a Civil War adaption. As it circulates in oral tradition, however, the details can be lost and it may become a lament simply for a girl lost (perhaps by death). - RBW

Last updated in version 4.4

File: Be079

My Ramblin' Boy

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls the "ramblin' boy" with whom he traveled, who stuck with him in all conditions. On a cold night in a hobo jungle, the ramblin' boy dies. The singer speculates that he will still be rambling in the afterlife.

AUTHOR: Tom Paxton

EARLIEST DATE: 1963

KEYWORDS: rambling death friend

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 61, "My Ramblin' Boy" (1 text)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Ramblin' Boy

NOTES [77 words]: Like several other Tom Paxton songs, this has not really entered oral tradition, but it certainly has a strong place in the repertoire of professional folk singers, who ramble more than most. I "have" seen it listed as traditional -- and by people who really should have known better. I'm allowing it to be listed here to make it clear that it is composed. - RBW
My Rattlin' Oul' Grey Mare

DESCRIPTION: "I am a jolly carter and a jolly good soul am I. I whistle and sing from morn till noon, all troubles I defy." The singer described how "my rattlin' mare and I" work together. He does not overburden the horse, and she does her work well

AUTHOR: Harry Clifton (source: Gardham-EastRidingSongster)

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: horse work nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(England(North,South),Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (4 citations):

Greig/Duncan3 456, "The Country Carrier" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H664, p. 41, "My Rattlin’ Oul’ Grey Mare" (1 text, 1 tune)

Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 548, "Country Carrier" (1 text)

Gardham-EastRidingSongster 10, pp. 14, 45-46, "The Country Carrier"; "My Old Wife"; "My Rattling Old Mare and I" (3 texts, the first being a traditional version, the second being "My Old Wife," the song Harry Clifton parodied; the third, "My Rattling Old Mare and I," being Clifton’s original version)

Roud #1400

NOTES [73 words]: Gardham-EastRidingSongster attributes this to Harry Clifton, although I have not seen the attribution elsewhere. But Clifton did write a lot of songs, and many went into tradition. This was said to be Clifton’s knock-off on "My Old Wife," which Roud files under the same number, #1400; "My Old Wife" does not appear to be traditional in its own right.

For background on author Harry Clifton, see the notes to "The Good Ship Kangaroo." - RBW

My Sailor Boy (A Sailor Boy in Blue)

DESCRIPTION: "My boy he is a sailor, A sailor boy in blue, I know he has my heart, And I hope he will prove true.... And soon he will return again To his own dear Mary Jane." She describes the gifts her has promised to bring her

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: sailor separation gift love

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H759, p. 288, "My Sailor Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)

Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan 49, "My Bonny Boy in Blue" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #5238

RECORDINGS:

Tom Lenihan, "The Bonny Boy in Blue" (on IRTLenihan01)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" (theme)

NOTES [89 words]: Sort of a cross between "Sailor on the Deep Blue Sea" and "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" - RBW

Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan 49: "It is possible, even likely, that he [Tom Lenihan] learned it from the American recording of Nan Fitzpatrick which she made when she joined forces with the very popular Frank Quinn. Fn 144: Frank Quinn and Nan Fitzpatrick with violin, banjo and piano accompaniment 'My Bonny Boy in Blue' on Columbia Records, 33477-F. Matrix (w) 113025. 'Connamara Dan' is on the reverse side." - BS

File: HHH759
My Seventy-Six Geared Wheel

DESCRIPTION: "O how I long for solid roads In the merry month of June... How jolly I will feel A-spinning down to Rustico On my seventy-six geared wheel." The singer lists his favorite stops on the way to Mary's "big front door" at Rustico.

AUTHOR: Mary Fleming? Ambrose Cosgrove?

EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland)

KEYWORDS: courting technology

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

- Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 25-26, "My Seventy-Six Geared Wheel" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 151-152,251, "My Seventy-Six Geared Wheel" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #12477

RECORDINGS:

John O'Connor, "My Seventy-Six Geared Wheel" (on MRElves01)

NOTES [120 words]: Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland: Maybe "seventy-six geared wheel" refers to a geared bicycle built in 1876. The Rusticos are on the north coast of Queens, Prince Edward Island. Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland claims the author is Mary Fleming, the Mary of the song. Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland claims the author is Ambrose Cosgrove. Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland speculates that "seventy-six" is probably a then-current way of referring to a bike's power (a derivation involving gear-ratio and wheel size, perhaps). Mr Cosgrove is saying that he's riding the last word in bikes.... [The] distance [was] some forty miles, and not all of it first-class highway." - BS

File: Din025

My Siller's Scarce

DESCRIPTION: "My siller's scarce." The singer lists his current hardships. As for anything substantial, he says, although "I love you well And very dear But you'd better wait Another year"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan4)

KEYWORDS: love hardtimes nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

- Greig/Duncan4 921, "My Siller's Scarce" (1 text)

Roud #6241

NOTES [22 words]: Greig/Duncan4 quoting Greig dates the text to a 1819-1820 manuscript valentine, noting that the "city bankruptcy took place then." - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD4921

My Sister Don't Love Me

DESCRIPTION: "My sister don't love me; She will not take me in Just because I'm teachin' She must live above sin; What need I to fear when Thou art near? Thou carest, Lord, for me." Similarly with mother, brother, and presumably other ungrateful relatives

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Henry, from "Aunt" Martha Hardwick)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad mother brother sister

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

- Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 191, "My Sister Don't Love Me" (1 text)

NOTES [47 words]: New verse: "My sister don't love me, Because I'm a jerk, Who insists on saying, I know better than you do, And won't listen, Because I've misread the Bible so thoroughly." The only thing I'm sure of about this song is, I don't want to be around anyone who would sing it and mean it!

File: MHAp191
My Size Is Small
DESCRIPTION: "My size is small, My heart is large, God bless the girls, I love them all."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 243, (no title) (1 short text)

File: MHAp243A

My Son John
DESCRIPTION: "My son John was tall and slim, And he had a leg for ev'ry limb, But now he's got no legs at all, For he ran a race with a cannon ball." He is asked how he came to lose his legs, and he says he was not at sea nor deaf or blind
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (Hamer)
KEYWORDS: soldier injury mother
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hamer-GarnersGay, p. 44, "My Son John" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #678
NOTES [48 words]: Roud lumps this with "Mrs. McGrath," and of course both are songs about injury. But "Mrs. McGrath" is also about recruiting, and that is completely missing here. Might this be derived from "Mrs. McGrath"? Certainly. But it's not where I would look for the piece, so I've split them. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: HaGa044

My Soul Be At Rest
DESCRIPTION: Response line is "My soul be at rest." Leader lines include "One of these mornings and it won't be long," "Be at rest, going to be at rest," "Be at rest till Judgment Day," "Hitch on my wings and try the air," "You'll ask for me and I'll be gone"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealIslands)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious shanty
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealIslands, p. 221, "My Soul Be At Rest" (1 text)
File: Parp221A

My Soul Rock On Jubilee
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "'N Jubilee (x2), A-a-a-h my Lord, 'N Jubilee (x2), My soul rock on Jubilee." Verses: "Long time talki' 'bout Jubilee." "My mother done gone to Jubilee." "I come to tell
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealIslands)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealIslands, p. 89, "My Soul Rock On Jubilee" (2 texts) NOTES [42 words]: In Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealIslands's verses, the verse line is repeated, alternating with "A-a-a-h my Lord" and "My soul rock on Jubilee."
Art Rosenbaum's liner notes to McIntosh1 note that that recording's "Jubilee" is a similar shout song. - BS
Last updated in version 4.1
My Soul Wants Something That's New

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "My soul wants something that's new, that's new, My soul wants something that's new (x2)." Verses are "Dark was the night and cold the ground..." and "Was it for crimes that I had done ..." See notes.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)
KEYWORDS: floatingverses nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 105, "My Soul Wants Something That's New" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 147 in the 1901 edition)
Roud #15290
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Dark Was the Night, Cold Was the Ground" (first verse from Haweis)
NOTES [250 words]: Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's text is attributed, in error, by White, to Barton, but White does point out that this text starts with Haweis's first verse "Dark was the night ..." and verse two is "stanza 2 of Watt's 'Alas and Did My Saviour bleed?'" (Newman I. White, American Negro Folk Songs (Hatboro: Folklore Associates Inc, 1965 (reprint of Harvard University Press, 1928) p. 105).
I have split "My Soul Wants Something New" from "Dark Was the Night" because Haweis's first verse has floated here with a verse from another hymn, and includes no other verse from Haweis.
In this it is similar to White's #51B, which starts with Haweis's first verse, and continues with couplets from "Amazing Grace," "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," "Am I a Soldier of the Cross" and the chorus of "Lord, Remember Me."
Haweis's first verse was floating as early as 1835 where it begins a sacred harp hymn concluded by the first verse of another (Isaac Watts?) hymn, "Now in the hour of deep distress, My God, support thy Son, When horrors dark my soul oppress, O leave me not alone!" (Lowell Mason and T.B. Mason, Mason's Sacred Harp (Cincinnati: Truman and Smith, 1835 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), p. 66, "Burford"("Dark was the night, and cold the ground"); A Collection of Hymns and Liturgy for the Use of Evangelical Lutheran Churches (Germantown: M. Billmeyer, 1827 ("Digitized by Google")), #135 p. 83, ("Now, in the hour of deep distress")).
Last updated in version 4.0

File: Dett105

My Soul's Full of Glory (The Dying Christian)

DESCRIPTION: "My soul's full of glory, inspiring my tongue, Could I meet with angels, I'd sing them a song." The angels wish to hear more songs about Jesus. The singer longs for heaven. The singer asks for protectin, and declares, "I'm going (x3), I'm gone."

AUTHOR: probably John A. Granade
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin); supposedly written 1815
KEYWORDS: religious death
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 65, "The Dying Christian" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9078
NOTES [141 words]: The informant who supplied the version in Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin was Charlie Spencer, who was brought up in a Primitive Baptist church in Kentucky but moved to Wisconsin. Several of his Primitive Baptist songs were obscure (see, e.g., "The Lovely Story (The Sufferings of Christ)," but this one seems more obscure than most. I have not been able to find any real hint of where or when it was first published.
Internet sources attribute it to John A(dam) Granade, called the "Wild Man of Goose Creek," a sort of itinerant preacher/hymn writer known for his preaching and his unkempt appearance. I could not find his birth and death dates based on a casual search, but this song was supposedly written in 1815.
Granade also wrote two other slightly better-known hymns, "Come All Ye Mourning Pilgrims" and My Spinning Wheel
DESCRIPTION: A man accosts the singer while she sits spinning at her wheel. He flatters her and finally convinces her to leave her spinning-wheel and go with him to a hay-cock. She says, "The pleasure I cannot reveal, It far surpasant the Spinning-Wheel"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1719 (Pills to Purge Melancholy); 1688? (broadside, Bodleian Douce Ballads 1(19b))
KEYWORDS: sex weaving
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1861, "Jean and her Spinning Wheel" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Wit and Mirth, or, Pills to Purge Melancholy (London, 1719), Vol III, pp. 88-89, ("As I sat at my spinning-wheel")
Roud #4255
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Douce Ballads 1(19b), "The Bonny Scot" or "The Yielding Lass" ("As I sat at my spinning-wheel"), J. Walter (London), 1688?
LOCSheet, sm1843 390460, "My Spinning Wheel," A. Fiot (Philadelphia), 1843 (tune)
NOTES [17 words]: Greig/Duncan8 is a fragment; broadside Bodleian Douce Ballads 1(19b) is the basis for the description. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81861

My Station's Gonna Be Changed
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the station's gonna be changed after 'while (x2), When the Lord himself shall come And shall say 'Your work is done.'" "The Gospel train is coming, It's coming around the curve, Stopping at every station... For your station's gonna be changed...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1953 (Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad train
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 119, "My Station's Gonna Be Changed" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Get On Board, Little Children" (lyrics)
NOTES [39 words]: The version of this in Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection has a chorus that is very close to "Get On Board, Little Children." The rest of it feels just different enough that I have split them -- but only very tentatively. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.8
File: Grim119A

My Stetson Hat
DESCRIPTION: The singer praises his hat: "Stained with alkali, sand, and mud, Smeared with grease and crimson blood, Battered and bent from constant use, Still you have stood the darned abuse." "You've been a good pal... You dirty old gray Stetson hat."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Hoofs and Horns)
KEYWORDS: clothes cowboy nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 83, "My Stetson Hat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #21614
My Sweet Farm Girl
DESCRIPTION: "My sweet farm girl, she's my joy and pride (x2)." Double-entendre song; singer describes his girlfriend and her abilities to do chores around the farm while the singer "keeps her garden free from bugs and weeds."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (recording, Carolina Tar Heels)
KEYWORDS: sex farming work bawdy nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
Roud #21326
RECORDINGS:
Clarence Ashley & Gwen Foster, "My Sweet Farm Girl" (Vocalion 02780/Conqueror 7942/Perfect 12779/Banner 32356/Romeo 5113/Oriole 8113, 1934?; rec. Dec. 1, 1931; on Ashley04)
Carolina Tar Heels, "Farm Girl Blues" (Victor 23516, 1931)
New Lost City Ramblers, "My Sweet Farm Girl" (on NLCREP3, NLCRCD1)
NOTES [43 words]: Individually, the verses of this song can be regarded as "clean" -- enough so that I didn't notice the bawdiness on casual hearing. But the overall effect of the song (which may conclude, "She loves her daddy Because I'm long and hard") is very salacious. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: RvMSFG

My Sweet Little Air Force Blue Suit
DESCRIPTION: "Now we're in the Air Force WD, Brass buttons and flat heels are all that you see. No glamour, no charm, with our closely cropped hair, But our little blue suits are doing their share." Despite the un-glamorous clothing, the women are proud of their work
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)
KEYWORDS: clothes soldier nonballad
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, p. 80, "My Sweet Little Air Force Blue Suit: (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #24975
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Alice Blue Gown" (tune)
cf. "Night-Gown of Blue" (tune)
File: Hopk080

My Sweet Mary Ann
DESCRIPTION: "She's charming neat and handsome, Her middle ye could span, The only one that entices me Is my sweet Mary Anne"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad beauty
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan5 944, "My Sweet Mary Ann" (1 text)
Roud #6759
NOTES [74 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan5 fragment. Is the Greig/Duncan5 fragment related to the floating "She's my darling, she's my daisy, She's humpbacked and she's crazy... She's my freckled-faced consumptive Mary Ann" from "Hungry Hash House" and "Sara Jane?" I have to admit it's a reach. - BS
I'd be willing to bet that the "freckle-faced consumptive" fragment is a parody of this. Finding
My Sweetheart Went Down with the Maine

DESCRIPTION: "Once I had a sweetheart, noble, brave, and true... Out on the high seas he sailed... Anchored at Havana... Down went the Maine.... Rouse ye, my countrymen, rouse... Strike down the cowardly fiends Who slaughtered the crew of the Maine."

AUTHOR: Bert Morgan (source: sheet music published by The Morgan Music Company available at New York Public Library)

EARLIEST DATE: 1898 (copyright date in the sheet music)

KEYWORDS: disaster ship death love separation

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1895 - Cubans rebel against Spain
Feb 15, 1898 - Explosion of the battleship "Maine" in Havana harbor
April 25, 1898 - Congress declares war on Spain

FOUND IN: US(SE,So)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Randolph 689, "My Sweetheart Went Down with the Maine" (1 text)
High-OldOldFolkSongs, p. 7, "The Battle-Ship-Main" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 236, "The Battleship Maine" (2 texts)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 236, "The Battleship Maine" (2 excerpts, 2 tunes)
DT, SWTMAINE
Roud #6621

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Did the Maine Go Down?" (theme)
cf. "On the Shores of Havana" (theme)
cf. "Down in the Harbor of Havana" (theme)
cf. "The Spanish War" (theme)
cf. "Manila Bay" (theme)
cf. "Battleship of Maine" (theme)
cf. "Marching to Cuba" (theme)

NOTES [3000 words]: The U. S. S. Maine, it should be noted, was not exactly a battleship, although often called that (including in songs); originally designed as an armored cruiser, she lacked the coal capacity for that role (just 896 tons; Newhart, p. 14; Blow, p. 76, claims that gave her a range of 7000 miles, but that's hard to believe, and Herder, p. 21, says her range was 3600 nautical miles at 10 knots, which wouldn't even let her cross the Pacific). She wound up as an unsatisfactory battleship/cruiser hybrid or "second class battleship."

The design problems shouldn't surprise us; the American navy had essentially been shut down after the Civil War, and she was one of the first ships -- indeed, the first large ship -- coming out of the naval revival of the 1880s. The 1860s and 1870s had been a time of intense naval evolution; no one in the United States knew how to design a modern ship! (Weems, pp. 4-5). Indeed, the Americans bought the design for the Maine's contemporary, the battleship Texas, from the British! (Herder, pp. 21-22), but the Maine was a home-grown attempt.

Laid down in 1888, she had decent speed -- 17 knots -- and four 10" guns, plus decent armor (Paine, p. 320. Note, however, that the American navy was still using gunpowder at the time, not more modern propellants, so a 10" gun packed less punch than a 10" gun of World War I vintage. Contemporary American battleships had 13" guns and were intended to make 16 knots; contemporary cruisers were usually expected to manage 21-22 knots. So Maine was too lightweight for the battle line and too slow to function as a cruiser even if you ignore her lack of range.

In addition, the layout of the guns was obsolete, and she had a worthless ram bow. Originally intended to carry a sailing rig to give her a decent range despite her lack of coal capacity (Herder, p. 17), her design was revised in 1892 to eliminate it, and it wasn't until 1895 that she was finished (Weems, p. 4) -- a ridiculously long time that showed how much the navy had to learn about shipbuilding (so, for example, the first real American battleship, the Indiana, was laid down two and a half years later, but was commissioned just two months later because the Maine took so long; Newhart, pp. 14, 17). And her forwardmost coal bunkers were literally inaccessible when she had a Captain Sigsbee seems to have behaved in a very responsible way. Once he was on another boat were recovered alive but would die of their injuries (Weems, p. 94).

It is believed that 26 officers and 328 men were serving on her when she blew up (although four of the officers were not on the ship at the time); of these, 252 were dead or missing, and eight more rescued had it not been for this. Only three of the ship's boats (out of fifteen) were usable (Weems, p. 83), but other ships came to the aid of the bewildered crew.

There were secondary explosions, and the ship caught fire. Possibly more men could have been spared, had it not been for this. Only three of the ship's boats (out of fifteen) were usable (Weems, p. 83), but other ships came to the aid of the bewildered crew.

There were secondary explosions, and the ship caught fire. Possibly more men could have been spared, had it not been for this. Only three of the ship's boats (out of fifteen) were usable (Weems, p. 83), but other ships came to the aid of the bewildered crew.

The arrangements of her guns, which the two ships had in common, was unusual. The forward turret with its big pair of 10-inch guns was mounted to starboard of the centerline, while the matching after turret was to port. The Maine also mounted six 6-inch guns and a baker's dozen of smaller guns (Leeke, p. 24). The odd turret layout was an old Italian idea which had been intended to let all four guns fire in any direction, but it didn't work -- the guns damaged the ship when they fired across the deck. As a result, the Maine's guns actually had more limited arcs of fire than standard designs. They also had to be lowered because the original design had too much topweight (Herder, p. 20). As Herder comments on p. 20, her long gestation meant that she was out of date by the time she was commissioned!

She was really too fragile to be good for much, and she was known in the navy as a "Jonah" ship (Blow, p. 135), but she looked impressive. Still, if the Americans had wanted a ship that they could lose without it really costing their navy anything, she was the ship....

Her captain, Charles G. Sigsbee, was distinguished, but not so much for his naval work -- although he had been a navy man for more than a third of a century -- but for oceanography and hydrography; he had explored the Gulf of Mexico with biologist Alexander Agassiz. He also held several patents. He was not very experienced with a large, modern ship (Blow, pp. 133-134; Leeke, p. 23).

When the Cubans rose in revolt against inept and brutal Spanish rule, the U.S. government -- spurred on by William Randolph Hearst's newspapers -- decided it should be involved. Without going too deeply into either the Cuban rebellion, the Spanish attempts to suppress it, or the American politics of the period, suffice it to say that many Americans wanted Cuba to have autonomy (Trask, p. 28). When the Spanish continued to repress the Cubans, the Americans decided to be prepared to intervene. The Maine was sent to Key West, where she could steam to Havana in just a few hours (Trask, p. 24). Initially the idea was to keep her in American waters, waiting for a signal from the American diplomats in Cuba. When there appeared to be trouble in Cuba, Consul General Fitzhugh Lee (yes, the former Confederate general who was Robert E. Lee's nephew) called for the ship, then changed his mind -- but the ship went, on what was officially listed as a courtesy visit (Trask, pp. 24-25; Weems, pp. 46-47). Once she was there, Lee wanted her to stay until a ship of at least equal power could arrive (Trask, p. 26).

The Maine arrived in Havana on January 25, 1898 (Trask, p. 25), and stayed for some time, ready to potentially evacuate Americans -- or attack the Spanish. Her officers also visited with the Cubans, in proper diplomatic form; everyone seemed to be getting along well. "During the entire visit the officers and crew of the Maine never slackened their vigilance [keeping unusually large crews on duty at all time to watch for trouble]... however, no one had any indication that precautions were actually necessary" (Weems, p. 59, although Blow, p. 34, mentions a poster that circulated showing the ship being blown up). She kept an unusually heavy watch for a ship at anchor -- a quarter watch, i.e. a quarter of her crew were ready for duty at all times; she also kept watertight doors closed -- and enough steam up to power her turrets (Blow, p. 26).

Then... she blew up with a large loss of life. The explosion took place on the port side forward, near where the crew quarters were, so many of the enlisted men were killed at once, or at least unable to escape (Weems, p. 73). This probably helps explain the line in the song about the singer's sweetheart being peacefully asleep in his hammock when he died; this was indeed the fate of many of the victims.

There were secondary explosions, and the ship caught fire. Possibly more men could have been rescued had it not been for this. Only three of the ship's boats (out of fifteen) were usable (Weems, p 83), but other ships came to the aid of the bewildered crew.

It is believed that 26 officers and 328 men were serving on her when she blew up (although four of the officers were not on the ship at the time); of these, 252 were dead or missing, and eight more were recovered alive but would die of their injuries (Weems, p. 94).

Captain Sigsbee seems to have behaved in a very responsible way. Once he was on another boat and could send messages, he reported both to the Secretary of the Navy and to his immediate supervisor, requesting tenders to bring supplies and clothing -- and suggesting that no one draw premature conclusions: "Public opinion should be suspended until further report" (Weems, p. 92). He would soon change his mind, however, and suggest that the Maine had been mined (Weems, p. 97), although he still allowed that the explosion itself might be an accident. Divers went to the hulk to recover her codebooks, and learned, with some difficulty, that the keys to her magazine were still in place, so it didn't appear the explosion was caused by the deliberate actions of someone on board (Weems, p. 101).

On February 21, an American investigation board arrived, led by Captain William T. Sampson, soon to be made an admiral and to command one of the forces that fought the Spanish fleet (Weems, p. 102). Witnesses from aboard the Maine disagreed about whether there was one explosion or two, but observers elsewhere all reported two (Weems, p. 110), which must have meant that the first explosion, of unknown origin and location, set off either coal dust or the forward 6" magazine, probably the latter. (The magazines for the main guns did not go up, or the explosion would have been even worse.) The divers who visited the ship also claimed that there was a hole in her hull where the metal bend inward, not outward (Blow, p. 143). This was based on what they felt, not what they saw (apparently they didn't ever really get lights down there), so the evidence was very dubious -- but the American investigators concluded that this meant that the first explosion had been outside the hull. In other words, that she had been mined (Weems, pp. 123-124). On the other hand, the few survivors who had been on the deck at the time of the explosion did not report a waterspout or water landing on the deck, nor were there reports of dead fish (Weems, p. 126).

Also, the Spanish had had no warning of the Maine's arrival, so there was no time to plant a mine in advance, and the ship kept careful watch while in Havana, so it would have been hard to plant a mine after she arrived (Weems, p. 128).

One thing that is perhaps of importance is that the Maine, although she never left her berth, did not stay in the same place the whole time. She was moored to the berth, but apparently her other end was not anchored, so she moved around. At different times, she covered different spots on the harbor bottom. So a timed mine could not be sure of getting her; either some person -- unknown and unidentified -- would have to set off the mine (perhaps electrically, from a distance) or it would have to be a contact mine. No sign of either was ever found.

The Spanish also ordered an investigation. Apparently neither side cooperated with the other's investigation; the Americans wouldn't let Spaniards onto the hulk, and the Spaniards wouldn't let the Americans examine the harbour (Blow, p. 118). The Spanish inquiry disagreed with the idea of a mine, but other than rowing around the harbor, they couldn't examine the ship; they just talked to their own witnesses (Weems, pp. 124-125).

And even if there had been a mine, that didn't prove whether the Spanish or the insurgents had set off the mine.

The American commission finally concluded that the first explosion had been external, not internal, although it could not determine who had set the (presumed) bomb (Blow, p. 167).

No account was taken of the fact that the Spanish had nothing to gain from blowing up the Maine; if the crime had been discovered, then the war they had been trying so hard to avoid would of course be inevitable, and even if they got away with it, if war still came, getting rid of a rather feeble ship wouldn't improve the odds for their navy significantly.

Not that Hearst and his minions cared about the result of the investigation. Never mind that the Spanish had nothing to gain from destroying the ship. Spain had to be punished! The newspapers demanded it, with Hearst famously writing to Frederic Remington when the latter wanted to come home from Cuba, "Please remain. You furnish the pictures and I'll furnish the war" (Weems, p. viii). The Spanish did all they could to avoid war; after brief delays to save face, they gave in to every American demand. The Americans would have none of it -- even though many responsible Americans were unsure that their small armed forces could win (Trask, p. 30). McKinley too was afraid of the consequences of war -- he suffered so badly from insomnia in this period that he had to start taking sleep drugs and developed dark circles under his eyes (Phillips, p. 94). He had a point, too -- even if you ignore the morality of it all, Spain had a half-million-man army (Weems, p. 129), while the United States had only a few regiments it used to oppress Native Americans. The United States was the more populous country, but it could not hope to win a purely land campaign. A naval campaign was another matter.

And McKinley had to worry about the way the American people were responding, too. They -- or, at least, the majority of loudmouths who expressed an opinion -- wanted war. By March, McKinley demanded that Spain agree to an armistice with the Cuban insurgents (Trask, pp. 40-41). On April 11, the Americans ran out of patience as the Spanish tried to give in without giving in too far;
McKinley asked Congress to let him intervene in Cuba (Trask, p. 52). "Some two months [after the explosion] came the Spanish-American War, which was to mark the final collapse of the Spanish Empire and the emergence of the United States as a world power.... Cuba, Guam, the Philippine Archipelago, Puerto Rico, and all other Spanish islands in the West Indies were ceded to the United States, which then entertained fond hopes for an empire of its own" (Weems, p. vii).

On April 11, President McKinley asked for a declaration of war; on April 25, he received it. Americans set out to "free" Cuba and the Philippines. (The Philippines, in particular, were so thoroughly "freed" that they soon rose in revolt and did not achieve independence until 1947.) "Remember the Maine," went the battle cry.

The U.S. army was pitifully bad; the vast majority of its losses in the war were caused by disease and supply problems -- but so dreadful were the Spanish forces that by the end of the summer both the Philippines and Cuba were under U.S. control. In December the Spanish were forced to accept the humiliating Treaty of Paris, and the war ended. The U.S. was now an imperialist power -- and all because of songs like this one and Hearst's headlines.

The cause of the Maine's explosion was never definitely determined. The Navy's initial investigation, led by Captain William T. Sampson (who later led the fleet that beat the Spanish fleet outside Havaa), blamed an underwater mine although it could not say who put it there (Trask, p. 35; Paine, p. 321). The Spanish felt it was an internal explosion. When the ship was raised in 1910-1911, the Americans again concluded it was an external explosion, although they revised their opinion of where it happened (Weems, p. 157) -- and then hauled the wreck away and sank it in deep water, making further examinations difficult. Weems, in 1958, could only "conclude that there is a good chance that the ship did blow up internally despite signs to the contrary. In any event, the explosion must have been an accident, even if an outside force caused it" (Weems, p. 178). A 1975 investigation, with little new data but more engineering knowledge, concluded "the available evidence is consistent with an internal explosion alone.... The most likely source was heat from a fire in the coal bunker adjacent to the 6-inch reserve magazine" (Paine, p. 321); this convinced Hyman Rickover, who commissioned the study (Blow, pp. 431-433), but Blow himself considers the result "conjectural and inconclusive" (p. 434, although he seems to think an internal explosion the likeliest explanation); on p. 437 he declares that it will be "forever unsolved." Leeke, p. 35, agrees that certainty is now impossible. Yet Trask, p. 35, says that "it is now almost certainly believed that the Spanish view [that the explosion was internal] was correct." Captain Sigsbee himself wrote, "without more conclusive evidence than we have now [in 1899] we are not right if we charge criminality to persons" (Weems, p. viii). Herder, p. 33, makes the significant point that the Maine was using cheap bituminous coal, which sometimes emitted methane or other flammable gases. He concludes, "The most accepted theory by modern historians is that a smoldering coal bunker detonated Maine's adjacent bow magazine. Given the Maine's poor design, we certainly should at least be open to the possibility that the explosion was the fault of Americans, not Spanish or Cubans. But if modern politics teaches us anything, it's that facts don't matter in mob politics!

That the event was costly for Americans, though, is certainly true. The Maine's Captain Sigsbee would write after the war, "During the recent war with Spain about seventy-five men were killed in the United States Navy. Only seventeen [of them] were killed. On board the Maine 252 men were killed outright and eight died later" (Weems, p. ix). Thus the Maine explosion cost the Navy far more than the entire rest of the war combined!

Songwriter Bert Morgan was apparently based in Macomb, Illinois, and the headnote to the song says that this was inspired by the story of a young woman ("Miss Frances N--) in Illinois who lost her intended husband in the disaster. The sheet music does not state which city the man was from, but I saw a claim online that he was from "southern" Illinois. According to the list on pp. 185-196 of Weems, there were nine sailors from Illinois on the Maine, but six were from Chicago and two others were from the northern part of the state (La Salle County and the town of Ottawa). That leaves only one from southern Illinois: Coal Passer John Matza of East Saint Louis, who was among the dead in the wreck (Weems, p. 192). - RBW

Bibliography

- Herder: Brian Lane Herder, US Navy Battleships 1886-98 (illustrated by P. Wright, F. Rodriguez, A. Gilliland), Osprey/New Vanguard 2019
My Sweetheart's a Mule in the Mines

DESCRIPTION: "My sweetheart's a mule in the mines, I drive her without any lines, On the (bumpers/dasher) I sit and tobacco I spit All over my sweetheart's behind."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927
KEYWORDS: animal mining work humorous
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
  Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads, pp. 1, 8-11, "(My Sweetheart's the Mule in the Mines)" (1 text and various fragments, 1 tune)
  Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 65, "My Sweetheart's a Mule" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Botkin-TreasuryOfAmericanFolklore, pp. 864-865, "My Sweetheart's the Mule in the Mines" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Arnett-IHearAmericaSinging, p. 127, "My Sweetheart's the Mule in the Mines" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 27, "My Sweetheart's The Mule In The Mines" (1 text)
DT, MY SWEET M
Roud #4756
RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "My Sweetheart in the Mines" (on PeteSeeger07, PeteSeeger07b)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon" (tune)

My Sweetheart's Dying Words

DESCRIPTION: The dying girl says, "Dear Charlie dear, don't grieve for me... For when I'm dead and leave this world, I'll pray for you and the other girl." Recalling his love, she dies. "Twas then I realized she'd been true." He says he will never marry the other girl

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: love betrayal death
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 169, "My Sweetheart's Dying Words" (1 text)
Roud #6581
NOTES [33 words]: Really smart, Charlie: Betray one, then betray the other because the first one is dead. You sound like a corporate CEO testifying to congress about where the missing ten billion dollars went.... - RBW

My Tra-La-La-Lee

DESCRIPTION: In this formula song, the singer successively feels the girl's heel, calf, knee, thigh, etc., has sex, and is told in the last line "Boy, I'm a whore, and you've got the C-L-A-P."

AUTHOR: unknown
My True Love's Face Is As Bright

DESCRIPTION: The singer describes his lover ("...a simple Irish lass... born near the walls of Garryowen And they call her Cailin Deas"). He compares her to others and says she loved to hear about the Irish who fought "the Saxon foeman" in 1798.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)

KEYWORDS: love beauty Ireland nonballad patriotic

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 99, "My True Love's Face Is As Bright" (1 text)

Roud #16252

File: OCC099

My True Love's Gone A-Sailing

DESCRIPTION: "My true love's gone a-sailing right o'er yon western main"; she promises to remain a maid till he returns, even though his absence leaves her uneasy. An old man comes courting her, but she stays true. She wishes she could see her love

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: love courting separation sailor money age

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H160 p. 292, "My True Love's Gone A-Sailing" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3820

NOTES [18 words]: This looks very much like a Riley ballad to me, but the confused ending makes it impossible to be certain. - RBW

File: HHH160

My Trunk Is Packed

DESCRIPTION: "My true love be flirting, But I know I've treated her kind, What can I do or say, darling, That'll change her mind." He cannot change her mind; her trunk is packed. He goes to see her, but he won't go see her again

AUTHOR: Jim Couch? (source: Roberts-SangBranchSettlers)

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Roberts-SangBranchSettlers)

KEYWORDS: love courting rejection travel

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #63, "My Trunk is Packed" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3422

File: Robe063

My Tuesdays are Meatless

DESCRIPTION: "My Tuesdays are Meatless, My Wednesdays are Wheatless, I'm getting more Eatless every day. My home it is Heatless, My bed it is Sheetless, They're all sent to the YMCA." And on through the troubles of the War, ending "Oh boy! How I do hate the Kaiser"

AUTHOR: unknown
My Valentine

DESCRIPTION: On Valentine's day "came a pretty damsel to my bedside" They meet again. She is pregnant and says he is the father; if he won't marry he'll go to jail. He agrees but sails off instead. Sometimes he returns rich and she welcomes him back after seven years

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1884 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 15(168b))

KEYWORDS: sex return reunion pregnancy gold ship rake

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North,South))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople 66, "My Valentine" (1 text)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 95, "My Valentine" (2 texts)
Kidson-TraditionalTunes, p. 60, "My Valentine" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

Roud #945

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 15(168b), "Last Valentine Day" ("It was on the morn of last Valentine's day"), H. Disley (London), 1860-1883; also Firth c.12(280), "Valentine's Morn"

File: ReSh066

My Warfare Will Soon Be Ended

DESCRIPTION: "My warfare will soon be ended, My trouble is almost done, My warfare is almost ended, And then I am going home." "God bless the holy people, The Presyterian two (?) Those shouting Methodists (?) And the praying Baptists too."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1920 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 294, "William Shackleford's Farewell Song As Sung by Shackleford" (1 text)

ST BrII294 (Full)

NOTES [54 words]: Brown's informant described this as the last words of William S. Shackleford (for whom see the notes on the song with the same title). But it is clearly a generic hymn. Shackleford, a lay preacher, may have sung it at the gallows, but he probably did not originate it; both verses are attested in other religious songs.

- RBW

File: BrII294

My Way Seems So Hard

DESCRIPTION: Tag line: "My ways do seem so hard." Verses: "My way my way my way"(2x). "Two white horses side by side One of these horses I'm bound to ride." "I got a mother in the Promised land Never expect to see her till I shake her hand."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (LomaxCD1708)

KEYWORDS: floatingverses nonballad religious shanty worksong

FOUND IN: US(SE)

Roud #11897

RECORDINGS:
Bright Light Quartet, "Promised Land" (on LomaxCD1708)
Menhaden Fishermen, "My Way Seems So Hard" (on USMenhaden01)
NOTES [147 words]: The LomaxCD1708 song is part of the "Menhaden Chanteys" track. A couple of verses have close parallels in Newman I. White, American Negro Folk Songs (Hatboro: Folklore Associates Inc, 1965 (reprint of Harvard University Press, 1928). Specifically, "Two white horses side by side Me and my Jesus going to take a little ride" (#ii.28 p. 88), and "I'se got a mudder in the promised land I'se won't stop workin' till I'se shakes huh han'" (#ii.63, pp. 114-115). Another verse on USMenhaden01 is "If you see my mother won't you tell her for me I'm on my way to Galilee." Verses are lined out by the chanteyman. For example, "two white HORSES SIDE BY SIDE (chatter) "one of them HORSES I'M BOUND TO RIDE" (chatter) "o lordy MY WAYS DO SEEM SO HARD" (chatter). See the notes to "Help Me to Raise Them" for an explanation of my formatting and other information about menhaden chanteys. - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: RcBLQPL

My Way's Cloudy
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "O brethren, my way, my way's cloudy, my way, O send one angel down (x2)." Verses: "There's fire in the east and fire in the west, And fire among the Methodist." "This is the year of Jubilee, The Lord has come to set us free." AUTHOR: unknown EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute); 1893 (see notes) KEYWORDS: slavery Bible nonballad religious floatingverses Devil FOUND IN: US(SE) REFERENCES (1 citation): Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 231, "My Way's Cloudy" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 97 in the 1901 edition) [for 1893 edition, see notes] Roud #12333 NOTES [228 words]: In Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses, every alternate line is "Send one angel down." Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute includes the floater "Old Satan's mad and I am glad, He missed the soul he thought he had." Perhaps the Biblical reference for "send one angel down" is Psalms 91:11: "For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways"; as for "the year of Jubilee," Leviticus 25:54 has "And if he not be redeemed in these years, then he shall go out in the year of jubile, both he, and his children with him." (King James) - BS (The idea being that, every fifty years was a Jubilee year, and in the year of Jubilee, the Israelites were to free their Israelite slaves. This law applied specifically to Hebrews -- the Israelites were allowed to keep foreign slaves in bondage, which is how Americans justified Negro servitude -- but one can see how American slaves seeking freedom would adopt the language! - RBW) The index to the 1893 edition [of Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute] has "My way's cloudy" on page 97, with the note "Fisk Jubilee Collection, by permission" (Thomas P. Fenner and Frederic G. Rathbun, Cabin and Plantation Songs (New York: G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1893)). I have not seen page 97. - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Dett231

My Wedding Day (I)
DESCRIPTION: The singer is sitting at her spinning wheel, watching birds gather nesting material and thinking of "wool and linen I've stored away For Sunday morning's my wedding day." She thinks about her lover and the house, like a nest, where they will live.
AUTHOR: unknown EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan5) KEYWORDS: wedding nonballad home bird FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) REFERENCES (1 citation): Greig/Duncan5 1065, "My Wedding Day" (1 text) Roud #6719 File: GrD1065
My Wedding Day (II)
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, tomorrow is my wedding day, I'm as happy as I can be. It's the day that I've been living for...." She reamed of this as a girl. She asks the birds to sing. She will have daisies in her hair. The feast is being prepared. It will be a new start
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2001 (HCargillFamily)
KEYWORDS: marriage bird nonballad
FOUND IN:
RECORDINGS:
Acie Cargill, Debra Cowan, Kristina Olsen, "My Wedding Day" (on HCargillFamily)
File: RcMyWed2

My Wheelie Goes Round
DESCRIPTION: "My wheelie goes round (x2), And my wheelie casts the band, It's not that my wheelie has the wit, It's my uncanny hand."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 475, "Spinning Rhyme" (1 text)
Montgomerie/Montgomerie-ScottishNurseryRhymes 173, "(My wheelie goes round)" (1 short text)
Roud #5882
NOTES [25 words]: It probably goes without saying that this refers to a spinning wheel, not a bicycle or motorcycle or the like -- but I'm saying it just in case. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.4
File: MSNR173

My Wife Died on Saturday Night
DESCRIPTION: "My wife died on Saturday night, Sunday she was buried, Monday was my courting day, and Tuesday I got married." "Round and round, up and down, everywhere I wander, Round and round, up and down, looking for my honey." That's all, folks.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1918 (Cecil Sharp collection)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage wedding death burial floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 153 (last of several "fragments of Irish songs" - 1 fragment, which could be this or "The Old Gray Goose (I) (Lookit Yonder)")
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 202, "A Monday was my Courting Day" (1 text, 1 tune)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Douglas D. Short, "Some Scottish Variants of a Burnsville Folk Song Fragment," Vol. XXIII, No. 1 (Feb 1975), p. 16, "(Last Saturday night my wife taken sick)" (1 text, from Sharp, plus a Kinloch text of "Merrily Danced the Quaker" on p. 17 and a text from Chambers on pp. 17-18, a 1620 broadside text "A New Yeares Guift for Shrewes" on pp. 18-19 and "Tom, Tom of Islington" on p. 20)
Roud #3619
RECORDINGS:
Dr. Humphrey Bate & his Possum Hunters, "My Wife Died on Saturday Night" (Brunswick 271, 1928)
New Lost City Ramblers, "My Wife Died on Saturday Night" (on NLCR07, NLCRCD2)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Old Gray Goose (I) (Lookit Yonder)" (floating verse)
cf. "Way Down the Old Plank Road" (floating verse)
NOTES [148 words]: A fragmentary song, really just floating verses and a dance tune. But it's indexed because, compact though it may be, that first verse tells a coherent story. - PJS
This verse, to be sure, is shared with "The Old Gray Goose (I) (Lookit Yonder)." But the rest goes in different directions.
To add to the confusion, there is a nursery rhyme (Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #131, p. 106):
I married a wife on Sunday,
She began to scold on Monday,
Bad was she on Tuesday,
Middling was she on Wednesday,
Worse she was on Thursday,
Dead was she on Friday,
Glad was I on Saturday night,
To bury my wife on Sunday.
To this compare also Opie/OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes, #509, p. 410, which begins
"Tom married a wife on Sunday, Beat her well on Monday," but the rest almost the same as the Baring-Gould version.
The Baring-Goulds also compare the well-known poem of "Solomon Grundy." - RBW

My Wife Went Away and Left Me
DESCRIPTION: Abandoned by his wife, the singer appeals to her to come back. She replies that she will come back "When the grocery man puts sand in the sugar, The milkman makes milk out of chalk, Boys stay home with their mothers...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, Kelly Harrell)
KEYWORDS: love abandonment humorous husband wife
FOUND IN: US(MW,SE,So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, pp. 176-177, "Of Late I've Been Driven Near Crazy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #77, "Then I'll Come Back to You" (1 text) Rorrer-RamblingBlues-LifeAndSongsOfCharliePoole, p. 78, "My Wife Went Away and Left Me" (1 text)
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 85, "My Wife's Gone Off and Left Me" (1 text plus mention of 1 more, 1 tune)
Roud #3686
RECORDINGS:
Kelly Harrell, "My Wife Went Away and Left Me" (Victor 21520, 1927; on KHarrell02)
Charlie Poole and the North Carolina Ramblers, "My Wife Went Away and Left Me" (Columbia 15584-D, 1930; rec. 1928; on CPoole03)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Things Impossible" (lyrics)
NOTES [381 words]: Rorrer-RamblingBlues-LifeAndSongsOfCharliePoole reports that this song bears similarities to a song by Charles D. Vann called "Then My Darling I'll Come Back to Thee." It is not clear whether they are the same song, though, or whether that song merely influenced this.
There are several southeren versions of this song, and there is an English song with common lyrics, "Things Impossible." These two are surely derived from the same original, but the setting is different; the English song is an appeal to marry, the American a plea to a woman to reunite with her ex-love. Possibly Vann rewrote the English text and created the popular American version. I separate them; Roud lumps them.
There are several references in the Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin version which might be used for dating: The singer's wife runs off with a "Chinee," there was a recent bank robbery in Canada, Jay Gould is in a contest with the Knights of Labor, and the K.C.'s [Knights of Columbus?] for Eagles, and Masons are feuding.
Jameson, p. 334, reports that Uriah S. Stevens organized the Knights of Labor in 1869, and that it was formally organized in 1871 -- but only abandoned secrecy in 1881. In 1886 it organized the strike against the Missouri Pacific railroad, which failed. By the 1890s, it was dying out (Hofstadter,
p. 99); the strikes it had organized had brought much bitterness but little help to the workers.
Jay Gould (1836-1892, according to CDAB) was involved with the Missouri Pacific in the 1870s, and "By 1890 he owned half the railroad mileage in the southwest" (CDAB, p. 358).
Protests against Chinese immigration to California had become widespread by 1880, when the census showed more than 100,000 Americans of Chinese origin (Jameson, p. 131). The first attempt at a Chinese Exclusion Act was vetoed by President Hayes in 1879, and another by President Arthur (Karabell, ppp. 84-85), but when Arthur was burned in effigy and he realized that a new law would be passed over his veto, he allows a new law to take effect (Karabell, p. 85). Another strenuous law was passed in 1888 (and largely repealed in 1893 due to its ineffectiveness). Taking all this into account, the song must have been put into the form found in Peters between 1881 and 1892, and probably between 1886 and 1892. - RBW

Bibliography

My Wife's a Wanton Wee Thing

DESCRIPTION: The singer complained that his wife "winna be guided by me." She had affairs before they married and he is sure she'll do that again. She sold her coat to buy drink. Finally he beat her and she's been "a braw guide bairn" since.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1776 (Herd)

KEYWORDS: infidelity violence drink husband wife clothes

FOUND IN: Britain (Scotland (Aber))

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Greig/Duncan7 1295A, "My Wife's a Wallopin Wee Thing" (1 text, 2 tunes)
- Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 497, "My Wife's" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: David Herd, editor, Ancient and Modern Scottish Songs, Heroic Ballads, etc. (Edinburgh, 1870 (reprint of 1776)), Vol II, p. 230, ("My Wife's a Wanton Wee Thing")
- James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume III, #217, p. 226, "My Wife's a wanton, wee thing" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Robert Chambers, _The Scottish Songs (Edinburgh, 1829)_, Vol II, pp. 334-335, "My Wife's a Wanton Wee Thing"
- ST GrD71295 (Full)
- Roud #5659

File: GrD71295

My Wifie Winna Dee

DESCRIPTION: The singer complains that his wife won't die. Rather, "she'll live an' anger me"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan7)

KEYWORDS: shrewishness nonballad husband wife

FOUND IN: Britain (Scotland (Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Greig/Duncan7 1294, Greig/Duncan8 Addenda, "My Wifie Winna Dee" (2 texts, 3 tunes)
- Roud #7195

File: GrD71294

My Wild Irish Rose

DESCRIPTION: "If you listen I'll sing you a sweet little song Of a flower that's now drooped and dead Yet dearer to me, yes, than all of its mates" because it came from his beloved, his "wild Irish rose." He hopes he will win her someday
AUTHOR: Words: Chauncey Olcott
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd)
KEYWORDS: love courting flowers
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #96, "My Wild Irish Rose" (1 text)
Roud #5266
NOTES [14 words]: For background on Chauncey Olcott, see the notes to "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: SonMWIR

My Worry Sure Carryin' Me Down
DESCRIPTION: Opening recitation describes the singer's hard life in prison. The song begins with the lament, "Lord, my worry sure carryin' me down... Sometimes I feel like, baby, committin' suicide." The singer is failing, "goin' down slow, somethin; wrong with me."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1963
KEYWORDS: prison hardtimes loneliness disease suicide nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 133-135, (no title) (1 text, 1 tune)
File: CNFM133

My Yallow Gal
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, my daddy was a fool about a yallow gal." "God knows I'm a fool about a yallow gal." The singer describes the various things (walking, talking, having sex), but the consistent result is "I didn' get nothin' from my yallow gal"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Lomax)
KEYWORDS: love courting sex
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 245-246, "My Yallow Gal" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jackson-WakeUpDeadMan, pp. 285-287, "Yelllow Gal" (1 text, 1 tune, plus mention of four more)
Roud #11657
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Yaller Gal" (theme)
File: LxA245

My Youthful Days
DESCRIPTION: "My youthful days I freely wasted In drinking brandy and such pastime, And other joys which I have tasted Have made me sail to a foreign clime"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick)
KEYWORDS: drink travel exile
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 105, "My Youthful Days" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #2780
NOTES [16 words]: The current description is all of the Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick fragment. - BS
File: CrSNB105
Mylecharane

DESCRIPTION: Manx Gaelic. Mylecharane had found and hidden gold years before. He's a poorly dressed miser with a daughter. She asks him for gold so she can have a wedding dress and marry. He retrieves the gold and, curse him, starts the custom of a daughter's dowry.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1868 (Cookson)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage poverty dowry wedding request clothes gold dialog father children
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 36-37, "Mylecharane" (1 text, 1 tune, translated from Manx Gaelic)
ADDITIONAL: W.H. Gill, Manx National Songs with English Words (London, 1896 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 34-39, "Mylecharane" (1 text, 1 tune)
Elizabeth Cookson, Poems from Manxland (London, 1868 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 187-192, "Mylecharane" (1 text)
Roud #1370
NOTES [43 words]: Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs is translated from Manx Gaelic; pronounced Mollecarane or Mulcrane
Cookson: "The most ancient Manx song, rendered into English verse adapted to the popular old Manx National Air, which is plaintive and very beautiful." - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: BrMa036

Mystery of the Dunbar's Child, The

DESCRIPTION: "The eleventh, month of August, in the year of 1912, The kidnapping of the Dunbars' child" at Lake Swayze causes a wide search. No body is found. Months later, a child is found in the presence of Walters. He is convicted of kidnapping but later freed

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, Richard "Rabbit" Brown)
KEYWORDS: children separation reunion trial punishment
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 351-353, "The Mystery of the Dunbar's Child" (1 text)
Roud #22309
RECORDINGS:
Richard "Rabbit" Brown, "The Mystery of the Dunbar's Child" (Victor 35840, 1927)
File: CAFS1352

Na Conairigh

DESCRIPTION: Gaelic. "The song curses the people who gave false witness against the Connery brothers, indicted and condemned to exile in New South Wales.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage transportation trial Australia Ireland
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 100, "Na Conairigh" (1 text)
NOTES [66 words]: The description follows the "English Summary" provided by OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin.
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin: "The song celebrates the dramatic events surrounding the trial and and conviction of three Waterford brothers, John, Seamus, and Patrick Connery, who were sentenced to be transported to Australia.... They were transported on 8 September [1838]...." - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: OCC100
Na Gleannta

DESCRIPTION: Gaelic. "...[verses] sung extempore by guests at a wedding, each in praise of his own locality."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: foreign language pride wedding Ireland nonballad home
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 101, "Na Gleannta" (4 texts, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Elizabeth Cronin, "Na Gleannta" (on IRECronin01)
NOTES [17 words]: The description follows the "English Summary" provided by OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin. - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: OCC101

Na Leannain Bhriotacha (The Stuttering Lovers)

DESCRIPTION: Birds fly into a poor man's corn. His daughter follows. A fisherman's son follows her. They kiss. The poor old man finds them: "If that's the way ye're minding the corn I'll mind it myself in the morn"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (sheet music "arranged by Herbert Hughes," according to Bruce Olsen)
KEYWORDS: courting humorous bird father farming
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 12, "The Stuttering Lovers" (1 text, 1 tune); 12A, "Na Leannain Bhriotacha" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9669
RECORDINGS:
The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, "The Stuttering Lovers" (on IRClancyMakem02)
NOTES [181 words]: OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads: Translated as "Na Leannain Bhriotacha" to Gaelic by Father Tomas O Ceallaigh. The fourth line of each verse mimics stuttering (for example, "I'll mind it myself in the m-m-m-m-m-morn"). The effect is preserved in the Gaelic (for example, "Rachad na bhfiel me f-f-f-f-f-fein") IRClancyMakem02 cover notes: "The Stuttering Lovers' ... was collected and arranged by Herbert Hughes."
John Moulden pointed me to the late Bruce Olsen's Roots of Folk website which has been moving and I can no longer find. Fortunately John quoted a good part of the reference. He pins down the IRClancyMakem02 reference for Hughes to 1906 sheet music. Olsen then refers, for a source, to "English MS Harleian 6057, c 1632." No stuttering in this version, but the same repetition pattern. The birds fly into the corn. "The little boy ...spiede his dame In the middle of all the green and kisses her. "'Tt's enough to tempt a woman,' quote she, 'That never knew man before." The old man finds them making love, chases the boy away, and he'll keep the birds to himself tomorrow. - BS
File: OLcM012

Nabob, The

DESCRIPTION: "When silent time, wi' lightly feet, Had trod on thirty years, I sought again my native land Wi' mony hopes and fears." The singer finds a new generation in the land; all is changed. He misses the old, asking the forgiveness of his old friends' children
AUTHOR: Susanna Blamire (1747-1794)
EARLIEST DATE: 1824 (Smith, _The Scottish Minstrel_, according to Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: age return home
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #5, p. 2, ("When silent time, wi' lightly foot") (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 538, "The Nabob" (5 texts, 4 tunes)
Nach Mbonin Shin Do

DESCRIPTION: There is no money this year "but we'll drink all we earn, and we'll pay what we owe." "The gentry who fed upon pheasants and wine" will be reduced to eating what we eat. If the markets improve "every stout farmer will draw the long bow"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1891 (OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)

KEYWORDS: hardtimes Ireland nonballad patriotic food money

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 49, "Nach Mbonin Shin Do" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9765

File: OLCM049

Nae Bonnie Laddie tae Tak' Me Away (I)

DESCRIPTION: "My name it is (Jean) and my age is (fifteen)... Yet there's nae bonnie laddie tae tak me awa." The girl describes her clothes and her good dowry, but confesses to having no luck in seeking a man

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Ford)

KEYWORDS: loneliness courting

FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H230, p. 255, "Nae Bonnie Laddie tae Tak' Me Away" (1 composite text, 1 tune)
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 315-317, "Nae Bonnie Laddie Will Tak Me Awa" (1 text, 1 tune)
Montgomerie/Montgomerie-ScottishNurseryRhymes 102, "(Queen Mary, Queen Mary, my age is sixteen)" (1 short text, which despite the first line appears more likely to be this piece)

Roud #895

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Queen Mary (Auld Maid's Lament)" (lyrics, theme)

NOTES [58 words]: Ford has anecdotal evidence that this was written by Thomas Scott of Falkirk. If this be true, the song has surely wandered far, becoming little more than a singing game in some of the more corrupt versions.

For the vexed relationship between this song and "Queen Mary (Auld Maid's Lament)," with which it shares much, see the notes to that song. - RBW

File: HHH230A

Nails

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, this world is like a bag of nails and some are very queer ones...." The singer describes the world in terms of nails: "The doctor nails you with a bill"; "the undertaker wishes you as dead as any doornail...."
Nairn River Banks

DESCRIPTION: The singer wanders by Nairn River banks, where he sees a pretty girl herding her flock and lamenting her soldier. A boy brings her a letter from him, saying he is fighting the French in Spain with Wellington, but hopes to come back to her soon.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan1)

KEYWORDS: love, separation, soldier, Spain

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- 1809 - Wellington takes command in the Peninsula (to 1814)
- 1815 - Battle of Waterloo

FOUND IN: Britain (Scotland)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #28, p. 1, "Nairn's River Banks" (1 text)
- Greig/Duncan1 92, "Nairn's River Banks" (14 texts, 10 tunes)
- Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 314-315, "Nairn River Banks" (1 text)

Roud #3780

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Jock Scott" (tune, per Greig/Duncan6)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- Nairn's Bonny Banks
- The Banks o' Nairn
- The Water o' Nairn

NOTES [75 words]: Ord-BothySongsAndBallads calls this a "real Bothy Song," though he admits that it is found in broadsides. But the texts generally seem to be in very exact, even flowery, English, with not a hint of dialect; I have to think it is in origin a broadside, and the traditional versions close to the original. - RBW

One of Greig's correspondents said the song was "written by a Mr Gordon, whose widow was living in Nairn some 30 or 40 years ago." (1908) - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: Ord314

---

Nancy (I) [Laws P11]

DESCRIPTION: The singer offers Nancy his love while confessing his lack of wealth. She is not interested. By the time she changes her mind he has found another love. Nancy warns others against her mistake.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Karpeles-FolkSongsFromNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: poverty, courting, rejection

FOUND IN: Canada (Mar, Newf)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Laws P11, "Nancy I"
- Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, pp. 189-190, "Nancy" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Karpeles-FolkSongsFromNewfoundland 60, "Proud Nancy" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi 77, "Jenny Dear" (1 text, 1 tune)
- DT 733, DRNANCY*
Roud #1002
RECORDINGS:
Marie Hare, "Jenny Dear" (on MRMHare01)
Jim Molloy, "Lovely Nancy" (on MUNFLA-Leach)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Rejected Lover" [Laws P10] and references there
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Dearest Nancy
File: LP11

Nancy (II) (The Rambling Beauty) [Laws P12]

DESCRIPTION: Nancy rejects the singer's offer of marriage. He expresses the wish that her marriage be troubled. His wish comes true; her husband ignores her. Years later, having grown rich, he rubs it in by giving the now-poor girl money. She regrets her error

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1827 (Lyle-Andrew-Crawfurd'sCollectionVolume1)

KEYWORDS: marriage curse poverty rejection

FOUND IN: US (MW, NE, SE, So) Britain (Scotland (Aber))

REFERENCES (10 citations):
Laws P12, "Nancy (II) (The Rambling Beauty)"
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 191-193, "The Rambling Beauty" (3 texts)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp 129-131, "The Widow's Daughter" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 163, "Loving Nancy" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 34, "False Nancy" (1 text, perhaps mixed with "The Banks of Sweet Primroses")
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #142, p. 2, "The Rambling Beauty" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan6 1213, "The Rambling Beauty" (6 texts, 2 tunes)
Lyle-Andrew-Crawfurd'sCollectionVolume1 47, "The Prince of Orange" (1 text)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 176-177, "The Rambling Beauty" (1 text)
DT 496, LVLINGNANC
ST LP12 (Full)

Roud #563
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Rejected Lover" [Laws P10] and references there
cf. "False Mallie" (tune, per Greig)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Merchant's Daughter
A Farmer's Daughter
NOTES [60 words]: This is rather a difficult item, because the family is so fractured. Laws lists neither the Ord-BothySongsAndBallads nor the Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan text with his piece, and indeed the various texts have few words in common. But the plot is the same, and Laws allows both the Ord and Gardner/Chickering titles. So here they are. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.0

File: LP12

Nancy B, The

DESCRIPTION: Recitation; the speaker, tired of lumber camps, signs on as cook of the lumber ship "Nancy B." They anchor in the bay. After only one lighter load, however, a storm comes up. The storm last 16 days; it's cold and hard to cook, but no one complains.

AUTHOR: Probably Marion Ellsworth

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)

KEYWORDS: work cook sailor ship recitation storm

FOUND IN: US (MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 102, "The 'Nancy B'" (1 text)
Roud #8883
NOTES [18 words]: This, like the other pieces probably written by Ellsworth, does not seem to have entered oral tradition. - PJS
File: Be102

Nancy Dawson

DESCRIPTION: "There lived a lass in yonder glen, Wham auld and young did brawly ken." Nancy Dawson's parents would wed her to "the laird o Mucklegear," ancient Bauldy Lawson. She loves a young man; the wedding is set, but she flees with her love
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Ford); the tune "Nancy Dawson" dated back at least to the 1770s
KEYWORDS: lover courting age beauty elopement abandonment
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 71-75, "Nancy Dawson" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan5 1028, "Nancy Dawson" (1 text)
Roud #6717
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "John of Hazelgreen [Child 293]" (plot)
cf. "Lady Jean" (plot)
SAME TUNE:
Ye Tories all rejoice and sing Success to George our gracious King (also called "The Congress")
(Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 75; Rabson-SongbookOfTheAmericanRevolution, pp. 36-37)
American Liberty; or, the Sovereign Right of Thinking ("Since we're forbid to speak or write")
(Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 150)
NOTES [96 words]: There is a (feeble) poem by Herbert P. Horne called "Nancy Dawson"; they are unrelated. It may be that this piece inspired that, however; at least, the name "Nancy Dawson" was well enough known that one of the ships involved in the Franklin search was named Nancy Dawson. And it can't be named after the Horne poem; Horne wasn't born until 1864. Linscott says that "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush" and "Gathering Nuts in May" use the tune "Nancy Dawson." That does not appear to be this song; though no tune seems to have been recorded, the stanza forms don't match. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: FVS071

Nancy Lee

DESCRIPTION: "Of all the wives as e'er you know. Yeo ho! Lads, ho! ... There's one like Nancy Lee, I know..."
Chorus: " The sailor's wife the sailor's star shall be, Yeo ho! We go across the sea."
Composed song in which a sailor sings the praises of his wife.
EARLIEST DATE: 188? (composed): 1909 (Heart-Songs)
KEYWORDS: wife husband separation sailor nonballad love
FOUND IN: Britain US(SE)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, pp. 159-161, "Nancy Lee" (1 text, 1 tune)
Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, pp. 170-171, "Nancy Lee" (1 text, 1 tune)
Morris-FolksongsOfflorida, #26, "Nancy Lee" (1 text, 1 tune)
Heart-Songs, pp. 394-396, "Nancy Lee" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #152, "Nancy Lee" (1 text)
ST ShaSS170 (Partial)
Roud #5014
NOTES [65 words]: Adams and Weatherly were a very successful British songwriting team during the 1880s & 90s. Stephen Adams's real name was Michael Maybrick, and he was brother to James Maybrick, one of the favorite contenders for having been Jack the Ripper. - SL
For Weatherly, the reputed author of "Danny Boy," see the notes to that song. Another Weatherly song in the Index is "They All Love Jack." - RBW
Nancy of Yarmouth (Jemmy and Nancy; The Barbadoes Lady) [Laws M38]

DESCRIPTION: Nancy's father does not want her to marry Jimmy. He is persuaded to allow them to marry AFTER Jimmy completes a voyage. On his way he breaks a lady's heart and is murdered by a man hired by Nancy's father. His ghost reveals the truth, and Nancy dies

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1818 (Garret, _Merrie Book of Garlands, vol. ii_)

KEYWORDS: homicide courting ghost sailor

FOUND IN: US(MW,SE) Canada(Mar,Newf) Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (12 citations):
- Laws M38, "Nancy of Yarmouth (Jemmy and Nancy; The Barbadoes Lady) [Laws M38]"
- Greig/Duncan2 222, "Jamie and Nancy of Yarmouth" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 61, "Nancy of Yarmouth" (1 text)
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 61, "Nancy of Yarmouth" (1 excerpt, 1 tune)
- Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 63, "Pretty Nancy of Yarmouth" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 9, pp. 15-20, "Jemmy and Nancy" (1 text)
- Peacock, pp. 682-686, "Jimmie and Nancy" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 41, "Jimmie and Nancy" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Ashton-RealSailorSongs, #64 insert, "The Constant Lovers' Garland" (1 text)
- DT 437, JIMNANCY

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Chowan River" (plot)

File: LM38

Nancy Till

DESCRIPTION: "Down in the cane brake close by the mill" lives pretty Nancy Till. The singer goes to serenade her, asking her to come along; "I'll row the boat while the boat rows me." When they part, he bids her to be ready the next time he arrives in the boat

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1851 (LOCSheet sm1851 491730)

KEYWORDS: love courting ship river

FOUND IN: US(MA,SE)

REFERENCES (7 citations):
- Thompson-APioneerSongster 68, "Nancy Till" (1 text)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 409, "Nancy Till" (1 text plus a fragment and mention of 1 more)
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 409, "Nancy Till" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
- Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1540, p. 105, "Nancy Till" (3 references)
- Salt-BuckeyeHeritage-OhiosHistory, pp. 50-51, "Nancy Till" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #2836

RECORDINGS:
- Eleazar Tillet, "Come Love Come" (on USWarnerColl01) [a true mess; the first verse is "Nancy Till", the chorus is "Come, Love, Come, the Boat Lies Low," and it uses part of "De Boatman Dance" as a bridge.)
BROADSIDES:
LOCSheet, sm1851 491730, "Nancy Till," Firth, Pond and Co (New York), 1851 (1 text, 1 tune)
LOCSinging, sb30423b, "Nancy Till," H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878; also as110140, "Old Dog Tray"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Come, Love, Come, the Boat Lies Low" (chorus lyrics)

NOTES [190 words]: Broadside LOCSinging sb30423b: H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS

According to Jon W. Finson, The Voices That Are Gone: Themes in Nineteenth-Century American Popular Song, Oxford University Press, 1994, pp. 185-186, this was made famous by a minstrel troupe called White's Serenaders, after their leader Charles T. White (1821-1891). Finson says that White is sometimes credited with writing it, but proof is lacking. Jim Vandergriff's article cited above (p. 36) suggests that the song is the same as the "Nancy Gill" transcribed by one William Sydney Mount in 1838. I have not seen "Nancy Gill," but I know of no connection except the name. Roud splits this from Mary Wheeler's "Come, Love, Come, the Boat Lies Low" (#10033). I'm not sure I would have, but I have conformed to his system to try to retain clarity. There is a parody of this, "Uncle Bill," beginning "Way up near the top of the hill"; I don't know if it uses the same tune. For broadsides, see Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 160. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3

File: Br409

Nancy Varnon

DESCRIPTION: "Between Lochiel and Gowrie, I met a fair maid by the way; I steppid up unto her, and unto her this word did say." "She's my darling Nancy Varlin, She's my darling goes to and fro"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: courting
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 738, "Nancy Varnon" (2 fragments, 2 tunes)
Roud #6170
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Planxty Nancy Vernon" (tune by O'Carolan as far as the fragment 738A goes)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Nancy Varlin
Nancy Vernon

NOTES [33 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan4 fragments. Greig/Duncan4 quoting Duncan: "This song also [like 'Mairins Gibberlin' from Mrs Gillespie] is understood to be distinctly indecent." - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD4738

Nancy Whisky

DESCRIPTION: The weaver sets out to sample the pleasures of drink and a roving life. After extensive drinking, he finds himself broke and despised. He vows to return to weaving, and warns others of the evil of drink

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907
KEYWORDS: drink poverty weaving warning
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South),Scotland(Aber,Bord)) Ireland
REFERENCES (11 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #90, p. 1, "The Dublin Weaver" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 603, Greig/Duncan8 Addenda, "Nancy Whisky" (9 texts, 7 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 372-373, "The Calton Weaver" (1 text)
McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen, pp. 132-133, 155, "Nancy's Whisky" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 279, "Nancy Whisky" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H745, pp. 47-48, "Long Cookstown/
Nancy Whiskey" (1 text, 1 tune)
Graham-Joe-Holmes-SongsMusicTraditionsOfAnUlsterman 42, "Long Cookstown" (1 text, 1 tune)
MacColl-PersonalChoice, "The Calton weaver" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 234, "The Calton Weaver" (1 text)
DT, CALTONWV
ADDITIONAL: Willie Scott, "Nancy's Whisky," School of Scottish Studies Archive
Roud #883
BROADSIDES:
NLScotland, RB.m.143(125), "Nancy Whisky," Poet's Box (Dundee), c.1880-1900
SAME TUNE:
It's Very Strange (per broadside NLScotland, RB.m.143(125))
ALTERNATE TITLES:
I Am a Weaver
NOTES [57 words]: One title for this song is "The Calton Weaver"; Calton was a village, swallowed up by Glasgow in the early 20th century. - PJS
Also collected and sung by Ellen Mitchell, "The Carlton Weaver" (on Kevin and Ellen Mitchell, "Have a Drop Mair," Musical Tradition Records MTCD315-6 CD (2001)).
Greig/Duncan3: "Greig prints a composite text ...." - BS
Last updated in version 6.1
File: K279

Nancy, the Pride of the West
DESCRIPTION: "We have dark lovely looks on the shores where the Spanish From their gay ships came gallantly forth...." The singer praises Nancy's beauty, her sighs, her laugh, her everything, and says that she holds a thousand in thrall
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (OConor); we have a parody before 1820 (broadside, Bodleian Firth c.18(188))
KEYWORDS: beauty nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H495, pp. 227-228, "Nancy, the Pride of the West" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 150, "Nancy, the Pride of the West" (1 text)
Roud #7977
NOTES [213 words]: It gives me a certain amount of pleasure to note that this odious piece probably isn't traditional in origin or, very likely, survival. The evidence of its composed nature comes from several references:
The "shores where the Spanish... came forth": Presumably a reference to the ships of the Spanish Armada, many of which were wrecked in Ireland, generally off the northwest coast (the number is given by David Howarth, The Voyage of the Armada, p. 210, as 26). Few of these Spaniards survived long. (There were later instances of Spanish in Ireland, notably at the battle of Kinsale in 1601 -- but Kinsale was in the south, and this is a song about "the pride of the West." contours."
"The statue the Greek fell in love with": Clearly a reference to Pygmalion and Galatea (Ovid, Metamorphoses, X.254 and following.) - RBW
Bodleian Library site Ballads Catalogue has no copies of "Nancy, the Pride of the West" but has a parody: Bodleian, Firth c.18(188), "Nancy, the Pride of the East," J. Pitts (London), 1802-1819; also Harding B 11(1206), Harding B 15(212b), 2806 c.8(177), Harding B 11(3796), 2806 c.18(217), "Nancy, the Pride of the East."
This Nancy has "eyes ... like rubies so fine" and leaves the East "For Jemmy is the boy I adore ... He is the pride of the North Country" - BS
File: HHH495

Nancy's Complaint in Bedlam
DESCRIPTION: In Moorfields Nancy in Bedlam rattles her chains and mourns the absence of her lover, forced to sea by her unkind friends. He returns, learns she is in Bedlam, and goes to rescue
In Moorfields Nancy in Bedlam rattles her chains and mourns the absence of her lover, forced to sea by her unkind friends. She wishes she were a turtle dove, swallow, or fish, to be with him. He returns, learns she is in Bedlam, and goes to rescue her. He convinces her of his identity, rescues her, "brought her to herself and married her" Chorus: "I love my dear Johnnie, And will do till I die"

LONG DESCRIPTION:

In Moorfields Nancy in Bedlam rattles her chains and mourns the absence of her lover, forced to sea by her unkind friends. She wishes she were a turtle dove, swallow, or fish, to be with him. He returns, learns she is in Bedlam, and goes to rescue her. He convinces her of his identity, rescues her, "brought her to herself and married her" Chorus: "I love my dear Johnnie, And will do till I die"

KEYWORDS:

madness love marriage prison rescue sailor

REFERENCES (12 citations):

- Sharp-OneHundredEnglishFolksongs 41, "Bedlam" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 34, "Bedlam" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 65, "A Maid in Bedlam" (1 text, very possibly from print)
- Greig/Duncan6 1079, "The Maid in Bedlam" (4 texts, 2 tunes)
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #99, p. 1, "The Maid in Bedlam"; #166, p. 2, "The Maid in Bedlam" (1 text plus 1 fragment)
- Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 86, "The Loyal Lover" (3 texts)
- Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 172-173, "The Loyal Lover" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Brocklebank/Kindersley-DorsetBookOfFolkSongs, p. 9, "I'll Mount the Air on Swallow's Wings" (1 fragment, 1 tune, too short to classify but surely this or one of its various relatives such as "I'll Weave My Love a Garland")
- Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 34, "I Love My Love" (1 text, 1 tune)
- DT, MAIDBDLM

ADDITIONAL: The Vocal Magazine (London, 1781 ("Digitized by Google")), #900 pp. 245-246, ("One morning very early, one morning in spring")

NOTES [838 words]:

Bethlehem Hospital ("Bedlam") was the first hospital in London for patients with mental illnesses. It was for men, I believe; Magdalene Hospital ("Maudlin"), established somewhat later, was for women.

Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes: "In 1675 the Old Bethlem Hospital was moved to Moorfields."

Most Laws M10 texts that I have seen have no reference to Bedlam. For one example that does refer to Bedlam see Mary O Eddy, "William Reily's Courtship: A Nineteenth Century Broadside" in Midwest Folklife, Vol. II, No. 2 (Summer 1952 (available online by JSTOR)), pp. 116-118, "William Reily's Courtship, Trial, Answer, Releaseament, & Marriage With His Fair Coolen Bawn":"Reily's Answer, Releaseament, & Marriage with His Coolen Bawn" ("You tender hearted lovers attend unto my theme") (1 text)

At this point [we have located] four ballads with the main plot line having a maiden locked in Bedlam:

(I) Nancy's Complaint in Bedlam (Roud #578). If the maiden rattles her chains it is this song. If she does not at first recognize her lover it is this song. As in "The Fair Maid in Bedlam," the couple are married in spite of her parents. In many versions the plot has been lost and all that remains is the chorus (something like "I love my dear Johnnie, And will do till I die") and non-floating verses in which the maiden wishes she were a turtle dove, had swallow's wings, or was a fish, all to find her...
Nanny That Lives Next Door

DESCRIPTION: The singer takes Nan next door to "a wild beast show" where she is almost killed by a bear: it gets only the false bun of her hair. He proposes. She would prefer a man to a lad. He says he'd be her lad first and then her man. He's been happy with her.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1886 (broadside "Nanny That Lives Next Door," Poet's Box (Glasgow), according to Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: courting escape hair humorous animal
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 884, "Nanny That Lives Next Door" (2 texts)
Roud #6137

NOTES [44 words]: This may not seem "humorous" but the intent is clearer from the chorus: "For she stole my heart while sittin and knittin' The time that I sat smokin' and spittin' And ever sin syne my heart's been a flittin' For Nannie that lives next door" (Greig/Duncan4 884A). - BS

Last updated in version 2.5
Nantucket Lullaby

DESCRIPTION: "Hush, the waves are rolling in, White with foam, white with foam, Father toils amid the din, While baby sleeps at home." "Hush, the ship rides in the gale... Father seeks the roving whale...." "... Mother now the watch will keep...."

AUTHOR: Words: unknown / Music: Lucy Allison
EARLIEST DATE: 1943
KEYWORDS: lullaby sailor mother father whaler
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Botkin-TreasuryOfNewEnglandFolklore, p. 571, "Nantucket Lullaby" (1 text, 1 tune)

Nantucket Point

DESCRIPTION: "Uncle Josiah and old Uncle Sam, they built them a sloop in the shape of a clam." The sloop is finished and launched but they find that they can't sail her. After much trouble they get the boat moored and swear they won't build any more.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips)
KEYWORDS: ship humorous
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, pp. 191-192, "Nantucket P'int" (1 text)

NOTES [228 words]: The idea of a ship in the shape of a clam (which I assume means relatively circular and with a smooth, shallow bottom) isn't as ridiculous as it sounds. It has been done -- admittedly with mixed success. In the 1870s, the Russian admiral Andrei Aleksandrovic Popov designed the "Popovkas" (or "Popoffkas") -- battleships (eventually named the Novgorod and Admiral Popov) with circular hulls for maximum stability as gun platforms. Paine, p. 424, says they worked well enough, but Humble, p. 41, reports they could only be steered into a current: "They spun like tops when coming downstream and their decks were flooded by the slightest seaway." A later vessel, elliptical rather than actually circular, proved better. Fritdjov Nansen's Fram, built in the early 1890s, was designed for polar exploration; Nansen and Sverdrup used her to make what amounted to a Northeast Passage (see, e.g., Berton, pp. 489-498, especially p. 495), and Amundsen later took her to the Antarctic. But the honest truth was, she wasn't much good for ordinary sailing; her round sides and rounded bottom were designed to keep her from being crushed by ice, and made her very slow (her top speed under steam, according to Paine, p. 190, was seven knots) and almost useless for other tasks. She ended up in a museum, but it appears no other ships like her were ever ever constructed. - RBW

Bibliography

• Humble: Richard Humble, Battleships and Battlecruisers, Chartwell, 1983

Naomi Wise [Laws F31]

DESCRIPTION: (John Lewis) takes Naomi for a ride and throws her in the river. When her body is found, he is arrested but not convicted. He confesses to the murder only on his deathbed

AUTHOR: Carson J. Robison
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (recording, Vernon Dalhart)
KEYWORDS: homicide river gallows-confession
Napan Heroes, The

DESCRIPTION: Twenty-five shantymen watch a fight between Robert Sweezey and Frank Russell. After an hour "a poke in the stomach" makes Russell give in. Sweezy "conquered the champion from old Point Carr. He's the true Napan hero."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi)

KEYWORDS: fight sports logger derivative

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick, pp. 61-62, "The Napan Heroes" (1 text, 1 tune)
Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi 36, "The Napan Heroes" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST lvNB061 (Partial)
Roud #1946

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Morrissey and the Black" (theme)

NOTE [61 words]: Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick: This is a parody of "Morrissey and the Black."
"According to Louise Manny, the fight took place in 1889 and the casus belli was the love of a woman who later married neither combatant." - BS

Manny and Wilson in fact states that the fight took place "about 1889," and describe the tune as "Twickenham Ferry"/"The Squid Jiggin' Ground." - RBW

Napoleon (I)

DESCRIPTION: "I had a horse and his name was Napoleon, All on account of his bony part." The horse is thin and travels in/with a milk wagon; it stops when the owner shouts "milk." He loses a race when the other rider rider shouts "milk" just before he wins

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales)

KEYWORDS: horse racing humorous

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 161, "Napoleon" (1 text)

Roud #4573

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Reuben and Rachel" (tune) and references there

File: TNY161

Napoleon Bonaparte (III)

DESCRIPTION: "The deeds of famed Napoleon I mean for to relate ... led astray ... Grouchy led the French astray And the great battle of Waterloo was bought with English gold." Having been betrayed by Grouchy Napoleon is banished to St Helena and Louisa laments.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick)

KEYWORDS: war exile betrayal Napoleon

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
June 18, 1815 - Battle of Waterloo

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar) Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick, pp. 42-45, "Napoleon Bonaparte" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 140-142, "Napoleon Bonyaparte" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1943 and 3084

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Wheels of the World" (for the charge that Grouchy betrayed Napoleon)

NOTES [580 words]: Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick: Other pieces "have the Little Corporal as their hero, [this one] is different in having a true villain, the Marquis de Grouchy, the marshall who failed to keep Blucher from joining up with Wellington at Waterloo." - BS

One suspects broadside origin for this piece, from someone who needed a scapegoat for Napoleon. While the behavior of Emmanuel Grouchy (1766-1847) helped lose Waterloo, he certainly didn't betray Napoleon! His competence can be questioned, but not his loyalty.

Primarily a cavalry officer, Grouchy served well in small roles in Napoleon's first career. Quick to return to Bonaparte's service during the Hundred Days, he was rewarded with a Marshal's baton (the last of Napoleon's Marshals) -- and given command of a third of the army in the Waterloo campaign.

This was a mistake; Grouchy had little infantry experience, and no experience with forces so large (two corps and change). His appointment was one of several organizational mistakes that cost Napoleon dearly at Waterloo.

Napoleon's plan for the Waterloo campaign was brilliant: Two armies, Wellington's (British and Dutch) and Blucher's (Prussian), were concentrating against him. Individually, they were smaller than Napoleon's cobbled-up force, but together, they were far larger. Napoleon divided his army into three parts, under Ney, Grouchy, and his own direct command. He interposed them between Wellington and Blucher, and proposed to defeat them in detail.

There were actually three battles involved: Ligny and Quatre Bras on June 16, and Waterloo on June 18. At Quatre Bras, Ney was supposed to attack Wellington's rearguard, while Grouchy and Napoleon attacked Blucher at Ligny. Grouchy's performance at Ligny was competent enough; the Prussians were forced to retreat. But Ney completely muffed the attack at Quatre Bras, first failing to attack when the odds were with him, then going in after the small local force was reinforced. This got him in enough trouble that he took control of d'Erlon's corps, which Napoleon had called upon to polish off the victory at Ligny, and hauled it back to Quatre Bras. Where it didn't fight.

This was disastrous. Napoleon turned his own and Ney's forced to attack Wellington at Waterloo, leaving Grouchy to watch Blucher -- but Blucher had merely been pushed back a few miles. He halted the retreat, marched around Grouchy, and managed to bring up enough of his army to turn the tide at Waterloo.

Grouchy's performance was certainly poor; he lost contact with Blucher, and then just sat rather than trying to find a battle to fight. He did, nonetheless, obey his orders, if woodenly. While his behavior cost Napoleon his last chance to survive at Waterloo, the fundamental fault is Napoleon's for setting up very bad command arrangements -- and, tactically, the fault is almost entirely Ney's (who, indeed, gets the blame in "The Grand Conversation on Napoleon," which see): He messed up at Quatre Bras, he made it impossible to win at Ligny, and he was in tactical charge at Waterloo but delayed so long that Blucher had time to come up. - RBW

The ballad is recorded on one of the CD's issued around the time of the bicentenial of the 1798 Irish Rebellion. See:
Franke Harte and Donal Lunny, "Napoleon Bonaparte" (on Franke Harte and Donal Lunny, "My Name is Napoleon Bonaparte," Hummingbird Records HB0027 (2001))
Harte: "This particular song was written almost fifteen years after the death of Napoleon [1821]." - BS

Last updated in version 4.2
File: IvNB042

Napoleon Is the Boy for Kicking Up a Row

DESCRIPTION: Hard times now but "money was plenty as paving stones In the days of General Bonaparte." He far exceeded past great warriors. He returned from Elba but was murdered on St Helena. "But his nephew's on the throne of France"; maybe he will make England pay.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1865 (broadside Bodleian, Firth c.16(85))

KEYWORDS: war homicide commerce death Napoleon France royalty revenge

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 199, "Napoleon Is the Boy for Kicking Up a Row" (1 text)
Roud #V12967

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth c.16(85), "Napoleon is the Boy for Kicking up a Row" ("Arrah, murther, but times is hard"), The Poet's Box (Glasgow), 1865

NOTES [522 words]: Napoleon's "nephew's on the throne of France": Napoleon III[1808-1873; president 1848-1852; emperor 1852-1870] was the son of Napoleon's stepdaughter and, nominally, his brother Louis Bonaparte. (source: "Napoleon III of France" at the Wikipedia site).

This ballad claims Napoleon "was sent off to a barren isle, Where he was murdered and ill-treated." Apparently the thought that Napoleon was poisoned is older than the speculation of the past fifty years that he was poisoned intentionally (possibly). (see, for example "Arsenic poisoning and Napoleon's death" by Hendrik Ball at the Victorian Web site).

Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 p. 151: "Times were good during the Napoleonic era as the war effort generated massive demand for goods and services in Ireland. An economic slump ensued after Napoleon's defeat as the war machine was wound down and armies were demobilized." This is like the lines from "The Grand Conversation on Napoleon": "Napoleon he was a friend to heroes, both young and old, He caus'd the money for to fly wherever he did go." Here also is the main theme of "The Grand Conversation Under the Rose": "Come stir up the wars, and our trade will be flourishing." - BS

It's worth remembering that Napoleon poisoned himself -- he tried to commit suicide on April 13, 1814, as the allies closed in on Paris (see Alan Schom, One Hundred Days, pp. 2-3). Obviously, he failed -- but he was physically never the same. And he died of what may have been stomach cancer -- the sort of thing that, at the time, could easily have been blamed on poison. Napoleon did have elevated levels of arsenic in his body when he died (though this was not established until recently, based on neutron activation analysis of his hair). This need not have been the result of poison, however, it turns out his wallpaper contained heavy doses of arsenic in the pigment (see John Emsley, Nature's Building Blocks, p. 46).
Saint Helena certainly qualifies as barren; according to the 2001 Statesman's Yearbook, it didn’t even become a British colony until 1834, more than a decade after Napoleon’s death. Even now, the population is less than 10,000, and the lone town, Jamestown, has only about 3000.
The alleged good times during the war with Napoleon are more weak memory than anything else;
the British government nearly spent itself into the ground, the economy was weak (see "Ye Tyrants of England," e.g., where the people are promised an improved economy once Napoleon is gone), and if times were so good in Ireland, why was there a rebellion in 1798? The one thing Napoleon did was siphon off Irish youths of military age.
Napoleon III certainly wanted to enhance French power at British expense, but he didn’t have much nerve. In the Crimean War, he allied with England against Russia. In the American Civil War, he is said to have wanted to support the Confederacy, but was unwilling to do so without British support
-- and the British were too cautious (and their millworkers too anti-slavery). Ultimately, Napoleon III ended up dying in England, having done much to strengthen the British Empire despite himself. -
RBW
Last updated in version 5.1
File: Moyl199

Napoleon the Brave

DESCRIPTION: "Napoleon is no more, the French did him adore." His victories are listed: "The Austrians he beat." "The Poles he made to flee, and he conquered Italy." "The Hollanders he slew, he Caesar did outdo" ... "There were 14 Kings at war with Napoleon the Brave"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1856 (broadside, Bodleian Firth c.12(225))

KEYWORDS: war death Napoleon

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion, p. 106, "Napoleon the Brave" (1 fragment)
Roud #V1173

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth c.12(225), "Napoleon the Brave," J. Cadman (Manchester), 1850-1855

NOTES [21 words]: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion p. 106 is a fragment; broadside Bodleian
Firth c.12(225) is the basis for the description. - BS

Last updated in version 5.1
File: BrdNapBr

Napoleon's Farewell (Pretty English Girls)

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you pretty English girls, I must bid you adieu"; the singer is going to Alexandria to fight Napoleon. They enter houses in the fight and find girls crying for mercy. Now the wars are over and they intend to return to their girls and spend freely

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1891 (Ashton-RealSailorSongs)

KEYWORDS: Napoleon navy battle love separation reunion

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ashton-RealSailorSongs, #83, "The Sailor's Farewell" (1 text)
Roud #12823

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 17(269b), "The Sailor's Farewell," J. Pitts (London), 1819-1844; also Harding
B 25(1701); Firth c.13(51) (appears to be a cut-down version of the preceding); Firth c.13(1); Harding B 16(240a); Harding B 17(270a); all by Pitts, 1819-1844; Harding B 17(269a), "The Sailor's Farewell," Angus (Newcastle), 1774-1825

File: AshS83
Napoleon's Farewell to Paris
DESCRIPTION: "Farewell ye splendid citadel, metropolis called Paris...." "My name is Napoleon Bonaparte, the conqueror of nations... But now I am transported to Saint Helena's isle." Bonaparte recalls his greatness and laments his fall
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1842 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(2602)); c.1818 (broadside, NLSScotland L.C.Fol.70(139))
KEYWORDS: exile lament Napoleon
FOUND IN: US(MW) Canada(Newf) Ireland
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 186, "I Am Napoleon Bonaparte" (1 text, 1 tune); 187, "Napoleon Bonaparte’s Farewell to Paris" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 89, "Bony’s Lament" (1 text)
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 82, "Napoleon's Farewell to Paris" (1 fragment)
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 72, "Napoleon's Farewell to Paris" (1 fragmentary text plus some variants, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 1009-1011, "Napoleon's Farewell to Paris" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1541, p. 105, "Napoleon's Farewell to Paris" (reference)
DT, NAPOLBON
Roud #1626
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2602), "Napoleon’s Farewell to Paris," T. Birt (London), 1833-1841; also Harding B 20(267), Harding B 15(214b), Johnson Ballads fol. 59, Harding B 16(165c), Firth c.16(87), Harding B 11(2600), Harding B 11(2601), Firth c.26(124), "Napoleon's Farewell to Paris"; Harding B 11(2599), "Napoleon's Farewell"
Murray, Mu23-y1:043, "Napoleon Bonaparte," James Lindsay (Glasgow), 19C; also Mu23-y1:107, "Napoleon Bonaparte"
NLSScotland, L.C.Fol.70(139), "Napoleon's Farewell to Paris," unknown, c.1818
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Saint Helena (Boney on the Isle of St. Helena)" (subject)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Napoleon Bonaparte
NOTES [116 words]: The rather ornate language of this song (references to "citadels" and "bright Phoebus," etc.) seems to have caused it to be rather liable to corruption; Gardner and Chickering's text, for instance, has the first line read "Come all ye splendid city dells"! Creighton comments on the difficulty her informant had in learning the song, and prints part of a broadside text to show why he had such difficulty. - RBW
The ballad is recorded on one of the CD's issued around the time of the bicentennial of the 1798 Irish Rebellion. See: Franke Harte and Donal Lunny, "Napoleon's Farewell to Paris" (on Franke Harte and Donal Lunny, "My Name is Napoleon Bonaparte," Hummingbird Records HBCD0027 (2001)) - BS
Last updated in version 3.5
File: GC089

Napoleon's Lamentation
DESCRIPTION: Napoleon says "I was born to wear a stately crown." He recounts his victories until, after Moscow, "my men were lost through cold and frost." Defeats follow. He bids fare well to his "royal spouse, and offspring great"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: war France Napoleon royalty hardtimes wife children
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 194, "Napoleon's Lamentation" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [95 words]: The ballad is recorded on one of the CD's issued around the time of the bicentennial of the 1798 Irish Rebellion. See: Franke Harte and Donal Lunny, "Napoleon's Lamentation" (on Franke Harte and Donal Lunny, "My Name is Napoleon Bonaparte," Hummingbird Records HBCD0027 (2001)) - BS
This sounds to me rather like "The Bonny Bunch of Roses" [Laws J5], recast to put it in the mouth of Napoleon the Father rather than Napoleon the Son. Of course, I can't tell in which direction the mixture went -- or, indeed, if there might not be a third song that influenced both. - RBW

File: Moyl194

Napper

DESCRIPTION: "Napper come to my house, I thought he come to see me, When I come to find him out He 'suade my wife to leave me." And similar verses about (Napper's) eccentricities: "Napper went a-huntin', He thought he'd catch a coon... He treed a mushy-room."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: humorous hunting betrayal wife

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 123, "Taffy Was a Welshman" (3 short texts)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 123, "Taffy Was a Welshman" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 102-103, "Rise, Ole Napper" (2 fragments, the first of which might be "Old Tyler" or something else; the second appears to be this but is too short for certainty and is mixed with the chorus of "Oh! Susanna"; 1 tune)

Roud #7849

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Old Tyler"

NOTES [90 words]: The notes in Brown say that these three fragments are "clearly derived from the familiar Mother Goose rhyme about the thieving Welshman [i.e. 'Taffy Was a Welshman']."

This is a very long stretch; the two have a few similar lines, but "not" the key phrases about Taffy. As they stand, I'd certainly call them separate songs, and possibly not even related.

Brown's "A" text may not be the same as "B" and "C," but it's too short to really deal with separately. The same can be said of Scarborough's miscellaneous one-sentence fragments.- RBW

Last updated in version 4.1

File: Br3123

Naptown Blues

DESCRIPTION: "Nobody knows old Naptown, baby, like I do, do (x2), If you will stop and listen, I will tell you a thing or two, two." Naptown (Indianapolis) is a place for fun; the blues don't last long there. The singer declares that he is returning to Naptown

AUTHOR: probably Leroy Carr (1905-1935)

EARLIEST DATE: 1920 (recording, Leroy Carr and Scrapper Blackwell)

KEYWORDS: home nonballad

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 428, "Naptown Blues" (1 text)

RECORDINGS:
Leroy Carr and Scrapper Blackwell, "Naptown Blues" (Vocalion 1400, 1920)

File: CAFS2426

Narrow Lane, The

DESCRIPTION: "Circle four in the narrow lane (x3), Way down below." "Do-si-do in the narrow lane." "Circle six in the narrow lane." "Cut a figure eight in the narrow lane."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1999 (Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty)

KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Nat Goodwin [Laws F15]
DESCRIPTION: A young mother, sick abed, is denied a last look at her dead baby. Her husband turns her out of the house. He falls in love with another woman and kills his wife. He is executed when his new flame testifies against him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan)
KEYWORDS: homicide abandonment baby execution husband wife
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sept 3, 1897 - Shooting of Mrs. (Walter) Goodwin
May 1898 - Hanging of Walter Goodwin
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Laws F15, "Nat Goodwin"
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 143, "Nat Goodwin" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 770, GOODWIN
Roud #3670
NOTES [55 words]: Although this song seems to be known only from the text found in Michigan by Gardner and Chickering, the tragedy took place in Wellsboro, Pennsylvania. Gardner and Chickering report that after the hanging of Walter Goodwin, "Gertrude Taylor, the girl in the case, did the shooting." They do not report Taylor's eventual fate. - RBW
File: LF15

Natalicio de Washington
DESCRIPTION: Spanish. "Hoy commemoramos el dia de Washington," "Today we commemorate Washington's birthday." "Long live the nation." "The first president... Was a very brave man called Washington." The people gather to celebrate Wasington's birthday
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1980 (Robb)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage patriotic
FOUND IN: US(SW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 546, "Natalicion de Washington (Washington's Birthday)" (1 Spanish text plus translation)
File: CAFS546

Nathan Hale
DESCRIPTION: "The breezes went steadily through the tall pines, A-saying o hush...." as Nathan Hale attempts to return to his command. But the British capture him, try him, insult his cause, and hang him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Moore's "Songs and Ballads of the American Revolution," according to Eggleston)
KEYWORDS: rebellion war prisoner execution
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sept. 22, 1776 - Execution of Nathan Hale by the British as a spy.
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 67-68, "Nathan Hale" (1 text, 1 tune)
Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, pp. 7-9, "The Ballad of Nathan Hale" (1 text)
NOTES [26 words]: There is a poem, "Nathan Hale," by Francis M. Finch, in Eggleston. It is not his piece; it begins "To drum-beat and heart-beat, A soldier marches by." - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: SBoA967
Nathan Killed a Belled Cow

DESCRIPTION: "Nathan killed a belled cow and fed the dogs the liver, And now we're out of meat, and we'll hang the dogs forever." "Oh, the hawks shoot the buzzards and the buzzards shoot the crows." "Oh, the maggots and the skippers they do grow so very bold."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol2)
KEYWORDS: cattle dog animal food bird nonballad floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol2, p. 29, "Nathan Killed a Bell Cow" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3644
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Shoot the Buffalo" (lyrics)
NOTES [47 words]: Roud lumps this with "Shoot the Buffalo," and I entirely see his point; the second verse borrows words from that song, and the whole thing is likely based on it, but this has so many unique words that I would consider it a song in its own right, if a feeble and little-known one. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: BwV2929

Nation Once Again, A

DESCRIPTION: "When boyhood's fire was in my blood, I read of ancient freemen... And then I prayed I yet might see... Ireland, long a province, be A nation once again." The youth describes the glories of freedom, and hopes it can be regained

AUTHOR: Thomas Davis (1814-1845)
EARLIEST DATE: 1962
KEYWORDS: Ireland rebellion freedom
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Galvin-IrishSongsOfResistance, pp. 42-43, "A Nation Once Again" (1 text, 1 tune)
Behan-IrelandSings, #3, "A Nation Once Again" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 129, "A Nation Once Again" (1 text)
DT, NTNAGN
ADDITIONAL: Charles Sullivan, ed., Ireland in Poetry, p. 199, "A Nation Once Again (1 text)
Roud #2194
NOTES [376 words]: Thomas Davis was an Irish poet and patriot. A member of Daniel O'Connell's National Repeal Association from 1841, he started the Nation newspaper in 1842 and was a leader of the "Young Ireland" movement that sought a more modern approach to independence. Davis died of scarlet fever in 1845, and it never really became clear whether he supported violent revolution or agreed with O'Connell in espousing peaceful reform.
What is truly hard to imagine is the National Ireland that Davis hoped for. As is so often the with Irish leaders, Davis was Protestant. (See Robert Kee, _The Most Distressful Country_, being Volume I of _The Green Flag_, pp. 195-197).
The irony and the problem of the song is that Ireland was never a nation; before the English came, it had been a land of many petty chiefs who never united. The closest it came was the period from 1782-1800, when it had a truly independent parliament under the British crown. It proceeded to shoot itself in the foot, with a government so bad that it induced the 1798 rebellion and in turn caused Britain to create a parliamentary union. So the Protestant concept of the Nation of Ireland was one that oppressed Catholics, and the Catholic concept didn't exist.
And, in fact, Ireland never did manage to become the nation Davis wanted it to be, since the Catholic and Protestant parts separated, and each would display strong prejudice toward the members of the other denomination.
The first stanza refers to "Three Hundred men and Three men." The Three Hundred might refer to the Spartans who held Thermopylae against the Persians -- though they're hardly the best example of a free nation, given that the Spartan soldiers were part of an elite class that held down the majority of helots at least as strictly as the British oppressed the Irish.
But three hundred had another significance: It was the number of representatives in the old Irish parliament -- the one which had voted the Union, but which Davis (and O'Connell) proposed to recreate. The "three men" I'm not sure about; too many possibilities. For all that I'm carping about the historical accuracy, it cannot be denied that this song, with its stirring tune and brilliant tag line, is a very effective argument for nationalism. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: PGa042

National Song Used for Hauling (Russian Shanty)
DESCRIPTION: Russian hauling shanty. Translation: "Let us pull away together, boys, all together it goes - it goes, Pull away, away, together."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (L.A. Smith, _Music of the Waters_)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage shanty worksong ship
FOUND IN: Russia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, p. 573, "National Song Used for Hauling" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: Hugi573A

Native Swords
DESCRIPTION: "We've bent too long to bragart wrong, While force our prayers derided; We've fought too long, ourselves among..." The singer briefly recounts the story of Irish rebellion, concluding, "But now, thank God, our native sod Has native swords to guard it."
AUTHOR: Thomas Davis (1814-1845)
EARLIEST DATE: 1962
KEYWORDS: Ireland rebellion
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Galvin-IrishSongsOfResistance, pp. 41-42, "Native Swords" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 216, "Native Swords" (1 text)
Roud #V27520
NOTES [83 words]: Thomas Davis (1814-1845) was an Irish poet and patriot. A member of Daniel O'Connell's National Repeal Association from 1841, he started the Nation newspaper in 1842 and was a leader of the "Young Ireland" movement that sought a more modern approach to independence. He is probably most famous for writing "A Nation Once Again." Davis died of scarlet fever in 1845, and it never really became clear whether he supported violent revolution or agreed with O'Connell in espousing peaceful reform. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: PGa041

Natural Born Reacher
DESCRIPTION: "De white man say de times is hahd, Nigger never worries, 'case he trust in de Lawd. No matter how hahd de times may be, Chicken never roost too high foh me." He recalls "Freeze," who died in a fight and now cuts no ice. He is a "nachel-bawn reacher."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: hardtimes theft death
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 232-233, "I'm a Nachel-Bawn Reacher" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST ScNF232B (Partial)
File: ScNF232B
Nautical Yarn, A
DESCRIPTION: "I sing of a captain who's well known to fame" named Bill Jinks. He sails on the Murray River. One night, it is too dark to see, and the crew are all afraid, but the ship goes on. At last they are wrecked -- so the crew walks ashore.
AUTHOR: Keighly Goodchild (source: Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads)
EARLIEST DATE: 1967 (Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads)
KEYWORDS: river ship wreck humorous
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads, pp. 67-68, "A Nautical Yarn" (1 text)
Roud #9094
NOTES [15 words]: Sort of an Australian version of "The E-ri-e," although I do not suspect dependence. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: StKF067

Navigation (Navvy's Song)
DESCRIPTION: "Come roll up, my lads, and you shall have a prize, In all parts of the nation,
Where all young lads and swaggering blades that work(s) on the navigation."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (collected from Jim Creedy by Cecil Sharp, according to Raven)
KEYWORDS: work canal
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Jon Raven, _Victoria's Inferno: Songs of the Old Mills, Mines, Manufactures,
Canals, and Railways_, Roadside Press, 1978, p. 30, "The Navvy's Song" (2 short texts, 2 tunes, both from Jim Creedy)
Roud #2453
File: RavVI030

Navvy Boy, The
DESCRIPTION: The navvy boy goes roaming, finding work and shelter with a ganger. The ganger's only daughter wishes marry and travel with him. The girl's mother questions this; the daughter says that her father was a navvy. The old man dies and leaves them 500 pounds
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love courting rambling mother father marriage money
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H760, pp. 471-472, "The Navvy Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, NAVVYBOY*
ADDITIONAL: Jon Raven, _Victoria's Inferno: Songs of the Old Mills, Mines, Manufactures,
Canals, and Railways_, Roadside Press, 1978, pp. 33-34, "The Navvy Boy" (1 text, 1 tune, from the Henry collection)
Roud #360
NOTES [41 words]: It has been suggested that this is a reworking of "The Little Beggarman." There are common elements, but that's quite a stretch. Roud lumps it with "The Roving Irishman," which also has points of similarity but appears a separate song to me. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.1
File: HHH760

Navvy on the Line
DESCRIPTION: "I'm a nipper, I'm a ripper, I'm a navvy on the line... All the ladies love the navvies, And the navvies love the fun, There'll be plenty little babies When the railway's done." Independent verses generally about the sexual exploits/desires of the navvies
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia)
KEYWORDS: railroading courting sex bawdy
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, p. 217, "Navvy on the Line" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [66 words]: Roy Palmer, The Folklore of Warwickshire, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 53, gives a single verse of a children's song, beginning "I'm a navvy, you'm a navvy, Working on the line; Five and twenty bob a week, And all the overtime." Clearly it derives from the same original, but it seems likely that it evolved in a very different direction. Roud appears to file this piece as his #13310. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.5
File: MA217

Navvy, The
DESCRIPTION: The gaffer gives his girl an expensive ring and warns "beware of the navvy." The navvy gives her a cheap ring and gown to lie with him. She has a baby and goes to find her navvy who's "on the spree." They marry.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage ring sex pregnancy railroading
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #118, p. 3, ("Oh, I'll get ribbons to my hair") (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan5 977, "The Navvy" (7 texts, 5 tunes)
Roud #6730
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Navvy Lad
Donald Duff
NOTES [174 words]: The alternate title of "Donald Duff" is from lines common to four of the Greig/Duncan5 texts: "And I'll gang to see my navvy lad He works wi' Donal Duff."
The "gaffer," in this case may be the employer or foreman (source: Webster's Third New International Dictionary) and the navvy is the railroad worker. You can get some information on "The Navy Age" in the notes to "The Roving Newfoundlanders (II)" [as the navvies moved to Canada], and, about their reputations as rakes in "The Courting Coat," "The Navvy Boy" and "Navvy on the Line."
Greig/Duncan5 quoting Gillespie: "Heard often in Savoch district, when the Buchan railway was being made. Introduced by navvies. Noted 1906." 1858: "The Formartine and Buchan Railway Act was passed approving the building of the railway line to Peterhead with a branch line from Mintlaw to Fraserburgh." (source: "Some dates in the history of Peterhead" at danielsd demon uk site; also Records of British Railways Board Formartine and Buchan Railway 1855-1858, at National Archives of Scotland site.) - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD5977

Navy Hymn (Eternal Father, Strong to Save)
DESCRIPTION: "Eternal father, strong to save, Whose arm does bind the restless wave... O hear us when we cry to thee, For those in peril of the sea." The singer prays to Father, Savior, Holy Spirit, and "Trinity of love and pow'r" for protection, and will praise God
AUTHOR: Words: William Whiting / Music: John Bacchus Dykes (1823-1876)
EARLIEST DATE: 1860 (Whiting's manuscript copy; see notes)
KEYWORDS: sailor religious nonballad navy
FOUND IN: Britain US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, pp. 183-184, "Eternal Father" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, NAVYHYMN
SAME TUNE:
The Aviator's Hymn (by Sally Nelson Robins) ("Almighty So'reign of the sky, Whose ever-wake yet tireless eye") (Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, p. 185)

NOTES [362 words]: Julian, p. 356, reports:
Of this hymn the following texts are known:--
1. The original MS, 1860....
2. The revised text by the Compilers of Hymns A[ncient] & M[odern], 1861, No. 222. This is the most widely used of any.
3. A revision made by the author... [in] 1869....
4. A Latin version also by Whiting.... [1867, based on the Hymns Ancient & Modern version rather than Whiting's own original]
The lack of hymns for that at sea, together with its merits as a hymn, rendered it exceedingly popular from its first publication, and its use has become most extensive in English-speaking countries. Hodges, of Frome, has published a short tale founded thereupon, and entitled "Hymn 222."

McKim, pp. 562-563, reports that this was President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's favorite hymn, and was sung at his funeral. The tune was played after the death of John F. Kennedy. The melody is called "Melita," after the ancient name of the island of Malta. I do not know why it is connected with Malta, unless it's the fact that composer John B. Dykes (1823-1876) was curate of Malton (with an n) for a time starting in 1847 (McKim, pp. 83-84).

John Bachus Dykes was apparently musical from an early age, playing organ for his father's congregation as early as age 10. He went to Catherine's College, Cambridge, and helped found the Cambridge University Music Society before receiving his B.A. in 1847. He was ordained as a priest the next year. His wife Susanna Kingston, whom he married in 1850, was a resident of Malton, where he was curate. He later moved to St. Oswald's Durham. His other most familiar hymn tune is probably "Holy, Holy, Holy." He was perhaps not easy to get along with; in the 1870s, he became involved in a religious and legal controversy with the Bishop of Durham which likely helped to induce a breakdown in 1875. He died in 1876 -- and was popular enough that an endowment of 10,000 pounds was raised for his widow and children. Four of his daughters have the minor distinction of having been photographed by Charles Dodgson (Lewis Carroll) in 1862 (DodgsonWakeling4, p. 129 and n. 105), although, oddly, he does not seem to have corresponded with them. - RBW

Bibliography

- Julian: John Julian, editor,A Dictionary of Hymnology, 1892; second edition 1907 (I use the 1957 Dover edition in two volumes)

Near the Cross

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "In the Cross, in the Cross, be my glory ever / Till my raptured soul shall find rest beyond the river." Verses center on being "near the Cross" and reaching "the golden strand Just beyond the river."

AUTHOR: Words: Frances Jane (Fanny) (Crosby) Van Alstyne

EARLIEST DATE: 1869 ("Bright Jewels," according to Robinson)

KEYWORDS: river Bible nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
ADDITIONAL: Ira D. Sankey, Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos [1200 Hymns] (London: Collins, 1921?), #134 (1880 #127), "Near the Cross"
F. E. Belden, Christ in Song (Washington: Review & Herald Publishing Assn, 1908 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), #289, "Near the Cross" (1 text) (1 tune)
Roud #17303
RECORDINGS:
Bright Light Quartet, "Just Beyond the River" (on LomaxCD1708)
Moving Star Hall Singers, "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross" (on USSeaisland02)

NOTES [150 words]: The USSeaisland02 version starts with Sankey verse 1 - "Jesus, keep me near the Cross / There a precious fountain / Free to all -- a healing stream -- / Flows from Calvary's mountain" repeats the chorus, as in the description above, many times, introduces verse 4 -- "Near the Cross I'll watch and wait / Hoping trusting ever / Till I reach the golden strand / Just beyond the river" -- and ends repeating the chorus again with increasing speed, clapping and beating on the floor.

Belden's tune is attributed to W.H. Doane with an 1890 copyright. - BS

For background on author Fanny Crosby van Alstyne, see the notes to "A Few More Marchings Weary." According to William Reynolds, Companion to Baptist Hymnal, Broadman Press, 1976, pp. 1220-123, William H. Doane wrote the tune to this and had Crosby set the text. The result appeared in Bright Jewels in 1869 and was reprinted by Sankey in 1880. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2
File: RcJKMNtC

Near the Shannon Side

DESCRIPTION: "Near the Shannon side there dwelt a lass, a made both chaste and pure." Despite being poor, her beauty caused many men to court her. One finally wins her. They set out to cross the river, and are almost killed, but he saves her.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1961 (Fowke collection)

KEYWORDS: love courting beauty river rescue

FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Vikár/Panagapka-SongsNorthWoodsSungByOJAbbott 8, "Near the Shannon Side" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4821

NOTES [40 words]: This is very flowery, making me think it has not been folk processed much. It feels like a rewrite of "Dublin Bay (Roy Neal)," transferred to the Shannon and given a happy ending. I think; the ending in the O. J. Abbott version is abrupt. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1
File: AbFo008

Near to the Isle of Portland

DESCRIPTION: A ship "outward bound to the Indies" sinks in a storm. "We were near to the Island of Portland Where our gallant ship went down; There were never a better commander Sailed out of Plymouth town."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: death sea ship disaster storm sailor wreck

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 59, "Near to the Isle of Portland" (1 text)
Roud #17748

NOTES [28 words]: Portland Bill Lighthouse was built on the Isle of Portland in 1716. Portland is south of Weymouth and about 85 miles by sea east of Plymouth in the English Channel - BS

File: GrMa59

Nearer My God To Thee

DESCRIPTION: "Nearer, my God, to thee, nearer to thee, E'en though it be a cross that raiseth me, Still all my song shall be Nearer my God to thee." Whatever tribulations come, the singer hopes they will cause him/her to come closer to God

AUTHOR: Words: Sarah Fuller Flower Adams (1805-1848)

EARLIEST DATE: 1841 (Hymns and Anthems)
This seems to be the Official Song of People Dying Under Unfortunate Circumstances in the Absence of Corroborating Witnesses. The story that it was played as the Titanic went down is simply false (a story spread by one Mrs. A. A. Dick; see Wade, pp. 61-62) -- the disproof being that the passengers who claimed they heard the song were British and American both despite the fact that the two nations used different tunes (Lord, p. 110). Johnson reports that William McKinley's doctor claimed these were the dying president's last words. In the aftermath of the Johnstown Flood, there were newspaper reports of families singing the song in harmony as they were washed away in the flood (McCullough, p. 221).

Interesting how none of these claims are ever capable of verification. - RBW

Bibliography

- Julian: John Julian, editor, A Dictionary of Hymnology, 1892; second edition 1907 (I use the Nebrasks Blues

DESCRIPTION: "I like you, baby, baby, I like you true (x2), But I’m headin' for Nebraska, there's nothin' up there you can do." The singer will leave the snows of Chicago; her baby is holding her back. She has a "daddy" in Nebrasks to whom she will turn AUTHOR: Victoria Spivey?

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (recording, Victoria Spivey)

KEYWORDS: love travel separation

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 492, "Nebraska Blues" (1 text)

RECORDINGS:
Victoria Spivey, "Nebraska Blues" (Vocalion 1606, 1931)

Nebuchadnezzar's Wife

DESCRIPTION: "Nebuchadnezzar, the King of the Jews Sold his wife for a pair of shoes. When the shoes began to wear, good lack, Nebuchadnezzar wanted her back."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Palmer)

KEYWORDS: royalty wife clothes humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Roy Palmer, _The Folklore of Warwickshire_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 97, (no title) (1 single-verse fragment)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sale of a Wife" (theme) and references there

NOTES [746 words]: It's hard to know what to do with reports of skipping rhymes (are they songs, or just doggerel?), but this sounds to me very much like a folk song, so I'm including it here. It certainly has floated. Robert Salles sends me this report:
"When I was a little boy, in the 1950 ies, my mother told me the following: Nebuchadnezzar, the King of the Jews Sold his wife for a pair of shoes. When the shoes began to wear, good lack, Nebuchadnezzar wanted her back."

The reference to Nebuchadnezzar is interesting. He is sort of the Standard Heathen King of the Old Testament, mentioned about 85 times, with the largest number of mentions being in the books of Jeremiah (whose prophesies cover much of Nebuchadnezzar's long reign) and Daniel (although the events in Daniel, insofar as they are non-fictional and not related to the Maccabean period, seem to be based on the historical Nabonidas, who was perhaps Nebuchadnezzar's son-in-law, rather than Nebuchadnezzar himself). He is also mentioned in Tobit 14:14, where he is credited, falsely, with conquering Ninevah, and in Judith 1:1 and following we find him falsely being called the Assyrian Emperor.

Nebuchadnezzar (or, as Jeremiah more correctly calls him, Nebuchadrezzar) is the Hebrew name for the Chaldean Emperor Nabo-kudurri-usur II. He couldn't really be called the King of the Jews -- he overthrew the Davidic dynasty and deported the people (these events are described in the last two chapters of 2 Kings), but the land was left desolate; there was no King of Judah. Indeed, several records in Babylon still call the deposed King Jehoiachin "King of Ya-u-du" (i.e. Judah; Noth, p. 282). But Nebuchadnezzar did rule almost all the Jews of the Dispersion -- the only ones not within his borders were the handful who had fled into Egypt.

And he was easy to remember, because he reigned for a very long time -- 43 years, according to the Uruk King List (PritchardII, p. 119). He assumed the throne of Babylon in 605, following the death of his father Nabopolassar (If you're wondering about all these names starting with "Nabo" or "Nebo," Nebo was a Chaldean god). This took place just after Nebuchadnezzar had won the great battle of Charchemish and destroyed the last remnant of the Assyrian empire and smashed a great Egyptian army (Bright, p. 326; compare Jeremiah 46:2-4). Had it not been for the death of his father, it is quite possible that Nebuchadnezzar would have gone on to destroy Egypt. As it was, Judah became a Babylonian vassal, but rebelled and was conquered in 598/597. The rebellious King Jehoiakim conveniently died (Bright, p. 327, speculates that he was assassinated), and Nebuchadnezzar did not entirely destroy Judah, although he did exile many of the best people and the new King Jehoiachin (2 Kings 24). A decade later, Jehoiachin's uncle Zedekiah rebelled, and Judah was conquered again in 587 (2 Kings 25). Judah was destroyed and its people exiled. Many Jews probably expected divine revenge on Nebuchadnezzar. It didn't come. He remained King for another quarter century, and embarked in an ambitious rebuilding of Babylon, with much building of temples and monuments to his gods (Leick, p. 119). He finally died in 562.-- opening the door for chaos in Babylon. (And these dates are pretty firm -- according to Dougherty, p. 10, his date list for the Chaldean kings, which agrees with PritchardII, is said to be based on "more than two thousand dated cuneiform documents.") Three kings reigned before Nabonidas took the throne in 556 (Bright, pp. 352-353), and then Babylon fell to the Persians in 539.

Actual records of Nebuchadnezzar's private life are of course few; PritchardI, p. 203, records his brief account of his first capture in Jerusalem in 598 B.C.E., while p. 205 lists some of his household accounts. Goodspeed, p. 349, notes the "instability" of his dynasty -- but there is no mention of his wife, just of the weakness of his son and the brutality of his son-in-law. Still, based on all the sources I checked (not all of which are cited here, since they duplicated the material in the sources I have cited), there seem to have been no succession quarrels in the period before his death, nor is there any mention of a son other than Amel-Marduk (the Bible's Evil-Merodach), implying that there weren't a bunch of wives trying to advance the interests of their sons. - RBW

Bibliography

- Dougherty: Raymond Philip Dougherty,Nabonidus and Belshazzar: A Study of the Closing Events of the Neo-Babylonian Empire, Yale University Press, 1929
- Goodspeed: George Stephen Goodspeed,A History of the Babylonians and Assyrians, 1902, 1903 (I used the 1915 Scribners edition)

Last updated in version 4.5
File: PalWa097

Necktie's Up Behind

DESCRIPTION: "When you attend a party and gyrate with the girls... oh, that painful feeling when suddenly you find The naked truth revealing: your necktie's up behind." When sparking with a girl, or otherwise compromised, you will often find your necktie up behind AUTHOR: probably Thomas P. Westendorf (but in a form so different from Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric's that there was almost certainly a deliberate rewrite) EARLIEST DATE: 1891 (Westendorf's version printed in Wehman's Collection of Songs #32, according to Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)
KEYWORDS: humorous nonballad courting dancing clothes
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 162, "Necktie’s Up Behind" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Roud #11357
  File: Brne162

Ned Bolton

DESCRIPTION: "A jolly comrade in the port, A fearless mate at sea." The singer hopes that, if he ever forgets his comrade, he will lose the ability to fight. Ned Bolton was a fine man aboard the privateer Black Snake. His ship ran aground and ship and crew lost
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1854 (Journal of the Hillman)
KEYWORDS: pirate ship death disaster drink gold
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 139-141, "Ned Bolton" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Roud #27510
  File: HGam139

Ned McCabe

DESCRIPTION: "I'm a fine old Irish laborer, from Ireland I came, To try me luck on Columbia's shore, and Ned McCabe's my name." His fortune has been hard, but he bears it with a smile. He has gone far to the west to log. He can drink twenty jiggers without stumbling
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1926 (Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra)
KEYWORDS: immigration lumbering work drink hardtimes
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra 60, "Ned McCabe" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [123 words]: Although this song is claims to be about a man who went from "the banks of the Mississippi" to the Black Hills, it clearly swallowed some other song about someone who went mining somewhere other than the Dakotas. The song says that the miner came to a point 500 miles from the Mines of Carribou by "ship". In other words, by sea. The Dakotas are more than 500 miles from the sea in all directions. Presumably the miner came by boat up the Mississippi to Saint Paul. This would put him about 625 miles from the Black Hills -- not too far from the 500 miles of the song. The song also claims there were "tigers in full view" on the path to the mines. I presume it goes without saying that there are no tigers in Minnesota or the Dakotas. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.3
File: RDL60

Needle's Eye, The

DESCRIPTION: "The needle's eye that doth supply The thread that runs so true, Oh many a beau have I let go Because I wanted you." The remaining verses describe how the singer(s) have courted and passed others by; the needle may have "caught" the (girl)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty courting
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,NE,So)
REFERENCES (16 citations):
Randolph 545, "The Needle's Eye" (2 text plus an excerpt, 1 tune)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, pp. 144-145, "The Needle's Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bush-FSoCentralWestVirginiaVol4, pp. 9-10, "Needle's Eye" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 74, "The Needle's Eye" (1 fragment)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 74, "The Needle's Eye" (1 tune plus a text excerpts)
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 144, pp. 291-293, "Needle's Eye" (2 fragments)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 43-44, "The Needle's Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 72-73=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 196-197, "Needle's Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 131-133, "The Needle's Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
Mclntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesOfIllinoisOzarks, pp. 94-95, "The Needle's Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lewis-FavoriteMichiganFolkSongs, p. 36, "The Needle's Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hudson-FolkTunesFromMississippi 34, "Needle's Eye" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, p. 90, "Needle's Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame pp. 42-43, "(The needle's eye that doth supply)" (2 texts)
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #29, "Threading the Needle" (2 texts); #171, "The Needle's Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, pp. 288-289, "The Needle's Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST R545 (Full)
Roud #4506
RECORDINGS:
Margaret MacArthur, "The Needle's Eye" [fragment] (on MMacArthur01)
NOTES [197 words]: According to Bush-FSoCentralWestVirginiaVol4, this song supplied the title for a novel called The Thread that Runs So True by Jesse Stuart. The LibraryThing database shows that this was popular enough to have been published in fifty editions or more and to have been turned into a play by Reginald Lawrence.
A publisher's blurb for the book reads "First published in 1949, Jesse Stuart's now classic personal account of his twenty years of teaching in the mountain region of Kentucky has enchanted and inspired generations of students and teachers. With eloquence and wit, Stuart traces his twenty-year career in education, which began, when he was only seventeen years old, with teaching grades one through eight in a one-room schoolhouse. Before long Stuart was on a path that made him principal and finally superintendent of city and county schools. The road was not smooth, however, and Stuart faced many challenges, from students who were considerably older--and bigger--than he to well-meaning but distrustful parents, uncooperative administrators and, most daunting, his own fear of failure. Through it all, Stuart never lost his abiding faith in the power of education." - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: R545

Needlecases

DESCRIPTION: Singer, a peddler, is poor and hungry, and offers to sell the listener needlecases. He was once well-off, but is now homeless and friendless; once a farmer, now in rags. Since the listener won't buy, he's off, but asks listener to buy some if he returns.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer, a peddler, is poor and hungry, and offers to sell the listener needlecases. He was once well-off, but is now homeless and friendless; once a farmer, he's now in rags. Since the listener won't buy, he's off, but asks listener to buy some if he returns. Chorus: "Needlecases, will you buy one?/You will buy one, I'm sure/Won't you buy a case o' needles/From Jack that's so poor?"
KEYWORDS: poverty request clothes commerce hardtimes
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South, North))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 234-235, "Needle-cases" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 152)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 647, "Needle-cases" (1 text)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 233, "Needlecases" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1300
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Case of Needles
NOTES [14 words]: We haven't keywords for "peddler" or "street-cry," so "commerce" will have to do. - PJS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: K233

Negro Cotton Picker
DESCRIPTION: Composite fragment of cotton-picking items: "Way down in de bottom, when de cotton's all rotten, Can't pick a hundred a day. Aught for aught, and figger for figger, All for de white man an' none for de nigger."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: work hardtimes discrimination
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 211, "Negro Cotton Picker" (1 fragment)
File: Br3211

Negro Reel
DESCRIPTION: "Laws-a-massey, what have you done? You've married the old man instead of his son! His legs are all crooked and wrong put on, They're all laughing at your old man. Now you're married you must obey... Kiss him twice and hug him too."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)
KEYWORDS: marriage nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 134-135, "Negro Reel" (1 short text, 1 tune)
NOTES [23 words]: This is probably an odd version of "Sally Walker," but as it might be derived from "Oats and Beans" instead, I give it its own category. - RBW
File: San134

Negro Song (Doodle Bug on a String)
DESCRIPTION: "Let's sing, What you gonna do.... Tie around a string. Sing, sing, what you gon'er sing? Doodle bug, doodle bug, tied on a string"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)
KEYWORDS: bug nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 672, "Negro Song" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
NOTES [29 words]: There obviously isn't enough text here to identify the song, but in case anyone is trying to trace it, it's not the same as the Georgia Yellow Hammers "Doodlebug Song." - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: BrS5672

Negro Yodel Song
DESCRIPTION: "I love my wife and baby, Each morning so soon. I love my wife and baby." In the Brown text, every other word, starting with "love," is yodelled.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
Nein un neinzich (Nine and Ninety)

DESCRIPTION: German counting song. "Nein un neinzich, acht un neinzich, siwwe un.... Ja, ja, ich fiehle dass du mich liebe...." "Nine and ninety, eight and ninety, seven and ninety.... Yes, I've a feeling you love me...." "Nine and eighty, Eight and eighty...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: nonballad foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 88-89, "Nein un neinzich (Nine and Ninety)" (1 German text plus English translation, 1 tune)
File: KPL088

Nell Cropsey (I)

DESCRIPTION: One night Nell's former lover Jim (Wilcox) calls on her. She disappears for three months, then her mother sees her body on the river. Her lover winds up in prison

AUTHOR: credited to Bessie Wescott Midgett
EARLIEST DATE: 1912 (Chappell)
KEYWORDS: homicide
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1901 - Murder of Ella Maud(e) "Nellie" Cropsey, presumably by her former lover Jim Wilcox
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 307 "Nellie Cropsey" (2 texts)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 307, "Nellie Cropsey" (1 excerpt, 1 tune)
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 61, "Nell Cropsey, I" (1 text)
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, pp. 82-84, "Nellie Cropsey" (1 text)
ST MN2082 (Partial)
Roud #4117
CROSS-REFERENCES:
"cf. The Jealous Lover (Florella, Floella) (Pearl Bryan II) (Nell Cropsey II)" [Laws F1] cf. "Nell Cropsey (III -- Swift Flowing River)"
NOTES [1066 words]: This song is item dF45 in Laws's Appendix II, but should certainly have been listed higher; he did not know the Brown version. There are extensive historical notes in Brown, which concur with the song in saying that she was very pretty but list her age as 19, not 16 as in the text of the song. Chappell has four songs associated by title with Nellie Cropsey, but only two (I and IV) mention her name: This one and the Nell Cropsey subfamily of "The Jealous Lover."
To tell this from the Jealous Lover version, consider this first verse:
On the twentieth of November,
A day we all remember well,
When a handsome girl was murdered,
Of her story I will tell.
This story became the subject of a book, Bland Simpson, The Mystery of Beautiful Nell Cropsey: A Nontfiction Novel, University of North Carolina Press, 1993. It looks very un-scholarly, but obviously it is from a university press. Author Simpson was a member of the Red Clay Ramblers, but he was also a professor of creative writing; perhaps it shows. The book includes a photo of Cropsey; she doesn't appear as attractive as all the folklore implies.
Simpson, pp. 165-166, does give some useful dates:
1876 - Birth of Jim Wilcox.
1881 - Birth of Nell Cropsey, fourth child of her parents.
1898 - Cropsey family moves to North Carolina.

Nov. 20, 1901 - Disappearance of Nell, found dead in the Pasquotank river 37 days later.

1902 - Jim Wilcox sentenced to death for the murder of Nell, but the verdict is overturned because of demonstrations during the trial.

1903 - Wilcox retried, convicted of second degree murder, and sentenced to thirty years.

1918 - North Carolina Governor Bickett pardons Jim Wilcox.

1934 - Wilcox commits suicide.

Simpson also notes the interesting fact that Roy Crawford, who had visited Nell's older sister Ollie on the night of Nell's disappearance, killed himself in 1908, and that Nell's younger brother Will committed suicide in 1913. Thus there seems to be real reason to wonder if Wilcox was the actual murderer.

A somewhat more reputable source is John Harden's The Devil's Tramping Ground, subtitled "And Other North Caroline Mystery Stories," University of North Carolina Press, 1949. His story of the Cropsey murder is on pp. 11-23. His outline of the case is as follows:

In 1898, the Cropseys, New York merchants, move from Brooklyn to the banks of the Pasquotank River in North Carolina (p. 12). Nellie, who was 16 or 17 at the time, is described as being very beautiful indeed. Jim Wilcox, the son of a former sheriff of Pasquotank County, was 25 years old when the Cropseys moved in, and began to court Nell almost at once (p. 13). But, after three years of courting, he had made no move toward marriage. Apparently Nell was getting restless by this time; the two quarreled on the night she disappeared.

Supposedly those involved had a discussion that night about how they would commit suicide if it came to that, with Wilcox preferring drowning and Nell freezing (Harden, p. 23). This would seem rather ironic in hindsight. Nell's sister Ollie said that Wilcox and Nell later went out to talk on the porch. She heard a thud, but apparently she was with her own beau and did not investigate, nor did she bother waiting for Nell to come home (Harden, pp. 23-24). No one really noticed her absence until there was a disturbance in the yard (Harden, p. 24). Then it was noticed that Nell was missing. Her father went off to find Wilcox -- and learned that he had been home for hours, but Nell was not there (Harden, p. 16). Awakened, Wilcox claimed he had left Nell on her father's porch at 11:15. Wilcox claimed that he had broken up with her and then left (Harden, p. 17). Portions of Wilcox's account could be verified -- he had claimed that he had returned an umbrella and photo to Nell, and the umbrella was there but the photo was not. Also, it appears there was a two hour gap on that night between the time he left the Cropsey home and when he reached his own (Harden, p. 18).

A search began. Dogs traced Nell to a boathouse by the river; there was no sign that she had left it. Wilcox was charged with abduction (Harden, p. 18), but in the absence of a body, no murder charge was filed at the time.

Then things really turned strange. A letter showed up, explaining that the commotion among the pigs arose because someone had been trying to steal one of the Cropsey's hogs, and Nell had tried to stop him, and he murdered her and dumped her in the river. Five days later, her body was found near that spot (Harden, pp. 18-19). A lynch mob came for Wilcox, but the Cropsey family begged them to let justice take its course, and the mob relented (Harden, p. 19).

The autopsy of Nell's body showed that she had been hit hard on the left temple by an object such as a blackjack (Wilcox was known to own a blackjack). There was no water in her lungs, meaning that she had not drowned; the blow to her head must have killed her before she was thrown in the river (Harden, pp. 20-21). It was later implied that she might have committed suicide -- but this of course does not explain the blow in the head or the lack of water in her lungs.

The case against Wilcox, as presented at trial, was that he had been the last to see Nell and that he had owned what could have been the murder weapon; the prosecutor argued that he had been tired of her. There seems to have been no direct evidence against Wilcox, but he never took the stand in his own defense. Wilcox was convicted of first degree murder, but the trial had been messy enough that he was granted another. This time, the sentence was second degree murder -- which still sent him to prison. He stayed there until pardoned in 1920 (Harden, p. 21). It is believed that Wilcox had told Governor Thomas W. Bickett some details of what happened that caused Bickett to pardon him. But Bickett never explained, and neither did Wilcox; he lived as a recluse for a years, then committed suicide (Harden, pp. 22-23).

To this day, no one really knows what happened to Nell Cropsey. Wilcox is the obvious suspect, but there seems to be no direct evidence implicating him; the alternate explanation (that Nell found someone raiding her father's pigs, and he killed her) is entirely consistent with the known facts. So Wilcox arguably was wrongly convicted. That's not to say that he was innocent -- odds are that he was guilty -- but we can't prove it. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.0
Nell Cropsey (III -- Swift Flowing River)

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, swift flowing river, A secret you hold, Way down in the depths Of the water so cold." The singer begs the river to tell its secret. A "fair girl" is missing, "stolen away in the night." "The secret, Oh River, You surely must know."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Elizabeth City _Daily Advance_); reportedly collected 1902
KEYWORDS: homicide river
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1901 - Murder of Ella Maude "Nellie" Cropsey, presumably by her former lover Jim Wilcox
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 62, "Nell Cropsey, II" (1 text)
ST ChFRA062 (Partial)
Roud #4117
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Nell Cropsey (I)" (subject of some versions) and references there
NOTES [75 words]: Although Chappell lists this as a Nell Cropsey song, and the details (such few as the song contains) fit that case, Cropsey is not mentioned in the text; it might be about another murder.
Roud lumps this with all the other Nell Cropsey songs, but it is clearly distinct. The real question is, Is it traditional? The only collection is Chappell's, from a printed source, allegedly based on a poem (song?) taken down around the time of the murder. - RBW

Nell Flaherty's Drake

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, my name it is Neil, quite candid I tell, And I lived in Clonmell, which I'll never deny, I had a large drake..." which she describes in loving terms. One day a thief steals (and kills) the drake. The rest of the song is an extended curse of the thief

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1851 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(2612))
KEYWORDS: animal bird curse thief theft
FOUND IN: Ireland Australia Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, pp. 128-129, "Nell Flaherty's Drake" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H228b, pp. 18-19, "Nell Flaherty's Drake" (1 text, 2 tunes)
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 14-15, "Nell Flaherty's Drake" (1 text)
Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry, pp. 68-69, "Nell Flaherty's Drake" (1 text)
Pottie/Ellis-FolksongsOfTheMaritimes, pp. 80-81, "Nell Flaherty's Drake" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1566, p. 106, "Nell Flaugherdy's Drake" (2 references)
DT, NELLFLAH*
ADDITIONAL: Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), p. 289, "Nell Flaherty's Drake" (1 text)
Roud #3005
RECORDINGS:
The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, "Nell Flaherty's Drake" (on IRClyancyMakem03)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2612), "Nell Flaherty's Drake", M. Stephenson (Gateshead), 1838-1850; also 2806 b.11(218), 2806 c.16(21), Harding B 15(216b), 2806 b.11(279), 2806 c.8(306), Johnson Ballads 1220, Johnson Ballads 2696, Harding B 11(2610), Harding B 11(2613), Harding B 11(2614), Harding B 11(2615), 2806 c.16(3a), Harding B 11(2611), "Nell Flaherty's Drake"; 2806 b.9(236), Harding B 26(461), 2806 b.11(132) [lines only partly legible], "Nell Flaugherdy's Drake" LOCSinging, as109390, "Nell Flaugherdy's Drake", J. Andrews (New York), 1853-1859; also sb30356b, "Nell Flaugherdy's Drake"
Murray, Mu23-y1:062, "Nell Flaherty's Drake," James Lindsay (Glasgow), 19C; also Mu23-y4:054, "Nell Flaherty's Drake," unknown (Cork), 19C
NLSScotland, L.C.Fol.70(142a), "Nell Flaherty's Drake," unknown, c. 1845

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Wee Duck (The Duck from Drummuck)" (plot, subject?)
cf. "Betsy Brennan's Blue Hen" (plot, lines)

NOTES [292 words]: Tommy Makem describes this as a song about Robert Emmet (executed 1803). I can't prove it wrong -- but if so, it's the most indirect song I know. Certainly later singers (such as those in Australia) seem to have lost consciousness of any anti-British sentiment. For background on Emmet, see "Bold Robert Emmet" and the songs cited there. - RBW
I have not found "Nell Flaherty's Drake" collected in Newfoundland but Johnny Burke's "Betsy Brennan's Blue Hen" is so close that he must have known "Nell Flaherty's Drake." There is no entry for "Nell Flaherty's Drake" in Newfoundland Songs and Ballads in Print 1842-1974 A Title and First-Line Index by Paul Mercer.

Commentary to broadside NLSScotland L.C.Fol.70(142a): "Nell Flaherty's Drake" is an anonymous Irish ballad from the nineteenth century. The drake of the title is believed to be a coded reference to Robert Emmet (1778-1803), who helped to plan and led an uprising against British rule in Dublin in 1803. The uprising went wrong after an explosion at an arms depot, and Emmet was captured and hanged for his part in the uprising and the assassination of the Lord Chief Justice. Irish Home Rule was a volatile subject in Britain in the nineteenth as well as the twentieth century, hence the coding in this song.
This song has the same relationship to "The Bonny Brown Hen" [this adds a villain and curses] that "Betsy Brennan's Blue Hen" has to "Blue Hen" on MacEdward Leach and Songs of Atlantic Canada site, copyright owner Memorial University of Newfoundland Folklore and Language Archive.

Last updated in version 5.0
File: MCB128

Nellie (I)

DESCRIPTION: The singer complains about Nellie's choice of the lily over the rose. Mountain verses: blueberries grow, a castle light-house on top, at its foot the ocean where green-flagged gunships sail to Newry where his "unkind" sweetheart is.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs)
KEYWORDS: courting rejection floating verses nonballad wordplay
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,SOuth)) Canada(Mar) US(SE)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 136-137, "Faithful Emma" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 126, "The Streams of Lovely Nancy" (1 text; the "A" text is "Nellie (I)"; the "B" and "C" texts are "The Streams of Lovely Nancy")
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, p. 79, "Nellie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 29, "The Shipwreck" (1 text)
Roud #18820

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Streams of Lovely Nancy" (lyrics)

NOTES [309 words]: This song shares one verse with "The Streams of Lovely Nancy" [with which Roud at one time lumped it - RBW], which it corrupts:
At the top of this mountain a castle does stand,
It is decked round with ivy and back to the strand,
It is decked round with ivy and marble stone white,
It's a pilot for sailors on a dark stormy night.
Otherwise it shares a confused story line with that ballad but the confusions are not shared: I don't think this is a version of "Streams."
In the language of flowers the white lily stands for virginity and the red rose stands for love. Newry is about 35 miles southwest of Belfast. - BS

Dornan's text begins "O sleep valiant mountain, it bears a great name" is, in one (so called) "Newry Mountain" text, "It is Slieve Gullion Mountain, oh that bears a great name"; Dornan's text mentions "Newry" twice.

Kittredge's version was "communicated by Professor Angelo Hall of Annapolis, 1914, as sung by his aunt, Mrs Elmina Cooley, who died twenty years before. Mrs Cooley got the song from her father, Theophilus Stickney, before 1833. He was born in Jaffrey, N.H., in 1814, and belonged to the Stickney family of Rowley, Mass." The dates are suspect since Mrs Cooley would have gotten the song from her father before he was 19 and she was ...? In any case, Belden notes that the words and tune were printed by Hall in a biography of his mother in 1908.

Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs: "This fragment is either the beginning and end of one ballad, or the first three verses of one tacked on to the ending of another. The name of the song is that given to it by the choirman who sang it to Mr Sumner, though the connection between Emma's faith and Mary's fickleness is not apparent."

Faithful Emma, who does not appear in the Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs text does apparently appear in "Homeward Bound" (II). - BS

Last updated in version 5.3

File: CrMa079

Nellie (II)
DESCRIPTION: "Come, listen to me, a story I'll tell... I once loved and courted a dear little girl." But her parents are opposed, and she marries rich Mr. Brown. He is a drunkard and ignores her. She dies. The singer wants to die for love of her

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (JAFL 45, collected from Mrs. Emory P. Morrow)
KEYWORDS: love abandonment drink death
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 142-143, "Nellie" (1 text)
Roud #4212
File: MHAp142

Nellie Douglas
DESCRIPTION: "It's O and alas, and O wae's me," cries Nellie as she prepares to depart friends and employment. Young Abram bids her cease; she has his heart. She says she cannot wed him; he is above her station. He marries her anyway, and makes her a lady

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1873 (Harris manuscript)
KEYWORDS: love courting nobility marriage
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 123, "Nellie Douglas" (1 text)
Lyle/McAlpine/McLucas-SongRepertoireOfAmeliaAndJaneHarris, p. 160, "They ca' me Nelly Douglas butt the hoose" (1 short text)
Roud #5547
File: Ord123

Nellie Far Away
DESCRIPTION: "This is my natal day Have you thought of home with sorrow, Of Nellie far away"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1911 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: homesickness love separation nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1252, "Nellie Far Away" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Nellie Moore
DESCRIPTION: "In a low green valley where the birds so sweetly sing... Of a summer eve we' launch our little boat. The singer recalls happy days with Nellie, but "Oh, I miss you, Nellie Moore, and my happiness is o'er... For you've gone from the little cottage home."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains)
KEYWORDS: love courting separation
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains, pp. 32-33, "Nellie Moore" (1 text, 1 tune)

Nellie Was a Lady
DESCRIPTION: "Down on the Mississippi floating, Long time I travel on the way." The singer mourns his love: "Nellie was a lady," but "Last night while Nellie was a-sleeping, Death came a-knocking at the door." He will leave Virginia because he mourns so deeply
AUTHOR: Stephen C. Foster
EARLIEST DATE: 1849 (copyright)
KEYWORDS: death love home
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 122, "Nellie Was a Lady" (1 text)
Musick-JAF-TheOldAlbumOf-William-A-Larkin 45a, "Nelly Was a Lady" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1570, p. 107, "Nelly Was a Lady" (3 references)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, pp. 8-9, "Nelly Was a Lady" (1 text)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #126, "Nellie Was a Lady" (1 text)
ST Dean122 (Partial)
Roud #4273
NOTES [71 words]: According to Sigmund Spaeth, _A History of Popular Music in America_, p. 106, this was "Foster's hit in 1849, now chiefly known as a barber-shop favorite." (And, indeed, nearly every reference I found to it online was to barbershop arrangements). According to Deems Taylor et al, _A Treasury of Stephen Foster_, Random House, 1946, p. 55, Foster gave this to Firth, Pond & Co. in return for fifty copies of the printed song. - RBW

Nelly Bly
DESCRIPTION: "Nelly Bly! Nelly Bly! Bring de broom along, We'll sweep de kitchen clean, my dear, and hab a little song." The singer tells how Nelly makes him happy -- she has the voice of a turtle dove, her step is music, and they have corn and pumpkins in the barn
AUTHOR: Stephen C. Foster
EARLIEST DATE: 1850 (sheet music)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 407, "Nelly Bly" (1 fragment)
Brown-MyGrandmothersSongbook 4, "Nellie Bly" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 80-81, "Nelly Bly" (1 text, 1 tune)
Arnett-IHearAmericaSinging, pp. 64-65, "Nelly Bly!" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 144, "Nelly Bly" (1 text)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, pp. 9-10, "Nelly Bly" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1568, p. 107, "Nelly Bly" (4 references)

DT, NELLYBLY*
Roud #13956
SAME TUNE:
The Zouave Boys ("Zouaves sly, shut one eye") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 185)
Biennial Jubilee Song [by Charles H. Owen, [class of 18]60] ("Sophs were groaning And condoling Round Alumni Hall") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 56)
Boating Song ("Lightly dipping, gaily skipping, How our oar blades gleam") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 56)
Foot-Ball Song ("Lightly bounding, dully sounding, See the Foot-ball roll") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 66)
Dedicated to Old Party Votes ("Ragged voter, ragged voter, Come see your redeemer") (Foner, p. 281)

NOTES [167 words]: Like several other characters in Foster songs, Nelly Bly was said by Foster's family to be a real person. According to Evelyn Foster Morneweck (Stephen Foster's niece), _Chronicles of Stephen Foster's Family_, University of Pittsburgh Press, 1944, pp. 373-374, Foster and several musical friends were having a musical gathering when "A comely colored girl poked her head out of the cellar door to listen to the music. Stephen observed her and asked Rachel, 'Who's that?' 'That's Nelly Bly,' reply Rachel Woods. The name caught Stephen's fancy, and when the visitors were invited into the house, he went immediately to the piano, and improvised and played and sung 'Nelly Bly' with almost the identical words and music afterward published and sung the world over. The daughter of a former slave, Nelly lived with the Woods family [the host of the gathering] for many years. She died at an advanced age and was always very proud of the fact that Stephen Foster had composed and named a song for her." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Arn064

Nelly the Milkmaid

DESCRIPTION: Nelly, coming home from the wake (a country dance, not a funeral), is seduced, her ravisher, sometimes named Roger, assuring her he was merely "shooting at the cat." In some versions she gives birth to a son whom she names Shoot the Cat.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1885 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: bawdy sex seduction childbirth
FOUND IN: Canada(Ont) Britain(England,Scotland(Aber)) US(So,SW)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Greig/Duncan7 1481, "Coming Home from the Wake" (2 texts plus a single verse on p. 534, 1 tune)
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 169-172, "Nelly the Milkmaid" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 49, "Johnny Rogers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 62, "Nellie Coming Home From the Wake" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke-TraditionalSingersAndSongsFromOntario 12, "Nellie Coming Home from the Wake" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1606
RECORDINGS:
O. J. Abbott, "Nellie Coming Home from the Wake" (on Abbott1)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.34(178), "The Milkmaid Coming from the Wake" ("Young Nelly the milkmaid right
Nelson's Death and Victory

DESCRIPTION: "Ye sons of Britain in chorus join and sing, Great and joyful news is come to our royal king." On October 21, Nelson ordered his ships into battle. The French and Spanish are defeated, but Nelson is killed. The singer hopes for peace

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Firth)
KEYWORDS: sailor death battle
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Oct 21, 1805 - Battle of Trafalgar, in which the British defeat the French but Horatio Nelson is killed. Contrary to one verse of the song, Nelson was not killed by a cannonball; the following verse correctly says that he was killed by a shot from a musket
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 80, "Nelson's Death and Victory" (1 text, 1 tune)
Browne-FolkSongsOfOldHampshire, pp. 23-24, "The Battle of Trafalgar" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #18837

File: PaSe080

Nelson's Fame, and England's Glory

DESCRIPTION: Nelson's 27 ships, led by Victory, faced 33 ships of the combined Franch and Spanish fleet. Individual British victories are described. Finally, the Leviathan and Conqueror "came to our timely aid" and the British take 19 in tow "to show we won the day"

AUTHOR: William Welch? (source: Holloway and Black's broadside is "signed" "William Welch")
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Greig/Duncan1); 19C (broadside, Holloway and Black)
KEYWORDS: battle navy sea ship
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Oct 21, 1805 - Battle of Trafalgar
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #70, p. 2, ("It was daylight the next morning"); #158, p. 3, ("The Victory she came bearing down") (2 fragments)
Greig/Duncan1 146, "Nelson's Fame, and England's Glory" (1 text)
Roud #5821

File: RL169
As regards "nineteen we took and towed away," Holloway and Black notes "the British captured eighteen of the Franco-Spanish fleet's thirty-three ships."

Holloway and Black, noting that Nelson's death is not mentioned in their text: "This ballad may originally have been issued as a news-ballad immediately after the ballad and before the death of Nelson in it was known." - BS

According to John Keegan, The Price of Admiralty: The Evolution of Naval Warfare, Penguin, 1988, 1990, p. 90, the British did in fact deprive the Combined Fleet of 19 of the 33 French and Spanish ships at Trafalgar. However, Arthur Herman, To Rule the Waves: How the British Navy Shaped the Modern World, 2004 (I use the 2005 Harper Perennial edition), p. 393, makes the number 18, presumably deducting the Achille which had exploded (Herman, p. 392). In addition, the largest of the Spanish ships, the Santissima Trinidad, was so battered that she sank -- which, as Keegan notes on p. 91, was an exceptional fate for a wooden ship of the period unless it caught fire. Thus the British were "in possession" of 18 ships after Trafalgar, soon to be reduced to 17.

However, a great storm followed, and in the end, only 18 of the 33 French and Spanish ships survived that, whether in British hands or in the hands of their own crews (Keegan, p. 96). The Combined Fleet suffered an estimated 4400 fatalities (Keegan, p. 96). British casualties were 449 killed and 1214 wounded; no ships were lost though quite a few losts masts and a few suffered damage to their hulls (Keegan, p. 94).

The notion that the publisher knew of the victory at Trafalgar but not of the death of Nelson is hard to sustain. Supposedly the first word to come to the Admiralty came from a lieutenant who arrived at the office and declared "Sir, we have gained a great victory but we have lost Lord Nelson" (Herman, p. 395). The two reports certainly arrived on the same ship. - RBW

Nelson's Monument

DESCRIPTION: "Britons long expected great news from our fleet,Commanded by Lord Nelson, the French to defeat." Word comes: The French have been beaten at Trafalgar, but Nelson is dead. Nelson was beyond compare

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1847 (Journal of William Histed of the Cortes)

KEYWORDS: navy battle death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- 1758-1805 - Life of Horatio Nelson, victor at Aboukir (the Nile), Copenhagen, and Trafalgar
- Oct 21, 1805 - Battle of Trafalgar

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #37, "Nelson's Monument" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, p. 275, "Nelson" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
- Browne-FolkSongsOfOldHampshire, pp. 78-80, "Nelson's Death" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1552

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Nelson's Victory at Trafalgar (Brave Nelson)" [Laws J17] and references there (subject)

File: VwP037

Nelson's Victory at Trafalgar (Brave Nelson) [Laws J17]

DESCRIPTION: Nelson leads his English fleet to battle with the French and Spanish navies off Cadiz, "He broke their line of battle, and struck the fatal blow," but in the melee is shot. He dies knowing he has won and that Napoleon's threat to Britain is ended

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1869 (Logan-APedlarsPack)

KEYWORDS: war Napoleon injury death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- 1758-1805 - Life of Horatio Nelson, victor at Aboukir (the Nile), Copenhagen, and Trafalgar
- Oct 21, 1805 - Battle of Trafalgar

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar) Britain
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Laws J17, "Nelson's Victory at Trafalgar (Brave Nelson)"
Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 67-69, "Nelson's Glorious Victory at Trafalgar" (1 text)
Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia 77, "Nelson's Victory at Trafalgar" (1 text)
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 94, "Brave Nelson" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ashton-RealSailorSongs, #18, "The Battle of Trafalgar" (1 text)
DT 549, NLSNTRAF

ST LJ17 (Full)
Roud #522
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Nelson's Monument" (subject)
cf. "Bold Nelson's Praise" (subject)
cf. "The Grand Conversation on Brave Nelson" (subject)
"The Death of Nelson" (subject)
NOTES [280 words]: Napoleon dearly wanted to capture Britain -- and he was right to feel that way; Britain was his worst enemy and the one that finally defeated him. But he could not invade England unless the Royal Navy could be swept aside. Trafalgar was his attempt to do so, and it failed miserably. The Franco-Spanish navy, under Villaneuve, was slightly larger (33 ships to Nelson's 27), but poorly led and badly trained. Nelson not only had a better fleet, but new ideas. After a game of cat and mouse that had led the fleets all the way to the Americas, the two fleets finally met off Cape Trafalgar in 1805. Nelson's method of "breaking the line" worked, and he heavily defeated the French. In the midst of the battle, however, he was shot by a French sharpshooter and mortally wounded.
Even so, the French threat to Britain was permanently lifted.
Miscellaneous references in the broadside include:
"The hero of the Nile": Nelson's first great exploit against Napoleon occurred before the turn of the century, when he effectively destroyed the fleet that had carried Napoleon's expedition to Egypt. The conflict was known as "The Battle of the Nile" (August 1, 1798).
"Collingwood" was Vice Admiral Cuthbert Collingwood (1758-1810), Nelson's second in command and Chief Assistant Hero of the battle. - RBW
A distinguishing characteristic of this ballad is that each verse ends "brave Nelson."
I haven't found this ballad among the broadsides in the Bodleian catalog though there are broadsides on the subject. See, for example, the chapbook printed by J. Pitts (London) with fifteen "admired songs, on the glorious victory off Trafalgar," Bodleian Curzon b.24(98) [not all of it legible]. - BS
_Last updated in version 3.2_
File: LJ17

Neptune (The Ocean King)

DESCRIPTION: "Ho ye ho messmates we'll sing The glories of Neptune the ocean king, He reigns o'er the waters, the wide seas his home." The landsmen know nothing of a sailor's life. "Oh, give me the ocean, naught but the salt sea"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1848 (Journal of the Nauticon)
KEYWORDS: sailor nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, p. 83, "Neptune" (1 text)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 103-104, "The Ocean King" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2030
File: HGam103

Neptune, Ruler of the Sea

DESCRIPTION: "The Neptune, ruler of the sea, she rides in court today, Filled up with white-coats to the hatch and her colors flying gay.... While bats did rattle on their heads, the murder then began. " Captain Kane's ship returns home with 30,000 harp seals."
NOTES [963 words]: There were at least three major Newfoundland ships named Neptune, the first of which, a passenger bark, was a famous shipwreck of 1830 (Baehre, pp. 189-212), and the second of which, a schooner, went missing in 1929 (O'Neill, p. 985), but their sealer namesake still had many more years of service ahead of her and was surely the best-known of the bunch.

Greene, p. 53, declares that "The finest, if not the largest of [the wooden-walled sealers], were named the Terra Nova and the Neptune -- each of them having for many springs their fighting claims to be the Commodore of the Fleet's command."

Leach's text (the source also of Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff's) gives the ship's master as "Captain Kane." This is almost certainly an error -- in fact, probably a double error, one by the singer or author, one by the transcriber. The transcriber's error is the name "Kane"; it should be "Captain Kean," after Abram Kean (for whom see "Captain Abram Kean") and his many seal-hunting uncles, sons, and other relatives.

But although members of the Kean family commanded many, many ships over the years, none of them ever took charge of the Neptune. The list of her captains, on p. 93 of Feltham (and checked against Chafe, p. 102, for the years up to 1923, and against Winsor, p. 55), includes four members of the Barbour dynasty (probably Alphaeus, Baxter, George, and Samuel), the famous Robert Bartlett (for whom see "Captain Bob Bartlett"), William Winsor (for whom see see "First Arrival from the Sea Fishery S. S. Fogota, 1912"), Samuel Blandford (for whom see "Sealer's Song (I)"), Edward White Sr., and three others not quite so well known.

As a wild guess, perhaps the reference to Captain Kane is to Abram Kean in his unofficial role as commodore of the sealing fleet, which would explain the reference to "fly[ing] his long burgee." (Either that, or the line floating in from a song about a sailing club or something.)

The Neptune was built in 1872-1873 in Dundee, reportedly under the supervision of Captain Edward White (Ryan/Drake, p. 70; this page also has a picture of White), who commanded her 1873-1879 (Chafe, p. 102); she was rebuilt shortly before 1900, with her masts reduced so that she no longer took a full set of sails (Ryan/Drake, p. 20, who have a picture of her in her rebuilt state; Feltham, p. 177, and Winsor, p. 55, also appear to show her after her rebuilding. A third photo, on p. 185 of Feltham, shows her alongside two other sealers as they prepare to go to the ice. Candow, p. 56, shows her in 1901).

The Neptune was famous as the only ship to take more than a million seals in her career (Feltham, p. 92); eleven times in the period 1873-1900, she took more seals than any other ship in the fleet (Feltham, p. 93). She participated in the seal hunt for 66 years from 1873 to 1941, missing only 1904, 1932, and 1933 (Winsor, p. 55). She had a 120 horsepower engine, giving her a lot of power and making her unusually able to make it into the ice (Feltham, pp. 92-93). This probably contributed to her longevity (as did World War I, which saw many of the newer steel ships requisitioned for other uses or simply destroyed; Feltham, p. 95).

In addition to her sealing work, she did some arctic voyaging. Lubbock, p. 415, says that, in 1882, she was sent to supply Augustus Greeley's expedition to Lady Franklin Bay on Ellesmere Island (but failed to reach it, contributing to the tragedy described in "Hurrah for Baffin's Bay"); In 1905, Sam Bartlett (for whom see "Captain Bob Bartlett") brought her home to St. John's after making a trip to Hudson's Bay that took place later in the season than any other up to that time (Horwood, p. 91); Ryan-Ice, p. 393, says the trip was intended to maintain Canadian sovereignty.

There were varying opinions about the Neptune's condition by the time of her end; William Gillett said that she so rotten that you could pick the wood off her walls with your fingers, and she leaked so much that she couldn't sail in a gale (Ryan-Last, pp. 325-326). Arthur O'Neill says she was the worst boat that Job's had. They said she was hogged [bent] four or five feet in the center of the keel" (Ryan-Last, p. 326). But Robert Louis Stevenson (yes, that's the name given) said that she remained fast and safe until the end (ibid). Given what most of those old sealers were like, I suspect the critics had the truth of it.

She finally was lost in a storm on March 4, 1943 while carrying coal (Winsor, p. 55); the tug sent to help her managed to take off her crew, but it was too late to save the leaking ship (Feltham, p. 97; Doyle Roberts, on p. 325 of Ryan-Last, seems to say she was deliberately sunk outside St. John’s to prevent her from blocking the entrance to the port). That left only two of the old wooden walled sealers (for the final end, see "The Ice-Floes" and "The Last of the Wooden Walls"; also "The Terra Nova").

In all, she took 1,230,731 seals in the course of 66 years (Feltham, p. 93) -- an average of 18,647 per year. Comparing this to some other long-lived sealers (data taken from various pages of Feltham), the Eagle (II) averaged 15,816 over 44 years; the Ranger managed 12,932 over 68 years, and the Terra Nova took in an average of 16,701 over 51 years (although she lost several of her best years to arctic missions). So arguably no ship was as successful for as long. The Neptune is also mentioned in "Captains and Ships," "The Sealer’s Song (II)," "Ballad of Captain Bob Bartlett," "Success to the Hardy Sealers," "Loss of the S. S. Algerine," and "Cotton’s Patch (II)." See the latter song for her brief career as an "aircraft carrier." She is almost certainly also the Nipshun of "Success to Every Man." Ryan-Ice, p. 308, has another poem which mentions her. - RBW

Bibliography

- Baehre: Rainer K. Baehre, editor, Outrageous Seas: Shipwreck and Survival in the Waters off Newfoundland, 1583-1893, Carleton University Press, 1999
- Feltham: John Feltham, Sealing Steamers, Harry Cuff Publications, 1995
- Greene: William Howe Greene, The Wooden Walls among the Ice Floes: Telling the Romance of the Newfoundland Seal Fishery, Hutchinson & Co, London (PDF available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site)
- Lubbock: Basil Lubbock, The Arctic Whalers, Brown, Son, & Ferguson, 1937 (I use the 1955 reprint)

Last updated in version 5.2
File: LLab081

Nervous Family, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer's family: "if left in the dark, are all frighten'd at each other"; the dog is afraid of visitors; the cat is afraid of a mouse. Doctors, lawyers, watchmen, pills, cordials don't help. Suddenly, the singer feels better and may not go home.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1842 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 25(1322))

KEYWORDS: disability medicine ordeal humorous nonballad doctor

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1780, "We're A' Nervous" (1 text)
Roud #12988

BROADSIDES:
Net for a Night Raven, A, or, A Trap for a Scold

DESCRIPTION: "Here is a merry song; if that you please to buy it, 'Twill show how you may money get...." Hearers are told of the high qualities of "Virginny": those who go there will be wealthy and happy. The husband of a scolding wife sends her there

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1675 (Bodleian broadside 4o Rawl. 566(165))

KEYWORDS: exile husband wife money humorous

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 17, "A Net for a Night Raven, or, A Trap for a Scold" (1 text)
Roud #2579

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, 4o Rawl. 566(165), A net for a night-raven; or, A trap for a scold, F. Coles, T. Vere, J Wright (London), 1663-1674

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Scolding Wife (V)" (theme)

NOTES [49 words]: Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs says that this is the same song as "The Scolding Wife (V)." It's the same general plot, but there are enough differences in both text and time that I've separated them. Roud does the same, although there are some entries in his list which are, at best, dubious. - RBW

File: PaSe017

Netherha'

DESCRIPTION: "The cookmaid and the cowboy, Like wise his gallant grieve, He has brough them owre the Cairnamount For aught that we believe. Cabbage kail and spruce beer, Was all our daily fare And marching on from field to field Was all our toil and care"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: farming work

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 367, "Netherha'" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #5910

NOTES [86 words]: Greig/Duncan3: "Netherthird" and "Netherha'" fragments "may belong to the same song, but, in the absence of overlapping material, it is not possible to be certain of this." They do share a nonsense chorus ("... airie airitie adie adie Airie airitie an") and very similar tunes (vaguely like the tune used by Ewan MacColl and Peggy Seeger for "The Monymusk Lads" on "Classic Scots Ballads," Tradition TLP1015 LP (1959). If, in fact, they are part of the same song then "Netherthird" would provide the first verse. - BS

File: GrD3367

Nethermill

DESCRIPTION: The singer hires to Swaggers to be second man plowing. But first he is sent to the mill. They eat at seven, clean horses at eight, plow all day through leisure hour: "there is na time to spare." Beware of hiring to Swaggers at Netherhill.
Nethermill

DESCRIPTION: "As I gaed up through Lammas fair Ance on a day to fee Mony a grey-faced fairmer That day did look at me"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: farming work
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #102, p. 3, "Netherthird" (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan3 366, "Netherthird" (2 fragments, 1 tune)

NOTES [132 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan3 fragment from John Ord. Candlemas [February 2], Whitsunday [May 15], Lammas [August 1] and Martinmas [November 11] were the four "Old Scottish term days" "on which servants were hired, and rents and rates were due." (Source: Wikipedia article Quarter days).
Greig/Duncan3: "Netherthird" and "Netherha'" fragments "may belong to the same song, but, in the absence of overlapping material, it is not possible to be certain of this." They do share a nonsense chorus (".. airie airtie adie adie Airie airtie an") and very similar tunes [vaguely like the tune used by Ewan MacColl and Peggy Seeger for "The Monymusk Lads" on SCMacCollSeeger01]. If, in fact, they are part of the same song then "Netherthird" would provide the first verse. - BS

Neuve Chappelle

DESCRIPTION: "For when we landed in Belgium, the girls all danced for joy, Says one unto the other, 'Here comes an Irish boy.'" The singer reports that the Irish won Neuve Chappelle. The Kaiser and Von Kluck lament that the Irish have arrived

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: war soldier battle derivative
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
March 10, 1915 - Start of the Battle of Neuve Chapelle.
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H526, p. 182, "Neuve Chappelle" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 220-221, "Neuve Chappelle" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Jerry Silverman, _Ballads & Songs of WWL_, Mel Bay, 1997, 2008, pp. 174-175, "Neuve Chappelle" (1 text, 1 tune, which appears to be a direct copy of the Henry version)
Never Get a Lickin' Till I Go Down to Bimini

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, when I go down to Bimini, Never get a lickin' till I go down to Bimini, Bimini gal as a rock in the harbor, Never get...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry)

KEYWORDS: nonballad fight

FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, p. 83, "Never Get a Lickin' Till I Go Down to Bimini" (1 short text, 1 tune)

Roud #15651

File: LxSi083

Never Go Back on the Poor

DESCRIPTION: "In this world of sorrow, of toil and regret, There are scenes I would gladly pass o'er." A great ship sinks as it carries emigrants forced from home by poverty. Divers go to examine the wreck, but make little effort to recover the steerage passengers

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud)

KEYWORDS: ship wreck poverty

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Mar 31/Apr 1, 1873 - wreck of the Atlantic

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 116-117, "Never Go Back on the Poor" (1 text)

Roud #9594

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Loss of the Atlantic (I)"

NOTES [46 words]: This song nowhere specifies the name of the shipwreck it describes, but it sounds to me as if it describes the Atlantic wreck of 1873: She carried emigrants, losses were large and affected the Steerage in particular, and the captain was asleep at the time of the collision. - RBW

File: Dean116
Never Interfere With Man and Wife

DESCRIPTION: Singer repeatedly gets in trouble trying to make peace between arguing husbands and wives: both sides attack him. "No matter who is wrong or who is right/ O just show your sympathy"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (Blind Blake Higgs: see WIHIGGS01; see notes)

KEYWORDS: marriage violence abuse nonballad husband wife

FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)

RECORDINGS:
Blind Blake Higgs, "Never Interfere With Man and Wife" (on WIHIGGS01)

NOTES [49 words]: According to Ethnic Music on Records: a Discography of Ethnic Recordings Produced in the United States, 1893 to 1942 by Richard K Spottswood (Urbana, c1990), Vol. 5, p. 2916, Sam Manning and his Orchestra recorded "Don't Interfere With Man and Wife": Bluebird D-4927, recorded June 4, 1934. - BS

Last updated in version 3.7
File: RcNIWMAW

Never Let Your Honey Have Her Way

DESCRIPTION: "John Henry's dead, And de las' words he said, 'Never let your honey Have her way.' "'Way back, 'Way back, Way back in Alabama, 'Way back." "If you let her have her way, She'll lead you off astray." "De chickens in my sack, Bloodhounds on my track."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: death dog crime escape

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 221, "John Henry's Dead" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Rabbit in the Log (Feast Here Tonight)"

NOTES [44 words]: I've heard this song (or something like it) sung as "Pay Day," in a version quite close to "Rabbit in the Log (Feast Here Tonight)." But I can't swear that that wasn't a modified version, so I'm filing it separately from both "John Henry" and "Rabbit in the Log." - RBW

File: ScNF221

Never Mind (If the Antrim Strikes a Mine)

DESCRIPTION: "If the Antrim strikes a mine, never mind, If we're always left behind, never mind. The skipper's name is Lunn, He's as cracked as old Ben Gunn...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)

KEYWORDS: ship death derivative

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 81, "Never Mind" (1 text, tune referenced)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "If Your Face Should Lose Its Smile, Never Mind" (tune)

NOTES [119 words]: Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, in his notes to this song, observes that the Antrim never struck a mine, and never had a captain named Lunn. All true, as far as I can tell; according to David Wragg, Royal Navy Handbook 1914-1918, Sutton Publishing, 2006, p. 184, the Antrim was a member of the Devonshire class of cruisers of 1904-1905, and she survived the war. But I note with interest that another member of this class of ships, the Hampshire, was mined off Orkney and sunk in 1916. And that the War Minister, Kitchener, sank with her. This was a notorious event, which might well cause the crews of the Hampshire's sisters to think about what would happen to their ships if they struck mines. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: Tawn081
Never Said a Mumbling Word

DESCRIPTION: "Oh they whupped him up the hill, up the hill... and he never said a mumbalin' word.... They crowned him with a thorny crown.... They nailed him to the cross.... They pierced him in the side.... Then he hung down his head and he died."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1926

KEYWORDS: Bible Jesus religious death

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (7 citations):
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 578, "He Never Said a Mumbling Word" (1 text)
- Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 587-588, "Never Said a Mumbalin' Word" (1 text)
- Botkin-TreasuryOfSouthernFolklore, p. 759, "He Never Said a Mumbalin' Word" (1 text)
- Warren-EveryTimeIFeelTheSpirit, p. 161, "(He Never Said a Mumbalin' Word" (1 excerpt)
- Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, p. 60, (no title) (1 text)
- Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands, pp. 165-166, "An' He Never Said a Mumbalin' Word" (1 text)
- Roud #10068

RECORDINGS:
- Vera Hall Ward & Dock Reed, "Look How They Done My Lord" (on NFMAla5)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Where My Lord Went to Pray" (floating lyrics)
- cf. "Look How They Done My Lord" (verses)

NOTES [133 words]: According to the Synoptic gospels (Mark 15:5, etc.), Jesus said very little to Pilate (according to Mark 15:2, two words, SU LEGEIS, loosely, "You said [it].") John, however, records an extended conversation. All the gospels report at least one saying from the cross; this came to be regarded as "seven words" (i.e. sayings). Of course, there is no evidence that Jesus mumbled any of them....

LindaJo H. McKim, _Presbyterian Hymnal Companion_, Westminster/John Knox Press, 1993, pp. 96-97, suggests that rather than being based on the gospels, this derives from Isaiah 53:7, the "suffering servant," who is compared to a sheep let do slaughter yet "did not open his mouth." This is probably the inspiration for the synoptic claim that Jesus was silent, but I don't see it reflected in the song. - RBW

_Last updated in version 4.2_

File: LxU102

Never Take the Horseshoe from the Door

DESCRIPTION: Singer, an Irishman, admonishes listeners to always keep a horseshoe over the door, and lists misfortunes that befell him when he failed to do so, including his wife's "bringing in a horde of her relations."

AUTHOR: Words: Edward Harrigan/Music: Dave Braham

EARLIEST DATE: 1880 (sheet music published by Wm. A. Pond & Co, New York)

KEYWORDS: humorous family magic

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Finson-Edward-Harrigan-David-Braham, vol. I, #36, pp. 134-136, "Never Take the Horse-Shoe From the Door" (1 text)
- Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 85, "Never Take the Horseshoe from the Door" (1 text)
- Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 102, "Never Take the Horseshoe from the Door" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Edward Harrigan, _The Mulligans_, G. W. Dillingham, 1901, p. 37, "(no title)" (1 fragment, of the chorus)

Roud #6839

RECORDINGS:
- Mick Moloney, "Never Take the Horseshoe From the Door" (on HarriganBrahamMaloney)
- Mixed Vocal Quartet, ("HarriganHartBraham melodies, no. 2," Songs of the past, no. 1") (Medley including bits of "Never Take the Horseshoe from the Door," "Babies on Our Block," and others) (Victor 35578)
New Ballad of Lord Lovell, The (Mansfield Lovell)

DESCRIPTION: "Lord Lovell he sat in St. Charles Hotel... A-cutting as big a rebel swell... As you'd ever wish to see." His thirty thousand soldiers dwindle away to a bare handful, and "gallant old Ben sailed in with his men And captured their great citee..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Cox); before 1880 (broadside mentioned on p. 89 of Edwin Wolf 2nd, American Song Sheets, Slip Ballads, and Political Broadsides 1850-1870, Library Company of Philadelphia, 1963)

KEYWORDS: Civilwar parody humorous soldier

FOUND IN: US(Ap,NE,So)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 52-54, "Lord Lovel" (3 texts, of which the Ga text is this piece)
Cox/Hercog/Halpert/Boswell-Virginia-A, #8A-C, pp. 32-37, "Lord Lovell," "Lord Lovell" (3 texts, 1 tune, but the "C" fragment is this piece)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 236-237, "Lord Lovel" (1 text, 2 tunes)
Huntington-FolksongsFromMarthasVineyard, pp. 10-11, "(Lord Lovell)" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1308, p. 89, "Lord Lovell, No. 2" (1 reference)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, p. 48, "The New Ballad of Lord Lovell" (1 text)
Roud #7942 and 48

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Lord Lovel [Child 75]" and references there
cf. "The Capture of New Orleans" (subject of the capture of New Orleans)

NOTES [435 words]: Although the song provides few precise details, it clearly refers to the Federal capture of New Orleans in 1862. The Confederate commander was Mansfield Lovell (1822-1884). According to Foote, p. 360, Lovell was a "Maryland-born West Pointer who had resigned as New York Deputy Street Commissioner to join the Confederacy in September. Impressed with the Chapultepec-brevetted artilleryman's record as an administrator, [Jefferson] Davis made him a major general and sent him to... New Orleans."
By the time New Orleans was attacked by Farragut's naval forces, the regular garrison of the city had been stripped to reinforce Albert Sydney Johnston; most of them would fight at Shiloh (McPherson, p. 418). According to Carter, pp. 8-9, "On taking over in October 1861, Lovell found the city had been 'greatly drained of arms, ammunition, clothing, and supplies,' which had been sent to other war zones. His land forces, moreover, consisted of only 3,000 short-term volunteers, a 'heterogeneous militia, armed mostly with shotguns.'"

Naturally, these forces had little mobility or ability to fight in the field. The real defenses of New Orleans consisted of river forts and a few small ships. Yet, in 1861, Lovell found "Naval preparations were in equally poor shape" (Carter, p. 9). The Confederate attempts to build better, ironclad, ships faltered under their limited industrial capacity; the ships just weren't ready in time (McPherson, p. 419). The Federals failed to destroy the river forts with mortars, but Admiral Farragut was able to run his ships past them and deal with the small Confederate fleet (Foote, pp. 364-369), and that left New Orleans undefended under his guns. Rather than risk the destruction of the city, Lovell retreated with such mobile forces as he had. The garrisons of the river forts then collapsed (Foote, p. 370), and Federal troops were able to come up-river and occupy New Orleans even though the city didn't exactly surrender.

After New Orleans, Lovell briefly held corps command in the west, and demonstrated real skill as a commander. But he was relieved soon after due to political pressure. "Gallant old Ben" is Benjamin F. Butler, the most-hated man in the Confederacy and possibly the worst general ever to serve under the American flag. "Sluggish and inept as an army commander, Butler owed his preferment to some administrative skill and politics; he was one of the most hated men in the Confederacy" (Dupuy/Johnson/Bongard, p. 116). Butler occupied New Orleans (and subjected it to something close to a reign of terror), but the military skill was all Farragut's. - RBW

Bibliography

- Carter: Samuel Carter III, The Final Fortress: The Campaign for Vicksburg 1862-1863, St. Martin's, 198

Last updated in version 5.2
File: DarNS047

New Born Again

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Hallelujah hallelujah! Newborn again Been a long time talking About starting on the way."
Verse: "Free grace! free grace! free grace! brother (sister, mourner)"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, pp. 6-7, "New Born Again" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12237

NOTES [11 words]: The description is based on the Barton-OldPlantationHymns text. - BS

Last updated in version 4.0
File: Bart006A

New Bunch of Loughero, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer meets a lady by the Danube saying "I have lost my Bunch of Loughero"
She recalls Napoleon's victories and defeat at Waterloo. Her son says he will raise an army to rescue him. She says "I'll live like chaste Penelope, Still hoping for my Loughero"
New Bury Loom, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets a weaver. He tells her "I am a good joiner by trade." "My shuttle ran well in her lathe" until, after one success, "My strength now began for to fail me." She asks him to try again but he says it will have to wait until he returns.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1980 (Elbourne)
KEYWORDS: sex bawdy weaving
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
NOTES [25 words]: Bodleian, Harding B 16(167b), "New Bury Loom" ("As I walked between Bolton and Bury"), unknown, no date; also Johnson Ballads 2351, "The New Bury Loom"

New Chum Chinaman, The

DESCRIPTION: Irishman Pat McCann, newly arrived in Australia and unable to find work, sees the Chinese working (even if at horrible jobs). He decides to turn himself into "Ah Pat," Chinese immigrant. He describes the steps he will use to take on the part

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (collected by Ron Edwards from Mrs. V.Leonard)
KEYWORDS: foreigner emigration unemployment disguise China
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 102-104, "The New Chum Chinaman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fahey-Joe-Watson-AustralianTraditionalFolkSinger, [p. 17, page headed "After several social
New Chum in the Country

DESCRIPTION: "I'm a new chum in the country, from Somerset I came." Soon after arriving in Australia, he runs out of money -- but finds various dodges to survive. He often has to shut down before the police catch him. At last he opens a lodging-house without success.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (AndersonStory)

KEYWORDS: immigration hardtimes trick police money

FOUND IN: Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 166-168, "New Chum in the Country" (1 text, 1 tune)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 166-168, "New Chum in the Country" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [101 words]:

For brief background on Charles Thatcher's career, see the notes to "Where's Your License?" For an extensive collection of his songs, see Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong. - RBW

File: AnSt166

---

New Chums at the Diggings

DESCRIPTION: "New chums start off for the diggings, But some of them never get there," and others despair on arrival. New chums miss their comfort, and arrive with many un-helpful items. Often they lose them (sometimes with help)

AUTHOR: Words: portions from "The Wakamarina for Me" by Charles R. Thatcher (1831-1878)

EARLIEST DATE: 1864 (Thatcher, "Songs of the War"); this conflate version from Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, 1972

KEYWORDS: New Zealand gold work hardtimes theft

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 54, "New Chums at the Diggings" (1 text, 1 tune, probably composite) (p. 32 in the 1972 edition)

NOTES [101 words]:

The description of this in Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry is confusing; it is "an adaptation of two distinct songs collected by Rona Bailey: One... from Mr. Butterworth of Westport; and the other, clearly derived from a longer song by Charles Thatcher, The Wakamarina for Me." But from the notes at the back it appears to have been collected from Geoffrey Butterfield. So which part came from where? I don't know.

For brief background on Charles Thatcher's career, see the notes to "Where's Your License?" For an extensive collection of his songs, see Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.4

File: Colq932

---

New Electric Light, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer's wife is desperate for electric lights. She wanders the streets seeking them. One night the singer finds a strange man in the house; it proves to be her cousin, who installs lights. She reportedly amuses herself with the light while he's gone

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: technology humorous husband wife

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 489, "The New Electric Light" (1 text)

Roud #7585

NOTES [45 words]: There was a music hall song, "The New Electric Light," words by F. W. Green and music by Alfred Lee; it does not appear to be this song. The first line, as found in Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 146-147, is "Oh, have you heard the latest news Of how the world's to be?"

- RBW

Last updated in version 3.2

File: R489
New England's Annoyances

DESCRIPTION: "New England's annoyances you that would know them, Pray ponder these verses that briefly doth show them; The place where we live is a wilderness wood." The poet speaks of hard work in the fields and of poverty, but suggests keeping "a contended mind."

AUTHOR: probably Edward Johnson (1598-1672), according to Lemay
EARLIEST DATE: 1774 (Massachusetts Spy, according to Lemay and Cohen); probably written c. 1643
KEYWORDS: work hardtimes nonballad
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 42-43, "New England's Annoyances" (1 text)

NOTES [37 words]: Cohen, following J. A. Leo Lemay, suggests that this is America's first folk song -- that is, the first song of American origin that can be shown to have gone into oral tradition. But the tradition was pretty thin.... - RBW

Last updated in version 2.7
File: CAFS1042

New Flash Song, Made on the Noted George Barrington, A

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you blades of England I prithee draw near, And of the noted Barrington now quickly you shall hear." Barrington committed many daring robberies, and is sentenced to transportation; he's lucky the prosecutor did not charge him with a capital crime

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Anderson-FarewellToOldEngland); Anderson estimates the broadside to be from c. 1790
KEYWORDS: crime punishment transportation trial
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Anderson-FarewellToOldEngland, pp. 62-63, "A New Flash Song" (1 text)
Roud #V20828

NOTES [220 words]: Henry Boylan, A Dictionary of Irish Biography, second edition, St. Martin's Press, 1988, p. 13, has a brief description of George Barrington, whom he describes as a "pickpocket and author." He was born in 1755 in Maynooth, County Kildare. His birth name was Waldron. Sent to a grammar school in Dublin, he ran away in 1771 after being flogged for disciplinary reasons, and took the name "Barrington" when he joined a traveling company. By 1777 he was in England, picking pockets; he was caught and sentenced to three years' hard labour on a prison hulk, but released after just a year for good behavior -- but kept offending and being caught and given additional sentences. He was sentenced to seven years' transportation in 1789.

"His eloquence and gentlemanly bearing in court earned him considerable notoriety, and two contemporary accounts of his life and adventures sold widely. Sent to Botany Bay in New South Wales. In 1792 received first warrant of emancipation ever issued. Became superintendent of the convicts, high constable of Parramatta for a considerable period, and earned the regard of the governor. He published A Voyage to Botany Bay (1801), A History of New South Wales (1802), and A History of New Holland (1808). He lived to a very old age, and died at Parramatta, date not recorded." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
File: AnFa062

New Garden Fields

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets Mary "pulling flowers" and asks to hold her hand. She refuses: "if I thought you in earnest I'd think myself blest." He complains that she has broken his heart. She relents and promises to go away with him to be married.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1825 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 c.17(115))
KEYWORDS: courting marriage
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
New Ireland Song

DESCRIPTION: The clergy order "not to sell whisky upon a Sunday." Mike Leyden and Tim Long go from place to place in New Ireland looking for rum but only find tea. It being very cold, the boys finally give up and go to bed.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick)

KEYWORDS: drink humorous

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 116, "New Ireland Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST CrSNB116 (Partial)
Roud #2784

NOTES [74 words]: Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick: "New Ireland is a farming community near Elgin" [in south central New Brunswick less than 20 miles north of the Bay of Fundy]. - BS

This seems to be a local composition based on some other local song. The text is reminiscent of "Sweet Betsy from Pike," but the tune is more like "Darby O'Leary" (which is known in New Brunswick). Of course, the latter is rather like "Sweet Betsy" put in minor. - RBW

File: CrSNB116

New Jers-A

DESCRIPTION: "Come, kind friends, all draw near, The song that I'm about to sing, you every one should hear... I'll sing you a new song about New Jers-A." The singer tells of all that goes wrong there -- ships sunk, people killed. He proposes hanging the residents

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1861 (broadside, according to Cohen)

KEYWORDS: humorous nonballad prison execution ship fire disaster

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1575, p. 107, "New Jers-A" (2 references)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 125-126, "New Jers-A" (1 text)

File: CAFS1125

New Limit Line, The

DESCRIPTION: "Now we left our own homes, for the woods we were bent...." The singer describes hiring out to the New Limit Line. They reach the line with great difficulty, but work hard and are happy at the camp. Many of the other workers there are listed

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Fowke)

KEYWORDS: lumbering work travel
New Market (The Call to the Races at New-Market)

DESCRIPTION: "To horse, brave boys, to New Market to horse, You'll lose the match by longer delaying." The gamblers set out for the races. The singer swears by Brown Bay, and describes the faults of the other horses -- but "now we're undone, and our guineas are lost."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1887 (Ashton)

KEYWORDS: racing gambling sports horse

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Roud #15020
File: JACB257

New Market Wreck (I), The

DESCRIPTION: "The Southern Railway had a wreck at ten o'clock one morn, Near Hodge's and New Market ground...." A conductor misreads his orders, and two trains collide. The singer hopes the other conductor is in heaven, and adds other details

AUTHOR: Robert Hugh Brooks

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (copyright)

KEYWORDS: train wreck death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sep 24, 1904 -- the New Market Wreck. The conductor of the #15 train admitted to misreading his orders and causing the wreck; reports say that at least 56 people died

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 227-231, "The New Market Wreck" (1 text plus an early sheet music print, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 276-277, "The New Market Wreck" (1 text plus part of the sheet music)
Lyle-ScaldedToDeathByTheSteam, pp. 57-67, "The New Market Wreck" (1 text, 1 tune, plus a text of an unrelated song with no known author)
Roud #4904

RECORDINGS:
Mr. & Mrs. J. W. Baker, "The Newmarket Wreck" (Victor 20863, 1927)
George Reneau, "The New Market Wreck" (Vocalion 14930, 1924)
Mike Seeger, "The New Market Wreck" (on MSeeger02, ClassRR)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "New Market Wreck (II)" (subject)

NOTES [66 words]: According to Cohen, there is a second song about this event, "The Southern Railroad Wreck," by Charles O. Oaks. It seems to be rarely encountered; it is clearly not traditional. Lyle reports another song, "The New Market Wreck," perhaps by Josiah Adams, also poor and also not traditional. I'm not sure how traditional this song is, either, although there are a couple of reported collections. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.6

File: LSRa228
New Market Wreck (II), The

DESCRIPTION: "One autumn morn in Tennessee, An awful wreck was heard, East of Knoxville and near New Market Was where the crash occurred." Two trains collide; seventy are killed and many more hurt. The song briefly tells of several tragic deaths.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: train wreck death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sep 24, 1904 -- the New Market Wreck. The conductor of the #15 train admitted to misreading his orders and causing the wreck; reports say that at least 56 people died

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lytle-ScaldedToDeathByTheSteam, pp. 66-67, "The New Market Wreck" (1 text)
Roud #14013
CROSS-REFERENCES:
ct. "New Market Wreck (I)" (subject)
File: LySc066

New Moon, True Moon

DESCRIPTION: "New moon, true moon, Tell me who shall marry me; Tell me the color of his hair, The garments he shall wear." Perhaps to be recited if one sees the new moon over one's right shoulder.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry, from Mrs. Henry C. Gray, or her maid)

KEYWORDS: marriage courting clothes hair nonballad

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 238, (no title) (1 short text)
Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, p. 269, "(no title)" (1 short text)
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, p. 79, "(New moon, true moon, come unto me)" (1 short text, probably related)
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, p. 195, "(New moon, new moon, Let me see)" (1 short text)

File: MH238D

New National Anthem (Cowboy version, to the tune of My Country Tis of Thee)

DESCRIPTION: "My country, 'tis of thee, Land where things used to be So cheap we croak. Land of the mavericks, Land of the puncher's tricks...." The punchers have poor food and not enough.
They threaten to leave if things don't improve

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)

KEYWORDS: cowboy hardtimes

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 105-106, "New National Anthem" (1 text)
Saffel-CowboyPoetry, p. 221, "New National Anthem" (1 text)
Roud #8061
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "America (My Country 'Tis of Thee)" (tune) and Same Tune references there

File: ThLo105

New Organ, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer complains about the new organ and choir being installed in the church. She's served the church for 35 years with money and time, "but now their old new-fangled ways Are coming all about And I right in my latter days Am fairly crowded out"
New Plantation, The

DESCRIPTION: "Our bonnie laddies are a' gaun awa' To plenchis the new Plantation." After crossing the ocean they are welcomed with food and a girl. But the girls are yellow and "a piece of gold ... Was all they had for a napkin." The singer wishes he had never come.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: emigration settler
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #132, p. 2, "The New Plantation" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 536, "The New Plantation" (1 text)
Roud #6014
NOTES [15 words]: Just which "new plantation" is this? Someplace in America? West Indies? Cape Breton? - BS
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD5356

New Policeman, The

DESCRIPTION: Michael Karney arrives from Dublin and joins the police. He climbs into yards and garden and steals what he finds. He steals from anyone he finds sleeping. He's "in with every servant maid For mutton and love." "That's the life of a new Policeman"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1879 (broadside, LOCSing sb30357b)
KEYWORDS: sex violence theft humorous rake police
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1750, "The New Policeman" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Williams-Witshire-WSRO Mi 649, "New Policeman" (1 text)
Henderson-VictorianStreetBallads, pp. 38-39, "The Irish New Policeman" (1 text)
Roud #13133
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(1790), "The Irish New Policeman" ("Your pardon gents and ladies all"), unknown, no date
LOCSing, sb30357b, "The New Policeman" ("Oh good evening gentlemen to-day"), H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Nora Creina" (tune, per broadside LOCSing sb30357b)
cf. "Are You There Moriarity" (tune, per OLochlainn)
NOTES [49 words]: Greig/Duncan8 is a fragment; broadside LOCSing sb30357b is the basis for the description. - BS
Broadside LOCSing sb30357b: H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS
Last updated in version 4.4
File: GrD1750
New Prisoner's Song

DESCRIPTION: Singer has seven more years to serve, for knocking a man down and taking his watch. He recalls home and family. Chorus: "Sitting alone, sad all alone/Sitting in my cell all alone/A-thinking of those good times gone by me/A-knowing that I once had a home"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, Dock Boggs)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer, in prison for seven years, has seven more to serve, for knocking a man down in the alley and taking his watch. He remembers his home and family, and wonders if they think of him. Chorus: "Sitting alone, sad all alone/Sitting in my cell all alone/A-thinking of those good times gone by me/A-knowing that I once had a home"

KEYWORDS: captivity homesickness crime prison robbery family prisoner

FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 141, "Prisoner's Song" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia 121, "The Prisoner's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Dock Boggs, "New Prisoner's Song" (Brunswick 133A/Vocalion 5114 [5144?], 1927); (on Boggs1, BoggsCD1)
Slim Smith, "Sad and Alone" (Vocalion 05082, c. 1927)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Prisoner's Song (I)"

NOTES [112 words]: Although the plots are virtually identical, this is quite distinct from the "Prisoner's Song." That has the chorus "If I had the wings of an eagle," which this does not, although I strongly suspect it was composed in flagrant imitation. [Borrowing a few items from "Botany Bay" along the way. - RBW] Mike Seeger, incidentally, notes that there is at least one other recording of this song from the 1920s, presumably Slim Smith's. - PJS
Roud, of course, lumps this with the "other" Prisoner's Song. - RBW
Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia has the "Lonely and sad, sad and lonely" chorus but also has as the final verse "I wish I had the wings of an eagle...." - BS

Last updated in version 4.3
File: RcNPS

New River Shore, The (The Green Brier Shore; The Red River Shore) [Laws M26]

DESCRIPTION: The singer is forced to leave his sweetheart (possibly due to manipulation by her parents). She begs that he return. When he does, he is ambushed by a band of men hired by her father. He wins the battle and goes on to claim the girl

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Moore)
KEYWORDS: separation love fight

FOUND IN: US(Ap,NE,SE,So) Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (11 citations):
Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia 48, "The New River Shore" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 85, "New River Shore" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 85, "New River Shore" (1 excerpt, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 56-57, "On the Red River Shore" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 142, "The Green Brier Shore" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 206, "The Red River Shore" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, p. 412, "Red River Shore" (1 text)
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 57, "Red River Shore" (2 texts, 1 tune)
DT 329, GRNBRIER*

Roud #549
RECORDINGS:
Bud Billings' Trio w. Carson Robison, "On the Red River Shore" (Montgomery Ward M-4101, 1933)
New River Train

DESCRIPTION: "(Honey Babe/Darling), you can't love one (x2), You can't love one and still have any fun, Honey Babe, you can't..." Similarly, "You can't love two and still be true..." "You can't love three and still have me..." Etc.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (recording, Henry Whitter)

KEYWORDS: love nonballad infidelity floatingverses

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (10 citations):
- Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 466-471, "New River Train" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 103, "Darling, You Can't Love but One" (1 text)
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 "Darling, You Can't Love but One" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
- Scarborough-ASongCatcherInSouthernMountains, pp. 124-125, "Honey Babe" (1 text, without the chorus, filed under Child #76 along with a "Pretty Little Foot" fragment and a version of "I Truly Understand That You Love Some Other Man")
- Abrahams/Foss-AngloAmericanFolksongStyle, p. 73, "Darlin' You Can't Have One" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 158-159, "Darlin'" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Cray-AshGrove, p. 19, "New River Train" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 74, "New River Train" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 143, "New River Train" (1 text)
- NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Portia Naomi Crawford, "A Study of Negro Folk Songs from Greensboro, North Carolina and Surrounding Towns," Vol. XVI, No. 2 (Oct 1968), pp. 104-105, "Honey Bee" (1 fragment, 1 tune, which appears to be either "Crawdad" or "New River Train," although it has a "Honey Bee" for the "Honey Babe")

Roud #4568

RECORDINGS:
- Al Bernard, "New River Train" (Grey Gull 4150/Radiex 4150/Van Dyke 74150/Madison 1918, 1927)
- Cauley Family, "New River Train" (Banner 33146/Melotone 13113/Perfect 13032/Oriole 8972/Romeo 5372, 1934)
- Crazy Hillbillies Band, "Leaving on the New River Train" (OKeh 45579, 1934)
- Vernon Dalhart, "New River Train" (Columbia 15032-D, c. 1925) (Herwin 75506, mid-to-late 1920s)
- Sid Harkreader, "New River Train" (Vocalion 15035, 1925)
- Kelly Harrell, "New River Train" (Victor 19596, 1925; on KHarrell01) (Victor 20171, 1926; on KHarrell01)
- Iron Mountain String Band, "New River Train" (on ClassRR)
- Monroe Brothers, "New River Train" (Bluebird B-6645, 1936)
- Old Brother Charlie & the Corn Crib Trio, "New River Train" (Mercury 6206, 1949)
- Ridge Rangers, "The New River Train" (AFS 1693 A2, 1939; on LC61)
- Pete Seeger, "New River Train" (on PeteSeeger24), (on PeteSeeger33, PeteSeegerCD03)
- Ernest V. Stoneman Family, "New River Train" (on Stonemans01); Ernest V. Stoneman, Willie Stoneman, and the Sweet Brothers, "New River Train" (Gennett 6619 [as by Justin Winfield] /Supertone 9400 [as by Uncle Ben Hawkins], 1929)
- Wade Ward, "New River Train" [instrumental] (on Holcomb-Ward1)
- Henry Whitter, "The New River Train" (OKeh 40143, 1924)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Mole in the Ground" (tune, floating lyrics)
cf. "My Last Gold Dollar" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Crawdad"
cf. "Going Around the World (Banjo Pickin' Girl, Baby Mine)"

NOTES [225 words]: "Honey Babe" and "New River Train" are two versions of the same set of verses, the difference being that the latter has a chorus about the "New River Train" ("Riding on that new river train (x2), Same old train that brought me here Is soon gonna carry me away"). It's not clear which is the original form, but I'm guessing the former. - RBW

Well, [you] may be wrong here; the "New River Train" version dates back to at least 1924 (Whitter's recording). And Fields Ward says he learned it c. 1895. - PJS

In any case, "New River Train" is now the more familiar version (see the recording list), so I eventually adopted that title.

Cohen has notes about the origin of the name "New River Train"; there apparently was no line with that name, but several railroads had track in the New River area and would presumably have been given that name informally. What's more, the earliest recordings he cites (Whitter's and Harrell's) are by residents of that part of Virginia. Vernon Dalhart's recording was similar to and likely based on Harrell's, and that no doubt helped put the song in popular consciousness.

Cohen does report, however, that few versions other than Ernest Stoneman's have much real railroad content. That is the main reason why I thought (and still sort of think) the versions without the New River Train chorus likely to be original. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: AF073

New Road, The
DESCRIPTION: "For fifty years I've known a woodland Of patriarchal trees, Their roots grown deep in good land, Boughs swaying in the breeze." The singer recalls how farmers came and made the land their own. But now their fields and homes are being separate by roads.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)
KEYWORDS: home farming technology
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 261-262, (no title) (1 text)

File: ThBa262

New Sea Song, A (Our Boatswain Calls)
DESCRIPTION: "Our boatswain calls out for his bold British heroes, Come listen a while to what I do sing." The girls on shore call to their men as they arrive at the dock. Then the ship is re-rigged and goes back to sea to fight the French and Spanish

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Flrth)
KEYWORDS: ship battle France Spain
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 44, "A New Sea Song" (1 text)
Roud #V38019

File: PaSe044

New Song Maide, A
DESCRIPTION: "The 30th August, 'twas on that very day, Our captain came alongside; our orders was away." The Olive Branch sets out into a storm, which she survives. After a lot of wind and deck cleaning and repairs, they reach, then leave, Cape Ann

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1794 (Journal of the Polly)
KEYWORDS: ship travel storm
New Song on the Blandford Privateer, The DESCRIPTION: "Ye seamen who's a mind to go In pursuit of new adventures, Repair on board the Blandford With Captain Stonehouse...." The singer praises the ship, which sail from Bristol, and urges the hearers to come join the fun
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Firth)
KEYWORDS: sailor pirate battle ship
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1745-1747 - Career of the Blandford under George Stonehouse; in the latter year, Stonehouse was mortally wounded, and the ship later taken by the French
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 42, "A New Song on the Blandford Privateer" (1 text)
Roud #V33313
File: PaSe042

New Song on the Total Defeat of the French Fleet, A DESCRIPTION: "Come all you valiant heroes and listen unto me" about the fight "Between brave Admiral Nelson and the proud Monsieur." Nelson follows the French from Toulon to the Nile and defeats them there; only four French ships escape
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1986 (Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs)
KEYWORDS: battle navy
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 76, "A New Song on the Total Defeat of the French Fleet" (1 text)
File: PaSe076

New Song, Called the Gaspee, A
DESCRIPTION: "'Twas in the reign of George the third, Our public peace was much disturbed." The Americans are much provoked by regulations about smuggling. When the Gaspee goes aground while chasing the Hannah, they burn it. No one will reveal the attackers
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (WInslow)
KEYWORDS: ship fire crime
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jun 8, 1772 - Burning of the Gaspee
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 59-60, "A New Song, Called the Gaspee" (1 text)
NOTES [414 words]: The Gaspee affair was one of those clear tokens that revolution was coming to the Americas. As well as of the fact that Americans just didn't like obeying rules. The Gaspee itself was a two-masted schooner of 102 tons, designed for a crew of 30. The British Navy bought the ship in 1764 and assigned it to guard against smugglers in the Gulf of St. Lawrence (Paine, p. 199).
"The Rhode Island merchants conducted a lively trade, most of it legal though their reputation for illegality was formidable. The Royal Navy believed the reputation conformed to the facts and, after losing two small vessels in Narragansett waters, assigned the Gaspee there in late March 1772. Her skipper, Lieutenant William Dudington, seized several craft engaged in trade only to find himself threatened with arrest by the local sheriff" (Middlekauff, p. 213).
"In June, a zealous, arrogant Royal Navy lieutenant, William Dudington, who commanded a small patrol vessel, the Gaspee, assisting the English customs service, ran his ship aground not far from Providence, Rhode Island. At the time, he was pursuing an American packet that he suspected was attempting to smuggle tea from Holland" (Cook, p. 160).

"News of the stranded vessel quickly reached Providence and that night eight boatloads of colonists, led by the merchant brothers John and Nicolas Brown, moved to seize the vessel. As the colonists approached, they were ordered to identify themselves, but the only reply was 'God damn your blood, we have you now'" (Paine, p. 199).

"It suddenly found itself the hunted, not the hunter, and was boarded, captured, and burned to the water's edge" (Lancaster, p. 65). "Dudington tried to resist and received a bullet in the groin for his trouble" (Middlekauff, p. 215).

"But the investigation soon lost all headway, blanketed by what seemed to be a total loss of memory on the part of Rhode Islanders. At last, in apoplectic frustration, the commissioners reported that they could find no suspects, and hence could forward no prisoners for trial -- and probable hanging -- in London" (Lancaster, p. 65)

"After that Montague decided that Lieutenant Dudington had outlived his usefulness and sent him back to England to explain to a court-martial the loss of the Gaspee" (Middlekauff, p. 215).

"Although the Gaspee affair cooled, it had provided the impetus for organizing the thirteen Committees of Correspondence" (Cook, p. 165), helping the colonies organize for the coming struggle. - RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 2.7
File: CAFS1059

New Year's Sermon, The

DESCRIPTION: "Hello, Mr. Jones! We wish you a happy new year -- to you and your wife and your sons... And if our wishes find you good, 'Tis better than the year before the flood." Listeners are warned of times to come, including battles -- and then muskets are let off

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety)

KEYWORDS: nonballad recitation wassail

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, p. 514, "The New Year's 'Sermon'' (1 text)

Roud #7830

NOTES [31 words]: A sort of a Missouri wassail, in which the performers went from house to house begging for entertainment -- but perhaps with a bit of a threat element, since they all had firearms.... - RBW

File: Beld514

New York to Queenstown

DESCRIPTION: Ship leaves New York Sunday, December 2 and runs into a heavy sea. "The companion and the wheel-house were swept right clean away." At Queenstown the captain reports to "an aged father ... 'Your son fell from our main royal yard, a victim to the sea.'"

AUTHOR: unknown
New York Volunteer, The

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas in the days of seventy-six, When Freemen young and old, All fought for independence then." "Tis my delight to march and fight Like a New York Volunteer." The City Regiments will defend Washington. The conflict in Baltimore is recalled

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1862 (The Campfire Songster, according to Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar soldier nonballad
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
April, 1861 - Clashes between Massachusetts troops and the residents of Baltimore.

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1596, p. 108, "The New-York Volunteer" (3 references)
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 187-188, "The New York Volunteer" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Lincolnshire Poacher" (tune)
NOTES [136 words]: The Baltimore conflict mentioned in this song took place on April 19, between the 6 Massachusetts regiment and civilians. The soldiers, who were very inexperienced, were being taken though the town in horsedrawn railroad cars (the railroads from north and south of Baltimore did not connect, so cars had to be hauled from one terminal to the other) when the mob started stoning them. Eventually the troops fired back; four soldiers were reported killed and more than three dozen wounded. At least twelve civilians are said to have been hurt. Although no other clashes were so violent, "until the end of the war, Baltimore was treated as an occupied city."

Last updated in version 5.0

File: SCWF187

New-Chum's First Trip, The

DESCRIPTION: A young drover relates the events of his first drive, which has turned out to be harder work than he expected.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1957
KEYWORDS: work travel
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hodgart-FaberBookOfBallads, p. 232, "The New-Chum's First Trip" (1 text)
Roud #8241
File: Hodg232

New-Fashioned Farmer, The

DESCRIPTION: "Good people all, I pray attend, And listen to my story, How the farmers used to live In our native country." Farmers used to wear long coats and ride old horses, but now they ride fine geldings. In many other ways they have become fancy and "up-to-date."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Vaughan Williams collection)
KEYWORDS: farming horse work hardtimes
New-Mown Hay, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer walks out "one May morning" and spies "a pretty sweet maid All on the new-mown hay." She convinces him not to ravish her at once; "You'll spoil my maiden gown." She eludes him; he advises men not to worry about spoiling gowns

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1845 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(2661))

KEYWORDS: seduction trick clothes

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South,West)) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Bronson 112, "The Baffled Knight" (40 versions) -- but #26-33 (his Appendix A) are "The New-Mown Hay," which we tentatively separate, and #34-#39 (his Appendix B) are "Katie Morey" [Laws N24] which is certainly separate
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 443-444, "The New-Mown Hay" (1 short text, which I suspect has been cleaned up)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 184, "The New-Mown Hay" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople 14B, "Blow Away the Morning Dew" (1 text, a composite of three texts. Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople p. 42: "no extraneous words or lines are interpolated.")
DT, MORNDEW3*
Roud #11

RECORDINGS:
John Campbell, "There Was a Shepherd's Boy" (on IREarlyBallads)
William Rew, "The New-Mown Hay" (on FSB2CD)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2661), "New Mown Hay" ("As I walked out one May morning"), J. Pitts (London), 1819-1844; also Harding B 16(168b), "New Mown Hay"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Baffled Knight" [Child 112]

NOTES [95 words]: As far as the plot goes, this is exactly identical to "The Baffled Knight" [Child 112], and some (e.g. Bronson, Roud) have grouped them together. Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland, however, argues that they are separate, and the verse form implies he is right. To me, this looks like a cross between "The Baffled Knight" and "Rolling in the Dew (The Milkmaid)." - RBW
Separate from "The Baffled Knight"? Naah. Never mind "verse form" -- look at Kennedy's verse 3. I call that a smoking gun. - PJS
John Campbell's recording is macaronic, with only the chorus in Irish. - BS

Last updated in version 5.0

File: K184

New-Slain Knight, The [Child 263]

DESCRIPTION: A man sees a girl sleeping under a hedge. He tells her of a dead man in her father's garden. His description makes her think it is her love. She wonders who will care for her. The man offers to do so. She refuses him till he reveals himself as her lover.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1878; a possibly version is from c. 1818 (Buchan/Moreira-TheGlenbuchatBallads)

KEYWORDS: trick disguise love death
Newburgh Jail, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer is arrested while in a bar. Held without trial for some time, he moves back and forth among prisons. At last he makes his escape (despite the shooting of the guards). He intends to keep moving and not be taken again
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1960
KEYWORDS: prison escape trial
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 166, "The Newburgh Jail" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST FSC166 (Partial)
Roud #4606
NOTES [8 words]: This song is item dE53 in Laws's Appendix II. - RBW
File: FSC166

Newburgh Salmon Dinner Song, The
DESCRIPTION: The men of Ythan are the best at their work. They win the best prizes at the Aberdeen cattle show and their marksmen always win good prizes. To see them at their best "come down whan they're met her first salmon to prie [taste] An mussels and toddy"
AUTHOR: William Forbes
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (McConnochie)
KEYWORDS: pride farming fishing drink food nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 516, "O Canny an' Cute Men Ye'll Meet by the Dee" (1 fragment)
ADDITIONAL: Alex. Inson McConnochie, editor, The Book of Ellon (Ellon, 1901 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 103, "The Newburgh Salmon Dinner Song"
Roud #6000
CROSS-REFERENCES:
ct. "Contented Wi' Little" (tune, per McConnochie)
NOTES [34 words]: The Ythan, Dee and Don are rivers that flow into the North Sea near Aberdeen. Newburgh on Ythan is "a coastal village in Aberdeenshire, Scotland (source: Wikipedia article Newburgh, Aberdeenshire ). - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD3516

Newcastle Is My Native Place
DESCRIPTION: "Newcassel is my native place, Where my mother sighed for me... Where in early youth I sported... But, alas! those days are gone and past." The singer tells of growing up, taking his first job, getting married -- and regrets the woe of the latter
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland)
Newfoundland and Sebastopol

DESCRIPTION: "Success to France and England! Hurray my boys hurray! Sebastopol is taken And we've nobly gained the day" on September 8, 1855. The battles are recounted. "Here's to the memory of our soldiers ... of that dreadful battle Of September, fifty-five"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: army battle war England France Russia memorial

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sep 9, 1855 - Fall of Sevastopol following an 11 month siege

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 152, "Newfoundland and Sebastopol"
(1 text)

Roud #17747

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sebastopol (Old England's Gained the Day; Capture and Destruction of Sebastopol; Cheer, Boys, Cheer)" (subject, theme)

NOTES [19 words]: Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland['s version] has no mention of "Newfoundland" in the text. - BS

File: GrMa152

Newfoundland Disaster (I), The

DESCRIPTION: Captain Randall, commander of the Bill, abandons his voyage and rescues twenty-five survivors of the Newfoundland from the ice. Seventy-seven are lost.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Peacock)

KEYWORDS: rescue drowning sea ship wreck

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
March/April 1914 - the Newfoundland Disaster

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Peacock, pp. 967-968, "The Newfoundland Disaster" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, pp. 94-95, "The Newfoundland Disaster (I)" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST Pea967 (Partial)

Roud #9932

RECORDINGS:
Joshua Osborne, "The Newfoundland Disaster" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. Pat Maher, "The Story of the Sealing Vessel, The Newfoundland" (on NFMLEach)
cf. "The Newfoundland Disaster (II)" (subject)
cf. "In Memorial of 77 Brave Newfoundland Sealers" (subject)

NOTES [9353 words]: Maher, on NFMLEach, does not sing the ballad but tells the story and tells a ghost story relating to that wreck. - BS

Other than the Greenland Disaster (for which see "The Greenland Disaster (I)") no other event in sealing history seems to have inspired such an outpouring of poetry as the Newfoundland Disaster. The 1914 tragedy is the subject of three pieces in Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff: this, "The Newfoundland Disaster (I)," and "In Memorial of 77 Brave Newfoundland Sealers" (a fourth item,
"The Sinking of the Newfoundland," is about a different ship). The latter two of these are too non-specific to really need checking for either truth or error (although eventually 78 sealers died of exposure, contrary to the "77" figure in "In Memorial"). This song, which refers primarily to the rescue rather than the disaster, is also basically factually correct except for what I suspect are transcriber's errors; the ship he called the Bill was actually the Belle, i.e. Bellaventure, and her commander was Isaac Robert Randell, not "Randall."

There are many articles and at least two books about this tragedy, Cassie Brown's Death on the Ice and Gary Collins's Left to Die: The Story of the SS Newfoundland Sealing Disaster. The latter is much newer (and written by a member of the family of Jesse Collins, of whom more below), but Brown's is acknowledged as a Newfoundland classic (Collins, pp. 18-19) and is much easier to find. Brown's other book, cited here as BrownWriting, contains several newspaper articles about the Newfoundland Disaster, including stories about two men who were involved, but has no real information not found in her main book; I found nothing useful in it at all except photos of Abram Kean and George Tuff (two of the men implicated in the tragedy) on p. 52, and various other photos related to the disaster on the following pages.

It should be noted that Brown's works are not always entirely fair (a point also made in Rosenberg, pp. 82-83); she refuses to accept that Newfoundland operated under severe economic constraints. The island was poor -- very poor. It had a bad climate, bad soil, and few accessible natural resources except the cod on the Grand Banks and the seals. It had no capital, either. Little wonder, then, that it had an almost medieval political system -- it had a medieval economy, and no way to get out. This meant that the island was reliant on the seal hunt (the islanders ate seals and sold the fat and the hides), and that little could be done to make this unsafe occupation safe.

There were two species of seals found around Newfoundland, hooded and harp seals (Ryan-Ice, pp. 47-49). It was the "harps" that most sealers were after -- the cute, utterly helpless little pups, known as "whitecoats" that have, in recent decades, caused the backlash against sealing. And rightly, since -- even in 1914 -- the population of "harps" was very much in decline; the seal harvest in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries was too intensive for the population of seals to be stable.

Sealing was so vital to Newfoundland that, during the sealing season, they even pulled ships off other duties to do it -- e.g. the Florizel and Stephano, which came about as close to being luxury liners as anything Newfoundland had, were used as sealers during the season, then went back to ferrying passengers (see the notes to "The Wreck of the Steamship Florizel"). But, in addition to the fancy new steel ships, there were a lot of crummy old ships that went sealing. The Newfoundland was one such. She had been built as a yacht, and then converted to a mail steamer -- but that was all the way back in 1872; she was already fairly old when she became a sealer in 1893 (Feltham, p. 99). She was said to be the largest of the wooden sealers (Ryan/Drake, p. 31), but that doesn't mean the owners gave her the attention she deserved; on her very first sealing cruise in 1893, she reportedly had had several breakdowns (Ryan-Ice, pp. 176-177, although he adds that this may have been exaggerated by the Newfoundland media, which was upset because she was based in Nova Scotia at the time).

The ship had an interesting history; during the Spanish-American war, the Americans had held her for a time for running the Cuban blockade! (Ryan/Drake, p. 31).

Captain Westbury Kean, who had commanded her since 1911 (Feltham, p. 99), was not impressed with his ship, old, underpowered, and hard to maneuver in ice (Brown, p. 2; Collins, p. 128) -- although that description fit most of the wooden steamers. She didn't even have a thermometer to try to gauge the weather! (Brown, p. 37; Collins, p. 182, says that it was illegal for her to not have a thermometer to gauge temperature).

The Newfoundland also lacked wireless -- the owners had removed the equipment (Brown, pp. 22, 215); Collins, p. 129, says that the expense was not the wireless set but the operator, but without an operator, the set was useless, so they took it out to presumably make more space available for other things. Brown says that the wireless had been removed because it wasn't cost-effective; Looker, p. 18, says the wireless and thermometer were removed to equip one of the newer steel ships. It is ironic that the steel ships were able to bring in larger numbers of seals -- but were also more expensive to run, so that most of them were dropped from the sealing fleet during and after World War I (Chafe, p. 27). Wireless had first been installed in the Florizel in 1909, then in the Eagle, and the ships of Bowring's found it useful -- Florizel and Eagle in 1910 apparently took different tracks around the ice and kept each other informed of where the seals were, and had good years as a result -- Ryan-Ice, pp. 192-193. Harvey's which ran the Newfoundland, had a smaller fleet, and so would have been less likely to benefit from this.

But Westbury Kean, who was only 29, didn't have much choice about his ship. He was the son of the unofficial admiral of the sealing fleet, Abram Kean (Brown, p. 1; for Abram Kean, see "Captain Including a second captain aboard. Westbury (also known as "Wesley" or "Wes") reportedly had hated school (Collins, p. 92), and didn't have the education to have earned his master's certificate (he finally earned it in 1917; Kean, p. 37) and couldn't really navigate in the open ocean, so the owners, to fulfill the law requiring trained officers and navigators, chose Captain Charles Green, who had arctic experience, as the navigating captain. (Indeed, it appears he had commanded two sealers, the Kite and the Neptune, on northern voyages; Collins, p. 93. For the Kite, see "The 'Kite' Abandoned in White Bay"; for the Neptune, see "Neptune, Ruler of the Sea"). But Green, although he had commanded ships used in the seal hunt when they were on other duties, wasn't a sealer, and apparently was told to stay out of Kean's way (Brown, p. 18; he testified later that "Captain Kean does not want me there [on the Newfoundland]"; Ryan-Last, p. 29), and Kean seemingly wasn't willing to listen to him anyway (Brown, p. 50); although the only true navigator on board, he had no role in running the ship. Green probably would have been a fine skipper, with Wes just running the sealing, but Newfoundlanders didn't do things that way.

Wes Kean's second-in-command (known in sealing parlance as a "second hand") knew even less about ship-handling, so he wasn't much help; George Tuff was only slightly older, at 32 (DictNewflLabrador says he was born in 1881 and died in 1937), and although he had been a sealer for 17 years, and a Master Watch (sealing shift chief) for ten, it was his first season as second hand (Brown, p. 17). He had quite a history; in only his second year as a sealer, he had been part of the Greenland Disaster a decade and a half earlier (see the notes to "The Greenland Disaster (I)" and the songs cited there), and it sounds as if he developed post-traumatic stress disorder as a result (no one calls it that, but see, e.g., Brown, p. 18; Collins, p. 251). But, Newfoundland being Newfoundland, he didn't really have the option to change jobs. (He wasn't the only one; Brown, p. 32 notes that many of the sealers of 1914 had been involved in the Greenland disaster.) He apparently didn't want to be Kean's second hand, but was told he was being given the job, and he didn't have the moral strength to turn it down (Collins, pp. 54-55), even though the event would prove him unfit for the role.

The danger of sealing was the ice: the seals came up on the ice, where the sealers clubbed them and took the carcasses, or their fat, back to their ships. But it was a short season (three weeks at most), at a time when Newfoundland was still in the grip of winter; the ice was not safe and could come in and trap a ship (Brown, p. 10).

Sealing ships, as late as the mid-nineteenth century, were sailing vessels. Many of them were lost, but they were small, so casualties were relatively light. It was in 1863 that steamers joined the hunt (Brown, p. 11), and they soon took over the trade. Around 1900, the wooden walls began to give way (temporarily) to iron and steel. The transition to steam didn't reduce the ship losses; reportedly 41 of the first 50 steam sealers were lost at sea. But each change made the ships more expensive, and required larger crews. The first sealers were less than thirty tonnes, and there were hundreds of them -- supposedly 631 in 1840 (Brown, p. 10). These small vessels had perhaps twenty people aboard.

Not so with the steam sealers; as the songs in Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff show, the ships were numbered in the dozens (eventually, fewer than that), but had a crew, counting sailors and sealers (in Newfoundland, those were nearly the same thing) in the hundreds. And there was surely competition between ships, since the crews were paid by seals taken, so captains were willing to do almost anything to get to the seals and keep other ships away. Which no doubt contributed to Wes Kean's sense of inferiority; Abram Kean commanded Stephano and Abram's son Joe Kean the Florizel (aboard which he would later die), much bigger, better ships than Westbury had been allotted (Ryan-Ice, p. 311).

The whole story of the Newfoundland's voyage sounds like a bad movie: soon after the start of the voyage, having had to retreat from the ice to a more secure anchorage, the crew found two stowaways; they were made to serve as stokers (Brown, p. 19). They would have been put off the ship, but the ice was so bad that Wes Kean skipped a planned stop at Fogo Island, meaning that he had no chance to leave drop them off. He was also supposed to pick up forty sealers at Fogo, so the decision not to visit the town got him to the ice sooner but left him forty men short of his planned complement (Collins, p. 121).

It was a bad year, weather-wise; even the steel ships suffered several collisions and substantial damage (Brown, p. 25). But, by March 20, most of the ships had found seal herds. The Newfoundland was one of the exceptions; although Westbury Kean was trying to trail his father (who had promised to signal him if he found seals, despite the fact that they worked for different sealing companies; Ryan-Ice, p. 311), the Newfoundland just couldn't handle the heavy ice that year (Brown, p. 33). Wes Kean was apparently going nuts trying to get to the seals, always testing the conditions, checking charts, climbing the masts to get a better look. Navigator Green compared him to Captain Ahab in his obsessive hunting (Collins, p. 184).

The hunting wasn't any better than the weather; after a full week, on March 27, the fleet was still trying to find a really good patch of seals (Brown, p. 34), and many ships were far below their usual haul (Brown, p. 38). But it was worse for the Newfoundland; she was stuck in the ice and wasn't even getting to the places the others were exploring (Brown, p. 35), and had only 400 seals (Brown, p. 45).

Westbury eventually managed to catch up with the main fleet, and father Abram Kean sent Wes's older brother Joe and the Florizel to talk with Wes. Wes suggested that the main patch was off to the west (which proved to be true; Brown, p. 48); Joe radioed Abram, and off everybody went (Brown, p. 46). Even the ships not under Abram Kean went where he was going because they believed in his reputation (Brown, p. 47). But the Newfoundland got stuck again (Brown, p. 50); she couldn't reach the patch that the other Keans located.

Wes Kean had a bright idea. He would send out his four shifts of sealers to walk to the seals, with two shifts spending the night on the Florizel and two on the Stephano (Brown, p. 51). After all, his father and brother commanded those two ships. They would take in his sealers, even though they belonged to a competitor.

Wes Kean apparently worried somewhat about the sealers' ability to navigate on the ice, but George Tuff -- who, as second hand, had the right (and arguably the duty) to stay with the ship, volunteered to lead them (Brown, p. 55; Ryan-Ice, p. 312, points out that it was unusual for the captain to send out his second hand for such duty, but Kean himself couldn't coordinate their work, so someone had to). It created an interesting conflict -- just who was in charge of the sealers when they arrived at the Stephano, Tuff or Abram Kean? The men didn't know; although they believed Wes wanted them to stay on the Stephano or Florizel for the night, not even the Master Watches who headed the four shifts were told so explicitly (Ryan-Ice, p. 312).

Wes told Tuff to go to the Stephano and get his instructions from Abram Kean. Tuff perhaps did not hear Wes Kean's instructions to stay on the Stephano if they could not reach the Newfoundland before night.

To make matters worse, Tuff did not take a compass (Brown, p. 56). Meanwhile, the barometer on the Newfoundland was falling, but the recorded reading was still high; it was reported at the inquiry (by Captain Green, not Wes Kean) that it had read 30.4 inches early on March 31, but was down to 29.5 a day later, then started to edge upward (Ryan-Last, p. 28). If these numbers were right, then the pressure had gone from the "fair skies" range to "changeable" -- but the glass had not been checked for years, so its accuracy was uncertain (Brown, p. 59; Collins, p. 182, says that the barometer was an ancient aneroid model that probably was not reliable). The crucial observation should have been that it was falling fast, although the weather was warm enough that the sealers were discarding their heavy clothing as they went out on the ice (Brown, pp. 56-58), despite hints of storm clouds in the sky (Brown, p. 57).

The ice turned out to be very bad -- George Tuff said it was the worst he had ever experienced (Brown, p. 60). The men set out around 7:00 a.m. It took them more than four hours to reach the Stephano (Ryan-Ice, p. 312), so even though the distance was no more than seven miles, and possibly less (no one really knows), it was clearly a difficult trip.

As a result, the men became strung out. As more and more signs of bad weather appeared, men began to turn back to the Newfoundland (Brown, pp. 60-62). Eventually 34 men went back to the ship (Brown, p. 62; Collins, pp. 225-227), adding to Wes Kean's frantic irritation (Brown, pp. 70-71). But most kept on -- some of them, at least, because they were closer to the Stephano than the Newfoundland and thought it would be safer to head for the newer ship (Brown, pp. 62-63).

Abram Kean did not do as his son expected. He let the men grab some tea and shoved them back out on the ice (Brown, p. 72) -- having meanwhile steamed away from the point where he picked them up (Ryan-Ice, p. 312). George Tuff was surprised and worried; he expected to stay on the Stephano for the night (Brown, p. 74). But Abram Kean wanted to follow the Florizel, which was heading away from the Newfoundland -- too far for the Newfoundland's sealers to walk back to their ship. And Tuff regarded himself as being under Abram Kean's orders. He did argue a little -- the weather was looking bad. But Kean claimed that his barometer said otherwise (Brown, pp. 76-77) -- which was true but ignored the fact that it was falling quickly. So off Tuff and the Newfoundland's men went -- even though they could not so much as see their ship any more (Brown, p. 75). They had had only about twenty minutes to rest aboard the Stephano before Abram Kean went on about his own business (Brown, p. 77).

It is surely poetic justice to note that one of the men he shoved out on the ice was one of his own cousins, Eli Kean (Brown, p. 157). Eli would later be found dead by men from Abram Kean's own

...
Stephano (Brown, p. 185). There were 132 men on the ice, and as the Stephano sped off, they began to suspect she wasn't coming back -- and Tuff (who according to Brown was only starting to realize that he was in charge and had to manage the mess, and was overwhelmed by the responsibility) had to confirm it (Brown, pp. 78-79). To make matters worse, Tuff had been ordered to seek seals to the southwest, and the Newfoundland was to the southeast. Tuff was supposed to both seek seals and take his men home, and there was no path that would allow him to do both (Brown, pp. 79-80). Master Watch Tom Dawson was already worried, and questioned what Tuff was up to (Collins, p. 235). Tuff fell back on his orders, even though they were Abram Kean's orders, not his own commander's: he took the party to the southwest, away from the Newfoundland. The men, many of them angry and scared, perforce followed (Brown, pp. 80-81). Tuff didn't come around until they had gone about a mile (Brown, pp. 82-83) -- a slow, wearisome task on the ice. By this time, although Tuff didn't admit it, they were probably lost -- in the storm which had blown up, neither the Newfoundland nor the Stephano was in sight.

After the first batch of men -- the ones who had turned back early -- reached the Newfoundland, Westbury Kean dressed them down and then went off watch (Brown, pp. 85-86). When the last of the returnees came in, the Newfoundland ceased sounding its whistle. The ship's log recorded "At 1:30 p.m., thirty-four men returned on board, remainder of crew having boarded S. S. Stephano" (Brown, p. 86). The silencing of the whistle was vital, because it meant that the only way the other sealers could find the ship was by seeing her -- in a blizzard.

The storm was blowing up from the south. Back in St. John's, it was already so bad that business was ceasing. It continued to head north (Brown, p. 87). And the Newfoundland, with no wireless, had no way of knowing.

Something funny happened at this point, and it's hard to know what. Joe Kean, Abram Kean's oldest son, was in command of the Florizel (after the Stephano, the newest and best of the sealers), and he had been picking up the Stephano's sealers as the weather grew worse (Brown, p. 89). The claim is that Joe Kean wanted to send a message to his father: the Florizel would take care of the Stephano's sailors; the Stephano should take care of a small group from the Florizel plus the many men from the Newfoundland. That a message was sent seems certain -- but no copy was kept at the sending end (not too unusual) and none was kept at the receiving end either (Brown, p. 90) -- which was most unusual indeed. Abram Kean would claim that the message he got simply asked him to care for the Florizel's men and did not mention the Newfoundland's. Abram Kean picked up the watch from the Florizel -- and, being Abram Kean, went back to hunting seals (Brown, p. 91). Joseph Kean, perhaps afraid to testify against his father, claimed not to remember these events (Ryan-Last, p. 32).

The Newfoundland's men were straggling back to their ship, but none really knew where she was, and George Tuff was not taking the lead (Brown, pp. 91-93). Around 2:30, the storm turned into a blizzard (Brown, p. 93) -- meaning that the men could not see for any distance, and that it soon would be impossible to locate the path they had taken from their ship. Their only way of navigating was by compass.

There was an informal (and not always respected) rule among sealers that allowed a ship to leave a patch without taking up the seals as long as a flag was left to claim the carcasses. These flags could also be used as navigation guides by the sealers on the ice. And Abram Kean had left at least one flag on the ice without recalling that it was there (Brown, p. 54). As they trudged home, the Newfoundland's men found it, adding to their confusion about their location (Brown, p. 95). Watch master Thomas Dawson, to whom Tuff had delegated the task of leading the party while Tuff stayed at the back, had the men spread out and zigzag to look for signs of their path (Brown, p. 96). Already he had disobeyed Tuff slightly to take them closer to where he (correctly) thought their outward path lay (Brown, p. 96, etc.). And while Dawson found the path around 2:30 p.m., the shifting ice meant that it was getting somewhat confused and no longer led straight back to the Newfoundland -- and they were farther from the ship than they thought (Ryan-Ice, p. 313). As darkness arrived, Tuff decided to send a small party ahead to try to get help (Brown, p. 98). The barometer had fallen about a third of an inch in this time. The storm was about to get worse (Brown, pp. 98-99).

Slowly concern grew on the Florizel and the Stephano. Joe Kean perhaps asked his father about the situation again, and was reassured (Brown, p. 101). The men on the Stephano also asked Abram Kean what was happening. But Abram's only action was to order the whistle to be blown regularly, and to slow down and look for men on the ice (Brown, p. 102). That was more than the Newfoundland was doing. She remained stuck, and Wes Kean was convinced his men were on the Stephano. Or somewhere. He didn't see a need to sound the whistle. A junior officer on watch might have done it -- but most of the officers were out on the ice in the storm. The bosun -- who was not on watch -- asked the captain about it, and as an afterthought Wes Kean gave permission to blow the whistle once or twice. The bosun blew it twice, then stopped, and no one else sounded it (Brown, pp. 104-105). Once the whistle stopped, there was no way for the men on the ice to locate the Newfoundland. A few men had gone into the water by then; probably some of them were already dead. The rest heard the whistle, but still could not see the ship -- and then the whistle stopped sounding. And Master Watch Art Mouland had forgotten his compass, and Tuff didn't have one; they had no way to follow the sound once the whistle was silent (Brown, pp. 106-108). And then, in the snow, the trail vanished (Brown, p. 109; Collins, p. 244).

There was nothing to do but to try to build a snow wall to slow the wind, and huddle together for the night (Brown, pp. 110-111). They couldn't afford to all stay together, though; too many men on one ice pan could cause it to collapse (Collins, p. 246). So they had to separate and then build shelters. The master watches set their men to do so -- but all were tired. One master watch, Art Mouland, got work out of his men, but Thomas Dawson, who had led the return so far, was exhausted himself and couldn't get his men to do what he thought necessary (Brown, pp. 115-118). A third master watch, Sidney Jones, seems to have been completely useless; his men made no preparations at all, and tried to join Dawson's men (Brown, pp. 116-117, 122) -- which meant that the pan was too small for them to exercise enough to keep warm (Ryan-Ice, p. 314). (To be fair, in the process of this, Jones watched his best friend die -- Collins, p. 275 -- so perhaps he just wasn't thinking straight. And George Tuff's son said that Tuff only survived because Jones had forced him to stay awake; Ryan-Last, p. 336) The fourth master watch, Jacob Bungay, wasn't as parasitic but didn't do much to prepare. Tuff, who was with Bungay, was equally useless; all he could do was say, again and again, that they would be found (Brown, p. 134).

Wes Kean apparently didn't think the snow would be bad. The barometer (which, to repeat, was of dubious reliability) still implied good weather, despite the blizzard. In any case, he still thought his men were on the Stephano. He made no attempts to do anything, except make arrangements for who would take shifts now that all the officers except the bosun (and Captain Green, whom he ignored) were away from the ship (Brown, p. 112).

The first casualty, a fellow named William Pear who had been sick from the start, was definitely dead by then (Collins, pp. 250-251).

On the Stephano, many of the crew were now worried. But none dared talk to Abram Kean. He was that sort of officer.

At 8:00 a.m. on April 1, the Newfoundland recorded gale force winds from the north (Brown, p. 132). Wes Kean thought he could work the ship loose. He tried it. The steering chain failed; she was still stuck (Brown, p. 133). There was no way she could go to pick up her men.

By this time, men on some of the ships were comparing the situation to the Greenland disaster of sixteen years before (for which see "The Greenland Disaster (I)"). When Joe Kean (the only Kean to come out of the affair with any credit at all) asked one of his master watches about it, the master watch said that at least it was warmer (Brown, p. 121). But that meant that, in time, the snow turned to rain (Brown, p. 123). And that was in some ways worse than snow, because it penetrated clothing and stuck. And, meanwhile, the wind had started to shift at random, so that the snow walls provided shelter only intermittently. And then, very quickly, the temperature dropped from above freezing to about 15 degrees F (Brown, p. 124). The men tried to keep moving to stay warm, and they huddled together (Brown, pp. 125-126). It wasn't much help; some were so badly off that their eyes were freezing shut. A man named Jesse Collins worked tirelessly to lead and keep some of them alive (Brown, pp. 126-128; Ryan-Last, p. 332, has Cecil Mouland's account of Collins's works), but there was only so much that could be done. Even healthy men began to die that night.

Among the most touching: Edward Tippett and his young relatives Norman and Abel died together, with Edward Tippett's arms frozen around the young men (Collins, pp. 294-295, Brown, p. 129, incorrectly implies that Norman and Abel Tippett were both Edward's sons). At least one man went insane before dying (Brown, p. 135). Most of the survivors were with Mouland; Dawson, who had led the return for so many hours, was frostbitten almost to death, and only three others were alive with him in his pan (Brown, p. 137). He only survived the second night because one of his men piled the bodies of dead comrades around him to give him shelter from the wind (Brown, p. 167). George Tuff -- repeatedly confronted by his men -- apparently finally admitted it was a disaster and blamed it on Abram Kean; he expected everyone to die (Brown, pp. 138, 140). And he still didn't have any useful ideas; what little was being done was done by the master watches, especially Art Mouland. The weather on April 1 was so bad that not even Abram Kean sent his men out hunting, although he continued sailing and occasionally made his crews pick up seals by the ship (Brown, p. 141).

The bosun of the Newfoundland had managed to repair her steering chains; she tried again to move at 2:00 p.m. of the second day (Brown, pp. 141-142).
In the afternoon, Tuff thought he saw the Newfoundland, and he and a few others set out to find her so that they could rescue the others (Brown, p. 143). Tuff was wrong (Brown, p. 144). Then Tuff spotted another ship -- but not his own. The first ship the sealers saw was not the Newfoundland; it was the Bellaventure. George Tuff and Art Mouland both saw her, and they and others tried to attract her attention (Brown, pp. 145-152) -- but the Bellaventure, which had no reason to be searching for missing sealers, failed to see the lost men and sailed off (Looker, p. 21; Collins, p. 275). And Tuff and his men were too weak to pursue. They had to go back to their ice pans and shelters as men continued to die (Brown, p. 153). Tuff continued to make false claims of rescue, too (Brown, p. 156); I have to suspect all the false hopes he raised just made things worse. Eventually the weather cleared, and the men saw the Newfoundland, which they estimated was four miles away (Brown, pp. 156-157; Collins, p. 276, says some thought it was just two miles). A dozen men straggled out to try to reach her, in three separate groups (Brown, p. 158). One of those who set out -- but collapsed along the way -- was Eli Kean (Brown, p. 159).
Right about then the Newfoundland finally broke free of the ice -- and started to sail away. That was enough that even George Tuff lost hope (Brown, p. 160); only Art Mouland was still trying. Then the Bellaventure showed up again -- and again failed to see the men (Brown, pp. 160-161).
By evening, the temperature was down to 9 degrees F, with the wind still high, meaning that it felt dozens of degrees colder (Brown, p. 162). No unprotected man could survive long in that. But, with all the ships too far away to reach, the men would have to spend a second night on the ice. They couldn't even start a fire; although most still had their wooden gaffs, no one had a match -- supposedly the last had been dropped because the men's hands were shaking too much to hold them (Collins, p. 277).
At 4:00 a.m. on April 2 -- almost two full days after dropping off his men -- Wes Kean thought the weather and the ice good enough to travel. The log of the Newfoundland declares his intent to reach the Stephano and pick up his men. It is the first time the log mentioned their absence. But she soon becomes stuck again (Brown, p. 170). Still, Wes Kean stayed in the barrel (the lookout's perch) to try to find his way loose (Brown, p. 172). And saw Art Mouland and some of his men (Brown, p. 173). At least someone on a ship realized the disaster.
Wes's first idea was to fly a distress signal to try to get help from the other ships. He didn't have the right equipment for the signal (another symptom of the cheap way in which the Newfoundland had been equipped.) He improvised, imperfectly. He then stumbled down to tell what he had seen. He seems to have been hysterical (Brown, pp. 173-174). It was bosun Tizzard who sent men out to rescue those who could be found. Wes Kean -- properly, I think -- turned command over to the rescued. Wes Kean, recorded in the log that men had gone out to attempt a rescue of men they saw on the ice (Brown, pp. 174-175).
When Abram Kean saw his son's distress signal, he didn't know what to make of it, because Wes Kean hadn't set it up properly due to the lack of equipment. So he sent two men to the Newfoundland to learn what was going on (Brown, p. 175). They confirmed to Wes Kean that all the Newfoundland's men had been sent (forced, really) onto the ice from the Stephano -- and that none had come back.
Art Mouland, helped by the rescuers Wes Kean had sent, was the first to reach the Newfoundland, under his own power, but only seven men, including Tuff, were close enough to be rescued by Kean's crew (Brown, p. 176). According to the Newfoundland's log, they were taken aboard around 8:00 a.m. (Brown, p. 178). They slowly told Wes Kean what had happened. And Wes realized that his father had largely been at fault. (One sealer also pointed out to Wes Kean the harm done by his failure to blow the Newfoundland's whistle; Brown, p. 177). Meanwhile, Abram Kean was trying to assemble a rescue, but the ice was still thick. It was not until 8:40 a.m. that the rescuers set out (Brown, pp. 177-178, 181).
Even though the Bellaventure missed the men the first time, it was a big part of the rescue. On April 2, at 6:30 a.m., Captain Isaac Robert Randell and his second hand Abram Parsons spotted a few men coming toward them, obviously in very bad shape (Brown, p. 179). The ship moved toward them as best it could in the tight ice (Rendell, 1871-1942, had been a ship's master since 1895 and explored the Arctic for Canada, according to DictNewfLabrador, p. 284, so odds are that he did the job about as well as it could be done. He would later become a director of A. H. Murray and Co. and a member of Newfoundland's House of Assembly). Eventually they picked up two men, Benjamin Piercey and Jesse Collins (who had done so much to keep several men alive); they reported at least fifty men dead. The ship prepared for a rescue; Parsons -- who was a personal friend of Newfoundland's Tom Dawson -- led them (Brown, p. 180). At 9:02 a.m., Randell sent a message to the Stephano suggesting it join the rescue. At 9:06 Abram Kean in the Stephano... responded, and then signaled his son Joe in the Florizel about the matter. The rescuers -- men who casually murdered seal pups without a qualm -- were horrified by what they saw. Some men were dying even as the men of the Bellaventure came to them (Brown, p. 182 -- although the fact that they gave them brandy rather than something warm or nutritious surely didn't help). Some of the dead men had had to be hacked from the ice with axes (O'Neill, p. 975; Brown, p. 183). Even the survivors were often snowblind, mad with cold, or so frostbitten that they would lose limbs (Brown, pp. 183-184).

Joe Kean's Florizel sent a chilling message to Newfoundland: "Fear terrible disaster. Newfoundland 's crew caught out in last blizzard... Bellaventure found 50 men dead and dying" (Brown, p. 184; Feltham, p. 104). Joe asked that the local wireless office stay open to relay messages (none of the ships had long-range transmitters, so they needed a relay to get messages to St. John's). He also pointed out that it wouldn't have happened if the Newfoundland had had wireless. He said all three Keans were in a terrible state (Brown, p. 184) -- but, of course, he also started to establish an excuse. Many ships did not have doctors; they merely had a crewman responsible for a supply of bandages. Bellaventure had a druggist named Harold Smith (Brown, p. 187). He had done things we might call surgery before this voyage, but nothing had prepared him for what he faced. At 5:44, in response to a message from Abram Kean, Bellaventure told Stephano they had 58 dead, 35 alive, of whom 15 needed a real doctor, and asked if Stephano or Florizel had a physician. It took Kean an hour to answer, but Stephano had a doctor, and after some difficulties (the doctor had never been on the ice, so he needed help moving between the ships), he was able to go to Bellaventure (Brown, pp. 189-191).

The plan was for Florizel, Stephano, and Bellaventure to go to the location of the Newfoundland to try to account for everyone (Brown, p. 191). When the government heard, it asked Harvey's, the owner of the Bellaventure, to order her home (Ryan-Last, p. 27). They also prepared for casualties (Brown, p. 193). The Bellaventure, with as many men and bodies as could be gathered, would take the survivors, and the corpses, home. (Fortunately, she had already taken 13,690 seals, so she had at least a reasonable haul; Chafe, p. 98.) When they finally got a clear message to St. John's, it reported 58 dead and 35 alive on Bellaventure, five dead on Florizel, one dead and two alive on Stephano; the survivors on Newfoundland were not counted. So it was already known that there were 64 dead (Brown, p. 194). Abram Kean, having worked to compare rosters, soon after reported 47 alive, about 70 dead (Brown, p. 195. Even two decades later, he would undercount the casualties slightly; Kean, p. 31, claims there were just 73; the correct final tally was 78 men dead -- 77 on the ice and one after being rescued; Ryan-Ice, p. 315). Additional information slowly trickled in. All the survivors except Tuff, Art Mouland, and Mouland's brother were moved to the Bellaventure before she headed for St. John's (Brown, p. 196). When everyone came together, in addition to the living and the known dead, there were eight men missing (Brown, p. 197).

It will tell you something about Abram Kean that, as soon as he had finished his reckoning and fixed the steering engine that had been slightly damaged by all the pounding through the ice, he took the Stephano off to look for more seals. Even his own sealers were shocked (Brown, p. 197). But he wasn't the only one to keep on sealing (Brown, p. 200). At least one other captain, William "Billy" Winsor of the Beothic, more remote from the tragedy, was still looking to earn the honor of being the first man home (Brown, pp. 198-199). Winsor actually raced the Beothic into port ahead of the Bellaventure, which was the ship everyone wanted to see (Brown, p. 201). The Newfoundland, which arrived later, arrived quietly, almost secretly, at evening; none of the flags that usually flew were raised for her (Collins, p. 308). On top of everything else, she had taken just 538 seals (Chafe, pp. 102-103; it was the second-worst year in her history and less than 5% of her career average of 11,817 seals per year).

To make the community's grief even worse, the Southern Cross was lost with all hands around this time (see "The Southern Cross (I).") When the Bellaventure arrived in St. John's, she was carrying 69 bodies (Feltham, p. 105). Thirty-three of the men who arrived on the Bellaventure had to be taken to hospital by ambulance; the handful who could move under their own power walked to the Seamen's Institute -- although even some of them were leaning on others (Brown, p. 202). Full lists of the dead (which differ slightly) are found in Brown, p. 267f., and Ryan-Ice, pp. 326-327 n. 180; Ryan-Ice has notes about the discrepancies. Between the Newfoundland and the Southern Cross, 251 men were lost (give or take one or two, since were don't know exactly who was on the Southern Cross) -- or 0.1% of Newfoundland's entire population of about a quarter million. Ryan-Ice, p. 199, says that "confidence in the industry never recovered."

The sealers on other ships were so upset at still being stuck on the ice that some started to rebel.
Seven men on the Diana mutinied (Brown, p 206), then thirteen on the Eagle; the latter were put on the Florizel, since she was ready to go home. And, on the Stephano, a sealer named Mark Sheppard defied Abram Kean to his face. Kean ordered him "logged" -- i.e. blacklisted and docked of his pay (Brown, pp. 206-207), but other men aboard were also rebelling, if less openly. And, on the Bloodhound, more than half the sealers went on strike to demand that they head for port; Captain Jesse Winsor tried to pick up a few more seals, but eventually gave up and went home (Brown, pp. 207-208).

There was, of course, an inquest, scheduled for April 6, and it was set up so that the survivors could testify (this by interesting contrast to the Greenland Disaster, where they were not called; Brown, p. 201). Wes Kean was the first and most important witness; his testimony took up 44 pages. Ryan-Last, p. 28, acridly remarks, "He does not impress the reader with his testimony, and the commissioners must have been equally unimpressed.... In fact, he showed a remarkable lack of knowledge and an inability to remember wind changes and ice movements that occurred before and during the disaster." To be fair, trauma often causes problems with memory.

Several survivors blamed Abram Kean -- for taking them aboard the Stephano, moving them away from the Newfoundland, showing them off his ship after just minutes to rest, and giving them orders to head away from both ships -- although they also had harsh words for George Tuff (Brown, p. 208, although Collins, p. 324, says they weren't as hard on Kean as they probably wanted to be -- a man who truly spoke against Kean would surely face repercussions if he ever went sealing again!). Tuff, who was one of the men healthy enough to testify, admitted to mistakes but disagreed with his captain Wes Kean over whether Kean had ordered Tuff to have the men to stay on the Stephano overnight (Wes Kean, although still clearly distraught, insisted he had so ordered; Brown, pp, 208-209).

When Abram Kean finally showed up (reportedly upset at having been second in seals taken, trailing the Beothic; Brown, p. 209), he vigorously denied any fault and gave a detailed rebuttal (for which, however, he could offer no direct evidence; Brown, pp. 209-210, thinks he was wrong or lying -- but she also clearly does not approve of him). Kean contradicted both his sons (Wes and Joe) -- and even insisted that his actions were proper and noble (Brown, p. 211). Looker, p. 25, suggests that "his emphatic, detailed, and self-righteous testimony confused the commissioners, and they laid no official charges."

Kean never did admit fault; in his autobiography, he devotes just two paragraphs to the event -- then spends page upon page attacking Sir William Coaker, the advocate for sealers' rights. The first paragraph proclaims, self-righteously, "That part of my history which took place in 1914 and the succeeding years is one which I would willingly forget, but painful recollection must be sacrificed on the altar of truth. Through no fault of my own I was subjected to the most bitter attack launched on any man in this or any other country" (Kean, p. 31). He then outlines the disaster in a few sentences, claiming that there was no warning of the storm (false), that nothing could have been done (false), and that his first duty was to his own men (true, but by making a deal with Westbury about finding the seals, he had taken on responsibility for his son's men also); he also made several minor mis-statements of facts. I find the self-righteous sanctimoniousness of that page of his biography simply disgusting; a man who had any sense of humility at all would have at least considered the possibility that he could have done better!

"Ridiculously, the commission faulted George Tuff for not doing the unheard-of: refusing to take the old man's orders and keep the Newfoundland crew aboard the Stephano" (Cadigan, p. 186). Ryan-Lee, p. 315, reports that several commissioners wanted to blame Kean, but a minority disagreed, and apparently that was enough to scuttle any action.

The only direct result of the commission was a 1916 law requiring all sealing steamers to carry wireless (the Southern Cross, like the Newfoundland, had had no wireless set, according to Collins, p. 243, so the lack was clearly a problem) and mandating a few other protections for sealers (Brown, p. 214; Busch, p. 89).

William Coaker, head of the Fisherman's Protective Union (for Coaker, see "Coaker's Dream"), who had actually gone on the seal hunt in 1914 (he had managed to get some reforms through the legislature early in the year -- Busch, p. 89 -- and wanted to see that they were implemented), was vituperative in his condemnation of Abram Kean (Feltham, pp. 106-107). His complaints were so strong that Kean filed two suits against the Mail, which had published Coaker's letters (Brown, p. 213; Kean, pp. 32ff. gives Kean's side of this story). Prime Minister Morris, his government under threat (Kean was a key supporter), managed to negotiate an out-of-court settlement for the bigger suit (Brown, p. 214), and Kean got a relatively nominal $100 out of the second, which he complained didn't even pay his lawyers (Brown, p. 217). It didn't affect Kean much; there were petitions and parades against him, and some sealers refused to sign up with him, but he still went out on the hunt in the Florizel the next year (the Stephano had been given over to war work; Kean, George Tuff was the responsible man for our crew, to look out for them. He was given charge of commission assigned him, but he deserves a lot. Dawson, for instance, declared, "In my opinion Wes Kean had wanted the having the brains to put Art Mouland or Tom Dawson in charge. Nor did he tell Abram Kean what - George Tuff, for exhibiting no independence of judgment when it was vitally needed, and not the sealers to disdain him far more than the Terra Nova," which resulted in the deaths of three men and, according to Rosenberg, p. 86, caused continued to treat men as something to be used or discarded; witness the event described in "The - Abram Kean, because he made arrangements to help his son find seals but felt no responsibility for the sealers, and did not care for them. But let's face it: the job of the sealers was mass slaughter. Sealing captains weren't sissies. Abram Kean was the toughest, nastiest, most inconsiderate of the lot -- and that is why the companies hired him. He was a jerk, but being a jerk was his job. They wanted a psychopath, and they got one. Bought and paid for. Any accusations leveled against Kean should also be leveled against those who hired him, i.e. Bowring's, owner of both the Stephano and the Florizel. Certainly he didn't learn anything from the disaster; he continued to treat men as something to be used or discarded; witness the event described in "The Terra Nova," which resulted in the deaths of three men and, according to Rosenberg, p. 86, caused the sealers to disdain him far more than the Newfoundland disaster did.
- George Tuff, for exhibiting no independence of judgment when it was vitally needed, and not having the brains to put Art Mouland or Tom Dawson in charge. Nor did he tell Abram Kean what Wes Kean had wanted the Newfoundland's men to do. He doesn't deserve as much blame as the commission assigned him, but he deserves a lot. Dawson, for instance, declared, "In my opinion George Tuff was the responsible man for our crew, to look out for them. He was given charge of them. He should have informed Captain Kean that we had been five hours travelling to his ship...
(Collins, pp. 319-320). Other sealers were also bitter at Tuff for not demanding that Abram Kean give them more time to recover; Tuff admitted that he had not protested to Kean, but he defended himself by saying that none of the Master Watches objected either (Collins, p. 320). As if they ever had time to do so! On the other hand, Abram Kean praised Tuff (Collins, p. 319). He would; Tuff never questioned Kean, which of course by Kean's standards made Tuff a great man.
Slightly unfavorable: Westbury Kean. He was not as careful as he should have been. (The whistle is an obvious case. Even if his men weren't on the ice, he should have blown it in case some other men were lost! And when he broke free of the ice, he went sailing off even though he had no clue where his men were. Suppose Abram Kean had taken them in the Stephano, and then sent them back to where the Newfoundland had been. What would have happened to them when the Newfoundland wasn't there? Wes Kean seems to have had no ability to see that things sometimes did not go as he planned for them to go.)
But, unlike his father, Wes had a conscience. The men liked him. Wilfred Andrews, who sailed with him in the Terra Nova in 1927, recalled 59 years later that "Wesley (sic.) Kean was our captain, captain of the Terra Nova. Kean was a good man, perfect man, couldn't get no better. He was good to his crowd and we could get along pretty good with him" (Ryan-Last, pp. 111-112); also "Captain Wesley (sic.) was a great captain, but he always felt blame for the Newfoundland disaster. But the disaster wasn't Wesey's fault; that was the old man's fault, old Abram. That disaster made Wesley very careful. He'd always say, 'Boys, if you see anything of a storm working up, coming aboard.' He always seemed to dread sending his crew on the ice' (Ryan-Last, p. 113). Nath Barrett said, "When I was with Captain Wesley (sic.) Kean, he always lectured us before we went out on the ice. He was concerned that we be very careful. I guess he never forgot when he lost the men in the Newfoundland Disaster" (Ryan-Last, p. 128). Wilfred Vincent also described the way "Wessie" talked: "He'd rather be lecturing than anything else. He was what you call a professor. But he was a nice man" (Ryan-Last, p. 395). Jacob Best said, "Captain Wes, he was very good. I liked him" (Ryan-Last, p. 139). Stephen Barry said "He was different from his father, Abram. He couldn't be no better to the crew." Pat Gosse called him "nervous" but "careful" because of his history but good to the crew (Ryan-Last, p. 309). Edgar Kean however said that he took to drinking in secret and sometimes was drunk on duty (Ryan-Last, pp. 309-310).
One could argue, too, that he got his punishment -- in 1914, he had the lowest pay ($47.56) of any sealing captain.
Slightly favorable: Joe Kean. He was the only captain in the entire fleet who truly tried to accomplish something, although he couldn't override his father. But it seems clear he would have been a better commodore. His father claimed that, after Joe died in the Florizel wreck, his "funeral was beyond all doubt the largest ever seen in Newfoundland" (Kean, p. 39) -- although even if true (and Abram Kean is a biased witness), that might have been partly a tribute to the Florizel, on which Kean died, not to Joe Kean -- plus all the sealers were in town, because it was right before the sealing fleet sailed.
Favorable: Art Mouland, Tom Dawson, Jesse Collins. Mouland kept most of his men alive. Dawson took George Tuff's instructions with a grain of salt; if he had gone exactly where Tuff had ordered, things might have been even worse. Collins spent incredible energy to keep men alive -- even Abram Kean said that "One man in particular, Collins from New Harbour, displayed some considerable courage in trying to preserve the lives of his fellow men.... One man said, 'I am alive, Captain, but I do not thank myself, I should have been dead long ago if it was not for Jesse Collins" (Collins, pp. 318-319). But not even Collins was willing to go back to the ice after that; it was his last trip (Collins, p. 322).
There is a photo of the Newfoundland on p. 176 of Feltham; p. 179 shows some of the bodies after their recovery, and some of the coffins that awaited them. Similar photos are on pp. 214-217, 220-224 of Collins. Brown has two photos of the ship in the photo section following p. 118; this also has two photos of Abram Kean, one of Joseph Kean, and a small one of Westbury Kean, as well as a photo of George Tuff, Robert Randell of the Bellaventure, and of the rescue, plus a photo of Master Watch Thomas Dawson -- who eventually lost both his feet -- being carried to hospital; this is also found on p. 23 of Looker and p. 219 of Collins. Kean, p. 10, has a photo of Newfoundland with an inset photo of a very young-looking Westbury; photos of the Kean family, including Westbury, are on pp. 106 and 116. Winsor, p. 56, has a photo of the ship, clearly taken late in her career. Collins,
p. 156, shows the Newfoundland in the ice; p. 150, has photos of George Tuff and Jesse Collins; p.
151 has a photo of Abram Kean; p. 152 shows the photo of the Newfoundland with the inset of Westbury; p. 155 shows Captain Randell and the Bellaventure; p. 160 shows the sailors of the Bellaventure bringing in sealers. Pp. 209-213 have more of the Bellaventure and her part in the rescue. Ryan/Drake, p. 38, also has a photo of the Bellaventure, as does Winsor, p. 32. She served on the ice 1909-1916, when she, along with her sister Bonaventure and near-sister Adventure were sold to Russia. In those seven years, she brought in 112,135, a respectable but not spectacular number; in 1910, her best year, she managed 35,816 under Job Knee (Winsor, p. 32).

In addition to being mentioned in the songs about the Newfoundland disaster, the Newfoundland is also referred to in "Captains and Ships"; the sealer in "A Noble Fleet of Sealers" is a different ship. To repeat what was said at the beginning, the text of this, as given by Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, refers to the sealers being rescued by "Captain Randall" of the Bill. This should be the Belle or Bell, as the Bellaventure was known (Brown, p. 282; Rosenberg, p. 87), commanded by Isaac Robert Randell. - RBW

Bibliography

- BrownWriting: Cassie Brown,Writing the Sea (an expanded edition of the earlier volumeThe Caribou Disaster and Other Short Stories, with more material about Brown but nothing new about the sea), Flanker Press, 2005
- Cadigan: Sean T. Cadigan,Newfoundland and Labrador: A History, University of Toronto Press, 2009
- Feltham: John Feltham,Sealing Steamers, Harry Cuff Publications, 1995
- Kean: Abram Kean, with a foreword by Sir Wilfred Grenfell,Old and Young Ahead, 1935; I use the 2000 Flanker Press edition edited and with a new Introduction (and new photographs) by Shannon Ryan
- Looker: Janet Looker,Disaster Canada, Lynx Images, 2000
- Rosenberg: John Scott, Neil V. Rosenberg, editor,Folklore & Oral History (Paper from the Second Annual Meeting of the Canadian Aural/Oral History Association, at St. John's, Newfoundland, October 3-5, 1975), Memorial University of Newfoundland, 1978
- N.B. There is another recent book that purports to be about this disaster, T. C. Badcock,Captain Kean's Secret, 2013. It contains enough anachronisms and impossibilities that I do not cite it. In fact, I think it is a forgery

Last updated in version 5.2
File: Pea967
Newfoundland Disaster (II), The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all ye sons of Newfoundland And shed a tear or two While I relate the hardships great Befell this steamship's crew." The Newfoundland is trapped by a gale, and "nearly 80" men are killed. Listeners are asked to mourn the heroes

AUTHOR: apparently George Humby
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Harbour Grace Standard)
KEYWORDS: hunting ship disaster storm death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
March 1914 - Wreck of the Newfoundland (Northern Shipwrecks Database)
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, p. 96, "The Newfoundland Disaster (2)" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: John Feltham, _Sealing Steamers_, Harry Cuff Publications, 1995, p. 106 "(no title)" (1 excerpt)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Newfoundland Disaster (I)" (subject)
cf. Pat Maher, "The Story of the Sealing Vessel, The Newfoundland" (on NFMLeach)
cf. "In Memorial of 77 Brave Newfoundland Sealers" (subject)
NOTES [16 words]: For background on the Newfoundland Disaster, see the notes to "The Newfoundland Disaster (I)." - RBW
_Last updated in version 4.3_
File: RySm096

Newfoundland Exile, The (The Emigrant from Newfoundland)

DESCRIPTION: "Dear Newfoundland have I got to leave you To seek a living on some foreign strand." The singer recalls hills, meadows, playing with other children, and watching the sealers go to sea. But the fishery is failing, and many are forced away

AUTHOR: unknown (possibly JT Kinsella)
EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Murphy, Old Colony Song Book)
KEYWORDS: emigration hardtimes fishing
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, compiler/publisher, "(Old Colony Song Book: Newfoundland)," James Murphy, 1904 (available from the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site; the cover is missing, but I suspect it is a copy of "Songs of Our Land"), p. 59, "The Newfoundland Exile" (1 text)
Roud #26347
RECORDINGS:
Gerald Campbell, "The Emigrant From Newfoundland" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
NOTES [113 words]: According to the ITMA/CapeShoreNL notes for this song, "This song may have been composed by JT Kinsella when he emigrated from Newfoundland to settle in Boston, Massachusetts." - BS
I seem to recall several other pieces tentatively linked to Kinsella, with none of the connections ever proved. He seems to have been an elusive figure.
James Murphy, compiler, Songs & Ballads of Terra Nova, Evening Telegram publishing, 1903 (available from the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 36 has another poem entitled "The Newfoundland Exile," credited to "Mr. F. Merchant, F.S.C." It is not the same song; it opens "I remember it now, it was early in spring time." - RBW
_Last updated in version 4.5_
File: JMC059

Newfoundland Sealing Song

DESCRIPTION: The Greenland and Travan arrive at Harbour Grace "Chock up to every hatch" with fur seals pelts. On March 10 Greenland heads north again for hooded seals and "when the day was done Twice seven thousand pelts was flagged." "So now we're home for Easter"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs)
Newfoundland's Maud Muller

DESCRIPTION: "Maud Muller on that summer day Spread the fish instead of hay" and waits for the government culler. When he arrives, she feeds him liquor until he passes most of the fish. But the trick doesn't work; when it comes to market, it is re-culled.

EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, 4th edition)

KEYWORDS: fishing drink trick commerce

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Roud #7303

NOTES [77 words]: This is a bit of a curiosity. The 1966 and later editions of Doyle have the piece "Newfoundland's Maud Muller," and the famous bawdy songbook "Immortalia" in 1927 has a "New Maud Muller." They are clearly related (the "Immortalia" version, which is sexually explicit, begins "Maud Muller on a Summer's day, Raked the meadows sweet with hay"), but on the face of it, neither is directly derived from the other, and I've never seen an "original Maud Muller." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: Doyl4073

Newmill

DESCRIPTION: "It was to Newmill, ayont the hills, Last term I did fee." The master is a miser who feeds and rewards his workers badly: "I chased the barley roun' the plate, And a' I got was three." The master tries to cheat him for his work; he departs happily.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: farming hardtimes food money trick

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #92, p. 2, "Newmill" (1 text)
- Greig/Duncan3 381, "Newhills" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
- Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 257-258, "Newmill" (1 text)
- ADDITIONAL: Roger deV. Renwick, _Recentering Anglo/American Folksong: Sea Crabs and Wicked Youths_, University Press of Mississippi, 2001, pp. 79-8-, "Newmill" (1 text)

Roud #5588

NOTES [36 words]: Greig/Duncan3 has a map on p. xxxv, of "places mentioned in songs in volume 3" showing the song number as well as place name; Newhills (381) is at coordinate (h1,v9) on that map [roughly 5 miles NW of Aberdeen]. - BS

Last updated in version 4.1

File: Ord257

Newsboy on the Train, The

DESCRIPTION: "It was a long, long time ago, When I from pain was free, A happy boy was I at school...." The singer worked as a newsboy on the train, but "fell beneath the train"; now he is a cripple on crutches.

AUTHOR: unknown
Newsboy, The

DESCRIPTION: "When I was a lad, I had a bad dad... Every dollar and cent for liquor was spent, Till poverty opened our door." The boy is forced to go out looking for work. When he returns, his mother is dead. He is forced to sell news in the streets

AUTHOR: unknown

Next Market Day, The

DESCRIPTION: Woman going to the market meets a man. He gives her three guineas to pay for the yarn, that he might play her a new tune. She goes home with the tune in her head. She vows to seek him "by land or by sea/Till he larns me that tune called the next market day"

AUTHOR: unknown

Next Monday Morning

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets a young girl who says she will be married next Sunday (or other day). He asks her age; she is (12/16/other). He tells her she's too young to marry. She replies that she will be married that day and describes the festivities. End of story.
Next Song on the Programme, The

DESCRIPTION: "The next song on the programme will be a dance Sang by a female gentleman Sitting on a corner of a round table, Picking carrots out of a sultana pie. Nancy Carter, she's the Tartar And I'm a tomato"
Ni Thaithneann Liom Fear a Bhionn Sasta

DESCRIPTION: Gaelic. "The poet deplores the idea of staying in a rut," either by staying "with old ways" or -- for a man -- by "tying himself down with his first love"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: foreign language courting nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 102, "Ni Thaithneann Liom Fear a Bhionn Sasta" (1 text)
NOTES [17 words]: The description follows the "English Summary" provided by OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin. - BS

File: OCC102

Niagara Falls

DESCRIPTION: "Don't you hear the water rolling?/Ho, ho, ho.../That we're riding off in trouble/Ho, ho, ho..." Later verses take the form, "Don't you go and tell our father (mother, sister)/.../That we're riding off in trouble..."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Cecil Sharp collection)
KEYWORDS: lumbering work disaster worksong
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 166, "Niagara Falls" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3640
NOTES [23 words]: Sharp notes, "The words of the song refer to men on a logging raft, which has got out of control and is drifting toward Niagara Falls." - PJS

File: ShAp2166

Nice Little Jenny from Ballinasloe

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets and falls in love with Jenny. He declares his love. She says she is "never inclined to disdain or to tease" but she already has a lover and he has a large dog and gun. The singer bows out. "For ever I'll mourn for beauteous Jane Curran"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1835 (From a Waterford chap-book, according to Sparling)
KEYWORDS: courting rejection beauty dog lover
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (3 citations):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 92, "Nice Little Jenny from Ballinasloe" (1 text, 1 tune)
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 103, "Nice Little Jenny From Ballinasloe" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #5305
RECORDINGS:
Elizabeth Cronin, "Nice Little Jenny From Ballinasloe" (on IRECronin01)
Nice Piece of Irish Pig's Head, A

DESCRIPTION: Irish pig's head is a better meal than Christmas goose, spring lamb, beef, mutton, turkey, or ham. It has been used to pay the rent. Frenchmen eat frog, Englishmen eat beef but give Pat pig's head cabbage and spuds, even as a spread for a wedding.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (recording, "Maurice")
KEYWORDS: food nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
Roud #12932
RECORDINGS:
Maurice, "A Nice Piece of Irish Pig's Head" (on Voice07)

NOTES [71 words]: This probably consists of making the best of necessity. Even before the potato blights of the 1840s, so many Catholics were on such small farms that they could raise nothing but potatoes. Anything else, including meat discarded by the landlord, would be a treat. Yes, the boar's head was sometimes called a delicacy (see "The Boar's Head Carol"), but that seems to be mostly because the rest of the boar came with it.... - RBW

File: RcNP0IPH

Nicht That Oor Mag Had Her Bairn, The

DESCRIPTION: "I'm just gettin back fae a wee social crack" at the pub when Jim runs in to tell the singer he should have been home, "For yer Maggie she's hae'in her bairn." He runs about, drunk and having accidents, before finally locating the midwife

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1986 (Catherer)
KEYWORDS: baby husband wife drink disaster money
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee 76, "The Nicht That Oor Mag Had Her Bairn" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #22223

File: Gath076

Nicky Tams

DESCRIPTION: Singer works as a plowman, always wearing his nicky tams. He courts "bonnie Annie," who admires his nicky tams. A wasp flies up his pants in church; he won't go again without them. He thinks about other jobs, but he'll never forget wearing his nicky tams

AUTHOR: G. S. Morris
EARLIEST DATE: 1930s (composed)
KEYWORDS: courting clothes farming work humorous bug worker
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland, England(North))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 107, "Nicky Tams" (1 text, 1 tune)
MacColl-PersonalChoice, p. 37, "Nicky Tams" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1875
RECORDINGS:
Jimmy McBeath, "Nicky Tams" (on Voice05)
Jimmy Scott, "Nickie Dams" (on Borders1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Berryfields of Blair" (tune)
SAME TUNE:
The Berryfields of Blaie (File: K339)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
A Pair of Nicky Tams

NOTES [41 words]: According to MacColl & Seeger, "Nicky tams," aka "yorks," "yaks," or "wull-tams," were leather thongs worn buckled just below the knee, to prevent the trouser legs from dragging in the mud. They were essential parts of a ploughman's attire. - PJS

Last updated in version 6.1

File: McCST107

---

Nid de Fauvettes, Le (The Warbler's Nest)

DESCRIPTION: French. I hold this nest of baby warblers. They cannot escape. Their father and mother try to rescue them and I return them. Teach them to fly here and, next year, to sleep in the oak and they will compose songs of youth.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Peacock)

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage lyric nonballad bird

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, pp. 791-792, "Le Nid de Fauvettes" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Corneius Robin, "Le Nid de Fauvettes" (on PeacockCDROM)

File: Pea791

---

Nievie Nievie Nick Nack

DESCRIPTION: "Nievie nievie nick nack, Whit hand will ye tak? Ta th right or tak the wrong, And I'll beguile ye if I can." Or "Guessing game. "Nievie nievie nick nack, Which hand will you take? The right or the wrong, Or the old blind man?"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1890 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty trick

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North),Scotland) New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 59, "(Navy navy nick nack)" (1 text); p. 122, "(Nivy nivy nick nack)" (1 text)

Roud #19144

File: SuSm059B

---

Nigger "Lasses": Three-Block Bronco Buster

DESCRIPTION: "He ca-su-ied wid me, most ruinous, Till ma haid jest popped de ceilin'." "Oh, dere an't no horse what can't be rode, Dat's what de white foks say! En dere ain't a man what can't be throwed...." The Black man suffers while riding a restive horse

AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)

KEYWORDS: Black(s) cowboy

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 106-108, "Nigger "Lasses": Three-Block Bronco Buster" (1 text)

NOTES [38 words]: I must confess that this is one of the few Thorp poems that makes no real sense to me. But maybe that's because I despise the language so much. Ordinarily Thorp was more modern than this. I regret having to index the thing. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3

File: ThLo106

---

Nigger and the Bee, The

DESCRIPTION: "Did you ever hear tellof the nigger and the bee?... How the bee stung the nigger and then he stung me." The Black(face) man tells the bee there are other places in the garden to visit. But the bee apparently keeps singing
AUTHOR: Charles H. Sheffer (source: sheet musing in the Library of Congress)
EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (sheet music)
KEYWORDS: bug injury
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 750, "The Nigger and the Bee" (1 text, 1 tune)
BROADSIDES:
Library of Congress/American Memory Collection, "The nigger and the bee song and dance"
(Hamilton S. Gordon, New York, 1888)
NOTES [32 words]: Schinhan suggests that this is a minstrel song, and he is almost certainly right;
I know of no other traditional versions. The BrownSchinhan version is only a subset of the original text. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: BrS5750

Nigger, Nigger, Never Die
DESCRIPTION: "Nigger, Nigger, never die, Big flat nose and a shiny eye, Mouth as big...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)
KEYWORDS: Black(s)
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5, p. 541, "Nigger, Nigger, Never Die" (1 fragment, partial tune)
NOTES [27 words]: The current text is all the text recorded in Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5. One may hope that the transcriber quit because it was so ugly. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: BrS5541

Niggers Am A'Risin'
DESCRIPTION: "Go tell Aunt Jane, go tell ever'body, Go tell aunt Jane the niggers am 'risin'." "Run get your shotgun, run get your rifle, Run tell the white folks the niggers am a'risin'." "Hitch up the team, load up the wagon, Run tell the sheriff the...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1994 (Abernethy)
KEYWORDS: rebellion Black(s)
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Abernethy-SinginTexas, p. 166, "Niggers Am A'Risin" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: Aber166

Night Before Larry Was Stretched, The
DESCRIPTION: "The night before Larry was stretched (hanged), the boys all paid him a visit."
They come to commiserate with Larry, the most gallant, sporting -- and rebellious -- of the lot. He dies gallantly, "grow[s] white" at the name of King William, and is buried
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1813 (broadside, Bodleian Johnson Ballads 377); the tune seems to have been in use by 1803 (implied by its use in Jemmy O'Brien's Minuet, published in _Paddy's Resource or the Harp of Erin_)
KEYWORDS: rebellion execution Ireland funeral
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1688-1702 - Reign of William III of Britain, whose victory at the Boyne (1690) solidified British rule over Ireland
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 95, "The Night Before Larry Was Stretched" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hodgart-FaberBookOfBallads, p. 208, "The Night before Larry was Stretched" (1 text)
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 52A, "The Night Before Larry Was Stretched" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, LARRYSTR*
ADDITIONAL: Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), pp. 289-292, "The Night Before Larry Was Stretched" (1 text)
Frank Harte _Songs of Dublin_, second edition, Ossian, 1993, pp. 38-40, "The Night Before Larry Was Stretched" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #V1212
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Johnson Ballads 377, "The Night Before Larry Was Stretch'd"[last 5 lines missing], J. Evans (London), 1780-1812; also Harding B 28(199), "Night Before Larry Was Stretch'd"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Skipper's Wedding" (tune)
cf. "Saint Patrick of Ireland, My Dear!" (tune)
cf. "Jemmy O'Brien's Minuet" (partial tune)
SAME TUNE:
Saint Patrick of Ireland, My Dear! (File: CPS028)
Cats' Eyes (broadside NLScotland, L.C.1269(170b), "Cats' Eyes," Poet's Box (Glasgow?), 1858)
Crafty Codger, or The Placehunter Out (Healy-MercierBookOfOldIrishStreetBalladsVol2, pp. 111-113)
To G. K. Chesterton (Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), p. 692)
Nichol the Newsmonger ("Come, Nichol, and gi'e us thy cracks) (The Ulverston New Poetical Miscellanay, p. 200)
NOTES [238 words]: Sparling, p. 514: "Hitherto the 'Night' has, through carelessness or ignorance, been printed incomplete, even by Graves, but the present version is unmutilated. It has been obtained by the careful collation of very many old chap-books and ballad-sheets." OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 52A is essentially the same as Sparling.
[Regarding the authorship:] _Handy Andy_ is a novel Samuel Lover published in 1842. Discussing authorship of street ballads, a character says, on page 468, "'The Night Before Larry Was Stretched' was done by a bishop they say." (The edition is in the _Irish Literature_ series published by PF Collier and Son, under _The Selected Writings of Samuel Lover_, Vol 6, _Handy Andy_ part 2). Sparling, p. 514: "Dublin street song, wrongly attributed to Dean Burrows; the only thing at all certain as to its origin is that he did not write it [supported by a reference to A.P. Graves].... The real writer was probably William Maher, best known as 'Hurlfoot Bill,' a worthy of the type he so well describes." - BS
Jim Dixon points out to me that the reference to Larry being stretched dates back to at least 1800; Robert Bisset, _Douglas: or, The Highlander_ (London, C. Chapple et al; available on Google Books), p. 196, quotes the lines
The night before Larry was stretched,
The boys they did pay him a visit.
However, the text preceding it tells of Larry having an accident, not being executed. - (JD, RBW)
Last updated in version 5.0
File: PBB095

Night Express, The
DESCRIPTION: "One day I met a little girl beyond the railroad bridge" and asks her about her life and what she is doing there. Her father is an engineer on the train. He asks if she worries about her father. The girl says that God will protect him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Locomotive Engineer's Monthly Journal)
Night Food

DESCRIPTION: The singer wants to know why "night food" is so expensive. One night a lady on her veranda invites him in for "warmth and food inside." They get into bed. She offers to "scratch your head." He is puzzled and says he wants to eat now. She drives him away.

AUTHOR: Everard Williams

EARLIEST DATE: 1955-1956 (Bedasse)

KEYWORDS: sex food humorous

FOUND IN: West Indies(Jamaica)

RECORDINGS:
Alerth Bedasse and Calypso Quartet, "Night Food" (1956, on Kalypso 78 rpm XX01, 2001, "Boogu Yagga Gal," Heritage CD HTCD45)

NOTES [499 words]: This is the story of an innocent man who has heard that "night food" is very expensive and wants to find out why. When a prostitute invites him up to her place saying "this night food is very warm and sweet" he comes up. He asks for a knife and fork and she asks "how can any human be so dark? The food is right here in the bed." When she sees that he really expects to eat "she jumped up and then turned on the light And say Half a man get out of me sight."

I have included this song because of the part it plays in the history of commercial Jamaican music. For the context see the discussion of "Hold 'im Joe." It seems mild enough when compared to traditional Jamaican songs like "Fan Mi Solja Man" and "Lemme Go, Melda Marcy" but the people that were offended didn't care about that. They were upper-class Jamaicans interested in having music produced for tourists that wouldn't shame them.

"The record became an overnight sensation, but not without controversy. Despite a significant amount of public support for these records [including "Night Food"], Tacius Golding, the Member of the House of Representatives for Western St. Catherine, introduced a motion into the House (prompted, in part, by a resolution made by the Mother's Union Council and presented at a meeting of the Synod of the Church of England) in early 1956 to ban these records. The motion was quickly supported by religious and political leaders and in April, Will Isaacs, the Minister of Trade and Industry ... called for a boycott of stores that carried 'certain brands of calypso records.' Despite what I'm told was robust interest in these rude 'hits,' growing Parliamentary pressure caused a momentary loss of public confidence in this local calypso music that made [Jamaican] producers and artists more careful about the kinds of records they produced" (Daniel T. Neely, "Calling All Singers, Musicians and Speechmakers: Mento Aesthetics and Jamaica's Early Recording Industry" in Caribbean Quarterly Vol. 53, No. 4 (December 2007 (made available online by JSTOR)), p. 11).

The writer, Everard Williams, responded to Isaacs's attack. He said he was sorry "if my song is causing trouble" but it was his first hit after first trying "very high-class calypsos" and then lowering his standards a little without making much headway. "I didn't make a hit until I wrote 'Night Food.'" He says he is a poor man just trying to make a living and "I thought I was giving real entertainment to the public -- because they accepted it -- but it seems that I was mistaken. But I am going to write different calypsos now and hope the public will think them very clean; but since it is my living I hope they will buy them as well as do the ones some say are not so good." (Mike Garnice,"Chin's Calypso Sextet, Alerth Bedasse, Everard Williams and Ivan Chin's Label" in Mento Music site at http://www.mentomusic.com/ (specifically http://www.mentomusic.com/chins.htm last revised July 8, 2014, accessed February 22, 2015). - BS

Last updated in version 3.7
Night Guard, The

DESCRIPTION: As cowboys relax around the fire, the night guard sings to the cattle and thinks of his sweetheart. At dawn, one of the steers attacks the guard's horse, which throws him; he is killed by the steer. The girl grieves and seems to grow old prematurely.

AUTHOR: Unknown, possibly Jack Webb

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Jack Webb)

KEYWORDS: grief love death work animal lover cowboy worker

FOUND IN: US

Roud #11522

RECORDINGS:
Jack Webb, "The Night Guard" (Victor V-40285, 1930; on AuthCowboys, MakeMe, WhenIWas2)

Night Herding Song

DESCRIPTION: The tired cowboy advises the herd, "O slow up, dogies, quit your roving around, You've wandered and trampled all over the ground." He tells how, whatever method he uses, he can never keep the cattle still. He again urges the cattle to relax.

AUTHOR: Harry Stephens

EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Lomax)

KEYWORDS: cowboy work animal request

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (10 citations):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, p. 108, "Night-Herding Song" (1 text)
Larkin-SingingCowboy, pp. 26-29, "Night Herding Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 236-237, "(No title)" (1 text)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 193, "Night Herding Song", (1 text, 1 tune)
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 82, "Night-Herding Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Saffel-CowboyPoetry, p. 214, "Night-Herding Song" (1 text)
Tinsley-HeWasSinginThisSong, pp. 16-19, "Night Herding Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Coleman/Bregman-SongsOfAmericanFolks, pp. 46-47, "The Night-Herding Song" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, NITEHERD*

ADDITIONAL: John I. White, _Git Along, Little Dogies: Songs and Songmakers of the American West_, 1975 (page references are to the 1989 University of Illinois Press edition), pp. 54-61, "Move Slow, Dogies, Move Slow" (1 text, 1 tune, plus various excerpts and a history of the song)

Roud #4444

RECORDINGS:
George Goebel, "Night Herding Song" (Conqueror 8157, 1933)
Harry Stephens, "The Night Herding Song" (AFS, 1940s; on LC28)
Marc Williams, "Night Herding Song" (Brunswick 497, c. 1931; on MakeMe)

Night I Stole Old Sammy Morgan's Gin, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer steals a jug of gin from Sammy (Sandy) Morgan, drinks it all, and hallucinates -- seven bears, an owl taking tickets, an ape in britches -- before passing out. When he awakes, "someone had stole my head/And left an elephant's there instead"

AUTHOR: C. E. (Hank) Snow

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1936 (composed)

KEYWORDS: theft drink animal humorous

FOUND IN: Can(West)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
DT, MORGNGIN

RECORDINGS:
Night Last Ook Fan Growing Late, Ae

DESCRIPTION: A man rides to the gate with a letter from the ploughman singer's student son. He is proud "I've a scholar i' my kin" but thinks the letter may mock him, or maybe not. In the end it doesn't matter.

AUTHOR: William Lillie (source: Greig/Duncan3)
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: father youth
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Greig/Duncan3 675, "Ae Night Last Ook Fan Growing Late" (1 text)
Roud #6099
File: GrD3675

Night of the Ragman's Ball, The

DESCRIPTION: The ragmen and women have a ball with fights, music, food and drink, and more fights. Many are named. "Black eyes they were in great demand, not to mention split heads at all, So anyone wants to commit suicide let them come to the Ragman's Ball"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1913 (OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads)
KEYWORDS: fight dancing drink food music party humorous moniker
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
* OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 62, "The Night of the Ragman's Ball" (1 text, 1 tune)
* ADDITIONAL: Frank Harte _Songs of Dublin_, second edition, Ossian, 1993, pp. 42-45, "The Ragman's Ball" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3006
File: OLoc062

Night of the Wake, The

DESCRIPTION: The night of the wake people marched in the road for prayer. Buller pulled a razor. The people scattered: some pulled daggers and others ran. The singer says "I was going down de road And Buller bar me on the road ... Buller is a stabber"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (WITrinidadVillage01)
KEYWORDS: violence death
FOUND IN: West Indies(Trinidad)
RECORDINGS:
* Dixon [Ebenezer] Philip, "De Night a de Wake" (on WITrinidadVillage01)
File: RcDPNotW

Night Visiting Song

DESCRIPTION: Young man comes visiting his love's window, bidding her admit him. She does, and a good time is had by all until daybreak, when they part at the crowing of the cock

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: sex nightvisit chickens
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (1 citation):
DT, NITEVIST
RECORDINGS:
Norman Kennedy, "Night Visiting Song" (on BirdBush2)
Louis Killen, "The Cock" (on BirdBush2)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
 cf. "The Grey Cock" (motif)
NOTES [40 words]: Lloyd notes that night-visiting and bundling were common customs in country villages until the rise of Puritanism, and that bundling was still remembered in the Orkneys. The mention of the cock’s crowing provides a link to "The Grey Cock." - PJS File: DTnitevi

Night-Gown of Blue
DESCRIPTION: "In my sweet little night-gown of blue, On the first night that I slept with you, I was both shy and scared... And you played peekaboo with my ribbons of blue... You said you adored it, but... you tore it. My sweet little night-gown of blue"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)
KEYWORDS: sex clothes
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, p. 134, "Night-Gown of Blue" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #10425
CROSS-REFERENCES:
 cf. "Alice Blue Gown" (tune)
 cf. "My Sweet Little Air Force Blue Suit" (tune)
File: Hopk134A

Nightcap, The
DESCRIPTION: Phoebus, after a tiring ride, unhitches his horses for the night and asks Thetis for something worthwhile to drink. She gives him a cruiskeen of poteen and he goes to sleep happily ignoring the dampness of his bed.
AUTHOR: Thomas Hamblin Porter (source: Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)
EARLIEST DATE: c.1820 (written in 1817 and printed in "a Dublin newspaper or magazine," according to Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)
KEYWORDS: drink gods horse
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland, pp. 92-94, "The Nightcap" (1 text)
NOTES [40 words]: Phoebus (Apollo), among his other tasks, drove the sun. The reference to Thetis is peculiar; as far as I know, she had nothing to do with Apollo. I suspect the reference is rather to Themis, who helped to care for Apollo in his youth. - RBW
File: CrPS092

Nightingale (IV), The (As I walked out one May morning my fortune for to seek) DESCRIPTION: "As I walked out one May morning my fortune for to seek, It's who should I find but a fair pretty maid." The singer describes her beauty and asks to walk with her. He plays her a tune.
She asks when they will be married. He rejoices in his quick courtship
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1855 (Journal of the Lydia)
KEYWORDS: love music marriage floatingverses beauty
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 233-234, "The Nightingale" (1 text, 2 tunes)
Roud #27545
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "One Morning in May (To Hear the Nightingale Sing) [Laws P14]" (plot)
NOTES [130 words]: Huntington tentatively lists this as a version of "One Morning in May (To Hear the Nightingale Sing) [Laws P14]," but admits that it is "a strange and very different version." It is true that they share many plot elements. But this one has no nightingale, and it's not clear that the singer is a soldier or sailor (there is a confused final verse mentioning fife and drum, but as it stands it appears to defy the military, and it looks like a floater anyway -- it doesn't fit the rest of the song). The overall impression of this piece isn't much like the more popular ballad. Roud splits them, and I incline to agree, and so this has its own entry -- although, with no known tune (Huntington's are both from other sources), it's not likely that anyone will be singing this one. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.2
File: HGam233

Night MGale in the East, The

DESCRIPTION: "On a dark lonely night on the Crimea's dark shore, There had been bloodshed and strife on the morning before." "Miss Nightingale" comforts the wounded and dying. "One of heaven's best gifts is Miss Nightingale."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1860 (Bodleian broadsides Harding B 11(2707) and Harding B 11(2708))

KEYWORDS: war injury nonballad

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1853-1856 - Crimean War (Britain and France actively at war with Russia 1854-1855)
Nov 5, 1854 - Battle of Inkerman clears the way for the siege of Sevastopol (the city fell in the fall of 1855)

FOUND IN: Britain

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Henderson-VictorianStreetBallads, p. 152, "Night MGale in the East" (1 text)
Roud #2655

BROADSIDES:
also Harding B 11(2708) [an issue nearly identical to the preceding; they may be part of the same run with a stop-press correction undertaken partway through the run]; Firth c.17(208), "The Night MGale in the East," W. S. Fortey, London, 1858-1885; Firth c.14(70), H. Such, London, 1863-1885

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Cottage and Water Mill" (tune, according to Bodleian broadside Harding B 11(2708))

NOTES [166 words]: Florence Nightingale (1820-1910) was one of the few genuine heroes of the Crimean War; in 1854, she took a company of nurses to the Crimea, and her efforts beginning at the Battle of Inkerman at least slightly reduced the death toll (the Crimean War saw many new technologies come into play, and was fought by generals who did not understand them; the result was high casualty totals, often involving severe wounds -- and the British and French, fighting at the end of a long supply line, had too few surgeons, too few supplies, and a dreadful lack of camp sanitation. Almost any wound could be a death sentence in such conditions. Florence Nightingale couldn't cure all the problems, but she at least showed what might be possible if someone tired). This song seems to have been quite popular with the broadside publishers; it came out soon after the war. There seems to be only one reference to it in tradition, and that dubious. When in doubt, we index -- but my doubts are pretty strong. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: BdNiItEa

Night MGale, The [Laws M37]

DESCRIPTION: A rich girl's parents force her poorer lover to sea aboard the Nightingale. When the ship sinks in a gale, the boy's ghost appears to the girl and accuses her parents of leaving his body to rot in the Bay of Biscay

AUTHOR: unknown
Nil Mo Shlainte Ar Fonamh

DESCRIPTION: Gaelic. The singer is convinced by clergy to give up drink. He relapses and "finishes with a blast against the clergy."

AUTHOR: Pead Bui O Loinse (source: OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)

EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage drink clergy

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):

OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 104, "Nil Mo Shlainte Ar Fonamh" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:

Elizabeth Cronin, "Nil mo shlainte ar fonamh" (on IRECronin01)

NOTES [28 words]: The description follows the "English Summary" provided by OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin and Elizabeth Cronin's introduction to the song on her recording. - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: OCC104

Nil Se Na La

DESCRIPTION: Gaelic. The singer is prompted to stop drinking, get dressed and go home, or not. He tells all the farming tasks he is avoiding by drinking. Getting dressed would be no easy task since "his socks are in the ale-house and his shoes in the pub."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage farming drink humorous animal dog sheep clothes

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):

OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 105, "Nil Se Na La" (4 texts, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:

Elizabeth Cronin, "Nil Se Na La" (on IRECronin01)

NOTES [72 words]: The description follows the "English Summary" provided by OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin. Joyce translates the chorus as "It is day, it is day, it is day -- in the early morning" answered by "Arrah, not at all my dear friend, it is only the light of the moon shining on high!" (P.W. Joyce, Ancient Irish Music (Dublin:McGlashan and Gill, 1873 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")) #57, pp. 57-58, "Thaunlaw. It Is Day"). - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: OCC105
Nimrod's Song, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all ye friends of Newfoundland Who have a mind to roam O'er the wild and stormy ocean...." The crew sails from Newfoundland to the ice. They have great trouble and sorrow. The crew are listed. The singer hopes Captain Barbour will find a better ship

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Murphy, Songs Sung by Old Time Sealers of Many Years Ago, according to Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff)

KEYWORDS: hunting ship hardtimes moniker

FOUND IN:
References (2 citations):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, pp. 74-75, "The Nimrod's Song" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, editor, _Songs Sung by Old-Time Sealers of Many Years Ago_, James Murphy Publishing, 1925 (PDF available from Memorial University of Newfoundland website), p. 1, "The Nimrod's Song" (1 text)

Roud #V44825

NOTES [1611 words]: Not related to "The Wreck of the Nimrod," which obviously is about a shipwreck; this is a song about a whaling ship that later became a sealer and then, later still, an Antarctic explorer. Nimrod was a good name for such a ship; Nimrod was "a mighty hunter before the Lord" (Genesis 10:9).

Despite the aspersions cast in this song, the Nimrod was by no means a failure as a sealer; Chafe, p. 36, reports that her 1871 trip, bringing in 28,087 seals, resulted in a record payout to the men. (The total seals she brought in were not many more than other ships that year, and her total was eclipsed by 1873 anyway -- Chafe, pp. 49-50, has the statistics -- but because she had a small crew, the payout per man was very high.) The real problem is, what had been a good ship in the 1870s was not necessarily a good ship in the 1900s.... And the notes in Murphy say that the song refers to her last trip to the ice, in 1907. Which fits with the record in Chafe, p. 88; Baxter Barbour commanded the Nimrod 1905-1907, without ever taking more than 8099 seals; in 1907, he took a disastrous 2508 "sculps" -- the fifth-lowest total in the ship's long history, based on Chafe, p. 102, and the lowest she ever collected apart from a spell of extremely bad luck in 1883-1887 under, I suspect, two bad captains (the second one was never given another command, and the first one had only a slightly longer career).

According to Paine, p. 359, the Nimrod was built in Dundee in 1865. She was built under the personal supervision of the well-known sealer Captain Edward White (Ryan/Drake, p. 70, which also has a picture of him); he also commanded her until 1870, when he transferred to the Neptune. The Nimrod was purchased by the sealing company Job Brothers -- one of Newfoundland's leading sealing firms -- in 1867 (Busch, p. 66; O'Neill, p. 963), making her one of the first dozen or so steamers to be involved in sealing; the very first time a sealer used steam had been just five years earlier. After forty years of that, although she had been re-engined in 1889 (Riffenburgh, p. 122), she was old enough that Job Brothers sold her.

Her last sealing skipper Baxter Barbour was a well-known name. The Barbours were something of a dynasty of Newfoundland sealer captains -- George Barbour was the captain mentioned in many "Greenland Disaster" songs, e.g., and Alpheus Barber is mentioned in "The Sealer's Song (II)," Baxter Barbour was not one of the more famous ones, but in "Captains and Ships" he is said to command the Labrador, and earlier to have commanded the Louise -- plus he was captain of the Diana in 1913-1914 (for the Diana see "Arrival of 'Aurora,' 'Diana,' 'Virginia Lake,' and 'Vanguard,' Loaded") and of the Kite in 1908 (Feltham, p. 83; for the Kite, see "The Kite Abandoned in White Bay") -- meaning that the song's wish that he get a better ship came true.

An online reference mentions a merchant Master, Baxter Barbour, who was lost with the vanished S. S. Dunelm (sailing from Sydney, Cape Breton to Manchester, England) on October 17, 1915 at the age of 38. (Feltham, p. 56, agrees that Barbour was lost on the Dunelm but lists her as the ship's captain.) A man who was 38 in late 1915 would have been 29 or 30 at the time of the Nimrod's last sealing trip -- and members of the great sealing families often were given charge of sealers while in their twenties, before they were fully qualified to be captains and navigators (see, for example, the case of Westbury Kean on p. 18 of Brown or in "The Newfoundland Disaster (I)"). Such a "captain," since he could not navigate, would have to serve as a Master on a sea voyage. Baxter Barbour was also said to have been a scamp (Feltham, p. 56); there was even a rumor that, after his loss at sea on the Dunelm, he turned up as a translator on the German submarine that sank the Erik (Feltham, pp. 56-57).

The Nimrod was Baxter Barbour's first command; he commanded her in 1905-1907. None of those years was particularly good (Barbour, in fact, never took more than 8099 seals in a season, and in 1911, he lost the Harlaw, but 1907 was particularly bad -- as mentioned above, just 2508 seals (Chafe, p. 88). And she hadn't taken as many as many as ten thousand seals in any year since 1901. Perhaps little wonder that the owners were happy to get rid of her. So I think we can safely accept the date of 1907 as the date of this song, since that was her last and worst year under Barbour.

What happened to the Nimrod after her 1907 failure made her famous. Ernest Shackleton, who had gotten into a conflict with his ex-superior Robert Scott, wanted to go back to the Antarctic, and he needed a ship FAST (Riffenburgh, p. 117). He had a different vessel in mind -- but his fundraising hadn't been very successful; he couldn't afford her. Unable to find an affordable vessel in Europe, he bought the Nimrod, sight unseen, for 5000 pounds -- less than half the price of the Bjorn, the vessel he had wanted (Riffenburgh, p. 122). Presumably he had heard of how well Newfoundland sealing vessels handled in the ice, and thought that the old clunker would live up to the reports. "We are led to believe that the explorer's heart sank when he first set his eyes on the little sealer in the Thames. Her decks were stinking and still covered with the remains of seal blood and blubber from the recent hunt. Her masts were rotten and her sails were in such poor condition that they were useless" (O'Neill, p. 963).

"The Nimrod was only half the size of the Norwegian ship and had a maximum speed of barely six knots under steam. Shackleton did not think much of her at first, recalling in Heart of the Antarctic, 'I must confess I was disappointed when I first examined the little ship, to which I was about to commit the hopes and aspirations of many years. She was very dilapidated and smelled strongly of seal-oil... my first impression hardly did justice to the plucky old ship.' Later, he described her as 'one of the finest I have known,' and confided in a letter that the Nimrod was a far stronger ship constructionally than his famous Endurance of 1914" (Watson, p. 175). (Which is probably true; she may have had a lousy engine, but they made those old whalers tough).

"On 15 June Nimrod arrived in the Thames, and Shackleton was horrified. The new ship (which formally belonged to sponsor William Beardmore, not Shackleton) appeared even smaller than her measurements had made her sound, she was extremely dilapidated, her masts were rotten, and from top to bottom she was filthy and stank of the seal oil [actually fat that was processed into oil on shore] that had for decades filled her holds" (Riffenburgh, p. 123). That, frankly, sounds typical of a Newfoundland sealing steamer; they never got decent maintenance, and they all stank because of the seal blubber and flesh. Shackleton probably should have known better, but he was stuck, and so his crews went to work. She wasn't just repaired; she was rebuilt -- converted from a schooner to a barquentine, plus she got new engines. Some reports say they never did get the stink out of her, which I would believe, although I suspect that the real problem came as they entered equatorial regions; a third of a century later, the sealer Eagle was almost uninhabitable when the tropical heat caused the blubber to come out of her woodwork (Squires, p. 30 and elsewhere). Nimrod's departure for the Antarctic was delayed a few days so that she could take part in the 1906 Cowles Regatta, where King Edward VII, Queen Alexandra, and other royals could visit her and give the company a flag that might perhaps go to the South Pole -- and the royal company found the ship pungent and hard to get around (Larson, pp. 120-121).

I find myself wondering if, after all that work was done, Shackleton had actually saved money by using her. Certainly she was too small; he filled her till she was much too full, and still couldn't carry all that he needed. But he was committed by then.

So Shackleton took her south, on an expedition that set a new "Farthest South" record but did not reach the South Pole. She returned to England in 1909 (after doing some exploring that updated the charts of the southern seas; Riffenburgh, pp. 284-285; that may well have been more scientifically useful than Shackleton's polar trip). Shackleton sold her a year later to finance future expeditions (Paine, p. 359), including the ill-fated Endurance expedition of 1914. In 1911, she went on a Siberia expedition, then served in Britain as a coastal collier in World War I. On January 30, 1919, she was wrecked near Caister/Yarmouth; there were only two survivors (Tarver, p. 15; according to Riffenburgh, this was out of thirteen in the crew; Winsor, p. 57, calls the spot she went aground the "Barber Sand").

It's perhaps a little ironic that one of the commanders of the Nimrod when she was a sealer was Robert A. Bartlett (her skipper in 1903-1904; Chafe, p. 87), memorialized in "Captain Bob Bartlett." Bartlett became famous for his exploits in the arctic, but he was not part of the Nimrod's trips to the southern ice.

Riffenburgh's is the only book I could find that is explicitly about the Nimrod expedition. But it won't be much use to students of this song; it's much more about Shackleton than his ship. He does reproduce Shackleton's sketch plan of the ship on p. 124; this is of course as she was after her rebuilding.
There is a (very poor) photo of the Nimrod on p. 57 of Winsor and a better one on p. 943 of O'Neill, showing her in St. John's harbour. P. 71 has a photo of Baxter Barbour. - RBW

Bibliography

- Feltham: John Feltham, Sealing Steamers, Harry Cuff Publications, 1995
- Larson: Edward J. Larson, To the Edges of the Earth: 1909, the Race for the Three Poles, and the Climax of the Age of Exploration, William Morrow, 2018
- Riffenburgh: Beau Riffenburgh, Shackleton's Forgotten Expedition: The Voyage of the Nimrod, Bloomsbury, 2005

Last updated in version 5.2
File: RySm074

Nine Bonnie Laddies

DESCRIPTION: "My jolly auld mither rejoices tae see Nine bonnie laddies a-courtin at me There's tailors and sailors and sodgers a' three But it's the bonny mason laddie that I'm gaun wi"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast)
KEYWORDS: courting
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #101, p. 2, ("My jolly auld mither rejoices tae see") (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan4 844, "Nine Bonnie Laddies" (1 fragment)
Roud #6222
NOTES [20 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan4 fragment. - BS Related, perhaps, to "The Bonnie Mason Laddie (I)")? - RBW

Last updated in version 2.6
File: GrD4844

Nine Hundred Miles

DESCRIPTION: "I'm a walking down the track, I've got tears in my eyes, Trying to read a letter from my home. If that train runs me right I'll be home tomorrow night." The singer will pawn anything or do whatever is needed to get home (to his sweetheart)

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (JAFL)
Nine Miles from Gundagai (The Dog Sat in the Tuckerbox)

DESCRIPTION: The singer tells of his time as a bullock driver. His worst experience happened nine miles from Gundagai, in a cold storm, with the team bogged, the fire out, (the crew fighting). As a final insult, the dog sat (or "shat") in the tuckerbox

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1954 (Wannan)
KEYWORDS: Australia hardtimes dog
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 95-96, "Nine Miles from Gundagai" (1 text with no title given)
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, p. 184, "Nine Miles from Gundagai" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ward-PenguinBookOfAustralianBallads, p. 132, "Five Miles from Gundagai" (1 text)
DT, GUNDAGRD
NOTES [331 words]: Gundagai was a town of no particular account in itself. Its position at the midpoint of the Sydney-Melbourne road has, however, made it the setting for many folk songs. A statue in Gundagai commemorates a dog sitting forlornly on a tuckerbox (food box), guarding it for its master. According to Davey/Seal p. 89, it was made by a local sculptor, Frank Rusconi, and unveiled by Joseph Lyons, the Prime Minister of Australia, in 1932.

John Greenway, however, points out the falseness of this picture. He notes that bullock drivers and swagmen "kept dogs only to have something to kick."

He also notes, delicately, "That's what this song is about: a bullock driver who had the ultimate in bad luck -- not only did his wagon axle break and the team get bogged in the mud and his matches get soaked in the rain, but his dog capped the climax by s--itting (there is an aspirate missing) IN -- not ON -- the tucker box!"

Similarly Beatty, p. 302. Wannan, p. 115 footnote amplifies: "'Sat' is obviously a euphemism. See the volume of verses, Nine Miles from Gundagai, by Jack Moses."

Manifold, p. 97, declares, "The other favorite among bullocky songs is the one about the dog that misbehaved in the tucker-box nine miles from Gundagai. It is a great pity that Jack Moses and the composer O'Hagan should have conspired to put out a euphemistic version which robs the verse of its point." Manifold then goes on to quote a version he collected in 97 which uses, shall we say, the "sh" word (which Manifold was still required to censor slightly).

Davey/Seal, although they state on pp. 199-200 that this interpretation is correct, on pp. 89-90 claim that the "Dog Sat On" version (in which the dog is loyal) is the most popular, and in the entry on dogs (p. 90) claim that this is the most famous dog in all of Australian folklore. My guess is that the original bush version has the dog make the mess, but when city folks, who keep their dogs as pets, heard the story, they prettied it up. - RBW

Bibliography

- Davey/Seal: Gwenda Beed Davey and Graham Seal, A Guide to Australian Folklore, Kangaroo Press, 2003

Last updated in version 5.2
File: MA095

Nine Miles to the Junction

DESCRIPTION: "The troops from Rhode Island were posted along On the road from Anapolis Station." The 71st Regiment, hungry and tired, passes them and is told it is nine miles to the junction. After six hours, they reach their destination; they will march on if needed

EARLIEST DATE: 1894 (Williams)

KEYWORDS: soldier travel Civil war

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 21, 1861 - First battle of Bull Run/Manasses fought between the Union army of McDowell and the Confederates under Johnston and Beauregard. (There was a second Bull Run battle a year later.)

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Silber-CivilWarFull, pp. 38-40, "Nine Miles to the Junction" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Alfred M. Williams, _Studies in Folk-Song and Popular Poetry_, Houghton Mifflin, 1894, pp. 53-54, "Only Nine Miles to the Junction" (1 text, probably an excerpt)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of Bull Run" [Laws A9] (subject: the battle of Bull Run) and notes and references
NOTES [417 words]: Silber confesses to being unable to determine what event is involved here, but the references to the 71st regiment, Rhode Islanders, "the Junction," and Governor Sprague add up to a pretty clear picture. The 71st is, as Silber suggests, the 71st New York Militia (a three-month regiment, not to be confused with the later 71st New York regiment). This regiment, along with the 2nd New Hampshire, the 1st Rhode Island, and the 2nd Rhode Island, formed Col. Ambrose Burnside's brigade of Colonel David Hunter's division of Irvin McDowell's army that fought at First Bull Run (McDonald, p. 193).

The chronology here is somewhat confusing. Is this song an account of the regiment's march to Bull Run, or of its arrival in McDowell's army? Either is possible. The mention of Annapolis in the song is somewhat confused, but not inaccurate; the 71st came down from New York by boat, and got off the transports at Annapolis on their way to join McDowell's army (NYReport, vol. I, p. 113). And the regiment did trail the Rhode Islanders for part of the march to Bull Run. What's more, this march is described as unusually long and hot. The regiment then marched to a place the officers called "Annapolis Junction" (NYReport, vol. I, pp. 113-114).

On the other hand, the mention of Governor Sprague is perhaps an argument that the song is about the actual Bull Run campaign, not the arrival in Maryland. "The Junction," therefore, might be Manasses Junction, the town for which the Confederates named the battle. The distances fit fairly well, too. Hunter's division was the lead element of McDowell's turning movement on the Confederate left, which involved a 14 mile flanking march (Boatner, p. 100, plus map). Thus, by the time the Federals were "nine miles [from] the junction," they would have marched quite a distance from their camp.

Governor William Sprague of Rhode Island (1830-1915) was instrumental in raising the Rhode Island troops, and came with them to Washington. He then served as an aid to Colonel Burnside at Bull Run (HTIECivilWar, p. 709). Thus it is perfectly reasonable to see him telling the troops which way to go at a crossroads. He in fact had been over the ground, having participated in a preliminary reconnaissance before the battle (McDonald, p. 34).

The 71st New York was actually lucky; it suffered only 10 killed, 40 wounded, and 12 missing at Bull Run; the other three regiments all suffered more, and the casualties included two of the other three regimental commanders. - RBW

Bibliography

- Boatner: Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover)
- McDonald, JoAnna M. McDonald, We Shall Meet Again: The First Battle of Manassas (Bull Run) July 18-21, 1861, Oxford, 1999
- NYReport: (no author listed), State of New York Annual Report of the Adjutant General 1868, 3 volumes, Charles van Benthuysen & Sons, 1868

Last updated in version 5.2
File: SCWF038

Nine Times a Night

DESCRIPTION: A handsome sailor named "Nine Times a Night" arrives in London after a voyage and is seen by a "handsome rich widow." She entices him to marry her. He "trimmed her sails" five times; she wonders why he can't manage the nine times of his name

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1982 (the broadsides are almost certainly Victorian if not earlier)

KEYWORDS: sex bawdy marriage sailor humorous

FOUND IN: Britain

REFERENCES (1 citation):

DT, NINETIME
Roud #18411

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, Harding B 11(555), "9 times a night," unknown, n.d; also Harding B 17(219a), "9 times a night," unknown, n.d.
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Miller's Daughter (II)" (theme: male sexual ability or lack thereof)

NOTES [1019 words]: Field collections of this seem to be relatively few; I might have suspected A. L. Lloyd of writing it had it not been for the broadsides. It's interesting to note that these generally don't admit of a printer -- perhaps to avoid prosecution?

WARNING: Clinical biology ahead. Sort of graphic, and also one of the areas of science some religions find offensive.

There are sound reasons of evolutionary biology why human males cannot do it "nine times a night." It has to do with something called "sperm competition" -- or, rather, the human lack of same. You can read about this in such places as Dawkins, pp. 203-211, and (with a more gruesome side quest into infanticide among monkeys) in Ridley, pp. 213-226.

Dawkins, p. 210, has an interesting little graph, of the ratio of body mass to testes mass in primates -- in effect, of how much sperm each species produces. The interesting thing about this ratio is that the species above average all engage in extremely high levels of sexual activity. Ridley's numbers:
"a female gorilla will mate about ten times for every baby that is born [whereas] a female chimp will mate five hundred to a thousand times" (p. 217).

This correlates closely with behavior. Male gorillas, which have small testes and low sperm production, keep harems (if they're lucky) of six or so females. These harems are stable, at least in the short run; the female will have no other mate while part of one. So the male doesn't have to have much sperm; if the female get pregnant, he knows he's the father.

It's very different in chimpanzees. Male chimps have been observed to murder the offspring of a female who has not mated with them. The only way for the female to prevent this is to mate with as many male chimps as possible, so that all the males might be the father of her child. So the males inevitably have evolved to produce as much sperm as possible in order to try to out-reproduce everyone else. Fatherhood, for chimps, is partly a matter of luck -- but partly a matter of being able to really take advantage of opportunity when it's offered.

This has been shown in many other species. Gibbons are monogamous and have small testes. Monkeys have all sorts of sexual patterns, with sperm production correlating with the number of partners.

Humans -- well, on the graph they are on the low end of the scale. Not as low as gorillas, but definitely among the species that don't engage significantly in sperm competition. That doesn't necessarily mean that we are meant to be monogamous, but it "does* imply fixed pair bonds -- if not lifelong monogamy, then at least something like (polygamous) marriage or serial marriage: Any male "expects" to have near-exclusive access to a female at the time she conceives. So there is no advantage to a male in doing it "nine times a night"; if the first one or two don't do it, the woman probably is at the wrong time of her cycle to conceive.

The result of all this: "while women are physiologically able to return to a state of sexual arousal and even to achieve orgasm again [in a short time], men experience what is called a postejaculatory refractory period. This may last several minutes [for the very lucky guys!], hours, or even days. During this time, men cannot experience another orgasm and have difficulty achieving and maintaining an erection" (Gray/Garcia, p. 201).

The conclusion is somewhat ironic: If women want men able to do it "nine times a night," they have to share their favors around a lot more. And, in that case, they wouldn't "need" someone capable of "nine times a night"; they just need the ability to attract lots of men.

And there is a down side: Chimps, because they engage so heavily in sperm competition, average only seven seconds from the beginning of contact to ejaculation! (Roach, p. 285). Allowing them four times as long to get out after that, "nine times a night," for a chimp, still totals only five minutes and fifteen seconds.

And, yes, I know full well I'm spoiling the song.... One thing that bears thinking about is that the human reproductive system seems to be changing rapidly. At least, Jones, p. 104, reports that a tenth of human sperm carry chromosome errors, and fully a third are abnormal in this or some other way. Such extreme rates of defect apparently have not been found in other species; chimpanzee sperm, for instance, seem to be fine. This clearly implies some sort of change is happening. Maybe more and more women are demanding "nine times a night," and the testes are struggling to keep up as best they can....

As for the actual statistics, Judson, p. 31, notes that the typical human male stores sperm equivalent to one and a half ejaculations. So if Jack really did manage five times in one night, he had three times the average male capacity. Although Jones, p. 103, notes the curious fact that, when spouses are reunited after a relatively long separation, the male's output doubles (he is not clear on whether this is semen or sperm). On p. 105, Jones adds that a man who ejaculates six times in the course of 24 hours is "firing blanks" by the end -- i.e. although he may still be producing seminal fluid, of actual sperm there are almost none. Interestingly, being a sailor helps, and for reasons not related to just having a lot of biological pressure to work off. Sailors generally ate a lot of fish, and fish is rich in zinc -- and zinc is important to the production of seminal fluid, according to Emsley, pp. 48, 69. A sailor might also have had higher exposure to other chemicals which might enhance sexual performance, but in this regard, much depends on where he actually sailed. Finally, in the days of sail, sailors were unlikely to bathe, especially in hot water -- regular baths in hot water can dramatically reduce sperm production (Jones, p. 120). And they generally dressed in loose clothing, and would not have encountered much extreme heat at sea. Heat depresses sperm production; fertility is lower in summer even in fairly cool climates (Jones, pp. 213-214). Thus a sailor, for many reasons, is likely to be more sexually effective than a landsman. - RBW

Bibliography

- Judson: Olivia Judson, Dr. Tatiana's Sex Advice to All Creation, 2002 (I use the 2003 Owl Books edition)

Last updated in version 4.2

Nine-Thirteen Men, The

DESCRIPTION: "A famous oldtime racing crew... rowed the old 'Blue Peter' in the time of nine-thirteen." They set a record in the Regatta Day race on Quidi Vidi Lake. The singer wishes "those men of nine-thirteen," who are listed, will "ferry souls where Jordan rolls"

AUTHOR: "L.E.F. English, O.B.E."

EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing)

KEYWORDS: racing sports moniker

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, pp. 116-117, "The Nine-Thirteen Men" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [39 words]: Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing: "The 'BLUE PETER' made her record 'voyage' across Quidi Vidi Lake (pond), St John's, during the summer Regatta of 1901; her time of 9 minutes 13 4/5 seconds has never been surpassed, or even equalled." - BS

File: Blon116

Ninety and Nine, The

DESCRIPTION: "There were ninety and nine that safely lay In the shelter of a fold, But one went out on the hills astray." It is asked, are not 99 enough? "But the shepherd made answer...I go to the desert to find my sheep." He faces great trials in finding the sheep

AUTHOR: Words: E. C. Clephane / Music: Ira D. Sankey

EARLIEST DATE: 1876 (sheet music)

KEYWORDS: religious sheep separation reunion

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

ADDITIONAL: _Sing Out_ magazine, Volume 24, #2 (1975), p, 15, "Ninety and Nine" (1 text, 1 tune, the Frank Proffitt version)

Roud #13145

NOTES [146 words]: The story of the shepherd leaving 99 sheep to find one is found in Matthew 18:12-13, Luke 15:4-6 (and also is saying #107 in the apocryphal Gospel of Thomas). On the other hand, it feels a lot like John 10, in which Jesus is the Good Shepherd (and in 10:9 Jesus is the gate of the sheep).

The feeling of the song sort of mixes the two gospel versions. In Matthew, the sheep "wanders" (King James version "goes astray"); in Luke, the sheep is lost. In Matthew, the shepherd seeks the sheep on the mountains (somewhat similar to the song); in Luke the sheep is in the wilderness (=desert). There may be a hint of Mark 6:31ff., where the disciples go by ship to a "desert place" (to be understood "deserted place").

Proffitt's version mentions "gates of gold." There is no such quote in the Bible. In Rev. 21:21, the heavenly Jerusalem has gates of pearl and streets of gold. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: S0v24n2a

Ninety-Eight

DESCRIPTION: "Ho! cease our mourning." The victories and defeats of 1798 are recalled. "Let the strife renew ... No longer dally, wake up and rally... What if defeated? Death comes -- then greet it -- Why all must meet it, aye, soon or late."

AUTHOR: "Ned of the Hill" (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
EARLIEST DATE: 1898 (according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
KEYWORDS: battle rebellion death nonballad patriotic
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 74, "Ninety-Eight" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Cappa Hill" (tune)
cf. "Anach Cuain" (tune)
NOTES [69 words]: The "Ned of the Hill" is of course not Edmond O'Ryan, the hero of the song of that name, who died a century before 1798.

The timing of this call for rebellion is strange; by 1898, Irish nationalism had gone relatively quiet, and Gladstone had made his first attempts to pass Home Rule (though they had failed and cost the Liberals control of the British parliament). But, of course, there were always die-hards. - RBW

File: Moyl074

Ninety-Nine Bottles of Beer

DESCRIPTION: Need I really tell you? "Ninety-nine bottles of beer on the wall, Ninety-nine bottles of beer, Take one down and pass it around, Ninety-eight bottles of beer...." And so on, ad nauseum, drunkenness, or exhaustion

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: drink nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MW,So)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Randolph 456, "Ninety-Nine Blue Bottles" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 190, "Ninety-Nine Blue Bottles" (1 text)
Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, p. 17, "Forty-nine Bottles" (1 text, 1 tune)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Gloria Dickens, "Childhood Songs from North Carolina" Vol. XXI, No. 1 (Apr 1973), p. 7, "(There are ten green bottles a-staining on the wall)"; "(A hundred bottles of beer on the wall)" (2 texts)

DT, BOT99*

Roud #7603
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Eight Little Cylinders" (counting)
cf. "Ten Little Injuns" (counting)
NOTES [73 words]: Randolph's and Brown's texts, obviously, refers to "blue bottles" rather than "bottles of beer," and one of the NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal texts is about green bottles; might this be an attempt to clean up the song for a temperate audience?

I will admit amazement that neither Randolph nor Brown seems to know this in its common form -- but then, they probably were born in the days before school buses took students on field trips. -
Ninety-Nine Years (I)

DESCRIPTION: Singer, while gambling, thinks about how the woman he loves ran away with another man. He kills him (or her), is arrested and imprisoned. He has served forty years, but "still has ninety-nine." When the train rolls by with the woman he loves, he cries

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (recording, Jess Hillard)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer sits down to gamble, thinking about how the woman he loves has run away with another man. He does something (kills her? kills her lover?), is arrested, tried and sentenced to prison. He has served forty years, but "still has ninety-nine." When the train rolls by with the woman he loves, he hangs his head and cries

KEYWORDS: grief jealousy infidelity love violence crime homicide prison punishment trial lover prisoner

FOUND IN: US(SE)

Roud #15842

RECORDINGS:
- Calahan Brothers, "Ninety-Nine's My Name" (Perfect 7-04-63, 1937)
- Graham Bros. "Ninety Nine Years [pts. 1 & 2]" (Victor 23654, 1932) 2/23/32
- Jess Hillard, "Ninety-Nine Years" (Champion 16398, 1932; Champion 45091, c. 1935; rec. 1931) (Champion 16617, 1933; rec. 1932)
- Steve Ledford & Daniel Nicholson w. Carolina Ramblers String Band, "Ninety Nine Years" (Banner 32371/Oriole 8118/Perfect 12787/Romeo 5118/Melotone [Canada] 91283, 1932)
- Lester McFarland & Robert Gardner [Mac and Bob] "Ninety-Nine Years, Parts 1 & 2" (Brunswick 588, 1932)
- Fiddlin' Doc Roberts Trio, "Ninety Nine Years" (Banner 32609/Melotone 12520, 1932)
- Vagabonds, "Ninety Nine Years" (Victor 23820/Bluebird B-5282/Montgomery Ward M-4307, 1933)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Ten Thousand Miles Away from Home (A Wild and Reckless Hobo; The Railroad Bum) [Laws H2]" (tune)

SAME TUNE:
- Elton Britt, "The Answer to Ninety-Nine Years" (Banner 33033/Melotone M-12954/Melotone [Canada] 93086/Oriole 8315/Perfect 12986/Romeo 5315/Conqueror 8288, 1934; Minerva M-14024/ARC 6-02-55, 1936)

NOTES [35 words]: There is another song with the same title; that one can be identified by its opening lines, "The courtroom was crowded/The judge waited there" and by the line "Ninety-nine years, boys, is almost for life." - PJS

Last updated in version 5.0

File: Rc99Year

Nix My Dolly Pals Fake Away

DESCRIPTION: "In a box of the stone jug I was born, Of a hempen widow the kid forlorn, Fake away... Nix my Dolly Pals fake away." The youth grew up poor but was a successful robber until his "nuttiest lady" betrayed him. He has escaped and continues "merry and free"

AUTHOR: G. H. Rodwell?

EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Scott); supposedly first performed 1839

KEYWORDS: robbery betrayal escape freedom prison

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 128-129, "Nix My Dolly Pals" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Winstock-SongsAndMusicOfTheRedcoats, pp. 219-223, "The sprig of shillelagh" (1 tune, which the notes imply is used for this)

Roud #12735

CROSS-REFERENCES:
No Balls at All

DESCRIPTION: A young maiden weds a man with no balls at all. Her mother advises her to seek comfort from a young man. She does, and a "bouncing young baby was born in the fall to the wife of the man who had no balls at all."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1918

KEYWORDS: baby bawdy humorous husband wife

FOUND IN: Australia Britain(England) US(MW,So,SW)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
  - Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 158-162, "No Balls at All" (2 texts, 1 tune)
  - Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms II, pp. 677-678, "No Balls at All" (1 text)
  - Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 66, "No Balls at All" (1 text, 1 tune)
  - Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 35, "She Married a Man" (1 short text)
  - DT, NOBALLS*

Roud #10136

RECORDINGS:
  - Anonymous singers, "No Balls at All" [two versions, by different singers] (on Unexp1)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
  - cf. "An Old Man Came Over the Moor (Old Gum Boots and Leggings)"
  - cf. "I Wouldn't Have an Old Man"
  - cf. "Maids, When You're Young"
  - cf. "My Husband's Got No Courage in Him"
  - cf. "What Can a Young Lassie"
  - cf. "The Mormon Cowboy (II)"
  - cf. "'The Strawberry Roan" (tune, some versions)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
  - No Hips at All (marginally cleaned-up version)

NOTES [17 words]: This is one of a large group of traditional songs and ballads dealing with May-December marriages. - EC

Last updated in version 4.5

File: EM158

No Boots

DESCRIPTION: "Down in the land of the Antipodites, Round the campfires that burn on a cold winter's night," bushmen report that ghosts walk "with no boots at all." A young man goes climbing without boots. He falls. Neither heaven nor hell will take him without boots

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1950 (Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook)

KEYWORDS: humorous clothes death Hell humorous

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
  - Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, pp. 80-81, "No Boots" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [24 words]: I rather suspect this was originally sung to "Vilikins and His Dinah," but this is not the tune given by Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook. - RBW
No Depression in Heaven

DESCRIPTION: Singer describes the Great Depression in apocalyptic terms, predicting the end of the world. He says he is going to heaven where there's no Depression.

AUTHOR: J. D. Vaughan, according to Bill C. Malone, _Don't Get above Your Raisin'_

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (recording, Carter Family); reportedly written 1932

KEYWORDS: poverty hardtimes religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Dunson/Raim/Asch-AnthologyOfAmericanFolkMusic, p. 116, "No Depression in Heaven" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 227, "No Depression in Heaven" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #17321

RECORDINGS:
Carter Family, "No Depression" (Decca 5242, 1936; Montgomery Ward 8006, 1939)
Charlie Monroe & his Kentucky Pardners, "There's No Depression in Heaven" (RCA Victor 20-2055, 1946)
New Lost City Ramblers, "No Depression in Heaven" (on NLCR09, NLCRCD1)

SAME TUNE:
No Disappointment in Heaven (on Boggs2, BoggsCD1)

NOTES [87 words]: The Great Depression is generally considered to have extended from the stock market crash of 1929 to the beginning of World War II in 1939. However, it is worth noting that conditions for farmers had already been depressed for several years before this. [Due in part to the revival of European agriculture after World War I. In Minnesota, the political side effects are still felt to some extent today, in the relative strength of third party politics.]

This is a reworking of the hymn "No Disappointment in Heaven". - PJS

Last updated in version 5.0

File: ADR116

No Dominies For Me, Laddie

DESCRIPTION: A young minister proposes to the singer. She rejects him because he is poor. He said he would "fleece the flock" to become rich. She fears he might die young, leaving her and the children poor. Then she meets and happily marries "a gentleman dragoon"

AUTHOR: Rev. Nathaniel Mackay (source: Chambers)

EARLIEST DATE: 1776 (Herd)

KEYWORDS: age poverty marriage rejection humorous clergy soldier

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig/Duncan4 872, "But For Your Sake I'll Fleece the Flock" (1 text)
Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 319-324, "No Dominies for Me Laddie" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Scottish Songs (Edinburgh, 1829), Vol I, pp. 142-144, "Nae Dominies For Me, Laddie"

Peter Buchan, Gleanings of Scarce Old Ballads (Norwood, 1974 (reprint of 1891 Aberdeen reissue of 1825 Peterhead edition)), pp. 172-175, "Nae Dominies for Me, Laddie"

ST GrD4872 (Partial)

Roud #6244

NOTES [35 words]: Chambers [1829]: "Written by the Rev Nathaniel Mackay, Minister of Crossmichael, in the Stewartry of Kirkeadbright, some time during the last century. He is not known to have written any other piece of merit." - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD4872
No Hiding Place (I)
DESCRIPTION: "There's no hiding place down there (x2), I ran to the rock to hide my face, The rock cried out, 'no hiding place.'" "The rock cried out, 'I'm burning too... I want to go to heaven the same as you.'" "Sinner man he stumbled and fell...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad Hell
FOUND IN: US(SE) West Indies(Bahamas,Tobago)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 616, "No Hidin'-Place" (2 texts, but the "B" text appears to be "Sinner Man")
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 616, "No Hidin' Place" (2 tunes plus text excerpts)
Elder-FolkSongAndFolkLifeInCharlotteville, p. 48, "The Sinner Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 370, "No Hiding Place" (1 text)
JournalOfAmericanFolklore, Elsie Clews Parsons, "Spirituals and Other Folklore from the Bahamas," Vol. 41, No. 162 (Oct-Dec 1928), Anthems: Rum Cay #2 p. 464, ("I went to de rock, Time") (1 text)

Roud #3408
RECORDINGS:
Marian Anderson, "Dere's No Hidin' Place Down Dere" [medley with "Every Time I Feel the Spirit"] (Victor 2032, 1940)
Carter Family, "There's No Hiding Place Down Here" (Montgomery Ward M-4547, 1935)
Hampton Institute Quartette, "There's No Hiding Place Down Here" (Victor 27472, 1941)
Lulu Belle & Scotty, "There's No Hiding Place Down Here" (Conqueror 9695, 1941)
David Pryor et al, "Time" (AAFS 505 A1, 1935; on LomaxCD1822-2)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Can't Hide Sinner" (theme, lyrics)
NOTES [218 words]: I am slightly hesitant about including the [David Pryor] recording of "Time" under this title. However, it has the recurrent verse, "I went to the rock...The rock cried out 'No hiding place,'" which is close enough for me. - PJS
The phrase "no hiding place" has a long history in Christianity. The so-called "Protevangelum of James," or "Infancy Gospel of James," which may date back to the second century, has an incident at the time of the Massacre of the Innocents. Elizabeth, the mother of John the Baptist, knows that Herod's soldiers are coming to kill her son.

In the translation found on p. 71 of Bart D. Erhman, Lost Scriptures: Books that Did Not Make It into the New Testament, Oxford University Press, 2003, 22:3 reads, "when Elizabeth heard that they were looking for John, she took him and went up into the mountains, looking for a place to hide him. But there was no hiding place."

When she cried out, however, "the mountain split open and received her."

The "Protevangelium" was surprisingly influential in Catholic circles; it probably helped foster the myth of Mary's perpetual virginity (see the notes to "The Carnal and the Crane" [Child 55]). But Protestants rejected it utterly. So there is little reason to suspect a connection between that book and this song. But it's interesting. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: FSWB370C

No Hiding Place (II)
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "No hiding place, No hiding place, Almost to the Judgment Bar, No hiding place." Verse: "Fox got a hole in the ground, Bird got a nest in the air, There's nare one thing got a hiding place But these sinners got none"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands 33, p. 151, "No Hidin' Place" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [46 words]: The current description is based on the Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands text. - BS Matthew 8:20 in the King James Bible reads "And Jesus saith unto him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1
File: Parr033

No Irish Need Apply

DESCRIPTION: "I'm a decent boy just landed From the town of Ballyfad; I want a situation, yes,
And want it very bad." He applies for various jobs, but is told time and again, "No Irish need apply."
(At last he attacks one of the bosses and gains a job)

AUTHOR: unknown (see NOTES)
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud)
KEYWORDS: emigration discrimination Ireland nonballad work fight

FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 65, "No Irish Wanted Here" (1 text)
Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, pp. 41-42, "No Irish Need Apply" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1607, p. 109. "No Irish Need Apply" (4 references)
Foner-AmericanLaborSongsOfTheNineteenthCentury, p. 77, "No Irish Need Apply" (1 text)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 364-366, "No Irish Need Apply" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 100, "No Irish Need Apply" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 292, "No Irish Need Apply" (1 text)

DT, NOIRISH*

Roud #1137

RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "No Irish Need Apply" (on PeteSeeger07, PeteSeeger07a, AmHist1)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "An Irish Laborer" (subject)
cf. "The Honest Irish Lad" (subject)
cf. "What Irish Boys Can Do" (subject)

SAME TUNE:
No Puppies Need Apply ("Gentlemen who seek a wife, pray just look at me") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 110)
Victorious General Grant ("'Tis of a noble soldier that now I am going to sing") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 165)

NOTES [478 words]: This is a bit of a conundrum, because this song seems to occur in two fairly distinct forms, which we might call "No Irish Need Apply" and "No Irish Wanted Here." In many of the former versions, the Irishman attacks the prejudiced employer. In some of the latter, there is none of that; the worker appeals to the work the Irish did in the Civil War to save the Union. The Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster is yet another form ("In the papers you have read, have you noticed what they said"); it appears is another appeal to what the Irish have done but mentions Waterloo, not the Civil War.
I was seriously tempted to split the two. But they have common lyrics; while I suspect a deliberate rewrite somewhere along the line, it is not really possible to tell where to draw the line.
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 109, lists two distinct songs printed in the nineteenth century with the title "No Irish Need Apply." The more frequently-printed began "I'm a dacint boy, just landed from the town of Ballyfad"; it is credited to John F. Poole and sung by Tony Pastor. The other, uncredited, begins "Oh 'twas yesterday that I was led on such a wild goose chase."

Jon W. Finson, The Voices That Are Gone: Themes in Nineteenth-Century American Popular Song, Oxford University Press, 1994, p. 290, says that a song "No Irish Need Apply" was published and sung by a self-proclaimed "Irish Vocalist" named Kathleen O'Neil in 1863, but it is has references to Sebastopol, which hints that it might be an expansion of a Crimean War original to which O'Neil added a reference to (Philip) Sheridan and the Civil War. It concludes by saying that, based on their war service, "All Irish may apply" -- which is hardly the common ending.
Finson, pp. 290-291, says that "The title of [O'Neil's] song originated in an advertisement from the London Times, according to a preface reprinted in the sheet music: WANTED. -- A smart active girl to do the general house work of a large family; one who can cook, clean plate, and get up fine linen preferred. N.B. -- No Irish need apply." This is curious, since the song is generally about a man.
As regards "No Irish Wanted Here," one might suspect it is the work of Edward Harrigan and David Braham, for whom see "Babies on Our Block," or at least that Harrigan popularized it. There are two reasons for this. First, the song was printed by Dean, and Dean had a lot of Harrigan/Braham/Hart material in his repertoire. Second, the Harrigan company addressed this topic in a drama. According to Richard Moody, Ned Harrigan: From Corlear's Hook to Herald Square, Nelson Hall, 1980, p. 239, "No Irish Wanted Here; or, Out on Strike" took a serious turn. While Barney Farrell 'has sacrificed himself for the workingman,' his child has died of hunger. As he roams the town pleading for a job, all he hears is 'No Irish Wanted Here'...." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: DTnoris

No Ku Klux Out Tonight

DESCRIPTION: "At Mars Hill College on a moonlight night, Old Shep Deaver he took a flight."

Chorus: "There ain't no Ku Klux out tonight" (x2). Shep Deaver and Rube Manning flee, Manning in response to a rebel yell. Others in the area are briefly mentioned

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1984 (JonssLunsford)

KEYWORDS: nonballad moniker Black(s)

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Jones-MinstrelOfTheAppalachians-Bascom-Lamar-Lunsford, pp. 4-5, "No Ku Klux Out Tonight" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [85 words]: This seems to be the sort of song that only makes sense if you know the local lore. Bascom Lamar Lunsford apparently had relatives who married into the Deaver family, and some of the events are real, but you'll have to read Jones-MinstrelOfTheAppalachians-Bascom-Lamar-Lunsford for the details. It appears that Lunsford recorded this at least once (LOC 1822 B2) and possibly twice ("Such a Gittin' Up Stairs," Robert W. Gordon Collection A42 NC 63), but for obvious reasons it has not been widely released. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.0

File: JoLun004

No Letter in the Mail

DESCRIPTION: Singer hasn't received an answer to his love-letter. He has written that he was wrong and to blame, and that he loves her truly. He walks down the road, saying if he doesn't get a letter in the mail, he'll "bid this world goodbye"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (recording, Happy-Go-Lucky Boys)

KEYWORDS: loneliness love abandonment suicide lover

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

Roud #11577

RECORDINGS:

Roy Acuff, "No Letter in the Mail" (Conqueror 9810, 1941/OKeh 06585, 1942)
Happy-Go-Lucky Boys, "No Letter in the Mail Today" (Bluebird B-8467, 1940)
Bill Monroe & His Blue Grass Boys, "No Letter in the Mail" (Bluebird B-8611, 1941)
Martin Young & Corbett Grigsby, "No Letter in the Mail" (on MMOK, MMOKCD)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Letter that Never Came" (theme)

File: RcNLITM

No Man Can Hinder Me

DESCRIPTION: "Walk in, kind savior, no man can hinder me" (x2). "O, no man, no man, no man can hinder me" (x2). "See what wonder Jesus done," "Jesus make de dumb to speak," "Jesus do most anything." "King Jesus ride a milk-white horse."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)

KEYWORDS: religious Jesus healing

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
No More Booze (Fireman Save My Child)

DESCRIPTION: "There was a little man... He went to the Saloon on a Sunday afternoon And you ought to heard the bartender holler, No more booze... No more booze on Sunday... Got to get your can filled on Monday. She's the only girl I love.... O fireman, save my child."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)
KEYWORDS: drink nonsense
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 208-209, "No More Booze (Fireman Save My Child)" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, NOBOOZE*
Roud #15928
RECORDINGS:
Radio Mac [pseud. for Harry McClintock], "Fireman Save My Child" (Victor V-40234, 1930)
File: San208

No More Good Time in the World For Me

DESCRIPTION: A composite lament of a man serving a life term. He laments his time on the Brazos, tells a girl not to wait, thinks about the time ahead of him, wishes he had a buddy or could escape, and says he will be hard to find if he does escape

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (recorded from J. B. Smith by Jackson)
KEYWORDS: prison hardtimes separation
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Jackson-WakeUpDeadMan, pp. 147-151,"No More Good Times in the World For Me" (1 text plus a fragment, both from the same informant; 1 tune)
NOTES [65 words]: This song, and several others by J. B. Smith, brilliantly illustrates the problem of classifying Black prison songs. This is clearly a personal song by Smith, who was serving a life term for killing his girlfriend, but the themes and many of the words come from other songs. Given the extent of Smith's rewriting, I classified it separately, but there is no good way to file such things.

- RBW
Last updated in version 2.4
File: JDM147

No More Pencils, No More Books

DESCRIPTION: "No more pencils, no more books, No more teachers' dirty looks." Possible additional couplets: "School's out, school's out, Teacher let the news out." "Kick the table, kick the chairs, Kick the teacher down the stairs."
No More Rain Fall for Wet You

DESCRIPTION: "No more rain fall for wet you, Hallelu, hallelu, No more rain fall for wet you, Hallelujah." "No more sun shine for burn you." "No more parting in the kingdom." "No more backbiting in the kingdom." "Every day shall be Sunday."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 46, "No More Rain Fall for Wet You" (1 text, 1 tune); "I Want to Go Home" (1 text, without a real tune; although the authors list this as a separate song, the tune is only a chant, and most of the words go with the preceding, so I lump them.)
Roud #12002 and 12003
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "No Rain Gonna Wet Me" ("no rain will wet me" theme)
File: AwG046A

No More Shall I Work in the Factory

DESCRIPTION: "When I set out for Lowell, some factory for to find, I left my native country And all my friends behind." The worker lives a life driven by the factory bell. She plans to leave the factory and go home. She will soon be married and live a freer life

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (JournalOfAmericanFolklore Vol. 28)
KEYWORDS: work worker hardtimes home weaving factory technology
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 15-18 "The Factory Girl" (1 text plus a reproduction of a broadside)
Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, pp. 122-124, "The Lowell Factory Girl" (1 text); pp. 125-126, "No More Shall I Work in the Factory" (1 text)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 331-332, "The Factory Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Foner-AmericanLaborSongsOfTheNineteenthCentury, p. 43, "The Lowell Factory Girl" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 128, "The Factory Girl" (1 text)
DT, NOMOFACT
Roud #15534
RECORDINGS:
Dorsey Dixon, "The Factory Girl" (Testament t-3301, a version adapted by Dixon from a version sung by his sister Nancy)
Mike Seeger, "A Factory Girl" (on MSeeger02)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "A Laundry Song" (lyrics)
cf. "The Laddie Wi' the Tarry Trews" (theme)
NOTES [138 words]: The oldest version of this song seems to be the "Lowell Factory Girl" text quoted in the description; this broadside is very full. Greenway believes this version originated before 1840; the wages mentioned fit 1830, and the Panic of 1837 killed off many of the small New England farms, meaning that the factory girl would have no home to which to return. Cohen dates his broadside print to the 1840s. The localized "Lowell Factory Girl" gradually spread and generalized, producing the more universal text "No More Shall I Work in the Factory." As the latter consists almost entirely of verses found in the former, however, they can surely be considered one song. This should not be confused with the J. A. Phillips song "The Factory Girl" (c. 1895), which begins, "She wasn't the least bit pretty, And only the least bit gay." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Grnw122

No More Spelling, No More Books
DESCRIPTION: "No more spelling, no more books, No more teacher's dirty looks." Or variations: "No more spelling, no more French, No more sitting on a hard board bench." "Two more weeks and we shall be Out of the gates of misery."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1970 (personal recollection)
KEYWORDS: playparty
FOUND IN: US(MW) New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 63, "(Two more weeks and we shall be)", "(No more spelling, no more books)"; "No more spelling, no more French)" (3 texts)
NOTES [20 words]: One of those rare children's rhymes that I remember from elementary school, which presumably would be around 1970. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: SuSm063C

No More Will the Shamrock
DESCRIPTION: The singer says if he forgets his lover the shamrock will not seem green and the morning will not be wet with dew. He tells her to keep his heart and not break it. When they die "the sweet recollection of you" will remain.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: love lyric
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1360, "No More Will the Shamrock" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Roud #7238
File: GrD71360

No More, My Lord
DESCRIPTION: "No more, my Lord (x2), Lord, I'll never turn back no more." "I found in him a resting place And he has made me glad." "Jesus is the man I am looking for, Can you tell me where he's gone?" "Go down, go down in the floweryard And... you may find him...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 567, "Gwine Down to Jordan" (1 short text); 617, "No More! No More!" (1 short text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 567, "Grine Down Jordan" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 15, (no title; the first line is "I'm gwine down to Jordan -- Hallelu!") (1 fragment, which could be anything; I'm filing it here in desperation based on the similarity to Brown's title)
No Never Alone

DESCRIPTION: "I heard the voice of the Savior, Telling me still to fight on, He promised never to leave me, Never to leave me alone"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 165-166, "No Never Alone" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [13 words]: The current description is based on the Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed fragment. - BS

Last updated in version 3.5

File: Ow2E165

No Payday Here

DESCRIPTION: "I used to weigh, two hundred, two hundred, now I'm skin and bone." "Well I asked the captain... Did the payroll come? What the hell you care, partner, I don't own you none." The singer complains about the conditions in his prison

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (recorded from J. B. Smith by Jackson)

KEYWORDS: prison hardtimes

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Jackson-WakeUpDeadMan, pp. 164-166, "No Payday Here" (1 text)

File: JDM164

No Rain Gonna Wet Me

DESCRIPTION: "No rain gonna wet me When the roll is called (x2), No rain gonna wet me when I get up in the heaven. No rain gonna wet me when the roll is called." "No sun gonna burn me...." "Gonna shout Hallelujah...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 2014 (USSealsland03)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

RECORDINGS:
Minnie Gracie Gadson, "No Rain Gonna Wet Me" (on USSealsland03)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "No More Rain Fall for Wet You" ("no rain will wet me" theme)
cf. "When That General Roll Is Called" (roll call theme in hymns) and references there.

File: RcNRGWMe

No Room at the Hotel

DESCRIPTION: "There was no room, no room, they had no room, There was no room, no room at the hotel." At the time Jesus was to be born, the hotel was full. The Virgin Mary was wandering in the night. The people were wicked. The hotel staff may be forgiven

AUTHOR: Song segment unknown; story by Vera Ward Hall

EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (interview with Vera Ward Hall)

KEYWORDS: Jesus hardtimes religious hardheartedness poverty travel childbirth animal family

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, pp. 152-153, "No Room at the Hotel" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #13974

RECORDINGS:

* Vera Ward Hall, "No Room at the Inn" (on LomaxCD1706)

NOTES [216 words]: This is very loosely based on Luke 2:1-7, which does indeed say that Jesus was born in a stable because there was no room at the inn (and it certainly would have been an inn, not the "hotel" of Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices's version -- the modern hotel concept did not exist at the time!). However, the song omits the census which allegedly caused the disruptions (and which is never mentioned in secular history and is highly unlikely with Rome and the Parthian Empire at dagger-points; Rome could not afford the disruption a census would have caused). Also, Luke has only a single sentence about the inn being full. There is no hint that the inn's staff was wicked, or of a distinction between the workers and management. Inns at this time were almost certainly family businesses, with father, mother, and children doing the work; they might have a few employees, but the manager was part of the staff. Thus this song is guilty of many anachronisms, and almost all of them unfair.

The behavior of the animals in the stable is equally fictitious; the Lukan account not only doesn't mention animals, it doesn't even explicitly mention a stable! We call it a stable simply because it contained a "manger" (though the Greek word, , phatne, feed-trough, sometimes extends to mean a stable). - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: Rose152

No Room at the Inn (I)

DESCRIPTION: "When Caesar Augustus had raised a taxation, He assessed all the people that dwelt in the nation." Mary and Joseph go to Bethlehem, but cannot find a place at the inn. They eventually find a stable, where Jesus is born

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1833 (Sandys)

KEYWORDS: religious Bible Jesus Christmas childbirth

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Dearmer/VaughnWilliams/Shaw-OxfordBookOfCarols 114, "No Room at the Inn" (1 text, 1 tune)

Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 374, "No Room at the Inn" (1 text)

NOTES [91 words]: I find it hard to believe that this is actually a traditional song; the wording is too ornate and contorted.

The details in this song are either fictional or derived from Luke 2; the birth narrative in Matthew plays no part. Of course, we should also note that the account in Luke 2 is incorrect; there is no record of this particular census, and even if there had been such a census (possible, given the available documentation, but unlikely), the Romans would not allow such a mess in a frontier province threatened with Parthian invasion. - RBW

File: FSWB374A

No Sign of a Marriage [Laws P3]

DESCRIPTION: The girl says she has been waiting long enough for marriage. Her sweetheart, who thinks marriage too "confining," suggests she find someone else. She does, and invites him to her wedding. He tries to talk her out of the marriage, but it is too late

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan4)

KEYWORDS: courting wedding infidelity rejection

FOUND IN: US(SE,So) Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber)) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (11 citations):
No Surrender (I)

DESCRIPTION: The song is about the breaking of the seige of Derry. "Walker's zeal, and Murray's steel Came in their need to cheer them, And sallies from open gate, Soon taught their foe to fear them" The Defenders held the city until relieved by "Browning's vessel"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark)
KEYWORDS: battle rescue death starvation patriotic youth
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jul 28, 1689 - Browning's ships break the 105 day seige of Derry (source: Kilpatrick [see Notes])
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark 5, "No Surrender" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Shutting of the Gates of Derry" (subject: The Siege of Derry) and references there NOTES [350 words]: Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark: "'No Surrender' is a phrase often used in Ulster. The song traces its origin to the Seige of Derry and names a few of the city's defenders who have been memorialized in Apprentice Boys Clubs." The chorus is "Then raise the cheer, to freemen dear, And toast each brave defender; For nought imparts to Derry hearts A thrill like 'No Surrender!'"

See Historical References to "The Boyne Water" for a summary of the war in Ireland between James II and William of Orange. [Or see the detailed discussions under "The Shutting of the Gates of Derry" and "The Battle of the Boyne (I)." - RBW]
The Protestant Plantation of Ulster was created after the 1607 "Flight of the Earls" -- heads of the Ulster clans -- to Rome allowed James I to declare their lands forfeit to the Crown. In the Plantation, the City of Londonderry was fortified and gated walls built around it. When James II brought troops from Ireland [to England,] Londonderry was left unguarded. On December 7, 1688,
Lord Antrim's Catholic "Redshanks" camped outside the city. With the city government undecided as to how to handle the situation, thirteen young "Apprentice Boys" seized the gate keys, drew up the drawbridge and locked the four gates. Antrim's troops withdrew. Lord Mountjoy's Protestant regiment was allowed to garrison the city.

To escape the war, residents surrounding areas flooded into the city. Reinforcements sent by William to relieve Derry in April turned away. Then James's attempt at negotiating with Derry failed. Colonel Murray led Protestant troops to the gate, which was opened for them, and the Derry government, which had been willing to negotiate with James, was overturned. Reverend George Walker and Colonel Henry Baker were appointed joint Governors. The siege began "in earnest" on May 5, 1689. On July 28 three ships on the Foyle broke the siege bringing food; captain of the Mountjoy was Michael Browning, who was killed in the battle. The besiegers left on August 1, 1689. (source: Cecil Kilpatrick, "The Seige of Derry: A City of Refuge" at the Canada-Ulster Heritage site) - BS

File: 0rLa005

No Surrender (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Behold the crimson banner float" recalling "when Derry's sons ... sung out, 'No Surrender!'" and "her 'Prentice hearts the gate who barred" "Long may that crimson banner wave ... while Derry's sons alike defy Pope, Traitor, or Pretender"

AUTHOR: Lieut. Colonel William Blacker (1777-1853)(written 1817, source: Sparling)

EARLIEST DATE: c.1895 (Graham-TheOrangeSongster)

KEYWORDS: battle Ireland patriotic youth

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Dec 7, 1688 - The "Apprentice Boys" close the Londonderry gates against Lord Antrim's "Redshanks" (source: Cecil Kilpatrick, "The Seige of Derry: A City of Refuge" at the Canada-Ulster Heritage site)

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Graham-TheOrangeSongster, p. 3, "No Surrender" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #V31389

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "No Surrender (I)" (subject)
cf. "The Shutting of the Gates of Derry" (subject) and references there

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Crimson Banner

NOTES [201 words]: The chorus ("Then here's to the boys that fear no noise And never will surrender, The gates we'll close against her foes On Eighteenth of December") uses the Gregorian Calendar (adopted in England in 1752) date, adding eleven days to the anniversary of December 7, 1688.

"This fraternity [The Apprentice Boys Of Derry] celebrates twice anually. This happens first at the "Closing of the Gates". Later comes the "Relief of Derry" parade .... The flag of the Apprentice Boys is a crimson banner, representing the blood that flowed in Derry for freedom and liberty. The Crimson banner is flown from the Memorial Hall in the city and from St Columb's Cathedral, which was built before the siege." (Source: Wikipedia article Apprentice Boys of Derry)

Sparling: "Written to a very fine old Irish melody (Joyce, p. 83)...." I don't recognize Graham-TheOrangeSongster's tune. "Joyce" is P.W. Joyce and the book Ancient Irish Music (Sparling, p. xxvii, refers to the 1878 edition. - BS

For the background of the Siege of (London)derry, see the notes to "The Shutting of the Gates of Derry"; also "No Surrender (I)". Blacker, in addition to this song, wrote the very well known "The Battle of the Boyne (I)." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: Grah003

No Telephone in Heaven

DESCRIPTION: "'Now I cannot wait on babies,' the smiling merchant said," as the child says that (s)he be allowed to call mother on the telephone. But there is no way to call her; there are "no telephones in Heaven." The child tells of the hard times (s)he faces

No to be Married Ava

DESCRIPTION: "Our Girzie was noo thirty-six, Though some rather more did her ca', And ane quite sae auld to get married Has little or nae chance ava." The old maid finds herself teased, and desperately offers to wed any man, whatever his faults, rather than stay unwed

No Use to Rattle the Blind

DESCRIPTION: This song is part of a cante-fable in which the wife warns her lover that the husband is at home by singing a song.

No, John, No

DESCRIPTION: The man asks the girl if she will marry. She informs him that her father has told her to answer all men's questions "No." After several exchanges, he asks something like "Do you refuse to marry me? Do you want me to leave?" She, of course, answers "No."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1883 (Burne)

KEYWORDS: courting questions rejection

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW,SE,So) Britain(England(All))

REFERENCES (26 citations):

- Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 90-91, "Twenty, Eighteen" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 138, "No Sir" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Cologne/Morrison-WiltshireFolkSongs, pp. 46-47, "No, Sir! No!" (1 text, 1 tune, with the "No sir" refrain of "No, John, No," but the plot of "The Keys of Canterbury," including the "Keys of my heart" ending; it almost certainly combined the two songs)
- Hamer-GreenGroves, p. 58, "Oh No John" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Randolph 385, "No Sir! No Sir!" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 102, "The Scottish Merchant's Daughter" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 48, "No, Sir" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 29, p. 44 "O, No, John" (1 text)
- Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 73-74=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, p. 144, "No Sir" (1 text, 1 tune)
- McLintosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesOfIllinoisOzarks, p. 106, "(On yonder hill there stands a lady)" (1 short text, consisting of just the opening lines of either "Wheel of Fortune (Dublin City, Spanish Lady)" or "No, John, No," used as a game song)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 14, "No, Sir" (2 texts plus mention of 2 more)
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 14, "No, Sir" (3 tunes plus excerpts of text)
- Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #191, "Oh, No, John" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Wyman/Brockway-LonesomeSongs-KentuckyMountains-Vol2, p. 98, "'No, Sir, No!'" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 81, "No, Sir; No!" (1 text)
- Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol3, pp. 43-44, "O, No, John!" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Sharp-OneHundredEnglishFolksongs 68, "O No, John!" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 50-51, "Oh, No, No, Sir, No!" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Carey-MarylandFolkLegendsAndFolkSongs, p. 100, "No Sir!" (1 text)
- Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople 68, "O No John" (4 texts)
- Lomax-FolksongsOfNorthAmerica 161, "Uh-Uh, No" (1 text, 1 tune, probably with more than a little of "Wheel of Fortune" mixed in)
- Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, pp. 154-155, "Oh, No, John!" (1 text)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 345, "No John" (1 text)
- Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN2244, "Pretty Betty, now come to me" (?)

DT, ONOJOHN*

ADDITIONAL: Charlotte Sophia Burne, editor, Shropshire Folk-Lore (London, 1883 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 551-552,652, "The Disdainful Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #146

RECORDINGS:

- Emisly Bishop, "No Sir" (on FSBFTX13)
- Ron & Bob Copper, "No, John, No" (on FSB01)
- Sam Larner, "No Sir, No Sir" (on SLarner02)
- Pete Seeger, "No Sir No" (on PeteSeeger14)
- Stoneman Family, "The Spanish Merchant's Daughter" (Victor V-40206, 1928; on AAFM3)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

- cf. "The Keys of Canterbury"
- cf. "Wheel of Fortune (Dublin City, Spanish Lady)"
- cf. "The Nonsense of Men" (theme)

NOTES [57 words]: A Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs fragment from Shropshire has the man give up "since I have no more to say"; the woman then says "'O turn again, young man, I'll have you,' But his answer was 'Nay, nay!'" - BS

Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople #68 is a composite of four texts. However, the original texts are listed on pp. 35-37. - BS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: R385
No, Never, No

DESCRIPTION: "They sat by the fireside, his fair daughters three, They talked of their father who sailed on the sea." Each list the gift she will give if he never again goes to sea. But he dies in a storm. Each verse ends with the phrase, "No, never, no."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart Songs)
KEYWORDS: death drowning gift father children sailor separation
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Heart-Songs, p. 147, "No, Never, No" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin-TreasuryOfNewEnglandFolklore, pp. 556-557, "No, Never, No" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: BNEF556

No, Not One! (Jesus Knows All About My Troubles)

DESCRIPTION: "Jesus knows all about our struggles / He will guide till the day is done / There's no friend like the lowly Jesus / No not one! No not one!"

AUTHOR: Words: Johnson Oatman Jr./Music: George C. Hugg
EARLIEST DATE: 1895
LONG DESCRIPTION: There's no friend like Jesus. "None else could heal all our soul's diseases." He is high and holy, yet meek and mild. He is with us every hour and cheers us in the darkest night. He is with every saint and sinner. He won't refuse us a Heavenly home.
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
James Mackey and the Moving Star Hall Singers, "Jesus Knows All About My Troubles" (on USBeenStorm02)
Moving Star Hall Singers, "Jesus Knows All About My Troubles" (on BeenStorm1)
Congregation of the Wesley Methodist Church, "Jesus Knows All About My Troubles" (on JohnsIsland1)
NOTES [47 words]: BeenStorm1, USSealsIsland02 and JohnsIsland are only the chorus, repeated until the pace becomes quicker and only the last two lines of the chorus are repeated. The current description is the chorus. The LONG DESCRIPTION describes the hymn as it was written by Johnson Oatman Jr. - BS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: RcNNOJKA

No. 5. Squadron Song

DESCRIPTION: "You can talk about the Army And about their victories, You can brag about the Navy, but for baggin' subs, Our Cansos rule the seas." The singer describes the hunt for "Herr Hitler's submarines," and tells of the work of the various unit members

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)
KEYWORDS: soldier work technology flying
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, p. 41, "No. 5 Squadron Song" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #29414
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Macnamara's Band" (tune)
NOTES [835 words]: Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead calls this song "optimistic" about the results obtained by the Number 5 squadron (which was one of only two long-range reconnaissance squadrons in eastern Canada; Sarty, p. 127; for the other, #116, see the notes to "The North Atlantic Squadron"). In one sense, Hopkins is right; the planes did not themselves sink many submarines. However, this rather misses the point. The "Canso" is the Canadian name for the Consolidated PBY flying boat, better known to the British and Americans as the "Catalina." (So named by the British, since it was made by Consolidated; the British had a tendency toward alliterative names, such as Hawker Hurricane, Supermarine Spitfire, Short Stirling, Fairey Fulmar,
"One of the most famous and familiar aircraft of its time, the 'Cat' had a distinguished service record in many theatres of war with the U.S. and Allied forces. Having few equals for toughness and dependability, not to mention adaptability, the Catalina was noteworthy for its excellent range" (Munson, p. 45).

Wheal/Pope, p. 110, say that "The bulk of the 3,290 Catalinas of all types built in the US and Canada served the US Navy as bombers, torpedo carriers, convoy escorts, anti-submarine and air-sea rescue aircraft. Over 650 of various marks were eventually used by the RAF, while models in Canadian service were known as 'Cansos.'" (Creed, pp. 253-254, says that the Canadians had tried to buy Catalinas from Consolidated, but all available aircraft had already been allocated to other buyers, so Canadian firms were authorized to build their own; these Canadian-assembled PBys were called "Cansos" to distinguish them from Consolidated's own machines. Creed, p. 253, says that when the Canadians decided to order the aircraft, they initially chose the name "Convoy" for the aircraft, "but, as it was easily confused with ship convoys, it was discarded in favor of 'Canso,' after the Strait of Canso between Cape Breton Island and the mainland of Nova Scotia.") But although the Catalina/Canso occasionally served in combat roles, that really wasn't its purpose. A very slow plane (top speed 179 miles per hour, according to Munson, p. 45, with a crew of 8; Wheal/Pope, p. 110, say it had a top speed of 196 miles per hour, referring to a newer model), it was not well suited for attack -- even the typical biplane was faster. (Bercuson, p. 106, calls it "agonizingly slow; when German submarines spotted the lumbering Catalinas from the bridge of a surfaced U-boat, they usually had ample time for a crash dive before they were attacked.) Its chief attributes were the fact that, as a seaplane, it could be based anywhere with water (and come down on the water to pick up men or cargo) -- and its range of more than 3000 miles. It could go anywhere, and it could stay in the air for as much as 24 hours. This made it excellent as a search aircraft, and this was its primary role. Even in convoy escort, it often served best by spotting a submarine and calling in escort craft to sink it. As Creed says on p. 193, "Even though U.S. Navy PBys in Iceland sank few U-boat, they did the next best thing: They stopped them from sinking Allied ships" -- simply by being around, they forced the submarines underwater, which made it harder for them to pursue convoys. They also did yeoman service as marine rescue craft. No one knows how many people were rescued at sea by Catalinas, but it was many thousands -- one unit's rescue forces, the 5th Air Force ERS squadrons, saved more than 1600 men from the sea all by itself (Creed, p. 243).

First placed in service in 1936 (Creed, p. 35), "the plane was obsolescent when World War II began; the prototype of an intended successor was already flying Even so, the Catalina was ready at the outbreak. It could be produced more quickly and in greater numbers than any other patrol plane, and it could be used in many different ways. It became the Allies' most popular flying boat, largely because of its long range, its carrying capacity, its reliability, and its ability to land where there were no airfields, on any body of calm water. Many of those same qualities account for the fifty-year-old design continuing in civilian service today [1985]..." (Creed, p. 1).

That said, it was too slow to be a day bomber. It wasn't expected to attack! Thus, the fact that the Catalinas of Squadron 5 did not themselves sink many subs is no insult to its usefulness or to the crew's hard work. As proof, I offer the fact that a Catalina was the first unit to spot the Japanese fleet at the Battle of Midway, allowing the American victory there (Lord, pp. 94-95); a Catalina was also the aircraft that spotted the Bismarck after she had eluded her pursuers, making it possible for the British to destroy her (Zetterling/Tamelander, pp. 229-232; Creed, p. 247).

Even so, according to Creed, p. 2, of the 55 Axis submarines sunk by aircraft in World War II, the Catalina was responsible for sinking twenty. - RBW

Bibliography

- Zetterling/Tamelander: Niklas Zetterling and Michael Tamelander, Bismarck: The Final Days
Noah

DESCRIPTION: Chorus "He cried 'Noah Noah'; God's gonna ride 'n the rain and tide." God called Noah: "build an ark ... I want it to stand that rain and tide." Noah built it, "called in the animals two by two" and his sons. God "declared that this time would be no more"

AUTHOR: Willie Johnson (source: Matthew Barton, liner notes to LomaxCD1708)

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (recording, Golden Gate Jubilee Quartet)

KEYWORDS: Bible religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Didn't It Rain" (subject, patter+chorus format) and references there

File: RcNoahGG

Noah Built the Ark

DESCRIPTION: "Noah built his ark and he built it on the ground, the Lord sent a flood and turned it around. The door flew open and the beasts walked in." The story of the Flood, with chorus, "And I cannot stay away, my Lord, And I cannot stay away."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)

KEYWORDS: Bible ship flood religious

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, p. 212, "Noah Built the Ark" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Uncle Noah" (subject) and references there

NOTES [28 words]: For background on the Noah story, see the notes to "Old Uncle Noah." This may be related to one of the other Noah songs, but it's short enough that it's hard to tell.. - RBW

File: ThBa212

Noah's Ark (I)

DESCRIPTION: Floating spiritual verses, most of which refer to inequities between the rich and the poor and the inevitability of death. Refrain refers to Noah and the ark but most of the verses don't mention it at all

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1920

KEYWORDS: death nonballad playparty religious

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Wyman/Brockway-LonesomeSongs-KentuckyMountains-Vol2, p. 36, "Noah's Ark" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3639

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Let the Dove Come In" (lyrics)
cf. "All My Trials" (lyrics)
cf. "De Fust Banjo (The Banjo Song; The Possum and the Banjo; Old Noah)" (theme)

File: WB2036
Noble Duke O'Gordon, The
DESCRIPTION: Betsy, a servant to Duke of Gordon, is seduced and made pregnant by Captain Glen. Lady Gordon suspects the Duke. Betsy names Captain Glen. When Glen returnd from sea he sends for a priest and marries Betsy. Betsy "is as happy as the duchess of Gordon."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan1); 19C (broadside, NLScotland L.C.Fol.70(46a))
KEYWORDS: marriage seduction accusation pregnancy sailor servant
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan1 53, "The Noble Duke O'Gordon" (13 texts, 9 tunes)

BROADSIDES:
NLScotland, L.C.Fol.70(46a), "Captain Glen" ("As I was walking to take the air"), unknown, c.1890
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Bonnie Lass o' Fyvie" (tune, according to Greig/Duncan1)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Bonnie Betsy Gordon
There Cam' a Ship
Bonnie Jeannie Gordon

NOTES [51 words]: Greig/Duncan1: Version B was from "about fifty years ago. Noted 29th July 1907." - BS
It's probably just coincidence that the captain in this song has the same name as the guilty officer in "Captain Glen/The New York Trader (The Guilty Sea Captain A/B)" [Laws K22] -- but perhaps one suggested the other. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD1053

Noble Duke of York, The
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the Noble Duke of York, He had (ten) thousand men, He marched them up to the top of the hill And he marched them down again. And when they were up, they were up, And when they were down they were down...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1892 (Northall), but see NOTES
KEYWORDS: army nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE,So) Britain(England(West),Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (12 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1592, "The Grand Old Duke of York" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 99, "The Duke of York" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 99, "The Duke of York" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 14-15, "The Grand Old Duke of York" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 549, "Oh, the brave old Duke of York" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 45, "The Grand Old Duke of York" (1 text, 1 tune)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #201, p. 138, "(Oh, the brave old Duke of York)"
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 42, "(The grand old Duke of York)" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 390, "The Noble Duke of York" (1 text)
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 52, "The Grand Old Duke of York" (1 text)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 58, "The Grand Old Duke of York" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: G.F. Northall, English Folk-Rhymes (London, 1892 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 98-99 (4 texts) (see Notes)
ST FSWB390B (Full)
Roud #742
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "A-Hunting We Will Go" (tune of some versions)
cf. "The Famous Duke of York" (probable subject)
NOTES [1174 words]: Since the Dukedom of York is usually bestowed upon the Prince of Wales's oldest brother (that is, the second son of the reigning monarch), or other fairly senior prince, there have been a lot of them in history, and many of them important. This makes it hard to be certain which Duke of York (if any) might be the subject of this little satire. I've seen suggestions over the years, but not one was convincing enough for me to remember it until I had to write this entry. The standard suggestion seems to be that it was Frederick Augustus (1763-1827), second son of George III, who was made a soldier in spite of what was regarded at the time as a clear lack of ability in this department. The Baring-Goulds go so far as to specify the hill as Mount Cassel in Belgium. But even they admit the rhyme does not resemble actual events -- and the Opies quote Burne's account of York's campaigns, which points out that Frederick of York's army never came within ten miles of Mount Cassel.

In any case, I can imagine candidates going back all the way to Richard, Duke of York from 1415. Or maybe even his uncle, who was killed at Agincourt and who was treated as something of a buffoon by later historians -- a Tudor account has it that he fell and was smothered because he was so fat, although contemporary sources do not support this (Barker, p. p. 303)

We should note that the Shakespeare characterization of Richard of York, in the Henry VI plays, is all wrong. He "was" rightful King of England, but he never sought the throne until Margaret of Anjou forced him to do so. Hence a sufficiently anti-Lancastrian partisan could have mocked him for his hesitation. On the other hand, Shakespeare in Henry V is at least as close to the truth about Edward Earl of York as were the Tudor historians."

If we assume that the Noble Duke is indeed Frederick Augustus, as is widely assumed, we should note that this description of him is a little unfair. Perhaps it was just his general appearance. Sinclair-Stevenson, p. 119, who notes that he was groomed from an early age to be an officer, quotes Lord Cornwallis's description of him: "The Royal Person whom I saw does not give much hope, further than a great deal of good nature and a very good heart. His military ideas are those of a wild boy of the Guards."

As a field commander, he was genuinely poor. Frederick fought in Flanders from 1793 to 1794, when he was defeated at Turcoing and recalled. He also had a bad experience in the Low Countries in 1799. Being a prince, however, he eventually was made a field marshal (Chandler/Beckett, p. 146). And, having achieved that rank, he proved himself a good manager, enacting needed reforms in the army when commander-in-chief (Chandler/Beckett, pp. 147-148). Keegan/Wheatcroft, p. 337, say that "As commander-in-chief... from 1798 until his death, he proved an efficient administrator and... apparently not a corrupt one. He was called 'the soldier's friend,' though probably not by the soldiers themselves."

Similarly Brumwell/Speck, p. 432, "Long ridiculed as the hapless 'Grand Old Duke of York'... [he] has more recently received recognition for his role in reforming the British army that was to emerge victorious during the Revolutionary and Napoleonic Wars."

Haddick-Flynn, p. 211, gives a mixed description, saying "The Duke of York was intelligent, outgoing and boisterous.... He was a big, coarse man with a high-coloured face and an intimidating growl. In a throwback to an earlier age, he had been consecrated bishop of onasbruck when six months od, not because of an infantile religious disposition but because of the vast revenues attached to the office. In 1793 he commanded an expedition against the French in Flanders and, after a courageous cavalry charge at Beaumont in April 1794, went on to an astonishing defeat the following month at Turgoing."

In quoting the song, Haddick-Flynn, pp. 211-212, says that "[D]espite his reputation for rudeness, boozing and whoring, the Duke had his admirers, and some regretted that he was caricatured in the nursery rhyme.... He was responsible for a number of useful military reforms, and founded teh Duke of York's Royal Military School (later Sandhurst Military Academy)."

Chandler/Beckett, p. 141, credits him with helping impose the manual of maneuver used during the Napoleonic Wars (before that, local commanders drilled their men pretty much as they liked) and on pp. 142-143, with working to somewhat limit commission by purchase (although he couldn't eliminate it -- given the massive expense of the Napoleonic Wars, the government needed the money!).

But the public doesn't remember administrative accomplishments. What it would remember about the Duke of York was his failures in the field and, perhaps, a scandal involving his mistress and the purchasing of commissions (Keegan/Wheatcroft, p. 337; Brumwell/Speck, p. 432). Which might well be enough to make him the target of this song.

There is a biography by A. H. Burne, which I have not seen, entitled The Noble Duke of York. Gomme describes this as the music for a game, "Find the Ring."

There is a nursery rhyme, "The King of France went up the hill" (Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes, #173; Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #209, p. 144) which looks as if it might be a parody of this -- although the Opies date it to the reign of Charles I. (Apparently it is from one of the Sloane manuscripts, which would certainly make it sixteenth or seventeenth century -- but they do not quote the Sloane form.) If the Sloane form is indeed the inspiration for the York version, then the parody is presumably the other way. No matter which Duke of York it was, his hill also has its folklore. According to Kellett, pp. 52-54, ""The hill up and down which old Duke Frederick marched his 'ten thousand men' in the old song is said to have been the mound in Allerton Park (near the A1, north of Wetherby), on which stands the eighteenth century folly known as the Temple of Victory. Other traditions say the hill was at Crayke, N Yorks or Cassal, near Dunkerque." - RBW

Northall has the following texts:
"The King of France with twenty thousand men, Went up the hill and then came down again; The King of Spain with twenty thousand more, Climb'd up the same hill the French had climbed before." "The King of France went up the hill with twenty thousand men, The King of France came down, etc., And ne'er went up again."
"The King of France and four thousand men, They drew their swords and put 'em up again."
"O, the mighty King of France/Duke of York, With his twenty thousand men .... (continues with the usual text). - BS

The version involving the King of France appears to be at least a quarter of a century older than Northall. According to Glatthaar, p. 243, in early 1863 a Confederate artillerist wrote, "we have been playing the part of the King of France, marched up the hill and then down again." I can't cite this as the earliest date, though, because I can't absolutely prove it an allusion to this song. - RBW

Bibliography

- Barker: Juliet Barker, Agincourt, 2005 (I use the 2007 Back Bay paperback edition)
- Keegan/Wheatcroft: John Keegan and Andrew Wheatcroft, Who’s Who in Military History from 1453, 1976, 1987 (I use the 1991 LPR reprint)

DESCRIPTION: A girl's lover has been pressed to sea. She carefully disguises herself as a duke -- with such success that the ship's crew is afraid of her. She accuses her lover of robbery. He denies it. She reveals herself, and there is a happy reunion

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: pressgang cross-dressing ship trick reunion disguise

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE) Ireland

REFERENCES (4 citations):

Laws N15, "The Noble Duke"

Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H584, p. 331, "The True Lovers' Departure" (1 text, 1 tune)

Thomas-DevilsDitties, pp. 76-78, "The Noble Duke" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT 803, NOBLDUKE*

Roud #238

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Simple Ploughboy
The Pretty Ploughboy

File: LN15
Noble Eighth of December, The

DESCRIPTION: "When our fleet left Abrohlos rocks," they set out to find Graf von Spee. They arrive in the Falklands to avenge the Monmouth and Good Hope. The Germans are surprised when they arrive. The British ships sink most of the Germans

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: navy battle Germany

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

Nov 1, 1914 - Battle of Coronel. Admiral Graf von Spee sinks the HMS Good Hope and HMS Monmouth

Dec 8, 1914 - Battle of the Falkland Islands. Admiral Sturdee's British fleet sinks all but one of von Spee's ships, effectively ending the German threat in the South Pacific

FOUND IN: Falkland Islands

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, pp. 78-80, "The Noble Eighth of December" (1 text, with tune on p. 152)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Battle of the Falkland Islands" (subject of the Battle of the Falklands)
cf. "Coal Ship Song (III)" (subject of the ship Kent)

NOTES [4358 words]: Germany, when World War I began, was in an interesting situation. It had almost no overseas colonies -- but it had various ships on overseas stations. The Goeben and Breslau are the subject of "Dardanelles Patrol Song." But they were relatively close to home. The Germans ships based farthest from Europe were those of the East Asia Squadron of Graf Maximilian von Spee -- Germany's one and only foreign Kreuzergeschwander or cruiser squadron, based in what was then known as Tsingtao (Yates, p. 1) -- the modern Qingdao.

Graf Spee, born 1861, was the fifth son of a Catholic family that had been ennobled (granted the "von") in the early 1700s. He had joined the navy at the age of 18, and stayed with it despite contracting a "rheumatic fever" that periodically troubled him for the rest of his life. He married in 1889, having three children. His two sons, Otto and Heinrich, also joined the navy; at the time of this song, Otto was on the Nürnberg and Heinrich on the Gneisenau, both ships in their father's squadron. The elder Spee became a rear admiral in 1910, then was promoted to vice admiral in command of the China station in 1913 (Yates, pp. 28-29). His photos, with his handsome but stern face and short beard, show a man who seems to have been born to play Mephistopheles in a production of "Faust."

Graf Spee had five ships at his command, the armored cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the lighter Emden, Leipzig, and Nürnberg (Farquharson-Roberts, p. 52), plus some others in the Pacific but not part of his squadron. They were some of the best-trained, most professional ships in the German fleet. They were also, at a time when Britain had the largest fleet in the world by a large margin, little more than sitting ducks, too far from home to survive. At the time the war began, they were training in the Caroline Islands, well away from their base (Marder, p. 104). With no possible reinforcements closer than Germany, and located very close to Japan, which would soon ally with Britain and France (Tsingtao fell to the Japanese and British on November 7; Farquharson-Roberts, p. 54), they would easily be swept up if they returned to their base in China. Graf Spee himself said, "I am quite homeless. I cannot reach Germany. We possess no other secure harbour. I must plough the seas of the world doing as much mischief as I can, until my ammunition is exhausted, or a foe far superior in power succeed in catching me" (Yates, p. 78). So what should his squadron do?

Graf Spee decided on a bold course: he would attack. He sent the Emden off on what proved an incredibly successful raiding expedition (Farquharson-Roberts, p. 53) and took the rest of his ships, plus the Dresden which had been in the South Atlantic (Farquharson-Roberts, p. 55), toward the trade routes off South America. He didn't have much to fear as long as his location did not become known; except for one battlecruiser, HMS Australia, there was nothing in the Pacific as strong as his two biggest ships (Yates, p. 12).

The Germans raided several islands in the next few weeks (Yates, pp. 83-85), and because most of the places he hit did not have wireless, the British did not get word in a timely enough way to catch him. Spee reached the Chilean coast around the end of October (Marder, p. 104). The British weren't entirely unprepared; they had a squadron in the area, consisting of the armored cruisers Good Hope and Monmouth, the light cruiser Glasgow, and the armed merchant cruiser Otranto (Marder, p. 104) under the command of Admiral Christopher "Kit" Cradock. The problem was, the squadron was basically junk. Otranto was so weak that Cradock refused even to commit her to battle (Beekman, p. 29). Good Hope was the strongest -- she had two 9.2" guns, and no other British ship had a gun heavier than 6" -- but she was also manned by reservists; Cradock had chosen her as his flagship not because he thought her any good but because she was the fastest of the few armored cruisers available to him, and he had earlier in the war failed to intercept an enemy and wanted to be able to keep up with the Germans in future (Yates, p. 106). But even Good Hope had only the two 9.2" guns; the rest of her weapons were 6" guns, mostly mounted in lower-deck casemates which reduced their range and left them hard to use in heavy seas. Monmouth had a lot of 6" guns, but again mounted low; Jacky Fisher said of this class of ships that "Sir William White designed the 'County' class but forgot the guns" and that "with their wretched pea-shooters, they can neither fight nor run" (Yates, p. 135).

The Admiralty knew that Cradock didn't have enough force to deal with Graf Spee, but rather than combine his tiny squadron with another, or send him a modern ship, they sent the Canopus, a pre-dreadnought battleship. She outgunned Spee -- her main armament was four 12" guns -- but her armor was poor, she was due for scrapping, and she had recently spent much time in dockyard hands and was manned by a bunch of reservists. Yates, p. 123, thinks her guns were so old that Graf Spee's lighter guns actually had greater range (although less punch), and certainly the German weapons were more likely to be accurate. Also, Canopus's speed had fallen off, and even at her best, she had been too slow to keep up with the Germans (Marder, pp. 104-106). Just how slow she had become would prove a crucial question in the coming weeks; the Admiralty thought she could manage 15 knots (faster for short bursts), but Cradock thought she was limited to 12 knots (Marder, p. 107; Yates, p. 130; on p. 134, Yates explains that her Chief Engineer suffered from delusions and did not even know the state of the engines, and so reported 12 knots as her maximum speed until others realized his problems and set him aside). Craddock was told of the 12 knot speed, which made her hopeless if Cradock was to pursue the Germans.

Cradock had at one time ordered the cruiser Defence to join him from another Atlantic squadron, which would have roughly doubled his squadron's effective strength -- enough to at least give him a chance against Spee. The Admiralty ordered her not to go to him (Marder, p. 108). Yet Cradock went out to fight. It's not clear why Cradock did what he did -- he did not survive, and neither did any of his staff. Some have thought him too aggressive. Others think he felt he could at least do enough damage to the Germans to let other squadrons catch Graf Spee. But the navigating officer of the Glasgow, the one ship to survive the debacle, had another hypothesis, which many think correct; "The Defence was refused to him and he was as good as told he was skulking at [Port] Stanley. What else was there for him to do except go and be sunk? He was a very brave man and they were practically calling him a coward. If we hadn't attacked that night, we might never have seen [the German fleet] again, and then the Admiralty would have blamed him for not fighting." And we know Cradock was worried about how he would be treated, because he wrote another officer, "I will take care I do not suffer the fate of poor Troubridge" (Marder, p. 111; Yates, p. 131. Admiral Troubridge had been court-martialed for refusing to engage the German battlecruiser Goeben with a fleet of ships that were individually weaker but collectively, arguably, stronger, see "Dardanelles Patrol Song").

Whatever Cradock's thinking, he took his under-strength squadron to the waters off Coronel, Chile (about 500 kilometers/300 miles south of Santiago), where they met Graf Spee's force on the first day of November 1914. The result was "what [Winston] Churchill has called 'the saddest naval action of the war,' the Battle of Coronel" (Marder, p. 101).

Neither side expected the battle they got. The Glasgow, Cradock's fastest and newest ship, had been sent north to pick up messages, and heard radio chatter that turned out to be from the Leipzig. The Germans heard that Glasgow was in the area. So the Germans were coming to try to catch Glasgow; the British were coming to try to catch Leipzig. Instead, both fleets found the other (Marder, pp. 112-113; Yates, p. 136).

The table on p. 109 of Marder shows just how much of a mismatch the battle was. The German ships had a total weight of broadside almost 50% greater than Cradock's -- and that was counting all the British guns, many of which could not be fired in the rough waters of the South Pacific. Plus, the Germans had twelve 8" guns; other than the two 9.2" guns in Good Hope, Cradock had nothing better than a 6", so the Germans had him outranged (Marder, p. 113). And even if you ignore that, the Gneisenau had won prizes for her gunnery, and the Scharnhorst was almost as good, and the British ships weren't even manned by regulars and hadn't had any chances for gunnery practice! (Marder, pp. 109-110). And the German ships had better armor, which was probably strong enough to keep out 6" shells.

Cradock should have known better than to underestimate Graf Spee, too; the two had met each other at the time of the Boxer Rebellion, and were even said to be friends (Yates, p. 137. After the battle, when Spee visited Chile, he was at a banquet where a man cursed the British navy. Spee... stood, lifted his glass, declared, "I drink to the memory of a gallant and honorable foe," drank the toast, and stormed out; (Yates, p. 181).

When the two forces met about fifty miles to the west of the town of Coronel, Chile, Graf Spee's battle management was exemplary. Using his superior speed, he held off battle until even the light favored his ships (Beekman, p. 27). And his ships served him well. Scharnhorst's first salvo at Good Hope was short, the second long; the third hit -- and is thought to have destroyed one of Good Hope's two 9.2" guns (Yates, p. 139). Craddock's supply of useful weapons had been cut in half before he even opened fire. Gneisenau hit Monmouth at about the same time, before Monmouth even got close enough to fire. Within minutes, the two biggest British ships had suffered dozens of hits and were clearly ruined. After about fifty minutes, Good Hope apparently suffered a magazine explosion (Yates, p. 141).

The Otranto, a big slow target with few useful weapons, had already fled by then. The Glasgow had suffered several hits, one of which created a large hole above the waterline but did not slow her down. Cradock was gone. Captain Brandt of the Monmouth had stopped answering signals. Captain Luce of the Glasgow, although the junior captain, was on his own. He knew he had no chance of surviving if he stayed, and little chance of hurting the Germans, and someone needed to report the outcome. He fled at top speed (Yates, pp. 142-143). The battle of Coronel was over. Graf Spee's ships suffered only trivial damage; their only casualties were two or three men on Gneisenau with minor injuries (Marder, p. 114). There were no survivors from either Good Hope or Monmouth (Farquharson-Roberts, p. 58). It is not even known where Good Hope went down, although the Monmouth was seen after the battle, in dreadful condition and unable to fire her guns but still afloat; the Nürnberg found her with her flag still flying, and since no one took the flag down, the Nürnberg sank her with all hands (Yates, p. 143).

It was not really a bad defeat; the British had lost two cruisers they would be better off without, and about 1600 men -- the latter harder to replace, but they were not well-trained, and this was World War I; if the British didn't want casualties, they would have done something about bloody-minded generals like Douglas Haig. The real problem with Coronel was that it was such a one-sided defeat: the British had lost two ships and had barely scratched the German vessels' paint. The psychological harm was much worse than the effect on the fleet. (And, similarly, the psychological boost to the Germans was out of all proportion; the Kaiser gave Spee the Iron Cross, first class, and told him to hand out 300 second class crosses to the men of his command; Yates, p. 186.) Despite his victory, Graf Spee was starting to run out of resources; he had only about 900 8" shells left for his two big cruisers (Marder, p. 118), less than half of a full supply, and had sent away most of the colliers which had supplied him with coal so far. He needed to get home to resupply, particularly since the Admiralty was determined to deal with him. The problem for the British was, Graf Spee could go anywhere -- through the Panama Canal (perhaps to attack trade in the West Indies), or around Cape Horn (to patrol either the Latin American or African coasts), or back across the Pacific to haunt the Indian Ocean. Graf Spee would be overwhelmed -- if he could be found. Spee made it surprisingly easy to find him. He decided to head for the Falklands, presumably to head into the mid-Atlantic. It was the main British base in the South Atlantic, but it was not very big or elaborate and was thought to be poorly defended; he could do some damage there even as he started for home.

The defenses were better than he thought. After he learned of Coronel, Captain Grant of the Canopus retreated to the Falklands; the ship eventually grounded itself, with the crew preparing defenses for the port. (Yates, p. 196). They probably wouldn't have been enough to prevent an invasion if left un-reinforced, but they could potentially give the Germans a nasty surprise. And the Admiralty's response was rapid and dramatic. Having refused to take Graf Spee seriously enough before the battle, they now took him perhaps too seriously and sent an overwhelming force. The battlecruiser Princess Royal was sent to the West Indies, and the battlecruisers Inflexible and Invincible were pulled out of the Home Fleet to the South Atlantic to catch Spee -- even though Invincible was in bad enough shape that the dockyards insisted she wasn't ready to sail (Wragg, pp. 64-65). The force was also allocated five cruisers, most of which had been in the area -- Coronel survivor Glasgow, plus Carnarvon, Kent, Bristol, and Cornwall (Farquharson-Roberts, p. 60). That was enough that they might be able to beat Graf Spee even without the big ships. Forces of cruisers were sent to the northern and southern coasts of Africa, to cover other points Graf Spee might attack (Marder, pp. 118-119).

To command the armada chasing Graf Spee, First Sea Lord Jackie Fisher chose Vice Admiral Doveton Sturdee. This wasn't because Fisher liked Sturdee; indeed, despised him, and held him to blame for the mis-allocation of forces that had led to Coronel (Farquharson-Roberts, p. 60; Massie, p. 525, explains that Sturdee had been chief of staff to Fisher's enemy Charles Beresford). Fisher's verdict on the earlier dispositions in the southern hemisphere was "Strong nowhere, weak everywhere!" (Marder, p. 120), which is absolutely correct and led to Cradock being so heavily overmatched, but how much of that is Sturdee's fault is a different question. I think Sturdee does bear some of the blame, but Winston Churchill, who was in charge of the Admiralty, deserves plenty of blame also.

Curiously, the Admiralty did not order Sturdee to hurry, or even to assure that his mission was secret; Sturdee almost went out of his way to advertise his voyage, even stopping to inspect merchantmen along the way south, and stopping at ports where there were German ships and ships of neutrals friendly to Germany (Yates, pp. 184-185).

Sturdee was very lucky, though. Graf Spee didn't hear of Sturdee's voyage, even though there were many wireless reports about it. Sturdee dawdled somewhat on his way south (which makes me think Fisher's charges about his competence at least partially true), finally arriving at the Abrolhos Rocks off Brazil for a supply stop on November 26 (Yates, p. 190). He still seemed inclined to dawdle -- he wanted to spend three days there -- but was convinced by Captain Luce of the Glasgow (Yates, p. 191) to accelerate his voyage; he arrived at the Falkland Islands on December 7. He immediately set about coaling his ships (Marder, p. 120).

It was lucky Sturdee had hurried on the last leg -- and lucky that bad weather around Cape Horn had caused the Germans to delay to rest (Yates, p. 191). By an incredible coincidence, Graf Spee arrived in the Falklands the morning after Sturdee.

Spee, who had performed so brilliantly to this point, had started making mistakes after Coronel -- Yates, p. 182, suggests that he was psychologically worn out after the long campaign. Around the time of Coronel, the German authorities had officially granted him the permission to come home. Yet he waited ten days before deciding on his next move, only then deciding to head home by way of the Falklands. It was the only British base in the south Atlantic (Yates, p. 193), and he wanted to destroy it even though the majority of his captains, including the exceptional Captain Maerker of Gneisenau, wanted to bypass it (Yates, p. 193).

At Coronel, Spee had done everything right. At the Falklands, he blew it. Having reached the islands, he sent two ships, the Gneisenau and the Nürnberg, to reconnoiter. Sturdee's own ships didn't spot them, but the other lookouts who had been set up by the Canopus did (including one near Sapper's Hill, as mentioned in the song; Yates, p. 198). The Canopus, with some difficulty, passed along to raise the alarm (the battlecruisers, wrapped around by the dust of their coaling, didn't see ordinary signals (Yates, p. 196). This alerted Sturdee, who was shaving at the time (Yates, p. 197); it also alerted the Germans (Marder, p. 121). Most commentators think that if Graf Spee had taken all his ships straight in and blockaded the narrow entrance to the harbor, he could have beaten the British ships in detail, despite the immense edge in gun weight of the British battlecruisers -- after all, the two big ships were not ready to fight; they would need two hours or so to get up steam (Yates, p. 198). But the observant German lookouts had seen tripod masts, which at this time were found only on heavy British ships, so they told Spee that there were battlecruisers in Stanley Harbor. Spee (who probably didn't believe it) ordered his scouts back and started to flee. He thought he would find Canopus-class ships, which he could not outfight but could outrun -- and so he decided to run (Yates, p. 199). But Sturdee's ships were faster than he thought. And, because the Germans were fleeing, the British could set out in an orderly way to follow the Germans.

Once his fleet as at sea, Sturdee arguably made another error that didn't cost him, ordering a "General Chase" rather than giving specific orders for a pursuit (Marder, p. 122). That order could have led to chaos. But, because his ships had such an edge in firepower, plus the battlecruisers were several knots faster than Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, Sturdee was able to catch up. When Sturdee's big ships finally got close enough to threaten the Leipzig, Spee made the odd decision to turn his two big ships around and fight in hopes the smaller ships would escape (Yates, p. 204). It was a strange battle, with Spee trying to get closer to the British so he could use all his weaponry, while the British tried to stand off (Marder, pp. 122-123). This spared the big British ships from damage, but the long range meant that relatively few of the British shells hit (the lesser British ships were stunned by the big ships' crummy shooting; Yates, p. 203); it took a very long time to sink Spee's ships. Sturdee's maneuvers didn't help, because he kept obscuring his gunsights in his own funnel smoke (Marder, p. 126); in the end, he used up so much ammunition that he might have been in trouble had he met a significant German force on the way home.

Ironically, when Spee became sure there was no hope for Scharnhorst, he apparently tried the same maneuver used by Cradock at Coronel: he charged his attackers as if to ram, while ordering Gneisenau to try to escape (Yates, p. 209). But it was too late. As for Gneisenau, she apparently fired until she had used up every 8" shell in her magazines (Yates, p. 210). When there was no further hope, Captain Maerker opened her seacocks and ordered her abandoned (Yates, p. 211). When Spee had turned around to make his last stand, the smaller British cruisers went after the German small fry. That took longer, but Glasgow and Cornwall sank the Leipzig around 8:30 p.m. Two British ships that sailed later, Bristol and Macedonia, took care of several colliers (Marder, p. 122; see also the map on p. 205 of Yates). Most amazingly, the Kent managed to catch and sink the Nürnberg at 7:30 despite being slower and weaker (she, like the Cornwall, was a sister ship of Cradock's Monmouth). Kent's crew had gone all-out to catch up, even chopping up wooden furniture to try to raise more steam (Yates, p. 216). Only the Dresden the fastest German ship, got away, to be tracked down the next year; the others, after so long without dockyard maintenance, probably could not reach their design speeds (Yates, p. 213).

The Scharnhorst went down around 4:15 with all hands, including Graf Spee; 176 men were rescued from Gneisenau, which lasted until around 6:00 p.m. (Farquharson-Roberts, p. 60), meaning that the British, with no enemies left in the vicinity were able to pick up survivors after she sank. Both ships had had the chance to surrender (Marder, p. 123); neither did, even though their ships were obviously past saving and there was no point in continuing the fight. There were just eighteen survivors from Leipzig (Yates, p. 215). Only seven men from Nürnberg survived; she had done Kent enough damage that the British ship had only two boats left to lower, making rescue operations difficult (Yates, p. 218).

British casualties were light. Invincible took 22 hits but no casualties; Inflexible had taken three hits and had one man dead and two wounded (Yates, p. 212). Cornwall had suffered eighteen hits but no killed or wounded. Glasgow had suffered two hits, one to a boiler, and had one killed and four wounded (Yates, pp. 215-216). Kent, which had taken 38 hits, had sixteen total casualties, not all of them fatal (Yates, p. 218) -- although it took some time for her to report; her wireless had been knocked out and she had used so much coal that she had to steam back to Port Stanley at very low speed (Yates, pp. 219-220).

The British finally caught up with the Dresden in 1915; she was out of ammunition and coal. When she was found by Glasgow and Kent in the Juan Fernández islands, Captain Lüdecke raised the white flag after being hit by a few shells and sent Wilhelm Canaris, the future German intelligence admiral, to play for time while Lüdecke scuttled her (Farquharson-Roberts, p. 61; Yates, p. 234). She had seven killed and sixteen wounded; the British took the latter to hospital while the rest were interned (Yates, p. 235). Glasgow, which had been the only cruiser to survive Coronel, was thus present to see all five of Graf Spee's ships go to the bottom, and Captain Luce, who had done so well to escape Coronel and had convinced Sturdee to hurry to the Falklands, had the honour of being in charge of the squadron that finally tracked her down. The Chileans did protest Luce's actions as a violation of their neutrality, but accepted the British apologies (Yates, pp. 235-236).

Sturdee was given a baronetcy in the 1916 honours (Marder, p. 124), plus a grant of £10,000, making him financially secure for the rest of his life (Yates, p. 297). As Sturdee himself told his flag captain, "Well, Beamish, we were sacked from the Admiralty, but we've done pretty well" (Yates, p. 222). But there were many who thought it undeserved -- how much skill does it take to beat an enemy you have outgunned who kindly shows up on your doorstep all but begging to be destroyed? The doubts were such that he never again held another independent fleet command. He was made Admiral of the Fleet in 1921 (Yates, p. 297), but there was no German navy to fight by then!

As Marder, p. 126, observes, "The Falklands will never be cited in naval literature as an example of a tactical masterpiece. Strategically, however, the consequences were profound." It raised British spirits, and it all but eliminated German commerce raiders; British merchant ships were safe -- until spirits, and it all but eliminated German commerce raiders; British merchant ships were safe -- until...
Noble Fisherman, The, or, Robin Hood's Preferment [Child 148]

DESCRIPTION: Robin goes to sea as a fisherman. He is scoffed at as a lubber, but when the fishing vessel is approached by a French ship of war his prowess with the bow permits the fishermen to take it and its cargo of gold.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1663 (garland); a song that was likely this one was entered into the Stationer's Register in 1631

KEYWORDS: Robinhood ship battle

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (9 citations):
Child 148, "The Noble Fisherman, or, Robin Hood's Preferment" (1 text)
Bronson 148, comments only
Ritson-RobinHood, pp. 183-186, "The Noble Fisher-Man; or, Robin Hoods Preferment" (1 text)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 124, "The Noble Fisherman or Robin Hood's Preferment" (1 text)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, RZN15, "In summer time when leaves grow green"

ADDITIONAL: Stephen Knight, editor (with a manuscript description by Hilton Kelliher), _Robin Hood: The Forsters Manuscript_ (British Library Additional MS 71158), D. S. Brewer, 1998, pp. 17-22, "Robin Hood's Fishing" (1 text, with substantial differences from the broadside and garland versions)
Stephen Knight and Thomas Ohlgren, editors, _Robin Hood and Other Outlaw Tales_, TEAMS (Consortium for the Teaching of the Middle Ages), Medieval Institute Publications, Western Michigan University, 2000, pp. 581-591, "Robin Hood's Fishing" (1 text, primarily from the Forsters manuscript rather than the broadsides used by Child)
MANUSCRIPT: {MSForresters}, London, British Library MS. Additional 71158, the "Foresters Manuscript," item 4

Roud #3958

NOTES [601 words]: Rollins, p. 169, #1955, gives the Stationer's Register entry for what is presumably this song: "The Noble fisherman or Robin Hoods great Prize," registered June 13, 1631 by "Fran. Coles & partners."

For background on the Robin Hood legend, see the notes on "A Gest of Robyn Hode" [Child 117]. Dobson/Taylor, p. 179, say that Robin Hood has never "undergone a more bizarre transformation" than the one that sent him to sea, but the ballad nonetheless proved popular -- and it's worth noting that some similar outlaw tales also have interludes at sea.

Child mentions, in his notes on this ballad, that the romance of Eustac(h)e the Monk also has an episode in which the hero goes to sea. A stronger parallel might be the tale of Hereward the Wake, Hereward too takes on the disguise of a fisherman (chapter 25). Both the Hereward tale and Eustace's story are considered sources for the early forms of the Robin Hood legend (though not of later songs such as this). But I would incline to consider the Hereward tale a more likely source for this later ballad, even though the parallel may not be as close. The tale of Eustace survives in only a single manuscript, and is unlikely to have been well known in the late sixteenth or early seventeenth century; Hereward's tale was always popular.

Chambers, p. 131, notes the existence of a ship Robyn Hude at Aberdeen in 1438, which is another interesting nautical link (cf. Knight/Ohlgren, p. 581), but the significance of this is unclear. Similarly, Bett, p. 17, mentions a Robin Hood's Bay near Whitby in Yorkshire, but there are so many sites named for Robin Hood that they cannot all be associated with the original form of the legend (whatever that original form was).

For additional details on the Eustace version, see the summary in Cawthorne, pp. 121-131, or the translation in Knight/Ohlgren. For Hereward, see Linklater, pp. 238-239, Baldwin, pp. 35-26, or, again, the translation in Knight/Ohlgren.

Knight/Ohlgren, p. 582, suggest that this is sort of a "Robin Hood and the Potter" [Child 121] converted to a sea setting; they give it relatively high praise for one of the late ballads. It is true that Robin goes incognito and takes up a trade -- but the direction of the song is completely different. And I am not impressed with the internal logic of the piece.

To be fair, piracy was definitely a problem in the medieval period; with no international agreements and no world-spanning navy (no navies at all, really), it was often "every ship for itself." Hewitt, p. 24, notes fourteen known instances of piracy during the reign of Edward III, including five by English mariners in the year 1354 alone. Given the scantiness of our records, and the fact that many victims of pirates would not have survived to report it anyway, it would seem likely that there were in fact dozens of incidents involving English ships each year -- although in many cases the English were the pirates, not the victims.

The first few verses of this often contain a sort of an ode to the sailor's life, calling it a profitable calling. It can hardly have been more profitable than being an outlaw, if the "Gest" is accurate describing Robin's fortune. For that matter, according to Hewitt, p. 76, a sailor in the king's service early in the Hundred Years' War earned three pence a day. A good archer in Edward III's armies earned twice that. So it makes no sense for Robin to turn sailor even if he wanted to "go legit." I suspect these verses have floated in from a song praising fishermen. Possibly a fisherman decided that he wanted his own Robin Hood ballad.... - RBW

Bibliography

- Baldwin: David Baldwin, Robin Hood: The English Outlaw Unmasked, Amberley, 2010
- Bett: Henry Bett, English Myths & Legends, being apparently a single volume edition of two separate volumes, English Myths and English Legends, published with separate pagination and separate indices and no indication of the original date (I use the 1991 Dorset Press edition of the combined volumes)
- Cawthorne: Nigel Cawthorne, A Brief History of Robin Hood: The True History Behind the Legend, Running Press, 2010
- Chambers: E. K. Chambers, English Literature at the Close of the Middle Ages, Oxford, 1945, 1947

Last updated in version 5.3
File: C148

Noble Fleet of Sealers, A

DESCRIPTION: "There's a noble band of sealers being fitted for the ice, They'll take a chance again this year though fat's gone down in price...." The ships set out to take the seal. When they get back to St. John's, the sailors hope for good luck and good food

AUTHOR: unknown (see NOTES)
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, 3rd edition)
KEYWORDS: hunting ship travel
This song bears many resemblances, in the first verse and the melodic pattern, to "The Ferryland Sealer" -- which also derives from Newfoundland. But this piece has a different chorus, and the latter verses are different, so I tentatively distinguish them. If they are related, this is without doubt the newer song, since it mentions steam sealing ships; "The Ferryland Sealer" precedes the steamers.

This is also a very confusing song if you know the earlier, more familiar sealing pieces, because it mentions several names of ships that were famous at the turn of the twentieth century, but puts them under captains who never commanded them. For example, the first ship mentioned here is the Algerine; for the SS Algerine, see "Loss of the S. S. Algerine." If the ship involved were the SS Algerine that would force a date in no later than 1912, when that ship was lost. But the song lists the Algerine's skipper as Wilf Barbour -- a member of a famous family of sealers which also included among others George Barbour ("The Greenland Disaster (I)"), Alpheus Barbour ("Sealer's Song (II)"), and Baxter Barbour ("The Nimrod's Song"). The problem is, "Wilf Barbour" never commanded the SS Algerine (Chafe, pp. 87-88). My first guess was that "Wilf" was an error for "Alf"=Alpheus or perhaps "Will"=William. But neither Alpheus nor William Barbour ever commanded the Algerine either; indeed, no Barbour ever commanded her. The only commander with name anything like "Wilf Barbour" is Will(iam) Bartlett, commander of the Algerine in 1902-1903.

The next ship mentioned, the Viking, lasted longer, but no Captain Barbour commanded the SS Viking in the period that the Algerine was afloat; William Bartlett Senior skippered her 1904-1913, then William Bartlett Junior in 1914-1915, after which William Sr. took her back until 1927. I. Barbour commanded the Viking 1928-1929 (Feltham, p. 154). She blew up in 1931; see "To the Memory of the Late Captain Kennedy."

The SS Newfoundland is the subject of "The Newfoundland Disaster (I)." She was renamed in 1915 after the disaster, and sank the next year. At the time she sank, there had never been a sealing captain John Blackmore (Chafe, pp. 88, 97)

The Terra Nova isn't much of a dating hint; she first went to the ice in 1885 and mostly stayed there until shortly before her loss in World War II, apart from missing 1904-1905 and 1910-1913 to go to the Arctic and Antarctic. But she never had a Captain Charles Kean (Feltham, p. 134). She was, however, commanded by Abram Kean (the greatest of all the Kean family; see "Captain Abram Kean") 1906-1908, 1917-1926, 1932-1933 (and a few other Keans having her briefly in the 1920s). All those ships were mentioned in earlier songs in Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, which puts its songs in roughly chronological order. You can imagine that I was getting very confused by all those ships and wrong captains. And it got worse when I looked up the Arctic Sealer, because there was no such steamer in the period of the Algerine and the Newfoundland.

I finally realized that the solution is to look at a later stage of the seal fishery, when it was much smaller and less well-known. By the 1940s, the steamers -- and, indeed, the Newfoundland sealing industry itself -- were almost extinct. The original Terra Nova was lost in 1943, leaving only the J. H. Blackmore to go to the ice in 1943, and only the Eagle (for which see "The Ice-Floes") in 1944 (Candow, p. 107). The J. H. Blackmore was the first example of the replacement for the old steamers -- the small "motor vessels," or MVs. And, yes, her captain was the John Blackmore mentioned in this song, who later became the captain of the Newfoundland mentioned in this verse; for more about him, see "The Sinking of the Newfoundland."

"The appearance of motor vessels sparked a transformation of the industry. Their numbers rose to 11 in 1946, 15 in 1947, and a historic high of 21 in 1948 [Busch, p. 244, says there were 25 in 1948 but may have had a different method of counting]. The rise of the motor vessels broke the St. John's monopoly of the industry" (Candow, p. 108). Not one of the five that sailed in 1945 came from St. John's, and the five together were smaller than the Eagle (Busch, pp. 243-244). These were the first of the "long liners" that some readers may know, e.g., from Stan Rogers's "Make and Break Harbour." In 1946, twelve companies based in seven different ports sent out thirteen ships, with even more in the years that followed (Busch, p. 244).

So, for instance, an MV Terra Nova went out in 1948, commanded by Wilf Barbour; she was one of six MVs he commanded in his career (the others being Ice Hunger, Algerine, Arctic Prowler, Blue Seal, and Bessie Marie; Winsor, p. 101). There was also a Captain Charles Kean, who commanded the MV Terra Nova as well as the MVs Algerine and Blue Seal (Winsor, p. 104); there is a photo of Charles Kean on p. 73 of Winsor, and a photo of the new Terra Nova on p. 82); there was also an MV Catalina Trader as well as the MV J. H. Blackmore, which might help explain the references to Catalina and John Blackmore in the song (there is a very poor photo of the J. H. Blackmore on p. 80 of Winsor). In 1957, MV Algerine and MV Terra Nova went out, although not under Wilf Barbour: Wilf Barbour (of whom there is a photo on p. 72 of Winsor) commanded the Bessie Marie, with Harold Laite commanding the Algerine and Gus Carter the Terra Nova. The new Algerine was a 338 ton converted tug which had been built in 1943 (Candow, p. 146). I have no data when the MV Arctic Sealer sailed, but one of her captains was William Moss, who lived 1911-1969. And Sid Hill (1888-1961) also commanded her; having made his first voyage as a sealer in the Virginia Lake in 1907, his first command was of the steamer Eagle in 1933. (There was apparently another song about Sid Hill, and the Eagle, preserved in Hill's own family, that has never been printed; two verses are on p. 166 of Ryan-Last, and begin "Come all of you seal hunters and listen unto me, While I'll tell of the spring now in 1933.")

Hill soon was given command the much fancier ships Beothic and Imogene (DictNewfLabr, p. 155), then went on to command the MVs in the 1940s and 1950s. (Ryan/Drake, p. 82.;). Among the ships he commanded after World War II were the Arctic Sealer and the Arctic Prowler (DictNewfLabr, p. 155; Winsor, p. 103, says he commanded the MV Arctic Sealer for five years but does not mention the Arctic Prowler).

The description of Hill as the "Sailor's Friend" seems to have been true; Lester Andrews, who sailed under him, declared (a quarter century after Hill's death, so he wasn't buttering up the boss) that "The captains were all good men, but I'm going to speak my mind, and Captain Sidney Hill was my favorite. He had great ideas, and he was a man who could almost read your mind. And he was a great old fellow for getting seals aboard" (Ryan-Last, p. 108). And Lane Watson said, "As far as I'm concerned, the man above couldn't make no better than Captain Sid Hill. I loved him. He was really a gentleman." There is a photo of Hill on p. 73 of Winsor.

Since the MVs/long liners could also catch cod, they seemed ideal for Newfoundland conditions (Busch, p. 244).

But it was a short boom. There were only four MVs in 1950, and no steamers. The numbers bounced around after that, peaking at 12 in 1951, but by 1959, only one MV left; the demand for seal skins was too low to support an industry based in Newfoundland (Candow, p. 109) -- although the Norwegians would keep it up for years, and there were also sealers from Halifax. In 1958, Bowring Brothers, which had been owner of the largest sealing fleet for most of the preceding century, announced that they would bow out of the business, although it was a few more years before they actually made their exit (Candow, p. 110). Sealing as a Newfoundland industry was effectively dead by then. So this song probably dates from around 1950-1952. Since Doyle published it in 1955, it must have been quite new, even if Doyle didn't write it himself.

"Brewis," mentioned at the end, are part of "fish and brewis," a Newfoundland staple: "cod-fish cooked with hard tack or sea biscuit" (StoryKirwinWiddowson, pp. 176-177; 'brewis" being specifically bread [or hardtack or biscuit] soaked in boiling fat pottage, made of salt meat" (StoryKirwinWiddowson, p. 65) -- ultimately, it was fish and biscuit cooked with the fish oil and water.

Winsor has photos of the MV Algerine and the Arctic Sealer on p. 79. - RBW

Bibliography

- Chafe: Levi George Chafe, Chafe's Sealing Book: A History of the Newfoundland Sealfishery from the Earliest Available Records Down To and Including the Voyage of 1923, third
Noble Huntly

DESCRIPTION: "Noble Huntly great in fame And great in warlike story" has called for volunteers to prepare to repel a Bonaparte invasion. "What needs we o' our fleets to voust [boast]? Should he invade our British coast We'll show him soldiers to his cost"

AUTHOR: William Lillie (source: Greig/Duncan1)

EARLIEST DATE: 1803 (The Aberdeen Journal, according to Greig/Duncan1)

KEYWORDS: recruiting war Scotland Napoleon nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan1 74, "Noble Huntly" (1 text)
Roud #5797

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Tullochgorum" (tune, according to Greig/Duncan1)
cf. "Simon and Janet" (subject: the threatened invasion by Napoleon)

NOTES [37 words]: Greig/Duncan1: "Major-General the Marquis of Huntly (George Gordon, later the 5th Duke of Gordon) was in command of the Northern Military District at this time [1803] and inspected volunteers in Aberdeen on November 22." - BS

Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD1074

Noble Lads of Canada

DESCRIPTION: "Come all ye British heroes, I pray you lend your ears." The singer urges his comrades to defeat the Americans. They make for Plattsburg. The American fleet defeats the British. The British retreat and celebrate arriving home safely.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1847 (Forget-Me-Not-Songster); 1856 (Thompson-APioneerSongster)

KEYWORDS: war battle soldier drink

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Aug/Sept 1814 - Plattsburg campaign. As part of a three-pronged attack strategy (the other prongs being at Chesapeake Bay and the lower Mississippi), a British army of 11,000 regulars led by General Sir George Prevost and a naval force under Captain George Downie attack Lake Champlain.
Sept 6, 1814 - The British army reaches Plattsburg and awaits the navy
Sept 11, 1814 - Battle of Plattsburg. An American naval squadron under Captain Thomas Macdonough (1783-1825) defeats the British force in a fierce contest with very high casualties, compelling the British fleet to retreat in disorder. The British army, though under no military compulsion, retreats as well.

FOUND IN: US(MA)
Noble Ribbon Boys, The

DESCRIPTION: "It was on the first of May, my boys, in the year of thirty-one," 63 Ribbonmen went to the commons to fight Billies. On June 5 300 marched unchallenged to the commons. A health is drunk to those in jail and the "Manual and Platoon ... secrecy" is cited.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1831 (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)
KEYWORDS: violence Ireland political
FOUND IN:
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 39, "The Noble Ribbon Boys" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #V33209

NOTES [213 words]: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion p. 19: "In some parts of Ulster, Protestant and Catholic tenants were mingled and contended for the land; the peasantry was thus divided into two camps, each having its oath-bound association. This led to a sort of religious war. At the end of the eighteenth century the Catholic "Defenders" were opposed to the Protestant "Peep o'Day Boys" or "Orangemen." The "Defenders were succeeded by the "Ribbonmen," (song [Zimmermann] 39). In parts of counties Tyrone and Monaghan, according to Carleton [p. 19 fn. 14: W. Carleton's Autobiography, p. 83], the whole Catholic population was affiliated to Ribbonism, and it would have been dangerous to avoid being involved in the system." Zimmermann 34, "Owen Rooney's Lamentation": "My prosecutor swore so stout I was the man he saw, That encouraged all the Ribbonmen that came from Lisbellaw."
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion: "The 'Billies' were the Orangemen, whose hero was William of Orange." - BS
For another song of the Defenders and Peep o' Day Boys, see "Bold McDermott Roe." For other songs of the Ulster conflicts of this period, see "The Battle That Was Fought in the North," "Owen Rooney's Lamentation, "The Lamentation of James O'Sullivan," and possibly "March of the Men of Garvagh." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Zimm039

Noble Twenty-Fourth, The

DESCRIPTION: "A story came one morning From a far and distant land, That savages had massacred A small but gallant band. 'Gainst 20,000 foreign foes... 500 valiant English fought, And nobly fighting fell." Hearers should honor the 24th and "avenge your countrymen."

AUTHOR: Words: G. C. Anewick / Music: V. Davies (source: Winstock-SongsAndMusicOfTheRedcoats)
EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Winstock-SongsAndMusicOfTheRedcoats)
KEYWORDS: soldier death patriotic
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jan 22, 1879 - Battle of Isandlwana opens the Zulu War. Roughly 20,000 Zulus attacked some 2000 British and allied troops, killing almost all of the British including most of the 24th Regiment of Foot (2nd Warwickshire). (Source: Wikipedia)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Winstock-SongsAndMusicOfTheRedcoats, pp. 224-226, "The noble 24th" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #22076

CROSS-REFERENCES:
 cf. "The Blessed Zulu War" (subject of the Zulu War)
File: Wins224

Nobleman's Wedding, The (The Faultless Bride; The Love Token) [Laws P31]

DESCRIPTION: A man disguises himself to attend the wedding of the girl he loved before he went away. He sings a song that reminds her of her unfaithfulness and promises to return her love token. She swoons and returns to her mother's home. She dies before morning

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1827 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1)

KEYWORDS: disguise wedding infidelity death grief hardheartedness jealousy love marriage

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber,Bord)) US(MA,MW,NE,Ro,SE,So) Canada(Mar,Newf) Ireland

REFERENCES (24 citations):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 165-166, "The Faultless Bride" (1 text)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 105, "The Awful Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, p. 59, "The Famous Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #20, "The Bride's Death" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H60a, pp. 400-401, "An Old Lover's Wedding"; H60b, p. 401, "The Laird's Wedding" (2 texts, 2 tune, the second mixed with "All Around My Hat")
Graham-Joe-Holmes-SongsMusicTraditionsOfAnUlsterman 56, "The Nobleman's Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #24, pp. 1-2, "The Orange and Blue" (1 text); #88, p. 2, "(Oh, how could you sit at another man's table?)" (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan6 1199, "Down in Yon Valley" (24 texts, 14 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 132-133, "The Unconstant Lover" (1 text, 1 tune)
Stewart/Belle-Stewart-QueenAmangTheHeather, pp. 124-125, "Late Last Night" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 164, "The Nobleman's Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-ThelidiomOfThePeople 31, "Down in My Garden" (1 text)
Butterworth/Dawney-PloughboysGlory, p. 4, "All Around My Hat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 3, "All Round My Hat" (1 text)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 201, "Broken Hearted Bride" (1 text)
McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen 1, "Another Man's Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, pp. 158-159, "Green Willow" (1 text, probably this piece though not so listed by Laws)
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 75, "The Nobleman's Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peachcock, pp. 691-697, "Nobleman's Wedding" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
Karpeles-FolkSongsFromNewfoundland 30, "The Nobleman's Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 142-143, "To Wear a Green Willow" (1 text)
DT 509, NOBLEWED
ST LP31 (Partial)
Roud #567

RECORDINGS:
Eddie Butcher, "Another Man's Wedding" (on Voice06, IREButcher01)
Daisy Chapman, "Down in the Valley" (on SCDC Chapman01)
Sara Cleveland, "To Wear a Green Willow" (on SCleveland01)
Joe Heaney, "The Nobleman's Wedding" (on FSBFTX15)
Bride Power, "The Fatal Wedding" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Jim Rice, "The Nobleman's Wedding" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
F. Sutton, "Gay Wedding" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Maude Thacker, "The Famous Wedding" (on FolkVisions1 -- a very confused version)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Green Grows the Laurel" ("change the green and yellow for the orange and blue") and references there

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Green Willow Tree
The Forsaken Lover
The Inconstant Lover
The False Bride

NOTES [67 words]: According to Hazlitt's Dictionary of Faiths & Folklore, to wear the willow meant that one had been forsaken by a lover. For more in this theme, see the notes to "All Around My Hat (I)."

Roud lumps this with "All Around My Hat." That's really a stretch. - RBW
The "Awful Wedding" subgroup ("I'll tell you of an awful wedding"), despite the similarity in titles, is not "The Fatal Wedding." - PJS, RBW

Last updated in version 4.3
File: LP31

Nobody Knows

DESCRIPTION: The singer complains of being misunderstood: "Nobody knows how heavy my load, Nobody knows how thorny my road, Nobody knows cares if I'm troubled in the way, How dark the night, how dark the day." Only Jesus, who understands, will help

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl)

KEYWORDS: religious Jesus nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 171, "Nobody Knows" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST Wa171 (Partial)
Roud #7488

RECORDINGS:
Sue Thomas, "Nobody Knows" (on USWarnerColl01)

NOTES [21 words]: As Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl notes, this is NOT "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen." - RBW

File: Wa171

Nobody Knows How Tired We Are

DESCRIPTION: "Nobody knows how tired we are, Tired we are, Tired we are, Nobody knows how tired we are, And nobody seems to care." Or "Nobody knows how dry we are...." Reportedly sung at the end of a march

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)

KEYWORDS: hardtimes drink soldier

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 37, "Nobody Knows" (1 text)
Roud #10562

File: BrPa037D
Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen

DESCRIPTION: "Nobody knows the trouble I've seen, Nobody knows but Jesus." "Sometimes I'm up, sometimes I'm down, Oh, yes, Lord, Sometimes I'm almost to the ground...." The rest of the song describes the singer's life, usually in spiritual terms.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1865 (diary of William Francis Allen; printed 1867 in Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)

REFERENCES (13 citations):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 55, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Had" (1 text, with some rather unusual verses but clearly this; 1 tune)
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 232, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen" (1 text; p. 181 in the 1874 edition)
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 50, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" (1 text); pp. 57-58, "Oh, Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 615, "Nobody Knows" (1 short text)
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 211-212, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warren-EveryTimIFeelTheSpirit, pp. 68-69, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Arnett-IHearAmericaSinging, p. 110, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, p. 97, "Nobody Knows" (1 text)
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 302, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I See" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 358, "Nobody Knows The Trouble I've Seen" (1 text)
Fuld, pp. 391-391+, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen"

DT, NBDYKNWS

Roud #5438

RECORDINGS:
A. W. Adams, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" (OKeh 8361, 1926)
Marion Anderson, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen" (Victor 19560, 1925; rec. 1924)
Louis Armstrong, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" (Decca 2085, 1938)
Mildred Bailey w. Alec Wilder, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" (Columbia 35348, 1939)
Cotton Pickers Quartet, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" (Conqueror 8360, 1934; rec. 1931)
Vernon Dalhart, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" (Edison [BA] 3470, 1918)
Elkins Sacred Singers, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" (Cameo 830, 1925)
Excelsior Quartet, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" (OKeh 4636, 1922)
Fisk University Jubilee Singers, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" (Rainbow 724, c. 1922)
Caroline & May Floyd, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I See" (Champion 15103, 1926)
Jimmie Gordon’s Vip Vop Band ("Nobody Knows the Trouble I See", Decca 7764, 1940; rec. 1939)
Musical Artists Quartet, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen" (Columbia 1953-D, 1929; rec. 1928)
Paramount Singers, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" (Trilon 234, n.d. but probably c. 1939)
James Garfield Smalls, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I Seen" (on USSeasIsland03)
Paul Robeson, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen" (Victor 20068, 1926)
Southernaires Male Quartet, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen" (Decca 2859, 1939)
Edna Thomas, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I Sees" (Columbia 1863-D, 1929; rec. 1928)
Tuskegee Institute Singers, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" (Victor 18237, 1917; rec. 1915)

Last updated in version 6.0

File: Arn110

Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out

DESCRIPTION: Singer recalls once living high, but is now broke; friends no longer come around. "If I ever get my hands on a dollar again/Gonna hold onto it till that eagle grins." "If I ever get back on my feet again/Everybody wants to be my long lost friend"
Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out

DESCRIPTION: "If you join submarines and you've got any pride, You won't use Persil and you won't use Tide" or make any attempt to clean up; "Nobody washes in a submarine." When three men "die of the stink," they aren't buried at sea lest they get clean

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)

KEYWORDS: ship navy humorous derivative

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 118, "Nobody Washes in a Submarine" (1 text, tune referenced)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Nobody Loves Like an Irishman" (tune)
cf. "Diesel and Shale" (subject of odors on a submarine)

File: Tawn089

Nobody's Business

DESCRIPTION: Singer confesses to all sorts of infractions -- rambling, drinking, gambling -- but says it's "nobody's business if I do." He says he might even kill somebody; his girlfriend "runs a weenie stand..." and drives a Cadillac, but it's all nobody's business

AUTHOR: Porter Grainger, Clarence Williams, Graham Prince, Everett Robbins?

EARLIEST DATE: 1911 (JAFL)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer confesses to all sorts of infractions -- rambling, drinking, gambling -- but says it's "nobody's business if I do." He says he might even kill somebody; morphine, cocaine and women will drive him out of his mind; his money goes to buy his girlfriend fancy clothes; "she runs a weenie stand/way down in no man's land" and drives a Cadillac, but it's all nobody's business

KEYWORDS: sex homicide clothes gambling rambling drink nonballad whore

FOUND IN: US West Indies(Jamaica)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Murray-FolkSongsOfJamaica, pp. 34-35, "Nobody's Business" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: Noel Dexter and Geodfrey Taylor, _Mango Time: Folk Songs of Jamaica_
Roud #17344

RECORDINGS:

Emry Arthur, "Nobody's Business" (Vocalion 5230, 1928)
Jerry Behrens, "Nobody's Business" (Okeh 45564, 1932)
Tommie Bradley "Nobody's Business If I Do" (Champion 16696, 1933; Varsity 6055, n.d. [as by Big Richard]; rec. 1932; on GoodForWhatAilsYou)
Warren Caplinger's Cumberland Mountain Entertainers, "Nobody's Business" (Brunswick 224/Brunswick [Canada] 224, 1928)
Edric Connor with the Caribbeans and Earl Inkman, "Nobody's Business" (on WIEConnor01)
Ella Fitzgerald, Louis Jordan & his Tympany Five, "Ain't Nobody's Business If I Do" (Decca 27200, c. 1950)
Alberta Hunter, "Tain't Nobody's Biz-ness" (Paramount 12018, 1923)
Mississippi John Hurt, "Nobody's Dirty Business" (Okeh 8560, 1928; on MJHurt01, MJHurt02; on MJHurt05); "Nobody's Business" (Okeh 40389, 1925)
Earl Johnson & his Dixie Entertainers, "Ain't Nobody's Business" (Okeh 45092, 1927, on Rough2)
Lulu Belle & Scotty, "It Ain't Nobody's Bizness" (Okeh 04962, 1939)
Sara Martin w. Fats Waller "Tain't Nobody's Bus'ness If I Do" (Okeh 8043, 1923; rec. 1922)
Charles Nabell, "Nobody's Business" (Okeh 40389, 1925)
Riley Puckett, "Nobody's Business" (Bluebird B-6103, 1935; Bluebird B-8621, 1941)
Roy Sexton & his Arizona Hoedowners, "Nobody's Business" (Old Timer 8013, n.d.)
Bessie Smith, "Tain't Nobody's Business If I Do" (Columbia A3898, 1923)
Leo Soileau & his Aces, "Nobody's Business" (Decca 5101, 1935)
Peter Tosh, "Leave My Business" (on "Early Masters," (2009, on Goldenlane Records MP3 [recorded 1971; see NOTES])
Walker's Corbin Ramblers, "Nobody's Business" (Vocalion 01648, 1934)
Lena Wilson, "Tain't Nobody's Business If I Do" (Victor 19085, 1923)
Jimmy Witherspoon, "Ain't Nobody's Business, Pts. 1 & 2" (Supreme 1506/Swing Time 263, 1947)

SAME TUNE:

She Came from Kelligrews, She Likes Her Fish and Brewis (by Harry Mercer) (Cox-FolkMusicInANewfoundlandOutport, p. 161)

NOTES [344 words]: This shouldn't be confused with Will E. Skidmore & Marshall Walker's 1919 "It's Nobody's Business But My Own," which concerned the extracurricular activities of a deacon. Skidmore and Walker copyrighted that song (and Bert Williams recorded it on Columbia A2750 the same year), but the JournalOfAmericanFolklore reference precedes that copyright, so it's likely they arranged and adapted a traditional piece. And, while I have not seen the sheet music to the copyrighted version, I strongly suspect it doesn't contain all the verses listed above. - PJS

THE JAMAICAN VERSIONS

The Gaylads' ska structure is the same as Dexter/Taylor and Murray-FolkSongsOfJamaica, with the chorus line being "nobody's business, business" and a verse of "if I marry a tiny girl/ or I marry a fat gal/ nobody's business but me own." Dexter/Taylor and Murray is in Jamaican patois with, partly, a similar theme to Gaylads' "if I marry a black man/ And left him for a Chinese man/...." This theme is also in - for example - Tommy Bradley's version: "If I dislike my lover/ And leave her for another/ Nobody's business if I do."

The structure of Boysie Grant's mento version and Peter Tosh's reggae version is like the U.S. recordings: the chorus line is simply "nobody's business" rather than "nobody's business, business."

Grant's verse, like all but Tosh's, has to do with trading lovers: a sailor man for a soldier man, and a Coolie [East Indian] man for a Chinee man.

Tosh's, like the U. S. versions, deals with hard times and shady business, among other things: "When landlord come collectin rent/ Me not come beg you fifty cent/ That's nobody's business but my own" and "If I get high and fly like bird/ You should never say a word...." So does Dexter/Taylor, "Solomon granma swear she no go beg/ Tief 'way an Bra Sammy fowl an' egg/ Nobody's business but she own."

The date on the Peter Tosh recording is from KAZO, Bob Marley and the Wailers "Compared Nobody's Child
DESCRIPTION: The singer passes an orphan home to watch the children play. He asks one boy why he is not playing. The boy cries and says "People come for children and take them for their own But they all seem to pass me by and I am left alone"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Recording, Hank Snow); in tradition, 1951 (MUNFLA-Leach)
KEYWORDS: lament nonballad children
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

RECORDINGS:
Francis Dunphy, "Nobody's Child" (on MUNFLA-Leach)
Hank Snow (The Singing Ranger) and his Rainbow Ranch Boys, "Nobody's Child" (RCA Victor 21-0143-A, 1949)

Nobody's Darling on Earth
DESCRIPTION: "I'm out in this bleak world alone, Walking about in the streets... Begging for something to eat." The orphan lost mother at a very young age. Now "I'm nobody's darling on earth; Heaven have mercy on me, For I'm nobody's darling, Nobody cares for me."
AUTHOR: Will S. Hays
EARLIEST DATE: 1870 (sheet music published by J. L Peters of New York)
KEYWORDS: orphan poverty hardtimes begging
FOUND IN: US(MW,So)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Randolph 723, "I'm Nobody's Darling on Earth" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 471-472, "I'm Nobody's Darling on Earth" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 723A)
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 54, pp. 73-74, "Nobody's Darling" (1 text)
Neely/Spargo-CowboyAndWesternSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 252-253, "Nobody's Darling" (1 text)
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 56, "Red River Valley" (3 texts, 1 tune, the "B" text belonging here)
Spaeth-WeepSomeMoreMyLady, pp. 21-23, "Nobody's Darling" (1 text, 1 tune, plus the sequel "They Say I Am Nobody's Darling")
Roud #4338

RECORDINGS:
Cumberland Ridge Runners, "Nobody's Darling" (Conqueror 8162, 1933)
Jimmie Davis, Nobody's Darling But Mine" (Decca 1504. 1937)
Grayson & Whitter, "Nobody's Darling" (Gennett 6304/Champion 15395 [as by Greysen Thomas & Will Lotty ], 1928)
Kelly Harrell, "Nobody's Darling on Earth" (Victor 20657, 1927; on KHarrerl02)
J. E. Mainer's Mountaineers, "Nobody's Darling on Earth" (Bluebird B-6460, 1936)
Wade Mainer & Zeke Morris, "Nobody's Darling on Earth" (Bluebird B-6423 [as "Nobody's Darling but Mine"]/Montgomery Ward 5028, 1936)
North Carolina Ridge Runners, "Nobody's Darling" (Columbia 15650-D, 1931; rec. 1928; on LostProv1)

SAME TUNE:
Gene Autry, "The Answer to Nobody's Darling" (ARC 6-08-51/Conqueror 8685/OKeh 03101/Vocalion 03101, 1936)
Gene Autry, "That's Why I'm Nobody's Darling" (ARC 7-05-73/Conqueror 8808/OKeh 03229/Vocalion 03229, 1937)
Patsy Montana & the Prairie Ramblers, "Woman's Answer to Nobody's Darling" (Perfect 6-08-52/Conqueror 8655 [as Salty Holmes w. the Prairie Ramblers], 1936)
Sally Foster [pseud. for Louise Rautenberg], "Woman's Answer to Nobody's Darling" (Decca 5239, 1936)
Jimmie Davis, "That's Why I'm Nobody's Darling" (Decca 5336, 1936; Melotone [Canada] 45220/Minerva 14073, 1937)
Tex Ritter, "Answer to Nobody's Darling But Mine" (Champion 45197, 1935)
NOTES [174 words]: Note that the Autry and Montana recordings [in the "Same Tune" field] have successive catalog numbers, and both were "answer" songs to the main entry. The record company was clearly milking this song for all it was worth -- and getting fresh copyrights, to boot. I have no information about the relationship between the Sally Foster and Patsy Montana recordings. - PJS
The Fifes consider their "Little Darling" text ("Come sit by my side, little darling, Come lay your cool hand on my brow, And promise me that you will never Be nobody's darling but Mine") to be a Red River Valley variant. As, however, the chorus does not fit the "Red River Valley" tune, and the rest of the words go with this piece, I classify it here.
Spaeth (in Weep Some More, pp. 40-41) has another piece, "Driven from Home," which has the same theme and some of the same words, but no chorus; I can't tell if it's the same or not, or if it's traditional. - RBW
I suspect, without having heard the recordings, that "Nobody's Darling But Mine" is a Same Tune variant. - PJS
Last updated in version 5.0
File: R723

Non Capisce
DESCRIPTION: "Italiano lingue non capisch"; the soldiers still have memories of Egypt, but Arabic is no help in Italy. "Sunny Italy" is no such thing; he wishes for sand rather than snow. Cassino has fallen; Rome is next; "Tiny" (Gen. Freyberg) likes them to fight
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (according to Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook)
KEYWORDS: soldier New Zealand home storm
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, p. 115, "Non Capisce" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Lili Marlene" (tune, plus cross-references to songs of the Italian campaign)
cf. "O'er the Hills of Sicily" (subject: the Italian campaign)
File: Clev115

None But the Righteous
DESCRIPTION: "Nothin' but the Righteous shall get in the gate (wear the crown)." "Teach me the way (Give me the faith) to get in the gate" "Give me the hands for to shout that day" "Slip an' slide those golden streets"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories 29, "Nothin' But the Righteous" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [70 words]: The description is based on the Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories text. The form of each verse follows "Nothin' but the Righteous get in the gate (3x), Ó Lawd, how long?". The description shows the lead line for each verse.
For "none but the righteous" also see "Take Me to the Water" ("None but the righteous (x3) shall see God") and "Walking In the Light of God" (Dett: "Dat nothin' but de righteous shall go dere"). - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Edwa029
None Can Love Like an Irishman

DESCRIPTION: "The turban'd Turk, who scorns the world, May strut about with his whiskers curled" and have a thousand wives, but he can't love like an Irishman. Neither can the French, the Dutch, the English....

AUTHOR: "Collins," according to Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag

EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (The Universal Songster, according to Steele)

KEYWORDS: love courting nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. xiii, "None Can Love Like an Irishman" (1 text)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Turbaned Turk He Scorns the World

File: Sandxiii

Nonsense of Men, The

DESCRIPTION: "I hate to be teased by the nonsense of men," so the girl accepts her mother's advice to always say "No" to men. But young piper Donnelly wins her heart; after many requests, "I mistook and said Yes!" She lives happily and advises others to say "Yes."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: love courting rejection marriage

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H472, pp. 258-259, "The Nonsense of Men" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1459

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "No, John, No" (theme)

File: HHHH472

Nonsense Saw

DESCRIPTION: Nonsense rhymes showing how to pronounce "Arkansas": "I love a girl from Arkansaw, Who can saw more wood than her Maw can saw." "I sing a saw Of maid I saw In Arkansaw." "Her maw can saw, Her paw can saw, And she can saw In Arkansaw."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Allsopp)

KEYWORDS: humorous nonsense wordplay nonballad

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Fred W. Allsopp, Folklore of Romantic Arkansas, Volume II (1931), pp. 195-196, "Nonsense Saw" (2 texts)
ST FORA195 (Partial)

NOTES [38 words]: Allsopp reports that there were problems in the 1840s with the pronunciation of "Arkansas." Hence this poem (or complex of poems). It's not clear that they were ever sung, but Allsopp reports that they were genuinely popular. - RBW

File: F0RA195

Noo I'm Just a Lassie in Want o' a Man

DESCRIPTION: The singer "would like to get marriet as sune as I can; I hae a' the perfections a man's heart could wish." She has oiled her hair, put her glasses away and bought a new gown. "Folk'll try mony a plan Fan they hae ony hope o' ensnarin' a man"

AUTHOR: Mrs Will of Alehousehill (source: Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast)

EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: courting clothes hair nonballad oldmaid

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
Noo Jock, my Man

DESCRIPTION: "Noo Jock, my man, sit doun by me, and harken to your mither!" She is old, and wants to see him married before she dies. She says to marry for money, to stay out of trouble, to shave his beard, "For it's nae joke, it's nae joke, the takin' o' the wife"

AUTHOR: Words: John Barr

EARLIEST DATE: 1861 (Barr, Poems and Songs, according to Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry)

KEYWORDS: mother children marriage hair

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 29, "Noo Jock, my Man" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [74 words]: According to Gordon McLauchlan, editor-in-chief, New Zealand Encyclopedia, David Bateman Limited, 1984, p. 46, "BARR, John (1809-89) was born in Paisley, Scotland and emigrated to N[ew] Z[ealand] in 1852, settling in Dunedin. He became a well-known poet and songwriter, contributing to the Otago Witness and Saturday Advertiser. His Poems and Songs was published in 1861 and revised and reissued in 1874. He inaugurated the Burns Club. - RBW Last updated in version 5.2

File: Col2029

Noo, I'm a Braw Lassie

DESCRIPTION: The singer reviews her assets and skills: "I think a bit laddie could hardly de better Than tak me and mak' me his wife." She would marry a soldier, sailor, butcher, baker, sweep, mason,... Nobody here wants her: "it's needless to stan ony langer"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)

KEYWORDS: nonballad oldmaid

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1387, "Noo, I'm a Braw Lassie" (1 text)

Roud #7246

File: GrD81387

Noonday on the River

DESCRIPTION: "Noonday on the river, Fishing with a hook and line, Catfish in the river, Cain't kotch me this time. Nigger fall in the river, Lay on his back and he wink, Floating like a bubble on the water, 'Cause a tub of grease cain't sink."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Coleman/Bregman-SongsOfAmericanFolks, from Bim Mardfin)

KEYWORDS: fishing Black(s) nonballad river humorous

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Coleman/Bregman-SongsOfAmericanFolks, p. 74, "Noonday on de Ribber" (1 short text, 1 tune)

NOTES [8 words]: Very, very racist, but claimed as a folk song. - RBW Last updated in version 3.2

File: CoBr074

Nor Will I Sin

DESCRIPTION: "Nor will I sin by drinking gin And cider, too, will never do Nor brewer's beer my heart shall cheer Nor sparkling ale my face to pale. To quench my thirst I'll... bring Clean water from the well or spring... I pledge... hate To all that can intoxicate"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Pinesville Democrat)
KEYWORDS: drink promise
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 336, "Nor Will I Sin" (1 fragment)
Roud #7808
File: R336

Nora Creina

DESCRIPTION: "Nora Creina, see the flowers, The lovely flowers that all seem'd perish'd" "Nora Creina, see the birds We thought forever flown away, love." "Nora Creina! Nora dear! Thus my love is thine forever... And still more fondly for the parting..."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster) (the name was in use by 1833)
KEYWORDS: love separation flowers bird
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 198, "Nora Creina, See the Flowers" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
The New Policeman (File: GrD1750)
The Song of the Trap, Part IV (File: AnSt079)
Lansell's Case (by Charles R. Thatcher) (Anderson-ColonialMinstrel, p. 106)
Lesbia hath a beaming eye (Nora Creina) (by Thomas Moore) (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 37)
NOTES [111 words]: I am not sure that this is traditional in itself, but the tune has been used so many times, for so many things, that I thought it belonged in the Index. Certainly the name is well-known; there is a place in Australia called "Nora Creina," There were several ships by that name. The tune, in addition to the SAME TUNE items mentioned, was reportedly used by Beethoven. "Nora Creina" does not seem to be proper Irish, but it has been suggested that it is a corruption of "Nora of my heart" or perhaps "Wise Nora." There is a Mudcat thread discussing all of this. The description is from one of the texts quoted there -- the one that seemed the most "tradition-ish." - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: RcNorCre

Nora Daly

DESCRIPTION: Singer meets Nora Daly driving a donkey-cart on the way to the fair near Miltown Malbay. They part for fear of her father. "After years abroad sojourning" he returns to County Clare and they marry happily.
AUTHOR: Tomas Ó hAodha (Tom Hayes)(1866-1935) of Miltown Malbay (source: notes to IRClaire01)
EARLIEST DATE: 1974 (recording, Micho Russell)
KEYWORDS: love marriage return reunion separation father
FOUND IN: Ireland
Roud #8002
RECORDINGS:
Micho Russell, "Nora Daly" (on Voice01)
File: RcNoraDa

Nora Nora

DESCRIPTION: "Nora Nora don't wake me foreday morning." Darling let me sleep past dawn. My boat is in the harbour. There is plantain to burn.
AUTHOR: unknown
Nora O'Neal

DESCRIPTION: "I'm lonely tonight, love without you... I love you dear Norah O'Neal." The singer's love he can never conceal. The nightingale's song reminds him of her. He says he will see her tomorrow; they will kiss. "I'll never be lonely again"

AUTHOR: Will S. Hays (see NOTES)

EARLIEST DATE: 1866 (sheet music published by J. L. Peters & Bro. of St. Louis), but see the NOTES

KEYWORDS: courting love nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 141, "Nora O'Neal" (1 text)
- Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry, pp. 63-64, "Norah O'Neale" (1 text)
- Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, p. 248, "Norah O'Neal" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Heart-Songs, pp. 470-471, "Nora O'Neal" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 40, "Nora O'Neal" (1 text)

Roud #4976

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, Firth c.26(298)[some words illegible], "Norah O'Neal" ("Oh! I'm lonely to night, love, without you"), T. Pearson (Manchester), 1850-1899; also Harding B 11(3772), "Norah O'Neill"
- LOCSinging, as109760, "Nora O'Neal," H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878
- NLScotland L.C.1269(158a), "Norah O'Neil," Poet's Box (address illegible), 1869

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Shamus O'Brien" (sequel to this song)

SAME TUNE:
- Parody on Norah O'Neal, or Trying to Raise a Square Meal ("I'm thirsty, tonight, Jim, without you") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 124)

NOTES [159 words]: Source: Re author -- "The Music of William Shakespeare Hays 1837-1907" on PD Music site. - BS

William Shakespeare Hays was of course an American (born and died in Kentucky), as songs such as "Little Old Log Cabin in the Lane" attest, so this song is obviously "stage Irish" -- and yet, it seems to appear almost entirely in Irish collections.

There is a curiosity about the date. The sheet music says it's from 1866, and this is also the year given by Spaeth's History of Popular Music in America, p. 159. Yet Huntington says that it was found in the log of the Charles and Edward in 1858. I have to suspect that either the log is mis-dated or that the text was added to it later, but since I don't have access to the log myself, I can't prove it. - RBW

Broadside LOCSinging as109760: H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS

Last updated in version 6.1

File: OCon141

Norah Darling, Don't Believe Them

DESCRIPTION: The singer must leave Norah "but I leave my heart with thee." He tells her not to forget him or to believe another suitor's "flattering wiles," "tale of love" or "treacherous whispers."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)

KEYWORDS: courting love separation nonballad

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 149, "Norah Darling, Don't Believe Them" (1 text)
Norah Magee

DESCRIPTION: "Oh Norah, dear Norah, I can't live without you... Come back to old Ireland, the land of our childhood...." The singer laments the absence of Norah, gone over the sea, and hopes she will return someday to Ireland.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: love separation Ireland emigration

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H778, p. 387, "Norah Magee" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #4718

BROADSIDES:
NLScotland L.C.Fol.70(86b), "Norah Magee," Poet's Box (Dundee), c. 1890

NOTES [80 words]: Sam Henry observed that this song was "in great vogue" around 1870, but I know of no other field collections. I do find myself strongly reminded of "Barney McCoy" -- but the similarity is at a level far removed from the details of the songs.

Poverty, of course, forced many Irish to migrate to America, and not just in the nineteenth century. It's not usual for the girl to go without the boy, but it's not unknown, either. And men need the chance to sing lost love songs, too. - RBW

File: HHH778

Norah Magee (II)

DESCRIPTION: Norah reads a letter from Terry who's better at fighting than reading and writing. She herself cannot read but she can spell D, E, A, R and can guess "for he calls me dear Norah Magee" Terry says "he'd my name soon be turning To another than Norah Magee"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)

KEYWORDS: love nonballad marriage

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 61, "Norah Magee" (1 text)

File: OCon061A

Norah McShane

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls leaving (Ballymoney), and admits to being "as wretched can be" in the new land. He misses buttermilk, the old mud house, peat fires, and of course Norah McShane. Even with no money, it was a better life than this

AUTHOR: Eliza Cook (?)

EARLIEST DATE: 1841 (broadside, LOCsheet sm1841 380630); supposedly written 1838

KEYWORDS: emigration homesickness separation

FOUND IN: Ireland US(MW)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H157, p. 207, "Norah McShane" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 50-51, "Nora McShane" (1 text)
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 105, "Nora McShane" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 42, "Norah McShane" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1620, p. 110, "Norah M'Shane" (1 reference)

Roud #9059

BROADSIDES:
Nordfeld and the Raleigh, The DESCRIPTION: The "Nordfeld" and the "Raleigh" are two ships wrecked close together in the Strait of Belle Isle. The singer tells of the scavenging of both ships and remarks that had he or his listeners been there, they would have partaken in the spoils.

AUTHOR: George Williams

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: wreck ship

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

Aug 1922 - Wreck of the Raleigh

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (3 citations):

Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 142, "The Nordfeld and the Raleigh" (1 text, 1 tune)

Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, p. 64, "The Norfeld and the Raleigh" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #6346

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Old Mayflower" (theme of wreckers) and references there

NOTES [2167 words]: The HMS Raleigh was a new light cruiser on a tour of the United States and Canada when the captain was persuaded to go off course through the Strait of Belle Isle for some good fishing. It wrecked near the Point Amour lighthouse in Labrador. For these and other details, consult David J. Molloy, The First Landfall: Historic Lighthouses of Newfoundland and Labrador (St. John's: Breakwater, 1994), pp. 94-96. Currant Island, the author's home, is on the Newfoundland side just south of the Strait and not particularly close to the events in the ballad. - SH

Although several sources call her a light cruiser, the Raleigh was designed and built with 7.5" guns (Jane's-WWI, p. 56), making her a heavy cruiser (although that term had not come into use when she was built). She was the sixth Royal Navy ship to be named after Walter Raleigh (Smith, p. 177). After World War I, she became part of the British North Atlantic squadron (Galgay/McCarthy, p. 57). This was not an area where there was much action (even by 1920s standards), so she did some touring and showing the flag -- a suitable use for a ship that was a good sea-boat, with high freeboards, good habitability, and good ventilation (Smith, p. 194) but that wasn't a good fighting ship. In 1922, that tour took her to Labrador. On August 8, she departed Hawke's Bay, Newfoundland, to go to Forteau, Labrador (Prim/McCarthy, p. 86; Forteau is in that little tiny corner of southern Labrador just east of the Quebec/Labrador boundary; it's the narrowest part of the Bromley had little defense except bad charts (Rohmer, p. 131). The court's language in its decision testified against his captain as Bromley's had been used against Bott. Like his subordinate, against him to an end (Rohmer, p. 109). Bromley's trial followed (Rohmer, p. 117), with Bott's have been further action taken against him, but he retired from the navy, bringing the action he was "severely" reprimanded (Rohmer, p. 107). That meant his career was over. There might 92; the Admiralty would dispute this point, but I think it's probably true). It was not defense enough; Bott didn't offer much of a defense, except to say that the charts of the area were bad (Rohmer, p. 87). The attrs were 300; the phrasing is a bit strange). The court-martialed (Rohmer, pp. 70-71).

The crew had little warning when an iceberg appeared off their bow. Desperately they steered around it -- and ended up in shallow water in fog so thick that they could not see or hear the lighthouse just a few hundred yards away (although Smith, p. 190, denies that the grounding was the result of seeing the iceberg). Although the ship slowed to just six knots (so Prim/McCarthy, p. 87) or eight knots (so Rohmer, p. 33 and Smith, p. 190; this seems to be supported by the official report on p. 36 of Rohmer), it was still too fast. She went hard aground about two hundred yards from the Point Amour lighthouse outside the entrance to Forteau's harbor (Prim/McCarthy, p. 87; Rohmer, p. 46), has a stunning photo of the ship and the lighthouse almost next to each other.

Two days after the wreck, a salvage ship, the Raleigh's, arrived, and divers inspected the wrecks, finding a large hole in the bottom (Prim/McCarthy, p. 89). The bilge keel was broken and the much of the ship flooded (Rohmer, p. 58). It was thought that it would take seven weeks to get her in condition to be floated off -- if the weather didn't make things worse. In essence, the ship could have been saved if she were near a decent port, but that condition did not apply. The salvage firm refused a "no cure, no pay" contract; they were not convinced the ship could be saved (Rohmer, p. 59). The Raleigh was eventually declared a total loss; although some equipment was taken off, there was no attempt to re-float the ship (Whitley, p. 80), even though she was still only about five years old.

Admiral Pakenham ordered a court of inquiry, using the captains of the other ships in his squadron, on August 17 (Rohmer, p. 41), but no immediate arrangements were made for the crew. There were other ships in the Raleigh's squadron, and Admiral Pakenham's flagship Calcutta arrived the next day (Rohmer, p. 41), and no immediate arrangements were made for the crew. That put about 700 men ashore at Forteau (population 177) and L'Anse Amour (just a few houses). The men had to subsist for the most part on supplies taken from the ship until arrangements were made to take them home (Galgay/McCarthy, p. 59).

Although the fog didn't last long, the weather -- which is rarely good in Labrador -- stayed bad for many days, further damaging the ship and making it harder to do anything about it (Rohmer, pp. 55-57); it wasn't easy even to get the men on ships to take them home. Two days after the wreck, a salvage ship, the Royal Strathcona arrived, and divers inspected the wreck, finding a large hole in the bottom (Prim/McCarthy, p. 89). The bilge keel was broken and the much of the ship flooded (Rohmer, p. 58). It was thought that it would take seven weeks to get her in condition to be floated off -- if the weather didn't make things worse. In essence, the ship could have been saved if she were near a decent port, but that condition did not apply. The salvage firm refused a "no cure, no pay" contract; they were not convinced the ship could be saved (Rohmer, p. 59). The Raleigh was eventually declared a total loss; although some equipment was taken off, there was no attempt to re-float the ship (Whitley, p. 80), even though she was still only about five years old.

Admiral Pakenham ordered a court of inquiry, using the captains of the other ships in his squadron, on August 17 (Rohmer, p. 41). The court-martial began, with no immediate arrangements made for the crew. Most of the blame went to Captain Bromley and Commander Bott, although they had a little left over for the Officer of the Watch because he didn't entirely understand the chain of command under which he operated (Rohmer, p. 53). The Board was critical also of the way the ship's equipment was managed. On September 12, the Admiralty officially paid off the ship's crew (meaning that they would not attempt to repair her) and ordered Bromley and Bott to be court martialed (Rohmer, pp. 70-71).

Bott's trial came first. Rohmer reprints on pp. 83-85 a list of particulars from the court-martial; it charges Bott with not warning the captain about the problems navigating in the conditions, for not using the sounding machines as much as he should have, for not slowing down enough, for not telling the captain about decreasing visibility, and for not telling the captain to get a visibility report by radio (I think that's what the last particular means; the phrasing is a bit strange). Bott didn't offer much of a defense, except to say that the charts of the area were bad (Rohmer, p. 92; the Admiralty would dispute this point, but I think it's probably true). It was not defense enough; he was "severely" reprimanded (Rohmer, p. 107). That meant his career was over. There might have been further action taken against him, but he retired from the navy, bringing the action against him to an end (Rohmer, p. 109). Bromley's trial followed (Rohmer, p. 117), with Bott's testimony used against his captain as Bromley's had been used against Bott. Like his subordinate, Bromley had little defense except bad charts (Rohmer, p. 131). The court's language in its decision against Bromley seems to me a little less harsh (he was merely "reprimanded"), but it was the end of his sea career, too (Rohmer, pp. 133, 135).

Oddly, neither man was entirely forced out of public service. Bott was allowed to return to duty during World War II (Smith, p. 185), when presumably the Royal Navy needed every man it could get. Bromley didn't serve at sea again, but he was made a Rear Admiral in 1926 and officially placed on the retired list at that rank. He also became the eighth Baronet Bromley and served a bunch of positions in the royal hierarchy (Smith, p. 186) -- which, to me, shows the advantages of rank in inter-war Britain....

The problem after that was to figure out what to do with the ship. The locals were soon given official permission to salvage the ship, and of course they did so eagerly (Galgay/McCarthy, pp. 59-60). Supposedly the locals had started to strip her even before that -- first of food and leftover clothes and such, then of more valuable materials such as metals (Rohmer, p. 148). The Admiralty eventually tried to sell the salvage rights, with the restriction that the ship's big guns had to be returned to Britain. No one was willing to pay for cleaning up the wreck. Eventually the British gave up on trying to get money for the ship and simply paid to have the guns returned (Rohmer, pp. 148-149).

The next stage of the story is almost comic. The Raleigh continued to sit on the rocks, disarmed but otherwise looking mostly intact. The British Navy considered it embarrassing to have the ship sitting there; officials griped that "the wreck is MOST CONSPICUOUS" (Rohmer, p. 155). So they decided to blow it up! On July 1, 1926, official approval was given (Rohmer, p. 161; Galgay/McCarthy, p. 60) -- and it was decided to do it without cleaning up the hazardous materials still on board, because of the expense. "That decision was to have environmental consequences even when this book was written" (Rohmer, p. 162. The book was published in 2003). The job was assigned to Captain Andrew Cunningham of the Calcutta (later a famous admiral in World War II), who apparently described it in his book A Sailor's Odyssey (Rohmer, p. 169).

Cunninham, in one sense, did his job: he pushed enough ordinance into the ship to ruin her hull and upper works, so that she no longer looked like a navy ship. But he didn't remove her wreckage -- and all the live shells and cordite were left in the wreck (Rohmer, p. 173). At least one child apparently died after running across unexploded ammunition (Rohmer, pp. 176-177; Smith, pp. 192-193, says that a total of four locals were killed over the years), although it sounds as if what killed the child was small arms ammunition that would have been hard to clean up anyway. In 1994, Canada (which by then governed Labrador) was being told that something needed to be done (Rohmer, p. 179 -- although it sounds as if Rohmer was doing most of the telling). The decision to destroy the ammunition was made in 2002, with the first explosions taking place in 2003 (Rohmer, p. 195, 207). I don't know if that is the end of the Raleigh's story, but it seems likely. Andrieux, p. 94, has a photo of the Raleigh on the rocks. Smith has two in his photo section, both from 1922, as well as several of her sister Effingham (which, curiously, also was lost as a result of going aground, although not until World War II). Rohmer has many pictures of Raleigh, from throughout her history, but the printing is incredibly poor.

Part of the reason the British gave up on the ship was probably the extent of the damage, and the location of the wreck can't have helped, but the British would likely have tried harder if the Raleigh had been more useful. The five-ship class to which she belonged (usually called the Hawkins or Frobisher class) had been designed to chase a particular type of German raider, which of course didn't exist any more after World War I (Whitley, p. 77). They indirectly led to the development of what came to be called "heavy cruisers," but they themselves were problematic (Worth, p. 99). One was converted into an aircraft carrier while building, and the others were rebuilt so heavily in the 1920s and 1930s that they in effect became other types of ships (Whitley, p. 79). They were among the oldest cruisers to serve in the British Navy in World War II, but they performed a "secondary role" (Worth, p. 99; according to Smith, p. 197, the Effingham, one of the sisters, had her 7.5" guns replaced by 6" weapons, turning her into probably the worst light cruiser in the Royal Navy). Probably most people in the Admiralty were just as glad to get Raleigh off their hands. It's just coincidence that she went down in an area where people were such vigilant scavengers.

To emphasize just how un-useful the Raleigh was, it's worth comparing her with the next class of British heavy cruisers, the Kents (data based on comparing the data in Whitley and Worth). The Kents did require a few more men, 784 versus 690 -- 14% more crew. But they had a weight of broadside that was 71% greater (2048 pounds per salvo versus 1200). They had 33% more torpedo tubes (eight versus six), and the torpedoes could be fired more easily. The Kents were a little faster (31.5 knots versus 30). The Kents had 73% more cruising range than the Hawkins class's 5400 nautical miles, and they were more fuel efficient -- 2.92 nautical miles per ton of fuel versus 2.08. If the British had been smart, they'd have sold off the remaining Hawkinse to anyone who would buy them....
I find no mention of the story that the Raleigh went off-course to go fishing.
Unlike the Raleigh, the Nordfeld doesn't seem to have attracted any attention from historians, presumably because she was "just another wreck," of which Labrador had had an abundance. The Raleigh was, I suspect, the largest ship ever wrecked off the Labrador to that time, having three times the tonnage of the largest of the coastal steamers, the Stephano. - RBW

Bibliography

- Galgay/McCarthy: Frank Galgay and Michael McCarthy, Shipwrecks of Newfoundland and Labrador, [Volume I], Harry Cuff Publishing, 1987 [Note: The Galgay/McCarthy and Prim/McCarthy accounts, although not identical, are so close that several whole paragraphs appear verbatim in each]
- Jane's-WWI: Jane's Fighting Ships of World War I (1919; I use the 1990 Studio Editions reprint with modern foreword by Captain John Moore, RN)
- Prim/McCarthy: Captain Joseph Prim and Mike McCarthy, The Angry Seas: Shipwrecks on the Coast of Labrador, Jesperson Publishing, 1999 [Note: The Galgay/McCarthy and Prim/McCarthy accounts, although not identical, are so close that several whole paragraphs appear verbatim in each]
- Worth: Richard Worth, Fleets of World War II, Da Capo, 2001

Last updated in version 6.0
File: Doy47

Norfolk Girls, The
DESCRIPTION: "Our topsails reef'd and filled away, All snug aloft we know... Here's a health to all the Norfolk girls, And Portsmouth maidens too." The singer talks of the labors and dangers of a life at sea, always recalling the Norfolk girls and Portsmouth maidens
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Shay)
KEYWORDS: sailor work battle
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, pp. 172-177, "The Norfolk Girls" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST ShaSS172 (Partial)
File: ShaSS172

Norlan' Laddie, The
DESCRIPTION: "A Norlan' Johnnie" woos "a Southlan' Jenny." He is so bashful he can hardly speak "till blinks o' her beauty and hopes o' her siller" force him to speak. She agrees to go with him. It's not clear whether or not he backs down (see NOTES)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: courting money
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 864, "The Norlan' Laddie" (1 text)
Roud #6226
NOTES [27 words]: The Greig/Duncan4 text is missing lines. The last two lines comment that Southern lasses "are a' for dressing" but Northern lasses "mind milking and threshing." - BS
North American Rebels

DESCRIPTION: Troops prepare to sail to fight in North America. Women ask to be taken as well; the Captain says the ship is overloaded. They (the women?) are not afraid to go. After a bloody fight the soldier's wives and babies mourn their dead

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1855 (broadside, Bodleian Firth c.14(199))

KEYWORDS: parting separation war America wife soldier Indians(Am.)

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 107, "North American Rebels"

Roud #596

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, Firth c.14(199), "North of America" ("As we sailed out of Glasgow, being in the month of June"), E.M.A. Hodges (London), 1846-1854; also Harding B 25(1378)[some words illegible], "North America"

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Farewell to Kingsbridge" (shared lines and general theme)

NOTES [76 words]: The troops may leave Glasgow or Plymouth, the fight may be against rebels or Indians, and the woman questioning the Captain may be named Polly or Nancy.

There are six lines shared between the Bodleian broadsides of "North American Rebels" and the "Ballad Sheet and Garland" text of "Farewell to Kingsbridge": wives "lamenting for their husbands" and children crying "mommy"; God bless the King, soldiers on land and sea, and our army in North America. - BS

North Atlantic Squadron, The

DESCRIPTION: "Away, away, with fife and drum, Here we come, full of rum Looking for women to pat on the bum, In the North Atlantic Squadron." The singer tells of the hardship of the convoy routes, describes the battles, and complains about the available women in port

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)

KEYWORDS: sailor courting sex ship war bawdy

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 145, "The West Atlantic Squadron" (1 fragment)

Roud #10267

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Armored Cruiser Squadron" (form)

NOTES [218 words]: This is one of those songs, like "The Old Chisholm Trail," that can go on practically forever, with each verse more bawdy or scatological than the one before. That life on the convoy routes was difficult can hardly be questioned; for other songs on this topic, see "Destroyer Life" and the other various naval songs in Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead.

Hopkins calls it "Easily the most famous of Canadian service songs." It is interesting that it is rarely printed. It seems clear that it was simply too hardcore for most anthologies. The big question, to me, is whether it is, properly, a Canadian song; most of the versions I know of are from Newfoundland.

Hopkins attributes his first, extremely long (30 verses!), version to the 116th Squadron, although he does not explain the suggestion. Roger Sarty, War in the St. Lawrence: The Forgotten U-Boat Battles on Canada's Shores, Penguin 2012, p. 93, says that this was a squadron based at Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, and describes it as having Canso (PBY Catalina) aircraft; p. 123 reports that it went into action in mid-1941. Sarty, p. 127, says that it was one of only two long-range
North Campaign, The (Gates's Song, A Song of Saratoga)

DESCRIPTION: "Come unto me, ye heroes, Whose hearts are true and bold. Who value more your honor Than others do their gold." (John) Burgoyne invades New York from Canada. Gates and his men defeat him. The singer toasts the American officers

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Stone)

KEYWORDS: battle patriotic

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Oct 17, 1777 - Surrender of John Burgoyne at Saratoga

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Fate of John Burgoyne" and references there

NOTES [24 words]: Stone claims that this "was for a long period sung throughout New England." I have no evidence of this, but I'm including it just in case. - RBW

North Carolina Hills, The

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the North Carolina Hills, How majestic and how grand, With their summits bathed in glory Like our Prince Immanuel's land." The singer repeatedly praises their beauty and their peoples; he must depart, but hopes to return

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: home nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 402, "The North Carolina Hills" (1 text)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 242-243, "The North Carolina Hills" (1 text)
Roud #11757

North Country Collier, The

DESCRIPTION: "At the head of Wear Water about twelve at noon, I heard a maid a-talking...." She describes her handsome young collier who "sails the salt sea." She will build him a "castle." She may be a sheep-girl, but she can enjoy her husband just as a queen does

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Masefield, Sailor's Garland)

KEYWORDS: love sailor home

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 87, "The North Country Collier" (1 text)
Roud #683

reconnaissance squadrons in the Eastern Air Command, the other being Squadron 5, for which see "No. 5. Squadron Song," which also has more details about the Catalina. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: Hopk052
North Country Maid, A

DESCRIPTION: "A north country maid to London had strayed Although with her nature it did not agree." She laments the home she has left behind, its trees, its fields, its people. She hopes soon to be able to return home.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs)

LONG DESCRIPTION: A maid from northern England (Westmoreland), who has strayed to London, wishes she were home; she sings the praises of the north country and its ways; she vows that she'll not marry until she returns, preferring to wed a north country man. She hopes to return in less than a year. Chorus: "The oak and the ash and the bonny ivy tree/They flourish at home in my own country"

KEYWORDS: homesickness rambling

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North),Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (7 citations):
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, p. 18, "A North-Country Maid" (1 text, 1 tune)
Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 14-15, "O the Oak, and the Ash, and the Bonny Ivy Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan5 1058, "My Ain Countrie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 62, "The Oak And The Ash" (1 text)
Wells-TheBalladTree, p. 277, "The Oak and the Ash"; "Goddesses" (2 tunes, with the latter being claimed as the source for the former)
DT, NCNTRYMD* NCNTRYM2*

ADDITIONAL: Reginald Nettel, _Seven Centuries of Popular Song_, Phoenix House, 1956, pp. 77-78, "(no title)" (1 text)

Roud #1367

NOTES [146 words]: This looks like the source for the "oak and the ash" lines that appear in the choruses of many versions of "Rosemary Lane," "Ambletown," "Bell-Bottom Trousers," and other members of that most tangled of song families, typically with no relevance to those songs' plots. If I had my guess, I'd say the recombinant chorus was grafted onto those songs' common ancestor at some point early in its evolution. - PJS

For the complex relationship between this song, "Ambletown," and "Rosemary Lane" [Laws K43], see the notes to the latter song. - PJS, RBW

This song does not seem to have any "plot relationship" to the other two traditional songs; the common element is simply the chorus ("Oh the oak and the ash and the bonny ivy tree They flourish at home in my own country"). The language of this piece, however, hints at literary origin; indeed, it looks like a typical pastoral. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.8

File: LK43B

North Highlands, The

DESCRIPTION: "Down in yon meadow, I chanced for to spy A bonnie young lassie that pleased my eye.... Bonnie lassie, come to the North Hielands wi' me." He offers lands and wealth; she says her parents would object. He turns to go; she consents to go with him.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads)

KEYWORDS: love courting money father mother separation

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #55, p. 1, "The North Highlands"; #61, p. 2, "The North Highlands" (1 text plus 1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan4 853, "The North Highlands" (12 texts, 8 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 87, "Bonnie Lassie, Come to the North Hielands" (1 text)

Roud #5565

File: Ord087

North Star, The

DESCRIPTION: North Star sails from Ireland for America. On December 8, "close to the wild Welsh shore the North Star struck, that very night, upon that fatal rock ... Out of near five hundred passengers, but twenty-one were saved

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1900 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 b.9(261))
KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship wreck sailor
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, pp. 94-95, "The North Star" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #20534
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 b.9(261), "The North Star", J.F. Nugent & Co. (Dublin), 1850-1899; also Firth b.27(109/110) View 1 of 2, "The North Star"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Vivandeer" (tune)
NOTES [11 words]: Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast: Tune is "The Vivandeer" on p. 112. - BS

North Wind Doth Blow, The
DESCRIPTION: "The north wind doth blow, And we shall have snow, And what will poor robin do then? Poor thing! He'll hide in a barn, To keep himself warm, And hide his head under his wing. Poor thing!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1805 (Songs for the Nursery, according to the Opies)
KEYWORDS: storm bird
FOUND IN: REFERENCES (3 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 533, "The North Wind Doth Blow" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #407, p. 193, "(The north wind doth blow)"
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 168, "The North Wind Doth Blow" (1 text)
Roud #19525
File: 002533

Northeast Gale, The
DESCRIPTION: June 18, 1906 "one hundred sailors of fishing craft to Cape St Mary's go." They are caught in a gale and the men out in dories, which had been out to haul the trawlers, are lost. Survivors return to Golden Bay and mourn the loss.
AUTHOR: Walt Young (source: notes to ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
KEYWORDS: death drowning mourning fishing sea ship storm
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
June 1906 - Schooner Avenue lost off Cape St. Mary's, at the southern tip of the Avalon peninsula (per Northern Shipwrecks Database). According to the notes at ITMA/CapeShoreNL, "Several fishing craft from Placentia Bay that were fishing off Cape St Mary's were caught in the storm and men were lost at sea."
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
Roud #26873
RECORDINGS:
Denis McGrath, "The Northeast Gale" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
File: ITMANEGa

Northern Bonnie Blue Flag, The
DESCRIPTION: Northern answer to "The Bonnie Blue Flag": "We're fighting for our Union, We're fighting for our trust.... Hurrah, hurrah, For equal rights, hurrah! Hurrah! for the good old flag That bears the stripes and stars."
AUTHOR: (various)
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar parody patriotic nonballad derivative
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, p. 382, "The Flag with the Thirty-Four Stars" (1 text)
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 218-219, "The Northern Bonnie Blue Flag" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 358, "Bonnie Blue Flag" (1 text, a copy of a Johnson broadside)
Roud #7760
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Bonnie Blue Flag" (tune & meter) and references there
NOTES [864 words]: This is actually a complex of songs rather than a single piece; various poets evidently made answers to "The Bonnie Blue Flag." I've lumped them because they all had, at best, only the weakest holds on tradition.
The version in Scott, which gives this entry its title, is listed as by Isaac Ball, and is a very short piece praising the freedom fighters of the North. I doubt that it is traditional at all.
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety's "Flag with the Thirty-Four Stars" technically came from oral tradition, but the informant probably learned it from print; there are just too many names to remember them all. And it was widely published; Edwin Wolf 2nd, American Song Sheets, Slip Ballads, and Political Broadsides 1850-1870, Library Company of Philadelphia, 1963, p. 44, lists nine broadside versions, all apparently without authors. Among the many names and places mentioned:
"McClellan of Bold Antietam Fame": George B. McClellan (1826-1885), who took over the Army of the Potomac after First Bull Run and led it to defeat in the Seven Days' Battle and marginal victory (despite overwhelming superiority) after Antietam. The approving mention of McClellan (and Burnside) probably dates the song to late 1862; the list by 1863 would have been very different.
"Hooker, Sigel, Kenly too": Joe Hooker (1814-1879), was in late 1862 the Army of the Potomac's most aggressive corps commander. He would go on to failure in high command.
Franz Sigel (1824-1902) commanded German troops all over the place, and almost always disastrously. The German troops never gave up on him; hence perhaps the approving mention.
Kenly: The Union had a general John Reese Kenly (1822-1891), who commanded troops in the Shenandoah Valley but who managed to not be involved in most of the big battles. His name is hard to explain. I suspect he might have been confused with Phil Kearny (1814-1862), who though only a division commander was widely regarded as the best officer in the Army of the Potomac -- but he was killed before Antietam. There was also a General E. R. S. Canby who held important posts in the west, but while he also spent time in the east, it was mostly in administrative posts.
"Foote, Dupont, Rosecrans": Flag Officer Andrew Hull Foote (1706-1863) had led the fleets that attacked Forts Henry and Donelson in early 1862, giving the Union its first major successes in the war. Wounded at Fort Donelson, he never really recovered. It is interesting to note that U. S. Grant, the land commander at Donelson, is not mentioned -- another hint that the song is from 1862, when Halleck shelved him after the near-defeat at Shiloh.
Dupont: Samuel F. DuPont (1803-1865), another naval officer, commander of the fleet that took Port Royal (November 1861). In 1863 he failed to capture Charleston (the War Department gave him impossible orders), so his star too was clouded.
Rosecrans: William S. Rosecrans (1819-1898). An officer of promise as a subordinate, he had successfully defended Corinth (October 1862). After that, he was given charge of the Army of the Cumberland, where he proved less successful, fighting a bloody draw at Stones River (December 1862) and losing Chickamauga (September 1863).
"Halleck, Burnside, Butler too": Henry W. Halleck (1815-1872) was theatre commander in the west, and after Grant's successes at Henry and Donelson had led the slow advance to Corinth. He was then brought to Washington as General-in-Chief. On paper, his results looked good; in reality, he was far too cautious and never managed to get the Union war machine in gear. He was much more effective as (de facto) chief of staff under Grant. But in late 1862, he still looked like a winner.
Burnside: Ambrose Burnside (1824-1881) had led the successful attacks on the Carolina coast in 1862. He then joined the Army of the Potomac, and failed as a corps commander at Antietam, but was given command of the whole army and led it to defeat at Fredericksburg and the Mud March (late 1862/early 1863) -- still more evidence of a late 1862 date. Burnside's real problem seems to have been a complete inability to react to changing circumstances.
Butler: Benjamin F. Butler (1818-1893), a political general who was perhaps the worst soldier ever to wear a Major General's stars. In 1862, however, he had "captured" New Orleans (the entire work had in fact been done by Farragut's fleet), and so was an official hero. He was also earning a reputation among the occupied as "Beast" Butler.
"old South Mountain side": The Battle of South Mountain (Sept. 14, 1862) was the first real engagement of the Antietam campaign. McClellan, possessed of Lee's "lost order," knew that Lee's army was scattered behind the South Mountain range, with only a few troops to guard the passes. McClellan, who could have destroyed Lee's army by attacking boldly, instead brought minimal force to bear, forced the passes only because Lee had such weak forces there -- and then sat for two days when he could have defeated Lee piecemeal.
South Mountain did not drive Lee from the north; rather, it gave him time to concentrate his forces at Antietam. Where McClellan again failed to destroy him. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: SBoA218

Northern Tragedy, A
DESCRIPTION: "An old sour-dough prospector lay dying on the trail," with no women or young people around. He asks that a message be sent to his wife. He asks to be buried in the ice. The thermometer at the time "registered just seventy-two below."
AUTHOR: B. F. Clayton?
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Klondike Nugget, according to Cohen)
KEYWORDS: death mining hardtimes burial drink
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 675-676, "A Northern Tragedy" (1 text)
File: CAFS2675

Northessie Crew, The
DESCRIPTION: "As I gaed up to Aikey Fair, 'Twas for to get a fee; A farmer frae St Fergus Came steppin 'owre to me." The singer hires on for the season, "as I hae deen afore." A few of the crew are named and described.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: farming work moniker nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #16, p. 2, "The Northessie Crew" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 412, "The Northessie Crew" (1 text)
Roud #5933
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Hairst o' Rettie" (subject: harvest crew moniker song) and references there
cf. "The Boghead Crew" (subject: harvest crew moniker song)
cf. "The Kiethen Hairst" (subject: harvest crew moniker song)
cf. "The Ardlaw Crew" (subject: harvest crew moniker song)
NOTES [84 words]: Greig: "... 'The Northessie Crew' ... was composed last summer [1907]. When ... it gets taken up and sung over Buchan we shall have pleasure in printing it as a full-fledged song. Meantime we pick a few verses by way of specimen." These five verses are the basis for the description.
Greig/Duncan3 has a map on p. xxxv, of "places mentioned in songs in volume 3" showing the song number as well as place name; North Essie (412) is at coordinate (h5-6,v1) on that map [roughly 33 miles N of Aberdeen]. - BS
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3412

Northumberland Bagpipes, The
DESCRIPTION: "A shepherd sat him under a thorn, He pulled out his pipes and began for to play, It was on a midsummer's day in the morn." A girl comes by, hears him piping, and declares, "Iy thou wilt pipe, lad, I'll dance to thee."
Northumberland Betrayed by Douglas [Child 176]

DESCRIPTION: Northumberland flees to Scotland and is taken into custody. Despite his protestations of virtue, he is passed from hand to hand, ending in the custody of Douglas. Percy sets sail, believing he will be freed, but ends up under the control of Lord Hunsden.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1750 (Percy folio)
KEYWORDS: nobility rebellion escape trick ring wife betrayal prison
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Child 176, "Northumberland Betrayed by Douglas" (1 text)
Hales/Furnival-BishopPercy'sFolioManuscript, volume II, pp. 217-226, "Northumberland Betrayed by Dowglas" (1 text)
Percy/Wheatley ReliquesOfAncientEnglishPoetry I, pp. 279-294, "Northumberland Betrayed by Douglas" (2 texts, one being that in the Reliques and the other being the manuscript copy)
Flanders-AncientBalladsTraditionallySungInNewEngland3, p. 171, "Northumberland Betrayed by Douglas" (1 fragment, similar to the Child text but so short that it might, from its text, be something else -- e.g. some texts of "Mary Hamilton" have rather similar lyrics; the singer apparently knew more of the song but would not repeat it)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 129, "Northumberland Betrayed by Douglas" (1 text)
Roud #4006
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Rising in the North" [Child 175] (subject)
cf. "The Earl of Westmoreland" [Child 177] (subject)
NOTES [171 words]: According to David C. Fowler, A Literary History of the Popular Ballad, Duke University Press, 1968, p. 158 n. 25, this is one of eighteen ballads in the Child collection found only in the Percy Folio.
For the background to Northumberland's flight to Scotland, see "The Rising in the North" [Child 175]. Having arrived in Scotland, Northumberland became a valuable pawn -- and in a nation with a child king and no real government, he wound up being passed back and forth until he came into Douglas's hands.
The Countess of Northumberland, in exile in Flanders, raised money to ransom him. But the English matched the ransom, and Northumberland was turned over to Lord Hunsdon in late 1571 and executed in 1572.
For the complete details of these proceedings, see the notes in Child.
Those desiring to see how Percy converted the folio text instead of Percy's hack, see Nick Groom, The Making of Percy's Reliques, Oxford English Monographs, 1999, pp. 127 ffff. -- though Groom is far too sympathetic to Percy's hack-work. - RBW
Norway Bum, The
DESCRIPTION: "I'm a bum and addicted to rum." His father drove the singer from home because "I loved a fair lass far beneath my own class." They married; his wife and child died in a fire in Norway. "To drown sorrow I plunged into rum... And now I am only a bum"
AUTHOR: Joe Scott?
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (April 13 Rumford Falls Times, according to Ives-Joe-Scott-TheWoodsmanSongmaker)
KEYWORDS: grief love marriage death mourning drink wife children
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar) US(NE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ives-Joe-Scott-TheWoodsmanSongmaker, pp. 282-306, "The Norway Bum" (2 texts, 3 tunes plus mention of 24 versions)
Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 119-121, 251, "The Norway Bum" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13992
NOTES [54 words]: Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland: "No one was killed in the fire that destroyed much of Norway, Maine, in 1894, and there is no evidence to show that the song is based on a real person or incident, but, since Scott was not given to fiction, we can be reasonably sure that he thought his source ... was factual." - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: IvDC119

Norwegian Collier, The
DESCRIPTION: Fragment: "In the early hours of morning in the foggy atmosphere Our ship was swiftly ploughing through the foam, When a big Norwegian collier, sailing from Quebec, Ran straight into our liner, bound for home,..."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
KEYWORDS: sea ship wreck sailor
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, p. 127, "The Norwegian Collier" (1 text)
Roud #20540
File: Ran127C

Nose On My Old Man, The
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, it's the nose that grows on my old man And it's wonderful to see -- It will live for years in my garden of misery. For it's the one red nose that the boozer knows.... Amid the drink and curse there can be no worse Than the nose on my old man!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973
KEYWORDS: drink nonballad
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 232-233, "The Nose on My Old Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #22604
File: FaE232

Not a Word of "No Surrender"
DESCRIPTION: The singer hears two Orangemen complain "we're ruined by Emancipation; ['Popish Daniel'] O'Connell brave and all his men They're a terror to the nation." About this, he hears not a word of "No Surrender"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (IRRCinnamond01)
KEYWORDS: political Ireland
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1829 - Irish Catholic Emancipation Act passes supported by Daniel O'Connell and the Catholic Association
FOUND IN: Ireland
Roud #6987
RECORDINGS:
Robert Cinnamond, "Not a Word of 'No Surrender'" (on IRRCinnamond01)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Kerry Eagle" (subject: Daniel O'Connell) and references there
cf. "Our Orange Flags May Gang to Rags" (subject and some lines)
NOTES [296 words]: The Catholic Emancipation Act allowed Catholics to sit as MPs and made Catholics eligible for most public offices but disenfranchised many poor Irish (source: "Catholic Emancipation" on The Peel Web site). [I would consider it clearer to say that it failed to enfranchise many poor Irish; at this time, the poor were generally disenfranchised in all of Britain. - RBW]
This song shares a theme and at least four lines with Greig/Duncan3 691, "Our Orange Flags May Gang to Rags": "May the old Devil take partial Peel Why did he yield to popish Donnell [Daniel] And Wellington great laurels won How soon he's run for to join O'Connell." Nevertheless, the rest of the songs sharing no line or chorus, I think they should be separate.
Greig/Duncan3 p. 685, quoting Edwards, A New History of Ireland: "The reversal of Tory policy on the issue of Catholic emancipation can be ascribed to O'Connell's methods. Wellington, the victor of Waterloo, who became Prime Minister in 1828, was obliged to consider what would be the full consequences of a resort to force in Ireland over the Catholic question. The climax came when O'Connell was returned as a member of parliament for Clare and at the bar of the House of Commons refused to take the declaration against transubstantiation and the anti-Catholic oath of allegiance. Tory feelings were aroused to an intense heat, but in their wisdom, Wellington and his home secretary and political heir, Sir Robert Peel, forced George IV to give way."
"No Surrender" is a reference to the defiant declaration attributed to the Williamites defending Derry in 1688-1689. See "No Surrender (I)" and references there. - BS
See also "The Shutting of the Gates of Derry," plus the many Daniel O'Connell songs cited under "Daniel O'Connell (I)." - RBW
File: RcNaWoNS

Not for Joseph
DESCRIPTION: "Joseph Baxer is my name, My friends all call me Joe. I'm up, you know, to every game, And everything I know. Ah, I was green as green could be, I suffered for it though; Now, if they try it on with me, I tell them not for Joe."
AUTHOR: Arthur Lloyd (source: Scott)
EARLIEST DATE: 1870 (Oliver Ditson & Co, The New Comic Songster)
KEYWORDS: gambling nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 94-95, "Not for Joseph" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 47-48, "Not for Joe" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1626, p. 110, "Not for Joseph" (1 reference)
New-Comic-Songster, p. 18, "Not for Joseph" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13681
File: ScEB095

Not Last Night But the Night Before
DESCRIPTION: "Not last night but the night before, Twenty-four robbers knocking at my door."
Continuations vary: "As I awoke I found this note... Spanish dancer, give a high kick...." or "I ran upstairs to wash my dishes, And by mistake I washed by britches"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks)
KEYWORDS: playparty dancing clothes humorous
FOUND IN: US(MA,MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, p. 109, "(Last night and the night before)"
Not the Only Turtle in the Tank
DESCRIPTION: You may think your honors and balance in the bank makes you special but there are others just as fine: "you're not the only turtle in the tank." "The world will move without you and you never will be missed"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed)
KEYWORDS: vanity money nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, p. 116, "Not the Only Turtle in the Tank" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: Ow2E116

Not the Swan on the Lake
DESCRIPTION: "Not the swan on the lake or the foam on the shore Can compare with the charms of the maid I adore." The singer praises the girl and her beauty, comparing her to Venus (the planet!), and says he "feast[s]... on the smiles of my love."
AUTHOR: words translated by Ewan MacLachlan
EARLIEST DATE: 1843 (Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong)
KEYWORDS: love beauty nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H707, p. 227, "Not the Swan on the Lake" (1 text, 1 tune)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 544, "Not the Swan on the Lake" (1 text)

Not Weary Yet
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, me no weary yet (x2), I have a witness in my heart, Me no weary yet." "Since I been in the field to fight." "I have a heaven to maintain." "The band of faith are on my soul." "Ole Satan toss a ball at me." "He think the ball would hit my soul."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: religious devil nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 12, "Not Weary Yet" (1 text, 1 tune)

Nothing At All
DESCRIPTION: The singer goes with his daddy to court Kate. He and she are too shy to speak at meeting, or proposal, or answering the parson at the wedding. The problem disappears within a week of the wedding and they offer their assurance to other young folks.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1839 (broadside, Bodleian Firth b.25(271))
KEYWORDS: courting wedding humorous
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1629, p. 110, "Nothing At All" (2 references)
Roud #1607
RECORDINGS:
Robert Cinnamond, "Derry Down Dale" (on IRRCinnamond02)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.25(271), "Nothing At All" ("In Derry Down Dale, when I wanted a mate"), J. Ferraby (Hull), 1803-1838; also Harding B 28(233), Harding B 25(1382)[many illegible words], "Nothing At All"
LOCSinging, sb30352a, "Nothing At all," H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878
NLScotland, L.C.1269(152a), "Nothing At All," Poet's Box (Glasgow), 1855

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Vilikens and his Dinah (William and Dinah) [Laws M31A/B]" (tune & meter used in IRRCinnamond02) and references there
cf. "Things I Don't Like to See" (tune according to boardside NLScotland, L.C.1269(152a))
NOTES [60 words]: Broadside Bodleian Firth b.25(271) is the basis for the description: IRRCinnamond02 ends with the "love, honor, obey" at the wedding coming to "nothing at all."
Broadside LOCSinging sb30352a: H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS
Last updated in version 3.5
File: RcNoAtAl

Nothing Else to Do (I)
DESCRIPTION: On a nice day the singer skips work and "went to see my sweetheart, As I'd nothing else to do." They go for a walk, he kisses her -- having nothing else to do -- and proposes. She says, "perhaps I may my dear, When I've nothing else to do."
AUTHOR: unknown (New-Comic-Songster attributes the music to J. L. Hatton)
EARLIEST DATE: before 1870 (broadside, LOCSheet, Music A-1875)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage questions humorous
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 143, "Nothing Else to Do" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 157)
New-Comic-Songster, p. 62, "As I'd Nothing Else to Do" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1265
BROADSIDES:
LOCSheet, Music A-1875, "As I'd Nothing Else to Do" ("'Twas a pleasant summer's morning"), Lee & Walker (Philadelphia), 1860-1869 (with tune)
NOTES [82 words]: A reference to this song -- or one closely related to it -- in an 1870 novel shows that it was well enough known to be mentioned in passing as an "ould song": "... isn't that the very thing the ould song advises us: 'Sure 'tis then I will get married, Whin I've nothing else to do, Whin I've nothing else to do; An 'tis then I will get married, Whin I've nothing else to do'?" (Source: (anonymous),In re Garland: a Tale of a Transition Time, (London, 1870 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 84) - BS
Last updated in version 5.3
File: WT143

Nothing Like Cider
DESCRIPTION: "In a neat little village not far from the sea Still leaves my old uncle, aged eighty-three." No one else makes cider like the uncle. The singer urges hearers to drink up. He praises the apple and asks to be buried under one when he died
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Baring-Gould, Devonshire Characters and Strange Events, according to Palmer)
KEYWORDS: drink family burial
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Roy Palmer, _Ripest Apples_, The Big Apple Association, 1996, pp. 82-83, "Nothing Like Cider” (1 text, 1 tune)
File: xxNoLiCi

Nothing To Do With Me
DESCRIPTION: The singer will not denigrate others or interfere in business that has nothing to do with him. The rest of the song is gossip about his neighbors. A policeman, he hints, takes bribes. A girl married to an old man has a baby, he hints, not her husband's.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (recording, Martin Gorman)
KEYWORDS: humorous nonballad police infidelity accusation
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
Roud #5315
RECORDINGS:
Martin Gorman, "It's Nowt To Do With Me" (on Voice14)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2958), "Nothing To Do With Me!" ("Kind friends for what I'm going to say on you I will not frown"), unknown, n.d.; also Firth c.26(252), "Nothing To Do With Me"
NOTES [14 words]: Broadside Bodleian Firth c.26(252) says "Sung by Harry Barber and George Gordon." - BS
File: RcNTDWM

Nothing's Too Good for the Irish
DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls his grandmother's last words. She describes, with the full force of prejudice, the roles reserved for each people (e.g. "Negroes to whitewash, Jews for cash"), then turns to her own people, concluding, "Nothing's too good for the Irish"
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud); Spaeth lists it as published in 1894
KEYWORDS: death foreigner humorous
FOUND IN: US(MA,MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 102, "Nothing Too Good for the Irish" (1 text)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 29, "Nothing’s Too Good for the Irish" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST Wa029 (Partial)
Roud #7468
NOTES [60 words]: Presumably the same as the 1894 song by J. J. Goodwin and Rosenfeld, but I can't prove it. For background on Monroe H. Rosenfeld, see the notes to "Those Wedding Bells Shall Not Ring Out!"
The chorus, in John Galusha's version at least (and also in Dean-FlyingCloud), may be the most concentrated dose of racism I've ever seen:It stereotypes everyone. - RBW
_Last updated in version 4.2_
File: Wa029

Nottamun Town (Nottingham Fair)
DESCRIPTION: The narrator goes to Nottamun Town, meets odd and mad people, and sees impossible and paradoxical sights: "In Nottamun town, not a soul would look up, not a soul would look up, not a soul would look down to show me the way to fair Nottamun town."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1865 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 18(687))
KEYWORDS: madness nonsense paradox
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South)) US(Ap,So) Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (12 citations):
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 69, "I'm Going Up to London" (1 text)
Wyman/Brockway-LonesomeSongs-KentuckyMountains-Vol2, p. 6, "Fair Nottiman Town" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 446, "Nottingham Fair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 302-305, "Nottingham Fair" (3 texts, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 191, "Nottamun Town" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Sharp/Karpeles-EightyEnglishFolkSongs 69, "Nottamun Town" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-SingingFamilyOfTheCumberlands, pp. 105-106, "[Nottamun Town]" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 5, "Nottamun Town" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abrahams/Foss-AngloAmericanFolksongStyle, pp. 8-9, "Nottamun Town" (1 text, 1 tune, called "Nottalin Town" in the header though "Nottalin Town" in the notes and Index)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 105-106, "Noddingham Town" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1711, p. 115, "The Old Gray Mare" (2 references)

DT, NOTTMUN*

Roud #1044

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, Harding B 18(687), "The Old Gray Mare" ("As I was a going to Nottingham fair"), H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864; also Harding B 18(214), "The Gray Mare"

LOCsinging, sb30373a, "The Old Gray Mare" ("As I was a going to Nottingham fair"), H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864; also sb20153a, "The Gray Mare"

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Black Phyllis" (lyrics)
cf. "Paddy Backwards" (theme, lyrics)

ALTERNATE TITLES:

Nottalin Town

NOTES [1253 words]: There were several episodes of mass insanity in Europe, probably caused by ingestion of ergot, a mold found on rye with hallucinogenic properties. - PJS

I have also heard this song explained as the effects of the delirium caused by the plague. (Indeed, MacInnis, pp. 217-218, suggests that some alleged plague outbreaks were in fact mass cases of food poisoning, although this strikes me as extreme.) This was formerly one of the explanations offered for the affliction of St. Vitus's dance (Runes/Schrickel, p. 974), which is associated with outbreaks of madness similar to the ergot outbreaks. Compare also the song "Black Phyllis," which uses some of the same words and which appears to be about syphilis.

The problem with both the ergot and plague hypotheses is that the sufferer would be rather unlikely to survive unless the outbreak was extremely mild -- which, admittedly, can sometimes be the case; Timbrell, p. 244, mentions an hypothesis that the Salem witch madness was encouraged by the sensations experienced people who had eaten a very small amount of bad grain, and Le Couteur/Burreston, p. 241, agree that the symptoms fit. The suggestion was apparently first made by Lindda Caporael in 1960 (Satin, p. 109), and has gained widespread although not universal support.

But relatively minor cases such as the possible instance in Salem are unusual; ergot is recognizable, and people normally ate it only if they had no choice. Usually, when ergotism hit, it hit hard. Several of the outbreaks of ergotism arose because of the conditions of the Little Ice Age, which caused many bad harvests and forced people to use old flour or non-cereals to make bread. Le Couteur/Burreston, p. 240, note accounts in the literature of 40,000 allegedly dead of ergotism in France in 994, and 12,000 deaths in 1129. Kelly, p. 62, thinks there were probably major outbreaks of ergotism in Europe in 1315-1322, a period of extremely wet, cold weather -- although he adds that some of the symptoms people experienced were probably the result of starvation or vitamin deficiency.

Ergot, according to Satin, p. 96, is so-called because it resembles the leg spur of a rooster. MacInnis, p. 213, reports that "Ergot replaces the seeds of rye, producing a purple lump that looks to the French like a cockspur, or ergot. The ergot looks quite unlike the true grain, but it was so common people thought it was part of the rye plant, until the 1850s when the true nature of ergot was understood." This even though, according to Le Couteur/Burreston, p. 239, ergot was first observed to cause problems for cattle during the Persian period (c. 400 B.C.E.). Satin, p. 96, reports that in really bad years (typically very rainy years) as much as a quarter of the grain harvest might be replaced by ergot.

Ergot, according to MacInnis, pp. 213-214, contains ergotamide (guess where the name comes from!) and a few other "active ingredients," which are related to LSD (the chemical diagrams on Le Couteur/Burreston, pp. 242-243, show that basic lysergic acid, LSC, ergotamine, and ergotamide all have the same basic structure of four carbon-and-nitrogen rings, differing only in the nature of one extended side chain) and have similar properties. Thus it can result in hallucinations. MacInnis, p. 215, notes that ergot had medical uses, especially for pregnant women, but was very tricky: "Just the right amount of the purple grain would hasten contractions; a little more and ergot was an efficient abortifacient; a little more and the woman suffered gangrene and convulsions." Ergotamine has also been used to treat migraine headaches in recent years (Timbrell, p. 247). But getting the dosage right is tricky, since the amount of ergotamine varies with the batch, and errors can be fatal. Another chemical usually found in ergot, ergometrine, constricts blood vessels, causing a gangrene-like condition which destroys the extremities (Timbrell, p. 244). Ergot contains other alkaloids which are apparently just plain poison. But it should be noted that alkaloids taste bitter; it would be easy to learn to avoid them. According to Le Couteur/Burreston, p. 238, the full list of symptoms associated with ergotism includes "convulsions, seizures, diarrhea, lethargy, manic behavior, hallucinations, vomiting, twitching, a crawling sensation on the skin, numbness in the hands, and a burning sensation becoming excruciatingly painful as gangrene from decreased circulation eventually sets in."
Le Couteur/Burreston add on p. 239 that wet storage conditions (which would be particularly common during the Little Ice Age) could encourage the mold to grow even after the grain was harvested. On the other hand, Stevens & Klarner, p. 68, say that the ergot alkaloids disintegrate easily; grain that was deadly soon after harvest would be less so by spring. On the other hand, it wouldn't be very nutritious.

It is true that some hallucinations caused by ergotism were bizarre. Satin, p. 99, reports that people during the 1951 French epidemic would jump out of windows because they thought they could fly; others thought they were on fire. But this was based on eating a few baguettes made with relatively mildly contaminated flour. Even so, four people died. At higher dosages, there would have been a lot more deaths and fewer hallucinations.
Under the circumstances, possibly a better hypothesis to explain this song is that people were eating poppy products, rather than rye, to avoid ergotism. This too could lead to hallucinations. Saunders, pp. 8-9, describes the symptoms: "Bread was also made from poppyseed, which had the effect of producing a 'drugged and paranoid' state. This was surely preferable to the effects of eating bread made with mouldy or contaminated grain, which could lead to ergotism (St Anthony's Fire), a disease which attacked the muscular system and induced painful spasms. Eventually, the contracting muscles cut off circulation of the blood to the extremities, which became gangrenous. One of the side-effects of ergotism was mind-bending hallucinations -- nature's gift, perhaps, to sufferers, who would otherwise have had to watch their limbs fall off in a state of sober despair."

Binney, p. 72, mentions an hypothesis that the idea of witches riding broomsticks arose because witch-wanna-bes would rub ergot into the sticks, which could result in hallucinations -- perhaps of flying.

Saunders, p. 141, also mentions that extreme hunger could produce hallucinations. And hunger was of course very common during the Little Ice Age.

MacInnis, p. 220, adds that ergotism also affected horses, causing them to come down with blind staggers; he wonders if this did not have effects on some military effects. On p. 221, he notes a major, although isolated, outbreak of ergotism as recently as 1951. Le Couteur/Burreston mention major outbreaks in Russia in 1926-1927 and in Britain in 1927.

Jean Ritchie thinks the song is from a mummer's play and not intended to be understood. This song merges almost continuously with "Paddy Backwards," and there are probably fragments which might go with either song. - RBW

Bibliography

- MacInnis: Peter MacInnis, Poisons (originally published as The Killer Bean of Calabar and Other Stories), 2004 (I use the 2005 Arcade paperback)
- Saunders: Frances Stonor Saunders, Hawkwood: Diabolical Englishman, Faber and Faber, Nottinghamshire Poacher, The

DESCRIPTION: The poacher goes out with his dogs to hunt. (One of his dogs is wounded, but) he catches a deer and takes it to a butcher to skin. When he attempts to sell the meat, he is arrested and tried, but finally set free. He vows to continue poaching

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1839 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 17(311b))

KEYWORDS: dog poaching trial accusation revenge animal judge

FOUND IN: US(MW) Britain(England(South,West))

REFERENCES (10 citations):

Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 53, "Thornymuir Fields" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 259, "The Old Fat Buck" (1 text, 1 tune)
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 50-51, "The Nottinghamshire Poacher" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 723, "Thorneymoor Wood in Nottinghamshire" ; Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 724, "Thorneymoor Wood in Nottinghamshire" (2 texts)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #50, "The Nottingham Poacher" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland, Song #28, pp. 219-221, "Thornehagh-Moor Woods" (1 text)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 434-436, "Thornehagh-Moor Woods" (1 text)
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 96, "Thornaby Woods" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #142, "Thorneymoor Woods" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: Jon Raven, _The Urban and Industrial Songs of the Black Country and Birmingham_, Broadside, 1977, pp. 18-20, "The Nottinghamshire Poacher" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST E053 (Full)

Roud #222

RECORDINGS:
Anne Briggs, "Thorneymoor Woods" (on Briggs2, Briggs3)
Jasper Smith, "Thornymoor Park" (on Voice18)

BROADSIDES:

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Lincolnshire Poacher" (theme)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Thorny Woods
Thornymoor Woods

NOTES [71 words]: [MacColl and Seeger report that] "Thornehagh-Moor Woods is in the Hundred of Newark, Nottinghamshire, and was once part of Sherwood Forest." - PJS Palmer also mentions this possibility, but notes that it was enclosed in 1792 and deforested, so it ceased to be a possible haunt for poachers. He prefers Thornehagh Moor Woods near Newark. Given that the song dates back to 1839, however, I think either site a possibility. - RBW
Nova Scotia Sealing Song

DESCRIPTION: In 1894 Director goes sealing, "bound for Yokahama." Before rounding Cape Horn they stop for seals at Staten Island where "for eighteen days we were hove to." They make Cape Flattery in sixty days. Now they are in Victoria waiting to finish the voyage.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs)
KEYWORDS: hunting sea ship shore ordeal sailor
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, p. 200, "Nova Scotia Sealing Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2720
NOTES [40 words]: Staten Island is Isla de los Estados, east of the Argentinian part of Tierra del Fuego. Cape Flattery is on the northwest coast of Washington state across the Strait of Juan de Fuca from Vancouver Island; Victoria is on Vancouver Island. - BS
File: CrMa200

November Keady Fair

DESCRIPTION: The singer takes his nanny goat to the November fair at Keady. He sells her for half-a-crown. "She was nineteen times at Jim's auld buck." Now that she's gone he'll miss her wagging tail, her nipping kale in the garden, and their rows at the fireside.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1988 (McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen)
KEYWORDS: nonballad animal separation
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen 56, "November Keady Fair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #5311
NOTES [147 words]: Keady is in County Armagh. - BS
The Irish had a rule that a young man could not marry until he had land -- a fairly effective means of population control, since it resulted in a lot of late marriage. It's one reason there are so many songs about lonely young Irishmen out looking for girls. Makes you wonder if this guy didn't come up with a substitute....
The rows at the fireside are also not unreasonable. By the mid-nineteenth century, especially in Connaught, the land had been subdivided into so many small holdings that those who were relatively fortunate enough to own an animal would perforce keep it with them in their hovel (often little more than a sod shack). Pigs were more often kept than goats, from what I've read, but obviously goats were possible too. Though, in that context, it would be unlikely that the house would have kale; all land would go to potatoes. - RBW
File: McB1056

Now All You Lads

DESCRIPTION: "Now all you lads that go a-courting, Mind which way you choose a wife, For if you marry my wife's sister, You'll be a beggar for the rest of your life. Twenty, eighteen, sixteen, fourteen...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Copper-ASongForEverySeason)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage begging humorous
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Copper-ASongForEverySeason, p. 226, "Now All You Lads" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #1210
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Wheel of Fortune (Dublin City, Spanish Lady)" (lyrics)
NOTES [48 words]: I strongly suspect that this is a verse that someone inserted into a "Wheel of Fortune" text as a (stupid) joke which managed to survive on its own. I almost decided to lump them. But since the Coppers are well known, I left it separate. If it vanishes, though, it would be no
Now He's Sorry That He Spoke

DESCRIPTION: "A dude into the country went to meet his cousin Pat, And there he saw an animal that he supposed a cat." But it is a skunk, and it did what skunks do, "And now he's sorry that he spoke." Similarly, a man lights a stick of dynamite -- and regrets it

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: humorous animal warning
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, pp. 298-299, "Now He's Sorry That He Spoke" (1 short text, 1 tune)
  ADDITIONAL: David C. Peterson, "Wisconsin Folksongs," chapter in _Badger History: Wisconsin Folklore_, State Historical Society of Wisconsin (Volume XXV, Number 2, November 1973), pp. 62-63, "Now He's Sorry That He Spoke" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #15668
File: Pet298

Now I Am a Big Boy (I)

DESCRIPTION: "When I was a little boy My mother kept me in, But now I am a big boy, Fit to serve the king." I can fire a musket, I can smoke a pipe, I can kiss a big girl At ten o'clock at night.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1842 (Halliwell, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: youth mother family
FOUND IN: US(NE,So)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
  Randolph 358, "Now I Am a Big Boy" (2 texts, both fragmentary, and the "A" text appears to be "Shady Grove")
  Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 73, "When I was a little boy" (1 text)
  Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose, p. 27, note 5, "(When I was a little boy)"
ST R358 (Full)
Roud #7623
NOTES [33 words]: The Opies think this a prototype for a wide variety of self-identification songs. That there are many such is obvious, but it's hard to tell which are related, let alone which is the original. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.6
File: R358

Now I Lay Me (Lumberjack Version)

DESCRIPTION: "Now I lay me down to sleep, Where the lice and bedbugs creep, If I should die before I wake, Who in hell will blow my stake?"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan)
KEYWORDS: bug death gambling
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, p. 122, "Now I Lay Me" (1 short text)
Roud #6507
File: BBun122A

Now Mercy, Lord, and Gramercy (As I Wanderede Her Bi Weste)

DESCRIPTION: "As I (walked/wandered) here by west, (far/fast) under a forest side, I saw a wight, went him to rest, Under a bow he (be)gan [to] (a)bide." The man reports and laments all his sins, begging, "Now mercy, Lord, and gramercy"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1400 (Vernon and Simeon manuscripts)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad MiddleEnglish

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (9 citations):
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #374
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #631
ADDITIONAL: Roman Dyboski, _Songs, Carols, and Other Miscellaneous Poems from the Balliol Ms. 354, Richard Hill's Commonplace Book_, Kegan Paul, 1907 (there are now multiple print-on-demand reprints), #30, pp. 54-57, "[Now mercy, Lord, and gamercy]" (1 text)
Maxwell S. Luria & Richard Hoffman, _Middle English Lyrics_, a Norton Critical Edition, Norton, 1974 pp, 105-107, #104 (no title) (1 text) [based on the Vernon text]
Carleton Brown, editor, _English Lyrics of the XIVth Century_, Oxford University Press, 1924, #107, pp. 1164-167, "Merici God and graunt Merci" (1 text) [based on the Vernon text]
MANUSCRIPT: (MSRichardHill), The Richard Hill Manuscript, Oxford, Balliol College MS. 354, folio 145
MANUSCRIPT: Oxford, Bodleian Library MS. Eng. Poet. a.1 (Bodleian 3938) [The Vernon Manuscript], folio 409
MANUSCRIPT: London, British Library, MS. Additional 22283 [The Simeon Manuscript], folio 131
MANUSCRIPT: National Library of Scotland MS. Advocates 19.3.1, folio 91
NOTES [636 words]: It may seem strange to include a song in the index which exists only in medieval manuscripts, but there are hints that it existed in oral tradition. For starters, there is the fact that it exists in four medieval manuscripts:
-- Oxford, Bodleian Library Eng. poet. a.1 (SC 3938) (the famous Vernon manuscript, c. 1400, from the west midlands)
-- London, British Library Addit. 22283 (the Simeon manuscript, c. 1400, from the west midlands)
-- Oxford, Balliol College 354 (the great Richard Hill manuscript, from London, late fifteenth and early sixteenth centuries)
-- Edinburgh, National Library of Scotland, Advocates 19.3.1 (the Heege manuscript, late fifteenth century, thought to be from Nottinghamshire or thereabouts, containing only the first twelve lines)
This is really only three witnesses, since Vernon and Simeon were almost certainly part of the same project and copied from the same source. But still, three witnesses of a medieval poem is a high number. What's more, one of the three is Richard Hill's manuscript, which contains many folk songs. And the copies are from diverse parts of Britain (west midlands, Nottinghamshire, and probably London, although Richard Hill was apparently born in Hertfordshire). And they are separated by at least a century, perhaps as much as a century and a half. And there are substantial verbal differences between the Vernon/Simeon form and the Hill form, and the Heege form is said to be jumbled as well as short -- arguing for oral transmission.

Individually, none of these points is sufficient to argue for folk song status. Collectively, I consider them enough evidence that I include the piece, although I admit it's a marginal case.

This poem appears in the very last section of the Vernon Manuscript (folios 407-412; this poem is on p. 409, and is #13 in the series). According to John Burrow's article "The Shape of the Vernon Refrain Leaves," in Derek Persall, editor, _Studies in the Vernon Manuscript_, D. S. Brewer, 1990, pp. 187-199, this section contains 23 poems, all with stanzas of either eight or twelve lines, all derived from the French balade form (p. 187). The same 23 poems appear in the same order on folios 128v-133v of the Simeon manuscript, with only such differences as might occur when copied by two different scribes; clearly the 23 were originally found as a unit compiled by someone else. The form implies to Burrow (p. 188), that the poem is late fourteenth century, since the form does not occur in English before that.

Several of the other items in this part of the Vernon collection also appear in other manuscripts, almost always with differences in the form (Burrow, p. 189). Thus there may be several other orally-transmitted pieces in the collection.

The Heege manuscript, which contains this piece, also has #2 in the Vernon/Simeon collection (Burrow, pp. 189, 194). In both cases the poem is incomplete (#2 lacks two stanzas of the Vernon text; #13 is just a fragment). The Hill version of #13 is fuller, but lacks one stanza and rearranges the order of two others (Burrow, pp 194-195). In this case, Burrow thinks Vernon/Simeon have the best text, but elsewhere, the often have edited texts (Burrow, p. 196). This hints to me that none of the four copies is especially close to the original.

John J. Thompson, "The Textual Background and Reputation of the Vernon Lyrics" (Pearsall, pp.
201-224) says (p. 201) that all but three of the Vernon Lyrics have a refrain (in the Vernon copy, varying between "Ay, merci, God, and graunte merci" or "Nou merci, God, and graunt merci").
Thompson, p. 212, says that the Heege MS. copy of this poem was actually copied by John Hawghton, who worked with Richard Heege on the manuscript. Thus, most unusually, we know the names of two of the four scribes who copied this manuscript. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: MsNMLaG

Now Our Meeting Is Over

DESCRIPTION: "Fathers, now our meeting is over; Fathers, we must part. And if I never see you any more, I'll love you in my heart. And we'll land on shore, Yes, we'll land on shore, We will land on shore, And be saved forevermore." Repeat with mothers, brothers, etc.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Lomax)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad family

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,SE)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 84, "Fathers, Now Our Meeting Is Over" (1 text, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, p. 49, "Fathers, Now Our Meeting Is Over" (1 text, 1 tune)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 82, "Oh, Brothers Now Our Meeting's Broke" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, p. 571, "Now Our Meeting's Over" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, MEETOVER
Roud #5716

RECORDINGS:
Dillard Chandler, "Meeting Is Over" (on Chandler01, DarkHoll)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "There Is No Place in the Height of Heaven" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Minister's Farewell" (lyrics)

File: Wa084

Now Robin, Lend to Me Thy Bow

DESCRIPTION: Wilkin: "Now Robin lend to me thy bow For I must now a hunting with my lady goe" to Uppingham. Robin: Take my hawk and hound also; your hunting doesn't please me; "beware thy babling hounds." Lady: let's agree that hunting is no sin

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1609 (Pammelia, according to Ritson)

KEYWORDS: hunting nonballad

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ritson-AncientSongsBalladsFromHenrySecondToTheRevolution, pp. 207-208, "Robin Lend to Me Thy Bow" (1 text)
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 54-55, "Now Robin, Lend to Me Thy Bow" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1373

NOTES [103 words]: Ritson: "A canon on the unison, for four voices, from 'Pammelia. Musicks Miscellanie. Or, Mixed varietie of Pleasant Roundelayes, and delightful Catches. of 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. parts in one. Lond. 1609. 4to.' That it was a popular song in the beginning of Queen Elizabeths reign appears from its being mentioned (amongst others) in ... [two citations]."

Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs: "The inclusion of this fine canon may be pardoned, in view of the difficulty of finding any more direct representative of Rutland than the allusion to Uppingham [Ritson re Uppingham: "A market town in Rutlandshire"]." - BS

Last updated in version 5.0
File: BrMa654
Now So Merry We Have Met
DESCRIPTION: "Let us merry be, over a pint or a pot of strong beer." The singer says "after I'm dead not a tear shall be shed, Nor one letter of grief on my tomb. But to my coffin some inscription put on, And to say that my singing's all done."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: death drink music nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 49-50, "Now So Merry We Have Met" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 119)
Roud #1233
File: WT050

Now Springs the Spray
DESCRIPTION: "Now springs the spray. All for love I am so sick That sleepen I nay may." The singer is riding and hears a maid singing "the clot him cling" (seemingly a curse). He has changed. She hopes that he will rue the day
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1302 (MS. London, Lincoln’s Inn Hale 135)
KEYWORDS: betrayal courting MiddleEnglish
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (11 citations):
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #450, p. 305, "Als I me rode this endre dai" (1 text)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #360
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #614
Stevick-OneHundredMiddleEnglishLyrics 25, "(Now spryngeth the spray)" (1 text)
Carleton Brown, editor, _English Lyrics of the XIIIth Century_, Oxford University Press, 1932, #62, pp. 119-120, "Now Springs the Spray" (1 text)
MANUSCRIPT: London, Lincoln’s Inn Hale 135, folio 137
NOTES [210 words]: Let me state from the outset that I think it highly unlikely that this is a folk piece. But it will be seen that it has been very popular with anthologists (see the references), and it is claimed as a carol, despite a rather un-carol-like form. If it is a carol, it is one of the oldest extant, and so I have indexed it.
That it is very early is beyond doubt. The primary content of the manuscript is works by Henry de Bracton, who probably died toward the end of the reign of King Henry III (who himself died in 1272 and was succeeded by Edward I). The manuscript is said to have belonged to Alan de Thornton during the reign of Edward I (reigned 1272-1307).
This item is not in the hand that wrote the Bracton material; it is by a scribe who wrote about swans in year 31 of Edward's reign (i.e.1302/1303). So this likely originated in the thirteenth century. It should be noted that there are several problems with the manuscript copy; the seven-line format used by almost all editors is to some extent a reconstruction. And there is disagreement about what portions of the text mean, although this might be a matter of bad copying.
See Brown, p. 214, for the first three verses of a parallel French chanson d'Aventure generally thought to be the source. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: MSNoSpSp
Now the War Is Over (Mussolini's Dead)

DESCRIPTION: The text: "Now the war is over, Mussolini's dead, He wants to go to heaven with a crown upon his head, The Lord says no, he's got to stay below, All dressed up and no where to go."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (on Lomax collection)
KEYWORDS: death war humorous political religious gods
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1945 - Death of Mussolini
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
DT, WAROVR
ST DTwarovr (Full)
Roud #12945
RECORDINGS:
Scottish children, "Now the War is Over" (on Lomax43, LomaxCD1743)
NOTES [281 words]: Well, it's a narrative, and it was collected from folk tradition, so what more do you want? Pity we don't have a keyword for rope-jumping songs. - PJS
Mussolini was deposed as Duce of Italy in 1943 (following the Allied invasion, in a staged coup which induced him to resign), but was "liberated" by German commandos led by Otto Skorzeny. He then set up a puppet republic in the north of Italy -- but the key word is "puppet"; he was purely and simply a German tool. (And there is reason to think he didn't like it much.)
In April, 1945, as the German resistance crumbled, the former il Duce was caught by Italian partisans, "tried," and executed. It's rather unfair that this song picks on him, rather than Hitler, who died just weeks later; Mussolini brooked no opposition, but he didn't build any concentration camps, either.
The explanation may lie in the composition of the British army: There were probably more Scots, proportionally, in Italy than on any other front. The North African army was disproportionately composed of Commonwealth forces, while the "British" force in Normandy eventually consisted of one Canadian and one British army. The British army in Italy had probably the highest proportion of home-grown units, including Scots.
Murray Shoolbraid notes that this is an update of a World War I rhyme in which the Kaiser is the intended victim:
When the war is over and the Kaiser's deid
He's no gaun tae Heaven wi' the eagle on 'is heid,
For the Lord says No! He'll have tae go below,
For he's all dressed up and nowhere tae go.
That version probably didn't endure as well, for the simple reason that the Kaiser survived World War I; he didn't die until 1941. - RBW
File: DTwarovr

Now the Winter Is Over (The Ploughboy)

DESCRIPTION: "Now the winter is over and the summer is come, Our fields look pleasant and gay." "Here is the little ploughboy so fresh as a rose... And the fairy maid sat milking her cow." She rejects his request to go with him, but they end up at church to marry

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Hammond collection)
KEYWORDS: love courting marriage farming
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brocklebank/Kindersley-DorsetBookOfFolkSongs, p. 2, "The Ploughboy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1353
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Well Met, Pretty Maid (The Sweet Nightingale)" (form, theme) NOTES [94 words]: This is so similar to "Well Met, Pretty Maid (The Sweet Nightingale)" in both form (four independent lines, last two syllables of the fourth line repeated, then the whole line repeated; they can be sung to the same tune) and theme that, if it had just been me, I would most likely have lumped them. But they do have distinct first verses -- or, rather, this has a first verse not found in "Well Met, Pretty Maid." Roud splits them, probably on that basis, and I have done the same, but I would not be even slightly surprised in they sprang from the same roots. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1
File: Dors002

Now We Take This Feeble Body
DESCRIPTION: "Now we take this feeble body And we carry it to the tomb, And we all leave it there, Hallelujah," "And a hallelujah, and a hallelujah, And we leave it there, hallelujah." "Now we take our dear old father...." Presumably can be repeated for others
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro)
KEYWORDS: death religious burial nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 59, "Now We Take This Feeble Body" (1 text)
Roud #12079
File: FSAN059

Now Whitsuntide Is Come (Whaddon Whitsuntide Song)
DESCRIPTION: "Now Whitsuntide is come, You well do know, Come, serve the Lord we must before we go Come, serve him truly with all your mind and heart, And then from Heaven your soul shall part." "Now we have brought you this royal branch of oak... merry Whitsuntide"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1974 (Porter)
KEYWORDS: religious royalty
FOUND IN: Britain(England(London))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Enid Porter, _The Folklore of East Anglia_, Batsford, 1974, p. 63, "(no title)" (1 text)
Roud #3186 and 305
File: EPNWISWh

Now Winter Has Diminished
DESCRIPTION: "Now winter has diminished, Our shanty life is finished, From the woods we are banished." "At near approach of summer. We will select our timer... and make... rafts of pine." They will travel the river to market, where the lumbermen will drink and party
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (Gard/Sorden)
KEYWORDS: river logger travel drink
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Robert E. Gard and L. G. Sorden, _Wisconsin Lore: Antics and Anecdotes of Wisconsin People and Places_, Wisconsin House, 1962, p. 110, "(no title)" (1 text, presumably from Wisconsin although no source is listed)
NOTES [24 words]: Gard/Sorden were told that this was the "favorite ballad" of some group of Wisconsin loggers. I don't recall encountering any other copies, however.
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GaSor110

Now You Are Married I Wish You Joy
DESCRIPTION: "Now you are married I wish you joy." You will have a girl and a boy. In seven years a son and daughter.
AUTHOR: Nicholls and Clendon, rewritten by Harry Wincott and Harry Leighton (source: Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
EARLIEST DATE: c.1884 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: marriage nonballad children husband wife
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame, pp. 149-150, "Now You Are Married I Wish You Joy" (2 fragments)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Widow from Babylon" (one verse: Now you are married I wish you well") NOTES [115 words]: The Norris and Mayo text describes a round ring dance. Once past the introductory couplets it includes the verse from Nicholls and Clendon: "Now you are married I wish you joy, First a girl and then a boy; Seven years after, son and daughter; Pray young couple, kiss together." If the description is accurate the text should significantly predate 1884: writing in 1890,
"two or three years ago I wrote to a Dorsetshire woman, who was a nursery maid in our family when I was a child, asking her to write down all she remembered of the round game rhymes she used to teach us as children ...." The editor adds a local variation of the third line: "Seven years after, a poor man's daughter." - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: OpGap149

Now, Moses
DESCRIPTION: "Now Moses, what makes you so strange and forgetful? How is it you heed what I tell you no more?" Moses's wife is angry at Moses's unruliness and smoking and pie-stealing. She warns him, "Now Moses, you'll catch it! Now Moses, don't touch it!"
AUTHOR: Henry Clay Work
EARLIEST DATE: 1865 (sheet music published by S. Brainerd's Sons with copyright by Root & Cady)
KEYWORDS: warning food drugs
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Work-SongsOf-Henry-Clay-Work, pp. 67-70, "Now, Moses" (1 text, 1 tune, a copy of the original sheet music)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #85, "Moses" (1 text)
Roud #5024
NOTES [62 words]: Some of Henry Clay Work's songs are pretty feeble, but of all those I've seen, this may be the strangest. I have no idea what the point is supposed to be. Interestingly, the Florida version, which seems to be the only one in tradition, is quite different from Work's original -- it is longer, and it does not mention Moses's primary fault, the theft of a cherry pie. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.0
File: Morr085

Number Me One
DESCRIPTION: "Number me one"(x3), I'm going to the Judgment Bar." Verses: "Send for my leader (preacher) here (x3), I'm going to the Judgment Bar."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaslnds)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaslnds 45, pp. 188-189, "Nummer Me One" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [15 words]: The current description is based on the Parrish-
SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaslnds text. - BS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Parr045

Number Twelve Train
DESCRIPTION: "Number Twelve train took my baby, I could not keep from cryin'. (x2)" The singer's woman left him; he grieves so much he thinks he is dying. He vows that his next girl "will have to do what poppa say."

Nurse Pinched the Baby, The

DESCRIPTION: When the nurse pinches the baby, "Mother [goes] down to the beer saloon to pray." When she catches "the rage from Doctor Dye-O," the same thing happens

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio)
KEYWORDS: drink baby humorous
FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 137, "The Nurse Pinched the Baby" (1 short text, 1 tune)

NOTES [47 words]: Agnes Amelia Ransom Burton (died 1969) reported that she learned this song from her father before 1900, which is the earliest mention of the song from tradition. Although it isn't very evident from Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio's fragment, it appears to be a mock temperance song. - RBW

File: E137

Nut-Brown Maid, The

DESCRIPTION: The man claims that women, given the chance, are never true. The woman cites the case of the Nut-brown Maid. They play through the story. The woman will follow her man, even to the greenwood, and will fight for him, etc. The ballad ends by praising women

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1537: Richard Arnold's "Chronicle" of c. 1521 (Chambers dates it c. 1503) and in Richard Hill's manuscript (Balliol Coll. Oxf. 354) before 1537; printed in 1707 in the Muses Mercury
KEYWORDS: infidelity love dialog outlaw MiddleEnglish

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (13 citations):
Hales/Furnival-BishopPercysFolioManuscript, volume III, pp. 174-186, "The nutt browne mayd" (2 texts, the Percy Folio version in the main text and the Hill Manuscript version in the notes)
Percy/Wheatley-ReliquesOfAncientEnglishPoetry II, pp. 31-47, "The Not-Browne Maid" (1 text)
Sidgwick/Chambers-EarlyEnglishLyrics XIX, pp. 34-48, "The Nutbrown Maid" (1 text)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 69, "The Nut-Brown Maid" (1 text)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #467
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #761

ADDITIONAL:
John Ashton, _A Century of Ballads_, Elliot Stock, London, 1887; reprinted 1968 by Singing Tree Press, pp. vi-xii, "(The Nut browne Mayde)" (1 text)
Katherine Briggs, _A Dictionary of British Folk-Tales in the English Language_, Part A: Folk Narratives, 1970 (I use the 1971 Routledge paperback that combines volumes A.1 and A.2), volume A.2, pp. 450-451, "the Nut-Brown Maid" (1 summarized prose text, telling only the Maid's story without the enclosing dialog)
GArnett-IHearAmericaSinging/Gosse: Richard GArnett-IHearAmericaSinging and Edmund Gosse, _English Literature: An Illustrated Record_ four volumes, MacMillan, 1903-1904 (I used the 1935 edition published in two volumes), volume I, pp. 310-311 (1 partial text plus a facsimile of Arnold's printed edition)
NOTES [816 words]: Given its elaborate stanzaic structure, regular alternation of speakers, and elaborately formal language, it seems clear that this should be accounted a literary rather than a folk production. I know of no version in oral tradition, although Briggs, p. 451, notes a variety of partial parallels, such as "The Saucy Sailor," "Fair Annie" [Child 62], and "The Squire of Low Degree" (the latter itself, found in the Percy Folio among other places, being of dubious place in tradition; for a list of editions, see Rice, pp. 523-525).

Chambers, p. 120, reminds us, "The stanza-form of the poem is unusual. It is generally printed as in twelve lines. But two out of every three lines have internal rhymes, and on analysis it resolves itself into an eighteen-line variety of the rime couée, so beloved by popular singers, complicated by the use of two distinct refrains, which occur with very slight variation. The technical description is thus aa2b3cc2b3dd2b3ee2b3ff2g3hh2g3."

A parody of this song, "The New Nutbrowne Maid," occurs as early as 1520. Obviously this makes the original even older. The earliest date depends on the age of Arnold's Chronicle, which is undated. The latest date I have seen for it is the 1521 date cited above. GArett-IHearAmericaSinging/Gosse, which prints a facsimile, dates the Chronicle to 1502/3, and Briggs, p. 451, also says 1502. Parker, p. 78, suggests a first edition of 1502 and an expanded edition of 1521. However, Dyboski, p. xxx, thinks that the Hill copy is the oldest copy although the very same page suggests that it was copied from Arnold! (There is good external evidence that Hill knew Arnold's book; later in Hill's volume is a London chronicle for 1414-1536, and Parker, p. 78, says that "the bulk of the borrowing" was from Arnold's Chronicle.. It is even possible that Hill knew Richard Arnold; in 1494, Arnold had a neighbor named "Richard Hyll" -- Parker, p. 85 -- although our Richard Hill was probably very young at that time.)

Whatever the date of the Arnold Chronicle, there was another early printing; John Skot issued a copy during the short period that he printed at Fauster Lane in St. Leonard's Parish in London (Plomer, p. 214). From another book printed at this address, we know Skot was active in Fauster Lane in 1537. It will perhaps tell you what sort of printer Skot was if I inform you that both of the complete early versions of the morality play "Everyman" come from his press. (There were earlier printings by Richard Pynson, but we have only fragments of those. The texts you see printed today are essentially Skot's.)

In addition, there is a Stationer's Register entry for "the nutbrowne mayde" in the 1550s (Rollins, p. 172, #1983, says Jno. King was fined for printing this in 1558-1559).

There is a possibility that Queen Elizabeth herself heard this piece; according to Holt, p. 140, one Robert Langham was present when Elizabeth heard an entertainment in July 1575 at the Earl of Leicester's palace of Kenilworth which featured the "The Nut Brown Maid."

GArett-IHearAmericaSinging is also quite effusive about the merits of the piece, but adds that "One famous ballad stands out prominently from the rest as being, so far as is known, the invention of the anonymous writer. It is The Nut Brown Maid..." The only anonymous ballad? Uh-huh.
Percy's version, from what I can tell, appears to come from the Chronicle text, only with several of Percy's pet archaizing tricks (he did at least improve the punctuation to something resembling sense).

Skeat, one of the greatest scholars of Middle English of the nineteenth century, regards this as "almost certainly written by a woman" (p. 110; a statement I would consider a little strong -- there were medieval authors who were sympathetic to women, including Chaucer -- but likely enough), and then claims it to be the third-oldest surviving English writing by a woman, following "The Flower and the Leaf" and "The Assembly of Ladies." Pearsall, p. 3, says of "The Flower and the Leaf," "Whether the poem is actually by a woman is a question which no ingenuity, it seems, could solve," and p. 31 says of "The Assembly of Ladies, 'Whether the author was indeed a woman is a question impossible to prove either way,' adding that, contrary to Skeat, there were female poets in the fifteenth century, and men did mask themselves as women -- and ultimately expressing the opinion that the author is not a woman. GArett-IHearAmericaSinging/Gosse, p. 174, call the author of the "Flower" "he," but they may be using the masculine pronoun generically; they show no interest in the author's gender even while praising him(?) as a relatively worthy successor to Chaucer. But if the "Flower" and the "Assembly" are by men, it raises the faint possibility that this is the oldest surviving literary work by a woman in English. I don't believe it, but I'll mention it. - RBW

Bibliography

- GArenett-IHearAmericaSinging/Gosse: Richard GArenett-IHearAmericaSinging and Edmund Gosse, English Literature: An Illustrated Record four volumes, MacMillan, 1903-1904 (I used the 1935 edition published in two volumes)
- Skeat: Walter W. Skeat, The Chaucer Canon: With a Discussion of the Works Associated with the Name of Geoffrey Chaucer, 1900? (I use the 1965 Haskell House reprint)

Last updated in version 5.3
File: 0BB069

Nutting Girl, The

DESCRIPTION: A young girl goes out to gather nuts. A farmer stops plowing and begins to sing. The girl hears his sweet voice, and "what nuts she had got, poor girl, she threw them all away." They lie together, then go their ways. The song warns girls against dallying

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1895; tune 1792 (Bunting)

KEYWORDS: courting seduction music harvest farming sex pregnancy

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South,West),Scotland(Aber)) US(NE)

REFERENCES (11 citations):
- Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 186, "The Nutting Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Greig/Duncan7 1475, "A-Nutting I'll Not Go" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
- Copper-SongsAndSouthernBreezes, pp. 214-215, "The Nutting Maid" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Hamer-GreenGroves, pp. 12-13, "The Nutting Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 652, "Nutting Girl" (1 text)
- Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #72, "The Nutting Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
- OShaughnessy/Grainger-TwentyOneLincolnshireFolkSongs 15, "The Nutting Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Purslow-TheConstantLovers, p. 1, "A-Nutting We Will Go" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #84, "The Nutting Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Beck-FolkloreOfMaine, pp. 108-109, "The Jolly Plough Boy" (1 text, 1 tune, in which the plough boy and the squire's daughter end up getting married; I suspect two songs have joined)
- DT, NUTGIRL*
- Roud #509

RECORDINGS:
- Warde Ford, "A Nutting We Will Go" [incomplete] (AFS 4200 A2, 1938; in AMMEM/Cowell)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Battle of Harlaw" (tune, per Greig/Duncan7)
- cf. "Mowing Match Song" (partial tune, according to Palmer)
Ny Kirree Fo-Sniaghtey (The Sheep All Are Buried)

DESCRIPTION: Manx Gaelic. Nicholas Raby's 2000 sheep are covered by mountain snow drifts. Shepherds are called out with their poles and dog to find the breathing holes and save the sheep. The lambs are saved but some old sheep are lost.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage rescue death farming storm sheep shepherd
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 38-39, "Ny Kirree Fo-Sniaghtey (The Sheep All Are Buried)" (1 text, 1 tune, translated from Manx Gaelic)
Roud #1371
File: BrMa038

O A Iu, Nach Till Thu Dhomnaill (O A Iu, Will You Not Return?)

DESCRIPTION: Gaelic. The singer meets Donald while traversing the moors. They flirt, "he threatened to tear my chemise to shreds.... That was not what you promised me ... a ceremony of marriage."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1961 (Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage courting promise accusation worksong
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, pp. 178-179, "Gaelic Milling Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [58 words]: The description is based on the translation of Creighton/MacLeod 69 in Gaelic Songs in Nova Scotia which is the same Gaelic text as Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs.
Creighton/MacLeod: "There is a more complete version of this song in Craig's 'Orain Luaidh,' p. 66."
Creighton explains "this is a work song, used for milling, or shrinking, cloth." - BS
File: CrMS178

O Adam

DESCRIPTION: Dialog, in which Eve convinces Adam to eat the tree of knowledge. God orders them out of the garden. They lament, and hope to work their way back to Heaven

AUTHOR: W. W. Phelps
EARLIEST DATE: 1845 (Times and Seasons)
KEYWORDS: religious dialog punishment
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 455-456, "O Adam" (1 text)
Roud #7834
NOTES [92 words]: The story of the expulsion from the Garden of Eden occupies Genesis 3. Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety (who calls this a "mystery play") notes that the ending of this song is "curiously unbiblical," and links it with Mormon doctrine. That it is Mormon there is no doubt, and it is true that there is no evidence in Genesis that humans can ever return to the Garden (in ordinary Christian theology this is a form of the Pelagian heresy). But I've seen equally non-biblical statements in hymns used by most Protestant denominations. - RBW
File: Beld455
O Alla Tinka
DESCRIPTION: "O alla tinka, to do the Rumba ... I paula-tay paula-taska ...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (_The Singing Street_, according to Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: nonsense playparty
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 126, "O Alla Tinka" (1 text, 1 tune) NOTES [71 words]: Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame: "This song is included to show the persistence of scraps of rhythmic utterance, and the esteem in which they are held, as if they were magic incantations. ... The mumbo-jumbo of the second verse ['I paula ...'] was, however, being chanted at the evening sing-songs of the Holiday Fellowship before the First World War, in a part-song which went like this: Hi politi politaska, polita, polito...." - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: OpGa126

O Belinda
DESCRIPTION: "Right hand up, O Belinda, Won't you be my darling?" Left hand up, both hands up, back to back
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Beckwith & Roberts)
KEYWORDS: playparty
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord)) West Indies(Jamaica)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 46, "O Belinda" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Martha Warren Beckwith and Helen Roberts, _Folk-Games of Jamaica_ (Poughkeepsie: Vassar College, 1922 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")) #44 pp. 55-56, "Yes, Belinda" (1 text)
Roud #7404
File: OpGa046

O Blessed Lord
DESCRIPTION: "O blessed Lord, in the way thou hast gone, Lead him straight to that land above.
Give him cheer everywhere to the sad and the low. Fill my way every day with love...." The singer prays for love, help, hope, and guidance
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Chappell)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 98, "O Blessed Lord" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #16940
NOTES [24 words]: I suspect this of being an "occasional" item (though I vacillate between thinking it's for a baptism and for a funeral). But I can't prove it. - RBW
File: ChFRA098

O Bonnie Annie, Gin Ye Had Been Cannie
DESCRIPTION: "O bonnie Annie, gin ye had been cannie, Ye micht 'a been lady o' Lessendrum,
But O bonnie Annie, ye never was cannie, Ye've gotten but Lesley's second son"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: courting nonballad nobility
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #143, p. 2, ("O bonnie Annie, gin ye had been
O Bonny Sandy

DESCRIPTION: Sandy's term day is near. His girl would follow him but it would ruin her name. He says another man will be hired and she'll find another man. She says she would follow Sandy instead -- "he's a handsome fellow" -- but she doesn't like his drinking

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan4)

KEYWORDS: love separation farming drink dialog

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 902, "O Bonny Sandy," Greig/Duncan8 Addenda, "O Bonny Sandy" (2 texts, 1 tune)

Roud #6256

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Term Lilt" (two verses) and notes there

NOTES [109 words]: Greig/Duncan4: "There is some similarity to the opening verses of 'Nellie Douglas' in Ord, p. 123." The similarity is really limited to the opening lines of Ord ("It's, O and alas, and O wae's me, The term time is drawing so near to me") and the theme of a female servant leaving a man behind. However, that ballad ends happily.

The Greig/Duncan4 text is not clear in that in some verses the girl is leaving and in other verses Sandy is leaving. The story makes no sense unless Sandy is leaving.

Seasonal hiring of servants and farm workers usually was for six months, beginning May and November, and the term day marked the end of the employment period. - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD4902

O Brothers, Don't Get Weary

DESCRIPTION: "O Brothers, don't get weary (x3), We're waiting for the Lord. We'll land on Canaan's shore (x2), When we land on Canaan's shore, We'll meet forevermore."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 95, "O Brothers, Don't Get Weary" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #12051

File: AWG095A

O Bud

DESCRIPTION: "I don't like no farmer's rule, says, 'Get up in the morning With the dog-goned mule.' Oh Bud, Bud, Bud, Bud, O Bud." "I'm going up the maple, Coming down the pine, Looking for a woman Got a rambling mind."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl)
O But Ye Are Wan, Lassie
DESCRIPTION: "Ye're wan [pale], lassie, lying in a stange bed or with a strange man." "A juggie and a wee pap spoon, Ye see what's got by man"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: sex pregnancy nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1794, "O But Ye Are Wan, Lassie" (1 text)
Roud #13022
File: GrD81794

O Canada!
DESCRIPTION: "O Canada! Terres de nos aieux...." "O Canada! Our home and native land." Both French and English versions praise the beauties and freedoms enjoyed by Canada, the "true North."
AUTHOR: French Words: A. B. Routhier / Music: Calixa Lavalee / English Words: Dr. R. Stanley Weir
EARLIEST DATE: 1880 (English words composed 1908)
KEYWORDS: Canada patriotic nonballad foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Fowke/Mills/Blume-CanadasStoryInSong, pp. 114-116, "O Canada!" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 340, "O Canada!" (1 text)
File: FMB114

O Come Away (Sweet Philomel)
DESCRIPTION: "O come, come away, from labor now reposing, Let busy care awhile forbear, O come, come away. Come, come, our social joys renew, And there let trust and friendship grow." As day ends, hearers are called upon to join in prayers
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1850 (Sacred Harp, according to Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 65, "Sweet Philomel" (1 text, 1 tune)
Heart-Songs, p. 303, "O Come, Come Away" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7526
File: Boet065

O Daniel
DESCRIPTION: "You call yourself church member, You hold your head so high, You praise God with your glitt'ring tongue, But you leave all your heart behind. O my Lord delivered Daniel, O Daniel... O why not deliver me?"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
O David

DESCRIPTION: "O David, yes, yes, My little David, yes, yes, And he killed Goliath...." "My little David... Was a shepherd's boy...." "He killed Goliath... And he shouted for joy...." "O David... Play on, David...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)

KEYWORDS: Bible religious

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, p. 93, "David, David" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, p. 237, "Evil Little David" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 204-207, "David, David, Yes, Yes" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 130, "O David" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #6683 and 7117

NOTES [75 words]: The story of David and Goliath (actually two stories, carefully blended together, in one of which David is Saul's aide/court musician and in another he is a shepherd visiting the battle) is found in 1 Samuel 17. The versions of this are so diverse that Roud gave it multiple numbers, and I will allow that different songs about David and Goliath could easily have come into existence. But I don't see an obvious way to draw a line between them. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: LoF250A

O Dinna Cross the Burn

DESCRIPTION: Willie's sweetheart asks him to stay with her -- "your folks a' ken ye're here the nicht, And sair they wad me blame -- instead of crossing the stream and going home in a storm. He leaves and is drowned. She goes crazy with grief.

AUTHOR: Words: William Cameron, music by MacGregor Simpson (source: Greig/Duncan6 quoting _Lyric Gems_)

EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan6)

KEYWORDS: grief madness love death drowning storm

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Greig/Duncan6 1243, "O Dinna Cross the Burn" (1 text)

Roud #6770

NOTES [42 words]: Greig/Duncan6: "Lyric Gems prints the song noting that it is by William Cameron, music by MacGregor Simpson. The note adds that, "The song tells a melancholy story, but a true one, of an incident that happened on the river Stinchar in Ayrshire." - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD61243

O Du Glade Sjoman (O Ye Merry Seamen)

DESCRIPTION: Swedish shanty. Verses are of contented sailors sailing out with fond farewells to their sweethearts, and of the faith they have in their ship to bring them home again. Each stanza is repeated as a chorus.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Sternvall, _Sang under Segel_)

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage shanty sailor farewell
O Erin, My Country

DESCRIPTION: "O Erin, my country, though strangers may roam, The hills and the valleys I once called my own, still, "Erin! Erin! My heart beats for thee." He has been long away, but he would not forget if he lived to a thousand. He will treasure the memory

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster)

KEYWORDS: home Ireland exile nonballad

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 17, "O, Erin, My Country" (1 text)
Roud #12874
File: HMHS017C

O Fathers, It's High Time You All Are Ready

DESCRIPTION: "O Fathers, it's high time you all are ready, When this world is at an end.... Oh, we do believe in bein' ready (x2), when this world is at an end." Similarly with mothers, brothers, sisters, children

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry, from Granville Gadsey)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 216-217, "O Fathers, It's High Time You All Are Ready" (1 text)
File: MHAp216

O Freedom

DESCRIPTION: Recognized by its praise of freedom and the lines "And before I'd be a slave, I'd be buried in my grave, And go home to my Lord and be free." Most versions simply praise freedom; one speaks of the slave's dead mother

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)

KEYWORDS: religious freedom slave slavery mother death nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (11 citations):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, p. 25, "Before I'd Be a Slave" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 110, "Oh, Freedom!" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 114 in the 1901 edition)
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 239-240, "Oh, Freedom!" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 291-292, "Oh Freedom" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber-SoldierSongsAndHomeFrontBalladsOfCivilWar, p. 33, "Oh Freedom" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warren-EveryTimeIFeelTheSpirit, pp. 70-71, "Oh, Freedom" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-FolkSongUSA 108, "O Freedom" (1 text, 1 tune)
Foner-AmericanLaborSongsOfTheNineteenthCentury, p. 89, "Before I'd Be a Slave (Oh, Freedom)" (1 text)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, p. 354, "O Freedom" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 295, "Oh Freedom" (1 text)
DT, OHFREEDM
Roud #10073
RECORDINGS:
John Handcock, "No More Mourning (Oh Freedom)" (AFS 3238 A1, 3238 A2, 1937)
Montgomery Gospel Trio, "I'm So Glad" [medley of that song -- 'I'm so glad I'm fighting for my rights' -- and "O Freedom"] (on WeShall1, DownHome)
SNCC Freedom Singers, "Freedom Chant/Oh, Freedom/This Little Light of Mine" (on VoicesCiv)
Hollis Watkins, "Oh Freedom" (on VoicesCiv)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Free Slave"
File: LxU108

O Gal When You Come Off the Island

DESCRIPTION: "O bring me a 'gator O gal when you come off the island A ring tailed 'gator O gal... A Darien 'gator O gal...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands)
KEYWORDS: food nonballad shanty animal
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands, p. 203, ("O bring me a gator") (1 fragment)
NOTES [15 words]: The current description is based on the Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands text. - BS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Parp203

O Gin I Had a Canty House

DESCRIPTION: The singer has a humble but happy cottage with no cares and "yon sweet lass the mistress o't"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: love marriage home nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1271, "O Gin I Had a Canty House" (1 text)
Roud #7187
File: GrD71271

O Gin That I Were Mairrit

DESCRIPTION: "I'm now a lass of thirty-three, As clever a hizzie as ye'll see, And feint a ane a'er courtit me...." "(O gin that I were mairrit, mairrit, mairrit... I raley would do weel, O." The old maid lists her property and describes her skills
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads)
KEYWORDS: age loneliness marriage dowry clothes nonballad oldmaid
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 39-40, "O Gin That I Were Mairrit" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3786
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Wonder When I Shall Be Married" (theme, lyrics)
cf. "The Old Maid's Song (I)" and references there
NOTES [45 words]: This, to me, feels so close to "I Wonder When I Shall Be Married" that I thought seriously about lumping them. But while the feeling is exactly the same, there aren't many words in common, and the ones that are are the sort you almost have to use in songs like this. - RBW
File: 0rd040
O God, Our Help in Ages Past

DESCRIPTION: "O God, our help in ages past, Our hope for years to come, Our shelter from the stormy blast And our eternal home!" The singer hopes for help and protection from God, who has existed since before the world came to be

AUTHOR: Words: Isaac Watts (1674-1748) / Music: Credited to William Croft (1678-1727)

EARLIEST DATE: 1719 (source: Rudin)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(NE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Charles Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns (Hallberg, 1982), p. 35, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #17837

NOTES [1227 words]: The history of this song is rather complex. Julian, p. 875, tells us that "This is the first part of his [i.e. Isaac Watts's] Common Metre rendering of Psalm xc, in 9 stanzas of 4 lines, which appears in his Psalms of David, &C., 1719, p. 229, and entitled 'Man Frail, and God Eternal.'" Watts's original text began "OUR God, our help in ages past," and often was published with only stanzas 1, 2, 3, 5, 7, and 9 of Watt's original nine. It was John Wesley who in 1737 published it with the first line "O God, our help in ages past," with some additional changes; this is probably the most familiar version today. Julian calls this one of Watt's finest compositions, and his best paraphrase, but that didn't prevent at least two other authors from grafting other material into it, although only the Wesley version seems to be remembered.

Isaac Watts (1674-1748) has been called the "father of English hymnody." His father was a Calvinist preacher who sometimes twice up in prison for his radical beliefs and eventually kept a boarding school at Southampton (Julian, p. 1236); his mother was from a Huguenot family, and sometimes took little Isaac with her when she visited his father in prison (Johnson, p. 34).

An excellent student and quick learner (Kunitz/Haycraft, p. 554), Watts studied Greek and Hebrew as well as Latin (Johnson, p. 34), and eventually became a pastor of a non-conformist church, but had to resign the post in 1712 (Johnson, p. 1236), having apparently made earlier attempts to give up a post which he could not fill properly (Kunitz/Haycraft, p. 554). He spent the rest of his life working for Sir Thomas Abney as tutor and chaplain. He was given his "unsolicited" D.D. by the University of Edinburgh in 1728 (Julian, p. 1236).

According to Morgan, p. 25, he was dissatisfied with the musical materials available to him (Rudin, p. 9, says that musical participation by the congregation had all but been eliminated from Anglican services) -- and so "invented' the English hymn" (although others say he took "his cue from Dr. John Patrick; Davidson, p. 166). He also produced a book, The Psalms of David Imitated in the Language of the New Testament -- which would better be called works vaguely inspired by the Psalms than actual imitations or paraphrases. "Joy to the World," which doesn't really bear much similarity to Psalm 98 on which it is allegedly based, is an example of this. Watts did come under criticism for this; Morgan reports that Thomas Bradbury called his writings "whims" rather than "hymns."

Despite these objections, Watts is credited with writing some 600 hymns, of which Julian, pp. 1237-1241, says 454 are in "common use"; on p. 1594, he adds that there are almost a hundred other Watts hymns in "some minor hymn-books." Among the most famous are this, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "Hush, my dear, be still and slumber," and perhaps "Joy to the World." He also produced the well-known line "When I can read my titles clear to mansions in the sky," although that was taken in many different directions after his time.

NewCentury, p. 1141, says that, in addition to his hymns and books of religious instruction, Watts produced "How doth the little busy bee,' one of his pioneering instructive poems for children." I would suggest that it did better at nauseating than instructing children; the only reason I can see for remembering it is that it inspired Lewis Carroll's "How Doth the Little Crocodile."

Kunitz/Haycraft, p. 554, makes the interesting comment that Watts was "almost if not quite a Unitarian, and extremely liberal in social as well as religious views" -- an attitude seemingly not known to many of the conservative denominations which sing his hymns. He also experimented significantly with meter and poetic forms, although these experiments seem to be forgotten.

Julian, pp. 349-350, says of him "Notwithstanding the contempt with which is name is often mentioned... few have left such a solid contribution to our best hymns as Isaac Watts... and no one has so deeply impressed himself on their structure.... Inheriting from the tradition of the metrical psalms a healthy strength of thought and a habit of broad and jubilant praise, impressed through the paraphrases with the necessity of a rich scripture groundwork, and supplied with a wide range of..."
of subjects by his immediate predecessors, he is in his best pieces gifted with a soft richness of diction, and a free vigorous rhythm.... His faults are bombast and doggrel. Turgid epithets and tawdry ornaments were the fashion of the time.... No one that has studied the hymns that preceded him will wonder that Watts was indifferent about doggrel.... It is due to Watts to point out how frequently in his prefaces he speaks of the 'fetter' of 'the old narrow metres,' the necessity of giving each line by itself a complete sense, and of 'sinking it to the level of a whole congregation as the accepted restraints under which he wrote.... Watts's place in this history is to be estimated not only by the pieces he has left us, but by his enduring influence on the structure of our hymns." Rudin, p. 9, claims that the first book ever printed by Benjamin Franklin was a 1741 volume, "Watts's Psalms and Hymns." Ironically for one of nine children, he never married and had no offspring of his own (Kunitz/Haycraft, p. 554).

Works of his in the Index include "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," "Through Every Age, Eternal God" (indexed as "Highbridge"), "Hush, My Dear, Lie Still and Slumber," "Ballstown (Great God, Attend)," and perhaps "When I Can Read My Titles Clear (Long Time Traveling)," "On a Dark and Doleful Night," and "Joy to the World." The author of the tune, "St. Anne," is less certain; Stulken, pp. 376-377, reports that it was originally published anonymously in the Brady and Tate metrical edition of the psalms (1708), where it was used for Psalm 42 ("As pants the hart for cooling streams"), but that contemporaries attributed it to William Croft (1678?-1727). Reynolds, p. 159, notes that both Philip Hart's 1720 Collection and John Church's 1723 Introduction to Psalmody attribute it to Croft, and says that both Hart and Church knew Croft, so he is inclined to accept the attribution. He was that it is named for St. Anne's Church, Soho, where Croft was organist. He adds that the opening phrase seems to have been older and independently known, being used by Handel in the anthem "O Praise the Lord" and as the base theme of Bach's Fugue in E flat, the "St. Anne Fugue." This obviously raises the possibility that someone else adapted that musical phrase before Croft worked on it. Reynolds, pp. 290-291, says that Croft was born in Warwickshite in 1678 and died in Bath in 1727; he became organist at St. Anne's in 1700 (remaining there until 1711, according to McKim, p. 157), and later became organist for Westminster Abbey and composer for the Chapel Royal. Early in life he wrote some secular music, but later turned entirely to sacred music. Other than his "Funeral Sentences" and this tune (if he wrote it), very little of his work seems to be remembered. Whether Croft wrote "St. Anne" or not, in addition to being the basis for Bach's "St. Anne's Fugue," it was used in Handel's "O Praise the Lord," according to McKim, p. 211. - RBW

Bibliography

- Davidson: James Robert Davidson, A Dictionary of Protestant Church Music, Scarecrow Press, 1975
- Johnson: Charles Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns, Hallberg, 1982
- Julian: John Julian, editor, A Dictionary of Hymnology, 1892; second edition 1907 (I use the 1957 Dover edition in two volumes)
- Kunitz/Haycraft: Stanley J. Kunitz and Howard Haycraft, Editors, British Authors Before 1800: A Biographical Dictionary, H. W. Wilson, 1952 (I use the fourth printing of 1965)
- Rudin: Cecilia Margaret Rudin, Stories of Hymns We Love, John Rudin & Company, 1934 (I use the fourteenth printing of 1951)

Last updated in version 5.0
File: BdOGOHIA

O Gott Vater ins Himmels Throne (O God, Father, in Heaven's Throne)
DESCRIPTION: Amish hymn in German. "O Gott Vater in Himmels Throne, Der du uns hast bereit
"O God, Father, in Heaven's throne, You have have prepared a crown for us, As we... Suffer with him the cross and anguish..."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1742 (Amish Ausbund, #55, according to Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation): Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 156-157, "O Gott Vater ins Himmels Throne (O God, Father, in Heaven's Throne)" (1 short German text plus not-very-literal translation, 1 tune)
File: KPL156

O Happy Is The Man, That Has No Beast

DESCRIPTION: The man with no beast, or place to house it, is free of responsibilities.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: humorous nonballad animal
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1654, "O Happy Is The Man, That Has No Beast" (1 text)
Roud #13050
NOTES [39 words]: Greig/Duncan8: "In the year 1830, a John Henderson [who lived in the 'moss o' Savock'] was tried for smuggling, at the J.P. court, Old Deer. He bought himself off by [a] bit of special pleading in rhyme [adducing his poverty]...." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81654

O Holy Night

DESCRIPTION: "O holy night, the stars are brightly shining, It is the night of the dear Savior's birth." The world has been trapped in sin, but now that will change. Hearers are told to fall on their knees and listen to the angels. "Behold your king."
EARLIEST DATE: 1847 (source: Wikipedia; hymnary.org)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad Jesus
FOUND IN: ...
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #216, "O Holy Night" (1 text)
Roud #25609
File: JMSo216

O I Hae Seen the Roses Blaw

DESCRIPTION: "O, I hae seen the roses blaw, The heather bloom, the broom and a'... Yet Mary's sweeter on the green...." The singer praises the girl, wishes he could win her, says he would love anywhere she is, and declares he will wander till she loves him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland)
KEYWORDS: love rejection
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 16-17, "Oh! I Ha'e Seen the Roses Blaw" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST StoR016 (Partial)
Roud #2617
File: StoR016
O I Shall Have Wings
DESCRIPTION: "O I shall have wings, beautiful wings, I shall have wings some day, Bright wings of love from God above, Carry my soul away." "O hallelujah to the lamb, I shall have wings someday, Jesus made me what I am...." The singer looks forward to heaven
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Chappell)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 94, "The Good Old Way" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #16938
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Good Old Way (I)" (lyrics)
NOTES [44 words]: It is perhaps worth noting that nowhere in the Bible are angels promised wings; indeed, the word "wing" occurs only five times in the New Testament (it's more common in the Old Testament, but usually is used either of birds' wings or in a metaphorical sense). - RBW
File: ChFRA094

O Jamie Man Tak My Advice
DESCRIPTION: "If you get a wife like mine You'll rue it till you dee." The singer's wife nags when he would drink and breaks teapots on his head. He warns Jamie against considering beauty: "look ye for ane that's mild an' meek"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: shrewishness violence drink nonballad husband wife abuse
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1296, "O Jamie Man Tak My Advice" (1 text)
Roud #7143
File: GrD71296

O Janet Bring Me Ben My Sunday Coat
DESCRIPTION: The singer asks that Janet bring his fine clothes, boots, "cutty pipe," and "snuffy boxes" for his appearance at the House of Lords, "the father o' the taxes." She says "Ye'll be lookin' like mortality Come out amon' the grave stanes"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: travel clothes dialog nonballad nobility
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 502, "O Janet Bring Me Ben My Sunday Coat" (1 text)
Roud #5987
NOTES [20 words]: I have to think this is a reference to some political event. But with so little to go on, it's hard to imagine what. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3502

O Jeannie My Dear Would You Marry Me?
DESCRIPTION: "O (Jeannie) my dear would you marry me, O Jeannie my dear would you go... Whether you're willint or no." "I've a pottie for bilin' my porridge, An' a skillit for bilin' my whey, I've a set o' new cups and saucers, Aye, an' a kettle for bilin' my tay."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Jeannie Robertson)
KEYWORDS: marriage courting food
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
O Kings

DESCRIPTION: "O Kings, you've heard the sequel Of what we now describe; It isn't just and equal To tax this wealthy tribe."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands)

KEYWORDS: money nonballad royalty

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 195, "O Kings" (1 fragment, fourth of seven "Quatrains on the War")

ST Fus196D (Full)

File: Fus196D

O Lawd I Went Up on the Mountain

DESCRIPTION: "O Lawd, I went up on the mountain, looked at the risin' sun... I says, 'You can't do to me, oh, like Lorena done.'" He complains of being robbed, she travels, she complains, he is in Cummins (prison? graveyard?); he still loves her

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (collected from Kelly Page and others)

KEYWORDS: love clothes prison burial

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 394-396, "O Lawd I Went Up on the Mountain" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #15653

File: LxSi394

O Little Town of Bethlehem

DESCRIPTION: The quiet little town of Bethlehem is described, with the note that "the everlasting light" shines in its streets. The song describes the reactions of those who know of the event, and prays for the help of the holy child

AUTHOR: Words: Phillips Brooks (1835-1893)

EARLIEST DATE: 1874 ("The Church Porch")

KEYWORDS: Christmas religious nonballad Jesus

FOUND IN: US Britain

REFERENCES (8 citations):
Dearmer/VaughnWilliams/Shaw-OxfordBookOfCarols 138, "O Little Town" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #214, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" (1 text)
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 236, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 378, "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, p. 402, "O Little Town of Bethlehem!"

DT, LTTLTOWN*

ADDITIONAL: Charles Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns (Hallberg, 1982), p. 132-133, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ian Bradley, The Penguin Book of Carols (1999), #55, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" (1 text)

Roud #24752

NOTES [325 words]: This poem is sung to different tunes in Britain and America. The American tune is by Lewis H. Redner (c. 1830-1908), who Reynolds, p. 161, had been asked to provide a melody. This tune is sometimes known as "St. Louis." In Britain, however, the text it is usually sung to "The Ploughboy's Dream" ("Forest Green"). McKim, p. 48, says that it was Ralph Vaughn...
Williams who fitted the tune to the words by Brooks. There is a third tune by Walford Davies, rarely sung in Britain and hardly at all in America.

Phillips Brooks was most noted as a preacher; he had several volumes of sermons published. Of his poems, only four are mentioned in Granger's Index to Poetry, and this is the only one to be widely reprinted. Reynolds, p. 274, says that he was born in Boston and studied at Virginia Theological Seminary; he was ordained in 1859 and took up a job as a minister in Philadelphia, then went back to Boston. In 1891 he became the (Episcopal) Bishop of Massachusetts.

Rudin, pp. 64-65, describes a visit Brooks made to the Holy Land (he was one of the few hymnwriters to actually go there); he visited Bethlehem for Christmas 1865, and watched the children there prepare for the holiday. On his way there for the service, he looked down on the small town at night, and saw its dark streets; hence this poem.

Redner, according to Reynolds, p. 407, was born and educated in Philadelphia, and did well as a real estate broker there, but still managed to have a strong interest in church music, serving several congregations as an organist, including Brooks's (which is why he was called upon to supply a tune; McKim, pp. 48-49). He never married, and died in New Jersey in 1908 after a brief illness.

Rudin, p. 65, says Brooks brought his text to Redner, his organist, who struggled to fit a tune, then has it come to him in a flash of inspiration in the middle of the night on Christmas Eve/Day, 1868. That story truly sounds too good to be true. - RBW

Bibliography

- Rudin: Cecilia Margaret Rudin, Stories of Hymns We Love, John Rudin & Company, 1934 (I use the fourteenth printing of 1951)

Last updated in version 6.0

File: FSWB378B

O Lizzie Lass I've Lo'ed Thee Lang

DESCRIPTION: The singer says he has loved and been true to Lizzie. He asks her to go with him "amang the heathery hills o' Dee. I'll row thee in my tartan plaid And keep the winter's cauld frae thee"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan7)

KEYWORDS: courting nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Greig/Duncan7 1358, "O Lizzie Lass I've Lo'ed Thee Lang" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7236
File: GrD71358

O Lord What Harm I've Done

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "(O Lord)(x4) O Lord, O Lord, What harm I've done." Verse couplets include "I went to the window to look out, The ramhorn did blow and the children did shout." "I went to the mountain, Jehovah spoke, And out of the mountain came fire and smoke"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Hutson/Pinckney/Rutledge-SomeSongsTheNegroSang)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Hutson/Pinckney/Rutledge-SomeSongsTheNegroSang, pp. 264-265, "Oh Lawd W'ah Haa'm I Done" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [18 words]: The description follows Hutson/Pinckney/Rutledge-SomeSongsTheNegroSang but I do not repeat the dialect. - BS

Last updated in version 5.1
O Mary Mother

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Mary, mother, come and see, Thy son is nailed on a tree." John brings word to Mary of the crucifixion. She cannot rest, but hurries to the execution site. She and Jesus discuss his fate. He prays and prepares to die

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1372 (Commonplace Book of John de Grasmine, National Library of Scotland MS. Advocates 18.7.21)

KEYWORDS: Jesus religious mother MiddleEnglish

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (14 citations):
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #157, pp. 117-119, "(no title)" (4 texts)
Sidgwick/Chambers-EarlyEnglishLyrics LXXX, pp. 146-147, "(no title)" (1 text)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #1219, #2036, #2111, 3575
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #2029, #3326, #3424, #5653

ADDITIONAL: Roman Dyboski, _Songs, Carols, and Other Miscellaneous Poems from the Balliol Ms. 354, Richard Hill's Commonplace Book_, Kegan Paul, 1907 (there are now multiple print-on-demand reprints), #24, pp. 13-15, "(Mary moder, cum and se)" (1 text)
Edward Bliss Reed, editor, _Christmas Carols Printed in the Sixteenth Century Including Kele's Christmas carolles newly Inprynted reproduced in facsimile from the copy in the Huntington Library_, Harvard University Press, 1932, pp. 49-51 ([31-33]), "(Gaudeam[us] synge we i(n) hoc sacro tpere(??) Puer nobis natus e(st) ex Maria virgine)" (1 text)
Karen Saupe, editor, _Middle English Marian Lyrics_, TEAMS (Consortium for the Teaching of the Middle Ages), Medieval Institute Publications, Western Michigan University, 1998, #48, pp. 110-111, "(Mayden and mother,cum and see)" (1 text)
Carleton Brown, editor, _English Lyrics of the XIVth Century_, Oxford University Press, 1924, #67, pp. 85-86, "Dialogue between Jesus and the B. V. at the Cross" (1 text)

MANUSCRIPT: {MSGrasmine}, Edinburgh, National Library of Scotland MS. Advocates 18.7.21
MANUSCRIPT: {MSEngPoetE1}, Oxford, Bodleian Library, MS. Eng. Poet. e.1 (Bodley 29734), folio 27 [IMEV #1219]
MANUSCRIPT: {MSSloane2593}, London, British Library, MS. Sloane 2593, folio 23 [IMEV #2111]
MANUSCRIPT: London, British Library, MS. Additional 31042 [the London Thornton Manuscript], folio 94 [IMEV #2111]
MANUSCRIPT: {MSRichardHill}, The Richard Hill Manuscript, Oxford, Balliol College MS. 354, folio 223 [IMEV #3575]

NOTES [558 words]: This is one of several early carols in Greene that seem to have been sufficiently well-known that I include them in the Index. Note the many different manuscripts with versions, which is an amazing number, and they include all three of the most important manuscripts of carols that seem to have gone into tradition: The Richard Hill manuscript (Balliol 354), the Sloane Lyrics (British Library, Sloane 2593), and Bodleian Eng. Poet. e.1. There is also a version in Richard Kele's _Christmas carolles newly imprinted_ in the Huntington Library. The earliest version is in the Commonplace Book of John de Grasmine, of 1372; for more on this book, see the notes to "The Coventry Carol" or Wilson; this song is his #185, with notes (although not the text) on p. 39 of Wilson. The fifth manuscript, the London Thornton Manuscript, is more miscellaneous. Robert Thornton made (at least) two manuscripts, now known as the Lincoln and London Thornton Manuscripts, with romances and poems and poems and odds and ends that struck his fancy. To find a carol like this in it is quite interesting, and is further testimony to its popularity. Any song with this range of attestation surely deserves indexing.

The post-Grasmine versions are all quite different, and have different choruses. Both Greene and the Index of Middle English Verse file them under different numbers. There isn't really much question that they are the same song, though. Greene discusses the matter on pp. cxxiv-cxxvi; his suggestion on the latter page is that the original resembles the John de Grasmine text, which has no burden, and that several writers converted it to a carol by adding (existing?) refrains. I suspect that there is truth in this, although I am not certain the process was deliberate. Woolf, p.
250, says of the process, "The poem [as found in the Grimestone version] is apparently written in couplets, though, out of thirty-six lines, sixteen could equally well be in mono-rhyming quatrains. In fifteenth century manuscripts it was turned into carol form through rearrangements and additions. Woolf, pp. 250-251, mentions this as a member of a small genre of "drama[s] in the sense that there is no narrative and three people speak," the three being Jesus, Mary, and John. She mentions as a prototypical example a Latin piece "Qui per viam pergitis" (although the version of this that I find online is actually dated after the Grimestone book). Thompson, pp. 10-18, lists the contents of the London Thornton Manuscript. This is the tenth item out of 31, quite a few of which are long: an excerpt from the Cursor Mundi, a long poem on the Passion known in many other copies, the Siege of Jerusalem, the Siege of Melayne (Milan), the romance Roland and Ottuel, the Virtues of the Mass, The Three Kings of Cologne, the romance of Richard the Conqueror (i.e. Richard I, Richard Yes-and-No, Richard the Lion-Hearted), The Parliament of the Three Ages, Wynmere and Wastoure. According to Thompson, p. 13, this is an addition to the manuscript by a somewhat later hand. Thompson’s Plate 17 reproduces the text, which he regards as incomplete.

For more on manuscript Sloane 2593, see the notes to "Robyn and Gandeleyn" [Child 115]. For more about the famous anthology Bodleian MS. Eng. Poet. e.1 (Bodleian 29734), see the notes to "The Golden Carol (The Three Kings)." - RBW

Bibliography

- Edward Wilson, A Descriptive Index of the English Lyrics in John of Grimestone's Preaching Book, Medium Aevum Monographs, New Series II, 1973 (I use the 2015 digital reprint which appears to be a scan of the original work)

Last updated in version 5.3
File: Gree044

O Mary, Come Down!
DESCRIPTION: Shanty, though just barely, really more of a call-out. "Oh Mary, come down with your bunch of roses, come down when I call, oh Mary. Oh Mary come down!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1961 (Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas)
KEYWORDS: shanty, worksong
FOUND IN: West Indies
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, p. 368, "O Mary, Come Down!" (1 short text, 1 tune) [AbEd, p. 277]
Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips p. 29, "A Sing Out" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #9165
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Blood Red Roses" (lyrics)
NOTES [39 words]: The text of this looks very like a fragment of "Come Down You Roses/Blood Red Roses." But the tune looks different, and there is no chorus, and the purpose is different. Susan Lawlor split them, and I am very tentatively going along. - RBW
File: Hug1368

O Mither! Ony Body
DESCRIPTION: A girl would "rather lie through life my lane Than cuddle wi a weaver." But a weaver is her only offer though she tries everything "that some ane might come to her aid." Failing at all she takes the weaver: "Sma' fish are better far than nane"
O Muckle Deil Fat Has Come o' Ye

DESCRIPTION: Devil take the thieves that steal our strays. Take them immediately to Hell for they might find the exit gate from purgatory. The singer offers the Devil "guid whisky" to "take the villains frae our sight" whoever they are (Donald Boutcher?)

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: theft farming humorous nonballad animal Devil
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 676, "O Muckle Deil Fat Has Come o' Ye" (1 text)
Roud #6100
File: GrD3676

O My Ain Wullie

DESCRIPTION: "O my ain Wullie, an' sae dearly's I love ye." The singer loves none better and "Over the salt seas I wad venture" to please him.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1849, "O My Ain Wullie" (1 text)
Roud #13594
File: GrD81849

O My Honey, Take Me Back

DESCRIPTION: "O my honey, take me back, O my dahlin', I'll be true. I am moanin' all day long; O my honey, I love you." "I have loved you in joy and pain, In de sunshine and de rain, O my honey, heah me do, O my dahlin', I love you."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)
KEYWORDS: love abandonment
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 239, "O My Honey, Take Me Back" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #15194
File: San239
O Neebor Man
DESCRIPTION: "O neeborman will ye come doon" to join me in a meal. We'll eat and drink "helter welter on the table." The piper will play and we will twist to the Reel o’ Bogie.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: dancing drink food nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1875, "O Neebor Man" (1 text)
Roud #13575
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of Sheriffmuir" (tune, per Greig/Duncan8)
File: GrD81875

O Noble England, Fall Down upon thy Knee (A Joyful New Ballad)
DESCRIPTION: "O noble England, fall down upon thy knee, And praise thy God with thankful heart which still maintaineth thee," The pope blesses the [Spanish] armada. In Plymouth, they set out to defeat it. Several enemy ships and actions are briefly described.
AUTHOR: Words: Thomas Deloney
EARLIEST DATE: 1588 (broadside)
KEYWORDS: navy battle Spain
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1558-1603 - Reign of Elizabeth (I)
1588 - Voyage of the Spanish Armada
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 6, "A Joyful New Ballad" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #V21737
File: PaSe006

O Prairie Land
DESCRIPTION: "We've reached the land of pleasant dreams, Of level plains and deep ravines, Where flowers abound on every hand, In this, our lovely prairie land." There are many flowers but few settlers. There is much wildlife -- including mosquitoes
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (MacLeod-SongsOfOldManitoba)
KEYWORDS: pioneer hardtimes derivative farming
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
MacLeod-SongsOfOldManitoba, #13, pp. 78-82, "O Prairie Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4899
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Beulah Land" (tune)
cf. "Dakota Land" (tune, theme, lyrics)
NOTES [24 words]: Roud lumps this with the "Dakota Land" family. Certainly they are closely linked. But this looks like a deliberate rewrite, so I've split them. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Macl13

O Row Thee in my Highland Plaid
DESCRIPTION: Donald asks "Lowland lassie wilt thou go" to the snow-covered hills where "the hardy shepherd tends his sheep?" He describes how they will spend the seasons. While "Lowland lads may dress mair fine" he boasts "an honest heart" She agrees to marry him.
AUTHOR: Robert Tannahill (1774-1810)
EARLIEST DATE: c.1838 (Ramsay)
O Saw Ye the Lass Wi' the Bonnie Blue Een

DESCRIPTION: Donald says, "O saw ye the lass wi' the bonnie blue een? Her smile is the sweetest that ever was seen." He describes her home in the valley. He will meet her "when night overshadows her cot in the glen"

AUTHOR: Richard Ryan (source: Whitelaw)

EARLIEST DATE: 1833 (Cartee); before 1835 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(2757))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1842, "Hey to the Lass Wi' the Bonny Blue Een" (1 text fragment, 1 tune)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 74, "Oh, Saw Ye the Lass" (1 text)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, p. 90, "Shepherd, Come Home" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Jock Robb" (tune, per Greig/Duncan8)

NOTES [16 words]: Greig/Duncan8 is a fragment; broadside Bodleian B 11(2757) is the basis for the description. - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: GrD81842

O Shepherd, O Shepherd

DESCRIPTION: Shepherd's wife offers a breakfast of bacon and beans if he will come home; he refuses, he must tend his sheep. She offers a dinner of pudding and beef, then a supper of bread and cheese. Finally she offers clean sheets and a pretty lass. He accepts.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 97, "O Shepherd, O Shepherd" (1 text)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 176-177, "Shepherd, Come Home to Thy Breakfast" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 45)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, p. 90, "Shepherd, Come Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan7 1513, "The Shepherd's Wife" (1 text)
VaughanWilliams/Lloyd-PenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs, pp. 74-75, "O Shepherd, O Shepherd" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, SHEPWILD SHEPWIFE (cf. the notes to BONSTJON)

Roud #1055

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Greensleeves" (tune)

SAME TUNE:
Bonnie Saint John (DT, BONSTJON)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Shepherd, O Shepherd

NOTES [112 words]: This seems to exist in two forms, "O Shepherd O Shepherd" and "The Shepherd's Wife." The two have identical plots, but the latter -- at least as recorded by Gordeanna McCulloch, based on the version in Herd -- "feels" much bawdier, as well as more fun. (Anne Gilchrist thinks it may be derived from a singing game, and it does have rather that feel.) The distinction is so strong that I thought of calling them separate songs, but I can't imagine a clear dividing line. The tune of the "O Shepherd O Shepherd" versions is described as a "modal version of Greensleeves." This is a bit strong; the tune has been altered in more ways than the simple removal of accidentals. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2
File: VWL074

O Shout Away

DESCRIPTION: "O shout (2), O shout away, And don't you mind, And glory, glory, glory in my soul. And when 'twas night I thought 'twas day, I thought I'd play my soul away...." "O Satan told me not to play...." "And everywhere I went to pray... something was in my way"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad Devil

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 71, "O Shout Away" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #12030

File: AWG071

O Susie Anna

DESCRIPTION: "I saw my boy friend walking down the street, O Susie Anna!" A box was in his arms, a dress in the box, a pocket in the dress, a note in the pocket, "Will you marry me" in the note. She replies, "Yes I will" They marry and have "four to five children"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)

KEYWORDS: courting marriage playparty children

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 141, "O Susie Anna" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Fair Rosie" (tune, per Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)

File: OpGa141

O Sweetly Sings the Burnie

DESCRIPTION: "O sweetly sings the burnie As it wimples doon the glen Where I meet my bonnie lassie When her minnie disna ken"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan4)

KEYWORDS: courting nonballad mother river

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 800, "O Sweetly Sings the Burnie" (1 fragment)

Roud #6122

NOTES [76 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan4 text. "Burnie" is probably stream. This fragment seems not to be from William Neish's "The Burnie's Sang," which has as the seventh line of the first verse, "Oh hoo sweetly sings the burnie"; The eighth line is "At the breakin' o' the
O Tannenbaum (Oh Christmas Tree)

DESCRIPTION: German Christmas song, known in English as "Oh Christmas Tree." In praise of the evergreen's ability to keep its needles all year long: "O tannenbaum, o tannenbaum, Wie treu sind deine blatter...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1799 (tune, "Melodien zum Mildheimischen Liederbuche"; lyrics published 1820)

KEYWORDS: Christmas nonballad foreignlanguage

FOUND IN: Germany

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 374, "Oh Tannenbaum (Oh Christmas Tree)" (1 text)
- Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 355-357, "Maryland, My Maryland -- (O Tannenbaum, O Tannenbaum!; Lauriger Horatius)"

ADDITIONAL: Ian Bradley, _The Penguin Book of Carols_ (1999), #56, "O Tannenbaum" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Maryland! My Maryland" (tune)
- cf. "Chamber Lye" (tune)
- cf. "The Kinkaiders" (tune)
- cf. "General Lee's Wooing" (tune)
- cf. "Mule" (tune)
- cf. "My Delaware" (tune)

SAME TUNE:
- Maryland! My Maryland (File: RJ19130)
- Chamber Lye (File: RL659)
- The Kinkaiders (File: San278)
- General Lee's Wooing (File: SBoA233)
- Mule (File: MHAp225)
- Lutefisk, O Lutefisk (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 20)
- O Tom the Toad (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 50)
- P.S. 52 (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 102)
- National Embalming School (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 125)
- New Mexico, We Love You (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 251)
- Heaven, My Home ("There is a land of joy and peace") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 58)
- Maryland ("Oh, how I wish that strife would cease") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 95)
- Maryland, My Maryland ("The rebel horde is on thy shore") (by Septimus Winner) (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 95)
- My Maryland ("My barefoot bands are on they shore," by "Stone-Wall Jackson") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 104)
- The People to the President ("Oh, let the Constitution stand") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 126)
- Sheridan! Cavalry Sheridan! ("Come! Soldier's all, lets sing this song" [sic.]) (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 140)
- To Sauerwein ("The Union men have left the floor") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 195)
- A Voice from the Old Maryland Line ("The Old Line's foot i on thy shore," by N. G. R[idgeley])
- (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 196)
- Roosevelt 1912 campaign song ("Thou wilt not cower in the dust, Roosevelt, O Roosevelt!") (Paul F. Boller, Jr., _Presidential Campaigns_, second revised edition, Oxford University Press, p. 193)
- The Song of Iowa (Iowa's state song; lyrics by Samuel Hawkins Marshall Byers, 1897) (see William E. Studwell and Bruce R. Schueneman, _State Songs of the Unites States: An Annotated Anthology_, The Haworth Press, 1997, p. 35; tune on p. 114)
- Michigan, My Michigan ("A song to thee, fair State of mine") (William E. Studwell and Bruce R. Schueneman, _State Songs of the Unites States: An Annotated Anthology_, The Haworth Press, 1997, pp. 45-46. The notes claim a tune by William Otto Miessner, but although it may have been published with another tune, it was clearly modeled on "Maryland, My Maryland" and this melody) Ode to New Jersey ("The rolling wave is on thy shore, Jerseyland, my Jerseyland") (William E. Studwell and Bruce R. Schueneman, _State Songs of the Unites States: An Annotated Anthology_, The Haworth Press, 1997, p. 53; tune on p. 160)
Motherland (by Rev. Allan Eastman Cross) ("Oh beautiful! Beyond compare, Motherland, my Motherland!") (Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, p. 168)

NOTES [77 words]: Ian Bradley, in _The Penguin Book of Carols_, attributes the "O Tannenbaum" words to Ernst Anschütz in 1824, but Fuld offers the 1820 date, and I'm more inclined to trust him. Both dates seem surprisingly early; according to Ruth Binney, _Nature's Way: lore, legend, fact and fiction_, David and Charles, 2006, p. 176, the Christmas tree (as opposed to simply bringing in evergreen boughs) was introduced to England by Albert, the husband of Queen Victoria. - RBW

O Tell Me Will Ye Go
DESCRIPTION: "O tell me will ye go bonnie lassie O Where the Ugie waters flow?" The singer tells Jean "nae langer we'll be twa" and you will forever be "Ugie's peerless queen"
AUTHOR: Peter Still (1814-1848)
EARLIEST DATE: 1845 (Still)
KEYWORDS: courting lyric
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan4 863, "Ugie's Bonny Queen" (1 fragment)
ADDITIONAL: Peter Still, _The Cottar's Sunday, and Other Poems, Chiefly in the Scottish Dialect_ (Philadelphia, 1845), pp. 207-208, "O Tell Me Will Ye Go"
Roud #6254
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Kelvin Grove" (tune, per Greig/Duncan4 and Still)
cf. "The Shearin's Nae for You" (tune) and references there
NOTES [41 words]: "The River Ugie (Scottish Gaelic: Uisge Uigidh) or Ugie Water is a river in Scotland. Located in the north east, it flows into the North Sea on the east coast at Peterhead, a little north of Aberdeen." (source: "River Ugie" at the Wikipedia site) - BS

O That Lang Term Whitsunday
DESCRIPTION: "O that lang term Whitsunday will soon pairt's a', Then wha'll be my darling when Johnnie's awa'"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: courting separation farming nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #59, p. 2, ("Oh that lang term Whitsunday Will soon pairt's a") (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan8 1796, "O That Lang Term Whitsunday" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #12996
NOTES [68 words]: Candlemas [February 2], Whitsunday [May 15], Lammas [August 1] and Martinmas [November 11] were the four "Old Scottish term days" "on which servants were hired, and rents and rates were due." (Source: Wikipedia article _Quarter days_). [With, of course, the non-trivial footnote that Whitsun was a movable holiday that rarely fell May 15. - RBW]
The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 text. - BS

File: GrD863
O the Bonny Fisher Lad
DESCRIPTION: "O, the bonny fisher lad That brings the fishes frae the sea; O, the bonny fisher lad, The fisher lad gat haud o' me." The youth lives in Bamboroughshire; the singer met him while gathering cockles. She vows she will have the fisher lad
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland)
KEYWORDS: love courting
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, p. 103, "O the Bonny Fisher Lad" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST StoR103 (Full)
Roud #3150
File: StoR103

O the Roast Beef of Old England: New Version
DESCRIPTION: "I'll sing you a song it shall not be too long. If you go for your rights, you will not think it wrong." Our fathers owned the land and fought off their foes. But now the rich have taken the land and left workers with nothing. Workers should unionize
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Palmer)
KEYWORDS: derivative hardtimes labor-movement
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #35, "O the Roast Beef of Old England: New Version" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1481
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Roast Beef of Old England" (tune and inspiration)
NOTES [41 words]: I find no evidence that this was ever actually sung; it's a labor parody of "The Roast Beef of Old England." Palmer doesn't give a date for it, but a time around the 1880s seems likely. He seems to credit the words to "Benjamin Britten." Right. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.7
File: PECS035

O To Be in My Bed and Happit
DESCRIPTION: The singer would be in bed, "lockit in my lovie's arms" with the "household sleepin sound," the door locked, the key turned "and the night to be seven years long"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: love sex nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan5 938, "O To Be in My Bed and Happit" (1 text)
Roud #6753
File: GrD5938

O Ugie Tho Nae Classic Stream
DESCRIPTION: The singer praises Ugie "tho nae a classic stream" and "hast nane to gar thee glide Amang the rivers sung wi' pride"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: pride river nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
O Wha's at the Window

DESCRIPTION: Jamie Glen has come sixteen miles to take Jeannie away. "There is mirth on the green an the ha There's fiddling an flinging an dancing an singin Bit the bride's father's gravest ava" because "she'll aye be awa." It seems the wedding will go on.

AUTHOR: words by A. Carlisle, music by R.A. Smith (source: Greig/Duncan3)

EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: wedding dancing music father

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 612, Greig/Duncan8 Addenda, "O Wha's at the Window" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #2590

File: GrD3612

O What a Parish (The Parish of Dunkeld)

DESCRIPTION: "O what a parish, a terrible parish, O what a parish is that o' Dunkeld, They hangit their minister...." After rebelling against the organized church, the people turn the site into a meeting place; the singer wishes that all parishes saw such fellowship

AUTHOR: Adam Crawford ?

EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfursCollectionVolume2)

KEYWORDS: clergy humorous execution friend party

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfursCollectionVolume2 171, "O What a Parish" (1 text)
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 217-218, "O What a Parish" (1 text)
DT, PARDUNK*
ADDITIONAL: James Maidment, A North Countrie Garland (Edinburgh, 1884 ("Digitized by Microsoft")), pp. 62-63, "O What a Parish" (1 text)

Roud #13081

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Bonny Dundee (I)" (tune, per Maidment)

NOTES [55 words]: Ford suspects that this song was originally written not of Dunkeld but of Kinkell, where he claims events similar to this actually took place. He offers no dates, however. - RBW

In Lyle-Andrew-CrawfursCollectionVolume2 and Maidment the parish name is Dunkell. Maidment has the most complete text of those listed here to date. - BS

Last updated in version 4.5

File: FVS217

O What Is That Upon Thy Head?

DESCRIPTION: "O what is that upon thy head, so dazzling and so bright? O what is that upon they breast, Which shines so clear and bright? Upon my head there's glorious hope, upon my breast my shield, And with my sword I mean to fight Until I've gained the field."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Journal of the Folk-Song Society; reportedly originally collected c. 1852)

KEYWORDS: battle clothes religious

FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 35, "O What Is That Upon Thy Head?" (1 text, only partly traditional, plus a Cornish translation, 1 tune)
O Where O Where Has My Little Dog Gone

DESCRIPTION: "Oh where Oh where is my little dog gone, Oh where Oh where can he be?..." The singer describes the dog, then his tastes... lager beer, the dog, and of course sausage -- but "Dey makes um mit dog und dey makes em mit horse, I guess dey makes em mit he."

AUTHOR: Septimus Winner (1826-1902)

EARLIEST DATE: 1864 (sheet music published by Sep Winner & Co, Philadelphia)

KEYWORDS: dog death food humorous

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (11 citations):
Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 57-60, "Der Deitche's Dog" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #469, p. 31, "Der Deitche's Dog" (1 reference)
Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, p. 29 (fragments filed under "The Orphan Boys")
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 139, "Oh where, oh where has my little dog gone?" (2 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #873, p. 326, "(Oh where, oh where has my little dog gone?)"
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 139, "Oh Where, Oh Where Has My Little Dog Gone?" (1 fragment)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, p. 143, "Der Deitche's Dog" (1 text)
Messeri-ListenToTheMockingbird, pp. 144-145, "Der Deitche's Dog" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, p. 406, "Oh Where, Oh Where Has My Little Dog Gone (Zu Lauterbach)"

ST RJ19057 (Full)

Roud #1308

NOTES [45 words]: Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, liking the tune of this piece, expanded it based on Ephesians 6:13-17, the section on "the whole armour of God." It's an interesting continuation, but I'm not convinced that it really reflects the original intent of the song. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.5

File: Gund035

O Where Will Ye Be?

DESCRIPTION: "O where will ye be when the first trumpet sounds? O where will ye be when it sounds so loud? When it sounds so loud as to wake up the dead?" The singer will be "among the holy," "among the angels," wearing "a royal diadem," etc.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE) Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 83, "O Where Will Ye Be?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 761, "Oh, Where Shall I Be?" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Pottie/Ellis-FolksongsOfTheMaritimes, pp. 4-5, "Where Shall I Be When the First Trumpet Sounds?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12344

RECORDINGS:
The Carter Family, "Where Shall I Be?" (Victor Vi-23523, recorded 1930)
Mississippi John Hurt, "Where Shall I Be" (on MJ Hurt04)

NOTES [81 words]: The imagery here seems to be a bit of a conflation. The "first trumpet" phrase is suggested by Revelation 8:7, but that trumpet brings hail and fire mixed with blood. The trumpet as a symbol of resurrection is more reminiscent of 1 Thessalonians 4:16.

This seems to break up into at least two subfamilies. The Chappell text is a confident boast of salvation. The Carter Family version is much less certain; the singer is worried ("Where shall I be?") and warns of the world's sins.- RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: ChFRA083

O You Nasty Black-a-tops (Bird Scarer's Cry)

DESCRIPTION: "O, you nasty black-a-tops (blackbirds), Get off my master's radish tops, For he's a-comin' with his long gun, And you must fly and I must run. Hello-o-o, Hello-o-o."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Palmer-ThePainfulPlow)

KEYWORDS: bird nonballad food

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-ThePainfulPlow, #1, Song I, "(no title)" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: PPai01I

O-o-oh, Sistren an' Bred'ren

DESCRIPTION: "O-o-oh, sistren an' bred'ren, Don't you think it is a sin For to go to peel potatoes An' to cas' away de skin? De skin feeds de pigs, An de pigs feeds you, O-o-oh, sistren an' bred'ren, Is not dat true?"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: food animal

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 189, "O-o-oh, Sistren an' Bred'ren" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [15 words]: About as close as traditional music gets to an ecology song, when you think about it. - RBW

File: ScaNF189

O, Derry, Derry, Dearie Me

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls Derry in the springtime. He remembers the sights, swimming in the Moyle, wandering among the bogs. Even in London, he smels the peat and the sea; he wishes he were home
AUTHOR: James Warnock
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: homesickness
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H536, p. 209, "Oh, Derry, Derry, Dearie Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Scarborough Settler's Lament" (theme) and references there
File: HHH536

O, Foo Will I Get Hame
DESCRIPTION: Jeannie Deans borrows money to buy a coat for her son but spends it on brandy. She sells her own clothes and the meal at home -- blaming rats and mice -- for drink. She has been shamed at church. She is afraid of falling into the river. "Will I win hame?"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: drink nonballad river clothes food animal
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 583, "O, Foo Will I Get Hame" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Roud #3135
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Ask My Feet and Then My Noddle
NOTES [23 words]: Greig/Duncan3 compares this to "I'm Often Drunk, and Seldom Sober" but it shares no verses and one line of the chorus with that song. - BS
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3583

O, Jeanie Dear
DESCRIPTION: "O, Jeanie dear, the flow'rs, the flow'rs are springing... the lark is winging... And to my ravished ear his wondrous singing Is all of love... and you." The singer details how nature rejoices in Jeanie -- and he rejoices even more
AUTHOR: Words: Andrew Doey
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love bird nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H545, pp. 225-226, "O, Jeanie Dear" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7974
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Danny Boy (The Londonderry Air)" (tune)
File: HHH545

O, Lula!
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Lula, oh Lord, gal, I want to see you so bad. Gonna see my long-haired baby (x2), Well, I'm goin' 'cross the country To see my long-haired gal." The singer tells how Mr. Treadmill had Mr. Goff pay the boys off; now he is home and happy with his girl
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Hurston, Mules and Men)
KEYWORDS: train love
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Lomax/Lomax-FolkSongUSA 77, "O, Lula!" (1 text, 1 tune)
O, Pretty Girls, Won't You List and Come

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, pretty girls, won't you list and come (x3), And follow the music of the fife and drum?" "The drum shall beat and the fife shall play (x3), And merrily on we'll march away." "Over the hill and a great way off (x3), O Don't you hear that Indian cough?"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: music soldier Indians(Am.)
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 302, "O, Pretty Girls, Won't You List and Come" (1 text)
Roud #4216
RECORDINGS:
Pearl Jacobs Borusky, "O, Pretty Girls, Won't You List and Come" (AFS 4176 B1, 1941)

O! Alle! O!

DESCRIPTION: Wheat-cutting song: "Watch me whet my cradle, O! Alle! O!" "I'll make it beat de beater, O! Alle! O!" "Watch me throw my cradle... I've been all over Georgia... The storm clouds arising..."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (White)
KEYWORDS: work nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 325-326, "O! Alle! O!" (1 text)

O! Blarney Castle, My Darling

DESCRIPTION: Freemason Cromwell mounts a battering ram, grape shot, and bullets against Blarney castle. The Irish have bows and arrows. Cromwell "made a dark signal" freezing the defenders. He and his soldiers walk across the lake. He gives Jeffrey's the Castle

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1827 (_Cork Southern Reporter_, according to Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)
KEYWORDS: battle rebellion magic Ireland patriotic
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1641-1653 - Irish Confederate Wars (Irish Roman Catholics rebellion against Protestant British settlers) (source: _Irish Confederate Wars_ at Wikipedia)
August 1651 - Roger Boyle, Lord Broghill defeats the Irish at Blarney after the Battle of Knockaclashy (source: Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland).

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland, pp. 144-148, "O! Blarney Castle, My Darling" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Oliver Yorke, The Reliques of Father Prout (London, 1873 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 100-101, "Terry Callaghan's Song" ("O Blarney Castle, my darlint!"") (1 text)

NOTES:
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "O, Hold Your Tongue, Dear Sally!" (tune, according to Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)
NOTES [319 words]: Yorke: "Being a full and true Account of the Storming of Blarney Castle by the united forces of Cromwell, Ireton, and Fairfax, in 1628 [sic]."
Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland: "Upon the allusion made to Oliver Cromwell in the second and sixth verses, it is necessary to remark that, according to the popular belief of the Irish peasant, Cromwell was endowed with supernatural powers; and that the fraternity of Freemasons, which was said to be founded by him, were supposed, from the secrecy and ceremonies observed by them, to be dabblers in the black art."

Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland: "The name of Cromwell, although associated both in song and story with the taking of Blarney Castle, is obviously used for that of his partisan, Lord Broghill (afterwards the Earl of Orrery). Cromwell, if indeed he ever was at Blarney, could only have paid it a short and peaceable visit."

Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland: "The Editor has no doubt that this song, and ['Saint Patrick's Arrival'], came from the same pen. See that song if you are interested in Croker's speculations there. However, Croker notes that the song has been "unceremoniously appropriated by Father Prout [Rev Francis Sylvester Mahony (1804-1866)]." Croker prints alternative verses from Father Prout's version. In both versions the castle is given by Cromwell to Jeffreys but, according to Croker, the Jeffreys family purchased the estate from the crown (source: "Blarney Castle" in The Mirror of Literature, Amusement, and Instruction Volume 14, No. 396, Saturday, October 31, 1829, on the Project Gutenberg site quoting Croker, Researches in the South of Ireland) - BS

For some background on the horrors inflicted on Ireland by Cromwell, see "The Wexford Massacre."

The fear and hatred Cromwell inspired is reflected in later Irish culture; mothers would threaten their misbehaving children: if they didn't stop, "Oliver Cromwell will get you." - RBW

Last updated in version 2.6

File: CrPS144

O! They Marched Through the Town (The Captain with His Whiskers)

DESCRIPTION: The girl looks out her window as the soldiers march by. Her eye seizes upon the captain, though she conceals this from her parents. Later they meet at the ball. Though the soldiers later depart, the girl hopes that they will soon return with her captain AUTHOR: Words: Thomas Haynes Bayly / Music: Sidney Nelson ?

EARLIEST DATE: before 1865 (broadside, LOC Singing sb10059b)

KEYWORDS: courting love soldier

FOUND IN: US(NE) Ireland Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (10 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 69, "The Captain with His Whiskers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 228, "The Captain with His Whiskers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 214-215, "The Captain with His Whiskers" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 228)
Greig/Duncan1 87, "The Captain With His Whiskers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H660, p. 273, "The Captain with His Whiskers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, p. 38, "The Captain with His Whiskers" (1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #244, p. 18, "The Captain with the Whiskers" (3 references)
New-Comic-Songster, p. 5, "Captain with His Whiskers" (1 text, 1 tune)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Charles W. Joyner, "The Repertory of Nancy Jones as a Mirror of Culture in Scotland County," Vol. XXI, No. 3 (Sep 1973), p. 93, "They came through the town with their banners so gay" (1 text)

DT, CAPTWHSK*

Roud #2735

RECORDINGS:
Aaron Campbell's Mountaineers, "The Captain with his Whiskers" (Champion 45038, 91935)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth c.14(314), "The Captain With His Whiskers" ("As they marched thro' the town with their banners so gay"), The Poet's Box (Glasgow), 1867; also 2806 c.8(256), Firth b.28(5a/b) View 4 of 8, "The Captain With His Whiskers"; Harding B 15(38b), "The Captain With the Whiskers"; Firth c.14(312), "The Captain With His Whiskers, Took a Sly Glance at Me"

LOC Singing, sb10059b, "The Captain With His Whiskers," H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Titles of Songs (Song of Songs, Song of All Songs, Song of Song Titles)" (tunes of some versions, according to broadsides)

SAME TUNE:
Miss Jones, by Charles Dodgson (Lewis Carroll) (a poem set to a medley of pop tunes, with this being the first) (Anne Clark, _The Real Alice_, Stein and Day, 1981, p. 82)
Combination Song (a combination by A. Anderson of "We Are Coming Father Abram" and "When This Cruel War Is Over," set to this tune; see Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 24)
Die Deutsche Companie ("Kind peope, vat you tinks, I trys to sing a song?") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 16)
QUodlibet ("'Tis September's golden month, when the opening is at hand") (by James K. Blish) (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 73)
NOTES [159 words]: Although the original version of this song makes no mention of facial hair, it is the revised version ("The Captain with His Whiskers") that seems to have captured the popular fancy.
Of the illustration on the earliest sheet music printing known to them (apparently from 1861-1865), Harry Dichter and Elliott Shapiro, _Early American Sheet Music: Its Lure and Its Lore, 1768-1889_, R. R. Bowker, 1941, p. 120, declare: "The 'whiskers' are, as Hollywood would say, super-colossal.... This front cover would have made even Whistler whistle."
According to a broadside cited on p. 18 of Edwin Wolf 2nd, _American Song Sheets, Slip Ballads, and Political Broadsides 1850-1870_, Library Company of Philadelphia, 1963, this was "sung by Mrs. W. J. Florence." - RBW
O! Why Should Old Age So Much Wound Us?

DESCRIPTION: "Why should old age so much wound us?" The singer is happy with his "auld wife sitting by" surrounded by children and grandchildren. They are not wealthy and never had schemes to be wealthy. He hopes their simple home will last the rest of their lives.
AUTHOR: John Skinner (1721-1807) (source: Rogers, _The Modern Scottish Minstrel_, Vol. 1, published by Project Gutenberg)
EARLIEST DATE: 1809 (Skinner, _Poems_, according to Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: age home nonballad family money
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Greig/Duncan3 548, "The Auld Man's Sang" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
ADDITIONAL: John Skinner, _Songs and Poems_ (Peterhead, 1859), pp. 74-76, "The Old Man's Songs"
Roud #6024
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "Dumbarton's Drums" (tune)
File: GrD3548

O'Brien with His High-Water Pants

DESCRIPTION: "My name is O'Brien from Harlem, I am an Irishman as you may see." As he travels around New York, people observe him and cry out, "There is O'Brien with his high-water pants," He does not seem to notice that he is being teased
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud)
KEYWORDS: clothes humorous
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 92, "O'Brien with His High-Water Pants" (1 text)
Roud #9573
File: Dean092
O'Donnell Aboo (The Clanconnell War Song)

DESCRIPTION: "Proudly the note of the trumpet is sounding, Loudly the war-cries arise on the gale... On for old Erin -- O'Donnell Aboo!" Tirconnell, and all Ireland, are urged to join O'Donnell in his fight against the English

AUTHOR: Words: Michael Joseph McCann (1824-1883)
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1843 ("The Nation")
KEYWORDS: Ireland patriotic battle rebellion
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1594 - outbreak of war between the Irish of Ulster and the invading English. (England had already conquered most of Ireland and was attempting to enforce Protestantism. At this time Ulster is still independent, and is fighting to remain so.) The next few years see heavy guerilla war, with both sides devastating the others' property. On the whole the Irish have the best of it, as Hugh O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, fights the English when he can and carefully buys time (with parleys and even requests for a pardon) when he cannot 1598 - Tyrone and "Red Hugh" O'Donnell, by a pincer movement, defeat the English at Yellow Ford (this is the first major success of Irish arms). Tyrone is able to call on the rest of Ireland to rebel; he is very nearly the de facto King
1599 - Essex leads an army to Ireland. Outmaneuvered by Tyrone (who uses as "scorched earth" policy to starve out the English), he wastes his army on garrisons which Tyrone besieges and defeats piecemeal. Essex, miserably defeated, goes home to England (without permission), bursts in on Elizabeth -- and winds up completely out of favor (so much so that he eventually raises a failed rebellion).
1600- Essex is replaced by Mountjoy, who sets out to isolate the Irish by building strong positions around Ulster. Tyrone's position worsens as Mountjoy's blockade pinches the people who form his power base.
1601 - Battle of Kinsale. Some 4000 Spanish troops had landed in September but let themselves be besieged at Kinsale. Tyrone, O'Donnell, and the Spanish are defeated by the English. O'Donnell (whose over-aggressiveness provoked the action) flees to Spain and abdicates his title to his brother Rory (Rualdri).
1602 - Rory O'Donnell surrenders in December
1603 - Tyrone makes peace with England (March 30). The English have already destroyed the O'Neills; Tyrone retains only his English title. The English now rule most of Ireland. Rory O'Donnell also becomes an English lord, Earl of Tirconnell.
1607 - Tyrone, Rory O'Donnell and other Irish leaders go into exile (Tyrone had been summoned to London and feared to come). The English seize their lands in Ulster and begin colonization. Later known as the "Flight of the Earls," this was popularly regarded as the end of Irish hopes, though in fact the 1603 capitulation broke the Irish resistance
1608 - O'Doherty's Rebellion. Sir Arthur Chichester, who was responsible for the government of Ulster, had proposed a limited colonization. O'Doherty's revolt was a pinprick, but it convinced London to take over Ulster and suppress the natives.
FIND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (7 citations):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 98, "O'Donnell Abu" (1 text)
Galvin-IrishSongsOfResistance, pp. 12-13, "O'Donnell Aboo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 319, "O'Donnell Aboo" (1 text)
Healy-MercierBookOfOldIrishStreetBalladsVol2, pp. 34-35, "O'Donnell Abu!!" (1 text; tune on p. 20)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, pp. 20-21, "O'Donnell Abou" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, ODNLABU
ADDITIONAL: Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), pp. 507-508, "O'Donnell Aboo" (1 text)
Roud #V12567
RECORDINGS:
The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, "O Donnell Aboo" (on IRClancyMakem03)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2769), "O'Donnell Abu," H. Such (London), 1863-1885; also 2806 b.10(216), "O'Donnell Abu"
NLScotland, L.C.Fol.70(75a), "O'Donnell Aboo!," unknown, c.1875
SAME TUNE:
New Words to the Tune of "O'Donnell Abu" ("Workers of Ireland, why crouch ye like ravens")
(Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), pp. 717-718)
The Toilers of Men ("Swiftly the cause of the toiler is speeding, Onward and upward it shoots through the gloom") (by Patrick Carey) (Foner, p. 158)
NOTES [500 words]: Zimmermann, p. 112 fn. 100, "According to The Nation, 28th January, 1843, "O'Donnell Abu" was meant to be sung to the tune 'Roderick Vick Alpine Dhu' (the 'Boat Song' in Walter Scott's Lady of the Lake); it became famous with another tune composed by Joseph Haliday." - BS
First published c. 1843 as "The Clanconnell War Song." The NLScotland site accepts the attribution of the tune to Haliday; few other sources cite a composer.
Robert Gogan, 130 Great Irish Ballads (third edition, Music Ireland, 2004) says that "Abu" is shorthand for "Go Bua!" ("to Victory!").
"Red Hugh" O'Donnell's hatred of England was based on a personal experience; as a teenager, the English had gotten him drunk and taken him prisoner. He escaped a few years later (1591), but the unfair imprisonment affected his opinions for the rest of his life (see Peter and Fiona Somerset Fry, A History of Ireland, pp. 127-128).
The "O'Neill" of the song is Hugh, third Baron of Dungannon and second Earl of Tyrone, one of the greatest Anglo-Irish barons of the time (1551-1616). He became O'Neill in 1593 when his brother Turlough resigned him the position. Prior to that, he had held the barony of Dungannon from 1569 and the Tyrone earldom from 1587 (see Mike Cronin, A History of Ireland, p. 56).
Hugh O'Neill cooperated with the English more than this song might imply. He was more comfortable with English than Irish ways, having lived in Kent when his father was murdered by his half-brother Shane O'Neill, who succeeded to most of the O'Neill lands before the English suppressed him (see Terry Golway, For the Cause of Liberty, p. 17; Fry/Fry, pp. 117, 125). Many historians think he was initially loyal, but the threat to his position (Tudor bureaucracy looked likely to overcome the ancient clan loyalties) eventually pushed him toward rebellion. If the rebellion could be said to have a commander (a debatable point), he was it.
The English grip on Ireland still wasn't strong in the aftermath of the rebellion, which is why Tyrone was permitted to keep his earldom after 1603. But in 1607 he was summoned to London (Cronin, p. 64). Too many Irish chiefs had been summoned to London and never returned. Instead of answering the summons, he fled.
The irony is, until the rebellion, Ulster was almost entirely free of English influence. The Flight of the Earls opened Ulster to settlement -- and of course many immigrants came, mostly from Scotland. So this campaign eventually produced the Troubles that still divide Ireland. Don't ask me why an Irish nationalist would write about this most destructive of Irish failures. There is at least one song about the flight of the earls, called "The Flight of the Earls," on p. 211 of Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, but it does not seem to have become traditional. It does reveal something about the typical pattern of Anglo-Irish relations, though: The British solved one problem (a bunch of rebellious noblemen) and created another (the Ulster plantation). - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: PGa012

O'Donnell the Avenger
DESCRIPTION: Phoenix Park defendants are convicted by informer Carey's testimony. O'Donnell kills Carey on the ship Melrose Castle bound for Africa. O'Donnell is tried for the murder, convicted and executed. "As a martyr for his native land quite bravely he did die"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladsOfIreland)
KEYWORDS: betrayal homicide trial execution Africa Ireland patriotic
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Chronology of the Phoenix Park murders (source: primarily Zimmermann, pp. 62, 63, 281-286.)
May 6, 1882 - Chief Secretary Lord Frederick Cavendish and the Under Secretary Thomas Henry Burke are murdered by a group calling themselves "The Invincible Society."
January 1883 - twenty seven men are arrested.
James Carey, one of the leaders in the murders, turns Queen's evidence.
Six men are condemned to death, four are executed (Joseph Brady is hanged May 14, 1883; Daniel Curley was hanged May 18, 1883), others are "sentenced to penal servitude," and Carey is freed and goes to South Africa.
July 29, 1883 - Patrick O'Donnell kills Carey on board the "Melrose Castle" sailing from Cape Town to Durban.
Dec 1883 - Patrick O'Donnell is convicted of the murder of James Carey and executed in London (per Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast)
FOUND IN: Ireland Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 27-28, "O'Donnell, the Avenger" (1 text)
RECORDINGS:
Pat Critch, "O'Donnell's Execution" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Phoenix Park Tragedy" (subject: the Phoenix Park murders) and references there
NOTES [47 words]: Zimmermann p. 62: "The Phoenix Park murders and their judicial sequels struck the popular imagination and were a gold-mine for ballad-writers: some thirty songs were issued on this subject, which was the last great cause to be so extensively commented upon in broadside ballads." - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: OCon027

O'Dooley's First Five O'Clock Tea

DESCRIPTION: "O'Dooley got rich on an aqueduct job And he made a considerable pile."
O'Dooley celebrates with a series of parties. Someone spikes the tea at one such event, and mayhem (or at least silliness) follows. O'Dooley vows revenge
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1988 (Prairie Home Companion Folk Song Book)
KEYWORDS: drink humorous party
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, pp. 29-31, "O'Dooley's First Five O'Clock Tea" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, DOOLYTEA*
Roud #12778
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Irish Jubilee" (theme) and references there
NOTES [24 words]: Traditional? I'm not sure. This sort of drunken-Irishman song was amazingly common, and of course the Pankakes give no source information. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.0
File: DTdoole

O'er the Crossing

DESCRIPTION: "Bending knees a-aching, Body wracked with pain, I wish I was a child of God, I'd get home by and by. Keep praying, I do believe, We're a long time waging of the crossing." The singer's mother has been long climbing. Thunder and lightning give warning
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 72, "O'er the Crossing" (1 text, 1 tune plus a variant strain)
Roud #12031
File: AWG072

O'er the Hills and Far Away (I)

DESCRIPTION: (Jocky) the piper "learned to play when he was young," but "the a' tunes that he could play Was o'er the hills and far away." Rejected by Jenny, he laments his fate, declares "I'll never trust a woman more," and intends to spend his life playing the pipes
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1709 (_Pills to Purge Melancholy_, per Opie/Opie-
O'er the Hills of Sicily

DESCRIPTION: "O'er the hills of Sicily, up the toe of Italy, Came the Loyal Edmontons from over the sea. And they sang as the stuffed the bully in their haversacks, "Who'll come a-marching to Berlin with me?""

About the Italian campaign in World War II

(source: Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)

EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)

KEYWORDS: soldier war

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 10, 1943 - British and American troops attack Sicily (Messina falls on August 17, but the Germans have evacuated)
Sept 9, 1943 - Allies invade the Italian mainland
June 4, 1944 - Allies enter Rome
June 6, 1944 - D-Day. Invasion of Normandy begins
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, pp. 36-37, "O'er the Hills of Sicily" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #24980
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Waltzing Matilda" (tune) and references there
cf. "The D-Day Dodgers" (subject: the Italian campaign)
NOTES [563 words]: Although titled "O'er the Hills of Sicily," that is the only mention of the Sicilian campaign; the rest is about the campaign in mainland Italy, and ends with a discussion of whether the troops will go to Burma to fight the Japanese.
The refrain about marching to Berlin is rather ironic: The troops fighting in Italy had no hopes of reaching Berlin (the Alps were just too much an obstacle to troop movement), and the whole Italian campaign had been a deliberate sideshow: The Americans wanted to invade France in 1943 (indeed, they wanted to invade in 1942), and Churchill knew they weren't ready for that, so they compromised on Sicily (Wheal/Pope, pp. 427-429). That went relatively well, so the Allies started into Italy -- and that did not go well at all; Italy, being long and narrow and hilly, is easy to defend, and the Germans took full advantage, and the Allies fought on a shoestring because they were trying to prepare for Normandy. The Italian campaign was probably the toughest fight in Europe for the Anglo-Americans. The officers who wrote this song had good reason to recall its difficulty.
It appears that Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King actually "wanted" Canadian troops in the invasion of Italy, to show that they were doing something (Milner, p. 126). Talk about a stupid political decision....
For background on the Italian campaign, see "The D-Day Dodgers."
The "Loyal Edmonton" of the song are the Loyal Edmonton regiment (no, as far as I know, there was no Disloyal Edmonton Regiment!), which Bercuson, p. 175, calls the "Loyal Eddies." They were part of the Canadian First Division that invaded Sicily (Bercuson, p. 164) and then ended up in Italy. In Sicily, they were part of the 2nd Infantry Brigade of the 1st Canadian Divison (commanded by Major General G. G. Simonds), which was part of Oliver Leese's 30 Corps, along with the 51st Highland Division (d'Este, p. 586). The Highlanders were the subject of "Banks of Sicily (The 51st Highland Division's Farewell to Sicily)," which covers the Sicily campaign; the 30 Corps seems to have been a musical lot!
Not only did the Loyal Edmonton not see Berlin, many of them never saw Alberta again. The fighting in Italy was hard, and the unit was already under-strength when the First Canadian arrived below the Italian town of Ortona (Bercuson, pp. 175-176). The division commander at that time was Major General Christopher Vokes, who came to be known as "The Butcher" because he was so fond of frontal assaults (Atkinson, p. 302). The fighting to reach the outskirts of Ortona was slow and bloody, and the Loyal Edmonton were one of two battalions (the Seaforth Highlanders being the other) that eventually led the attack on the town itself (map on p. 303 of Atkinson). There, they had to fight the Germans house to house. Casualties were horrid. "Two dozen Edmonton were buried alive when a booby-trapped building near St. Thomas's collapsed. Germans showered would-be rescuers with stick grenades."
Both town and division ended up in ruins. The December campaign cost the 1st Canadian 2300 men (including 500 dead), about a quarter of them lost in Ortona itself. And, after all that, the campaign (which was supposed to take Ortona then cross the Appenines to attack Rome) had to be called off; the casualties had been too high and the terrain was just too rough (Atkinson, p. 306).
- RBW
Bibliography

• Bercuson: David J. Bercuson, Maple Leaf Against the Axis: Canada's Second World War, 1995 (I use the 2004 Red Deer Press edition)
• Milner: Marc Milner, Canada's Navy: The First Century, University of Toronto Press, 1999
O'Halloran Road, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer thinks half a century back to "a cold Saint Patrick's Day, With my father and my mother then And children we just numbered ten." He thought they were lost until "I heard my father say, 'Here's the O'Halloran Road! This is the way [home]'"

AUTHOR: Dan Riley
EARLIEST DATE: 1996 (Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland)
KEYWORDS: home lyric family father travel
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 237-239, 252, "The O'Halloran Road" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Roud #13993
NOTES: [54 words]: Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland: "Gavin's Cross ['And when we came to Gavin's Cross Us children thought that we were lost']... is present day Bloomfield Corner ... where the O'Halloran Road branches off from the Western Road."
Bloomfield Corner is near the north coast of Prince County, Prince Edward Island. - BS

File: IvDC237

O'Houlihan

DESCRIPTION: "One day while walking down the street, I met O'Houlihan." O'Houlihan offers to place a bet on the races for the singer; the horse wins, but O'Houlihan never produces the cash. O'Houlihan finds other ways to bilk the singer. The singer promises revenge

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987
KEYWORDS: gambling trick clothes revenge
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, pp. 189-191, "O'Houlihan" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: MCB189

O'Kelly Brothers, The

DESCRIPTION: The several O'Kelly brothers all get into scrapes -- one umpires a baseball game, one fights over drinks, one gambles. But, in each case, "The doctor thinks O'Kelly will recover, Though he may be laid up for a month or more...."

AUTHOR: C. C. Talbott
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: humorous injury doctor cards drink sports
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, pp. 249-251, "The O'Kelly Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Roud #15677
File: Pet249

O'Reilly from the County Leitrim

DESCRIPTION: The singer sees a pretty girl and asks her to marry; she says she prefers to live single. He calls her beautiful, and wishes he had her somewhere else. She turns him down again; he is foolish to ask. He says his heart will break, and leaves

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Joyce); c.1835 (broadside, Bodleian Johnson Ballads 340)
KEYWORDS: love courting rejection beauty
FOUND IN: Ireland Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
O'Reilly's Daughter

DESCRIPTION: "As I was sittin' by the fire... I was taken by desire To go and shag O'Reilly's daughter." The narrator "shags" landlord or bartender O'Reilly's daughter, then assaults father, mother or both. O'Reilly is typically described as one-eyed.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Russell)

KEYWORDS: bawdy sex family mother father homosexuality

FOUND IN: Australia Britain(England) Ireland US(MW,Ro,So,SW) New Zealand

REFERENCES (9 citations):
- Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 101-105, "O'Reilly's Daughter" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 137-140, "One-Eyed Reilly" (3 texts, 1 tune)
- Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging 53, pp. 249-252, "One-Eyed Riley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 67, "One-Eyed Riley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, p. 158, "O'Reilly's Daughter" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Botkin-TreasuryOfAmericanFolklore, p. 838, "(One-Eyed Riley)" (1 text, 1 tune -- a fragment of a raftsman's song, so short that it might be this or something else. The lyrics are different, but the feeling is similar)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 172, "Reilly's Daughter" (1 text)
- DT, REILLY1*

ADDITIONAL: Charles Edward Russell, _A-Rafting on the Mississipp'_, 1928 (republished 2001 by the University of Minnesota Press), p. 207, One-Eyed Riley" (1 short text, 1 tune, probably bowdlerized)

Roud #1161
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Went Down to New Orleans"

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Reilly's Daughter

NOTES [175 words]: Annotator Legman (pp. 138-139) includes the text of "The Rover," which he dates to 1790, as the forerunner of the modern bawdy ballad. The "C" text in Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I is only coincidentally "One-Eyed Reilly." - EC

This exists in an extremely bowdlerized version [in which the singer wants to "marry" rather than "shag" the daughter, and in which the daughter is the only one to receive his attentions], which was made popular by the Clancy Bros. in the 1960s. The [Silber] entry is that song. - PJS

Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging observes that T. S. Eliot included a verse of this in The Cocktail Party

Even more unlikely is the fact that C. S. Lewis apparently sang the song happily. According to Wilson: A. N. Wilson, C. S. Lewis: A Biography, Norton, 1990, p. 131, Lewis regularly held an "English Binge" for his students. The purpose of this was apparently to get drunk and sing dirty songs. And, yes, this continued after he abandoned atheism. It seems Lewis was happily giving forth with this song at Christmas 1931. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: EM101

O'Ryan (Orion, The Poacher)

DESCRIPTION: "O'Ryan was a man of might when Ireland was a nation." A poacher, he gives a meal to St. Patrick and is promised a place in heaven in return. Told there is good hunting there, he accepts. Now the other constellations fear his shillelagh

AUTHOR: Charles G. Halpine (per O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)

KEYWORDS: hunting food humorous

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H823, pp. 58-59, "O'Ryan" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 23-24, "The Poacher" (1 text)

Roud #13364

NOTES [143 words]: Needless to say, the mythology in this song is distorted (as is the astronomy, for that matter; Venus, Mars, and Orion follow separate courses. Even so, the author must have known some astronomy, as he mentions "a lion, two bears, a bull, and cancer" among the constellations -- i.e. Leo, Ursa Major, Ursa Minor, Taurus, and Cancer the crab). The story of Orion varies according to different sources, but it is generally agreed that the goddess Eos, not Aphrodite, went after him, and in the end it was Artemis who killed him. The timing is also wrong, even if you allow that "Ireland was [once] a nation" (it wasn't). Saint Patrick was active in the fifth century of the Christian Era, and we have references to Orion as far back as Homer (Iliad xviii.488 mentions his place in the constellations, and Odysseus encounters his spirit in Odyssey xi.572). - RBW

File: HHH823

O'Slattery's Light Dragoons

DESCRIPTION: "You have heard of Julius Caesar and of Great Napoleon too, And how the Cork militia beat the Turks at Waterloo," but none can compare with "O'Slattery's mounted foot." "Four-and-twenty" men have hilarious adventures mostly while drunk

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions)

KEYWORDS: soldier humorous drink

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, pp. 52-53, "O'Slattery's Light Dragoons" (1 text)

Roud #9620

NOTES [32 words]: I suspect this was made up as a parody of something or other (I was reminded..."
of "The South Down Militia" as well as, of course, "The British Grenadiers"), but without a tune, it's hard to prove.

Last updated in version 4.2

File: SBar052

O'Sullivan's Frolics

DESCRIPTION: Macaronic. Singer meets a 12-year-old girl who is going alone for a year to Cork. She would not have him without her parents' consent but he seduces her.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1891 (An Gaodhal, according to O Muirithe); 19C (broadside, Bodleian, 2806 c.8(159))

KEYWORDS: foreign language courting seduction sex youth

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 27, "As Bacchus Frequented His Frolics" (2 texts)
- ADDITIONAL: Diarmaid Ó Muirithe, An t-Amhran Macaronach (Baile Atha Cliath: An Clochomhar, 1980) #30, pp. 73-74, 201, "O'Sullivan's Frolics" ("As Bacchus frequented his frolics") (1 text).

Roud #16258

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, 2806 c.8(159), "O'Sullivan's Frolicks" ("As Bacchus frequenterent his frolicks"[sic]), unknown, no date; also 2806 c.8(247), "O'Sullivan's Frolics"

NOTES [27 words]: Or maybe not. The song is macaronic, alternating lines in English and Gaelic. The Gaelic lines appear to affect the plot, but I am relying solely on the English. - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: OCC027

Oak Before the Ash, The

DESCRIPTION: Weather-forecasting rhyme: "The oak before the ash, Then we'll have a splash; The ash before the oak, Then we'll have a soak."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Rowling)

KEYWORDS: nonballad storm

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- ADDITIONAL: Marjorie Rowling, _The Folklore of the Lake District_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 101, ("The oak before the ash") (1 short text)

File: Rowl101

Oak Grows Big, The

DESCRIPTION: "The oak grows big, The pine grows tall; You are my choice Among them all."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Henry, from Mary King)

KEYWORDS: love play party

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 231, (second of several "Fragments from Tennessee") (1 fragment)

NOTES [21 words]: Although I don't recognize this and can't find another version, I would bet a good deal that it is part of a singing game. - RBW

File: MHAp231B

Oakey Strike Evictions, The

DESCRIPTION: "It was in November an' aw nivor will forget, The polisses an' the candymen at Oakey's Hooses met." Johnny the Bellman and the candymen set out to evict striking colliers. Their won't do much work, but the singer would still hang them
Oats and Beans

DESCRIPTION: Playparty. "Oats, (peas/and), beans, and barley grow... Do you or I or anyone know... How oats and beans and barley grow." The farmer plants the seed and waits for harvest; young couples marry and must obey each other.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1883 (Burne)
KEYWORDS: playparty marriage farming
FOUND IN: Britain(England(All), Scotland) US(MW,NE,SE,So)
REFERENCES (15 citations):
"On the Green Carpet" (1 text, 1 tune)
"Thus the Farmer Sows His Seed" (1 text, omitting the "Oats and Beans" opening but clearly this)
"Oats, Peas, Beans, and Barley Grow" (1 text, 1 tune)
"Oats, Pease, Beans, and Barley Grows" (3 short texts, 3 tunes)
"Oats and Beans and Barley Grow" (3 texts, 1 tune)
"Oats, Pease, Beans, and Barley Grow" (1 text plus excerpts, 1 tune)
"Oats, Peas, Beans, and Barley Grow" (1 text, 1 tune)
"Oats, Peas, Beans, and Barley Grow" (1 text, 1 tune)
"Oats, Peas, Beans, and Barley Grow" (1 text, 1 tune)
"Oats, Peas, Beans, and Barley Grow" (1 text, 1 tune)
"Oats, Peas, Beans, and Barley Grow" (1 text, 1 tune)
"Oats, Peas, Beans, and Barley Grow" (1 text, 1 tune)
"Oats and beans and barley grows" (1 text)
"Some Play-Party Songs from Eastern Illinois," Vol. XXXII, No. 126 (Oct 1919), #20 p. 494 "Oats, Pease, Beans, and Barley Grows" (1 text)
DT, OATSBEAN (OATSPEAS*)
ADDITIONAL: Charlotte Sophia Burne, editor, Shropshire Folk-Lore: A Sheaf of Gleanings (London, 1883 ("Digitized by Google")), #I.1 p. 508, "Oats and Beans and Barley Grow!" (1 text)
Roud #1380
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "This Pretty Girl of Mine" (lyrics)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Oats, Peas, Beans
Oats and Beans and Barley Grow
NOTES [74 words]: Gomme has a table (Volume II, p. 11) showing the distribution of the various crops: Oats, beans, barley, wheat, groats, hops. The second Digital Tradition version comes close to the status of parody.
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren claims that there are French, Spanish, Italian, German, and Swedish parallels to this piece, but it appears that most of these are just descriptions of farming; I am not sure they are actual parallels. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: DTOatsbe
Ocean Burial, The

DESCRIPTION: The dying sailor speaks of his loved ones and pleads with his shipmates not to be buried at sea. They do it anyway

AUTHOR: Words: Rev. Edwin H. Chapin

EARLIEST DATE: 1839 (Southern Literary Messenger; set to music 1850)

KEYWORDS: burial death dying sailor

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,NE,Ro,SE,So) Canada(Mar,Newf)

REFERENCES (14 citations):
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 162-163, "The Ocean Burial" (1 text, 1 tune)
Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 437, "The Ocean Burial" (1 text)
Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 139-143, "The Ocean Burial" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 55, "The Ocean Burial" (1 text)
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5, pp. 76-7, "The Ocean Burial" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCFrankCollectionNCFolklore2 261, "The Ocean Burial" (1 text)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 245-248, "The Ocean Burial" (1 text, 1 tune)
Beck-FolkloreOfMaine, pp. 176-176, "The Ocean Burial or The Sailor's Grave" (1 text)
Peacock, pp. 151-152, "Bury Me Not in the Deep Deep Sea" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #93, "O Bury Me Not in the Deep Blue Sea" (1 text)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, p. 153, "The Ocean Burial" (1 text, included in the entry for "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie [Laws B2]"
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1644, p. 111, "The Ocean Burial" (3 references)
cf. Fuld, pp. 396-398, "Oh, Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie"

ADDITIONAL: Tristram P. Coffin and Hennig Cohen, _Folklore in America: Tales, Songs, Superstitions, Proverbs, Riddles, Games, Folk Drama and Folk Festivals_, Doubleday, 1966, pp. 61-62, "The Ocean Burial" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST FR437 (Full)

RECORDINGS:
Eugene Jemison, "The Ocean Burial" (on Jem01)

BROADSIDES:
LOCSheet, sm1850 470190, "The Ocean Burial," Oliver Ditson (Boston), 1850 (tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie" [Laws B2] (work of this piece)

NOTES [289 words]: The 1850 sheet music of this piece credits the entire thing to George N. Allen. Since the poem was published under Edwin H. Chapin's name (as "The Ocean Buried!")), this must mean that Allen set the music. Allen's tune, however, is NOT what we know as "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie." Nor is it the related tune Gordon Bok calls the "Texas Song" (see the index entry on "Going to Leave Old Texas (Old Texas, Texas Song, The Cowman's Lament)."

To add to the confusion, Belden lists the author as William H. Sanders, based apparently on Fulton and Trueblood's _Choice Readings_.

The singer Ossian Dodge is reputed to have been performing the piece as early as 1845. I have been unable to determine the tune he used.

On the whole, I think we must list the author of the music to this piece as "unknown." Laws does not include this piece as one of his ballads, but gives a text (from oral tradition!) in NAB, pp. 80-81. - RBW

And just to add to the confusion, see the sheet music for "The Sailor Boy's Grave" in the Lester Levy collection, where the boy asks "not" to be buried on land, but rather "let me sleep 'neath the silent waves/The sea-nymphs watching over me." That is credited to "J. Martin, Esq. (of Clifton)," and carries a date of 1841; it seems to be an "answer song" to "The Ocean Burial," although the latter had apparently not yet been set to music. The tune is not the same as "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie," and is in fact rather dull. - PJS

References for "The Sailor Boy's Grave":
LOCPSheet, sm1841 381040, "The Sailor Boy’s Grave," F. D. Benteen (Boston), 1841; also sm1841 381050, sm1845 401960, "The Sailor Boy's Grave" (tune)
LOCPSing, as112080, "The Sailor Boy’s Grave," Thos. G. Doyle (Baltimore), 19C - BS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: FR437
Ocean is Wide, The

DESCRIPTION: "The ocean is wide an' you cain't step over it, I love you true, an' you cain't help it." "Sure as the grass grows round the stump, You're my darlin' sugar lump." "The ocean is wide, an' you cain't jump it, If your folks don't like it, they can lump it."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1926
KEYWORDS: love playparty nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 580, "The Ocean Is Wide" (1 text)
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 238, (no title) (1 short text, "The ocean is wide, The sea is deep, And in your arms I love to sleep." The form looks different from Randolph's, but with only three lines and a similar theme, I don't see how to split them)
Roud #7669
File: R580

Ocean Queen

DESCRIPTION: Ocean Queen is lost in rough weather in winter on George's Banks. The crew are all drowned. The captain's wife is left alone; "there's fathers, sons, and brothers that drowned in the deep."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Creighton-NovaScotia)
KEYWORDS: drowning death mourning sea ship storm wreck wife family sailor disaster
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Nov 27, 1851 - The Ocean Queen, out of Gloucester, sinks at George's Bank (Northern Shipwrecks Database)
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar,Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 136, "Ocean Queen" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST CrNS136 (Partial)
Roud #1835
RECORDINGS:
Pat Critch, "Captain Spinney" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
NOTES [256 words]: Although the Northern Shipwrecks Database may have found the original wreck described in this song (see the Historical References), there are difficulties. Berman does not list the wreck; neither does Hudson/Nicholls, though the latter is not intended to be comprehensive.
What's more, Ratigan, pp. 196-198, prints a different song (reportedly by Kate Weaver) about the wreck of a ship named Ocean Queen (which, in this case, perishes by fire). But Ratigan says there was no known disaster involving an Ocean Queen. Ratigan, p. 195, thinks the ship involved was actually the G. P. Griffith, which burned (according to Berman, p. 245) with the loss of 286 lives on June 17, 1850 -- almost the same time as the George's Bank wreck, note. One has to think there is confusion in there somewhere -- though more likely involving Ratigan's song than this one. Incidentally, the name Ocean Queen seems to have been singularly ill-fated (a mariner might perhaps explain this on the grounds that the name would be an offense to the sea goddess); in addition to the ships listed above, Guttridge, p.120ff., tells of a mailship, the Ocean Queen, which suffered an attempted mutiny in 1864 -- almost the only genuine mutiny in American nautical history. - RBW
To pin this down further, Northern Shipwrecks Database has George Spinney as captain of the Ocean Queen; the MUNFLA/Leach version says the Ocean Queen was "commanded by young Spinney he left a loving wife." Creighton has "commanded by a captain who leaves a tender wife." - BS
Bibliography

• Berman: Bruce D. Berman, Encyclopedia of American Shipwrecks, Mariner's Press, 1972
• Hudson/Nicholls: Kenneth Hudson & Ann Nicholls, Tragedy on the High Seas: A History of Och, Och, Eire, O!
DESCRIPTION: The Irish exile misses home and his "native bay." He recalls the races and games at Christmas. The new home is "lonely and drear"; there is no call of the corncrake. He wishes he had a boat to row back home
AUTHOR: English translation by Eleanor Hull
EARLIEST DATE: 1895 (for the Gaelic version; Gaelic Journal)
KEYWORDS: homesickness emigration
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H819, pp. 219-220, "Och, Och, Eire, O!" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Scarborough Settler's Lament" (theme) and references there

Oddfellows Hall
DESCRIPTION: McKenna gives Dolan a ticket to a dance in Oddfellow's hall. McKenna upsets Dolan by dancing with Bridget. They fight and "clean up" the hall. Justice Duffy gives them ten dollars or ten days. They haven't the money so "we spent ten days on their island"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)
KEYWORDS: fight violence prison dancing humorous judge
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
Roud #18231
RECORDINGS:
Mr. Walsh, "Oddfellows Hall" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

Ode to Guzz
DESCRIPTION: "Houses furnished with pusser's stores, The Hoe, littered with Plymouth 'hoers'" -- all these lazy, thieving people typify "Guzz" (Devonport). "Dockyard mateys, loafing bastards, Scrounging ticklers off their masters, This lot just about sums up Guzz"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
KEYWORDS: recitation worker crime
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 72, "Ode to Guzz" (1 text)

Ode to Newfoundland
DESCRIPTION: Known by the last verse, "As loved our fathers, so we love, Where once they stood we stand, Their prayer we raise to heav'n above, God guard thee, Newfoundland"
AUTHOR: Words: Sir Cavendish Boyle/Music (of most common version): C. Hubert H. Parry
EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Murphy, Old Colony Song Book)
KEYWORDS: nonballad patriotic
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, "Ode to Newfoundland" (1 text, 1 tune): p. 7 in the 3rd edition, p. 9 in the 4th, p. 7 in the 5th
Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, Front-Cover, "The Ode to Newfoundland" (1 text, 1 tune)
Mills-FavoriteSongsOfNewfoundland, p. 50, "Ode to Newfoundland" (1 text, 1 tune)
England-HistoricNewfoundlandAndLabrador, p. 49, "Ode to Newfoundland" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, compiler, _Songs & Ballads of Terra Nova_, Evening Telegram publishing, 1903 (available from the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 4, "Newfoundland" (1 text)
James Murphy, compiler/publisher, "(Old Colony Song Book: Newfoundland)," James Murphy, 1904 (available from the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site; the cover is missing, but I suspect it is a copy of "Songs of Our Land"); p. 4, "Newfoundland" (1 text)
Glenn Colton, "Imagining Nation: Music and Identity in Pre-Confederation Newfoundland" (article printed in _Newfoundland and Labrador Studies_, Volume 22, No. 1, pp. 33-34, "Newfoundland" (1 text, 1 tune, a setting by Charles Hutton); p. 37 (1 tune, the standard Parry setting)
Roud #7304
NOTES [412 words]: "The National Anthem of Newfoundland, written by Sir Cavendish Boyle ... while he was Britain's Governor of Newfoundland between 1901 and 1904 .... First public performance... 1902" [per GEST Songs of Newfoundland and Labrador site] - BS
It should be recalled that, at that time, Newfoundland was not a part of the Dominion of Canada. It was a separate British dominion. Boyle (1849-1916) was not a Newfoundlander; the "governor" was the British representative to the dominions. (Robert Bond was Primer Minister during Boyle's entire term.) Boyle had served in several other colonies before his time in Newfoundland. Despite not being a local, he had some actual role in governance, being involved in mediating the sealers' strike of 1902 (see "The Sealer's Strike of 1902 (The Sealers Gained the Strike)"). He apparently wrote many other poems about Newfoundland (see Robert H. Cuff, managing editor), Dictionary of Newfoundland and Labrador Biography, Harry Cuff Publications, 1990, p. 29, entry on Cavendish Boyle), but this was clearly his "hit."
According to Glenn Colton, "Imagining Nation: Music and Identity in Pre-Confederation Newfoundland" (article printed in _Newfoundland and Labrador Studies_, Volume 22, No. 1, pp. 28-29, the first performance of the piece was at the Casino Theatre in St. John's on January 21, 1902, using a tune set by E. R. Krippner. Colton, p. 31, has a copy of the sheet music cover. Other tunes were used over the years as well -- Colton on the following pages shows one by Charles Hatton although not that by Krippner; the article also includes the Parry tune that is now the standard. There was also an extremely long arrangement by Alfred Allen (Colton, p. 32). Cavendish Boyle himself requested that Hubert Parry create a setting; this version was "widely known" by 1907. Apparently Boyle's niece, who was quite musical, urged him to seek a setting from a British composer (Colton, p. 35) -- although Colton suggests that this was not because there was anything wrong with the local tunes but because the niece was prejudiced against Newfoundlanders. Colton also observes the curious fact that Krippner held the right to set the words to music, but graciously released those rights.
The poem seems to have caught on quite quickly; note that James Murphy put it in his Newfoundland poetry collection just two years after it was offered to the public. It did not become Newfoundland's anthem until 1979, however (Colton, p. 36). - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: Doyl3007

Of a Rose, A Lovely Rose

DESCRIPTION: "Of a rose, a lovely rose, And of a rose I sing a song." Listeners are told to hearken "How a rose began to spring," It had (five/six) branches. The branches reach throughout the world and heaven and hell. We, Mary, Jesus, all are blessed by the nativity
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1537 (Richard Hill MS., Balliol Coll. Oxf. 354)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad flowers MiddleEnglish
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (12 citations):
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #175, pp. 131-133, "(Mary, the Rose)" (3 texts)
Stevick-OneHundredMiddleEnglishLyrics 84, "(Of a rose, a lovely rose)" (1 text)
Rickert-AncientEnglishChristmasCarols, pp. 9-10, "Of a rose, a lovely rose" (1 text)
Of All the Birds

DESCRIPTION: "Of all the birds that ever I see, the owle is the fairest in her degree, For all the day she sits in a tree... Te-whit, te-whow, to whom drinks thou... Nose, nose, nose, nose, nose, And who gave thee thy jolly red nose? Cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg, and cloves."

AUTHOR: Thomas Ravenscroft?

EARLIEST DATE: 1609 (Ravenscroft's Deuteromelia)

KEYWORDS: bird drink nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Chappell/Woolridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic I, pp. 141-142, "Of All the Birds" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 53, "Of All the Brave Birds" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSPRO Gl 130)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 50, "Of all the gay birds that e'er I did see" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #248, p. 155, "(Of all the gay birds that e'er I did see"); #138, p. 114, "(Nose, nose, jolly red nose")
Winstock-SongsAndMusicOfTheRedcoats, pp. 119-122, "The Owl" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, ALLBIRDS

Roud #496

NOTES [1370 words]: This piece is a curiosity. Published by Ravenscroft, it is rare although not quite unknown in tradition (the Opies mention an 1842 Lincolnshire version). But, in John Fletcher and Francis Beaumont's 1611 play "The Knight of the Burning Pestle," Act I, scene v, lines 45-46, we find Old Merrythought singing,

Nose, nose, jolly red nose,
And who gave thee this jolly red nose?
And in lines 51-52, Merrythought follows this up with Nutmegs and ginger, cinnamon and cloves;
And they gave me this jolly red nose.
(Wine, p. 316.)

Merrythought's songs, where they can be identified at all, are mostly traditional pieces -- and we note that his words are not identical to Ravenscroft's. Nor is the Baring-Gould text identical. This raises at least the possibility that the song is traditional. So I've include it here. - RBW

Re RBW comment, "I've never seen a collection from tradition" [now modified - RBW]: Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames writes, "I first heard this at Aston, afterwards at Inglesham, and I finally obtained the complete words of Mrs Bond, Quenington." - BS

The real question is the relationship between the stanzas. Ravenscroft includes "Of all the birds" and "Nose, nose, (jolly red) nose" in one item. The Opies and Baring-Goulds split them, but based on books more recent than Ravenscroft's (the Opies say the "Nose" stanza was independent by 1632). If they are songs at all, are they two joined by Ravenscroft or one split by tradition? Or was it simply such a hit for Ravenscroft that Beaumont and Fletcher latched onto it before it was forgotten?

One thing is certain: It can't be much older than the "Knight of the Burning Pestle," because of the mentions of nutmeg and cloves. Nutmeg, until transplanted, was found only on the seven Banda Islands in the Moluccas, and cloves only from the islands of Ternate and Tidore in the same chain (Le Couteur/Burreston, p. 26). The Moluccas were not known to Europeans until 1512, and it was some time after that before the properties of those particular plants would have been known. The spices were expensive for many years after their discovery; in the 1660s, the Dutch were willing to trade their North American colonies for the one of the nutmeg islands the British controlled (Le Couteur/Burreston, p. 4).

Cinnamon was somewhat better-known; Mancall, p. 22, says that a European recipe book of the year 1500 has 125 recipes featuring it. But it was still expensive, having to be imported long distances by wagon.

Interest in these spices was certainly high at the time Ravenscroft was writing. The East India Company had been chartered in 1600, and James I gave it a monopoly on pepper (another major imported spice) in 1609 (Mancall, p. 26) -- just about the time Ravenscroft was publishing his works.

In the footnotes-that-probably-aren't-important department, eugenol, the aromatic ingredient in cloves, and isoeugenol, which gives nutmeg its scent and taste, are chemically extremely similar, differing only in the location of a double bond in a short carbon chain (Le Couteur/Burreston, p. 29). Zingerone, which is the key ingredient in ginger, is also related, although not quite as closely (where eugenol and isoeugenol have a double carbon bond and a hydrogen atom, it has an oxygen atom. Vanillin, the main flavorant in vanilla, is also somewhat akin; Le Couteur/Burreston, pp. 129-130). Cinnamon is slightly more distinct, but cinnamaldehyde has a similar benzene core with a single long tail (Atkins, p. 134); it looks sort of like a molecule of eugenol stripped of most of the accessories, Ravenscroft of course could not know this, but it is interesting to see these four extraordinarily similar spices linked.

Perhaps some of it has to do with the fact that nutmeg also has intoxicant properties -- the consumption of a single whole nutmeg can cause nausea, high blood pressure, flu-like illness, and prolonged hallucinations (Le Couteur/Burreston, p. 31). Smaller quantities would not cause illness but probably could add to the effect of alcohol. Cloves, too, have their intoxicant effects -- and, until better remedies were discovered, were used as a remedy for sore teeth (Binney, p. 134). Cloves, nutmeg, and mace (another imported spice) quickly became significant elements in European medicine (Mancall, p. 23).

We also find cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg, and cloves linked in a seventeenth century gout medication made by Adrian Mynsicht, which contained these spices along with sage, mint, pepper, and others, plus sugar -- yet, oddly, was called "elixir of vitriol" (Binney, p. 135) -- which probably tells us more about seventeenth century chemistry than about this song.

Another curiosity: Why is the owl declared the fairest bird? It was generally considered an ill-omened bird in Britain. Simpson/Roud, p. 270, tell us "[t]hat an owl's cry means death or disaster is an old and widespread motif, both as a folk belief and as a literary convention" -- adding that seeing the bird in daylight is especially bad. Hazlitt, pp. 468-470, gives numerous examples -- and points out that the feeling goes back to the Romans. He notes that "[t]he ancients held owls in the utmost abhorrence" and notes an instance when all Rome undertook a purification ceremony when one entered the capital precinct.

So why did Ravenscroft (or whoever) praise it? Three possible explanations occur to me. One is that this is the period when there was a revival of classical learning -- and the Greeks, unlike the Romans, did not despise the owl. Jones-Larousse, p. 338, observes that "it was the emblem of Athena and hence a symbol of wisdom (Athens was renowned for its profusion of owls)." An owl, in fact, may have indirectly saved Greece during the Persian Wars: Plutarch tells a tale of an owl being seen perched on the mast of Themistocles's ship, convincing the Greeks to go along with his plans -- and hence win the Battle of Salamis and the war (Plutarch/Scott-Kilvert, p. 89; section 12 of Plutarch's biography of Themistocles).

Alternately, I find myself thinking of "The Owl and the Nightingale," one of the earliest surviving Middle English poems. It is a dialog between the two birds, with the Owl representing the wisdom of the church and the Nightingale representing courtly love. As in the Athenian legend, the owl is wise (indeed, OwlNightingale, p. 174, connects this with the Athenian legend, but gives no justification) -- although not attractive, since it is an eater of the dead and active only at night, the time of evil (OwlNightingale, pp. 164-165). The Owl is found in an ugly setting in a chopped-down tree (OwlNightingale, p. 163).

On the other hand, the Owl's stump is surrounded by ivy, the symbol of life and growth. (Greene, p cii, points out that the owl is also associated with ivy in the early holly-and-ivy songs mentioned under "The Holly and the Ivy.") It urges a course of moderation rather than the nightingale's extravagance (OwlNightingale, p. 165). And, most notably, it is sitting a tree all day for the argument, which fits the song. And while the argument is more or less a draw (neither side backs down), the owl seems to come off as wiser -- but the poet's sympathies appear with the nightingale (CHEL1, p. 240).

The drawback to this connection is that "The Owl and the Nightingale" was written probably not long after 1200 (OwlNightingale, p. 155), and survives only in two thirteenth century manuscripts (CHEL1, p. 238), so while it has interesting links to this owl verse, Ravenscroft and his contemporaries would have found it nearly incomprehensible. I doubt it can be a direct source. The song and the poem would have to be based on a common legend -- and one that lasted for 400 years. A poor bet.

The final possibility that strikes me is that this is a sort of cuckoo analogy: The owl is seen as spending the days in someone else's bed, then flying off when the husband comes home. This would fit in with the love of cuckoldry jokes around 1600, but I will admit it is extremely forced. A Welsh legend might have a similar point. Alexander, p. 201, records that "In Wales the hooting of an owl in a village did not herald disaster but signified that a girl was about to lose her virginity." - RBW

Bibliography

- Marc Alexander,A Companion to the Folklore, Myths & Customs of Britain, Sutton Publishing, 2002
- Atkins: P. W. Atkins,Molecules, Freeman, 1987
- Hazlitt: W. C. Hazlitt,Dictionary of Faiths & Folklore, Reeves & Turner, 1905 (I use the 1995 Studio Editions paperback)

Last updated in version 5.3
Off For Philadelphia

DESCRIPTION: Paddy Leary is leaving Tipperary for Philadelphia "before the break of morning... without warning." He had hoped to marry Kate Malone but now "they told me I must leave the place... the tears will surely blind me." He'll return some day.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)

KEYWORDS: courting love emigration farewell home parting separation travel sea America Ireland nonballad friend

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

ADDITIONAL: J. Bodewalt Lampe, Songs of Ireland (New York: Remick Music Corp, 1916 (Digitized by Google), pp. 48-49, "My Name Is Paddy Leary (Off To Philadelphia)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #18232

RECORDINGS:
The McNulty Family, "Off For Philadelphia" (on "Irish Folk Songs," Colonial Records COL-LP-121 LP (1957))
Jack Swain, "Off For Philadelphia" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

SAME TUNE:
We Must Close Our Little Store on Sunday Morning (by Johnny Burke) (Johnny Burke (John White, Editor), _Burke's Ballads_, no printer listed, n.d. (PDF available on Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 51) (Johnny Burke (William J. Kirwin, editor), _John White's Collection of Johnny Burke Songs_, Harry Cuff Publications, St. John's, 1981, #84, p. 125)

NOTES [25 words]: According to Lampe, "words revised by Stephen Temple, [tune] adapted from the arrangement of an old Irish melody by Battison Haynes (1859-1900).

Off to Flanders

DESCRIPTION: Will is going, as an officer, to Flanders to fight against the French with King William. He would have Jack join him. Jack chooses to stay at home, reaping and mowing, with his wife rather than "to go a-fighting, What I never took delight in"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1693 (Ebsworth)

KEYWORDS: war request rejection farming brother soldier

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1688-1697 - War of the League of Augsburg (source: "Nine Years' War" in Wikipedia); for a Flanders reference see 1693 "Battle of Landen" (source: "Battle of Landen" in Wikipedia)

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 131, "Off to Flanders" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO GI 108)

Roud #1260

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Don. b.13(35), "The Farmers Son of Devonshire" ("Well met brother Jack"), J. Deacon (London), 1671-1704

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Mary Live Long" (tune, per Ebsworth and broadside Bodleian Don. b.13(35))

NOTES [326 words]: The description follows Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames. The differences from Ebsworth are described below.
The Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames text seems, at first glance, ("Dear brother, farewell! I am now going to Flanders, Amongst bold commanders") to be a prequel to the Ebsworth text ("Well met, Brother Jack, I have been in Flanders, With valiant Commanders, and am returned"). However, of the 18 text lines in Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, only two are not close to lines in Ebsworth. Those two seem a slight, by brother Jack, of King Williams' bravery which is Off to the Diggings

DESCRIPTION: "Some who at a spade would kick Or turn their nose up at a pick... They're off noo to the diggin's." Deacons, debtors, creditors, women, the mayor all go seeking gold. The singer advises all these new miners to listen to the old hands

AUTHOR: some words by "J. B. Kaikorai" (pseudonym, but we don't know whose)

EARLIEST DATE: 2010 (Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry)

KEYWORDS: mining humorous clergy

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 48, "Off to the Diggings" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: Col2048

Officers' Wives (Puddings and Pies)

DESCRIPTION: "Officers' wives get puddings and pies, A sergeant's wife gets skilly, But a private's wife gets nothing at all To fill her empty belly."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)

KEYWORDS: soldier food wife

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 233, "(no title)" (1 short text)

Roud #10765

File: BrPa233B

Oft in the Stilly Night

DESCRIPTION: "Oft in the stilly night, Ere slumber's chain has bound me, Fond memory brings to light Of other days around me." The singer remembers the old days, the friends he had. The singer feels like the last one in an empty banquet hall

AUTHOR: Words: Thomas Moore (1779-1852)

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart-Songs)

KEYWORDS: nonballad

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Heart-Songs, p. 91, "Oft in the Stilly Night" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #83, "Oft in the Stilly Night" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 50, "Oft in the Stilly Night" (1 text)

Roud #25277

BROADSIDES:
Ogalley Song
DESCRIPTION: "We left the Nueces River in April '81, With 3000 long-horned cattle, and all they knewed was run, oh." They travel from San Antonio past the Red River to "Dodge City on the Arkansaw," then to Smoky Hill. The boss calls it "the damndest country" he's seen
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1954 (Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore)
KEYWORDS: cattle travel hardtimes
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, pp. 152-153, "Ogalley Song" (1 text)
Roud #4893
File: SaKo152B

Oggie Song, The
DESCRIPTION: I song that appears to have been written by drunks for drunks: "Where be going to Jagger? I be going to Looe. Gor! Buggre Jagger! I be going there too." They will all go to Oggie Land, where they can't tell sugar from tissue paper from jam
AUTHOR: Ivor Bursten and Others (source: Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy); reportedly written 1943
KEYWORDS: drink travel sailor nonsense derivative
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, pp. 62-63, "The Oggie Song" (1 text)
NOTES [30 words]: Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy lists a whole bunch of unlikely places where this... thing... continues to be sung, which I think proves that it's better to be lucky than good.
- RBW
Last updated in version 5.1
File: Tawn045

Oh As I Was a Walking
DESCRIPTION: The singer hears "a beautiful fair one ... Crying, How happy ... should I be if my true love was near" Henry, "her true love," passes by. They kiss. "Now this young couple they are joined to the yoke," happily.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1778 (Carey)
KEYWORDS: courting love marriage
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 98, "Oh As I Was a Walking" (1 text)
Roud #1056
NOTES [11 words]: Carey believes the text was probably copied from a printed source. - BS
Last updated in version 2.7
File: ReCi098

Oh Babe, It Ain't No Lie
DESCRIPTION: Singer says that one old woman in the town is lying about her, and wishes the old woman would die. "Been all around this whole round world/I just got back today.... Oh, babe, it ain't no lie (x3), (Know) this life I'm living is very (hard/high)."
Oh Bonnie Laddie Be Mine

DESCRIPTION: "My dearest Abdebter I send you this letter To fix your affection on mine You may get a richer but never a better So oh bonnie laddie be mine"

AUTHOR: unknown

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1833, "Oh Bonnie Laddie Be Mine" (1 short text)
Roud #13600

NOTES [38 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 text.
Greig/Duncan8: apparently a verse for a valentine or album. - BS
With the name or word "Abdebter"? All of Google cannot find a single genuine instance of the term..... - RBW

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD1833

Oh Boys Oh

DESCRIPTION: The singer, a servant lass of 28 years, quits to marry whomever will marry her. "I'm bound to say he'll bless the day." But he would have to give up rambling and send her his earnings on term day, and if he lifts a hand or foot to her he'll rue the day.

AUTHOR: unknown

REFERENCES (3 citations):
McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen, pp. 130-131, 155, "Boys o Boys" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6937

NOTES [84 words]: Candlemas [February 2], Whitsunday [May 15], Lammas [August 1] and Martinmas [November 11] were the four "Old Scottish term days" "on which servants were hired, and rents and rates were due." (Source: Wikipedia article Quarter days). [With, of course, the non-trivial footnote that Whitsun was a movable holiday that rarely fell May 15. - RBW]
Seasonal hiring of servants and farm workers usually was for six months, beginning May and November, and the term day marked the end of the employment period. - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: McSc130
Oh But I'm Weary

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, but I'm weary, weary waitin'... Oh, mither, gie me a man Will tak this weariness away." The mother suggests a plowman, mason, miller, etc.; the daughter rejects each (e.g. a plowman's wife works too hard); she wants a man who lives "by the pen."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: mother children marriage work
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #98, p. 1, "Oh, But I'm Weary"; #99, p. 2, "Oh,
But I'm Weary" (1 text plus 1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan7 1332, "O But I'm Weary" (7 texts, 5 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 150, "Oh, But I'm Weary" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Roger deV. Renwick, _Recentering Anglo/American Folksong: Sea Crabs and Wicked Youths_, University Press of Mississippi, 2001, p.75, "Oh, But I'm Weary" (1 text)
Roud #5555
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Soldier Boy for Me (A Railroader for Me)" (theme: professional comparison) and references there
NOTES [36 words]: One rather suspects this was written by some weedy young poet trying to convince a girl he was a better catch than a more handsome fellow with a lower-class job.
Wish I'd thought of that trick way back when.... - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1
File: 0rd150

Oh California

DESCRIPTION: "I come from Salem City with my washbowl on my knee. I'm going to California
The gold dust for to see." A parody of "Oh! Susanna," telling of the sea voyage to San Francisco.
The singer of course expects to get rich

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Shay)
KEYWORDS: gold derivative humorous ship travel
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1849 - California gold rush
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, pp. 114-117, "I Come from Salem City" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, OHCALIF*
ADDITIONAL: Stewart Gordon, _A History of the World in Sixteen Shipwrecks_, ForeEdge, 2015,
p. 175, "(no title)" (1 text)
Roud #8824
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Oh! Susanna" (tune) and references there

File: ShaSS114

Oh Cruel

DESCRIPTION: "Oh cruel were my parents that stole [imprest?] my love fae me," but he has returned safely. They go to Almeldrum, a poor town of little water, tasteless food, a frail bridge, and a council so down on sin they might let one baby cross but not twins.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3) [but note parodies printed before 1813]
KEYWORDS: courting parting return travel commerce humorous twins
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 513, "Aul' Meldrum Toon" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: C. H. Firth, _Publications of the Navy Records Society_, 1907 (available on Google Books), p. 324, "Oh Cruel!" (1 text, possibly this or perhaps one of the parodies)
Roud #5997

NOTES [343 words]: Greig/Duncan3: "For the sub-title and opening stanza, cf. the song 'Cruel was my father' of which Greig received a version from Miss H. Rae." Since that verse is not reproduced in Greig or the Greig-Duncan collection we are left to guess what song that might be. It might be "Riley's Farewell" - though Greig does have that as "John Rylie" - which, in Greig's version includes the lines "Cruel were my parents to persecute my love" [by having him impress]; that line in, for example, Ashton, Modern Street Ballads, "Riley's Farewell" is "Cruel was my father that thought to shoot my love."

There are different broadside parodies of "Oh Cruel." For example, see Bodleian, Harding B 17(9a), "The Answer to 'Oh! Cruel!'" ("Oh! cruel were my parents that envied our love"), J. Evans (London), 1780-1812; also Firth c.13(91), Harding B 11(81), "The Answer to 'Oh! Cruel!'"

Bodleian, Harding B 25(1396), "Another Oh, Cruel! A sketch of the life of Sammy Simple, a tale, alas too true!" ("O cruel was the serjeant who did my lovey list"), J.K. Pollock (North Shields), 1815-1855

Bodleian, Harding B 11(81), "Oh! Cruel!" ("Oh! cruel were my parents, as tore my love from me") ["Written and sung by a gentleman (In the Character of a Female Ballad Singer)"] J. Evans (London), 1780-1812; also Firth c.12(207), Firth c.12(205), 2806 c.18(220), Harding B 11(672), "Oh Cruel!"; Harding B 25(1930), "Tommy Strill"; Johnson Ballads 2304 [some lines illegible], "The Answer to Oh! cruel"

Bodleian, Johnson Ballads fol. 250, "Dr. Shuffle" ("Oh! cruel 'twas of you pa, to force this job on me"), G. Stewardson (Norwich), no date

Greig/Duncan3 has a map on p. xxxv, of "places mentioned in songs in volume 3" showing the song number as well as place name; Old Meldrum (513) is at coordinate (h2-3,v8) on that map [roughly 16 miles NW of Aberdeen]. - BS

Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 74-75, has a song, "Oh! Cruel Were My Parients" (sic.), which is reported to be "Sung by all the Comic Singers", which is "A Burlesque on the traditional words 'Oh! cruel was the Press Gang.'" - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2

File: GrD3513

---

Oh Dear Doctor

DESCRIPTION: "Oh dear doctor, can you tell, What will make poor so-and-so well? She is sick and like to die And that will make poor so-and-so cry." Sometimes, the text continues that the boy has "the prettiest girl of Mrs so-and-so's daughters."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1884 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)

KEYWORDS: courting play party doctor disease

FOUND IN: US (MW)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 32, "Oh Dear Doctor" (1 text)
- Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #36, "The Doctor's Prescription" (1 text)
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore, p. 540, "Oh, Dear Doctor" (1 short text, 1 tune)
- Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, p. 119, "(Doctor, Doctor, can you tell)" (1 text)

Roud #19115

NOTES [109 words]: The first four lines of Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame are the same as the fourth verse of Jean Olive Heck, "Folk Poetry and Folk Criticism, as Illustrated by Cincinnati Children in Their Singing Games and Their Thoughts about These Games" in The Journal of American Folklore, Vol. XL, No. 155 (Jan 1927 (available online by JSTOR)), #24 p. 19 ("Rain, rain high, and the wind blows cold"). Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren's version is the same four line rhyme (see the first quote in the description). - BS

According to Newell, it wasn't just children who played this game; in France, it was played by adults, and the doctor's prescription was a kiss. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.5

File: 0p6a032
Oh Dear Mother

DESCRIPTION: "What a cold I've got." The singer asks the doctor whether s/he will die. The answer may be yes [eventually] or no; in any case, to cure this cold "take your medicine twice a day"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: disease medicine nonballad doctor
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1613, "Oh Dear Mother" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13501
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Oh Mother Mother

NOTES [33 words]: Greig/Duncan8: "It is also similar to part of Opie, Singing Game, No. 147 'The Johnsons Had a Baby' and lines in 'Mistress Brown' referred to at [Greig/Duncan8] 1617 'Mrs Brown Went to Town'." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81613

Oh Dear, How I Long to Get Married

DESCRIPTION: "I am a damsel so booming and gay, Who along with the females must mingle." She is "compell'd to live single," but, "Oh dear, how I long to get married," for "I am tired of lying alone." Queen Victoria was able to marry, but the singer can't find anyone

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1846 (Bodleian broadside Firth b.26(55)); first published c. 1842 (see NOTES)
KEYWORDS: oldmaid royalty
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henderson-VictorianStreetBallads, pp. 103-104, "Oh Dear how I long to get married" (1 text)
Roud #1647
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.26(55), "Oh Dear! How I Long to Get Married!," J. Paul (London), 1838-1845; also Harding B 11(2739); Harding B 11(619), Ryle and Paul (London) 1838-1859; Harding B 11(2738);
Harding B 11(2741)

NOTES [74 words]: Although I have not found an attributed version of this song, all the Bodleian broadsides refer to Queen Victoria and say that she has two children. Her first two children were Victoria (1840-1901), later Empress of Germany, and Edward (1841-1910), later King Edward VII. Her third child, Alice, was born 1843. So this song was almost certainly written between November 9, 1841, when Edward was born, and April 23, 1843, when Alice was born. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: HenV103

Oh Death (III)

DESCRIPTION: Known mostly by the chorus, "(Oh death/Lord), Spare me over till another year." Despite the worries about dying, the singer praises the afterlife; God or Jesus or someone will has "made for me a home in heaven," etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)
KEYWORDS: death religious nonballad floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 201-203, (no title) (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, OHDEATH*

RECORDINGS:
Bessie Jones and the Georgia Sea Island Singers, "O Death" (on LomaxCD1712, recorded 1959)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
Oh Dinna Quarrel the Bairnies

DESCRIPTION: "Oh dinna quarrel the bairnies, try till agree; Be kind to ane anither, be advised by me. Ye'll a 'gree thegither yet in far less room"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: nonballad children

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 671, "Oh Dinna Quarrel the Bairnies" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6097

File: GrD3671

Oh Fudge, Tell the Judge

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, fudge, Tell the judge, Mother's got a baby. Oh, joy, It's a boy, Father's nearly crazy." "Wrap it up in tissue paper, Send it down the elevator." "First floor, second floor... send it out the back door."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry, from Mrs. Henry C. Gray, or her maid)

KEYWORDS: mother father baby judge nonballad

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 239, (no title) (1 short text)
Carey-MarylandFolkloreAndFolklife, pp. 79, "(no title)" (1 text)
McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, p. 110, "(Fudge, fudge, tell the judge)" (1 text)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, p. 14, "(Fudge, fudge, tell the judge)" (1 text)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Teri John, "A Collection of Jump Rope Rhymes," Vol. XXI, No. 1 (Apr 1973), pp. 15-16, "(Fudge, fudge, here comes the judge)"; "(Daddy, Daddy, Call the Doctor)" (2 texts: the second appears to be the same piece but doesn't mention fudge or the judge)
Roud #19318

File: MHAp239C

Oh Gin My Love War a Red Rose

DESCRIPTION: The singer says that if his love were a rose and he a drop of dew he would fall on her; if she were frozen ale her kiss would keep him warm; if she were locked up in a coffer and he had the key he would open the coffer twenty times a night.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Greig/Duncan5)

KEYWORDS: courting love flowers nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan5 936, "Oh Gin My Love War a Red Rose" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6751

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Monthly Rose" (some verses)
cf. "My Lovie She's Little" (lyrics about ale warming on the coldest night)

NOTES [33 words]: The first verse was adapted by Burns for the beginning of his second verse of "O Were My Love Yon Lilac Fair" (Robert Burns, The Complete Poems and Songs of Robert Burns (New Lanark,2005), p. 383). - BS

Last updated in version 2.5
Oh Hae Ye Seen My Jamie?
DESCRIPTION: Have you seen my Jamie? He's gone on a spree.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: nonballad drink
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Greig/Duncan8 1795, "Oh Hae Ye Seen My Jamie?" (1 short text, 1 tune)
  Roud #12998
NOTES [47 words]: Greig/Duncan8: "April 1906. 'Sung at performance of "Gentle Shepherd" in Whitehill School, some thirty-five years ago." I don't find the song itself in Ramsay's play "The Gentle Shepherd" (Allan Ramsay, The Gentle Shepherd (Glasgow, 1743 (seventh edition "Digitized by Google"))) - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81795

Oh Hallelujah
DESCRIPTION: "Oh hallelujah Oh lah di dah (x2). Well I been baptised in the water Oh hallelujah Oh lah di dah."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2008 (USSealsland04)
KEYWORDS: ritual nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
  Gullah Kinfolk, "Oh Hallelugah" (on USSealsland04)
File: RcOHallg

Oh How Can I Leave You
DESCRIPTION: The singer loves Liza and "long[s] for the day I can call you my own" He remembers a May meeting "when with you I sported among the new hay" and "a lone winter's evening" when "your smiles made me cheery"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: courting love nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Greig/Duncan4 713, "Eliza" (2 texts, 1 tune)
  Roud #6155
NOTES [15 words]: Greig/Duncan4 quoting Greig: "Said to be by Dr. [James] Robertson of Ellon
[1803-1860]." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD4713

Oh How Wonderful, Oh How Nice, It Is To Go To School
DESCRIPTION: "Oh! how wonderful, oh, ho nice It is to go to school, There you learn many things
That make you nice and pious, Oh, how wonderful, oh, how nice, It is to go to school."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Stout-FolkloreFromIowa)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 103, pp. 127-133, "Early Iowa School Songs" (11 texts, of which "E" is this song)
Oh It's a Lovely War

DESCRIPTION: "Up to your waist in water, Up to your eyes in slush, Using the kind of language That makes the sergeants blush." "Oh, oh, oh, it's a lovely war. Who wouldn't be a soldier, eh?"
The soldier complains of food and poor pay while pretending to praise them

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions)
KEYWORDS: war soldier humorous food
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, pp. 74-75, "Oh! Oh! Oh! It's a Lovely War!" (1 text)
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 219, "(Oh, Oh, Oh, It's a Lovely War" (1 fragment)
Roud #9624
File: SBar074

Oh Jeannie, There's Naething to Fear Ye

DESCRIPTION: "O! My lassie, our joy to complete again, Meet me again in the gloamin, my dearie" to their "bed in the greenwood." The singer names things that might be frightening (bats, bogle, and brownie) but says there's nothing to fear: "Love be thy sure defence"

AUTHOR: James Hogg (source: Whitelaw)
EARLIEST DATE: 1829 (Chambers)
KEYWORDS: courting sex lyric nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1858, "Oh Jeannie, There's Naething to Fear Ye" (1 text, 1 tune)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 69, "O Jeannie" (1 text)
Roud #13212
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Blue Bonnets Over the Border" (tune, per Whitelaw)
NOTES [62 words]: "The bogle or goblin was a mischievous, freakish spirit who took delight in frightening and perplexing rather than in helping or seriously injuring mankind.... The brownie, on the other hand, was a kindly spirit sincerely attached to the household" (source: James Cranstoun, editor, The Poems of Alexander Montgomerie (Edinburgh, 1887 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 324). - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: GrD81858

Oh Judy, Oh Judy

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Judy [Judas], oh Judy, hit's time that I go, I know you will 'tray me though I love you so." Jesus tells Judas to buy food for the poor, but Judas sells Jesus. Jesus condemns Judas for his betrayal

AUTHOR: unknown ("collected" by John Jacob Niles)
EARLIEST DATE: 1961
KEYWORDS: Jesus betrayal death money
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Niles-BalladBookOfJohnJacobNiles 16C, "Oh Judy, Oh Judy" (1 text, which Niles considers part of Child 23, but this is clearly not the case)
File: Niles16C
Oh Lily, Dear Lily

DESCRIPTION: "My foot is in the stirrup, My bridle's in my hand, I'll go court another And marry if I can. Oh Lily, oh Lily, my Lily fare you well. I'm sorry to leave you, For I love you so well." "So fare you well, (Molly), I'll bid you adieu, I'm ruined forever..."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1920
KEYWORDS: love separation floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
  Randolph 731, "Oh Lily, Dear Lily" (2 short texts, 1 tune)
  Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 139, "Sweet Lily" (1 text)
  Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 1, "Sweet Lily" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
  NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Charles W. Joyner, "The Repertory of Nancy Jones as a Mirror of Culture in Scotland County," Vol. XXI, No. 3 (Sep 1973), p. 92, "They say I drink Victor, my money is my own" (1 text, about "Sweet Lily")
  Roud #7583
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "The Wagoner's Lad" (floating lyrics)
  cf. "Farewell, Sweet Mary" (floating lyrics)
  cf. "My Foot Is in the Stirrup"
NOTES [73 words]: I don't think there is a single line in Randolph's texts that is not paralleled elsewhere. But he treats this as a separate song, and he collected it, so I follow his lead. Similarly the longer version in Brown; the editors give notes about all the various parallels. The possibility must be admitted, however, that this is a worn-down form of something else -- or even that Randolph's two versions, and Brown's one, are separate pieces. - RBW

Oh Look Misery

DESCRIPTION: Singer says, Johnny "wear my clothes ... eat my food ... smoke my pipe ... take my wife." "Johnny was hiding under my bed." Singer shoots Johnny. "The people are sorry to see The grave for Johnny and the gallows for me."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Blind Blake Higgs: see WIHIGGS01)
KEYWORDS: adultery infidelity marriage crime execution homicide friend husband wife clothes
FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)
RECORDINGS:
  Blind Blake Higgs, "Oh Look Misery" (on WIHIGGS01)
NOTES [13 words]: The Higgs title is "Oh Look Misery" but it sounds to me like "Oh Love Misery." - BS

Oh Lovely Appearance of Death

DESCRIPTION: "Oh lovely appearance of death, What sight upon earth is so fair? Not all the gay pageants that I breath Can with a dead body compare." Its pain is over. The singer longs to be free of the burdens of life

AUTHOR: George Whitefield (source: Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry)
EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (collected from Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Haskins)
KEYWORDS: death religious
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 38-39, "Oh Lovely Appearance of Death" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Roud #15645
NOTES [39 words]: Although George Whitefield was a Methodist, and supposedly wrote this for his own funeral, it does not appear in the Methodist hymnals at my disposal. It is perhaps not too surprising that it was collected from hardshell Baptists. - RBW
Oh Molly, I Can't Say That You're Honest
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Molly, I can't say that you're honest, You've stolen my heart from my breast."
"I know that you father is stingy... 'Tis mighty small change that you'll bring me Exceptin' the change of your name." He throws a rock at her window to say he was there
AUTHOR: Samuel Lover (1797-1868)
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)
KEYWORDS: love courting father mother humorous
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H82, p. 262, "An Irish Serenade" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 14, "Oh Molly, I Can't Say You're Honest" (1 text)
Roud #6918
File: HHH082

Oh Mother, Take the Wheel Away
DESCRIPTION: "Oh (mother/father), take the (wheel/cow) away And put it out of sight, For I am heavy-hearted And I cannot (spin/milk) tonight." The rest of the song apparently concerns the lover the singer has lost
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: love separation work
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 814, "Oh Mother, Take the Wheel Away" (2 fragments)
Roud #7430
NOTES [21 words]: This is probably a fragment/remnant of something else -- but Randolph’s texts are so fragmentary that we cannot tell what. - RBW
File: R814

Oh Mr. Fraser
DESCRIPTION: "Oh Mr. Fraser, won't you take us home? We've had enough, we want no more to roam. We've had all the sand, the sweat, the blood"; the New Zealanders want relief from the Italian front. They predict the troubles to follow if they aren't relieved
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (according to Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook)
KEYWORDS: soldier hardtimes political New Zealand home
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, p. 114, "Oh Mr Fraser" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Lili Marlene" (tune, plus cross-references to songs of the Italian campaign)
cf. "O'er the Hills of Sicily" (subject: the Italian campaign)
File: Clev114

Oh My Little Boy
DESCRIPTION: "Oh my little boy, who made your britches? (x3), Mammy cut them out and Daddy sewed the stitches.)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama)
KEYWORDS: children mother father clothes
FOUND IN: US(So)
Oh My Little Darling

DESCRIPTION: "Oh my little darling, don't you weep and cry/Some sweet day a-coming, marry you and I!" "Oh my little darling, don't you weep and moan/Some sweet day a-coming, take my baby home!" "Up and down the railroad, 'cross the county line..."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (recorded from Thaddeus C. Willingham)
KEYWORDS: grief loneliness courting love marriage reunion separation dance tune nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
Thaddeus C. Willingham, "Oh My Little Darling" (on AFS 3115 B1, 1939)
Mike Seeger, "Oh My Little Darling" (on MSeeger01)
NOTES [22 words]: Nonballad, but it's attained sufficient popularity among old-time musicians, beginning with Mike Seeger, to warrant its inclusion. - PJS

Oh My Liver and Lungs

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, my liver and my lungs, my lights and my legs, They're paining me." Heart and head also hurt. The singer is burdened by endless work and the misery of life

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (collected from Mrs. Frost Woodhull)
KEYWORDS: injury hardtimes nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, p. 272, "Oh My Liver and Lungs" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #15603

Oh My Pretty Monkey

DESCRIPTION: "Down in sunny Mexico there lived an Indian maid." "Oh my pretty monkey, come and play with me." "Oh, my pretty monkey maid, I simply think you're grand." They will live together happily in "monkey land." When they cannot marry, he drowns himself

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, Kelly Harrell)
KEYWORDS: love courting animal Mexico home rejection death river drowning
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fahey-Joe-Watson-AustralianTraditionalFolkSinger, [p. 21, page headed "Home Rule for Ireland"], "Monkey Song" (1 fragment, which appears to be a much-distorted version of the chorus)
Roud #13156
RECORDINGS:
Kelly Harrell, "Oh My Pretty Monkey" (Victor 40047, 1927; on KHarrell02)

Oh My, Oh She Had Lovely Curly Hair

DESCRIPTION: The singer "really thought my bride I would make her" until he found out that she lived with "a dashin' flashin' Irish navigator"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: courting sex rake hair
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
Oh That I Had in My Coffin Been Laid

DESCRIPTION: The old man complains that his silly young wife won't let him sleep: "when she comes to bed to me she winna lie still." What does she want? He wishes he had died before he married, or that she "would but sicken and die"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: age sex nonballad husband wife
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1309, "Oh That I Had in My Coffin Been Laid" (1 text)
Roud #7205
File: GrD71309

Oh the Rose

DESCRIPTION: A sailor, bound for the sea, asks a girl to leave her milk pails and go with him. She refuses. He sends her a letter that "he was going to serve the queen." She rejects him again. He says "Fare ye well ye saucy girl, It's better to go free"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: courting ring rejection farewell flowers sailor
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #150, p. 2, "Oh the Rose"; #147, p. 2, ("There was a lad, a nice young lad") (1 text plus 1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan6 1218, "Oh the Rose" (6 texts, 7 tunes)
Roud #6312
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Broken Down Rose
The Lassie Wi' Her Milkin Pail
NOTES [58 words]: Greig/Duncan6 deduces that Greig's #150 text is a composite of two or three texts.
The Greig/Duncan6 title is from the chorus "Oh the rose, the broken down rose, The diamond of a ring! A broken heart will surely mend again, And maybe sae will mine." The diamond ring reference is from "He wrote a letter to his love, And sealed it with his ring." - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: GrD61218

Oh the Saviour Standing at the Door

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the Savior standing at the door (x2), Wilt thou enter in, He will cleanse thy sin, Oh, the Savior standing at the door. Art thour thirsty, Cooling water pure and free, Pure and free from the stream of life.... Trav'ler, drink and drink again"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 83, "Oh, the Saviour (sic.) Standing at the Door" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #7527
File: Boet083
Oh Think of the Home Over Here
DESCRIPTION: "Oh think of the home over there, By the side of the river of light, Where the saints all immortal and fair Are robed in their garments of light." The singer's friends are there; the Savior is there; he will soon be there also AUTHOR: Words: DeWitt Huntington / Music: Tullius O'Kane (source: cyberhymnal.org)
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (High-OldOldFolkSongs); internet sources say it was written c. 1873
KEYWORDS: religious home nonballad
FOUND IN: US(S0)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
High-OldOldFolkSongs, p. 3, "Oh Think of the Home Over There" (1 text)
File: High003

Oh Tibbie, Are Ye Sleepin'
DESCRIPTION: Charlie is cold and wet and waiting at Tibbie's door. If she's not sleeping he would have her come down and speak a minute. He says he won't see her so often now but will think about her as he passes her door.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: courting nightvisit nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 782, "Oh Tibbie, Are Ye Sleepin'" (1 text)
Roud #6196
File: GrD4782

Oh What an Afternoon
DESCRIPTION: "I'll sing you a song of my Uncle Pete" who did outlandish things. "He polished his boots with pumpkin squash." He kept tame butterflies that he fed on "ticktacks, cinders and lard." He himself ate in "a common dinner pail"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: talltale food bug
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1708, "Oh What an Afternoon" (1 text)
Roud #13137
File: GrD81708

Oh What Care I for Your Weel-Made Beds
DESCRIPTION: "O what care I for your weel-made beds, Or gold rings to adore me? Weel micht I been a maiden the streen Gin Lord Huntly had never seen me"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: sex rejection
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1265, "Oh What Care I for Your Weel-Made Beds" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6794
NOTES [30 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan6 fragment. - BS
My gut tells me this is derived, somehow, from "The Gypsy Laddie" [Child 200], but I can offer no evidence. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD61265
Oh What Has Changed You

DESCRIPTION: In the street, "a girl was weeping bitterly, her lover stood close by." She asks why he is deserting her and their baby. He hits her. She falls and is run over by a carriage. She forgives her lover, prays that heaven will protect her baby, and dies

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA-Leach); (The broadsides from Frank Kidson Manuscript Collection had no imprint; Frank Kidson died in 1926)
KEYWORDS: courting love seduction abandonment death baby rake lover abuse
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
Roud #23269
RECORDINGS:
   Ned Stamp, "Down the Streets in London" (on MUNFLA-Leach)
BROADSIDES:

File: ML30WHCY

Oh Yah, Ain't Dat Been Fine

DESCRIPTION: "Now Katryn, my darling, come sig by my side... I's goin' to ask you, 'Won't you be my frau.'" "Oh, shame yourself Scharlie, don't speak out like that... I love you mit all the lova what I got." The two celebrate their love and discuss their life plans

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: humorous love marriage
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
   Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 148, "Oh Yah, Ain't Dat Been Fine" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
   Minnie Plimpton Pendleton, "Oh Yah, Ain't Dat Been Fine" (AFS 08431 A01, 1946; in AMMEM)
NOTES [41 words]: This is patently a stage "Dutch" song, with lines such as "We've got plenty of sauerkraut always on hand" and "Den I get some dresses what schtick out behind." I strongly suspect it comes from a stage show. But I haven't yet managed to find it. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.6
File: Pet148

Oh Ye Young, Ye Gay, Ye Proud

DESCRIPTION: "Oh ye young, ye gay, ye proud, You must die and wear a shroud, Death will rob you of your bloom, He will drag you to the tomb, Then you'll cry I want to be Happy in eternity."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1843 (The Saint's Harp, according to Hymnary.org)
KEYWORDS: religious death
FOUND IN: US(Ap,So)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
   Randolph 639, "Oh Ye Young, Ye Gay, Ye Proud" (1 short text, 1 tune)
   Thomas-DevilsDitties, pp. 118-119, "Oh Ye Young, Ye Gay, Ye Proud" (1 text, 1 tune)
   Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs, p. 73, "Happy in Eternity" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7564
File: R639
Oh You Who Are Able....

DESCRIPTION: "Oh you who are able go out to the stable And throw down your horses some corn If you don't do it the sergeant will know it And report you to General Van Dorn."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1924
KEYWORDS: Civilwar horse
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jan 1862 - Earl Van Dorn appointed to command the Confederate armies in Missouri and Arkansas
Mar 7-8, 1862 - Battle of Pea Ridge/Elkhorn Tavern. Despite superior numbers, Van Dorn cannot dislodge the Federals
Oct 3-4, 1862 - Battle of Corinth. Van Dorn abandons the field after failing to break the Federal line. Although cleared of charges of mismanagement, he is transferred to the cavalry
May 8, 1863 - Murder of Van Dorn, allegedly for seducing the wife of a local resident
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 250, "Oh You Who Are Able..." (1 fragment)
Roud #7716

NOTES [410 words]: I can't escape the feeling that this song is somehow connected to Earl Van Dorn's reputation as a flashy ladies' man without a great deal of depth or ability (Foote p. 725, quotes an unnamed Confederate senator as saying, "He is the source of all our woes, and disaster, it is prophesied, will attend us as long as he is connected with this army. The atmosphere is dense with horrid narratives of his negligence, whoring, and drunkenness, for the truth of which I cannot vouch; but it is so fastened in the public belief that an acquittal by a court-marshal of angels would not relieve him of the charge." Indeed, Van Dorn would later be murdered by an angry husband who accused him of an affair with his wife (Boatner, p. 867). And he lost both of his major battles as an infantry commander, at Pea Ridge and Corinth). That said, I can't prove the connection based on the fragment I've seen.

Foote, p. 278, says that at one time Van Dorn had a higher price on his head than General Beauregard, the commander of the attack on Fort Sumter, who was widely regarded as the Great Enemy of the north in late 1861 and early 1862.

Catton, p. 207, describes his better attributes: "a slim, elegant little soldier with curly hair, charming manners, and a strong taste for fighting. A West Pointer in his early forties, Van Dorn had an excellent record. He had been an Indian fighter of note, with four wounds received in action on the western plains, and he had done well in the Mexican War, taking another wound and winning promotion for gallantry." Catton regards him as very unlucky, however (p. 209).

HTIECivilWar observes in its entry on Van Dorn that he faced a charge of drunkenness at a court-martial after Corinth, notes that he was "frequently the center of controversy, both for his military tactics and the conduct of his personal life," and says that he "was killed by an irate husband at his headquarters in Spring Hill, Tenn[essee], 7 May 1863."

There is a fragment in Fred W. Allsopp, Folklore of Romantic Arkansas, Volume II (1931), p. 227, "It was at the battle of Elkhorn, Van Dorn he lost his hat, And for about a half a mile He laid the bushes flat." I can't identify it with anything else; the mention of the Battle of Elkhorn Tavern might connect it with "The Battle of Elkhorn Tavern, or The Pea Ridge Battle [Laws A12]," or perhaps with one of the General Price songs -- but if I had to guess, I'd guess it goes here; the feeling is right. - RBW

Bibliography

- Boatner: Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover)
- Catton: Bruce Catton, Terrible Swift Sword (being the second volume of The Centennial History of the Civil War), Doubleday, 1963 (I use the 1976 Pocket Books edition)

Last updated in version 5.0
File: R250
Oh, Baby, 'Low Me One More Chance
DESCRIPTION: "A burly coon you know Who took his clothes an' go, Come back las' night. But his wife said, 'Honey, I'se done with coon, I'se gwine to pass for white.'" He promises to reform, to be satisfied with little, even to do the cooking. She does not relent
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: abandonment home rejection
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 275-276, (no title) (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Bill Bailey, Won't You Please Come Home?" (theme)
NOTES [20 words]: Sort of a "Bill Bailey, Won't You Please Come Home?" with the gender roles reversed and the proper ending to the piece. - RBW
File: ScNF275B

Oh, Be Ready When the Train Comes In
DESCRIPTION: "We are soldiers in this blessed war, For Jesus we are marching on, With a shout and song." "We are sweeping on to claim the blessed promise... Oh, be ready when the train comes in." Harlots, idolaters, loafers, jokers will not be allowed aboard
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 258, "Oh, Be Ready When the Train Comes In" (1 text)
NOTES [60 words]: Very little of this is actually Biblical (smoking, e.g., is not mentioned in the Bible, and the Bible isn't entirely unhumorous -- the book of Jonah, e.g., contains many farcical elements). The one fairly clear allusion is to the "land of Beulah" -- a reference to Isaiah 62:4, where the King James version leaves the word beulah -- "married" -- untranslated. - RBW
File: ScaNF258

Oh, Children, Won't You Come and Go Along with Me
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, (children/fathers/etc.), won't you come and go along with me, For heaven is my home. Jesus is gone, but he's coming back again, To take his children home." "He will raise up the crippled, gather the blind... And take them home to their God."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, p. 91, "Oh, Children, Won't You Come and Go Along with Me" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #7130
File: BuMa091

Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?
DESCRIPTION: "Oh dear, what can the matter be? (x3), Johnny's so long at the fair." Johnny had promised to bring the singer various gifts, such as "blue ribbons... to tie up my bonny brown hair," but he is long in coming
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1792 (British Lyre, according to Scott)
KEYWORDS: love separation nonballad
REFERENCES (16 citations):
Greig/Duncan 1685, "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 201, "Oh Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" (1 text)
(Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO OX 213)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 122, "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" (1 text plus mention of 1 more)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 122, "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be" (2 tunes plus text excerpts)
Thomas-DevilsDitties, pp. 144-145, "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 85, "Oh Dear What Can the Matter Be?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 280, "Johnny shall have a new bonnet" (3 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #158, p. 118, "(Johnny shall have a new bonnet)"
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 138, "Oh Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" (1 text)
Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 42-42, "Oh Dear! What Can the Matter Be?" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Heart-Songs, p. 140, "O Dear! What Can the Matter Be?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #226, p. 17, "Bunch of Blue Ribbons" (2 references)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 150, "Oh, Dear! What Can the Matter Be" (1 text)
Fuld-FFM, pp. 398-399, "Oh! Dear, What Can the Matter Be?"
DT, ODEARWHA* ODEARWH2
ADDITIONAL: Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928; #78, "Oh! Dear,1" (1 text)
Roud #1279
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.25(103/104), "Dear! What Can the Matter Be," J. Catnach (London), 1813-1838; also Harding B 11(2743), Harding B 11(2743), "Oh! Dear What Can the Matter Be" LOCSinging, sb10024a, "Bunch of Blue Ribbons," H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "My Sailor Boy (A Sailor Boy in Blue)" (theme)
cf. "Faithless Boney (The Croppies' Complaint)" (tune)
SAME TUNE:
Seven Old Ladies (File: EM119)
Faithless Boney (The Croppies' Complaint) (File: Moyl038)
Bring Your Blueberries to Job's Store (by Johnny Burke) (Johnny Burke (William J. Kirwin, editor), _John White's Collection of Johnny Burke Songs_, Harry Cuff Publications, St. John's, 1981, #49, pp. 78-79) (Johnny Burke, _Burke's Popular Songs_, self-published, 1929 (a PDF is available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. [12]) (Johnny Burke (John White, Editor), _Burke's Ballads_, no printer listed, n.d. (PDF available on Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 21)
NOTES [127 words]: Fuld reports this song appearing, almost as if by magic, in sundry editions and manuscripts between 1770 and 1792. None list authors, and few can be dated exactly. The origin of this song, clearly more popular for its tune than its banal lyrics, must therefore remain a mystery.
The Opies note a clear resemblance with their #280, which begins
Johnny shall have a new bonnet,
And Johnny shall go to the fair,
And Johnny shall have a blue ribbon
To tie up his bonny brown hair.
The Opies call this "the nursery, and possibly original, version" of the song. - RBW
Broadside LOCSinging sb10024a: H. De Marsan dating per _Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song_ by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS
Last updated in version 6.0
File: FSWB150B

Oh, Give Me the Hills

DESCRIPTION: "Oh give me the hills and the ring of the drills, And the rich silver ore in the goun."
"Oh give me the camp where the prospectors tramp." The singer intends to live and die among "the hills and the roaring stamp mills."
AUTHOR: unknown
Oh, Give Way, Jordan

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Give way Jordan (x3), I want to go across to see my Lord." Verses: "Stand back Satan let me go by, I'm going to serve my Jesus till I die." "...my time was nigh... must be my Jesus in the cloud, never heard him speak so loud."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)

KEYWORDS: death nonballad religious Devil Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 96-97, "Oh, Give Way, Jordan" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 195 in the 1874 edition)
Roud #15258

NOTES [25 words]: In Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses, every alternate line is "I want to go across to see my Lord." - BS

Last updated in version 4.0

File: Dett096

Oh, He Raised Poor Lazarus

DESCRIPTION: Jesus raised Lazarus from the dead, healed the sick, gave sight to the blind and enabled the cripple to walk. "Jesus been here one time ... He's coming again, Get ready and let us go home"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)

KEYWORDS: Bible nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 66-67, "Oh, He Raise-a Poor Lazarus (He Raise a Poor Lazarus)" (1 text, 1 tune; pp. 116-117 in the 1901 edition)
Roud #15280

NOTES [23 words]: The Biblical references are John 11:1-45 (Lazarus), Matthew 9 and John 5, among others (healing the sick, curing the blind and crippled). - BS

Last updated in version 4.0

File: Dett066

Oh, He Sleeps on the Bank of the River

DESCRIPTION: Congregational song. "Our brother is dead, he rests from he labor, And he sleeps (he sleeps, oh he sleeps) Wey de tall pines grow, On the banks of a river." "He trouble is gone." "Out of life's storm." He is with God and safe from trouble

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Smith-SouthCarolinaBallads)

KEYWORDS: religious death nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smith-SouthCarolinaBallads, pp. 23-24, "Oh, He Sleeps on the Bank of the River" (1 text)

File: RSmi023
Oh, Honey, Where You Been So Long?

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, honey, where you been so long? Oh, honey, where you been so long? 'I been round the bend and I come back again, Oh, honey, where you been so long?' "Oh, honey, where you been so long? (x2) And it's when I return with a ten dollar bill, it's Honey..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: nonballad return money

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 317, "Oh, Honey, Where You Been So Long?" (1 short text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Wish I Was a Mole in the Ground" (lyrics)

NOTES [43 words]: Every word of Brown's text of this is found in "I Wish I Was a Mole in the Ground," and my first inclination was to include it as a worn-down version of that song. But the notes in Brown say there is a longer version in Gordon, so here it sits. Tentatively. - RBW

File: Br3317

Oh, How He Lied

DESCRIPTION: An "old villain" sits by a girl and smokes his cigar. She plays her guitar. "He told her he loved her but oh how he lied." They agree to marry, "but she up and died." She goes to heaven, he to hell ("sizzle, he fried"), listeners are warned against lies

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, Joe Foss & his Hungry Sand Lappers)

KEYWORDS: courting marriage music death lie Hell humorous

FOUND IN: US Australia

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, pp. 130-131, "Don't Tell a Lie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 257, "She Sat on Her Hammock" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 31, "Oh, How He Lied" (1 text)

DT, HELIED*

Roud #13621

RECORDINGS:
Joe Foss & his Hungry Sand Lappers, "Oh How She Lied" (Columbia 15268-D, 1928)
Pete Seeger, "Oh How He Lied" (on PeteSeeger31)

NOTES [20 words]: Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2 notes that the tune for this is a waltz by Joseph Franz Karl Lanner. - RBW

File: FSWB031B

Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning

DESCRIPTION: "The other day I chanced to meet, A soldier friend of mine"; he looks fit and healthy after his training, but when asked about his life, the soldier says, "Oh, how I hate to get up in the morning." He hates and envies the bugler who arouses him

AUTHOR: Irving Berlin

EARLIEST DATE: 1918 (sheet music published, according to Fuld)

KEYWORDS: soldier nonballad music

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, p. 163, "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, p. 401, "Oh! How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning"

Roud #25947

File: Coa163
Oh, I Used to Drink Beer

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, I used to drink beer, But I threwed it all away (x3), Oh I used to drink beer, But I threwed it all away, And now I'm free at last." "Oh, I used to chew tobacco." "Oh, I used to love sin." "Oh, I gave hell a shake When I came out de wilderness."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious drink nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 618, "Oh, I Used To Drink Beer" (1 text)
Roud #11920
NOTES [29 words]: The real keyword for this song should probably be "obnoxious-unconvincing-moralizer." I don't drink or smoke -- but this is the sort of song that almost makes me wish I did. - RBW
File: Br3618

Oh, I'll Never Go With Riley Any More

DESCRIPTION: Singer's friend Riley, just paid, invites him on a spree; they wind up in a fight. Riley punches a policeman; the singer ends up jail. Riley gets killed: "Oh, he thought the wire was dead/But it was full of life instead." Singer won't go with Riley again

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (recording, Pat Ford)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer's friend Riley, just paid, invites him on a spree; they wind up in a fight. Riley punches a policeman but the singer, badly bruised, gets put in jail. Riley, meanwhile, gets killed: "Oh, he thought the wire was dead/But it was full of life instead." Singer says he'll never go out with Riley any more

KEYWORDS: fight prison death technology drink injury friend police
FOUND IN: US(MW)
Roud #15473
RECORDINGS:
Pat Ford, "Oh, I'll never go [out] with Riley anymore" (AFS 4211 A3, 1939; in AMMEM/Cowell)
NOTES [18 words]: The [AMMEM] index includes the word "out" in the title, but the page devoted to the item itself does not. - PJS
File: RcOINGOW

Oh, It's Drive the General's Car, My Boy (But Don't Mention It Ten Years Later)

DESCRIPTION: "The Admirals of Paris, the Crillon Gen'rals and such Are always telling others how to lick the bloody Dutch" -- but they can't possibly fight. The singer tells soldiers who want safety to drive the general's car, because they're safe and live a high life

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe)
KEYWORDS: soldier technology humorous
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe, pp. 109-113, "(Oh, It's Drive the General's Car, My Boy (But Don't Mention It Ten Years Later)" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Christopher Columbo" (tune, according to Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe)
File: NiMo109

Oh, Jerusalem!

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Oh, Jerusalem, Oh my Lord, I'm walking the road, Oh Jerusalem, walking the road, Oh, my Lord (x2)."Verses: The Lord comes steps down on a sea of glass mingled with fire -- "Good bye my brother I'm going on higher"
Oh, Johnny, Johnny

DESCRIPTION: A conversation between two former lovers, comprised mostly of floating lyrics. The singer tells Johnny that she loves him; he was the first boy she ever loved. He tells her that she betrayed him, and he now has a new sweetheart. He regrets her infidelity.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love courting rejection floating verses
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H16, pp. 392-393, "Oh Johnny, Johnny" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Waly Waly (The Water is Wide)" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Fair and Tender Ladies" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Tavern in the Town" (floating lyrics)
NOTES [89 words]: If one had deliberately set out to create an amalgam of every lost love cliche in folk song, one could hardly do better than this. Without even trying, I observe elements of "Waly, Waly," "Love is Teasing," the "Tavern in the Town" cluster, and "Fair and Tender Ladies," as well as parallels to everything from "Peggy Gordon" to "Barbara Allen."
I suppose one of these songs is the "original," and all the others simply offered verses to be incorporated into the whole, but at this point there is no telling the original source. - RBW
File: HHH016

Oh, Leave Not Your Kathleen

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, leave not your Kathleen to cross the dark sea. For she will be lonely, she cares but for thee. The scenes that were bright will fade from her view." In time both will forget: "When you part from your Kathleen we're parted forever."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster)
KEYWORDS: love separation
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 100, "Oh, Leave Not Your Kathleen" (1 text)
Roud #13875
File: HMHS100B

Oh, Lord, How Long

DESCRIPTION: "Before this time another year, I may be (dead and) gone, Down in some lonesome graveyard, Oh Lord, how long!" "Just as the tree falls, just so it lies; Just as the sinner lives, just so he dies." "My mother broke the ice and gone...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Edward Harringan, "The Mulligans")
KEYWORDS: religious death family nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Randolph 615, "Oh Lord, How Long!" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 586-587, "Oh, Lawd, How Long?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Chase-AmericanFolkTalesAndSongs, p. 169, "Oh Lord, How Long?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands, p. 220, "This Time Another Year" (1 text)
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 52, "Before This Time Another Year" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Edward Harrigan, _The Mulligans_, G. W. Dilingham, 1901, p. 368, "(no title)" (1 fragment, of the chorus)
ST R615 (Full)
Roud #7546
RECORDINGS:
Sister L. Brown & congregation "Before This Time, Another Year" (on MuSouth09)
The Chosen Gospel Singers, "Before This Time Another Year" (Specialty 848, n.d.)
Cleveland Simmons and Mr. Taylor, "I May Be Gone" (AAFS 422 A2, 1935; on LomaxCD1822-2)
Bessie Jones and the Georgia Sea Island Singers, "Before This Time Another Year" (on LomaxCD1712, recorded 1959)
Odette & Ethel, "Befo' This Time Another Year" (Columbia 14169-D, 1926)
NOTES [120 words]: This is really a chorus with extra lyrics. Bessie Jones sang a version with irregular lines (interspersed with the phrase "how long"?), which broke into the chorus at random intervals. The Lomax text proceeds in double lines, but of different lengths. Some of the versions are regular. But the song is recognized by the chorus "Before this time another year, I may be gone...."
This is quoted as an urban New York Black song in Edward Harrigan, _The Mulligans_, G. W. Dilingham, 1901, p. 368:
Oh, dis time anudder year!
We may be gone!
In some lonely grabeyard!
Oh, Lor', how long!
I find it fascinating that a New Yorker who spent his life playing mostly Irish characters would be the first citation of the song. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: R615

Oh, Lord, I'se Steppin' Hlgher

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Lord, I'se steppin' higher; Doan' let de ladder break. Saint Peter, open up de do' An' gib mah han' a shake!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 619, "Oh, Lord, I'se Steppin' Higher" (1 text)
Roud #11922
File: Br3619

Oh, Lord, Send Us a Blessing

DESCRIPTION: "Oh Lord, send us a blessing, And oh Lord, send us a blessing, And oh Lord, send us a blessing, And send it down today."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: religious
Oh, Lovely, Come This Way

DESCRIPTION: "I had an old shoe, it had no heel (x3). I looked like a preacher with a mouthful of meal." "Oh, lovely, come this way (x3). Never let the wheels of the church roll away." Other verses often extravagant and floating, e.g. "Whip old Satan round the stump"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: nonballad playparty floating verses devil clothes
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-Frank CBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 98, "Oh, Lovely, Come This Way" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-Frank CBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 98, "Oh, Lovely, Come This Way" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roud #8372
NOTES [37 words]: About half of the verses in Brown are paralleled in the Woodie Brothers recording "Chased Old Satan Through the Door," but as that piece has a different chorus, form, and apparent purpose, I classify them separately. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Br3098

Oh, Mary, Don't You Weep

DESCRIPTION: "If I could I surely would Stand on the rock where Moses stood, Pharaoh's army got drowned, Oh Mary don't you weep." Verses describing the Exodus and how God cares for humanity, with the "Pharaoh's army..." chorus

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (recording, Fisk University Male Quartette)
KEYWORDS: Bible religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE, So)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-Frank CBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 545, "Pharaoh's Army" (4 texts, mostly short)
Brown/Schinhan-Frank CBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 545, "Pharaoh's Army" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 143, "Oh Ma'y Don't Cha Weep" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 476-477, "Pharaoh's Army Got Drowned" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 200, "Pharaoh's Army Got Drownned" (1 short text, with chorus "Pharaoh's army got drowned In the deep blue sea"; it might be a separate song, but is too short to classify on its own.)
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 78, "Oh, Mary Don't You Weep" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 354, "Oh, Mary, Don't You Weep" (1 text)
DT, OHMARY
Roud #11823
RECORDINGS:
Biddleville Quintette, "Pharaoh's Army Got Drowned" (QRS 7073, 1929)
Birmingham Jubilee Singers, "Pharaoh's Army Got Drowned" (Columbia 14203-D, 1927)
Carter Family, "On the Rock Where Moses Stood" (Conqueror 8693/ARC 6-11-59, 1936) (song placed here tentatively)
Leo Boswell & Merritt Smith, "Oh Mary Don't You Weep" (Supertone 2825, n.d.)
Fisk University Male Quartette, "O Mary, Don't You Weep, Don't You Mourn" (Columbia A1895, 1915)
Georgia Yellow Hammers, "Mary Don't You Weep" (Victor 20928, 1927)
Mississippi John Hurt, "Oh Mary Don't You Weep" (on MJHurt04)
Morris Family, "Oh Mary Don't You Weep" (Vocalion 5465, 1940)
Richmond Starlight Quartette, "Mary, Don't You Weep" (OKeh, unissued, 1929)
Pete Seeger, "Oh, Mary Don't You Weep" (on PeteSeeger15, 2 versions) (on PeteSeeger17);
"Mary Don't You Weep" (on PeteSeeger24); "O Mary Don't You Weep" (on PeteSeeger26)
Southern Four, "Good News, Chariot's Comin!' and O Mary, Doan You Weep" (Edison 50885, 1921)
Ex-Governor Alf Taylor & his Old Limber Quartet, "Pharaoh's Army Got Drownded" (Victor 19451, 1924)
Virginia Female Jubilee Singers, "O Mary, Don't You Weep, Don't You Mourn" (OKeh 4430, 1921)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Mary Wore Three Links of Chain" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Can'cha Line 'Em" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Keep Your Hand on the Plow" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Don't You Hear My Hammer Rinning" (lyrics)
cf. "Heaven and Hell" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Lord, I Never Will Come Back Here No Mo" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Pharaoh's Host Got Lost" (Pharaoh's Army theme)
cf. "I Want to Die Like Weeping Mary" ("Mary weeping" theme)
cf. "Dark Day" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [192 words]: Although loosely based on the stories of the Exodus, there is a lot that is non-Biblical here (e.g. there is no reference in the New Testament to Mary ever wearing a chain. The closest reference I can think of is Luke 2:25, where Simeon tells Mary, "A sword will pierce your own soul too").
The reference to the "rock where Moses stood" is, I believe, to Ex. 17:5, where Moses stood on the rock and stuck it to bring forth water.
Moses, according to modern interpretations, did not "smite" the Red Sea (or "Sea of Reeds"), but in Ex. 14:15 he may have stretched the staff over the sea (in Ex. 14:21, 26-27 he simply "stretched his hand over the sea"; it's worth noting that most scholars think there are two mixed accounts here, one where a wind blew the water aside and one where the waters miraculously parted).
God gave the sign of the [rain]bow in Gen. 9:13f. - RBW
In every version I've heard of this song, the word in the chorus is "drownded," not "drowned." - PJS Same here. On the other hand, I've only heard Pop Folk sorts of versions. Of Brown's four versions, two (including the most substantial) have "drowned," two have "drowneded." - RBW
Last updated in version 4.2
File:  San476

Oh, Mister Revel (Did You Ever See the Devil?)

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Mr. Revel! Did you ever see the devil With wooden spade and shovel A-digging up the gravel With his long toe-nail?" (or "with his tail cocked up," etc.). The devil, or his wife, or his children, may dig potatoes, or tin (in Cornwall), or shoot birds

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1892 (Northall)
KEYWORDS: devil work nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE) Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 141, "Oh, Mr. Revel" (2 short texts)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 284, (no title) (2 fragments)
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 252, "Did Ye Ever See the Divil" (1 short text)
ADDITIONAL: Tony Deane and Tony Shaw _The Folklore of Cornwall_, B. T. Batsford, 1975, p.
68, "(Here's to the Devil, with his wooden spade and shovel)" (1 short text)
G. F. Northall, _English Folk Rhymes_, Kegan Paul, 1892, p. 306, "(Here's to the devil, With his wooden pick and shovel)"; "(Have you seen the devil, With his wood and iron shovel)" (1 text plus a fragment)
Roud #16319
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Did You Ever, Ever, Ever" (theme)
cf. "Did You Ever See the Divil?" (lyrics, theme)
cf. "Yonder Comes the Devil" (theme, lyrics)
Oh, Mr. Cobeau

DESCRIPTION: Alternate lines are a chorus, "Mr Cobeau want to kill out a we picking." The shantyman sings: The dog comes and sniffs the dead whale and the shark comes to eat it. It's so rotten that both get a headache, but Cobeau takes it anyway. "Please bring back"

AUTHOR: unknown

KEYWORDS: work sea shanty whale whaler children

FOUND IN: West Indies (St Vincent)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Abrahms-DeepTheWaterShallowTheShore, pp. 108-109, "Oh, Mr. Cobeau" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [81 words]: "Mr Cobeau" is probably from "corbeau," French for raven; according to Abrahms, in St Vincent it is the black vulture. "John Crow" in Jamaica is the turkey vulture. In this case, the "cobeau" is a whaler that is second on the scene and takes a whale that this crew harpooned first. "Picking" has a double meaning according to Abrahams: first, the "picking" is the catch; second, the "picking" is a standin for "pickney," that is, "child" or "children" from whom food is being taken. - BS

Last updated in version 4.0

File: AWIS108

Oh, No, Not I

DESCRIPTION: A "Newfoundland sailor" and a noble lady meet. He asks her to marry; she say, "Oh, no, not I!"; his birth is too low. When she bears a child nine months later, she writes to ask him to come back; he tells her, "Oh, no, not I," and bids her go begging

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1813 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 25(1375))

KEYWORDS: pregnancy separation rejection marriage nobility

FOUND IN: Britain (England (North, South)) Canada (Newf, Que)

REFERENCES (8 citations):
Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #56, "No, My Boy, Not I" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 304-305, "Oh No, Not I" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 112, "Hello, My Boy, Not I" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople 29, "No My Love Not I" (1 text)
Gardham-EastRidingSongster 24, pp. 32, 51, "No, My Love, Not I" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Henderson-VictorianStreetBallads, p. 79, "O No My Love, Not I" (1 text)
DT, MARRYNO

ADDITIONAL: Leslie Shepard, _John Pitts, Ballad Printer of Seven Dials, London 1765-1844_, Private Library Association, 1969, p. 66, "The Demon of the Sea"/Oh No my Love Not I" (reprint of a Pitts broadside)

Roud #1403

RECORDINGS:
Everett Bennett, "Oh No, Not I" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 25(1375), "No, My Love, Not I," J. Evans (London), 1780-1812; also Firth c.18(293), Firth b.34(209), Firth b.34(97), Harding B 11(2715), Harding B 17(220b), "No, My Love, Not I!"; Firth c.13(169), Harding B 25(1340), "The Newfoundland Sailor"; Firth c.18(292), Harding B 25(1422), 2806 c.18(223), Harding B 20(119), Harding B 11(1635), "O No My Love, Not I!

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Yellow Handkerchief (Flash Company)" (floating lyrics)
Oh, Once I Had a Fortune

DESCRIPTION: The singer describes how drink has cost him money and sweetheart: "Oh, once I had a fortune, All locked up in a trunk. I lost it all in a gambling hall One night when I got drunk. I'll never get drunk any more...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1847 (Journal of William Histed of the Cortes)
KEYWORDS: drink poverty gambling travel
FOUND IN: US(So) Australia
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Randolph 316, "Oh, Once I Had a Fortune" (1 text, 1 tune)
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 203-205, "I Had a Handsome Fortune" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 36, "I'll Never Get Drunk Any More" (4 texts, all mixed, but the "D" text is mostly this piece, and "C" probably originated with this also)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1010, p. 69, "I'll Never Get Drunk Again" (1 reference)
Scott-ACollectorsNotebook-31TraditionalSongs, p. 28, "I Got Drunk Again" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #7792, 1993, 22611

RECORDINGS:
Ernest V. Stoneman and the Dixie Mountaineers, "Once I Had a Fortune" (Edison 51935, 1927) (CYL: Edison [BA] 5357, 1927); Ernest V. Stoneman and His Blue Ridge Cornshuckers, "One I Had a Fortune" (Victor, unissued, 1928)

NOTES [53 words]: The Roud Index seems to split this into all sorts of separate numbers. It's easy to see why it would be hard to remember all the versions -- after all, there are many, many songs about drinking, gambling, and then promising to straighten out! But the reference to a "handsome fortune" seems pretty characteristic.

File: R316

Oh, Poor Cooner Johns

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, poor Cooner Johns, Farm, farm, my lady, Give poor Cooner one more cent, Farm, farm, my lady."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal)
KEYWORDS: farming
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):

NOTES [13 words]: Walser calls this a John Kunnering song. For other such songs, see "Juba!"

File: NCF194BB
Oh, Rocks Don't Fall on Me
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, rocks don't fall on me (x3). Rocks and mountains don't fall on me." "Look over yonder on Jericho's walls, Rocks and mountains don't fall on me, See those sinners tremble and fall...." "In that great, great judgment day... Sinner will run...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad death
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 58, "Oh, Rocks Don't Fall on Me" (1 text)
Roud #11956
File: FSAN0588

Oh, Some Say That He Claw'd
DESCRIPTION: Donald and Maggie McCraw "claw'd ane anither an' a'." When Maggie got a flea on her rump it made a lot of work "for he claw'd and she claw'd She claw'd and he claw'd"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: violence humorous nonballad husband wife bug
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1507, "Oh, Some Say That He Claw'd" (1 text)
Roud #7168
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of Sheriffmuir" (tune, per Greig/Duncan7)
File: GrD71507

Oh, Stand the Storm
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Oh, stand the storm, it won't be long, We'll anchor by and by (x2)."Verses: "My ship is on the ocean," "She's making for the kingdom", "I've a mother in the kingdom," "We're crossing over Jordan," "King Jesus is our captain"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: river sea ship storm nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 189, "Oh, Stand the Storm" (1 text) (1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: J. B. T. Marsh, The Story of the Jubilee Singers (London: Hodder and Stoughton, 1903 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), #31 p. 188, "We'll Stand the Storm" (1 text) (1 tune)
Roud #12232
NOTES [100 words]: In Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses, the verse line is repeated and every alternate line is "We'll anchor by and by."
The chorus is used in another hymn in William Booth, Salvation Army Songs (London: The Salvation Army Book Department, 1911 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), #238 p. 166, ("My God, the spring of all my joys"); Work also has the chorus as a fragment (John Wesley Work, Folk Song of the American Negro (Nashville: Fisk University, 1915 ("Digitized by the Internet Archive")), p. 129, ("Stand the storm, it won't be long")). - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: Dett189

Oh, Susanna (II)
DESCRIPTION: Shanty. Swedish version has a sailor leaving his true love and (for a change) actually returning after she has pined for a while. Another (English) fragment has two verses referring to "the Sovereign of the seas." Both use the familiar Foster tune.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1961 (Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas)
KEYWORDS: foc's'le sailor shanty return derivative
FOUND IN: US Sweden
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 116-117, "Oh, Susanna," "Susannavisan (The Susanna Song)" (3 texts-Swedish & English, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Oh! Susanna" (tune)

NOTES [178 words]: Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas got the Swedish version from Sang under Segel (Sternvall, 1935), which has notes claiming that this text and melody can be traced to the 1750s. If that's true it would put a rather different light on both the Stephen Foster and the gold rush connection. - SL
I have to admit that I don't buy this. I don't know what Sternvall's evidence is, but Foster exuded tunes the way a politician exudes falsehoods about what is mathematically possible. If he'd been better at writing lyrics, he'd have had probably twice as many hits. So I strongly doubt he would have had to steal a tune.
Could the dating somehow be related to The Sovereign of the Seas? There were sundry ships of that name, including an American clipper built in 1852 -- but the most famous ship of that name was Phineas Pett's great battleship of 1637. It was not a very successful ship -- it was too big for the shipbuilding techniques of the time, and as a result was very slow -- but it was so big that it established a reputation based on sheer size and gunpower. - RBW

File: Hugi116

Oh, the Heavens Shut the Gates On Me

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the heavens shut the gates on me, Oh, the due time, shut the gates on me, Sometimes I weep, sometimes I mourn, Sometimes I do nary one. Oh, the heavens shut the gates on me, Oh, the due time, shut the gates on me."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 620, "Oh, the Heavens Shut the Gates On Me" (1 text)
Roud #11923
File: Br3620

Oh, They Put John on the Island

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, they put John on the island when the Bridegroom comes, They put John on the island when he comes." "They put him there to starve him." "But you can't starve a Christian." "They fed him on milk and honey." "Oh, look down Jordan river."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1884 (Deming)
KEYWORDS: religious food floating verses
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 546, "Oh, They Put John on the Island" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Newman I. White, American Negro Folk Songs (Hatboro) Folklore Associates Inc, 1965 (reprint of Harvard University Press, 1928) #35 p. 96, ("Oh, we'll put John on the island") (1 text)
Roud #11824
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Don't You Weep After Me" (floating lyrics)
cf. "The Ten Virgins" (structure, chorus lines)
cf. "Put John on the Island" (theme, first line)
Oh, What I'd Give for a Mother

DESCRIPTION: "An old man was seated one evening in an easy chair close by the fire" with a little child. "Please tell me, dear Grandpa, of mother, Her sweet face I never shall see.... Oh what I would give for a mother." Her father disappeared; her mother died of grief

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois)

KEYWORDS: mother children death separation grief

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 252-253, "Oh, What I'd Give for a Mother" (1 text)

Roud #4337

File: Neel252

Oh, Where Is My Sweetheart?

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, where is my sweetheart? Can anyone tell? (x3) Can anyone, anyone tell?"

"He is flirting with another, I know very well." "He told me he loved me, he told me a lie." "I've found me another I love just as well." "...I love him, I wish he was mine."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: love courting betrayal
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 303, "Oh, Where Is My Sweetheart?" (2 text plus an excerpt)
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 89, "Oh, Where Is My Sweetheart?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11319
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Farewell He" (subject) and references there
File: Br3303

Oh, Wretched Man That I Am

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, wretched man that I am (x3), Who will deliver poor me?" "I'm bound down with a burden of woe." "My heart's filled with sadness and pain."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro)
KEYWORDS: hardtimes nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 53, "Oh, Wretched Man That I Am" (1 text)
Roud #11951
File: FSAN053

Oh, Ye've Been False, or, The Curse

DESCRIPTION: "As I cam' in by yon bonnie waterside... There I spied my ain dear love, And I left my heart wi' him." Finding him false, the singer curses the church where he will marry, hopes his wife buries five sons, and wishes mortal wounds to she who "sinnert" them

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads)
KEYWORDS: betrayal curse rejection
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 173-174, "Oh, Ye've Been False; or The Curse" (1 text)
Roud #5584
File: Ord173

Oh, Yes!

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Oh, wait till I put on my robe." Verses: The singer looks forward to landing "on the other shore" and receiving a gold waist band and slippers and "palms of victory," a white robe and gospel shoes to "walk about heaven and carry the news"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 210-212, "Oh, Yes!" (1 text, 1 tune; pp. 186-187 in the 1874 edition)
Roud #15273
NOTES [22 words]: In Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses every line is followed by "Oh yes, oh yes!" - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: Dett210
Oh! An Irishman's Heart

DESCRIPTION: "Oh! an Irishman's heart is as stout as shillelah." Invaders beware, "but the battle once over, no rage fills his breast." "Give poor Pat but fair freedom, his sweetheart and whisky, And he'll die for old Ireland, his king, and his friend"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1839 (Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)
KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad fight

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland, pp. 117-118, "Oh! An Irishman's Heart" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Kinnegard Slashers" (tune, according to Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)

File: CrPS117

Oh! Blame Not the Bard

DESCRIPTION: Don't blame the bard for his songs of love rather than glory. Don't blame him if he "should try to forget what he never can heal," "But though glory be gone, and though hope fade away, Thy name, loved Erin! shall live in his songs"

AUTHOR: Thomas Moore (1779-1852)
EARLIEST DATE: 1846 (Moore-IrishMelodies-1846)
KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad minstrel

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Moore-IrishMelodies-1846, pp. 45-46, "(Oh! blame not the bard, if he fly to the bowers)" (1 text)
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion, p. 77, "Oh! Blame Not the Bard" (1 fragment)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 43, "Oh, Blame Not the Bard!" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Edward Hayes, Thé Ballads of Ireland (Boston, 1859), Vol I, pp. 180-181, "O, Blame Not The Bard"

Zimmerman, Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), pp. 375-376, "Oh Blame not the Bard" (1 text)
Roud #V3131
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 b.9(281), "Oh! Blame not the Bard" ("Oh, blame not the bard, if he fly to the bowers"), unknown, n.d.
NOTES [39 words]: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion p. 77 is a fragment; broadside Bodleian 2806 b.9(281) is the basis for the description.
Zimmermann [uses] this song to illustrate his point that "the mission of the bard is to weep for his country." - BS

Last updated in version 6.1

File: Brd0BNtB

Oh! Breathe Not His Name

DESCRIPTION: Someone who must not be named has been buried "in the shade Where cold and un-honoured has relics are laid! ... And the tear that we shed, though in secret it rolls, Shall long keep his memory green in our souls"

AUTHOR: Thomas Moore (1779-1852)
EARLIEST DATE: 1846 (Moore-IrishMelodies-1846)
KEYWORDS: grief memorial nonballad patriotic

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Moore-IrishMelodies-1846, p. 6, "Oh! Breath not his Name" (1 text)
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 159, "Oh! Breathe Not His Name" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 45, "Oh, Breathe Not His Name!" (1 text)
Roud #V972
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 18(20), "Oh! Breathe Not His Name" ("Oh! breathe not his name, let it sleep in the shade," H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878
LOC Sheet, sm1879 06663, "Oh, Breathe Not His Name," Edw. Schuberth (New York), 1879 (tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "She is Far From the Land" (subject: concealed allusions to Robert Emmet)
cf. "When He Who Adores Thee" (subject: concealed allusions to Robert Emmet)
cf. "The Man from God-Knows-Where" (subject: concealed allusions to Robert Emmet)
cf. "'I Don't Mean to Tell You Her Name (I)" (theme of hidden name)
NOTES [428 words]: Zimmermann p. 77 Fn. 11 speculates that this is 'perhaps inspired by Lord Edward Fitzgerald's death." Moylan 159 in The Age of Revolution: "This, the third of Moore's songs on [Robert Emmet], seems to echo Emmet's dying request for 'the charity of its silence'. [Lord Edward Fitzgerald (1763-1798), head of the military committee of the United Irishmen died June 4, 1798, in Newgate, Dublin after being wounded and arrested by Major Henry Charles Sirr on May 19; Wexford Rebellion begins May 26, 1798 (source: The Princess Grace Irish Library (Monaco) site entry for [Lord Edward Fitzgerald]) [Robert Emmet (1780-1803) "Irish nationalist rebel leader. He led an abortive rebellion against British rule in 1803 and was captured and executed." (source: "Robert Emmet" at the Wikipedia site)]
For the sad background of Robert Emmet's typically Irish story, see the notes to "Bold Robert Emmett." - RBW
The song is so short (two stanzas, neither of which describes the dead man beyond noting that he's dead) that we cannot be dogmatic about the man being memorialized. On the one hand, Emmet asked that no epitaph be written for him (see the notes to "Bold Robert Emmet"), but if he were meant, I'd think the song would be a little more specific. Still, if it is certain that Moore's other poems were about Emmet, then he seems the best candidate. And we should note that Moore knew Emmet; according to Kee, who quotes this song on p. 168 , Moore was "Emmet's old friend and fellow student at Trinity." Kee regards Moore as having "set the tone" for Emmet's legend; the phrase "set the tone" apparently is derived from Marianne Elliot (Edwards, p. 69).
Williams, p. 23, is also convinced the song is about Emmet: "Some of Moore's most deeply felt patriotic songs are opaque to anyone ignorant of their background. For example, 'Oh! Breath Not His Name,' published in the first series [of Moore's Irish Melodies], refers to his friend Robert Emmett...."
Williams, p. 25, makes the interesting point that, although Moore's Irish nationalism was relatively restrained and acceptable to English opinion, "The words 'free,' 'freedom,' and 'liberty' appear in thirty-six of Moore's Melodies."
There was a mid-nineteenth century song, "Oh, Breathe Not Her Name," by L. A. Jones and Frederick Buckley"; I would assume it was inspired by this poem. - RBW

Bibliography

• Kee: Robert Kee, The Most Distressful Country, being volume I of The Green Flag (covering the period prior to 1848), Penguin, 1972
• Williams: William H. A. Williams, 'Twas Only an Irishman's Dream, University of Illinois Press, 1996

Last updated in version 6.1
File: BrdOBNHN

Oh! I Had a Good Woman

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, I had a good woman (x2), And the fool laid down and died."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)
KEYWORDS: death
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Oh! No, No

DESCRIPTION: "Come here, dearest Peggy, you're my whole heart's delight... So fain I wad bide, love, but away I must go." He says he would guard her if they were together. She goes into frenzies of grief; he stops her, saying he will not leave.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan5)

KEYWORDS: love courting separation trick

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #107, p. 1, "Oh No, No"; #141, pp. 2-3, "Oh No, No" (2 texts)
- Greig/Duncan5 1053, "Oh No, No" (6 texts, 6 tunes)
- Greig/Duncan8 1933, "No, Lassie No" (1 text)
- Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 136-137, "Oh! No, No" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Busk, Busk, Bonnie Lassie" (lyrics)
- cf. "The Manchester Angel" (lyrics)
- cf. "The Girl Volunteer" (theme: sweetheart tries to convince soldier to let her accompany him)

NOTES [319 words]: This guy is enough of a jerk to make John Riley look good. Roud lumps this item with "Busk, Busk, Bonnie Lassie," and there are lyrics in common. But this has no chorus, and does have a happy ending -- if you believe that it's a happy ending when a man taunts a girl needlessly and then declares it a joke. There is kinship, but it doesn't look like the same song to me. - RBW

Greig/Duncan8 notes the similarity of the one verse of its text "to [Greig/Duncan5] 1053, especially to version F, [but] its different structure distinguishes it as a different song." Roud, who numbers the Greig/Duncan8 verse Roud #16606, apparently agrees. The verses in question, and Ord-BothySongsAndBallads p. 136, verse 1, do not seem to me to be different enough in structure to be classified as separate songs. Here is Ord:

"Come here dearest Peggy, you're my whole heart's delight, But the fairest of days love, brings on the dark night; So fain I wad bide, love, but away I must go, And ye canna win wi' me, love, oh! no, no.

Here is Greig/Duncan8 1933:

"Farewell my dear jewel and whole heart's delight The brightest of mornings fesses on a dark night, And it's been cruel fortune that's caused it so But will I win ye Johnie No lassie no, But will I win ye Johnie No lassie no."

Which leads to the next question: is this related to "The Girl Volunteer" ("The Cruel War is Raging") [Laws O33]? Ord has a war connection ("You see yon soldiers ... So fain's I wad bide, love, but away I must go"; "If ye were in India, 'mong the frost and rain, Your color it wad fade love ... If I were in India, 'mong the frost and snow, I wad stand at your back lovie, and keep off the foe"). Maybe the end is enough to separate the songs: in "Cruel War" he sometimes lets her join him; in Ord he admits "I never intended away for to go." It's too bad that Laws did not say what British broadsides might have provided the source for his O33. - BS

Last updated in version 2.6

File: Ord136
singer's home were England or Scotland, he'd love that home; "pleasant days in both I've past,"
But he'll "steer my bark to Erin's isle, For Erin is my home."

AUTHOR: Words: Thomas Haynes Bayly
EARLIEST DATE: before 1869 (broadside, Bodleian Firth b.25(537))
KEYWORDS: home travel Ireland lyric nonballad

REFERENCES:
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 155, "Oh! Steer My Bark to Erin's Isle" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 32, "Erin Is My Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #10364

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.25(537), "Oh, Steer my Barque to Erin's Isle", J. Moore (Belfast), 1852-1868; also 2806 c.15(318), 2806 c.15(257), "Oh, Steer my Bark to Erin's isle"

NOTES [143 words]: Bodleian makes the author N.T.H Bayly; O'Connor-
OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland has F.H. Bayly. - BS
The latter, of course, is an easy misreading of "T. H. Bayly." Spaeth's A History of Popular Music in America also credits the lyrics to Bayly (p. 85), adding that the tune is German, arranged by Ignaz Moscheles.
Curiously, the uncredited book The Library of Irish Music (published by Amsco) credits the music to T. H. Bayly with words by "S. Nelson"! (The BaylyNelson combination does seem to have been responsible for "O! They Marched Through the Town (The Captain with His Whiskers)," but Bayley was the lyricist.)
Incidentally, there seem to be conflicting dates for Bayly; Spaeth says he lived 1797-1829; Wikipedia gives 1797-1839. Nor can people seem to agree whether his surname was "Bayly" or "Bayley." Granger's Index to Poetry says "Bayly." - RBW

Oh! Susanna

DESCRIPTION: Nonsense song about a man going to see his beloved Susanna. The singer tells his love, "Oh Susanna, Oh! don't you cry for me, I've come from Alabama, wid my banjo on my knee." The song describes the impossible means he took to reach her

AUTHOR: Stephen C. Foster
EARLIEST DATE: 1848 (sheet music by C. Holt Jr.)
KEYWORDS: love travel dream humorous

REFERENCES:
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 103, (no title) (1 fragment, with a verse probably from "Napper" but the chorus of this song)

Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 198, "Susanna" (1 text)

Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, pp. 8-9, "O! Susanna" (1 text)

Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, p. 6, "Susanna" (1 text)

FireSide-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 40, "Oh, Susanna!" (1 text, 1 tune)

Heart-Songs, pp. 172-173, "Oh! Susanna" (1 text, 1 tune)

Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 404-405, "Oh! Susanna"

ADDITIONAL: Aline Waites & Robin Hunter, _The Illustrated Victorian Songbook_, Michael Joseph Ltd., 1984, pp. 78-79, "Oh! Susanna" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: Harry Dichter and Elliott Shapiro, _Early American Sheet Music: Its Lure and Its Lore, 1768-1889_. R. R. Bowker, 1941, plate 21, shows the original sheet music cover

ST Rj19152 (Full)
Roud #11745

RECORDINGS:
Vernon Dalhart, "Oh Susanna" (Romeo 539, 1928)
Vernon Dalhart w. Carson Robison & Adelyne Hood, "Oh! Susanna" (Victor 21169, 1928)
Light Crust Doughboys, "Oh! Susanna" (Vocalion 03345, 1936)
Chubby Parker, "Oh, Susanna" (Silvertone 25013, 1927; Supertone 9191, 1928)
Riley Puckett "O! Susanna" (Columbia 15014-D, c. 1925; rec. 1924; Silvertone 3261 [as Tom Watson], 1926)
Rice Brothers Band, "Oh Susannah" (Decca 5804, 1940)
Pete Seeger, "Oh, Susanna" (on PeteSeeger18)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Prospecting Dream" (tune)
cf. "Oh California" (tune)
cf. "Oh, Susanna (II)" (tune)
cf. "Snowed In" (tune)

SAME TUNE:
Oh California (File: ShaSS114)
Oh, Susanna (II) (File: Hugi116)
Song of the Death Valley Prospectors (File: CAFS2664)
The Empire Club (File: TPS063)
Snowed In (File: Clev046)
Trentham (File: Clev118)
The Mules Ran Off (by Pearl R. Nye) (File: Salt062)
The Shipping Agents (by Charles Thatcher) (File: BaRo047)
O Susanne! (a Danish song built around Fosters's tune but about a boy who became a sailor; Rochelle Wright and Robert L. Wright, _Danish Emigrant Ballads and Songs_, Southern Illinois University Press, 1983, #59, p. 137)
Old Mose Song ("I'm don on running with der old machine") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 115)
That Cottage Home (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 155)
Oh, Luella ("Oh, Luella, won't you mention me," referring to the ability of Louella Parsons to bring performers to fame and prominence) (Jacob Weisberg, _Ronald Reagan_ [a volume in the American Presidents series edited by Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr.], Times Books, 2016 (references are to a 2015 advance reader copy that probably has the final pagination but lacks an index or other reader helps), p. 19)
I'm On My Way to Canada ("I'm on my way to Canada, That cold and dreary land; The sad effects of slavery, I can no longer stand") (Foner, p. 90)
"Song" (by T.R.) ("I dreamt a dream the other night, When everything was still; I dreamt I saw Ben Butler's boys Upon the White House hill.... O Blaine and Cleveland, why did they ever try?") (Foner, p. 260)
There Comes a Reckoning Day ("I had a dream the other night when every thing was still; I dreamt I saw the lab'ring men all going down the hill") (Foner, p. 271)
The Swiss Referendum ("Fair morning comes, behold the dawn Of Direct Legislation") (by B. M. Lawrence) (Foner, p. 282)

NOTES [567 words]: This song is one of the best examples of Stephen Foster's bad luck and lack of skill as a businessman. The first (unauthorized) printing never mentioned Foster's name, though it associated the song with the Christy Minstrels. Foster then gave the piece away; the next printing had his name on it, but if he received any money at all, it was a flat up-front fee. Howard, pp. 141-144, lists twenty different printed editions from 1848 to 1851, from ten different publishers; some are new arrangements, and the titles vary, but they're the same song. Howard says that most of the editions don't even mention Foster's name.

There is perhaps some sort of irony that that earliest, pirated, printing, by C. Holt Jr. of New York, is now immensely valuable; according to TaylorEtAl, p. 31, only three copies were known in the mid-twentieth century.

This was one of Foster's very earliest pieces, and (along with "Uncle Ned") one of his first big hits. According to DeVoto, p. 134, 'in March of [1846] a twenty-year-old Pittsburg youth failed of appointment at West Point, and so at the end of the year he went to keep books in his brother's commission house at Cincinnati. He took with him the manuscripts of three songs, all apparently written in this year, all compact of the minstrel-nigger tradition. One celebrates a lubly collud gal, Lou'siana Belle. In another an old nigger has no wool on the top of his head in the place whar de wool ought to grow.... And in the third American pioneering was to find its leitmotif for all time: it was 'Oh Susanna!'"
Morneweck, p. 313, quotes the announcement for what seems to be the world premier of this song, from the September 11, 1847 Daily Commercial Journal. It is an advertisement for Andrews' Ice Cream Saloon promoting a concert which featured, in addition to "The Old Iron City," "Away Down Souf," "Allegheny Belle," "Picayune Butler," "The Floating Scow," and "The gal wid de blue dress on," "SUSANNA -- A new song, never before given to the public" (Morneweck, pp. 313-314). One of the performers at this event was Nelson Kneass, who wrote the standard tune for "Ben Bolt."

The early popularity of this song seems to be indicated by the existence of a Gold Rush version, a fragment of which is quoted by Laura Ingalls Wilder in Little House in the Big Woods (chapter 13):

Oh, Susi-an-na, don't you cry for me,
I'm going to Cal-i-for-ni-a,
The gold dust for to see.

Emerson, pp. 39-40, notes that Foster has a musical sister, Charlotte Susanna, who died young. He seems to believe the verse

I had a dream de udder night, when ebry ting was still,
I thought I saw Susanna dear a coming down de hill was inspired by her.

On p. 127, he declares that "September 11, 1847, is a firm date for the birth of pop music as we still recognize it today," when the Eagle Saloon debuted the song. Emerson goes on to declare the song to be more deeply rooted in American consciousness than any other.

Morneweck, volume I, p. 259, suggests that another line, "I jumped aboard de Telegraph, An trabbelleed down de ribber," was inspired by an actual boat, the Telegraph, which Stephen's brother Morrison had written. This might be a bit of family tradition, since Morneweck was Morrison Foster's daughter -- but it strikes me as equally possible that Stephen was just doing one of his bits of nonsense; if a message can travel by telegraph, why couldn't a person? - RBW

Bibliography

- Morneweck: Evelyn Foster Morneweck (Stephen Foster's niece), Chronicles of Stephen Foster's Family, University of Pittsburgh Press, 1944
- Howard: John Tasker Howard, Stephen Foster, America's Troubadour, 1934 (I use the 1939 Tudor Publishing edition)

Last updated in version 6.0
File: RJ19152

Oh! We All Got Religion

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "We all got religion, In that day (3x), We all got religion in that day. Wait on, the trump shall sound." Verses repeat a line 3x with a tag "When my Lord was there" (see notes). Final chorus replaces "we all got" by "the genuine"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories 36, "Oh! We All Got Religion" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [32 words]: The description is based on the Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories text. Verses include "My father (my mother, ..., you swearers, you mourners, ...) where were you?"(3x) "When my Lord was there" - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Edwa036

Ohio

DESCRIPTION: The singer remembers the dead at Stones River. He recalls finding a dying youth. The soldier sends greetings to his family, then dies
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar dying
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Dec 31, 1862-Jan 2, 1863 - Battle of Stones River/Murfreesboro
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 127, "Ohio" (1 text, 1 tune)
Salt-BuckeyeHeritage-OhiosHistory, pp. 86-87, "Stone River" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST E127 (Full)
Roud #5343
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of Stone River" (subject: The Battle of Stones River/Murfreesboro)
NOTES [178 words]: Salt's version of this is not the same as Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio's, and indicated no source; I am more than slightly dubious about its authenticity. But the plot seems to go here.
It is hard to say who won the Battle of Stones' River/Murfreesboro. The battle pitted William S. Rosecrans's Army of the Cumberland against Braxton Bragg's Confederate army. Rosecrans had been advancing into Tennessee, and Bragg set out to stop him.
In the first phase of the battle, on Dec. 31, Bragg drove back but did not destroy Rosecrans's right. Jan. 1, 1863 was quiet, but Bragg tried again on Jan. 2. Again he failed to decisively defeat the Federals.
Although it was probably ahead "on points," after spending the day of Jan. 3 on the field, Bragg's army retreated. The federal army had been so badly mauled that it would be half a year before it moved again -- but Rosecrans held the field and his gains. So a marginal tactical defeat was hailed by Union supporters as a strategic victory.
For a fuller account of the battle, see "The Battle of Stone River" (sic.). - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: E127

Ohio Canal, The
DESCRIPTION: "Up the Cuyahoga, far as Akron," the river passes "locks a-plenty." The singer tells hearers to float the boats through the locks as they head for "the valley." They will keep the boats going "if we pump Lake Erie dry."
AUTHOR: John W. Beattie
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (The American Singer, Book Six)
KEYWORDS: river ship nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 33, "The Ohio Canal" (1 text, not from tradition)
File: Grim033

Ohio Guards
DESCRIPTION: "You are wanted for one hundred days, Be ready in one minute, So General Cowen's order says... Ho, lads, untackle from the plow... To join the Union forces." The singer bids goodbye to family, kisses Mary, and heads off to save the nation
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1953? (Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection)
KEYWORDS: soldier farewell Civilwar
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 38, "Ohio Guards" (1 text)
NOTES [199 words]: Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection says this is to the tune of "The Boyne Water," but I very, very strongly suspect that it is really "Brighton Camp/The Girl I Left Behind Me."
According to Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 157, "General" Cowen called out the Ohio militia in 1864 to serve as guards and otherwise protect the home front. There are some minor problems with this account -- starting with the fact that Cowan wasn't a general. Benjamin Rush Cowen was a major, serving as an "additional paymaster." He was eventually made a brevet brigadier general, but that wasn't until March 13, 1865 (Phisterer, p. 293). Brevet rank was not the same as regular rank, and Cowen didn't earn his brevet until later anyway, so if Cowen is meant, this song must have been written well after the event Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection describes.

On the other hand, there was no other general, Union or Confederate, named Cowen. There isn't much detailed information about Cowen available. According to Boatner, p. 205, he was born in 1831 and was a "journalist, legislator, and merchant." A check of seven other Civil War references failed to reveal any references to him. - RBW

Bibliography

- Boatner: Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover)
- Phisterer: Frederick Phisterer, Campaigns of the Civil War: Statistical Record of the Armies of the United States, 1883 (I use the 2002 Castle Books reprint)

Last updated in version 2.8
File: Grim038

Ohio Prison Fire

DESCRIPTION: "Locked in the cells of a prison, A prison much too small, Convicts jammed and crowded Within that cold grey wall." When fire strikes, the guards react slowly Many die. The singer laments, "God doesn't want even convicts To die like rats in a hole."

AUTHOR: Carson J. Robison
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Carson J. Robison)
KEYWORDS: prison fire disaster death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Apr 21, 1930 - The Columbus Prison fire.
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 404, "Ohio Prison Fire" (1 text)
RECORDINGS:
Carson J. Robison, "Ohio Prison Fire" (Columbia 15548-D, 1930)
File: CAFS2404

Ohio River, She's So Deep and Wide

DESCRIPTION: "Ohio River, she's so deep and wide, Lord, I can't see my poor gal from the other side," "I'm going to river, take my seat and sit down, If the blues overtake me, I'll jump into the river and drown." "I've got the blues... I ain't got the heart to cry"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (Wheeler)
KEYWORDS: separation floating verses
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Wheeler-SteamboatinDays, p. 81-83, "Ohio Rivuh, She's So Deep an' Wide" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #10028
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Abilene" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Kansas City Blues" (floating lyrics)
NOTES [26 words]: This is one of those songs composed entirely of floating lyrics. But since there doesn't seem to be a dominant "ingredient," it gets listed separately. - RBW
File: MWhee081

Ohio, The

DESCRIPTION: "Just as soon as we get married, to Texas we will go. Settle on the banks of the Ohio, Where there's bear and buffalo, And all sorts of game Creeping through the cane on the Ohio. Come along here, my love... For I will take good care of thee."

Author: unknown
Earliest date: 1952 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)
Keywords: love courting travel river
Found in: US(So)
References (1 citation):
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 35, "The Ohio" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #11394
File: Brne035

Oi! (Song; Ka wai opuamakani o Wailua)

Description: Hawaian: "Ka wai opuamakani o Wailua." "The wind-beaten stream of Wailua Is tossed into waves from the sea." A messenger warns of a coming storm. She despairs of support from the man, and laments, "I am wrong."

Author: unknown
Earliest date: 1909 (Emerson, "The Hula," Unwritten Literature of Hawaii, according to Cohen)
Keywords: foreignlanguage love rejection
Found in: US
References (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 689, "Oi! (Song)" (1 Hawaiian text plus English translation)
File: CAFS689A

Oklahoma

Description: "Oh, the mistletoe grows in the tree tops, And the birds sing their sweet melody, Oklahoma, the state of them Indians, And we'll praise her wherever we go." It is a land of "beautiful highways." Singers will never forget the state's "good people."

Author: unknown
Earliest date: 1940 (recorded from Merle Lovell, according to Cohen)
Keywords: home patriotic nonballad
Found in: US(SW)
References (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 513-514, "Oklahoma" (1 text)
Roud #16028
File: CAFS2513

Ol' Dynamite

Description: "The outlaw stands with blindfold eyes, His feet set wide apart"; the puncher prepares to ride him. They take off the blindfold, and Old Dynamite starts to buck. Rider Buck manages to stay on, tips his hat to the crowd, and disappears

Author: Phil LeNoir (source: Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
Earliest date: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
Keywords: cowboy horse
Found in:
References (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 113-115, "Ol' Dynamite" (1 text)
File: ThLo113

Ol' Gen'ral Bragg's a-Mowin' Down de Yankees

Description: The master (?) tells the slaves that Bragg is defeating the Yankees, and warns them to behave. But then the southern troops appear to be running. Master runs off to the swamps, "while Dinah, Pomp, an' Pete dey look As if dey mighty pleas'."

Author: unknown
Earliest date: 1952 (Brown)
Keywords: Civilwar slave battle freedom
NOTES [195 words]: It is difficult to correlate this song with any particular Civil War battle. Braxton Bragg (1817-1876) commanded at four major conflicts: Perryville (Oct. 8, 1862), Murfreesboro/Stones River (Dec. 31, 1862-Jan. 2, 1863), Chickamauga (Sept. 19-20, 1862), and Chattanooga (Nov. 23-25, 1863).

None of these battles fit the song. Perryville ended with Bragg retreating, but it was a voluntary retreat -- and it was in Kentucky anyway, where the slaves were not freed by the Emancipation Proclamation.

Stones River also ended with Bragg retreating, but again, his forces retreated in good order; there was no running.

Chickamauga was an overwhelming Confederate victory; only the Yankees fled. The best fit, then, is Chattanooga, where Bragg at first held the Federals easily -- he held an overwhelmingly strong position on the ridges above the town) but then saw his troops fall apart. (He was relieved afterward.) -- But the area through which the Confederates fled had been in Union hands previously, and was not good planting country; there were few slaves in the area. According to Greenway, the mother of collector Merton Knowles learned the song after the Civil War. - RBW

File: BrII233

Ol' Hag, You See Mammy?

DESCRIPTION: "Ol' hag, you see Mammy? No, no (x2), Mammy carry bubbly goin' to ilant, Pappy goin' to seasho', Row boat for catfish, row boat."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (collected from Aunt Stella Horry)

KEYWORDS: nonballad lullaby mother father fishing

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, p. 95, "Ol' Hag, You See Mammy?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #15606

File: LxSi095A

Olban (Alban) or The White Captive [Laws H15]

DESCRIPTION: A young woman (Amanda) has been taken captive by Indians. She is about to be subjected to torture or death when one of the tribe (the chief, young Albion?) rescues her and brings her home, (asking no reward but his food)

AUTHOR: Rev. Thomas C. Upham

EARLIEST DATE: 1818 (The "Columbia Sentinel" of Boston)

KEYWORDS: Indians(Am.) rescue

FOUND IN: US(MW,NE,Ro,SE,So)

REFERENCES (10 citations):
Laws H15, "Olban (Alban) or The White Captive"
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 256-259, "The White Captive" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 674, "Her White Bosom Bare" (2 texts)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 158, "Amanda" (1 text, 1 tune)
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol1, pp. 160-163, "Young Alban and Amandy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #62, "Young Albin" (1 text)
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 130, "The White Captive" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 31-32, "The White Captive" (1 text)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, "Bright Amanda" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 761, WHTCAPTV
Roud #657

RECORDINGS:
Warde Ford, "Lamanda" (AFS 4203 B1, 1938; tr.; in AMMEM/Cowell)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Fair Captive" (theme)
NOTES [66 words]: Several scholars have sought for the events which lie behind this ballad. One even connected it with a story by James Fennimore Cooper! Given that all the accounts disagree, and that the Cooper story ("Wish-Ton-Wish") was not published until 1832, each must probably be taken with a grain of salt. - RBW
In Ford's version, Olban (called "Alvin") asks for food for his people rather than himself. - PJS

Last updated in version 3.8
File: LH15

Old Abe Is Sick
DESCRIPTION: "Old Abe is sick (x2), Old Abe is sick in bed. He's a lying dog, a dying dog, With meanness in his head." "He wants our cotton... He shall have it, he will have it, Some tar and feathers too." "Down with Old Abe... And all his Yankee crew"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: political Civilwar
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 388, "Old Abe is Sick" (1 text)
Roud #11754
File: Br3388

Old Abe Lincoln Came Out of the Wilderness DESCRIPTION: "Old Abe Lincoln came out of the wilderness, Out of the wilderness, Out of the wilderness, Old Abe Lincoln came out of the wilderness, Down in Illinois." Possibly related: "Aren't you glad you joined the Republicans... Down in Illinois."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)
KEYWORDS: political parody nonballad derivative
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1809 - Birth of Abraham Lincoln in Kentucky. He later moved to Illinois
1860 - The Republicans, looking for a candidate who does not carry much baggage, nominate Lincoln for President. In a four-way race, Lincoln receives 40% of the popular votes and enough electoral votes to be elected President. The result is the Civil War 1864 - Lincoln is re-elected President
1865 - Lincoln assassinated
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 168, "Old Abe Lincoln Came Out of the Wilderness" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 94-95, "Old Abe Lincoln Came Out of the Wilderness" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber-SoldierSongsAndHomeFrontBalladsOfCivilWar, p. 17, "Old Abe Lincoln Came Out of the Wilderness" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 287, "Old Abe Lincoln Came Out of the Wilderness" (1 text)
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, p. 53, (no title) (1 short text, probably a fragment of a modified version of this song)
Additional: Paul F. Boller, Jr., _Presidential Campaigns_, second revised edition, Oxford University Press, p. 112 (partial text)
Roud #11629
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Old Gray Mare (I) (The Old Gray Horse; The Little Black Bull)" (tune)
cf. "I Wait Upon the Lord" (tune, structure)
File: San168
Old Abe's Elected

DESCRIPTION: "Old Abe's elected so they say Along with Darkey Hamlin, The Yankees think they'll gain the day By nigger votes and gamblin'." (To the tune of Yankee Doodle)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: Civilwar political parody

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1861-1865 - Abraham Lincoln and Hannibal Hamlin are President and Vice President

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 245, "Old Abe's Elected" (1 text)
Roud #7712

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Honest Abe" (subject)

NOTES [115 words]: Abraham Lincoln hardly needs introduction. Hannibal Hamlin was Lincoln's vice president; a former Democrat, he joined the Republicans over the issue of slavery. He was replaced as vice president, in Lincoln's second term, by Andrew Johnson.

This piece clearly shows the level of political rhetoric that was being fired about during the election of 1860; Hamlin was anti-slavery, but not radically so; certainly neither he nor Lincoln had, at that time, any plan to enfranchise the southern slaves. And, at this time, a referendum in New York to grant Blacks the franchise failed miserably. For background on the amazingly complex election of 1860, see the notes to "Lincoln and Liberty." - RBW

File: R245

Old Adam

DESCRIPTION: "I'm very sorry for old Adam, Just as sorry as can be, For he never had no mammy For to hold him on her knee." "And I've always had the feeling He'd a-let that apple be If he'd only had a mammy For to hold him on her knee."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)

KEYWORDS: Bible mother

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 339, "Old Adam" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4566

File: San339

Old Adam and Eve

DESCRIPTION: "The praise of dear women I'll sing." Adam had food, a garden, horses and foxes to hunt. His happiness was not complete until his wife was taken from his side to be his equal and partner. A man without a wife is a beggar; a beggar with a wife is blessed

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1840 (Fisher)

KEYWORDS: marriage Bible nonballad wife gardening animal

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North,South),Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (7 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #148, p. 2, "Adam and Eve" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan7 1269, "Old Adam and Eve" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 215-216, "Old Adam" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 378)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 451-452, "Old Adam" (1 text)
Kidson-TraditionalTunes, pp. 153-154, "When Adam Was First Created" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: John Fisher, The Honeymoon (London, 1840 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 164 [Note 3], ("When Adam was first created") (1 fragment (two verses))
Roud #728

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.25(242), "Adam & Eve" ("Both sexes give ear to my fancy"), W. Ford (Sheffield), no date; also Harding B 28(19), "In Praise of Dear Women I Sing ("Both sexes give ear to my fancy")

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "When Adam Was Created (Wedlock)" (theme)

NOTES [130 words]: Greig/Duncan7: "Fifty-three years ago." [1905]
Apparently broadside Bodleian, 2806 c.13(192), "When Adam was first created" ("Both sexes give here [sic] to my fancy"), J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866 is this song but I could not download and verify it. - BS

The tale of the creation of the woman from the rib of the man is told in Genesis 2:21-22 (with the description of her as his partner continuing until 2:24, and the statement that none of the animals was a partner fit for him in 3:20). The other account of the creation, in Genesis 1:27, strongly implies that men and women were created at the same time (implying, obviously, a different sort of partnership). This account also places the creation of humanity at the end of the creation of life, not the beginning. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.0
File: GrD71269

Old Alec Brown

DESCRIPTION: "Old Alec Brown has brought me here, Lie in jail all my days." "True love, true love, my darling child, What have I done to you?" The singer asks the girl to be true to him; she has caused him to weep and has turned her back on him. Many lyrics float

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (Morris, Southern Folklore Quarterly)
KEYWORDS: love prison separation abandonment floating verses
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #44, "Old Alec Brown" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #5010
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Lonesome Road" (lyrics)
cf. "In the Pines" (lyrics)
File: Morr044

Old and Gray

DESCRIPTION: "'Tis thee and not the roses, dear, That I have learned to love, Though now thine eyes are bright and clear... Yet should thine eyes grow dim with age I'll love thee all the way, For 'tis the head and not the heart That shall grow old and gray."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)
KEYWORDS: age beauty
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 712, "Old and Gray" (1 short text, 1 tune)
File: BrS5712

Old and Only in the Way

DESCRIPTION: "When you walk along the street, how often do you meet Some poor old man who's getting old and gray?" Poor old men find that their children do not care for him, and rich old men have heirs waiting impatiently. The singer complains about the young

AUTHOR: P. J. Downey and L. T. Billings
EARLIEST DATE: 1880 (copyright)
KEYWORDS: youth age money work
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Rorrer-RamblingBlues-LifeAndSongsOfCharliePoole, p. 83, "Old and Only in the Way" (1 text)
DT, OLD&GRAY
Roud #6440
RECORDINGS:
Arkansas Woodchopper [pseud. For Luther Ossenbrink], "Old and Only in the Way" (Gennett 7154/ Champion 15943 [as West Virginia Rail Splitter]//Supertone 9639, 1930; Champion 45192 [as West Virginia Rail Splitter], 1935)
Fiddlin' John Carson, "Old and in the Way" (OKeh 40181, 1924) (OKeh 45273, 1928; rec. 1927) (Bluebird B-5959/Montgomery Ward M-4850, 1935)
Byron G. Harlan, "Always In the Way" (CYL: Edison 8501, 1903)
Kentucky Girls, "Old and Only in the Way" (Columbia 15364-D, 1929; rec. 1928)
Oliver Moore [pseud. for Ted Chestnut], "Old and Only in the Way" (Challenge 422, 1928)
Charlie Poole and the North Carolina Ramblers, "Old and Only in the Way" (Columbia 15672-D, 1931; rec. 1928; on CPoole03)

Old and Young Courtier, The

DESCRIPTION: "An old song made by an aged old pate, Of an old worshipful gentleman, who had a great estate." The story tells of the proper behavior of this old courtier. It compares him to a young courtier whose newfangled behavior is much less proper
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1877 (Bell)
KEYWORDS: royalty nobility nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Percy/Wheatley-ReliquesOfAncientEnglishPoetry II, pp. 314-318, "The Old and Young Courtier" (1 text)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 180-183, "The Old and Young Courtier" (1 text)
ST BeCo180 (Partial)

Old Ann Tucker

DESCRIPTION: Old Ann "was a wife, biggest old stup I saw in my life" She has a hump like a camel and a stupid son. "She tried to sleep but it was no use, For her legs hung out for the chickens to roost" "... want any more you must help yourself"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: derivative humorous nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 142-143, "Old Ann Tucker" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Bk 6)
Roud #390
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Dan Tucker" (source?: male version)
NOTES [82 words]: I think this is a clear derivative of "Old Dan [or Tan] Tucker" but Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames says, "I have heard many fragments of songs concerning a certain notable Ann Tucker. Sometimes, too, I have heard the name Dan Tucker, though I think it should really be Ann, not Dan." Of course, it's difficult to distinguish between "Ol' Dan Tucker" and "Old Ann Tucker."
The chickens roosting line is also found in "Old Dan Tucker": see, for example, Bodleian broadside Firth b.27(169). - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: WT142
Old Arboe (Ardboe)

DESCRIPTION: The singer asks the powers to help him praise Ar(d)boe. He praises the land, the waters, the wildlife, the winds. He talks of the holy days they celebrate. The singer has traveled the world, but has seen no better place

AUTHOR: James Cairnes?
EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (Sam Henry collection)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHennysSongsOfThePeople H505, p. 157, "Old Ardboe" (1 text, 1 tune)
Tunney-WhereSongsDoThunder, pp. 82-84, "O! Arboe" (1 text)
OBoyle-TheIrishSongTradition 20, "Old Arboe" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Old Cross of Ardboe" (subject)

NOTES [162 words]: Sam Henry has notes on the various feast days mentioned in the song. These seem more accurate than the geography of the Biblical references to "the shores of Cana and Galilee"; neither name was proper in the author's time, and Galilee had no true seacoast (the "sea of Galilee" is a lake). Cana is not on any shore at all; it was half way between the Mediterranean and the Sea of Galilee. - RBW

For the cross reference [to The Old Cross of Ardboe"] see Bell/O Conchubhair, Traditional Songs of the North of Ireland, pp. 38-39, "The Old Cross of Ardboe" attributed to "the 'Poet' Canavan."
The songs are close in theme and approach, but share no lines. Here is a description of "The Old Cross of Ardboe": The singer bids farewell to the places in Tyrone "where I spent my childhood days" He wonders if he will ever return. "May the star of Freedom smile ... And the shamrocks verdant grow Green around those graves near Lough Neagh's waves, And the Old Cross Ardboe."

BS

File: HHH505

Old Arizona Again

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, it's old Arizona again, It's old Aricona again, It's a place where we all have been." The singer recalls "greasers and bad, bad men," "bears and rocky ground And the rattlers running round." "And if you get away, They will bring you back to stay."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Dolph, according to Cohen)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 534, "Old Arizona Again" (1 text)

File: CAFS2534

Old Ark's A-Moverin', The

DESCRIPTION: "O the old ark's a-moverin... an' I thank God." Sundry verses on the flood, salvation, and those who are too proud, e.g. "How many days did the water fall? Forty days and nights and all." "See that sister dressed so fine? She ain't got Jesus on her mind"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)

REFERENCES (8 citations):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 58-59, "De Ole Ark a-Moverin' Along" (1 text, 1 tune; pp. 249-250 in the 1874 edition)
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 73, "The Ole Ark" (1 text)
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 213-214, (no title) (1 text, with this chorus though many of the verses are about Jesus; it may be conflate, but in the present state of Old Arm Chair (I), The

DESCRIPTION: "I love it, I love it, and who shall dare To chide me from loving that old arm chair?" The singer calls it "sacred"; his mother sat in it -- and eventually died in it. "I love it, I love it, and cannot tear My soul from a mother's old arm chair"

AUTHOR: Words: Eliza Cook / Music: Henry Russell (source: Heart-Songs)

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart-Songs)

KEYWORDS: mother love death

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Heart-Songs, pp. 270-271, "The Old Arm Chair" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #61, "The Old Arm-Chair" (1 text)

ST HeSo270 (Partial)

Roud #13966

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, Firth b.26(462)=Harding B 11(1138)=Johnson d.1773(p. 141v), "The old arm chair,"

File: HeSo270

Old Aunt Dinah

DESCRIPTION: "Old Aunt Dinah, ho pee, ho pee... Gwine away to leave yer..." "Old Aunt Dinah -- sick in bed... Send for the doctor... You ain't sick... All you need... is a hickory stick." Alternately, Dinah may have four daughters and wants one to marry the singer

AUTHOR: unknown
Old Aunt Kate

DESCRIPTION: "Ole Aunt Kate she bake de cake, She bake hit 'hine de garden gate; She sift de meal, she gimme de dust, She bake de bread, she gimme de crust, She eat de meat, she gimme de skin, An' dat's de way she tuck me in."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: food humorous

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 99, "Ole Aunt Kate" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #11617

NOTES [16 words]: Scarborough reports that this is an "elaboration" from "Juba." Be hard to prove either way. - RBW

File: ScaNF099

Old Aunt Katy

DESCRIPTION: "Old Aunt Katy was a good old soul, Patched my breeches right full of holes." "Up the ridge and down the ridge And run old Katy home." "Old Aunt Katy was a good old soul, Crossed the bridge and paid her toll." "Old Aunt Katy dressed mighty fine...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: clothes nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 323, "Old Aunt Katy" (1 text plus mention of 1 more)

Roud #15889

NOTES [26 words]: The notes in Brown suggest that this is a play-party. It feels more like a fiddle tune to me. But with no tune and no gaming instructions, we can't say. - RBW

File: Br3323

Old Bachelor (I), The

DESCRIPTION: Singer, an old bachelor ignorant of women, marries a 16-year-old, primarily to keep him warm at night. She wants more from him, which baffles him until her mother tells him the facts of life. He obliges; a fine son results, to his surprise and delight

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan7)

KEYWORDS: age marriage sex bawdy humorous mother bachelor

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber),England(North))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #19, p. 2, "The Auld Bachelor" (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan7 1390, "I Am an Auld Bachelor" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
Roud #7162

RECORDINGS:
A. L. Lloyd, "The Old Bachelor" (on BirdBush1, BirdBush2)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Maids When You're Young Never Wed an Old Man" (theme) and references there File: RcT0B

Old Bachelor (V), The

DESCRIPTION: The singer would not court a rich girl, and beautiful ones reject him. He would marry a well mannered farmer's daughter. He has a pleasant home with plenty of food and goods. "I wish that I may, get a prudent, chaste, and a virtuous wife"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan7)

KEYWORDS: courting nonballad bachelor

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1391, "The Old Bachelor" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7249

Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81391

Old Bachelor, The

DESCRIPTION: An old bachelor resolves to find a wife so perfect as "scarce walks upon the ground." He meets a woman that won't tell him her name, nor whether she is still a virgin, nor whether she would marry. "He that courts a bonnie lass Is sure to get the slip"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1)

KEYWORDS: age courting marriage virginity questions bachelor

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1 73, "The Old Bachelor" (1 text)
Roud #1649

File: LyCr173

Old Bald Eagle

DESCRIPTION: "(Old/Big) bald eagle sailing 'round, day I's gone (x2)." "Lead her up and lead her down, day I's gone (x2)." "Backward and forward across the floor." "Sailing round Maggie, sailing found." "Just keep swinging till you get done."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains)

KEYWORDS: playparty bird food animal

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains, pp. 34-35, "Big Bal' Eagle" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3425

NOTES [21 words]: Roud lumps this with the "Bald Eagle" text in Roberts, but I think them only Old Barbed Wire, The (I Know Where They Are)

DESCRIPTION: "If you want to find the privates, I know where they are (x3) -- They're up to their knees in mud (or: "Hanging on the old barbed wire"). I saw them...." Meanwhile, the captains, colonels, and generals enjoy themselves and stay away from the fighting

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)

KEYWORDS: soldier war

FOUND IN: US Britain(England) Canada

REFERENCES (8 citations):
- Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 442-443, "Where They Were" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, pp. 61-62, "The Old Barbed Wire" (1 text)
- Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 236-237, "Hanging on the Old Barbed Wire" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. "If You Want to Know Where the Privates Are" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe, pp. 59-62, "If You Want to Know Where the Privates Are" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, p. 41, "I Know Where They Are" (1 short text)
- Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, pp. 90-91, "Has Anyone Seen the Colonel" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, BARBWIRE

Roud #9618

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Grouse, Grouse, Grouse" (theme of generals being safe while soldiers fight)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
If You Want to See the Captain
I'll Tell You Where They Were

NOTES [103 words]: Internal evidence clearly dates this to the First World War, with its trenches and barbed wire and mud that threatened to swallow the Allied armies whole. Jerry Silverman includes it in his book Ballads & Songs of WWI, without indication of source. What's more, until WWI, officers -- including brigade and sometimes even divisional officers -- were expected to lead their men from the front. Only in the twentieth century did officers become so valuable that they were allowed to "lead" from the rear. Thus it can hardly be from before World War I, and the earliest collections show that it cannot be from after. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: San442

Old Barge Oliver Cromwell, The

DESCRIPTION: "On November first in eighty-nine from Port Huron we set sail." The barge Cromwell is hauled by the Lowell. They struggle with weather near Bay City and with snow near Tawas bay. They have to pump in the storm. The singer warns against lumber barges

AUTHOR: reportedly Hank Stone

EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (collected from A. P. Gallino and William J. Small by Walton)

KEYWORDS: sailor storm hardtimes

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 144-146, "The Old Barge Oliver Cromwell" (1 text)

Roud #19856

RECORDINGS:
- John Gallino, "The Old Barge Oliver Cromwell" (1938; on WaltonSailors; the tune does not match that printed in the text)

File: WGM144
Old Bark Hut, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer, whose name varies, relates, "I once was well to do, but now I am stumped up, And I'm forced to go on rations in an old bark hut." There follows a list of the ways the singer makes do or tolerates the poor conditions

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Paterson's _Old Bush Songs_)

KEYWORDS: poverty hardtimes

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (9 citations):
- Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 105-106, "The Old Bark Hut" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 151-154, "The Old Bark Hut" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 126-127, "The Old Bark Hut" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Paterson/Fahey/Seal-OldBushSongs-CentenaryEdition, pp. 298-302, "The Old Bark Hut" (1 text)
- Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, pp. 87-89, "The Old Bark Hut" (1 text, 2 tunes)
- Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, pp. 133-134, 290-291, "The Old Bark Hut" (2 texts, 2 tunes)

Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads, pp. 22-24, "The Old Bark Hut" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Bill Beatty, _A Treasury of Australian Folk Tales & Traditions_, 1960 (I use the 1969 Walkabout Paperbacks edition), pp. 288-291, "The Old Bark Hut" (1 text)

Matthew Richardson, _Once a Jolly Swagman: The Ballad of Waltzing Matilda_, Melbourne University Press, 2006, pp. 34-35, "The Old Bark Hut" (1 text)

Roud #22662

NOTES [119 words]: This is sort of the Australian version of "The Old Chisholm Trail," with nearly infinite verses. Henry Lawson reports riding on a train from Bourke to Sydney with a band of shearers, who sang the song the whole time without repeating a verse.

Manifold, p. 94, following Hugh Anderson, says that the "parent version" was written by William Perrie, and observes that several versions use London thieves' jargon, implying an origin among transportees.

Morris, p. 207, defines "Hut" as follows: "a cottage of a shepherd or a miner. The word is English but is especially common in Australia, and does not there connote squalor or meanness. The "Men's Hut' on a station is the building occupied by the male employees." - RBW

Bibliography

- Morris: Edward E. Morris, _A Dictionary of Austral English_, 1898 (I use the 1972 Sydney University Press with a new foreword but no new content)

Last updated in version 5.2

File: MA105

Old Bay State, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all good people from far and near... I will sing you the loss of the old Bay State that sailed in the Crawford Line." On the morning of November 2, she sets out and is never seen again. "It's hard to think so many lives down with her had to go."

AUTHOR: Thomas Peckham?

EARLIEST DATE: before 1952 (collected from John S. Parsons by Walton)

KEYWORDS: ship death disaster

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- Nov 2, 1862 - final voyage of the _Bay State_

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 225-226, "The Old Bay State" (1 text)

Roud #19864

File: WGM225
Old Beau Bill

DESCRIPTION: "Old Beau Bill was a fine old man, A-rigging and a-ragging in the world so long, But now his days have cone to pass, And we're bound to break up Beau Bill's class. So sit still ladies and don't take a chill, While the captain... ties Beau Bill"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal)
KEYWORDS: death
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Richard Walser, "His Worship the John Kuner" Vol. XIX, No. 4 (Nov 1971), p. 168, "(Old Beau Bill was a fine old man)" (1 text)
NOTES [35 words]: Walser calls this a John Kunnering song. For other such songs, see "Juba!". Yes, the printed text gives the fourth line as "...Beau Bill's class." I would assume there are two extra letters in that last word. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: NCF194BB

Old Bee Makes the Honey Comb

DESCRIPTION: "Old bee (makes the honey comb/sucks the blossom), Young bee makes the honey. (Poor man/Colored folks) plant the cotton and corn, (Rich man/White folks) make the money."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: floatingverses work bug
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 479, "Old Bee Makes the Honey Comb" (1 fragment); also 480, "Hard Times" (1 text, massively composite: Chorus from "Lynchburg Town" and verses from "Old Bee Makes the Honey Comb" and the "White Folks Go to College" version of "Hard to Be a Nigger")
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 165, "Old Bee Make de Honeycomb" (1 text, with this stanza but many more associated primarily with "Raccoon")
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #107, "The Old Bee Makes the Honey Comb" (1 fragment)
cf. Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #194, p. 136, ("God made the bees")

Roud #5029
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Haul Away, Boys, Haul Away" (lyrics)
cf. "Bees of Paradise" (theme of the work of bees and money)
NOTES [63 words]: Reportedly found also in Uncle Remus, this is one of those floating verses that seems to exist in many songs. Since Brown has it as a standalone, it files here, with many cross-references. The nursery rhyme version, which I suspect is close to the original, runs:
God made the bees
And the bees make honey.
The miller's man does all the work
But the miller makes the money.- RBW

Last updated in version 4.2
File: Br3479

Old Bell Cow

DESCRIPTION: Humorous description of a cow that's difficult to milk: "Went down to the cornfield to pick a mess of beans, Along come the bell cow a-pecking at the greens." "Some of these days when I learn how, I'm gonna milk that old bell cow."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Dixie Crackers); possible version from 1927 (Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs)
KEYWORDS: farming work humorous animal
Old Betty Larkin (Betsy Larkin, You Stole My Pard, Steal Partners, Stole My Partner)

DESCRIPTION: "Hop around, skip around, old Betty Larkin (x3), and also my dear darlin'." "Steal, steal, old Betty Larkin...." "You take mine, and I'll take another...." "Needles in a haystack, old Betty Larkin."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: courting abandonment playparty dancing nonballad

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 15, "Old Betty Larkin" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randy 586, "You Stole My Pard" (1 fragment)

Roud #7404 and 7673

NOTES [58 words]: Randolph's is only a two-stanza fragment: "You stole my pard to my dislike (x3), And also my dear darlin'." "I'll have her back or fight all night (x3), And also my dear darlin'." It may be a separate piece (Roud separates them). But that key line about the "dear darlin'" seems to me to link his text with the Ritchie Family "Betty Larkin" texts. - RBW

File: R586

Old Billy Dugger

DESCRIPTION: "Old Billy Dugger he looks mighty cross; He shot at a man and killed Jack's hoss."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: soldier death horse

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 283, "Old Billy Dugger" (1 text)

Roud #6642

NOTES [16 words]: Reported to be based on a Civil War incident -- but it's a soldier's joke I've seen elsewhere. - RBW

File: BrII283

Old Billy Kirk

DESCRIPTION: "Now old Billy Kirk was a twenty-minute egg. With his flowing white beard and his one wooden leg." He is tiny. He travels New Zealand on horseback -- a great racer. He plays for dances. He lives to 105. The singer looks forward to seeing him after death

AUTHOR: "Cazna Gyp" (collective name of Bob Edwards and Mr. ad Mrs. Lew Williams, according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

EARLIEST DATE: 1967 (Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)
Old Binnie

DESCRIPTION: Old Binnie is urged to come see the Irishman work with his penis
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955
KEYWORDS: bawdy
FOUND IN: US(Ro,So,SW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cray-EroticMuse, p. 264, "Ditties," of which the first is "Old Binnie"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Irish Washerwoman" (tune)
cf. "The Railroad Corral" (tune and references for the "Irish Washerwoman" tune)
File: EM264

Old Black Alice

DESCRIPTION: "Old Black Alice are my name, Wellshot are my station. It's no disgrace, the old black face, it's the colour of my nation." The singer tells how she can dance, points out that God made her as well as whites, and notes the several men who like her
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1964
KEYWORDS: Australia discrimination
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, pp. 92-93, "Old Black Alice" (1 composite text, 1 tune)
File: PASB092

Old Black Bull, The

DESCRIPTION: "the old black bull came down from the mountain, Euston, Dan Euston, The old black bull... A long time ago." "There were six fine heifers in the pasture grazing." The bull gets all worked up, but (he fails?) and goes back to the mountain, head hung low
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: animal derivative travel
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 44, "The Old Black Bull" (1 text)
Roud #10554
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Old Gray Mare (I) (The Old Gray Horse; The Little Black Bull)" (form; probably also tune)
File: BrPa044

Old Black Crow, The

DESCRIPTION: "A boy to school was tramping, singing merrily," when a crow lands on a branch and begins to sing "caw, caw, caw." The boy does not like the song, so he throws a stone at the crow. It misses, and he falls in the mud, is late for school, and whipped
AUTHOR: unknown
Old Black Hen, The

DESCRIPTION: "Master had an old black hen, Black as any bear, Laid and set in an acorn shell, Eighteen inches square."

AUTHOR: unknown

Old Black Horse, The

DESCRIPTION: "I was walking one day Along a crowded way, A-strollin' with the girl of my heart," whose father owned a donkey cart. He sees the old, tired, one-eyes black horse. He drives the carriage when the singer marries the girl. The horse throws him. It dies

AUTHOR: unknown

Old Black Joe

DESCRIPTION: "Gone are the days when my heart was young and gay, Gone are my friends from the cotton fields away, Gone from the earth to a better land I know, I hear their gentle voices calling 'Old Black Joe.'" The singer, having outlived so much, says "I'm coming"

AUTHOR: Stephen C. Foster

REFERENCES:

Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 156-159, "Old Black Joe" (1 text, 1 tune)
Saunders/Root-MusicOfStephenCFoster-Vol2, pp. 99-102+428, "Old Black Joe" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 126-127, "Old Black Joe" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1692, p. 114, "Old Black Joe" (1 reference)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, pp. 20-21, "Old Black Joe" (1 text)
Messerli-ListenToTheMockingbird, pp. 102-103, "Old Black Joe" (1 text)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #122, "Old Black Joe" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, p. 407, "Old Black Joe"

DT, OLDBLACK*

ST RJ19156 (Full)

Roud #9601

RECORDINGS:
Criterion Quartet, "Old Black Joe" (CYL: Edison [BA] 3092, n.d.)
Edison Quartette, "Old Black Joe" (Edison 8823, 1904)
Fisk University Jubilee Quartet, "Old Black Joe" (Victor 35097, 1909)
Ford Hanford, "My Old Kentucky Home and Old Black Joe [medley]" (Victor 18767, 1921)
Peerless Quartet, "Old Black Joe" (Victor 5562, 1908; Victor 16531, 1910)
Riley Puckett, "Old Black Joe" (Columbia 15005-D, 1924)

SAME TUNE:

Come Up, Dear Dinner, Come Up (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 121)
Dear Old Flag ("Gone are the days when thy folds were rent in twain") (by A. P. Knapp) (Albert P. Knapp, _Grange Songster_, 1915, p. 24)
The Poor White Slave ("Down where the coal mine lifts its ugly shaft, There stands a hut, beside a narrow lane") (Foner, p. 252)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Poor Old Joe

NOTES [224 words]: By the time Foster wrote this piece, his parents were dead, his marriage was troubled, and he was in bad financial shape. It has been theorized that this put him in a nostalgic mood. As always, he set it on the plantation -- but for once not in dialect.
TaylorEtAl p. 135, report that "Foster's granddaughter, Mrs. A. D. Rose claimed that 'Joe' was a real person, a servant in the home of [Foster's future wife] Jane McDowell in the days when Stephen was courting her. Up to the time of Dr. McDowell's death, Joe drove Jane’s father on his rounds.... According to Mrs. Rose, Stephen promised Joe that he would put him into a song. The old man was gone when the day of inspiration came, but today an perhaps always, Old Black Joe live again."
The extended Foster family apparently believed this also. Morneweck, pp. 372-373, also quotes Jessie W. Rose, calling him "the McDowell family butler and handy man." Apparently the Foster family did not sing "Old Black Joe" because they knew the back story.
It is perhaps an indication of how far Foster had fallen by the time he wrote this that he actually produced a sort of parody, "Poor Old Joe." According to Waites/Hunter, p. 80, the latter is "virtually identical to Old Black Joe. Probably [Foster] altered a few words and notes so that more than one publisher could issue the same song." - RBW

Bibliography

- Morneweck: Evelyn Foster Morneweck (Stephen Foster's niece), Chronicles of Stephen Foster's Family, University of Pittsburgh Press, 1944

Last updated in version 6.0
File: RJ19156

Old Blacksmith's Shop, The

DESCRIPTION: "Some people ramble to lands far away... But the place I love best and am longing to see... And there I forever could stop... In the old village blacksmith's shop." The singer recalls visiting and playing with the blacksmith, but now the man is long dead

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: work worker loneliness age
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H541, p. 207, "The Old Blacksmith's Shop" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: HHH541
Old Blind Horse, The

DESCRIPTION: Old man's will leaves everything to Uncle Bill and an old blind horse. When the horse finally dies "we took his skin for to make some shoes" and give the rest to the crows who "crawed" as they flew by "old horse you had to die"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs)
KEYWORDS: death horse bird
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, pp. 130-131, "The Old Blind Horse" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2703
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Poor Old Horse (II)" (theme)
NOTES [61 words]: Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs first verse "If you'll join the chorus whilst I sing This very night I'll make this old shanty ring" would seem to put it in a logging camp. The chorus, "And its come, come along with me For the moon is fast a climbing, Young girls, young girls, can't you see? For the dew on the grass is shining" is reminiscent of "Raise a Ruckus." - BS
File: CrMa130

Old Blue

DESCRIPTION: "I had a dog and his name was Blue...." The singer tells how Blue aided him in 'possum hunting, then goes on to describe Blue's death and burial.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1913
KEYWORDS: dog death burial hunting
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (10 citations):
Randolph 295, "Old Blue" (1 text plus a fragment, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 220, "Old Blue" (1 text)
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 74, pp. 201-202, "Old Blue" (1 text)
Lomax/Lomax-FolkSongUSA 7, "Old Blue" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 111-112, "Old Blue" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolksongsOfNorthAmerica 157, "Blue" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin-TreasuryOfSouthernFolklore, p. 738, "Old Blue" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cray-AshGrove, pp. 11-12, "Old Blue" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 396, "Old Blue" (1 text)
DT, OLDBLUE
Roud #4313
RECORDINGS:
Jim Jackson, "Old Dog Blue" (Victor 21387B, 1928; on AAFM2) (Vocalion 1146, 1928)
Pete Seeger, "Old Blue" (on PeteSeeger09, PeteSeegerCD02)
Art Thieme, "The Split Dog" [combines song and tall-tale] (on Thieme01)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Deep Blue Sea (II)" (floating lyrics)
File: R295

Old Bob Ridley (Hobo Diddle De Ho)

DESCRIPTION: "When I was young we crossed the mountains, Crossed so many I quit a-countin', Hobo diddle de ho, An' a hobo diddle de ho." "We seen the buffalo a-comin', Seen so damn' many I couldn't count 'em...." "(Ho/oh), (old) Bob (Ridley/Bridely)"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1853 (broadside, LOCSheet sm1853 550030)
KEYWORDS: travel humorous talltale
FOUND IN: Britain(England,Scotland(Aber)) US(SE,So) Ireland
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1898, "Bob Ridley" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 224-225, "Old Bob Ridley O" (1 text) (also Williams-
Old Boss Barry

DESCRIPTION: "There's a quiet little room at the back of the saloon... Where men from tenements hold lengthy arguments On everything besides the liquor bills." Then the "leader" comes,; they say, "Old Boss Barry, how d'ye do? Is there anything that we can do for you?"

AUTHOR: Words: Edward Harrigan / Music: David Braham

EARLIEST DATE: 1888 ("Waddy Googan")

KEYWORDS: political nonballad

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Finson-Edward-Harrigan-David-Braham, vol. II, #148, pp. 226-227 "Old Boss Barry" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: William H. A. Williams, _"Twas Only an Irishman's Dream_., University of Illinois Press, 1996, p. 142, "Old Boss Barry" (1 excerpt)
Roud #V45198

RECORDINGS:
Mick Moloney, "Old Boss Barry" (on HarriganBrahamMaloney)

NOTES [132 words]: For background on Harrigan and Braham, see the notes to "The Babies on Our Block."
"'Old Boss Barry' recalls Braham's patter parlando style, with repeated note-melody and schottische rhythms accompanying Harrigan's trenchant satire of Tammany-style politics" (Franceschina, p. 189).

Harrigan apparently did not hesitate to satirize Boss Tweed (Williams, p. 142), and "Harrigan provided one of the best portraits in song of the Irish political boss in 'Old Boss Barry' from Waddy Gogan (1988)" (Williams, p. 143).

An excellent portrayal of a city boss it may have been, and it featured Harrigan flipping from playing an Irishman to playing an Italian with great verve (Moody, pp. 181-182), but as a show it had a relatively short run -- apparently less than three months (Franceschina, p. 189).

Bibliography

- Williams: William H. A. Williams, 'Twas Only an Irishman's Dream, University of Illinois Press, 1996

Last updated in version 5.2
File: HaBr)lBB

Old Brass Wagon

DESCRIPTION: Playparty: "Circle to the left, Old Brass Wagon, You're the one, my darling." "Swing oh swing, Old Brass Wagon...." "Promenade home...." "Shottische up and down...." "Break and swing...." "We'll all run away with the old brass wagon...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1911 (JAFL 24)
KEYWORDS: playparty travel
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE,So)
REFERENCES (7 citations):
  Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 76-77=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 156-157, "Old Brass Wagon" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Randolph 527, "The Old Brass Wagon" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 159, "Old Brass Wagon" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, p. 153, "Little Brass Wagon" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #127, "Old Brass Wagon" (1 text)
  Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, pp. 129-130, "Little Brass Wagon" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 388, "Little Brass Wagon" (1 text)
ST San159 (Full)
Roud #5034
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Ten Little Indians (John Brown Had a Little Indian)" (tune)
File: San159

Old Brig, The

DESCRIPTION: Shanty. Verses relate various problems with the ship, an inept and/or drunk bosun, captain and/or cook, bad food. The usual sailor complaints, some of them probably justified. Hugill had four different language texts for this, all basically the same song.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Opsang fra Seilskibstiden)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Shanty. Verses relate various problems with the ship, an inept and/or drunk bosun, captain and/or cook, bad food. The usual sailor complaints, some of them probably justified. Hugill had four different language texts for this, all basically the same song. Different versions listed were "Svineper" (a.k.a. The Dirty Old Pig, The Old Brig)-Norwegian, "Den Gamla Briggen"-Swedish, "Die Gut Alte Brigg"-German.
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage shanty ship cook
FOUND IN: Norway Sweden Germany
Old Brown Coat, The

DESCRIPTION: "...Come listen while I sing about The old brown coat and me." Having worked long on his father's farm, the singer at last gets his own property. The girl he loves favored another, but he proved guilty of theft. She turns to the singer; they live happily

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1918 (Cox)
KEYWORDS: love courting clothes marriage family home work
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 791, "The Old Brown Coat" (1 text)
Cox/Hercog/Halpert/Boswell-WVirginia-B, #26, pp. 190-192, "My Old Brown Coat and Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST R791 (Partial)
Roud #3114
RECORDINGS:
Lawrence Older, "My Old Brown Coat and Me" (on LOlder01)
File: R791

Old Brown Sat in "The Rose and Crown"

DESCRIPTION: Brown in the pub is talking about the war and drawing the lines on the table with beer. "Five minutes" is called. Not enough time, complains Brown. "For another half pint and we'd been in Berlin. Do you want us to lose the war?"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (recording, Albert Smith)
KEYWORDS: war drink humorous nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
RECORDINGS:
Albert Smith, "Old Brown Sat in 'The Rose and Crown'" (on Voice14)
File: Rc0BSIRC

Old Brown's Daughter

DESCRIPTION: "There lives an ancient party At the other end of town, He keeps a llittle chandler's shop, His ancient name is Brown." The singer admires his daughter and wishes he were Brown's son-in-law. Brown demands a lord. He hopes to run for parliament to win her

AUTHOR: G. W. Hunt? (1839-1904)
EARLIEST DATE: before 1900 (Bodleian broadside Firth c.26(310)); Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports says it was written in the early 1870s
KEYWORDS: love courting humorous nobility
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Old Bullock Dray, The

DESCRIPTION: The bullock driver is preparing for a good life in the bush. He seeks a wife, and prepares to head out to find land. He urges others along: "So it's roll up your blankets, and let's make a push; I'll take you upcountry and show you the bush...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Paterson's _Old Bush Songs_)

KEYWORDS: Australia travel settler

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (11 citations):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, p. 127, "The Old Bullock Dray" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 66-67, "The Old Bullock Dray" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fahey-PintPotAndBilly, pp. 34-35, "The Old Bullock Dray" (1 text, 1 tune)
Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, pp. 140-141, "The Old Bullock Dray" (1 text, 1 tune)
Paterson/Fahey/Seal-OldBushSongs-CentenaryEdition, pp. 143-149, "The Old Bullock Dray" (1 text)
Scott-ACollectorsNotebook-31TraditionalSongs, p. 20, "The Old Bullock Dray" (1 text, 1 tune, but only the chorus is from Scott's informant)

RECORDINGS:
Bill Beatty, _A Treasury of Australian Folk Tales & Traditions_, 1960 (I use the 1969 Walkabout Paperbacks edition), pp. 299-300, "The Old Bullock Dray" (1 text)
Settlers in Australia had two major problems: Lack of women (since most convicts were men) and lack of land (since the good properties had been snatched up by early settlers and the wealthy). In 1861, Sir John Robertson (the "Jackie Robertson" of some versions of the song) promoted the New South Wales Free Selection Act, which made at least some land available to newcomers. Although it didn't really solve the problem, it promoted the era of good feeling apparently described in this song.

The "depot" mentioned in some texts is the compound at Parramatta where female immigrants were kept. Referred to as the "Female Factory," it allowed settlers to come in and seek wives.

Gwenda Beed Davey and Graham Seal, A Guide to Australian Folklore, Kangaroo Press, 2003, p. 203, observe that "the song does not note if the bullocky was successful." - RBW

Old Cabin Home, The

DESCRIPTION: "I am going far, far away to leave you now, To the Mississippi River I am going"; he will take his banjo and sing "Way down in my old cabin home." He will go to the graves of his sister and brother. He will leave "with all this darky band."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart-Songs)
KEYWORDS: home death return river music
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Heart-Songs, p. 457, "The Old Cabin Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #128, "Old Cabin Home" (1 text)
Roud #17575
File: JMSo128

Old Camp Meetin'

DESCRIPTION: "Long ago, when but a boy, at old camp meeting time, How my heart would leap with joy...." "I like the old time preachin', prayin', shoutin', singin'...." The singer remembers his father celebrating

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (collected by Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains from Ruby Vass)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains, pp. 93-94, "Old Camp Meetin" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7334
File: Shel093

Old Canal, The

DESCRIPTION: "There's a little silver ribbon runs across the Buckeye State, 'Tis the dearest place of all this earth to me." "Cleveland is the northern end and Portsmouth is the south." The singer describes the places along his "pal," the Ohio-Erie canal

AUTHOR: probably Pearl R. Nye
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (OHS)
KEYWORDS: ship travel
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: [no author listed], Scenes & Songs of the Ohio-Erie Canal, Ohio Historical Society, 1971, "The Old Canal" (1 text, 1 tune, from Pearl R. Nye)
NOTES [161 words]: According to the notes in the Ohio Historical Society booklet, Pearl R. Nye had about 80 verses of this song describing points along the Ohio-Erie Canal (not to be confused with the Erie Canal; it ran from Cleveland on Lake Erie to Columbus, Ohio and on down to the Ohio River at Portsmouth). They cut it down to six, and even that is probably more than a non-canaller would want to sing. One wonders if Nye's version was related to a piloting song, giving navigation hints for the canal. Although called a "canal," much of the distance was actually along rivers, with canals connecting them. Based on various online maps, it appears it started in Cleveland running down the Cuyahoga River. A true canal took it generally south to the Tuscarawas. From there it wanders mostly west and a little south, partly by river, partly by various creeks, until it reached the Scioto River near Columbus. Then it went down the Scioto to reach the Ohio River at Portsmouth. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: OHS01dCa

Old Carathee
DESCRIPTION: Sean McNamara from County Down looks for a wife in Carathee. First, Red Danny shows him his selection. He picks Julia, a hawker. The first month they are happy. The second they argue. The third she beats him. You can find such a wife in Carathee.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1967 (recording, John Reilly)
KEYWORDS: marriage violence humorous wife
FOUND IN: Ireland
Roud #3377
RECORDINGS:
John Reilly, "Old Carathee" (on Voice15)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Devilish Mary" [Laws Q4] (theme)
NOTES [91 words]: Hall, notes to Voice15: "'Old Carathee' tells of an Irish traveller, who chooses for a wife at a fair, thinking she would make him a good hawker."
Musical Traditions site Voice of the People suite "Reviews - Volume 15" by Fred McCormick - 27.2.99: "John Reilly's 'Old Carathee,' is about a bachelor who obtains a wife at a horse fair and ends up with a less than blissful match. Matrimonial bargains of this kind were common in Ireland at one time and survive into the present with the famous matchmaking fair at Lisdoonvarna in County Clare." - BS
File: RcOlCara

Old Cass, The
DESCRIPTION: "For six long months we heard the crash As pine trees met their doom. At night we sang the songs we learned When driving to the boom." In spring, they put the logs on the river, filling the banks. Every year, the river "claimed A driver for her toll."
AUTHOR: Henry Dodge (source: Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps)
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (JournalOfAmericanFolklore 59, according to Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps)
KEYWORDS: logger travel hardtimes death river lumbering
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 15, "The Old Cass" (1 text)
Roud #18195
File: BeLo015

Old Church Yard, The
DESCRIPTION: "Oh come, come with me to the old church yard, I well know the path through the soft green sward, Our friends slumber there we were wont to regard." The singer recalls the dead, gone from their troubles, and points out that they will rise again
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Frances E. Percival, "Sweet Home, or, Friendship's Golden Altar")
KEYWORDS: religious death
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Randolph 620, "The Old Church Yard" (1 text, 1 tune)

Abrahams/Riddle-ASingerAndHerSongs, pp. 90-91, "The Old Church Yard" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1716, p. 115, "The Old Kirk-Yard" (1 reference)

Roud #3386

NOTES [57 words]: Randolph was told that this was a Millerite (early Adventist) hymn. If this was typical of their music, that might go almost as far to explain the failure of the Millerites as the fact that Miller's predictions of the end of the world were consistently wrong. It appears in fact to be an Americanization of the song "The old kirk-yard." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1

File: R620

---

Old Cloak, The

DESCRIPTION: In winter, the old wife urges the old man to go out and bring the cow in from the cold. He protests; his cloak is too old and thin. She reminds him of their history, and of the dangers of pride. At last he, to end the strife, goes out to care for the cow

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1724 (_Tea-Table Miscellany_, according to Chambers)

KEYWORDS: dialog husband wife

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (9 citations):
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #71, p. 2, "Tak' Your Auld Cloak About Ye" (1 fragment)
- Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, pp. 91-92, "The Auld Cloak" (1 text)
- Percy/Wheatley-ReliquesOfAncientEnglishPoetry I, pp. 195-198, "Take Thy Old Cloak About Thee" (1 text)
- HarvardClassics-EnglishPoetryChaucerToGray, pp. 188-189, "The Old Cloak" (1 text)
- Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 170, "The Old Cloak" (1 text)
- ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Scottish Songs (Edinburgh, 1829 ("Digitized by Google")), Vol I, pp. 139-140, "Tak Your Auld Cloak About Ye" (1 text)
- Robert Ford, editor, Vagabond Songs and Ballads of Scotland [second series] (Paisley, 1901 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 259-261, "Tak' Your Auld Cloak About Ye" (1 text, 1 tune)
- James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume III, #250, pp. 258-259, "Tak your auld cloak about ye" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST OBB170 (Partial)

Roud #8207

NOTES [130 words]: Chambers: "From the Tea-Table Miscellany, 1724. This excellent old song, however, was probably written before the close of the sixteenth century' as its measure and versification unequivocally belong to that period."

There is an item currently on Google Books identified as the 1724 edition of The Tea-Table Miscellany by Allan Ramsay that does not include this song. However, the title page is missing and while the Preface is by Ramsay and is dated 1724, the exact same Preface and date is in the 1733 edition. - BS

One of Percy's stanzas, beginning "King Stephen was a worthy peer," is quoted in Shakespeare's Othello (II.iii.80). But this stanza has nothing to do with the general plot of this song; I can't help but wonder if it is not some broadside-maker's insertion. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2

File: OBB170

---

Old Coon Dog (I)

DESCRIPTION: "The raccoon is a cunning thing, He travels after dark, He never takes to a tree, But I hear old Ranger bark.... When I bust this punkin head, One, two, by three." "Somebody stole my own coon dog...." "Somebody stole my bunny pullet." Other verses float

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (Roberts-SangBranchSettlers)

KEYWORDS: floatingverses nonballad dog animal bird travel
Old Country Party, The

DESCRIPTION: "Say, did ye iver go till an ould country party." The singer describes his first. He describes the food and punch, music and dancing until "the bottle was dry." Now he's away from home and "the tears rushes into me eyes" when he thinks of those days.

AUTHOR: Harry M Palmer

EARLIEST DATE: before 1865 (broadside, LOCSinging sb30374b)

KEYWORDS: homesickness dancing drink music party nonballad moniker

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 95, "The Old Country Party" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1700, p. 114, "The Old Country Party" (2 references)

Roud #V27349

BROADSIDES:
LOCSinging, sb30374b, "The Old Country Party", H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864; also as202780, "The Old Country Party"
Bodleian, Harding B 18(380), "The Old Country Party", H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Irishman's Shanty" (tune)

NOTES [38 words]: Broadsides LOCSinging sb30374b and Bodleian Harding B 18(380): H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS

Last updated in version 5.1

File: OCon095

Old Cow Died of Whooping Cough

DESCRIPTION: "Old cow died of whooping cough, Baby cow died of measles, Father died with a spoon in his mouth An carried it off to Jesus."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)

KEYWORDS: cattle death father animal

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 183, "Old Cow Died of Whooping Cough" (1 short text, 1 tune)

Roud #11368

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Jaybird Died With the Whooping Cough" (theme of animal disease)

NOTES [390 words]: Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric notes the similarity to "Jaybird Died With the Whooping Cough." I suspect this is derived from one or another "Whooping Cough" song, but with so little text, it's not possible to tell which.

Incidentally, internet sources report that whooping cough is a human disease which cannot be transmitted to and from animals (let alone birds, as in "Jaybird Died With the Whooping Cough"), but that there are conditions which can result in a mammal coughing in a similar way. I've never heard a bird cough, though. A baby cow would not die of measles per se, since it's a human disease, but according to a science program I heard on the BBC in June 2020, measles is believed to be a close relative of the cattle disease rinderpest; the estimate is that the two split off around 2500 B.C.E. Thus it is perfectly possible that the baby cow died of rinderpest, which would look like measles. Incidentally, it can't happen now; good sanitation measures rendered rinderpest extinct in 2011. Measles would be extinct also, were it not for anti-vaxers, but certain sub-types of humans are stupider than cattle.

Rinderpest is certainly highly virulent; it has great cultural significance, e.g., in South Africa, "where it broke out in 1896; described as 'the greatest cultural shock eer sustained by the agricultural community of S.A.'; it was "deadly, implacable, moving faster than the railway, through lands where there were no railways, without a cure, without regard to political or other boundaries" (see Jean Branford, A Dictionary of South African English, Oxford University Press, 1978, p. 202).

Incidentally, if we look at a family tree for all the animals mentioned in "measles" songs, cows are closest to sheep, then pigs, then horses. That group then joins another group containing carnivora such as cats and dogs. That brings us to a major split in the order mammalia, with rodents and primates on the other side of the split. In other words, to oversimplify dramatically, we have a tree that looks like this:

```plaintext
           /-
          / |
         /  | -Cats, cows, dogs, horses, pigs, sheep
         |   .--Humans, apes, monkeys, rodents, rabbits
        .

Thus, as between measles and rinderpest, since pigs, sheep, cats, dogs, and horses are closer to cows than they are to humans, we can hypothesize that they are more prone to rinderpest rather than measles. - RBW
```

Last updated in version 5.3
File: Brne183

Old Cow Died, The (Little Girl)

DESCRIPTION: Game song, solo question, group answer: "Annie/Little girl, little girl,' 'Yes, ma'am," "Did you go over the river?" "The old cow died, sail around." "Did you give her hot water? Yes, ma'am." "Did you send for the doctor?" "Did she die of the cholera?"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: animal death dialog playparty food wedding food wine nonballad bird
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight, pp. 114-115, "Shoo Turkey Shoo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 396. "The Old Cow Died" (1 text)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 141-142, "Little Girl" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: John Stewart, Bessie Jones: For the Ancestors (Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1983), pp. 69-71, "Shoo Turkey" (1 text)

Roud #11598

RECORDINGS:
Janie Hunter, Mary Pinckney, and their children, "Shoo Turkey" (BeenStorm1)
NOTES [143 words]: The Scarborough and Silber texts are noticeably distinct, Silber's being about the death of the cow while Scarborough's is intent upon the dialog and an adult asking a child about her activities (harvesting an egg, making corn pone, eating it, etc.) But the form is close enough that I've lumped them; the details of such songs are easily remade. - RBW

The "Shoo turkey" line is also in Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 #140, indexed as "Banbury Cross": "My turkey, your turkey. Shoo turkey, shoo!" The line seems out of place in Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 and may have floated there from this game.

BeenStorm1 liner notes have no performer credits for this song. Janie Hunter, Mary Pinckney, and their children sing the song in Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight and seem the likely performers on the record. - BS

Last updated in version 4.0
File: FSWB396A
Old Cowboy, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls the hardships of his life as a cowboy "I've drunk water from the cow tracks, boys, when you bet it tasted good"; "I've starved and ate of the prickly pear"; "Been tortured by the Apaches." But now new cowboys are replacing him.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966
KEYWORDS: cowboy work hardtimes
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 110, "The Old Cowboy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11088
File: FCW110

Old Cowman, The

DESCRIPTION: "When the sap comes up through the cottonwood roots, And the first birds light 'mongst the quaking asp shoots," the singer becomes restless to meet his mates. He wants to be out on the range "Till the boss of all herders sings, 'Peace, be still.'"

AUTHOR: Scott Levitt (source: Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: cowboy travel death
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 112-113, "The Old Cowman" (1 text)
File: ThLo112

Old Dan Tucker

DESCRIPTION: Vignettes: Old Dan Tucker arrives to court the girls, sell his produce, and/or get drunk. Example: "Old Dan went down to the mill / To get some meal to put in the swill. / The miller swore by the point of his knife / He never seen such a man in his life."

AUTHOR: attributed to Daniel Decatur Emmett
EARLIEST DATE: 1841? (Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo says 1843)
KEYWORDS: bawdy playparty talltale
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,Ro,SE,So) Australia New Zealand
REFERENCES (34 citations):
Randolph 521, "Old Dan Tucker" (3 texts plus 2 excerpts, 1 tune)
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 431-433, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 tune, 3 texts)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, pp. 148-149, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 82, "Old Dan Tucker" (6 texts); 509, "Nigger in the Woodpile" (1 two-line fragment, probably this though the vulgar idiom of the title is obviously common to many songs)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 82, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 tuns plus a text excerpt)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 188, (no title) (2 fragments, one clearly this and the other a Dan Tucker stanza but with "Ole Aunt Dinah" in Dan's place); also p. 199, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, with a verse from this song though it has a chorus about "Sambo")
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 129, "Old Miss Wilson" (1 fragment, clearly this song although "Old Miss Wilson" has replaced "Old Dan Tucker")
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, p. 219, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 short text)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 86, "Old Dan Tucker" (4 short text)
Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 78-80=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 180-182, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 274, "(Old Dan Tucker)" (1 short text, probably localized)
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 176-177, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 163, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text)
Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, p. 140, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 fragment)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #88, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee 81, pp. 130-132, "Walk, Tom Wilson" (1 text, 1 tune, about half "Old Dan Tucker" and half "Walk Tom Wilson," with probably a few other stray elements as well)

Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol4, pp. 28-30, "Old Dan Tucker" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, p. 155, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 78-81, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune, plus many sundry verses)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #200, "Old Dan Tucker" (3 texts)
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, p. 263, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 133, "(Dan, Dan, the dirty man)" (1 short text)
Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 160-162, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-FolkSongUSA 27, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 258-262, "Old Dan Tucker" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Coleman/Bregman-SongsOfAmericanFolks, pp. 28-29, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, pp. 34-35, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text)
Seegeer-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 52, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 240, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text)
Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 81, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text)
Heart-Songs, pp. 174-175, "Old Dan Tucker" (1 text, 1 tune)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Archie Green, "A Literary Contribution to the Creation of an American Folk Hero: Dan Tucker in Roakoke," Vol. XL, No. 2 (Summer-Fall 1993), pp. 49-69, (citations only)

DT, DANTUCKR

ADDITIONAL: Richard M. Dorson, _Buying the Wind: Regional Folklore in the United States_, University of Chicago Press, 1964, pp. 382-384, "Old Dan Tucker" (2 texts, 1 tune)
ST R521 (Full)
Roud #390

RECORDINGS:
Bentley Ball, "Old Dan Tucker" (Columbia A3087, 1920)
Harry C. Browne "Old Dan Tucker" (Columbia A1999, 1916; on Protobilly)
Fiddlin' John Carson, "Old Dan Tucker" (OKeh 40263, 1925; rec. 1924)
Pat Ford, "Old Dan Tucker" [fragment] (AFS A 4211 B2, 1939; in AMMEM/Cowell)
Al Hopkins & his Buckle Busters, "Old Dan Tucker" (Brunswick 295, 1929; rec. 1928)
Charlie Jones & his Kentucky Corn Crackers, "Old Dan Tucker" (Rondo R-168, n.d., prob. late 1940s)
Uncle Dave Macon, "Old Dan Tucker" (Vocalion 15033, 1925)
Pete Seeger, "Old Dan Tucker" (on PeteSeeger17)
Judge Sturdy's Orchestra "Old Dan Tucker" (Victor 20102, 1926; rec. 1925)
Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers, "Old Dan Tucker" (Columbia 15382-D, 1929; rec. 1928; on Protobilly)
Dan Tate, "Old Dan Tucker" (on FarMtns2)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 15(227a), "Old Dan Tucker" ("Dan Tucker lived in a nice little hut"), Birt (London), 1833-1851; also Harding B 11(3639), Harding B 15(227a), Harding B 15(84a), "[Old Dan Tucker" ("Dan Tucker lived in a nice little hut"); Harding B 11(952), "Old Dan Tucker" ("I came across de ocean wide"); Harding B 11(927), Firth b.28(38) View 2 of 2[some words illegible], "Ole Tan Tucker"("Ole Tan Tucker cum to town one night"); Harding B 15(227b), Firth c.17(70), "Old Dan Tucker" ("I came ober here de oder day")
LOCSheet, sm1843 031800, "Old Dan Tucker" ("I come to town de oder night"), F. D. Benteen (), 1843 (tune); also sm1845 791510, "Old Dan Tucker"("I come to town de udder night"), (tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Clear the Track" (tune)
cf. "Johnny, Get Your Gun (II)" (floating lyrics)
cf. "The End of Big Bill Snyder" (tune)
cf. "Old Ann Tucker" (derivative: female version)

SAME TUNE:
Clear the Track (I) (File: SCW48)
Bryan Campaign Song (File: Wels078B)
The End of Big Bill Snyder (Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, pp. 30-31)
The Workingman's Train ("Ho, the car Emancipation, Leaves to-day, Industrial station") (by E. R.
Old Darling

DESCRIPTION: Singer, a mule-driver, describes driving his team at a fast pace when Old Darling (the boss) reproaches him for breaking the rules. The singer offers to break Mr. Darling; then tells listeners not to tow to Slocum, because the food is rotten.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)

KEYWORDS: warning work boss animal

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 31, "Old Darling" (1 text)
Roud #8855

NOTES [30 words]: In the early days, the teamsters in the pinewoods drove oxen, later horses and (less often) mules.
The last verse is almost certainly tacked on from a completely different song. - PJS

Old Dash

DESCRIPTION: "The bairns will miss you when you're dead, They'll mark the place where rests your head. And down their cheeks the crystal bead Will sure distill." "You've had your time and you must go," "But dogs and men must yield to fate."

AUTHOR: Words: John Barr (source: Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry)

EARLIEST DATE: 2010 (Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry; most Barr poems were published in "Poems and songs" in 1861)

KEYWORDS: death children dog

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 34, "Old Dash" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [74 words]: According to Gordon McLauchlan, editor-in-chief, New Zealand Encyclopedia, David Bateman Limited, 1984, p. 46, "BARR, John (1809-89) was born in Paisley, Scotland and emigrated to N[ew] Z[ealand] in 1852, settling in Dunedin. He became a well-known poet and songwriter, contributing to the Otago Witness and Saturday Advertiser. His Poems and Songs was published in 1861 and revised and reissued in 1874. He inaugurated the Burns Club. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2

Old David Ward

DESCRIPTION: Singer describes working in a lumber camp for David Ward, including a thieving foreman, an unpleasant employer, and a crooked scaler. The singer vows to leave and not return.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan)

KEYWORDS: work lumbering logger nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 115, "David Ward" (1 text)
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 14, "Old David Ward" (1 text)
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp. 230-33, "Old David Ward" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 117, "Old David Ward" (1 text)
Roud #6498

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Lumber Camp Song" and references there

NOTES [209 words]: David E. Ward lumbered much territory north of Cadillac, Michigan; a small island village in the Manistee River, "Deward," is named for him. - PJS

Bruce Catton, Michigan, A History, 1972, 1976 (I use the 1984 Norton edition), pp. 106-107, has a brief summary of how Ward became a force in the timber industry. He was a "land-looker" or a "timber-cruiser" -- that is, someone who scouted the woods of Michigan looking for quality pine groves suitable for logging. In 1854, he found a good pine stand "far up between the headwaters of the Manistee and Au Sable rivers, which was a long, long way from anywhere in those days" -- but, being by the rivers, was a place where logging could take place. Ward believed another land-looker, Addison Brewer, had also found the spot, so Ward had to somehow get back to Detroit to raise the money to register and pay for the find, then get to the land office in Ionia, Michigan. So he hikes eighty miles through un-tracked forest, then paddled eighty miles to Saginaw, went from there to Detroit to get the money, made an eighteen-hour coach run to Lansing, caught a stage to Ionia, and registered his claim. It took him more than a week, but he won the race -- and his reputation as a hard driver was established. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
Old Doctor Collins (Celie)

DESCRIPTION: "Old Doctor Collins, He's a merry man (x3). Old Doctor Collins, He's a merry man, What makes you treat me so?" "Young ladies all, see that... Come in my ladies' garden." "Sam Jones is bound, Come into..." "Swing your sweetheard, see that, Come into..."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida)
KEYWORDS: nonballad playparty dancing gardening
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #124, "Old Doctor Collins" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, p. 103, "To London" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11421

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Celie
Sealy

NOTES [83 words]: This is one of those pieces that has no unifying theme and no unifying character; at one end we have Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida's version that is about Doctor Collins; at the far extreme we have Abernethy-SinginTexas's that is about travel to London, with no characters at all except "Celie" ("Sealy," "Celia," "Cecilia"). The extreme versions look like different songs, but there are so many intermediate versions that there is no good way to draw a line. So I've followed Roud in lumping them. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.5
File: Morr124

Old Dog Tray

DESCRIPTION: "The morning of life is past, And evening comes at last, It brings me dreams of a once happy day... Sporting with my old dog Tray." The singer notes that people come and go, but dogs stay faithful. He concludes he will never have a better friend

AUTHOR: Stephen C. Foster
EARLIEST DATE: 1853
KEYWORDS: dog age nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Thompson-APioneerSongster 67, "Old Dog Tray" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1701, pp. 114-115, "Old Dog Tray" (3 references)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, p. 52, "Old Dog Tray" (1 text)
Heart-Songs, pp. 156-157, "My Old Dog Tray" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #68, "Old Dog Tray" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 396, "Old Dog Tray" (1 text)
Roud #2667

BROADSIDES:
LOCSheet, sm1853 740400, "Old Dog Tray," Firth, Pond and Co (New York), 1853 (1 text, 1 tune)
LOCSinging, sb30371a, "Old Dog Tray," J. Andrews (New York), 1853-1859; also as110140, "Old Dog Tray"

SAME TUNE:
Old Dog Tray No. 2 ("The morning meal is past, the next is coming fast") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 115)
The Volunteer Fireman ("The evening hour doth wane") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 167)
Yankee Fixins ("I don't mind telling you I can bake and boil and stew") (Thatcher-ColonialMinstrelSongsters, p. 172; the song is in the "Victoria Songster" but is not said to be by Thatcher)
(Parody on) Od Dog Tray ("But, unless my watch is fast, The morning time is past") (by Charles R. Thatcher, in the "Victoria Songster") (Thatcher-ColonialMinstrel-Songsters, p. 180)

NOTES [242 words]: "Tray" for some reason seems to have been a popular name for dogs in the early nineteenth century. Thomas Campbell (1777-1844) wrote a piece called "My Dog Tray," about a dog faithful to his Irish master, with enough thematic similarities to this that I suspect dependence. And there seems to have been another My Dog Tray" piece by John Bryon. Also, Henry Randall Waite, Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 17, prints a brief "Old Dog Tray" text: "Old dog Tray, ever faithful, Grief cannot drive him away...."
According to Deems Taylor et al, A Treasury of Stephen Foster, Random House, 1946, p. 103, "With the possible exception of Oh! Susanna, Old Dog Tray ranked next in popularity in the 1850's to Old Folks at Home and My Old Kentucky Home. In less than four years it earned over a thousand dollars. According to Stephen's brother, Morrison, 'Tray' was a real dog, a handsome setter which had been given to Stephen by Colonel Matthew I. Stewart, a friend of the Foster family. At that time the Fosters lived in a house facing the East Common of Allegheny, and Stephen loved to watch this dog playing with the children on the Common." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0
File: FSWB396B

Old Donoughmore

DESCRIPTION: Pat travels alone at night on his way home to Donoughmore. He stops to sleep on the ground. He dreams of playing games and frightens a weasel back to its lair. Then a pony kicks him and brings him back to reality.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: home travel dream horse injury
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 107, "Old Donoughmore" (1 text)
Roud #16262
File: OCC107

Old Dumpty Moore

DESCRIPTION: (Old Dumpty/Darby) rides his mare everywhere, until it grows too (old/stubborn) to ride. The mare goes down into the swamp and dies. The neighbours cook it, and "From the top of her head to the end of her tail Old Dumpty ate his way!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: animal horse death food
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 427, "Old Dumpty Moore" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #7633
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Poor Old Man (Poor Old Horse; The Dead Horse)" (plot elements)
File: R427

Old Dun Cow, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer describes the home of Dolly, "the girl I would like to make my spouse." He is bemused by the sight of her "milking her old dun cow." He hopes to win her love; "I'll get married very soon, tomorrow afternoon, for I feel in the humour now."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love courting marriage animal
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H492, p. 238, "The Old Dun Cow" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9473
NOTES [10 words]: Not to be confused with "When the Old Dun Cow Caught Fire." - RBW
File: HHH492
Old Elm Tree, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls old elm tree by the mill where he courted Laura. They become engaged, he goes to sea. In his absence, others convince her he was untrue. She dies for love and is buried beneath the old elm tree
AUTHOR: Words: Sarah S. Bolton/Music: Joseph Philbrick Webster
EARLIEST DATE: 1871
KEYWORDS: courting sea death burial
FOUND IN: US(MW,NE,So) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 27-28, "The Old Elm Tree" (1 text)
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, p. 221, "The Old Elm Tree" (1 text)
Randolph 708, "The Old Elm Tree" (1 text)
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, pp. 174-176, "The Old Elm Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 47, "The Old Elm Tree" (1 text, 1 tune) DT, OLDELM*
Roud #2795
RECORDINGS:
Eugene Jemison, "The Old Elm Tree" (on Jem01)
File: R708

Old England Forty Years Ago
DESCRIPTION: England never accepted our independence forty years ago. Now Madison leads us against England again. Fighters and battles of the new war are named. "We've checked the rage of British pride"
AUTHOR: Words: Silas Ballou (source: Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster)
EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Thompson-APioneerSongster)
KEYWORDS: war commerce America England moniker nonballad patriotic
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Thompson-APioneerSongster 48, "Old England Forty Years Ago" (1 text)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 22-25, "Old England Forty Years Ago" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2824
NOTES [153 words]: The organization of this song is interesting. After praising James Madison (president 1809-1817, but generally regarded as a poor wartime leader), it lists naval heroes -- (Stephen) Decatur, Isaac Hull (for whom see "The Constitution and the Guerriere" [Laws A6], (William) Bainbridge (hardly a great hero; see the notes to "Charge the Can Cheerily"), Perry (Oliver Hazard Perry, for whom see "James Bird" [Laws A5]), Macdonough (Thomas Macdonough, for whom see "The Siege of Plattsburg"). Then the song quickly gets William Hull, who gave up Detroit, out of the way (for this see "Brave General Brock" [Laws A22]) and starts in on successful army commanders: Harrison (for William Henry Harrison's full career, see "Old Tippecanoe"); Miller, Ripley, Gaines, Scott, and Brown (most of whom served at Lundy's Lane; see the notes to "The Battle of Bridgewater"); and Jackson (see "The Battle of New Orleans" [Laws A7]). - RBW
Last updated in version 3.0
File: TPS048

Old English Gentleman, The
DESCRIPTION: "I'll sing you a good old song That was made by a good old pate, Of a fine old English gentleman Who had an old estate." He lived comfortably, and he fed the poor in winter. But he died, and now there are no gentlemen, young or old
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (Henderson-VictorianStreetBallads)
KEYWORDS: death food hardtimes
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Old Enoch

DESCRIPTION: The singer is a dabster at stealing. He steals Enoch and Bill's pork and John Wood's wheat, and sheep, and a beehive. He feeds his friends who'd never believe he's a thief "for I'm called a nice man"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Thompson-APioneerSongster)

KEYWORDS: bragging theft food humorous thief

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-APioneerSongster 88, "Old Enoch" (1 text)
Roud #2851

NOTES [16 words]: Thompson-APioneerSongster: "The word 'dabster' means 'expert.'" [Compare "dab hand." - RBW] - BS

Last updated in version 2.8

File: TPS088

Old Eph Grizzard

DESCRIPTION: Song with sound effects: "Old Efp Grizzard (Fft!), Dead and gone (Fft!), Gone to the evil, Just as sho' as you' born! (Fft!) Eph! (Fft!) (x2), Gimme piece of beef! (Fft!), Gimme piece of liver! (Fft!). Hung old Eph on the Cumberland River...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (collected from C. C. Walton by Boswell)

KEYWORDS: nonballad food execution river

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee 62, pp. 102-103, "Old Eph Grizzard" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11029

File: BoWo062

Old Erin

DESCRIPTION: "Old Erin, my country, I love the green bowers. No music to me like the murmuring rill. And the shamrock to me is the fairest of flowers... Oh, but where is the nation that could rival old Erin, Oh where is the country such heroes can boast?"

AUTHOR: unknown
Old Farm Gate, The

DESCRIPTION: "The old farm gate hangs sagging down"; it is old, rusty, and almost useless. Once children played on it, lovers courted by it, funerals passed through it. But all this was long ago, and "Time passes so quickly away"

AUTHOR: L. C. Wegefarth?
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: nonballad home
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 852, "The Old Farm Gate" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 476-478, "The Old Farm Gate" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 852)
Roud #7452
NOTES [58 words]: This is not the same as Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1704, p. 115, "The Old Farm Gate," which begins, "Where, where is the gate that once used to divide, The old shaded lane from the grassy road side." The latter song, with words by Eliza Cook and music by Henry Russell, talks about a new, more attractive gate that the singer nonetheless dislikes. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.5
File: R852

Old Farmer (I), The

DESCRIPTION: "I have been travelling (twenty) long years, I have rambled about in the world." "There's none can compare with the fellow that follows the plow." Farmers, millers, soldiers, parsons, excisemen all depend on the work of ploughmen

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1891 (Barrett)
KEYWORDS: farming work nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #24, "The Old Farmer" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1178
File: PECS024

Old Farmer John

DESCRIPTION: "Old farmer John expects a son Some time in this November"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: farming
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1924, "Old Farmer John" (1 fragment)
Roud #15123
Old Farmer of Tetford, The

DESCRIPTION: An old farmer keeps his seven servants "on rotten tup mutton and sour small beer." He has a maggoty mutton pie made "on the sly" of "an old yowe dead a week yesterday." Servants and horses are "all skin and bone." The servants complain but work anyway.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (OShaughnessy-YellowbellyBalladsPart2)

KEYWORDS: greed farming food horse sheep servant humorous hardtimes

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,North))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- OShaughnessy-YellowbellyBalladsPart2 33, "The Old Farmer of Tetford" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #34, "Mutton Pie" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Gardham-EastRidingSongster 17, pp. 22-23, 17, "Mutton Pie" (4 texts, 1 tune)

Roud #1408

File: OSY233

Old Father Christmas

DESCRIPTION: "(Here I come/In come I), old Father Christmas, Perhaps welcome, perhaps not; I hope old Father Christmas Will never be forgot." A verse found in many mummers' plays.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Simpson)

KEYWORDS: recitation nonballad Christmas

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- ADDITIONAL: Jacqueline Simpson, _The Folklore of Sussex_, B. T. Batsford, 1973, p. 147, "(In come I, old Father Christmas)" (1 short text)

File: Simp157

Old Father Christmas, Guess What He Did

DESCRIPTION: "Old Father Christmas, guess what he did, Upset the cradle, Out fell the kid. The kid began to bubble, So he hit him with shovel, O-U-T spells out, And out you much go for saying so."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty baby Christmas

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 99, "(Old Father Christmas, guess what he did)" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "One Two Three Four, Mary at the Cottage Door" ("O-U-T spells out" lyric) and references there

File: SuSm099B

Old Father Gray

DESCRIPTION: "You've all heard of old Father Gray, Traveled over land and traveled over sea. (Chorus:) Wheel around and drive the Yankees back And make them know their places." The Yankees are driven back, and the girls encouraged to give their seats to gentlemen

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: courting battle playparty

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Old Fish Song, The

DESCRIPTION: Humorous retelling of the Jonah myth. Jonah is ordered by God to preach repentance to Nineveh. Not wanting the job, he goes to sea. God raises a storm; the sailors throw Jonah overboard. He is swallowed by a whale. Children are warned to obey.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (field recording, Blind James Howard)

LONG DESCRIPTION: God sees that the people of Nineveh are wicked, and sends Jonah to preach to them. Jonah says he's a hard-shell Baptist and refuses to go, being against foreign missions. He gets on a ship, but God, angered, raises a storm and the sailors throw Jonah overboard, where he's swallowed by a whale. The whale has indigestion, and vomits Jonah back out; Jonah heads for Nineveh and preaches and prophesies until the population repents. The moral is that one should be obedient: "When you disobey mammy, remember this tale/When you run off from home, bud, look out for a whale/There's varmints to get you on sea and on land/And a boy can be swallowed lots easier than a man."

KEYWORDS: captivity travel prophecy Bible humorous religious whale gods

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Boette-SingalHipsyDoodle, pp. 148-149, " Jonah and the Whale" (1 text)
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 124-125, " The Old Fish Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, OLDFISH
Roud #7522

RECORDINGS:
Blind James Howard, "The Old Fish Song" (AFS 74A, 1933; on KMM)
New Lost City Ramblers, "The Old Fish Song" (on NLCR01, NLCRCD1)

NOTES [61 words]: This hilarious song almost certainly began its life as a printed "ballot." - PJS
Book of Jonah, ch. 1-3. In the Bible, of course, it's a great fish rather than a whale. - PJS
Interestingly, the story leaves out most of chapter 4 of Jonah, in which the repentance of Nineveh causes Jonah to get mad at God again. Perhaps it's the author who's the hard-shell Baptist. - RBW

File: CSW124

Old Folks at Home (Swanee River)

DESCRIPTION: The "darky" remembers the "old folks at home" on "de Swanee ribber." Now forced to wander, he still longs "for de old plantation." He recalls growing up on the plantation, playing with his brother, and listening to the banjo. He hopes to go home.

AUTHOR: Stephen C. Foster

EARLIEST DATE: 1851 (sheet music by Firth, Pond & Co.)

KEYWORDS: home exile family slave

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (18 citations):
Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 163-166, "Old Folks at Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 125-126, "Old Folks at Home" (1 text)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 320, "Old Folks at Home" (1 text)
Hill-PoemsAndSongsOfTheCivilWar, p. 218, "Old Folks at Home" (1 text)
Krythe-SamplerOfAmericanSongs 5, pp. 74-99, "Old Folks at Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 407-408, " Old Folks at Home"
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 83, "Swanee River" (1 text, 1 tune)
Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, pp. 268-269, "Old Folks at Home" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1707, p. 115, "Old Folks at Home" (2 references)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, pp. 15-16, "Old Folks at Home" (1 text)
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 86, "Old Folks at Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Messerli-ListenToTheMockingbird, pp. 79-80, "Old Folks at Home (Swanee River)" (1 text)
HEART-SONGS, pp. 120-121, "The Old Folks at Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #123, "Old Folks at Home" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 258, "Old Folks At Home" (1 text)
DT, OLDFOLK
ADDITIONAL: Harold Vincent Milligan, _Stephen Collins Foster: A Biography of America's Folk-Song Composer_, 1920 (I use the 2004 University of Hawaii reprint), pp. 60-60, "(no title)" (1 partial text, plus a photo of Foster's original manuscript)
William E. Strudwekk and Bruce R. Schueneman, _State Songs of the United States: An Annotated Anthology_, The Haworth Press, 1997, [I. 28-29, "(Old Folks at Home" (1 text, the modified version Florida uses as its state song; tune on p. 97)
ST RJ19163 (Full)
Roud #13880
RECORDINGS:
Bowman Sisters, "Swanee River" (Columbia 15473-D, 1929; rec. 1928)
Fiddlin' John Carson, "Swanee River" (Okeh 45139, 1927; on TimesAint02)
Monroe Quartet, "Old Folks at Home" (Okeh 45133, 1927)
Riley Puckett, "Swanee River" (Columbia 15003-D, c. 1924)
Virginia Rea & Elias Breeskin, "Old Folks at Home" (Brunswick 10013, 1920)
Paul Robeson, "Old Folks at Home" (HMV [UK] B-3664, 1930)
Pete Seeger, "Swanee River" (on PeteSeeger24)
Unidentified quartette, "Old Folks at Home" (Imperial [UK] 44961, c. 1906)
Bob Wills & his Texas Playboys, "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" (Vocalion 04387, 1938)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(1232), "The Old Folks at Home!," J.O. Bebbington (Manchester), 1855-1858; also Firth b.26(85), Firth b.26(240), Firth b.26(339), Harding B 20(268), Firth b.27(171), Firth c.6(291), Firth c.12(366), Firth b.26(378), Harding B 11(2797), "The Old Folks at Home![""
LOC Singing, sb30401b, "Old Folks at Home," H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864; also as110190, "Old Folks at Home"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
f. "Sweet Refrain" (recalls this song)
SAME TUNE:
The Factory Slave ("Toiling amid the smoke and clamor From morn till night") (Foner, p. 161)
Boatman Jim ("Up by Ohio's northern water, Boatman Jim was born") (Garfield and Arthur Campaign Song Book 1880, p. 4)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Way Down upon the Swanee River
NOTES [449 words]: The first sheet music version of this piece credits it to E.P. Christy. This was with Foster's consent; he sold Christy the right to claim authorship for $5. (Fortunately, Foster at least got the royalties on the song.) It finally appeared under his name in 1879 when the copyright was renewed.
In Foster's first draft, the river was the "Pedee," but he concluded that didn't sound right. So he and his brother Morrison scouted an atlas for a better name, finally distorting "Suwanee" (a river in south Georgia and northern Florida) into "Swanee."
For some reason, a lot of people know about that change, but don't know that the first draft makes less mention of the "old folks"; instead of reference to the "old folks at home" in the fourth line, Foster's first draft reads "Dere's wha my brudders play"; see John Tasker Howard, _Stephen Foster, America's Troubadour_, 1934 (I use the 1939 Tudor Publishing edition), p. 191.
Howard, p. 194, also says that some people have suspected that Henry Kleber had some involvement in the music for this song, but adds that there is no proof. Howard himself thinks it unlikely, and I agree -- the tune has the simplicity that marks much of Foster's earliest and best work. A more formally trained musician like Kleber probably would only have interfered.
Phillips Barry posits that this tune is derived from "Annie Laurie." If so, there was a lot of reworking done along the way.
An 1852 report says that this song had already sold 40,000 copies, and that with two, or even three, presses, the publishers still could not keep up with demand (Howard, p. 202).
Ken Emerson, _Doo-Dah! Stephen Foster and the Rise of American Popular Culture_, Da Capo, 1997?, p. 29, notes that Stephen Foster's parents lost their home very early in Foster's life, and suggests that "Foster would compose so many songs about home in part because he seldom knew one for long."

According to William E. Studwell and Bruce R. Schueneman, State Songs of the United States: An Annotated Anthology, The Haworth Press, 1997, p. 28, this is Florida's state song, although the state in 1978 altered it to read "dear ones" instead of "darkies." - RBW

LOC Sheet, sm1853 700590, "Old Folks at Home," Firth, Pond & Co. (New York), 1853 does not include words and has the attribution "Composed by Stephen C. Foster."

Another warning about relying on broadsides for anything: Bodleian, Firth b.27(171), "The Old Folks at Home!," unknown, n.d. has the note "AIR -- 'Old house at home.'" - BS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: RJ19163

Old Folks Better Up and Git to Bed

DESCRIPTION: "Old folks better up and get to bed Before the young folks get the devil in their heads."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)

KEYWORDS: age

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 752, "Old Folks Better Up and Git to Bed" (1 short text, 1 tune)

NOTES [17 words]: The current description is based on the Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 fragment. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1

File: BrS5752

Old Forty

DESCRIPTION: "I want to go further down the road." "I want to see my little baby so bad." "When Old Forty blows ran and close your door." "Some old rainy day my luck is bound to change." "Down the road sweet baby down the road"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1980 (USFlorida01)

KEYWORDS: love parting rambling train nonballad lover

FOUND IN: US(SE)

RECORDINGS:

Richard Williams, "Old Forty" (on USFlorida01)

File: RcOldFor

Old Four-Posted Beadstead, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls growing up in his grandfather's house and playing on the four-posted bedstead. He remembers his grandmother being sick and visited by the doctor and vicar/parson before she died in the bed.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1880 (broadside, LOC Sheet sm1880 13379)

KEYWORDS: home death family father mother doctor

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 262, "The Old Bedstead" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Bk 22)

Roud #1194

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, Harding B 11(2798), "The Old Four-Posted Bedstead" ("It was down in Bedfordshire in an old fashioned town"), unknown, no date
LOCSheet, sm1880 13379, "The Old Family Bedstead" ("It was down in good old Maine"), T. B Harms & Co (New York), 1880 (with tune)
File: WT262

Old French Trench, The
DESCRIPTION: "Oh what a life, living in a trench. Under Johnny French in the old French trench, We haven't got a wife or a nice little wench, But we're still alive in the old French trench."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: soldier France
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1914-1915 - Sir John French commands the British Expeditionary Force in World War I. In 1915, he is replaced by Douglas Haig
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 55, "The Old French Trench" (1 text)
Roud #10549
File: BrPa055A

Old General Lane
DESCRIPTION: "Here sits a young lady all down to mourn, She's mourning the loss of her own true love, It has been said that he was slain in the service of old General Lane (or "was shot A-fighting for old General Scott") Oh no.... He'll come back and be my beau"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: war battle death love separation
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 560, "Old General Lane" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #940?
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Bonnie Light Horseman"
NOTES [122 words]: This piece instantly makes me think of the Napoleonic War-era piece "My Bonnie Light Horseman," but the link is tenuous.
If the soldier was shot in the army of General Scott, the war is presumably the Mexican War.
If instead we refer the song to "General Lane," it probably refers to General Walter Payne Lane, who fought in the Mexican War and served in the Confederate cavalry in the west (Wilson's Creek, Pea Ridge) and was commissioned Brigadier General in 1865. There were, however, several other Generals Lane in the Civil War: James Lane (brigadier in Lee's army), and John Lane (brevet Brigadier in the Army of the Cumberland). There was also Senator James Lane, who had been Major General of the (Unionist) Kansas Militia. - RBW
File: R560

Old General Price
DESCRIPTION: "Old General Price is a mighty fine man, From women an' children he steals all he can, It's damn any man that will follow his trade... These hard times." Perhaps also a playparty: "General Price he made a raid... And lost many a soldier...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: hardtimes Civilwar thief
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sep-Oct 1864 - Sterling Price's raid in Missouri, which might or might not be the subject of this song
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 224, "Old General Price" (1 fragmentary text, 1 tune)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, p. 102, "General Price" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7828
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sterling Price" (subject)
NOTES [167 words]: Sterling Price (1809-1867), a former governor of Missouri and Confederate commander of Missouri troops, was almost certainly not a thief. His troops, however, were undisciplined and therefore even more likely to loot than the average soldier. Their depredations may account for the attitude toward Price shown in this fragment.
I have the strange feeling that Randolphs' "Old General Price" and "Sterling Price" are a single piece, one being adapted from the other -- but since we don't have a single complete stanza of either, and only one tune, this is beyond proof. Abernethy-SinginTexas's game-song text is sufficiently different that it might be a distinct song, but with so little to go with, I've lumped them for now.
Abernethy-SinginTexas's version refers to Price's raid without any other detail, meaning that we can't be sure it refers to Price's Missouri raid, but it was famous (although it was a failure that didn't accomplish much), so if the song refers to anything, it's likely that. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.5
File: R224

Old Girder Bill
DESCRIPTION: "I'll write you a poem of an old mountaineer, Who spent his life hunting for raccoon and deer." Girder Bill goes hunting and sees a buck and doe; he shoots the buck and goes home, "A buck on his shoulder, a doe left for seed."
AUTHOR: Lije Littleton?
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)
KEYWORDS: hunting
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, p. 124, "Old Girder Bill" (1 text)
File: ThBa124

Old Girl of Cairo Town, The
DESCRIPTION: "There was an old girl who lived in Cairo town, And I wish to the Lord that she was dead. She puts so many notions into my girl's head That we can't get along...." The singer spent all he had on the girl, but she doesn't love him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois)
KEYWORDS: love money rejection
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, p. 268, "The Old Girl of Cairo Town" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Richard M. Dorson, _Buying the Wind: Regional Folklore in the United States_, University of Chicago Press, 1964, pp. 413-414, "The Old Girl of Cairo Town" (1 text)
ST RDBW413 (Full)
Roud #4345
File: RDBW413

Old Glory
DESCRIPTION: "Say, have you heard the joyful news of Burnside's expedition...?" "The other day at Roanoke... The boys, to play a Union joke, ran up the flag of glory." The singer praises the Union soldiers, taunts the Confederates, and calls for their hanging
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Cox)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar patriotic
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Feb. 7, 1862 - Burnside's North Carolina expedition approaches Roanoke Island
Feb. 8, 1862 - Burnside defeats Henry Wise's local troops to capture Roanoke Island
Mar. 14, 1862 - Burnside takes New Bern
Apr. 26, 1862 - Burnside captures Beaufort
July 3, 1862 - Burnside and some 7500 of his troops are transferred to the Army of the Potomac

FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 71, "Old Glory" (1 text)
Roud #5461

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "As I Went Down to Newbern" (subject of Burnside's Carolina campaign)

NOTES [144 words]: Ambrose Burnside's expedition against the North Carolina coast was one of the first Union amphibious expeditions, and was quite successful (almost the only Union success in the war to this time). A large strip of North Carolina coast stayed in Union hands, which helped tighten the Union blockade.

This song was almost certainly composed in the early months of 1862 -- probably before the Battle of Antietam (Sept. 17, 1862), where Burnside had a chance to win the war, and muffed it. Certainly it must have been composed before the Battle of Fredericksburg that winter, when Burnside lost the last shreds of his reputation. The North Carolina campaign had been a pushover, requiring little but energy (which Burnside had). Defeating Robert E. Lee took brains (which Burnside didn't have).
For more on this campaign, see the notes to "As I Went Down to Newbern." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: JHCox072

Old Gospel Ship, The

DESCRIPTION: "I have good news to bring and that is why I sing... I'm gonna take a trip on that old gospel ship And go sailin' through the air." The singer advises others not to be ashamed of him/her, and admits to an inability to wait

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (recording, Carter Family)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 351, "The Old Gospel Ship" (1 text)
DT, GOSPSHIP GSPLSHIP
Roud #7383
RECORDINGS:
Carter Family, "Gospel Ship" (Melotone 6-07-56/Conqueror 8692, 1936; rec. 1935)
Leverett Bros. "Old Gospel Ship" (Country Church CC3/4, n.d.)
Monroe Brothers, "On That Old Gospel Ship" (Bluebird B-7273/Montgomery Ward M-7312, 1937)
Speer Family, "Old Gospel Ship" (Columbia 20418/Columbia 38155, 1948; rec. 1947)
Ruby Vass, "The Old Gospel Ship" (on LomaxCD1704)
File: FSWB351B

Old Grandma

DESCRIPTION: In praise of Grandma, who raised 21 kids right and lived the good life. "Old Grandma when ... infants came and times got bad, She stuck right on to old Grand-dad." "But young girls now are the other way: They're up all night and sleep all day"

AUTHOR: Words: John I. White
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (_The Lonesome Cowboy_)
KEYWORDS: mother children family derivative
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf,West)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Peacock, pp. 81-82, "Old Grandma" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke/Johnston-FolkSongsOfCanada, pp. 94-95, "Old Grandma" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, GRTGRNMA"
ADDITIONAL: John I. White, _Git Along, Little Dogies: Songs and Songmakers of the American Old Grandma Hones

DESCRIPTION: The Liza leaves Sydney for Halifax and "Missus Hone's." Grandpa Hones tells tales. The girls welcome the sailors home. Grandma goes to bed and "leaves us all night with her daughters to sport"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1961 (Peacock)

KEYWORDS: sex ship shore humorous whore sailor

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, pp. 83-84, "Old Grandma Hones" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9952

RECORDINGS:
Patrick Rossiter, "Old Grandma Hones" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]

File: Pea083

Old Granite State, The

DESCRIPTION: "We have come from the mountains (x3) From the Old Granite State; With a band of music (x3) We are passing 'round the world." The song introduces the singers, their state of New Hampshire, and their progressive ideas

AUTHOR: Elaborated, and probably written, by the Hutchinson Family

EARLIEST DATE: 1843 (sheet music published by Firth & Hall of New York)

KEYWORDS: nonballad home family drink

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Cohen-American Folk Songs A Regional Encyclopedia 1, pp. 13-15 "The Old Granite State" (1 text)
Lawrence-Music For Patriots Politicians And Presidents, p. 304, "The Old Granite State" (1 text plus a copy of the sheet music cover)

DT, GRANITST*

Roud # V36573

BROADSIDES:
LOCSheet, sm1843 391270, "The Old Granite State," Firth and Hall (New York), 1843 (tune)

SAME TUNE:
Ratification Song (celebrating the nomination of Winfield Scott as the Whig presidential candidate for 1852) (Lawrence-Music For Patriots Politicians And Presidents, p. 328)

NOTES [162 words]: The Hutchinson Family, according to Spaeth (A History of Popular Music in America, p. 95) used this song to introduce their act and their family. The Digital Tradition says that the verse, "Yes, we're friends of Emancipation And we'll sing the Proclamation" is "an obvious later addition." This is not as clear as it sounds. It was Lincoln who put the two words together -- but the Hutchinsons were campaigning for emancipation (and other liberal causes such as temperance) well before the Civil War. The exact wording may date from 1862, but the family certainly was proclaiming abolition by the 1840s -- and would have felt Lincoln's half-emancipation completely inadequate. The family's own history, by Joshua Hutchinson, credits the song to Jesse Hutchinson (the ninth child of Jesse Sr. and Mary Hutchinson), though the sheet music lists the whole family and is Old Granny Wales (Granny O'Whale, Granua Weal)

DESCRIPTION: "Old Granny she rose in the morning so soon... Saying, 'They're wronging my children that's over the sea.' She meets Lord Cornwall, Lord Bute, Lord North, Lord Granville, and complains about the Tea Act. They argue; she wishes her children success

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1823 (Green Mountain Songster)

KEYWORDS: political nonballad America nobility

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Apr 18, 1775 - Battle of Lexington. A British force routs the American Minutemen. The colonials gain some revenge as the Redcoats advance on Concord
June 17, 1775 - American defeat at the Battle of Bunker Hill

FOUND IN: US(MA,MW)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Thompson-APioneerSongster 36, "Old Grannau Weal" (1 text)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, p. xvi, "Old Granny Wales" (1 text, a reproduction of the Green Mountain Songster version)
DT, GRNWALE2 (cf. GRNWALE.NOT)

ST DTgrnwl2 (Partial)
Roud #2817

CROSS-REFERENCES:
ct. "Granuaile" (character of Granuaile) and references there
ct. "Revolutionary Tea" [Laws A24] (subject of the tea tax)

NOTES [1205 words]: It appears that there is only one traditional collection of this song, by Bessie Mae Stanchfield, taken from Elma Snyder McDowell of Saint Cloud, Minnesota. Stanchfield published the text (but not the tune) of this version in California Folklore Quarterly. McDowell, according to Stanchfield's notes, had it from her father; this would appear to mean it was in circulation in Minnesota around 1880.

Stanchfield, in researching the song, consulted very many eminent folklorists (I have seen the letters she wrote; they are in the archives of the Minnesota Historical Society). The people she contacted proved very unhelpful; none of the people she consulted even noted the connection with Grace O'Malley, known as Granuaile (for whom see "Granuaile" and the related songs). Stanchfield's speculation was the Granny Wales either Benjamin Franklin (an "old granny" who was for a time, in effect, the American representative trying to negotiate with the British parliament) or perhaps the country of Wales itself.

I have no doubt, however, that Old Granny Wales is in fact Granuaile, and in this I am confirmed by Bruce Olson (Digital Tradition notes on Granny Wale), John Moulden (private communication), and Kenneth Porter (Notes and Queries, in Western Folklore, Volume 13, Number 1 (January,1954), p. 51; note that Western Folklore is the successor of California Folklore Quarterly). All four of us reached this conclusion independently: This is a song of the Irish wishing the Americans well in their rebellion.

The date of the song must obviously be after Bunker Hill, since it is mentioned in the song. I would say that it also must be before the Battle of Saratoga, at the very latest, because of the way that changed the war. I strongly suspect the original was written just after Bunker Hill, before news of the British response had reached the Americas. The British in fact were preparing to offer compromises at this time, but events on the ground overran them (Lyon, p. 298).

Apart from Granuaile, the characters and events mentioned in the McDowell text are:
Lord Cornwall: Cornwall is properly a duchy, and I know of no one named Lord Cornwall in this period; I suspect this is an error for General Cornwallis. (Unless it's a sort of geographical error for the Earl Dartmouth, Secretary for the Americas when the troubles began.) (In the Green Mountain Songster version, it's Lord Connor, which rings no bells for me.)
Lord North, Lord Granville, and infamous Bute: Frederick, Lord North, later second Earl of Guilford (1732-1792), was Prime Minister 1770-1782. His behavior toward the colonies was much better than this song might imply; he actually "repealed" most of the Townshend Duties which had made the colonies so restless, keeping only the tea tax as a sort of token of British sovereignty (the tea tax, Weintraub, p. 4, was a quarter of the tax charged in England; on p. 19, he notes that total taxes on Americans were only about / the effective tax rate paid by British subjects) and also as an target to get rid of a lot of tea stuck in East India Company warehouses (Cook, pp. 166-167; Marrin, p. 33). His real problem was that he was George III's Prime Minister, so he had to do something to keep that unwise monarch happy. For more on these guys, see "Taxation of America."

Lord Granville ("Grantville" in the Green Mountain Songster): presumably George Grenville (1712-1770), MP from 1741, Secretary of State 1761, Prime Minister 1763-1765. He came into office with a big problem: According to Middlekauff, p. 57, he came into office with the national debt up to 122 million pounds (the result of the expensive battles of the Seven Years' War/French and Indian War). Britain was taxed to the limit, and the government felt that it needed to keep troops in America. Somehow, they had to be paid for. It was decided that the Americans would have to pay a share. After some fiddling with various tariffs, Grenville imposed the Stamp Act, which was the first major cause of American revolutionary unrest (Marrin, pp. 14-15). (It is ironic to note that he lowered other duties, such as that on molasses -- Middlekauff, p. 58 -- but did his best to make sure it was collected.)

Infamous Bute: John Stuart, Third Earl of Bute (1713-1792). Prime Minister 1762-1763. He had been the tutor of the future George III from 1755, and his influence with that monarch was felt to continue long after he left office (Oxford Companion, p. 145). Earlier, he had been an advisor -- whispers said he had been a lover -- to George III's mother In the period after her husband
Frederick died (Hadlow, p. 108). He was, however, hated by just about everyone except the King (Cook, pp. 30-31), and he drove many Lords out of government.

Middlekauff, p. 20, has much to say of Bute, "The friendship [between George III and Bute] seems to have developed easily -- in part, we may suppose, because George craved affection and kindness and Bute responded with both. Yet... Bute held the upper hand: he was twenty-five years older, strongly opinionated, obviously intelligent, and he was in charge of the prince's education....
Bute himself knew much but did not understand men or human conduct. His pride reinforced the prince's; his propensity to judge others by abstract principles... strengthened a similar tendency in the prince. Master and pupil then and later commonly mistook inflexibility for personal strength and character" (p. 20).

Despite his infamy, Bute arguably contributed more to humanity than most politicians; his extensive book Botanical Tables Concerning the Families of British Plants was a genuinely useful scientific work (Hadlow, p. 107). That hardly prepared him for a career in politics, however, particularly one where he controlled the King's mind -- and, to a large extent, he did; the letters cited on p. 111 of Hadlow show George III deeply respecting, almost worshipping, Bute.

It was Bute who first started building up the peacetime army, forcing the raising of money to maintain them. This started the cycle of taxes, continued by Grenville, which caused so much trouble with the colonies. Especially since Bute did nothing to make it clear why he did what he did.

Lexington Battle: The Battle of Lexington and Concord, April 18-19, 1775. Note that the colonists did not win at Lexington (where British regulars tore the Minutemen to pieces); the victory came in the guerilla actions on the way to Concord.

Bunker Hill: The Battle of Bunker Hill, fought on June 17, 1775 at Breed's Hill (not Bunker Hill). The British won, in that the Americans had to evacuate the site, The claim that 1200 Britons lay dead is exaggerated: This is about the number of actual casualties, but Cook, p. 226, says 232 British were killed and 950 wounded. For Bunker Hill, and Joseph Warren who died there, see "The Sword of Bunker Hill."

Darby, Bixby, and Graves: I'm guessing that Darby is Captain John Derby, whose ship brought the first word of Lexington and Concord to England (Cook, pp. 219-221). Bixby I can't identify, There were naval officers named Graves later in the war, though I don't know why they would be mentioned in 1775, which seems from internal evidence to be the date of this song. - RBW

Bibliography

• Cook: Don Cook, The Long Fuse: How England Lost the American colonies 1760-1785, Atlantic Monthly Press, 1995
• Hadlow: Janice Hadlow, A Royal Experiment: The Private Life of King George III, Henry Holt,
  2014 (published in Britain by William Collins as The Strangest Family)
• Lyon: Ann Lyon, Constitutional History of the United Kingdom, Cavendish, 2003
• Marrin: Albert Marrin, The War for Independence: The Story of the American Revolution, Athenaeum, 1988
Old Gray Goose (I), The (Lookit Yonder)
DESCRIPTION: Concerning a man's dead wife, whose return he fears: "On Saturday night my good wife died, On Sunday she was buried, But Monday was my courting day, And Tuesday I got married. Now, lookit here, and lookit there, and look way over yonder..."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939
KEYWORDS: wife husband death marriage humorous floating verses
FOUND IN: US(MA,MW)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
  Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 147, "Lookit Yonder" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 153 (last of several "fragments of Irish songs" - 1 text, which could be this or "My Wife Died on Saturday Night")
  Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 167, "When I Was a Little Boy" (1 text, 1 tune, which appears to open with part of "I Wish They'd Do It Now," includes floating verses which sometimes are found in "Lynchburg Town," and end with the "Saturday Night My Wife Died" of "The Old Gray Goose (I) (Lookit Yonder)" or similar)
  DT, LOOKYOND*
Roud #3619
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "The Old Turkey Hen" (plot, lyrics; the two may be slightly modified forms of the same song)
  cf. "I Had a Wife"
  cf. "John Styles and Susan Cutter" (tune)
  cf. "Way Down the Old Plank Road" (words)
  cf. "My Wife Died on Saturday Night" (floating verse)
NOTES [121 words]: The first verse quoted here is the same as "My Wife Died on Saturday Night"; they are distinguished mostly by the chorus.
To add to the confusion, there is a nursery rhyme (Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #131, p. 106):
I married a wife on Sunday,
She began to scold on Monday,
Bad was she on Tuesday,
Worse was she on Wednesday,
Dead was she on Friday,
Glad was I on Saturday night,
To bury my wife on Sunday.
To this compare also Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes, #509, p. 410, which begins "Tom married a wife on Sunday, Beat her well on Monday," but the rest almost the same as the Baring-Gould version.
The Baring-Goulds also compare the well-known poem of "Solomon Grundy." - RBW

Old Gray Mare (I), The (The Old Gray Horse; The Little Black Bull)
DESCRIPTION: Concerning an old gray mare (old gray horse, little black bull) that came out of the wilderness (down the meadow, etc.) in Alabam/Arkansas/A long time ago/On to Galilee. Other animals may also be involved. May be used as a playparty

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1858 (sheet music)

KEYWORDS: horse animal nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW,SE,So)

REFERENCES (14 citations):
Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 92-93=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 185-186, "There Goes Topsy Through the Window" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 271, "The Old Gray Horse" (1 text plus 2 fragments, 1 tune); 559, "Out of the Wilderness" (1 short text, 1 tune); also possibly 429, "John the Boy, Hello!" (1 text, 1 tune, so short that one cannot tell whether it is the same piece or a different one)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 231-232, "The Old Gray Horse" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 271A)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 174, "The Old Grey Horse Came Tearing Through the Wilderness" (3 short texts; "A" adds an unusual chorus, "Roll, Riley, roll (x3), Oh, Lord, I'm bound to go")
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 13-14, "Old Gray Horse Come Tearin' Out o' De Wilderness" (1 text plus bits of others, 1 tune); p. 183, (no title) (1 short text)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 102-103, "Old Gray Mare"; 164-165, "Hoosen Johnny" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, pp. 92-93, "Down in Alabama" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 65-68, "Down in Alabam' or Ain't I Glad I Got Out de Wilderness" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 45, "In the Wilderness" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 336-338, "Tearin' Out-a Wilderness" (2 texts plus a fragment, 2 tunes)
Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, p. 29, "The Old Grey Mare" (1 short text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 397, "Hoosen Johnny"; p. 398, "The Old Gray Mare" (2 texts)
Pankake-Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 63, "The Old Grey Mare" (1 text, tune referenced) Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 408-409, "The Old Gray Mare -- (Get Out of the Wilderness)"

RECORDINGS:
Gene Autry, "The Old Grey Mare" (Conqueror 8686, 1936)
Al Bernard, "The Old Grey Mare" (Vocalion 15643, 1927)
Milton Brown & his Brownies, "The Old Grey Mare" (Decca 5260, 1936)
Fiddlin' John Carson & Moonshine Kate, "The Old Grey Horse Ain't What He Used to Be" (OKeh 45471, 1930)
Lew Childr, "The Old Grey Mare" (Gennett 7312/Champion 16093/Suptone 9773, 1930)
[Arthur] Collins & [Byron] Harlan "Old Grey Mare" (Victor 18387, 1917) (Emerson 7298, c. 1917)
(Columbia A2382, 1917) (Little Wonder 780, 1918)
Vernon Dalhart, "The Old Grey Mare" (Perfect 12421/Conqueror 7071, 1928) (Banner 2180/Jewel 5187/Perfect 12421/Regal 8469/Conqueror 7071/Conqueror 7169, 1928; rec. 1927)
Earl Fuller's Famous Jazz Band, "The Old Grey Mare" (Victor 18369, 1917)
Earl Johnson & his Dixie Entertainers.[Clothophappers], "Old Gray Mare Kicking Out of the Wilderness" (OKeh 45183, 1928; rec. 1927)
Jimmy Johnson's String Band, "Old Blind Dog" (Champion 16541 [possibly issued as by Andy Palmer, 1932; on KMM]
[Billy] Jones & [Ernest] Hare, "The Old Grey Mare" (Edison 51618, 1925)
Elmo Newcomer, "Old Grey Mare" CroMart 101, n.d. but prob. late 1940s - early 1950s)
Land Norris, "Old Grey Mare" (OKeh 45047, 1926)
Obed Pickard, "The Old Gray Horse" (Columbia 15246-D, 1928; rec. 1927)
Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers, "The Old Grey Mare" (Columbia 15170-D, 1927)
University Quartet, "The Old Gray Mare" (Patie 20267, 1917)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Abe Lincoln Came Out of the Wilderness" (tune)
cf. "Greasy Grimy Gopher Guts" (tune)
cf. "The Big Black Bull"

I Ain't a-Scared of Your Jail (tune, structure)
cf. "Horsie, Keep Your Tail Up" (lyrics)
Old Abe Lincoln Came Out of the Wilderness (File: San168)
Greasy Grimy Gopher Guts (File: PHCFS133)
The King's Navy (File: Hopk063)
Swimming in the Delaware (Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 163)
Floatin' Down the Delaware (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 157; Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 163)
I Don't Give a Darn for the Whole State of Iowa (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 251)

Aren't You Glad You Joined the Republicans? (Republican campaign song, c. 1860; cf. e.g. Allan Nevins, _The Emergence of Lincoln: Prologue to Civil War 1859-1861_ [volume IV of _The Ordeal of the Union_] (Scribners, 1950, p. 315))

Old Joe Hooker, won't you get out of the Wilderness (Song supposedly sung by J. E. B. Stuart during the Battle of Chancellorsville; see Stephen W. Sears, _Chancellorsville_, Houghton Mifflin, 1996, p. 335)

NOTES [233 words]: The 1858 sheet music credits this to "J. Warner," but no information about Warner has been recovered, and there are indications that the song was in the Black traditional repertoire before the 1850s.

A common bit of folklore claims that this is based on the exploits (?) of an animal that took fright during the Second Battle of Bull Run in 1862. The date of the sheet music, of course, proves this false. - RBW

Sam Hinton traces this to an African-American spiritual, "I Wait Upon the Lord" ("If you want to get to heaven go in the wilderness... and wait upon the Lord"). - PJS [See now the Index entry for "Go in the Wilderness." - RBW]

Are you sure this is the same ballad as "Little black bull come down the meadow/Hoosen Johnny, Hoosen Johnny"? I think they're part of the same family, but maybe we should split them. By the way, there's a great bawdy version of "Hoosen Johnny" called "Houston, Sam Houston", with sound effects. - PJS

It's another case of the extremes being different but the intermediate versions being too mixed to clearly distinguish. Easier to lump the whole family here. If we don't, we will mess up. Or, at least, I will. The versions of this song are so diverse that it gets to the point of parodying itself.... It would be an interesting project, for someone, to determine whether these are two songs that mixed or one song that diverged to an extreme degree. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: R271

Old Gray Mule, The (Johnson's Mule)

DESCRIPTION: "Mr. Thomas had an old gray mule. And he drove him to a cart, And he loved that mule and the mule loved him." The song describes how Thomas mistreats the mule (currying it with a rake, feeding it on boot tops). The mule kicks and eventually dies

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Pound)
KEYWORDS: animal death work
FOUND IN: US(MW,SE)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
_Pound-AmericanBalladsAndSongs_, 103, pp. 213-214, "The Old Gray Mule" (1 text)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 186, "Johnson's Mule" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 512, "Johnson's Mule" (1 short text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 512, "Johnson's Mule" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 126, "Johnson Had an Old Gray Mule" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 25-26, "Johnson's Old Grey Mule" (1 apparently composite text, 1 tune, with material from "Whoa Mule (The Kickin' Mule)" and "The Old Gray Mule (Johnson's Mule)" -- which easily mix anyway -- apparently deliberately mixed)
Roud #3704
NOTES [52 words]: Reading Pound's text, I can't help but believe that parts of it were originally about a goat, not a mule. But I can't locate similar "goat" stanzas. In any case, many of the same lines appear in Gardner and Chickering. Brown's text is also about a mule, but the few lines it contains are all goat-applicable. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.5
File: LPns213

Old Grazin' Ben
DESCRIPTION: "In '76, or thereabouts, when the Black Hills made the strike," large ox trains brought in supplies -- and suffered in the drought along the way. The diggers couldn't have done without them. The singer asks three cheers for them and "for Old Grazin' Ben"
AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: animal travel gold food
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 115-116, "Old Grazin' Ben" (1 text)
File: ThLo115

Old Grey Duck, The
DESCRIPTION: "The old grey duck she stole her nest and laid up in the fields, And when the young ones they came forth they had no tails or heels." Many eggs don't hatch; the other ducklings die. They will tie up the old grey duck in the barn so it doesn't happen again
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall)
KEYWORDS: bird death
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 51, "The Old Grey Duck" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3302
File: Gun051

Old Grey Mare (II), The
DESCRIPTION: "Once I had an old grey mare (x3), Saddled her and rode her there." "When I got there she got tired, She laid down in an old courtyard." The singers in the yard scare her, and she flees; she singer finds her "in a mud hole flat on her back."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Cecil Sharp collection); +1913 (JAFL26)
LONG DESCRIPTION: "Once I had an old grey mare (x3), Saddled her and rode her there." "When I got there she got tired, She laid down in an old courtyard." The singers in the yard scare her, and she flees; she singer finds her "in a mud hole flat on her back." In other versions, the singer tells that the gray mare was blind and deaf; he takes her out to plow, but she doesn't know how; she runs away, he follows her and finds her on her back in a mudhole. She may get that good old-time religion. In some versions the mare becomes a Christian and "will make some old horse a good old wife."
KEYWORDS: horse travel disability escape farming humorous animal
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 175, "The Old Grey Mare" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 175, "The Old Grey Mare" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 223, "The Old Grey Mare" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #94, "The Old Grey Mare" (1 text, 1 tune)
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, p. 71, "Once I Had an Old Grey Mare" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lunsford/Stringfield-30And1FolkSongsFromSouthernMountains, pp. 36-37, "Old Gray Mare" (1 text, 1 tune)
Old Grey Mare (Ill), The

DESCRIPTION: ".. of traitors now beware There's none but men would glory win can ride my old Grey Mare. In Erin's Isle in ancient times She was rode by Brian Boru" and other heroes and others "not long ago" and "Brave Bonaparte" as well.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads); first half 19C (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad patriotic talltale horse Napoleon

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1014 - Battle of Clontarf; Brian Boru defeats a mixed force of Vikings and their Irish allies (but is killed in the battle)

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (3 citations):
OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 35, "The Old Grey Mare" (1 text, 1 tune)
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 44B, "The Sporting Old Grey Mare" (1 text)
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 164, "The Old Grey Mare" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Wonderful Grey Horse" (theme)

NOTES [50 words]: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion: "The song probably has no emblematic meaning."

For a broadside with the same theme but different ballad see NLScotland, RB.m.169(243), "The Wonderful Grey Horse," unknown, c.1840. The similarity extends even to leading up to support of the Irish Home Rule Movement. - BS

File: OLoc035

Old Gum-Diggers' Bar, The

DESCRIPTION: "We would roll our swags on Friday, Leaving shanties near and far," to "gather round the barrel In the old gumdiggers' bar." That was long ago, and the shanties are gone, but the singer still recalls singing -- and drinking -- at the old bar

AUTHOR: Words: Dennis Hogan (source: Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (Hogan, Billy-Can Ballads, according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

KEYWORDS: drink music worker

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, p. 146, "The Old Gum-Diggers' Bar" (1 text, tune referenced)
Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, pp. 246-247, "(The Old Gumdiggers' Bar)" (1 text)
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCounty, p. 44, "Old Gumdiggers' Bar" (1 text, 1 modern tune which is not the tune intended by the author)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Clementine" (original tune, according to Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCounty)

NOTES [16 words]: For background on the digging of kauri gum, see the notes to "The Old-Time Kauri Bushmen." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.4

File: BaRo146
Old Hank
DESCRIPTION: "Driftin' along the rim-rock, old Camp-Robber and I," the poet thinks of the boss who is now rich -- and has had a religious conversion and is married. The boss still likes the poet even though "I haven't changed my damn religion"
AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: cowboy boss marriage
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 116-117, "Old Hank" (1 text)
File: ThLo116

Old Harrison
DESCRIPTION: "So early in the morning, Old Harrison he goes out, You'll always see a drop or two a-hangin' to his snout, His snout both long and crooked, a little Roman, too." "The Whigs' throats are all sore, their noses are all blue From shouting for hard cider"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1969 (Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol1)
KEYWORDS: political nonballad drink
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Dec 2, 1840 - William Henry Harrison defeats Martin Van Buren
Mar 4, 1841 - Harrison (the first Whig to be elected President) is inaugurated. He gives a rambling inaugural address in a rainstorm and catches cold
April 4, 1841 - Harrison dies of pneumonia, making him the first president to fail to complete his term. After some hesitation, Vice President John Tyler is allowed to succeed as President
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol1, p. 22, "Old Harrison" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #7017
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Tippecanoe (I)" (subject of the Harrison/van Buren election) and references there
NOTES [61 words]: Bush explains this as being from the presidential election of 1840, and since it mentions both the Whigs and "Old Harrison," it certainly is likely to be about William Henry Harrison, but I haven't seen it elsewhere, and it's just possible that it's about 1836, not 1840. The oddity is that it survived to be collected a century and a quarter after Harrison died. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: BuWv1022

Old Hazeltine
DESCRIPTION: "It's of the Eau Claire River, a stream I'm sure you know, It's of a crew of shanty boys who worked through the snow, And as to old Hazeltine, he's a lousy son-of-a-bitch... For the cheating... and the stabbing of his crew, I think he's an old screw."
AUTHOR: probably Bert Taplin
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: lumbering work accusation
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 91, "Old Hazeltine" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9071
NOTES [57 words]: It is curious to note that, although informant Bert Taplin claimed to have written this song (and even, while drunk, to have sung it in the presence of the man it insulted), the tune transcribed in Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin fits only four of the six lines of text, and it does not appear that it could be adapted to fit the final two. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.6
File: Pet091
Old Holly, Crab, and I

DESCRIPTION: "We work for Hay and Company; we try to do what's right. We start at six in the morning and quit at six at night." The three workers, "old Holly, Crab, and me," work hard, then relax in the evening.

AUTHOR: Ron Sisson?

EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Fowke)

KEYWORDS: logger work lumbering

FOUND IN: Canada (Ont)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #25, "Old Holly, Crab, and I" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4465

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "We Work for Hay and Company" (subject)

File: Fowl25

Old Honest Abe

DESCRIPTION: "Old honest Abe, you are a babe In military glory. An iron fool, a party tool, A traitor, and a Tory." The singer challenges Lincoln to "whup us if you're able." Scott and Wool cannot win his battles; Scott can never defeat his mother

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1863 (Songs of the South)

KEYWORDS: Civil war political

FOUND IN: US (So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 356-357, "Old Honest Abe" (1 text)
Roud #7767

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Abe's Elected" (subject)

NOTES [179 words]: Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety says this song was published in Songs of the South in 1863. Internal evidence implies that it was written rather earlier -- my guess would be around September or October of 1861, after the Confederates had won Wilson's Creek (August 10) and first Bull Run (July 21), making possible the claim of beating the Federals in every battle, but before Winfield Scott gave up the Commander in Chief's post in November of that year.
The "Scott" of the song was of course Winfield Scott (1786-1866), the original commander in chief of the Federal armies, who was a Virginian (hence the gibe about his inability to defeat his mother). Although Scott was soon pushed aside, we might note that his "anaconda plan" was the basic scheme by which the Union won the war.
"Wool" is John E. Wool (1789-1869), like Scott a veteran of the War of 1812, and considered the #2 Federal officer starting the war. He would serve until he retired in 1863, but he didn't really do much in the War; at no point did he command an important army. - RBW

File: Beld356

Old Horny Kebri-O (Shaggin' Away)

DESCRIPTION: The singer goes out and has "good luck," having sex with 14 women. He has less fortune at home, having only animals available. Other verses may involve other exploits of his "old horny kebri-o." Chorus: "Shaggin', shaggin', shaggin' away...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1976 (collected by Logsdon from Riley Neal)

KEYWORDS: sex animal whore bawdy nonballad

FOUND IN: US (MA, So, SW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging 49, pp. 235-237, "Old Horny Kebri-O" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #10104

File: Logs049
Old Hoss Kick, The

DESCRIPTION: "De old hoss kick And a hippy-doodle. De old hoss kick And a hippy-doodle. The old hoss kick hard in the stable, And he couldn't git his foot out Because he wasn't able!"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: animal

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 185, (no title) (1 fragment)

File: ScNF185A

Old House at Home, The

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the old house at home where my forefathers dwelt, When a child at the feet of my mother I knelt," where his mother taught him to behave, and the flowers bloom. "Now the old house is no dwelling for me," but the singer still dreams of it

AUTHOR: Thomas Haynes Bayly (1797-1839) ?

EARLIEST DATE: before 1845 (broadside Bodleian Firth b.25(386), etc.)

KEYWORDS: home dream nonballad

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, "The Old House at Home" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

Roud #13881

BROADSIDES:

NOTES [52 words]: "Home songs" are common, but I think this one of the stupidest I've ever seen. It's just barely traditional, which makes it interesting that Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle's version is a fragment that really consists of only one line. It's lost the entire rest of the song -- not that you'd notice the difference. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.3

File: Boet037

Old Hulk, The

DESCRIPTION: "When age has rendered some old hulk Unfit for merchant use, She's sold at auction, bought in bulk, Just for a whaling cruise." The singer described the dreadful conditions on a whaling ship, and laments that after all the toil he is still poor

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1854 (Journal from the Governor Carver)

KEYWORDS: whaler work hardtimes

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 32-33, "The Old Hulk" (1 text)

Roud #2007

File: SWMS032
Old Hundred

DESCRIPTION: "All people that on earth do dwell, Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice." Alternately, "Make ye a joyful sounding noise, Unto Jehovah, all the earth." The listener is reminded that Jehovah is God, and is advised to enter "his courts with thankfulness."

AUTHOR: unknown (see NOTES)

EARLIEST DATE: 1560 (Psalms of David in English)

KEYWORDS: religious Bible nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(England) US(NE)

REFERENCES (8 citations):
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 287, "Old Hundredth" (1 text, 1 tune)
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 28-29, "Psalm 100 (A Psalm of Praise)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 366, "Old Hundred" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 409-410, "Old Hundred"

DT, (OLDHUND*)

ADDITIONAL: Charles Johnson, _One Hundred and One Famous Hymns_ (Hallberg, 1982), pp. 26-27, "All People That On Earth Do Dwell" (1 text, 1 tune)
Robert J. Morgan, _Then Sings My Soul, Book 2: 150 of the World's Greatest Hymn Stories_, Nelson, 2004, pp. 6-7, "All People That on Earth Do Dwell" (1 text, 1 tune)
John Julian, editor, _A Dictionary of Hymnology_, 1892; second edition 1907 (I use the 1957 Dover edition in two volumes), pp. 43-44, "All people that on earth do dwell" (1 text)

SAME TUNE:
Hymn for Syttende Mai (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, pp. 18-19 -- though the words have to be squeezed pretty hard to fit)
The Dogsology (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 156)
National Thanksgiving Ode ("Ancient of Days! before whose throne," by C. C. Haven) (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 106)
Our Country ("Our Country! 'Tis of thee we sing") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 119)
The Union Soldier's Prayer ("Almighty God! eternal friend") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 163)
Centennial Hymn ("Our fathers' God, we come to the; To thee our grateful voices raise") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 79)
Gratitude ("Father Supreme! as here we stand") by Prof. Edward North, [class of 18]41 (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 19)
National Anthem -- God of the Free ("God of the Free! upon Thy breath, Our flag is still for right unfurled") (by William Ross Wallace) (Foner, p. 97)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Old Hundredth

NOTES [1548 words]: Heart-Songs, p. 369, has another song titled "Old Hundred," which is to this tune (more or less), but it has different words which it attributes to Isaac Watts. This tune is now better known as "The Doxology," but those words are a relatively recent addition -- they are part of a work by Thomas Ken (sometimes spelled Thomas Kenn). According to Kunitz/Haycraft, p. 301, Ken was "one of the fathers of English hymnody," but few of his works are still used in any significant way. He lived from 1637 to 1711, perhaps lived for a time with Izaak Walton, and earned his M.A. in 1664. McKim, p. 313, says that King James II called Ken "the most eloquent preacher" among the Protestants of his time -- but given that James II was a Catholic, I'm not sure that should be considered praise. The Doxology apparently is from his _Manuel for Winchester Scholars_ of 1674. He drifted into, then out of, royal favor, and produced many other books but nothing else of great quality or historical significance.

Julian, p. 616, says "The bare details of B[isho]p Ken's life... [are]:-- Born at Berkhamstead, July, 1637; Scholar of Winchester, 1651; Fellow of New College, Oxford, 1657; B.A., 1661; Rector of Little Easton, 1663; Fellow of Winchester, 1666; Rector of Brightstone, 1667; Rector of Woodhay and Prebendary of Winchester, 1669; Chaplain to the Princess Mary [later Mary II] at the Hague, 1679; returns to Winchester, 1680; Bishop of Bath and Wells, 1685; imprisoned in the Tower, 1688; deprived [of his bishopric], 1691; died at Longleat, March 19, 1710/11.

"The parents of Ken both died during his childhood, and he grew up under the guardianship of Izaak Walton, who had married Ken’s elder sister, Ann." Among his other acts of piety (?) was "refusing Nell Gwynne the use of his house when Charles II came to Winchester" -- but he did provide genuine support to those who were punished after the Battle of Sedgmoor in 1685, and was at the scaffold of the defeated Duke of Monmouth.

Apparently his literary reputation was sufficient that a great deal of stuff was published under his name after his death, and even his authentic works rewritten; Julian devotes much of pp. 617-621 to the history of this (with a supplement on pp. 1658-1659, which seems to indicate that the song dates back at least to 1674), and gives a detailed examination of the "Evening Hymn" from which the doxology comes. The first listed publication of the "Evening Hymn" was in Playford's Harmonia Sacra of 1688, where the text run

Praise God from whom all blessings flow,
Praise him all creatures here below;
Praise him above, the angelick host,
Praise Father, Son, and Holy Ghost."

Julian, p. 1537, adds that a biography of Ken by Plumptre was published in 1888. Regarding the "doxology," Davidson, p. 111, reports, "DOXOLOGY... An ascription of praise addressed to the Trinity is a doxology. The term may refer to the ter sanctus and allelulia, but more especially to the Gloria an excelsis (the greater doxology) and the Gloria Patri (the lesser doxology). The practice of singing a doxology (usually the Gloria Patri) at the conclusion of the Hebrew psalms led to metrical versions of this doxology, which eventually transferred to hymns. One such metrical paraphrase which has gained great popularity is Thomas Ken's (1631-1711) "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." This versification together with the tune "Old Hundredth" is commonly called by many persons "The Doxology." This entity, used as an ascription of praise at the commencement of a service of worship, at the presentation of the offering, or at the end, came into this usage and title during the mid-19th century."

The source and age of the rest of the words are subject to debate. They were not, perhaps, originally meant to be a hymn -- as Morgan points out on p. 7, John Calvin did not approve of hymns, thinking that paraphrases of the psalms were sufficient.

Davies, p. 374 (article on "Metrical Psalms") reports that "The ancestor of the modern hymnal was the metrical psalter, comprising versifications of the psalms with simple strophic tunes designed to fit the metres employed. Perhaps the most familiar of the metrical psalm is the version of the hundredth psalm in which the original prose, 'O be joyful in the Lord, all ye lands,' has become 'All people that on earth do dwell.' Included in almost every modern hymnal, and hence usually thought of as a hymn, these words first appeared in Fourscore and Seven Psalms of David published in Geneva in 1561. The tune always associated with them is from the still earlier Genevan Psalter published in Geneva in 1561. Thus both words and music take us back to the same source -- the English Protestant exiles who fled to Geneva in 1553 to escape persecution under Queen Mary."

Fuld too reports that the music is said to have been provided by Louis Bourgeois for Psalm 134 in the 1551 Geneva Psalter. However, no copies of this book survive, and the 1553 edition lacks the song.

The first certain printing, the 1560 edition "Psalms of David in English," has the piece with words credited to William Kethe (although Stulken, p. 320, notes another copy of Four Score and Seven psalms of David in English Mitre which gives credit to one Thomas Sternhold). According to Johnson, William Kethe was a Scotsman, but apparently he ended up in England, because he "fled before the persecution of Mary 1555-1558 [i.e., by the dates, Mary Tudor of England, not Mary Stuart of Scotland] and found refuge in Geneva."

Although the attribution to Kethe is old, it is by no means found in all the early sources. Julian, p. 44, lists ten psalter editions from 1560 to 1587. These break down as follows:
- No attribution: Daye's Psalter (1560/61), Daye's Appendix (1564), Daye's Psalter (1565), Daye's Psalter (1566), Crespin's Psalter [Geneva] (1569), Daye's Psalter (1579)
- by "Tho. Ster.:" (Sternholf) Anglo-Genevan Psalter (1561)
- "W. Ke.": Britwell Psalter (1561), Scottish Psalter (1564)
- "I. H." (Hopkins): Daye's Psalter (1587)

On this basis Julian accepts the attribution to Kethe. Little is known of Kethe; Julian, p. 623, says he "is said by Thomas Warton in his Hist[ory] of Eng[lish] Poetry, and by John Strype in his Annals of the Reformation, to have been a Scotsman. Where he was born, or whether he held any preferment in England in the time of Edward VI., we have been unable to discover. In the Brieff discours off the troubles begonne at Franckford, 1575, he is mentioned as in exile at Frankfurt in 1555, at Geneva in 1557; as being sent on a mission to the exiles in Basel, Strassbourg, &c. in 1558; and as returning with their answers to Geneva in 1559. Whether he was one of those left behind in 1559 to "finishe the bible, and the psalmes bothe in meeter and prose," does not appear. The Discours further mentions him as being with the Earl or Warwick and the Queen's forces at Nwhaven [Havre] in 1563, and in the north in 1569. John Hutchins... says he was instituted in 1561 as Rector of Childe Okeford, near Blandford.... His connection with Okeford seems to have ceased by death or otherwise about 1593."

Kethe was credited with 25 of the psalms in the Anglo-Genevan Psalter of 1561, but only nine of these made the English Psalter of 1562, with "All People" being added in 1562, and only his version of Psalm 100 and a modification of his Psalm 104 having any long life in church use. Johnson reports that this song "was suggested to us by the McCormick Theological Seminary as expressing Calvin's and Presbyterian/Reformed hymn concepts in much the same way as A Mighty Fortress Is Our God could be said to represent Luther's."

NewCentury, p. 830, reports that the Kethe text of Psalm 100 "was at first known as the 'Hundredth,' but in 1696, when Nahum Tate and Nicolas Brady published their 'New Version,' the word 'Old' was used to show that the tune was the one which had been used in the previous psalter (Sternhold and Heplin's of the 16th century)." (For more on Tate, if it matters, see the notes to "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks.")

The version printed by Scott (from the Bay Psalm Book of 1640) has the curious trait of using the name "Jehovah" rather than the theologically correct "the LORD" or the phonologically correct "YAHWEH." This version does have the advantage of being noticeably closer to the Hebrew in meaning.

The Missouri Harmony has a song, "Old Hundred" (as well as a "New Hundred") which doesn't seem to match any version of this I've ever seen in either text or tune.

Reynolds, p. 32, claims that this is mentioned by Shakespeare in The Merry Wives of Windsor, Acts II, scene i: "They do no more and keep peace together than the Hundredth Psalm to the tune of Greensleeves." An interesting link, although I'm not sure that's proof.

With all that controversy over the lyrics, the tune doesn't seem to get much attention, but McKim, pp. 164-164, says it "was composed or adapted by Louis Bourgeois" (c. 1510-c. 1561) as a setting for Theodore Beza's adaption of Psalm 134; it was combined with "Old Hundred" in the 1562 Psalter by Daye. He sounds like he had a very odd life, actually being prosecuted in Geneva for changing the tunes used for psalms, but being supported by Calvin himself (McKim, pp. 79-80). - RBW

Bibliography

- Johnson: Charles Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns, Hallberg, 1982

Last updated in version 6.1

File: SBoA028
Old Identity, The

DESCRIPTION: "Mr. Cargill in the Council Made such a funny speech... That it devolved on each... To preserve... The Old Identity." Will Cargill demand that the old Scottish immigrants go back to kilts and porridge? Satirizes immigration controls and identity politics

AUTHOR: Words: Charles R. Thatcher (1831-1878)
EARLIEST DATE: 1862 (Thatcher's "Dunedin Songster," according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

KEYWORDS: political New Zealand clothes humorous nonballad

REFERENCES (6 citations):
- Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, pp. 45-46, "The Old Identity" (1 text, tune referenced)
- Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 55, "The Old Identity" (1 text, 1 tune) (p. 33 in the 1972 edition)
- Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, p. 96, "(The Old Identity)" (1 text)
- Hoskins-GoldfieldBalladeer-LifeAndTimes-Charles-R-Thatcher, p. 21, "(no title)" (2 excerpts); pp. 150-153, "The Old Identity" (2 texts, different poems but built around the same idea)
- Anderson-ColonialMinstrel, p. 133, "(no title)" (1 text, one of Thatcher's revised versions)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Duck Leg Dick"

NOTES [276 words]: According to Ell, Charles R. Thatcher is "credited with originating the expression 'old identity' in a song about Otago provincial elections." Ell, p. 185, says that the phrase "was used to distinguish between the founders of the Otago Settlement and the later comers.... As gold-miners from around the world rushed to Otago, Edward Bowes Cargill (1823-1903) son of the leader of the Otago Settlement, had implored the original settlers to stick together to preserve their identity." Hence Thatcher's piece.

The tune is listed as "Duck Leg Dick."

Hoskins, p. 20, says that this comes from Thatcher's first topical skit upon arriving in New Zealand from Australia. "A by-election had just seen Edward W Cargill returned to the Otago Provincial Council. In electioneering he had deplored the removal of established landmarks, and urged Duned in settlers 'that, notwithstanding the great influx of rogues and vagabonds [diggers from Victoria] settlers should preserve their 'Old Identity.'" Thatcher -- himself from Australia although he hadn't come to New Zealand to dig for gold -- had little trouble making fun of ways the early Scots settlers might preserve their "Old Identity."

"If Thatcher ever coined a phrase it was the 'Old Identity.' It immediately became a catchword and was applied by the Victorian immigrants to the more conservative and old-fashioned local settlers" (Hoskins, p. 22). The phrase became popular enough that Thatcher apparently used it in other songs as well.

For brief background on Thatcher's career, see the notes to "Where's Your License?" For an extensive collection of his songs, see Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong. - RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 5.0
File: BaRo045

Old Indian, An (The Indian Song)

DESCRIPTION: "An old Indian sat in his little canoe, / A-floating along o'er the water so blue. / He sang of the days when these lands were his own, / Before the palefaces among them were known."

A lament for the loss of the Indians' land and culture

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra)

KEYWORDS: Indians(Am.) lament
Old Inishowen

DESCRIPTION: The singer says there is no place in the country to match Inishowen's beauty. He lists the places nearby: Tyrconnell, the castle of Cahir. He laments that O'Donnell (of Tyrconnell) and O'Doherty (of Inishowen) are dead. He blesses his home

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: home nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H824, p. 166, "Old Inishowen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13477

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Steals of the White Man" (theme)
- cf. "Logan's Lament" (theme)
- cf. "The Fair Captive" (plot elements)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- Poor Indian

File: Wa030

Old Ireland

DESCRIPTION: "In the northwest of Europe there lies a green isle" land of majestic hills and fertile fields. The singer came from Columbia to view Ireland, and now praises Saint Patrick for a land without snakes. The singer bids farewell but says his heart will stay

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: home travel nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H658, pp. 175-176, "Old Ireland" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13536

File: HHH658
Old Ireland I Adore

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Erin's Isle, my heart's delight, I long to see thee free." O'Connell fought to make Ireland free. "If you were free as once we were How happy would we be! No foreign landlord then would dare To lord it over thee"

AUTHOR: James Walsh

EARLIEST DATE: before 1867 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 12(242))

KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad patriotic

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1775-1847 - Life of Daniel O'Connell

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 113, "Old Ireland I Adore" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 84, "Old Ireland I Adore" (1 text)

Roud #V23210

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 12(242), "The Exile's Lament", J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866; also 2806 b.10(82), Harding B 11(2918), 2806 c.15(287), Firth c.26(235), "The Exile's Lament"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Harp That Once Through Tara’s Halls" (tune)
cf. "Daniel O'Connell (I)" (subject: Daniel O'Connell) and references there

File: 0Con113

Old Jack

DESCRIPTION: Charles thinks his horse Old Jack should win a silver cup. Old Jack is a bag of bones, always hungry to eat anything. Nevertheless, he wins a trotting match race.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Peacock)

KEYWORDS: racing humorous horse food

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, pp. 85-86, "Old Jack" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9953

RECORDINGS:
Mrs. Clara Stevens, "Old Jack" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]

File: Pea085

Old Jesse

DESCRIPTION: "One cold and frosty mornin' Just as the sun did rise, The possum roared, the raccoon howled, 'Cause he'd begun to freeze... Old Jesse was a gentleman among the olden times." Remaining verses are floating stanzas about a Black's learning and life

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: religious Bible humorous animal

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 71-72, "Old Jesse" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST ScaNF071 (Partial)

Roud #3439

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "On a Cold Frosty Morning" (lyrics)
cf. "Walkin' in the Parlor" (lyrics)

NOTES [132 words]: This is one of those impossible items. Roud lumps Scarborough's text with "On a Cold Frosty Morning," presumably on the basis of the first line. But the next two verses ("Nigger never went to free school Nor any odder college..." and "Nigger used to pick de banjo, He play so berry strong...") are typical of "Walkin' in the Parlor."
The chorus, about Old Jesse (the father of David) is unique.
What's more, I have a recording of George and Gerry Armstrong, with the first verse and the Old Jesse chorus, combined with "Bye and Bye."
I really don't know what to make of the result. Separate song, or just a conflation? When in doubt, we split. If I had to file it somewhere, I would probably go against Roud and file it with "Walkin' in the Parlor" rather than "On a Cold Frosty Morning." - RBW
File: ScaNF071

Old Jimmy Johnson

DESCRIPTION: "Old Jimmy Johnson rolled a jug around the hill, I got a bottle and I want to get it filled." "Old Jimmy Johnson rolled a jug around the hill, I got an interest in a two dollar bill."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1969 (Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle)

KEYWORDS: nonballad drink money

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
* Bush-FsOfCentralWestVirginiaVol2, p. 11, "Old Jimmy Johnson" (1 short text, 1 tune)
* Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 60, "Old Jimmy Johnson" (1 short text, 1 tune)

Roud #7024

NOTES [9 words]: This sure looks like a fiddler's mnemonic to me.... - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: Boet060

Old Jimmy Sutton

DESCRIPTION: Bill took the gun, Bill went a-huntin'/Bang went the gun, down went the mutton, baa!" and similar verses about an inept farmer. Cho: "Can't dance that, can't dance nothin'/I wouldn't give a blank for the old Jimmy Sutton, baa!"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, Grayson & Whitter)

KEYWORDS: hunting dancing food dancetune animal horse sheep farming

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Lunsford/Stringfield-30And1FolkSongsFromSouthernMountains, pp. 46-47, "Old Jimmie Sutton" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #7878

RECORDINGS:
* Blue Ridge Buddies w. E. C. & Orna Ball, "Jimmie Sutton" (onCloseHomeMS)
* [G. B.] Grayson & [Henry] Whitter, "Old Jimmy Sutton" (Gennett 6436, 1928, on GraysonWhitter01)
* Vester Jones, "The Old Jimmy Sutton" (on GraysonCarroll1)
* Glenn Smith, "Old Jimmy Sutton" [instrumental] (GraysonCarroll1)

NOTES [38 words]: Just enough plot to avoid the nonballad keyword by a whisker. - PJS

Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 777 is "Jimmie Suttonton," a tune imperfectly transcribed and with no words. I've no idea if they are the same. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1

File: Rc0JiSu

Old Joe Camp

DESCRIPTION: "Old Joe Camp when he came to town, He enlisted under Captain Brown, Brown swore him on the very first slap, And sent him off to Manassas Gap." Brown rides Joe, who vows to desert, is captured (?), and is "fired back" to Brown

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Cox)

KEYWORDS: soldier Civilwar desertion

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Cox-FolkSongsSouth 79, "Old Joe Camp" (1 text)

ST JH:Cox079 (Full)

Roud #5463
NOTES [121 words]: Despite the title, the stanza form implies that this is not a version of Old Joe Clark. Cox’s version is badly defective, and there don’t seem to be other versions, so it’s hard to tell what this is really about, except that it seems to involve an "old soldier" of the Civil War who does his best to avoid work -- and, when that fails, attempts to desert. The only specific in the song is the reference to Manassas Gap; this is not enough even to allow speculation about the source of the song.

It was quite common, in the Civil War, for a well-to-do or well-connected man to volunteer to raise a company (or even a regiment), and become its commander as a result. It would seem that Brown was just such a company commander. - RBW

File: JHCox079

Old Joe Clark

DESCRIPTION: Old Joe Clark, a "fine old man" and a "preacher's son," lives an improbable life of courting, gambling, drinking, and sundry accidents. Versions range from the thoroughly clean (often involving animals) to the significantly bawdy.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1842

KEYWORDS: humorous talltale nonballad animal playparty floatingverses bawdy dancetune

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So)

REFERENCES (27 citations):
Randolph 533, "Old Joe Clark" (10 texts plus 2 excerpts, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 399-401, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 533A)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 86, "Old Joe Clark" (5 texts); also 111, "Wish I Had a Needle and Thread" (7 text, of which only "E" is really substantial; it is certainly the "Italy" version of "Going Across the Sea." The other fragments contain verses typical of "Shady Grove," "Old Joe Clark," and others)
McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, pp. 140-145, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 86, "Old Joe Clark" (7 tunes plus text excerpts)
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 428-430, "Old Joe Clark" (5 texts, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 157-159, "Old Joe Clark" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 99-101, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune, plus many extra verses)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 183, "Old Joe Clarke" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sulzer-TwentyFiveKentuckyFolkBallads, p. 21, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warner-FolkSongsAndBalladsOfTheEasternSeaboard, pp. 22-23, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongsUSA 25, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune -- plus the modern adaption "Round and Round Hitler's Grave")
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 277-279, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune, composite) Botkin-TreasuryOfAmericanFolklore, pp. 814-818, "Old Joe Clark" (1 collated text, 1 tune)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 174, "Old Joe Clog" (1 text, partly from "Old Joe Clark" and partly floating verses, several of them from "Shady Grove")
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol1, pp. 19-20, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune)
Thomas-DevilsDitties, pp. 106-107, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune, with a lot of verses from "Cindy" or something like it)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, pp. 37-38, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 171-172, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, pp. 156-157, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abrahams/Foss-AngloAmericanFolksongStyle, p. 89, "Old Joe Clark" (1 partial text)
Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, p. 149, "Old Joe Clark" (1 short text mixed with a "John Brown's Body" parody)
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 35, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text, 1 tune)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 249-250, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 206, "Old Joe Clark" (1 text)
DT, JOECLARK*

ADDITIONAL: Fred W. Allsopp, Folklore of Romantic Arkansas, Volume II (1931), p. 209, "(Old Joe Clark)" (1 text)
Roud #3594

RECORDINGS:
James "Iron Head" Baker, "Old Joe Clark" (AFS 200 A3, 1933)
H. M. Barnes & his Blue Ridge Ramblers, "Old Joe Clark" (Brunswick 313, 1929)
Fiddlin' John Carson, "Fare You Well Old Joe Clark" (OKeh 40038, 1924; rec. 1923) (OKeh 45198 [as "Old Joe Clark"], 1928, rec. 1927)
James Crase, "Old Joe Clark" (on MMOK, MMOKCD)
Da Costa Woltz's Southern Broadcasters, "Old Joe Clark" (Gennett 6223/Challenge 333/Herwin 75565, 1927, on GoingDown)
The Hillbilies, "Old Joe Clark" (OKeh 40376, 1925) (Vocalion 15369, 1926)
Vester Jones, "Old Joe Clark" (on GraysonCarroll1)
Bradley Kincaid, "Old Joe Clark" (Brunswick 485, c. 1930; Conqueror 8090, 1933)
Clayton McMichen & his Georgia Wildcats, "Old Joe Clark" (Varsity 5029, 1942)
John D. Mounce et al, "Old Joe Clark" (on MusOzarks01)
Glen Neaves & band, "Old Joe Clark" (on HalfCen1)
New Lost City Ramblers, "Old Joe Clark" (on NLCR05, NLCR11)
W. Lee O'Daniel & the Light Crust Doughboys, "Old Joe Clark" (Vocalion 02975, 1935)
Mose "Clear Rock" Platt, "Old Joe Clark" (AFS 197 A1, 1933)
Fiddlin' Powers and Family, "Old Joe Clark" (Victor 19434, 1924) (Edison 51662, 1925)
Riley Puckett, "Old Joe Clark" (Columbia 15033-D, c. 1925)
Ernest V. Stoneman, "Old Joe Clark" (Victor 20302, 1926); Ernest V. Stoneman Trio, "Old Joe Clark" (OKeh, unissued, 1927)
Pete Seeger, "Joe Clark" (on PeteSeeger07, PeteSeeger07b)
Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers, "Old Joe Clark" (Columbia 15108-D, 1926)
Wade Ward, "Old Joe Clark" [instrumental] (on LomaxCD1702)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Cuckoo Waltz" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Build a Brick House" (lyrics)

SAME TUNE:
Fare You Well, Old Ely Branch (by Aunt Molly Jackson) (Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, pp. 268-269; on PeteSeeger13)

NOTES [118 words]: Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I offers some of the rarely printed bawdy verses to this familiar square dance and quatrain ballad. - EC
Since this piece is often played as a fiddle tune, and since the verses are usually improbable, often come from other songs, and rarely show any connection to each other, this song has been suspected of having begun life as an instrumental. - RBW
Seeger states that Joe Clark was "an actual person, a veteran of the War of 1812." - PJS
I'd love to know what evidence there is to prove that this soldier inspired the song.... - RBW
This shouldn't be confused with the fiddle tune "Old Joe," which is separate. "Old Joe" is reported to have been a nickname for syphilis. - PJS

Last updated in version 6.0
File: R533

Old Joe Shuffle

DESCRIPTION: "Old Joe Shuffle, he walked with a limp, Old man Shuffle he walked with a stick... For he limped, and he kicked at a wheel." He was a potter, and "loved his corn likker" that he put in his own jug. He died at a wheel, seeing snakes, killing his own drakes

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal)
KEYWORDS: work death drink disability
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, (no author listed), "Old Joe Shuffle," Vol. V, No. 1 (Jul 1957), p. 6, "(Old Joe Shuffle he walked with a limp)" (1 text)

NOTES [45 words]: It's not clear, from the song, if Josiah Wedgwood Sheffield, "Old Joe Shuffle," died of delirium tremens, but it certainly sounds like a possibility. Why this made him worthy of a song I am not sure. It doesn't seem as if it circulated outside his immediate region. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: NCF5106
Old John Booker

DESCRIPTION: "Old John Booker, call that gone!" (repeated frequently, usually in groups of three). "I'm goin' down to telephone!" "Old John Booker, he feel like this!" "I'm goin' down -- on the farm!"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1963
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation): Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 187-188, "(Old John Booker)" (1 text); p. 287, "Old John Booker" (1 tune, partial text)
File: CNFM187

Old John Wallis

DESCRIPTION: John Brown had an old mare. He wasn't bid one farthing for her at Caister fair. He had a cow that gave only enough milk for his sow. His hens got in his corn; he shot at them but killed his mare. He killed another mare running her head into a tree

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1967 (recording, Bob Brader)
KEYWORDS: farming humorous nonballad nonsense chickens horse floatingverses
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (1 citation): Hamer-GreenGroves, pp. 73-74, "Old John Wallis" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #294
RECORDINGS:
Bob Brader, "Old John Wallis" (on Voice14)
NOTES [159 words]: John Wallis's part in this song is only to ask John Brown "do you think this mare will die?" The rest of the song has to do with John Brown's misadventures. I list only a few of those in the description. He has others that I don't begin to understand. For example,
Old John Brown he went to plough,
And when he got there he didn't know how.
At every end he gave meows
He said he could plough from light to dark.
and
Old John Brown he had two fools
And he said he would make them lead his winter cows.
And if they didn't get back by noon,
He would eat the treacle and swallow the spoon.
I hope this is not supposed to make sense. - BS
I wonder if it isn't some sort of "song of all nonsense songs," with some garbling as the various elements came together. Roud lumps it with "Brian O'Lynn (Tom Boleyn)," which I flatly don't see. I'm reminded of versions of "The Swapping Boy." Mix in a little of "Little Brown Dog" and a dead horse song, and voila! - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: RcOjJoWa

Old Johnny Booger

DESCRIPTION: Johnny Booger takes a wife. Doctor tells Johnny to rub her bad leg with gin. He thinks that a sin so he drinks the gin and rubs her leg with the bottle. Johnny falls in the river and there is no one to pull him out. He dies but can't get in heaven.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: drink humorous wife death river drowning
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North,South))
REFERENCES (1 citation): Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 304, "Johnny Bowker" (1 fragment) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 660, "Old Johnny Bowker")
Roud #1329
RECORDINGS:
Jack Elliott, "Old Johnny Booger" (on Voice14)

NOTES [136 words]: Yates, Musical Traditions site Voice of the People suite "Notes - Volume 14" - 8.9.02: "When I first came across this song, from a singer in Oxfordshire, the title was 'Old Johnny Bigger', the final word rhyming with the now unacceptable word 'nigger'. I presume that the song comes from the American Minstrel stage of the mid-19th century."
Jack Elliott's chorus on Voice14 is "Singing I do believe; I will believe. That old Johnny Booger was a gay old bugger And a gay old bugger was he." It is tempting to lump this [Roud #1329] with "Johnny Booker" [Roud #3441] but the verses and tune here have nothing in common with what I've read and heard. Yet another complication is the relationship of this song to "Johnny Boker" (I) [Roud #353]; for tune, text and structure's sake, I would keep it separate as well. - BS

Old Johnny Walker

DESCRIPTION: "Old Johnny Walker's dead and gone, dead and gone, dead and gone... He never died before." He had a wife who died, then he killed her, then she rose and had three more children. He children go sliding on thin ice; they all fall in or run away

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1969 (Gardham-EastRidingSongster)
KEYWORDS: death husband wife resurrection children disaster humorous floating verses

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gardham-EastRidingSongster 5, "Old Johnny Walker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #764

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Three Little Girls A-Skating Went" (lyrics)
cf. "Bollochy Bill the Sailor" (lyrics)
cf. "Old Roger is Dead (Old Bumpy, Old Grimes, Pompey)" (theme)
cf. "Bohunkus (Old Father Grimes, Old Grimes Is Dead)" (lyrics)

NOTES [79 words]: This is confusing and no mistake. The opening "Old Johnny Walker" verse is often associated with "Bollochy Bill the Sailor"; I've never seen the middle elsewhere; the ending is "Three Little Girls A-Skating Went." Roud files it as #764, which equates very loosely with "Bohunkus (Old Father Grimes, Old Grimes Is Dead)" but is also sort of like "Old Roger is Dead (Old Bumpy, Old Grimes, Pompey)." The result is enough of a mess that I decided to just file it on its own. - RBW

Old Johnston Thought It Rather Hard

DESCRIPTION: "Old Johnston thought it rather hard To ride over Beauregard; Old Johnston proved the deuce of a battle, And it's clear beyond a doubt That he didn't like the rout, And the second time he thought he'd try another." The Great Galena is also mentioned

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar soldier battle

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 21, 1861 - First battle of Bull Run/Manasses fought between the Union army of McDowell and the Confederates under Johnston and Beauregard
April 6-7, 1862 - Battle of Shiloh. The army of U.S. Grant is forced back but, reinforced by Buell, beats off the army of A.S. Johnston. Johnston is killed. Both sides suffer heavy casualties (Shiloh was the first battle to show how bloody the Civil War would be)
May 15, 1862 - Battle of Drewry's Bluff

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 224, "Old Johnston Thought It Rather Hard" (1 fragment)
NOTES [668 words]: The editors of Brown conjecture that the first verse of this song, at least, refers to the Battle of Shiloh, at which Albert Sidney Johnston commanded (and died). Given the fragmentary state of the text, this is possible, and A. S. Johnston had suffered much criticism in the aftermath of the loss of Forts Henry and Donelson (McPherson, p. 405) -- but I wonder. There were two battles in the Civil War in which a southern general named Johnston was in command over Beauregard: At (First) Bull Run/Manasses, where the Johnston involved was Joseph E. Johnston (Boatner, pp. 99-101), and at Shiloh, where the Johnston was A. S. Johnston (Boatner, pp. 752-757).

To me, the song seems slightly more likely to refer to Bull Run. J. E. Johnston, arriving on the field with reinforcements, could have taken command over Beauregard, but generally deferred to his junior as Beauregard knew the ground. In addition, the Confederates at Bull Run were wavering when Johnston's troops arrived; there was no such rout at Shiloh. (There, it was the Union troops which ran.)

I hasten to add that this is pure conjecture. If true, however, the song may link vaguely with the "Bull Run" song of Cox; there are some metrical similarities.

If the song refers to the eastern campaigns, it would also explain the references to the Galena, a Union ironclad launched in 1862. She operated on the James River during the Peninsular Campaign, and she and the Monitor (either of which, though probably the latter, could be the "Naval Wonder" of the song) tried to ascend the river to attack Richmond after the destruction of the Merrimac/Virginia on May 9. (There were naval vessels involved at Shiloh -- the Lexington and Tyler were on the Tennessee River supporting Grant's troops; McPherson, pp. 410-411 -- but there was nothing unusual about either ship. To be sure, there had been ironclads in the fighting at Forts Henry and Donelson which led up to Shiloh.)

The attack on Drewry's Bluff failed; the Union vessels could not elevate their guns high enough to attack the Confederate works. The Monitor suffered little damage (except that her crew was driven inside by sharpshooters, leaving them breathing foul and very hot air; Holzer/Mulligan, p. 48), but the Galena proved very unsafe. Nelson, p. 89, records an officer writing of her, "She is not proof; ball came through, and many men were killed with fragments of her own iron." Soley-BL, p. 270., writes that in the battle of Drewry's Bluff, "In this position the Galena remained for three hours and twenty minutes until she had expended all her ammunition. She came out of the action badly shattered, having been struck 28 times and perforated in 18 places." In the end, she was converted to an unarmored gunboat.

Another perspective on Drewry's Bluff, however, comes from John Taylor Wood, who was first a lieutenant in the Confederate Navy and then a Colonel in the army. He declares that Drewry's Bluff had not been fortified until the Virginia was scuttled, and manned only by a few guns, served mostly by the Virginia's former crew. He considers the Galena to have been very skillfully handled, but his summary of the battle (Wood-BL, p. 108) is as follows:

"The Monitor, and others anchored just below, answered our fire deliberately; but, owing to the great elevation of the battery, their fire was in a great measure ineffectual, though two guns were dismounted and several men were killed and wounded. While this was going on, our sharpshooters were at work on both banks... Finding they could make no impression on our works, the Galena, after an action of four hours, returned down the river with her consorts.

"This was one of the boldest and best-conducted operations of the war.... Had Commander Rogers [of the Union navy] been supported by a few brigades, landed at City Point or above on the south side [of the James River], Richmond would have been evacuated. The Virginia's crew alone barred his way to Richmond...." - RBW

Bibliography

- Boatner: Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover)
- Soley-BL: Professor James Russell Soley, U. S. N., "The Navy in the Peninsular Campaign," article in Clarence C. Buel and Robert U. Johnson, editors, Battles and Leaders of the Civil War, four volumes, 1888 (this article is in volume II, pp. 264-270)
- Wood-BL: John Taylor Wood, Colonel, C.S.A., "The battle was a drawn one: The first fight of iron-clads," article in Clarence C. Buel and Robert U. Johnson, editors, Battles and Leaders of the Civil War, four volumes, 1888. For some reason this is not in the same Volume II as Soley-BL, so for convenience of transport, I used the version of the article printed in the abbreviated one-volume edition "edited" (read: hacked down almost to uselessness) by Ned Bradford, 1956; page references are to the 1979 Fairfax Press edition.

Last updated in version 2.6
File: BrII224

Old Judas
DESCRIPTION: "Old Judas was a traitor and the worst of his kind. He had a bag of money that he carried all the time." The singer details Judas's betrayal of Jesus, and his death, wonders why Jesus chose such a disciple, and warns others against love of money.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Collected by Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains from John Daniel Vass)
KEYWORDS: Jesus religious money lie betrayal
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains, pp. 87-88, "Old Judas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7336
NOTES [268 words]: The statement that Judas had "a money bag" seems to be based on John 13:29, where Judas is said to have what the NRSV calls "the common purse," and also John 12:6. This also refers to Judas having the common treasury, and refers to him as a thief who steals from it. 12:6 is also the verse in which, after the anointing of Jesus's feet, he complains that the money was not given to the poor. (In the version of the story of the anointing in Mark 14:3-9 and parallels, it is not Judas who questions the behavior, but the crowd in general).
There is no evidence that Judas had been a thief prior to his involvement with Jesus, except for songs such as "Judas" [Child 23].
It is not really clear whether Judas betrayed Jesus for a high price or a low. Only Matthew tells the story (Matt. 26:15), and the text says literally "thirty of silver" -- hence thirty silver coins, but it it not clear which sort of silver coins. If, as is likely, we are meant to think of the Greek denarius (which was a silver coin massing 3.8 grams), the price -- while not "lordly" as in the source in Zech. 11:13) -- was not trivial; it represented a month or more of income for a hired worker. And it was allegedly enough to buy a field near Jerusalem, where land prices must have been high (Matt. 27:7).
In Matthew 27:3-4, Judas tries to return the money before his death. The song tries to reconcile the two incompatible versions of his death; Matt. 27:5 says he hanged himself, clearly dying in the process, with no broken ropes involved; his death by violent disease, in a field he himself bought, is told in Acts 1:18-19). - RBW
File: Shel087

Old Judge Duffy
DESCRIPTION: Judge Duffy "knew nothing about rules of the law," but "of judges he was one of the best." When the town's only blacksmith is clearly guilty of murder, Duffy orders a Chinese laborer hanged instead, because the blacksmith is needed.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)
KEYWORDS: execution reprieve foreigner lie
FOUND IN: US(NW,So) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, pp. 51-52, "Old Judge Duffy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp 584-585, "Judge Martin Duffy" (1 text)
DT, JDGEDFFY*
ADDITIONAL: Tom Nash and Twilo Scofield, _The Well-Travelled Casket: Oregon Folklore_, Meadowlark Press, 1999, pp. 139-140 "Judge Martin Duffy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4806
RECORDINGS:
Old Keg of Rum, The

DESCRIPTION: "My name is old Jack Palmer, I'm a man of olden day, And so I wish to sing a song To you of olden praise. To tell of merry friends of old....." The singer describes his mates who gathered around "the old keg of rum," their work and their drinking

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Paterson's _Old Bush Songs_)

KEYWORDS: drink moniker

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Paterson/Fahey/Seal-OldBushSongs-CentenaryEdition, pp. 249-253, "The Old Keg of Rum" (1 text)
Ward-PenguinBookOfAustralianBallads, pp. 78-79, "The Old Keg of Rum" (1 text)
Stewart/Keasing-FavoriteAustralianBallads, pp. 14-16, "The Old Keg of Rum" (1 text)

NOTES [59 words]: The text in Paterson/Fahey/Seal-OldBushSongs-CentenaryEdition appears likely to be based on "The Days of Forty-Nine," but without a tune, it's impossible to be sure. John S. Manifold, _Who Wrote the Ballads? Notes on Australian Folksong_, Australasian Book Society, 1964, p. 94, reports the tune as "Widgegoara Joe" or "The Hut That's Upside Down." - RBW.

Last updated in version 5.2

Old Kentucky

DESCRIPTION: "You may go east, you may go west And sighs so grand you'll see. But after all, Kentucky is The place you'll wish to be." The singer describes the scenery, the "women always fair," the hospitality, the farming, etc. and hopes to be buried in Kentucky

AUTHOR: Billie Menshouse?

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)

KEYWORDS: home nonballad

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 174-175, "Old Kentucky" (1 text)

Old King Buzzard

DESCRIPTION: "Old King Buzzard floating high, 'Sho do wish old cow would die.' Old cow died, old calf cried, 'Oh mourner, you shall be free.'"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: food bird animal

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 193, (no title) (1 fragment)

Old King Cole (I)

DESCRIPTION: Cumulative: "Old King Cole was a merry old soul, and a merry old soul was he. He called for his pipe and he called for his bowl and he called for his --- three." Sundry (soldiers/courtiers) are called in, make suitable remarks, and wait for the next rank

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1776 (Herd); the nursery rhyme form is quoted in William King's "Useful Transactions in Philosophy" (1708/9)

KEYWORDS: cumulative soldier drink humorous bawdy royalty

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So) Britain(England(Lond,North,South),Scotland(Aber)) Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (22 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 302, "Old King Cole" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 661, "Old King Cole" (1 text)
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #112, "Old King Cole" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 151-153, "Old King Coul" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan8 1710, "Old King Cole" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 19, "Old King Coul" (1 text)
Chappell-FolksongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 107, "Old King Jimmy" (1 text, in which the same first stanza is repeated several times: "Old King Jimmy called for his wine And called for his fiddlers three,"
"Old Farmer Jimmy called for his wine..."
"Old Preacher Jimmy..."
"Old Sailor Jimmy...")
Sulzer-TwentyFiveKentuckyFolkBallads, pp. 26-27, "Old King Quine (Cawein)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol4, pp. 39-41, "Old King Cole" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, p. 158, "Old King Cole" (1 fragmentary text, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 117-118, "Old Kinkaid" (1 text, 1 tune)
Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic II, pp. 171-173, "Old King Cole" (1 tune, which may or may not be related as no text is given)
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 91, "Old King Coul" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, pp. 96-97, "Old King Cole" (1 text, 1 tune, which runs through the military hierarchy from privates to generals); p. 97, "Old King Cole -- 423 Squadron" (1 text, a version customized for the airmen of the 423 squadron)
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 204-205, "Old King Cole" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 112, "Old King Cole" (2 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #206, p. 143, "(Old King Cole)"
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 140, "Old King Cole" (1 text)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 56, "Old King Cole" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 278, "Old King Cole" (1 text)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, (Joan McCaskill, collector), "Rope-Skipping Games", Vol. 1, No. 1 (Jun 1948), p. 12, "(Old King Cole)" (partial text with game description)
DT, KNGCOLE* KNGCOLE2*
Roud #1164

RECORDINGS:
Martin Gorman, "Old King Cole" (on Voice07)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 20(269), "Old King Cole," J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866 ; also Harding B 11(2808), "Old King Cole"

SAME TUNE:
Old King Cotton (Fred W. Allsopp, Folklore of Romantic Arkansas, Volume II, p. 199)

NOTES [372 words]:
Various explanations have been offered for "King Cole." Colchester is said to have been named after a third century kinglet named Cole; Geoffrey of Monmouth's history, V.6, describes a "Coel Duke of Kaercolun/Colchester" as living in the time of Constantius the father of Constantine the Great -- but Geoffrey made up most of his history. (He also gave us King Lear and much of the basic story of King Arthur). As the Opies comment, "If the old chronicler Geoffrey of Monmouth (1147) could be trusted, which he cannot be, King Cole had a daughter who was well skilled in music." They go on to note that the identity of Cole has been discussed at least since the early eighteenth century.

It might be worth noting that, although Geoffrey's history is almost all fiction, and we have no quality sources for British history in the period preceding Constantius, Geoffrey's work is very popular. So it might possibly have inspired this song even though it is not historical. Scotland had a King Colin (967-971). Various merchants and minor noblemen have also been suggested, and Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel mentions the Celtic kinglet Coel Hen. Needless to say, none of these identifications is convincing. - RBW

Parody: Bodleian, Harding B 11(2809), "Old King Cole," J. Sharp (London), c.1845 - BS

David J. Bercuson, Maple Leaf Against the Axis: Canada's Second World War, 1995 (I use the 2004 Red Deer Press edition), p. 82, describes the 423 Squadron mentioned in Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead's "Old King Cole -- 423 Squadron" text: "No. 423 Squadron, formed in May 1942, flew the heavy four-engine Short Sunderland flying-boat on convoy escort and anti-submarine patrols until the end of the war. Its crews destroyed two U-boats and shared in the..."
sinking of one other, beginning with U-753 on 13 May 1943." (This was the one it shared in sinking, according to Bercuson, p. 140.) Another U-boat it sank was U-439 -- although the U-boat, even while sinking, managed to shoot down the Sunderland, killing five of the crew and wounding the rest (Bercuson, p. 83). They flew from Castle Archdale, Northern Ireland (Bercuson, p. 143). - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1

Old King Cole (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Old King Cole was a jolly old soul And this you may tell by his larnin', He eat corn bread till his head turn red And his old yellow cap needs darnin" Other verses are floaters: "My pretty little pink," "Coffee grows," "I'll take my knapsack on my back"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (Ritchie)
KEYWORDS: nonballad royalty floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ritchie-SingingFamilyOfTheCumberlands, pp. 42-43, "[Old King Cole]" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 81, "Old King Cole" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1164
NOTES [74 words]: Roud lumps this with the standard "Old King Cole." But while the theme is similar, the lyrics and the meter are different. It's really more a floating verse collection than anything else; of Ritchie's 20 lines (five stanzas of four lines each), I would consider "at least" fourteen to be from other songs -- and I suspect in fact that the original was a composite song from which the singer forgot a few lines and patched in replacements. - RBW

Old Kingston Jail

DESCRIPTION: The singer describes the conditions in Kingston Jail. The inmates talk of their desire to leave. Most of the song is devoted to the varied characters found in the prison

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (Flanders/Olney-BalladsMigrantInNewEngland)
KEYWORDS: nonballad prison moniker
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Flanders/Olney-BalladsMigrantInNewEngland, pp. 25-27, "Old Kingston Jail" (1 text)
ST FO025 (Partial)
Roud #4675

Old Kitarden

DESCRIPTION: Singer, a restless logger, leaves "Kitarden" (Katahdin), Maine. Arriving in Michigan, he is set to cooking instead of logging; he reminisces; when he and his friends arrive in Saginaw they will "make the taverns roar" with toasts to Kitarden and the girls

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer, a logger, leaves "Kitarden" (Katahdin), Maine, because he is restless. He arrives in Michigan, but his cohorts put him to cooking rather than logging; he reminisces about Maine, and vows that when he and his friends arrive in Saginaw they will "make the taverns roar" with toasts to Kitarden and the "girls that we adore."

KEYWORDS: lumbering emigration logger work home cook

FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 44, "Old Kitarden" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 55, "Old Kitarden" (1 text)
Roud #8876
CROSS-REFERENCES:
Old Lady Come from Booster

DESCRIPTION: "Old lady came from Booster, She had two hens and a rooster, The rooster died, toe old lady cried, She couldn't get eggs like she used to." "Rancy tanky, button my shoe." "Pain in my head, ranky tanky; Pain in my shoulder... Pain all over me, ranky tanky"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight)

KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad chickens

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight, p. 113, "Old Lady Come from Booster" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: _Sing Out_ magazine, Volume 22, #2 (1973), p. 27, "Old Lady Come from Booster" (1 text, 1 tune, the Johns Island version)

RECORDINGS:
Mabel Hillery, Janie Hunter and her grandchildren, "Old Lady Come from Booster" (on JohnsIsland1)
Janie Hunter, Mary Pinckney, and their children, "Old Lady Come from Booster" (on BeenStorm1)

Old Lady of Amsterdam

DESCRIPTION: "There was an old lady of Amsterdam, She was a fine old lass, And every time she turned around, She showed her great big... ankle bones." And similar verses about her son, her daughter, and her travels to town

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1969 (Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol1)

KEYWORDS: humorous wordplay mother children

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol1, pp. 30-31, "Old Lady of Amsterdam" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Hallelujah" (technique) and references there

NOTES [47 words]: The technique of the hidden word in this song is also found in songs such as "Hallelujah"; see the references there. This song is perhaps bawdier than most examples of the type, which may explain the references to Amsterdam, known as a home of prostitutes (see, e.g. "A-Rovin"). - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: BuF1030

Old Lady of Botany Bay, The

DESCRIPTION: "There came an old woman/man from Botany/Poverty Bay, And what have you got to give me today? And you mustn't say Yes, o or nay, black, white, or gray."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty wordplay colors

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 53, "(There came an old woman from Botany Bay)" (1 text)

Roud #5105

NOTES [30 words]: Roud seems to lump British versions of this with the song indexed as "Poor Widow." I can only say that the extreme versions, this and Sam Henry's, do not appear to be the Old Lady Sally Wants to Jump

DESCRIPTION: "Old Lady Sally wants to jumpty-jump, Jumpty-jump, jumpty-jump... And Old Lady Sally wants to bow." The singer says to throw in a hook to catch a girl, notes there are "many fishes in the brook," and describes a preacher trying to preach his way to heaven.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (recording, children of Lilly's Chapel School)

KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad courting

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 153-154, "(Old Lady Sally Wants to Jumpty-Jump)" (1 text); pp. 275-276, "Old Lady Sally Wants to Jump" (1 tune, partial text)

ADDITIONAL: Harold Courlander, _A Treasury of Afro-American Folklore_, Crown Publishers, 1976, pp. 537-539, "Old Lady Sally Wants to Jump" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #11003

RECORDINGS:
Children of Lilly's Chapel School, "Old Lady Sally Wants to Jump" (on NFMAla6, RingGames1)

File: CNFM153

Old Lady Sittin' in the Dining Room

DESCRIPTION: A ring-skipping song. "Choose the one the ring go round, Choose the one the morning, Choose the one with the coal black hair, And kiss and call her honey."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939

KEYWORDS: playparty

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Botkin-TreasuryOfSouthernFolklore, p. 705, "Old Lady Sittin' in the Dining Room" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [6 words]: Another "Weevily Wheat" variant? - RBW

File: BSoF705B

Old Lady Who Swallowed a Fly

DESCRIPTION: Singer says he knows an old lady who swallowed a fly; "I don't know why she swallowed that fly/Perhaps she'll die." She swallows a succession of animals, each to catch the last. At the end, "I know an old lady who swallowed a horse/She's dead, of course."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (recording, Pete Seeger)

KEYWORDS: death cumulative humorous animal bird bug horse

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
DT, SWALLFLY*

Roud #9375

RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "I Know an Old Lady (Who Swallowed a Fly)" (on PeteSeeger08, PeteSeegerCD02)
Pete Seeger & Sonny Terry, "Old Lady Who Swallowed a Fly" (on SeegerTerry)

SAME TUNE:
Pete Seeger, "Young Woman Who Swallowed a Lie" [feminist parody] (DT, SWALLLIE; on PeteSeeger45; on PeteSeeger47)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
There Was An Old Lady Who Swallowed a Fly

File: RcIKA0LW
Old Lead (Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John II)

DESCRIPTION: "Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, Killed Old Lead and home he run, Old Lead was eat, and John was beat, And Mary ran bawling down the street." How a drifter named John killed a tree dog named "Old Lead" and was punished for it

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: animal death

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 76, (no title) (1 fragment)
cf. Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose p. 221, note 74
(Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John)"

CROSS-REFERENCES:

File: ScaNF076

Old Leather Breeches, The

DESCRIPTION: "At the sign of the bell, on the road to Clonmel, Paddy Hegarty kept a night shaybeen." When a party arrives demanding food and drink, Paddy supplies liquor, but for food can only cut up his leather breeches. When the trick is discovered, a riot ensues

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (OConor); 19C (Wolf)

KEYWORDS: drink clothes party

FOUND IN: Ireland Australia Canada(Newf) Britain(England(Lond))

REFERENCES (10 citations):
Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, pp. 232-233, "The Old Leather Breeches" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hamer-GarnersGay, pp. 46-47, "The Leather Breeches" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladsOfIreland, p. 75, "The Old Leather Breeches" (1 text)
OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 67A, "The Old Leather Breeches" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 71-72, "Leather Britches" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong 16, pp. 116-1190, "Paddy Hagerty's Old Leather Breeches" (1 text)
Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday 37, pp. 123-125,171, "The Old Leather Britches" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry, pp. 22-24, "The Ould Leather Breeches" (1 text)
Behan-IrelandSings, #66, "Oul Leather Britches" (1 text, 1 tune, modified) Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1718, p. 115, "The Old Leather Breeches" (1 reference)
Roud #923

RECORDINGS:
Jerome Downey, "Paddy Hagerty's Old Leather Breeches" (on NFJDowney01)
Richard Hayward, Ireland Calling (Glasgow,n.d.), pp. 14-15, "The Ould Leather Breeches" (text, music and reference to Decca F-2266 recorded Feb 6, 1931)

BROADSIDES:
LOCSinging, as110230, "Old Leather Breeches!," unknown, 19C
NOTES [45 words]: Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday: "It is common throughout Ireland and I have heard [it] in the Border's of Scotland."
The date and master id (GB-2648-1/2) for Hayward's record is provided by Bill Dean-Myatt, MPhil. compiler of the Scottish National Discography. - BS

Last updated in version 5.0

File: MCB232

Old MacDonald Had a Farm

DESCRIPTION: (Old MacDonald's) farm features a wide variety of livestock, described cumulatively, e.g. with the pig making an oink here and an oink there, the cow a moo-moo here and there, etc. until the entire farm is sounding off

AUTHOR: unknown
Earliest Date: 1917 (Tommy's Tunes)
Keywords: animal farming cumulative nonballad
Found In: US(MW,SE,So) Canada(Newf)
References (7 citations):
- Randolph 457, "The Merry Green Fields of the Lowland" (1 text); 458, "Old Missouri" (1 text)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 125, "McDonald's Farm" (5 text)
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 125, "McDonald's Farm" (3 tunes plus text excerpts)
- Gilbert-LostChords, p. 83, "Old MacDonald Had a Farm" (1 text)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 389, "Old MacDonald Had A Farm" (1 text)
- Pound-AmericanBalladsAndSongs, 120, pp. 238-240, "Sweet Fields of Violo" (1 text)
- Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 410-412, "Old MacDonald Had a Farm"
Roud #745
Recordings:
- Warren Caplinger's Cumberland Mountain Entertainers, "McDonald's Farm" (Brunswick 224, 1928)
- John M. Curtis, "The Farmyard" (on MUNFLA-Leach)
- Englewood Four, "Old McDonald Had A Farm" (Champion 15451/Challenge 396, 1928 [as Henry County Four]; rec. 1927)
- Sam Patterson Trio, "Old MacDonald Had a Farm" (Edison 51644, 1925)
- Dan Russo's Orioles, "Old MacDonald Had A Farm" (Columbia 2647-D, 1932)
- Gid Tanner & His Skillet Lickers, "Old MacDonald Had A Farm" (Columbia 15204-D, 1927)
Cross-references:
cf. "The Farmyard Song (I)" (theme)

Same Tune:
The Farmyard Song

Notes [256 words]: Are the pieces listed here really one song? It's not immediately obvious. The British and American versions are often very distinct, but there are intermediate versions, e.g. Randolph's. There may well be mixture with "The Farmyard Song (I)," and maybe "The Swapping Boy" as well; indeed, early versions of the Index lumped this with "The Farmyard Song (I)."

Neither of Randolph's texts conforms to the common version of "Old MacDonald," and "The Merry Green Fields of the Lowland," in particular, looks older (it probably derives from the George Christy version "In the Merry Green Fields of Oland," from 1865; compare Sharp's "Merry Green Fields of Ireland" and Pound's "Sweet Fields of Violo"). But the cumulative pattern is the same (indeed, something very like it is quoted in Pills to Purge Melancholy in 1707), so I assume the family is a unity.

Gilbert-LostChords claims the piece (in which "My Grandfather," rather than "Old MacDonald, is the farmer) comes from a busker of the 1870s called "the Country Fiddler," but gives no details to verify this.

I use the "Old MacDonald" title because it is the best-known, though Fuld reports that this version did not appear until 1917 (and even then, it was "Old MacDougal"). - RBW

The John M Curtis Newfoundland version replaces the leading "Old MacDonald had a farm" with "Aye bonny lassie will you come For to mind my father's (hens/geese/..." and the trailing "Old MacDonald had a farm" with "Aye bonny lassie will you come to the bonny woods of ivy." Roud has this as #544. - BS

Last updated in version 4.5

File: R457

Old Maid and the Burglar, The [Laws H23]

Description: The old maid prepares for bed by removing her teeth, wig, and glass eye. She then discovers the burglar hiding under her bed. She threatens to shoot him if he will not marry her.

He answers, "Woman, for the Lord's sake, shoot!"

Author: unknown

Earliest Date: c. 1901 (recording, John Terrell)

Keywords: oldmaid robbery humorous

Found In: US(Ap,MW,SE,So) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Laws H23, "The Old Maid and the Burglar"
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 192, "The Burglar Man" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 192, "The Burglar Man" (1 excerpt, 1 tune)
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 110, pp. 249-250, "The Old Maid and the Burglar" (1 text)
Brown-AlabamaFolkLyric 74, "The Burglar Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5, pp. 34-35, "The Burglar Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 223-224, "The Jolly Burglar Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 780, OLMDBURG
Roud #658
RECORDINGS:
Reubin [Reuben?] Burns, "The Burglar Man" (Champion 15376, 1928; rec. 1927)
Bob Carpenter, "The Burglar Man" (on LomaxCD1702)
Fiddlin' John Carson, "The Burglar and the Old Maid" (OKeh 45259, 1928)
Bill Clifton, "Burglar Man" (Blue Ridge 403, n.d.)
Frank Hutchison, "The Burglar Man" (OKeh 45313, 1929; rec. 1928)
Eddy Primroy, "The Burglar" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Riley Puckett, "Burglar Man" (Columbia 15015-D, 1925; rec. 1924)
Ernest V. Stoneman, "The Old Maid and the Burglar" (Edison 52369, 1928) (CYL: Edison [BA] 5531, 1928)
Arthur Tanner, "Burglar Man" (Silvertone 3514, 1926)
John Terrell, "A Bergular's [sic] Experience with an Old Maid" (Zon-O-Phone 1-9665, c. 1901)
Henry Whitter, "The Burglar Man" (OKe 45063, 1926); Henry Whitter & Fiddler Joe [Samuels], "The Burglar Man" (OKe, unissued, 1926)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Warranty Deed" (theme)
File: LH23

Old Maid's Song (I), The

DESCRIPTION: An old maid laments her state, noting that her (two) sister(s) were popular, but she's been ignored all her life. She says she'd accept almost any man, and lists the good things she'd do for him.

AUTHOR: Martin Parker (source: Kittredge)
EARLIEST DATE: 1636 (broadside)
KEYWORDS: loneliness marriage nonballad family oldmaid
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,NE,Ro,So) Ireland Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber,Hebr))
Canada(Mar,Newf,Ont)
REFERENCES (20 citations):
Thompson-APioneerSongster 27, "The Spinster's Lament" (1 text)
Sturgis/Hughes-SongsFromTheHillsOfVermont, pp. 18-21, "The Spinster's Lament" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wyman/Brockway-LonesomeSongs-KentuckyMountains-Vol1, p. 65, "The Old Maid's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #82, "The Old Maid" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H138, p. 256, "The Black Chimney Sweeper" (1 text, 1 tune, in which a "black chimney sweeper" finally marries her)
Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry, pp. 87-88, "The Black Chimney Sweeper" (1 text)
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, p. 102, "Sisters Susan" (1 text)
Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 353-355, "The Old Maid's Lament for a Husband" (1 text, which is not lyrically similar to the usual versions of this song but has all the same plot elements)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 297-298, "Here's My Sister Betsy" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 208)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 133, "Tinker, Tailor" (1 text)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 210, "The Poor Auld Maid" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #17, p. 1, "The Old Maid's Lament for a Husband" (1 fragment which follows Logan-APedlarsPack's version)
Greig/Duncan7 1378, Greig/Duncan8 Addenda, "Come Ye Inksmen" (5 texts, 2 tunes)
Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee 40, "Auld Maid in a Garrett" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, p. 461, "I Long to be Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 21, "Black Chimney Sweeper" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke-TraditionalSingersAndSongsFromOntario 26, "Come All You True Lovers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 186, "Old Maid's Song" (1 text) JournalOfAmericanFolklore, G.L. Kittredge, editor, "Ballads and Songs," Vol. XXX, No. 117 (Jul-Sep 1917, pp. 355-356 "The Old Maid's Song" (1 Kentucky text plus 5 related verses from Roxburgh)
DT, OLDMAID1 (OLDMAID2) OLDMAID6*
Roud #802
RECORDINGS:
Freeman Bennett, "I Long to be Wedding" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Joanna Leith, "The Poor Auld Maid" (on FSBFTX19)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2011), "Chimney Sweep's Wedding," J.O. Bebbington (Manchester), 1858-1861; also Firth c.20(31), "Chimney Sweeper's Wedding"; 2806 c.7(10), "Chimney Sweepsers Weding"[sic] LOCsinging, as102060, "The Chimney Sweepers Weding"[sic], P. Brereton (Dublin), n.d.
CROSS-REFERENCES:
 cf. "Betsy Bell" (theme)
 cf. "Darn the Man That I Can Get" (theme)
 cf. "I'll Not Marry at All"
 cf. "Time to be Made a Wife"
 cf. "The Old Maid's Song" (II)
 cf. "A'body's Like to be Married but Me"
 cf. "No to be Married Ava" (theme)
 cf. "I Wonder When I Shall Be Married" (theme)
 cf. "O Gin That I Were Mairrit" (theme)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Take Her Out of Pity
The Old Maid's Lament
NOTES [223 words]: Kittredge: "The song, now in active oral circulation, is a re-arrangement of 'The Wooing Maid,' a ballad by the famous Martin Parker, which is preserved in a seventeenth-century broadside in the Roxburgh collection I:452-453 ('Roxburgh Ballads,' ed. Chappell, 3:51-56)" [Fn: "... The ballad was entered in the Stationers' Register to Thomas Lambert, 1633-36...."]
Also collected and sung by Ellen Mitchell, "An Old Maid in a Garret" (on Kevin and Ellen Mitchell, "Have a Drop Mair," Musical Tradition Records MTC315-6 CD (2001))
Broadsides LOCSinging as102060 and Bodleian Harding B 11(2011) are duplicates. - BS
Some of the versions, such as Irish/Scottish "Old Maid in a Garret" texts, begin with lines such as "I have often heard it said by my father and my mother, That going to a wedding is the making of another, If that is so, I would go without a bidding...." The superstition about weddings coming together is attested by Iona Opie and Moira Tatem, editors, A Dictionary of Superstitions, 1989 (I use the 1999 Barnes & Noble edition), p. 433:
c. 1635 M. Parker Wooing Maid (1 Roxburgh Ballads III.54) 'Tis said that one wedding produceth another."
"1713 Gay Wife of Bath I.1 One wedding, the Proverb says, begets another."
"1848 Dickens Dombey and Son XXXI. The cook says at breakfast-time that one wedding makes many." - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: R364

Old Maid's Song (II), The
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Father, I'm sixteen years of age; I'm weary of my life.... I think it's almost time for me to be made a wife." Her father calls men liars; she points out that her mother married younger and her sister also. She says, "Don't let me die a maid"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Gardiner MS)
KEYWORDS: marriage oldmaid
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf) Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Old Maids

DESCRIPTION: "All you that are single and wild in your ways, Come sow your wild oats in your youthful days, And you shall live happy, You shall live happy when you grow old. The day is far spend and the night's coming on So give us your arm and go jogging along...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (JAFL, according to Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty)

KEYWORDS: playparty courting

FOUND IN: US(NE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, p. 150, "Old Maids" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #29460

File: Spurg150

Old Man at the Mill, The

DESCRIPTION: "Same old man, sitting at the mill/Mill turns around of its own free will...ladies go forward and the gents fall back." This is followed by floating verses, many taken from "The Birds' Courting Song (Leatherwing Bat)"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (recording, Clint Howard et al)

KEYWORDS: courting floatingverses nonballad playparty

FOUND IN: US(SE)

Roud #733

RECORDINGS:

Clint Howard et al, "The Old Man at the Mill" (on Ashley02, WatsonAshley01)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Bird's Courting Song (The Hawk and the Crow; Leatherwing Bat)" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [93 words]: This certainly shares a good deal with "The Birds' Courting Song (Leatherwing Bat)," but there are enough differences that I have split them. - PJS

Roud, interestingly, lumps it not with that song but with "The Miller Boy (Jolly is the Miller I)," presumably on the basis of the first verse. The result may well be a complex composite of the two.

- RBW

In their notes to Ashley02 the Rinzlers attribute this "happy combination of two separate songs: a well-known play party, 'The Jolly Miller'; and 'The Bird Song' or 'The Leather Winged Bat'" to Ashley. - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: RctOMatM

Old Man Came Over the Moor, An (Old Gum Boots and Leggings)

DESCRIPTION: The singer's mother tells her to open the door to an old man. He is come to court her; she will not have him; he is too old. The girl's mother makes her to offer him various attentions; she does, and the old man spoils each. (At last he is sent home)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1733 (Ramsey)

LONG DESCRIPTION: The singer's mother tells her to open the door to an old man. He is come to court her; she will not have him; he is too old. The girl's mother makes her to offer him various attentions; she does, and the old man spoils each. (When the mother asks the daughter to kiss the old man, she says if her mother so likes him she can kiss him herself.) (At last he is sent home)
REFERENCES (41 citations):

Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, p. 264, "The Old Man's Courtship" (1 text)
Randolph 66, "The Old Black Booger" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 129-131, "The Old Black Booger" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 66C)
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 22, "Old Shiboors and Leggins" (1 text, 1 tune)
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 42, "An Old Man Who Came Over the Moor" (3 texts plus a fragment, 4 tunes)
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 21, p. 30, "The Old Man Who Came Over the Moor" (1 fragment)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 171, "The Old Man" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 48, "The Old Man Who Vame Over the Moor" (2 texts)
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 172-174 (2 texts, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden-Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 9, "The Old Man's Courtship" (5 texts)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 9, "The Old Man's Courtship" (1 tune plus text excerpt)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #202, "The Old Man's Courtship" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 122, "Old Beard a-Shakin'" (1 text, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, p. 217, "Old Shoe Boots and Leggins" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #77, "The Old Man's Courtship" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 128-129, "The Carle He Cam' Ower the Craft"; p. 130, "The Dottered Auld Carle" (2 texts)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 457-458, "There Was an Old Man Came Over the Lea" (1 text)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #149, p. 1, "The Auld Carle" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan4 815, "The Auld Carle wi' His Beard" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice #50, pp. 205-206, "A Dottered Auld Carle" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke/Johnston-FolkSongsOfCanada, pp. 152-154, "The Old Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 165, "Old Grey Beard" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 9-10, "There Was an Old Man" (1 text)
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol3, pp. 18-19, "With His Old Shoes On and His Leggings"; pp. 20-21, "Crazy Old Man from China" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 131, "Old Shoes and Leggings" (1 text)
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, pp. 408-409, ")no title") (2 text, both short)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 169, "The Old Man Who Came Over the Moor" (1 text)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 108, "My Mother Bid Me" (5 texts, 5 tunes)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 34, "Ma, I Won't Have Him" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 87, "Mama Told Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 132-134, "Old Shoes and Leggin's" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, pp. 190-191, "The Old Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Pottie/Ellis-FolksongsOfTheMaritimes, pp. 40-41, "Billy Modick"; pp. 130-131, "The Old Man" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 73, "The Old Grey Man" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO GI 161)
Vaughan/Williams/Lloyd-PenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs, pp. 76-77, "The Old Man from Lee" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 139, "Old Grey Beard" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, OLDSHOE*

W. H. D. Rouse, "Christmas Mummers at Rugby" in Folklore, Vol. X, No. 2 (Jun 1899 (available online by JSTOR)), pp. 193-194 ("There was an old man came over the sea") (1 text, 1 tune)
Roy Palmer, _The Folklore of Warwickshire_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, pp. 107-108, ("There Was An Old Man Came Over the Sea") (1 text, 1 tune)
Roger deV. Renwick, _Recentering Anglo/American Folksong: Sea Crabs and Wicked Youths_, ST R066 (Full)
Roud #362

RECORDINGS:
Frankie Armstrong, "The Old Man from Over the Sea" (on BirdBush1, BirdBush2)
Burnett Bros., "Old Shoes a-Draggin'" (Victor 23727, 1932)
[The Stoneman Family and] Uncle Eck Dunford, "Old Shoes and Leggins" (Victor V-40060, 1928; on AAFM1)
Betty Garland, "Old Gum Boots and Leggings" (on BGarland01)
Otis High, "Old Gray Beard A-Flappin'" (on HandMeDown2)
Lawrence Older, "Old Shoes and Leggins" (on LOlder01)
Jeannie Robertson, "Old Grey Beard Newly Shaven" (on FSB01); "Old Grey Beard" (on FSBFTX13)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Maids When You're Young Never Wed an Old Man"
cf. "I Wouldn't Have an Old Man"
cf. "The Brisk Young Lad" (plot)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
An Old Man Came Courting Me
The Young Lass contra Old Man
The Carle He Came o'er the Croft
The Auld carle
I'll Not Have Him
The Old Man from Over the Sea
His Old Grey Beard Kept Waggin'
Overshoes and Leggin's

NOTES [81 words]: Roy Palmer's version of this song is included as a part of a Father Christmas play which "was performed every year at Christmastide at Newbold until the end of the nineteenth century." Unfortunately he gives no information on the source of the play, nor when it was first performed. - RBW

The Rouse text is an example of a song of courting, rejection, and, in this case death, inserted into a mummers' "wooing" or "plough" play. For other examples and some discussion see "Sweet Moll." - BS

Last updated in version 6.0
File: R066

Old Man Daisy

DESCRIPTION: "Old man Daisy, what makes you so (lazy/crazy)? Up the ladder, down the ladder, One, two three, Bee-bee-bumble bee, Cedar Cider, Mustard pepper, One, two three."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks)

KEYWORDS: play party food nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, p. 104, "(Old man Daisy)" (1 text)
Roud #22200

File: McIn104D

Old Man from Over the Sea, The

DESCRIPTION: An old man courts a young woman, whose mother advises her what to do when they are married -- all to no sexual avail.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: bawdy marriage age

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 336-339, "The Old Man from Over the Sea" (2 texts, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "Maids When You're Young Never Wed an Old Man"
  cf. "Old Man Came Over the Moor, An (Old Gum Boots and Leggings)"
  cf. "I Wouldn't Marry an Old Man"
  cf. "I Wouldn't Have an Old Man"
  cf. "My Husband's Got No Courage in Him"
NOTES [22 words]: Legman provides significant notes on, and references to, ballads about May-December marriages in Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I. - EC
File: RL336

Old Man Kangaroo, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer and Bill Chippen are out of food when they spot a kangaroo. Chippen attacks the beast, which seizes him. The singer shoves his tucker-bag over the 'roo, then cuts off its tail. The animal drops dead; the two feed on its tail
AUTHOR: "Tom Tallfern," according to _The Australian Journal_ EARLIEST DATE: 1871 (_The Australian Journal_, according to Paterson/Fahey/Seal-OldBushSongs-CentenaryEdition)
KEYWORDS: animal fight Australia
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 40-41, "The Old Man Kangaroo" (1 text, 2 tunes)
  Paterson/Fahey/Seal-OldBushSongs-CentenaryEdition, pp. 303-305, "Tailing a Kangaroo" (1 text)
Roud #20409
File: MA040

Old Man, Old Man

DESCRIPTION: "Old man, old man, can I have your daughter? Yes sir, yes sir, take her if you want her." "Get her old duds and put her up behind"; whip her if she misbehaves. The singer hopes she will "bake my bread and carry my water." Animals go walking together.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol2)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage age animal floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol2, pp. 16-17, "Old Man, Old Man" (1 composite text, 1 tune)
Roud #7026
NOTES [53 words]: This is a conundrum. Bush's version is a composite. Many pieces of it exist in other songs. Is it really one song? I rather doubt it, but the version printed in Bush, as a collective entity, does not seem to exist elsewhere -- so it file as its own song even though I doubt that this collective entity is traditional. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: BwV2016

Old Man's Advice

DESCRIPTION: "My grandfather worked when he was very young, And his parents grieved that he should." He worked hard for very little reward all his life. He joined the union, and stayed true all his life. His last words instruct his family to stick with the union also
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (collected by Palmer from Walter Pardon)
KEYWORDS: family hardtimes labor-movement work
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #36, "An Old Man's Advice" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1482
File: PECS036
Old Man's Lament (II)
DESCRIPTION: "When I was young and in my prime, I could get a hard on any time," but now he is old and is almost non-functional. The singer tells of all the things he used to be able to do, and warns listeners, "The time soon will ome when you'll be the same as I."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1976 (collected by Logsdon from Riley Neal)
KEYWORDS: bawdy age nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging 50, pp. 238-240, "The Old Man's Lament" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #10105
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Little Brown Jug" (tune)
File: Logs050

Old Man's Three Sons (Jeffery, James, and John)
DESCRIPTION: "There was an old (wo)man had three sons, (Jerry) and James and John. Jerry was hung, and James was drowned, John was lost and never found, And there was the end of (her) three sons, Jerry and James and John."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1632 (Choice of Inventions, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: mother father children death drowning
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 540, "There was an old woman had three sons" (3 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #262, p. 160, ",(There was an old woman had three sons)"
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 125-127, "Jiffery, James, and John" (4 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #4661
NOTES [50 words]: Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes: "This is the first of fourteen verses in The Old Woman and Her Three Sons, a toy book with coloured illustrations published by John Harris in 1815. It is a verse which was certainly current in the reign of Charles I, and may go back to Elizabeth's time." - BS
Last updated in version 3.0
File: BGNG262

Old Mare, The
DESCRIPTION: Old mare is stuck in a bog "and they couldn't get her out." Finally they get her out but she makes her will and dies. The sheep dog will have her bones and the old mistress shall "have my skin to wrap herself"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (OShaughnessy-YellowbellyBalladsPart2)
KEYWORDS: age death lastwill humorous farming horse
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OShaughnessy-YellowbellyBalladsPart2 34, "The Old Mare" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2651
File: OSY234

Old Married Couple
DESCRIPTION: An old married couple think back to their marriage day "but now they're aged and feeble." When she dies he buries her and sits by the fireside remembering. "You gave me your love You took my name For forty years of married life"
Old Marse John

DESCRIPTION: Lyrics about a slave promised freedom by his mistress -- but the freedom does not arrive as scheduled. Many floating verses about southern life. Chorus: "O mourner, you shall be free... When the good Lord sets you free."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925
KEYWORDS: slave freedom animal food clergy floatingverses
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 271, "Old Marse John" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 471, "Jigger, Rigger, Bumbo" (1 fragment)
Roud #6707
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Raise a Ruckus" (lyrics)
cf. "My Ole Mistus Promised Me" (lyrics)
cf. "Mourner, You Shall Be Free (Moanish Lady)" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Hard Time in Old Virginnie"
cf. "Poor Old Man (Poor Old Horse; The Dead Horse)" (floating lyrics)
NOTES [100 words]: About half of this song, as found in Lomax, is identical to "Raise a Ruckus." But the chorus is different, and the similarities could be due to the Alan Lomax's "improvements." So I've classified them separately.
The Brown fragments "Jigger, Rigger, Bumbo" is another mystery unto itself. It has the "Raise a Ruckus"/"My old marster promised me" opening, and a chorus, and that's it. At some point, there comes a limit on separating songs based on nonsense choruses. So I tossed it here. Roud appears to have a whole category (#11723) of fragments around the "My old master/mistress promised me." - RBW
File: LoF271

Old Mayflower, The

DESCRIPTION: Mayflower runs ashore with its cargo of dry fish and ale. After the cargo is stolen we take the pail, jars, kettle, and, finally, the wood. "And that was the end of the old Mayflower"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: ship wreck humorous theft
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, pp. 87-88, "The Old Mayflower" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9954
RECORDINGS:
Mrs. Nellie Musseau, "The Old Mayflower" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Mariposa" (theme of wreckers)
cf. "The Middlesex Flora" (theme of wreckers)
cf. "The Irrawaddy" (theme of wreckers)
cf. "Loss of the Anglo-Saxon" (theme of wreckers)
cf. "The Wrecker's Song" (theme of wreckers)
cf. "The Hoban Boys" (theme of wreckers)
cf. "The Nordfeld and the Raleigh" (theme of wreckers)
cf. "The Wreck of the Torhamvan (The Wreck of the Toravan)" (theme of wreckers)
cf. "The Teapots at the Fire" (theme of salvaged items although not wreckers)

NOTES [524 words]: I find myself wondering if Stan Rogers didn't have this or one of the other songs in the cross-references somewhere in the back of his mind when he wrote "The Wreck of the Athens Queen." It's interesting to see how many songs on the theme of, shall we say, extremely rapid and perhaps premature salvage come from Newfoundland.

As Ben Schwartz notes, citing Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast, "The general attitude toward wrecks was summed up for me by one man, who said, 'If the good Lord sees fit to wrack a vessel, we hope it'll be hereabouts; we can use anything on board.'"

Which is not to say that there weren't other places where wreckers worked. "The Old Mayflower" and "Loss of the Anglo Saxon" and "Mariposa" and "The Hoban Boys" and "The Nordfeld and the Raleigh" and "The Wreck of the Torhamvan (The Wreck of the Toravan)" are from Newfoundland and Labrador, but "The Middlesex Flora" and "The Irrawady" are about a ships wrecked in Ireland, and Vivian offers a whole book about Cornish wreckers, although he cites no songs. Vivian, p. 5, writes, "The term 'wrecking' covers a wide range of misdemeanors, ranging from inshore piracy to the relatively innocuous gathering of flotsam and jetsam cast up by the sea after a storm. The wrecker of legend, who ured ships to destruction by exhibiting false lights on the coast, and murdered the hapless sailors as they struggled ashore, has, happily, been quite extinct for a very long time now; but the stripping of wrecked vessels still sometimes occurs; so that one can say that this ancient craft, unlike others far worthier which are now extinct, still flourishes in a restricted way. A good instance is that of the American steamer Bessemer City, lost near St. Ives in 1936, which provided many local inhabitants with tinned salmon, fruit, and other good cheer for the Christmas season."

Powers, p. 15, writes, "For centuries, the rugged coastlines of Europe and England -- particularly Cornwall with its treacherous rocks and strong winds -- were a haven for wreckers and smugglers, and these activities reached a peak in the eighteenth century. Seizing the opportunity to ease their miserable lives a little, ordinary folks and even a few clergy plundered wrecked ships to smuggle the 'saved' goods with unchecked enthusiasm. When one man interrupted a Sunday service to shout that a ship had just wrecked on the nearby rocks, the vicar was said to have begged his congregation to remain seated until he could take off his cassock 'to that we can all start fair.'"

The right of salvage is ancient, and so is its abuse. According to Gillingham, pp. 70-71, we find the English King Henry II rescinding the right of salvage at certain points along the Atlantic coast in the 1170s (to protect wine merchants, whose products floated and so could be re-collected even if their ship sank). Gillingham also mentions that the merchants thought he should have extended it even farther -- to Brittany, where the locals had a tradition of living off the proceeds of wrecks. "The Hoban Boys" mentions the looting of a ship Mayflower. Whether they are the same ship I do not know. - RBW

Bibliography

- Vivian: John Vivian, Tales of the Cornish Wreckers, Tor Mark Press, 1969

Last updated in version 5.2
File: Pea087

Old Miner's Refrain, The

DESCRIPTION: "I'm getting old and feeble and I cannot work no more, I've laid my rusty mining tools away, For forty years and over I have toiled about the mines." He recalls buying a lamp at age 11, became a driver, a miner -- but now he must go to the almshouse

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: mining work hardtimes age
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Old Miss Ruckett

DESCRIPTION: "Old Miss Ruckett she done kicked the bucket And gone to heaven above, Sitting up there on the topmost bough Singing like a turtle dove."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)

KEYWORDS: death music

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 127, "Old Miss Ruckett" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #11395
File: Brne127

Old Moke Pickin' on the Banjo (Song of the Pinewoods)

DESCRIPTION: Singer lands in America in 1844 and works in the pinewoods. An Irish girl offers him whiskey and looks him over. He describes the teamsters with whom he works. Song may have many floating verses and a nonsense chorus.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)

KEYWORDS: lumbering work emigration floating verses music

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 22, "Song of the Pinewoods" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 3, "Song of the Pinewoods" (1 text)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 340-341, "The Old Moke Pickin' on the Banjo" (1 text, 1 tune) [AbEd, p. 255]
Sharp-EnglishFolkChanteys, IV, pp. 4-5, "He-Back, She-Back" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, OLDMOKE*
Roud #8862 and 930

CROSS-REFERENCES:

"Whoa Back, Buck" (floating lyrics)
"Shule Agra (Shool Aroo[n], Buttermilk Hill, Johnny's Gone for a Soldier)" (floating lyrics)
"I'm a Rowdy Soul" (floating lyrics)
"Daddy Shot a Bear" (lyrics)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
He-bang, She-bang
Tapiocum

NOTES: Clearly we have a muddle here. Beck notes that this song can have a huge number of verses, but he lists only four, and the song makes little sense as a result. The chorus, meanwhile, is a reworking of "Shule Agra", with a last line close to "Tighten on the Backband (Whoa Back Buck)." Ah, the folk process! - PJS

A muddle indeed, and one with bounds very hard to define. Beck's refrain for this piece runs
Shu-li, shu-li, shula-racka-ru
Hacka-racka, shacka-racka, shula-bobba-lu

I'm right from the pinewoods. So are you
Johnny, can't you pick it on your banjo?

The more common chorus to this seems to be something like Hooraw! What the hell's the row?

We're all from the railroad, too-rer-loo,
We're all from the railroad, too-rer-loo,
Oooh! The ol' moke pickin' on the banjo!

This chorus occurs, with variations, in Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas and Sharp.

Steve Roud gives a different split than we do; #8862 is "Song of the Pinewoods"; #930 is most of Old Molly Hare

DESCRIPTION: Fiddle tune with words, often of the form, "Old Molly Hare, What('r) you doin' there?" followed by a reply, e.g. "Sitting in the briarpatch, combing out my hair."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1881 (Uncle Remus: His Songs and His Sayings)

KEYWORDS: animal fiddle nonballad dancetune

FOUND IN: US(SE,So)

REFERENCES (7 citations):

- Randolph 277, "Old Molly Hare" (1 short text, 1 tune)
- Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 238-239, "Old Molly Hare" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 277)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 167, "Old Molly Hare (Mr. Rabbit)" (2 texts plus 4 fragments, 1 excerpt, and mention of 2 more; the "C," "D," and "E" fragments, plus probably "B," are "Old Molly Hare," "I" is "Mister Rabbit"; "A" and "G" mix the two)
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 167, "Old Molly Hare (Mr. Rabbit)" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
- Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 283-284, "Old Mother Hare" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, pp. 108-109, "Old Molly Hair" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, MOLLHARE

Roud #7781

RECORDINGS:

- Clayton McMichen & Riley Puckett, "Old Molly Hare" (Columbia 15295-D, 1928; on CrowTold01)
- New Lost City Ramblers, "Old Molly Hair" (on NLCR05)
- Fiddlin' Powers & Family, "Old Molly Hare" (Okeh 45268, 1928; rec. 1927; on Cornshuckers2, StuffDreams2)
- Riley Puckett, "Old Molly Hair" (Columbia 15295-D, 1928)

NOTES [40 words]: Joel Chandler Harris quoted the first stanza of this song in "Mr. Rabbit Gorssly Decieves Mr. Fox," published in 1881 in Uncle Remus: His Songs and His Sayings:

Ole Molly Har'.
W'at you doin' dar,
Settin' in de cornder
Smokin' yo seegyar? - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2

File: R277

Old Mont Line, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come gather 'round me lads... Oh, maybe you don't believe me, lads... But ship in this starvation tow and you'll see the same as I." "There one Mont, two Monts, three Monts in a row." The sailors take a dull trip up the Lakes and grumble about the owner

AUTHOR: Captain F. W. Elliott and crew?

EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (collected from Elliott by Walton)

KEYWORDS: sailor ship hardtimes money

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

- Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 125-126, "The Old Mont Line" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #19849

RECORDINGS:

- Ivan Watson, "The Old Mont Line" (fragment, 1938; on WaltonSailors)

NOTES [60 words]: According to Walton/Grimm/Murdok, the Mont Line operated a set of sailing barges (cut-down schooners) with such names as Monymorency and Monticello. Supposedly Captain Elliott and crew made up this song during a particularly boring trip. Grimm's notes compare the tune to "The Bigler," but it seems to me the dependence on "The Derby Ram" is stronger. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: WGM125

Old Moses Smote the Waters
DESCRIPTION: "Old Moses smote the waters, Hallelujah! Old Moses smote the waters, huh!...
"The waters they divided...." "The children passed over...." "Old Pharaoh's host got drowned...." "I see that ship a-coming...." "She'll take us on to glory...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: Bible religious travel freedom
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Randolph 290, "Old Moses Smote de Waters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 [612], "Moses Smote the Waters" (1 fragment, printed in the notes to Brown #610)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 612, "Moses Smote the Waters" (1 tune plus text excerpts)
High, p. 38, "Moses Smote the Water" (1 text)
Roud #7822
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sinful Army" (lyrics)
File: R290

Old Mother Crawley
DESCRIPTION: At Plymouth Mother Crawley welcomes a ship and offers goods to sailors. The next day she asks for her pay and complains that sailors pay their girls first. "Our ship she's got orders for Botany Bay, The girls and the bumboats must all lose their pay"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle)
KEYWORDS: commerce ship shore drink food whore sailor
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 99, "Old Mother Crawley" (1 text)
Roud #1057
NOTES [67 words]: Bumboat: [noun] "a boat that brings provisions and commodities for sale to larger ships in port or offshore "I bought a bunch of the tiny Azores bananas from a ~ under the side -- F.M. Ford." "Nelson's sailors had their ~ women who used to swarm aboard by rope's end and anchor chains -- H.W. Baldwin" (source: Webster's Third New International Dictionary of the English Language Unabridged, 1976). - BS

Last updated in version 2.7
File: ReCi099

Old Mother Goose
DESCRIPTION: "Old Mother Goose, When she wanted to wander, Would ride through the air, On a very fine gander."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1853 (Halliwell); the Opies think the oldest version was printed by Batchelar c. 1815
KEYWORDS: bird
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 364, "Old Mother Goose" (1 text)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 85, "Old Mother Goose" (1 text)
Old Mother Gray

DESCRIPTION: "Old Mother Gray. Can we go out to play? We won't get near the water To shoo the ducks away." "Children, where have you been? To Grandmother's house... What did she give you? Strawberries and cream. Where's my share? Up in the air."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: play party bird food

FOUND IN: US(Ap) New Zealand

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 53-54, "Old Mother Gray" (1 short text)
- Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains, p. 28, "Old Mother Gray" (1 short text)

File: SuSm053B

Old Mother Head's

DESCRIPTION: Adventures of staff and guests at Mother Head's. "Nobody knows what the sailors eat; Cast no remarks about your meat; But eat your pie, and close your mouth, In the hungry starving boarding house"

AUTHOR: Joe Broadfield

EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Smith/Hatt/Fowke-SeaSongsBalladFromNineteenthCenturyNovaScotia)

KEYWORDS: food hardtimes humorous nonballad sailor

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Smith/Hatt/Fowke-SeaSongsBalladFromNineteenthCenturyNovaScotia, p. 11, "Old Mother Head's" (1 text)

Roud #9414

File: SmHa011

Old Mother Hubbard

DESCRIPTION: "Old Mother Hubbard Went to the cupboard To get her poor dog a bone, But when she got there The cupboard was bare And so the poor dog had none." Additional verses tell of Mother Hubbard's efforts for the dog and how almost all fail

AUTHOR: unknown (many additional verses by Sarah Catherine Martin, 1768-1826)

EARLIEST DATE: before 1797 (cf. Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose)

KEYWORDS: dog death food humorous home commerce clothes

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (6 citations):
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 365, "Old Mother Hubbard" (1 text plus some possibly-related fragments; also illustrations from several editions, including what seems to have been Sarah Catherine Martin's first publication)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #134, pp. 111-113, "(Old Mother Hubbard)"
- Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 143, "Old Mother Hubbard" (1 text)
- Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 87, "Old Mother Hubbard" (1 text)
- cf. DT, MERRYLN

Roud #19334

NOTES [212 words]: This is probably only a nursery rhyme, and not a nursery song, and so properly does not belong in the Index. But Tony and Irene Saletan recorded it as part of their version of "Hail to Britannia" (which includes many nursery rhymes), so it does have a musical tradition of sorts.

In addition, though most of us hear only one verse of this, the Baring-Gould text is 14 stanzas long, although many of the stanzas are silly:

She went to the tailors
To buy him a coat,
But when she came back
He [the dog, note] was riding a goat.

Still, there is a plot in the early stanzas. The whole looks like a song, if an absurd one. - RBW

Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes: "It is now clear that the first three verses of Sarah Catherine Marin's 'Old Mother Hubbard' were taken from tradition, and that her contribution was to write eleven more verses, and to illustrate the whole. The first three verses had appeared in sheet-music form as one of Dr Samuel Arnold's Juvenile Amusements (1797), and were certainly not new then." - BS

Louis Untermeyer, The Golden Treasury of Poetry, credits the whole thing to Sarah Catherine Martin, and has a total of 16 verses. But he doesn't understand tradition very well. The Martin version is said to have been published in 1804. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: BGMG134

Old Mother Mason Broke Her Basin

DESCRIPTION: "Old Mother Mason broke her basin, Traveling down to the railway station, How much do you think it cost? Penny, twopence...." Or, "Mrs. Mason broke her basin, Mrs. Frost asked how much it cost. Mrs. Brown said half a crown, Mrs. Flory said, What a story"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty money
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South)) New Zealand
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 101, "(Old Mother Mason)" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 344, "Mrs. Mason broke a bason" (1 text)
Roud #20156
File: SuSm101C

Old Mother Riley

DESCRIPTION: "Old Mother Riley had a little kid, Poor little blighter, he wasn't very big. He wasn't very big, and he wasn't very small. Poor lightly blighter, He only had one ball."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: mother children
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 64, "Old Mother Riley" (1 text)
Roud #10543
File: BrPa064B

Old Mother Tipsy-toe

DESCRIPTION: "I give you so much work to do, Use thimble, thread, and needle too, If you don't get it done before I come back, I'll give you a slap across your back. Old mother (Tipsy-toe/Tippety-toe)... I'll follow my mother wherever she go."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty work mother
FOUND IN: US(MA)
Old Mother Twitchett

DESCRIPTION: Riddle song(?). "Old Mother Twitchett had bout one eye, And a very long tail which she let fly, Every time she went through the gap, She left a piece of her tail in the trap."

Answer: a needle/a needle and thread

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1600 (source: Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: riddle nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES:
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 368, "Old Mother Twitchett" (1 text)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #696, p. 273, "(Old Mother Twitchett Had But One Eye)"
- NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, (Peggy Cole and Sally Poole, informants), "Riddles," Vol. 1, No. 1 (Jun 1948), p. 28, "(Old Mother Twitchit)" (1 text)
- Roud #20128

Old Mountain Dew

DESCRIPTION: The praises of mountain dew are sung. "Oh, they call it that good old mountain dew, And those who refuse it are few...." Doctor, preacher, conductor, lawyer (and, in some versions, Uncle Nort, Aunt June, Brother Bill) derive various benefits from it.

AUTHOR: Bascom Lamar Lunsford

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, Bascom Lamar Lunsford)

KEYWORDS: drink family

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES:
- Jones-MinstrelOfTheAppalachians-Bascom-Lamar-Lunsford, pp. 36-38, "Mountain Dew" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Botkin-TreasuryOfSouthernFolklore, p. 736, "Good Old Mountain Dew" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Darling-NewAmericanSongster, p. 289, "Good Old Mountain Dew" (1 text, filed with "Real Old Mountain Dew"="Good Old Mountain Dew")
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 236, "Mountain Dew" (1 text)
- DT, MTDW3*
- Roud #9133

RECORDINGS:
- Delmore Brothers, "Old Mountain Dew" (Decca 5890, 1940)
- John Griffin, "Real Old Mountain Dew" (Columbia 33145-F, n.d.)
- Grandpa Jones, "Mountain Dew" (King 624, 1947)
- Lulu Belle & Scotty, "Mountain Dew" (Conqueror 9249, 1939) (on CrowTold02; this may be the reissue of the Conqueror recording, but it's not certain)
- Bascom Lamar Lunsford, "Mountain Dew" (Brunswick 219, 1928); "Old Mountain Dew" (on BLLunsford01) (Rounder LP 0065, 1957)

NOTES [204 words]: Botkin's text is from a 1949 field recording. He says Lunsford composed and recorded it in the twenties, but that it has already changed substantially in oral tradition. - NR

Some have thought that Lunsford took a traditional song and made it his own. His recording, however, remains the first known version -- and there is no evidence that Lunsford did this with any other song. - RBW

Lunsford himself said he wrote it in the early years of this century, and that it was made up out of whole cloth, not adapted. It should not be confused with the traditional Irish song usually called "Real Old Mountain Dew" [or "Good Old Mountain Dew"]. - PJS

If Lunsford did have a model, it was perhaps the Harrigan/Braham song "The Mountain Dew" by Edward Harrigan and David Braham (for Harrigan and Braham, see the notes to "The Babies on Our Block."). Most of that song bear no relationship to this, but the first verse ends "When home you
Old Nantucket Whaling Song
DESCRIPTION: Description of a whaling voyage. Crew faces months of cold and storms. Upon spotting a whale they give chase, harpoon and fight with the whale, trying to avoid being swamped or crushed. Gives detailed descriptions and is written in future tense.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips)
KEYWORDS: whaler ship sea work hardtimes
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, pp. 216-219, "Old Nantucket Whaling Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9153
File: Harl216

Old Newfoundland
DESCRIPTION: The singer is in California remembering "friends I loved and youthful memories." "Take me back ... [to] the dear old hills of Newfoundland."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)
KEYWORDS: homesickness emigration home separation nonballad friend
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
Roud #26492
RECORDINGS:
F. Sutton, "Youthful Memories" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Jack Swain, "Old Newfoundland" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Flatrock Hills" (theme: Home sickness for the hills around St John's, Newfoundland)
cf. "Towering Heights of Newfoundland" (theme: Home sickness for the hills around St John's, Newfoundland)
File: RcOlNewf

Old Noah (I)
DESCRIPTION: "Old Noah built himself an ark, The good old Christian soul," with all the animals below. The animals do their business, and "in due tie old Noah knew each couple would be three." He is relieved to reach land. Hearers are told not to ship mated animals
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe)
KEYWORDS: flood sex humorous animal
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe, pp. 137-140, "Old Noah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #5355
File: NiMo137

Old Noah Built an Ark
DESCRIPTION: "Good old Noah built an ark, To save the soul of man; A vessel built of gopher wood, By God, the father, planned. Noah preached for years and years To change their awful ways." The flood comes; Noah is saved; listeners are advised to turn to Jesus
Old North

DESCRIPTION: "When the Mormons drifted southward, He was one of the ten-span team, The biggest ox" the locals had seen. When the rest of the team and the Mormon escorts die, Old North alone brings the wagon through. He is set free for what he did.

AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: animal death travel
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 117-118, "Old North" (1 text)
File: ThLo117

Old Oak Tree, The [Laws P37]

DESCRIPTION: (Betsy) sets out from home to meet her love and never returns. Her widowed mother, after a long search, dies of grief. The girl's body is found during a hunt with the murderer's knife still there. He confesses the crime and (dies/kills himself)

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)
KEYWORDS: homicide suicide gallows-confession
FOUND IN: US(MW,NE) Canada(Mar,Newf) Ireland
REFERENCES (16 citations):
Laws P37, "The Old Oak Tree"
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 283-285, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H207, pp. 417-418, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Graham-Joe-Holmes-SongsMusicTraditionsOfAnUlsterman 57, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster 15, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday 49, pp. 141-143,175, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan 11, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 33, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text plus mention of 1 more, 1 tune)
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 55, "Squire Nathaniel and Betsy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Beck-FolkloreOfMaine, pp. 100-102, "Old Oak Tree" (1 text)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 74-77, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 628-629, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 12, "The Old Oak Tree" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 80-81, "The Old Oak Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi 66, "Eliza Long (The Old Oak Tree)" (1 text, 1 tune) Old Oaken Bucket (Whaling Parody), The

DESCRIPTION: "How dear to my heart are the scenes of the whaleship, When fond recollections bring them all back to me... The old oaken bucket, the tar-covered bucket, The ironbound bucket we all knew so well." Scenes from a whaling voyage

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 2014 (Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang)

KEYWORDS: whaler derivative

FOUND IN: Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, p. 71, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #27512

CROSS-REFERENCES: cf. "The Old Oaken Bucket" (tune)

File: HGam071

Old Oaken Bucket, The

DESCRIPTION: "How dear to this heart are the scenes of my childhood, When fond recollection presents them to view...: The old oaken bucket, the iron-bound bucket, The moss-covered bucket That hung in the well." The singer recalls being refreshed by its water

AUTHOR: Words: Samuel Woodworth (1785-1842)

EARLIEST DATE: 1818

KEYWORDS: home nonballad

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (10 citations):

Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 149, "A Medley" (1 text, 1 tune, starting with the chorus of "Sweet Adeline," then "The Old Oaken Bucket," "In the Evening by the Moonlight," "Rufus Rastus Johnson Brown," and "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground")

Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 167-170, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (1 text, 1 tune)

Heart-Songs, p. 495, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (1 text, 1 tune)

Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #46, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (1 text)

Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1724, p. 116, "The Old Oaken Bucket Which Hung in the Well" (X2 references)

Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 256, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (1 text)

Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 413-414, "The Old Oaken Bucket"

DT, OAKBUCK

John Burke, _Burke's Christmas Songster 1920_, self-published, 1918 (PDF available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland site), p. 19, "Old Oaken Bucket" (1 text)

ST RJ19167 (Full)
Roud #27512

RECORDINGS:
- David Bangs, "Old Oaken Bucket" (Berliner 0600, rec. 1895)
- Columbia Stellar Quartet, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (Columbia A-1820, 1915)
- Jimmie Tarlton [Darby & Tarlton] "By the Old Oaken Bucket" (Columbia 15763-D, 1932; rec. 1930)
- Edison Male Quartet, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (CYL: Edison 2216, 1897)
- Haydn Quartet, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (Berliner 023-N, 1899)
- Haydn Quartet w. S. Dudley, "Old Oaken Bucket" (Berliner 0873, 1898)
- Honolulu Strollers, "Ole Oaken Bucket" (OKeh 45226, 1928)
- Kaplan's Melodists, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (CYL: Edison [BA] 5155, c. 1926)
- Knickerbocker Quartet, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (CYL: Edison [BA] 2046, n.d.)
- Peerless Quartette, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (Zonophone 696, 1907) (Pathe 40032, 1916)
- Standard Quartette, "The Old Oaken Bucket" (CYL: Columbia 2239, rec. c. 1895)
- Anon. [Sterling Trio] "The Old Oaken Bucket" (Little Wonder 268, 1915)

SAME TUNE:
- That Old Towpath (File: Salt065)
- The Old Family Toothbrush (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 160)
- Nat Wills, "Parody on 'Old Oaken Bucket'" (Victor 16661/Victor 5659 [as "Old Oaken Bucket (parody)"], 1909)
- The Old Oaken Bucket (As censored by the Board of Health) (Hazel Felleman, _The Best Loved Poems of the American People_, p. 386)
- The Old Oaken Bucket (Whaling Parody) (File: HGam071)
- The Beautiful Grange Hall ("How dear to my heart are the scenes in the Grange Hall") (by A. P. Knapp) (Albert P. Knapp, _Grange Songster_, 1915, pp. 10-11)
- A Song of an Old Soldier ("Oh, dear to my soul are the days of our glory") (Harrison campaign song) (A. B. Norton, _Songs of the People in the Log Cabin Days of Old Tippecanoe_, p. 10)

NOTES [136 words]: Samuel Woodworth's only other noteworthy composition was "The Hunters of Kentucky." His novels and plays are mercifully forgotten.

Woodworth originally published this poem under the title "The Bucket." It soon acquired several (rather feeble) tunes and the title "The Old Oaken Bucket." Around 1850, it was fitted to a tune by George Kiallmark; that somehow rescued it from the dustbin of nostalgia and made it into a highly popular song.

Harry Dichter and Elliott Shapiro, _Early American Sheet Music: Its Lure and Its Lore, 1768-1889_, R. R. Bowker, 1941, p. 163, have extensive notes on the history of the song; they mention among other things that the Kiallmark tunes does not seem to have appeared in print until the 1870s; it was originally written for the Thomas Moore poem "Araby's Daughter." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: RJ19167

Old Oaken Tree, The

DESCRIPTION: "Beautiful miss, fair little maid, Maiden with soft golden hair..." "Down by the lane and over stiles, Under the old oaken tree... There's somebody waiting for me." "Each evening she meets me... Sirs, listen, I'll tell you where."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois)

KEYWORDS: love courting nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 242-243, "The Old Oaken Tree" (1 text)
- Roud #4335
- File: Neel242

Old Orange Flute, The

DESCRIPTION: A Protestant man marries a Catholic woman, but his flute refuses to convert, and continues to play Orange songs. Ultimately it is burnt at the stake as a heretic.
Old Orange Tree, The

DESCRIPTION: King William brought the Orange tree and planted it near London "and frighten'd Popery." He took the plant with him to the Boyne where it frightened King James and his men. Winter cropped the tree but in spring it will flourish, and bloom on July 12.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark)
KEYWORDS: England Ireland patriotic political
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark 38, "The Old Orange Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13425
NOTES [17 words]: For William of Orange and the Battle of the Boyne, see the notes to "The Battle of the Boyne (I)." - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: OrLa038

Old Paint (III)

DESCRIPTION: "Every time I see an old paint horse, I think of you, Old paint horse of mine that used to be." "Old horse, you never failed to bring me home." He recalls their adventures. Now the horse is buried, but the singer still thinks of their adventures
AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: cowboy horse death burial nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 119-120, "Old Paint" (1 text)
File: ThLo119

Old Palmer Song, The

DESCRIPTION: "The wind is fair and free, my boys... The steamer's course is north, my boys, And the Palmer we will see." The singer encourages his listeners to come with him to the gold fields; by working together, they can prosper
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1964
KEYWORDS: river gold travel mining
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1875 - Discovery of gold in the Palmer River in Queensland. The influx of people from all over the world meant that few grew rich -- and many starved in the inhospitable terrain

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 37-38, "The Old Palmer's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, pp. 38-39, "The Old Palmer Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bill Beatty, _A Treasury of Australian Folk Tales & Traditions_, 1960 (I use the 1969 Walkabout Paperbacks edition), pp. 307-308, "The Old Palmer Song" (1 text)

File: PASB038

Old Pete Bateese

DESCRIPTION: French-Canadian dialect song. Pete Bateese is chased by wolves. He climbs a tree. The wolves fetch beavers to gnaw it down. Pete pours out some "hooch"; the beavers get drunk and chew up the wolves instead. Pete comes down and cries for the wasted hooch

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)

LONG DESCRIPTION: French-Canadian dialect song. Pete Bateese is chased by wolves one night; he climbs a tree, so the wolves fetch beavers to gnaw it down. Pete pours out some "hooch"; the beavers get drunk and chew up the wolves instead. Pete comes down and "cry and cry to t'ink for where/His one-quart hooch she go."

KEYWORDS: humorous talltale drink animal

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 75, "Old Pete Bateese" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 65, "Ole Pete Bateese" (1 text)

File: Be075

Old Petticoat, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer sees "an old petticoat hanging high" and hangs his trousers near to "keep that old petticoat warm" He says "'Old trousers, I hope you're on form!'" "The night of the wedding ... the father he's dead; he was shot with a gun"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (recording, Paddy Tunney)

KEYWORDS: sex clothes humorous

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tunney-StoneFiddle, pp. 54-55, "As I Was Going into the Fair of Athy" (1 text)

File: RcOldPet

Old Phoeba Ice

DESCRIPTION: "Old Phoeba Ice was strong as an ox, Quick as a wink and sly as a fox." The chorus tells us of her illnesses, but "She's a darn good gal for the shape she's in." She stays up late to play fiddle at dances, so now that she's gone, they name a tune for her
Old Pike

DESCRIPTION: "I once knew a man by the name of Pike, B'longed to the family of Riggins." Buying a mule, he heads to California to seek gold. He loses his mule trying to cross the Platte, and his supplies are lost. He turns around and goes home

Old Pod Auger Days, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come and listen to my story Till I talk to you a while"; the poet will speak "Of the famous men and women Of the Old Pod Auger Days." People were more honest and capable. Animals were better. There were no automobiles. Shakespeare lived then

Old Polina, The

DESCRIPTION: "There's a noble fleet of whalers a-sailing from Dundee... There's not another whaler that sails the Arctic Sea Can beat the old Polina, you need not try, my sons." The singer describes all the various ships which failed to outtrace the Polina

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, 3rd edition); certainly composed 1885-1887, probably in the first of those years

KEYWORDS: ship whaler racing bragging

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

1888-1891 - Captain William Guy commands the _Polynia_ out of Newfoundland

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf) Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (10 citations):

Fowke/Mills/Blume-CanadasStoryInSong, pp. 165-166, "The Old 'Polina'" (1 text, tune referenced)
Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 15, "The Old 'Polina'" (1 text, 1 tune)
Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, "Old Polina" (1 text, 1 tune): pp. 44-45 in the 3rd edition, pp. 36-37 in the 4th; pp. 32-33 in the 5th
Mills-FavoriteSongsOfNewfoundland, pp. 22-23, "Old Polina" (1 text, 1 tune)
Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, pp. 22-23, "The Old Polina" (1 text, 1 tune)
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 134, "The Balena" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee 25, "The Balena" (1 text, 1 tune); 26, "The Old Polina" (1 text, tune referenced) Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, pp. 124-125, "Dundee Whalers" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Norman Watson, _The Dundee Whalers_, Tuckwell Press, 2003, pp. 66-67, "(no title)" (1 text, a "Balena" version)
Nancy Rycroft (granddaughter of James Fairweather), _Captain James Fairweather: Whaler and Shipmaster: His Life and Carer 1853-1933_, Fairweather Books, 2005, p. 91, "The Old Polina" (1 text, the Gatherer version, repeating Gatherer's error that the tune is "The Balena" rather than the reverse)
ST FMB165 (Partial)
Roud #285
RECORDINGS:
A.L. Lloyd, "The Balena" (on Lloyd9)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "A Noble Fleet of Sealers" (tune)
cf. "Save Our Swilers" (tune)
SAME TUNE:
Save Our Swilers (File: RySm156)

NOTES [5849 words]: GEST Songs of Newfoundland and Labrador site claims the song was written in the 1880s. The notes to A.L. Lloyd's _Leviathan!_ for "The Balena" makes this whaler R. Kinnes's _Balena_, the "largest and fastest" of the 1873 Dundee whaling fleet. According to the Dundee City Council site, it "sailed its last voyage in 1892 under Captain Alexander Fairweather." That's a different explanation than the sinking of the Polynia proposed by the GEST site. - BS
There seem to be a lot of errors in interpreting this song -- for instance, Lloyd's date for the _Balena's_ role in the Dundee fleet is off by two decades. The notes in Fowke/Mills/Blume-CanadasStoryInSong and in Mills-FavoriteSongsOfNewfoundland agree with GEST in associating the song with the Newfoundland vessel _Polynia_, but Fowke/Mills/Blume-CanadasStoryInSong offer their own error -- they state the _Polynia_ was lost in the Straits of Belle Isle in 1884. But the _Polynia_ was not lost in 1884.
Curiously, different versions of the song refer to the _Balena_ and the _Polina_ as the ship -- but, otherwise, have almost the same text. The best explanation is that they're both right.... The problem of whether the ship was the _Polina_ or the _Balena_ appears to have arisen because there were two real whalers with very similar names -- and even some of the same captains. Nonetheless, the internal clues in the song give us a information which allow us to date it fairly precisely -- and to conclude that the original ship was the _Polynia_, making "The Old Polina" the original title.
All versions agree that the vessel was based from Dundee, which is apt. Dundee was not particularly noteworthy as a whaling port in the early years of the industry. But when whalers converted from sails to steam, things changed. (And note that the ship in the song has an engine, so she must be a steamer.) Dundee "already had an experienced shipbuilding industry with nearly half a century of experience of steam ships" (Archibald, p. 44), so they happily started using their steam ships for whaling -- and sealing; the conversion to steam meant that ships could do both in one year rather than have to choose one industry. (Dundee, although regarded as a "whaling" port, actually produced more seal oil than whale oil in its heyday; Watson, p. 53. By the 1870s, most whalers were also sealers -- Lubbock, p. 461, for instance, has a table of whale oil and seal oil taken 1861-1881, and in nine of the 22 years, more seal oil was taken than whale oil. The table on p. 460 shows sealing ships outnumbering whalers in 11 of the 22 years, and no whalers at all going out from Britain in 1877 and 1879-1881. In 1878, Dundee built an oil processing plant specifically for dealing with seal fat; Watson, p. 90. The table on p. 88 shows that, by 1883, it produced two and a half times as much seal oil as whale oil -- and that at a time when almost everyone else was out of the arctic whaling business.

The change in the business model induced by steam meant that St. John's became an essential part of the operation: "From 1862 Dundee vessels began to operate regularly from St. John's in Newfoundland, with Polynia the pioneer" (Archibald, p. 45. They still needed Scottish engineers for some years, though, before the Newfoundlanders learned how to maintain the engines; Ryan-Ice, p. 230. Ironically, the Polynia broke her propeller in that year and had to retreat to St. John's for repairs; Watson, p. 118).

If the ships involved are sealers sailing from Dundee, that strongly implies a date after 1876; although the Polynia had gone sealing in Newfoundland in 1862, Dundee whalers did not become regulars at the sealing until 1877, when the Arctic and Aurora took part in the (by-then-well-established) seal hunt (Watson, p. 56; Chafe, p. 52).

If 1862 is the earliest possible year we need to consider for this song, the last is 1917; the whaling fleet by then had been in decline for decades as the arctic whale population fell, and the First World War killed off the Dundee industry (Archibald, p. 49), with the Balaena being the very last ship of the bunch.

The Balaena (or, in some texts, Balena), like the Polynia, sailed from Dundee, and she too was a whaler -- in her first service in the Scottish merchant fleet, she was part of the Dundee Whaling Expedition of 1892-1893 that went to try whaling in the Antarctic (Tarver, p. 23; Archibald, pp. 98-99). According to Lubbock, p. 426, the other ships on that expedition were the Active, Diana, and the Polar Star, and the voyage was a disaster in terms of results; Watson, p. 141, says they took many seals but no whales at all. Despite vigorous attempts to use the seal hides and such, investors lost almost 43% of their capital (Watson, p. 142). The Balaena was commanded by Alexander Fairweather (1853-1896) on that expedition (Tarver, p. 227; Archibald, p. 217; Watson, p. 139). Only after her return did she settle down to regular whaling duty from Dundee, so if the ship is the Balaena, the date has to be after 1893.

Thus the Polynia--Polina is the older of the two ships named in the song, giving her a sort of prior claim, but obviously it would have been easy to confuse one name with the other. So to determine the history of the song, we need to we need to look for stories of the Balaena or the Polina, plus the other ships in the song, the Terra Nova, the Arctic, the Aurora, and the "Husky," in the years from 1862 to 1917. And, fortunately, except for the last, there is very little mystery about the ships involved.

As we saw, Polynia was noteworthy specifically because she was of one of the very first steam whalers to be a sealer as well. The Polynia was built at the Dundee shipyards of Alexander Stephen & Sons in 1861 for Dundee S. & W. Fishing Co. (Archibald, p. 175). She was listed as 146.2' x 29.0' x 18.1', and at 462 gross tons (Tarver, p. 207). Thus she went sealing in the very first season after her completion. She was only the fourth purpose-built Dundee whaling steamer, 146.2' x 29.0' x 18.1', and at 462 gross tons (Tarver, p. 207). Thus she went sealing in the very first season after her completion. She was only the fourth purpose-built Dundee whaling steamer, although the Camperdown of 1859 and the Aurora of 1860 (Watson, p. 83). She was one of just two ships to go to the Newfoundland sealing grounds in 1862 (sealing was well-established in Newfoundland by then -- see, for instance, "The Ferryland Sealer" -- but it was done locally, with sailing ships). Polynia continued to sail from Dundee for more than two decades; for much of this time, her whaling captain was David Kilgour (Archibald, pp. 86-87), although other officers commanded her while sealing. Polynia's first captain was Captain Penny, the son of the Captain William Penny who had earlier been involved in the Franklin search and is mentioned in many versions of "Lady Franklin's Lament (The Sailor's Dream)" [Laws K9]. The elder Penny had also supervised the Polynia's construction (Lubbock, pp. 51, 53). Captains Gravill, Nicoll, William Walker, Kilgour, Yule, John B. Walker, and Burnett followed in command of the Polynia before William Guy took her; he commanded the Polynia in 1888-1891 (Chafe, p. 103).

But in 1884, the year (and indeed the month) Mills and co. say Polynia was lost, the Polynia went to the ice as a sealer under the command of J. B. Walker, and sailed from Newfoundland (Chafe, p. 103), not Dundee. She pursued the seal fishery 1884-1891, although with limited success (in her two years under Walker, she took only 1151 seals, so it's no surprise he wasn't back. Later captains did better, but never hit the 20,000 figure that marked a truly successful trip).

So: the Dundee Polynia was not lost in 1884, as claimed, but was transferred to a Newfoundland base. She wasn't lost until 1891, after the end of the sealing season (Chafe, p. 103); she was whaling in Lancaster Sound (Archibald, p. 247). This means that the Balaena was being acquired for whaling work at just about the time the Polynia was being crushed by ice. An odd coincidence....

Archibald, p. 176, describes Polynia’s end as follows: "There was a tragedy in the 1891 season when a huge wave struck the Polynia, killing one man and injuring ten others and on 11 July that year Polynia was crushed by ice in Lancaster Sound. Her crew abandoned and she sank not long afterward. The Dundee ships Maud and Aurora [the latter, obviously, mentioned in the song] rescued her crew, some of whom arrived in Wick on the 3 October [sic]."

Stephen & Sons, which built the Polynia, also built other ships mentioned in the song, the Esquimaux Terra Nova, Aurora, and Arctic (Tarver, pp. 207-209). They did not build the Balaena; she was built in 1872 by Jorgensen & Knudsen of Norway and given the name Mjolne. She didn’t join the Dundee fleet, or gain the name Balaena, until 1891. "Captain Guy" commanded her 1903-1908; also, Alexander Fairweather, who is also mentioned in the song, commanded her 1892-1896 (Archibald, p. 128). Her other captains, Thomas Robertson (1897-1901 -- he was fired in that year for hiding tobacco in his cabin, and also perhaps because of fights among his men), James Bannerman (1902), J. Murray (1909-1911), and W. Adams (1917) do not seem to be mentioned in this song. She returned to Norwegian ownership in 1917, and was a hulk by 1929 (Archibald, p. 129).

Archibald, p. 218, has a full list of whalers commanded by William Guy: the Nova Zembla 1878-1882, the Jan Mayen 1883, the Arctic II 1884-1887 (losing her in Foxe Channel in that year; Archibald, p. 125: Greene, p. 273, specifies that it was near Harrison Point in Cumberland Gulf), the Polynia in 1888-1891 (losing her in that year), the Eclipse in 1892, the Nova Zembla again 1893-1902 (losing her in that year), and then the Balaena until 1907. Note that, although he commanded the Polynia as both a sealer and a whaler, it wasn’t always in the same years! So which version came first, Polina or Balaena? After all, the same guy (or the same Guy, if you will) commanded both.

As secondary evidence, note that all Newfoundland versions refer to the Polina. The Scottish versions mostly refer to the Balaena, but one of Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee’s texts refers to the Polina. This is evidence that the Polina versions are older; if the Balaena text had been the original, it would have had to go to Newfoundland, be converted to the Polina, after which the Balaena version would be forgotten in Newfoundland and the Polina version carried to Scotland. If the song originated with the Polina, in either Newfoundland or Scotland, then there was only one ocean crossing of the song, and the conversion from Polina to Balaena happened only in Scotland. This, plus the fact that the Polynia was the older ship, and sailed from both Newfoundland and Dundee (which the Balaena did not), are pretty decisive for the claim that the Polina is the original form, the Balaena the adaption. Also, the Polina versions seem to preserve the names (Jackman, Fairweather, etc.) a little better than the Balaena texts. Strong evidence, although it’s not quite proof.

Although William Guy was the "hero" of this song, he certainly wasn't the most famous of the captains it mentions. One of the other officers mentioned is "Fairweather." There were at least three Captains Fairweather in this period (Ryan/Drake, pp. 24, 27, 29), although almost certainly only two of them concern us: James Fairweather (1853-1933) commanded the Aurora 1883-1888, and his older brother Alexander Fairweather the Aurora in 1880-1882 (so Rycroft, p. 54; Chafe, p. 90, has James in charge of the Aurora 1880-1888), after which Alexander moved to the Thetis in 1883 and the Terra Nova 1885-1888 (Chafe, p. 90). Rycroft, p. 5, traces the family back to Kirriemuir, Scotland, in the eighteenth century. (Some of this may be by confusion between sealing and whaling trips; according to Rycroft, p. 19, James Fairweather was one of the very few Dundee captains to command both. He would later command the Discovery as she went to hunt Shackleton's Endurance expedition, although he didn't play any role in the rescue; Rycroft, p. 139.)

The family had no history at sea; James Sr., the father of Alexander and James, had been a cabinet-maker until he suddenly went to sea as a carpenter in 1854, dying in Australian in 1857 with his wife and children still in Dundee! (Rycroft, pp. 9-10). Alexander (who was born around 1847) first went to sea at age ten (Rycroft, pp. 11-12); James was still at home when his mother remarried in 1864.

Alexander Fairweather had an active life; having gone to sea at age ten (Watson, p. 75), he "died aboard his ship Balaena off Spitzbergen on May 31, [1896]" (Lubbock, p. 433). Watson has a sketch of him after p. 84, apparently showing him as he looked while commanding the Balaena. He was also arguably guilty of incest -- according to Rycroft, pp. 3, 8, he married the daughter of his mother's twin sister -- so at least his first cousin, and if the two twins were identical, then perhaps (from a genetic standpoint) his niece.

I'm quite certain that the "Art Jackson" mentioned in some versions should be "Art Jackman," since "Art Jackman" is referred to later in the song, and Arthur Jackman (1843-1907) commanded Newfoundland steamers from 1871 to 1906, spending time as captain of the Hawk, Falcon, Narwhal, Resolute, Eagle, Aurora, and Terra Nova (Chafe, p. 92). Based on the lists in Chafe, I can say categorically that no Newfoundland steamer had a "Captain Jackson," and Archibald doesn't list any Dundee whaling captain with that name, although his list is not as comprehensive as Chafe's.

Ryan-Ice, pp. 272-273 n. 23, says Jackman was "a legend in his own time. He was big, impressive, given to heavy drinking and violence, but very successful and usually generous and popular." And tough enough that, when he mangled one of his fingers, he took an axe and cut it off when one of his sailors refused to do so! In 1886, he accompanied Robert Peary on the latter's first trip to the Arctic (DictNewfLabr, p. 173) and came to be known as "Viking Arthur" because of his work in northern seas (Droge, p. 47). He spent some time as a whaler, but had an even longer and more famous career as a sealer; his obituary said that he commanded his first sealing ship at age 22 (Ryan-Ice, p. 380, who reprints the obituary found in the St. John's Evening Telegram of Jan. 13, 1907). Such was his fame that the Evening Telegram also published three poems or ballads about him in the weeks after his death (Ryan-Ice, p. 385). For Jackman, see also "Sealer's Song (I)," "First Arrival -- 'Aurora' and 'Walrus' Full," and "The Spring of '97."

Newfoundlanders continue to tell stories about the Fairweathers and the Jackmans. Young, p. 235, has one about a Fairweather (apparently James) and Art Jackman. Sealing ships had a tendency to follow the lead of the most noteworthy captain, since they were thought likely to find the seals soonest. One year (un-named), Jackman led the sealing fleet out of St. John's, and found the whole fleet following him. He shook off all but Fairweather. When Jackman spotted seals in the distance, he stopped the ship. Fairweather oh so kindly sent a message asking if Jackman needed help. Jackman told Fairweather he was stopped because of the weather; Fairweather said he would do the same, and asked when Jackman would start out in the morning. Jackman said he would hang a red light so Fairweather could see when he moved. In the night, Jackman headed away for the seals, leaving a red light on a pole to fool Fairweather. No wonder they got into bar fights....

In another year, Jackman went into White Bay -- a dangerous decision, because the bay could be closed by ice if the wind blew in the right direction (for an instance of this, see "We Will Not Go to White Bay with Casey Any More"). But he had found seals, so he went in -- and he didn't want anyone else to follow him, so he had his engineers put up extra smoke. The other sealers thought he was jammed (or maybe on fire), and left him alone in the bay to clean up the patch (Ryan-Last, p. 58).

Jackman, in fact, was so notorious an individual that a year in which only one or two sealing steamers found success was known as an "Arthur-Jackman Year" -- a year in which the only captains who found success were those who went against the grain as much as Jackman (Greene, p. 17).

William Guy knew James Fairweather in Newfoundland. James Fairweather got in trouble for using violence against his own crew, and also for beating up the chief engineer of Henry Dawe's ship Esquimaux in 1886 -- and William Guy was there at the time! (Ryan-Ice, pp. 263-264). Both in fact faced charges; Fairweather was fined $4, though the case against Guy was dismissed. And the fight was over whether the engineer could get up steam in haste, to allow the men to go on some sort of drunken harbor cruise. Which makes it interesting, at least, that the Doyle version says, "Art Jackson [=Jackman] set his canvas, Fairweather got up steam, And Captain Guy, the daring boy, came plunging through the stream." It seems the two had semi-friendly competitions in many ways. The Fairweathers certainly seem to have been hard drinkers; Alexander Fairweather died of delirium tremens (Archibald, p. 79) aboard the Balaena (Rycroft, p. 101, which carefully omits mention of the cause of death, as does the obituary she reprints on p. 181. An item on p. 185 says he had been ill for six days). He was also strongly superstitious -- he was afraid of the number 13, wouldn't hire crew on Fridays, and had his cabin decorated with red herring (Archibald, p. 217). One man who sailed with him described him as "a real buccaneer, and looked it. He was a quiet man on shore, but at sea something of a desperado" (Rycroft, p. 102).

There is a portrait of Alexander Fairweather on p. 103 of Rycroft. The fourth captain is typically "Mullin(s)" or perhaps "Mallan," and there was no sealing/whaling captain Mullins, but we'll get to that....

The Doyle text mentions four ships, the Terra Nova, Aurora, Arctic, and Husky, along with the Polina. Several of these were famous sealing steamers. For the Aurora, see "First Arrival -- 'Aurora' and 'Walrus' Full." The Aurora served as a sealer 1877-1911 (Chafe, p. 98), and once made the voyage from St. John's to Dundee (i.e. the reverse of the direction in this song) in nine days, which was considered fast (Watson, p. 178); she eventually sank after a period involved in south polar...
All this gives us a lot of detail on which to date the song. Since all the other ships except the Arctic II were built in 1875, serving under William Adams Sr. 1875-1883 (as a whaler) and from 1877 to 1887 as a sealer -- and served under William Guy 1884-1887 as a whaler (Archibald, p.
124) and 1885-1887 as a sealer (Chafe, p. 98). It's little surprise that she wasn't fast; in 1881, she had been so badly squeezed in the ice that it took a hydraulic jack to straighten her out (Archibald,
p. 124; Lubbock, p. 411 reports that "She was so severely nipped in the ice that her hatches were squeezed into a diamond shape"), and surely her speed would have been affected by that even after the repairs! Nonetheless Watson, p. 133, says that she was "For some the finest of all the Dundee whalers."

The most famous of these ships was surely the Terra Nova, for which see "The Terra Nova." The Terra Nova was built as a whaler/sealer in 1885, came under Newfoundland ownership in 1898, went to Antarctica in 1903-1905 and in 1910, also served in the Arctic, then again went back to sealing until she was lost in World War II. In addition to doing more polar exploration than any other ship (sealer or not), only two ships took more seals in their careers, and those other two both spent many more years as sealers. She was the very last sealer to sail from Dundee, in 1895 (Archibald,
p. 49) -- a strong hint that the song predates 1895.

Archibald, p. 197, says, "Known familiarly as 'Novey', Terra Nova was the last Dundee built whaling ship and arguably the best. She was built to replace the successful whaling ship Thetis, which had been sold to the United States Government. All the skill and experience of the previous two decades of whaling ship construction created what was undoubtedly a superb example of an Arctic-worthy hunting vessel.... Terra Nova was a fast ship, with a record passage of 11 days on her maiden voyage from Dundee to St. John's in February 1885." (But there would be no more, because the whale fishery collapsed from 1885; Watson, p. 93.) That's a distance of about 2300 miles (probably), so she averaged a bit less than eight knots. In 1910, she left London for Capetown on June 1 and arrived on August 15 (Fitzsimmons, pp, 212, 224), which works out to a bit less than seven knots with no help from the wind and with her boilers presumably not going full-tilt to save coal. That's not really fast, but whalers tended to be slow because they needed to be strong to withstand ice.

This leaves the problem of the Husky. There was no Dundee whaler or Newfoundland sealer by that name. But the answer comes from Bruce Laurenson's Balena version from the Shetlands. This converts Captain Jackman to "Bold Jacklin," but instead of "Mullins in the Husky" it offers "Mallan" of the Eskimaux -- that is, the SS Esquimaux, yet another Newfoundland ship (for her, see "Captain Bill Ryan Left Terry Behind"); one suspects that there might have been an intermediate version which called her the "Huskimaw" or similar, since that is a variant form of "Eskimo" (quite common in the nineteenth century) that could easily give rise to "Husky." The Esquimaux's Newfoundland captain, in 1885 and 1887-1890, was William Milne (Chafe, p. 99; Chafe, p. 94, shows that William Milne (1851-1937) never commanded any other ship, but Archibald, p. 219, says that he was a whaler for 55 years; in 1903, as captain of the Eclipse, he was supposed to support Roald Amundsen's first North Pole expedition, although little came of that; Watson, p. 174). His name is obviously the source of both "Mullins" and "Mallan." (Indeed, as Peter Shepheard pointed out to me, the name "Milne" is often pronounced "Mallan" in Scotland.)

Milne (1851-1937) would later become famous for helping Roald Amundsen plan his first great exploit, the sailing of the Northwest Passage, and was knighted by the King of Norway as a result (Archibald, p. 48). He sounds like he was an interesting character, rising to command despite being extremely short and finding time to have ten children despite his time at sea (Archibald, pp. 79-80).
He was unusual among Arctic travelers for his knowledge of the Inuit. He reportedly went to the Arctic 42 times in some capacity or other (Archibald, pp. 219-220).

There is a photo of Milne, with a big pipe and a reindeer head trophy, facing p. 448 of Lubbock.
Watson, p. 166 says that there is a Cape Milne named for him -- although the only Cape Milne I have found is in New Guinea, which seems unlikely.

I doubt the Esquimaux was very fast; although built in 1865, and designed to have a screw propellor, it sounds as if it wasn't initially fitted (Archibald, p. 149), and retrofits almost never worked as well as engines which were part of the original design. She was the last whaler of the Dundee Seal and Whale Fishing Company to survive her arctic adventures; when the company was liquidated in 1894, with the Esquimaux sold "at a knockdown price" (Watson, p. 136), though she continued to serve as a sealer until 1900 (Chafe, p. 99). She was purchased for the 1901
Baldwin-Ziegler polar expedition, in which she was lost (Watson, p. 146).

Fascinatingly, the song omits a lot of Dundee whalers, but mentions all the Dundee whalers that usually went sealing -- in 1888-1890, for instance, there were just four Dundee whalers that went, the Polynia, the Aurora, the Esquimaux, and the Terra Nova (Lubbock, pp. 420, 422).

All this gives us a lot of detail on which to date the song. Since all the other ships except the Arctic outlasted the Polynia, they don't provide much dating help. But the mention of the Terra Nova proves that the song must be from after 1885. And the Polynia versions must be from 1891 or earlier. The Balaena versions must be after that. Can we say more?

Captain Guy, after he left the Polynia, took over the Balaena. Apparently he took the song with him! Palmer says that "The Old Polina" version refers to the years 1884-1887; Gatherer counter-proposes that the storm described as damaging the ship took place in 1891. This would, however, be after Polynia was transferred to Newfoundland ownership. In fact, the mention of Milne confines us to 1885 or 1887, probably the former. Further evidence that the year was not 1886 is the fact that the Aurora was very nearly lost in that year (Feltham, pp. 22-23, or see the notes to "First Arrival -- 'Aurora' and 'Walrus' Full"). Given the Aurora’s troubles in 1886, and the damage she suffered, reducing her abilities in 1887, 1885 might be the best bet for the year. The fact that the Arctic was lost in 1887 also supports the 1885 date; while the Arctic sailed in 1887, her early loss would probably have caused a change in the song.

An 1885 date would also explain why the Terra Nova was called a "model" mail boat; she was brand new -- the latest model. And, of course, it was easy to call the TERRA a "TERROR of the sea": the two are pronounced effectively identically in some dialects.

Another line in the song hints that the song isn't from much after 1885. That's the mention of the Arctic and Aurora being ships "they talk so much about." In St. John's, maybe... but the outside world was talking about them in the 1880s. Early in that decade, the Greeley expedition had been sent to Lady Franklin Bay on Ellesmere Island -- but its supply ship of 1882, the Neptune (another Newfoundland sealer), hadn't made it. So there was a desperate rescue attempt in 1883. The Arctic and Aurora were connected with that expedition indirectly; although not the primary ships, in their service as whalers, they led the way north (Guttridge, p. 270); for background, see the notes to "Hurrah for Baffin's Bay."

This leaves one loose end in the Laurenson version, which is the mention of "Captain Burnett" commanding the Balena. She never had such a skipper; her captains, according to Archibald, p. 128, were Fairweather, Thomas Robertson, James Bannerman, Guy, J. Murray, and W. Adams. But Burnett did command the Polynia, if only for a year. So the Laurenson reference to Burnett would seem to be a hangover -- the song was written in 1885 about Captain Guy, then adjusted to Burnett in 1886, then corrected back to Guy in 1887, but someone forgot and left the mention of Burnett in there! Burnett seems to have been a very obscure captain; the pages of Archibald are littered with mentions of the Jackmans and Fairweathers and Milnes and several others, but the only other mention of Burnett (first name apparently unknown) is as captain of the Victor in 1881, and Watson (who also talks a lot about the Milnes and Jackmans and Robertesons and such) never mentions him. The Victor was destroyed in the Davis Strait in 1881 (Archibald, p. 208). She never served as a Newfoundland sealer, and Burnett never commanded a sealing expedition (Chafe, p. 97), so presumably he wasn't well-known in Newfoundland.

It is interesting to note that one of the ships on the Antarctic Whaling Expedition did suffer damage like that described in the song in 1892 -- but the ship wasn't the Balaena, it was the Active: "The rough weather... [cost] Active two boats, some sails and a section of bulwark" (Archibald, p. 100). One of Art Jackman's ships, the Eagle, also suffered faintly similar damage on one of her voyages. In 1887, the sealing fleet left St. John's, led by Jackman and the Eagle (with James Fairweather in the Aurora right behind). Not long after, several ladders from the Eagle were found on the ice, and there were worries that the Eagle had been destroyed -- but Jackman later arrived with a fine load of seals; the ladders had become caught up in some ropes and were thrown overboard (Power, pp. 63-64).

But damage to whalers early in a voyage may have been almost routine, simply because of the state of the crews: according to Albert Markham, "The departure of a whaler is marked by a total incapacity of the crew to perform any duties whatsoever connected with the ship, in consequence of the numerous parting glasses of which they have partaken..." (Watson, pp. 59-60); there are several other references in Watson to drunken crews. Indeed, Captain James Fairweather affirmed that Dundee crews often were so drunk upon departure that the ship might have to halt in the Tay for a while so that the crew could sober up (Rycroft, p. 18).

The spelling Polina for Polynia may have derived from yet another ship. Power, p. 93, mentions a ship Polina being part of a traffic jam in the St. John's narrows in 1896. Since this was after the Polynia was lost, the name cannot be an error for the Polynia; it was a different ship.

The album "Another Time: The Songs of Newfoundland" tries to explain "The Old Polina" version by saying that is is a localized text of "The Old Balena," obviously assuming that the "Balena" versions are older. (And, indeed, there had been an earlier whaler Balaena, which was active in 1789 -- Lubbock, p. 131 -- but she obviously wasn't a steamer and didn't sail at the time of the other ships in this song.) But claiming "The Old Polina" as a localized "Balaena" doesn't explain the Newfoundland references, or the Newfoundland dialect phrase "you need not try, me sons." (In Gatherer's "Balaena" version, this becomes "ye needn't try her on," which is clearly an error for the Newfoundland phrase) -- and, to emphasize a key point, the Balaena sailed with the wrong ships! Also, the Balaena was not a sealer; she was only a whaler (see the lists of sealing vessels in Chafe). This doesn't preclude her visiting St. John's -- whalers went there regularly to coal up -- but it makes it significantly less likely that she would spend substantial time there. If a whaler did go there, it would simply be to resupply. A sealer would also pick up crew members in Newfoundland. Even though this song says it is about a whaler, it does not describe whaling; it describes the trip to St. John's. There is every reason to believe ship involved was a sealer as well as a whaler. To summarize: This song was written in 1885 about the Polynia's trip to Newfoundland under William Guy. After the Polynia was lost, Guy moved to the Balaena, and the song was adjusted -- but it still contains most of the references to the ships of 1885! So we can confidently claim that "The Old Polina" is the original title and ship. It's hard to know if the song's claim that the Polina was fast fits the Polynia. She was known to be highly maneuverable (Candow, p. 42), which in a steamer is certainly a related ability. But the sources consulted by Archibald (p. 175) say that her engine was only 60 or 70 horsepower. That's not a big engine for a ship of 473 gross tons. Lubbock, p. 376, calls her "a fine full-rigged ship, capable of steaming 9 knots" -- a decent speed for the 1860s, but not likely to win races in the 1880s. If she was fast, it was probably because she was a good sailor, not because of her engine. By contrast, there is every reason to think the Balaena was slow by the time she came into Dundee service. She was old, and she was so tired that her engine broke down on her very first attempt to leave Dundee (Archibald, p. 99; Watson, p. 116, dates a similar event to 1902). The Balaena's crew on the Antarctic expedition was "a jolly motley crowd... men and boys... of every sailor type... Arctic whalers, red cheeked and bearded, tanned South Spaniers... quiet men and boys from the east coast fishing villages and gentle men from the Shetlands" (Archibald, p. 99). No one from St. John's, though! Lubbock, pp. 423-424, has a description of the Polynia's last voyage in the arctic in 1891: "When outward bound to the Newfoundland sealing, Captain Guy was steaming dead slow against a heavy head sea and a W.S.W. gale. At the change of the watch, when all hands were on deck, a huge sea -- which Captain Guy believed to have been a tidal wave -- swept over the ship, killing one man and seriously injuring ten others. The Polynia weathered it out, and at the sealing accounted for 16,535 seals.... [Interesting that that sounds so much like the incident in this song -- except that the Arctic had sunk by then!]

"The Polynia went on to the Davis Straits, and on July 10, during a strong N.E. gal, the ship was caught by the stern between two floes[]. Her crew of 37 men were obliged to leave her, and at six o'clock on the following morning the old ship disappeared beneath the ice, leaving her crew in a desperate situation on broken ice, 12 miles from the shore. In the afternoon the Maud was sighted, but could not force her way through the pack; however, on the morning of the 12th, the Aurora succeeded in getting to them by means of her powerful engines."

One wonders what the author of this song thought about his ship's crew being saved by the enemy in his little race....

One reason the song might have been transferred to the Balaena was the latter's longevity. By the early twentieth century, the Arctic whales were effectively extinct: "The last good catches in the Greenland Sea were made by Captain J. Murray of the Balaena, who in 1909 caught 4 whales and several narwhals... and in the following year also caught 5 whales in the same neighbourhood" (Lubbock, p. 450).

There is a photo of the Balaena facing p. 416 of Lubbock and one facing p. 149 of Watson; the latter shows her at Disco off Greenland, with the caption noting that, in 1918, she was the only surviving Dundee whaling steamer (although Watson, p. 184, says she was sold in 1916). The others were all in Newfoundland or out of the business -- or had been lost during the First World War; attempts to convert them to cargo carriers affected their stability, and several were lost almost without a trace (Watson, p. 150).

Rycroft, p. 17, has a drawing of the Arctic as a whaler.

Fowke/Mills/Blume-CanadasStoryInSong list "The Old Polina" as being to the tune of "A Noble Fleet of Sealers." That the tune is the same is true. But an examination of "A Noble Fleet of Sealers" shows that it must date from the 1940s or later (see the notes to that song). So "The Old Polina" is the original, predating "A Noble Fleet" as well as "The Old Balena" versions.

Doyle's version is said to be from Captain Peter Carter of Greenspond. A Peter Carter (1869-1959) was a famous sealing captain who set the record for most seals in a single season in 1933 (Ryan/Drake, p. 80). I don't know if it's the same Peter Carter, but it seems likely. - RBW

Bibliography
Old Port Rockwell

DESCRIPTION: "Old Port Rockwell has work to do, So he saddles his sorrel and rides away... the waiting wife... shrinks in terror as down the night Comes the wailing of Port's dread war cry, 'Wheat!'" Rockwell's cry means that a wife and children will be orphaned

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (Burt-AmericanMurderBallads)

KEYWORDS: homicide mother orphan

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1878 - Death of Orrin Porter Rockwell

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Burt-AmericanMurderBallads, pp. 114-115, "(Old Port Rockwell)" (1 text)

Roud #10880

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Porter Rockwell" (subject of Orrin Porter Rockwell))

NOTES [4524 words]: Burt-AmericanMurderBallads lists Orrin Porter Rockwell (1813-1878) as a bodyguard to both Joseph Smith and Brigham Young, but he was evidently a dangerous tough also. He was the most famous of the Sons of Dan, or Danites (Walker, p. 209), which also apparently included John D. Lee, the alleged main perpetrator of the Mountain Meadows Massacre (for which see "The Mountain Meadows Massacre" [Laws B19]).

Rockwell's cry "Wheat!" is reputedly derived from the parable of the wheat and the tares (Matthew 13:24-30): The wheat was to be kept, the tares (weeds) to be burned.

According to Stegner, pp. 37-38, "Rockwell had been promised by Joseph [Smith] that no bullet would ever touch him. He wore his hair long in remembrance of that prophecy, and in a long life that his enemies said included upwards of a hundred holy murders (his most scrupulous biographer guesses twenty) the promise held good. He was illiterate, nerveless, tireless, dedicated, an utterly dependable zealot." Even Fawn M. Brodie, herself a Mormon, calls his appearance "sinister" (Brodie, p. 322).

At the time Burt-American Murder Ballads and Stegner wrote, however, there do not appear to have been any really good biographies of Rockwell. The first appears to be Schindler, which is the primary basis for what follows.

Little is known of Rockwell's early life, except what is found in church and other official records; he was born in 1813 in Belcher, Massachusetts, the second of nine children. At the age of ten, he broke a leg, and the doctor who set it did a poor job, leaving him with a lifelong limp (something he shared with his idol Joseph Smith). Early in life, his family moved close to the home of Smith, and he seems to have fallen under the Prophet's spell even while Smith was compiling the Book of Mormon, working in the fields to help the Prophet's work. Apparently the first record of him as an individual is as a rambunctious youth of 17, in 1831, as he is found running off his energy on a boat on the Erie Canal. He was already a Mormon at this very early date -- indeed, he was one of the first converts, and helped to bring his mother into the fold (Schindler, pp. 2-6).

Rockwell was one of the Mormons who moved to the colony in Independence, Missouri, where he married his first wife Luana Beebe in 1832 -- "the first Mormon wedding in Jackson County" (Schindler, p. 8). He came to work as a ferryman, which finally closed off any possibility of schooling; Rockwell never did learn to read or write (Schindler, p. 9). According to Schindler, pp. 10-11, it was Rockwell and his father who ferried the toughs who perpetrated the first assault on the Missouri Mormon colony. It was this that brought the state's Lieutenant Governor, Lillburn W. Boggs, to the area, where he made it clear that he wanted the church destroyed. The Mormons promised to get out, then sought relief from the courts -- and found themselves under even more severe assault.

The Missouri brutality was personal to Rockwell -- his brother-in-law and a neighbor were beaten in one of the assaults (Schindler, p. 15). A later attack destroyed, among others, the homes of Rockwell and his father (Schindler, pp. 16-17). The Mormons scattered to other parts of the state. Rockwell ended up in the Mormon Community of Far West in 1838; his wife had borne him two daughters, Emily and Caroline, in the interim (Schindler, pp. 23-24).

It was in this context that the Sons of Dan were formed. After some experimentation, they settled on their name based on Genesis 49:17, which calls Dan a serpent in the road that bites at horses' heels. It is also noteworthy that the name "Dan" means "judge" -- though that is not evident from the King James Bible, and there seems to have been no one in the Mormon church with the Biblical learning to realize that (had there been, someone would surely have told Joseph Smith of the fact that the Greek and Hebrew, unlike the King James Bible, are not full of archaisms; they were in the ordinary language of the times they were written. Maybe that someone would also have told him that Hebrew is an actual language, not something in which one could arbitrarily make up words).

Little is really known of the Danites; it's not even clear whether Joseph Smith was aware of their founding (Schindler, p. 32). It is known that, contrary to legend, Rockwell was not their chief (Schindler, p. 33). But we have testimony that they were sworn to work for the "utter destruction of apostates" and to keep the group's secrets at all costs (Schindler, p. 36).

Meanwhile, the war in Missouri was just getting hotter as the Mormons began to fight back seriously. Bands of Danites were important to this process. It is thought that Rockwell may have fought his first battle in a raid on the Crooked River, though we cannot be certain he was present (Schindler, pp. 45-46).

Lillburn Boggs [this is the spelling used in most histories; my Concise Dictionary of American Biography prefers "Lillburn"] made anti-Mormonism one of his key issues, and rode it to the Missouri governorship in 1836. In 1838, he issued an "Extermination Order" against the Mormons (DeVoto, p. 83; Schindler, p. 49, prints the order and notes that it was not rescinded until 1976!). We know that Rockwell was prepared to fight the battle which followed the Boggs order (Schindler, p. 52), but Joseph Smith decided to yield in Missouri.

Smith ended up in prison, where Rockwell visited him regularly (Schindler, p. 56). After that, Smith, Rockwell, and most other Mormons headed for Illinois.
Rockwell's father died in 1839, but Rockwell the Younger -- whose wife bore a son around this time -- was clearly becoming an important figure in the Church; when Smith sent a petition for relief to Martin van Buren (which the president rejected as politically inexpedient), Rockwell was one of those sent to convey it. It sounds as if his real role was bodyguard (Schindler, p. 59), but still, he was clearly a trusted bodyguard.

His looks probably contributed. By this time, he wore his beard long and his hair longer -- well below his shoulders; he really did have the look of an Old Testament prophet. The one problem with the image was his voice, which went into the falsetto when he became worked up. Schindler, p. 61, reports that he tried very hard to control his emotions as a result.

In 1842, with his fourth child about to be born, Rockwell headed back to Missouri to be with his wife and her parents. He was well enough known by now that he chose to use the pseudonym "Brown" rather than his own name (Schindler, p. 66).

Of course, returning to Missouri also brought him back into the state of Lilburn Boggs. In 1842, someone attempted to kill Boggs by shooting through his window (Walker, pp. 207-208). If the murderer didn't manage to kill him, it wasn't for lack of trying; he had a heavy pistol loaded with buckshot, and fired it through Boggs's window. Boggs suffered four wounds, the worst being to his head and neck; he was thought to be doomed, and it was considered miraculous that his six-year-old daughter, who was in the room at the time, was not injured (Schindler, pp. 67-70). Boggs gradually recovered, but left Missouri in 1846 to settle in California.

Rockwell, who had been in Missouri for only a few months, was quickly credited with the assassination attempt, though no absolute proof was offered at the time. Bagley, p. 13, is sure he did it; his note on p. 392 says, "While it may be impossible to prove Joseph Smith sent Rockwell to kill Boggs, a church newspaper called the shooting a 'noble deed.'"

Still, Schindler is not entirely sure Rockwell committed the crime, though he cites strong evidence for it (p. 73). Brodie, pp. 323-324, notes only two points of evidence: That Rockwell had briefly visited Missouri at the time, and that Rockwell seemed to come into some money after his return -- and Smith had offered $500 for anyone who killed Boggs. But she also notes that Rockwell's improved circumstances seemed to be derived from the work he did for Smith, not from any payment for the attack on Boggs.

As a result of the attempted murder, a newspaper dubbed Rockwell "The Destroying Angel." Rockwell later threatened the writer John Cook Bennett for the charges published against him (Schindler, p. 72) -- though much of Bennett's information in fact came from Boggs, who swore to an affidavit charging Smith with being an accessory to murder (Brodie, p. 324).

The Nauvoo authorities (in effect, Smith) ignored the charge against Rockwell (and against Smith himself), refusing to extradite them to Missouri (Schindler, pp. 74-76). Eventually Rockwell ended up with a price of $3000 on his head. Although he remained free, he was unable to find employment in the world outside the church, and spend some time wandering around the Midwest; his wife left him at this time (Schindler, p. 79). Eventually the Illinois authorities tossed out the warrant against Smith -- but Rockwell was apprehended (Schindler, p. 82). The trip back to Missouri had comic aspects; the driver was so drunk that he twice cracked up the stage, and Rockwell, with his knowledge of horses and carts, twice had to repair and rescue the vehicle (Schindler, pp. 84-85). He was imprisoned in dreadful conditions while awaiting trial (Schindler, pp. 85-87), attempted an escape which failed mostly because his companion was too slow (Schindler, pp. 88-89) -- and, upon his recapture, was shackled so tightly that he could not even stand up straight (Schindler, p. 90).

Ironically, Rockwell was eventually cleared of the murder charge, but was forced to stay in prison because he had attempted to escape (Schindler, p. 95). After much more maneuvering, an apparent attempt to kill Rockwell, and most of a year in prison, he finally came to trial. The case finally went to the jury, which sentenced him to "five minutes in the county jail" (Schindler, p. 99). After a few hours of last-minute attempts to file new charges, Rockwell went free. Of course, he was still stuck in Missouri, and vigilantes were after him. Broke, and with his shoes in tatters, he had to walk most of the way to Nauvoo (Schindler, pp. 100-101). This was considered to fulfill one of Smith's visions, though if God were really watching over Rockwell, I'd have to say, that should have included taking care of his badly injured feet....

When Rockwell arrived in Nauvoo, he went to visit a party being held by Smith. And it was there that Smith made his prophecy: "you -- Orrin Porter Rockwell -- so long as ye remain loyal and true to thy faith, need fear no enemy. Cut not thy hair and no bullet or blade can harm thee!" (Schindler, p. 102, who notes the obvious similarity to the tale of Samson -- who, in the Book of Judges, had superhuman strength and avoided capture and death until his hair was shaved).

The prophecy would come to inspire its own folklore; Schindler, p. 351 n. 52, tells two well-known stories about Rockwell which he understandably does not believe. In one, he put a gang of
It supported him also when he led a group to settle a contract dispute, and in the complications returned to Utah, but of course the Mormon hierarchy supported him. (Schindler, p. 190); he barely avoided lynching. Charges of murder would greet him when he also won a rifle contest, which resulted in his name (which he had concealed) being revealed apparently tried panning for gold, then brought in whisky for a saloon (Schindler, pp. 186-187). He (Schindler, pp. 184-185). Rockwell, left on his own while the financial types did their work, Rockwell soon after went on another expedition to California, to collect tithes from Mormons there before it was over, had parted company with the commander of the expedition (Schindler, p. 172).

171), and in the end it wasted a lot of money without bringing in much in the way of food. Rockwell, with Rockwell along as a scout. The planning for this expedition was utterly botched (Schindler, p. 138). Eventually, an expedition was sent to California to try to purchase much-needed supplies, Salt Lake City, of course, was barren, and the Mormons arrived with very little. It was a desperate time. Eventually, an expedition was sent to California to try to purchase much-needed supplies, with Rockwell along as a scout. The planning for this expedition was utterly botched (Schindler, p. 146). Eventually he was captured by Gentiles in Nauvoo -- and found to have so many guns that he could have fired 71 rounds without having to reload (Schindler, p. 147). Schindler, p. 148, describes this as a sort of publicity stunt. With Rockwell on trial, attention would be shifted away from the rest of the Mormons. The trial was moved to a neutral county, and there were no witnesses against Rockwell (Stegner, p. 90, though he seems to think Rockwell intimidated the witnesses while Schindler gives him a more complex defense). Rockwell went free.

Schindler notes that the death of Smith turned Rockwell "aggressive, even belligerent"; he went so far as to appropriate the wife of fellow Mormon Amos Davis at gunpoint (Schindler, pp. 142-143). This at least technically made him guilty of bigamy (polygamy being of course normal Mormon practice at the time), but his first wife, as we know, was no longer with him (Schindler, p. 145). Curiously, I found no mention of the former Mrs. Davis in Schindler's pages after this; she seems to disappear the moment he had won her favors.

When the Mormons began their exodus to Utah (for which see, e.g., "Brigham Young"), Rockwell was given the important task of carrying messages between those already on their way and those who had not yet departed; the logic seems to have been that he would be hard to stop along the way (Schindler, p. 146). Eventually he was captured by Gentiles in Nauvoo -- and found to have so many guns that he could have fired 71 rounds without having to reload (Schindler, p. 147). Schindler, p. 148, describes this as a sort of publicity stunt. With Rockwell on trial, attention would be shifted away from the rest of the Mormons. The trial was moved to a neutral county, and there were no witnesses against Rockwell (Stegner, p. 90, though he seems to think Rockwell intimidated the witnesses while Schindler gives him a more complex defense). Rockwell went free. He then became one of the pioneers Brigham Young brought along to search for the site of the New Zion (Schindler, pp. 152-153). Rockwell did much hunting and scouting on this trip. When Young selected the site of Salt Lake City, Rockwell was chosen to accompany and protect Ezra T. Benson when the latter was sent to lead the remainder of the Mormon exodus (Schindler, p. 167). Salt Lake City, of course, was barren, and the Mormons arrived with very little. It was a desperate time. Eventually, an expedition was sent to California to try to purchase much-needed supplies, with Rockwell along as a scout. The planning for this expedition was utterly botched (Schindler, p. 171), and in the end it wasted a lot of money without bringing in much in the way of food. Rockwell, before it was over, had parted company with the commander of the expedition (Schindler, p. 172). Rockwell soon after went on another expedition to California, to collect tithes from Mormons there (Schindler, pp. 184-185). Rockwell, left on his own while the financial types did their work, apparently tried panning for gold, then brought in whisky for a saloon (Schindler, pp. 186-187). He also won a rifle contest, which resulted in his name (which he had concealed) being revealed (Schindler, p. 190); he barely avoided lynching. Charges of murder would greet him when he returned to Utah, but of course the Mormon hierarchy supported him.

It supported him also when he led a group to settle a contract dispute, and in the complications which followed, ended up executing four Indians (Schindler, p. 196).

In 1854, Rockwell married Mary Ann Neff, who was about half his age (Schindler, pp. 197, 205). She bore him a daughter in March 1855 (Schindler, p. 217), and another in August 1856 (Schindler, p. 238).

Soon after the birth of that first child came another Samson-like incident: He had, until then, worn his hair very long. On a trip to California, he met the widow of one of Joseph Smith's brothers, who had lost her hair due to illness. Having nothing else to do for her, he cut his hair to make her a wig. From then on, he claimed, he could no longer control his urge to drink and swear (Schindler, p. 220). Of course, he soon grew his hair out again.

Despite his reputation in the Boggs affair, Rockwell's career to this point had been relatively tame. But "as the year 1855 came to a close, Rockwell, now a man of forty-two, was entering the most exciting period of his checkered career -- a time when his name would become synonymous with the mysteries and terrors of Mormonism described in the dime novels of the day" (Schindler, p. 223). Though it appears that, at first, he was more sinned against than sinning. He was nearly lynched while carrying the mail between the Mormon colony and the rest of the United States (Schindler, p. 240).

That didn't last long; the Utah War soon followed, in which the United States tried to guarantee its control over the independence-minded Mormons. The Mormons were sadly deficient in trained military officers; theoretically their forces were commanded by a Lieutenant General (a typical piece of Joseph Smith fiction; he had appointed himself to that rank because it would make him senior to every officer in the United States Army), but their actual forces would have been more suitable to a brigadier -- if they'd had anyone competent even to that office (Schindler, p. 293, quotes Captain Albert Tracy, who observed their formations: "They little seemed to know or heed the modern system of deploying of skirmishing.... [T]he 'corrals' of rock which they had erected... would have been knocked about their ears, and rendered untenable in but a brief time...").

In such a setting, it is little surprise that Rockwell, though he had never commanded troops, was given command of a cavalry company (Schindler, p. 251); he may have been illiterate, impetuous, and not particularly bright, but he was a survivor and knew both horses and weapons.

"Selecting five reliable men, Rockwell set out on the first Mormon action against the United States government" (Schindler, p. 255). He started a panic among the expeditionary force's transport mules -- only to have the mules head back for the Federal lines when the soldiers sounded the Stable Call. To add to the embarrassment, the Mormon's own horses proceeded to follow the Federal mules back to camp, leaving the raiders without mounts (Schindler, p. 256). So they slipped into the Federal lines again, and stole horses for themselves -- only to be told on their return that the horses had earlier been stolen by the Federals from the Mormons (Schindler, p. 257).

Rockwell had better luck later; the Mormon plan was for a "scorched earth policy" to deny the Federals any supplies, and Rockwell was one of those involved in clearing the land of any useful material (Schindler, p. 260). He also was involved in additional raids on the federal supply line (Bagley, p. 181), depriving the Federals of much livestock; late in the year, he would lead over 600 head of cattle into the Mormon ranks (Schindler, p. 264).

This was the period of the Mountain Meadows Massacre (for which see "The Mountain Meadows Massacre" [Laws B19]). Rockwell does not seem to have had any part of it -- but he did participate in the killing of the Aiken party, a group of (apparently) genteel con artists who had hoped to get rich preying off the Federal army (Schindler, p. 276). It will tell you something about relations between the Mormons and Gentiles at this time that Rockwell, an active guerilla and now undeniably a murderer, was still permitted to preach in church (Schindler, p. 283 n.).

He did find himself again under federal charges. A federal judge with a grudge against the Mormons had induced a grand jury to frame treason charges against much of the Mormon community, mostly unnamed -- but Rockwell was one whose name was given explicitly (Schindler, p. 284). Fortunately for him, he was included in the amnesty which ended the Utah War (Schindler, p. 288). During the negotiations which followed, Rockwell continued to serve as scout, sentry, and messenger for Brigham Young; at the beginning of the negotiations, it was Rockwell who escorted the Federal commissioners into the Mormon camp (Schindler, p. 292). As relations improved, Rockwell -- who became the father of a son late in 1858, then another in early 1860 -- began to look for a way to pick up money, and went back to serving liquor (Schindler, p. 294).

Later in 1860, two men engaged in a scheme to produce counterfeit quartermaster's notes which they could use to requisition supplies. Both would end up dead by gunfire. Schindler, pp. 307-308, seems uncertain just what happened -- but it was possible that Rockwell fired the shots.

It is interesting that it is only on p. 309 that Schindler first mentions Rockwell's slogan "Wheat!" The famous explorer Sir Richard Francis Burton, who had earlier visited Mecca and who had an interest in non-standard religion, decided to see what he could learn in Salt Lake City. There he met and drank with Rockwell -- and the Mormon said "Wheat!" because he enjoyed the contents of his glass (Schindler, p. 309). Rockwell is also said to have used the phrase "Old wheat in the mill" in referring to an easy task (Schindler, p. 347), and to have said "Wheat!" when discussing a court case with his lawyers -- seemingly to indicate disinterest in the charges against him (Schindler, p. 365).

In this period Rockwell also worked to track criminals. Schindler, p. 317, describes him winning a shootout with one wanted fugitive, and tells (p. 319) how two of the fugitive's colleagues also ended up dead by gunfire, though not shortly until after Rockwell had turned them in. After the Utah War, Rockwell found success managing a mail-carrying outfit as well as running his inn. Schindler, p. 321, writes, "This brief interlude in Rockwell's otherwise violent existence may have been his most enjoyable era, but destiny did not plan a quiet life for Orrin Porter Rockwell." As early as 1862, he was back to fighting Indians (in this case, the Shoshone); he was one of those who lured them into what proved to be a set-piece battle against United States (Schindler, p. 327 -- though Bagley, pp. 252-253, thinks that Rockwell may have been trying to lure the Federals into an ambush).

The result was a slaughter of the natives known as the Bear Creek Massacre, which resulted in the death of at least 250 Indians. But the Europeans came close to destruction themselves due to the weather; the commanders credited Rockwell with saving them by bringing up enough transport (Schindler, p. 331). Indeed, Rockwell and the federal officer became close friends -- so close that some sources claim Rockwell confessed to him of the attempted murder of Boggs (Schindler, pp. 332-333, though it sounds as if he doesn't believe it). He continued to work with the Federals in their Indian wars in the coming years, but managed to father another daughter on Mary Ann in 1863 (Schindler, p. 335).

The Indian conflicts had, however, resulted in the death of one of Mary Ann's close friends; she insisted on leaving the area, so Rockwell moved back to Salt Lake City, then filed a claim on some ranchlands west of Sheeprock Mountain (Schindler, p. 337). His fame, or infamy, continued to grow. Newspaper reports at this time credited him with forty or more murders (Schindler, pp. 340-341), though this may have been just an attempt to sell more papers.

In 1866, Mary Ann experienced her sixth pregnancy, dying in childbirth on August 24, with the boy dying soon after (Schindler, p. 344). Rockwell then moved again, the better to handle his contract carrying the mail (Schindler, p. 346. It is not clear to me who was watching the children during all this. Rockwell eventually was involved in a dispute over payment, but his lawyers managed to collect in full; Schindler, p. 360). It appears, though, that he mostly sold alcohol, living as quietly as a man in that occupation can do (though he once threw one of his assistant bartenders through a window; Schindler, p. 355. This brought him up before the law). He did manage to get a stake in a silver mine that became the successful Rockwell Mining Company (Schindler, p. 356).

Through it all, he remained intensely loyal to Brigham Young. When Young was charged in a murder conspiracy, and the court tried to set thing up so that he would be found in contempt for not being in court on time, it was Rockwell who rode a race to inform the Prophet of the trap and hurry him back to the court (Schindler, p. 359).

In his later years, Rockwell turned to ranching (Schindler, pp. 361-362). He also, in 1870 or 1871, took a fourth wife (Schindler, p. 360), his former housekeeper, who was 34 years old (he was 59 at the time). She bore him three girls, though the first died shortly after birth.

As long as Brigham Young was alive, Rockwell was never brought to account for his previous activities. After Young died, however, Rockwell was charged with the murder of John Aiken and arrested in 1877. Released on bail, he died of natural causes in 1878 (Schindler, pp. 365-366) -- meaning that Joseph Smith's prophecy came true: No bullet did touch him.

I wish I knew what to make of Rockwell. Schindler's biography is unhelpful -- the only assassination he seriously discusses is that of Boggs, and he nowhere says that Rockwell did it (though he does leave the impression of Rockwell's guilt). Rockwell, it is true, shot at a few others, but all in legitimate circumstances. It is, I suppose, possible that Rockwell never did go after anyone else. But it feels as if Schindler is hiding evidence -- his portrait of Rockwell is just too favorable. Rockwell's reputation as an assassin was surely exaggerated, but presumably it was based on something.

Schindler, p. 362, lists two ballads about Rockwell: This one, which he knew from Burt-AmericanMurderBallads [Roud #10880], and one beginning "Have you heard of Porter Rockwell, the Mormon Triggerite?" [Roud #10879]. - RBW

Bibliography
• Bagley: Will Bagley, Blood of the Prophets: Brigham Young and the Massacre at Mountain Meadows, University of Oklahoma Press, 2002

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Burt114

Old Prospector's Crime, The
DESCRIPTION: "Gather round me, people, While I speak this last one word, I am on the gallows And I'll ne'er again be heard." The singer and Hard Rock Jim are miners; the singer finds a claim, tricks Hard Rock Jim into a fight with a bear, kills him, and is executed
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (Burt-AmericanMurderBallads)
KEYWORDS: homicide animal mining gold execution
FOUND IN: US(Ro)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Burt-AmericanMurderBallads, pp. 90-91, "(The Old Prospector's Crime)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #22301
File: Burt090

Old Prowler, The
DESCRIPTION: "Straight over to Andy's the dog he did go, I asked them his name but they said, 'We don't know.'" The dog always stays until given a bone. Eventually they trap it. The singer advises against letting a dog roam free
AUTHOR: Larry Gorman (1846-1917)
EARLIEST DATE: 1961 (Ives-LarryGorman)
KEYWORDS: dog food warning
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ives-LarryGorman, pp. 74-76, 198-199, "The Old Prowler" (1 text plus a fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #25113
File: LaGoOlPr

Old Rags, Bottles, Rags
DESCRIPTION: Perhaps the remnants of a ragman's cry: "O ray, buttah, ray!" (x3), i.e. "Old rags, bottles, rags!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Curtis-Burlin-NegroFolkSongs-TheHamptonSeries)
KEYWORDS: nonballad commerce
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Curtis-Burlin-NegroFolkSongs-TheHamptonSeries (IV), pp. 156-157, "Old Rags, Bottles, Rags" (1 short text, 1 tune)
File: CuBu156
Old Rattler

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Here, Rattler, Here." Rattler is a great tracking dog. When (Old Riley) escapes from prison, Rattler is put on his trail, and finds the man despite many distractions and even (the Brazos River) in the way

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (recording, George Reneau)

KEYWORDS: dog manhunt prison escape captivity worksong chaingang floatingverses prisoner

REFERENCES (9 citations):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 104-105, "(Here, Rattler, Here)" (1 text, perhaps composite, plus apparently a portion of another version)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 66-67, "Ol' Rattler" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jackson-WakeUpDeadMan, pp. 282-285, "Long Hot Summer Days" (2 texts, 2 tunes); pp. 290-296, "Rattler" (4 texts, 2 tunes)
McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, p. 29, "(Rattler Treed a 'Possum)" (1 short text, not typical of the versions of this song, but it mentions Rattler, so it goes here tentatively)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 26-27, "Old Rattler" (1 text, 1 tune)
Curtis-Burlin-NegroFolkSongs-TheHamptonSeries (IV), pp. 155-157, "Hyah, Rattler!" (1 text, 1 tune, not much like the common version of this song but filed here because of the mentions of Rattler)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 66, "Old Reilly (In Dem Long Hot Summer Days" (1 text); p. 395, "Old Rattler" (1 text, with the chorus of this song though the verses are those of "Old Tyler")
ADDITIONAL: Moses Asch and Alan Lomax, Editors, _The Leadbelly Songbook_, Oak, 1962, p. 38, "Old Riley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Harold Courlander, _A Treasury of Afro-American Folklore_, Crown Publishers, 1976, pp. 409-411, "Here Rattler Here" (1 text)

Roud #6381

RECORDINGS:
Elizabeth Cotten, "Here Old Rattler Here" (on Cotten01)
Mose "Clear Rock" Platt & James "Iron Head" Baker, "Old Rattler" (AFS 208 B1, 1934; on LC8)
Mose "Clear Rock" Platt, "Old Rattler" (AFS 205 B2) [this is a solo recording, as opposed to the duet with James "Iron Head" Baker]
George Reneau, "Here Rattler, Here" (Vocalion 14814, 1924)
John Snipes, "Old Rattler" (on ClassBanj)
Texas state farm prisoners, "Here Rattler Here" (on NPCWork)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Take This Hammer" (lyrics)
cf. "Long John (Long Gone)" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Poor Lazarus (Bad Man Lazarus)" (plot)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Here, Rattler, Here

NOTES [273 words]: The "Old Reilly" version is officially credited to Huddle Ledbetter. This looks to me like Lead Belly's adaption of "Long John" -- but of course there is Lomax influence. Given that "Long John" is also derived primarily from the Lomaxes, it's hard to have any confidence about the relationship between the songs, or even their folk status. - RBW

Seeger reports that the Texas state farm prisoners from whom he collected a version of the song believed it described the escape of the prisoner Riley from Clements State Farm. - PJS

To add to all the fun, Jackson thinks that the Leadbelly-type versions which combine "Old Rattler" verses with the chorus "In the long, hot, summer days" are a composite of "Old Rattler" with an independent song which he would title "Long Hot Summer Days." At first glance, this seems reasonable, since he has a "Long Hot Summer Days" version which never mentions Rattler. But it has a lot of "Godalmighty Drag" in it. And his other version does mention Rattler. So, in desperation, I'm continuing to file "Long Hot Summer Days" versions here until we find a pure "Long Hot Summer Days" version.

Jackson of course also has "Rattler" texts with no mention of "Long Hot Summer Days." He says that the convicts he talked to considered Rattler a sort of super-dog, capable of things most other dogs could not do. This does little to clarify matters, since these versions could easily be worn down from a version which did feature long hot summer days. - RBW

I think the field collections from Platt and Baker, Cotten, and the group of prisoners in Texas suggest that the song definitely comes from tradition. -PJS
Old Recruiting Soldier (Twa Recruiting Sergeants)

DESCRIPTION: Recruiter(s) from the Black Watch tell a ploughboy the advantages of enlisting. Leave your rotten food and work. "If you chance to get a bairn" or would leave "Three little weans and a wife" "we'll soon rid your hand of that"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan1)

KEYWORDS: army recruiting humorous nonballad food wife children soldier

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #176, p. 1, "The Recruiting Sergeant" (2 texts)
Greig/Duncan1 77, "The Recruiting Sergeant" (4 texts, 1 tune)
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 18-20, "Twe Recruiting Sergeants" (1 text, 1 tune)
Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice #25, pp. 155-156, "Twa Recruiting Sergeants" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, TWARECRU

Roud #3356

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Wha Saw the Forty-Second" and references there (subject: The Black Watch)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Twas In That Year

NOTES [427 words]: Greig's first version "is made to apply to the days of Queen Victoria; but there are earlier versions." His second version refers to King George; Greig's correspondent "says that the song was popular about the time of the French wars."

Greig/Duncan1 quotes a song in which "words like the chorus appear in ... George Farquhar's play The Recruiting Officer (1706); the queen here is Queen Anne." - BS

For the typical British recruiting method of The King's Shilling and getting potential soldiers drunk, see the notes to "The Recruited Collier." The irony of this song is that the sergeant's recruiting technique consists mostly of telling the potential recruit of the dangers he will escape: "O laddie, ye dinna ken the danger that ye're in, Gin yer hoorses was to flag... The greedy auld farmer he winna pay your fee...." True, of course, but pay in the British army was legendarily low and late.

"It's a slavery a' your life" to obey a farmer: And obeying a sergeant, and an officer who has the right to punish you with the lash, isn't? The British army controlled its recruits with savage discipline.

"O laddie, gin ye hae a sweethairt or a bairn, Ye'll easily be rid o' that ill-spun yarn": The usual problem for soldiers, of course, was that they had to leave sweethearts behind. The British army in this period did make provision for bringing some wives along -- but not enough to let all the men stay with their women; competition was fierce for the few slots available for spouses.

"With your tattie porin's and yer meal and kale": Food for the plowboy at home may have been poor -- but the British hired out contracts for provisions, and the contractors often provided inadequate, rotten, and inedible food. (In the Navy, this would result in the Spithead and Nore Mutinies, for which see "Poor Parker.") Almost all formations in the British army suffered more casualties from diet-related disease than from battle.

"And it's over the mountain and over the main Through Gibralter, to France and Spain": An interesting lack of mention of India. And Sudan. And other such places, where the risk of disease and casualties were far higher, and where a soldier might spend years without seeing anyone he knew other than his messmates.

The ultimate irony, though, is that the Black Watch managed to maintain its numbers all through the eighteenth and nineteenth and even the twentieth century. Only in the twenty-first, when most of the above problems were solved, did it have to be dissolved. For background, see the notes to "Wha Saw the Forty-Second." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3

File: GrD1077
Old Redskin, The

DESCRIPTION: "Did you ever hear the story of the old Redskin? She's on the Whale Back with her side stove in, Her captain's gone and her whole darn crew, and her hold's full of fish and I don't know what to do." The singer mentions some of the boat's crew

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Beck-FolkloreOfMaine)

KEYWORDS: ship wreck moniker fishing

FOUND IN: US(NE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-FolkloreOfMaine, pp. 164-165, "The Old Redskin" (1 text)

NOTES [30 words]: Beck's text is short enough that it isn't really clear what is going on, but the remaining material looks like a moniker song about a shipwreck, so I have tagged it accordingly. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.6

File: BeMa165

Old River Driver, The

DESCRIPTION: "I hired out at Saginaw, To work with Avery's men, 'Twas on the north branch of the Cass." The men make several stops on the long trip to the camp. They drink at each hotel, and pour whiskey on their feet to ease the pain.

AUTHOR: Henry Dodge (source: Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan)

EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan)

KEYWORDS: lumbering drink travel recitation

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp. 36-37, "The Old River Driver" (1 text)
Roud #6514

NOTES [23 words]: Although Beck doesn't say so, I suspect this is incomplete. The men make an alcohol-splashed trip to the lumber camp, and then what? - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: BBun036

Old Robin of Portingale [Child 80]

DESCRIPTION: Old Robin's young wife arranges with her lover Sir Gyles for 24 men to kill Robin. Warned by a page, he kills Gyles, then cuts off his wife's breasts and ears. He makes the page his heir, burns a cross into his shoulder and goes to the holy land.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1750 (Percy folio)

KEYWORDS: betrayal husband wife injury death fight travel lastwill

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Child 80, "Old Robin of Portingale" (1 text)
Hales/Furnival-BishopPercysFolioManuscript, volume I, pp. 235-240, "Old Robin of Portingale" (1 text)
Percy/Wheatley-ReliquesOfAncientEnglishPoetry III, pp. 50-58, "Old Robin of Portingale" (2 texts, the second being that of the folio manuscript and the first being Percy's rewrite)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 53, "Old Robin of Portingale" (1 text)
Roud #3971

NOTES [116 words]: This ballad is so thoroughly nasty, I'm surprised it isn't more popular. - PJS The likely explanation is that it is literary; there is no evidence that it ever entered oral tradition. According to David C. Fowler, A Literary History of the Popular Ballad, Duke University Press, 1968, p. 158 n. 25, this is one of eighteen ballads in the Child collection found only in the Percy Folio. And the moral, that young women should not marry old men, is adequately taught in other songs.

Fowler also suggests that this is based in part on "Little Musgrave and Lady Barnard" [Child 81], but given that that ballad is clearly traditional, and this is not, it would be hard to prove the connection. - RBW

Old Roger is Dead (Old Bumpy, Old Grimes, Pompey)

DESCRIPTION: (Old Bumpy) is dead and buried. An apple tree grows from his grave. An old woman comes to gather apples. Bumpy arises from his grave and kicks the woman for her temerity

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1876 (sheet music); some similar text from 1849 (Halliwell)

KEYWORDS: burial humorous supernatural playparty

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW,NE,Ro,SE,So) Britain(England(All),Scotland(Aber,Hebr,High)) Ireland

REFERENCES (29 citations):
- Greig/Duncan8 1596, "Poor Gracie is Dead" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 94-95, "Oliver Cromwell" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 509-511, "Old Grumbler" (3 texts plus mention of 1 more, 1 tune)
- Randolph 569, "Old Bumpy" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 411-413, "Old Bumpy" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's #569)
- Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 131, "Old Pompey" (1 text, 1 tune)
- High-OldOldFolkSongs, p. 3, "Poor Pompy Is Dead & In His Grave" (1 text)
- Hudson-FolksongsOfMississipp, pp. 284-285, "Old Grampus" (1 text plus mention of 4 more)
- Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 124, "Cronie is Dead" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, p. 236, "Old Grumbler" (1 short text)
- Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #199, "Old Pompey" (1 text plus an excerpt)
- Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 136-137, "Old Ponto Is Dead" (1 text plus a fragment which might be part of this, 1 tune)
- Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 65, "Old Granddaddy's Dead" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 292, "Old Willis is Dead" (1 short text, 1 tune)
- Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 195-197, "Poor Robin" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, pp. 182-183, "The Tommy Song or Apples are Ripe" (1 text)
- Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 186, "Old Grumpus" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 259, "Old Roger" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
- Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #224, "Old Grampus" (2 texts,1 tune)
- Botkin-TreasuryOfNewEnglandFolklore, p. 585, "Pompey" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Pound-AmericanBalladsAndSongs, 114, pp. 232-233, "Poor Robin" (1 text)
- Hammond-SongsOfBelfast, p. 16, "Poor Toby is Dead" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 57, "Old Roger" (3 texts, 1 tune)
- Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #37, "Old Grimes" (1 text)
- JournalOfAmericanFolklore, E. J. Ladbury, "Scrapes of English Folklore, VIII. Worcestershire," Vol. XXXV, No. 3 (Sep 1924), #16 pp. 268-269 "Cock Robin is Dead!" (1 text)
- Tristram P. Coffin and Hennig Cohen, _Folklore in America: Tales, Songs, Superstitions, Proverbs, Riddles, Games, Folk Drama and Folk Festivals_, Doubleday, 1966, pp. 213-214, "Granddaddy Is Dead" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 93, "Old Grimes" (1 text, tune referenced)

ST R569 (Full)

Roud #797

RECORDINGS:
- Dora Richards, "Pompey is Dead" (AFS, 1940; on LC55)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- Old Limpy
Old Grimes
Old Johnny
NOTES [312 words]: Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio quotes John Powell as writing, "This is not a song but a singing game, 'Old Roger is Dead.' It is a relic of an ancient pagan ritual...." Randolph gives details on how the game is played. Botkin believes this originated with "Pompey! A Famous End Song," with words credited to "Mrs. K. B." and music by W. R. Dehnoff. This is possible, as I know of no collections prior to the 1876 publication of that song. But the degree of variation makes me suspect it is older. The version in Henry Randall Waite, Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, is credited to "A. G. Green, [Brown class of 18]20." However, this appears to be a reference to "Bohunkus," even though that's is a different song (and Waite has it on the next page!).

The use of the name "Old Roger" in some versions is interesting. According to Carol Rose, Spirits, Fairies, Leprechauns, and Goblins: An Encyclopedia (originally published as Spirits, Fairies, Gnomes and Goblins: An Encyclopedia of Little People, 1996); I use the 1998 W. W. Norton paperback edition), p. 246, Old Roger "is the red-faced spirit of apples and the guardian of apple trees in some areas of England." Thus Old Roger might well be expected to guard apples. This should not be confused with "Bohunkus (Old Father Grimes, Old Grimes Is Dead)," which also goes by the title "Old Grimes"; the forms are different, and "Bohunkus" has a plot about two competing brothers. - RBW

Cole, from Massachusetts, accompanies her version with the note that "I have heard my mother repeat the following rhyme as familiar from her childhood (she was born in 1797)." It inserts the following, after Johnny is laid in his grave -- "The Devil came after him, but couldn't have him" -- into the usual course of events. - BS

Last updated in version 5.3

File: R569

---

Old Rub Alcohol Blues

DESCRIPTION: Singer's "darling threw me down." His pockets are empty; he won't work and is walking the railroad ties. "Peace on earth I cannot find." "... one more plan ... Soak up the old rub alcohol Ease all troubles off my mind."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (StuffDreams1)
KEYWORDS: grief love rejection rambling drink suicide nonballad lover hobo
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1919 - The Volstead Act establishes prohibition of "intoxicating liquors" to carry out the 18th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.
1933 - The 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution ends prohibition.
FOUND IN:
Roud #12160
RECORDINGS:
Dock Boggs, "Old Rub Alcohol Blues" (on StuffDreams1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Got the Jake Leg Too" (Prohibition alcohol surrogates) and references there
NOTES [146 words]: During prohibition rubbing alcohol was among the surrogates people drank as a replacement for illegal "intoxicating liquors." It was intended as a massage liniment and was never safe to drink. - BS
Rubbing alcohol is usually isopropyl alcohol (isopropynol), C3H8O or CH3CHOHCH3; it differs from propyl alcohol in that the hydroxyl group -OH comes off the middle carbon, not one of the carbons on the end. Like most alcohols other than ethyl alcohol, it gives a brief buzz but is deadly if metabolized; indeed, it is a skin irritant. It was not widely available until after World War I, so somebody must have tried it out as an ethanol substitute quite quickly. For more on the use of alcohols other than ethyl alcohol, see "The Man that Waters the Workers' Beer"; for more about the various alcohol substitutes during prohibition, see the notes to "Got the Jake Leg Too." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2

File: R50RuAB
Old Rugged Cross, The

DESCRIPTION: "On a hill far away Stood an old rugged cross, The emblem of shuffling and shame." The singer loves the cross, "Where the dearest and best For a world of lost sinners were slain." The singer will someday trade a cross for a crown

AUTHOR: George Bennard (1873-1958) (source: Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns)

EARLIEST DATE: 1913 (source: Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

ADDITIONAL: Charles Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns (Hallberg, 1982), pp, 192-193, "The Old Rugged Cross" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #22417

File: HymOlRuC

Old Rustic Bridge by the Mill, The

DESCRIPTION: "I'm thinking tonight of the old rustic bridge... 'Twas there, Maggie dear, with our hearts full of cheer, We strayed 'neath the moon's gentle gleam." The singer recalls their happy meeting by the bridge, and all the joys they had there

AUTHOR: Joseph P. Skelly (source: Greig/Duncan6 and broadside LOCSheet sm1881 02090)

EARLIEST DATE: 1881 (broadside, LOCSheet sm1881 02090)

KEYWORDS: love courting

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan6 1254, "The Old Rustic Bridge" (1 text)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 124, "The Old Rustic Bridge by the Mill" (1 text)

Roud #3792

BROADSIDES:
LOCSheet, sm1881 02090, "The Old Rustic Bridge by the Mill," Spear & Dehnhoff (New York), 1881; also sm1884 04056, "The Old Rustic Bridge by the Mill"; sm1881 03842, "Heimweh [and] The Old Rustic Bridge by the Mill" (tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "When You and I Were Young, Maggie" (theme)

NOTES [382 words]: This feels so much like "When You and I Were Young, Maggie" (right down to the name of the girl) that I have to suspect dependence. But they aren't the same song, though they're about equally sloppy.

This was one of the best-known songs of Joseph P. Skelly (though I think his best song may be his other item in the Index, "I'm Just Going Down to the Gate"). Norm Cohen's article "Henry J Wehman and Cheap Print in Late Nineteenth-Century America," found in David Atkinson and Steve Roud, Editors, Street Ballads in Nineteenth-Century Britain, Ireland, and North America: The Interface between Print and Oral Tradition, Ashgate, 2014, on pp. 153-154 prints part of the New York Sun's July 2, 1895 obituary of Skelly. After he wrote this song, his mother died, and he seems never to have recovered. He clearly became an alcoholic, and at one time actually wrote a song at Henry J. Wehman's piano in return for a small payment that he promptly drank away -- and drank so much that he ended up in the hospital. It all sounds very like Stephen Foster (a point also made by Sigmund Spaeth, A History of Popular Music in America, p. 218, but I noted the fact even before I read Spaeth's remark). except that Skelly clearly wasn't in the same league.

Spaeth, p. 218, says that Skelly was a plumber by training -- and has a tendency to try to pass off obscure British songs as originals.

Spaeth lists some of Skelly's other work. He wrote the tune for George Cooper's "Strolling on the Brooklyn Bridge" in 1863 (Spaeth, p. 172; did Cooper, who also worked with Stephen Foster, have a thing about alcoholic partners?). In 1874 he wrote "Down by the Old Stream," which, when rewritten with a mill added to the stream, became a hit. In 1876, "I've Only Been Down to the Club" was his preview for "I'm Just Going Down to the Gate" six years later. Spaeth claims that "My Pretty Red Rose" (1877) was Skelly's biggest hit; in 1879 he produced "The Gentleman from Kildare," "If My Dreams Would Come True," and "Pride of the Kitchen" (Spaeth, p. 218). Spaeth on
p. 219 lists thirteen other songs, most of which sound like potboilers; the only ones that sound familiar are "A Boy's Best Friend Is His Mother" and "They're All Getting Married But Me," both of which are obviously easily-borrowed titles.- RBW

Last updated in version 4.4
File: Ord124

Old Sailor's Song
DESCRIPTION: No tune given, basically a poem recounting the various travails of sailors. Nine stanzas; begins "Come listen unto me a while and I will tell you then, the hardships and the misery of life on a merchantman..."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938
KEYWORDS: sailor work hardtimes
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen, pp. 138-140, "Old Sailor's Song" (1 text)
ST Colc138 (Partial)
Roud #4705
NOTES [101 words]: Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen says this was secured from Fannie Hardy Eckstorm, co-author of Minstrelsy of Maine (though it is not in that collection), which would date it to around 1927. - SL
Curiously, the song does not appear in Jean Patten Whitten's description of the Eckstorm folk song collection (Fannie Hardy Eckstorn: A Descriptive Bibliography), at least not under this title or filed under Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen's first line.
The lyrics fit "Bold Jack Donahoe"/"Jim Jones at Botany Bay," and there are enough similarities that I think that may have been the tune intended. - RBW
File: Colc138

Old Scout's Lament
DESCRIPTION: "Come all of you, my brother scouts, And join me in a song." The singer notes that "but few" old scouts are left alive. But the elk and buffalo are gone, and the Indians driven away: "We won great homes for gentle ones, And now, our West, goodbye."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1910
KEYWORDS: age Indians(Am.) animal cowboy work farewell
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 18, "The Old Scout's Lament" (1 text)
DT, OLDSCOUT
Roud #4631
File: Ohr018

Old Settoo, The
DESCRIPTION: A rich farmer's daughter courts a beggar wearing an old settoo. Her father tries unsuccessfully to dissuade her. She joins the beggar begging. They get married. "The cold of winter she never knew, For every night I rolled her in my old set-too"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage clothes begging father
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 26A, "The Old Settoo" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The White Cockade" (tune)
cf. "A-Begging I Will Go" (theme and some lines)
NOTES [55 words]: OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 26A: "Settoo = Surtout, Overcoat."
Old Sheep Done Know the Road, The

DESCRIPTION: "The old sheep done know the road (3x), The young lambs must find the way."
Verse: "Shout my sister for you are free ... For Christ has bought your liberty" "Sooner in the morning when I rise ... With crosses and trials on every side"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious floatingverses Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 4-5, "De Ole Sheep Done Know de Road" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 198 in the 1874 edition)
Roud #12415
RECORDINGS:
  Gullah Kinfolk, "De Old Sheep" (on USSeaIsland04)
  James Garfield Smalls, "Hard Times/De Ole Sheep Done Know de Road" (on USSeaIsland03)
NOTES [60 words]: Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses include the floaters, "I do believe without a doubt ... The Christian has a right to shout" and "Better mind how you walk on the cross ... For your foot might slip and your soul get lost." The second and fourth line of each verse is "The young lambs must find the way." - BS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Dett004

Old Sheep Went to Sleep

DESCRIPTION: "Old sheep went to sleep And left the lambs a-feeding, Little mouse jumped over the house And set his nose a-bleeding." Other verses also tell of off moments in animal life: A mare kicks a bear, a goat jumps into a boat, a goose breaks loose
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan)
KEYWORDS: animal sheep humorous
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 191, "Old Sheep Went to Sleep" (1 text)
ST GC191 (Partial)
Roud #3709
File: GC191

Old Ship of Zion (I), The

DESCRIPTION: Following the form of "She'll Be Coming 'Round the Mountain": "The old ship of Zion, when she comes, when she comes," "She rocks so steady any level when she comes." "Have your lamps trimmed and burning," "Have oil in your vessels."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
  Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 623, "The Old Ship of Zion" (3 texts, but only the "A" text is certain to be this piece

Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 623, "The Old Ship of Zion" (5 tunes plus text excerpts)
Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs, p. 71, "The Ole Ship o' Zion" (1 text, 1 tune)
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, pp. 240-241, "Old Ship of Zion" (1 text)

Roud #4204

RECORDINGS:
Uncle Dave Macon, "Old Ship of Zion" (Vocalion 15033, 1925)
Ernest Phipps & his Holiness Singers, "Old Ship of Zion" (Victor 20927, 1927)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "She'll Be Coming Round the Mountain" (form, tune, lyrics)

NOTES [26 words]: The references to a trimmed lamp and having oil in one's vessels are clearly an allusion to Jesus's parable of the Wise and Foolish Virgins, Matt. 25:1-13. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2

File: Br3623

Old Simeon

DESCRIPTION: Simeon made cans of ale. His journeyman, Jenkin, drank from every can. Simeon asks Jenkin, "to whom drink you?" Jenkin replies, "to you." Simeon says, "I spy a knave [that is, Jenkin] in drinking, Come trole [pass] the bole [bowl] to me"

AUTHOR: William Child (source: Sandys)

EARLIEST DATE: 1652 (Hilton's _Catch That Catch Can_, according to Sandys) [but see notes for earlier references to the first line]

KEYWORDS: request drink nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 299, "Old Simeon" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 184)
ADDITIONAL: William Sandys, editor, Festive Songs Principally of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries (London, 1848 ("Digitized by Google"), #45 pp. 60-61, ("Now God Be With Old Simeon") (1 text)

Roud #1338

NOTES [220 words]: "Samuel Harsnet, in his Declaration of Egregious Impostures, 1603, mentions a 'merry catch,' 'Now God be with old Simeon' (for which see Rimbault's Rounds, Canons, and Catches of England), which he says was sung by tinkers 'as they sit by the fire, with a pot of good ale between their legs'" (Naylor p. 17; cf. Elson, p. 75; Rimbault, pp. 28-29, refers to "Now God be with old Simeon" in Pammelia, 1609).

Here is a note I don't follow, but since it appears to refer to this catch it may be useful; the apparent reference is to Twelfth Night, Act 2, Scene 3, ll,55-63: "In 'Twelfth Night,' in the scene where the Clown, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, and Sir Toby Belch, act 2, scene the 3rd, are singing catches, there is one 'To whom drinke thou, Sir Knave!' The whole of this will be found in a curious old musical work entitled, 'Pammelia Musicks Miscellanie, or mixed varietie of pleasant Roundelayes and delightful Catches, of 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 parts. London, 1609, page 7.' Malone supposes Shakespeare wrote Twelfth Night in the year 1614, if so, this old work may be considered as containing the original catch; it begins, 'Now God be with old Simeon'" (FQRMaH, p. 137). - BS

That Shakespeare's and Ravenscroft's catches are the same is clear. Like Ben, I rather question the connection with "Old Simeon." -RBW

Bibliography

- Elson: Louis C Elson,Shakespeare in Music, L.C. Page & Co, 1901 ("Digitized by Google")
- FQRMaH: "Music at Home and Abroad" inThe Foreign Quarterly Review American Edition Vol XXVIII No. 60, October 1841 ("Digitized by Google")
- Rimbault: Edward F Rimbault,Bibliotheca Madrigaliana: a Bibliographical Account of the Musical and Poetical Works Published in England During the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries, John Russell Smith, 1847 ("Digitized by Google")

Last updated in version 2.6
Old Simon
DESCRIPTION: Old Simon courts a young girl. She rejects him. He says he is rich. She says he is "not fit to wed with a young maid." He says he'll love her, be at her command and with riches she'll be like a queen. She agrees to "be married to your gold, you old man"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: age greed marriage dialog
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 77, "Old Simon" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 462)
Roud #1248

Old Skipper, The
DESCRIPTION: "I'm an old canal-boat skipper with black snake in hand, So fare you well darling, my mules will not stand." The singer loves working on the tow-path. He has been on many waters, but this is the best. He will not rove. He lists his cargoes
AUTHOR: Pearl R. Nye (source: Salt)
EARLIEST DATE: 1992 (Salt-BuckeyeHeritage-OhiosHistory)
KEYWORDS: river travel home canal
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Salt-BuckeyeHeritage-OhiosHistory, pp. 57-58, "The Old Skipper" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #31279
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Whiskey Waltz" (tune, according to Salt)

Old Soap-Gourd, The
DESCRIPTION: "Here we go round the old soap-gourd, the old soap-gourd, the old soap-gourd, Here we go round the old soap-gourd, Earlye in the morning." "The old soap-gourd likes sugar in his tea" as he finds a girl: "Rise and give me your lily-white hands."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (copyrighted by Jean Ritchie)
KEYWORDS: playparty courting drink
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 62, "The Old Soap-Gourd" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7387
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush" (form)
cf. "This Is the Way We Wash Our Clothes" (form)
NOTES [33 words]: This appears to be another variation of the "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush"/"This Is the Way We Wash Our Clothes" tune group and game. But the lyrics are entirely different, so I split them. - RBW

Old Soldiers Never Die (I)
DESCRIPTION: "There is an old cookhouse not far away Where we get sweet damn all three times a day. Ham and eggs we never see, damn all sugar in our tea, As we are gradually fading away. Old soldiers never die... They just fade away."
AUTHOR: unknown
Old Soldiers Never Die (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Old soldiers never die, Never die, never die, Old soldiers never die, They just fade away." "Old soldiers never die, Never die, never die, Old soldiers never die -- Young ones wish they would."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)

KEYWORDS: soldier age

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 59, "Old Soldiers Never Die" (1 text)

Roud #10521

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Kind Thoughts Can Never Die" (tune)
cf. "Old Soldiers Never Die (I)" (lyrics)

File: BrPa059A

Old Sow (I), The

DESCRIPTION: "And the old sow went to the barn to pig, (whistling) barn to pig, And the old sow went to the barn to pig, But never cry di dry do cry da. For old Susanna is a pretty woman." The sow and piglets may try to escape, but are stopped by the wall.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: animal

FOUND IN: US(SE) Britain(England(Lond),Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 178, "The Old Sow" (1 fragment)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 178, "The Old Sow" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Greig/Duncan8 1661, "Oor Little Pigs" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, OLDSOW

Roud #1737

RECORDINGS:
Albert Richardson, "The Old Sow" (on Voice07)
Cyril Smith, "The Old Sow Song" (Castle [UK?] 1259, n.d.)
Rudy Vallee & his Connecticut Yankees w. Cyril Smith, "The Old Sow Song" (Bluebird B-7078, 1937)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Susannah's a Funny Old Man

NOTES [92 words]: The Brown text and that from the Digital Tradition have little in common, but they both mention Susanna, are about sows, and contain a lot of nonsense; it seems pointless to separate them. The editors of Brown seemed helpless to expain their text (quoted in full in the description, though they note that several lines are apparently missing), notably the verb "to pig." I wonder if it isn't an error for "to dig." Alternately, presumably, it means "to live as a pig" or "to have piglets." - RBW
The latter, according to the Random House Dictionary. - PJS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Br3178

Old Spencer Rifle, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer tells of Johnny's visit, and his "shooting" her with his gun, no less than seven times. John does the mother too and goes off with his gun-barrel bent.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (collected by Vance Randolph from Booth Campbell)
KEYWORDS: bawdy sex
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 128-129, "The Old Spencer Rifle" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11499
NOTES [193 words]: Annotator Legman in Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I asserts that the melody of this apparently unique ballad is "unmistakably" similar to "Yankee Doodle." In fact, it directly quotes "Cotton-Eyed Joe." In fact, it directly quotes "Cotton-Eyed Joe." - EC
The mention of seven shots and the "old Spencer Rifle" would seem to be a reference to the Spencer repeating carbine of the Civil War era. According to Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War
Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover), p.
782, "SPENCER REPEATING CARBINE. The first successful breech-loading repeating rifled carbine was patented in 1860 by Christopher M. Spencer of Conn. By 1864 it had become the standard arm of the Federal cavalry and by the fall of that year brigades of infantry began to appear with it.... The carbin was loaded by a tubular magazine that passed through the butt of the stock and held seven copper rimfire 52 caliber cartridges." Although it lacked range and penetrating power, it became famous because it could be "loaded on Sunday and fired all week." Thus the reference would seem to imply that the song originated during or shortly after the Civil War. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.3
File: RL128

Old State Mill, The
DESCRIPTION: "It is pretty hard times for the farmer, Who lives by the sweat of his brow." He has to sell his cow to pay taxes, and can't pay the store But "The railroad bummers have lots of cash
To spend at the Old State Mill." Times are hard many others as well
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Dunn, _The St. Croix_, from an uncited source)
KEYWORDS: farming hardtimes worker railroading
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: James Taylor Dunn, _The St. Croix: Midwest Border River_, reprint edition with new introduction published 1979 by the Minnesota Historical Society press, pp. 256-257, [no title] (1 text)
NOTES [104 words]: Dunn cites no source for this song; it sounds to me as if it might be a Grange song. But it is not just about farmers; river men, tote teamsters, and "every day men" are also singled out as being in trouble. Dunn thinks the song dates from the aftermath of the Panic of 1873.
Searching the Internet, I was unable to locate an Old State Mill in Wisconsin (although there seems to be a famous one in Ohio, and several others of lesser note). However, the stanza about river men mentions the St. Croix and Clam rivers -- which clearly localize the song to northwestern
Wisconsin (the Clam is a tributary of the Saint Croix). - RBW
Last updated in version 2.5
File: JTDST256
Old Stone Wall, The
DESCRIPTION: "Outside Casey's cabin there is an old stone wall." The singer recalls the sights the wall has seen: Friends meeting, youths singing, pipers playing, lovers meeting. He wishes he could live on the wall; not even a throne would be better
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H83, pp. 156-157, "The Old Stone Wall" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13453
File: HHH083

Old Straw Bonnet
DESCRIPTION: "Come along, boys, and let's go to meeting (x3), And wear our old straw bonnets." "Come along girls, and let's go with them...." "Mama, o Mama, I won't go to meeting." "No, no, Johnny, you can't go to meeting." "Never mind, Johnny, I'll tell your papa"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)
KEYWORDS: courting clothes
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 65, "Old Straw Bonnet" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11323
File: Brne065

Old Stumper
DESCRIPTION: Leo B MacCormack and his brother Archie agree to dig Uncle Stones's well in exchange for "skin and bones" nag Stumper. When title is questioned Stumper asks "did you get a clear receipt?" At the trial title is settled in MacCormack's favor.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland)
KEYWORDS: bargaining trial work humorous horse
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 17-18, "Old Stumper" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12481
NOTES [9 words]: The song dates delivery of the summons March 17, 1892. - BS
File: Dib017

Old T. I.
DESCRIPTION: "T. I. [Thursday Island?] my beautiful home, T. I. my home sweet home, Darling won't you take me Where the sun is sinking farewell." "The sun and the moon that shine Make me long for home." "I'll be there forever, Where the sun is sinking, farewell."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (Scott-ACollectorsNotebook-31TraditionalSongs)
KEYWORDS: home death separation nonballad
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scott-ACollectorsNotebook-31TraditionalSongs, p. 11, "Old T. I." (1 composite text, 1 tune)
Roud #22591
File: ScCol011
Old Tar River, The
DESCRIPTION: Response lines alternate between "O-eee" and "Lord, Lord, the old Tar River." Leader lines include "Tar river runs black and dirty," "Tar river's going to run tomorrow," "Old Tar river is a healing water," "Old Tar river runs free and easy"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands)
KEYWORDS: river nonballad shanty
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands 54, pp. 216-217, "Ole Tar River" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
John Davis and the Georgia Sea Island Singers, "The Old Tar River" (on LomaxCD1713)
NOTES [16 words]: On LomaxCD1713 Davis says this is another song for working heavy timber, "some fifty feet long." - BS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Parr054

Old TB, The
DESCRIPTION: "The story of two and they loved each other, More than anyone ever know; The girl, she took the old consumption." They go to the mountain to try to cure her. Both of them die. They are buried together.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2)
KEYWORDS: love death disease
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, p. 98, "The Old TB" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7134
RECORDINGS:
Lilly Brothers, "They Sleep Together Now At Rest" (Page 505, 1948?)
File: BuMa098

Old Testament in Verse (The Books of the Bible)
DESCRIPTION: "In Genesis the world was made, In Exodus the march is told, Leviticus contains the law, In Numbers are the tribes enrolled." And so on to "...And Malachi of John his sign, The Prophets number seventeen And all the books are thirty-nine."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: Bible nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Se)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 875, "The Books of the Bible" (1 fragment)
Roud #7540
BROADSIDES:
NLSScotland, RB.m.143(073), "The Books of the Bible: A Literary Curiosity" ("In Genesis the world was made by God's creative hand"), Poet's Box (Dundee), n.d.
NOTES [258 words]: In general the summaries of Bible books in this song are accurate, though it is very clearly Protestant Christian -- the Catholics, e.g., add assorted deuterocanonical books to the Old Testament. The Jewish canon contains the same books as the Protestant, but organize them differently. The number of books is not 39, but 24 (or 22): 5 books of the Law (Genesis-Deuteronomy), eight of the Prophets (Former Prophets=Joshua, Judges, Samuel, Kings; Later Prophets=Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the Twelve), and the rest, with some reorganization, form the Writings (note that Daniel is not one of the Prophets). The texts in Pankake are "not" the same song as in Randolph, but they are so thematically close.
(and so unlikely to be looked up separately) that I just decided to lump them in here. Their two texts simply list the books of the Bible in order -- both in the Protestant order of the King James Bible (a traditional Greek Bible would put the "Catholic Epistles" of James through Jude with Acts, and might place Hebrews after 2 Thessalonians rather than Philemon). A third anonymous poem on this general theme, "Names and Orders of the Books of the Old Testament," is found on pp. 602-603 of Hazel Felleman's The Best Loved Poems of the American People.

The greatest mystery of all may be the relationship between the Randolph text and the NLScotland broadside. They have very many common lyrics, but the Randolph text is in short lines and the Scottish version in long. A rewrite seems likely, but how it proceeded is unclear at best.- RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: R875

Old Timbrook Blues

DESCRIPTION: Race between Timbrook & Molly; Timbrook races "like a bullet from a gun", while Molly creeps along "like a criminal to be hung." Singer addresses jockey Johnny Walker. Timbrook beats Molly "to the hole in the wall." Singer says old mistress lost her "mon"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, John Byrd)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Race between Timbrook & Molly; Timbrook races "like a bullet from a gun", while Molly creeps along "like a criminal to be hung." Singer addresses jockey Johnny Walker, telling him to hold Timbrook's reins tight. On the windy race day, "you couldn't see old Timbrook as he come darting by." Everyone shouts, but Timbrook beats Molly "to the hole in the wall." Singer says he loves his racehorse; "old mistress went to the racecourse, lost all of her mon." Song also incorporates the "fourth day of July" verse from "The Cuckoo"

KEYWORDS: gambling horse

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

July 4, 1878 - race between Ten Broeck and Miss Mollie McCarthy (won by Ten Broeck)

FOUND IN: US

Roud #2190

RECORDINGS:

John Byrd, "Old Timbrook Blues" (Paramount 12997, 1930; on StuffDreams1)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Molly and Tenbrooks" [Laws H27] (subject)

cf. "Timbrook" (subject)

NOTES [103 words]: Obviously this describes the same events as "Molly and Tenbrooks" and "Timbrook." However, it does not share lyrics or tune with either of those songs, so I classify it separately. So far as I know, it's the only occurrence of the story in African-American tradition -- unless you count Henry Thomas's "Run, Mollie, Run," which includes the title phrase but none of the story.

The verse from "The Cuckoo" ("The cuckoo was a fine bird, hollered when he fly/But he never hollers cuckoo til the fourth day o' July") makes no sense until you note that the race between Ten Broeck and Miss Mollie was held on July 4, 1878. - PJS

Last updated in version 5.2

File: RcOTimbB

Old Time Cowboy (Melancholy Cowboy)

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you melancholy folks wherever you may be, I'll sing about the cowboy whose life is light and free." We are told "his heart is gay," "they're a little bit rough... but if you do not hunt a quarrel you can live with them in peace," etc.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Thorp)

KEYWORDS: cowboy nonballad

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (5 citations):

Thorp/Fife-SongsOfTheCowboys XIX, pp. 240-243 (40-41), "Old Time Cowboy" (2 texts, 1 tune); Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 121-122, "Old-Time Cowboy" (1 text)
Old Time Sealer's Song

DESCRIPTION: "We'll sound the hardy sealers praise, a wild and cheerful strain...." The singer notes that merchant vessels stop travelling in winter, but sealers work through all the dark, stormy months. At last they can come home from the ice

AUTHOR: "Mr. Webber... of Harbour Grace," according to Murphy

EARLIEST DATE: 1902 (Murphy, Songs and Ballads of Newfoundland, Ancient and Modern); dated by Murphy to 1842

KEYWORDS: hunting ship work

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, pp. 18-19, "Old Time Sealer's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, editor, _Songs Sung by Old-Time Sealers of Many Years Ago_, James Murphy Publishing, 1925 (PDF available from Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 12, "Old Time Sealer's Song" (1 text)
James Murphy, _Songs Their Fathers Sung: For Fishermen: Old Time Ditties_, James Murphy Publishing, 1923 (PDF available from the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 1, "Old Time Sealer's Song" (1 text)

ST RySm018 (Partial)
Roud #V44869
File: RySm018

Old Time Sealers, The

DESCRIPTION: "The bells they are ringing, the sirens are screaming... The sealing fleet's ready to leave port once more." As snow blows in, the fleet sails. The singer tells of the hunt; he says sealers face dangers greater than mountain climbers or big game hunters

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Newfoundland Stories and Ballads, according to Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff)

KEYWORDS: hunting ship bragging

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, pp. 138-139, "The Old Time Sealers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #V44869

NOTES [49 words]: Although full of sealing jargon, this really looks like a modern composition -- what Newfoundlander, in the heyday of sealing, would even think of mountain climbing or big game hunting? Even though no author is listed by Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, it's pretty clear this is not traditional. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: RySm138
Old Tippecanoe (I)

DESCRIPTION: "The times are bad and want curing, They're getting past all enduring, Let us turn out old Martin Van Buren, And put in old Tippicanoe." A political song, this piece points out the depressed economic conditions and Tippecanoe's humble origins.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (Norton)

KEYWORDS: political hardtimes derivative

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Dec 2, 1840 - William Henry Harrison defeats Martin Van Buren
Mar 4, 1841 - Harrison (the first Whig to be elected President) is inaugurated. He gives a rambling inaugural address in a rainstorm and catches cold
April 4, 1841 - Harrison dies of pneumonia, making him the first president to fail to complete his term. After some hesitation, Vice President John Tyler is allowed to succeed as President

FOUND IN: US(NE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 73, "Old Tippecanoe" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL:
A. B. Norton, _Songs of the People in the Log Cabin Days of Old Tippecanoe_, A. B. Norton & Co., 1888 (available on Google Books), pp. 66-67, "The Best Thing We Can Do" (1 text, tune referenced)
ST Wa073 (Full)
Roud #6950

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "We Won't Go Home Until Morning" (tune) and references there
cf. "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" (subject of the Harrison/van Buren election)
cf. "Tippecanoe" (subject of the Harrison/van Buren election)
cf. "Harrison Campaign Song" (subject of the Harrison/van Buren election)
cf. "Gold Spoons vs. Hard Cider" (subject of the Harrison/van Buren election)
cf. "Harrison Campaign Song" (subject of the Harrison/van Buren election)
cf. "Election Campaign Song" (subject of the Harrison/van Buren election)
cf. "Old Harrison" (subject of the Harrison/van Buren election)

NOTES [923 words]: When Andrew Jackson stepped down as President, he hand-chose Martin Van Buren as his successor. It was Van Buren's misfortune to suffer the consequences of Jackson's questionable economic policies (Jameson, p. 480). May 10 -- less than ten weeks after Van Buren's inauguration -- is traditionally considered the first day of the Panic of 1837, in which hundreds of banks failed. Almost all halted specie payment at least for a while (Morison, p. 455). The economic consequences lasted until the early 1840s, and made Van Buren, and indeed the whole Democratic party, extremely unpopular.

Harrison's campaign, on the Whig ticket, was far from honest. (Morison, p. 456, calls the election of 1840 the "jolliest and most idiotic presidential contest in our history"). He ran as a frontiersman (his election strategy is referred to as the "Log Cabin and Cider" campaign) even though he was a southern aristocrat -- born in Virginia (DeGregorio, p. 139) although he spent much of his later life in the Midwest (he was Governor of Indiana Territory 1800-1812 and congressman and senator from Ohio 1819-1828; DeGregorio, pp. 141-142). As Holt says on p. 106, "William Henry Harrison was neither poor nor the resident of a log cabin." But the Democrats had tried what we would now call negative campaigning, and the Whigs responded by making "log cabins, hard cider, and the accompanying coonskins... the dominant symbols of a symbol-laden campaign."

Holt notes (p. 100) that the Whigs, having been trounced by Van Buren in 1836, had little choice: "Harrison, recognizing the potential damage of [Whig defeats in local elections in 1838-1839], moved astutely to separate himself from the party's losses and to reemphasize his popularity among non-Whig voters. His message was clear. The Whig part could no longer win on its issues, but Harrison could still win on personal charisma." And he had a point: The Whigs in their roughly two decades of existence (they formed to oppose Jackson and fell apart after the election of 1852) managed to elect only two candidates, both generals: Harrison in 1840 and Zachary Taylor in 1848.

Harrison ran as a successful soldier, even though his only military exploits were the slaughter of Tecumseh's Shawnee and allies on the Tippecanoe River (and that only because Tecumseh himself wasn't present and in his absence the warriors attacked Harrison's defensive position; Mahon, pp. 24-27; also p. 63, which notes that Harrison actually resigned his commission due to the controversy over the battle) and some minor maneuverings on the Great Lakes during the War of 1812 after the Battle of Lake Erie (for which see "James Bird" [Laws A5]) had opened the way. But it didn't matter; people would have taken anything in preference to Van Buren. This song, sung to the tune of "I Won't Be Home Until Morning/The Bear Went Over the Mountain," betrays the simplistic popular view of the campaign.

To be as fair as I can (probably fairer than Harrison deserves), his exploits against the Indians did open the way for much American expansion. Berton, pp. 53-68, tells how the great Shawnee Tecumseh, and his brother the Prophet, were gradually building a coalition of tribes that might be strong enough to halt American expansion. Harrison was determined to stop it -- and his timing was brilliant: He waited until Tecumseh was too far away to interfere, and then lured the Prophet into battle.

According to Berton, p. 69, "The Battle of Tippecanoe is not the glorious victory that Harrison, down through the years, will proclaim. It is not even a battle, more a minor skirmish, and indecisive, for Harrison, despite his claim, loses far more men than the Indians. Overblown in the history books, this brief fracas has two significant results: it is the chief means by which Harrison will propel himself into the White House... and, for the Indians, it will be the final incident that provokes them to follow Tecumseh to Canada, there to fight on the British side in the War of 1812. "Tippecanoe is unnecessary. It is fought only because Harrison needs it to further his own ambitions." Furthermore his own ambitions is something at which he was always amazingly successful.

Berton, pp. 75-76, describes the casualties of Tippecanoe as follows: "Harrison has lost almost one-fifth of his force [pf roughly a thousand men]. Thirty-seven white corpses lie sprawled on the battlefield. One hundred and fifty men have been wounded of whom twenty-five will die of their injuries.... No one can be sure how many Indians took part in the skirmish. Nobody know how many died. Harrison, like most military commanders, overestimates the enemy's losses, declaring that the Prophet's casualties run into the hundreds. This is wishful thinking; only thirty-six Indian corpses are found." Harrison did, however, hold the field, and as a result was able to burn the Prophet's settlement -- and the food supplies left there; he may have caused more casualties by starvation than he did in the battle.

But he also increased Tecumseh's desire for blood, and Tecumseh was a much more formidable leader than his brother the Prophet could ever hope to be.

The 1840 election was full of rather silly campaign songs; Holt, p. 106, quotes another: Farewell, dear Van, You're not our man; To guide the ship We'll try old Tip.

According to Holt, p. 111, the Democrats responded with Hush-a-by-baby; Daddy's a Whig, Before he comes home Hard Cider he'll swig. Then he'll be Tipsy And over he'll fall; Down will come Daddy, Tip, Tyler and all. - RBW

Bibliography

- Mahon: John K. Mahon, The War of 1812, 1972 (I used the undated Da Capo paperback edition)

Last updated in version 6.0
File: Wa073
Old Tobacco Box, The (There Was an Old Soldier)

DESCRIPTION: "There was an old (soldier) and he had a wooden leg. He had no tobacco; no tobacco could he beg." He asks a comrade for tobacco, and is refused. He is told to save; then he will have tobacco. He gets even by stabbing the other with a splinter from his leg

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Tony, the Convict)

KEYWORDS: soldier humorous begging drugs injury

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW,Ro)

REFERENCES (14 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 182, "The Old Geezer" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 143, "The Old Tobacco Box" (1 text, 1 tune)
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 363, "(no title)" (1 excerpt)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 93, "The Soldier's Song" (1 short text)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 432-433, "There Was an Old Soldier" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, p. 50, "The Auld Soldier" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3342

CROSS-REFERENCES:

NOTES [577 words]: This piece is often sung to the tune of Turkey in the Straw, and the lyrics often float back and forth, but also exists on its own with its own tune (as was vehemently pointed out by the Warners' informant, Tom P. Smith; Jerome S. Epstein calls it similar to "The Red Haired Boy," but it's Ionian).

It is often listed as a Civil War song, and probably is, but I have not been able to find any Civil War reference to this which clearly distinguishes it from "Turkey in the Straw." On the other hand, the Civil War is one of the few wars in which a man with a wooden leg really could be on fairly active duty. As the war dragged on, and the number of crippled soldiers rose, the Union in 1863 decided to recruit an "Invalid Corps," later renamed the "Veteran Reserve Corps" (Catton, pp. 143-144). The men were classified as "first battalion" men, considered to be fit for garrison duty away from the front lines, and "second battalion" men, who were no longer fit enough even to carry a musket (they were supposed to serve in hospitals as nurses and cooks, according to Boatne's, article on the "Veteran Reserve Corps").

Yet Catton, pp. 144-146, tells how 166 of these poor second battalion men were once sent out to march and fight at Belle Plain. They naturally had to travel without knapsacks (more than half the men in their unit had been unable to march at all), so it would have been perfectly reasonable, on that occasion, for a soldier with a wooden leg to be in the front lines and begging for tobacco. I doubt that explains the origin of the song -- but it could have happened.

We might note that there were also a fair number of officers with wooden legs, the most senior being Confederate Lieutenant General Richard Ewell (who was wounded during the Second Bull Run campaign; Harpers, p. 386) and full General John Bell Hood (who lost the leg at Chickamauga; Harpers, p. 546. He had earlier lost the use of an arm at Gettysburg). As officers, however, they were permitted to ride rather than march -- Hood, in fact, had to be strapped to his horse, though Ewell was able to mount and dismount on his own. We might also add that, though both had been fine division commanders before being wounded, neither performed very well following amputation and promotion. Ewell's hesitation at Gettysburg may have cost the Confederates that battle; Hood's performance in the Atlanta and Nashville campaigns finally doomed the Confederacy.

For whatever reason, the Union doesn't seem to have had as many active-duty officers who lost legs. At least, I can't recall reading of many. Daniel Sickles lost his at Gettysburg (Harpers, p. 512), but he was an incompetent and was put on the shelf after that -- indeed, it was his incompetent direction of his corps which cost him his leg. There was a young fool named Ulric Dahlgren who led a cavalry raid on Richmond after losing a leg, but he was only a colonel -- and was killed in the Dahlgren Raid, his only active service after his injury (Harpers, p. 523). There were some fairly senior men who had lost an arm -- Philip Kearney (who lost his left arm in the Mexican War; Boatner, p. 449) and Oliver O. Howard (who lost his right arm at Fair Oaks; Boatner, p. 413). But losing an arm doesn't seem to have been as debilitating as losing a leg. Hard to shoot a musket, though....
The versions called "The Soldier's Song" should not be confused with the song of that name which is the national anthem of Ireland. - RBW
Bibliography

- Boatner: Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover)
- Catton: Bruce Catton, A Stillness at Appomattox, Doubleday, 1953 Rebellion in the United States, 1866 (I use the facsimile published by The Fairfax Press as Harper's Pictorial History of the Civil War; this is undated but was printed in the late Twentieth Century)

Last updated in version 4.0
File: FSC143

Old Tom Bolen (Tom Boleyn II)
DESCRIPTION: "Old Tom Bolen, his horse Beaver, Forked Deer and Hatchee River, My wife's dead and I'm a widower, And I'll go back to Rollin' River."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: animal death
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 425, "Old Tom Boleyn" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #7632
NOTES [54 words]: Randolph tentatively links this song to the minstrel piece "Way Down South in Alabama," containing the lines "My wife's dead and I'm a widder, All de way from Roarin' Ribber."
Since we're speculating, is there any possibility that these are the fiddler's mnemonic for "Forked
Deer"? (I concede the tunes are not the same.) - RBW
File: R425

Old Tom Cat, The
DESCRIPTION: "An old lady sat by the fire, An she thought no one was nigh her... And she pulled up her petticoat higher." "The old tom cat saw something naked, an for a rat or a mouse did take it," and attacks, with raucous results
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1976 (collected by Logsdon from Riley Neal)
KEYWORDS: bawdy animal fight humorous
FOUND IN: US(SW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging 46, pp. 228-229, "The Old Tom Cat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #10102
File: Logs046

Old Towler
DESCRIPTION: "Bright Chanticleer proclaims the dawn" and dogs and huntsmen gather. "This day a stag must die." They drink, joke, and start the hunt. "Fleet Towler leads the cry." The stag is killed. "The huntsman's pleasure is no more. His joys were in the chase"
Old Trouble -- A L Ranch Colored Cook

DESCRIPTION: "Morn's breakin' over de ole Ranch before de moon's gone way," meaning frost is coming. In artificial black dialect, the speaker describes all the signs in nature which reveal that "dere's gwine to be some trouble mighty soon"

AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)

KEYWORDS: Black(s) warning nonballad

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 122-123, "Old Trouble' A L Ranch Colored Cook" (1 text)

File: ThLo122

Old Tucker

DESCRIPTION: "All hands up and circle left; All the way round. Half way 'n back. Dance, Tucker, Dance. Swing your partner on a corner.... Dance, Old Tucker, While you're young, When you get old, you can't dance none... Gents choose a partner"; the one left is Tucker's

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains)

KEYWORDS: playparty courting

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains, p. 42, "Old Tucker" (1 text, with a note that any lively tune may be used)
Old Turkey Hen, The

DESCRIPTION: "Seven years a-boiling, Ho-ma-hala-way, Seven years a-baking, Ho-ma-hala-way," "They blowed the horn for dinner... The people could not eat her." "They carried her to the old field... The buzzards could not eat her...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: bird food humorous

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 203, "The Old Turkey Hen" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 203, "The Old Turkey Hen" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)

Roud #21018

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Old Gray Goose (I) (Lookit Yonder)"

NOTES [49 words]: Paul Stamler suggests that this is a version of "The Old Gray Goose (I) (Lookit Yonder)." There are similarities of both plot and lyrics; he may well be right. In fact, I think it more likely than not that he's right. But just enough doubts remain that I'm tentatively keeping them separate. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: Br3203

Old Tyler

DESCRIPTION: "Old (Tyler/Napper) was a good old dog, We thought he'd treed a coon, But when we come to find it out Old Tyler was barking at the moon...." The song tells of Tyler's eccentricities and how Allegheny finally shot the animal

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi)

KEYWORDS: dog death animal

FOUND IN: US(Ap,So)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 76, p. 203, "Old Napper" (1 short text, mostly floating verses)
Hudson-FolkTunesFromMississippi 37, "Old Napper" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-SingingFamilyOfTheCumberlands, pp. 69-70, "[Old Tyler]" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 395, "Old Rattler" (1 text, evidently this song from the verses, though it has the chorus from "Old Rattler")

Roud #5712

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Napper"

NOTES [86 words]: This is a bit of a conundrum. The Ritchie family's "Old Tyler" is a coherent song, but its first verse floats, and the other songs here are all mixed up. And, of course, the name of the dog varies, e.g. Hudson's text seems to call him "Napper."
Then there is the Brown collection, which has a pair of fragments about "Napper" or "Old Napper."
It's clearly not the same as Old Tyler; Napper is a human who fools around with the singer's wife. But the form hints that there is continuous variation between the two. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.0

File: JRSF069

Old Uncle Noah

DESCRIPTION: "Old Uncle Noah built him an ark / He built it out of hemlock bark... The animals went in two by two / The elephant and the kangaroo... Mrs. Noah she got drunk / She kicked old Noah out of his bunk..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1887 (College Songs)
Old Virginny Never Tire

DESCRIPTION: Floating verses: "There is a gal in our town... The hollow of her foot makes a hole in the ground." "As I was walking... I met a terrapin and a toad." Chorus: "Old folks, young folks, clear the kitchen (x2), Old Virginny never tire."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: animal floatingverses nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)
Old Witch (I)

DESCRIPTION: "Now all you children stay at home, And be good girls while I am gone; Let no one in... Especially you, my daughter Sue, Or else I'll beat you black and blue." A witch tries to lure the children away from the mother

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty children mother
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #154, "Old Witch" (1 text of "Old Witch" plus 1 text of "Chickee Chickee Ma Craney Crow (Hawks and Chickens)"); #190, "Old Witch" (no text, but apparently Newell considers it another version of this game)
cf. Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, pp. 297-300, "Old Witch" (1 text and description, with only a few words in common with Newell but several of the same concepts)

FILE: Newe154

Old Woman and Her Pig (Cumulative Folktale), The

DESCRIPTION: A woman is bringing a pig home where her servant-boy waits. The pig won't cross a bridge. She tries to get a dog to scare it; the dog won't bark. A stick won't beat the dog. At last she finds enough tricks to get the pig across the bridge and go home

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Roberts-SangBranchSettlers)
KEYWORDS: humorous cumulative animal
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #105, "The Old Woman And Her Pig" (1 text with a chorus)
NOTES [55 words]: Roberts-SangBranchSettlers notes that this tale is Thompson type #2030. Properly speaking, the Roberts/Couch version is not a ballad -- but it has a sung chorus, so I have included it. No attempt is made to include versions of the tale without a musical part. I find myself wondering if Rube Goldberg knew a version of this tale. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Robe105

Old Woman Drinking Her Tea, The

DESCRIPTION: "If you marry a wife she'll have her own way, For she has such a habit of drinking her tea." They spend all your money on tea and leave the housework to you. "Bang the tea kettle and crockery ware, Break all the tea tackle that you can come near"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: shrewishness nonballad wife
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 251-252, "The Old Woman Drinking Her Tea" (1 text)
(also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 408)
Roud #1310
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Tay" (theme: husband dominated by tea-drinking wife)
File: WT251

Old Woman Who Went to Market, The (The Old Woman and the Pedlar)

DESCRIPTION: "There was a little woman, as I've heard tell, Fol loll, diddle diddle dol, She went to market her eggs for to sell." She falls asleep along the road. A peddlar cuts off her skirts at the knee. Panic ensues when she awakens

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1784 (Wallis, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: humorous drink theft thief disguise
FOUND IN: US(MW,NE,So)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 258-259, "The Old Woman Who Went to Market" (1 text, 1 tune)
Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 144, "There Is a Little Woman" (1 text)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 108, "The Old Woman Who Went to Market" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 535, "There was a little woman" (1 text plus a text of "The Wee Wifikie")
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #257, p. 159, "(There was an old woman, as I've heard tell)"
ADDITIONAL: Katherine Briggs, _A Dictionary of British Folk-Tales in the English Language_, Part A: Folk Narratives, 1970 (I use the 1971 Routledge paperback that combines volumes A.1 and A.2), volume 2, pp. 539-540, "Lawkamercyme" (1 text)
Roud #3740

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 28(253), "The Little Woman and Her Eggs," J.Crome (Sheffield), c.1817

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Wee Wifikie" (theme, lyrics)

NOTES [173 words]: This has to be related somehow to "The Wee Wifikie." But the nature and direction of the dependence is unclear. If I had to guess, I'd say this came first, because the idea of a peddlar cutting off the woman's "skirt" (which obviously has sexual implications) might be softened by having him cut off her hair.

A letter from Charles Dodgson (Lewis Carroll) to his illustrator Arthur Burdett Frost shows that he knew this piece; in referring to one of Frost's sketches, he said it reminded him of "the condition of the 'little old woman' of the nursery-song, when the pedlar had 'cut short her petticoats round about'" (from a letter of January 30, 1879; Lewis Carroll & His Illustrators: Collaborations & Correspondence, 1865-1898, edited by Morton N. Cohen & Edward Wakeling, Cornell University Press, 2003, p. 56). Dodgson of course never used that particular poem for one of his parodies.
Briggs, p. 540, cites a great many parallels, especially Finnish, but without detailed references, I do not know how close they really are. - RBW

Old Yellow Slicker I Wore on the Range, The

DESCRIPTION: "It hangs in the bunkhouse right over the door, A relic of cow-punchin' trail days of yore... That old yellow slicker I wore on the range." The singer never went on the trail without it. It protected him from cold and rain. Now it brings back memories

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (Powder River Jack Lee songbook)

KEYWORDS: clothes cowboy travel

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):

ADDITIONAL: Powder River Jack and Kitty Lee's _Songs of the Range: Cowboy Wails of Cattle Trails_. Chart Music, 1937, p. 21, "That Old Yellow Slicker I Wore on the Range" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [20 words]: This reminds me of "My Dad's Dinner Pail," and the two match metrically, but I do not know if one inspired the other. - RBW

Old Yellow's Dead

DESCRIPTION: "Allen says, 'Ma, bring here a pry, I think Old Yellow's a-going to die.' Louis says, 'What'll I eat with bread, For they tell me that Old Yellow is dead.'" The crew sets out to skin the animal; Allen blisters his hands tanning it; they haul the hide away

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands)

KEYWORDS: animal death

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, pp. 102-103, "Old Yellow's Dead" (1 text)

Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands 24, pp. 126-127, "I Jing-a-ling" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST Fus102 (Partial)

Roud #4285

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Jawbone Song" (chorus form)

NOTES [54 words]: I have a strange feeling that this is somehow related to a historical event -- perhaps a political piece. But the references are too local for me even to hazard a guess as to what. It's one of those pieces that makes nonsense out of context.

If it is a political piece, it was probably built around "The Jawbone Song." - RBW

Old Zip Coon (I)

DESCRIPTION: "Ole Zip Coon he is a larned scholar (x3), Sings possum up a gum tree an coony in a holler." Chorus: "O Zip a duden duden duden zip a duden day (x4)." The remaining verses are quatrains about the people and animals of the south

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1834 (five different sheet music editions)

KEYWORDS: animal humorous nonballad

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

Jan 8, 1815 - Battle of New Orleans. Americans under Andrew Jackson defeat British troops under Pakenham (the event is referred to obliquely in stanza 6 of the sheet music)

FOUND IN: US(NE,SE,So)

REFERENCES (11 citations):

Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 258-260, "Zip Coon" (1 text, 1 tune)
Old Zip Coon (II)

DESCRIPTION: "White man in his cotton field, doin' pretty well; Nigger in his melon patch, givin' his melons -- Hallelujah, Old Zip Coon, keep singin'...." "Lord made Adam and Eve, An' they done pretty well, Soon as he turned his back on Eve, she gave them apples --"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: nonballad animal religious wordplay

FOUND IN: US(So)
Old-Time Kauri Bushmen, The

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas in the year of 1940, the day was calm and still When an old-time Kauri bushman wandered up a northern hill" to a kauri tree above his farm -- one of the last such trees. He plans to cut it down to build a home. He and the tree die at the same time

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (source: Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ)

KEYWORDS: death home

NOTES [495 words]: Kauri trees are large and offer good wood; they are also the source of the "gum" (resin) that made gum-digging such a major trade in New Zealand. Little surprise that most of the trees were cut down, leaving only a few mature stands in wildlife refuges.

According to Ell, pp. 129-130, "The bleeding gum of the kauri tree (Agathis australis) was the basis of a major New Zealand industry from the middle of the 19th century into the 1930s. The gum was gathered by probing 'gumlands,' places where ancient kauri trees had fallen, and digging for it. The lumps of gum were scraped and washed for export, finding a ready market in the manufacture of varnishes, some paints and linoleum. Gumdiggers worked the bleak gumlands of the north Auckland region and also entered the forests, where some even bled the trees for quick reward. The practice of 'bleeding' was made illegal in 1905 as good trees became infected and began to die. The great days of the industry were the 1890s to 1910, but many men and women remained on the fields through the Depression of the 1930s, and some were still working there in the 1950s to 60s.... Synthetic substitutes killed the demand.... Find further detail in Bruce W. Hayward's pictorial history of the gum industry, Kauri Gum and the Gumdiggers (The Bush Press, Auckland, 2003).

NewZealandEncyclopedia, pp. 292-293, reports, "KAURI (Agathis australis) is, on maturity, one of the largest trees found anywhere in the world, and one of the most commercially attractive, with a long straight, branchless trunk producing durable straight-grained timer, and a resin once greatly prized for the manufacture of high quality paints, varnishes and polishes. As a result, it was the basis of the first export trade from NZ and was cut and milled with a voracity hard to believe considering the technology of 19th-century NZ." In addition to its straight grain, it has few knots, so the Maoris prized it for canoes and the British, from the earliest times, used it for ships' spars. It also used to be used for homebuilding, but with the population so badly reduced, this is no longer permitted.

The tree is a conifer with relatives found in other Pacific regions; the New Zealand species is found mostly in the northern regions of the North Island. The largest one ever found is said to have had "a girth of 23.43 m[eters] and source 21.8 m[eters] to the first branch." The trees can apparently grow to be at least two thousand years old.

In 1899, the busiest year for gum production, more than 11,000 tons were exported. With prices approaching £100 per ton, it was a major source of export income. There were hundreds involved in the industry, many of them from Dalmatia.

Kauri trees depleted the soil, so at least they weren't cut to create farmland. But, where they had been cleared, the gum diggers came to recover the resin the trees had left behind. The Maori used raw gum as fuel, gum ash for tattoos, and even ate it on occasion. - RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 5.2
Old-Time Lumberjacks

DESCRIPTION: "We sit around the camp at night when the daily work is o'er And listen to the lumberjacks who logged in days of yore." The old lumberjacks claim that everything was bigger in the old days. The singer doubts it, but expects to tell his own tales in time

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1940 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: nonballad logger talltale
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 86, "Old-Time Lumberjacks" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: David C. Peterson, "Wisconsin Folksongs," chapter in _Badger History: Wisconsin Folklore_, State Historical Society of Wisconsin (Volume XXV, Number 2, November 1973), pp. 59-60, "Old-Time Lumberjacks" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Good Old Days of Adam and Eve" (theme) and references there

Old-Time Rounders

DESCRIPTION: Verses end "all of you old time rounders You'd better lie down." Captain wakes us at four "can't see nothin' but stars and moon." Same old food. "If I'd known my captain was mean" I would have stayed in Florida; I'm going back "won't have to plow no mule"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1980 (USFlorida01)
KEYWORDS: food work hardtimes nonballad animal
FOUND IN: US(SE)
Roud #6364
RECORDINGS:
Emmett Murray, "Old-Time Rounders" (on USFlorida01)

File: Pet086

Old-Time Sealing Fleet, The

DESCRIPTION: "Newfoundland has many stories that can make a heart beat fast." The singer recalls how the sealing fleet excited him as a boy. He tells how seeing seals inspired them, and of past disasters. He says that Newfoundlanders can still dream of heroic deeds

AUTHOR: Arthur R. Scammell (1913-1995)
EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (Scammell, Songs of a Newfoundlander, according to Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff)
KEYWORDS: hunting ship disaster
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, pp. 140-141, "The Old-Time Sealing Fleet" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #V44748
NOTES [84 words]: For background on Arthur R. Scammell, see the notes on "The Squid-Jiggin' Ground."

Even at the time Scammell wrote this piece, it was becoming anachronistic; the sealing fleet was all but gone by the 1940s (see, e.g., the notes to "Last of the Wooden Walls" and "The Ice-Floes"). The mention of "iron ships... and iron men" is even more anachronistic; steel ships had been all the rage around 1910, but they all but disappeared during World War I, sold off (mostly to Russia) for use as icebreakers. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: RySm140
Olden Days
DESCRIPTION: Kate is married in "1602." There's a dance followed by drink, partying, and a friendly fight.
AUTHOR: Chris Cobb
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: wedding fight dancing drink music party humorous
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Peacock, pp. 79-80, "Olden Days" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Roger deV. Renwick, _Recentering Anglo/American Folksong: Sea Crabs and Wicked Youths_, University Press of Mississippi, 2001, p. 66, "Olden Days" (1 text)
Roud #9951
NOTES [39 words]: Peacock writes "Chris Cobb is, of course, kidding about the date '1602.' The wedding party actually took place in Barred Islands, and Cris composed this song to commemorate the event and to entertain the people who had been there." - BS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Pea079

Olden Memories
DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls "thrilling stories of the past." "Round the cairns where great ones lie, Their bold requiem, 'No Surrender' lives while soulless slanderers die" Past heroic deeds are like seedlets that may flower in the present.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark)
KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad patriotic
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark 1, "Olden Memories" (1 text)
NOTES [59 words]: Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark: "As the original air was unknown this song has been set to the Hornpipe, 'The Humours of Enniskean.'" Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark does not cite sources. It may not have been sung.
For the reference to "No Surrender," see "No Surrender (!)." - BS
(See also "The Siege of Derry," about the event which inspired the slogan. - RBW)
File: OrLa001

Ole from Norway
DESCRIPTION: Dialect song in which Ole describes coming to the north woods and gives a few details of how he works driving logs down the river. "Ay yus come down from Minnesota/Ay been in this part 'bout three year" but protests that Ole is not his name.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy)
KEYWORDS: lumbering work humorous
FOUND IN: US(MW,Ro)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy 36, "Ole from Norway" (1 text)
Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra 36, "Ole from Norway" (1 text)
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 8, "Ole from Norway" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 62, "Ole from Norway" (1 text)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 462, "Ole from Norway" (1 text)
ST Be008 (Partial)
Roud #8867
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Swede from North Dakota" (theme)
NOTES [72 words]: Without a tune it's impossible to be sure, but the verses suggest that this is a variant of "The Swede from North Dakota" with an added chorus. - PJS
I thought the same thing upon seeing it, but the version in Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy doesn't quite fit the tune of "The Swede." It may also be older; Rickaby's informant claimed to have learned it c. 1895. If anything, I suspect the dependence goes the other way. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
File: Be008

Ole Granny Rattletrap
DESCRIPTION: "Ole Granny Rattletrap, Settin' on a log, Finger on the trigger, And eye on a hawg."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal)
KEYWORDS: hunting animal
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, John Foster West, "Folklore of a Mountain Childhood," Vol. XVI, No. 3 (Nov 1968), p. 166, "(Ole Granny Rattletrap)" (1 text); article reprinted (with text reset) in Vol. LII, No. 3 (Nov 1968), p. 8
File: NCG1630G

Ole Massa's Going Away
DESCRIPTION: "Ole Massa's goin' away, boys, He's goin' to see his brother. We'll wait till he gets out of sight, Then we'll throw down the hoe and shovel."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: work slave brother
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 215, "Ole Massa's Going Away" (1 fragment)
Roud #21033
NOTES [35 words]: Despite the fact that this seems to be spoken by slaves, I suspect this is a minstrel tune. Most slaves on a plantation large enough to have multiple field workers would be bossed by overseers, not the master. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: Br215

Ole Mister Rabbit (I'll Get You Rabbit)
DESCRIPTION: "Ole Mister Rabbit, You're in a mighty habit, Gwine in mah garden, Cuttin' down mah cabbage. Um-hum -- um-hum." "Ole Mister Rabbit, Your hair look brown, You'se gwine so fas', You'se hittin' de groun'." The singer tries to get back at the rabbit
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: animal food nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 174-175, "Ole Mister Rabbit" (2 short texts, 1 tune)
ST ScaNF174 (Full)
Roud #10058
NOTES [58 words]: Roud links together several rabbit songs under one number: "Mister Rabbit," "Ole Mister Rabbit (I'll Get You Rabbit)," even "Rabbit Hash." All are about rabbits raiding gardens (something they certainly do) and the attempts to punish them for it (rarely successful, even with modern technology). But the forms are quite distinct, so I split them. - RBW
File: ScaNF174
Ole Tommy Finlayson

DESCRIPTION: "Ole Tommy Finlayson is a bit of rusty tin, So stick him in the rubbish bin, And there'll be no more of him."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 131, "(Ole Tommy Finlayson)" (1 text)
File: SuSm131B

Oleanna

DESCRIPTION: The singer sings the praises of "Ole, Oleanna," where "land is free," the crops grow themselves, the livestock cooks itself, and "the poorest wretch... becomes a king in a year or so."

AUTHOR: Norwegian Words: Ditmar Meidell (English words by Pete Seeger and others)

EARLIEST DATE: 1853 (Krydseren, March 5 issue)

KEYWORDS: emigration farming money talltale nonballad

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (7 citations):
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 42, "Oleanna" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 47, "Oleanna" (1 text)
Foner-AmericanLaborSongsOfTheNineteenthCentury, p. 286, "(Oleana)" (1 fragment, a translation not derived from Seeger's)
DT, OLEOLEAN *

ADDITIONAL: Theodore Blegen and Martin B. Ruud, editors & Translators, _Norwegian Emigrant Songs and Ballads_, University of Minnesota press, 1936/Arno Press, 1979, pp. 187-197, "Öleana" (1 Norwegian text with literal English translation, 1 tune)
Rochelle Wright and Robert L. Wright, _Danish Emigrant Ballads and Songs_, Southern Illinois University Press, 1983, #105, pp. 222-223, 274-275, "I Oleana Der Er Det Godt at Vaere" (1 Danish text with literal English translation, 1 tune)
Pete Seeger, _Where Have All the Flowers Gone: A Musical Autobiography_, A SIng Out Publication, 1993, 1997, pp. 119-120, "Oleana" (1 text, 1 tune, the Seeger translation, plus some of the Norwegian words)

RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "Oleanna" (on PeteSeeger10) (on PeteSeeger12)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Darling Neddeen" (absurdist sorts of claims for the town)

NOTES [261 words]: Ole Bull was a Norwegian fiddler who tried to found a colony in Pennsylvania. Despite his extravagant hopes for the settlement (satirized in this song), it was too poor and too far from transportation arteries, and eventually failed.

Bull, incidentally, was quite a character, playing both violin for classical pieces and hardanger fiddle for folk dances. He was a fervent Norwegian patriot, and Oleana (the usual spelling) was not his only attempt to help other Norwegians find a better life, though it was the most spectacular.

Bull inspired several books; the most recent, as far as I know, is Einar Haugen and Camilla Cai, Ole Bull: Norway's Romantic Musician and Cosmopolitan Patriot, University of Wisconsin Press, 1993. It devoted 22 pages to the short life of the Oleana colony, which theoretically was active from 1852 to 1857 but which really existed only for part of 1853.

It perhaps tells you something that Bull is not listed in (no author listed), _Pennsylvania Biographical Dictionary: People of All Times and All Places Who Have Been Important to the History and Life of the State_, American Historical Publications, Inc., 1989.

The original tune to this was apparently called "Rio Janeiro" (so Wright/Wright), but there are several tunes -- e.g. the one you've probably heard from Pete Seeger or his imitators is not the same as the one in Blegen, though they started from the same roots. The Danish tune in Wright/Wright diverges even more, to my ears. - RBW

The town now calls itself "Oleona," and contains a museum celebrating the colony. - PJS

Last updated in version 5.1
Oliver Cromwell Lost His Shoe

DESCRIPTION: "Oliver Cromwell lost his shoe In the battle of Waterloo."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty clothes
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 99, "(Oliver Cromwell lost his shoe)" (1 text)
Roud #20511
NOTES [34 words]: This of course is historically inaccurate; Oliver Cromwell died in 1658, and the Battle of Waterloo was in 1815. I wonder if there wasn't an earlier version in which it was Napoleon who lost his shoe. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4

Oliver's Advice (Barossa)

DESCRIPTION: As storm, night, and the enemy approach, the soldiers are advised, "Put your trust in God, my boys, and keep your powder dry." The soldiers are reminded of all God did for the Israelites. They should trust in God also AUTHOR: Words: William Blacker ?
EARLIEST DATE: 1834 (Duffy)
KEYWORDS: soldier religious nonballad Spain
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
March 5, 1811 - Battle of Barrosa
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H98a, p. 64, "Barossa/Oliver's Advice" (1 text, 1 tune)
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 72B, "Oliver's Advice" (1 text, 1 tune)
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 134, "Oliver's Advice" (1 text, 1 tune)
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark 20, "Oliver's Advice" (1 text, 1 tune)
Healy-MercierBookOfOldIrishStreetBalladsVol2, pp.35-38, "Oliver's Advice" (1 text; tune on p. 20)
ADDITIONAL: Charles Gavan Duffy, editor, The Ballad Poetry of Ireland (1845), pp. 83-86, "Oliver's Advice"
Roud #2182
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of Barossa" (subject)
cf. "Barrosa Plains" (subject)
cf. "The Maid of Castle Creagh" (tune, according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
NOTES [186 words]: The "battle" of Barrosa was more of a skirmish; the forces involved were small, though the British won a clear victory. Most short histories of the Napoleonic Wars don't seem even to mention it. The 87th Royal Fusiliers (the regiment allegedly described in the song, though there isn't a single specific reference in the piece) was raised in 1793; its separate history ended when it was combined with the 89th foot in 1881 to form the Royal Irish Fusiliers. Barrosa was its second battle honor, and a tune called "Barossa" remains one of the Royal Irish Fusiliers' official quick marches. The song is called "Oliver's Advice" because Oliver Cromwell is reported to have said, "Put your trust in God, but mind to keep your powder dry."
The song contains assorted Biblical references to God going before the Israelites as a "pillar of cloud... by day... and a pillar of fire... by night"; see, e.g., Exodus 13:41. For parting the Red Sea, see Exodus 14:21-29. - RBW
Nobody seems to attribute this to anyone except Colonel Blacker (1777-1855). Duffy and, probably as a result, Sparling date this "Orange Ballad" 1834. - BS
Omagh Town and the Bards of Clanabogan

DESCRIPTION: The singer "caroused and gambled" many places but his "heart was achin' for Omagh Town!" Even wined and dined in London and New York City he longs for Omagh Town. "When life is over ... I'll never grumble If Heaven's as charmin' as Omagh Town!"

AUTHOR: Michael Hurl (source: Tunney-WhereSongsDoThunder)

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (OBoyle-TheIrishSongTradition)

KEYWORDS: homesickness rambling drink nonballad rake

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Tunney-WhereSongsDoThunder, pp. 66-68, "Omagh Town and the Bards of Clanabogan" (1 text)
OBoyle-TheIrishSongTradition, p. 26, "Sweet Omagh Town" (1 fragment)

RECORDINGS:
Robert Cinnamond, "Sweet Omagh Town" (on IRRCinnamond03)
Roisin White, "Omagh Town" (on IRRWhite01)

NOTES [5 words]: Omagh is in County Tyrone. - BS

On a Cold December Night

DESCRIPTION: "It was on a cold December night, 'Twas the eve were Christmas morn," a wife and child wait in a hut with broken windows for their drunkard husband. After just ten years of marriage, their home is broken. The freezing boy declares he feels warmer and dies

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Stout-FolkloreFromIowa)

KEYWORDS: mother father children death drink hardtimes

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 102, pp. 126-127, "On a Cold December Night" (1 text)

Roud #4876

On a Cold Frosty Morning

DESCRIPTION: "On a cold frosty morning a nigger feels good; He shouldered up his axe and went off to the wood." He all but freezes in the cold. (Various other observations about his life. The song may complain about white men's privilege)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: nonballad Black(s)

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Randolph 283, "On a Cold Frosty Morning" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 474, "Cold Frosty Morning" (1 fragment)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 474, "Cold Frosty Morning" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #89, "Cold Frosty Morning" (1 text, 1 tune)
Arnold-FolkSongsOfAlabama, p. 116, "Work Song"(1 short text,1 tune)

Roud #3439

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Jesse" (lyrics)

File: R283

On a Cold Winter's Eve

DESCRIPTION: "On a cold winter's eve when the snow was fast falling, In a small humble cottage a poor mother lay, Although wracked with pain, she lay there well-contented, Wi' th Christ as her friend...." She bids farewell and says her family will meet again

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Henry)
KEYWORDS: death religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, p. 33, "On a Cold Wi'nter's Eve" (1 text)
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 203, "On a Cold Winter's Eve" (1 text, probably from the same source as Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads's)
Roud #12637
ALTERNATE TITLES:
One Cold Winter's Eve
File: Camb033

On a Dark and Doleful Night

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas on a dark and doleful night, When power of hell and earth arose... And friends betrayed him to his foes." "Before the mournful scheme began, He took the bread...." "This is my body broke[n] for sin." '[He] took the cup....'

AUTHOR: Isaac Watts?
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Brown); fragment in the Missouri Harmony (1840)
KEYWORDS: religious Jesus Bible food drink
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 626, "On a Dark and Doleful Night" (1 text)
Roud #11927
NOTES [186 words]: The story of the Last Supper is told in all four gospels, but the institution of the Eucharist is described only in Matthew, Mark, and Luke (with a partial parallel in 1Corinthians 11:23ff.) with significant verbal variations, often with variations from what we read here. In Matthew 26:26f., Jesus's words over the bread were simply, "Take, eat, this is my body." Of the cup, the King James version says, "Drink ye all of it; For this is my blood of the new testament" (i.e. "covenant," as the song renders is, but the best manuscripts omit "new") "which is shed for many, for the remission of sins."
Mark 14:22f. is closely parallel to Mark: "This is my body... This is my blood of the covenant [again, the KJV reads "new testament," based on late manuscripts] which is shed for many." In Luke 22:19f, we find the phrasing "This is my body which is given for you." (Note that, even here, it's not given "for sin.") The cup is "the new covenant in my blood."
In the Missouri Harmony, the first verse of this appears with the tune "Bourbon."
For more on Isaac Watts, see the notes to "O God, Our Help in Ages Past." - RBW
Last updated in version 2.5
File: Br3626

On a Tropical Isle

DESCRIPTION: "In this wonderful isle Everyone is wearing a smile Come on enjoy yourself. Don't stay up there in the shelf ... native guitars ... take a buggy ride and watch the moon ... with your lover by your side"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Blind Blake Higgs: see WIHIGGS01)
KEYWORDS: music nonballad lover travel
FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)
RECORDINGS:
Blind Blake Higgs, "On a Tropical Isle" (on WIHIGGS01)
NOTES [207 words]: The current description is based on Higgs: probably intended primarily for tourists.
"The goombay drum" is a feature of the Jamaican Maroon culture.
Pages references below are to Olive Lewin, Rock It Come Over (Kingston: University of the West Indies Press, 2000).
Very briefly, the Jamaican Maroons originated as Spanish slaves who escaped when the British took Jamaica in 1655. Over the next two centuries there were guerrilla wars and accommodations between the Maroons and British that left the Maroons with independent enclaves within Jamaica. The Maroons in those enclaves were isolated, culturally, from other Jamaicans and remain so today, to an ever-shrinking degree. There was a distinct Maroon music and dance culture. [pp. 152-156]

"The most important Maroon drums are the prenting and the goombeh.... The drums were vital in relaying messages and inducing trances during which special persons went into a state of Myal and warned of impending [British] attacks.... Both drums are used on religious and secular occasions.... The goombeh is the prime symbol and revered instrument of Accompong Maroons.... Goombeh rhythms are quick and sharp, in keeping with the darting, angular dances that they accompany." [pp. 159-160] - BS

On Board of a Man-of-War (Young Susan)

DESCRIPTION: The singer overhears "a maid complain for the losing of her dear," gone to sea aboard a man-of-war. She dresses as a sailor to follow him. After seven years they come home and live happily ever after
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: sailor separation love cross-dressing disguise
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H556, p. 326, "On Board of a Man-of-War" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ashton-RealSailorSongs, #60, "Susan's Adventures in a Man of War" (1 text)
Roud #1533
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The British Man-of-War" (theme, lyrics)
NOTES [54 words]: This is closely related to the songs of the "British Man-of-War" family, and almost certainly derives from the same sources. But the two songs don't share many actual words, and this is one of several versions in which the girl dresses herself as a sailor to follow her love. I decided this was reason enough to split them. - RBW

On Board of a Ninety-eight

DESCRIPTION: The singer was a rake at sixteen when his parents, afraid he would waste all their money, ship him on a man-of-war. When battle begins, he wishes he could run away but at Trafalgar he fights well. Now "I'm too old to sail, for I'm almost ninety-eight"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1839 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(2843))
KEYWORDS: age battle navy war father mother rake sailor
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1805 - Battle of Trafalgar ends Napoleon's hopes of invading Britain
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, pp. 1012-1013, "On Board of the Ninety-eight" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1461
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2843), "On Board of a Ninety-Eight," J. Catnach (London), 1813-1838; also Johnson Ballads 2728[a few words illegible], Firth c.12(398), "On Board of a Ninety-Eight"
NOTES [118 words]: "Ninety-eight" refers to the number of guns carried by the ship. For example, at Trafalgar, Nelson's flagship Victory, with 100 guns, led but with two ninety-eight gun ships, Temeraire and Neptune, in close support. Source: Horatio Nelson by Tom Pocock, quoted on The Nelson Society site. - BS
(We should note, incidentally, that the number of guns on a ship was somewhat nominal, with light
On Board of the Victory

DESCRIPTION: "I am a young girl whose fortune is great." Her father has her lover, "below my degree," impressed. After a fight with the press-gang he is shipped aboard the Victory. She dreams of being with him on board and prays for his return.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1839 (broadside, Bodleian Firth c.13(280))

KEYWORDS: courting war ship father mother sailor pressgang grief loneliness love navy separation sea lover nobility

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Oct 21, 1805 - Battle of Trafalgar, the greatest naval engagement of the Napoleonic Wars. H.M.S. Victory is Nelson's flagship in that battle.

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar,Newf) US(MW)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Peacock, pp. 484-485, "On Board of The Victory" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 41, "Victory" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, p. 42, "On Board of the Victory" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 95-96, "On Board the Victory" (1 text)
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 81, "A New Song Called the Victory" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #2278

RECORDINGS:
Grace Clergy, "On Board of the Victory" (on MRHCleighton)
Charlotte Decker, "On Board of The Victory" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth c.13(280), "On Board the Victory," J. Catnach (London), 1813-1838; also Harding B 11(898), Firth c.12(220), Harding B 11(1911), Harding B 11(2901), Harding B 26(474), "On Board the Victory"!!; Harding B 25(1420), Harding B 11(2846), Firth c.12(222), "On Board of the Victory"; Harding B 20(178), "The Victory"

NOTES [109 words]: Ironically, Mr. Clergy's family is of French descent. - PJS

HMS Victory was launched in 1765, commissioned in 1778, and served in the wars with France associated with the American Revolution. She served in the Mediterranean during the early phases of the French revolution. She was withdrawn from sea service in 1812, and dry-docked in 1922. It will be evident that many young men served on her at battles other than Trafalgar -- but, as most Napoleonic songs mention Waterloo, so most naval songs of the era seem to assume a setting at Trafalgar. - RBW

[In] broadside Harding B 20(178), [the girl's] sweetheart is killed with Nelson at Trafalgar. - BS

Last updated in version 4.4

File: Pea484

On Board the Bugaboo

DESCRIPTION: Singer joins the Bugaboo at the James's Street canal. They "plow the raging surf ... to get a full load of turf." In a storm the captain, smoking in bed, starts a fire. The helmsman, asleep, lets the fire burn. The ship sinks with 1000 sods and 60000 men

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)

KEYWORDS: canal commerce ship fire storm wreck humorous talltale sailor

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 17A, "On Board the Bugaboo" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9775

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The E-ri-e" (theme) and references there

File: OLcM017A
On Board the Magalena
DESCRIPTION: Sam or Tom have "gone away On board da Magalena." The singer "wish ah was ah sailor On board de Magalena." "Ah wish ah was a cleaner On board de Magalena Would a-clean up every corner ... Would sail to every harbour"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Elder-FolksongsFromTobago)
KEYWORDS: fishing sea ship nonballad shanty
FOUND IN: West Indies(Tobago)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Elder-FolksongsFromTobago 37, "On Board the Magalena" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sam Gone Away" (lyrics)
NOTES [43 words]: Is the the same as "Sam Gone Away"? ("I wish I was a sailor on board the man-of-war, Sam gone away on board the man-of-war, Pretty work, brave boys, pretty work I say, Sam gone away on board the man-of-war")? Without more traditional texts, I can't tell. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.0
File: ElTo037

On Braes o' Killiecrankie (III)
DESCRIPTION: "For on a thistle I sat doun, I nearly jumpit tae the moon (x2), For the lass that stole my hankie." Jean MacNeil is fair, fat, wears her hair open, has big feet and a flat face. When she cursed her bloomers fell and she stuck her arse out of the window.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1954 (recording, Jeannie Robertson)
KEYWORDS: disability love sex curse hair bawdy nonballad derivative
FOUND IN: Britain (Scotland (Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice #48, pp. 201-202, "The Braes o' Killiecrankie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3363
File: RPG048

On Buena Vista's Battlefield
DESCRIPTION: "On Buena Vista's battlefield A dying soldier lay, His thoughts was on his mountain home Some thousand miles away." The wounded soldier bids farewell to (family and) sweetheart and prepares for the end
AUTHOR: Words: Colonel Henry Petriken/Music: Albert G. Emerick EARLIEST DATE: 1848 (Emrick's Songs for the People)
KEYWORDS: death war battle
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Feb 22-23, 1847 - Battle of Buena Vista. 5000 troops under Zachary Taylor defeat 15,000 Mexicans under Santa Anna
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 340-341, "Buena Vista" (1 text, fragmentary)
Randolph 225, "The Battle of Vicksburg" (the second, fragmentary, text is "On Buena Vista's Battlefield")
Roud #2829
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of Vicksburg" (tune & meter, theme)
cf. "Buena Vista (I)" (subject)
File: R225A
On Christmas Day It Happened So

DESCRIPTION: A farmer goes out to plow on Christmas day. Jesus meets him there and asks him what he is doing. The farmer nervously says that he needs to work. Obviously this is not acceptable; the farmer is swallowed up by the ground and his family dies

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1911 (Gillington, Songs of the Open Road)
KEYWORDS: religious work Jesus curse
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South,West))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #41, "On Christmas Day" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hamer-GamersGay, pp. 54-55, "On Christmas Day" (1 text, 1 tune)
Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 6, "In Dessexshire As It Befel" (1 text)
ST PBB006 (Partial)
Roud #1078
NOTES [217 words]: Yet another example of fine Christian charity. This one, fortunately, is apocryphal, with almost no parallel in scripture. There is one instance of the earth swallowing up people (Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, Numbers 16:28-32). The rest has no parallel at all, except a curious passage in the early but periphrastic Gospel manuscript Codex Bezae (D/05). After Luke 6:4 it adds, "That same day, seeing someone working on the Sabbath, [Jesus] said to him, 'Fellow, if you know what you are doing, you are blessed, but if you don't know, you are cursed and a transgressor of the law.'"
I wonder if this didn't somehow arise out of the Puritan movement. During the commonwealth era in England, it was declared that Christmas was a work day, and those NOT working on that day would be punished. This produced a great deal of resentment -- but the policy long continued; Dickens wrote "A Christmas Carol" partly in response to this.
Not all such stories are associated with Jesus himself. In Ireland, there is a field associated with the Irish St. Maeve. A ploughman once vowed he would plow the field despite its association with the saint. The ground is said to have swallowed horse, plough, and man, burying them in a depression still visible today. I'd love to know what the horse did to deserve that. - RBW

On Christmas Night All Christians Sing (Sussex Carol)

DESCRIPTION: "On Christmas night all Christians sing To hear what news the angles bring (x2), News of great joy and of great mirth, News of our sweet redeemer's birth. "Then why should men on earth be so sad?" "Then out of darkness we see light."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 108, "On Christmas Night" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dearmer/VaughnWilliams/Shaw-OxfordBookOfCarols 24, "Sussex Carol" (1 text, 2 tunes)
Roud #597
File: KaCr108

On Eli's Sunny Hill

DESCRIPTION: "On Eli's Sunny Hill I stand, And cast a wicked eye, Down toward Bill McFarland's - don't let that hat pass by; Drop in a nickel, brother Burnett, 'Tis the river of Delight"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Stout-FolkloreFromIowa)
KEYWORDS: drink money
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 100, p. 125, "On Eli's Sunny Hill" (1 fragment)
Roud #4874
NOTES [30 words]: Stout-FolkloreFromIowa explains this as a fragment from a time when temperance was an issue in Iowa. This seems not unlikely, but it's hard to prove from his one verse fragment. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Stou100

On Friday Last at Half Past Two

DESCRIPTION: "On Friday last at half past two, two love stricken chaps... met for satisfaction raps; One of them Gus Healey was, the other Dooley Din... Miss 'Blank' green heart to win. The police intercede, and Din "got well oild off behind John Casey's barn"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2001 (Galgay/McCarthy)
KEYWORDS: love fight drink police
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sep 25, 1873 - Alleged date of the "duel" between Dennis Dooley and Gus Healey over a young woman (who reportedly rejected both)
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Frank Galgay & Michael McCarthy, _Olde St. John's: Stories from a Seaport City_, Flanker Press, 2001, p. 63, "(No title)" (1 text)
NOTES [35 words]: The rest of this poem is every bit as forced as the excerpts quoted in the description; it certainly didn't deserve to be preserved. But Galgay/McCarthy hint that it's traditional, so I've included it here. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.4
File: ADDOFLH2

On Gibraltar's Slopes

DESCRIPTION: "On Gibraltar's slopes so firm and steep, A lovely maid lay down to sleep, And as she lay in sweet repose, A gust of wind blew up her clothes" -- but a sailor who chances by, "to his despair, He was the red flag flying there."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
KEYWORDS: clothes bawdy derivative
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, pp. 67-68, "On Gibraltar's Slopes" (1 text, tune referenced)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Red Flag" (tune)
NOTES [28 words]: Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy lists the tune of this as "The Red Flag." But it feels to me as if a likely tune was "O Tannenbaum" or one of its many derivatives. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1
File: Tawn050

On Gravelly Bay

DESCRIPTION: "I was a handsome nice young man... And all day long I'd sport and play... Till I was sent to Gravelly Bay To work upon a dredge." He meets a girl. Her mother dislikes him. He concludes that the girl flirts to get gifts from many men

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1952 (collected from E. J. Buzzard by Walton)
KEYWORDS: sailor love courting rejection gift mother
FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp 109-110, "On Gravelly Bay" (1 text)
Roud #19845
File: WGM109
On Ilkla Moor Bah T'at

DESCRIPTION: On the dangers of visiting the moor without a hat: One singer tells the other he has been (courting) on the moor without a hat. He is told he'll die of cold. They will bury him, and worms will eat him; ducks will eat them, people eat ducks, and so it goes

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917
KEYWORDS: clothes courting disease death
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North),Wales) Canada
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 303, "On Ilkla Moor Bah T'at" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hopkns, p. 43, "On Ilkla Moor" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 26, "Ilkley Moor Baht 'At" (1 text)
DT, ILKLAMOR
Roud #2143
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks" (tune "Cranbook")
NOTES [121 words]: Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland reports, "The author of this local dialect song is supposed to have been a Thomas Clark who wrote it in 1805 to the hymn tune Cranbrook. Who he was or how the song came to be are not known. Yorkshire men all the world over regard the song with ritualistic respect."
On the other hand, I've seen Clark listed as the author of the tune "Cranbrook" (so, e.g., Arnold Kellett, The Yorkshire Dictionary of Dialect, Tradition, and Folklore, revised edition, Smith Settle, 2002, p. 128), leaving the lyrics of this song anonymous. Kellett says the lyrics were a gag by un-named choir members, perhaps from Halifax, about a member of their party. So I'm listing the author as unknown. - RBW

On Johnny Mitchell's Train

DESCRIPTION: "I'm an honest union laboring man, And I'll have you understand.... It was Baer and Morgan done it." Having nothing else to do, the singer will ride on "Johnny Mitchell's train." He mentions his troubles with (J. P.) Morgan and Schwab. He bids farewell

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: mining strike labor-movement railroading travel money
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1899 - John Mitchell becomes President of the United Mine Workers of America. He devoted much of his energy to soothing tensions between Slavs and longer-settled workers so that the UMW could effectively strike against the mine owners
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 396-398, "On Johnny Mitchell's Train" (1 text, 1 tune)
Foner-AmericanLaborSongsOfTheNineteenthCentury, p. 211, "On Johnny Mitchel's Train" (1 text)
Roud #7725
File: KPL396

On Leome Is in this World Ilist

DESCRIPTION: "On leome is in this world iist, Therof is muchel pris; Arisen is God and that is rist, From deth to lif." Christ suffered and rose for our redemption. Mary watched the crucifixion. We should be thankful.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1300 (ms. Cambridge Trinity College B 14.39, also sometimes called ms. Trinity Cambridge 323)
KEYWORDS: religious Jesus death MiddleEnglish
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #293
ADDITIONAL: Carleton Fairchild Brown, _English Lyrics of the XIIIth Century_, Clarendon University Press, 1932, pp. 34-37, "(On leome is in is world ilist)" (1 text)
MANUSCRIPT: {MSCambridgeTrinity323}, Cambridge University, Trinity College MS. 323, folio 32

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Judas" [Child 23] (subject: The Earliest English Ballad) and references there

NOTES [410 words]: Despite giving the text of this as "On leome is in is world ilist," the DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse files this under the title "An leam is in the world I-lit." The text actually begins
On leome is in is world ilist er of is muchel pris
A risen is god & at is rist
From de e to lif....
The piece is very old; it is in the same thirteenth/fourteenth century manuscript as "Judas" [Child 23]; see that piece for information about the manuscript source.

I do not think there is any particular reason to include this poem in the Index. It is only here because of a probable error. On the basis of the manuscript dating, Albert B. Friedman, _The Ballad Revival_, University of Chicago Press, 1961, p. 15, classes either this or "Wolle Ye Iheren of Twelte Day" among ballads older than 1500 (both of them are from the "Judas" manuscript). Friedman probably meant to cite "Wolle Ye Iheren," but his page numbers are wrong, making it just possible that this is the piece he intended.

And the language, to me, seems much more difficult than "Judas." Possibly this is just the dialect (not having an annotated text, I don't know what has been deduced about it). But it might be that it is actually older than "Judas." In which case it becomes yet another candidate for the "Oldest English Ballad."

So why hasn't it gotten more attention? Part of the reason is probably the obscurity of the manuscript; it should be recalled that Trinity College MS. B 14.39 was lost for some decades, so scholars, including Child, had to rely on inaccurate transcripts).

And it doesn't look like a ballad; it's in ten-line stanzas (twelve in all) with rhyme scheme ababcddcd. (Maybe Friedman would argue that it is a proto-ballad; on p. 37, he talks about how the rigid French form the "ballade" became the English ballad, and mentions an intermediate "pseudo-ballae" form with rhyme scheme ababcbbbc, which looks a bit like the Latin version.) Brown, p. 182, says "The special form of the 10-line stanza employed in this piece is not frequent." At least the first lines of those stanzas are in ballad meter, four stresses then three then four then three, although the later lines don't fit as well. It could be played as a ballad. And it is narrative, although the religious elements pretty well overwhelm the plot.

Am I convinced? No. I think it's just another religious poem. But I'm filing it here because we try to cover every candidate for "The Earliest English Ballad." - RBW

Bibliography

- Brown: Carleton Brown, editor, _English Lyrics of the XIIIth Century_, Oxford University Press, 1932 (I use the 1962 reprint)
- Friedman: Albert B. Friedman, _The Ballad Revival_, University of Chicago Press, 1961

Last updated in version 5.3
File: BrRo293

On Longside Road (Auld Lang Syne)

DESCRIPTION: "On Longside Road I've often trod... 'Twas there I spied another maid In the arms of my dear." The singer hisses her anger: "You think I that I could love you still?" She is resolved "to shun your company." But she would take old lovers into her home

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: love betrayal
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #97, p. 2, "On Longside Road"; #172, pp. 1-2, "Auld Lang Syne" (2 texts)
Greig/Duncan6 1143, "Auld Lang Syne" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
On Meesh-e-gan

DESCRIPTION: French-Canadian dialect song. Singer reports work in the Michigan lumber camps, but it's exhausting, the pay is irregular, there are diseases and snakes. Chorus: "Come all you great beeg Canada man/Who want fin' work on Meesh-e-gan...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)

LONG DESCRIPTION: French-Canadian dialect song. Singer tells fellow Frenchmen there's work in the Michigan lumber camps, but it includes the exhausting job of "sacking", the pay is irregular, there are diseases and snakes. Chorus: "Come all you great beeg Canada man/Who want fin' work on Meesh-e-gan/Dere's beeg log drive all troo our lan';/You sure fin' work on Meesh-e-gan."

KEYWORDS: lumbering work logger hardtimes

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 72, "On Meesh-e-gan" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 64, "On Meesh-e-gan" (1 text)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 334-335, "On Meesh-e-gan" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #8856

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Don't Come to Michigan" (theme)

NOTES [10 words]: Just enough of a narrative that I didn't use "nonballad." - PJS

File: Be072

On My Journey (II) [Mount Zion]

DESCRIPTION: Song of religious ecstasy. "On my journey now, Mount Zion/Well I wouldn't take nothing, Mount Zion/For my journey now." Singer is walking along, the "elements opened and the love come down"; he goes to the valley; "my soul got happy/And I stayed all day."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (recording, Paul Robeson)

KEYWORDS: religious floatingverses

FOUND IN: US

RECORDINGS:
Paul Robeson, "On Ma Journey" (Victor 20013, 1926; Victor 25547, 1937)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Jesus Says 'You Goes and I Goes Wid You'" or "Jesus Says Go" (floating verse)
cf. "Hold the Wind" (floating verse)

NOTES [10 words]: Just enough of a narrative that I didn't use "nonballad." - PJS

File: Rc0MJMZ

On My Journey Home (I)

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "I feel like, I feel like I'm on my journey home." Verses are floating: "When I can read my titles clear...." "Should earth against my soul engage...." "Let cares like a wild deluge come....."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)
On My Way to Mexico

DESCRIPTION: "Well I woke up early this mornin', I was a-feelin' mighty wrong... that black gal, she had done gone." "She's gone to her mama." 'I knocked on Mama's door." "She said, 'Get away you mistreater.'" "On my way to Mexico" "I got arrested."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (recorded from Jesse Lee Warren by Jackson)

KEYWORDS: separation, abuse, prison

FOUND IN: US(SO)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Jackson-WakeUpDeadMan, pp. 302-303, "On My Way to Mexico" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Black Gal (I)" (lyrics)

NOTES [94 words]: Like so many prison songs, this seems to have had very fluid lyrics; Jackson mentions that he often heard it mixed with "Stewball" (but does not print any variants). I suspect that the original plot may have run something like this: The man wakes up and finds his girl gone. He traces her to her mother's house. The mother tells him to leave. He tries to break in, then flees when the police are called. He tries to escape to Mexico, but is caught and sent to prison. The versions in Jackson, however, have done enough lyric-swapping that it is hard to be sure. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4

File: JDM302

On My Way to New Orleans

DESCRIPTION: Collection of floaters including "On my way to New Orleans, Black cat sitting on the sewing machine, Sewing machine ran so fast, Made ninety-nine stitches in the poor cat's...." For other floaters see notes.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1980 (VaWork)

KEYWORDS: floating verses, nonballad, worksong

FOUND IN: US(SE)

RECORDINGS:
Lee Wynn and John Mantley, "On My Way to New Orleans" (on VaWork)

NOTES [310 words]: The floating verses in VaWork have so many different sources that lumping this song with some other would be too arbitrary.

The VaWork verse listed in the description illustrates censorship by singer or collector: Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs has an answer to that verse: "sewed so easy and he sewed so slow, Took ninety-nine stitches on the tom-cat's toe" (p. 91, "Tom Cat"). Another VaWork floater is "If I live, don't get killed, Make my home in Jacksonville" (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands p. 99, "Sangaree"; Howard Odum and Guy B. Johnson, Negro Workaday Songs (Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1926 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), pp. 92-93, "He-i-Heira"; Newman I. White, American Negro Folk Songs (Hatboro: Folklore Associates, 1965 reprint of Harvard University Press, 1928), #ix.57 p. 309 "... make my home in Thomasville"). VaWork also has "One of these mornings won't be long, You gonna look for me and I'll be gone" (Howard Odum and Guy B. Johnson, Negro Workaday Songs (Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1926 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), p. 139, "Some o' Dese Days"; John W. Work, American Negro Songs (Mineola: Dover, 1998 reprint of New York: Crown Publishers, 1940), p. 237, "Captain, O Captain"; The New Orleans reference in VaWork might be broken off a verse like "Captain, O Captain": "Wake up this mornin' feelin' mighty mean Thinkin' 'bout my good gal in New Orleans"). The VaWork "If I get up in the morning I'm gonna make me a diamond ring If that ring doesn't shine
I'm gonna get me a five and dime" is a common floater from "Hush Little Baby"; for another worksong example compare USMenhaden02 "Mama Liza Jane" ("L'il Liza Jane"): "... Johnny's gonna buy you a diamond ring ... If that diamond ring don't shine ... Johnny's gonna take you to the five and dime." - BS

Last updated in version 4.2
File: Rc0MYTN0

On Patrick's Day in the Morning

DESCRIPTION: The singer, 20, meets a spinster, 70. He says he's wealthy. She proposes, having money of her own. On the way to a dentist to fix her only tooth they stop for a drink, jump into the river, "and I lost her forever, On Patrick's day in the morning"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage drink humorous oldmaid youth age river
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster 5, "On Patrick's Day in the Morning" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2895
NOTES [770 words]: May-December romances in which the man is the older (and usually incapable of performance) are common in folklore; see, e.g., the various cross-references under "Maids When You're Young Never Wed an Old Man". Old maid songs are also common. There aren't many where the old woman finds a young man, though.
Of course, he may have just been kidding her along. Or -- perhaps more likely -- going for her money. This phenomenon is relatively well-attested; an English example comes from the reign of Edward IV: "Sir John Woodville [the brother of Edward's wife Elizabeth Woodville] was given a marriage that even in that opportunistic age created a scandal: still in his teens, he wedded the Dowager Duchess of Norfolk, a lady venerable enough to be his grandmother, but very rich" (Kendall, p. 61).
Ross-Edward, pp. 92-93, explains that this took place soon after King Edward married Elizabeth Woodville (itself a marriage which shocked Europe, since her social status was so far below his -- and he had married her secretly). She came from a rather poor family, and the best way to increase their wealth was aristocratic marriages. Most of Elizabeth's brothers and sisters were married to eligible heirs. The case of John Woodville was the most extreme probably because he was the first of the men to be wed -- he married Katherine Neville only about half a year after Elizabeth's marriage to Edward IV was announced. It would seem Duchess Katherine was the first heiress available.
The details of this marriage are a little vague; Jenkins, p. 31, says that Woodville was twenty and the Dowager Duchess between seventy and eighty. Wilkinson, p. 291 says that the groom was twenty and calls the bride "the octogenarisn duchess of Norfollk." Ross-Wars, p. 60, says that she was "well into her sixties" and was "compelled to accept in matrimony one of the queen's brothers, John Woodville, who was still in his teens."
It appears the confusion arises in the original source, a Latin miscellany sometimes attributed to William Worcester and known as the Annales Rerum Anglicarum. Dockray, p. 48, translates the passage as follows: "In the month of January [1465] Catherine, Duchess of Norfolk, a slip of a girl of about eighty years old, was married to John Woodville, the queen's brother, aged twenty years; a diabolical marriage." The Annales, however, is very loose with numbers; it seems clear that the author did not know the actual age of Katherine Neville. All that can be said with certainty is that her father, Ralph Neville, Earl of Westmoreland, died in 1425, and that she was the daughter of his second wife Joan Beaufort; it is believed that her oldest brother Richard, Earl of Salisbury, was born around 1400, and her younger sister Cecily Neville was born 1415 (Wagner, pp. 172, 180). Thus she was probably born between 1400 and 1410, meaning she was somewhere between 54 and 65.
Still, there is no doubt that she was too old to bear children; Hicks, p. 129, says that Katherine Neville's first husband had died in 1432, more than thirty years before she married John Woodville; even their son and heir was dead by then. She had apparently been married twice since. Hence there can be little doubt that John Woodville was in it for the money. According to Jenkins, p. 53, Woodville eventually was executed for his behavior (by the Earl of Warwick, the nephew of the Dowager Duchess).
Thus, ironically, the Dowager Duchess outlived her strapping young husband. By more than half a decade, in fact; in the late 1470s, she was negotiating to marry her granddaughter Anne Mowbray (the heir to the Norfolk dukedom) to Richard of York, the younger son of Edward IV (Jenkins, p. 113). Which implies that the Dowager Duchess was still of sound mind. (Which makes me wonder if she might not have been a little younger than everyone thinks -- indeed, Dockray, p. 42, says only that she was "at least 65"; Ross-Edward, p. 93, also says that she was "at least sixty-five." Castor, p. 197, says that she was in her late sixties and had already been three times married while he was just out of his teens. There can be no question, however, that she was old enough to be her husband's grandmother.)

There may have been an instance of this in the Roman Empire, too, because a legal memorandum by the Emperor Diocletian in 295 C.E. condemned men marrying their grandmothers (Potter, pp. 83-84).

For additional cases of a younger man being involved with an older woman, see the examples cited in "A-Growing (He's Young But He's Daily A-Growing)" [Laws O35]. In that song, however, the age gap is much smaller than in this. - RBW

Bibliography

- Castor: Helen Castor, Blood & Roses: The Paston Family in the Fifteenth Century, Faber & Faber, 2004
- Hicks: Michael Hicks, Edward V: The Prince in the Tower, Tempus, 2003
- Jenkins: Elizabeth Jenkins, The Princes in the Tower, Coward McCann, & Geoghan, 1978
- Potter: David Potter, Constantine the Emperor, Oxford University Press, 2012

Last updated in version 4.2
File: MorU005

On the Banks of the Murray

DESCRIPTION: "In a neat little cot on the banks of the Murray Lived a wife of a family with children so poor." One lad is sent to the Dardanelles and fatally wounded. He makes his will and dies; his little daughter and the entire family grieve

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968
KEYWORDS: Australia war death lastwill
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 258-259, "On the Banks of the Murray" (1 text, 1 tune)
Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, pp. 267-268, "The Banks of the Murray" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #5476
File: MA258

On the Banks of the Old Mohawk

DESCRIPTION: "It's all about my sweetiest Julia, And she looked just as natural as she lie. They buried her deep... On the banks of the old Mohawk." The singer recalls the time they spent by the river. She was sewing when she became sick and died.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: death separation wife
On the Banks of the Old Omaha

DESCRIPTION: "I will sing you a song of sweet Julia... I never shall forget the first time we met On the banks of the old Omaha...." One day she heard a knocking at the door, and died that night. The singer's heart is still by her grave in that far-off valley

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968
KEYWORDS: death separation love burial
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 260-261, "On the Banks of the Old Omaha" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: MA261

On the Banks of the Old Tennessee

DESCRIPTION: If the singer were a bird, he would fly to his love; if a fish, he would take her hook. But now she is dead and buried, and he is no longer willing to stay "on the banks of the old Tennessee."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: love courting animal death burial separation family
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Randolph 700, "On the Banks of the Old Tennessee" (4 texts, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 515-516, "On the Banks of the Old Tennessee" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 700A)
Wheeler-SteamboatinDays, p. 117, "On the Bank uv the Old Tennessee" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #7374

RECORDINGS:

NOTES [156 words]: Randolph's four texts are rather confused, and not one tells the full story. The only common element is the line "on the banks of the old Tennessee." The chorus varies (one even borrows lines from "My Sweet Sunny South"!), as do the presence of the floating-verse-like stanzas about being beast or bird. Cohen thinks the "A" and "D" texts are one song, and "B" and "C" another, probably related to "Free Little Bird."
The Grayson & Whitter recording doesn't help much; the verses are stereotyped: "I have no (brother/sister/true lover/mother) in this world (x2), (He's) sleeping tonight where the moon shines so bright, On the banks of old Tennesee (x3), He's sleeping tonight... On the banks..."
Wheeler's version is just a fragment, and adds nothing to the discussion.
In other words, it's possible that this is more than one song. But I think it all goes back to one piece, with a lot of importation and forgetfulness along the way. - RBW

File: R700

On the Banks of the Pamanaw [Laws H11]

DESCRIPTION: The singer sees an Indian girl sitting alone but unafraid. She explains that her family is dead and her lover has abandoned her. He offers to take her "to a better land, to a pale-face countree." She will not come; she has vowed to stay there

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931
On the Banks of the Wabash, Far Away

DESCRIPTION: "Round my Indiana homestead wave the cornfields... But one thing there is missing from the picture, Without her face it seems so incomplete." The singer misses his mother and his sweetheart Mary, left in the graveyards of his home on the Wabash

AUTHOR: Paul Dresser (1857-1906)

EARLIEST DATE: 1897 (sheet music by Howley, Haviland & Co.)

KEYWORDS: death mother love separation home rambling

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (8 citations):
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 117, "Banks of the Wabash" (1 text)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 426, "The Banks of the Wabash" (1 text)
Jolly-Miller-Songster5thEd, #117, "On the Banks of the Wabash" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 45, "On the Banks of the Wabash" (1 text)
Geller-FamousSongsAndTheirStories, pp. 166-169, "On the Banks of the Wabash, Far Away" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: Robert A. Fremont, editor, _Favorite Songs of the Nineties_, Dover Publications, 1973, pp. 230-234, "On the Banks of the Wabash, Far Away" (1 text, 1 tune, the 1899 sheet music)
Margaret Bradford Boni, editor, _Songs of the Gilded Age_, with piano arrangements by Norman Lloyd and illustrations by Lucille Corcos, Golden Press, 1960, pp. 30-32, "On the Banks of the Wabash, Far Away" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9595

SAME TUNE:
On the Banks of the Railroad ("Away down in our homes in Alabama Us coons were contented to stay") (Foner, p. 210)

NOTES [389 words]: This piece is now Indiana's state song. Dresser (originally Dreisser; he was Theodore Dreisser's brother), who ran away to join a medicine show rather than enter the priesthood, was also the author of "The Letter That Never Came" and "The Pardon Came Too Late."

According to Sigmund Spaeth, _A History of Popular Music in America_, pp. 276-277, Dresser was "widely remembered as one of the most lovable characters in the history of Tin Pan Alley. A huge mountain of a man, with a heart as big as his body, his generosity was notorious. Whatever he had..."
he shared with others, and most of his debtors never paid him back.... Like most of the songwriters of his day, Paul Dresser had a thoroughly naive outlook on life.... He believes the sentimentalities he put into his songs."

Spaeth considers 1895 to be the peak of his career; in that year he produced "Just Tell Them That You Saw Me," described as "enormously popular" though it has had little impact on tradition. I've seen it said that it was Theodore Dreiser who suggested to his brother that he write a river song about Indiana, and this was the result. But according to Jon W. Finson, The Voices That Are Gone: Themes in Nineteenth-Century American Popular Song, Oxford University Press, 1994, p. 120, it was one Max Hoffman who pushed him to the final form: "Paul was mulling over a melody that was practically in finished form. But he did not have the words.... He had a sort of dummy refrain, which he was studying, but by the time he finished what he was writing down to my playing it was an altogether different lyric.

"When Paul came to the line, 'Through the sycamores the candle lights were gleaming [sic.],' I was tremendously impressed.... "I have always felt that Paul got the idea from glancing out of the window now and again as he wrote [while on a tour in Chicago], and seeing the lights glimmering out on Lake Michigan."

Spaeth, p. 281, says that "by 1903 the Dresser gift had definitely declined," and he started to try to work the business end of the music trade. But Dresser, no businessman, managed to die in poverty in 1906 despite many hits. Spaeth, p. 282, claims that he died "at the home of his sister in Brooklyn, where he had been living for some time in obscurity. Regardless of any physician's diagnosis, his malady was a broken heart." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: FSWB045

On the Bed Ground in a Cow Camp
DESCRIPTION: "Come all you tender college folk, if you should have some fun, Come out among the cowboys, they'll show you how it's done." They dance with girls at balls. Their language is rough. They gamble heavily but are always generous
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore)
KEYWORDS: cowboy dancing money
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, pp. 157-159, "On the Bed Ground in a Cow Camp" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4891
File: SaKo157

On the Bluff (Alligator Song)
DESCRIPTION: "'Twas on the bluff In the state of Indiana, Dat's where I useter lib." The singer is a good fisherman, but partial to drink; he fights with an alligator, only to find it is a log. He hides from a white man by playing a mile-post. At last he buries master
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: river fishing drink slave humorous burial
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 72, "'Twas on de Bluff" (1 text)
ST ScaNF072 (Partial)
Roud #7493
NOTES [107 words]: There is a song in the Edith Fowke collection which appears to be a version of this, so it appears to have been known in Canada as well as wherever it was that Scarborough located it. But I can't absolutely prove it at this time. It might be objected that Indiana is not a slave state, and this is true -- but it was also quite anti-Negro, and locals might have looked the other way at a slaveholder. Or, of course, the actual location of the song might have been Kentucky, across the river from Indiana. Though it's hard to imagine alligators on the Ohio River.
In any case, this looks more like a minstrel piece than a real folk song. - RBW
File: ScaNF072
On the Booms

DESCRIPTION: "Oh the coxswain of the launch he didn't stand a chance, On the booms, on the booms." Similarly for the coxswains of other boats, e.g. the coxswain of the "pinnacle... didn't finish"; "...whaler was up another sailor," etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
KEYWORDS: navy ship bawdy sex
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 28, "On the Booms" (1 text, with tune on p. 149)
File: Tawn010

On the Cumberland Land

DESCRIPTION: "When we were out in the ice and snow, It hailed and stormed, how the wind did blow... It was so cold we almost died." But they finally find safety in a lonely but fertile place, although religion is scarce. "Wish me safe to the Cumberland land"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5)
KEYWORDS: home travel hardtimes
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5, pp. 50-51, "On the Cumberland Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7055
File: BWV5050

On the Dodge

DESCRIPTION: "Well, old horse, you've brought me 'cross the line, There's a sheriff's posse ridin' close behind" but it will stop at the Rio Grande. The singer is always in trouble. He sees a horse he used to own, repossesses it, and flees, but no one believes him

AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: cowboy thief escape
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 123-124, "On the Dodge" (1 text)
File: ThLo123

On the Eleventh of October in the Year Ninety Nine

DESCRIPTION: The Boer War begins 11 October 1899 "when Ireland was deprived of some brave Irishmen. Married or single to the war they must go To die upon the field or to conquer the foe."
The Boers are coming and the slaughter is greater than any since Bonaparte

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: war parting death Africa nonballad
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1899-1902 - Boer War
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 110, "On the Eleventh of March in the Year Ninety Two" (1 text)
Roud #16260
NOTES [44 words]: OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin has only the title "On the Eleventh of March in the Year Ninety Two" from Elizabeth Cronin's song-lists. OCroinin speculates that the song referred to may be this one "noted from Jerry Buckley of Cnoc Raithin, in 1961." - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
On the First of November

DESCRIPTION: "On the first of November last, My love and I was parted." He goes to fight the French. Even as she begs to come with him, he is killed. "Then she took up his armour bright." She kills the man who slew her lover, and leads the English troops to victory

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1913 (Butterworth collection)
KEYWORDS: love death soldier war clothes
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Butterworth/Dawney-PloughboysGlory, pp. 30-31, "On the First of November" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1915
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Mary Ambree" (plot: lover becomes officer)

On the Late Engagement in Charles Town River

DESCRIPTION: "Good people of old England, come listen unto me, All you who live at home at ease and from all dangers flee." The British fleet comes to Charles Town and the Bristol runs aground. They fight the "blacks and Indians" and shatter the town

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (First)
KEYWORDS: battle death patriotic
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 60, "On the Late Engagement in Charles Town River" (1 text)
Roud #V12546
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sir Peter Parker" (subject) and references there

On the Road Again

DESCRIPTION: Singer comes home, finds the window propped, the door locked, and another man in his bed. He fires a shotgun; the man runs off. Another man arrives. Chorus: "(S)he's on the road again (just as sure as you're born)/Nat'chl born easeman on the road again"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, Memphis Jug Band)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer says his woman's evil. He comes home, finds the window propped, the door locked, and another man in his folding bed. He fires a shotgun through the glass, and the man takes off running. Another man comes to call, the wife tells him her husband's on the way to the pen. Chorus: "(S)he's on the road again (just as sure as you're born)/Nat'chl born easeman on the road again"
KEYWORDS: jealousy adultery infidelity sex violence prison wife
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
RECORDINGS:
Memphis Jug Band "On the Road Again" (Victor V-38015, 1929; rec. 1928; on TimesAint01)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Joseph Mica (Mikel) (The Wreck of the Six-Wheel Driver) (Been on the Choly So Long) [Laws I16]," especially the "Kassie Jones" text (floating verses)
cf. "Skinner's Song" (form)
On the Road to Bethlehem
DESCRIPTION: A "merry company" comes to Bethlehem to obey the decree of "the governor." Mary and Joseph seek the inn, but there is no room. They go to a stable, where the baby Jesus is born. Eastern kings and shepherds come to visit.
AUTHOR: Words: Robert Hugh Benson / Music: Sir R. R. Terry
EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: religious Bible childbirth
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H59, p. 76, "On the Road to Bethlehem" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9052
NOTES [50 words]: With the sole exception of the reference to "Eastern kings," every item mentioned in this song comes from the Gospel of Luke (chapter 2). The form of this song, and the first couple of verses, don't seem quite suitable for the content; I wonder if the author didn't fix up a non-religious poem. - RBW
File: HHH059

On the Schooner Africa
DESCRIPTION: "We wallowed Lake Superior through, And then we reached Marquette, Where Billy Clark, our singing friend, By Charlie Turpin was shot." With Clark in the hospital and two other sailors ashore, the captain has to use the cook as a sailor and hire a woman
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (collected from J. Sylvester Ray by Walton)
KEYWORDS: sailor ship cook injury
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, p. 111, "On the Schooner Africa" (1 fragment)
Roud #19843
File: WGM111

On the Schooner Hercules
DESCRIPTION: "On the eighth day of November In the year of ninety-one, The schooler Hercules set sail For the port of Parry Sound." The ship leaves Sarnia. The song describes the voyage and a storm. He names the sailors and bids good luck to captain Glass and crew
AUTHOR: probably Jimmie McQuarie
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (collected from John McDonald and Joseph Glass by Walton)
KEYWORDS: ship travel cook storm
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 142-143, "On the Schooner Hercules" (1 text)
Roud #19857
File: WGM142

On the Schooner John Joe
DESCRIPTION: "Beware of George Farrin his schooner John Joe." Breakfast and dinner is fish soup. Supper is "thin hard bread." The singer had to fight George to get a decent meal from the cook. But, when he gets home it's back to "hard bread."
AUTHOR: Tom Evans (ca 1890 per Peacock)
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: fight fishing sea ship food ordeal hardtimes
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
On the Shores of Havana

DESCRIPTION: "Many hearts were filled with sorrow and with sadness, Many hearts were torn with anguish and pain... for the heroes of our battleship, the 'Maine.'" A brief account of the destruction of the Maine, with comments about the lives of the sailors killed
AUTHOR: Andrew B. Sterling
EARLIEST DATE: 1898 (broadsides & songbooks)
KEYWORDS: sea disaster ship
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1895 - Cubans rebel against Spain
Feb 15, 1898 - Explosion of the battleship "Maine" in Havana harbor
April 25, 1898 - Congress declares war on Spain
FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,SE) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 21, "On the Shores of Havana" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 235, "The Battleship Maine (I)" (1 text)
ST FSC021 (Partial)
Roud #4615
RECORDINGS:
Vince Ledwell, "Battleship Maine" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "On the Banks of the Wabash Far Away" (tune & meter)
cf. "My Sweetheart Went Down with the Maine" (subject) and references there
NOTES [22 words]: For background on the loss of the Maine, and the war that followed, see the notes to "My Sweetheart Went Down with the Maine." - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: FSC021

On the Sign of an Old Wiltshire Inn

DESCRIPTION: "Come, my dear brother, let's comfort each other; There's whisky and gin, and brandy within; There's ale and good cider, that's fit for a king."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: drink nonballad brother
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 306, "On the Sign of an Old Wiltshire Inn" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 520)
Roud #22079
NOTES [35 words]: The current description is all of the Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames text. I included this just to have a complete record of Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames. Roud does not assign a number to this entry. - BS
Last updated in version 5.0
File: WT306B

On the Sixteenth o' October

DESCRIPTION: A day of work: plowing in the morning, bundling straw, eating, then cleaning the horses and plowing again in the rain. "Noo my day's wark is finisht, and I'll hae a smoke, An' I'm boun' for my bed, for it's past nine o'clock"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Greig/Duncan3)
On the Spree

DESCRIPTION: Mrs. Brown locks the doors and keeps the keys to keep the boys away from Maggie. Drunk Johnny comes down the chimney but gets stuck on the bar that holds the chain and pothook. He takes the chimney apart to escape. Beware of that bar.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)

KEYWORDS: courting escape warning ordeal humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1509, "On the Spree" (1 text)

Roud #7170

File: GrD71509

On the Steps of the Dole Office Door

DESCRIPTION: "The songs that we sang were about old Jack Lang On the steps of the Dole Office door. He closed up the banks, it was one of his pranks, And he sent us to the Dole Office door. We molested the police till they gave us relief..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1968

KEYWORDS: unemployment hardtimes

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, p. 225, "On the Steps of the Dole Office Door" (1 text, 1 tune)
Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, pp. 138-139, "Clem Murphy's Door" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [50 words]: On the face of it, it is hard to equate the two Meredith versions of this song; all they have in common is a Depression setting. But Meredith, who has direct experience of the songs, thinks them one. Both fragments describe how people survived the depression and attempted to get by on the dole. - RBW

File: MA225

On the Swag

DESCRIPTION: "His body doubled under the pack that sprawls untidily on his old back, the cold wet deadbeat plods up the track." The cook curses upon seeing him. The cook is urged to bring him in -- "for this is Christ"

AUTHOR: R. A. K. Mason (source: Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Mason, "No New Thing," according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

KEYWORDS: travel clothes hardtimes cook religious

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, p. 160, "On the Swag" (1 text, 1 modern tune)
NOTES [79 words]: This appears to be an allusion to Matthew's parable of the Sheep and the Goats, where Jesus promises a reward to those who were kind to the poor, but punishment for those who were not. Matt. 25:35 reads, "for I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me." The blessed say they never helped Jesus, but in 25:40, Jesus says, "Truly I tell you, just as you to the least of these my brothers, so you did to me." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.3
File: BaRo160

On the Wings of a Dove

DESCRIPTION: "On the wings of a snow white dove He sends His pure sweet love." Noah was not forgotten. "When trouble surrounds us when evils come... He does not forget us"

AUTHOR: Robert B. Ferguson (according to Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong)

KEYWORDS: Bible nonballad religious bird

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong 19, pp. 127-128, "On the Wings of a Dove" (1 text), with two verses repeated on p. 154
Roud #24301

RECORDINGS:
Jerome Downey, "On the Wings of a Dove" (on NFJDowney01)

File: BeDo127

On to Glory

DESCRIPTION: "Oh come my brethren and sisters too, We're going to join the heavenly crew, To Christ our savior let us sing And make our loud hosannas ring. O, hallelujah...." "Oh, there's (Bill Thomas), I know him well...." (The singer lists sinners and their sins)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 66, "On to Glory" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12022

NOTES [62 words]: The notes to this song in Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates question whether this is of Negro origin but say that it "illustrat[es] the pressure brought to bear upon the wavering." I don't know about you, but if a preacher started picking on "me" that way, I'd walk out of the congregation. So I have to suspect the audience was, in some sense or other, captive. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4
File: AWG066

On to the Morgue

DESCRIPTION: "On to the morgue, that's the only place for me (x2). Take it from the head one, he sure is a dead one. On to the morgue...." "Where will we all be one hundred years from now? (x2) Pushing up the daisies (x2), That's where we'll all be...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)

KEYWORDS: death parody

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 199, "On to the Morgue" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #13614

NOTES [14 words]: Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag calls this a "travesty on the Chopin funeral
On Top of Old Smokey

DESCRIPTION: "On top of old Smokey, All covered with snow, I lost my true lover, From courting too slow." The singer laments (her) lover’s infidelity, saying that a "false-hearted lover is worse than a thief." (She) claims one cannot trust one in a thousand

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1911 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety)

KEYWORDS: courting love rejection lyric warning floatingverses

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW,SE,So)

REFERENCES (40 citations):

Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 473-476, "The Unconstant Lover" (3 texts, 1 tune, none of which mention Old Smokey; the second mixed with "The Cuckoo" and the third short enough that it might be any of the "never place your affection on a green willow tree" songs)

Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 253, "Old Smoky" (2 texts plus 3 excerpts and mention of 3 more); also 248, "The Inconstant Lover" (5 texts plus a fragment, admitted by the editors to be distinct songs but with many floating items; "A," "B," and "C" are more "On Top of Old Smokey" than anything else, though without that phrase; "D" is primarily "The Broken Engagement (I -- We Have Met and We Have Parted)," "E" is a mix of "Old Smokey" and "The Cuckoo," and the "F" fragment may also be "Old Smokey")

Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 253, "Old Smoky" (7 tunes plus text excerpts); 248, "The Inconstant Lover" (4 tunes plus text excerpts; the "B," "C," and "C(1)" tunes presumably belong with "On Top of Old Smokey"; "H" appears to be "Beware, Oh Take Care")

Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #195, "The Cuckoo" (1 text, very mixed, containing fragments of at least three songs, "On Top of Old Smokey" being the largest element, plus "The Cuckoo" and something that begins "Johnny on the water")

Lunsford/Stringfield-30And1FolkSongsFromSouthernMountains, p. 54, "Old Smoky" (1 text, 1 tune) Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 50, p. 166, "Jimmy" (1 text, more this than anything else but starting with "A-walking, a-talking, a-walking foes I, To meet pretty Jimmy, he'll be here by and by" and continuing with many floating verses, e.g. "The cuckoo is a pretty bird," "If I am forsaken, I am not foresworn, And he is mistaken who thinks I will mourn")

Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 117-118, "The Cuckoo" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 49A)

Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, p. 38, "Sweet Willie" (1 text, six verses derived from at least two and probably three or four songs; the largest portion is "On Top of Old Smokey" but there is a bit of "Farewell Ballymoney (Loving Hannah; Lovely Molly)" and something from one of amorphous the "courting is a pleasure" group)

Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 2-3, "Old Smoky" (1 text, starting with a full "On Top of Old Smokey" text and then including a long set of verses from "The Roving Gambler" or perhaps "The Wagoner's Lad"); pp. 18-19, "Pretty Polly, Pretty Polly, I'm Going Away" (with five verses of "Old Smokey" preceded by two "Roving Gambler"-type floaters); p. 33, "Advice to Girls" (a pure "Old Smokey" version)

Scarborough-ASongCatcherInSouthernMountains, pp. 272-282, "The Waggoner's Lad" (9 texts, 6 tunes on pp. 428-431, but the entry combines many songs; A (no title), B ("My Fortune's Been Bad"), and E ("My Horses Ain't Hungry") are extended versions of "The Waggoner's Lad"; C ("The Last Farewell") is a short text probably of "The Waggoner's Lad"; D ("Old Smokie") combined one "Smokey" verse with three "Wagoner's Lad" verses; F ("Old Smokey") is a very long "Old Smokey" text which seems to have gained parts of other songs; G ("A False Lying True Love") is "Old Smokey" minus the first verse; H ("I'll Build My Cabin on a Mountain So High" is "Old Smokey" with a first verse from a drunkard song and a final floating verse supplying the title; I (no title) is a fragment probably of "Old Smokey") Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 78, "I'm Going to Georgia" (2 texts, 2 tunes; as with many pieces listed above, I've filed the Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians "I'm Going to Georgia" songs here for want of a better place for them, using the "never place your affections" line as the delineator. - PJS)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 89, "The Unconstant Lover" (1 text, with no mention of Old Smokey and many floating verses)
Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 236-238, "Old Smoky Mountain" (1 text)
Carey-MarylandFolkLegendsAndFolkSongs, pp. 101-102, "The Cuckoo" (1 text, with at least two verses that are "On Top of Old Smokey," two that might be from any of several abandonment songs, and a final verse that is "The Cuckoo")
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp.738-740, "The Wagoner's Lad" (2 texts, with the "B" text being a composite of "Wagoner's Lad" and "Old Smokey" verses)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #65, "Old Smoky" (1 text, 1 tune, another "Old Smokey"/"Wagoner's Lad" mix)
Wyman/Brockway-LonesomeSongs-KentuckyMountains-Vol2, p. 1, "An Inconstant Lover" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, pp. 119-120, "Old Smoky" (1 text)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, pp. 50-51, "On Top of Old Smokey" (1 text, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, pp. 152-154, "Forsaken"; Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, p. 178, "On Top of Old Smokey" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, p. 97, "On Top of Old Smokey" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-LomaxFolkSongUSA 18, "Old Smoky" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 112, "Old Smokey" (1 text, 1 tune)
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 60, "On Top Of Old Smokey" (1 text, 2 tunes)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 165, "On Top Of Old Smokey" (1 text)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 143, "A Forsaken Lover" (1 text, which appears to be a compound: Three verses of a forseken lover song, followed by an Old Smokey text less the first verse)
Cox/Hercog/Halpert/Boswell-WVirginia-B, #13, pp. 151-152, "Old Smoky" (1 text, 1 tune)
McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, pp. 27-28, "(Old Smokey)" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 121, "The cuckoo is a merry bird" (text 2 is "The Forsaken Lover" which omits the "Old Smokey" lines; dated c.1780 (The Merry Gentleman's Companion, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes))
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #78, "The Cuckoo" (1 text, 1 tune, of four verses, all of which can float; one might be "Oh, No, Not I!"; the second is clearly "The Cuckoo"; the third is perhaps from "On Top of Old Smokey"; the fourth is uncertain)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2398, p. 161, "The Unconstant Lover" (1 reference, probably to this) NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Daniel W. Patterson, "Archive Notes," Vol. XV, No. 1 (May 1967), pp. 21-22, "(The Inconstant Lover)" (1 text, 1 tune, probably this although it lacks the first verse)
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 42, "On Top of Old Smokey" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, p. 416, "On Top of Old Smokey"
DT, OLDSMOKY
ADDITIONAL: [no author listed], Scenes & Songs of the Ohio-Erie Canal, Ohio Historical Society, 1971, "Johnny and Mollie" (1 text, 1 tune, from Pearl R. Nye; it never mentions Old Smokey and appears to have several stanzas added by Nye, but more of the many floating lines appear to belong here than anywhere else)
Roud #414
RECORDINGS:
Bob Atcher, "Old Smokey" (Columbia 20484, 1948; rec. 1947)
Cramer Brothers, [pseud. for Vernon Dalhart and -- probably -- Carson Robison] "On Top of Old Smokey" (Broadway 8071, c. 1930)
Gerald Duncan et al, "On Top of Old Smokey" (on MusOzarks01)
I. G. Greer, "Old Smoky" (AFS; on LC14)
Roscoe Holcomb, "Old Smokey" (on Holcomb-Ward1, HolcombCD1)
Buell Kazee, "On Top of Old Smokey" [fragment] (on Kazee01)
Bradley Kincaid, "On Top of Old Smokey" (Supertone 9566, 1929)
George Reneau, "On Top of Old Smokey" (Vocalion 15366, 1926)
Pete Seeger, "On Top of Old Smoky" (on PeteSeeger17) (on PeteSeeger23)
Henry Whitter, "It's a Rough Road to Georgia" (on StuffDreams1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Wagoner's Lad"
cf. "Lee's Hoochie" (tune)
cf. "I'm Sad and I'm Lonely" (floating lyrics)
cf. "The Blackbird and Thrush" (floating lyrics)
cf. "I Shot My Poor Teacher (With a Big Rubber Band)" (tune)
cf. "Sailing Out on the Ocean" (floating lyrics)
cf. "A Warning to Girls" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Once I Loved a Bonny Boy" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Courtin' Owre Slow" (theme: lover lost by courting too slowly)
cf. "Go Away From Me, Willie" (floating lyrics)
SAME TUNE:
Up in Old Loray (by Ella May Wiggins and/or Odell Corley; Greenway-
I Shot My Poor Teacher (With a Big Rubber Band) (File: PHCFS093)
The Little Mohee (File: LH08)
Lee's Hoochie (File: EM407)
On Top of Spaghetti (File: NCF211TS)
On Top of Old Smoky (Davy Crockett) (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 111)
On Top of Old Smokey (All Covered with Blood) (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 126)
On Top of My Headache (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 111)
On Top of Old Baldy (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 144)
NOTES [444 words]: The relationship between this song and "The Wagoner's Lad" is problematic. The two are occasionally listed as one song (e.g. by Leach, Scarborough, and implicitly by Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains; also, at least in part, by Roud); indeed, this was done in early versions of this Index. This was done under the influence of the Lomaxes, who classify the songs together.

Further study, however, seems to show that almost all versions which have common material are derived from the Lomaxes, and the minor exceptions are usually fragments of floating verses. (Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida is an exception, but in his case, it looks as if two songs have been grafted together -- and Morris worked with John Lomax anyway.) The plots of the two songs are different, their tunes are distinct, and there does not seem to have been any overlap in ordinary versions. It would appear that the identification of the two is purely the result of the sort of editorial work the Lomaxes so often committed.

Due to this inconsistency, it is suggested that the reader check all versions of both songs, as well as both sets of cross-references, to find all related materials.

It also appears that certain key lines, beginning "A meeting's a pleasure, a parting's a grief, And an (unconstant young man) is worse than a thief," predate this song, as they appear in several British texts which otherwise bear little resemblance to "Old Smokey." For the moment, these British Isles variations are filed under "The Blackbird and Thrush," at least until I find a more authoritative source.

Edwin Wolf 2nd, American Song Sheets, Slip Ballads, and Political Broadsides 1850-1870, Library Company of Philadelphia, 1963, p. 61, mentions a broadside, "The Unconstant Lovier" (sic.), which begins "Oh! it's meeting's a pleasure, and it's parting's a grief"; this is credited to J. H. Collins, but I know nothing else about it.

Another interesting question: Does this song refer to the Great Smoky Mountains, which run along the North Carolina/Tennessee border? This seems reasonable based on the geographical distribution. The flip side is, the highest peak in the Great Smoky Mountains is Clingmans Dome, 6643 feet/2025 meters, the highest point in Tennessee. My information is that it is not snow-covered in summer; it is low enough and far enough south that the snow melts every year. Hardly anyone lives near Clingman's Dome, but if it's the highest point in the Smokys, what are the odds of year-round snow on some other peak in the range? Of course, the song could have taken place in winter, when there is snow in the Smokys, but it seems an odd way of identifying the place. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: BSoF740
On Top of Spaghetti
DESCRIPTION: "On top of spaghetti, all covered with cheese, I lost my last meatball When somebody sneezed." It lands on the floor, or in the street, and goes rolling and has various adventures
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (North Carolina Folklore Journal)
KEYWORDS: food humorous derivative
FOUND IN: US (SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
DT, OLDSMOK2
Roud #16483
File: NCF211TS

On Yonder Hill There Sits A Hare
DESCRIPTION: A worried hare sits "o'er her lodgings." A huntsman sets his dogs on the hare. She escapes from the best dog. "Merrily as she trips the plain, And may she live to run again."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (recording, Geordie Hanna)
KEYWORDS: escape hunting animal dog
FOUND IN: Ireland
Roud #5173
RECORDINGS:
Geordie Hanna, "On Yonder Hill There Sits A Hare" (on Voice18)
File: Rc0YHTSH

Once I Had a Box of Colours
DESCRIPTION: "Once I had a box of colours, What colour do you think it was?"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1890 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: play party colors
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 96, "(Once I had a box of colours)" (1 short text)
File: SuSm096A

Once I Had a Daughter
DESCRIPTION: Father has a daughter who leaves for Germany and returns and says "I have my sweetheart here." Father replies "I have no time to chat And I have no time to talk And I do not like the vagabond Who by your side does walk."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick)
KEYWORDS: love war soldier cross-dressing separation Germany
FOUND IN: Canada (Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 106, "Once I Had a Daughter" (1 text fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #2778
NOTES [16 words]: The current description is based on the Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick fragment. - BS
File: CrSNB106
Once I Had a Sweetheart (I)
DESCRIPTION: "Once I had a sweetheart, A sweetheart brave and true, His hair was dark and curly, His cunning eyes were blue." But her sweetheart wanted to roam; he gave her a ring and departed (to become a soldier). He is killed far from home
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: love separation mourning soldier battle death war
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 140, "Once I Had a Sweetheart" (1 text)
[Randolph 796, "Once I Had a Sweetheart" -- deleted in the second printing]
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 527-528, "Once I Had a Sweetheart" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 796A)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, p. 19, "The Soldier" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4477
RECORDINGS:
Jimmie Rodgers, "The Soldier's Sweetheart" (Victor V-20864, 1927 -- a World War I adaption)
NOTES [28 words]: A generic plot, and floating lyrics too! But it seems to be a separate song -- though it's hard to believe it originated in the U. S., as the notes in Brown imply. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.1
File: BrII140

Once I Had Two Hands Full of Gold
DESCRIPTION: "Once I had two hands full of gold, Beside a plentiful store, But I didn't have a shoe to my foot, Nor a hat upon my head (x2)."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: clothes gold hardtimes
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, pp. 181-182, "Once I Had Two Hands Full of Gold" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
NOTES [33 words]: The fragment in Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin is so short that it isn't really possible to tell what sort of song this is. A gold rush song? A morality tale? Presumably it's one or the other. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.6
File: Pet181

Once I Led a Happy Life
DESCRIPTION: "Once I led a happy life way out on the plains, Far away from city strife, with its grief and pain." The singer is "goin' back again, where I long to be. Goin' home, goin' home, Where the coyote howl and the cattle roam." He will not leave the range again
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (Powder River Jack Lee Songbook)
KEYWORDS: cowboy home travel return
FOUND IN:
ADDITIONAL: Powder River Jack and Kitty Lee's _Songs of the Range: Cowboy Wails of Cattle Trails_, Chart Music, 1937, pp. 46-47, "Once I Led a Happy Life" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: PRJL046

Once I Lived in Cottonwood
DESCRIPTION: "Once I lived in Cottonwood and owned a little farm, When I was called to Dixie it did me much alarm." On his way to "Utah Dixie" his wagon breaks down and everyone is Once I Loved a Bonny Boy

DESCRIPTION: The singer and her lover vowed to marry but "all vows and protestations between us he broke." He's on the ocean and, though some say he'll not prosper, she wishes him "safe sailing and a fair wind to blow." Meeting is pleasure, parting grief, and so on.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (IRRCinnamond03)
KEYWORDS: courting love parting warning floatingverses
FOUND IN: Ireland
Roud #6998
RECORDINGS:
Robert Cinnamond, "Once I Loved a Bonny Boy" (on IRRCinnamond03)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "On Top of Old Smoky" (floating verses)
File: Rc0ILaBB

Once I Was Single, Boo Hoo Hoo Hoo

DESCRIPTION: "Once I was single, boo hoo hoo hoo... I had nothing but peace and pleasure." "Now I've got married, boo hoo... Now I see nothing but a pack of trouble." When he said he loved her, it was only a story. He offers to go away; she tells him to keep going

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1953 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)
KEYWORDS: marriage dialog rejection separation travel humorous
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 62, "Once I Was Single, Boo Hoo Hoo Hoo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11398
File: Brne062

Once I Was Young and Hadna Muckle Wit

DESCRIPTION: The singer says when she was young she "hadna muckle wit." Now, older, she "hinna muckle yet." She promises to get worse as she gets older "until I get some bonnie laddie tae lie langside o' me"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: age sex nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1341, "Once I Was Young and Hadna Muckle Wit" (1 text)
Roud #7223
File: GrD71341

Once in a Manger Lowly (Angels Sang Out the Sweet Story)

DESCRIPTION: "Once in a manger lowly, hundreds of years ago, A little babe so holy came to this world below. Near was... Bethlehem dark and cold. "Angels sang out the sweet story." No one takes in Joseph and Mary. The Magi visit the "gift from the world above."

Once More A-Lumbering Go

DESCRIPTION: The singer calls on "all you sons of freedom" to "range the wild woods over and once more a-lumbering go." He briefly describes the work of cutting the trees, the sleighing and hunting, and the joyful return to their families

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1851 (Springer's _Forest Life and Forest Trees_, according to Gray-SongsAndBalladsOfTheMaineLumberjacks)

KEYWORDS: logger work lumbering

FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,NE) Canada(West)

REFERENCES:
- Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 31, "Once More A-Lumbering Go" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Gray-SongsAndBalladsOfTheMaineLumberjacks, pp. 18-21, "The Logger's Boast" (1 text)
- Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 8-9, "The Logger's Boast" (1 text)
- Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, pp. 282-283, "Saranac River" (1 text)
- Lomax/Lomax-FolkSongUSA 48, "Once More a-Lumb'ring Go" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 4, "Once More a-Lumbering Go" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp. 106-109, "Once More A-Lumbering Go" (1 text plus a variant stanza, 1 tune)
- Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 10, "Once Moe A-Lumbering Go" (1 text)
- Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 85,"A-Lumbering We Will Go" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #4, "A-Lumbering We Go" (1 text, 1 tune, a mixed text starting with two stanzas of "Once More A-Lumbering Go" and continuing with a version of "Bung Yer Eye" minus the chorus)

RECORDINGS:
- Carl Lathrop, "Once More A-Lumbering Go" (AFS, 1938; on LC56)
- Lawrence Older, "Once More A-Lumbering Go" (on LOlder01)
- Pete Seeger, "Once More A-Lumbering Go" (on PeteSeeger29)

Once There Lived a Captain

DESCRIPTION: A sea captain sails before he can marry. He returns and finds the girl has left her father's house for a nunnery. There he finds she has gone to an asylum. At the asylum he finds she died the previous night. At her side he kills himself with his sword.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1967 (recording, John Reilly)

KEYWORDS: courting return separation death suicide father sailor

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES:
- Roud #591 and 7088

RECORDINGS:
- Jean "Sauce" Driscoll, "The Sea Captain" (on IRTravellers01)
- John Reilly, "Once There Lived a Captain" (on Voice17)
Once There Were Three Fishermen (The Three Jews)

DESCRIPTION: "Once there were three fishermen (x2), Fisher fisher men men men (x3) Once there were three fishermen." The three fishermen are named, and their voyages described

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)
KEYWORDS: fishing nonsense
FOUND IN: US(MW, Ro) Canada(Mar, Newf)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 176, "The Three Old Jews" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 185, "The Three Jews" (1 text)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #194, "Three Jews" (1 text)
Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 85, "Three Jolly Fishermen" (1 text, tune referenced) Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 240, "Once There Were Three Fishermen" (1 text)
Roud #3708 and 12776

NOTES [126 words]: This is rather confusing, because the change of one word significantly changes the song. In several texts (Gardner and Chickering, Greenleaf and Mansfield), the three heroes are Jews. But in Pankake, as well as the version printed by Silber, they are fishermen. The latter version is very much a children's song, I've only encountered only two versions of this, and they differ in most particulars: In the Silber version, the sailors are Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they sail for Amsterdam (with resulting comments about naughty words); Ed McCurdy sings a version with different sailors, in which Halifax is the destination. In this case, Roud splits the two versions. But the verse form, as well as the names of the characters, says they are the same. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.8
File: FSWB240A

Once They Said My Lips Were Red

DESCRIPTION: "Once they said my lips were red, Now they're scarlet pale, When I, like a silly girl, Beleiv'd his flattering tale. But he vow'd he'd never deceive me, And so fondly I believ'd he, While the stars and the moon So sweetly shone Over the willow tree"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1896 (Ditchfield)
KEYWORDS: courting infidelity
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 302, "Morris Fragment" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 215, "Oh! Once They Said My Lip Was Red")
ADDITIONAL: P.H. Ditchfield, Old English Customs Extant at the Present Time (London, 1896 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 125, ("Once they said my lips were red") (1 text)
Percy Manning, "Some Oxfordshire Seasonal Festivals" in Folk-Lore, Vol. VIII (1897 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 321, ("Once they said my lips were red") (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1331
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Willow Tree" (tune, per Ditchfield and Manning)
cf. "Willaim and Margaret" (one verse)
NOTES [98 words]: Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames lists this as a fragment but both Manning and Ditchfield have substantially the same text as a complete Morris song. Ditchfield and Manning: Listed under "Whitsuntide Customs" for Bampton Morris Dancers. Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames: "The eleventh verse of the ballad, 'William and Margaret,'... is similar ...." Versions vary but one text for the "William and Margaret" verse is "How could you say my lips were red, And make the scarlet pale? And why did I, young witless maid Believe thy flattering tale." Williams says his text may be older. - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: WT302A
Once You Get the Habit (You Can't Keep Still)

DESCRIPTION: "I've beat my way wherever any winds have blown, I've bummed along from Portland down to San Antone... For once you get the habit, why, you can't keep still." The singer describes both good places to visit and bad, but he always moves on

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (ArkansasWoodchopper)
KEYWORDS: travel nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ArkansasWoodchopper, p. 66, "The Habit" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #8036
RECORDINGS:
Arkansas Woodchopper [pseud. for Luther Ossenbrink] "The Habit" (Supertone 9664)

One and Twenty

DESCRIPTION: "My father was a farmer gay, With beef and corn in plenty, I hoed, I mowed, I held the plow, And I longed for one and twenty." Of age at last, the singer enlists. Army life makes him wish for home. He loses a leg, is captured, and goes home crippled

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: farming youth soldier battle injury home disability
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1761, "My Father Was a Farmer Good" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 96, "One and Twenty" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST GC096 (Partial)
Roud #3367
File: GC096

One Bottle More

DESCRIPTION: "Assist me, ye lads... To sing the praise of old Ireland's isle." England taunts our simplicity but we would share our last bottle. At Candy's six Irishmen had four bottles each, a fight brought a fifth and a resolve to have 12 bottles more the next night

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1815 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 10(10))
KEYWORDS: virtue drink Ireland
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 23, "One Bottle More" (1 text)
Roud #V18973
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 10(10), "Irish Hospitality", J. Whittle and R. H. Laurie (London), 1815
LOC Singing, sb40474a, "One Bottle More", Louis Bonsal (Baltimore), 19C
SAME TUNE:
Town and Country (broadside Bodleian Harding B 10(10))
File: 0Con923

One Bottle of Pop

DESCRIPTION: "One bottle (of) pop. Two bottles (of) pop. Three bottles (of) pop...." "Don't throw your junk in my back yard... my back yard's full." "Fish and chips and vinegar...." Composite children's round
AUTHOR: unknown
One Bumper at Parting

DESCRIPTION: "One bumber at parting! -- though many Have circled the board since we met." "As onward we journey, how pleasant To pause and inhabit a while The few sunny spots like the present." So drink; there won't be that many more chances
AUTHOR: Thomas Moore (1779-1852)
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster)
KEYWORDS: drink nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Moore-IrishMelodies-1846, pp. 109-111, "One Bumper at Parting" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, pp. 44-45, "One Bumper at Parting" (1 text)
Roud #12872
File: HMHS044C

One Cent for Coffee

DESCRIPTION: "It's one cent for coffee, Two cents for bread, Three for mince pie, And five for a bed. There's eighty-three boarders All packed at my door, And they paid their five cents For to sleep on the floor"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales)
KEYWORDS: home food money hardtimes
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 228, "(no title)" (1 short text)
Roud #6603
File: TNY228A

One Cold Winter's Morning

DESCRIPTION: Singer laments having to leave his love, perhaps never to return. (Friends try to persuade him to stay.) "When I lie down at night all for to take my rest/Trouble and sorrow still rolls across my breast." "O she is the only girl all in this world so wide"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Cecil Sharp collection)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer laments that he must leave his love and travel far away, perhaps never to return. (Friends try to persuade him to stay.) "When I lie down at night all for to take my rest/Trouble and sorrow still rolls across my breast." "For the first time I saw her I gained her by my charm/The second time I saw her I rolled her in my arms/O she is the only girl all in this world so wide/She is the only girl can ever be my bride"
KEYWORDS: grief loneliness courting love marriage sex parting travel lover
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 146, (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Roud #3626
NOTES [33 words]: Yes, the plot is well-worn and found in multiple other songs, but this one seems distinct; significantly, Sharp lists no relatives or antecedents, but he did find two versions,
One Day I Chanced to Rove
DESCRIPTION: The singer falls in love with a rich girl. Her friends slight him because he is poor. He says he is not interested in her gold. If she would agree "we'll live at our end aye each other please"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1881 (Christie)
KEYWORDS: courting love money nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #158, p. 2, ("As one day I chanced to rove"); #23, p. 2, ("One day I chanced to rove") (1 text plus 1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan5 965, "One Day I Chanced to Rove" (2 texts, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: W. Christie, editor, Traditional Ballad Airs (Edinburgh, 1881 (downloadable pdf by University of Edinburgh, 2007)), Vol II, pp. 228-229, "As One Day I Chanc'd to Rove" (1 tune)
Roud #6767
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Shady Grove
NOTES [131 words]: Greig #23: "... said to have been written by James Walker, Gonar Burn, and once popular in the New Pitsligo district. The first verse is as follows -- [text]. The stanza is the same as that of "Strichen's Plantins. I should not wonder if the tune was the same." Greig #158, quoting Christie's version in [Traditional Ballad Airs] [1876-1881]: "When we compare this ditty, which Christie takes to be incomplete, with "Brigtown's Plantins," we feel inclined to put the question -- Why should these two songs have so much likeness without having more?"
Christie: "The editor noted this Air, note for note, from the singing of 'Jennie Meesic' in 1851. The song given is what she sung to the Air. It appears to be a fragment." His version does not get beyond her disapproving friends. - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: GrD5965

One Day of Turkey and Six Days of Hash
DESCRIPTION: Philosophical; for every silver lining there's a dark cloud. "For one faithful friend there are dozens who sneer/For one happy laugh there is always a tear...For one gentle dog there are dozens that bite...For one day of turkey there's six days of hash."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)
KEYWORDS: warning humorous nonballad food dog
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 92, "One Day of Turkey and Six Days of Hash" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 93, "One Day of Turkey and Six Days of Hash" (1 text)
Roud #8848
NOTES [27 words]: This cynical little masterpiece is worthy of Tom Lehrer. - PJS
Beck claims that this was heard in Florida and along the Mississippi, but offers no evidence. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: Be092

One Dime Blues
DESCRIPTION: "I'm broke an' I ain't got a dime (x3) Ev'rybody gets in hard luck sometime." "You want your friend to be bad like Jesse James (x3) Git two six shooters, highway some passenger train." "One dime was all I had (x3) that was the meal before last."
AUTHOR: Blind Lemon Jefferson
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, Blind Lemon Jefferson)
KEYWORDS: hardtimes poverty money
One Evening Fair For To Take the Air

DESCRIPTION: "One evening fair for to take the air" the singer strays by Dublin's Bay and sees "a female form... more brighter far than the evening star, and they call her the Cailin Deas"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (O'Croinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)

KEYWORDS: beauty

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Croinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 113, "One Evening Fair For To Take the Air" (1 fragment)

NOTES [67 words]: O'Croinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin is a fragment of "The Cailin Deas" ("My true love's eyes are as bright" [p. 160]) recorded from Michael Cronin; as for Elizabeth Cronin's song-lists, this is only a title. In spite of shared lines, O'Croinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin says this fragment is "not to be confused with the Cailin Deas in no. 99 above ['My True Love's Face is as Bright']." - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: OCC113

One Evening So Clear

DESCRIPTION: "One morning so clear. In the meadows did pass, Her eye full of tear, A most beautiful lass." She asks, "O William... Why were you unkind? O why did you seek ANother than me?" She falls down in the grass and dies of love

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (Baring Gould collection)

KEYWORDS: love abandonment betrayal death

FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 29, "One Evening So Clear" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3311

File: Gund029

One Fine Day

DESCRIPTION: Floating verse song: "One fine day I went to mill, I got stuck on Badger's Hill; I hawed my horses... But to save my soul I couldn't get a start." "There was a frog lived in the spring." "The black cat spit in the white cat's eye." Etc.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Garnder/Chickering)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Floating verse song: "One fine day I went to mill, I got stuck on Badger's Hill; I hawed my horses... But to save my soul I couldn't get a start." "There was a frog lived in the spring." "The black cat spit in the white cat's eye." "Now maybe you think there's another verse To this here song, but there ain't." Chorus: "Oh where you come from, knock a nigger down, A wagon full of bum shells, knock....."

KEYWORDS: nonballad floatingverses

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Garnder/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 201, "One Fine Day" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3711

CROSS-REFERENCES:
One Fine Summer's Evening

DESCRIPTION: "One fine summer's evening as I walked along," the singer hears a girl singing. Her true lover meets and embraces her. They walk to a shady green. One of them promises to be true; only when the sun darkens, the stars fall, the earth moves will (s)he be untrue.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Nestler)
KEYWORDS: love, courting, separation, promise
FOUND IN: US (MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Harold Nestler, "Songs from the Hudson Valley" (article in _New York Folklore Quarterly_, Volume V, #2, Summer 1949), p. 92, "One Fine Summer's Evening" (1 short text)

NOTES: This has only four verses, and the only plot elements are the singer seeing the couple meet and they promising to be true. It is almost certainly a very defective version of something else, but most of the words are either commonplaces (e.g. the first line) or not like anything I can identify. Of all the countless songs of this type, the lyrics remind me most of "Tripping Over the Lea" [Laws P19] -- but that song is very rare in America. So I'm leaving this alone until and unless someone can identify it. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4

One Fish-Ball (One Meat Ball, The Lone Fish-Ball)

DESCRIPTION: A single man (who perhaps has abandoned his wife?) wanders into a restaurant, but finds he has only money for one (meat/fish) ball. Waiters and company abuse him, and he is told, "You get no bread with one fish ball"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1862 (parodied; see notes)
KEYWORDS: food, poverty
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (6 citations):
- Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 74-75, "The Lone Fish-Ball" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Botkin-TreasuryOfNewEnglandFolklore, pp. 580-584, "The Lone Fish-Ball" (2 texts, 1 tune, plus assorted items on the same theme)
- Heart-Songs, p. 433, "The Lone Fish-Ball" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 22, "One Fish Ball" (1 text, tune referenced)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 264, "One Fish Ball" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 15, "The Lone Fish-Ball" (1 text, 1 tune)

SAME TUNE:
- Two Freshmen ("Two Freshmen once, as green as grass, By Riley's restarant did pass") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 65)
- The Life Preserver ("There was a class went up and down") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 89)

NOTES: According to the Caxton Club (Chicago) edition of _Il Pescoballo_ (1899), the one-act opera buffa with Italian words by Francis James Child and English translation by James Russell Lowell was first performed in 1862 to raise money for the Civil War Sanitary Commission (precursor to the Red Cross). The authors of the _jeu d'esprit_, to quote Charles Eliot Norton's introduction, were originally given only as "Maestro Rossibello-Donimozarti."
"One Fish Ball," upon which the opera buffa was based, was written by a Harvard Latin professor, identified by Norton only as "Lane." It was a "local ballad which had had great vogue, written not many years before." Norton asserts Lane based the song on "an adventure of his own." The Caxton Club edition prints a tune, crediting it as a "volkslied." - EC

Lewis Becker adds that Loesser's Humor in American Song dates the song to about 1854 and claims it is "Founded on a Boston Fact." It appears that this claim may derive from Waite, who also says the story is "Founded on a Boston fact," and says it is printed by permission of R. Storrs Willis, who owned the copyright (but is not actually listed as the author).

Interestingly, although Waite says it is "Founded on a Boston Fact," the story he uses to explain the song is set in New York, where a certain restaurant served three buckwheat cakes for sixpence (sixpence? In a song placed in New York and written in the nineteenth century? Hm). A professor wants FIVE cakes. He is willing to pay ten pence -- i.e. two pennies per cake, which is the same per-cake cost as three for sixpence. But the professor is told that the restaurant only does transactions in multiples of sixpence, so he can have three cakes for sixpence, or he can have six for twelve, but not five cakes. He doesn't return.

It will be evident that it is rather a stretch to get from that to this song.

Dick Greenhaus reports that the "One Meat Ball" version was popularized by Josh White in the 1940s. Popularized enough, in fact, that they taught it in my grade school! - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: SRW074

One for Sorrow (Counting Magpies, Telling Fortunes)

DESCRIPTION: "One for sorrow, two for joy, Three for (a girl), four for (a boy), five for (silver), six for (gold)," and so on up to seven or ten or twelve. For telling fortunes by counting birds (magpies or crows).

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1895 (Denham Tracts); earliest version c. 1780 according to Simpson/Roud

KEYWORDS: bird nonballad prophecy

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North)) US(NE) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (9 citations):
Beck-FolkloreOfMaine, p. 79, "(One crow sorrow, Two crows joy)" (1 short text)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 21, "One for Sorrow" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #475 n. 32, pp. 210-211, "(One crow sorrow)"
Carey-MarylandFolkloreAndFolklife, p. 87, "(no title)" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Jacqueline Simpson and Steve Roud, _A Dictionary of English Folklore_, Oxford, 2000, pp. 222-223, (entry on magpies) (portions of four versions)
Marjorie Rowling, _The Folklore of the Lake District_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 106, "(One is for sorrow, but two for mirth)" (1 text plus variants)
Tony Deane and Tony Shaw _The Folklore of Cornwall_, B. T. Batsford, 1975, p. 66, "One [magpie] is sorrow, two is mirth" (1 excerpt)
Ron Young, _Dictionary of Newfoundland and Labrador_, Downhome Publishing Inc., 2006, p. 2836, "(One, for wet; two for dry)" (1 text plus an excerpt)

Roud #20096

NOTES [564 words]: As a rhyme, this seems to have been very common, especially in the north of England. Most versions are about magpies, but Beck's Maine version, from an area without magpies, uses it to count crows.

I have not encountered this as a proper song, but Dave Dodds used it as part of the source for the song "The Magpie," so the piece should probably be indexed to show what the original looked like. Readers should see Simpson and Roud for a good idea of the range of possible prophecies. For whatever reason, magpies seem to have been among the most "folkloric" of birds, and the stories seem to be ancient. They are not mentioned in the Bible (unless they are among the birds identified as unclean in Leviticus 11:13-19, Deuteronomy 14:12-18; several of these bird names cannot now be identified, but neither the King James Bible nor the New Revised Standard Version translate any of the names as "magpie" and the identifiable birds in the list are all flesh-eaters of the hawk and crow type; InterpretersDict, volume I, p. 439). But it is said to have been present in Noah's Ark -- and, depending on the version, either refused to enter the interior of the Ark, spending its time outside wisecracking (Simpson/Roud, p. 223) or was forced to leave the interior of the ship and journey on the mast because it chattered too much (Pickering, p. 183).
An Irish story reported by o Hogain, p. 36, says that the magpie is colored black and white because, when the birds went into mourning following the death of Jesus on the cross, the magpie did so only half-heartedly. Supposedly a battle in the sky between magpies and jackdaws forecast a battle between French and Bretons in the reign of Charles VIII of France (Hazlitt, p. 383) As in this fragment, seeing a single magpie is generally considered ill luck in Britain, but seeing two does not cause extreme misfortune (Simpson/Roud, p. 222). O hOgain, p. 36, reports that this belief is also found in Ireland -- and has a legend that the bird was brought there by Oliver Cromwell (this, presumably, reflects the Irish attitude toward the man who so abused them). Briggs, p. 311, has a story of "The Good Magpie," from Nottinghamshire. A man passes a house where a boy cries out that his mother is going to roast him in the oven. The man thinks the boy joking, and rides on -- but a magpie harasses him to turn back. He does -- and finds that the boy was telling the truth. Sometimes the word "magpie" was applied to things other than the bird. Partridge, p. 504, notes that it was sometimes used for Anglican bishops (presumably for their vestments), and that the word "magpie's nest" applies to the female genitalia. In China, however, the magpie was said to be a bringer of good luck: "In popular parlance, the magpie has always been called xi-qiao, i.e. 'joy-bringing magpie'. Its call heralds good news or the arrival of a guest" (Eberhard, p. 174). On the other hand, Eberhard goes on to tell the tale of the Cowherd and the Spinning Damsel, who could only meet once a year because the magpie was forgetful. Once a year, on the seventh day of the month, the magpies would build a bridge over the Milky Way to let the lovers meet. A picture of twelve magpies was apparently a way to express twelve particularly good wishes (Eberhard, p. 175). The magpie also plays a role in some Native American folktales (Jones-Larousse, p. 286). - RBW

Bibliography

- Briggs: Katherine Briggs,British Folktales (originally published in 1970 asA Dictionary of British Folk-Tales), revised 1977 (I use the 1977 Pantheon paperback edition)
- Hazlitt: W. C. Hazlitt,Dictionary of Faiths & Folklore, Reeves & Turner, 1905 (I use the 1995 Studio Editions paperback)
- InterpretersDict: [George Arthur Buttrick et al, editor],The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible, four volumes, 1962 (a fifth supplementary volume was published later)
- O hOgain: Daithi O hOgain,The Lore of Ireland, Boydell Press, 2006
- Partridge: Eric Partridge, A Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English (combined fifth edition with dictionary and supplement), Macmillan, 1961
- Pickering: David Pickering,The Cassell Dictionary of Folklore, Cassell, 1999

Last updated in version 4.5
File: BeFM079

One for the Blackbird

DESCRIPTION: Folk wisdom: "One for the blackbird, Two for the crow, Three for the cutworm, An' the rest for to grow."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923
KEYWORDS: harvest bird nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Randolph 275, "The Crow Song" (with only the "E" fragment belonging here)
  Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, p. 184, "One for the Hoe" (1 text)
Roud #21651
NOTES [46 words]: Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore explain this by saying, "Five grains of corn should be planted to each hill": they have one each for the hoe, crow, and cutworm, and two remaining to grow. Nonetheless it is clearly the same rhyme, if used in different circumstances.

- RBW

Last updated in version 5.2

File: R275E

One for the Money

DESCRIPTION: "One for the money, Two for the show, Three to get ready, And four to go"

Perhaps used to start a race

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (Bolton)

KEYWORDS: wordplay racing nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (3 citations):

Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, p. 118, "(One for the Money)" (1 text)

Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 384, "(One for the money)" (1 text in the notes to "One to make ready")

Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #656 note, p. 259, "(One for the money)"

Roud #16216

File: SaKo118A

One I Love, Two I Love

DESCRIPTION: Counting rhyme, usually for counting seeds or flower petals: "One I love, two I love, Three I love, I say. Four I love with all my heart, Five I cast away." And so forth, with different actions up to twelve or higher

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1883 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: nonballad love

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (4 citations):

Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 382, "One I love, two I love" (1 text)

Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #44, "Counting Apple-seeds" 1 text)

Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, p. 270, "(no title)" (1 short text)

Garland--NZ, p. 270, "(One I love, two I love, three I love, I say)" (1 short text, possibly derived from this)

ALTERNATE TITLES:

Counting Appleseeds

NOTES [45 words]: Jean Ritchie appears to have combined this with the lyrics of "I Love my Love (II)" to produce her song "One I Love." I am not sure this counting rhyme exists as a song on its own, but the connection to the Ritchie song was (just barely) enough reason to include it. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.3

File: 00x382

One Little Elephant

DESCRIPTION: "One elephant went out to play Upon a spider's web one day. He had such tremendous/enormous fun That he sent/called for another elephant to come." Repeat for two elephants, three elephants, ....

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)

KEYWORDS: playparty animal

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 99, "One Little Elephant" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: 0pGa099
One Little Frog

DESCRIPTION: "One little frog a-settin' on a log, Waitin' for its brother, Its eyes were red from the tears it had shed, And it jumped right into the water." Repeat indefinitely: "Another little frog a-settin' on a log...." Etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: animal brother separation nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
    Randolph 581, "One Little Frog" (1 text)
    Roud #7668
    File: R581

One Man Shall Mow My Meadow

DESCRIPTION: Singer states that various numbers of men shall mow her meadow and gather it together, as well as shear her sheep. The song is cumulative, hypnotic, and loaded with symbolism.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle)
KEYWORDS: cumulative nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South)) Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (9 citations):
    Sharp-OneHundredEnglishFolksongs 100, "One Man Shall Mow My Meadow" (1 text, 1 tune)
    Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 288, "Mowing Down the Meadow" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 280)
    Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 291, "The Counting Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
    Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 100, "One Man Shall Mow My Meadow" (1 text)
    Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #2, "I Had One Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
    Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 90, "Me One Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
    DT, ONEMANMW
ADDITIONAL: Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928, notes to #218, ("One man shall mow my meadow") (1 text)
    Maud Karpeles, _Folk Songs of Europe_, Oak, 1956, 1964, p. 50, "One Man Shall Mow My Meadow" (1 text, 1 tune)
    Roud #143
CROSS-REFERENCES:
    cf. "The Mower" (imagery)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
    Me One Man
    Mowing Down the Meadow
    One Man Shall Shear My Wethers
NOTES [31 words]: It's hard to decide whether there's a ritual element here, or whether the song itself is the ritual. -PJS
And here I thought it was just a dirty song covered with pastoral symbols.... - RBW
Last updated in version 4.2
File: ShH100

One Man's Hands

DESCRIPTION: "One man's hands can't break a prison down, Two men's hands can't tear a prison down, But if two and two and fifty make a million, we'll see that day come 'round." Similarly, "One man's voice can't shout to make them hear," etc., with topical references

AUTHOR: Words: Alex Comfort / Music: Pete Seeger
EARLIEST DATE: 1962
KEYWORDS: political nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
    Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 376-377, "One Man's Hands" (1 text, 1 tune)
One Misty, Moisty Morning

DESCRIPTION: Daniel courts Dolly, a milk maid. Before she will marry he must have her father and mother's consent. "Her parents being willing, all Parties was agreed, Her Portion thirtie shilling, they marry'd were with Speed" and have a public celebration.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1700 (Pills to Purge Melancholy, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes); tune from 1650 (Playford's The Dancing Master, according to Chappell); the Opies say that a broadside, "The Wiltshire Wedding" was printed c. 1680
KEYWORDS: courting dowry wedding father mother
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (5 citations):
  - Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 359, "One misty, moisty, morning" (2 texts)
  - Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #140, p. 114, "(One Misty, Moisty Morning)"
  - Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic I, p. 286, "The Friar and the Nun" (1 tune, which is clearly this although no lyrics are printed)
  - Cologne/Morrison-WiltshireFolkSongs, pp. 26-27, "The Wiltshire Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
  - DT, HOWDYEDO*

Roud #20075
BROADSIDES:
  - Bodleian, Douce Ballads 2(256b), "The Wiltshire Wedding Between Daniel Do-well and Doll the Dairy-maid" ("All in a misty morning"), unknown, n.d.
NOTES [76 words]: The description is from broadside Bodleian Douce Ballads 2(256b).
See "One Misty Moisty Morning" by Steeleye Span on "Parcel of Rogues." Chrysalis CHR 1046 (1973). - BS
The Digital Tradition notes that this tune is used in the Beggar's Opera. This appears to be a reference to Act II, Air 5, "Before the Barn Door Crowing," which has the tune "All in a misty morning" and ends with the lines
With how do you do, and how do you do,
And how do you do again. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0

One More Chance

DESCRIPTION: "Late last night, When the moon shone bright," the singer visits his honey. She declares she has gone to bed. He points out that he paid her rent, begs for one more chance, offers to take her to a ball. He then pulls out a ten dollar bill, and is admitted

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: sex courting home rejection money whore nightvisit
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  - Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 274-275, (no title) (1 text)

One More Day

DESCRIPTION: Shanty: "One more day, me johnnies, One more day, Come rock and row me over, Johnny, one more day." The voyage has been hard, the captain cruel, but the sailors are almost home and soon will be able to visit their girls

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Capt. John Robinson, "Songs of the Chantey Man")
KEYWORDS: shanty sailor home hardtimes
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (10 citations):
One More Kiss Before I Go

DESCRIPTION: "Such a happy girl am I, And I'll tell you the reason why": She has a love who is always courting her and asking for "One more kiss before I go." They will marry soon. She tells boys that girls expect "a loving kiss And a word or two like this..."

AUTHOR: R. E. Bays (source: Bays-Richmond [broadside, LOCSheet sm1871 10419])

EARLIEST DATE: 1871 (Bays-Richmond)

KEYWORDS: love courting marriage

FOUND IN: US(Ap,So,SE)

REFERENCES (7 citations):

Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 168-169, "One More Kiss Before I Go" (1 text)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, pp. 164-165, "Bye Bye My Darling" (1 text, 1 tune)
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 15, "The Merry Girl" (3 texts; the first text is from _Robert Jones Songster_ (New York, 18__); the second is a fragment of the Norwood text from _Birch & Backus Songs of the San Francisco Minstrels_ (New York, 187?)); the third is #15A colected by Browne in Alabama, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: Beard-Lunsford, pp. 617-618, "Goodbye Darling I Must Leave You" (1 text)
Crabtree, pp. 285-286, "Such a Happy Little Girl Am I!" (1 text)
Norwood, p. 35, "Good-bye, Darling, I Must Leave You" ("Oh I love a charming girl") (1 text)
Wiseman, pp.14-15, "Good Nite Darling" ("Sich a happy girl am I") (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #6375

RECORDINGS:

Clarence Greene, "Goodnight Darling" (Victor V40141, 1927; on "Birth of Country Music," Vintage Masters MP3 (2012))
Da Costa Woltz's Southern Broadcasters, "Merry Girl" (Gennett 6143, 1927; on "Da Costa Woltz's Southern Broadcasters," Document Records DOCD-8023 CD (1998))

BROADSIDES:

LOCSheet, sm1871 10419, "Good-night Darling" ("Such a happy girl am I"), G.D. Russell & Co (Boston), 1871 (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [4591 words]: He has teeth as white as pearls
And such darling little curls
Should we consider a song with those lines to be -- using Browne's term -- a "genuine folk song"?
Owens writes about his experiences in the early 1930s:
"I tried to interest the boys and girls I worked with in my songs, but they had never heard of them and did not like what they heard from me. They were busy singing 'Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Sheenan' and 'Yes, We Have No Bananas,' which were popular in the vaudeville shows at the Majestic Theater and on phonograph records" [fn.1]. A little more than thirty years before "Yes, We Have No Bananas" was first sung on a New York vaudeville stage "Good-night Darling" was being sung on an early New York burlesque stage. Owens included "Good-night Darling" as "Bye, Bye, My Darling" in the first edition, only, of Texas Folk Songs [fn.2].

Browne, who also included the song, as "The Merry Girl," writes in his Introduction: "[Pound and Barry] would accept as genuine folk song one which, regardless of origin, had (1) undergone certain textual and musical changes and had (2) become so much a part of folk culture that the members felt free to sing it as they had learned it without any self-conscious concern for its origin or its 'correct' version" [fn.3]. "Good-Night Darling" or "Bye, Bye, My Darling" or "The Merry Girl" meets that standard. The song text and tune are always recognizably some recasting of the writer-composer's original, but both words and tune change in every version.

This is what I know of the song's history. In 1871 a songsheet of "Good-night Darling," written and composed by R. E. Bays, as sung by Adah Richmond, was printed in Boston [fn.4]. Richmond played in Boston and, in the same year, brought her early burlesque troupe to New York City [fn.5]. She was on the New York stage in the early seventies -- the period that concerns us -- and later [fn.6]. Almost the same version, again attributed to R. E. Bays, and sung by Alice Dunning Lingard, was printed in "The Faded Coat of Blue Songster" in 1873 [fn.7]. Alice Dunning Lingard was an English actress and singer who toured with the Lingard family troupe and was also on the New York stage in the early seventies and afterwards [fn.8].

In 1875 "Good-Bye, Darling, I Must Leave You," as "sung with great success by the late Eddie Norwood," was printed in the "There's Millions In It Songster" [fn.9]. Norwood's version is also printed in 1873 in "Jennie Engel's Bouquet of Melodies Songster" [fn.10]. It was printed, also "as sung" by Eddie Norwood, in Frank Dumont's "Birch and Backus' Songs of the 'San Francisco Minstrels' Including All the Continuously Popular Pieces That Have Been Received With Boundless Applause From Maine to California, When Sung By This Great Troupe" [fn.11]. If Norwood were a member of the San Francisco Minstrels, a very popular troupe on the New York Stage from 1865-1883 [fn.12], it should have given his version a great boost. I find nothing showing that Norwood ever performed with the San Francisco Minstrels [fn.13]. The Norwood version entirely replaces every verse of the Bays song so that the singer tells about his 'girl Liz'; it only keeps the Bays chorus. None of the other versions show any influence of the Norwood version.

Bays's song was well enough known to earn a black-face adaptation in "Goodbye Darling," printed in the "The Robert Jones Songster." The lover's name is changed from "Harry Mortimer de Vere" to "Lilly Dusky Moore," a play on "lily"/'little" "dusky moor"[fn.14]. The words are not in dialect but are less "artful" than Bays's: "I am engaged to such a dear" becomes "I'm engaged to something sweet"; "he comes nearly ev'ry day" becomes "and it seems as every day"; "Oh young ladies when you find A young lover true and kind" becomes "Ladies, if you want to find Some gents that's good and kind"; "'Tis so nice to have a beau" becomes "Ain't it nice to have a beau"; "He has teeth as white as pearls And such darling little curls" becomes "and his teeth are white like pearl And his darling little curl."

I don't know of any other texts from the nineteenth century. The song appears to have been popular in some rural areas by the early nineteen hundreds. Bascom Lamar Lunsford (1882-1973) learned the chorus in 1904 and said it was a favorite with both boys and girls at outdoor gatherings [fn.15]. One of the two Alabama texts reported but not printed by Browne was learned about 1912 [fn.16] and the other was known by the contributor before 1903 [fn.17] [fn.18].

Owens (1905-1990) learned the song from his Oklahoma cousins [fn.19]. The spread of "Good-bye Darling" may illustrate points about distribution and change made by Cohen and Browne.

Cohen [fn.20] quotes an 1880 New York Herald article to illustrate the effect of troupe appearances on the popularity of "penny ballads" like "Good-night Darling" and -- with the history of "Grandfather's Clock" -- illustrates how a song no longer popular where printed can spread slowly throughout the rural areas where it has a chance to establish itself: "This ['Scotch Lassie, Jean,' Roud #21539], like a majority of the songs that appear in the penny ballad series, owes its present favor to being sung by a prominent minstrel troupe. A majority of the purchasers of the ballads are working girls, boys and young men who hear the verses sung at a theatre or social gathering, where they catch the melody, and at the expense of a cent for the words, are enabled to try their own vocal powers.... Singularity enough the most popular song outside of New York at present [1880] is 'Whoa Emma,' of unpleasant memory. 'Grandfather's Clock' also, having run its course in the city, is only now ticking its way through the rural districts, and thousands of orders for it come in every week. Another odd thing about this popular song. It was brought from England and published by the publisher [Wehman] as a failure, when suddenly it made a hit, and some idea of its subsequent popularity may be formed from the fact that a single publisher of sheet music disposed of 50,000 copies in that form.... A new penny ballad is published every day, and the mails are busy distributing this remarkable literature throughout the country" [fn.21].

Aside from the Norwood version the "Good-night Darling" texts are interesting for how they have changed. Aside from verses forgotten or omitted the texts are surprisingly similar; even the versions that reverse the sex of the singer do not change the "sense" of the song: no floating or new verses have been added and the intent of almost all lines remains unchanged, but almost all lines have been changed in ways that do not affect the intent. Bays's song text remains recognizable, verse for verse, in every text except Norwood's, but the words of each line are fluid. Browne explains why he believes these published texts change.

"The fact that literary songs have an existence frozen in art form ... does not alter their status as genuine folk songs. Their inclusion in a songster or other popular song book, furthermore, would not act as a corrective or stabilizing force. On the contrary, the fact that they were included in these cheap books would probably be license enough for the folk to take liberties with them. Songsters were too ephemeral to be regarded as sacrosanct. They probably served rather to introduce songs into a community than to stabilize those which they brought in" [fn.22].

The fragile nature of songsters [fn.23] would underline their role as introducer of songs. Once introduced, a song's survival in any form is problematic.

Three of the four "country" recordings of the song were made in 1927 [fn.24]; the fourth was made in 1930 [fn.25]. They seem entirely independent of each other, differing in text, tune and presentation.

Lulu Belle Wiseman's adaptation [fn.26] was printed in 1937, but I can't find that the song was ever recorded by the Wisemans.

The text Browne printed as #15A he collected in 1953 from an Alabama singer; "she claims her mother wrote it" [fn.27].

The versions, excluding the Norwood version, all retain the "sense" and form of the song, but the details vary from version to version.

To find the "sense" of the song I paraphrase it, couplet by couplet, or--if that isn't fine enough--line by line. If we look at the "sense" of the texts, again excluding the Norwood version, from a distance by paraphrasing them they are remarkably similar. With the sole exception of Woltz -- which has a substitution -- the changes in "sense" from the Bays original are all losses of text.

[And scholarship has shown that, even in written transmission, loss of text is the single most common mistake. - RBW]

Here is the Bays-Richmond text paraphrase. There is a chorus and four verses.

[chorus] Good night; one more kiss; he'll return tomorrow or else he'll write.
[1] the singer is happy to be engaged; the lover comes every day; he whispers when he goes
[2] the lover has wonderful teeth and a darling curl; the singer tells the lover's name; when they are married she won't have to hear his words [the chorus]
[3] advice to ladies: when you find a lover who's true and kind it will make you happy to have a beau to pet and love you and kiss at the door.
[4] advice to gentlemen: when you must leave your sweetheart remember a kiss and say before you part [the chorus]

Here is a paraphrase of the Norwood text:

[chorus] Good night; one more kiss; he will return tomorrow or else he'll write.
[1] he loves a charming girl; he'll do nothing wrong; he brings her here every night to hear [the chorus]
[2] pretty Liz stole his heart; other chaps envy him that when they part he sings [the chorus]
[3] when he meets her he is sure to kiss her; such waist, cheeks and face: she's too good for this world.
[4] tonight he'll propose; he'll be happy when she agrees to wed and his cares will end.
[spoken] "Ah, my dear boys, I sha'n't have to say then" [the chorus]

The Bays-Richmond [1871] text is the earliest but also the "most complete" in the sense that none of the later texts--except Norwood--add verses.

Four of the other texts have the same paraphrased structure as Bays-Richmond: Lingard [1873], Henry [1930], Smith [1930] and Browne [1953].

At the paraphrase level, Woltz, Greene and Wiseman differ from Bays-Richmond in what they lose from, or how they change, the "advice" verses [3] and [4].
Woltz, the closest to Bays-Richmond, retains [4] advice to gentlemen, but changes [3] advice to ladies from [3] when you find a lover who's true and kind it will make you happy to have a beau to pet and love you and kiss at the door.
to
[3] when you find a lover who's true and kind it will make you happy; every night he'll come and go;
he'll give the word as he goes [the chorus]
Greene and Wiseman -- which are identical at the paraphrase level -- omit [4] advice to gentlemen, but take its ending to replace the ending for their [3] advice to ladies:
[3] advice to ladies: when you find a lover who's true and kind -- when you find one good and true -- remember a kiss and [he'll] say before you part [the chorus]
Crabtree, RobertJones and Foster are like Bays-Richmond in their treatment of [3] advice to ladies, but leave out other verses or parts of verses. advice to gentlemen, and Foster truncates [2] the lover's description to [2] the lover has wonderful teeth and a darling curl; the singer tells the lover's name.
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed has only the chorus and parts of the first two verses, and [2] precedes [1]
[2] the lover has wonderful teeth and a darling curl; the singer tells the lover's name.
[1] the lover comes every day; he whispers when he goes
Beard-Lunsford is just the chorus, which is included for Norwood as well as the other texts.
Imagine a tree that shows how the texts are related at the paraphrase level, but has nothing to do with how the texts evolved:
Beard-Lunsford, which is just the chorus, is just above the root. The chorus is in every text, so all routes from the root to the branch ends pass through Beard-Lunsford.
From there
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed branches one way;
Norwood branches another way.
The Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed branch itself splits:
through Foster, RobertJones and Crabtree;
through Greene/Wiseman, Woltz, and Bays-Richmond [and Lingard, Henry, Smith, and Browne, which have the same paraphrased structure as Bays-Richmond].
It is the Wiseman/Greene branch that reaches Bays-Richmond, the original text [fn.28].
The "paraphrase level" may seem too broad, grouping too many versions as "the same thing."
Comparing texts at the "detail level" may seem to be at the other extreme, separating versions on trivial grounds.
In comparing texts I ignore differences in spelling but not in how a line is phrased.
For example, the two versions that are based on Bays's sheet music are very close, but not identical.
The only difference that I found I disregarded as a "spelling difference":
Bays-Richmond: 'Tis the pleasure of my life
Lingard: It's the pleasure of my life
Two versions that are identical at the paraphrase level but differ at the detail level are Greene and Wiseman. They are close enough that Lulu Belle Wiseman's version may have been based on Greene's recording, though her tune is simpler.
[chorus]...; he'll write.
Greene: Just a word or two to let my darling know
Wiseman: A line or two to let my darling know
[2] the lover has wonderful teeth and a darling curl; the singer tells the lover's name; when they are married she won't have to hear his words [the chorus]
Greene: He comes home most every day
Wiseman: He comes almost ev'ry day [a possible mondegreen copy]
... And such darling yeller curls
And his name is Alexander David Lee
He's the joy of all my life
And I'm soon goin' to be his wife
Then those words I no longer have to hear

[3] advice to ladies: ....
Greene: Now young ladies bear in mind
Wiseman: Now young girls all bear in mind
Greene and Wiseman illustrate one of the common points of departure from an agreed upon reading; there is almost no agreement about the lover's name:
Bays-Richmond and Lingard: His name is Harry Mortimer de Vere [fn.29].
Browne: His name is Harry Martin ....
Foster: And her name excuse me friends I will not tell
Greene: And his name is Harry Martin Davy-o
Henry: And his name is written everywhere
Owens 1ed: And his name which I call o'er every day
RobertJones: And his name is Lilly Dusky Moore
Smith: And her love is with me every where I go
Wiseman: And his name is Alexander David Lee
Woltz: And his name I cannot tell you but I know
Smith and Foster would have a problem here because they have made the singer a man. While their paraphrase follows Bays-Richmond closely, their detail level resolution is to dodge the naming problem altogether.
For "the singer tells the lover's name," Browne and Greene are close but, as noted above, their paraphrase structure is significantly different. Perhaps that is just a function of forgotten verses and lines. I would expect them, having agreed on the name, to be very close on lines they shared. Here their common paraphrase lines are compared with each other amid with the original Bays text:
[chorus] ...; he'll return tomorrow or else he'll write.
Bays-Richmond: I'll be here tomorrow night
Browne: I'll be here tomorrow night
Greene: I'll be back tomorrow night

[1] ... ; the lover comes every day; he whispers when he goes
Bays-Richmond: He comes nearly every day/ and when he goes away/ these words he always whispers in my ear
Browne: he comes nearly every day/ and when he goes away/ these words he always whispers in my ear
Greene: he comes home most every day/ and before he goes away/ he always whispers in my ear

[2] ... ; when they are married she won't have to hear his words [the chorus]
Bays-Richmond: 'Tis the pleasure of my life/ That I'm soon to be his wife/ For these words I shall no longer have to hear
Browne: he's the pleasure of my life/ For I'm soon to be his wife/ Then those words I'll no longer have to hear
Greene: He's the joy of all my life/ And I'm soon to be his wife/ Then these words I'll no longer have to hear
[3] advice to ladies: when you find a lover who's true and kind it will make you happy to have a beau ....
Bays-Richmond: Oh young ladies when you find/ A young lover true and kind/ You cannot be more happy I am sure/ 'Tis so nice to have a beau
Browne: Oh young ladies when you find/ A young lover true and kind/ You cannot be more happy I am sure/ For it's nice to have a beau
Greene: Now young ladies bear in mind/ A true lover's hard to find/ When you find one you know / That's good and true
[4] advice to gentlemen: ...; remember a kiss and say before you part [the chorus]
Bays-Richmond: You had best remember this/ She expects a sweeter kiss/And a word or two like this before you part Browne: You had best remember this/ She'll expect a sweeter kiss/ And a word or two like this Greene: It is best remember this/ He expects another kiss/ And another word or two before he goes
Where lines are shared, Browne is very close to Bays-Richmond, and not so close to Greene. That is not too surprising since Browne and Bays-Richmond were identical at the paraphrase level.
As written by R. E. Bays, "Good-night Darling" is sung by a woman with a chorus "as if" sung by a woman. As a result it is a simple matter to change the verses so the song would entirely be "as if" sung by a man. Of the four recordings, all made by men, two -- Smith and Foster -- change the sex of the singer to male. They make simple changes to Bays text.

[1] the singer is happy to be engaged; the lover comes every day; he whispers when he goes
Bays-Richmond: Such a happy girl am I/ I will tell the reason why/ 'Tis because I am engaged to such a dear/ He comes nearly ev'ry day/ And when he goes away/ These words he always whispers in my ear
Foster: Such a happy boy [boid?] am I/ And I'll tell you the reason why/ Just because I go to see a pretty little girl/ Go to see her ev'ry Sunday night/ Just before I go away/ And this is what I whisper in her ear and say
Smith: Such a happy boy am I/ And I'll tell you the reason why/ Is because that I'm engaged to such a dear/ I go there most every day/ And when I go away/ These are the words I whisper in her ear

[2] the lover has wonderful teeth and a darling curl; the singer tells the lover's name; when they are married she won't have to hear his words [the chorus]
Bays-Richmond: He has teeth as white as pearls/ And such darling little curls/ His name is Harry Mortimer de Vere/ 'Tis the pleasure of my life/ That I'm soon to be his wife/ For these words I shall no longer have to hear
Foster: O her teeth are just like pearls/ She's a darling little girl/ And her name excuse me friends I will not tell/ Go to see her ev'ry Sunday night/ Just before I go away/ And this is what I whisper in her ear and say
Smith: She has teeth as white as pearls/ She is such a darling girl/ And her love is with me every where I go/ She's the joy of my life/ And she's set to be my wife/ And these the words I'll no longer have to say

Where lines are shared, Smith is closer to Bays-Richmond than to Foster. That is not too surprising since Smith and Bays-Richmond were identical at the paraphrase level. The Foster version has generally drifted further away from the original text.

I have tunes for Bays-Richmond, Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, Wiseman, and the four recordings: Woltz, Foster, Greene and Smith.

The tunes are all recognizably the same but Bays, with its succession throughout of dotted fourths and eighths, is the most complex.
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed and Wiseman simplify the tune into a succession of fourths. No one quite gets the first two lines of the chorus and no two tunes for those lines agree. Greene comes closest to the verse -- closer than Wiseman -- and that argues against Wiseman trying to cover Greene's version; on the other hand it may be that Lulu Belle Wiseman liked Greene's tune and decided to simplify it.

Browne, thinking to state Pound and Barry's position, "would accept as genuine folk song one which, regardless of origin, had (1) undergone certain textual and musical changes and had (2) become so much a part of folk culture that the members felt free to sing it as they had learned it without any self-conscious concern for its origin or its 'correct' version." "Good-night, Darling" began as a song on the Boston and New York burlesque stage, was printed with some adaptation on song sheet and songster, achieved some level of popularity in the South East, Appalachians, and South, and was recorded four times we know of. The singers all retained the "sense" and form of the song, but the words and tune seem never to have been captured twice the same way. "Good-bye, Darling" seems to satisfy the test. Is that enough to allow us to classify this as a "genuine folk song"?

78 RPM references and dates for Da Costa Woltz, John D Foster, Clarence Greene and McDaniels and Smith from MeadeSpottswoodMeade, pp. 122-123. MeadeSpottswoodMeade is my primary source for references and recordings. - BS

FOOTNOTES
[12] McCoy; Toll, pp. 149-152, 167, 186; Brown2, pp. 120-121; Brown3, p. 210; Rice, pp. 18, 46,
Brown2, pp. 121-122 lists the members of the Minstrels in New York from 1865-1869; not found in Rice [fn.11 lists all references to members of the San Francisco Minstrels from the time they moved to New York]; there is a "Dutch" Eddie Norwood on the New York Stage in 1873: NYClipper-1873-1, NYClipper-1873-2.

Through Calpe's straits survey the steepy shore; Europe and Afric on each other gaze! Lands of the dark-e'y'd Maid and dusky Moor Alike beheld beneath pale Hecate's blaze:

Byron, p. 72 Canto 2.22. [1812]

Whether or not "dusky moor" was a commonplace before Byron, it was one afterwards, in the United States as well as England, sometimes in describing Othello:

from a report from "Central África" in a journal of the American Colonization Society: "You see him [the Negro] mingling with the dusky Moor, the olive coloured Arab, and the tawney Egyptian...." AfricanRepository, p. 372 [1827]; from a direct quote of Byron in an American short story. Leggett, pp. 38-39 [1834]; from an American insurance agents' periodical: "Othello, when weaving his yarn in the presence of Desdemona and her father, says: 'Wherein I speak of most disastrous chances, of moving accidents by flood and field,' but he says nothing of having been insured against them. There were not so many accident insurance companies then as now, and all things considered we guess the pesky and dusky Moor was an extra hazardous risk anyhow." Kellogg, p. 116 [1896].

Beard-Lunsford, p. 617.

Browne, #15B, p. 73.

Browne, #15C, p. 73.

Browne #15B and #15C are references to versions Browne had when he edited the book; the texts are not available in the Ray B Browne Collection at Bowling Green University in Ohio according to personal correspondence Nov 6, 2014.

Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, p. 164.

Cohen, p. 154.

NYHerald-1880.

Browne, pp. 13-14.

Cohen, p. 147.

Foster; Greene; Woltz.

Smith.

Browne, p. 72.

The tree, as I describe it, is oversimplified. There are at least two ways to interpret trees. The "phenetic" way is to consider apparent similarities among the texts in deciding how the texts relate to each other. The "phylogenetic" way is to consider strictly evolutionary principles to determine how the texts developed sequentially.

In this case I am not interested in finding how the texts evolved and determining what the original text looked like. In a "phylogenetic" tree Bays-Richmond is at the root and later-developing texts are progressively further away from the root. In my "phenetic" tree Bays-Richmond and Norwood are furthest from the root, carrying -- as they do -- almost all the elements of different versions. Beard-Lunsford, as noted, being only the chorus, and the chorus being included in all other texts, is closest to the root. The remaining texts are progressively further from the root, and closer to Bays-Richmond, as they become more "complete" (In this approach, every text -- not acknowledged by the singer to be only part of what she knows as the text -- is considered to be complete). Even so, people building trees, whether phenetic or phylogenetic, have the same serious problem: there are few cases in the real world that can accurately be represented as trees. Consider the phylogenetic problem of having the same mutation appear on two separate branches of a tree. Perhaps there has been a previously unsuspected hybridization, or perhaps there is something that makes the independent occurrence of the mutation likely, or perhaps this is just a chance occurrence. How should the tree be modified to reflect this situation? The "Good Night Darling" paraphrase level tree has an analogous problem. Woltz and Bays-Richmond are at the end of one branch and Crabtree is at the end of another. All three have [4] advice to gentlemen, and no texts closer to the root than they are have that verse. Of course, change by hybridization on the one hand and by forgetting on the other are accepted as frequent occurrences for song texts and there is no problem accepting those as causes of the change; the problem of representing the situation is exactly the same for phenetic and phylogenetic problems. In the "Good Night Darling" problem a solution would be to have cross-branches directly connecting Woltz and Bays-Richmond on one end to Crabtree on the other.

The software I use as an aid in comparing texts provides such cross-branches. At the paraphrase level, for this song, the result is a sort of web stretched between the Greene branch, ending at Bays-Richmond, and the Foster branch ending at Crabtree. At the detail level the picture is more complicated.

The software I use is SplitsTree4. If you care to investigate it I recommend starting with Huson-Rupp-Scornavacca.

[29] In Bays's Boston the de Vere name may have indicated "high class" but have had no such meaning on the streets of New York or in rural America.

A note from Bob Waltz: "The name 'de Vere' was probably chosen just for the rhyme, but there is a peculiar significance. The de Vere family held the Earldom of Oxford for "twenty generations" in the Middle Ages and after. The only family to have done something similar is the Howard Dukes of Norfolk, and that's much more recent -- they weren't all that close to the record when 'One More Kiss' was written. The tag phrase 'the Vere de Vere' refers to the ability of the de Veres to hang on to their earldom. To be the 'Vere de Vere' means to have an impeccable pedigree." - BS

Bibliography

- Bays-Richmond: LOCSheet, sm1871 10419, "Good-night Darling" ("Such a happy girl am I"), G.D. Russell & Co (Boston), 1871 (1 text, 1 tune)
- Cohen: Norm Cohen, "Henry J. Wehman and Cheap Print in Late Nineteenth-Century America" in David Atkinson and Steve Roud, editors, Street Ballads in Nineteenth-Century Britain, Ireland, and North America (Surrey: Ashgate Publishing Limited, 2014)
- Crabtree: Lillian Gladys Crabtree, Songs and Ballads Sung in Overton County, Tennessee: a Collection (Nashville: George Peabody College for Teachers (Unpublished Thesis- M.A.), 1936)
- Lingard: Faded Coat of Blue Songster (Philadelphia: The Central News Company, 1873)
- McCoy: Sharon D McCoy, "'The Trouble Begins at Eight': Mark Twain, the San Francisco Minstrels, and the Unsettling Legacy of Blackface Minstrelsy" in American Literary Realism, Vol. 41, No. 3, Special Issue on Mark Twain (Spring, 2009)
- Norwood: There s Millions In It Songster (New York: R.M. De Witt, 1875)
- NYClipper-1873-1: "Theatrical Record - City Summary" in The New York Clipper (New York, July 19, 1873), p. 6
- NYClipper-1873-2: "Theatrical Record - City Summary" in The New York Clipper (New York, September 6, 1873), p. 2
One More River to Cross

DESCRIPTION: Counting up the contents of Noah's Ark: "The animals went in one by one... two by two... three by three...," often with odd groups listed. Chorus: "One more river, and that is the river Jordan, One more river (for) to cross." Or "Wasn't that a wide river"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute); this is the "Wide River" version

KEYWORDS: Bible animal nonballad

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE,So)

REFERENCES (11 citations):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 98-99, "Oh, Wasn't Dat a Wide River?" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 194 in the 1874 edition; a "Wide River" type)
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 47, "Wide River" (1 text, a "Wide River" type)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 455, "One More River to Cross" (1 short text)
Randolph 294, "One More River" (2 texts, 1 tune, both "Ark" versions)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 250-252, "One More River" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 294A)
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 60, "One More River" (1 short text, 1 tune); p. 62, "Jordan's River I'm Bound to Cross" (1 short text, 1 tune, too brief to determine whether it is this or something else; I would guess it is a mixture of two songs)
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol3, pp. 10-11, "One More River" (1 text, 1 tune, an "Ark" version)
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 308, "One More River" (1 text, 1 tune, an "Ark" version)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 392, "One More River to Cross" (1 text, an "Ark" version)
DT, ONEMORER

ADDITIONAL: Edward Harrigan, _The Mulligans_, G. W. Dillingham, 1901, p. 369, "(no title)" (2 verses plus the chorus, possibly rewritten)

Roud #4458 and 12088

RECORDINGS:
Lt. Jim Europe's Four Harmony Kings, "One More Ribber to Cross" (Pathe 22187, 1919)
Uncle Dave Macon, "One More River to Cross" (Bluebird B-5842, 1935)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Uncle Noah" (lyrics)
cf. "Who Built the Ark?" (floating lyrics)

SAME TUNE:
One More Battle to Fight ("The car of progress rolls along, One more battle to fight") (Foner, p. 166)

NOTES [91 words]: Cohen notes that a piece, "Dar's One More Ribber for to Cross" was composed in 1881, with words by James Husey and music by Thomas P. Westendorf. I am unable to verify that this is the same as this song.

Roud splits this into two pieces, both with the same chorus but with different verses. The Noah's Ark type texts appear to be #4458; those which speak primarily of the river itself ("Oh, wasn't that a wide river, River Jordan, Lord, Wide River") are #12088. I've tried to label the texts, but some are too short for this to be possible. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0
File: R294

One Morning in May (To Hear the Nightingale Sing) [Laws P14]

DESCRIPTION: A (soldier) and a pretty girl meet; they chat and he plays on the fiddle for her. When she asks him to play more, he says it is time to leave. She asks him to marry; he already has a wife and children

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety)

KEYWORDS: soldier courting separation marriage fiddle

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW,NE,SE,So) Britain(Scotland,England(Lond,North,South)) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (54 citations):
Laws P14, "The Nightingale (One Morning in May)"
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 185, "The Nightingales Sing" (1 text, 1 tune)
Copper-SongsAndSouthernBreezes, pp. 210-211, "To Hear the Nightingales Sing" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 495, "To Hear the Nightingale Sing" (1 text)
OShaughnessy-MoreFolkSongsFromLincolnshire 2, "The Bold Grenadier" (1 text, 1 tune)
Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #93, "The Grenadier and the Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #77, "Bold Grenadier" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brocklebank/Kindersley-DorsetBookOfFolkSongs, p. 21, "Grenadier and Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 239-244, "The Nightingale" (3 texts plus 2 excerpts and a reference to 1 more, 2 tunes)
Randolph 58, "One Morning in May" (3 texts plus 1 fragment and 1 excerpt, 1 tune plus a fragment)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 13, "One Morning in May" (1 text plus a fragment and mention of 2 more)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 13, "One Morning in May" (5 tunes plus excerpts of texts)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #192, "The Nightingale" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Abrahams/Riddle-ASingerAndHerSongs, pp. 23-25, "The Nightingale Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 97, "The Nightingale" (1 text, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 60-61, "I Was Out Walking" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee 14, pp. 27-28, "One Morning in May" (1 text, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, p. 95, "The Soldier and the Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, p. 31, "The Soldier and the Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
Scarborough-ASongCatcherInSouthernMountains, pp. 310-311, "One Morning in May" (2 texts, with local titles "See the Waters Gliding," "One Morning, One Morning, One Morning in May"; 2 tunes on pp. 438-439)
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 103, "One Morning in May" (1 text, 1 tune)
Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, pp. 81-82, "The Nightingale" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Olney-BalladsMigrantInNewEngland, pp. 164-165, "The Banks of Low Lee" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 594-595, "The Soldier and the Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
Karpeles-FolkSongsFromNewfoundland 77, "The Nightingale" (1 text, 2 tunes)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 744-745, "One Morning in May (The Nightingale)" (1 text)
Wyman/Brockway-LonesomeSongs-KentuckyMountains-Vol1, p. 68, "The Nightingale" (1 text, 1 tune)
Thomas-DevilsDitties, pp. 112-113, "Nightingale" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, p. 92, "The Nightingale" (1 text)
Cox/Hercog/Halpert/Boswell-WVirginia-A, #24A-C, pp. 94-98, "The Nightingale," "One Morning in May" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
Bush-FSoCentralWestVirginiaVol2, pp. 73-75, "The Brave Volunteer" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 122-123, "One Morning in May" (1 text, 1 tune)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 40, "One Morning in May" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 130, "A Bold, Brave Bonair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 145, "The Nightingale" (5 texts, 5 tunes)
Sharp/Karpeles-EightyEnglishFolkSongs 47, "The Nightingale" (1 text, 1 tune -- a composite version)
Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 40, "The Bod Grenadied, or The Nightingale" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wells-TheBalladTree, p. 222, "The Nightingale" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-TheOldiomOfThePeople 17, "The Bold Grenadier" (4 texts)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 40-41, "See the Waters A-Gliding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 136-138, "One Morning in May" (2 texts, 1 tune, but only the "A" text is this piece; the "B" text is "The Rebel Soldier")
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 198, "The Wild Rippling Water" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, pp. 52-53, "Fiddling Soldier" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 3, "The Wild Rippling Water" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hodgart-FaberBookOfBallads, p. 237, "The Wild Rippling Water" (1 text)
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 45, "The Lady and the Soldier" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
Warner-FolkSongsAndBalladsOfTheEasternSeaboard, pp. 41-42, "One Morning in May" (1 text)
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 68-70, "The Nightingale" (1 text, 1 tune)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 137-138, "One Morning in May" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 166, "One Morning In May (The Nightingale)" (1 text)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN277, "As I went forth one Sun-Shining day"
DT 340, NTNGALE NTNGALE2* NTNGALE3* NTNGALE4
ADDITIONAL: Sing Out magazine, Volume 22, #2 (1973), p. 18, "The Brave Volunteer" (1 text, 1 tune, the Bob Beers version)
Roud #140
RECORDINGS:
Raymond & John Cantwell, "The Soldier and the Lady" (on FSB02, FSB2CD)
Liam Clancy, "The Nightingale" (on IRLClancy01)
Coon Creek Girls, "The Soldier and the Lady" (Vocalion 05404, 1940; rec. 1938)
Bill Cox, "Fiddling Soldier" (Melotone 7-08-70, 1937)
Betty Garland, "One Morning in May" (on BGarland01)
Mrs. Jack [Vera] Keating, "The Weaver" (on Ontario1)
Neil Morris, "The Irish Soldier and the English Lady" (on LomaxCD1707)
Howard Morr, "The Soldier and the Lady" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
New Lost City Ramblers, "Soldier and the Lady" (on NLCR13)
Shorty & Juanita Sheehan, "The Soldier and the Lady" (on FineTimes)
Marvin Thornton & Fort Thomas group, "The Soldier and the Lady" (AFS, 1938; on KMM)
Doug Wallin, "The Nightingale" (on Wallins1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Gentleman Soldier" (plot)
cf. "Across the Blue Mountains" (theme)
cf. "The Crystal Spring" (plot)
cf. "1913 Massacre" (tune)
cf. "Harbour Le Cou" (theme)
cf. "The Nightingale (IV) (As I walked out one May morning my fortune for to seek)" (plot)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Bold Grenadier
The Nightingale's Song, or the Soldier's Rare Musick and Maid's Recreation
File: LP14
One Night As I Lay On My Bed

DESCRIPTION: Singer dreams of his love; the dreams torment him so much that he goes out and calls at her window, bidding her to let him in. She demurs, saying her parents will punish her. He says they're asleep and won't hear; she lets him in.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1803 (Scots Musical Museum)
KEYWORDS: courting sex nightvisit
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South),Scotland) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
  VaughanWilliams/Lloyd-PenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs, p. 79, "One Night as I Lay On My Bed" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 425, "Whisper, My Love, Do" (1 text)
  Karpeles-FolkSongsFromNewfoundland 81, "Go From My Window" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 101, "Open the Window" (1 text)
  DT, LAYBED*
Roud #672
RECORDINGS:
  Ewan MacColl and Peggy Seeger, "One Night as I Lay On My Bed" (on ENMacCollSeeger02)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "Farewell to Bonny Galaway" (lyrics, theme).
  cf. "Go From my Window, Go"
  cf. "The Waters of Dee" (theme)
NOTES [21 words]: [The earliest known version of this was a] fragment found by Burns [and] published in Johnson's "The Scots Musical Museum." - PJS
Last updated in version 2.7
File: VWL079

One Night in Cleveland (A Canal Dance)

DESCRIPTION: "One night in Cleveland we had a dance On the weight-lock platform we did prance." Even the mules and chickens try to join the festivities. Old men think they are young again. The singer, despite being "up in years," will stick with canalling

AUTHOR: probably adapted, and possibly written, by Pearl R. Nye
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (OHS)
KEYWORDS: dancing animal music nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  ADDITIONAL: [no author listed], Scenes & Songs of the Ohio-Erie Canal, Ohio Historical Society, 1971, "A Canal Dance" (1 text, 1 tune, from Pearl R. Nye)
Roud #4953
File: OHSOnNCl

One Night Sad and Languid (Dream of Napoleon)

DESCRIPTION: "One night sad and languid I went to my bed... When a vision surprising came into my head... I beheld that rude rock... O'er the grave of the once-famed Napoleon." The singer recalls the deeds of Napoleon and how he was "sold... by treachery."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1847 (Journal of William Histed of the Cortes); before 1854 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 16(77b))
KEYWORDS: Napoleon dream death freedom
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
  Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 215-216, "One Night Sad and Languid" (1 text)
  Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #63, "A Dream of Napoleon" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 207, "Napoleon's Dream" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 135-137, "Napoleon's Dream" (1 text, 1 tune)
One of the Has-Beens

DESCRIPTION: "I'm one of the has-beens, a shearer I mean. I once was a ringer and I used to shear clean... But you may not believe me, for I can't do it now." The shearer recalls the greats he used to shear with, and remains determined to shear as long as he can

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Stewart/Keesing, _Old Bush Songs_)
KEYWORDS: sheep work age
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 156-157, "One of the Has-Beens" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fahey-PintPotAndBilly, pp. 48-49, "One of the Has-Beens" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ward-PenguinBookOfAustralianBallads, pp. 125-126, "One of the Has-Beens" (1 text)

ST FaE156 (Full)

RECORDINGS:
John Greenway, "One of the Has-Beens" (on JGreenway01)

File: FaE156

One Of These Days (I)

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Soon shall be done with the crosses (Trouble of the world, crosses) When the Lord calls me home." Verse: "Sister (Brother) x, one of these days, my sister (brother) one of these days (x2), When the Lord calls me home"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealIslands)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
One of Tonight

DESCRIPTION: "One of tonight! We will all pray together Like de one of tonight." "Moan, oh, moan, We will all moan together... Ninety and nine and de ninety-ninth...." "Shout, oh, shout." "Bow... Like de Israelites bow." "Pray... Like de Israelites." "Cry...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 625, "One of Tonight" (1 text)

One Potato Two Potato

DESCRIPTION: "One potato, two potato, three potato, four, Five potato, six potato, seven potato, more." Other verses, if any, may refer to all good children going to heaven, or Nellie giving cherries to the poor

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1918 (Journal of American Folklore, according to Coffin & Cohen)
KEYWORDS: playparty food nonballad children
FOUND IN: US(MW,SE) Britain(Scotland) Ireland Canada New Zealand
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 94, "(One potato, two potato)" (1 text)
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, p. 118, "(One potato)" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Tristram P. Coffin and Hennig Cohen, _Folklore in America: Tales, Songs, Superstitions, Proverbs, Riddles, Games, Folk Drama and Folk Festivals_, Doubleday, 1966, p. 190, "(One, Two Three)" (1 text)
Edith Fowke, _Red Rover, Red Rover: Children's Games Played in Canada_, p. 17, "One Potato, Two Potato" (1 text with description of how it is used as a counting rhyme)
Gwenda Beed Davey and Graham Seal, _A Guide to Australian Folklore_, Kangaroo Press, 2003, p. 77, "(One potato, two potato" (1 text

One Pound Two

DESCRIPTION: "Now, Maggy dear, it's I do hear you have been on the spree." Johnny asks his wife for an accounting of how she spends his salary of one pound two. She lists it all: meal, potatoes, sugar.... Nothing is wasted or unaccounted. He is satisfied.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1852 (broadside, NLScotland, LC.Fol.187.A.2(052))
KEYWORDS: virtue dialog wife money food
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
O’Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 20, "One Pound Two" (1 text)
One Ship Drives East

DESCRIPTION: Round. "One ship drives east and one ship drives west, By the south-same winds that blow, Yet the set of the sails and not the gale (x20 Determines the way-i-aye-i-aye, That determines the way she goes."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)

KEYWORDS: ship nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, pp. 100-101, "One Ship Drives East" (1 text)

Roud #15670

NOTES [79 words]: Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin files this among the nautical songs. Yet every other song in this section of the book is well-attested -- a handful of shanties known (mostly from Walton) to have been sung on the Great Lakes, several midwestern occupational songs, and a number of old ballads. This song is none of those things. It is not found elsewhere, and doesn't appear suitable for shanty work. I think it is a children's game that just happens to be about a ship.

- RBW

Last updated in version 2.6

File: Pet100

One Sort, Two Sort

DESCRIPTION: "One sort, two sort, three sort, sand, Bob tail Dominie little taw tan, Virgin Mary, halem, caelem, siglam, zaglam, BUCK!"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore)

KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, p. 222, "One Sort, Two Sort" (1 short tet)

NOTES [41 words]: I'm quite sure that this is a much-damaged version of some other counting song -- but it's so damaged (or mixed with a Catholic lyric about the Virgin Mary; note both the reference to Mary and the word "caelem," "heavens") that I can't tell what.

Last updated in version 5.2

File: KiWa222

One Sunday after Mass (Dermot and His Lass)

DESCRIPTION: "One Sunday after mass As Dermot and his lass Through the greenwood did pass, All alone and all alone." He asks for a "póg." She hits him. She asks why she is coy; she calls him rude. "He bribed her with nuts" till she gives him a kiss

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster)
One Thing or the Other, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer's mother tells him, at 21, to choose a wife; he's always thinking on "the one thing or the other." He courts a girl and marries her; she gets pregnant. It's twins; he complains of the squalling of the one thing and the other

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Sharp mss); 19C (Wolf)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer's mother tells him, at 21, to choose a wife; he's always thinking on "the one thing or the other." He courts a girl and marries her; they're happy in their daily occupation "at the one thing or the other." After a year, she gets pregnant. "It's a son", cries the sister; "It's a daughter" cries the mother; singer says it's the one thing or the other. It's twins; he complains of the squalling of the one thing and the other

KEYWORDS: courting marriage pregnancy baby mother wife humorous twins

FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(England(South)) Canada(Mar,Newf)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 209, "The One Thing or the Other" (1 text, 1 tune)
Tunney-StoneFiddle, p. 94, "The Twins" (1 text)
Peacock, pp. 312-313, "The One Thing or the Other" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1755, p. 118, "One Thing and the Other" (1 reference)
Roud #2131

RECORDINGS:
James Decker, "The One Thing or the Other" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Michael Gallagher, "The One Thing Or the Other" (on FSBFTX19)

One Thursday Evening

DESCRIPTION: The singer goes to his lover's house but she is not home. He accepts her sister's offer to take him to see her and his rival. He spies on them and leaves when he hears how he is mentioned. He leaves, drinks whisky and leaves Scotland? Courts the sister?

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan6)

KEYWORDS: courting infidelity drink sister

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1204, "One Thursday Evening" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
Roud #6800

CROSS-REFERENCES:

NOTES [116 words]: There are a few lines that are puzzling in both of the Greig/Duncan6 texts. First, the singer refers to his lover as "gramachree" or "grammochree." In spite of the line "If e'er I return to Scotland again," this naming seems Irish (see "Gay Girl Marie" [Laws M23] and "Gra Geal Mo Chroi (II -- Down By the Fair River)" and other "Gramachree ..." broadsides (none of which, that I have seen, are this song). Second, maybe the "Scotland" reference is an add-on since it doesn't seem to make sense in this context ("But if ever I return to Scotland again From England from Ireland from France and from Spain I'll do my endeavor to alter my cause In case that new incomes may strike up new laws"). - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD61204
One to Make Ready

DESCRIPTION: "One to make ready, And two to prepare, Good luck to the rider, And away goes the mare." (The New Zealand version adds, "Salt, mustard, vinegar, pepper.")

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1853 (Halliwell)

KEYWORDS: playparty horse racing

FOUND IN: Britain US(So) New Zealand

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 103, "(One to make ready)" (1 text); also pp. 103-104, ("Onery, twoery, threery, same") (1 text, which combines the counting part of "One-ery, Two-ery, Ickery, Ann" with a "salt, mustard, vinegar, pepper" line also found in New Zealand texts of "One to Make Ready," "Baker, Baker, Bake Your Bread," and "Mabel, Mabel")
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 384, "One to make ready" (1 text)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #656, p. 259, "(One to make ready)"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Bluebells, Cockleshells" (verse regarding vinegar, salt, mustard, pepper) and references there

File: SuSm103A

One Two Three Four Five Six Seven, All Good Children Go to Heaven

DESCRIPTION: "One two three four five six seven, All good children go to heaven." "When they get there, God will say, Where's the diamond you stole that day? If you say you do not know, He will send you down below." "Penny on the water, tuppence on the sea"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty thief Hell

FOUND IN: US(MW) New Zealand

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 89, "(One to three four, five, six, seven)" (2 texts)
- McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, p. 110, "(One-two-three-four-five-six-seven)" (1 text)
- Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, p. 118, "(1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7)" (1 text)
- ADDITIONAL: Peter and Iona Opie, _I Saw Esau: Traditional Rhymes of Youth_, #74, p. 67, "(One two three four five six seven)" (1 text)

Roud #19355
File: McIn110B

One Two Three Four, Mary at the Cottage Door

DESCRIPTION: "One, two, three, four, Mary at the cottage door, Five, six, seven, eight, Eating cherries off a plate." Continuations vary: O-U-T spells out." "Fish, fish, in the dish, how many fishes do you wish?" "Out goes the rat, out goes the cat...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Carey)

KEYWORDS: playparty wordplay food

FOUND IN: US(MA) New Zealand

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 387, "One, Two, Three, Four" (1 text)
- Carey-MarylandFolkloreAndFolklife, p. 77, "(no title)" (1 text)
- Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 89, "(Two, four six eight, Mary at the cottage gate)" (1 text); p. 97, "(Two, four, six, eight)" (1 text); p. 118, "(Two, four, six, eight)" (1 text)

Roud #19295
CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Ena, Mena, More, Mi" ("O-U-T spells out" lyric)
- cf. "Ickle Ockle Black Bottle"("O-U-T spells out" lyric)
- cf. "Spelling Game (Blue spells B-L-U-E; T-W-O Spells Two; My Mother and Your Mother)" ("O-U-T
One Zahl, Two Zahl
DESCRIPTION: Counting rhyme: "One zahl, two zahl, a-zig, a-zag, a-zang. Bob-tail guinea nigger, tic-a-ram-a-tang, Hall 'em, scale 'em, budge 'em, Mary, A-sink 'em, a-sank 'em, buck!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
NOTES [75 words]: The author of this learned this from her mother, who was suffering from dementia and sang it without being able to explain why or where she learned it. Bailey asked Arthur Palmer Hudson if he could identify it, and he claimed he could, but the author never explained what it was or where! So it files as its own piece for the moment. I wonder if Hudson was referring to "One-ery, Two-ery, Tickery, Seven" or one o the other versions of Roud #19296- RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: NCF194OZ

One-Cent Herring, Two-Cent Grits
DESCRIPTION: "... one-cent herring ... two cent grits ... child like that, Can't do like this, Oh ray back Sam, Oh go on gal."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight)
KEYWORDS: poverty hardtimes food dancing nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight, p. 21, "One-Cent Herring, Two-Cent Grits" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
NOTES [115 words]: The current description is based on the Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight fragment. Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight, quoting Mrs Janie Hunter: "Used to have dances called Charleston, Pick Cherry, Alligator -- get down on floor and do 'gator tap-tap, tap on your heel and toe -- 'One-Cent Herring, Two-Cent Grits." While the title and first line parallel "Seven-Cent Cotton and Forty Cent Meat" the rest of the verse seems to be dance step calling, and the tune is something else entirely. If the idea of the first two lines follows that of "Seven-Cent Cotton and Forty Cent Meat" the original question was: if I only get one-cent for my herring, how can I afford two-cents for grits. - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: CaCa021

One-ery, Two-ery, Ickery, Ann
DESCRIPTION: "One-ery, two-ery, ikery on, Fillisy, follisy, Nicholas John, Query, quavey, Irish Mary, Stinkilum, stankilum, jolly-co, buck"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1842 (Halliwell, quoted by Bolton)
KEYWORDS: nonballad nonsense
One-ery, Two-ery, Tickery, Seven

DESCRIPTION: "One-ery, two-ery, tickery, seven, Hallibo, crackibo, ten and eleven, Spin, span, muskidan, Twiddle-um, twaddle-um, twenty-one." Or, "...eleven, Pin, pan, muskyan, Tweedle-um, twaddle-um, twenty-one, lerie, Ourie, owrie, you are, OUT!"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1810 (Gammer Gurton's Garland, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: nonsense nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW,NE) Britain New Zealand

REFERENCES (5 citations):

McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, p. 102, "(Wonery, twoery, tickery seven)" (1 short text)

Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 391, "One-ery, two-ery, tickery, seven" (2 texts)

Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #628, p. 249, "(One-ery, two-ery)"

Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, pp. 88-89, "(Onery twoery dickery seven)"; "(Onery, twoery, tickery, seven)")(Black fish, white trout)" (3 texts)

ADDITIONAL: Peter and Iona Opie, _I Saw Esau: Traditional Rhymes of Youth_, #73, "(Onery, Twoery)" (1 fragment)

Roud #19296
NOTES [29 words]: McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks gives no explanation for this bit of nonsense, but I suspect it is a counting rhyme of some sort. The Opies file it as one. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: McIn102B

One-Hung Lo
DESCRIPTION: Recitation: Prostitute Hoo Flung Shit is masturbating when One-Hung Lo crawls in and insultingly asks her for sex. She tells him to "go fuck your hat"; he tries to have sex with his hat and mashes it; he falls on the floor; she urinates down his throat
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (referred to by Jarvis)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Recitation: The prostitute Hoo Flung Shit is masturbating with a candle when the client One-Hung Lo crawls in and insultingly asks her to have sex with him. She tells him to "go fuck your hat"; he bangs his penis on the floor, tries to have sex with his hat and mashes it (the hat or the penis) in the door; finally he falls on his back on the floor, and she urinates down his throat
KEYWORDS: shrewishness sex request rejection bawdy recitation whore
FOUND IN: US Britain(England)
RECORDINGS:
Unidentified reciter, "In Crawled One-Hung Lo" (on Unexp1)
NOTES [52 words]: Whew. That this piece had entered oral tradition (if the phrase is appropriate) is shown by the memoirs of one William E. Jarvis, who recounts that when he served in the US navy at Shanghai, 1947, he had a friendship with a girl named Amy Lo, and his shipmates taunted him by referring to her as "One Hung." - PJS
File: Rc0nHunL

One, Two, Buckle My Shoe
DESCRIPTION: "One, two, buckle my shoe; Three, four, (open/shut) the door; Five, six, pick up sticks; Seven, eight, lay them straight...." And so forth, to ten or twenty or even beyond; there is naturally increasing variation as the numbers grow larger
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1805 (Songs for the Nursery, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 385, "One, two, Buckle my shoe" (1 text, plus excerpts from Bolton's text that goes all the way to thirty)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #615, p. 246, "(One, two, buckly my shoe)"
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 239-240, (no title) (1 text)
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, p. 118, "(One, two, buckle my shoe)"; p. 224, "One-Two" (2 texts)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 22, "One, Two, Buckle My Shoe" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Tristram P. Coffin and Hennig Cohen, _Folklore in America: Tales, Songs, Superstitions, Proverbs, Riddles, Games, Folk Drama and Folk Festivals_, Doubleday, 1966, p. 187, "A Ball-Bouncing Game" (1 text)
Roud #11284
File: BGMD615

One, Two, Sky Blue
DESCRIPTION: "One, two, sky blue, All (in/out) (but/except) you."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty colors
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland) New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
One, Two, Three

DESCRIPTION: The singer teaches his girl to dance. "'Twas easy just as easy as A B C, She'd done it when I taught her like one two and three." In demand by the ladies at a ball he realizes that "without her for a partner I would never dance again"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (for USBallinsloeFair, according to site irishtune.info, Irish Traditional Music Tune Index: Alan Ng's Tunography, ref. Ng #2608)

KEYWORDS: courting love dancing

FOUND IN:

RECORDINGS:
Packy Dolan and The Melody Boys, "One, Two, Three" (on USBallinsloeFair)

File: Rc0ne23

One, Two, Three, Four, Five

DESCRIPTION: "One, two, three, four, five, Once I caught a (fish/hare) alive, Six, seven, eight, nine, ten, Then I let it go again. Why did you let it go? Because it big my finger so. Which finger did it bite? The little finger on the right."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1765 (Mother Goose's Melody, according to the Opies)

KEYWORDS: hunting animal fishing injury

FOUND IN: Britain(England) US

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 388, "One, Two, Three, Four, Five" (2 texts)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 23, "One, Two, Three, Four, Five" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #626, p. 249, "(One, Two, Three)"

Roud #13530

File: 002388

One, Two, Three, Mother Caught a Flea

DESCRIPTION: "One, two, three, Mother caught a flea, Flea died, mother cried, Out goes she." Or "(Mother/Ronny/etc.) caught a flea, Put it in a teapot And made a cup of tea."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1895 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty mother bug food

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 89, "(One, two, three)" (1 text); p. 131, "(One, two, three)" (1 text); p. 133, "(One, two, three)" (2 texts)

ADDITIONAL: Peter and Iona Opie, _I Saw Esau: Traditional Rhymes of Youth_, #5, "(Oh dear me! Mother caught a flea)" (1 text)

Roud #19254

File: SuSm089A

One, two, three, O'Leary

DESCRIPTION: Ball-bouncing game. "One, two, three, o'leary (x3), One, o'leary postman." Or "One, two, three, o'leary, T'Throw the ball to sister Mary, Way down in Canterbury, Eating mandarines."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty food
Only a Brakeman

DESCRIPTION: "Far out in Texas... This boy fell a victim.... Only a brakeman, gone on before, Only a brakeman, we'll never see more." The accident that cost him his life is alluded to; his grieving family is mentioned

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: death railroading train family

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Randolph 679, "Only a Brakeman" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 445-447, "Only a Brakeman" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 679)
- Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 173-174, "(Only a Brakeman" (excerpts from 7 "Only a Brakeman" songs; the last is this piece)

Roud #4147

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Only a Miner" [Laws G33] (theme, meter, floating lyrics)

NOTES: This song is item dG49 in Laws's Appendix II. - RBW

File: R679

Only a Face in the Firelight

DESCRIPTION: The singer, an old man dozing by the fire, thinks of a sweetheart of long ago: "a face in the firelight asking why we should part"

AUTHOR: Charles Shackford (source: notes to ITMA/CapeShoreNL)

EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (recording by James McCook, according to notes to ITMA/CapeShoreNL)

KEYWORDS: age courting love parting dream

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

Roud #26944

RECORDINGS:
- Petchie Nash and Frankie Nash, "Only a Face in the Firelight" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)

File: ITMAOaFF

Only a Miner (The Hard-Working Miner) [Laws G33]

DESCRIPTION: A miner is trapped under a falling boulder; no one can help him. Most of the world doesn't care; he's "only a miner," though he leaves a wife and children

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, Kentucky Thorobreds); John Garst has demonstrated that the "only a miner" verse goes back to at least 1902

KEYWORDS: mining family death

FOUND IN: US(Ap,Ro,So)

REFERENCES (8 citations):
- Laws G33, "Only a Miner (The Hard-Working Miner)"
- Randolph 680, "Only a Miner" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 141, "The Hard-Working Miner" (1 text)
- Green-OnlyAMiner-RecordedCoalMiningSongs, pp. 63-65, "Only a Miner" (5 texts, 1 tune)
- Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 437-438, "The Hard-Working Miner" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, p. 263, "Poor Miner's Farewell" (1 text)
- Foner-AmericanLaborSongsOfTheNineteenthCentury, p. 215, "Hard-Working Miner" (1 text, 1 tune)
Only a Rosebud

DESCRIPTION: "Ofttimes I fancy at the close of the day That she is waiting for me far away. Still in my mem'ry her sweet face I see, Smiling as when she gave this rose to me. Only a rosebud that she wore in her hair... Sweet faded flower that she left in my care."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)

KEYWORDS: love separation beauty flowers

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 112, "Only a Rosebud" (1 short text, 1 tune. N.B. The pagination in Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric is here confused; as it stands, it appears that the text on p. 288 goes with "Only a Rosebud" on p. 287, but in fact it is a continuation of "Welcome as the Flowers in May" on p. 289)

Roud #11397

File: Brne112

Only Daughter, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer lives with her father and works to support him, "for I am his only daughter." Ladies offer her work but she won't leave her father. Jockey asks her to marry; "should he ask me to go I could not say no ... But still I'm his only daughter"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1845 (broadside, Bodleian Johnson Ballads 925)

KEYWORDS: age poverty courting marriage work nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 228, "The Only Daughter" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 463)

Roud #1293

BROADSIDES:
Only Nineteen Years Old

DESCRIPTION: Singer fell in love with, and married, "a virgin only nineteen years old." Next morning she took off her paint and revealed her hump, wig, false leg and fingers. Before marrying, he says, examine your intended: she may be ninety.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1879 (Journal of the Andrew Hicks)

KEYWORDS: age courting marriage beauty disguise money humorous

FOUND IN: Ireland US(SW)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan 15, "Only Nineteen Years Old" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging 36, pp. 197-199, "Oh! My! You're a Dandy for Nineteen Years Old" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 318-319, "The Virgin Nineteen Years Old" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #4792

RECORDINGS: Tom Lenihan, "Only Nineteen Years Old" (on IRTLenihan01)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

NOTES [23 words]: Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan: "Tom's sister Margaret used to sing this when she was home on holidays from America." - BS

Only Remembered

DESCRIPTION: "Up and away like the dews of the morning, Soaring from earth to its home in the sun, Thus would I pass from the earth and its toiling, Only remembered for what I have done." An exhortation to good works, with a promise of reward for those who do them

AUTHOR: Words: Dr. Horatio Bonar/Music: W. W. Bentley

EARLIEST DATE: 1886 (sheet music reprinted in Seeger, Where Have All the Flowers Gone)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Randolph 627, "Only Remembered" (1 text, 1 tune)
- DT, ONLYRMBR*

Roud #7557

NOTES [812 words]: For more about Horatio Bonar, see the notes on "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say,"
There have been several settings of Bonar's text. For a long time, I listed the tune as by W. W. Bentley. Pete Seeger, however, says that the "ancestor" of the tune is by John R. Sweney, and Sweney's does appear to be the earliest, since it was copyrighted in 1886. In a fascinating side note, Seeger says that Sweney was Joe Hickerson's great-grandfather.

Although this song has been fairly popular with folk revival singers, it bears noting that it does not conform with the theology of any major branch of Christianity. Catholics and Orthodox believe in the salvific power of the church, as do (for the most part) Anglicans. Lutherans believe in justification by faith alone (Luther in fact declared the Letter of James "an epistle of straw" because it seemed to support salvation on the basis of works); the Reformed churches (e.g. Presbyterians) believe in predestination to grace.
Indeed, as it says in Ephesians 2:8-9, "For by grace you are being saved through faith... not because of works, lest someone should boast...."
The technical name for the heresy that men could accomplish their own salvation is Pelagianism, after its founder. Bettenson, p. 52, gives this capsule biography: "Pelagius was a British monk, probably of Irish origin. He came to Rome in 400 and was distressed at the low state of conduct there. Feeling that there was need of more moral effort, he was shocked by the prayer in S. Augustine's Confessions, 'Give what thou commandest and command what thou wilt.' His teachings seem to have aroused no stir until he went to Carthage after the sack of Rome in 410."
On p. 53, Bettenson quotes the key to Pelagius's doctrine: "Everything good and everything evil, in respect of which we are either worthy of praise or of blame, is done by us, not born with us." Thus Pelagius denied Original Sin, one of the key elements of orthodox Christian doctrine. (This is one of the reasons for the emphasis in many sects on the Virgin Birth, and the Catholic idea of the Immaculate Conception. It flows from the doctrine of Augustine, which was heavily based on the idea that men are born in sin. Jesus was free of this taint because was the son of a virgin herself born of a virgin; Christie-Murray, p. 88. Pelagius explicitly denied that human nature was inherently corrupt; Chadwick, p. 228.)
Qualben, p. 124, says, "Pelagian centered on the question: how is man saved? Three general answers were given. Pelagius ascribed the chief merits of conversion to man. Augustine gave God all the glory and made freedom the result of divine grace. The Semi-Pelagians co-ordinated the human will and the divine grace as factors in the work of salvation.
Boer, p. 161, has perhaps the best one-sentence summary of Pelagianism: "[Pelagius] taught that God gave to every man the possibility of living a sinless life."
According to O'Grady, p. 113, he "abjured" the title of monk, and held that anyone could be a teacher -- thus in effect anticipating Luther. He also anticipated Luther in claiming there was no difference in kind between priest and laity. Is it any wonder the clerical hierarchy sought to control him?
Pelagianism was formally condemned by the third council of Ephesus in 431 (Qualben, p. 125), even before Pelagius died (Qualben, p. 124, estimates his dates as 370-440). By then, he had done quite a job of producing controversy in the Larin church, with various popes and councils condemning or condoning him (Christie-Murray, pp. 90-91; Chadwick, pp. 196-198). Making matters worse is the fact that Pelagius's chief disciple Celestius settled at Carthage (Chadwick, p. 227), very near Augustine's home of Hippo. The need to respond to these two gave rise to many of Augustine's most fervent writings, in which he declared man utterly degenerate and gave forth (e.g.) the view that unbaptized infants are automatically damned. Pelagius had no desire to create such conflict in the church, and a slightly more Pelagian doctrine might have been accepted in the West had the matter not caused so much controversy that the Imperial government exiled Pelagius (Chadwick, pp. 229-232). As O'Grady says on p. 112, "The Pelagian dispute did not arouse such fierce antagonisms among the people as did the disputes in the Eastern Empire." But because Pelagianism was forced from the field, Augustine's views became Catholic doctrine -- and, because the doctrine is so radical, has left many people semi-Pelagian to this day (as this song attests). Christie-Murray, p. 95, notes a trace of Pelagianism in most of the Puritan sects.
Unlike most other early heresies, such as Arianism, Monophysitism, and Gnosticism, Pelagianism did not result in the formation of a separate church. I can't help but wonder if this isn't a major reason why it so readily re-emerges today. - RBW
Bibliography
• Boer: Harry R. Boer, A Short History of the Early Church, 1976 (I use the 1981 Eerdmans paperback)
• Chadwick: Henry Chadwick, The Early Church (being volume I of The Pelican History of the Church), Pelican, 1967
• O'Grady: Joan O'Grady, Early Christian Heresies, 1985 (I use the 1994 Barnes & Noble edition)
• Qualben: Lars P. Qualben, A History of the Christian Church, revised edition, Nelson, 1936

Last updated in version 5.0
Onward Christian Sailors

DESCRIPTION: "Onward Christian sailors, Scrub and wash your clothes. Where the dirties come from, Lord almighty known. I've got fourteen pieces And one hammock to scrub. But I cannot do it; Someone's got the tub... someone's pinched my soap"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)

KEYWORDS: sailor clothes derivative theft

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, pp. 39-40, "Onward Christian Soldiers" (sic.) (1 text, tune referenced)

SAME TUNE:

cf. "Onward Christian Soldiers" (tune)

NOTES [39 words]: Although Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy officially gives this the title "Onward Christian Soldiers," I think this should be regarded as a typo (assimilation to the familiar); the text consistently says "Onward Christian Sailors." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: Tawn022

Onward Christian Soldiers

DESCRIPTION: "Onward, Christian Soldier, Marching as to war, With the cross of Jesus Going on before." The Christian "army" is urged forward, bypassing temporary earthly structures for the eternal kingdom of God

AUTHOR: Words: Sabine Baring-Gould (1834-1924) / Music: Arthur Sullivan (1842-1900)

EARLIEST DATE: 1864 (Church Times)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 352, "Onward Christian Soldiers" (1 text)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #40, "Onward, Christian Soldiers" (1 text)
DT, ONCHRST*
ADDITIONAL: Charles Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns (Hallberg, 1982), pp. 80-81, "Onward, Christian Soldiers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Anna Adams Gordon, _Popular Campaign Songs_, National W.C.T.U. Publishing House, 1915, p. 27, "Onward Christian Soldiers" (1 text, which appears to be the only unmodified text in the book)
Roud #V26738
RECORDINGS:
Haydn Quartet, "Onward Christian Soldiers" (Victor 521, 1901)
Old Southern Sacred Singers, "Onward Christian Soldiers" (Brunswick 166, 1927)
Stellar Quartet, "Onward, Christian Soldiers" (Puritan 11158, 1922)

SAME TUNE:

Onward Christian Sailors (File: Tawn022)
Onward, Christian Bedbugs (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 105)
Quartette, "Onward Valiant Klansmen" (KKK 75008, c. 1924)
W. R. Rhinehart, "Onward Christian Klansmen" (100% K-32, n.d., prob. 1920s)
Modern Missionary Zeal ("Onward, Christian soldiers, On to heathen lands! Prayer book in your pockets, Rifles in your hands") (Foner, p. 152)

NOTES [379 words]: Yes, the Sabine Baring-Gould who wrote this is the same fellow as collected English folksongs. And whose descendants are responsible for the Annotated Mother Goose cited frequently in this index. He was ordained in the Church of England in 1864, and produced quite a bit of Christian poetry and analysis, though this hymn is nearly the only part to have achieved any popularity.

Julian, p. 870, reports:
This most successful processional hymn was written in 1865, and first printed in 6 stanzas in the Church Times during the same year. Usually st[anz]a iv.,
"What the saints established
That I hold for true,
What the saints believed
That believe I too.
Long as earth endureth
Men that Faith will hold, --
Kingdoms, nations, empires,
In destruction rolled."

is omitted, and certainly to the advantage of the hymn. The form given to the text in Hymns Ancient and Modern, 1868, is that in general use in all English-speaking countries.

On p. 1684, Julian notes another change to the original text; since the Church is no longer a single denomination, "We are not divided" was altered to "Though divisions harass."

Kellett, p. 199, reports that "[Whitsuntide] was until very recently observed by churches and Sunday schools walking round, sometimes with a banner, usually on Whit Monday, to sing hymns in the open air; the well-known Onward Christian Soldiers was specially written for the children of Horbury Bridge, near Wakefield, in 1865 for such an occasion.

Reynolds, p. 176, records that Sir Arthur Sullivan's tune was given the name "St. Gertrude," after Gertrude Clay-Ker-Seymer, at whose home the tune was written. Rudin, p. 60, says that Baring-Gould's text, when first written, was instead sung to "St. Alban," which did not have as much of a marching feeling; Sullivan wrote the melody in 1871, six years after the words were set down.

The idea of the piece is old. Seng, pp. 67-69, quotes a Tudor era piece which begins "Marche out gods soldiours, youre enimies be sure at hand, no doubte ye must have warres, se therefor lusty whole ye stand," and that is headed "A ballet declaring how everye christian ought to perpare them selfe to warre & for to fight valiantly vnder the banner of his captan christ: to be Songe after Rowe well you maryners." - RBW

Bibliography

- Rudin: Cecilia Margaret Rudin, Stories of Hymns We Love, John Rudin & Company, 1934 (I use the fourteenth printing of 1951)
- Seng: Peter J. Seng, Tudor Songs and Ballads from MS Cotton Vespasian A-25, Harvard University Press, 1978, #17, pp. 32-33, "Where gripinge greues the hart wold wound" (1 text)

Last updated in version 6.1

Onward, The

DESCRIPTION: The Onward and her crew from Troon to Larne was bound"; she tries to reach Lamlash for shelter in a storm. "Between Dromore and the Ailsa Craig The Onward she went down... unseen all from the shore; no rescue life could save."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1943 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)

KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship storm wreck sailor

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, p. 90, "The Onward" (1 text)

Roud #20548

NOTES [35 words]: Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast: "'The Onward' was wrecked off the Ayrshire coast of Scotland in 1881."

Troon is on the Ayrshire coast of Scotland; Larne is across the North Channel on the coast of County Antrim. - BS

Last updated in version 5.0

File: Ran090
Onwards to the Po

DESCRIPTION: "We will debauch into the valley f the Po, We will strike the Hun a mighty blow... And this we know, for Corps says so, Onwards to Bologna, onwards to the Po." The song describes the troops around them and the horrid life of the Italian campaign

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)

KEYWORDS: soldier hardtimes

FOUND IN: Canada

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, p. 111, "Onwards to the Po" (1 text, tune referenced)

Roud #29415

CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "Lili Marlene" (tune, plus cross-references to songs of the Italian campaign)
  cf. "O'er the Hills of Sicily" (subject: the Italian campaign)

NOTES [71 words]: Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead attributes this song to the Fifth Canadian Armoured Division. There is no hint in the song of an identification of the singer's unit, although the other units mentioned fit with the Italian campaign.

RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: Hopk111

---

Oor Cat's Deid

DESCRIPTION: "Whirry, whirra, the cat she's deid, And whirry, whirra, there's a sod on her heid, And in a wee hole we'll bury them a', And for wee puss we'll sing for a'."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: lullaby death burial animal

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H40b, p. 17, "A Child's Lullaby" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #13025

CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "Lingle Lingle Lang Tang (Our Cat's Dead)"

File: HHH040b

---

Oor Dochter Jean

DESCRIPTION: "Oor dochter Jean cam hame yestreen, Wi' rosy cheeks an' lauchin' e'en." Asked where she has been, she replies, "Wi' Fermer Joe o Auchinglen." There is a ring on her finger.

Fermer Joe arrives to ask her hand; all happily agree

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads)

KEYWORDS: love courting marriage farming

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 49-50, "Oor Dochter Jean" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3789

File: Ord049

---

Oor Fairm Toon

DESCRIPTION: The singer describes the goings on "at oor fairm toon." The fee'd help are strange but the kitchie lass is a beauty. Work starts early and food is meager. There's a new "thrashin' mull." "We'll shortly hae the plooin' deen"
Oor Jock Cam Hame

DESCRIPTION: Jock comes home distracted but says he'll be better. He says that on the way home he met his Peggie. Then he put sugar in his egg, salt in his tea, used knife and fork to eat his brose, and cleared his nose with a spoon.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Jock comes home from work with a white face. The singer asks him what is the matter. Jock says he'd be better soon. The singer tells him supper and tea would do him good. Jock says that on the way home he met his Peggie. Then he put sugar in his egg, salt in his tea, used knife and fork to eat his brose [oatmeal and boiling water], and cleared his nose with a spoon. The singer is amazed.

KEYWORDS: love food humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1705, "Oor Jock Cam Hame" (1 text)
Roud #13524
File: GrD81705

Oor Treasures

DESCRIPTION: The singer and Willie have been married fourteen years. "We were rich in ane anither though richt scant in warld's gear." "Wid ye like tae see our treasures" -- she names and describes their children -- which God will "guide and shield forever"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan5)

KEYWORDS: marriage nonballad children

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan5 1073, "Oor Treasures" (1 text)
Roud #6741
File: GrD51073

Open Book, The

DESCRIPTION: "You've been tamped full of shit about cowboys; they are known as a romantic breed...." The reciter proceeds to dispel these myths, talking about cowboys' sexual exploits, their local peculiarities, and their folly

AUTHOR: Curley Fletcher

EARLIEST DATE: 1985 (Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging)

KEYWORDS: cowboy recitation nonballad

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging 16, pp. 108-117, "The Open Book" (2 very long texts, one Fletcher's original bad-language version, the other his later cleaned-up text)
Roud #10092
File: Logs016
Open the Door to Me Oh

DESCRIPTION: "O, open the door, some pity to show, Oh, open the door to me oh! Though thou has been false, I'll ever prove true." The girl is colder than the frost. He says he will leave forever. She opens the door "and sunk down by his side O never to rise again O"

AUTHOR: Words: Robert Burns

EARLIEST DATE: 1793 (Kinsley)

KEYWORDS: love rejection death

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, pp. 197-198, "O! Open the Door" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: James Kinsley, editor, Burns: Complete Poems and Songs (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #403, p. 541, "Open the door to me Oh" (1 text, 1 tune, from 1793)

File: HMHS197C

Open the Gate and Let Me Through

DESCRIPTION: Ball-bouncing game with a floating verse found in other games: "Open the gate and let me through, sir (x3), Early in the mornig."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: play party travel

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 118, "(Open the gate and let me through, sir)" (1 text)

File: SuSm118B

Open Your Mouth and Shut Your Eyes

DESCRIPTION: "Open your mouth and shut your eyes, And you will get a big surprise." Or "...eyes, And I'll give you something to make you wise."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1860 (see NOTES)

KEYWORDS: food nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, p. 122, "(Open your mouth and shut your eyes)" (1 text)

Roud #25368

NOTES [273 words]: The first earliest version I've found of this is Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore's. But it is without doubt much, much older. When I was a child in the 1960s, my mother would haul this out at children's parties; she must have learned it in Illinois or Michigan some decades earlier. But that is by no means the earliest date. In July 1860, Charles Dodgson (Lewis Carroll) posed a picture of Lorina, Alice, and Edith Liddell in the garden of the Christ Church deanery (the home of the Liddell girls, the daughters of Dean Henry George Liddell). Lorina, the oldest sister, is holding a pair of cherries, and Alice, the middle sister, has her eyes closed and appears to be about to eat them. (Edith is just sitting off to the side). The photograph is titled, "Open your mouth and shut your eyes." Thus Dodgson, who often created photos with "stories," must have been illustrating some version of this rhyme. The photo has often been reprinted. A selection of published copies includes:
There are versions in many of Dodgson's biographies as well. Or just google "Open your mouth and shut your eyes Liddell." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.5
File: SaKo122C

Opeongo Line, The

DESCRIPTION: "On the Opeongo Line I drove a span of bays One summer once upon a time For Hoolihan and Hayes. Now that the bays are dead and gone And grim old age is mine... Ay, dreaming, dreaming, I go teaming On the Opeongo Line."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Fowke)
KEYWORDS: travel logger
FOUND IN: Canada(Que)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #65, "The Opeongo Line," (1 fragment)
Roud #4565
File: FowL65

Operator Blues

DESCRIPTION: Singer asks the operator "how long the train been gone," "It's been so long I can't hear the engine moan." See the notes for floating verses.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (StuffDreams1)
KEYWORDS: grief love parting train suicide floatingverses nonballad lover
FOUND IN:
RECORDINGS:
Andrew and Jim Baxter, "Operator Blues" (on StuffDreams1)
NOTES [52 words]: Three line blues: the first line is repeated -- more or less -- and the last line completes the thought.
On the Baxters' track, floating verses include "If I had wings like Norah's dove I would fly away to the one I love" and "Gonna lay my head on some railroad line, Let some freight train satisfy my mind" - BS
Last updated in version 5.2
File: RcOperBl

Ophelia Letter

DESCRIPTION: "Ophelia letter blow away He blow 'way in Arima." "Ophelia where you' letter? He blow 'way in Arima."
"Ophelia where you' lover gone? He blow 'way in Arima."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Elder-FolksongsFromTobago)
KEYWORDS: grief love death nonballad religious lover Caribbean
FOUND IN: West Indies(Tobago)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Elder-FolksongsFromTobago 14, "Ophelia Letter" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [56 words]: Life is like a letter that wind can blow away, but the person whose life has been lost is not dead but blown away to some other place, like Arima.
Elder-FolksongsFromTobago: "In 'Ophelia letter' we have a beautiful metaphor of a woman losing her husband or spouse and the sheer impossibility of saying just where the dead man is." - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: ElTo014

Ops in a Wimpey

DESCRIPTION: To the tune of "Waltzing Matilda," the airmen describe the dangers of flying a Wellington over Germany. The song may ask whether an airman is willing to fly the "Wimpy," or describe the dangers encountered in bombing operations
NOTES [851 words]: There seem to be two collected forms of this, one in Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, one in Pinto & Rodway, and Roud gives them two different numbers (Hopkins's is #29392, the Common Muse version is #10390). And indeed they don't have many words in common. Yet they're both to the tune of "Waltzing Matilda," they're both about the Wellington, and they both describe the dangers of bombing Germany. Clearly there has been a rewrite along the way, but I'd still call it fundamentally the same song.

If I had to guess which version came first, I'd say the Pinto & Rodway text. It mentions raiding Hanover and Magdeburg, but not Berlin, That argues for a date relatively early in World War II. The Hopkins version is much less specific -- no particular raids mentioned, and indeed, nothing specific to the Wellington bomber except the name "Wimpy."

Nonetheless is is no surprise to find a song about the "Wimpy." The British started World War II with a plethora of two-engined medium bombers -- the Whitley, the Manchester, the Beaufort, the Blenheim, the Hampden, the Wellington. Most of them were flops of one sort or another. The Wellington was pretty definitely the best, and as a result, it remained in service long after the others.

"The Vickers Wellington -- or 'Wimpy' as it was universally and most affectionately dubbed by its myriad air and ground crews -- was almost unique in several respects. Its greatest claim to fame in the context of Royal Air Force history is usually considered to be the fact that it was produced in greater quantity than any other bomber ever to enter RAF service... Yet the Wellington's outstanding record did not rest simply on statistical prominence. Wellingles saw active service in the RAF from 1938 to 1953, including operational service from the first to the last days of the 1939-1945 war.... In its prime bomber role the Wellington was unquestionable the real backbone of the RAF's bombing offensive against the Axis powers during the first three years of World War II" (Bowyer, p. 13) -- that is, until the Lancaster gave the British a good heavy bomber and the Mosquito gave them a fast medium bomber.

"The type had been in service since before the war; it was a pleasant aircraft to operate, good-natured and utterly reliable, though shatteringly noisy. Veterans who flew the Wellington in action still recall its ability to absorb horrific damage and remain aloft, thanks to its geodetic 'basket-weave' construction. The Wellington was unusual among modern aircraft in having a fabric skin stretched over its metal framework, through which the clumsier members of the ground crews frequently stuck their boots. The Wellington carried a crew of five: pilot, navigator, bomb-aimer, wireless operator, and gunner. [British aircraft usually did not have co-pilots; they had no station for a second pilot although the 'flight engineer' served some of those functions in larger aircraft.] ... The aircraft had a range of about 2,000 miles. Its top speed was in the region of 250 mph and it had a service ceiling of 22,000 feet. The Wimpy's defensive armament consisted of four Browning .303 machine guns in the rear turret and two in the nose turret. The Wellington could carry 4,500 pounds of bombs, a formidable load back in the early Thirties when the aircraft first flew" (Dunmore/Carter, p. 12) -- although that bomb total was only a quarter of what a Lancaster could carry by the end of the war.

Munson, p. 159, concurs with its ability to survive: "One of the outstanding aeroplanes of the war, the Wellington was noteworthy for the fantastic amount of punishment it could withstand, thanks largely to its revolutionary geodetic construction devised by Barnes Wallis of 'dams' fame. [Wallis would design the 'bomb-buster' spinning bomb that could take out targets, such as hydroelectric plants, that could not easily be destroyed by conventional aerial bombs.] ... Wellingtons made the first raid of the war, against Wilhelshaven, on 4th September 1939."

The nickname "Wimpy" was not because the plane was somehow weak or cowardly; "The Wellington was [nick]named after a confederate of the popular cartoon figure Popeye (of contemporary wartime fame in the Daily Mirror newsletter); one J. Wellington Wimpy, a rotund, somnolent devotee of the American savory hamburger" (Bowyer, p. 14). It's not too surprising that the Canadians knew this song; for much of the war, Canadian flyers had higher casualty rates and lower success rates than regular RAF crews (Dunmore/Carter, pp. 144-145) -- and so, it was rumored, weren't assigned to the higher-value Lancaster bombers; they were stuck with the old, easier to kill but easier to replace Wellingtons. It wasn't until the end of 1943 that the strategic bombing forces were entirely converted to the heavier Lancasters and Halifaxes (Dunmore/Carter, p. 194). Even then, the Wellington was used for tasks other than strategic bombing.

I've spelled the aircraft "Wimpey" in the song title, because that's the title Hopkins uses, but Bowyer and others are adamant that it should be spelled "Wimpy." - RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Hopk126

Opsang for Jonas Anton Hjelm

DESCRIPTION: Norwegian shanty. "Hurrah for Jonas Aston Hjelm, He was for Norway, helmet and spear, till at last he celebrated peace." Other versions are general sailing rhymes with a choruses of "Sing salio!" or "Sing sailor-O!" or "Singsalli-joh!"

AUTHOR: Henrik Wergelands
EARLIEST DATE: 1839
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage shanty
FOUND IN: Norway
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 558-559, "Opsang for Jonas Anton Hjelm" (4 texts-Norwegian & English, 1 tune)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Sing Salio
Siste Reis

NOTES [129 words]: Jonas Anton Hjelm was a Norwegian lawyer who was instrumental in the fight for national control while Norway was under Swedish rule (1814-1905). In particular he argued in 1834 that the Act of Union provided that a Norwegian minister had to be present whenever the Swedish ministers discussed Norwegian affairs. Edvard Greig also wrote a piece called "Sailor's Song - Hurrah For Jonas Anton Hjelm," but the melody bears no resemblance to the tune given in Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas.

Hugill speculated that Wergelands may have based his poem on an earlier shanty (though the poem predates any available shanty collection). The possible earlier version Hugill gave was spoken from the view of a ship -- "The Resolution was a demon, and the name I got at baptism...." - SL

File: Hugi558

Opuceny Banik z Wilks Barroch (The Lonely Miner of Wilkes-Barre)

DESCRIPTION: Slovak. "Moja zena v starim kraju a ja tu hledam sebe v Americe robo tu." "While my life is in the old country, I am in America seeking work." The singer finds a job in the mines of Wilkes-Barre. He describes the awful work. He hopes he can go home

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage mining work separation family
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 374-376, "Opuceny Banik z Wilks Barroch (The Lonely Miner of Wilkes-Barre)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Foner-AmericanLaborSongsOfTheNineteenthCentury, "The Lonely Miner of Wilkes-Barre" (1 text)
File: KPL374
Oran Do Cheap Breatainn (Cape Breton is the Land of My Love)

DESCRIPTION: Gaelic. Now I live in the mountains but I am singing about "the land of the glens": birds, cows, thoughts of winter "the time for weddings and milling frolics" and people I knew in my youth who have died.

AUTHOR: Dan Alex McDonald (per MRHCreighton)
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage lyric nonballad
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, pp. 184-185, "Oran Do Cheap Breatainn" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
John Ranny McReigen, "Oran Do Cheap Breatainn" (on MRHCreighton)
NOTES [17 words]: The description is based on the translation of Creighton/MacLeod 17 in Gaelic Songs in Nova Scotia. - BS
File: CrMa184

Oran Na Caillich (Our Auld Wife)

DESCRIPTION: Scottish Gaelic. My wife is dour, sour, and the devil's own. I must have been bewitched to be drawn to her. She's so ugly. I have to drink to stand it.

AUTHOR: Allan McDougall [Ailean Dall] (1750-1829)
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage drink humorous wife
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, pp. 793-794, "Oran Na Caillich" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Alan MacArthur, "Oran Na Caillich" (on PeacockCDROM)
NOTES [121 words]: Peacock notes that this "is called a milling song ... used to accompany the work of shrinking wool homespun. The wet cloth is alternately kneaded and pounded on a large table by several people either seated or standing. A leader sings the verses, and everyone comes in on the chorus." "Milling wool" and "waulking tweed" is the same process. For a note on the process and the songs see "Waulking" by Craig Cockburn at the Silicon Glen site. The description is based on a translation by Malcolm MacFarlane available in the hard-cover edition of The Minstrelsy of the Scottish Highlands ed Alfred Moffat (Bayley & Ferguson, London & Glasgow, ca 1908), pp. 76-77. This song is not in the soft-cover edition issued ca. 1960. - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: Pea793

Orange and Blue

DESCRIPTION: "When Brethren are met in orders so grand, What a beautiful sight for to view." Singer describes his induction, in code. But, "what a shameful disgrace on a lodge it doth bring To see Brethren each other subdue." Join "in defence of the Orange and Blue"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark)
KEYWORDS: ritual religious
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark 34, "Orange and Blue" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Grand Templar's Song" (Masonic symbolism) and references there NOTES [115 words]: Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark: "Another much used song which has the effect of stirring the blood of those who sing it."
"Orange and blue were William III's colours, and they are still borne by the Orange lodges of Ireland, by which means they have become strongly associated with an anti-catholic spirit" (source: "Party Colours" quoted from Chambers' Journal in Littell's Living Age (Boston, 1873 ("Digitized by Google")), Fifth Series, Vol. I, p. 819).
"The cause it is good, and the men they are true, And the green shall outlive both the Orange and
Orange and Green

DESCRIPTION: "The night was falling dreary in merry Bandon town...." To an Orangeman's door comes a Green, pursued by an angry crowd. The Orangeman shelters him -- then learns he has killed his son. He still does not retaliate. Years later, they meet in peace.

AUTHOR: Gerald Griffin (1803-1840)

EARLIEST DATE: 1850 (David Charles Bell, _The Modern Reader and Speaker_)

KEYWORDS: Ireland political homicide promise reprieve reunion

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 41-43, "Orange and Green" (1 text)
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 138-139, "Orange and Green" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Edward Hayes, The Ballads of Ireland (Boston, 1859 (reprint of 1855 London edition)), Vol I, pp. 281-284, "Orange and Green" (1 text)

Roud #9556

NOTES [256 words]: Given that Dean-FlyingCloud's seems to be the only traditional text of this, and that I have found no sign of sheet music, I suspect this is actually a recitation rather than a song. I also suspect Dean took it from a literary source. Finally, I have to suspect its inclusion was inspired by the horrid Irish troubles that were taking place at the time Dean was assembling his book: The conflict of Orange and Green was at its worst, because by this time England would probably have walked away from Ireland -- except that the Orangemen of Ulster wanted no part of an independent Ireland.

Gerald Griffin had an interesting career: Born in Ireland, the ninth son of a brewer, his family moved to America to escape poverty (so it's just possible that he would have heard the story of Duncan Campbell which this so resembles). He spent time as a journalist in London, and finally ended up teaching in Ireland for the Society of Christian Brothers. His posthumous collected works occupied eight volumes, though most of his works have fallen into obscurity. (Benet's Reader's Encyclopedia, which is as close to comprehensive as any literary reference I've seen, doesn't even mention him.)

He did produce a version of "Eileen Aroon," reportedly taken from the Gaelic (see the Notes to that song); also, his novel _The Collegians_ (1829) was made into a play, _Colleen Bawn_. Patrick C. Power _A Literary History of Ireland_, Mercier, 1969, calls it "a very good novel" but says that after that he "never again wrote anything as good." - RBW

Orange Balls

DESCRIPTION: "Orange balls, here we are again," the last one to sit is out, or "Orange boys, let the bells ring ... who's the only king" or "... God save the King"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)

KEYWORDS: playparty political

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North,South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 53, "Orange Balls" (2 texts, 1 tune)

Roud #22561

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Orange Boys

NOTES [28 words]: Just in case you didn't catch it, this appears to refer to William of Orange and the Glorious Revolution of 1688. I'm surprised this hasn't been collected in Ulster. - RBW

File: Dean040

File: OpGa053
Orange Lark, The

DESCRIPTION: The lark "is true Orange bird" who cheered William on July first and "sang him an Orange hymn." The nightingale sings sweetly but the lark's song comes "from the soldier's drum." The eagle is too aristocratic; the lark's "is the song of the free"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark)
KEYWORDS: Ireland patriotic bird
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark 40, "The Orange Lark" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: OrLa040

Orange Lily-o, The

DESCRIPTION: Did you go to the flower show? The prize is won by the Orange Lily. "The Viceroy there was so debonair ... And Lady Clarke" approached Ireland's Orange Lily.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c.1895 (Graham-TheOrangeSongster)
KEYWORDS: Ireland flowers political
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (3 citations):
OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 70, "The Orange Lily-o" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry, p. 116, "The Orange Lily-O" (1 text)
Graham-TheOrangeSongster, p. 7, "The Orange Lily, O!" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3003

NOTES [551 words]: Georges Denis Zimmermann, Songs of Irish Rebellion , 2nd ed. (2002), p. 303: "The great emblem of the [Orangemen], the Orange lily, is celebrated like the shamrock in nationalist songs. [Fn.45 'The Orange Lily O!' in The Protestant or True Blue, pp. 45-46, and in every Orange song book thereafter.]

What message is hidden here?
OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads: "I heard an older and more pungent ballad but could not find it printed. All I remember is 'D'ye think I would let, a -- Fenian -- Destroy one flower of the Lily O?" The "Songs Collected by Donagh MacDonagh" site has two versions. The first version is, essentially, the same as OLochlainn 70. A long description of version 2, as far as I can state it is: At the show Lady Clarke approaches the lily. The viceroy is reluctant to give it the prize. Sir Charley is also unhappy but "horse master Billy" laughs to think his ex should be bothered by the lily. "With moistened eyes" the Viceroy gives the prize to the lily. "Toast the health of Billy" who won "on Boyne's red shore The Royal Orange Lily O!"

Which Viceroy and Lady Clarke? Who are Sir Charley and horse master Billy? And what is the Royal Orange Lily? And do these versions all refer to the same "flower show?"
The following notes, quoted with permission, are from John Moulden, researcher at the "Centre for the Study of Human Settlement and Historical Change" at National University of Ireland, Galway whose subject is "the printed ballad in Ireland":
"I take it that it is a satire concerning the reluctance of one of the Lords Lieutenant of Ireland (aka the Viceroy) to award first prize at a flower show to an Orange Lily. The distaste of the Victorian establishment for the Orange Order was much the same as today.
"The Orange Lily was a symbol of the Royal House of Orange, official or not, but clearly adopted as such in Ireland.
"Specifics are a bit more difficult - the likelihood is that Lady Clarke was Olivia Owenson, sister of Lady Morgan; c. 1785-1845, and that therefore the Viceroy in question was one of: [See Wikipedia for the list of the 16 Viceroys from Philip Yorke, 3rd Earl of Hardwicke: 27 April 1801 to William Court, 1st Baron Heytesbury: 17 July 1844] but obviously after Lady Clarke's marriage and probably after 1819 when she had a very poor play acted in Dublin.
"Horse Master Billy may refer to the equestrian statue of William of Orange which stood in St. Stephen's Green in Dublin until being blown up in the (I THINK) 1830s.
"There is of course a possibility that the song refers to an event other than a flower show, such as a parade of ladies.
"The Chief Secretaries at the same times were: [a list of 22 between 1798 and 1845, including a number of "Sirs" and a number of "Charles"--Charles Abbot 1801-1802, Charles Long 1805-1806 and Charles Grant 1818-1821] but there are no Sir Charleys among them."
The last verse from Graham-TheOrangeSongster may refer to King William: "Then come, brave boys, and share her joys, and toast the health of Willy, O! Who bravely wore, on Boyne's red shore, the Royal Orange Lily, O!" That is reminiscent of the last verse sometimes sung to "The Aughalee Heroes": "And when that we landed in Aughalee, Our brandy in gallons did shine, The toast we often repeated Was to William that crossed the Boyne." - BS

Orange Maid of Sligo, The

DESCRIPTION: A tiny boat is driven by wind onto the shore of the Bay of Sligo. "At the bow there sat a girl... the 'Orange Maid of Sligo.'" An Orange youth sees an orange lily on the water and gives it to her. They marry.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster)

KEYWORDS: marriage sea ship shore flowers Ireland patriotic

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster 34, "The Orange Maid of Sligo" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, ORGSLIG*

Roud #2910

NOTES [67 words]: The "aisling" is common on the Green side of the Irish conflict. Here the Orange Maid stands for Orange Ireland and the Orange Lily is its symbol. See the discussion of "aisling" in the notes to "Eileen McMahon." "The Orange Lily was a symbol of the Royal House of Orange, official or not, but clearly adopted as such in Ireland." (source: John Moulden; for the full note see "The Orange Lily-o"). - BS

Orange Riots in Belfast, The

DESCRIPTION: "Emancipation first tortured them [Orangemen] sore But O'Connell's procession it grieved them far more," so they took it as an excuse to burn Dan's effigy and "to murder and tear Saint Malachy's Chapel." They should consider their own July 12 parading.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1989 (Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong); 19C (broadside, Bodleian 2806 b.9(270))

KEYWORDS: violence Ireland political

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Aug 8-23, 1864 - Belfast riots about Dublin Daniel O'Connell statue (source: Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong).

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong 42, "The Orange Riots in Belfast" (1 text)
Roud #V2931

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 b.9(270), "The Orange Riots in Belfast" ("Rejoice sons of Erin all over the land"), unknown, n.d.

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of the Navvies" (subject)

NOTES [166 words]: Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong: "The protagonists in these disturbances were the Protestants of Sandy Row and the Catholics of the nearby Pound area (now the Divis Flats area)." The Catholic navvies were "engaged in the excavation of the New Docks." "Never before had there been rioting on such a scale with widespread shooting, intimidation and looting of gunsmiths, resulting in death, injury and destruction."
The conflict began when the foundation stone for a statue of Daniel O'Connell was laid in Dublin. That evening Sandy Row Protestants burned an effigy of O'Connell in Belfast. St Malachy's Chapel was the meeting place for Catholic navvies reacting to the effigy burning. Following an attack by the navvies on Brown Square School, Protestants "headed for St. Malachy's to seek revenge." (source: Leyden) For notes on Daniel O'Connell see "Erin's Green Shore [Laws Q27]."
See the notes to "The Boys of Sandy Row" for comments on sectarian riots earlier and later in the same Belfast area. - BS

Last updated in version 5.0
Orange Yeomanry of '98, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer's father fought with the Orange Yeomanry in 1798. The Orange peasant and artisan imitate "the gallant Orange Yeomanry." The Orangeman "relies upon his Bible and his gun." Preferring peace, the Orangeman would fight if necessary

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1882 (_The History of Orangeism_, according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

KEYWORDS: rebellion nonballad patriotic political derivative

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

1798 - Irish rebellion against British rule

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 137, "The Orange Yeomanry of '98" (1 text)

Roud #V43602

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Memory of the Dead" (lyrics)

NOTES [104 words]: One verse
"Who fears to speak of Ninety-Eight?"
This was the silly note
Of one who was afraid to put
His name to what he wrote;
The reference is to John Kells Ingram's "The Memory of the Dead," which begins "Who fears to speak of Ninety-Eight?" The point is that Ingram's song was published anonymously. "The Orange Yeomanry of '98" was also published anonymously before Ingram openly acknowledged authorship of "Memory of the Dead." (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815) - BS
And, of course, this well sums up the attitude of groups such as the Orange Order, which eventually led to partition -- and the Troubles. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

Orangeman's Apology, The

DESCRIPTION: "I am a loyal Orangeman, in this I take delight, Though long before I firmly swore to those who did unite." Green being out of date, the singer calls the Pope a hog and swears what he's told. "For it's my rule, and I'm no fool, who's miller, I'll be dog"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1809 (Cox's _Irish Magazine_, according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

KEYWORDS: Ireland humorous nonballad political

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 49, "The Orangeman's Apology for Quitting the Croppies and Turning Loyalist" (1 text)

File: Moyl049

Orangeman's Dream, The

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the day being gone and the night coming on... When an Orangeman have departed his life." He arrives before St. Peter. He admits to being an Orangeman. St. Peter sends him to eternal damnation with "'Lizbeth" and "Harry" and "King William"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1994 (Thomas and Widdowson)

KEYWORDS: death Hell rejection religious

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Kenneth S. Goldstein, "A Report on Continuing Research into 'Treason Songs': A Orangemen of Cadiz, The

DESCRIPTION: An annual July 12 Orange lodge parade celebrates William's 1690 victory at the Boyne and ends in a fight with Irish Catholics. A politician who opposes Home Rule for Ireland is praised. The Protestant battle cry at the 1688 seige of Derry is recalled.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Orangemen, "stand for your friend Johnson" who "gained the day" in Parliament against the Home Rule Bill. July 12, 1872, 4000 Orangemen parading were "attacked by that hellish rival" but "we gained the day." Loyal Lodge 219 is the first in the field to fight "those bloody hounds." "Don't meddle with the Home Rule Bill the Orange rule to stain, Let 'no surrender' be the word Britannia rules the wave." The singer would have us "drink my health among you on the twelfth of July"

KEYWORDS: violence pride Ireland patriotic political

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports, pp. 291-293, "The Orangemen of Cadiz" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #25328

NOTES [319 words]: July 12 is the Gregorian Calendar (adopted in England in 1752) date for celebrating the victory of William II of Orange in the Battle of the Boyne, July 1, 1690. "Johnson" is apparently William Johnston, an anti-Home Rule M.P. (see note to "William Johnston of Ballykilbeg")

For a note on William of Orange in Ireland see "The Battle of the Boyne" (I).

For notes on July 12 marches and battles between Orangemen and Catholics see "The Battle of the Diamond," "The Battle That Was Fought in the North," "The Boys of Sandy Row" (with a comment on the 1872 riots in Belfast), "The Cavan Buck," "Dolly's Brae" (I) and (III), "The Lamentation of James O'Sullivan," "Listnagade" and "Owen Rooney's Lamentation."

For notes on March 17 marches and battles between Orangemen and Catholics see "Defence of Crossgar," "The Parish of Inch" and "The Shambles Fight."

For notes on Irish Home Rule see "Advice to Paddy," "Balbriggan Landlord," "Dialog Between Orange and Croppy," "Home Rule for Ireland," "A Loyal Song Against Home Rule," "The Union We'll Maintain," "We Won't Let Our Leader Run Down" and "William Johnston of Ballykilbeg.

"No surrender" is an Orange cry dating to the 1688 Seige of Derry. See the notes to "No Surrender"(I) and "The Shutting of the Gates of Derry."

For another reference to possible conflict between Orangemen and Roman Catholics in Newfoundland see "In Lonely Belvedere."

For other songs of a specific Orange lodge see "Cowcadden's Heroes" (L.O.L. 162) and "The Parish of Inch" (L.O.L. 430).

Not only are there wide-spread Orange songs but individual lodges have their own. This song cites Loyal Orange Lodge 219. - BS
Orangemen's Song

DESCRIPTION: "Some of my weary moments, I prone to solitude (sic.), I meditate on bygone days." A stranger asks why he is gazing at a rainbow. The singer had been a traveler, but his way was barred. He was shown Old Testament sights. Love should be like the rainbow

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Cox-FolkMusicInANewfoundlandOutport)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
*Cox-FolkMusicInANewfoundlandOutport, pp. 73-75, "Orangemen's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES: This supposedly was sung at Orangemen's Parades. You'd think they could have found something easier to understand -- although the problem may be just that the informant bollixed his pronouns; it's hard to know who is talking when.

The song's imagery is mostly Old Testament: Jacob's Ladder (Genesis 28:12). The twelve stones at the crossing of the Jordan is Joshua 3:13f. (with a variant involving twelve stones taken from the Jordan in 4:3). Noah's flood and the rainbow is 9:13. I have no idea what "that glorious eight thirteen" in verse eight means; my guess is that it is an error for "nine thirteen," God's promise, symbolized by the rainbow, that there would never again be a great flood. - RBW

---

Oranges and Lemons

DESCRIPTION: "Oranges and lemons, Say the bells of St. Clement's. You owe me five farthings.... When will you pay me? Say the bells of Old Bailey.... "I'm sure I don't know, Says the great bell of Bow." A threat (to chop off a head) may follow

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c.1744 (Tom Thumb's Pretty Song Book, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: money playparty

FOUND IN: Britain(England(All)) New Zealand

REFERENCES (7 citations):
*Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 392, "Oranges and lemons" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 7, "Oranges and Lemons" (3 texts, 1 tune)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #640, pp. 253-254, "(Gay go up and gay go down)" (a conflate version probably containing material not relevant to the song)
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 146, "Oranges and Lemons" (1 text)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 140, "Oranges and Lemons" (1 text)
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, pp. 31-32, "(Oranges and lemons)" (2 texts)
DT, ORANGLEM

Roud #13190

NOTES: Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes: "Whether or not the terminating lines ['... Here comes a chopper to chop off your head'] have special significance, they do not appear in the song's earliest recording (c.1744)" - BS

Whatever the significance of the song, it appears to have inspired a lot of descendants (several of which are quoted by the Opies). Many folkies will know Idris Davies's "Bells of Rhymney," set to music by Pete Seeger. Eleanor Farjeon (of "Morning Has Broken") fame also used it as a starting point for a song about a memorial for World War I soldiers called "The Children's Bells": "Where are your Oranges? Where are your Lemons? What, are you silent now, Bells of St. Clement's?" For the full text, with background, see Walter de la Mare, Come Hither, revised edition, 1928; #184, "The Children's Bells."

According to Marc Alexander, A Companion to the Folklore, Myths & Customs of Britain, Sutton Publishing, 2002, p. 208, the students at St. Clement Danes Primary School to this day go to what was the church of St. Clement Danes and are given an orange and a lemon following afternoon services.
Orders Came for Sailing

DESCRIPTION: "Orders came for sailing, flash up number one, Go and chase up Chiefy, the panic has begun. Tiffies are rushing here and there, It's hot down here, but the pigs don't care, We're flashing up regardless, We've got to go to sea."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
KEYWORDS: sailor navy derivative
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 31, "Orders Came for Sailing" (1 text, tune referenced)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Lili Marlene" (tune)

Ore Knob

DESCRIPTION: "Come, blooming youth in the midst of day And see how soon some pass away." Just before their shift ended, two miners, Sherley and Smith, die in a rockfall. The singer quotes the New Testament and says that it is all God's plan

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: mining disaster religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 211, "The Ore Knob" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 211, "The Ore Knob" (1 excerpt, 1 tune)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Sam E. Phiher, "True Stories and Tall Tales of Early Mining in North Carolina," Vol. VI, No. 1 (Jul 1958), p. 11-12, "The Ore Knob" (1 text)
Roud #6556
NOTES [69 words]: The editors of the Brown collection are unable to link this to any actual event, though it appears to be based on reality. Cray quotes a writing of the collector as saying, "The two men mentioned in 'The Ore Knob Song, Shirley and Smith, were killed in a mine at Ore Known in Ashe County, North Carolina, about 1897 or '98." The song probably would have been more successful if it weren't so sickeningly blatant. - RBW

Oregon and Texas

DESCRIPTION: "Hark! Freedom's eatly loudly calls, His cry rings through our hill s and halls...." "March away, 'tis freedom beck us, On for Oregon and Texas." The singer condemns Mexico, recalls San Jacinto, and urges a fight for Texas and Oregon

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1848 (Rough and Ready Songster, according to Cohen)
KEYWORDS: patriotic political battle war
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 633, "Oregon and Texas" (1 text)
NOTES [121 words]: In 1844, James K. Polk campaigned for President on the basis of annexation of Texas and demanding a large Oregon country -- that the U. S. should take the entire Oregon region up to latitude 54 degrees 40 minutes (hence the slogan "fifty four-forty or fight"). Polk was elected, and he did start a war with Mexico over Texas (or, rather, over California, which is what he really wanted) -- but he compromised over the Oregon boundary, knowing he could not fight two wars at once.

All the talk about freedom in this song is rather ironic, because one of the main reasons Texas rebelled against Mexico in the 1830s was because the American settlers there wanted to keep slaves. Mexico forbid slavery; the United States did not. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.7
File: CAFS2633

Oregon Question, The

DESCRIPTION: "Good evening folks -- it's old Dan Rice, Just come to give you good advice, And tell the Senate to be sure Like Polk, to go for fifty-four." Listeners are urged to take an aggressive line with Britain on the Oregon boundary

AUTHOR: Dan Rice?

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1846 (Book of 1001 songs, according to Cohen)

KEYWORDS: political patriotic

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 631-632, "The Oregon Question" (1 text)

NOTES [80 words]: In 1844, James K. Polk campaigned for President on the basis of annexation of Texas and demanding a large Oregon country -- that the U. S. should take the entire Oregon region up to latitude 54 degrees 40 minutes (hence the slogan "fifty four-forty or fight"). Polk was elected, and he did start a war with Mexico over Texas (or, rather, over California, which is what he really wanted) -- but he compromised over the Oregon boundary, knowing he could not fight two wars at once. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.7
File: CAFS2631

Oregon Trail. The

DESCRIPTION: "Way down yander in the Wahee Mountains, Where folks don't know about books nor countin's, Here lived a Zeke, an old galoor," who shoots a "city feller" for courting his girl. The girl gets pregnant; the stork travels so far with the baby that it dies

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions)

KEYWORDS: humorous courting death bird baby

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, p. 51, "The Oregon Trail" (1 text)
Roud #9619
File: Sbar051

Organ Grinder, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer in successive stanzas has sex with his girl friend in various places, each more outlandish than the last.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2)

KEYWORDS: bawdy humorous sex

FOUND IN: US(MA,So,SW)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 341-344, "The Organ Grinder" (3 texts, 1 tune)
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, p. 369-370, "My Little Organ Grinder" (1 text, 1 tune); II, pp. 592-594, "My Little Organ Grinder" (2 texts)
Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 65, "My Little Organ Grinder" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #18789
CROSS-REFERENCES:
Origin of Ireland, The

DESCRIPTION: "I crave your attention, Before I shall mention Of Erin so dear, Without hesitation, [...]. The cream of creation [...] the Queen. "Twas early one morning, Without any warning [...] by the sweet token [...] was broken."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: Ireland royalty
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 325, "The Origin of Ireland" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #6653
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "A Little Bit of Heaven" (theme: The Creation of Ireland)
NOTES [42 words]: I have a feeling that this started as a stage song, but I haven't managed to locate it; the badly damaged text in Brown/Schinhan is not much to go on. I suspect the first lacuna, after "hesitation," reads something like "I shall say of that nation." - RBW
Last updated in version 3.5
File: BrS4325

Origin of the Harp, The

DESCRIPTION: "'Tis believed that this Harp, which I wake now or thee, Was a Siren of old, who sung under the sea," who fell in love with a man on shore; she grieved so much that she was turned to a harp. But still she is beautiful

AUTHOR: Thomas Moore (1779-1852)
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster)
KEYWORDS: love beauty harp magic
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Moore-IrishMelodies-1846, pp. 60-61, "The Origin of the Harp" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 60, "The Origin of the Harp" (1 text)
Roud #19483
File: HMHS060A

Orkney Style of Courtship, The

DESCRIPTION: Recitation: Speaker says that the Orkney style of courship looks odd from outside, but "let them court the way they choose." Others may sit around to court; he prefers to court by jumping in bed with the girl; it saves time after a long day at work.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
LONG DESCRIPTION: Recitation: Speaker says that the Orkney style of courship looks odd from outside, but he says to "let them court the way they choose." He says that those who like to court in an armchair after the old folks have gone to sleep are free to do so, but he himself prefers to remove his boots and coat and jump into bed with the girl. He explains that this saves time after a long day at work.
KEYWORDS: courting sex family nonballad recitation
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Hebr))
Roud #3087
RECORDINGS:
John Findlater, "The Orkney Style of Courtship" (on FSB02, FSB2CD)
NOTES [4 words]: And I'm sure it does. - PJS
File: RcTOS0C
Orphan Child (Cherokee)

DESCRIPTION: Cherokee. "I hear Jesus's sorrowful voice" speaking to those who are orphaned. The singer hopes Jesus will take them. There will be room for them in heaven.

AUTHOR: (English translation by Kathy Sierra)

EARLIEST DATE: 2008 (Cohen)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad foreignlanguage

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 509, "Orphan Song" (1 text)

File: CAFS2509

Orphan Girl (III), The

DESCRIPTION: The ship Orphan Girl, out of London for Liverpool "with her cargo of cement," is "stranded on a place called Sea-field shore...; four of her crew were saved." A heroic boy is lost, the captain is cowardly, "but we may blame the Coast-guards."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)

KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship storm wreck sailor

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Oct 22, 1881: "... schooner Orphan Girl ... wrecked at Ballymoney"; the crew were rescued. (source: Bourke in _Shipwrecks of the Irish Coast_ v1, p. 45)

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, pp. 64-65, "The Orphan Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #20517

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Alfred D. Snow" (tune)
NOTES [11 words]: Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast: Tune is "Alfred D. Snow" on p. 116. - BS
Last updated in version 5.0

File: Ran064

Orphan Girl, The (The Orphan Child)

DESCRIPTION: The orphan girl at the rich man's door cries, "No home." Ragged, hungry, and cold, she begs for help, but the rich man turns her away. In the night she freezes to death, "but her soul has gone to a home above where there's room and bread for the poor"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1894 (inscription in a book currently [2010] in the possession of Kirsten Wagmeister)

KEYWORDS: poverty orphan rejection death

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,Ro,SE,So) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (33 citations):
Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports, pp. 309-311, "The Prince and the Orphan (The Orphan Girl)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 277-278, "The Orphan Girl" (1 text plus an excerpt from another, 1 tune)
Randolph 725, "The Orphan Child" (2 texts, 1 tune)
High-OlOldFolkSongs, p. 20, "A Pooe Orphant Left A Lone"; p. 43, "The Girl That Frose to Death" (2 texts)
Abrahams/Riddle-ASingerAndHerSongs, pp. 96-98, "The Orphan Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Arnold-FolkSongsOfAlabama, p. 17, "The Orphan Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 148, "The Orphan Girl" (3 texts plus mention of 11 more)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 148, "The Orphan Girl" (3 excerpts, 3 tunes, plus observations on a fourth)
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 117, "The Orphan Girl" (1 text)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #58, "The Orphan Girl" (1 text, 1 tune) Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 63, "The Orphan Girl" (3 texts plus an excerpt and mention Orphan, The

DESCRIPTION: "Will you hear my mournful story? All my friends are dead and gone. Father is no more, nor mother; I'm an orphan left alone." The singer recalls mother's death, and her dying injunction to obey the Bible. She visits the graveyard, and hopes to join mother

Orphan's Lament (Two Little Children, Left Jim and I Alone)

DESCRIPTION: "Two little children, a boy and a girl, Sat by the old church door." The ragged, dirty children tell of their poverty: "Papa was lost out on sea long ago... Mama's in heaven, angels took her away." They are too young to work. They die before morning

Ossian's Serenade

DESCRIPTION: "Oh come with me and be my love For thee, the deepest depths, I vow, Oh come
"with me for I long to go." "Oh, I'll chase the antelope over the plain, And the tiger's cub I'll bind with a chain." The singer urges haste lest their love decay

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)

KEYWORDS: love animal

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 147, "Ossian's Serenade" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9067

NOTES [401 words]: Although the informant behind Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin's version, Winifred Bundy of Madison, mentioned Ossian and the Fenians, it nearly defies belief that this is actually by the historical Ossian (Oisan) -- who, after all, was a character in the Irish mythological cycle, the son of Finn Mac Cumhaill (O hOgain, p. 410).

If he actually existed, he probably dated from around the third or fourth century (Benet, p. 806), which makes references to tigers and antelopes quite improbable -- no one in Ireland would know of such things.

The poetry published under the name "Ossian" was in fact collected and (to a large degree) written by James MacPherson (1736-1796), who wasn't even Irish; he was Scottish and working from Scots Gaelic materials (Benet, p. 669). The most famous of these is "Fingal."

MacPherson apparently learned about Ossian in 1759 from John Home. Although not a Gaelic scholar, he was determined to show that Scotland was superior to other Celtic nations (Kunitz/Haycraft, p. 333), and so produced his forgeries. Some of these were extremely blatant -- e.g. Fingal supposedly conquered Rome. (Amazing that no one in Rome noticed.) Ossian was portrayed as Fingal's bard.

Williams, p. 131, comments on MacPherson's work as seen in the late nineteenth century: "Opinions of eminent Celtic scholars still differ as to whether the so-called Gaelic originals of his poems were genuine transcripts from ancient pieces, or were translations into the Gaelic from Macpherson's English composition made by his friends to conceal the fraud and maintain provincial pride. He himself never produced the originals of his poems, and took refuge in a silence which went far to onfirm the impression of fraud and forgery. But whether he had any direct originals or not, and the weight of probability is that he had not, his poems were unquestionably founded on the vast mass of Celtic poetry and legend existing in Ireland and Scotland in tradition and manuscript."

MacPherson never admitted to forgery (Kunitz/Haycraft, p. 334), but the controversy had been so hot that he had been forced to make up more and more material. Finally a comission was formed to determine the truth -- and it firmly declared the materials forged in 1805. Kunitz/Haycraft grant them some genuine merit -- but very little Ossianic content. And this song, it appears to me, doesn't even have much MacPherson content. - RBW

Bibliography

• Kunitz/Haycraft: Stanley J. Kunitz and Howard Haycraft, Editors, British Authors Before 1800: A Biographical Dictionary, H. W. Wilson, 1952 (I use the fourth printing of 1965)
• O hOgain: Daithi O hOgain, The Lore of Ireland, Boydell Press, 2006
• Williams: Alfred M. Williams, Studies in Folk-Song and Popular Poetry, Houghton Mifflin, 1894

Last updated in version 2.6

File: Pet147

Ot Azoy Neyt A Shnayder (Weary Days Are a Tailor's)

DESCRIPTION: Yiddish: The immigrant singer tells of the hard work and long hours in a sweatshop: "From dawn till dusk he sews away." "Hunger and pain are all he knows." He thanks the union for better conditions

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950
KEYWORDS: work hardtimes foreigner labor-movement nonballad foreignlanguage
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 286-287, "Ot Azoy Neyt A Shnayder (Weary Days Are a Tailor's)"
(2 texts (English & Yiddish), 1 tune)
File: SBoA286

Ot Kraya i Do Kraya (From Frontier to Frontier)
DESCRIPTION: Russian: The listeners across the land are called upon to take up rifles to defend their homeland. They are urged to fight "for country and for freedom." They are warned to be ready for danger and sorrow, and are asked to fight to the end.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1940s (recording, Paul Robeson)
KEYWORDS: war political nonballad patriotic foreignlanguage
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
June 22, 1941 - German troops invade the Soviet Union without warning
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 356-357, "Ot Kraya i Do Kraya (From Frontier to Frontier)" (1 text, 1 tune)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
From Border To Border
NOTES [82 words]: When the Germans first invaded the Soviet Union in 1941, Stalin appealed to the people to save the Communist state. As propaganda, it failed miserably. Eventually the Soviets started appealing to the people to save Holy Mother Russia. Songs like this were emblems of that appeal. Combined with widespread (and true) reports of Nazi atrocities against Slavs (whom Hitler regarded as only marginally human), Stalin eventually built up enough patriotic fervor to allow the nation to survive. - RBW
File: SBoA356

Other Bright Shore, The
DESCRIPTION: "I have a mother gone to glory (or: ...mother over yonder) (x3), On (that) other (bright) shore." Similarly with father, sister, etc. "Some bright day we'll go and meet them...." "Won't that be a happy meeting..." etc.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious death reunion family
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So)
REFERENCES (13 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 539, "John Saw de Hundred and Forty-Four Thousand" (1 text, perhaps not this song but too close to separate (it starts "John saw the Hundred and Forty-Four Thousand" and has the chorus "I can't stay away," but the rest appears to be this); also 576, "Gwine Down Jordan" (1 text, also possibly separate as it has the chorus, "I'me gwine down Jordan, hallelo," but the verses seem to belong here); also 648, "We Have Loved Ones Over Yonder" (1 text, which appears to be exactly this song except that it uses the phrase "over yonders ocean" rather than "on the other bright shore")
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 539, "John Saw de Hundred and Forty-Four Thousand" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 90, "Over Yonders Ocean" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 611, "On That Other Bright Shore" (1 text, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, p. 164, "On Canaan's Happy Shore" (1 text, 1 tune)
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, p. 228, "Some Have Fathers Over Yonger" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 47, "I've Got a Mother Gone to Glory" (1 text, 1 tune)
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 217-218, "Oh, Brother Will You Meet Me?" (1 text, 1 tune, in which all meet "On Canaan's happy shores.")
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, p. 572, "The Other Shore" (1 text, 1 tune)
Otto Wood the Bandit

DESCRIPTION: Otto Wood has a quarrel with and kills a pawnshop clerk. Sheriff arrests him; he's imprisoned. He breaks out but is recaptured (and shot). In another break, he's shot dead. Chorus: "Otto Wood why didn't you run/When the sheriff pulled out that 44 gun?"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Slim Smith & the Carolina Buddies)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Otto Wood has a quarrel with a pawnshop clerk and pistol-whips (shoots?) him to death. Sheriff arrests him; he's sentenced to the penitentiary. He breaks out but is recaptured (and shot in the process). In another break, he's shot dead. "He loved the women and he hated the law/Just wouldn't take nobody's jaw." Chorus: "Otto Wood why didn't you run/When the sheriff pulled out that 44 gun?"

KEYWORDS: captivity crime homicide law manhunt prison punishment trial escape death police prisoner
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 8, 1895 - birth of Otis "Otto" Wood
Nov 3, 1923 - Wood robs and mortally wounds pawnbroker A. W. Kaplan
1926 - Wood writes "The Life Story of Otto Wood," published by the North Carolina Department of Corrections (!)
Jul 11, 1930 - Wood's last prison break
Dec 31, 1930 - Wood apprehended for the last time; he starts shooting rather than surrendering, and is shot dead (source: Sky)
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
DT, OTTOWOOD*
Roud #11543
RECORDINGS:
[Walter "Kid" Smith & the] Carolina Buddies, "Otto Wood the Bandit" ((Columbia 15652-D, 1931; rec. 1930; on RoughWays2)
Slim Smith [pseud. for Bernard Smith], "Otto Wood the Bandit" (Victor 23526, 1931)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Duncan and Brady" [Laws I9] (lyrics)
NOTES [1186 words]: Otto Wood was a local boy in the same area of North Carolina as Charlie Poole's band; the song tells his story pretty accurately.
Pity there isn't a keyword "ineptitude." - PJS
According to Casstevens, p. 86, Wood wasn't exactly inept -- just thoroughly out of it: "Wood escaped a total of ten times from prison. Four of those escapes were from the North Carolina State Prison, the rest from prison in Tennessee and Virginia. This record was remarkable in itself, and almost miraculous considering the prisoner had only one hand and a crippled foot" (Casstevens, p. 86). In telling his own story, he admitted to car theft, moonshining, and gambling while denying any sort of violence -- although a man he was fighting with did die (Casstevens, pp. 86-87; Sky, p. 35). Wood seems to have been very, very messed up -- I obviously can't diagnose from here, but psychopathy, or at least its broader cousin antisocial personality disorder, seems likely. Since such people have no respect for truth, I'm not sure how far we can trust his reports of his behavior. But the report is that he ran away from home as early as age seven (Sky, p. 38), riding the rods out of North Carolina and ending up cadging food and lodging before being sent home. His parents, clearly fearing a repeat, advised the railroads not to let him ride. But he managed to run away again and ended up in the custody of his uncle, where he learned about moonshining and gambling (Casstevens, p. 87).
When he next visited his family, he stole a bicycle, even though he didn't know how to ride it! He was first sentenced to a chain gang at age twelve, but was sent home because he was still so small. He then stole a bunch of guns, and was caught and tried. The judge tried to put him back with his family, who said they couldn't control him. The judge sent him home anyway (Casstevens, p. 88).
Some time after this, Wood lost his hand, seemingly in legitimate work in a coal mine, although he does not give details (Casstevens, p. 88). Somehow, he managed to hook up with several girls -- and, having married one, was imprisoned for making false promises to another and getting her pregnant. After this, he managed his first escape from prison -- which resulted in his sentence being lengthened when he was recaptured. He escaped again, got into a gambling fight, and ended up in a shootout in which three others were injured as well as Wood himself (he claimed he took all the winnings; I suspect he cheated and was caught). Amazingly, he was allowed to go free, since he claimed self-defense. He married again, took to hauling drink, and added car theft to his rap sheet (Casstevens, p. 89).
Fool that he was, when he escaped from prison in Tennessee, he decided to head home to his mother's family -- and was picked up almost at once. But he escaped again, briefly, although he ended up getting injured in the process -- and adding horse theft to his record (Casstevens, p. 90). When he ended up in jail in West Virginia, he recruited a young murderer to help him escape. They broke out on January 3, 1919. The kid was eventually captured, but Wood made it to North Carolina. He was arrested for moonshining and extradited to West Virginia (three states had warrants out for him, but they sent him to West Virginia because they offered the largest reward; (Casstevens, p. 91). He was granted a pardon there but shipped off to Tennessee, where he was given a sentence of three year and treated harshly. His latest girlfriend, who had been with him in West Virginia, had borne him a child, so he decided to escape again and head west. He apparently spent a year or so rambling around the west coast (Casstevens, p. 92). On his way back, he got caught with stolen merchandise which he claimed to have been trying to return to the rightful owner. He ended up wrecking his car in a chase, but escaped in the dark (Casstevens, p. 93). Woods by this time had two children, and he had to care for them and their mother. He turned again to moonshining. He also pawned a watch, and then tried to reclaim it -- and got into a fight with the pawnshop owner. (This is perhaps the event referred to in the song, which obviously happened after his criminal career was well advanced, although it might be confused with the fight with A. W. Kaplan, who refused to buy various things Wood tried to pawn.) Somehow, Wood ended up shooting the owner. He then hijacked a car, but eventually was caught and put on trial for murdering a man (Wood hadn't even known the owner was dead; Casstevens, p. 94. In his autobiography, he claimed never to have hurt a man intentionally; Sky, p. 38). He was convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to thirty years (his first really serious sentence). Not liking his treatment, he supposedly told the prison staff to lighten up or he would take matters into his own hands, and they dared him to try.

Wood took them up on it, once again recruiting a confederate and breaking out. They stole the prison doctor's car, then traded it for another, then another, taking the drivers of the latter two cars as prisoner and tying them up when they abandoned the cars (Casstevens, p. 95). But, of course, they were recaptured. Even his crazy girlfriend gave up on him and married another man. Naturally that meant that Wood had to break out again, to see her, but he was taken prisoner in North Carolina yet again. That was, by Casstevens's count, his eleventh arrest, following his eighth escape. It induced him to write his memoirs -- but not to listen to his own advise to stay out of trouble (Casstevens, p. 96).

Wood escaped yet again, apparently with inside help, and headed for the Midwest. He was shot while trying to rob a drug store in Indiana. He lived, and after a spell in solitary confinement in which he conveniently developed a severe cough, he was given relatively good treatment in prison. In July 1930, he made what is listed as his tenth and final escape (and his fourth from a North Carolina prison). By this point, people were sick of his escapades, and a reward was given for bringing him in dead or alive. He was located after six months, and R. L. Rankin, the police chief of Salisbury, North Carolina, caught him and called on him to give himself up (Casstevens, p. 97). Wood, rather than give himself up, jumped in the officers' car and tried to force the officers to help him get away. Rankin jumped out of the car. Wood started firing at him. Rankin and his companion returned fire. Wood was mortally wounded; his companion, Roy Baker, went back to prison (Casstevens, p. 98). The first versions of this song were recorded soon after.

The author of the song cannot be definitely known, but Sky, p. 36, believes that it was Walter "Kid" Smith. Since Smith and the Carolina Buddies (Odell Smith, fiddle; Norman Woodlief, guitar; Smith, vocals) produced the first recording, I suspect he's right.

A new book about Otto Wood is due in September 2021; the tentative title is Trevor McKenzie, Otto Wood, the Bandit: The Freighthopping Thief, Bootlegger, and Convicted Murderer behind the Appalachian Ballads. - RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 6.1
File: DTottowo

Ou Som Souroucou

DESCRIPTION: Creole French. "Ou Som Souroucou, qui ca ou gagnien, gagnien pou' bpi' do l'eau?" Ou Som Souroucou, asked why he drinks so much water, replies that he has eaten corn and has to drink.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Peterson, "Creole Songs from New Orleans")
Oughta Come on the River

DESCRIPTION: "Oughta come on the river Long time ago, I don't know partner, Say, you oughta know, You'd catch plenty trouble Everywhere you go." The Captain threatens the members of the gang. The singer dreams of freedom

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1963
KEYWORDS: work chaingang freedom
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, p. 103, (no title) (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Ain't No More Cane on this Brazos"
NOTES: There are many, many elements of "Ain't No More Cane on this Brazos/Go Down, Old Hannah" in this piece -- but it appears to be different. Assuming Courlander didn't cut something essential, anyway. - RBW

Oul' Dunloy

DESCRIPTION: The singer reports being sick of the city, and wishes he were back in Dunloy. The city is loud and strange, and the people look unhealthy. He misses his neighbors, who made life a joy. The corncrake cries, "Come back, come back to Dunloy."

AUTHOR: Andrew Doey
EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: homesickness
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H498, pp. 211-212, "Oul' Dunloy" (1 text, 1 tune)

Ould Bog Hole, The

DESCRIPTION: "O, the pigs are in the mire and the cow is at the grass And a man without a woman is no better than an ass." The singer courts Judy; she calls him a rake; he says he will be reform and hopes for as many children as there are "days in Lent." She consents

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1860 (Wolf)
KEYWORDS: love courting humorous
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland) Ireland US(MW)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 290-292, "The Ould Bog Hole" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan4 743, "The Old Bog Hole," Greig/Duncan8 Addenda, "The Old Bog Hole" (5 texts, 2 tunes)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladsOfIreland, p. 65, "The Old Bog Hole" (1 text)
Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry, pp. 36-37, "The Ould Bog Hole" (1 text)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 249-250, "The Old Bog Hole" (1 text, 1 tune)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 92, "The Old Bog Hole" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, pp. 154-155, "The Old Bog-Hole" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1694, p. 114, "The Old Bog-Hole" (1 reference)
Ould Father Dan

DESCRIPTION: "I once knew a dodger, whose name was Father Dan ... to purgatory he's gone long ago." "The Repealers of their cash were shorn And Repeal with Dan sent below." "There is no more rent for ould Father Dan, He is gone where the rest all will go"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark)
KEYWORDS: death Ireland humorous political
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark 28, "Ould Father Dan" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Grand Conversation on O'Connell Arose" (subject) and references there
NOTES [167 words]: Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark: "The song celebrates the death of Daniel O'Connell, leader of the mid-19th century movement aimed at breaking Ireland's integral union with Britain. The Repeal movement was financed with money raised from the Roman Catholic masses. The song points to the irony of a popular leader whose income derived from these collections and from the rents of his tenants." - BS
By the looks of it, this is a parody of "Uncle Ned." A vicious one, obviously. But probably produced almost the moment Stephen Foster's song came out; Daniel O'Connell died in 1847, and "Uncle Ned" was copyrighted 1848. Incidentally, this is an illustration of how violently biased Irish Protestantism could be. I am not Catholic, and I find very many Irish nationalists to be utterly ridiculous -- but O'Connell sought only civil rights for the people, and did not believe in violence, and did not want separation from the British crown. It's hard to see how anyone even vaguely rational could condemn him. - RBW

File: OrLa028

Ould Heelball You're Boozing Again

DESCRIPTION: The singer, McShaw, is "a decent shoemaker ... but I've lately took on to the booze," as his friends comment at every chance. He was once well-to-do but now his wagon wheel is broken, his horses sold, and his wife has taken his watch and chain.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster)
KEYWORDS: drink hardtimes nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster 48, "Ould Heelball You're Boozing Again" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2915
File: MorU048

Ould Ireland, You're My Darlin'

DESCRIPTION: "Ould Ireland, you're my jewel sure." The singer blesses "each manly son... But hang the knave and dastard slave So base as to deny thee." He pleads "a love that ne'er can perish."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1865 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 18(388))
KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad patriotic
FOUND IN:
Ould Lammas Fair, The

DESCRIPTION: "At the Ould Lammas Fair in Ballycastle long ago, I met a little colleen who set my heart aglow." He recalls the girl even while looking at the lasses of Flanders. Now he is glad to be at home with her, playing the fiddle and recalling the fair

AUTHOR: John Henry Macaulay

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: love courting fiddle reunion

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H101, pp. 275-276, "The Ould Lammas Fair" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9051

NOTES [48 words]: The reference to courting Flemish girls could date this to several wars, but the reference to "resting from the war," and the fact that the soldiers spent much time there, clearly implies a World War I date. As one would expect of a song composed during Sam Henry's collecting days. - RBW

File: HHH101

Ould Piper, The

DESCRIPTION: An old Irish piper, who played before Moses, can only play one tune. He dies and goes to Hell. The devil puts him in the frying pan; "This is another ould piper I've found/ Put him down with the rest for to play." (For a chorus, the singer imitates pipes.)

AUTHOR: Carl Hardebeck

EARLIEST DATE: c.1912 (OLochlann-MoreIrishStreetBallads learned from the author)

KEYWORDS: death music Hell Devil

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OLochlann-MoreIrishStreetBallads 70, "The Piper Who Played Before Moses" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3091

RECORDINGS:
Frank McPeake, "The Ould Piper" (on FSB3)

File: RcTOLPi

Ould Plaid Shawl, The

DESCRIPTION: "Not far from old Kinvara in the merry month of May ... came ... a little Irish cailin in an ould plaid shawl" A man "enchanted with her beauty" greets her. She "shyly passed me by" He can't forget her. "I'll seek her all through Galway and ... Clare"

AUTHOR: Francis A. Fahy

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: love separation beauty courting

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 106, "The Ould Plaid Shawl" (1 text)
Our Baby (Cheeks of Rose, Tiny Toes)
DESCRIPTION: "Cheeks of rose, tiny toes, Has our little baby, Eyes of blue, fingers too, Cunning all as may be. "Mouth so fair, skin so clear." 'Thee I love, sweetest dove.' "Crow and play, all the day. Happy little baby, May your life... Pure as 'tis today be."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart-Songs)
KEYWORDS: baby nonballad
FOUND IN: Heart-Songs, p. 119, "Our Baby" (1 text, 1 tune)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Heart-Songs, p. 119, "Our Baby" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [46 words]: Heart-Songs calls this a "French Folksong." It offers no French words, and I can't find a traditional version. I think I heard it somewhere, but that doesn't make it a folksong either. So I suspect the Heart-Songs attribution is wrong -- but I'm putting it in just in case. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: HeSo119

Our Baby Died
DESCRIPTION: Our baby committed suicide or died of spinal meningitis... to spite us... no one sent flowers because he was not ours.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2)
KEYWORDS: death suicide humorous nonballad baby bastard
FOUND IN: US(SW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 68, "Our Baby Died" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #24596
File: BrE2068

Our Boots Are Made of Leather
DESCRIPTION: Our boots/shoes are leather, stockings/socks are silk Our pinafores are white as milk, or I wash myself in milk. We go around until we touch the ground.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (A.E. Gillington, _Old Surrey Singing Games_, according to Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: clothes playparty
FOUND IN: US Britain(England)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 49, "Our Boots Are Made of Leather" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown-MyGrandmothersSongbook 15, "My Shoes Are Made of Spanish" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13171
File: 0pGa049

Our Brave Scotch Lads
DESCRIPTION: "Scotch soldiers true, wi' bonnets blue ... They made the Russians rue, man, The bold attack which they did make On Balaklava's plain." Many died in the Crimea "the Sultan for to save." "They made the heart o' Menschikoff To sink on Alma's heights"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan1)
KEYWORDS: war death Russia
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
Our Captain Calls All Hands (Fighting for Strangers)

DESCRIPTION: "Our Captain called all hands and away tomorrow, Leaving those girls behind." She says "What makes you go abroad fighting for strangers?" Stay here "free from all danger." He leaves. In grief "she fell like one a-dying."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1794 (Journal of the Polly)

KEYWORDS: grief love request rejection war parting death family lover separation

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South)) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (8 citations):
Butterworth/Dawney-PloughboysGlory, p. 34, "Our Captain Calls" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 416-417, "All Hands Away Tomorrow" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-TheldiomOfThePeople 71, "Our Captain Cried All Hands" (2 texts)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 440, "Disconsolate Lover" (1 text)
Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams #25, "Fountains Flowing" (1 text, 1 tune)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, "Our Captain Cried 'All Hands'' (1 text, 1 tune)
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 99-100, "The Captain Calls All Hands" (1 text, 1 tune)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 162-163, "A Song Concerning Love (The Captain Calls All Hands)" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #602

RECORDINGS:
Mrs Freeman Bennett, "All Hands Away Tomorrow" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Pop Maynard, "Our Captain Calls All Hands" (on Voice01)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(636), "The Distressed Maid" ("Our captain calls all hands away to morrow"), J. Pitts (London), 1819-1844; also 2806 c.18(93)[a few illegible lines], Firth c.12(210), Harding B 25(525), "The Distressed Maid"; Firth c.12(208)[illegible lines], "The Distress'd Maid";

NOTES [125 words]: This is not "The Bold Privateer." [I agree, and so does Roud, though Huntington implies that they are the same. - RBW]

Vaughan Williams used the tune to set the words of John Bunyan's hymn starting "He who would valiant be 'gainst all disaster" (see Southern Life(UK) Sussex villages site for Monk's Gate)

Reeves/Sharp-TheldiomOfThePeople: "... Lucy Broadwood gave as its original a broadside entitled 'The Welcome Sailor.'" The only broadsides of that title I have found so far belong with "A Seaman and His Love (The Welcome Sailor)" [Laws N29]. - BS

The title "Fighting for Stranger" is not, to my knowledge, found in tradition, but since that is the title Steeleye Span used, in what is probably the best-known recording, I've listed it here. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: Pea416
Our Cheerful Voices (Separation)
DESCRIPTION: "Our cheerful voices let us raise, And sing a parting song, Although, dear friends, I'm with you now. I can't be with you long." The singer hopes to meet friends again, wishes the Lord would come, and hopes to be taken away by the last Trump
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry, from Granville Gadsey)
KEYWORDS: religious death
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
 Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 204-205, "Our Cheerful Voice" (1 text)
Roud #13951
NOTES [26 words]: This piece is titles "Parting Friends" in the Sacred Harp, but is not to be confused with "Farewell My Friends (Parting Friends; I'm Bound for Canaan)." - RBW
File: MHAp204

Our Cherries
DESCRIPTION: An allegory. The fine cherries [of true religion] are guarded from birds and infidels by a finely woven net. Some would propose to loosen the net. The result would be that birds, Methodists, and Baptists would get the fruit -- an unacceptable result
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio)
KEYWORDS: religious political
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
 Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 141, "Our Cherries" (1 text)
ST E141 (Full)
Roud #4449
NOTES [113 words]: Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio, following Tolman, regards this as a bit of theological satire. I wonder if it's not a bit more complicated -- "Testy" is presumably the Test Act -- a law passed in Britain in 1673, requiring public officeholders to demonstrate a commitment to Anglicanism. The Act was repealed in 1829. The reference to Methodists implies a date not much before that. Perhaps this piece was involved (as a broadside?) in the efforts to repeal the Acts. The reference to "Arian's flock" is, I presume, an error, referring to the Arian heresy (which held that God the Son was inferior to God the Father). The founder of this group was, however, Arius, not Arian. - RBW
File: E141

Our Fathers They'll Be There
DESCRIPTION: "Our fathers, our fathers they'll be there, Yes, our fathers they'll be there, When we all meet around God's bright throne. What a meeting, what a meeting that will be... When we all meet...." Similarly with mothers, brothers, sisters
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
 Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 627, "Our Fathers They'll Be There" (1 text)
 Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 627, "Our Fathers, They'll Be There" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roud #11928
File: Br3627

Our Feet's Cauld
DESCRIPTION: "My feet's cauld, my shoon's thin; Gie's my cakes and let me rin!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1832 (Chambers)
KEYWORDS: request food begging nonballad clothes
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 640, "Our Feet's Cauld" (1 short text)
J. Christie in Scottish Notes and Queries (Aberdeen, 1888 ("Digitized by Google")), Vol. I, No. 10, March 1888, p. 163, ["Query 81. New Year Rhymes" ("Here comes in a guid new year") (1 text with 5 verses, 1 tune) I consider this "Get Up Goodwife and Shake Your Feathers"; the last verse is the "my feet's cauld" couplet.
John Muir, "Notes on Ayrshire Folk-Lore" in [John Bulloch?, editor,] Scottish Notes and Queries (Aberdeen, 1895 ("Digitized by Google")), Vol. VIII, No. 3, August 1894, p. 40, ("My feet's cauld, my shin's thin")
R.C. Maclagan, "Additions to _The Games of Argyleshire_" in Folk-Lore, (London, 1905 ("Digitized by Google")), Vol. XVI, pp. 215-216 ("'This night is called Hogmanay'" (1 text: four verse epilogue to "The New-Year Mummer's Tale of Golishan" "as it used to be said, sung, and acted all over Scotland, from Cheviot to Cape Wraith,'... as communicated to the _Scotsman_ of 31st Dec, 1902."))
E.F. Coote Lake, "Folk Life and Traditions" in Folklore, Vol. LXVII, No. 1 (Mar 1956 (available online by JSTOR)), p. 45 ("Ma feet's cauld, ma shane's thin") (1 text: two lines)
Roud #5886
CROSS-REFERENCES:
"Get Up Goodwife and Shake Your Feathers" (text) and references there
NOTES [221 words]: The current description is all of the Chambers entry.
Chambers presentation argues for keeping "shake your feathers" and "my feet's cauld" as separate entries. He lists "shake your feathers" and, as a different entry, the "get up, goodwife, and binna sweir" verse from MacLagan, and then introduces the "my feet's cauld" couplet as "the most favorite of all ... more to the point than any of the foregoing." Of the reports I have seen, only Christie and MacLagan have "my feet's cauld" in a combination with other verses.
MacLagan's example combines "shake your feathers" and "our feet's cauld" in a different way than Christie's text. The first verse is an introduction to the holiday and a "bless the master" verse. Then comes another "get up, guid wife" ("get up, guid wife, and binna sweir") that is usually reported as a separate rhyme, and concluding with "shake your feathers" and "our feet's cauld." Possibly, the formality of the mummer's play made combining usually independent verses attractive.
Muir points out that another rhyme, current among children waiting outside school on cold winter mornings -- "Master, master, let me in, My feet's cauld, my shin's din, If ye dinna let me in I'll be frozen to the shin" is similar but that the Hogmanay couplet is more smarter, more laconic, and more to the point." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD3640

Our Foreman, Mr. Knight

DESCRIPTION: "Mr. Knight is our foreman's name, A good old soul is he. He works us from morning till night On potatoes, salt, and tea. But that's all right, It's Mr. Knight." If they're wet enough, he sends them inside among bedbugs and mice. The loggers won't forget

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan)
KEYWORDS: lumbering hardtimes food work
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp. 224-225, "Our Foreman, Mr. Knight" (1 text)
Roud #6504
File: BBun224
Our Island Home
DESCRIPTION: "Then here's to ... Prince Edward Island, Sweet garden of sunshine, ... our beautiful Isle in the sea." The singer has "roamed far and wide over mountains and prairies" but prefers the people, the land and the beauty of "our Island"
AUTHOR: Father Mathias Smith
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland)
KEYWORDS: home lyric nonballad
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 117-118, "Our Island Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12461
File: Dib117

Our Island Is Covered with Fog
DESCRIPTION: Spring. Snow melts. Frantic activities start now "our island is covered with fog": trouting, gunning, chopping; people and animals are rushing around
AUTHOR: Chris Cobb
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: fishing hunting humorous nonballad animal
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, pp. 89-90, "Our Island Is Covered with Fog" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [16 words]: Peacock: "The island referred to in the song is Fogo Island off Newfoundland's northeast coast." - BS
File: Pea089

Our Jack's Come Home Today
DESCRIPTION: Jack, (after many years at sea), is coming home (in some versions, "blind drunk"). Everyone rejoices at the sailor's return. His sweetheart, it is reported, "ne'er despaired, Though all hope within her died," but now the two will be married
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951
KEYWORDS: sailor separation return reunion marriage
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 169-170, "Our Jack's Come Home Today" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1983
File: Doe169

Our Lady of Knock
DESCRIPTION: An apparition in the church of Knock in County Mayo: Saint Joseph, Mary, and Saint John appear to a few. Now "hundreds come from far and near Our Lady's help to seek ... deaf and dumb ... born blind" and are cured. The three are asked to intercede
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)
KEYWORDS: healing Bible religious
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Aug 21, 1879 - "15 people, from the village of Knock, witnessed an apparition of Our Lady, St Joseph and St John the Evangelist at the South gable of Knock Parish Church." (source: Museums of Mayo site, Knock Folk Museum)
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 11, "Our Lady of Knock" (1 text, 1 tune)
Our Orange Flags May Gang to Rags

DESCRIPTION: The singer overhears two Orangemen. One would rather die than surrender. He fears emancipation since "popish Dan ... Again has won the Clare election" and Peel and Wellington have joined O'Connell. Their Orange flags and drums must be put away.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: Ireland political
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1829 - Irish Catholic Emancipation Act passes supported by Daniel O'Connell and the Catholic Association
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 691, "Our Orange Flags May Gang to Rags" (1 text)
Roud #6113
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Not a Word of 'No Surrender'" (subject and some lines) and references there NOTES [290 words]: For a reference to the Orange Drum see "You Ribbonmen of Ireland."
The speaker is talking to "dear Billy lad." Greig/Duncan3 notes comments in the text that would make "Billy lad" be William the 4th [reigned 1830-1837]. - BS
Daniel O'Connell (for whom see, e.g., "Daniel O'Connell (I)" and the myriad cross-references there) had obtained Catholic Emancipation in 1829, in the reign of George IV. But William IV succeeded soon after, and in effect had the task of implementing it. It was hardly to his liking; he was an old man when he came to the throne (born 1765), and -- like most of the Hannoverians -- stubborn without being very bright.

According to Philip Ziegler, King William IV, Cassell, 1971, p. 241, William was hardly happy at his role in the reorganization of Ireland. He rejoiced when O'Connell was arrested in 1831, and was unhappy when O'Connell was acquitted. In 1833, when the Whigs in parliament proposed to reform the official Church of Ireland (to which tithes were paid by the people even though the vast majority were Catholics rather than Anglicans), William was again unhappy (Zieger, p. 242). It was a period of much trouble between a King with conservative inclinations and a series of parliaments with many Whigs and few MPs who were entirely in support of the government. As a result, Williams tossed out most of the cabinet in 1834, but found he could not govern with Tories alone. It was a difficult time in Westminster -- which was, indirectly, good for the Irish and O'Connell, because the English couldn't come up with a concerted plan for halting O'Connell's plans for liberalization. Of course, that which was good for the Irish as a whole was bad, or at least was seen as bad, for the Orangemen. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3691

Our Sheepshearing's Done

DESCRIPTION: "Our sheepshearing done, to our master we come, Who enjoins us to sport as we please." The shepherdesses, beer, cider, wine, wool, and, most of all, cheese, are praised. "Join hands, ... drink 'May our Squire Live long, and enjoy his own cheese!"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs)
KEYWORDS: farming drink food nonballad sheep
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Our Ship Sails Ready to Bear Away

DESCRIPTION: The singer's ship prepares to sail. He bids Nora farewell and hopes to meet again. He thinks of all the places in Ireland he will miss: Dublin's hills, Killiney's mount, Wicklow, Avoca's Vale, Delgany, Bray,... and knows he'll remember Ireland.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (IRRCinnamonond03); 19C (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 26(164))

KEYWORDS: love, emigration, farewell, sea, ship, Ireland, nonballad, home

FOUND IN: Ireland

Roud #2995

RECORDINGS:

Robert Cinnamond, "Our Ship Sails Ready to Bear Away" (on IRRCinnamonond03)

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, Harding B 26(567), "The Emigrants Farewell to his Country" ("Our ship is ready to beare away"), P. Brereton (Dublin), c.1867

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Remember Me" (shares opening verses)

NOTES [106 words]: Wright-Irish (Irish Emigrant Ballads and Songs) pp. 111, 170-173, has two versions of "Our Ship Sails Ready to Sail Away" and one of "Remember Me" and considers them to be variants of the same song. His longest version of "Our Ship ..." and his "Remember Me" share three verses almost exactly; "Our Ship ..." adds six 4-line verses and "Remember Me" adds five 4-line verses and, in these lines, the songs share no lines. "Our Ship ..." is a farewell to Nora, and besides to Dublin, Delgany and Wicklow; "Remember Me" is a farewell to old Ireland boys, and besides to Killarney. My inclination is to keep them as two separate songs. - BS

File: RcOSSRBA

Our Ship She Is Lying in Harbour

DESCRIPTION: The impressed singer, his ship ready to sail, hopes his girl will be safe. The girl laments the departed youth; the father is glad her is gone. Her love returns after seven years. The father offers her money not to marry him, but they are married anyway

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1847 (Journal of William Histed of the Cortes)

KEYWORDS: sailor, love, separation, pressgang, father

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (4 citations):

Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 124-125, "Our Ship She Is Lying in Harbour" (text)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 102, "Our Ship She Lies in the Harbour" (1 text)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, p. 63, "Our Ship She Lies In Harbour" (1 text, 1 tune)
Broadwood-EnglishTraditionalSongsAndCarols, pp. 58-59, "Our Ship she lies in Harbour" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1011

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, Harding B 26(686), "Willy's Return" ("Our ship lies in this harbour"), J Moore. (Belfast), 1846-1852

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Lowlands of Holland" (lyrics)

NOTES [48 words]: There are several songs on this theme, but this doesn't quite seem to match any of them. Several early verses are found, almost verbatim, near the END of some texts of "The Lowlands of Holland." It's almost as if someone took the end of that song as the starting-off point for this. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: SWMS124
Our Street Car
DESCRIPTION: In abysmal verse, the singer points out, "Let moderns preach, 'We need more street' With themes and schemes -- ah! scorners." The singer would rather praise "Our street car! Ours to honor." The singer describes its virtues and mourns its passing
AUTHOR: Lucie Mullan
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)
KEYWORDS: technology nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 248-249, "Our Street Car" (1 text)
NOTES [19 words]: Thomas implies that the author sang this piece, but I find it hard to believe this mess could fit a regular tune. - RBW
File: ThBa248

Out In the Moonlight (I Will Love Thee Always)
DESCRIPTION: The young man bids the girl goodbye in the moonlight, promising, "I will love you always... Through life and death I'm faithful to thee." Returning home (a year) later, he finds her married to another. He leaves a note and shoots himself
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, Rutherford & Burnett)
KEYWORDS: love courting marriage separation betrayal suicide
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 803, "Out in the Moonlight" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 723, "Standing by the Old Garden Gate" (1 fragment, 1 tune, possibly this)
Roud #3445
RECORDINGS:
Burnett & Rutherford, "Under the Pale Moonlight" (Challenge 420, 1928; on BurnRuth01)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Skon Jungfrun Hon Gangar Sig Till Sogsta Berg (The Pretty Maid Climbs the Highest Mountain)" (plot)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Forsaken Love
NOTES [65 words]: The Burnett & Rutherford version of this differs so strongly from the versions in Randolph (lacking, e.g., the suicide ending; also, the the girl is not yet married when he returns home) that I was sorely tempted to classify it as a separate song. The essential plot is the same, however, and some of the words, and I know of no other versions of the recorded song. So they stay together. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: R803

Out of the Blossom Sprang a Thorn
DESCRIPTION: "Out of the blossom sprang a thorn, When God himself would be born." A spring (Jesus?) comes from a well (Mary?). Three kings come to visit, bearing their gifts. Refrain: "Deo patri sit gloria" or "That was born of Marie"/"And his mother Marie"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1430 (British Library -- Sloane MS. 2593)
KEYWORDS: religious Jesus travel MiddleEnglish
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #123, pp. 79-80, "(no title)" (2 texts)
Rickert-AncientEnglishChristmasCarols, pp. 117-120, "Alleluia! alleluia!"; "Out of the Blossom Sprang a Thorn" (2 texts)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #2730, 3527
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #4333, #5566
ADDITIONAL: Roman Dyboski, _Songs, Carols, and Other Miscellaneous Poems from the Balliol
Ms. 354, Richard Hill's Commonplace Book, Kegan Paul, 1907 (there are now multiple print-on-demand reprints), #24, pp. 12-3, "(Alleluia, Alleluia, Deo patri sit gloria)" (1 text)
Carleton Brown, editor, _Religious Lyrics of the XVth Century_, Oxford University Press, 1939, #88, pp. 126-127, "Balthazer, Melchior and Jasper" (1 text)
MANUSCRIPT: {MSSloane2593}, London, British Library, MS. Sloane 2593, folio 12 [IMEV #2730]
MANUSCRIPT: {MSRichardHill}, The Richard Hill Manuscript, Oxford, Balliol College MS. 354, folio 222 [IMEV #3527]
NOTES [302 words]: Although no longer found in tradition, this seems to have been popular in the fifteenth and early sixteenth centuries, surviving in two very important manuscripts. It is in the Hill MS. (Balliol College, Oxford, 354) and in Sloane MS. 2593, an important collection which contains many folk songs.

What is more, the two texts are so different as to have hardly a word in common (e.g. Sloane mentions the legendary names of the three kings, Balthazar, Melchior, and Gaspar; Balliol calls them the oldest, middle, youngest). There seem to be corruptions in both texts (e.g. Sloane, the earlier text, has in stanza 3 "Out of the welle sprng a streme From patriarch to Jerusalem" -- and no one seems to have a clue what "patriarck" is). And Greene, p. xcvii, suggests that the method of naming the kings is derived from the folk song method of incremental repetition of Forms (e.g. "There were three sisters lived in a hall").

What's more, Greene, p. 376, says the Sloane manuscript is "disturbed" here, implying that more might be learned if it were in its proper form.

On this very tentative basis I have included the song.

For more on the "three kings" (who may not have been three, and whose names are unknown) see the notes to "The Golden Carol (The Three Kings)."

Greene, p. 376, suggests that the blossom and thorn is a variation of the Rod/Root of Jesse symbolism.

Brown, p. 324, mentions a "figure of the Wounds [of Jesus] as wells." Brown does not apply the figure to this verse, but the well must mean SOMETHING. My first thought was that it meant Mary. Then I thought of Jesus as the source of Living Water in John 4:10-14. But the idea of the Wounds of Christ seems like a third possibility that fits well here.

For more on manuscript Sloane 2593, see the notes to "Robyn and Gandeleyen" [Child 115]. - RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 5.3
File: MS0B1SpT

---

Out on the Lone Star Cow Trail

DESCRIPTION: Singer, a cowboy, meets a comrade and kills him although "he was dear to me." The judge sends him to prison. He asks listener to tell mother and sweetheart that he's in the "dark city jail"; his sweetheart should bail him out. Chorus: "Hoo-hoo-hooo-oo-oo"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Dick Devall)

KEYWORDS: captivity violence crime homicide prison punishment trial friend lover cowboy judge

FOUND IN: US(So)

Roud #633

RECORDINGS:

-Dick Devall, "Out on the Lone Star Cow Trail" (Timely Tunes [Victor subsidiary] C-1563, 1931; rec. 1929; on MakeMe, WhenIWas1)

NOTES [45 words]: This should not be confused with "Lone Star Trail." - PJS

Roud lumps this with "The Wandering Cowboy (I)" [Laws B7], and the plot similarity is obvious, but there are enough different details that Paul Stamler, who has listened to most of the versions, splits them. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
Out to Dark Harbour

DESCRIPTION: "Now boys I'll tell you it's a wonderful time Out to Dark Harbour in the old summer time." The singer picks dulse and sells it at Eastport.

AUTHOR: John Guptill (of Grand Manan)

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick)

KEYWORDS: sea commerce nonballad food

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 117, "Out to Dark Harbour" (1 short text, 1 tune)
ST CrSNB117 (Partial)
Roud #2785

OUTHARBOUR PLANTER, THE

DESCRIPTION: The narrator lights his pipe and extols the virtues of the "outharbour planter." This apparently dead breed of men was not well refined but had many virtues of industry and honesty.

AUTHOR: probably M. A. Devine (1857-1915)

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Christmas Review, according to Ryan)

KEYWORDS: recitation virtue

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 136, "The Outharbor Planter" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, _Songs Their Fathers Sung: For Fishermen: Old Time Ditties_, James Murphy Publishing, 1923 (PDF available from the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 6, "The Outhorbor Planter" (sic). (1 text)
Roud #6354

NOTES [202 words]: A typical song about the archetypal hardy Newfoundlander. The dictionary defines a "planter" as a person who settles or colonizes a new area. I believe that this is the closest definition here because the "outharbour" is probably synonymous with "outport" which is a very small settlement far away from cities. They are probably leaders of a kind because there are some references in the song being made to his selling and providing people with food and clothes and using his house as a meeting hall. - SH

According to Shannon Ryan, _The Ice Hunters: A History of Newfoundland Sealing to 1914_, Breakwater Books, 1994, p. 401 n. 110 , this first appeared in the St. John's Christmas Review in 1901 under the name of Absalom Hbbs, but Gerald S. Doyle credited it to M. A. Devine. Murphy also credits it to Devine. Ryan thinks Devine published it under a pseudonym. This seems not unlikely; according to (Robert H. Cuff, managing editor), Dictionary of Newfoundland and Labrador Biography, Harry Cuff Publications, 1990, p. 83, "Devine's literary efforts most often appeared anonymously." And he was a newspaper editor; it sounds as if he might have published the piece himself and not wanted to admit it. - RBW

Outlaw Dunny

DESCRIPTION: The cook's rattling arouses Dunny, and he and the rest of the herd take off. By the Outlaw Murray, The [Child 305]
DESCRIPTION: The King of Scotland demands that the outlaw pay him homage for his holdings in Ettrick Forest. Murray refuses; he won the land by his own valor. The King calls up his forces to attack Murray. A compromise is reached; Murray becomes sheriff of Ettrick
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLiest DATE: 1791 (Glenriddell mss.)
KEYWORDS: outlaw royalty bargaining reprieve
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Child 305, "The Outlaw Murray" (3 texts)
- Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads, pp. 349-355, "The Outlaw Murray" (1 text)
- Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 193-204, "The Sang of the Outlaw Murray" (1 text)
- Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 84, "The Outlaw Murray" (1 text)
Roud #3296
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Captain Ward and the Rainbow" [Child 287] (theme)
NOTES [93 words]: According to Mary Ellen Brown, Child's Unfinished Masterpiece: The English and Scottish Popular Ballads, University of Illinois Press, 2011, p. 128, Child was strongly inclined to omit this item from the ESPB, and included it only at the last minute. Hence its number as the very last of the Child Ballads. - RBW
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads follows Scott, one of the sources for Child's 305A. If you want to see Scott's text it's much easier to follow in Scott or Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads than it is to decipher Child's deconstruction notes. - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: C305

Outlaw of Loch Lene, The
DESCRIPTION: The outlaw lives in the wood. "All the wealth that I sought, one fair kind glance from my love." His lover lives down by the lake. He remembers when his lover swam Loch Lene to find him. He imagines them alone, "far off on the deep"
AUTHOR: unknown (translated by J. J. Callanan)
EARLiest DATE: 1888 (Sparling)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad lover outlaw separation
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (4 citations):
- OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 55, "The Outlaw of Loch Lene" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_ , revised edition, 1928; #365, "The Outlaw of Loch Lene" (1 text)
There is a certain amount of confusion about this author. Most sources list his name as James
Joseph Callanan, but he is also sometimes listed under the name "Jeremiah" (and, yes, it is known that it is the same guy). Most sources agree that he was born in 1795, but his death date seemingly varies; Hoagland and MacDonagh/Robinson give 1829. He wrote some poetry of his own, but is probably best known for his translations from Gaelic. Works of his found in this index include "The Convict of Clonmel," "The Outlaw of Loch Lene," "Sweet Avondu," "The Virgin Mary's Bank," "Gougane Barra," and a translation of "Drimindown." - RBW

File: OLcM055

Outward and Homeward Bound

DESCRIPTION: Shanty. Verses enumerate the ports to be visited and the girls being left behind. The singer says the purser will supply their needs, and looks forward to returning home after (three) years. Chorus: "We're outward bound, Hurrah, we're outward bound."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1863 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(1565))

KEYWORDS: shanty farewell travel floating verses

FOUND IN: Britain (England (Lond, South)) US

REFERENCES (7 citations):

- Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 88, "When We Are Homeward Bound" (1 text)
- Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, pp. 136-139, "Outward Bound" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 541-543, "Outward and Homeward Bound" (2 texts, 2 tunes) [AbEd, pp. 387-389]
- Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, p. 37, "Outward and Homeward Bound" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, pp. 147-148, "Homeward Bound" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #65, "Homeward Bound" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 88, "Homeward Bound" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #927 and 18905

BROADSIDES:

- Bodleian, Harding B 11(1565), "Homeward Bound" ("Now to Blackwall docks we bid adieu"), H. Such (London), 1849-1862; also Firth c.12(159), "Outward Bound"

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Get Up, Jack! John, Sit Down!" (lyrics)

ALTERNATE TITLES:

Homeward Bound

NOTES [82 words]: Most if not all versions of this share a verse with "Get Up, Jack! John, Sit Down!"; at one time I lumped Shay's version with that song. We've now split them, but it seems clear there is some sort of borrowing going on. Given that "Get Up, Jack! John, Sit Down!" is apparently a composed song, the best bet may be that that is a rewrite of this.

Roud gives this two numbers, 927 and 18905, but I can't see the distinguishing feature; the whole family is an incredible mess of composites. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: Hugi541

Ouzel, The

DESCRIPTION: Ouzel sails from Dublin for Tripoli. "Somewhere down by Algiers, on the coast of Barbary, The Ringsend sailors fought and failed against black piracy." Years later they escape, take over Ouzel again, and return to Ireland with pirate gold.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)

KEYWORDS: sea ship captivity slavery pirate escape

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

- 1695 - Ouzel sails from Dublin for Smyrna but is not heard from until she returns five years later (see Notes)

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):

- Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, pp. 113-114, "The Ouzel" (1 text)

Roud #20543

NOTES [104 words]: "The crew said the ship had been captured by Algerian pirates who used it to terrorise the Mediterranean seas, although it was rumored in some quarters that Captain Massey might have been indulging in a spot of piracy himself!! The official story went on to relate how the Irish crew, who had been spared, managed to escape from captivity and regained control of the ship and the pirate's booty" (source: site of The Ouzel Galley Society on IrishShips)

Irish Architecture Online site: "Ringsend is named from the Gaelic Roinn Aun, meaning Sea Point. In the 17th century it took over from Dalkey as Dublin's main port." - BS

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Ran113

Over Hills and Mountains

DESCRIPTION: "Mony's the hill and valley that's atween my love and me Likewise the Sea in full flowing tide." The singer thinks and dreams about being with his "sweet bride." If he were emperor he'd "throw down the crown and go and beg with thee"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: love separation nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1544, "Over Hills and Mountains" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #12959
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Belfast Beauty" (theme: singer would give up the crown or great wealth he doesn't have for love) and references there
cf. "The Braes o' Abernethy" (theme: singer would give up the crown or great wealth he doesn't have for love)
cf. "Limerick is Beautiful" (theme: singer would give up the crown or great wealth he doesn't have for love)
NOTES [3 words]: There's Many a Mile
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81544

Over In the Glory Land

DESCRIPTION: "Just over in the glory land" the singer will join "the happy angels' band" and stand "with the mighty host." He's on his way "to those mansions fair" "where the saints abide" where he'll be with Jesus forever.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 766, "There's a Place Prepared" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #39, "Glory Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3402
RECORDINGS:
Mississippi John Hurt, "Over In the Glory Land" (on MJHurt04)
J.E. Mainer's Mountaineers, "Just Over In the Glory Land" (1938, Bluebird B 7730, 2009, "J.E. Mainer Classic Sides 1938-1941," JSP Records CD JSP77124A)
NOTES [38 words]: Roud lumps the Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 with the amorphous song we have filed as "Welcome Table (Streets of Glory, God's Going to Set This World on Fire)," but it appears to me much closer to this song. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.2
File: RcOitGlL

Over in the Meadow

DESCRIPTION: Counting song. "Over in the meadow, in the sand, in the sun, Lived an old mother toad and her little toadie one. 'Wink,' said the mother. 'I wink,' said the one. So she winked and she blinked...." Repeat with other animals in higher numbers.

AUTHOR: Katherine Floyd Dana ("Olive A. Wadsworth") (1835-1886)
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Brown-MyGrandmothersSongbook)
KEYWORDS: animal bird bug
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation): Brown-MyGrandmothersSongbook 12, "Over in the Meadow" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #22136
NOTES [83 words]: Widely sung as an "old folk song" (I heard it somewhere when I was young), field collections are very rare. I have not seen an actual book by Katherine Floyd Dana which contained the text, but several sources agree on the attribution: Brown-MyGrandmothersSongbook, certain web sites, and Granger's Index to Poetry (which however gives the name as OLIVER A. Wadsworth rather than OLIVE A. Wadsworth.) It seems to be the only one of Dana/Wadsworth's works to have achieved any lasting currency. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.5
File: BrGr012

Over the Garden Wall

DESCRIPTION: The young couple court "over the garden wall": "Over the garden wall, The sweetest girl of all, I'll never forget those eyes of jet, You may bet I'll never forget, Over the garden wall."

AUTHOR: Words: Harry Hunter / Music: G. D. Fox (source: Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric; Heart-Songs)
EARLIEST DATE: 1879 (sheet music)
KEYWORDS: courting
FOUND IN: US(MW,SE,So) Britain(England)
REFERENCES (4 citations): Randolph 867, "Over the Garden Wall" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 714, "Over the Garden Wall" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 20, "Over the Garden Wall"(1 text, 1 tune, plus excerpts from two songster versions)
Heart-Songs, pp. 346-347, "Over the Garden Wall" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3765
RECORDINGS:
Carter Family, "Over the Garden Wall" (Montgomery Ward M-7354. c. 1937)
File: R867

Over the Garden Wall I Let the Baby Fall

DESCRIPTION: "Over the garden wall, I let the baby fall, My mother came out, And gave me a clout, Over the garden wall."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty baby mother
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation): Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 106, "(Over the garden wall)" (1 texts)
File: SuSM106C

Over the Hills and Lofty Mountains

DESCRIPTION: "Over the hills and lofty mountains, Where the fields are buried in snow, By the rumbling tumbling waters Where the crystal waters flow, Come, highlanders, now let's be marching." All should choose a love. A girl begs Johnnie to kiss her before he goes

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Creighton collection)
Over the Hills at the Poorhouse

DESCRIPTION: "Over the hills at the poorhouse In the twilight so dim and so gray, A woman is quietly lying, Breathing her life away." She "blesses" her children while whining that they never listen; when she is buried, the children find excuses not to attend

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety)

KEYWORDS: mother death burial hardheartedness children rejection

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 280-281, "Over the Hills at the Poorhouse" (1 text)
Roud #5496

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "You'll Never Know What Time Will Bring" (theme of old people abandoned in poverty)

NOTES [91 words]: Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety notes that there is a poem by Will Carleton with a similar title and theme, but regards them as separate (the Carleton piece, which is 22 stanzas long, begins "Over the hill to the poor-house I'm trudgin' my weary way -- I, a woman of seventy, and only a trifle gray..."), and also (correctly) treats a piece in Brown and Dean (given here as "Over the Hills to the Poor-House") as separate. One rather hopes so; this strikes me as just another "young folks these days are so..." potboiler. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: Beld280

Over the Hills So Far Away

DESCRIPTION: "Possum ran from under the barn, Fiddle bow under his arm, The only tune that be could play Was Over the hills so far away." (x3) "The old cow died in the forks of the branch, Over the hills so far away; Possum had a regular dance, Over the hills...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1913 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: animal music dancing

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 165, "Over the Hills So Far Away" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "O'er the Hills and Far Away (I)" (lyrics)

NOTES [25 words]: Almost certainly derived as some degree from "O'er the Hills and Far Away (I)," but since the outcome is an animal song, I classify this separately. - RBW

File: Br3165

Over the Hills to the Poor-House

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, yes, it is true they have driven Their father so helpless and old; Oh, God! may their crime be forgiven For driving him out in the cold." The father, "helpless and feeble," recalls his love for wife and children, and sadly sets out for the poorhouse

AUTHOR: Words: George L. Catlin / Music: David Braham (source: sheet music in the Levy Collection)

EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (sheet music published by William A. Pond & Co.)

KEYWORDS: home betrayal children father poverty age
Over the Mountain (I) (Allanah Is Waiting for Me)

DESCRIPTION: "I'm always light-hearted and easy, Not a care in this world have I." The singer is joyful because he is so close to his love, even though she is over the (mountain/ocean). He is preparing for a reunion.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud); Caleb Johnson Burton apparently had a version in 1908

KEYWORDS: love home nonballad reunion

FOUND IN: US(MW) Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 75, "Allanah Is Waiting For Me" (1 text)
Vikár/Panagapka-SongsNorthWoodsSungByOJAbbott 48, "Over the Mountain" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #7450

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Ila, My Darling

NOTES [397 words]: This is an extremely mysterious song, because the versions are so diverse. The earliest version I've found was in an online manuscript of songs sung by Agnes Amelia Ransom Burton in 1957; the document claims she learned it in 1908 from her husband Caleb Johnson Burton. In that version, it's "Ila, My Darling," and it looks like an Irish emigration song, with the guy leaving the girl behind. Then comes Dean-FlyingCloud's text, in which the girl is "Eileen" (yes, the girl is "Allanah" in the title, but she's "Eileen" in the text. Wilgus thought the title an error); it's interesting to note that Dean knew many Irish and stage-Irish songs. Then Uncle Dave Macon had at it, and you can imagine the shape it was in after that! O. J. Abbott's text clearly has Irish roots; there is a touch of Gaelic in the chorus. The girl here is "Eli," pronounced "Eelee," which is reminiscent of Burton's "Ila" as well as Dean's "Eileen."

Roud lumps this with Randolph's text "My Little One's Waiting for Me." There are a few similar words, but I don't see it. - RBW
RBW cites Wilgus. Anyone interested in this song should read D.K. Wilgus, "The Text Is The Thing" in The Journal of American Folklore, Vol. LXXXVI, No. 341 (Jul-Sep 1973 (available online by JSTOR)), pp. 241-252. Wilgus traces "Over the Mountain" and its derivatives through six texts, and lists the words for all of them:

Date......Source and Title
n.d.(19c?)..Nugent Songsters: My Mountain Molly
1905.......Irish manuscript: My Eily
1922.......Dean Flying Cloud: Allanah Is Waiting for Me
1925.......Fiddlin' John Carson: The Grave of Little Mary Phagan
1927.......Earl Johnson: Little Grave in Georgia
1929.......Dave Macon: Over the Mountain
The Meade Spottswood Meade entry for I-C75b "Grave of Little Mary Phagan" -- not to the same song as "Mary Phagan" [Laws F20] -- notes "adapted from 'Over the Mountain' [see II-G28] by John Carson, ca. 1917" (p. 92); their note for II-G28 "Over the Mountain" has that song being printed in songsters, beginning with William J. Scanlon's Peek-A-Boo Songster (1882) (pp. 230,906) [Guthrie T Meade Jr with Dick Spottswood and Douglas S. Meade, Country Music Sources (Chapel Hill:Southern Folklife Collection University of North Carolina, 2002)].

The Carson, Johnson and Macon cuts are available from iTunes. I haven't seen the Scanlon songster so I can't vouch for it. - BS

Last updated in version 5.1
File: R850A

Over the River and Through the Woods
DESCRIPTION: "Over the river and through the woods To Grandmother's house we go." The family travels (by horse) to Grandmother's (for Thanksgiving)
AUTHOR: Words: Lydia Marie Child (1802-1880)
EARLIEST DATE: 1978
KEYWORDS: nonballad food family
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 278, "Over the River and Through the Woods" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Martin Gardner, editor, _Famous Poems from Bygone Days_, Dover, 1995, pp. 41-44, "Thanksgiving Day" (1 text)
NOTES [114 words]: Obviously primarily a popular song, sustained by recordings and print versions, and with no relevance outside the U.S. But the fact that it has been sung by so many families in cars implies that it is at least a marginal folk song. It has certainly undergone some evolution; the original is a dozen stanzas long, and I can't recall ever seeing some of the verses, such as that about "Old Jowler," before. And the first verse mentions going to GrandFATHER's house, not GrandMOTHER's.
Lydia Maria Child sounds like a rather formidable character, a feminist and an abolitionist. She wrote poetry, novels, and non-fiction, and founded an early children's magazine, Juvenile Miscellany. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.0
File: PHCFS278

Over the Water to Charlie
DESCRIPTION: "Come boat me o'er, come row me o'er, Come boat me o'er to Charlie." "We'll o'er the water, we'll o'er the sea, We'll o'er the water to Charlie." The singer tells her love for Charlie, laments his exile, says she would bear her sons again to die for him
AUTHOR: Robert Burns?
EARLIEST DATE: 1788 (Scots Musical Museum #187)
KEYWORDS: love Jacobites separation exile ship
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1720-1788 - Life of Charles Edward Stuart, "Bonnie Prince Charlie"
1745-1746 - '45 Jacobite rebellion led by Bonnie Prince Charlie
Apr 16, 1746 - Battle of Culloden. The Jacobite rebellion is crushed, most of the Highlanders slain, and Charlie forced to flee for his life.
Jun 28-29, 1746 - Aided by Flora MacDonald, and dressed as her maidservant, Charles flees from North Uist to Skye in the Hebrides.
Sep 20, 1746 - Charles finally escapes to France
FOUND IN: US(NE) Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2 38, "O'er the Water to Charlie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan1 135, "O'er the Water to Charlie" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Greig/Duncan8 1733, "Owre the Water to Torry" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 186, "O'er the Water to Charly" (1 text)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 262-263, "Over the Water to Charlie" (1 short text, 1 tune, with one verse of this, and two of the "Charlie" verses of "Weevily Wheat")
Winstock-SongsAndMusicOfTheRedcoats, pp. 52-54, "Over the water to Charlie" (1 tune)
DT CHARLOVER* CHARLOV2*
ADDITIONAL: James Kinsley, editor, Burns: Complete Poems and Songs (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #211., pp. 319-320, "O'er the Water to Charlie" (1 text, from 1788)
James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume II, #187, p. 195, "O'er the water to Charlie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #729
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Johnson Ballads fol. 26, "O'er the Water to Charlie" ("Come boat me o'er, come row me o'er"). J. Catnach (London), 1813-1838
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Quaker's Wife" (tune, per Greig/Duncan8)
NOTES [150 words]: Roud lumps this (and several other Bonnie Prince Charlie songs) with the "Weevily Wheat" family. Certainly Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland's version is really just a "Weevily Wheat" variant which has swallowed a fragment of this song. But "Weevily Wheat" is a dancetune that mentions "Charlie" (not necessarily Charles Edward Stuart) incidentally, while this is a sure Jacobite song. As such, I separate them.
Just how much this piece owes to Burns is unknown to me; he surely had a hand in it, but it's interesting to note that there is a verse out there which he did not publish. - RBW
Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2: "I do not know if the last two stanzas have ever before been printed, though they have often been sung." His final verse, "I ance had sons, but now hae nane; I bred them toiling sairly; And I wad bear them a' again, And lose them a' for Charlie," is not in the Burns version. - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: Lins262

Over There (I - The Praties They Grow Small)

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the praties they grow small, Over there... Oh the praties they grow small, But we eat them tops and all...." Stories of the Irish potato famine. Localized versions preserve the theme of poverty but apply it to local conditions and places AUTHOR: A. P. Graves?
EARLIEST DATE: 1895 ("In Old New England"); tune registered 1844
KEYWORDS: hardtimes farming food poverty starvation
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1847/8 - Greatest of several Irish potato famines
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So)
REFERENCES (12 citations):
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 90, pp. 216-217, "Over There" (1 short text, with one humorous and one straight verse)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #236, "Over There" (1 text)
Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains, pp. 14-15, "Romance" (1 text, 1 tune -- a strange piece with two verses of this song and three of some sort of courting song; there is probably a separate song mixed in there somewhere)
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 250-251, "Over There" (1 text, 1 tune, regarded as entirely a parody, but enough like other versions of this song to list here)
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 148-149, "The Praties They Grow Small" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin-TreasuryOfNewEnglandFolklore, pp. 532-533, "Over There" (1 text, 1 tune)
Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 30-31, "Over There" (1 text, 1 tune)
Galvin-IrishSongsOfResistance, p. 44, "The Famine Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cray-AshGrove, p. 29, "The Pratie Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 24, "Over There" (1 text, 1 tune, with ordinary and parody verses)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 119, "The Praties" (1 text)

DT, OVRTHERE* PRATSMALL*
Roud #4455

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Emigrant's Farewell to Donegal" (subject: The potato famines)
cf. "Skibereen" (subject: The potato famines)
cf. "The Rotten Potatoes" (subject: The potato famines)
cf. "Did You Ever See the Divil?" (subject: The potato famines)
cf. "In Kansas" (tune & meter, floating lyrics)
cf. "Down on the Pichelo Farm" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [1178 words]: Zimmermann p. 16, fn. 7, writing in 1966: "Many recent anthologies quote wrongly as a song of the famine period 'Over Here' ('Oh, the praties they are small...'). The air was learnt in South America and does not sound Irish; the words were written by A.P. Graves, (see Miss H. Galwey Old Irish Croonauns, p. 16). It was first printed in 1897, in Graves Irish Folk Songs, pp. 76-77." - BS

I would note that, though it was not written during the blight, the song is certainly about the Irish dependence on the potato.
There is no clear dividing line between this and "In Kansas"; there are versions of this piece that are short enough and vile enough to belong with either. But, as often happens, we must classify them separately because the extremes are so distinct.
It is rather shocking to observe that Spaeth (who prints a rather corrupt version and remarks that "[t]he original words are silly enough to suit the most up-to-date interpreter") did not realize that this song connects with the poverty of the potato blight era.
The first of the blights occurred in 1845; the blight continued to strike for the next three years; not until 1849 was there a decent crop, by which time Ireland's population, which exceeded eight million before the blight (twice the current total!), had fallen to about six million; in very round numbers, a million had died and a million had emigrated.
The blight was a fungus, arrived from America, which caused potatoes to wither almost instantly.
To make matters worse, potatoes were the chief crop of Ireland. There were many reasons for this, including the fact that potatoes were easy to grow. But the basic reason was British rules. The Irish had been forced almost entirely onto small holdings, usually of five acres or less (according Edwards, p. 182, in 1841, over 80% of Irish farm families had property of 15 acres or less; 45% had five acres or less). Few families could feed themselves on such small fields using other crops. And if they had enough property to improve things, the British landlords took the excess in rent. So the Irish grew potatoes, and when the crop failed, they starved.
It didn't help that Ireland was among the most overpopulated countries in Europe. I read somewhere that there were over 300 people per arable acre "even in the countryside". I wish I'd noted the source -- but if we divide the number of acres of land devoted to agriculture in the late twentieth century by the 1845 population, we still get about eight people per arable acre. Edwards, p. 179, notes that, in County Mayo in 1841, there were 475 people per square mile, and only 36% of the land was arable, meaning that in that county, there were 1300 people per square mile of arable land! If British pressure forced the Irish into smallholdings, it was overpopulation which made them microscopic.
And the Irish were true peasants -- among the last in western Europe. Where English tenants by now were growing food for market, the Irish were growing for subsistence, paying their rent with labor and eating every morsel they could scrape from the soil. It wasn't even a money economy -- "by the 1840s, [the potato] had become the sole diet for three million..." (Fry/Fry, p. 228). And "over two-thirds of the Irish people were dependent on agriculture for a living in 1841" (Moody/Martin/Keogh/Kiely, p. 232). When the crop failed, they starved. No other outcome was possible. It was a Malthusian result, pure and simple.
It is sad to note that, by the 1840s, the antifungal effects of bluestone (copper sulfate) had been discovered -- but were not widely known (Coogan, p. 54). It was not until 1882 that Bordeaux Mixture became commercially available; see the notes on "Mary Anne McGuinan."
The failure of 1845 did not bring utter destruction because the British government of Sir Robert Peel sprang into action to relieve the distress. By 1846, however, Peel's government had fallen, and his successors let the Irish starve (Moody/Martin/Keogh/Kiely, p. 234). It may have been
"laissez faire" (though we note that, while the government didn't send food, it did pass coercive acts to repress riots; as usual "laissez faire" really meant "help the rich and stick the poor"); it may have been deliberate genocide -- whatever it was, it resulted in permanent alienation of the Irish. Moody/Martin/Keogh/Kiely, pp 238-239, remind us that there was much blame to go around: "The historian... will have an uneasy conscience about labelling particular classes or individuals as villains of the piece. The Irish landlords held the ultimate responsibility, but on the whole they were as much involved in disaster as their tenantry. The ministers of the crown who had to accept responsibility once the disaster occurred were callous, parsimonious, and self-righteous. Yet these are the very qualities which Charles Dickens, for instance, found so distasteful in men of their class, and they were exhibited as much to the English as to the Irish poor."

It will tell you something about the landlords of the time that Ireland was exporting food all through the blight -- Daniel O'Connell pointed out to the English Parliament that exports of many agricultural commodities from Ireland to Britain actually "increased" in 1845 (Kee, p. 247). Ireland at this time had, in effect, two economies, the Landlord class (not all of them Protestant, though a lot were) and the Tenants (all Catholic). The landlords had not interest in feeding the tenants; that, after all, didn't bring in any cash. "Had all food been kept in the country, and home-grown grain and provisions been on sale, had private enterprise succeeded in functioning and supplies of cheap food been freely available, the Irish people would have been little better off. They were penniless; even if food had been abundant, they could not have bought it" (Woodham-Smith, p. 121). Little wonder that it came to be called "The Great Hunger."

Woodham-Smith, pp. 404-405, notes that there were future failures: A bad round of blight in 1852, a worse famine in 1879. "When Irish people refer to 'the famine,' however, they mean the years of concentrated disaster in which blight first appeared, and in rapid succession the partial failure of 1845 was followed by the total failure of 1846 and the second total failure of 1848. The history of what then occurred is deeply engraved in the memory of the Irish race" (Woodham-Smith, p. 405). "The famine ravaged Ireland from 1845 to 1848. That is a minuscule part of the 8,000 or so years of Ireland's history which are treated in this book. Yet it was probably the most cataclysmic event in that long period, and its effects are still with the Irish in Ireland and with people of Irish descent in many parts of the world" (Fry/Fry, p. 227).

The famine, and a cholera epidemic in 1849, was devastating. Fry/fry, p. 233, estimate the population of Ireland in 1845 as eight and a half million, and think it was down to six and a quarter million in 1850, due to starvation and emigration. Some sources make the casualties even higher.

Bibliography

- Fry/Fry: Peter and Fiona Somerset Fry, A History of Ireland, 1988 (I use the 1993 Barnes & Noble edition)
- Kee: Robert Kee, The Most Distressful Country, being volume I of The Green Flag (covering the period prior to 1848), Penguin, 1972

Last updated in version 4.3
File: SBoA148

Over Yonder Where the Sun Will Never Shine

DESCRIPTION: Verses are: (line, "Where the sun will never shine") (2x). Lines include "I am going over yonder," "I'll be shouting/walking over yonder" and "Meet my mother over yonder"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (USMississippi01)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)
Overgate, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer meets a lass at the Overgate; she eats as much as an elephant, then invites him to her bed. A policeman pushes him downstairs. He complains that he's lost his valuables; she retorts that she's lost her maidenhead "and that's a damn sight worse."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1954 (recording, Belle Stewart)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer meets a lass at the Overgate (Dundee market) and takes her to a restaurant, where she eats as much as an elephant, then invites him to her house for the night. When he arrives, a policeman gives him a "whirly-jig" and pushes him downstairs. He complains that he's lost his waistcoat, watch and purse; she retorts that she's lost her maidenhead "and that's a damn sight worse." He envisions going home to Auchtermuchty and vows he'll never forget Dundee

KEYWORDS: sex robbery food humorous police warning money drink

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice #51, pp. 207-208, "The Overgate" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 187, "The Overgate" (1 text plus another in the appendix, 1 tune)
- MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 47, "The Overgate" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee 31, "The Overgate A"; The Overgate B"; 32, "The Beefcan Close" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
- DT, OVERGATE* OVERGAT2*
- Roud #866

RECORDINGS:
- Belle Stewart, "The Overgate" (on Voice20)
- Belle Stewart & Hamish Henderson, "The Overgate" (on FSB2CD)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Seventeen Come Sunday" (tune, plot), plus all the other "seduced and robbed" songs
- cf. "The Shift and the Apron"

NOTES [157 words]: Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland says that this may be based on "As I Roved Out" (his version of "Seventeen Come Sunday"). This is a bit strong; Kennedy has lumped obvious "Seventeen Come Sunday" variants under "The Overgate." But cross-fertilization certainly took place; the two share tunes, choruses, and theme. There are hints of elements from other songs of this type as well. - RBW

Yates, Musical Traditions site Voice of the People suite "Notes - Volume 20" - 15.1.04: "The song 'A Waukrife Minnie,' which Burns sent to the Scots Musical Museum (1790) would seem to be an antecedent of the song." That may be true of "Seventeen Come Sunday" [Laws O17], but I think that's as close as it comes. - BS

I've lumped two versions together here; in one (Belle Stewart's) the young man is chased out by a policeman, while in the other (Jeannie Robertson's) he hides his money but awakens in an alley. Still essentially the same story. - PJS

Last updated in version 5.3

File: K187

---

Overland Stage, The

DESCRIPTION: "They don't drive the Overland Stage no more Like they used to when I was young." The drivers take the stage out and talk of how they would face an outlaw. They pick up a young woman. She shocks them by holding them up. He blames it on women's suffrage.

AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)

KEYWORDS: cowboy robbery trick

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 124-126, "The Overland Stage" (1 text)

Overtures from Richmond

DESCRIPTION: "'Well, Uncle Sam,' says Jefferson D., Lilliburlero, old Uncle Sam, You'll have to join my Confederacy...." The Confederates make demands for money, recognition, slavery, absolute power, and rewritten histories. Uncle Sam rejects the terms.

AUTHOR: Words: Francis J. Child

EARLIEST DATE: 1863 (F. J. Child, War Songs for Freemen, according to Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar)

KEYWORDS: Civilwar political parody nonballad derivative

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 335-337, "Overtures from Richmond" (1 text, 1 tune)

Silber-SoldierSongsAndHomeFrontBalladsOfCivilWar, pp. 46-47, "Overtures from Richmond" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Lilliburlero" (structure, tune)

File: SCW46

Oville

DESCRIPTION: The singer's heart returns constantly to "Altmover's Fairy Glen and the cot where I was born." He recalls all the sights near Oville. Though others would differ, he will prefer visiting the Doo-an Rocks and other sites near home.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: home nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H666, p. 170, "Oville" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #13485

File: J666

Owen Rooney's Lamentation

DESCRIPTION: Rooney of Innismore, Fermanagh near Lough Erne, joins a fight and stands with the Catholics. Six of the opponents fall. Rooney is taken prisoner, tried and convicted; "my wife and children it grieved ... To see me transported at the age of fifty-three"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c.1830 (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

KEYWORDS: violence transportation trial death Ireland political lament

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 34, "Owen Rooney's Lamentation" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Battle That Was Fought in the North" (subject: "party fights")

cf. "The Lamentation of James O'Sullivan" (subject: "party fights")

cf. "The Noble Blue Ribbon Boys" (subject: Ulster quarrels)

NOTES [61 words]: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion: "This ballad is probably connected with the 'party fights' in County Fermanagh in July 1829." Zimmermann cites a report describing the "battle of Mackeen," July 13, 1829, following an Orange celebration of the Battle of the Boyne. "Several Orangemen were killed. A Rooney was among the nineteen Catholics deported after the trial." - BS

File: Zimm034

Owen Trainor
DESCRIPTION: Owen Trainor and two friends hire a boat that capsizes in a gale. Trainor dies after telling his friends to tell his sweetheart and comrades his dying thoughts. An Indian in a canoe rescues his friends.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland)
KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship storm wreck farewell rescue Indians(Am.)
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 65-68, "Owen Trainor" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12465
NOTES [24 words]: Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland: "Owen Trainor worked in the Post Office in Charlottetown. The drowning occurred before 1900." - BS
File: Dib065

Owenreagh
DESCRIPTION: The singer, wandering by Owenreagh, recalls all the "comrades long absent from home." He admits that the land is barren and money hard to come by. He wishes them back; he stayed, and the land is beautiful, and money is fleeting. Perhaps they will return
AUTHOR: George BArnett-IHearAmericaSinging
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: emigration home
FOUND IN: Ireland
 REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H542, p. 217, "Owenreagh" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: HHH542

Owenreigh's Banks
DESCRIPTION: The singer, bound for America, bids farewell to Glenrannel, his friends, and his sweetheart most of all. His one true fear is leaving her, and having "the ties of love... rend in twain." He bids his friends drink, and promises to remain affectionate
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: emigration farewell
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H100b, p. 193, "Glenrannel's Plains" (1 text): H225, pp. 196-197, "Owenreagh's Banks"
Roud #13550
NOTES [44 words]: The editors of the Henry collection do not seem to have noticed that these two texts are the same song. But they have the same plot, and very many of the same lyrics; only the place has changed. I chose the "Owenreagh" title because it is the version with a tune. - RBW
File: HHH100b

Owl and the Mice, The
DESCRIPTION: "The owl and the mice lived up in the barn, A dinky dinky doo dum dow; The owl eat(s) mice and the mice eat corn." The song of the owl causes the mice to come out and listen; the owl swoops down and eats them
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (collected by John Daniel Vass)
KEYWORDS: animal bird trick music food
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains, pp. 78-79, The Owl and the Mice" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7339
NOTES [142 words]: One of the few folk song I've heard with an almost "ecological" theme. Sadly, it is very rare; Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains claims to have found another version, but I have been unable to verify this.
It is ironic to note that, of the two creatures in the song, it is not owls but mice that 'sing' (at an inaudibly high pitch, to be sure). Owl calls are in general quite unmusical. And, according to several bird guides (Peterson, National Geographic), the only American owl even faintly likely to roost in a barn is (logically enough) the Barn Owl, found throughout the southern United States. Roger Tory Peterson (Birds of Eastern and Central North America, fifth edition, 2002, p. 204) describes its voice as a "shrill rasping hiss or snore, kschhh or shiiish." Not the sort of thing that would lure me out of my nice safe hole. - RBW
File: Shel078

Owre the Hills and Far Awa'
DESCRIPTION: The singer is sad that the wind has blown his plaid away. It was his sheet that protected him from wind and wet. "It's nae the plaid that I lament, But ochone, alas, my love was inti"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: courting sex parting
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1408, "Owre the Hills and Far Awa'" (1 text)
Roud #7260
File: GrD71408

Owslebury Lads, The
DESCRIPTION: 30 November 1830 a mob of Owslebury lads wreck machinery. Sent for trial to Winchester, "many was transported for life and some was case to die." Conditions in the jail are hard. "For all the poor in Hampshire for rising of their wages"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle)
KEYWORDS: poverty violence crime execution punishment sabotage transportation trial farming technology food ordeal
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Nov 19-25, 1830 -- Riots in Winchester district (source: Times of London)
Dec 30, 1830-Jan 3, 1831 -- Special Commission at Winchester (source: Times of London)
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 103, "The Owslebury Lads" (1 text)
Palmer-ThePainfulPlow, #8, "The Owslebury Lads" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown-FolkSongsOfOldHampshire, pp. 84-86, "The Owslebury Lads" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Jon Raven, _The Urban and Industrial Songs of the Black Country and Birmingham_, Broadside, 1977, pp. 37-39, "The Owslebury Lads" ("The thirtieth of November, Eighteen hundred and thirty") (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #17212
NOTES [399 words]: Raven's text is based on the same manuscript as is printed in Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle. I have cited it because it includes the tune and has a more detailed explanation of the situation than Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle. Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle's first line is "The thirtieth of November last eighteen hundred and thirteen," which, Reeves points out, should have noted the date as 1830, not 1813. When reading Raven note that the Winchester commission, convened December 18, 1830, covered many more "riots" than Owslebury. For background on this [p. 282] and similar occurrences, and the results of the subsequent Special Commission at Winchester, and Special Commissions for Wiltshire at Salisbury and other locations, see J.L. Hammond and Barbara Hammond, The Village Labourer 1760-1832 (Longmans, Green and Co, 1913 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 240-334, Chapters 11 and 12, "The Last Labourers' Revolt." Details of the Special Commission at Winchester are reported in the Times of London, Dec 22, 1830-Jan 3, 1831. For a summary of the "riot" activity see The Times of London, Wednesday, Dec 22, 1830; pg. 5; Issue 14416; Start column: C. (Copyright 2002 The Gale Group); the later issues cover the details of the Special Commission at Winchester's activities and indictments.

The machines being broken were primarily threshing machines. Two convicted thrashers at Salisbury were enlightened by the judge at sentencing: "You are both thrashers and you might in the perversion of your understanding think that these machines are detrimental to you. Be assured that your labour cannot ultimately be hurt by the employment of these machines. If they are profitable to the farmer, they will also be profitable to the labourer, though they may for a time injure him. If they are not profitable to the farmer he will soon cease to employ them" (Hammond, p. 295).

For all of the three weeks of Special Commissions, "In the riots ... the only man who had been killed was a rioter.... On the other side, not a single person had been killed or seriously wounded. For these riots, apart from the cases of arson, for which six men or boys were hung, aristocratic justice exacted three lives, and the transportation of four hundred and fifty-seven men and boys [to Van Diemen's Land and New South Wales], in addition to the imprisonment of about four hundred at home" (Hammond, pp. 307-308).- BS

---

Ox Driving Song

DESCRIPTION: The singer tells of the hardships of ox-driving in the winter -- an occupation he intends to quit. "It would make any tender-hearted person weep To see my oxen pull and slip." "When I get home I'll have my revenge, I'll land my family among my friends."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (collected from Herman R. Weaver)

KEYWORDS: work cowboy animal

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 233-234, "Ox-Driving Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 13, "Ox Driving Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 125, "The Ox-Driver" (1 text)
- DT, OXDRIVE

Roud #3584

RECORDINGS:
- Pete Seeger, "Ox Driver's Song" (on PeteSeeger07, PeteSeeger07a)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "I Whipped My Horse" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [99 words]: Perhaps it's hearing the Burl Ives version too many times, but this sounds recently composed to me. - PJS

Every version I've seen seems to go back to the same Lomax field recording. Possibly the informant had worked on it?

Roud lumps this with Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety's piece "The Waggoners." There are a few words in common, but only a few, and those of the sort that could float or even occur to an author spontaneously; really, only thing they have in common that I can see is that both involve travel. -I can see Roud's point, but I'm not quite ready to agree. - RBW

---

Oxeborough Banks (Maids of Australia)

DESCRIPTION: The singer settles under a tree to watch the girls bathe. One catches his eye -- and he hers. She calls him to rescue her from sinking. (He then "entered the bush of Australia.") Nine months later she bears a son whose dad "nowhere could be found"

AUTHOR: unknown
Earliest Date: 1952 (recording, Harry Cox)

Keywords: courting seduction pregnancy abandonment river sex

Found In: Australia Britain(England(Lond)) Canada(Newf) US(SE)

References (5 citations):
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 44-45, "Maids of Australia" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 276-277, "The Gay Maid of Australia" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 183, "The Maid of Australia" (1 text, 1 tune)
Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging 27, pp. 163-166, "The Banks of My Native Australia" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1872

Recordings:
Everett Bennett, "The Gay Maid of Australia" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Harry Cox, "The Maid of Australia" (on FSB02, FSB2CD)
Unidentified Mississippi singers "The Fair Maids of Australia" (AFS 15014 A3, 1930s)

Notes [13 words]: The Hawkesbury River reaches the sea north of Sydney at Broken Bay, NSW.
-PJS

Last updated in version 2.6
File: FaE044

Oxen Ploughing, The

Description: "Prithee, lend your jocund voices for to listen we're agreed; Come sing of songs the choicest of the life we ploughboys lead." Ploughboys hear the birds as they work; they rest when it is hot; they go home to the girls and fires at evening; all need them

Author: unknown

Earliest Date: 1897 (Baring-Gould)

Keywords: farming bird work nonballad

Found In: Britain(England(South,West))

References (3 citations):
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #2, "The Oxen Ploughing" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 26, "The Oxen Ploughing" (1 text, 1 tune); p. 44, "(A Cornish Ox-Driver's Song)" (1 fragment, 1 tune, filed with a group of songs under the general heading "Crowdy Crawn")
Hamer-GarnersGay, pp. 72-73, "Ox Plough Song" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #686

File: PECS002

Oxen Song, The

Description: "Come all you bold ox teamsters, Wherever you may be...." "It's of a bold ox teamster, His name I'll tell to you, His name was Johnny Carpenter, He pulled the oxen through." Despite his prowess, the oxen wear out and the trips go slowly

Author: unknown

Earliest Date: 1939 (Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland)

Keywords: logger work animal moniker

Found In: US(NE)

References (2 citations):
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 263-267, "The Oxen Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, OXENDRV*

Roud #3751

Cross-References:
cf. "The Lumber Camp Song" (theme) and references there

Notes [30 words]: Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland mentions a claim that this was by Larry Gorman -- but, frankly, Gorman's songs tend to be better than this; the song really doesn't go anywhere. - RBW

File: Lins263
Oxford and Hampton Railway, The

DESCRIPTION: "'O, come and listen to my song... About the folks... Along the Oxford Railway.' "Don't you wonder how it's done? Carriages without horses run...." Various people watch the train, celebrate it, ride it; "you can visit all your friends"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: collected by David Blagrove, according to Raven
KEYWORDS: nonballad railroading
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Jon Raven, _The Urban and Industrial Songs of the Black Country and Birmingham_, Broadside, 1977, pp. 226-228, "The Oxford and Hampton Railway" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: JRViI050

Oxford City [Laws P30]

DESCRIPTION: A servant asks a lady to wed; she put him off on the grounds that they are too young. When he sees her dancing with someone else, he poisons her wine. Feeling ill, she asks him to take her home. He reveals that both have drunk poison; they die together

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1830 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 17(230a))
KEYWORDS: courting death poison homicide wine suicide
FOUND IN: US(MW,NE) Britain(Scotland,England(All)) Ireland Canada(Mar,Newf)
REFERENCES (18 citations):
Laws P30, "Oxford City"
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #137, pp. 2-3, "In Oxford Town" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan2 210, "In Oxford Town" (4 texts, 1 tune)
VaughanWilliams/Lloyd-PenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs, p. 83, "Oxford City" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cowper-SongsAndSouthernBreezes, pp. 212-213, "Poison in a Glass of Wine" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO GJ 317, "Around the Grove as I Was Walking"; Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Bk 12, "Twas Near Fleet Street" (2 texts)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, pp. 46-47, "Jealousy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cologne/Morrison-WiltshireFolkSongs, pp. 44-45, "Oxford City" (1 text, 1 tune)
OShaughnessy-MoreFolkSongsFromLincolnshire 15, "Worcester City" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 329, "Poison in a Glass of Wine" (1 text, 1 tune)
Maccoll/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 74, "Oxford City" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hammer-GamersGay, p. 36, "The Poisoned Cup" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #128, "Oxford City" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 18, "Oxford City" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, pp. 92-93, "In Oxford City" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 54, "The Jealous Lover" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 508. OXFJEAL*

ADDITIONAL: Leslie Shepard, _John Pitts, Ballad Printer of Seven Dials, London 1765-1844_, Private Library Association, 1969, p. 119, "Oxford City" (reprint of a Pitts broadside)
Roud #218

RECORDINGS:
Garrett & Norah Arwood, "Poison in a Glass of Wine" (on OldTrad2, FarMtns3)
Gerald Aylward, "Wexford Girl" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Bill Bundy, "Poison in a Glass of Wine" (Unissued test pressing, 1928; on KMM)
Mary Doran, "Oxford City" (on FSB7)
Louie Fuller, "Young Maria" (on Voice13)
Roscoe Holcomb, "True Love" (on Holcomb-Ward1)
Bride Judge, "In Yorkshire City" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
New Lost City Ramblers, "Little Glass of Wine" (on NLCR06)
Stanley Brothers, "The Little Glass of Wine" (Rich-R-Tone 423, rec. c. late 1947) (Columbia 20590, 1949) (Rich-R-Tone 1056 [as "Little Glass of Wine"], rec. 1952)
Joseph Taylor, "Worcester City" (on Voice03)

BROADSIDES:
Oyster Girl, The [Laws Q13]

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets an oyster girl and proposes that they take a room at the inn to discuss the sale. When they arrive, she picks his pocket and jumps out the window. He is left with a kettle of oysters and a bill to pay

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1904
KEYWORDS: courting robbery trick seduction
FOUND IN: US(SE) Britain(England(North,South),Scotland(Aber),Wales) Ireland Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (10 citations):
Laws Q13, "The Oyster Girl"
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #96, pp. 2-3, "The Girl and the Oysters" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan2 304, "Oysters" (12 texts, 10 tunes)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H725, p. 278, "The Basket of Oysters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H725, p. 278, "The Basket of Oysters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 669, "Oyster Girl" (1 text)
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 48, "The Oyster Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 48, "The Oyster Girl" (1 text)
Pottie/Ellis-FolksongsOfTheMaritimes, pp. 168-170, "The Oyster Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 524, OYSTRGAL*
Roud #875
CROSS-REFERENCES:
"Quare Bungo Rye" (mysterious--read female--"box" motif)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Creel and the Oysters
File: LQ13

Oyster Shell Bonnets and Chignons (The Dandy Chignon)

DESCRIPTION: The singer describes the "queer fashion" of the (bonnet and) chignon. He tells how all the women are trying them out. Some even buy two; others get them made from odd materials. He clearly thinks the old ways (sunbonnets, etc.) were better

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: hair nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H227, p. 47, "The Dandy Chignon" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13359
File: HHH227
Oyster Stew

DESCRIPTION: "A man happened to an accident upon a railroad train" and has his leg amputated; he sends a message to his mother, "Just tell them that you saw me... Her darling boy has one foot in the grave." An oyster sends a message, "Just tell... I was in the soup"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)

KEYWORDS: derivative humorous injury food

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 154, "Oyster Stew" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #11352

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Just Tell Them That You Saw Me" (source of this parody)

File: Brne154

Pa Rattin

DESCRIPTION: "Home came old Pa Rattin," drunk. He kills Ma, Grandpa, brother and baby Rattin.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2)

KEYWORDS: homicide drink brother mother husband baby wife

FOUND IN: US(SW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 51, "Pa Rattin" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: BrE2051

Pace-Egging Song, The

DESCRIPTION: We have come pace-egging; give us eggs and beer and we'll not come till next year. A British tar who served with Nelson has returned to England pace-egging. A lady has run from her country and is here to collect eggs in a basket and drink neat gin.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1846 (Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland)

KEYWORDS: Easter drink nonballad religious

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,North))

REFERENCES (7 citations):

Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 22-25, "Peace-Egging Song" (2 texts, 2 tunes)

Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #132, "Peace Egging Song" (1 text, 1 tune)

Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland, Song #17, pp. 196-199,246-247, "The Maskers' Song" (1 text)

Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 400-403, "The Maskers' Song" (1 text)

Hamer-GarnersGay, pp. 58-59, "Pace Egg Song--I" (different enough from the standard version that it might be considered a separate song, or at least to have mixed with one); p. 60, "Pace Egg Song--2"; pp. 64-65, "Pace Egg Song--Chipping" (3 texts, 3 tunes)

DT, PACEEGG*

ADDITIONAL: Marjorie Rowling, _The Folklore of the Lake District_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 116, "(no title) (1 fragment with notes about the custom)

Roud #614

RECORDINGS:

Emma Vickers, "The Pace-Egging Song" (on Voice16)

NOTES [678 words]: Yates, Musical Traditions site Voice of the People suite "Notes - Volume 16" - 13.9.02: "Pace-Egging customs were once common throughout north-west England (the word Pace, meaning Peace, may be derived from the French word Pasque, which means Easter) and this song is used as an introduction to an accompanied Mummer's Play." - BS

Yates's derivation of "pace," which is repeated by Palmer, is oversimplified. Most agree that "pace" is from Middle English "paschal" -- which does clearly derive from either a late Latin or an early French root. But it's not a word for "peace"; it's derived ultimately from the Greek root underlying "passion." The Latin word "pascha," according to FreundEtAl, p. 1311, is exclusively derived from Greek πασχα, "pascha," and is used solely in Christian contexts, seemingly first by Tertullian in the third century, for the Passover; it is also used in the Latin translation of 1 Corinthians 5:7. Nonetheless the idea of "peace" may be mixed in somehow. The Latin for peace is "pax," and one of the most familiar of all Latin liturgical phrases is surely "pace [pronounced, in Church Latin, 'pach-ay'] vobiscum," "peace to you."

The term "Pace Eggs," as opposed to "Easter Eggs," is mostly confined to the north of England, Upton/Widdowson, pp. 150-151, map the usage of the two terms. Unlike most cases where the dividing lines between terms are rather ragged, there is really only one line between "Pace" and "Easter." The term "Pace" is used in Lancashire, Cumbria, Durham, Northumbria, and central Yorkshire; "Easter" is used everywhere else (except for a few areas in the south that don't have a name for these eggs).

Of course, none of this has anything to do with the actual custom of pace-egging. Simpson/Roud, p. 105, note that eggs could not be eaten by Catholics during Lent, so eggs laid in that time were preserved for Easter. "In northern England they were called 'pace eggs,' 'peace eggs,' or 'paste eggs', corruptions of pasche, the Latin-based medieval word for Easter, here confused with pax='peace.'" Hazlitt, p. 478, calls them "pasch eggs," although without adding anything except a citation of another book.

It should be pointed out that the Easter Bunny is a much newer phenomenon; rabbits were not introduced into England until the thirteenth century. Egg customs are also late; although many cultures associated eggs with life (Jones-Larousse, pp. 159-160), they are rarely mentioned in the Bible, and in the early Old Testament period, there seem to have been no domesticated egg-laying fowl, although an egg eventually became part of the Jewish Seder celebration (InterpretersDict, volume 2, p. 38). In the New Testament, the word is used only in Luke 11:12, and in a saying of Jesus, not referring to an actual egg.

Alexander, p. 211, notes a custom of rolling pace eggs at Preston, but this seems to be more recent. Kellett, p. 132, says that they were rolled down a hill, and it was a sign of good fortune if they reached the bottom without breaking. He also says that they could be rolled on Monday (sometimes called "Troll Monday") rather than Easter Sunday.

Based on Kellett, there were in relatively recent times quite a few other Pace Egg customs in Yorkshire, including "Pace Egg Plays" (in which, e.g., Saint George kills an enemy, who then is revived by a magic potion), and "jawping" pace eggs in a conkers-like game. Depending on the version, quite a few characters show up to beg for their eggs and beer, starting with Lord Horatio Nelson himself. For Nelson, see e.g. "Nelson's Victory at Trafalgar (Brave Nelson)" [Laws J17], which in some ways is similar to this in structure. We also meet (Vice Admiral) Lord (Cuthbert) Collingwood, Nelson's second-in-command at Trafalgar, and sundry anonymous sailors who are listed as serving under Nelson.

Hamer's "Pace Egg Song--I" is a partial exception to this; we are still introduced to various people (which is why I filed it here rather than splitting them," but none of them have names; they are just a sailor, a lady, and a jolly man. - RBW

Bibliography

- Marc Alexander, A Companion to the Folklore, Myths & Customs of Britain, Sutton Publishing, 2002
- FreundEtAl, A New Latin Dictionary, "Founded on the Translation of Freund's Latin-German Lexicon Edited by E. A. Andrews... Revised, enlarged, and in great part rewritten by Charlton T. Lewis and Charles Short," Harper & Brothers, 1886
- Hazlitt: W. C. Hazlitt, Dictionary of Faiths & Folklore, Reeves & Turner, 1905 (I use the 1995 Studio Editions paperback)
- InterpretersDict: [George Arthur Buttrick et al, editor], The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible, four volumes, 1962 (a fifth supplementary volume was published later)

Last updated in version 5.0
Pack of Cards, A

DESCRIPTION: "One night as I sat by my fireside so weary..... When all of a sudden I found my eyes resting On something that brought many scenes to my mind, 'Twas an old pack of cards." The singer tells tales of a gambler slowly dies from gambling and poverty

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions)
KEYWORDS: gambling death hardtimes cards
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, pp. 117-119, "A Pack of Cards" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9535

Pack Train

DESCRIPTION: "Welton Brown ran a pack train From his farm at the top of the hill, Brining supplies to the bush men who fell'd the trees." He carries food, mail, news in the rain. "It's been a hard slog with horses and dog, But where else would I rather be?"

AUTHOR: Words: Peter M. Gross / Music: Neil Colquhoun
EARLIEST DATE: 2003 (Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry)
KEYWORDS: travel food nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, pp. 94-95, "Pack Train" (1 text, 1 tune)

Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag

DESCRIPTION: "Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag And smile, smile, smile! While you've a Lucifer to light your fag, Smile, boys, that's the style; What's the use of worrying, It never was worthwhile; So pack up your troubles in your old kit bag...."

AUTHOR: Words: "George Asaf" (George Henry Powell) / Music: Felix Powell
EARLIEST DATE: 1915
KEYWORDS: nonballad war drugs
FOUND IN: US Canada
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, p, 21, "Pack Up Your Troubles" (1 text, 1 tune)
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, p. 334, "Pack Up Your Troubles" (1 text, 1 tune)
Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, p. 160, "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag and Smile, Smile, Smile" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, p. 419, "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag"

NOTES [81 words]: According to Thomas S. Hischak, The American Musical Theatre Song Encyclopedia (with a Foreword by Gerald Bordman), Greenwood Press, 1995. p. 271, this "is the British hit song that was equally popular with American troops during World War One. Adele Rowland sang the Felix Powell (music) and George Asaf (lyric) marching song in Her Soldier Boy (1916), and the next year there were popular recordings by James F. Harrison and the Knickerbocker Quartet and by Reginald Werrenrath. - RBW

Packet Ship

DESCRIPTION: "Bounty was a packet ship, Pump ship, packet ship, Sailing on a cruising trip, In the south Pacific!" "Billy Bligh(t), that silly man... was the master in command." The men mutiny and put Billy Blight off in a boat. The Bounty disappears

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Hugill-SongsOfTheSea)
KEYWORDS: ship sailor shanty mutiny
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1787 - The Bounty, under William Bligh, sets sail for the South Seas
Apr 28, 1789 - The Bounty mutiny, in which Bligh and 18 others are set adrift in a boat. They make it back to England; the mutineers settle in the South Seas

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, p. 152, "Bounty Was a Packet Ship" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, pp. 113-114, "Packet Ship" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #8235
File: HSoSe152

Packing My Things

DESCRIPTION: "When I came and took up my claim, Well, Bill Muggins was my name" but he's stuck rocking the cradle. He has hunted for gold and suffered through cold winters. But in "shanties where you spin away all your... tin" Nancy ensnared him

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (Collected from William Swan)
KEYWORDS: father children gold
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 58, "Packing My Things" (1 text, 1 "reconstructed" tune) (p. 30 in the 1972 edition)
Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, p. 72, "(Packing My Things)" (1 text)
Fahey-PintPotAndBilly, pp. 14-15, "Packing My Things" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: Colq030

Packing Up, Getting Ready

DESCRIPTION: "Packing up, getting ready, Going to see King Jesus, I'm packing up, getting ready, Packing up, getting ready to go."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Charles W. Joyner, "The Repertory of Nancy Jones as a Mirror of Culture in Scotland County," Vol. XXI, No. 3 (Sep 1973), p. 94, "(Packing up, getting ready, going to see King Jesus)"/("King Jesus is mine and I'm forgiven") (1 short text, or possibly two independent fragments)
NOTES [34 words]: Aretha Franklin recorded a song, "Packing up, getting ready to go." It does not appear to be the same as this. I would assume that this is a hymn from... somewhere... but I have been unable to locate it. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: NCF212PU

Packington's Pound

DESCRIPTION: Dance tune, with no real lyrics of its own, but used as a platform for a great variety of broadsides.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1596 (Barley's "New Book of Tablature")
KEYWORDS: nonballad dancetune
FOUND IN: Britain(England)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
“Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic I, pp. 259-260, "Packington's Pound" (1 tune)
SAME TUNE:
The Praise of a Dairy (File: BeCo444)
Well worth[y] Predecessors, and Fathers by name/Pitties Lamentation (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2781)
Come listen a while and a Story you'll hear/The Murtherer Justly Condemned.. May, 1697 (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN629)
When England half Ruin'd had cause to be sad/Romes Beargarden (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2836)
Poor England thy sorrows this many a year/England's Mercies (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2214)
Come, John, sit thee down, I have somewhat to say/An Amorous Dialogue between John and his Mistress (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN616)
Come young men and listen to what I'lle you show/A good wife is a portion every day (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN710)
All Company-keepers come hear what I say/Two-penny-worth of Wit for a Penny (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN61)
Come listen a while though the weather be cold/Blanket Fair (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN636)
I am a young blade that had money good store/The World turn'd up-side down (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1231)
All you that have stock, and are mad for a peace/The French Preliminaries (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN136)
Let England rejoyce with heart and with voice/A New Protestant Ballad.. Reign of King William (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1641)
Hold up thy head England, and now shew thy face/Englands Joy in a Lawful Triumph [on proclaiming Charles Il King] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1158)
You Sabbath-day Tiplers, pray do not repine/A Caveat for Tiplers (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN3103)
There was an old Knight liv'd in Sommersetshire/The Bountiful Knight of Sommersetshire (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2555)
A chimney-man lately in London did dwell/Chimney-man's Lamentation (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN486)
This nation long time hath been plagued with old rats/Come Buy a Mouse Trap/ [by Humphrey Crouch] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2582)
A new calculation of late has been given/A New Copy of Verses, of Monsieurs Boating (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1875)
By Brittains true Monarchs, Great William and Mary/The Proclamation For a General Fast in the Nation (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN457)
Ye Sages of London, of states high and low/City Justice (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2986)
Your scandalous lies I with patience have read/An Answer to the Packet of Advice (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN3223)
Good people come hither come listen awhile/The Brickmaker's Lamentation from Newgate (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1049)
You free-men, and masters, and 'prentices mourn/London's Lamentation (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN3245)
Ye Whigs and Dissenters I charge ye, attend/The Whigs Hard Heart for the Cause of the Hard Frost (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2987)
This Winter was sharp, it did plainly appear/London's Wonder [frost ending Feb. 4 1685] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2585)
Bold Titus he walkt about Westminster-Hall/Perjury Punished (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN411)
Come listen ye Whigs, to my pitiful moan/The Salamanca Doctor's Farewell (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN658)
Let England Rejoyce and all sorrows expell/The Princely Triumph..Birth of the Young Prince of Wales (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1639)
The world is overrun with enormous abuse/Fayre Warning (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2966)
Though the town does abound so with plots and with shams/The Protestant Cuckold [Ben. Harris and wife Ruth] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2599)
Now let us all true Protestants ever Rejoyce/...Prince of Orange's March (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1932)
London now smiles to see Oxford in tears/Oxford in Mourning for the Loss of the Parliament (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1703)
The manifold changes that have hap'ned of late/The High Court of Justice [trial of Regicides] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1748)
You Millers, and Taylors, & Weavers each one/The Crafty Maid of the West..Miller.. trapan'd (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN3071)
As through the City I passed of late/The Sorrowful Complaint of Conscience and Plain-Dealing (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN314)
The weather is clear, which was late over cast/Holland turn'd to Tinder..Third Great Royal Victory [Naval battle, July 25-6, 1666] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2760)
Let England, and Ireland, and Scotland rejoice/The Royal Victory [over Dutch fleet, June 2, 3, 1665] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1636) (With the title "The Royal Victory" in C. H. Firth, _Publications of the Navy Records Society_, p. 58)
Lift up thy head England & lay by thy mourning/The Triumph of four Nations;.. [peace of Breda] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1690)
Of all the rich pleasures that ever was seen/Joyfull News to the Nation..[Crowning of] Charles the II. on the 23. of April (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2094)
Adiew vain delights, and bewitch us no more/Robbery Rewarded.. Five Notorious High-way-men's Exploits (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN15)
Come hither good fellows and hear what I say/A Groatsworth of Good Counsel for a Penny, Or The Bad Husbands Repentance (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN595)
Of late I did walk in a pleasant fair day/The Constant Couple, Or, The Glory of True Love (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2110)
The Jenny a small Picaroon in the Park/The City Caper; Or, The Whetstone-Park Privateer (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1541)
Forbear your vile plotting/The Plotter Executed (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN906)
All young men and maidens, come listen a while/The merry Pastime of the Spring (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN161)
Good people attend now, and I will declare/Mans Amazement..Thomas Cox.. (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1045)
When all hearts did yield unto Cupid as King/Pyramus and Thisbie (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2815)
You Bartholomew tapsters I first do advise/A Description of Bartholomew-Fair (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2991)
Come all you brave Sea-men of Courage so free/News from the coast of Spain (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN524)
Let all loyal subjects look well to their wits/Treason Rewarded at Tiburn.. executed [24th of January, 1679] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1619)
Fairest and dearest to thee I am bound/The Dying Lovers Reprieve (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN848)
For certain and sure, this Girl will go mad/The Young-Man's Answer to the Politick-Maids Device (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN903)
Farewel, worldly pleasures and fading delight/Sir Thomas Armstrong's Farewell [executed June 20, 1684] (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN888)
You bonny boon blades that are company keepers/The bad husband's Information of ill Husbandry (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN2998)
Good fellows come hither, 'tis to you I speak/The Alewives Invitation to Married-Men, and Batchelors (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1005)
My dearest come hither and listen tome [sic].../The merry Discourse between two Lovers (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN1799)
Company of Gossips that love strong bub/The Merry Gossips Vindication (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN506)
Company of Gossips that love strong bub/The Merry Gossips Vindication (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN506)
Company of Gossips that love strong bub/The Merry Gossips Vindication (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN712)
Alas my dear husband, what is your intent/A Looking glass for all Good-fellows; or, The Provident Wives Directions (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN45)
Come all loyal subjects I pray you draw near/ Great Britains Joy (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN505)
A curse on blind Cupid his name I do hate/A Westminster Wedding, Or, A Whore-master Buried Alive (Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex ZN738)
Captain Harman, or, News from the Coast of Spain ("Come, all you brave seamen of courage so
Packman, The

DESCRIPTION: The ballad tells the story of an itinerant pedlar as he rises through hard work to wealth and honor. His sons become professionals. His daughter marries well. The Packman still works as hard as he ever did.

AUTHOR: Charles Murray (1864-1941)

EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast)

LONG DESCRIPTION: A popular pedlar buys and sells everything, knows everybody's business, and works hard to raise himself from poverty. Eventually he can buy a cart, and then a shop on which he raises the sign "Merchant." His wealth increases and he marries well. He becomes a church elder and banker. His three sons are sent to college and become a scholar, a lawyer and a doctor. His daughter, schooled in France, marries "a strappin' Deeside laird." The Packman still works as hard as he ever did.

KEYWORDS: marriage bargaining commerce children

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #130, p. 3, "The Packman"; #118, p. 3, ("There was a jolly pedlar loon") (2 text fragments)

NOTES [65 words]: Greig: "Mr Duncan says that the poem was circulated before its publication in book form, which, he thinks, may account for parts of it getting picked up. The fragment, which was picked up some years ago, was sung to a genuine folk-tune, with a refrain in the middle and at the end of the verse; which inclines one to think it just possible that the 'Pedlar Loon' was before the 'Packman.'" - BS

Last updated in version 2.6

File: Grg130a

Paddle the Road with Me

DESCRIPTION: A rambler invites a girl to marry him and join him on the road. The girl is not thrilled; winter is coming and her father has another husband in mind. The rambler declares that her fiance is worthless; the two set out happily on their rambles.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan4)

KEYWORDS: courting rambling marriage

FOUND IN: US(MA) Britain(Scotland(Aber)) Ireland

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #68, p. 1, "To Pad the Road"; #70, p. 2, "To Pad the Road" (1 text plus 1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan4 875, "Pad the Road" (6 texts, 3 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 78-79, "To Pad the Road wi' Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 32, "Paddle the Road with Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H18a, pp. 358-359, "Will Ye Pad the Road wi' Me?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Paddle Your Own Canoe

DESCRIPTION: "I've traveled about a bit in my time And of troubles I've seen a few, But I found it better in every clime To paddle my own canoe." The singer advises loving one's neighbor, not being downhearted, and remaining as independent as possible

AUTHOR: Probably Harry Clifton

EARLIEST DATE: before 1867 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(2905))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 663, "Paddle Your Own Canoe" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 55, "Paddle Your Own Canoe" (1 text)
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 116, "Paddle Your Own Canoe" (1 text)
Heart-Songs, pp. 286-287, "Paddle Your Own Canoe" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #6093

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2905). "Paddle Your Own Canoe" ("I've travelled about a bit, in my time"), J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866; also Harding B 26(492), Harding B 18(580), Firth b.34(222), "Paddle Your Own Canoe"

LOC Singing, sb30426b, "Paddle Your Own Canoe," H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Captain Bill Ryan Left Terry Behind" (tune)

SAME TUNE:
The Night Pat Murphy Died (by Johnny Burke) (Johnny Burke (William J. Kirwin, editor), John White's Collection of Johnny Burke Songs, Harry Cuff Publications, St. John's, 1981, #78, p. 119)
Peter Joy (by James Murphy?) ("Whenever you need a 'roast' or steak... Go call on Peter Joy") (James Murphy, editor, Songs Sung by Old-Time Sealers of Many Years Ago, James Murphy Publishing, 1925 (PDF available from Memorial University of Newfoundland web site))

NOTES [105 words]: Greig/Duncan3: "Cf. Paddle Your Own Canoe written and sung by Harry Clifton (Hopwood and Crew, London, c. 1890)" -- but note earlier broadsides. - BS

For background on Harry Clifton (1824-1872), see the notes to "The Good Ship Kangaroo." Although the broadsides probably predate the first official publication of this song, Clifton's authorship seems likely. Heart-Songs lists "M Hobson" as being responsible for the tune. - RBW

Broadside LOCSinging sb30426b: H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: Be3055

Paddy and the Whale

DESCRIPTION: "Paddy O'Brien left Ireland in glee He had a strong notion old England to see." A whale attacks the ship, swallows him, and vomits him six months later. "The next time he wishes old England to see It will be when the railroad runs over the sea"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 67, "Paddy and the Whale" (1 text, 1 tune)
Paddy Backwards

DESCRIPTION: Singer rides to market on a cow, which dirties his clothes and shoes. He looks up the magistrate, asking if he knows the place; when he arrives, he sees nothing but a thousand potatoes growing on a pear tree. Chorus: "Sing down, all you paddies, lay down"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: travel nonsense paradox animal

FOUND IN: Britain(England) Canada(Mar,Newf)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
- Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 110, "Paddy Backwards" (1 text)
- Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 110, "Paddy Backwards" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
- Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 82, "Paddy Backwards" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, pp.140-141, "Paddy Backwards" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
- MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 119, "Paddy Backwards" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [651 words]: MacColl & Seeger lump this and other "marvels" songs with "Nottamun Town," but as the tunes, structures wonders cited are different I prefer to keep them separate. - PJS

This is another "Oh, dear." Looking at the version in the Digital Tradition, the plot is quite distinct from what is listed here, and it shares lyrics and a metrical pattern with "Nottamun Town" -- so much so that I almost filed "it" with Nottamun Town and called the MacColl/Seeger text a separate piece. Definitely a case of continuous texts, but with divergent extremes. - RBW

Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland says "this is a variant of 'Paddy's Ramble to London' a favorite slip and broadside song of the first half of the nineteenth century."

Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast agrees with Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland in that "an English broadside, 'Paddy's Ramble to London,' early nineteenth century, is probably the ancestor of this and of the various songs found in America with titles like 'Nottingham Fair,' 'Nottamun Torn.' It was a popular minstrel song."

If you follow this through the Bodleian archives, be careful not to be misled by broadsides with similar titles like "Paddy's Ramble THROUGH London" or "Paddy's VISIT to London" which are among the many country-bumpkin-comes-to-town-and-reveals-how-foolish-things-are-in-the-city broadsides. Bodleian includes "Paddy's Ramble to London" printed at Seven Dials between 1802 and 1844, shelfmark 2806 c.18(233). You can see a similar text as "Paddy's Ramble"[""Says Paddy in Ireland no longer I'll stay"] printed in London between 1802 and 1819, shelfmark Harding B...
Here is a Long Description of "Paddy's Ramble to London":
This is addressed to tars looking for a fight between wars, without swords or guns but arms "to kill all our friends that will do no harm."
Paddy has too much money and so can't pay his debts and decides to go to London, pass for a Lord, with his arm under his arm, his wig and broad sword.

[The third and fourth verse are a clear source for Paddy Backwards]: He leaves Dublin for Manchester "next Michael last" where "My horse standing still throw'd me down in the dirt Daubed my Body and bruised my shirt, I being of good courage I mounted again, My ten toes I tripp'd over the plain, Where my knapsack and all I throw'd to the ground And away then I steer'd to fair London town"

At London "not a soul could I see" because the crowd was so thick so I stood still but my feet were worn and shoes were lame.

I choked on the dust in the day-long rain, had a quart "to drive gladness away" and since I had no money to pay with I took a coach and walked away.

[Lines from the next two verses also survive in Paddy Backwards]:"As I was a going through St. Jame's Park, In the middle of winter when noon it was dark, I met three making of hay in the middle of winter, One Midsummer's Day. To find out the place I was sad at a loss, When shutting my eyes on safe Charing Cross Where the King set on horseback all on the cold stone There was thousands all round him but troth never a one."

I'll play cards at the Ball and court a rich Lady worth nothing. At the marriage drum will ring, bells beat and fiddle sing.

I'll marry a Blackamoor Lady, the "fairest of creatures" and buy her a silver cup of horn.

Since I favor splitting "Paddy's Ramble to London" from "Paddy Backwards" I think it pays to compare the two more precisely. Among the four Newfoundland texts, the version of "Paddy Backwards" that is closest to the "Paddy's Ramble to London" broadside is on the MacEdward Leach and the Songs of Atlantic Canada site. The broadside has 20 couplets and the site has 14. They share five. The five couplets shared are the only ones found in Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland (3 couplets out of 12), Leach text A (4 out of 13 1/2) and Leach text B (3 1/2 out of 8). - BS

Last updated in version 4.2

File: McCST119

Paddy Carey

DESCRIPTION: Recruiting Sergeant Snapp meets Paddy Carey, a great favorite with the women. He enlists Paddy for a shilling "while Pat was coaxing duck-legged Mary." At that ugly widow Leary gives Paddy money for a ring. He outfits himself as a captain and leaves.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1813 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 17(232a))
KEYWORDS: courting army recruiting money humorous rake

REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 20, "Paddy Carey" (1 text)

Roud #V1016

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, Harding B 17(232a), "Paddy Carey" ("'Twas at the town of neat Clogheon"), J. Evans (London), 1780-1812; also 2806 c.15(294), Harding B 11(2906), Harding B 12(71), Harding B 11(2907), Harding B 28(23), Harding B 25(1445), "Paddy Carey"

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Limerick Races" (mentions this song)

NOTES [59 words]: Broadside Bodleian Harding B 17(232a) is used as the basis for the description since O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland ends his song before widow Leary comes on the scene. - BS

It should be noted that this song was printed at a time when commission by purchase was still the norm in the British army; the practice was not abolished until 1871. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: 0Con020A
Paddy Darry
DESCRIPTION: "Paddy Darry lived in Clary, Had a girl in Biddy Town, Her tongue was slit with the sierel larry, But she sang to Paddy a golden rune. Hey eye for the sierel-larry... Oh what's the use of going fast? He's sure to meet me on the way."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety)
KEYWORDS: courting
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, p. 293, "Paddy Darry" (1 text)
Roud #7952
NOTES [37 words]: This is perhaps the least-documented piece in all of Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety. He didn't take down the date or the tune, it's only a fragment, and neither he nor I knows another version of it. - RBW
File: Beld293

Paddy Doyle (I)
DESCRIPTION: Shanty. Characteristic line: "We'll pay Paddy Doyle for his boots." The boots may be referred to as stolen, or Paddy's boarding house may be described
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909
KEYWORDS: shanty clothes poverty
FOUND IN: US(MA) Ireland Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (15 citations):
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, p. 10, "Paddy Doyle" (1 text, 1 tune)
Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen, p. 43, "Paddy Doyle" (1 text, 1 tune)
Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, p. 32, "Paddy Doyle and His Boots" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 330-334, "Paddy Doyle's Boots" (3 texts, 3 tunes) [AbEd, pp. 247-249]
Sharp-EnglishFolkChanteys, XXXVIII, p. 43, "Paddy Doyle" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, p. 115, "Paddy Doyle's Boots" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H53c, p. 96, "Paddy Doyle' (1 text, 1 tune, a tiny fragment)
Smith/Hatt/Fowke-SeaSongsBalladFromNineteenthCenturyNovaScotia, p. 28, "We'll Pay Paddy Doyle For His Boots" (1 fragment)
Bone-CapstanBars, p. 47, "Paddy Doyle" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Terry-TheShantyBook-Part1, #30, "Paddy Doyle's boots" (1 text, 1 tune)
Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, p. 31, "Paddy Doyle" (1 text, 1 tune)
Heart-Songs, p. 433, "We'll Pay Paddy Doyle" (1 text, 1 tune, a single line)
DT, PADDOYLE
Frederick Pease Harlow, _The Making of a Sailor, or Sea Life Aboard a Yankee Square-Rigger_, 1928; republished by Dover, 1988, p. 199, "Paddy Doyle and His Boots" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4695
RECORDINGS:
The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, "Paddy Doyle's Boots" (on IRClancyMakem02)
Richard Maitland, "Paddy Doyle" (AFS, 1939; on LC26)
NOTES [102 words]: According to Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, Doyle was a boarding master. (A boarding master took in sailors and found them jobs at sea in return for a cut of their pay. In return, he was to provide them with necessary equipment such as boots; for background on the, see the notes to "Dixie Brown" [Laws D7].) Boarding masters expected to take a large profit, but apparently Doyle was more rapacious than most.
Terry says that the only line in some versions was the identifying lyric "We'll pay Paddy Doyle for his boots," but happily for the sailors' sanity, some people came up with alternatives. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: Doe010
Paddy Duffy's Cart

DESCRIPTION: "The many happy evenings I spent when but a lad On Paddy Duffy's lumber cart, quite safe away from dad," The singer recalls all the people, "Tommy Dobson, now a senator," "Henry Gleason, now a millionaire," and others less noteworthy

AUTHOR: Words: Edward Harrigan / Music: David Braham

EARLIEST DATE: 1882 ("Squatter Sovereignty")

KEYWORDS: humorous lumbering home moniker

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Finson-Edward-Harrigan-David-Braham, vol. I, #73, pp. 266-270, "Paddy Duffy's Cart" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 118-119, "Paddy Duffy's Cart" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Stanley Appelbaum, editor, _Show Songs: from The Black Crook to The Red Mill_, Dover Publications, 1974, pp. 28-33, "Paddy Duffy's Cart" (1 text, 1 tune, a copy of the original sheet music)
- Roud #V1588

RECORDINGS:
- American Quartet (Billy Murray, Steve Porter, John H. Bieling, William F. Hooley), "Paddy Duffy's Cart" (Victor 17056)

NOTES [516 words]: For background on Harrigan and Braham, see the notes to "The Babies on Our Block."

This is a curiosity -- it's a moniker song, but a moniker song about people who assuredly did not exist. It also seems to swallow Edward Harrigan's earlier piece "Little Fraud," which was (I think) originally a parody of "Little Maud."

The play "Squatter Sovereignty" was one of Edward Harrigan's biggest hits, running 168 performances (Moody, p. 125) -- a very high number at the time. Moody, p. 126, calls it a "documentary" of the Shantytown of New York, where in the 1880s "squatters" had transformed old boxes, barrels, and the like into shanties by Central Park. In a typical Harrigan twist, one of the major characters was a goat, Billy, the subject of "The Widow Nolan's Goat."

The widow's daughter Nellie (played by Gertie Granville, Tony Hart's soon-to-be wife) is supposed to marry Terrence McIntyre, son of the "royal astronomer to the Duchess of Connaught" (Harrigan) who can show you "Uranus, Venus, Mars, and Jew Peter" for ten cents (Moody, p. 126). As is typical of Harrigan, the show involves misplaced love (Nellie loves Fred Kline, the son of a glue maker, not McIntyre), conflict between ethnic groups -- and live animals.

Franceschina, p. 144, says, "A contract is drawn up between the Widow [Nolan] and Felix [McIntyre, the astronomer, father of Terrens] in which she bestows her daughter with a dowry of bedding and a billy goat, while he gives his son a pig and a goose, with the understanding that if either child shold refuse the marriage, the parent would forfeit the dowry.... When the widow learns of her daughter's marriage to Fred Kline, she refuses to give up her goat to McIntyre, ignoring a feud.... Before the curtain falls... both families find themselves in another characteristic Comique melee in which the widow's shanty is torn down and all the animals are let loose from their cages."

David Braham gave up his usual pattern of marches and schottisches (Franceschina, p. 144): "There were no songs and dances, walk-around, or military parades. Instead, Braham borrowed from European operetta and Irish jig patterns to create, arguably, his most original score to date. "The runaway song hit from Squatter Sovereignty was "Paddy Duffy's Cart," an ensemble number used at the beginning of the third act to announce the arrival of Paddy Duffy (Eugene Rourke), a character of tangential importance to the plot. Particularly notable is the antiphonal choral writing in the second chorus, the melody and lyric of Harrigan and Hart's earliest theatrical success: 'Little Fraud,/ Little Fraud,/ She's the daintiest darling of all. As the widow Nolan, Hart [who often played transvestite roles] was provided with 'The Widow Nolan's Goat, an attractive Irish jig with a chorus in the minor mode and a rather conservative melodic compass."

According to Spaeth, p. 190, there was also an interlude after the first and third choruses: "After the first and third stanzas it was customary to sing [John P.] Ordway's Twinkling Stars are Laughing, Love [from 1855] in close harmony." - RBW

Bibliography
Paddy from Home

DESCRIPTION: "Paddy from home has never been, A railway train he's never seen, He longs to see the great machine, That travels along the railway." Or, "Paddy McQuark/from Cork was never seen, never seen, never seen... Travelling around the railroad."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1898 (Gomme)
KEYWORDS: travel play party train
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond)) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Ron Young, _Dictionary of Newfoundland and Labrador_, Downhome Publishing Inc., 2006, p. 251, "(Paddy McQuark Was Never Seen)" (1 short text)
Roud #13608
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Paddy from Cork
File: Yng251PH

Paddy Hart

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you gallus sporting men and boys that fall the pine, I hope you'll pay attention and just listen to this rhyme" iabout Paddy Hart, whose ancestry was noble. He loves fighting, drink, women. Left to freeze by a widow, he reforms and goes west

AUTHOR: unknown (but see NOTES)
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan)
KEYWORDS: humorous drink lumbering rejection travel
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp. 218-223, "Paddy Hart" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 105, "Paddy Hart" (1 text)
Roud #6502
NOTES [53 words]: Beck had this at about third hand from an informant who claimed this was written by "Big Head McGinness, who also wrote 'White River Drive.'& I know of no traditional song by that name, but the description of McGinness sounds a bit like the "Dan McGinnis" who wrote "Jack Haggerty (The Flat River Girl)" [Laws C25]. - RBW

Paddy In New York

DESCRIPTION: Pat lands in New York and finds a pub. The cost of Irish whisky is so high he accuses the landlord of trying to rob him, as the landlords did at home. They fight. Pat knocks the landlord down. 50 Yankees join the battle, but 50 Irishmen chase them away

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
KEYWORDS: accusation fight violence emigration travel drink America Ireland humorous
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
Roud #26623
RECORDINGS:
John Joe English, "Paddy In New York" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
NOTES [52 words]: This is more "the Irishman wins over the oppressors" than "the ignorant
Irishman doesn't know what to make of the big city. The final lines of the ITMA/CapeShoreNL text are, "Success attend all Irish people, many a country they have roamed. But their courage is more dearer, when they're far away from home." - BS

Last updated in version 4.5
File: RcPaInNY

Paddy Magee's Dream

DESCRIPTION: An Englishman, Scotchman, and Irishman meet and pool their resources to buy a loaf. The loaf will go to the one who has the grandest dream. The Englishman and Scotchman have grand dreams but the Irishman dreamt he was hungry, woke and ate the loaf.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1886 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(2917))
KEYWORDS: wager dream food humorous
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar) US(Ro)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
O’Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 99, "Paddy Magee's Dream" (1 text)
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 72, "Johnny Bull, Irishman, and Scotchman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #191, "The Three Dreams" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST OCon099 (Partial)
Roud #3272
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2917), "Paddy Magee's Dream", W.S. Fortey (London), 1858-1885; also Harding B 11(2918), "Paddy Magee" ("John Bull he was an Englishman, he went on the tramp one day") or "The Three Dreams"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "John Bull Lives In England" (theme of national comparison)

File: OCon099

Paddy Malone

DESCRIPTION: "Oh! My name is Paddy Malone, or 'twas so in Tipperary," but he chose to emigrate to Australia and now regrets it: He lost his master's sheep, was kicked by his bullock team; he will now head to town to try something safer

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Paterson, _Old Bush Songs_)
KEYWORDS: Australia emigration animal humorous
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 163-165, "(Paddy Malone)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ward-PenguinBookOfAustralianBallads, pp. 52-53, "Paddy Malone" (1 text)
Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads, pp. 16-17, "Paddy Malone in Australia" (1 text)
Bill Beatty, _A Treasury of Australian Folk Tales & Traditions_, 1960 (I use the 1969 Walkabout Paperbacks edition), pp. 273-275, "Paddy Malone in Australia" (1 text)
Roud #9111
File: PFS097

Paddy McGinty's Goat

DESCRIPTION: Paddy McGinty buys a nanny goat for the milk but finds it is a billy. The goat eats folks' valuables and causes the Kaiser problems. The goat swallows gasoline, dynamite and a spark: if you see someone in heaven with whiskers it may be this goat.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Frank Quinn recording)
Paddy Miles the Fisherman

DESCRIPTION: "Paddy Miles was a fisherman, young and light-hearted," who found that "all kinds of fish... came into his net." But he wants a wife. He meets a mermaid and tries to make out with her -- but finds her fishy hindquarters unsuited to his desires

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: fishing humorous mermaid/man
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, pp. 264-265, "Paddy Miles, the Fisherman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #15679

NOTES [29 words]: There was a nineteenth century song "Paddy Miles" beginning "From the big town of Limerick lately I came" (see Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 123); it appears to be unrelated.
- RBW

Last updated in version 3.5
File: Pet264

Paddy O'Rafferty

DESCRIPTION: Paddy O'Rafferty, marries Judy O'Doherty, a scold. "With pleasure I'd pay for a neat wooden suit for her." They go to dig turf. She falls in a hole; "Says I, there's an Irish divorce for you." He would dance on her grave but the mossy ground is too soft.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: shrewishness marriage abuse death humorous burial
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 118, "Paudeen O'Rafferty" (1 text)
Roud #16253

NOTES [32 words]: OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin text is from Healy, The Mercier Book of Irish Street Ballads 4, pp. 134-135, "Paddy O'Rafferty." Elizabeth Cronin's song lists have only the title. - BS

Last updated in version 3.2
File: 0CC118
Paddy on the Railway (I)

DESCRIPTION: "Paddy on the railway, Picking up stones; Along came an engine And broke Paddy's bones." "O, said Paddy, That's not fair. O, said the engineman, You shouldna have been there."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Opie)
KEYWORDS: train injury
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland) New Zealand
REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, "(Paddy on the railway)" (1 text); p. 109, "(Polly on the railway)" (1 text)
- Montgomerie/Montgomerie-ScottishNurseryRhymes 151, "(Paddy on the railway)" (1 text)
- Peter and Iona Opie, _I Saw Esau: Traditional Rhymes of Youth_, #46, "(Piggy on the Railway)" (1 text)

Paddy on the Turnpike

DESCRIPTION: Floating verses about Paddy's difficulties as he travels: "I'm just Paddy on the turnpike, I'll just be on my way, I'll just paddle down the turnpike To pass the time away." He describes his travels, admits he has no wife, and laments growing old

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973
KEYWORDS: floating verses rambling age
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 43, "Paddy on the Turnpike" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [30 words]: Not to be confused with the fiddle tune of the same name. Ohrlin's version, as the notes admit, consists mostly of floating verses; I don't know if a coherent version exists. - RBW

File: Ohr043

Paddy Ryan

DESCRIPTION: "Way up in old Calgary over the line There came an old cowboy, his name was Pat Ryan. He looked at the cowboys a-workin' the chutes, 'Boys, watch these spurs on the heels of my boots.' "Old Thief Duncan looks up and he squalls, 'Watch this boy....'"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1964
KEYWORDS: cowboy horse
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- 1896 - Birth of Pat Ryan
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 34, "Paddy Ryan" (1 fragmentary text, 1 tune)

File: Ohr034

Paddy Ryan's Victory

DESCRIPTION: ""'From round seventy-eight to eighty-six, Left room for to believe No Englishman could ever stand The weight of Paddy's sleeve.' After a long boxing match, "Joe" is unable to come out to fight "Paddy," who wins the bout
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales)
KEYWORDS: fight Ireland patriotic
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jun 1, 1880 - bare-knuckle fight between Joe Goss and Paddy Ryan, won by Ryan after Goss failed to come out of his corner for round #87
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, pp. 232-233, "Paddy Ryan's Victory" (1 excerpt)
Roud #V36855
File: TNY232

Paddy West
DESCRIPTION: The singer stops at Paddy West's (boarding)-house. Paddy offers him a (bad) meal and induces him to go to sea. Paddy assures the recruit is qualified by sending him three times "around the horn" of a cow and having him furl the royal of the window blind
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman)
KEYWORDS: sailor humorous shanghaiing
FOUND IN: US(MA) Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 113-114, "Paddy West" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 335-336, "Paddy West" (1 text, 1 tune) [AbEd, pp. 250-251]
Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, pp. 80-81, "Paddy West" (1 text, 1 tune)
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 113, "Paddy West" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, pp. 136-1137, "Paddy West" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, PADWEST*
Roud #3092
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Tramps and Hawkers" (tune) and references there
NOTES [214 words]: Hugill claimed Paddy West was a real person, living probably on Great Howard Street in Liverpool. But he offers no further details. For the not-very-savory history of boarding masters in general, see the notes to "Dixie Brown" [Laws D7].
How much difference Paddy West's attempts to varnish his recruits made is far from clear. Richard Henry Dana Jr., who sailed in this period, wrote in the second paragraph of chapter one of Two Years Before the Mast, "The change from the tight dress coat, silk cap, and kid gloves of an undergraduate at Cambridge, to the loose duck trousers, checked shirt, and tarpaulin hat of the sailor... was soon made, and I supposed myself to be looking as salt as Neptune himself. But it is impossible to deceive the practiced eye in these matters... I was, no doubt, known for a landsman by every man on board as soon as I hove in sight. A sailor has a peculiar cut to his clothes, and a way of wearing them which a green hand can never get.... Besides the points in my dress which were out of the way, doubtless my complexion and hands were enough to distinguish me from the regular salt, who, with a sunburnt cheek, wide step, and rolling gain, swings his bronzed and toughened hands athwartships, half open, as though just ready to grasp a rope." - RBW
Last updated in version 5.1
File: Doe113

Paddy Whack
DESCRIPTION: Paddy Whack boasts of his Irish ancestry, his schooling (especially in fisticuffs), and his skill in war
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio)
KEYWORDS: Ireland
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Paddy Works on the Railway

DESCRIPTION: Paddy describes the working conditions on the railway: "In (1841), I put me corderoy britches on... to work upon the (railway)." He recalls the hard work, courting and losing a wife, and the drink he uses to relieve his burdens

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag); there is a clear reference from 1864 in a manuscript from the clipper _Young Australia_

KEYWORDS: railroading work marriage death drink hardtimes

FOUND IN: US Britain(England)

REFERENCES (21 citations):
Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 547-552, "Paddy Works on the Railway" (1 text plus extended excerpts to illustrate variations in the song and a broadside print of "Mick Upon the Railroad," 1 tune)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 356-357, "Poor Paddy Works on the Railway" (1 text, 1 tune)
Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen, pp. 107-108, "Paddy Works on the Railway" (1 text, 1 tune)
Harlow-ChantyiingAboardAmericanShips pp. 139-141, "Oh, Poor Paddy Works on the Railway" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 155-156, "Roll the Cotton Down" (1 text, version "E" of "Roll the Cotton Down"); pp. 337-338, "Paddy Works on the Railway," "Poor Paddy Works on the Railway" (2 texts, 2 tunes) [AbEd, pp. 252-253]
Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, pp. 77-78, "Paddy Works on the Railway" (1 text, 1 tune)
MacColl-ShuttleAndCage-IndustrialFolkBallads, pp. 20-21, "Poor Paddy Works on the Railway" (1 conflated text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 670, "Paddy Works on the Railway" (1 text)
Lomax/Lomax-FolkSongUSA 76, "Paddy Works On the Erie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 20-22, "Paddy Works on the Erie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin/Harlow-TreasuryOfRailroadFolklore, p. 438, "Paddy Works on the Erie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 43, "Fillimeeooreay" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, pp. 42-43, "Pat Works on the Railway" (1 text)
Fonre, p. 78, "Pat Works on the Railway" (1 text)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, p. 330, "Pat Works on the Railway" (1 text)
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 150, "Paddy Works on the Erie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 101 "Pat Works On The Railway" (1 text)
DT, PADRAIL1*

ADDITIONAL: Frederick Pease Harlow, _The Making of a Sailor, or Sea Life Aboard a Yankee Square-Rigger_, 1928; republished by Dover, 1988, pp. 344-345, "Oh, Poor Paddy Works on the Railway" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #208
Paddy, Get Back

DESCRIPTION: Shanty, with long chorus, "Paddy, get back, Take in the slack, Heave away your capstan," etc. The song details how the poor boy has to go to sea to earn money, then suffers at the hands of weather, mate, and a long voyage

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1898

KEYWORDS: shanty poverty sailor abuse

FOUND IN: US(MA) Canada(Mar) Britain(England(Lond))

REFERENCES (9 citations):

- Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 54-55, "Paddy, Get Back" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen, pp. 121-122, "Paddy Get Back" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 321-327, "Paddy Lay Back" (3 texts, 3 tunes with variants) [AbEd, pp. 241-244]
- Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, p. 32, "Pady Lay Back" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, pp. 68-70, "Paddy Get Back" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, pp. 73-74, "Valparaiso Round the Horn" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Smith/Hatt/Fowke-SeaSongsBalladFromNineteenthCenturyNovaScotia, pp. 42-43, "Lay Out, Tack Sheets and Haul!" (1 text)
- Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 141, "On Board the Leicester Castle" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, PADLAYBK

Roud #653

RECORDINGS:

- George Ling, "On Board the Leicester Castle" (on Voice02)
- Richard Maitland, "Paddy, Get Back" (AFS, 1939; on LC26)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

- cf. "The Liverpool Song" (form, lyrics)

ALTERNATE TITLES:

- Mainsail Haul
- The Liverpool Song
- Valparaiso Round the Horn

File: Doe054
Paddy, the Cockney and the Ass

DESCRIPTION: Pat Molloy meets a cockney and his ass in London. Forced to speak to the ass, Pat puts a pebble in its ear. Enraged, it upsets the cockney's cart. Taken in, Pat says he told the ass that the Irish had rid themselves of the landlords. Charges dismissed.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Pat Molloy from County Clare goes to London and meets a Cockney with a cart and donkey. The Cockney won't let Pat pass until he speaks to the donkey. While speaking he puts a pebble in the ass's ear. The ass, mad, upsets the Cockney's cart. The Cockney has the peelers take Pat in. The magistrate asks Pat what he told the ass to make him mad. He says he told the ass that the Irish had rid themselves of all the landlords. The magistrate laughs and dismisses Pat.

KEYWORDS: England Ireland humorous animal
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan 18, "Paddy, the Cockney and the Ass" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3078
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Pat Molloy and the Cockney
Paddy and the Ass
NOTES [33 words]: Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan: "The slightly 'stagy' language used in the ballad might be an indication -- by no means an infallible one -- that the song originated in America." - BS
File: RcPaCoAs

Paddy's Advice

DESCRIPTION: Paddy is advised "let men of all creeds and professions agree ... How easy old Erin we'd free." If you stand alone, the preachers will fleece you, you must pay landlords just to dig your land. "The system must fall ... if ye stick to each other"

AUTHOR: James Hope (1764-1847) (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
EARLIEST DATE: 1887 (Madden's _Literary Remains of the United Irishmen of 1798_, according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad political
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 41, "Paddy's Advice" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: Moyl041

Paddy's Curiosity Shop

DESCRIPTION: "Did you hear tell of Paddy's Museum?" It is filled with antiquities. Barnum's cannot compare. It has Adam's "mattock and spade," "King David's ould breeches,"... "I'll give you the second edition Some night when you drop in again."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1879 (broadside, LOCSing sb30404a)
KEYWORDS: humorous talltale Bible
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 145, "Paddy's Curiosity Shop" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1856, p. 125, "Pat's Curiosity Shop" (4 references)
Roud #15372
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 18(694), "Pat's Curiosity Shop", H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878 [same as LOCSing sb30404a]
LOCSinging, sb30404a, "Pat's Curiosity Shop", H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878 [same as Bodleian Harding B 18(694)]
SAME TUNE:
Paddy's Green Shamrock Shore
DESCRIPTION: The singer tells of setting sail from (Londonderry), bound for America. He looks long on the beloved Irish coast he is leaving. A hard voyage brings him to America, where he and his friends say farewell. (He hopes to return home and marry his girl)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: emigration parting ship separation
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H192, pp. 101-102, "The Shamrock Shore" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, p. 55, "The Shamrock Shore" (1 text)
McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen 62, "The Shamrock Shore" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, PADDYGRN* PADDYGR2*
Roud #1419
File: HHH192

Paddy's Land
DESCRIPTION: The singer travels from Ireland to Scotland. He sees and falls in love with a beautiful girl. She asks him if he is Scottish. He tells her no, and asks if she will go to Ireland with him. She apparently refuses, for he returns to Ireland alone
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love courting rejection foreigner beauty
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H473, pp. 354-355, "Paddy's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6876
File: HHH473

Paddy's Land (II)
DESCRIPTION: The singer is asked by a damsel "for a verse or two in praise of Paddy's land." He sings about pure air, pretty girls. The Irish are noble people driven from home by the failure of trade. Trade has now returned. He toasts Wellington, Duncan, and Jervis.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1820 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 17(233b))
KEYWORDS: emigration commerce Ireland
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1745, "Paddy's Land" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #12987
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 17(233b), "Paddy's Land" ("One evening all alone as I sat in my easy chair"), J. Pitts (London), 1802-1819; also Harding B 25(1453), Harding B 16(197b), "Paddy's Land"

NOTES [197 words]: Greig/Duncan8 is a fragment; broadside Bodleian Harding B 17(233b) is the basis for the description.

For more on trade problems at the end of the Napoleonic Wars see "The Ports Are Open."

Of the heroes toasted at the end of the song: Jervis is probably John Jervis, First Lord of the Admiralty (1735-1823) (source: Wikipedia article John Jervis, 1st Earl of St Vincent); Duncan is probably Admiral Adam Duncan (1731-1804) who defeated the Dutch fleet at Camperdown in 1797 (source: Wikipedia article Adam Duncan, 1st Viscount Duncan of Camperdown).

The woman at the beginning of the song is familiar from the Aisling style of Irish poem [see "Granuaile"]; it would be unusual in that kind of poem for her to drop out of the text as she does in this song. - BS

Unusual, certainly, but it makes sense for a song that praises Wellington, Duncan, and Jervis to drop references to Granuaile, who stood for Irish independence. Wellington, Duncan, and Jervis were "British" heroes, implying that this is a song by a pro-Union, probably Protestant, Irishman. Roud lumps this with a pro-Irish Freedom song called "Paddy's Land," but they don't have much in common in terms of content. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: GrD1745

Paddy's Land (III)

DESCRIPTION: "Come, all you songs of Paddy's land, who are inclined to roam To reap the English harvest so far away from home.... You'll have to fight both day and night 'gainst John Bull and his crew." They sail to New York, where they find many Irish already there

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster)
KEYWORDS: Ireland emigration
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 112, 'Paddy's Land" (1 text)
Roud #12987
NOTES [30 words]: Roud seems to lump this with an item in Greig-Duncan about travel from Ireland to Scotland also called "Paddy's Land," but they don't have much in common in terms of content. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: HMHS112B

Paddy's Panacea

DESCRIPTION: Poteen is "the best thing in nature For sinking your sorrows and raising your joys." It cures cramp, colic and spleen, calms a baby when mixed in milk, soothes a mind at school, makes the dumb talk, the lame walk, and helped Brunel dig the Thames tunnel.

AUTHOR: Joseph Lunn (1784-1863) (source: O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)
KEYWORDS: drink humorous nonballad technology
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan 3, "Paddy's Panacea" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 155-156, "Paddy's Panacea" (1 text)
Roud #3079
RECORDINGS:
Tom Lenihan, "Paddy's Panacea" (on Voice13) (on IRTLenihan01)
NOTES [507 words]: Marc Isambard Brunel began construction of the Thames Tunnel in 1825. The tunnel was completed in 1842 and opened in 1843. (source: Thames Tunnel at the Wikipedia site. - BS

The history of the Thames Tunnel is complicated, and the Brunels (Marc Isambard, the father, and Isambard Kingdom, the son) were involved for only part of the time.

The idea for a tunnel went back to 1802, when one Robert Vazie suggested a tunnel between Rotherhithe and Limehouse. This was actually begun in 1805, but the river flooded it in 1808 and work was abandoned (Weinreb/Hibbert, p. 860).
Marc Isambard Brunel (1769-1849) became involved a decade later. He had already invented a system for mass-producing pulley blocks which made ship manufacture much faster and cheaper (Porter, pp. 103-104). A series of inventions to help other types of manufacturing followed (Porter, p. 104), but bad luck and incompetent partners drove him to insolvency.

By 1823, the idea of a Thames Tunnel was back, and Brunel invented what was called a "tunneling shield" to make it easier and safer to build the tunnel (Weinreb/Hibbert, p. 860). The idea was good, and has been used for tunneling ever since (Weinreb/Hibbert, p. 860). In 1825, work began on a 1200 foot tunnel between Rotherhithe and Wapping.

Unfortunately, while the tunneling shield worked, the tunnel itself -- the first ever constructed under a large, tidal river (Fox, p. 67) -- was problematic. The plan was to run the tunnel just 14 feet under the riverbed at one point (Porter, p. 104), and the support structures just weren't strong enough. There were problems with leakage -- and what was leaking was Thames water, and what's worse, water from the "bottom" of the Thames -- essentially, an open sewer with industrial chemicals thrown in to make the mix even more toxic.

Marc Brunel was so stressed by the work that he eventually had to turn it over to his son. Isambard Kingdom Brunel (1806-1859) joined the project soon after it began, and in 1826, he became the field manager of the project (Fox, p. 66). In 1828, the tunnel was badly flooded; Isambard was badly injured (it took him three months to recover, according to Fox, p. 67) and the project was once again shut down.

The project was shut down from 1828 to 1835, but then resumed again, with an improved tunneling shield and new managers (Weinreb/Hibbert, p. 860). It was finally finished in 1843 -- although there still wasn't enough money to build an approach for wheeled vehicles, so it was used only by pedestrians at first. In 1865, it was converted to use by trains (Porter, p. 104), and is now part of the London Underground.

Since the song mentions the Brunels, we can feel fairly confident it was written before 1835, and probably before 1828. It is hardly surprising to find a song about Irishmen working on the tunnel; the tunneling shield involved 36 workmen in dark, sticky conditions working hard to excavate the tunnel. Given the economic circumstances of the time, and the prejudices, it was an obvious job for Irishmen. - RBW

Bibliography

- Weinreb/Hibbert: Ben Weinreb and Christopher Hibbert, editors, The London Encyclopedia, Macmillian, 1983 (I use the 1986 Ader & Adler reprint)

Last updated in version 2.6
File: RcPadPan

Paddy's Pastoral Rhapsody

DESCRIPTION: Pat asks Molly to marry. She says he is too young and too poor. He says "wealth is an invitation The wise should never mintion," Sparrows, bees and roses, he says, get by without wealth. He drinks to her "for when I'm drunk I think I'm rich"

AUTHOR: Samuel Lover (1797-1868)
EARLIEST DATE: before 1885 (broadside, Bodleian Firth b.28(6a/b) view 7 of 8)
KEYWORDS: poverty courting rejection drink
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 38, "Paddy's Pastoral Rhapsody" (1 text)
Roud #V2084
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.28(6a/b) view 7 of 8, "Paddy's Pastoral Rhapsody", R. March & Co (London), 1877-1884
NOTES [95 words]: Broadside Firth b.28(6a/b): "Sung by the Author in his Irish Evenings"; the broadside does not state who that Author might be but the Bartleby Great Books Online site quotes The Cambridge History of English and American Literature in 18 Volumes (1907-21). Volume XIV. The Victorian Age, Part Two. IX. Anglo-Irish Literature to attribute this to Samuel Lover (and quote the verse O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland omits, to boot). This broadside has a final verse omitted by O'Conor. The broadside is used for the Description (I guess "the Author" should know). - BS

Last updated in version 5.1

File: OCon038

Paddy's Ramble to London

DESCRIPTION: Paddy has too much money and so can't pay his debts and goes to London to pass for a Lord. He has strange, often paradoxical adventures. Finally he decides to marry a Blackamoor Lady, the "fairest of creatures" and buy her a silver cup of horn.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1845 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 c.18(233))

KEYWORDS: travel nonsense paradox animal

FOUND IN:

- Roud #V7641

BROADSIDES:

- Bodleian, 2806 c.18(233), "Paddy's Ramble to London" ("Come listen awhile you frolicksome tars"), J. Pitts (London), 1802-1844

CROSS-REFERENCES:

- cf. "Donald's Visit to Glasgow" (theme: country folk in town)
- cf. "Paddy's Voyage to Glasgow" (theme: country folk in town)
- cf. "Paddy Backwards" and references there
- cf. "Nottamun Town (Nottingham Fair)" (theme)
- cf. "The Seven Wonders" (theme)
- cf. "The Lofty Giant (Song of Marvels)" (theme)
- cf. "Limerick Races" (theme)
- cf. "Shon M'Nab" (theme)

NOTES [165 words]: One verse of Bodleian 2806 c.18(233) is close to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 93, "As I was going by Charing Cross" (earliest date in Opie is 1808).

Paddy's Ramble to London: "To find out the place I was sad at a loss, When shutting my eyes on safe Charing Cross. Where the King set on horseback all on the cold stone There was thousands all round him but truth never a one."

Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 93: "As I was going by Charing Cross, I saw a black man upon a black horse; They told me it was King Charles the First Oh dear, my heart was ready to burst!"

Opie explains that "in 1675 the statue of Charles I, which had originally been erected in King Street (and may today be seen at the top of Whitehall), was re-erected on the site of the old Charing Cross ...."

On the same subject see broadside Bodleian, Antiq. c. E.9(97), "A dialogue between the old black horse at Charing cross, and the new one, with a figure on it in H--er square," unknown, c.1702 - BS

Last updated in version 5.1

File: BdBPRtL

Paddy's Voyage to Glasgow

DESCRIPTION: Paddy goes to Scotland for the harvest. He takes the steamboat from Belfast to Glasgow and does not understand paying fare. He is confused by the town and a public show, cannot sleep for the drunk telling the hour, and is happy to leave for the Lothians

AUTHOR: John Milne (source: broadside Bodleian Harding B 11(3605))

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan2)

KEYWORDS: travel humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

- Greig/Duncan2 293, "Paddy in Glasgow" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
Roud #5859
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(3605) View 2 of 2, "Paddy's Voyage to Glasgow" ("When I took a notion from home for to stray"), unknown, no date ["Songs and poems by John Milne"]
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Paddy's Ramble to London" (theme: country folk in town)
cf. "Donald's Visit to Glasgow" (theme: country folk in town)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Broomielaw
NOTES [79 words]: Paddy is illiterate ("I never was learned my name for to spell"). He does not understand what he sees. The show he visits seems to him real: he first sees "wild beasts, few of them were tame, The nobles of Scotland came there to see them, Young Bonapart I on him did stare, I wondered what brought him from Germany there"; he is prevented by "a man with a red neck" from shaking hands with Bonapart.
Broadsid Bodleian Harding B 11(3605) is the basis for the description. - BS
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD2293

Padstow May Day Song
DESCRIPTION: Ritual song, for a hobby-horse, in English or Cornish: "Unite and unite, and let us all unite"..."Rise up, Mrs. __ and gold be your ring/And give to us a cup of ale the merrier we shall sing"..."Where are these young men that now here should dance..."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1860 (Baring Gould MS)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Ritual song, accompanying antics of a hobby-horse; sung in English or Cornish: "Unite and unite, and let us all unite"..."Rise up, Mrs. __ and gold be your ring/And give to us a cup of ale the merrier we shall sing"..."Where are these young men that now here should dance?/Some they are in England and some they are in France"..."Now we fare you well and we bid you all good cheer/We'll call no more unto your house before another year"
KEYWORDS: ritual drink foreignlanguage moniker nonballad animal horse
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South,North))
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 86, "Can Cala Me [May Day Song]" (1 text, 1 tune; the notes give a related text and a version of "The Old May Song")
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 104, "Padstow May Song" (2 texts)
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, pp. 15-17, "May Day Song" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
DT, CORMMAY
Roud #305
RECORDINGS:
Blue Ribbon Hobby Horse Team, "May Day Song" (on FSB9)
People of Padstow, "Padstow May Day Song" (on Lomax41, LomaxCD1741)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "May Day Carol" (subject) and references there
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Old May Song
Cornish May Carol
NOTES [2010 words]: Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland's Cornish words are a revivalist translation from the English. - PJS
Some versions of this ask, "O where is Saint George" or equivalent. (The answer being, "He's out in his longboat, all on the salt sea, O.") It's an interesting question: As Stewart notes (p. 62), George was not a natural English saint; Edward the Confessor was long considered England's national saint (indeed, King Edward I was given such an un-Norman name only because his father Henry III revered Edward the Confessor) -- and in Northumbria, Saint Cuthbert was long revered. Saint Dunstan was also popular. Stewart notes that various authors date George's adoption as England's Patron at diverse times from 1220 to 1415.
It should be noted, however, that the tale of "St. George for Merry England" (Briggs, pp. 474-476) makes George a son of the Earl of Coventry. (An odd claim, given that Coventry was not an ancient earldom.)

The best-known version of the legend of George in medieval England would be that in the so-called "Golden Legend." George is #58 in Ryan's edition (pp. 238-242). It calls him a military tribune from Cappadocia. His exploit with the dragon is said to have taken place by a lake near "Silina in the province of Lybia." The dragon demanded two animals -- sheep or humans -- per day, and George arrived when the king's daughter (a king? Inside the Roman Empire?) was to be sacrificed. George hits the dragon with his lance and orders the girl to bind it with her girdle as a leash. He then converts the whole town. (The legend admits that there are variants in the story.) After that the "Legend" tells how, in the time of the Emperor Diocletian, a "prefect Dacian" started a persecution. (Diocletian's persecution of Christians was the most severe in Roman history.) George therefore quit the army and gave away his possessions. Dacian orders George tortured, and this makes no impression on him. So Dacian calls in a magician to poison him, but the poison fails. So does persuasion. Dacian's wife tells him it is pointless, whereupon the wife too is tortured -- and George tells her that her blood "will be both your baptism and your crown."

George is then sentenced to be dragged through the streets and beheaded. He is said to have prayed that all who asked for his help receive their requests, and a voice from heaven said it would be so. George is then executed -- and lightning strikes and kills Dacian.

Stewart remarks that the Catholic church in 1969 effectively de-sanctified George, demoting him to local status only. This is frankly logical, since the records of his works, and even of his existence, are slight. As early as 494 C.E., Pope Gelasius had declared that George was "one of those saints whose names are justly revered by men but whose works are known only to God" (Alexander, p. 253). Chadwick, p. 155, thinks "the" Saint George is George of Lydda, a soldier -- but also thinks that his history has been mixed up with that of the Arian Bishop George of Alexandria (martyred 360), and that much of the tale of Saint George comes from the martyrdom of this heretic! Benet, p. 970, declares this to have been disproved, however, and the revised fourth edition of Benet, which shortens the entry on George (p. 393) does not even mention it. Similarly Hole, p. 104, declares that this story "carries within it the seeds of its own refutation." The story apparently was popularized by Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire (Hole, p. 106).

OxfordCompanion, p. 412, says that George was martyred at Lydda in Palestine in the fourth century, with the first signs of reverence in the sixth century. It suggests that the story of George and the Dragon is "a reminiscence of Perseus and Theseus" -- a statement that seems very likely, since the story is that the dragon, which was terrorizing a kingdom, demanded the daughter of the king as a meal, and George killed the beast instead (Alexander, p. 253). Eventually this fight came to be associated with Dragon Hill in Berkshire (Alexander, p. 254). Hole, p. 110, confesses that we do not know when he came to be known as a dragon-fighter, but the two had certainly been linked by the twelfth century. It is only with the Golden Legend, however, that we see George actually fighting the dragon, as opposed to defeating it by prayer.

George was not the only victim of Diocletian's persecution -- in Britain, saints Alban, Aaron, and Julius of Caerlon were said to have suffered (Hole, p. 105). Alban's story was particularly interesting, in that he had to make a miraculous river crossing to reach his own place of execution, and his executioner went blind as he struck the fatal stroke (DictSaints, p. 6). But that wasn't enough to make him Britain's patron saint.

OxfordCompanion adds that George was the patron of the Order of the Garter, founded by Edward III in 1348. It has met on April 23, St. George's day, ever since, except for a brief interruption during the reign of Edward VI (Hole, p. 116, who thinks Edward disliked St. George. There were also orders devoted to George in Aragon and Prussia; Hole, p. 115). Simpson, p. 105, says that Edward III added St. George's name to the English battle cry during the siege of Calais at about the same time. This doubtless helped make him popular in England.

Hole, p. 115, says that he was certainly England's patron saint by the time of the Battle of Agincourt (1415). It is possible that his cult is older; a legend eventually arose that Richard I had called upon St. George during the siege of Acre in the Third Crusade (Saul, p. 93; Hole, p. 114).

Hole, p. 115, says that several of his alleged relics were brought to Europe following the First Crusade. And Hole, p. 103, says that George's legend was known in the time of the Venerable Bede. But Saul, p. 171, says that the evidence of Richard introducing George's cult into England is weak.

Simpson, p. 105, says that George was celebrated by a guild in Norwich by 1389, and they had equipment for an elaborate pageant by 1408. George's feast day was made an official holiday in 1415 (reign of Henry V). Alexander, p. 253, suggests however that he gained his fame at the time of the Third Crusade, since a soldier-saint would appeal to the British crusaders. We know that Richard III supported his cult in the 1480s (Saul, p. 195).
According to Simpson, p. 106, by 1532 the girl George rescued was reputed to be St. Margaret -- i.e. St. Margaret of Antioch, whose dates are unknown but who was a pagan converted to Christianity who was oppressed by her father and who was swallowed by a dragon which later threw her up (DictSaints, p. 152). This is the only St. Margaret associated with a dragon, although the ties with George are at best tenuous (and Simpson maintains Margaret was fictitious, which makes it interesting that Jean Darc once claimed to have heard her...). Margaret, like George, was found in the famous Golden Legend (Simpson, p. 107), one of the earliest printed books in English, so that may have cemented the link.

Alternately, Simpson, p. 115 (and preceding pages) mentions a sort of a "hobby dragon" tradition parallel to the hobby horse. She hints that this would cause Saint George the Dragon Slayer to be attracted to hobby horse celebrations.

Stewart, p. 63, is of the opinion that George is based on a pagan deity. This is perhaps an elaboration of the link to Perseus. But on p. 68, Stewart rings in fertility deities such as the Green Man. This is somewhat more logical than the other -- the Greek name "George" means "farmer." So he is associated with agriculture -- but hardly as a fertility deity!

It is curious to note that Greene, p. 227, observes that only one early carol about George has been preserved for us (it is Greene's #62, p. 124, beginning "Enfors we us with all our might To love Seynt Georg, Owr Lady knyght"). But he is hardly more popular in recent folk song. Could he have been less popular with the folk than the nobility?

Englebert, pp. 28-29, declares, "St. George suffered martyrdom at Lydda in Palestine shortly before the accession of the Emperor Constantine. These words contain all we certainly know of him whom the Greeks call 'the great martyr....'" He supposedly was celebrated in the east by the fifth century, and his cult reach France by the sixth. Oxford was celebrating him in 1222. As mentioned above, Benet, p. 970, calls George a soldier in Diocletian's army, killed in 304, and the revised edition cuts this. The explanation of George and the Dragon also changes; the first edition, pp. 970-971, links it to various tales of Christian heroes slaying dragons, including the account in the Revelation to John of the Dragon (Greek, drakon) who contests with God in chapter 12 and after, and who is cast out of heaven by Michael in 12:7. The revised edition, while mentioning this, also brings in (Perseus and) Andromeda.

Finally, both editions of Benet mention that the Red Cross Knight in Spenser's Faerie Queene is Saint George.

Adding all this up, I wonder if the reference in this song is not to Saint George the (mostly fictional) saint but to Saint George's Banner, one of the naval flags. This would explain why Saint George was "out in his longboat." Although Stewart has an explanation for that, too -- or, rather, two of them. On p. 66, he thinks Saint George is to be identified with the brother in the bottomless boat of "Edward" [Child 13]. On p. 67, he suggests that the bottomless boat that we have no actual reason to believe Saint George is in is in fact a sacrifice to the mother deep. I leave it to you to decide how to apply Occam's Razor to that.... Somewhat more likely is Kennedy's suggestion that it is associated with St. George's Well near Padstow.

Since we're talking ancient legends anyway, another thought I had is that St. George being in his longboat might somehow be a confusion with the legend of Joseph of Arimathea, plus some subset of Mary, Martha, and Lazarus of Bethany floating to England after being driven out of the Holy Land.

Greene, pp. 9-10, would have us believe that the song must go back at least to the time of the Battle of Agincourt in 1415, because of the lines, "Where are the French dogs that made so great a boast, O, They shall eat the grey goose feather, And we will eat the roast, O." The goose feathers do sound like clothyard arrows, of course -- but as far as beating the French goes, the Napoleonic Wars are much more recent.

GreeneEarliest, pp. xxxii-xxxiii, connects this with the original "carole" dances: "The processional dance which accompanies the singing of the Padstow 'May Song' keeps to the present day this association of burden with movement and stanza with standing. As long as the 'hobby horse' and his companion dancers advance along the street or whirl about in it, the crowd of villagers sings the burden over and over again. The instant the dancers pause for breath, the singers change without other signal to the stanza, at the conclusion of which the dance is resumed." On pp. xxxi-xxxii Greene proposes that carols are ring dances; during the stanzas (verses) sung by the leader, the dancers stepped left. Then they would stop and dance in place for the burden. The hobby horse makes the dance linear, but the alternation remains.

Alexander, p. 134, has what strikes me as the most likely explanation of all. "There can be little doubt that the 'Obby 'Oss goes back to some long-forgotten pagan ritual but over the years the locals grew frustrated at not knowing the reason for their great day and several explanations evolved. The most popular is that a French warship attempted to raid Padstow in the fourteenth century when most of the men of the town were away at the siege of Calais [i.e. 1346-1347]. Some quick-thinking person rushed a hobby horse to the harbour, where the French thought it was the Devil come to protect the Cornish and turned about with all speed."

With that sort of hypothesis floating around, is it any wonder that the song got a bit strange too? - RBW

Bibliography

- Briggs: Katherine Briggs, A Dictionary of British Folk-Tales in the English Language, Part A: Folk Narratives, 1970 (I use the 1971 Routledge paperback that combines volumes A.1 and A.2)
- Chadwick: Henry Chadwick, The Early Church (being volume I of The Pelican History of the Church), Pelican, 1967

Last updated in version 5.3
File: K086

Page from the Scrap-Book of Life

DESCRIPTION: "I stood in the glare of the city, And gazed on the passing throng... there in the crowd came a woman... I could trace upon her sad face, A tale of a happier day." "'Tis a page from the scrapbook of life." She was lured from home; her child grieves

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois)
KEYWORDS: wife husband children separation
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 258-259, "Page from the Scrap-Book of Life"
(1 text)
Roud #4341
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "A Picture from Life's Other Side" (theme)
NOTES [23 words]: I can't prove it, since I know no other versions of this song, but I feel as if this was inspired by "A Picture from Life's Other Side." - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2
Paid O'Donoghue

DESCRIPTION: Anti-rebel forces range through Meath. Young Currogha smith Paid O'Donoghue forges rebel pike-heads. He is betrayed, taken and forced, before execution, to shoe the yeoman captain's horse. He kills the captain with his hammer and escapes on the horse.

AUTHOR: Patrick Archer (1861-1919) (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

EARLIEST DATE: 2000 (Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

KEYWORDS: rebellion betrayal escape death recitation horse

Historical References:
1798 - Irish rebellion against British rule

Found in:
References (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 59, "Paid O'Donoghue" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: Moyl059

Painful Plough, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you jolly plowmen, of courage stout and bold... To crown them with contentment, behold the painful plow." The gardener and plowman discuss the antiquity of their profession. The plowman wins the argument because the plow makes all else possible.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1839 (broadside, Harding B 11(2936))

KEYWORDS: farming worker

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South),Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (11 citations):
Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland, Song #2, pp. 167-169, "The Painful Plough" (1 text)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 363-365, "The Painful Plow" (1 text)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 242-243, "The Faithful Plough" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 430)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 33, "Ploughman" (1 text)
Palmer-ThePainfulPlow, #19, "The Painful Plough" (1 text, abridged from Barrett; 1 tune)
OShaughnessy-YellowbellyBalladsPart1 17, "The Gardener and the Ploughman" (1 text, 1 tune)
[see Note]
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #101, "The Painful Plough" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #66, p. 1, "The Painful Plough" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 448, "The Painful Plough" (5 texts, 2 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 222-223, "The Painful Plough" (1 text)
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 126-127, "The Painful Plough" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #355

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2936), "The Painful Plough" ("Come all you jolly ploughmen of courage stout and bold"), J. Catnach (London), 1813-1838; also Johnson Ballads 2086, Harding B 20(127), 2806 c.17(325), Firth b.26(485), Harding B 11(2935), "[The] Painful Plough"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Irish Boy" (tune, per Greig/Duncan3)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Plough
The Ploughman and the Gardener

NOTES [269 words]: OShaughnessy-YellowbellyBalladsPart2 35 replaces the text for OShaughnessy-YellowbellyBalladsPart1 17, a text mainly written by O'Shaughnessy.

Greig: "The expression 'painful plough' is very interesting, as illustrating how tradition may retain a word even after its original meaning has become obsolete and liable to be misunderstood. 'Painful' here means painstaking or laborious." - BS

This sounds reasonable -- but I wouldn't bet the farm on it. Note that one stanza of this song claims that "Adam was a plowman when plowing first begun." This is not scriptural; on the face of it, Adam was a hunter/gatherer. As the song says, the Bible describes Cain as a farmer (Genesis 4:2). But Genesis 3:17 declares, "Cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life." This is right after God declares that Eve shall suffer misery in childbirth. Sounds pretty painful to me (and most modern translations use the word "pain" or "painful" somewhere in Genesis 3:16-17, though the King James Version does not).

The exploits of Samson are in Judges 13-16. Solomon's wisdom is mentioned, e.g., in 1 Kings 3:12 (though in fact 1 Kings devotes more space to his folly than his wisdom). David's slaying of "his ten thousands" is mentioned first in 1 Samuel 18:7.

The exploits of Alexander the Great are not mentioned in the Hebrew Bible (except implicitly in veiled references in the second half of the Book of Daniel), though there are mentions in the Greek Old Testament (in 1 Maccabees); but the lack of explicit Biblical mention hardly matters, he was well-known to tradition. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: 0rd222

Pains in My Fingers
DESCRIPTION: "Pains in my fingers, Pains in my toes; I sent for Doctor Brody To know what to do." Cho: "Sick him, Bobby, hoo-hoo, Sick him, Bobby, hoo! Oh, pore Mary Jane, He'll never come here no more." Other verses float
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: doctor injury animal floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 167-168, "Pains In My Fingers" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Raccoon" (floating verses)
File: ScaNF168

Pains o' Love, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer is wounded by love and tortured "like to a salamander." He will wander aimlessly until "the maid whom I adore ... grants me my designing"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: courting love nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan5 935, "The Pains o' Love" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6750
NOTES [39 words]: My guess is that the torture "like to a salamander" is a reference to the mythical fire-breathing salamander. The torture is a heart on fire, or being burned. It all seems much too flowery for a folk song, whatever the author meant. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD5935

Paint Ship Song (I)
DESCRIPTION: "You take the paint pot And I'll paint the brush, And we'll paint the ship's side together. When 'Jimmy' comes along We'll sing this little song. Thank the Lord we didn't join forever."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
KEYWORDS: sailor work derivative
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 23, "Paint Ship Song (I)" (1 text, tune referenced)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Loch Lomond" (tune)
Paint Ship Song (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Just grey paint, just grey paint, We know where the paint comes from, Underneath the old pom-pom. Just grey paint, Makes things look like what they ain't. 'Jimmy' goes sick when he looks at the chit For just grey paint."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)

KEYWORDS: navy derivative

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 23, "Paint Ship Song (II)" (1 text, tune referenced)

NOTES [105 words]: Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy says that this was sung on board the destroyer HMS Stuart. According to M. J. Whitley, Destroyers of World War II: An International Encyclopedia, Naval Institute Press, 1988, pp. 17-18, the Stuart was a member of the Scott class of World War I destroyers, 1580 tons; the Stuart herself had been commissioned in late 2018. Destoyers tended to age quickly, so by 1929 she would have been a candidate for a lot of paint and minor maintenance. She was transferred to the Australian navy in 1933. She served in World War II in the Indian Ocean and Mediterranean, and was scrapped in 1947. -RBW

Paisley Officer, The (India's Burning Sands) [Laws N2]

DESCRIPTION: Henry, an officer from Paisley, meets and falls in love with Mary. His regiment having been called to India, (they are married and) she dresses as a soldier to accompany him. He is fatally injured; she is killed caring for him

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Gray-SongsAndBalladsOfTheMaineLumberjacks, plus Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan, who also mention a manuscript copy dated 1884); there are sundry 19C broadsides

KEYWORDS: courting marriage cross-dressing soldier death battle India

FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,NE) Canada(Mar,Newf) Ireland Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (15 citations):
* Laws N2, "The Paisley Officer (India's Burning Sands)"
* Greig/Duncan1 185, "The Paisley Officer" (2 texts)
* Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 308-310, "The Paisley Officer" (2 texts, 1 tune)
* Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H120, pp. 332-333, "Blythe and Bonny Scotland/India's Burning Sands" (1 text, 1 tune, composite)
* Graham-Joe-Holmes-SongsMusicTraditionsOfAnUlsterman 34, "India's Burning Sands" (1 text, 1 tune)
* McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen, pp. 65,75, "The Paisley Officer" (1 text)
* Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, pp. 192-193, "The Paisley Officer" (2 texts)
* Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, pp. 158-159, "The Paisley Officer" (1 text, 1 tune)
* Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia 51, "Bonny Scotland" (2 texts)
* Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports, pp. 191-195, "In Bright and Bonny Scotland (The Paisley Officer)" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
* Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick, pp. 153-157, "The Paisley Officer" (1 text, 1 tune)
* Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 86, "The Village Pride" (1 text plus mention of 1 more)
* Gray-SongsAndBalladsOfTheMaineLumberjacks, pp. 85-87, "In Blithe and Bonnie Fair Scotland" (1 text)
* Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 19-21, "India's Burning Sangs" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT 438, PAISLYOF

Roud #550

RECORDINGS:
* Sara Cleveland, "In Bonny Scotland" (on SCleveland01)
Charlotte Decker, "In Bright and Bonny Scotland" (on NFAGuigné01)
Warde Ford, "India's Burning Sands" [fragment] (AFS 4198x1, 1938; in AMMEM/Cowell)
Mrs. Ghaney, "Benny Hills of Scotland" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
John James, "Bonnie Hills of Scotland" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
John Kehoe, "Benny Hills of Scotland" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Eta Nash, "The Bonny Hills Of Scotland" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
Theresa White, "On the Bonny Hills of Scotland" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 17(234a), "The Paisley Officer," Sanderson (Edinburgh), 1830-1910; also 2806 c.14(124), "The Paisley Officer"
NLScotland, L.C.178.A.2(198), "The Paisley Officer," unknown, c.1840; also L.C.178.A.2(198);
RB.m.169(070), "The Paisley Officer"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Fare Thee Well, My Dearest Dear"
cf. "The Fair Town of Greenock" (theme)
NOTES [79 words]: The description of this song at the Bodleian site associates this with the Sepoy Rebellion (1857-1858) -- but note that the National Library of Scotland broadsides probably predate
this. - BS, RBW

Paistin Fionn
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, my fair Paisteen is my heart's delight, Her gay heart laughs in her blue eye bright." If he were in town with her on his knee, he would drink to her. He waited for her for nine nights; he will never abandon her "Till I lie in the coffin stretched."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster)
KEYWORDS: love death drink nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 49, "Pastheen Fion" (1 text)
Roud #32889
File: HMHS049A

Pakenham
DESCRIPTION: "Come, Pakingham, and have a cup, Perhaps the last you will ever sup." The singer taunts the British soldiers coming to the battle of New Orleans
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety)
KEYWORDS: battle death soldier
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jan 8, 1815 - Battle of New Orleans. Although a peace had already been signed, word had not yet reached Louisiana, which Pakenham sought to invade. Andrew Jackson's backwoodsmen easily repulsed Pakenham's force; the British commander is killed in the battle.
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 298-299, "The Hunters of Kentucky"
(1 text plus 2 fragments, 1 tune, but the "A" fragment and part of "C" is "Pakenham")
Roud #2211
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Molly Put the Kettle On (Polly Put the Kettle On)" (form)
NOTES [186 words]: Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety observes that the fragment he lists as "A" of "The Hunters of Kentucky," and several lines of the last stanza of his "C" text, do not appear to be part of "The Hunters." (And I heartily agree, though Roud lumps them.) And they "do" appear to be the same song. Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety therefore speculates that they are fragments of some lost song. He appears to be right. Indeed, the chorus of the "A" fragment ("Jackson, put the kettle on, Coffee, blow the fire strong, Carroll, hands the cups around, The strangers must have tea") makes it nearly certain that it was built around "Molly Put the Kettle On." Whether it was truly traditional must wait on other information.

Jackson is of course Andrew Jackson, and "Packingham" is Pakenham, the British commander. "Coffee" is not the drink but John Coffee, Jackson's second in command in the Creek War (for background, see "Andrew Jackson's Raid"); Carroll is William Carroll (1788-1844), Jackson's successor in command of the Tennessee militia and later governor of that state. - RBW

File: Beld298

Pale Was Her Face, She Hung Over My Shoulder

DESCRIPTION: The singer leaves Eldring and goes to war. The war ends and he had "escaped from the slaughter" but he returns home to find she had died of grief.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan6)

KEYWORDS: love return war separation death

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Greig/Duncan6 1242, "Pale Was Her Face, She Hung Over My Shoulder" (1 text)

Roud #6783

File: GrD61242

Palms of Victory (Deliverance Will Come)

DESCRIPTION: "I saw a wayward traveller in tattered garments clad... His back was heavy laden, his strength was almost gone, He shouted as he journeyed, 'Deliverance will come!' Whatever the trouble, the traveller's refrain is the same.

AUTHOR: Rev. John B. Matthias

EARLIEST DATE: 1836 (original composition)

KEYWORDS: religious

FOUND IN: US(SE,So)

REFERENCES (4 citations):

Randolph 626, "Palms of Victory" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 437-438, "Palms of Victory" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 626)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 92, "Palms of Victory" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, PALMSVIC

Roud #3540

RECORDINGS:

Linzy Hicks, "Palms of Victory" (on USWarnerColl01)
Homer Rodeheaver, "Palms of Victory" (Rainbow 1118, c. 1925)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Honest Farmer" (form)

File: R626

Pandora, The

DESCRIPTION: The Pandora "went down in Youghal Bay." On November 18 she sailed from Nova Scotia and, after seven days of heavy seas, sank after striking a rock. Captain Hardcastle "ordered out the longboat in hopes to reach the land" but many "perished in the deep"

AUTHOR: unknown
Panic is On, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer says the country is falling apart; no one can get work; landlords are raising rents; women are selling fruit, booze, or "everything they can." If things don't change "there'll be some stealin' done." Cho: "Doggone...I mean the panic is on."

AUTHOR: Probably Hezekiah Jenkins

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (recording, Vic Collins [Hezekiah Jenkins])

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer says the country is falling apart; no one can get work, folks are homeless and walking the streets; landlords are raising rents and evicting those who can't pay; to support their men, women are selling fruit, booze, or "everything they can." Singer has pawned everything but his gun; if things don't change "there'll be some stealin' done." Chorus: "Doggone...I mean the panic is on."

KEYWORDS: poverty crime robbery unemployment hardtimes nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
DT, PANICON

Roud #15867

RECORDINGS:
Vic Collins [pseud. for Hezekiah Jenkins], "The Panic is On" (Columbia 14585-D, 1931)

NOTES [31 words]: The Great Depression is usually considered to have begun with the crash of the stock market in 1929; however, conditions in rural areas had been depressed for several years before then. - PJS

File: DTpanico

Papa's 'Bout to Get Mad

DESCRIPTION: Singer is lonesome since his lover left. He writes her a letter about the "cook" and a hen, who wouldn't lay eggs. If she doesn't lay "the cook's 'bout to get mad." "That cook has a great big axe." "Sweet mama, papa's 'bout to get mad."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, Pink Anderson and Simmie Dooley)

KEYWORDS: loneliness warning separation nonballad lover chickens

FOUND IN:

RECORDINGS:
Pink Anderson and Simmie Dooley, "Papa's 'Bout to Get Mad" (Columbia 14336-D, 1928; on USChartersHeroes)

File: RcPBtGMa

Papir Iz Doch Vays (Silver Is the Daylight)

DESCRIPTION: Yiddish: Daylight is silver, the sea is blue, and the singer's new love is bright. He hopes she will stay with him forever. None is as fair as she. He is tormented by love; all he wants is to be with her. If he is, any hut is a palace

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950
KEYWORDS: love courting colors foreignlanguage
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 292-293, "Papir Iz Doch Vays (Silver Is the Daylight)" (2 texts (1 English, 1 Yiddish), 1 tune)
File: SBoA292

Par Derrier' Chez Mon Pere (The Prince's Three Daughters)

DESCRIPTION: French. Behind my father's house is an apple tree, Under it sleep the prince's three daughters. Their lovers are in battle; "If they win, they'll have our love so sweet...if they win or lose, they'll have our love forever"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Berry-FolkSongsOfOldVincennes) (15th century?)
LONG DESCRIPTION: French. Behind my father's house is an apple tree, "Vole, mon coeur, vole (Fly, my heart, fly)". Under the tree sleep the prince's three daughters; the youngest wakens and tells the others that day is breaking. "Tis but a star in heaven.. a star to light love's way." One says that their lovers are in battle; "If they win, they'll have our love so sweet...if they win or lose, they'll have our love forever"

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage love army battle war lover soldier
FOUND IN: US(MW) Canada(Que) France
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Berry-FolkSongsOfOldVincennes, p. 38, "Par derrier' chez mon pere (The Prince's Three Daughters)" (1 text + translation, 1 tune)
NOTES [72 words]: Berry-FolkSongsOfOldVincennes dates the song to the 15th century, but without documentation. They note that, in addition to Indiana, the song was popular in French-speaking areas of southern Illinois and Missouri. - PJS
I must say that the context does not sound fifteenth century to me. If it were, the war would probably be the Hundred Years' War, and there should be something about the English enemy. But that's not proof. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.5
File: BerV038

Par Excellence

DESCRIPTION: "I am the gentleman whose name is known throughout the land." "I'm par excellence the creature of the day." He has to keep a book of the ladies he has conquered. "I've never earned a penny yet," but the ladies help him with "voluntary contributions"

AUTHOR: William Horace Lingard (source: Spaeth)
EARLIEST DATE: 1869 (source: Spaeth)
KEYWORDS: courting money
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
New-Comic-Songster, p. 20, "Par Excellence" (1 text, 1 tune)
Spaeth-WeepSomeMoreMyLady, pp. 208-209, "Par Excellence" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #24456
NOTES [68 words]: It's hard for me to believe that this would ever go into tradition, but there is a fragment from East Anglia that may be this, so I've indexed it.
Incidentally, Spaeth's and the New Comic Songster version are substantially different. I wonder if performer and alleged author Lingard didn't fiddle with an existing text somehow -- or if the editors of New-Comic-Songster didn't do so to cover up plagiarism. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: NCSParEx
Parcel from a Lady, The (Under Her Apron)

DESCRIPTION: Singer is hailed by a lady who asks him to hold her parcel while she finds her sister. He holds the parcel until his arms grow tired. He sets it down; it emits a squall; he finds a baby. He advises young men never to take a parcel from a lady

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (recorded from Frank Hillier)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer, walking down the strand, is hailed by a lady who asks him to hold her parcel while she goes to find her sister. He agrees, and holds the parcel until his arms grow tired. He then sets it down, and it emits a squall; he opens the parcel, and finds a baby. He advises young men never to take a parcel from a lady, or they might find themselves with an unwanted child

KEYWORDS: request warning abandonment humorous baby

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 328, "The Parcel from a Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #898

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Basket of Eggs" (plot) and references there

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Rolled in her Apron
She roun't in her apron

NOTES [30 words]: While the plot is certainly similar to those of "The Basket of Eggs" and "Quare Bungo Rye", this song does not share any lyrics with them (except, of course, for the word "baby").
- PJS

File: K328

Parchman Farm Blues

DESCRIPTION: "Judge give me life this morning down on Parchman Farm (x2), I wouldn't hate it so bad, but I left my wife this morn." "Oh, goodbye, wife, all you had done gone." The singer warns hearers to avoid Parchman, and wishes for better times

AUTHOR: Booker T. Washington "Bukka" White

EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (recording, Booker T. Washington "Bukka" White)

KEYWORDS: prison separation wife

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Burton-TennesseeTraditionalSingers, pp. 181-182, "Parchman Farm Blues" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Bukka White, "Parchman Farm Blues" (OKeh 05683, 1940)
File: BTN181

Pardon Came Too Late, The

DESCRIPTION: "A fair-haired boy in a foreign land at sunrise was to die." The solder is captured while trying to desert. The pardon does not arrive in time to save him. After his death, his comrades learn that he had been trying to return to his dying mother

AUTHOR: Paul Dresser (1857-1906)

EARLIEST DATE: 1927

KEYWORDS: death execution mother desertion soldier

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Randolph 709, "The Pardon Came Too Late" (1 text)
Spaeth-WeepSomeMoreMyLady, pp. 233-235, "The Pardon Came Too Late" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gilbert-LostChords, pp. 311-312, "The Pardon Came Too Late" (1 text)

ST R709 (Full)
Roud #7375

RECORDINGS:
Vel Veteran [pseud. for either Arthur Fields, Vernon Dalhart or Irving Kaufman] "The Pardon Came Too Late" (Grey Gull 4237, 1928)
BROADSIDES:
NLScotland, RB.m.143(123), "The Pardon Came Too Late," Poet's Box (Dundee), c. 1880-1900

NOTES [15 words]: For the story of Paul Dresser, see the notes to "On the Banks of the Wabash, Far Away." - RBW

File: R709

Pardon of Sydna Allen, The

DESCRIPTION: "In the state of old Virganny, In the year 1912, Was the famous Allen gangsters we all remember well." The judge is shot while Claude and Sydna are in court. Sydna is convicted and sentenced to 14 years, but the governor pardons him

AUTHOR: Carson J. Robison?

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs); also published by Robison around this time

KEYWORDS: prison fight trial feud

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1912 - Trial of the Allen family

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs, p. 34, "The Pardon of Sydna Allen" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3117

CROSS-REFERENCES:

NOTES [27 words]: For some background on Sidney Allen and the Allen Family, see the notes to "Sidney Allen" [Laws E5] or the NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal article cited above. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: Rich034

Parish of Inch, The

DESCRIPTION: On St Patrick's day the Teagues assembled at Downpatrick fair: "Protestant traitors with papists united Unfurled their green banners at Ballynahinch" and were confronted by the members of Four Hundred and Thirty, "the True Blues of the Parish of Inch"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark)

KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad political religious

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark 22, "The Parish of Inch" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [179 words]: "Dictionary definition for 'Taig': Taig n. In Northern Ireland, a Protestant epithet for a Roman Catholic. Formerly, any Irishman. Also Teague." (source: Double-Tongued Word Wrester site.) "Lilliburlero" begins "Ho brother Teague, Dost hear de decree." [The spelling "Teague" seems generally to be preferred; I suspect "Taig" is a result of local pronunciation. Eric Partridge's A Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English, fifth edition, gives alternate spellings "Teg" and "Teigue," and derives it from the Irish surname "Tadhg," pronounced "Teeg." As "Teg," it appears in the anthology "Merry Drollery" in 1661; it is also used by Swift. Listed as archaic since 1879, but still used in Ulster as late as 1904. - RBW]
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark: "Inch had L.O.L. 430 and the song compares its gallant members with the bad Protestants 'who would change their faith for a British half-crown.' On a certain St Patrick's Day they proved their loyalty and dependability to the distress of their enemies." For "True Blue" Masonic Lodges see Notes to "Derry Walls Away." - BS

File: OrLa022

Park in Portadown, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets a woman who knows him by name. He asks her to walk with him in the park in Portadown. She refuses; she is waiting for her cousin James McKeown. He receives a letter from his "dear" as Mrs James McKeown. Beware of girls willing to spark.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster)

KEYWORDS: courting lie rejection warning

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES: (1 citation):
- Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster 18, "The Park in Portadown" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #2892

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Watercresses" (theme: the married woman pretending to be single)

NOTES [15 words]: Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster: "Portadown ... is a market town just below Lough Neagh." - BS

File: MorU018

Parks o' Keltie, The

DESCRIPTION: Despite her mother's warnings a Perthshire maid walks in Keltie's parks. The Laird of Keltie rapes her. Her father sees the rape and threatens to "forfeit" the parks if not paid "her portion." The laird marries her.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1826 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1)

KEYWORDS: marriage rape father mother nobility

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber,Bord))

REFERENCES: (2 citations):
- Greig/Duncan7 1487, "The Parks o' Keltie" (11 texts, 6 tunes)

Roud #3861

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, Harding B 25(1564), "The Pretty Parks of Cailty O" ("Where are you going my bonny lass, where are you going so late"), C. Croshaw (York), 1814-1850

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Johnny Doyle" (tune, per Greig/Duncan7)
- cf. "The Dainty Doonby" (theme of a laird raping a girl then marrying her)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- The Laird o' Geldie
- The Bonnie Lands o' Keltie
- The Bonnie Woods o' Keldie O

File: GrD71487

Parody on Jock o' Hazeldean

DESCRIPTION: Wealthy Episcopalian Geordie would marry a Presbyterian lady who weeps to think of leaving Manse o' Deer. "The day was fixed the feast was spread ... But the bride she wisna seen Wi' a drunken pedlar she's awa To the jile at Aiberdeen"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan5)

KEYWORDS: courting wedding escape parody

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES: (1 citation):
- Greig/Duncan5 1030, "Parody on Jock o' Hazeldean" (1 text)

Roud #6722

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "John of Hazelgreen" [Child 293] (basis for parody)

NOTES [91 words]: The mention that Geordie is Episcopalian while his intended is Presbyterian is interesting. The strongest conflict between Anglicans and Presbyterians was in the early seventeenth century, when Charles I and Archbishop Laud were trying to impose bishops on Congregational Scotland. That of course resulted in the rise of the Solemn League and Covenant -- and a lot of Anglo-Scottish conflict. But that was before Scott (re)wrote "Jock of Hazeldean."

Perhaps the mention of Geordie as an Episcopalian is just to emphasize how Anglicized he was.
Parson and the Clerk, The DESCRIPTION: Parson preaches against sin; clerk wants to do it. Parson denounces coveting gold, saying it’s his fate to be well-paid. Clerk says, "Give it to me." Parson deplores boys kissing hussies; clerk says "I've done it myself and they're fond of it too." Etc.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (recorded from Phil Tanner)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Parson preaches against various sins; clerk says he wants to do them. Parson denounces coveting gold, saying it’s his fate to be well-paid. Clerk says, "Give it to me." He tells those sinned against to turn the other cheek; clerk says, "I'll break his nose." Parson deplores young boys kissing hussies; clerk says "I've done it myself and they're fond of it too." Parson preaches temperance; clerk says "I am awfully dry."

KEYWORDS: virtue courting sin drink dialog humorous religious clergy worker

FOUND IN: Britain(Wales) Australia

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 235, "The Parson and the Clerk" (1 text, 1 tune)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #29, "The Parson and the Clerk" (1 text, 1 tune)
Meredith/Tritton-DukeOfTheOutback, pp. 91-92, "The Parson and His Clerk" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1154

RECORDINGS:
Phil Tanner, "The Parson and the Clerk" (on FSB10)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Soldier and the Sailor" (theme)
cf. "The Mare and the Foal" (theme)

NOTES [54 words]: Verse 6 of this song runs, "I bid you work and pray, And don't do all your parson does, But do as your parson say." Compare Matthew 23:3 -- "Do and obey what [the scribes and Pharisees] tell you, but not what they do, for they preach but do not practice."

It will presumably be obvious that "clerk" is pronounced "clark." - RBW

Parson and the Sucking Pig, The DESCRIPTION: A parson insists that a farmer's tithe be a plump sucking pig which he will feed some guests that night. He rejects the first offer and insists on making the choice himself. The old sow throws him in the mud and he runs away, swearing off "sucking pig"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (Baring-Gould collection, according to Palmer)

KEYWORDS: farming humorous animal clergy

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 197-198, "The Parson and the Sucking Pig" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO We 325)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #28, "The Tythe Pig" (1 composite text, 1 tune)
Palmer-ThePainfulPlow, #5, "The Sucking Pig" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: George Griffiths, A History of Tong, Shropshire (London, 1894 ("Digitized by Google)), pp. 138-139, "The Tithe Pig" (1 text)

Roud #574

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 25(57), "The Parson and Pigs" ("All you who love a bit of fun"), unknown, no date

NOTES [25 words]: Griffiths relates this song to the Tithe Commutation Act of 1836. The parson insists on being allowed to choose the tithe: "you know it is my due." - BS
Parson Brown's Sheep

DESCRIPTION: A boy sings truly that his father killed the minister's wether. The minister hears the song and offers a reward to sing the song in church. The boy sings that he saw the minister in bed with his mother. The minister runs away. The family eats the wether.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1879 (broadside, LOCSinging sb30381a) [but notice that the earliest date on the sequel (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(82) is before 1867]

LONG DESCRIPTION: A family had nothing to eat for Christmas and followed the son's plan to lure and kill the minister's fat wether. Alone in the wood the boy sang about the deed. The minister heard the song and offered the poor boy a reward to sing that song in church. At Christmas service the minister promised the full congregation that a boy would come and sing a true song. The boy sang that he saw the minister in bed with his mother [Are we to assume that the minister's objective had been to eliminate the father's competition by having him hanged?]. (In other versions, the minister is in bed with "Molly" or some other girl.) The minister ran away with the boy running after claiming his reward [but, though he sang a true song, it was not the song contracted; we do not hear that he collected]. The family ate the wether.

KEYWORDS: adultery accusation promise theft trick food hardtimes humorous sheep family clergy recitation

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North),Scotland(Aber)) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Greig/Duncan2 309, "The Minister's Wedder" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
- Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1725, p. 116, "Old Parson Brown" (1 reference)

ADDITIONAL: Katherine Briggs, _A Dictionary of British Folk-Tales in the English Language_, Part A: Folk Narratives, 1970 (I use the 1971 Routledge paperback that combines volumes A.1 and A.2), volume A.2, pp. 173-174, "The Man That Stole the Parson's Sheep" (1 text)
- Katherine Briggs, _British Folktales_ (originally published in 1970 as _A Dictionary of British Folk-Tales_), revised 1977 (I use the 1977 Pantheon paperback edition), pp. 58-59, "The Man That Stole the Parson's Sheep" (1 text, the same as the preceding); see also p. 344, 'The Wee Boy an the Minister Grey" (1 text)

Roud #2498

BROADSIDES:
- LOCSinging, sb30381a, "Old Parson Brown," H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- The Minister and His Wether
- The Parson's Fat Wedder

NOTES [409 words]: The LOCSinging and Bodleian broadsides tell the story, alternating verse and prose, with many more details but sharing no lines with Greig/Duncan2 texts. In these the boy explains that the father is old and out of work; the parson sets the dog on the boy when he asks for help; the part about the parson overhearing the first song agrees well enough; the parson pledges to the congregation the truth of what is about to be heard ("it's of a most notorious and outrageous crime as ever was committed, and ought to be severely punished, and every word that he says is as true as the gospel I am now preaching"); the new song is not about the parson and mother but rather about the parson "Romping Molly on the hay." The Greig/Duncan2 texts seem to be a badly remembered retelling of "Parson Brown's Sheep," which seems to me a stage piece.

There is a sequel broadside as well for "Parson Brown's Sheep." See Bodleian, Harding B 11(82), "Encore Verses" or "The Answer to Parson Brown's Sheep" ("My thanks accept kind friends"), J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866; also Bodleian, 2806 c.16(241), "Encore Verses" or "The Answer to Parson Brown's Sheep"; Bodleian, Johnson Ballads 678, "Second edition of Parson Brown's Sheep" [Parson Brown arranges that the boy marry Molly, upon whom the Parson has bestowed a dowery of three hundred golden sovereigns. They live happily ever after. Like the original, this piece alternates recitation and verse.]

H. De Marsan dating per _Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song_ by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS

The Briggs version also differs somewhat from Greig/Duncan and the others while clearly being the same general story. I suspect that, as a combination of song and story, it was unusually easy for the text of this item to evolve.

The only versions of this I have seen in field collections are from the British Isles, but there is a strong hint that it, or the answer, has been found in Newfoundland as well. G. M. Story, W. J. Kirwin, and J. D. A. Widdowson, editors, Dictionary of Newfoundland English, second edition with supplement, Breakwater Press, 1990, cites a verse from a collection at the Memorial University of Newfoundland, tape T2414-74:
As I went out in the field one day,
I saw our parson bright and gay,
Rampsin Molly on the hay [the verb "to rompse" is defined as "to romp and tumble"]
And he turned her upside down, sir! - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3

Parson With the Wooden Leg, The

DESCRIPTION: A wooden-legged parson promises to try to resolve differences between a couple he has married. The husband finds the parson and his wife together and kicks him out but his wife delivers a baby with a wooden leg.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1856 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(4307))

LONG DESCRIPTION: A wooden-legged parson marries Barber Briggs to Becky Bell. When Becky reveals herself to be a shrew Briggs asks the parson to undo the wedding. The parson says he can't undo the wedding but he'll do the best he can to convince Becky to change her ways. One day Briggs comes home and finds Becky on the parson's knee. He kicks the parson out. He and Becky get on better afterwards until, after nine months, Becky has a baby with a wooden leg.

KEYWORDS: shrewishness infidelity marriage wedding humorous clergy injury

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South))

REFERENCES (2 citations):

- OShaughnessy-YellowbellyBalladsPart2 36, "The Parson With the Wooden Leg" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #101, "The Parson With the Wooden Leg" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: OSY236

Parting (The Dying Girl's Farewell)

DESCRIPTION: "The time has come, dear Papa, when I must say goodbye; I feel the shadows thickening...." "I'll meet you at the portals, where the angels come and go." The singer bids farewell to mother and father and looks forward to heaven

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (collected from Myrtle Carrigan by Boswell)

KEYWORDS: religious death nonballad father mother

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

- Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee 106, pp. 162-163, "Parting (The Dying Girl's Farewell)" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: BoWo106

Parting Glass, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer has done some ills and foolish things, but never with ill purpose and only to himself. He misses his girl. He would spend money on good company if he had it. Conclusion: "So fill to me the parting glass, Goodnight and joy be with you all."
Parting Hand

DESCRIPTION: "My Christian friends ... we must take the parting hand." "Your company's sweet." "How sweet the hours have pass'd away." "How would it would cheer my mind to stay but... we must take the parting hand"

AUTHOR: Jeremiah Ingalls (source: Original Sacred Harp)
EARLIEST DATE: 1803 (according to Original Sacred Harp)
KEYWORDS: parting nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Benjamin Franklin White, E. J. King, et al., Original Sacred Harp (Atlanta, 1911 ("Digitized by Google")) [correction and enlargement of 1869 edition copyright J.S. James], p. 62, "Parting Hand" ("My Christian friends in bonds of love") (1 text, 1 tune)
Parting Words

DESCRIPTION: "When the parting words were spoken And I told him he was free... I am free, oh, free again...." She has seen him with another; accuses him of falsehood, says she will be true; he wipes away a tear, murmuring, "Life is nothing more to me."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: love courting betrayal floating verses

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 160, "Parting Words" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 160, "Parting Words" (1 excerpt, 1 tune)

Roud #6576

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Farewell He" (plot)
cf. "Ella Lea" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Thou Hast Learned to Love Another" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Faded Flowers" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [31 words]: A rather confused piece; the overall plot is very much like "Farewell He," but with the strange report of his despair at the end. Many of the lyrics float; see the cross-references. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.7

File: BrII160

Partizaner Lid (The Partisan)

DESCRIPTION: Yiddish: The guerrilla is advised to use (her) weapon well. A girl is going on her first raid. She kills an enemy soldier, and his vehicle crashes. She rejoices in her success in "a struggle all must share"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: war battle death rebellion foreign language

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 360-361, "Partizaner Lid (The Partisan)" (2 texts (1 English, 1 Yiddish), 1 tune)

NOTES [128 words]: World War II saw more partisan activity than any previous war, mostly because the Nazis so cruelly oppressed their victims. Perhaps the largest guerrilla forces were raised in Poland, where Jews were plentiful and even the Christians were treated as animals. Toward the end of the war, as the Russians approached Warsaw, the Polish resistance arose and recaptured the city. This was the greatest accomplishment of the partisans in the entire war. Sadly, at that very moment the Russians stopped their advance. Stalin said his armies needed to regroup. In fact, he was allowing the Nazis the chance to crush the Warsaw uprising so he wouldn't have to do it himself. The Nazis did their part, then the Russians moved in. Tens of thousands of Poles had died for nothing. - RBW

File: SBoA360
Party at Jack Williams's, The

DESCRIPTION: "It was on a Sunday evening in the month of July We went out to Jack Williams's ourselves for to enjoy" Late arrivals -- "a sporting bunch belonging to Kilbride" -- took the floor, and when they left the locals danced the night away

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA-Leach)
KEYWORDS: dancing party moniker
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
RECORDINGS:
John Molloy, "The Gasker Song" (on MUNFLA-Leach)
File: ML3PJWi

Pass Around the Bottle (As We Go Marching Home)

DESCRIPTION: "Pass around the bottle and we'll all take a drink (x2) As we go marching home." "Pull out the stopper and fill it up again." "Hang John Brown on a sour apple tree." "Grasshopper sitting on a sweet potato vine." Etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (recording, Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers)
KEYWORDS: drink floating verses Civilwar execution drink nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 296-297, "Pass Around Your Bottle" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 34, "Pass Around the Bottle" (1 text)
Roud #7858
RECORDINGS:
Al Bernard, "Pass Around the Bottle" (Grey Gull 4210/Radiex 4210/Van Dyke 74210, 1928; Madison 5094, c. 1930)
Georgia Yellow Hammers, "Pass Around the Bottle" (Victor 20550, 1927; Montgomery Ward M-8054, 1939)
Sim Harris, "Pass Around the Bottle" (Oriole 916, 1927)
North Carolina Hawaiians, "Pass Around the Bottle" (OKeh 45405, 1930; rec. 1928)
Ernest Stoneman, "Pass Around the Bottle" (Banner 2157/Domino 3985/Regal 8346/Homestead 16490 [as by Sim Harris], c. 1929/Oriole 916 [as by Harris]/Challenge 665/Conqueror 7064/Conqueror 7755, 1931/Paramount 3021/Broadway 8054, c. 1930; rec. 1927) Pathe 32278/Perfect 12357/Cameo 8217/Romeo 597/Lincoln 2882, 1927); "Hang John Brown" (on Stonemans01); (Edison, unissued, 1927)
Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers, "Pass Around the Bottle and We'll All Take a Drink" (Columbia 15074-D, 1926)
Walter Williams, "Pass Around the Bottle" (AFS, 1937; on KMM)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Marching On" (lyrics)
cf. "John Brown's Body" (tune & meter) and references there
NOTES [71 words]: Since this is almost entirely floating verses, with a floating chorus, it probably is actually a version of something else. But without a tune, we can't really tell what.
Paul Stamler tells me that Gid Tanner recorded this to the tune of "John Brown's Body." However, this does not fit the text printed by Brown (which is only three lines long rather than four). The Lomax version, on the other hand, has four-line stanzas. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.6
File: Br3034

Pass Me Not O Gentle Savior

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Saviour, Saviour / Hear my humble cry / And while others Thou art calling / Do not pass me by." Verses ask, "help my unbelief" and "whom have I ... but Thee."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1880 (Sankey)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Ira D. Sankey, Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos [1200 Hymns] (London: Collins, 1921?), #488 (1880 #63), "Pass Me Not"
RECORDINGS:
Moving Star Hall Singers, "Pass Me Not O Gentle Savior" (on USSeasIsland02)
NOTES [70 words]: The USSeasIsland02 version includes three of Sankey's four verses and the chorus, and ends repeating the chorus again with increasing speed, clapping and beating on the floor. - BS
The reference to "Help my unbelief" is to Mark 9:23-24. A man has brought his sick child to Jesus to be cured. Jesus declares that "All things will be done for the one who believes." The boy's father replies, "I believe; help my unbelief!" - RBW
Last updated in version 4.0
File: RcPMN)GS

Pass Under the Rod

DESCRIPTION: The singer variously sees "a young bride in her beauty and pride," a "young mother in tenderness band," and parents falling victim to "idolatrous love," but a Healer came to rescue them, saying "I love thee, I love thee, pass under the rod."
AUTHOR: Mrs. M. S. B. Dana (?)
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Heart Throbs)
KEYWORDS: religious
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 650, "Pass Under the Rod" (2 texts)
Roud #7571
NOTES [51 words]: As best I can tell, the phrase "pass under the rod" is an allusion to the King James Version text of Ezekiel 20:37, which refers to bringing transgressors back into the covenant. Leviticus 27:32 uses the same phrase (referring to the holy tithes of animals), but this strikes me as even more of a stretch. - RBW
File: R650

Passant par Paris (Passing through Paris)

DESCRIPTION: French capstan song. Singer is passing through Paris, when he's told that someone is courting his girl. He says he doesn't care, anyone can have her, and goes on to list all the other good things that he has/had.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Hayet, _Chansons de bord_)
LONG DESCRIPTION: French capstan song. Singer is passing through Paris, when he's told that someone is courting his girl. He says he doesn't care, anyone can have her, and goes on to list all the other good things that he has/had. Sung as a typical French call & response form where the first line of a verse is a repeat of the last line of the previous verse, with choruses interspersed. Chorus of this song is "Bon! bon! bon! Le bon vin m'endort, l'amour me reveille / Good! good! good! The good wine makes me sleep, but love wakes me up."
KEYWORDS: foreign language shanty love bragging
FOUND IN: France
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 414-416, "Passant par Paris" (2 texts, French & English, 1 tune)
Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, p. 92, "Passant par Paris" (2 texts, French & English, 1 tune)
File: Hugi414

Passing of the Helvetia, The

DESCRIPTION: "'Russ Gibb must go.' The Commission willed it so, And the glory of Waimea is departed." "But you thirty true loves Shall never drink again In our beloved pub, the Helvetia." The locals lament the closed Helvetia hotel
AUTHOR: Words: Louis Magee (source: Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)
Past Ten O'Clock

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas ten o'clock one moonlit night" when the singer's love comes tapping at the window. Her parents are awake; she dares not answer. Finally the parents fall asleep; she goes with her beau and they marry at ten o'clock the next morning

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1845 (Bodleian broadside Harding B 11(2500))

KEYWORDS: love mother father elopement night visit

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Forget-Me-Not-Songster, p. 128, "Ten O'Clock" (1 text)

Roud #2674

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Johnson Ballads fol. 16, "Remember, love, Remember," J. Catnach (London), c. 1825; also Harding B 11(1538), J. Catnach; also Johnson Ballads fol. 19, "Remember, love, remember," J. Catnach (1825); also Harding B 11(3762), "Ten o'clock or Remember, love, remember," J. Cadman (Manchester), 1850-1855; also Firth b.28(41a), "Remember, Love, Remember," W. King (Oxford), c. 1835; also Harding B 11(3761), "Ten o'clock, or, Remember, love, remember," W. F. Fortey (London), 1858-1885; also Johnson Ballads 607, "Ten o'clock love remember," E. M. A. Hodges (London), 1846-1858; also Harding B 11(3417), "Ten o'clock love remember," E. M. A. Hodges; also Harding B 11(1060), "Remember, love, remember," A. Swindells (Manchester), 1796-1853; also Harding B 11(2500), "Past ten o'clock, remember, love, remember," J. Pitts (London), 1819-1844; also Firth b.27(67)=Harding B 11(3929)=Johnson Ballads 2939=Johnson Ballads 3376, "Remember love, remember," unknown, n.d.; also 2806 c.17(416), "Ten o'clock or Remember love remember," W. Wright (Birmingham), 1820-1855; also Firth b.27(145), "Remember ten o'clock my dear," unknown, n.d.; also 2806 c.13(156), "Remember ten o'clock, my dear," J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866; also Harding B 11(3252), "Remember ten o'clock my dear," unknown, n.d.

File: FMNS128

Pastoral Elegy

DESCRIPTION: "What sorrowful sounds do I hear Move slowly along in the gale?... Sweet Coroden's notes are all o'er, How lonely he sleeps in the clay." Caroline describes the flowers by his grave and plans to haunt the woods "Since Coroden hears me no more"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1835 (Missouri Harmony, according to Pound)

KEYWORDS: death burial rambling

FOUND IN: US(NE,MW)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Pound-AmericanBalladsAndSongs, 95, pp. 203-204, "Pastoral Elegy" (1 text)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 149-151, "Corydon and Caroline" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #4662

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Corydon and Phoebe" (theme)

NOTES [127 words]: This is clearly a folk remnant of the many Corydon-and-Phyllis/Phyllida/Chloris pastoral romances so common in the broadsides. I have not been able to find a broadside source, but this is nearly the only traditional survival of one of these pieces. (I thought the only one until Paul Stamler pointed out "Corydon and Phoebe.") For which we should all be heartily thankful.
The song does appear, under the "Pastoral Elegy" title, in the 1835 edition of the "Missouri Harmony," and this, or some equivalent version, is probably ancestral to the text Pound collected. The Flanders version also appears to have its origin in print, in the 1840 Social Lyricist. There are of course many other songs and poems called "Pastoral Elegy." Few if any are traditional- RBW

Last updated in version 3.5
File: LPnd203

Pastores, Los

DESCRIPTION: Spanish. "Ys se van los pastores a la Estremadura (x2), Ya se queda la Sierra triste y oscura (x2)." "Ye se van mardhando. Yas las pobres zagales se quedan llorando." The shepherds leave Estremadura, leaving the Sierras sad. The girls weep

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Cray-AshGrove)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage separation travel
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cray-AshGrove, p. 23, "Los Pastores" (1 short text, 1 tune)
File: CrAGr23A

Pastures of Plenty

DESCRIPTION: "It's a mighty hard road that my poor hands has hoed." The singer describes the hard work in the fields and the life of the (migrant) field worker. The singer promises to fight if need be, "Cause my Pastures of Plenty must always be free."

AUTHOR: Woody Guthrie
EARLIEST DATE: 1953
KEYWORDS: work farming travel migrant freedom nonballad derivative
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, pp. 293-294, "Pastures of Plenty" (1 text)
DT, PASTPLEN
Roud #16377
RECORDINGS:
Woody Guthrie, "Pastures of Plenty" (on AmHist2)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Pretty Polly (II)" (tune)
File: Grnw293

Pasty-Seller's Song, The

DESCRIPTION: Street cry. "Hot pasty, pasty, Hot potato mutton pasty, Hot pasty."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall)
KEYWORDS: food nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 44, "(The Pasty-Seller's Song)" (1 short text, 1 tune, filed with a group of songs under the general heading "Crowdy Crawn")
Roud #24349
File: Gund044E
Pat and the Gauger

DESCRIPTION: Paddy lands with a 6-gallon whisky keg. A gauger asks to see his permit. Says Pat, "It's unconvenient to show it." The gauger takes the "smuggled" keg and sweats lugging it toward Customs House. At his own house Pat shows the permit and takes the keg

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: drink humorous trick work

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Greig/Duncan8 1747, "Paddy and the Gauger" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
- Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 78, "Pat and the Gauger" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST CrSNB078 (Partial)

Roud #2765

NOTES [36 words]: I repeat Bob Waltz's comment from "The Gauger": It appears, in this case, that "gauger" is used in its sense of "revenue officer," though the secondary sense of one who is very aware of his own interests also fits. - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: CrSNB078

Pat Brady

DESCRIPTION: Pat Brady's father is taken prisoner and hanged without any crime. Pat vows revenge. He takes part in the rebellion at Gorey, Wicklow, New Ross, and Vinegar Hill, is taken in Rathangan, and condemned to hang for high treason.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1886 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 b.10(15))

KEYWORDS: rebellion battle death execution Ireland lament patriotic

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- 1798 - the Irish Rebellion
- June 4 - Wexford rebels capture Gorey (which loyalists had abandoned a week earlier)
- June 5, 1798 - The Wexford rebels attack the small garrison (about 1400 men, many militia) at New Ross, but are repelled
- June 9, 1798 - Battle of Arklow. Father John Murphy tries to fight his way into Wicklow, but fails and suffers heavy casualties
- June 21, 1798 - The rebel stronghold a Vinegar Hill is taken, and the Wexford rebellion effectively ended

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 53A, "The Lamentations of Patrick Brady" or "The Heroes of Ninety-Eight" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 67, "The Lamentation of Patrick Brady" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3071

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, 2806 b.10(15), "Pat Brady" ("Ye true born heroes, I hope you will lend an ear"), W.S. Fortey (London), 1858-1885; also 2806 b.10(13), "Pat Brady"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Banishment of Patrick Brady" (theme)
- cf. "Boulavogue" (historical setting)
- cf. "Father Murphy (I)" (subject of Father Murphy) and references there

File: OLoc053A

Pat Malloy [Laws Q24]

DESCRIPTION: Pat, the singer, reports that his mother (burdened with thirteen children) at last had to send him out to fend for himself. He visits England and America, sending his earnings home. Finally he prepares to return to Ireland and his sweetheart Molly

Pat Malony's Family

DESCRIPTION: Mike Malony marries Molly Higgins. "She'd as many relations as fishes in the sea, They ate me out of house and home." The family, including the "seventeen hundred babies... grandmothers and mothers-in-law" are numbered and named.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)

KEYWORDS: marriage humorous food clothes ordeal family moniker

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland p. 128, "Pat Malony's Family" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Poor Hard-Working Man" (theme)

File: OCon128

Pat Murphy of the Irish Brigade

DESCRIPTION: "Said Pat to his mother, "It looks strange to see, Brothers fighting in such a queer manner." But Pat joins the Union army. He goes to battle still singing, but is shot and dies "far from the land of shillelagh."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1865 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 31(118))

KEYWORDS: Civilwar death battle foreigner

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 219-221, "Pat Murphy of the Irish Brigade" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber-SoldierSongsAndHomeFrontBalladsOfCivilWar, p. 22-23, "Pat Murphy of the Irish Brigade" (1 text, 1 tune)
Pat O'Brien [Laws P39]

DESCRIPTION: Pat asks Nancy to meet him. Having decided not to marry her, he stabs her. Her ghost tells her mother of the crime. Her body is found and Pat arrested. The ghost keeps appearing to him, finally inducing him to confess. He is hanged.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Greig/Duncan2)

KEYWORDS: homicide ghost execution gallows-confession

FOUND IN: US(NE) Ireland Britain(Scotland(Aber)) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Laws P39, "Pat O'Brien"
Greig/Duncan2 203, "Pat O'Brien" (1 text)
Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan 10, "Pat O'Brien" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 131-135, "Pat O'Brien" (1 text, 1 tune)
Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports, pp. 300-302, "Pats O'Brien" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 516, PATOBRI

Roud #1919

RECORDINGS:
John Kehoe, "Pat O'Brien" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Mrs. K. McCarthy, "Pat O'Brien" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Charlie Williams, "Patrick Power (Parker)" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Cruel Ship's Carpenter (The Gosport Tragedy; Pretty Polly) [Laws P36A/B]" (theme)
NOTES: "The Cruel Ship's Carpenter" is just the first similar ballad that came to mind. As Munnelly notes, "it is a classic of the type of murder ballads which eminated from the popular broadsheet presses of the 19th century." Munnelly also remarks on the "popularity of this song in oral tradition." I don't have a broadside example yet. The Charlie Williams MUNFLA/Leach recording at first names the ship's carpenter "Patrick Power (Parker?)" but later names the murderer "Pat O'Brien." - BS

Last updated in version 4.2

File: LP39

Pat O'Donnell

DESCRIPTION: Pat O'Donnell, "a deathly foe to traitors," sails from Ireland for Capetown on the Melrose. The informer James Kerry is also on board. Pat kills Kerry in a gunfight and is convicted of murder, though he claims self defence.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1883 (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

KEYWORDS: emigration homicide trial Ireland patriotic

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

- May 6, 1882 - Chief Secretary Lord Frederick Cavendish and the Under Secretary Thomas Henry Burke are murdered by a group calling themselves "The Invincible Society."
- January 1883 - twenty seven men are arrested.
- James Carey, one of the leaders in the murders, turns Queen's evidence.
- Six men are condemned to death, four are executed (Joseph Brady is hanged May 14, 1883; Daniel Curley is hanged on May 18, 1883), others are "sentenced to penal servitude," and Carey is freed and goes to South Africa.
- July 29, 1883 - Patrick O'Donnell kills Carey on board the _Melrose Castle_ sailing from Cape Town to Durban.

Dec 1883 - Patrick O'Donnell is convicted of the murder of James Carey and executed in London (per Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast)

(Source for The Phoenix Park murders: primarily Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion, pp. 62, 63, 281-286)

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar,Newf,Ont) Ireland

REFERENCES (7 citations):

- Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 42, "Pat O'Donnell" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi 86, "Patrick O'Donnell" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Vikár/Panagapka-SongsNorthWoodsSungByOJAbbott 33, "Pat O'Donnell" (1 text, 1 tune)
- OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 44A, "Pat O Donnell" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 86, "Patrick O'Donnell" (1 text)
- Morton/Maguire-ComedayGoDayGodSendSunday 54, pp. 150-151,176, "Pat O'Donnell" (1 text, 1 tune)
- O'Croinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 117, "Pat O'Donnell" (1 text)

ST Llab042 (Partial)

Roud #2794

RECORDINGS:

Marie Hare, "Patrick O'Donnell" (on MRMHare01)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Phoenix Park Tragedy" (subject: the Phoenix Park murders) and references there

NOTES [50 words]: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion p. 62: "The Phoenix Park murders and their judicial sequels struck the popular imagination and were a gold-mine for ballad-writers: some thirty songs were issued on this subject, which was the last great cause to be so extensively commented upon in broadside ballads." - BS

Last updated in version 5.1

File: LLab042

Pat O'Hara

DESCRIPTION: "I am an Irish boy, and my heart is full of joy... I'm the rattling, rowling, teasing Pat O'Hara." The girls are always chasing Pat. He loves Ireland "tho' the times have changed this while in dear ould Erin's isle, And many have had to wander"

AUTHOR: unknown
Pat O'Reilly

DESCRIPTION: Pat O'Reilly intends to go to America, make a fortune, and return to Tyrone. Pat promises to marry Ann McCormick when he returns. She has him arrested and lies at the trial. He is condemned to "die on the gallows tree"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)

KEYWORDS: courting accusation lie death lover trial execution emigration

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf) Ireland US(MW)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Peacock, pp. 159-160, "Pat O'Reilly" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland p. 35, "Patrick Reilly" (1 text)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 7-8, "Patrick Riley" (1 text)

Roud #5494

RECORDINGS:
John Bulger, "Pat O'Reilly" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Emma Doyle, "Patrick Reilly" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
James John, "Pat O'Reilly" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

File: Pea159

Pat of Mullingar

DESCRIPTION: "They may talk of Flying Childers" and other fast horses but none compares to the filly that drags Pat Mullingar's jaunting car. She won cups but "lost an eye at Limerick and an ear at Waterloo... She's gentle as the dove sirs, her speed you can't deny"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1862 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 15(234b))

KEYWORDS: racing horse

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
June 18, 1815 - Battle of Waterloo

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 10, "Pat of Mullingar" (1 text)
O'Lohlainn-IrishStreetBallads 90, "Pat of Mullingar" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3067

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 15(234b), "Pat of Mullingar", J.O. Bebbington (Manchester), 1858-1861; also 2806 c.15(130), Harding B 11(2967), 2806 b.11(121), "Pat of Mullingar"; Harding B 26(503), Harding B 19(91), "Pat of Mullinger"

NOTES [26 words]: Flying Childers, born in 1714, "is considered the first truly great racehorse in the history of the Thoroughbred." (source: Thoroughbred Heritage site) - BS

File: 0Con010

Pat-a-Cake

DESCRIPTION: "Pat-a-cake, pat-a-cake, baker's man! So I will, master, as fast as I can: Pat it, and prick it, and mark it with T [or B], Put in the oven for Tommy [baby] and me"
Pat's Wedding

DESCRIPTION: "O come in, man, and let's hear your cracks; I heard ye was o'er at the wedding O aye, man, indeed I was that, And I lent them a hand at the bedding." The singer describes Pat, "a comical body"; Rob, "the greedy hash"; etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan)
KEYWORDS: wedding food nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 166, "Pat's Wedding" (1 expurgated text)
ST GC166 (Partial)
Roud #3705

NOTES [47 words]: This may well be a fragment of some sort of song such as "The Blythesome Bridal," about an uproarious wedding. But it appears a bit fragmentary, and the omission of a verse at the end doesn't help. I file it separately until something clearly related shows up, and so does Roud. - RBW

File: GC166

Patches on My Pants, The

DESCRIPTION: "Of all the years since I began To mix in politics, The one that tries my inner man Is Eighteen Ninety Six... And count them all from hip to heel, The patches on my pants." He first put them on in 1888, when he voted for Harrison; now he regrets it

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Nevada Folklore pamphlet; probably written in the 1890s)
KEYWORDS: political nonballad clothes hardtimes
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1888 - Benjamin Harrison elected President by the Electoral College even though Grover Cleveland won the popular vote
1892 - Cleveland wins the rematch with Harrison
1896 - William McKinley elected President for the first time, defeating William Jennings Bryan

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, pp. 76-77, "The Patches on My Pants" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Nebraska Folklore, Pamphlet Eighteen, "Farmers' Alliance Songs of the 1890's," Paterson Fire, The

DESCRIPTION: "The fatal cry of fire it was carried through the air, And crowds of people they came rushing round. All Paterson is burning...." People "madly" try to save themselves. The fire causes great damage and disturbance

AUTHOR: Larry Lavake

EARLIEST DATE: 2008 (Cohen); original publication c. 1902

KEYWORDS: fire disaster

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Feb 9, 1902 - The Paterson, New Jersey fire. Although damage is heavy, only two lives are lost.

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 129, "The Paterson Fire" (1 text)

Path of a Walking Man

DESCRIPTION: "So farewell to you Geraldine I am already down the track... Down the path of a walking man Treads a song for a working plan, If it ends in the way it began, It's the path of a walking man." The singer lists the places he will go before returning home

AUTHOR: At least partly Joe Fleming

EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry)

KEYWORDS: travel nonballad

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 72, "Path of a Walking Man" (1 text, 1 tune)

Patie's Wadding (Petie's Wedding)

DESCRIPTION: Petie comes to Meg to ask if she will marry. She consents but directs him to her father. Petie asks her father, pointing out that he has relatively little. The father consents to the wedding, and to pay for the feast

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Ford)

KEYWORDS: wedding father food

FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 616, "Patie's Wedding" (4 texts, 4 tunes)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H200, pp. 470-471, "Petie Cam' ower the Glen" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #5514

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Patie Cam' Doon the Glen

NOTES [21 words]: One has to wonder what is going on beneath the surface here -- the father seems awfully eager to get rid of his daughter.... - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4

File: HHH200
Patie's Wedding (II)

DESCRIPTION: The singer tells of attending Patie's wedding. There was lots of food but the singer sat next to a glutton. They had to give the fiddler a toddy so he could play. Everyone danced until "they'd a' got their fill," then "repaired to the beddin'"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: wedding dancing drink fiddle food music nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
  - Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #151, p. 2, "Patie's Weddin'" (1 text)
  - Greig/Duncan3 607, "The Wedding" (3 texts, 2 tunes)

Roud #2620

NOTES [43 words]: Greig/Duncan3 and Greig suggest that Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 24-26, "The Skipper's Wedding" may be this song. I see no relationship between these songs (no shared lines, for example) except the subject: a wedding with lots of food. - BS

Last updated in version 2.4

File: GrD3607

---

Patient Grissell

DESCRIPTION: "A noble marquess, As he did ride a hunting," meets Grissell. The story follows that in Chaucer and the Italien ancestors: He marries her or gets her pregnant, abuses her, casts her aside, and finally reunites with her when she stays faithful

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1877 (Bell); broadside believed to be from before 1590

KEYWORDS: love courting abuse rejection reunion

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (3 citations):
  - Hales/Furnival-BishopPercysFolioManuscript, volume III, pp. 421-430, "Patient Grissell" (1 text)
  - Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 73-81, "Patient Grissell" (1 text)

ST BeCo073 (Partial)

NOTES [237 words]: Even though this is found in the Percy Folio, there is no evidence whatsoever that this is traditional, although the tale of Griselda certainly is. Marquis Walter and Griselda are the subject of the "Clerk's Tale" in the Canterbury Tales.

Hyder E. Rollins, An Analytical Index to the Ballad-Entries (1557-1709) In the Register of the Company of Stationers of London, 1924 (I use the 1967 Tradition Press reprint with a new Foreword by Leslie Shepard), p. 215, #2486, is "The sonnge of pacyte Gressell vnto hyr make," registered by Owen Rogers in 1655/1656. I don't know that that is this song, but it seems likely, particularly since it is very nearly contemporary with the Percy Folio.

Although the story has had its admirers (I was astounded to learn that there are more manuscript copies of The Clerk's Tale than any of the other Canterbury Tales), most moderns regard it as monstrous. For a discussion of this, see James Sledd, "The Clerk's Tale: The Monsters and The Critics." This was originally published in Modern Philology LI (1953), and is now available in Edward Wagenknecht, Editor, Chaucer: Modern Essays in Criticism, Galaxy, 1959 (I use the sixth printing of 1963), pp. 226-239. The two preceding essays in Wagenknecht, George Lyman Kittredge's "Chaucer's Discussion of Marriage" and Henry Barrett Hinkley's "The Debate on Marriage in The Canterbury Tales," are also worth seeing in this context. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3

File: BeCo073

---

Patient Jo

DESCRIPTION: Collier Patient Jo is mocked for his acceptance of any misfortune. Jo's life is saved and his taunter's life is lost when a dog steals Jo's lunch.

AUTHOR: unknown
Patient Jo is "a collier of honest renown ... Whatever betied (sic.) him he thought it was right And providence still he kept ever in sight". One day at the pit "Tim Jenkins as usual was turning to jest Jo’s notion that all things which happened were [for the] best". When a dog steals Jo’s lunch, Jo follows the dog to retrieve his lunch while Tim laughs and swears from the pit. The pit falls in and Tim is killed, while Jo escapes harm by following the dog. Jo comments on Tim’s death: "How could it appear to a short sighted sinner That my life would be saved by the loss of my dinner"?

The title is presumably a reduced version of "Patient Job" -- Job was famous for his endurance in misfortune, although in fact he complained a lot. - RBW

Patrick O'Neal

Patrick goes to visit a cousin, and -- being mistaken for a sailor in disguise -- is taken by a press gang. Aboard ship, he proves utterly inept and meets many surprises. His ship defeats a Frenchman in battle. With peace, Patrick gets to go home.

Patrick Power

Patrick Power robs his father for a girl he is courting. She advises him to kill his father, which he does. Patrick is arrested, tried, convicted, and condemned. He repents, says farewell to his mother and warns against "Satan's cursed art."

Both young and old... beware of Satan's cursed art."
Patrick Sheehan [Laws J11]

DESCRIPTION: Patrick and his family are forced from their home by the landlord. His mother dies in the poorhouse. Patrick has little choice but to join the British army. He is blinded at Sevastopol, and ends as a wandering beggar.

AUTHOR: Charles Joseph Kickham ("Darby Ryan, Junior") (1828-1882)

EARLIEST DATE: 1857 ("First printed in The Kilkenny Journal, 7th October, 1857," according to Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

KEYWORDS: war death family father begging injury

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1853-1856 - Crimean War (Britain and France actively at war with Russia 1854-1855)

FOUND IN: US(MW,NE) Australia Ireland Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (12 citations):
Laws J11, "Patrick Sheehan"
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, pp. 64-65, "Patrick Sheehan" (1 text, 1 tune)
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 88-89, "Paddy Sheehan" (1 text, 1 tune)
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 63, "Patrick Sheehan" (1 text, 1 tune)
Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan 39, "Patrick Sheehan" (2 texts, 1 tune)
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladsOfIreland, p. 72, "Patrick Sheehan" (1 text)
Healy-Mercier-BookOfOldIrishStreetBalladsVol2, pp. 115-117, "Patrick Sheehan" (1 text)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 3-4, "Patrick Sheehan" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 208, "The Glen of Aherlow" (1 text)
cf. Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan, p. 481, "Patrick Sheehan" (source notes only)
DT 750, PATSHEEN*

Roud #983

RECORDINGS:
Vincie Boyle, "Patrick Sheehan" (on IRClare01)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 b.11(48), "Patrick Shean" or "The Glen of Aherloe," H. Such (London), 1863-1885; also 2806 b.10(204), Firth c.14(124), "Patrick Shean" or "The Glen of Aherloe"; 2806 c.8(300), "Patrick Sheehan" or "The Glen of Aherlow"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Lovely Jamie" (plot)

NOTES [492 words]: The author attribution to Charles Kickham is from the Bodleian broadsides cited.

Yates, Musical Traditions site Voice of the People suite "Notes - Volume 8" - 1.3.03, re "The Glen of Aherlow" instrumental: "Text written by Charles Joseph Kickham (1828 - 1882), who based it on a true story of one Patrick Sheehan who was blinded at Sebastopol. Sheehan was later jailed for begging in Grafton Street, Dublin, his British army pension having expired after six months. Kickham's poem was first published in 1857."

Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion: "On 28th September, 1857, The Freeman's Journal published the following information: 'A young man named Patrick Sheehan was brought up in custody of Police-constable Lynam, charged with causing an obstruction to the thoroughfare in Grafton-street. The constable stated that the prisoner was loitering in Grafton-street for the purpose of begging, having a placard on his breast setting forth that he had served in the Crimea in the 55th regiment; that he had lost his sight in the trenches before Sebastopol, and that he was discharged on a pension of six pence per day for nine months; and that this period being now expired, he was now obliged to have recourse to begging to support himself. A Crimean medal was found on his person... The prisoner was committed for seven days for begging."

Notes to IRClare01: "The ballad was soon to be heard in the streets all over Ireland, and was thought to have shamed the government into enquiring about the ex-soldier, to whom a life pension of a shilling a day was granted." - BS

Kickham's most important work is generally considered to be the novel Knocknagow. His dates seem to have caused some uncertainty; Laws quotes Barry to the effect that he was born in 1826; earlier editions of the Index quoted a birthdate of 1825, on what basis I no longer recall. But the majority of my references give his birth date as 1828. Kickham had seemed destined for a career as a doctor when a shooting accident left him half-blind, almost deaf, and badly disfigured. He nonetheless became a successful author and poet -- and a vigorous nationalist, strongly attacking the Catholic church for its passivity in the quest for Irish independence.

By 1848, he was involved in nationalist causes. In 1861, he joined the Fenian Brotherhood, which evolved into the Irish Republican Brotherhood. Around 1873, he became president of the IRB's Supreme Council, holding the post until his death and rebuilding it after the debacle of the Fenian Rebellion.

It will be evident that his personal experiences contributed at least somewhat to the content of this song, though Kickham's family was sufficiently well-off that there was never any threat of him being forced from his home.

Healy-MercierBookOfOldIrishStreetBalladsVol2, pp. 159-160, prints a piece, "The Immortal Kickham Is No More." There is no evidence that it's traditional, but it shows his historical importance. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: LJ11

Patrick's Day

DESCRIPTION: Singer cries because Jimmy left her and crossed the ocean on Saint Patrick's day. They had met on Saint Patrick's day. Her friends warned her to "banish him out of my mind" but she ignored the warning. She'll never forget his vows and promises.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)

KEYWORDS: grief warning courting love emigration separation lover

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

Roud #18236

RECORDINGS:

Will O'Brien, "Patrick's Day" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

File: RcPatsDa

Patrick's Day Parade

DESCRIPTION: "Saint Patrick was a gentleman, his name we celebrate. And on the 17th of March the Irish congregate." They'll "face the divil, friend or foe In the Patrick's Day parade." They cheer both America and their Irish heritage, and all who are in the parade.

AUTHOR: Words: Edward Harrigan / Music: David Braham

EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (The Day We Celebrate; also sheet music by William A. Pond & Co.; see NOTES)

KEYWORDS: Ireland patriotic nonballad

FOUND IN: REFERENCES (2 citations):

Finson-Edward-Harrigan-David-Braham, vol. I, #2, pp. 7-10, "Patrick's Day Parade" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: John Franceschina, _David Braham: The American Offenbach_, Routledge, 2003, pp. 81-82, "(The Patrick's Day Parade)" (before-and-after texts of the chorus, which was revised over the years)
RECORDINGS:
Mick Moloney, "Patrick's Day Parade" (on HarriganBrahamMaloney)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Saint Patrick Was a Gentleman" (opening line)
NOTES [279 words]: For background on Harrigan and Braham, see the notes to "The Babies on Our Block."
The opening line "Saint Patrick was a gentleman" was in use by the 1830s, so Edward Harrigan clearly borrowed it. But it's not entirely clear whether he borrowed more of this song.
Williams, p. 111, says that the play "The Day We Celebrate" premiered in 1875; Moloney says 1874; it appears both are correct. "The song 'Patrick's Day Parade,' with music by Braham, was, in fact, a rewrite of Bob Hall's music for the same lyrics, arranged by M. De Donato, for 'The Day We Celebrate,' an earlier version of the sketch, and published in 1874..... But the differences in melodic contour and harmonic complexity are significant, particularly in the chorus, where Braham managed to convince Harrigan to rewrite the text to allow for a more varied and interesting melody" (Franceschina, p. 81).
The plot of "The Day We Celebrate," which was later renamed "Patrick's Day Parade," sounds as if it was lifted from "The Boatsman and the Chest" [Laws Q8] or one of the other adulterer-has-to-hide songs that have been traced back as far as Boccaccio's Decameron. Irish servant-woman Johanna McCann, thinking her boyfriend Fitzgerald Conroy will be marching in the St. Patrick's Day Parade, invites Hogarth Higgins to visit. But Conroy arrives in turn, forcing Higgins to hide in a closet. Conroy finds his hat, eventually finds Higgins, and beats him (Franceschina, p. 81). According to Blow, p. 296, Theodore Roosevelt knew this song, or at least the lines "Shout hurrah for Erin go Bragh And all the Yankee nation," and sang them as he and the Rough Riders approached the coast of Cuba in 1898. - RBW

Bibliography

• Franceschina: John Franceschina, David Braham: The American Offenbach, Routledge, 2003
• Williams: William H. A. Williams, 'Twas Only an Irishman's Dream, University of Illinois Press, 1996

Patriot Game, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you young rebels and list' while I sing, For the love of one's land is a terrible thing." 16-year-old O'Hanlon wanted to fight England and "free" Ulster. Now he lies with his body "all holes." He wishes he had accomplished more

AUTHOR: Dominic Behan

EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (copyright)

KEYWORDS: Ireland IRA political death war

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Behan-IrelandSings, #68, "The Patriot Game" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, PATGAME1*

Roud #18464

SAME TUNE:
With God On Our Side (by Bob Dylan, and available in many pop songbooks)

NOTES [47 words]: Behan reports that this was inspired by the death of one Feargal O'Hanlon in 1957. It has been preserved mostly by pop folk singers (who seem to have adapted the message with regularity), but there are a handful of semi-traditional collections, so perhaps it belongs in the Index. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: Beha068
Patriot Mother, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come tell us the name of the rebelly crew Who lifted the pike on the Curragh with you." The captured rebel's mother tells the young man that she would rather see him dead than turn traitor. He holds fast and is hanged

AUTHOR: Mary Eva Kelly (1826-1910) (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (Sparling)

KEYWORDS: prisoner mother children Ireland patriotic execution

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Galvin-IrishSongsOfResistance, pp. 85-86, "The Patriot Mother" (1 text, 1 tune)
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 54, "The Patriot Mother" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 217, "The Patriot Mother" (1 text)

NOTES [23 words]: Sparling, re Eva Mary Kelly (p. 502): "One of the poetesses of the Nation." Sparling does not credit her with "The Patriot Mother." - BS

Last updated in version 6.1

File: PGa085

Patriot Queen, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer meets a beautiful woman who identifies herself as Ireland. "The bigoted tyrant I'll humble" "I have noble fine brave men ... Preparing to fight for my name; I have noble O'Connell my leader, And millions of heroes at home"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: first half 19C (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

KEYWORDS: beauty Ireland nonballad patriotic

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 26, "The Patriot Queen" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Pretty Maid Milking Her Cow"("Cailin deas cruidhte na mbo") (tune, per Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

File: Zimm026

Patsy Fagan

DESCRIPTION: "I left my home in Ireland, 'twas many years ago... where the pigs and praties grow." "Hello, Patsy Fagan, you'll hear the girls all cry... You're a decent lad from Ireland." He hopes someone will marry him and accept him as a "decent boy"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Scott-ACollectorsNotebook-31TraditionalSongs)

KEYWORDS: emigration courting farming

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scott-ACollectorsNotebook-31TraditionalSongs, p. 17, "The Patsy Fagan" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #22590

File: ScCo1017

Pattonia, the Pride of the Plains [Laws B12]

DESCRIPTION: Rangers at a frontier post are hard-pressed by Indians. The commander sends the singer to get help. His swift horse Pattonia carries him through to safety, even though an arrow has pinned his foot to the stirrup

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931

KEYWORDS: horse injury Indians(Am.)
Patty the Piper

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets Pat Murphy the piper: "the sweet music he blew 'Twould have melted the heart of a stone." The singer followed Murphy for five years. Drunk, the piper "fell from a bridge ... dead as a nail in a door" The singer now plays Murphy's pipes.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Greig/Duncan6)

KEYWORDS: drowning death drink music travel

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Greig/Duncan6 1260, "Patty the Piper" (1 text)

Roud #6792

File: GrD61260

Paul and His Chickens

DESCRIPTION: "Paul let his chickens run down from the hillside"; he realizes from their actions that Reyard (the fox) is out. The fox has taken a chicken before Paul chases it off. Ashamed, he grinds some corn to earn enough that he can go home to his mother

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Rickaby collection, according to Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra)

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage animal chickens death work money mother

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra 64, "Paul and His Chickens" (1 text)

NOTES [47 words]: According to the notes in Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra, this is a translation of the Norwegian folk song "Pal pa Haugen," "Paul on the Hill." Leary says the Norwegian version was "widely sung," but I have no idea if it was truly traditional. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.3

File: RDL064
Paul Bunyan

DESCRIPTION: Recitation. Singer works Paul Bunyan's camp, where everything is done on a grand scale (e.g. the pancakes are turned with a sidehill plow). Bunyan, needing a river to run his logs, has his huge ox plow the Big Manistee. Bunyan retires when the ox dies.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)

KEYWORDS: lumbering humorous recitation talltale logger

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 96, "Paul Bunyan" (1 text)

Roud #8874

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Round River Drive" (subject of Paul Bunyan)

cf. "Paul Bunyan's Big Ox" (subject of Paul Bunyan)

cf. "Paul Bunyan's Manistee" (subject of Paul Bunyan)

cf. "In Old Paul Bunyan's Camps" (subject of Paul Bunyan)

NOTES [3659 words]: Paul Bunyan is sometimes derided as a phony folk-hero, and he's certainly been heavily commercialized, but Beck makes clear that these were genuine folk tales.- PJS

This is a complicated question, and I will admit to having doubts -- including questions about Beck's credibility, because he seems to be the only person who actually collected Bunyan poems, and he has no fewer than five different recitations.

Hoffman, p. 1, begins his book by saying, "Perhaps, once, long ago in the woods, there was a strong and skilled lumberjack who bore the name of Bunyan. Perhaps. We shall never know, for the origina of this hero is lost to us now that the woodsmen of the nineteenth century have all passed on. Nobody ever asked them about Paul Bunyan...."

On pp. 27-28, Hoffman notes the difference in style between Paul Bunyan tales and most logging folklore. Whereas loggers sing songs such as "The Jam on Gerry's Rocks" [Laws C1] about the dangers of breaking a jam, a Bunyan folklore about a jam is a tall tale of thrusting the logs aside.

The first certain reference to Paul Bunyan is unquestionably literary. Risjord, p. 143, reports that "Paul Bunyan was popularized by a Detroit, Michigan, journalist, James McGillivray, who wrote a story for the Detroit News-Tribune on July 24, 1910 about a heroic lumberjack of immense size and strength." Similarly, Wyman, p. 4, says that "The name on Bunyan appears for the first time in 1910 in the Detroit Evening News., in the poem 'Round River Drive' by James McGillivray. [A full text of this, allegedly from oral tradition, occurs on pp. 77-80 of Gard/Sorden.]

It has been claimed that "Round River Drive" is older than this and was first printed in 1906. This alleged text was somewhat shorter than the 1910 version. But Hoffman, p. viii note 1, observes that the paper involved was published by McGillivray's brother -- and that their records were destroyed by fires. So, while this may push the date of the poem a little earlier, the evidence is weak and the writer is still presumably McGillivray.

Hoffman, p. 4, makes the interesting point that Paul is not the primary focus of "Round River Drive." It takes place in his camp, but most of the events involve other loggers.

Four years later Douglas McMallock rewrote the McGillivray story for the American Lumberman." A series of pamphlets and books followed in the 1920s, the most notable being Paul Bunyan by James Stevens (yes, "The Frozen Logger" author James Stevens), and eventually a Minnesota lumber company picked him up as a mascot.

There seems to be no evidence whatsoever that any of these stories were collected from loggers or based on lumbermen's tales, except for what Stevens states in his preface. In his second edition, Stevens, p. ix, states, "The Paul Bunyan legend had its origin in the Papineau rebellion of 1837. This was a revolt of the French-Canadians against their young English queen. [Victoria, who ascended in 1837.] ... Among [the rebels] was a mighty-muscled, bellicose, bearded giant named Paul Bunyan.... [He] raged among the Queen's troops like Sampson among the Philistines." Bunyan, of course, is not a French name, but Havinghurst, p. 236, says that he was originally "Paul Bonhomme of the Two Mountain Country," and claims the stories were first told in the New Brunswick area. He cites no sources.

The Papineau rebellions were real; Louis J. Papineau struggled for decades to improve the political position of the residents of Quebec. Brebner/Masters, p. 220, notes that there had been bad harvests in 1836 and 1837, and the combination of hunger and rejection of their political demands led to uprisings. But Brebner adds that the "half-dozen skirmishes and pitched battles of November and December were pitiable, tragic affairs in which half-armed farmers faced regulars backed by artillery, and, after their defeats, saw their villages and farmsteads looted and burned by uncontrollable, vengeful volunteers."

There is no mention at all of a second Sampson. And Gartenberg, according to Hoffman, p. 97, searched for this Bonhomme character and couldn't find him in the records of the rebellion. Hoffman, p. 96, explicitly labels the Papineau hypothesis "fallacious."

Stevens, interestingly, admits that he got most of his stories from Louis Letourneau and his family, who came from Washington state (Stevens, p. x). There seem to be no evidence of a heroic figure in the records of eastern lumber camps.

I find it interesting to note that Carl Sandburg, in one of his letters (Sandburg/Mitgang, pp. 245-246), seems to be offering Stevens a tale (presumably about Paul Bunyan) which he made up himself -- an implication that Sandburg considered Bunyan mostly fake.

Garrison, p. 163, repeats a different story: "Nobody really knows for sure where Paul Bunyan came from or when. It's possible that French-Canadian fur trappers and traders of the Northwest told the earliest of all Paul Bunyan stories. They tried to resist when their territory was invaded by woodsmen who cut the trees that sheltered the animals. Telling about Paul Bunyan and Babe helped them work off some of their frustration. This theory is buttressed by the fact that Bon Jean, meaning 'brave John,' was often slurried so that it sounded a lot like Boneyaahn. Boneyaahn gradually became Bonikon and then Bunyon and eventually Bunyan, some scholars think."

(Though no one seems ever to have seen the intervening forms.)

Gard/Sorden, pp. 70-71, seem to think Paul came from Wisconsin: "Professor Raney of Appleton says that the lumber camps of Wisconsin helped create an entire cycle of native American folklore. Paul Bunyan, the hero, was a mythical lumber operator who, according to Gene Shephard[,] had his camp about forty miles west of Rhinelander, Wisconsin.... After his work in Wisconsin was done, Paul Bunyan logged in the Dakotas (witness their present treeless condition) and in the Pacific Northwest." They go one to give "Paul Bunyan's Wisconsin Natural History," full of creates like "axehandle hounds," "hodags" (one of the few to be heard of outside the Bunyan stories, in my experience), giant "moskittos," and "hoop snakes," whose venom was so strong that it even made axe handles swell up.

A slight hint of support for this may come from the Wisconsin song (recitation?) called "Old-Time Lumberjacks." This item, collected "in the 1930's," does not mention the name Bunyan, but does have a line that the boasts of those old lumberjacks would "put ol' Paul to shame."

Wyman -- also of Wisconsin -- mentions that some of the people he talked to knew of a "big man" named "Joe Mouffreau." Stevens, p. xi, says that the name (which he spells Muphraw) is a variant of Murphy, and claims that he worked in Quebec some time after 1875.

Interestingly, Hoffman, p. 52, has a story in which Paul has an employee called "Sour-faced Murphy," which raises the faint possibility that he might have been an earlier incarnation of Paul. Laughed went so far as to people Paul's band with "two Joe Mufraws, one named Pete" (Hoffman, p. 80).

Stevens admits that two legends may have combined, but claims that Paul Bunyan stories were in circulation by 1860. On p. xvii, he states that "I must have known some [of the Bunyan stories] before 1910, but it was not until then that I heard a gifted and experienced bunkhouse bard give a genuine Paul Bunyan service."

One wonders who this bard might have been. I find it highly interesting that Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy has no songs about Paul Bunyan. Neither does Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman. Nor Fowke. Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin has only the one very oblique reference. Nute, p. 45, declares that the voyageurs "loved to pull the long bow [i.e. tell tall tales], especially about their own exploits, and though Paul Bunyan seems to be a very modern mythological hero of uncertain parentage, his prototype was every voyageur's conception of himself."

Hoffman also thinks the stories have older roots, although he would see the model more in the Yankee Trickster sort of tale (Hoffman, p. 48). He observes, p. 50, that (unlike, say, the Robin Hood corpus which features other genuine characters such as Little John), the Paul Bunyan tales have no other actors than Paul himself. This goes back at least to Laughed, who said that none of his informants had names for any of the actors but Paul.

Interestingly, Hoffman, p. 11, quotes a story which a logger claimed was from Joe Muffreau -- who, in this account was "camp cook to the master logger" and, seemingly, the last Paul Bunyan survivor. Hoffman, p. 45, also mentions a tale told of a logging thief, "Joe Munion." Could "Joe Muffreau" and "Paul Bunyan" be various distortions of "Joe Munion," or Munion a combination of the other two?

Hoffman, p. 54, also described one informant -- Perry Allen -- as a source of high-quality tales, often of Bunyan. But he notes on p. 55 that Alan Lomax had to work very hard to extract the tales from Allen. It appears, in any case, that much of Allen's material was derived from printed sources.
such as Laughead. Thus, as Paul Stamler said above, Paul Bunyan did become a folk hero -- but Allen's tales are not evidence that he originated as "folk."

Stevens, in the revised introduction to his second edition (p. xvi), acknowledges that the Paul Bunyan stories have come under attack, listing Stuart Sherman and Ben Botkin as those doubting their veracity. But he denies that the attacks have been successful. Stevens eventually admitted that most of his work was based on literary prototypes, not folklore (Hoffman, p. 99), but that's not quite an admission of fakery.

Agnes M. Larson, in surveying lumbermen for a history of white pine logging published in the 1940s, found that none of them knew about Paul (Lass, p. 183). Similarly, Wyman apparently had students look for traces of Paul Bunyan among loggers, and found some who thought they had heard of him in lumber camps, but many more claimed never to have heard of him there.

Blegen's massive tome, written by Minnesota's best historian who was also something of a folklorist, says on page 335, "Paul Bunyan has been presented as a myth, a folk tale, drawn from oral tradition in the lumber camps.... The stories have had wide circulation.... But there is scarcely a shred of evidence that the lumberjacks were familiar with Paul Bunyan, told stories about him, or indeed had ever heard of him.... The present author interviewed a lumberjack of rich experience in the 1920s, Wright T. Orcutt, who had written about lumberjacks and woods lore, and he had never heard a Bunyan story in the woods. And the Forest History Society in its far-ranging investigations of the sources for woods history has unearthed no evidence that Paul Bunyan was the subject of bunkhouse tales."

Gilman, p. 219, finds it hard to disentangle folklore from publicity. On the one hand, she says, "Yankee lumberjacks had their own her.... [H]e belonged to more than Minnesota. In forests from Maine to the Pacific Coast they told stories of Paul Bunyan. Many were about how he solved problems." Even though she claims a folklore origin, the story she retells is straight out of the popularized accounts. Yet she also says "Paul Bunyan was different. In 1914 the Red River Lumber Company of Minneapolis printed a pamphlet with stories about him. Paul's fame spread. Writers everywhere claimed him. They made up new stories and changed him from a clever Yankee lumberjack to a frontier giant."

Jamie Moreira reports that Sandy Ives found no Paul Bunyan tales at all among his New England informants. He also reports on a student collector who had the same experience.

Richard M. Dorson had a very critical appraisal of the legends in his book American Folklore; he includes Paul Bunyan as one of his key examples of "fakelore." Duncan Emrich, Folklore on the American Land, p. ix, says explicitly that the stories of Paul Bunyan "are not folktales." Hoffman, while more sympathetic to Bunyan tales, notes (p. 35) that very many of them are not logging tales but are "typical of an American comic genre: the enlargement of natural objects, especially plaguey critters. This is often pushed to the grotesque. While the genre contributes some good Bunyan stories, it also exists quite independently of them...."

A pretty massive collection of authorities; I would be loathe to argue with them.

On the other hand, Bunyan's place in Minnesota's urban folklore seems clear -- you can hear screams all the way to Saint Paul any time anyone messes with a Paul Bunyan monument. The first one seems to have been put up in 1937 (Lass, p. 182). Minnesota in 1965 went so far as to publish a booklet about the "Paul Bunyan Trail," four interconnected loops leading to a lot of tourist destinations -- very few of which have anything to do with Paul and relatively few of which even have to do with logging.

Holding, p. 296, says "The legends of Paul Bunyan are widely distributed throughout the lumber camps of the North," and claims to have assembled a batch of materials from 1916 -- though the book seems to use only one source, which looks secondary to me.

Havinghurst declares on p. 237 that "By 1870 [Bunyan] was a full-fledged deity, and in the next fifty years his fame completed its spread across the continent. Paul Bunyan became the logger's god from Maine to Oregon." Once again he supplies no source for this information.

Beck, collecting primarily in Michigan, gathered enough material to make a Paul Bunyan book, and to have some material left over for other collections. (In this context, it's interesting to note that Gardner and Chickering, who gathered much Michigan logging material, do not seem to have found any Paul Bunyan material.)

Norm Cohen cites the following from Leach's Standard Dictionary of Folklore: "As far as can be determined, the legend originated in Canada during the [nineteenth] century, and was considerably amplified as it spread west and south with the lumber industry, centering in the Lake states and the Northwest. In the course of his migration Paul Bunyan incorporated elements of local heroes like Jigger Jones (Johnson), Joe Mufrâw, and Jean Frechette, whom he supplanted." Cohen himself concluded, "He first appeared in print in stories published by James MacGillivray in 1910, but oral tales from lumbermen in Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, and the Northwest circulated considerably earlier.... Paul was first introduced to a general audience by W.B. Laughead, a Minnesota advertising man, in a series of pamphlets (1914-44) used to publicize the products of the Red River Lumber Company.... James Stevens, also a lumber publicist, mixed tradition and invention in his version of the story, Paul Bunyan (1925). Along the way, the Bunyan stories took on the character of lying contests -- who could tell the biggest whopper about the good-natured Paul."

Cohen adds, in a message to the Ballad-L mailing list, "In a letter to Louise Pound (SFQ 7) Laughead states that he began with what he 'remembered from Minnesota logging camps (1900-1908)... then picked up odds and ends from letters received...."

Laughead also produced the first Bunyan illustrations, some of which are shown after the preface of the new edition of Hoffman. Interestingly, these illustrations -- with a mustache that sticks out almost like a cat's whiskers and no beard -- bear little resemblance to the standard Paul Bunyan I seem to recall from my youth. Laughead's book The Marvelous Exploits of Paul Bunyan does admit that the author "embellished" the tales.

Hoffman, p. 5, quotes a newspaper story in which Laughead admitted to mixing advertising copy with stories about Paul. Laughead also confessed to creating Babe the Big Blue Ox (according to Hoffman, p. 75, the ox had been mentioned as early as 1910, but Laughead supplied the name and various particulars). Hoffman, pp. 6-7, demonstrates how Laughead gradually popularized his picture; the first edition, of 1914, is full of lumbering terms and proved not very popular; the later editions reduced the logging vocabulary and started adding the vocabulary of ordinary business. This was enough of a success that the Red River company started to call its produces "Paul Bunyan's Pine" (Hoffman, p. 74), which surely helped promote the tale. Because Laughead had claimed his stories were logger folklore, however, Paul Bunyan could not be copyrighted; others soon began to use the Bunyan name (Hoffman, p. 82). The legend quickly became popular; the first Paul Bunyan festival was held in Brainerd, Minnesota in the mid-1930s (Hoffman, p. 81).

To Laughead's credit, when folklorists started to question him about his work, he readily confessed to what he had done (unlike, say, Stevens). This does give some credence to his claim of having had some sort of legend to start from. He apparently was surprised by the extent to which it took off. (Hoffman, p. 83)

Although, as noted above, Edith Fowke found no Bunyan songs, Jamie Moreira points to her published report, "In Defence of Paul Bunyan" (New York Folklore 5, 1979, 43-52), which says that there were nineteenth century folktales about him.

Jonathan Lighter reports a speculation of Gershon Legman that Bunyan began as a figure of erotic folklore (which obviously would explain why he wasn't cited in the earlier collections). Legman on p. 227 of The Horn Book says that Bunyan was "an upstart in folklore, but folklore nevertheless" (though without explaining or justifying the statement).

Hoffman, p. 8, however makes an interesting point: There are unquestionably folktales about Bunyan "now", but they all appear to derive from print. He cites a tale about Bunyan's macaroni farm. This is not lumbering folklore; it is a tall tale gone into tradition. If there is a traditional core, it is secondhand.

Hoffman, p. 65, says that the writers who, starting in 1912, contributed most to the Bunyan legend were W. B. Laughead, Ida Virginia Turney, Esther Shephard, James Stevens, Glen Round, and Harold Felton.

Turney, who wrote in 1916, tells a series of tales about Paul so close to Laughead's that they clearly show direct dependence (Hoffman, p. 83) -- if not direct plagiarism, then she took the tales from informants who themselves had read Laughead.

Esther Shephard, who published a popular Bunyan book in 1924, used both popular and traditional sources, making no attempt to distinguish them (Hoffman, pp. 87-88); it thus served primarily to muddy the tradition.

Hoffman does say that the second Stevens book on Bunyan, The Saginaw Paul Bunyan, published in 1932, is better (Hoffman, p. 113), lacking the political overtones. Frank Shay's Here's Audacity, from 1930, includes Paul among other heroes such as Paul Bunyan; it qualifies as one of the few attempts to put Paul in the context of what Hoffman calls "frontier demigods."

Hoffman, p. 116, adds that The Saginaw Paul Bunyan was the last Bunyan book intended for an adult audience. From then on, the tales were pitched to children. By 1947, he had even worked his way into the Compton Encyclopedia for children (Hoffman, p. 120) -- in an article which, sadly, swallowed the Stevens explanation for Paul.

Harold Felton published the voluminous Legends of Paul Bunyan in 1947; according to Hoffman, pp. 123-124, this suffered from the usual problem of failing to distinguish folklore from fakelore. Over this period, Robert Frost, Carl Sandburg, W. H. Auden, and Louis Untermeyer all produced Bunyan poems. Hoffman, p. 128, suggests that they were all trying to make a true American myth. Their efforts were probably better than the popularizers'. But hardly more folkloric.

Auden, indeed, seems to have tried to suppress his work, an operetta for which he supplied the words (Hoffman, pp. 143-144). Of Untermeyer, Hoffman says (p. 153), "In five hundred ways it repeats what had been written before by Laughead, Turney, Shephard, Stevens, Wadsworth, Rounds, and others, but always with a difference. The distinction is very simple: Mr. Untermeyer has one great advantage over the popularizers, and that is good writing."

Hoffman, p. xxvi, has what I think a fitting summary: "When Paul Bunyan became a popular rather than merely an occupational hero, he ceased to be the product of a homogenous folk society. In the popularization of Paul Bunyan not only were his adventures revised, but his character and the humor with which his exploits were told were altered still more. His changing lineaments reflect the changing values of American culture over the last half century."

I guess I'll have to leave it to you to draw your own conclusions beyond that.

Hoffman makes some other interesting points about Bunyan and his mythos. For instance, he observes on p. 43 that, unlike other mythic heroes, Bunyan embraces technology and even tries to enhance its application. But he adds on p. 62 that this simplifies the process of storytelling, because technology does not require characterization. - RBW

Bibliography

- Blegen: Theodore C. Blegen, Minnesota: A History of the State (1963; I use the 1975 University of Minnesota edition with a new final chapter by Russell W. Fridley, but this is merely an appendix to the Blegen book; it is actually placed after the index!)
- Brebner/Masters: J. Bartlett Brebner, Canada, revised and enlarge by Donald C. Masters, University of Michigan Press, 1970
- Hardin: Terri Hardin, editor, A Treasure of American Folklore, Barnes & Noble, 1994
- Nute: Grace Lee Nute, Lake Superior (part of the American Lakes series edited by Milo M. Quaife), Bobbs-Merrill, 1944
- Peters: Harry B. Peters, editor, Folk Songs out of Wisconsin, State Historical Society of Wisconsin, 1977
- Stevens: James Stevens, Paul Bunyan, 1947 (I use the 19975 Western Americana edition)
- Wyman: Walker D. Wyman, Wisconsin Folklore, University of Wisconsin Extension (?), 1979
Paul Bunyan's Big Ox

DESCRIPTION: Recitation about Paul Bunyan's giant blue ox ("...every day for dinner/He would eat a ton of hay"; "This big blue ox weighed fourteen tons/And every time he'd bawl/The earth would shake... timber it would fall." The ox dies by breaking its neck

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)
KEYWORDS: recitation talltale animal death
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 97, "Paul Bunyan's Big Ox" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 46, "Paul Bunyan's Big Ox" (1 text)
Roud #4069
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Paul Bunyan" (subject) and references there
cf. "The Derby Ram" (theme)
NOTES [24 words]: This recitation is item dC48 in Laws's Appendix II. For background (or, rather, speculation) about Paul Bunyan, see the notes to "Paul Bunyan." - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: Be097

Paul Bunyan's Manistee

DESCRIPTION: "Paul Bunyan, the lumberman, came from St. Paul. he owned a big ox that was eleven feet tall." The singer, from Bay City, is out of work and joins Bunyan's crew. He greases Bunyan's huge griddle with ham strapped to his ankles and does other absurd jobs

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps)
KEYWORDS: talltale work
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp. 73-75, "Paul Bunyan's Manistee" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps, pp. 121-122, "Paul Bunyan's Manistee" (1 text)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 458, "Paul Bunyan's Manistee" (1 text)
Roud #6522
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Paul Bunyan" (subject) and references there
NOTES [43 words]: Beck's version of this (seemingly the only one in existence) has this to the Derry Down tune. Yet I heard the first verse, at least, sung, with a tune very close to the verse of "The Strawberry Roan," and no refrain. Wsh I remembered where I heard it! - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: CAFS2458

Paul Jones, the Privateer [Laws A3]

DESCRIPTION: John Paul Jones's American ship outruns a British man-of-war. Most of the ballad is devoted to describing the way the ship sails.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1894 (Williams)
KEYWORDS: sea navy ship
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1777 - The "Ranger" is commissioned
1778 - The "Ranger" outruns the British ship
FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,NE), Canada(Mar) Ireland
REFERENCES (15 citations):
Laws A3, "Paul Jones, the Privateer"
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 131-133, "The Stately Southerner" (1 text, 1 tune)
Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen, pp. 126-127, "The Stately Southerner" (1 text, 1 tune)
Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, pp. 177-184, "The Yankee Man-Of-War" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Paul Jones's Victory [Laws A4]

DESCRIPTION: John Paul Jones's [Bonhomme] Richard encounters two British ships. Despite being outgunned, Jones manages to capture the larger of the British ships.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1839 (broadside, Bodleian Johnson Ballads 247)

KEYWORDS: navy war ship battle

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

Sept 23, 1779 - Battle between the Bonhomme Richard (40 guns) and the British Serapis (44 guns) and Scarborough (20 guns)

FOUND IN: US(MA,SE) Britain(England(South)) Canada(Mar) Ireland

REFERENCES (23 citations):

Laws A4, "Paul Jones's Victory"
John Paul Jones (1747-1792) was born in Scotland with the name John Paul (Morison, pp. 1, 3). The fourth of five children (Cordingly, p. 193), he went to sea at age 13 (Morison, p. 9), initially serving aboard merchant ships (Morison, p. 10), including time aboard a slaver (Morison, p. 13). In 1768, John Paul saw both the master and mate of his ship die of fever. The only man aboard who could navigate, he brought the ship home and was given command of the John (Morison, pp. 13-14). He was 21. He served well in this role for five years (Morison, p. 20). Then he killed one of his sailors. It wasn't the first time he had been charged with brutality. In the course of a voyage in 1769-1770, Jones had had a sailor named Mungo Maxwell brutally flogged (Morison, p. 17). There had been some doubt about who was at fault in the Maxwell case; there was no question about this one. Calling at Tobago, John Paul had refused to pay his men an advance on their wages (which, we note, they had already earned, but which were not due until the ship returned to Britain). Several men apparently wanted to desert. John Paul stopped the mutiny by killing "the ringleader" (Morison, pp. 22-23). Legally, he was in the right, and would presumably have been cleared in court (Cordingly, p. 193) -- but it was definitely not a smart thing to do. It is not clear what happened next, but somehow John Paul ended up in the colonies and started... calling himself by the surname "Jones" rather than his birth name of "Paul" (Morison, pp. 23-24). When war broke out with Great Britain, Paul Jones joined the navy, apparently being the senior lieutenant in the entire service (Morison, p. 29). (We should probably add that "lieutenant" was, in effect, a higher rank than then now -- the approved ranks were captain, lieutenant, master, and midshipman. Thus a lieutenant was the equivalent of a "commander" today, ranked high enough to command a sloop or even a small frigate though not a ship of the line.) Not that the continental navy was a very impressive service at first; Pratt, p. 11, reports that "At the time the troubles broke out in Boston in 1775, there were not a few officers of the Royal Navy who came from the colonies, but... these officers stayed with the flag rather than join persons in revolt against due authority. A few men were available for the Continental Navy who had served with the Royal Navy earlier in their careers, but only one man is reported to have left the King's service to join the colonists in revolt, and his name has not survived." The appointment process didn't help. According to Bryant, p. 79, "Never was the creation of a corps of naval officers handled with more regard for the political weight each aspirant carried; the commissions were frankly awarded on the basis of political expediency, and little regard for the appointees' abilities as leaders and marines." Pratt, p. 24, comments that the initial naval commands "were distributed on the combined principles of geography and nepotism, modified by political maneuver." Of the first batch of officers in the United States Navy, Bryant apparently considers Jones to be the only "happy choice," but such were politics of the time that he would soon be known as the "North Carolina Captain."

He was first appointed to the Alfred, of 20 guns, as first lieutenant (Cordingly, p. 194), although the Alfred, called the first ship in the Continental Navy "was regarded as a dull sailer, and was almost useless as a warship." The British would capture the converted merchantman later in the war (Millar). Jones, however, was long gone, having served on several ships in 1775-1776 (Cordingly, p. 194).

In 1777, Jones was given command of the ship Ranger (Cordingly., p. 195), which he sailed with some success (see "Paul Jones, the Privateer" [Laws A3]). This was all the more impressive because, according to Bryant, p. 96, he had only one set of sails (and only one cask of rum, if you can believe that). But -- in one of those typically idiotic acts of the American congress -- he was deprived of command and put on the beach. (On the other hand, Pratt, p. 44, reports that he kicked one of his junior officers in the pants, which is hardly the way to win friends and influence people.) He seems to have already been a romantic figure; at least, Cordingly, p. 195, claims he had an affair with a rich Frenchwoman while the Ranger was being repaired, and on p. 198 mentions other woman sniffing after him.

He (or, rather, the French) finally scrounged up the Bonhomme Richard, a converted merchant ship with forty guns so badly worn as to be rather dangerous. Bryant calls her a "floating antique with a castellated poop," and says that the former Duc de Durac was "worm-eaten, crank, her old timbers exuding a hearty aroma of arrack, cloves, and tea" -- a reminder of her days trading to the East Indies (Bryant, p. 97). Hendrickson, p. 189, declares that "Some of her timbers were rotten, and many of her 40 guns were condemned."

Paul Jones sailed her anyway, with a scrounged-up crew (Pratt reports that only 79 of his initial crew of 227 were Americans; Hendrickson, p. 189, says that the others consisted of 174 French and 59 British), naming her Bonhomme Richard after Benjamin Franklin's French rendering of "Poor Richard" (Paine, p. 67). She sailed with an assortment of five even more ill-favored consorts (Marrin, p. 168). Even though two of his ships had to return to France, Jones commanded a squadron of four ships, 124 guns, at the time of this battle (the whole flotilla financed by the French), although only the Bonhomme Richard was completely engaged in the fight; his second-in-command, the French officer Pierre Landais, refused to take part. (Some even accuse him of firing on Jones, e.g. Cordingly, p. 197).

Jones won the battle by using his marines: He lashed his ship to the big 44-gun Serapis, and -- having made his famous remark "I have just begun to fight" when called upon to surrender -- continued the struggle until the British gave up. (The alternate version of Jones's line, which frankly sounds more likely, is "I'll sink, but I'm damned if I'll strike" [i.e. surrender]; Paine, p. 68). The Richard had, however, been reduced to a sinking condition (among other things, several of those worn guns had blown up -- on only their second salvo, according to Paine, p. 68), and only vigorous work at the pumps kept her afloat long enough to take the Serapis. Indeed, Jones would never have been able to board had not the Serapis been so mis-handled as to bump into the Richard (Marrin, p. 172).

This time, Jones's brutality paid off: Some of his men, with their ship's guns silenced, the ship itself full of holes, the deck falling in, had tried to surrender. Jones knocked one of them unconscious and kept up the fight. You could make the case that he won because his men were too afraid to give in.

In any case, he succeeded only because of the British attitude toward prizes. Had the British navy paid sailors decently, and had a doctrine of just "sinking" the enemy, rather than capturing them, the Serapis would have won the fight and John Paul Jones would be a guy who sank with his ship. The Richard proved past saving and went down on September 24; had Jones not won, he would have either been a prisoner (possibly even regarded as a deserter, given that he was Scottish) or dead.

Plenty of his men were already dead. Paine, p. 68, says that 140 of his 322 crewmen were killed or mortally wounded. And the Serapis was damaged enough that Jones could not even reach France; he had to hole up in the Netherlands (Cordingly, p. 197).

(I can't help but think how much this sounds like it could have inspired the Stan Rogers song "Barrett's Privateers," only Rogers gave it the ending it deserved.)

Even this noteworthy success didn't get Paul Jones the influence he wanted; when the new ship America was finished, the command did not go to Jones (Cordingly, p.199). This marked the functional end of his career in the American navy. He wanted, and did not get, an admiral's commission (it would not be until the end of the Civil War that the American navy started commissioning admirals), so he went to Russia (Cordingly, p. 200). Then, in 1789, he was charged with having sexual relations with a ten-year-old... Even in Tsarist Russia, that was enough to cause him to leave the country (Cordingly, pp. 200-201). He died in 1789, at the age of 45, having been driven out of two countries and having abandoned the third.

In recent years, some attempts have been made to find the wreck of the Bonhomme Richard. As far as I have heard, the attempts have failed. Laws classified this as an American song, and it probably was so in origin -- but it will be seen that it was found in British and Scottish broadsides at least. - RBW

In the Bodleian broadsides, the frigate is named Percy, Rachel or Richard. The opposing ship, if named, is Caraphus, Ceraphus or Percy. - BS

Bibliography

- Millar: John Fitzhugh Millar, Ships of the American Revolution, with illustrations by Gregory Irons, Bellerophon, 1988. N.B. This book does not have a pagination; you just have to look through it until you find the page for the particular ship.

_Last updated in version 6.1_

File: LA04

Paulie Say She Love Me

DESCRIPTION: Paulie told the singer that she loved only him but she has been courted by the fluter of the band. The singer is unhappy: "when she says she loves me / Then she tells a fib"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (WITrinidadVillage01)

KEYWORDS: courting infidelity love nonballad music lie

FOUND IN: West Indies(Trinidad)

RECORDINGS:

Venive Talbott, "Paulie Say She Love Me" (on WITrinidadVillage01)

File: RcPaSSLM
Pauline
DESCRIPTION: "Pauline, Pauline, I don't love nobody but you." "Lord, I'm going to my shanty, I'm gonna lie down." "Lord, I'm going back home to Pauline." He has walked and cried all night long. "I'm gonna write one more letter, gonna write no more."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (collected from Allen Prothero)
KEYWORDS: love separation
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 402-404, "Pauline" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #15654
File: LxSi402

Pauper's Cowhides, The
DESCRIPTION: "Say, Richards, have you seen the paupers With a mortgage on their lands, Going to congress with their cowhides." "Schemers" steal their crops; "Money-changers" will not yield, but "Thou must be the hayseed jubilo And the pauper's kingdom come."
AUTHOR: Words: Luna E. (Mrs. J. T.) Kellie (1857-1940)
EARLIEST DATE: 1890 (Farmer's Alliance, October 4, 1890 edition, according to Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore)
KEYWORDS: poverty derivative political money
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, pp. 67-68, "The Pauper's Cowhides" (1 text, tune referenced)
ADDITIONAL: Nebraska Folklore, Pamphlet Eighteen, "Farmers' Alliance Songs of the 1890's," Federal Writers' Project, 1938, p. 3, "The Pauper's Cowhides" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Kingdom Coming (The Year of Jubilo)" (tune)
NOTES [12 words]: For background on Luna Kellie, see the notes to "Marching for Freedom." - RBW
Last updated in version 3.6
File: Wels067

Paw-Paw Patch, The
DESCRIPTION: Playparty, with lyrics such as "Where oh where is pretty little (Susie/Liza/Nellie) (x3)? Way down yonder in the paw-paw patch." "Pickin' up paw-paws, puttin' 'em in her pockets." "Come along, boys, and let's go see her...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana)
KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad courting
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE,So)
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 101-102=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 205-206, "Way Down in the Paw Paw Patch" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, pp. 218-219, "Pawpaw Patch" (1 text 1 tune)
Randolph 553, "Paw-Paw Peeling" (1 text plus a fragment, 1 tune)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #115, "The Pawpaw Patch" (1 text, 1 tune)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, pp. 151-152, "The Paw-Paw Patch" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 46, "The Paw-Paw Patch" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 391, "Paw-Paw Patch" (1 text)
Roud #5038
RECORDINGS:
Group of children, "The Paw Paw Patch" (on JThomas01)
Pete Seeger, "Paw Paw Patch" (on PeteSeeger22)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Where Is Old Elijah? (The Hebrew Children)" (tune & meter)
cf. "Going to Boston" (lyrics)
Pawkie Adam Glen

DESCRIPTION: "Pawkie Adam Glen, piper o' the clachan When he stoited ben, sairly was he pechin'." Old Adam goes out seeking a wife, settling on "auntie Madie." After a cheerful dance, "Madge is hect to Adam Glen, And sune we'll hae a weddin'."

AUTHOR: Alexander Laing

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Ford)

KEYWORDS: courting age dancing wedding

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 300-301, "Pawkie Adam Glen" (1 text)

Roud #13101

NOTES [30 words]: According to Ford, piper Adam Glen died in battle in 1715 at age ninety, having taken his seventh wife (who was half his age) some months previously. Believe that if you will. - RBW

Pawkie Paiterson's Auld Grey Yaud

DESCRIPTION: "As I gae'd up Hawick Loan... 'Twas there I heard an auld yaud Gie mony a heavy grane... 'I'm Pawkie Patterson's auld yaud, See how they're guidin' mie.'" The aged horse describes its hard and bitter life, and leaves its body parts to various people

AUTHOR: George Ballantyne

EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Ford)

KEYWORDS: horse age death lastwill hardtimes

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 311-313, "Pawkie Paiterson's Auld Grey Yaud" (1 text, 1 tune)
Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 52-53, "Robin Spraggon's Auld Grey Mare" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #175, p. 2, "Pawkie Paiterson's Auld Grey Yaud"; #176, p. 2, "Robin Spraggon's Auld Grey Mare" (1 text plus 1 fragment)

ST FVS311 (Partial)

Roud #3063

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Poor Old Horse (III)" (theme)
cf. "Mon Cher Voisin (My Dear Neighbor)" (theme)

Pay Boy Pay Mango

DESCRIPTION: "Pay boy mango." "Papa say no go there." "Take you bare han cut timber"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Elder-FolksongsFromTobago)

KEYWORDS: accusation warning nonballad father

FOUND IN: West Indies(Tobago)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Elder-FolksongsFromTobago 11, "Pay Boy Pay Mango" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [68 words]: Elder-FolksongsFromTobago: "'Pay boy pay mango' was collected from fishermen in Charlotteville on the north coast of Tobago. About what 'pay mango' means they were not clear but they felt it meant suffering for wrong done to one's parents.... There are many proverbs among the folk emphasizing the evils of 'hard ears', failure to be guided by the advice of elders especially men folk in one's family." - BS

Last updated in version 4.0
Pay Day at Coal Creek

DESCRIPTION: "Pay day, O pay day, O pay day, Pay day at Coal Creek tomorrow." "Bye bye, good woman, I'm gone." "You gonna miss me when I'm gone" "She's a rider, but she'll leave that rail sometime." "Pay day won't come no more."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928
KEYWORDS: work mining separation
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 274-275, "Pay Day at Coal Creek" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 146, "Pay Day" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 126, "Pay Day At Coal Creek" (1 text)
DT, PAYDAYCC
Roud #6685
RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "Pay Day at Coal Creek" (on SeegerTerry)
Pete Steele, "Last Payday at Coal Creek" (on PSTeele01); "Pay Day at Coal Creek" (AFS, 1938; on LC02, KMM)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Coal Creek Troubles" (subject)
NOTES [28 words]: While this has turned into a nonballad, it seems to have started off as an account of a bitter strike. - PJS
(For details, see the notes to "Coal Creek Troubles.") - RBW
Last updated in version 3.2
File: LoF146

Pay Me My Money Down

DESCRIPTION: "Pay me, O pay me, Pay me my money down... Pay me or go to jail. Pay me, mister stevedore.... You pay me, you owe me...." Almost anything may be included, but all on the theme that the boss has hired the worker and should pay him for his labor

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1944
KEYWORDS: work money nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 279, "Pay Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 501-503, "Pay Me My Money Down" (1 text, 1 tune)
[AbEd, pp. 370-371]
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 83, "Pay Me My Money Down" (1 text)
DT, PAYMONEY* PAYMONY2
Roud #21449
RECORDINGS:
Joe Armstrong and the Georgia Sea Island Singers, "Pay Me" (on LomaxCD1713)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf."Tie-Tamping Chant" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Darlin' (I)" (floating lyrics)
File: LoF279

Peaches in the Parlor

DESCRIPTION: Rope-skipping or counting game. ""Peaches in the parlor, Apples on the shelf, [name's] getting tired Of sleeping by herself. How many times did she sleep by herself? One, two...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal)
KEYWORDS: playparty food
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peanut Sat on the Railway Track, The DESCRIPTION: "The peanut sat on the railway track, Its heart was all a-flutter. The train came roaring round the bend, Toot, toot... Peanut butter."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: play party food humorous
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 99, "(The peanut sat on the railway track)" (1 text)
File: SuSm099C

Peanut-Pickin' Song
DESCRIPTION: "You kin do jes'-a' what you please, I's gwine to pick off-a Massa's peas (x2), An' den I's gwine home." "I kin fill dis basket if I choose, Nen I's gwine home." Master gives him shoes and clothes. The singer hopes to catch a possum.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Curtis-Burlin-NegroFolkSongs-TheHamptonSeries)
KEYWORDS: work food clothes
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Curtis-Burlin-NegroFolkSongs-TheHamptonSeries (IV), pp. 127-139, "Peanut-Pickin' Song" (1 text with variants, 1 tune with variants)
Roud #17445
File: CuBu127

Pear Tree, The
DESCRIPTION: "Twa lads" go out one day, see a pear tree, and climb it. Lad and lass start to undress in the tree as the pears fall. The young man loses his coat. The singer calls into the tree about the coat; the couple in the tree do not answer. So he takes the coat
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1986 (Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee)
KEYWORDS: courting sex humorous clothes
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee 69, "The Pear Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1713
NOTES [39 words]: One must obviously suspect this was somehow inspired by Chaucer's "Merchant's Tale," where the young girl May and the young man Damian are caught in the act by May's husband January -- who, however comes out the worst of the three. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.5
File: Gath069

Pearl Bryan (I) [Laws F2]
DESCRIPTION: Pearl Bryan runs away to meet her lover Jackson, who, helped by Walling, takes her to Kentucky and decapitates her. Her body is discovered the next day. (The fate of the murderers may then be described)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana)
KEYWORDS: elopement homicide
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Feb 1, 1896 - Discovery of the headless body of Pearl Bryan, killed along with her unborn child by Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling, near Fort Thomas, Kentucky
Mar 20, 1897 - Execution of Jackson and Walling
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE)
REFERENCES (10 citations):
Laws F2, "Pearl Bryan I"
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOffindiana 61, "Pearl Bryan" (3 texts plus an excerpt and mention of 3 more; 1 tune; the "A" and "B" texts and the "F" fragment and tune are this piece; the "C" text is Laws F1B)
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 343-352, "Pearl Bryan" (2 texts, 2 tunes plus a supplementary text that is a "Pearl Bryan" version of Laws F1)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, p. 77, "Pearl Bryan" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 789-790, "Pearl Bryan" (1 text)
Burt-AmericanMurderBallads, p. 31, "(Pearl Bryan)" (1 short text)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 424-425, "The Ballad of Pearl Bryan and Her Sad Death in the Kentucky Hills at Fort Thomas" (1 text)
Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 209, "Pearl Bryan" (1 text)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 199-200, "Pearl Bryan" (1 text plus a fragment)
DT 751, PERLBRY1
Roud #2212
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Jealous Lover (I), The (Florella, Floella) (Pearl Bryan II) (Nell Cropsey II) [Laws F1A, B, C]" [Laws F1], particularly the "B" subgroup of Pearl Bryan ballads
cf. "Pearl Bryan III" [Laws F3]
cf. "Pearl Bryan IV"
NOTES [651 words]: To tell this song from the other Pearl Bryan ballads, consider this first stanza (from Leach-TheBalladBook):
Now, ladies, if you'll listen, a story I'll relate
'Twas late in January this awful deed was done
By Jackson and by Walling; how cold their blood did run!
This particular murder seems to have attracted more attention than any this side of the Lizzie Borden case. Richard Polenberg: Hear My Sad Story: The True Tales That Inspired Stagolee, John Henry, and Other Traditional American Folk Songs, Cornell University Press, 2015, pp. 268-269, lists books by James McDonald and Joan Christen, The Perils of Pearl Bryan: Betrayal and Murder in the Northwest in 1896; and Anne B. Cohen, Poor Pearl, Poor Girl! The Murdered Girl Stereotype in Ballad and Newspaper, plus several long articles and web sites.
Polenberg, pp. 82-89, gives a summary, including a photo of Pearl on p. 83 and sketches of the murderers Jackson and Walling on p. 86.
Pearl, the youngest child in her family, was born in October 1872, and was said to have been friendly and popular, a Sunday School and church worker (Polenberg, pp. 82-83).
Pearl's body was discovered early near Fort Thomas, Kentucky, early on the morning of February 1, 1896; the murder had probably happened the day before (Polenberg, p. 82). It would seem she did not carry obvious forms of identification; the investigators were able to identify her by tracing her clothing. Polenberg also says that "certain physical characteristics" helped identify the body. He does not say what he means, but Cox reported that she was "web-footed." Based on her photograph, she doesn't appear to have been particularly pretty.
A cousin of hers, Will Wood, had introduced her to Scott Jackson, who got her pregnant; she was reportedly about five months gone at the time of her murder. Jackson seems to have been quite a piece of work; as a young man, he had been involved in embezzlement, but had turned states' evidence and avoided conviction (Polenberg, p. 83). Then he got Pearl pregnant. The only positive thing I can say about him is that he did try to find a way to terminate her pregnancy -- but turned to murder when that failed. He had already apparently thrown her over to go to dental school.
Alonzo Walling was Jackson's school roommate, and for some reason went along with Jackson's plan rather than trying to prevent it. The two gave her a heavy dose of cocaine mixed with water, which made her sick and induced her to go with them; they carted her away in a hired cab (whose driver, confusingly, was also named Jackson; Polenberg, p. 84), then left the cab and murdered her. We of course cannot know what happened after that; Jackson and Walling both accused the other (Polenberg, pp. 84-85). The police inclined to believe Walling, who said Jackson did it, and certainly Jackson had the stronger motive. Neither could offer much of a defense, and both were convicted in separate trials (Polenberg, pp. 87-88). All appeals failed; they were hung together (Polenberg, p. 88).

Polenberg, pp. 88-89, says that songs about Pearl Bryan are rare, but although none is individually as popular as, say, "Omie Wise," there are at least half a dozen Pearl Bryan songs all told. Clearly the macabre story took a strong grip on the public imagination. Despite this, the story doesn't seem to have attracted books the way the story of, say, Maria Marten did. The book by James McDonald and Joan Christen, The Perils of Pearl Bryan: Betrayal and Murder in the Midwest in 1896, AuthorHouse, 2012, turns out to be historical fiction by a couple of authors who discovered the story because they were interested in the history of dentistry! It does have a handful of interesting illustrations, ad the bibliography lists a few pamphlets about Pearl, but I doubt it can be relied on. Except maybe about teeth. - RBW

Pearl Bryan (III) [Laws F3]

DESCRIPTION: Pearl Bryan appeals to Jackson for help; he is not interested and, with (Alonzo) Walling, cuts off her head and abandons the body
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: homicide abandonment
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Feb 1, 1896 - Discovery of the headless body of Pearl Bryan, killed along with her unborn child by Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling, near Fort Thomas, Kentucky
Mar 20, 1897 - Execution of Jackson and Walling
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Laws F3, "Pearl Bryan III"
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 105, "A Fatal Acquaintance" (2 texts, but Laws considers only the B text part of this ballad; the A text may belong with Pearl Bryan II)
DT 755, PERLBRY3
Roud #2213
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Jealous Lover (I), The (Florella, Floella) (Pearl Bryan II) (Nell Cropsey II) [Laws F1A, B, C]" [Laws F1], particularly the "B" subgroup of Pearl Bryan ballads
cf. "Pearl Bryan I" [Laws F2]
cf. "Pearl Bryan IV"
NOTES [83 words]: To tell this song from the other Pearl Bryan ballads, consider this first stanza (from Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio):
In Greencastle lived a maiden
She was known the wide world o’er;
She was murdered by Scott Jackson
Whom she fondly did adore.
Comparison with Eddy’s other text (which also lacks a melody) would seem to imply that the two could be one -- but Laws separates them, so the Index does the same.
For background on the Pearl Bryan murder see the notes to "Pearl Bryan (I)" [Laws F2]. - RBW

Pearl Bryan (IV)

DESCRIPTION: A girl of Greencastle, Indiana loves a young man. (She becomes pregnant?, and) begs him to make good the wrong he has done her. He refuses and plans to depart. She follows him. He kills her. Young girls are warned by the example of Pearl Bryan
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio)
KEYWORDS: love homicide abandonment
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Feb 1, 1896 - Discovery of the headless body of Pearl Bryan, killed along with her unborn child by Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling, near Fort Thomas, Kentucky
Mar 20, 1897 - Execution of Jackson and Walling

Peas and Rice and Cocoanut Oil

DESCRIPTION: People cruising to Nassau "get drunk... hear those natives singin'. Mandy don't want no peas no rice no cocoanut oil Just a bottle of brandy handy." People came for a race but got "whisky and champagne." "Mama got drunk but she wouldn't get drunk no more"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Rushing, Count Basie)

KEYWORDS: travel drink wine nonballad

FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas,Jamaica,Trinidad)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

RECORDINGS:
Blind Blake Higgs, "Peas and Rice and Cocoanut Oil" (on WIHIGGS01)
James Rushing with Count Basie and His Orchestra, "Mama Don't Want No Peas an' Rice an' Cocoanut Oil" (1938, on Decca 78RPM 2030 B, 1992, "Count Basie - The Complete Decca Recordings" Decca CD GRD-3-611)
Vernon Hedley and Carl Monsegui, "We Don't Want No Rice" (on WITrinidadVillage01)

NOTES [206 words]: The description follows Higgs. The Hedley and Monsegui track is only the chorus (sung six times with no break between repetitions), and it is stew they want every day rather than brandy. Higgs's first verse of two is very close to the Count Basie version (Basie's "mama" becomes Higgs's "Mandy", and a few of Basie's "ands" become Higgs's "no's."
The liner notes to the Herskovits album: "Raymond Quevedo (Attila [sic] the Hun) notes this song as 'traveling down the islands from the Bahamas to Barbados and then to Trinidad,' being incorporated into the Trinidad calypso repertoire around 1937.... The song probably originated in the Commonwealth of the Bahamas during World War I, when cooking oils were difficult to obtain and the majority of cooking was done with cocoanut oil. The song entered main-stream U.S. popular music in the early 1930s. Most versions outside the Caribbean appear to be based on U.S. commercial recordings, such as Count Basie's Decca recording with Jimmy Rushing on vocal, cut in New York on June 6, 1938" (Donald R. Hill, Maureen Warner-Lewis, John Cowley and Lise Winer, liner notes to WITrinidadVillage01.
For Higgs, "Peas and Rice and Cocoanut Oil" is the first part of a track called "Peas and Rice." - BS

Last updated in version 5.2

File: RcPaRaC0
Peas and the Rice
DESCRIPTION: "Peas and the rice... new rice and okra, eat some and left some... peas and the rice done done done"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands)
KEYWORDS: work food nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands 58, pp. 226-226,232-233, "Peas an' the Rice" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [44 words]: The current description is based on the Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands text. Parrish writes, "In her youth, Julia Walker employed these rhythmic lines to help in thrashing rice on the floor." "Eat some and left some" is also in "Eat Some and Leave Some" - BS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Parr056A

Peasant's Bride, The (Thady and I)
DESCRIPTION: "I was a simple country girl." She loves Thady: "with hook or scythe, with plow or spade, He'd beat ten men together" They marry and many nobles "would gladly give a crown of gold To be like me and Thady."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1855 (Edward Hayes, The Ballads of Ireland (Boston, 1859), Vol II)
KEYWORDS: poverty love marriage
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 120,123, "The Peasant's Bride" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 153, "The Peasant's Bride" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Edward Hayes, The Ballads of Ireland (Boston, 1859), Vol II, p. 84, "The Peasant's Bride"
Roud #V13704
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.28(9a/b) view 7 of 8, "Thady and I", R. March & Co (London), 1877-1884
File: 0Con120

Pease Porridge Hot
DESCRIPTION: "Pease porridge hot, Pease porridge cold, Pease porridge in the pot, Nine days old. Some like it hot, Some like it cold, Some like it in the pot, Nine days old." A clapping game, sometimes used to keep the hands warm
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1765 (Mother Goose's Melody, according to Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose)
KEYWORDS: playparty food nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #71, "Pease Porridge Hot" (1 short text)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 502, "Tinker, Tailor...." (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #599, p. 237, "(Pease Porridge Hot)" Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 160, "Pease Pudding Hot" (1 text)
Roud #19631
File: Newe071

Peaslee's Lumber Crew
DESCRIPTION: The various characters on Peaslee's lumber crew are described.
AUTHOR: Fred Walker (source: Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps)
Peata an Mhaoir (The Kerry Cow)

DESCRIPTION: Gaelic. "I wish I had the shepherd's lamb... And Katie coming after." "I wish I had the yellow cow And welcome from my darling."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage courting love farming nonballad animal sheep lover

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 167, "The Kerry Cow" (2 texts, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Elizabeth Cronin, "The Kerry Cow" (on IRECronin01)

NOTES [46 words]: The description follows the English translation from Joyce provided by OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin and P.W. Joyce, Old Irish Folk Music and Songs (Dublin: Hodges Figgis & Co Ltd, 1909 ("Digitized by Microsoft")) #46, p. 238, "I Wish I Had the Shepherd's Lamb." - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: OCC167

Pecos Punchers, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer describes his appearance ("I wear the high heels, also the white hat"), talks of the work of a cowboy, and lists the outfits he worked for. He decides to "go east like Wild Bill and there play the tough" -- but keep his saddle for use hereafter

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1966

KEYWORDS: cowboy work

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 112, "The Pecos Punchers" (1 text)
Roud #8047
File: FCW112

Pecos River Queen

DESCRIPTION: "Where the Pecos river winds and turns its journey to the sea... Dwells fair young Patty Moorhead the Pecos River Queen." Patty's amazing skills are described. At last she "rode her horse... a lover's heart to test." "But the puncher wouldn't follow...."

AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp

EARLIEST DATE: 1908

KEYWORDS: cowboy love courting

FOUND IN:
Pecos Tom

DESCRIPTION: "Where the old Fort Sumber Barracks look down on the Pecos wide," the speaker and Pecos Tom are telling tales when the speaker notices Tom has a fancy gun. It cost $15,000. The seller didn't think he could afford it -- don't judge cowboys by their clothes

AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: cowboy money clothes
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 127-129, "Pecos Tom" (1 text)
File: ThLo127

Peddler and His Wife, The [Laws F24]

DESCRIPTION: An old peddler and his wife are riding in their wagon on a fine day when they are ambushed, robbed, and murdered

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Appalachian Vagabond [Hayes Shephard])
KEYWORDS: homicide robbery commerce
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Laws F24, "The Peddler and his Wife"
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, pp. 116-117, "The Peddler and His Wife" (1 text)
Cambiare-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, p. 9, "The Peddler and His Wife" (1 text)
Combs/Wilgus-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernUnitedStates 70, pp. 166-167, "The Irish Peddler" (1 text)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 260-261, "The Peddler and His Wife" (1 text)
DT 762, PEDDWIFE
Roud #2262
RECORDINGS:
Appalachian Vagabond [pseud. for Hayes Shephard], "Peddler and his Wife" (Vocalion 5450, rec. 1930)
James Howard, "The Peddler and his Wife" (AFS, 1937; on KMM)
File: LF24

Pedlar (I), The

DESCRIPTION: "The pedlar ca'd in by the house o' Glenneuk" and begins bargaining -- for his goods and the hosts' daughters. Although the parents discourage it, one daughter is interested. She departs with him; they are married; he proves very successful in business

AUTHOR: William Watt
EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Ford)
KEYWORDS: love courting rambling money elopement
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #96, pp. 1-2, "The House o' Glenneuk" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan2 280, "The Pedlar and his Pack" (4 texts, 2 tunes)
Peel a Banana Upside Down

DESCRIPTION: "Peel a banana upside down, Peel an orange round and round, If you count to twenty-one, You hall have another turn. Not last night but the night before, Three little gents came knocking at my door." They sang, "Lady, lady, lady, turn around...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Coffin & Cohen)

KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad food

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Tristram P. Coffin and Hennig Cohen, _Folklore in America: Tales, Songs, Superstitions, Proverbs, Riddles, Games, Folk Drama and Folk Festivals_, Doubleday, 1966, p. 189, "(no title)" (1 text)

Peeler and the Goat, The DESCRIPTION: The Peelers meet a goat and plan to jail him for being on the road. The goat says that he is honorable if houseless and that the road is his home. He expects to be acquitted. He says the peelers are drunk and could be bought for more poteen.

AUTHOR: Jeremiah O'Ryan ("Darby Ryan") (Source: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

EARLIEST DATE: 1913 (Padraic Colum, "Broadsheet Ballads"); c.1830 (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

KEYWORDS: prison drink humorous political animal police

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (3 citations):
OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 74, "The Peeler and the Goat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 45, "The Peeler and the Goat" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, PEELERGT*

Roud #1458

RECORDINGS:
Martin Reidy, "Peeler and the Goat" (on IRClare01)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 26(510), "The Original Peeler and the Goat," unknown, n.d.; also 2806 b.9(266), "The Peeler and the Goat"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Sow's Triumph Over the Peelers" (theme)
cf. "The Cavan Buck" (tune)

NOTES [141 words]: Sir Robert Peel established the Royal Irish Constabulary in 1812 and its success led, in 1829, to the Metropolitan Police Act for London. Originally the term "Peeler" applied to the London constabulary. (source: Sir Robert "Bobby" Peel (1788-1850) at Historic UK site.) In this song the term is applied to the Bansha police in Bansha, County Tipperary. Martin Reidy's tune on IRClare01 is the one used for "The Recruiting Sergeant" (on Robin Hall and Jimmy MacGregor, "Two Heids are Better than Yin!", Monitor MF 365 (1962)) - BS

Max Heiliger, who pointed out to be the 1913 Padraic Colum printing (available on Internet Archiva), also pointed to two references to a song by this title from 1884. As neither includes the lyrics, I cannot prove that they are the same song. But they probably indicate that the song was widespread in that year. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: OL0c074
Peelhead
DESCRIPTION: Peelhead owns the saw mill. "All the kind o' logs they got Was small rough saplin' pine." Hope for better times: "not like it was last summer When you said they'd be good times, And some o' your men you owe six months, And more you do owe nine"
AUTHOR: William McKay "of the Millstream" (Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi)
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi)
KEYWORDS: lumbering hardtimes humorous moniker boss horse
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi 37, "Peelhead" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST MaWi037 (Partial)
Roud #9208
NOTES [71 words]: Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi: "The song ... is a typical woods satire about a lumber operator, Isaac Anderson, nick-named 'Peelhead,' who flourished in the 1880's. There is a mention for everyone in the woods crew, including the horses, and the usual fling at the employer. Actually the reproaches in the last verse were not very serious complaints in the 1880's, when so much of the lumber business was done on credit." - BS
File: MaWi037

Peep Squirrel
DESCRIPTION: Singing game: "Peep squirrel, yang-dan-diddle-um (or other nonsense, e.g. Hop squirrel, eedle-dum-dum)" (x2 or x4). Similarly, "Run, squirrel...." "Catch the old squirrel...." "I give you fifty cents...."
AUTHOR: Squirrel
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: animal hunting playparty
FOUND IN: US(MW,SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 119, "Peep Squirrel" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, pp. 91-92, "Peep Squirrel" (1 text, 1 tune)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 134-136, "Hop, Old Squirrel" (2 texts, the second with interspersed game instructions, 1 tune)
ST ChFRA119 (Partial)
Roud #7645
NOTES [63 words]: Roud lumps this with "Hunt the Squirrel" and similar items -- superficially reasonable, since they're both singing games about squirrels. But they don't have any lyrics in common.
Even I decided ot merge "Hop, Old Squirrel" with "Peep, Squirrel"; the forms are very different, but it appears that lyrics cross so much; my guess is that it's one song with two differen games. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.3
File: ChFRA119

Peerless Fishermen, The
DESCRIPTION: "Peerless," with a Nova Scotia crew, load their bait at Bay of Islands and reach the banks. Their dories are lowered but lost in a storm. The captain looks for the twelve lost fishermen but is forced to sail for Newfoundland.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA-Leach)
KEYWORDS: grief death drowning fishing sea ship storm
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
RECORDINGS:
Peter Molloy, "Ye landsmen and ye seamen come listen to what I write" (on MUNFLA-Leach)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Bank Fishermen" (subject)
File: ML3PeFis
Peg an' Awl

DESCRIPTION: "In the days of eighteen and one, Peg an' awl... Peggin' shoes was all I done, Hand me down my pegs, my pegs, my pegs, my awl." The singer describes his work, then tells how "They've invented a new machine.... Makes a hundred pairs to my one."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, Carolina Tar Heels)
KEYWORDS: work technology unemployment worker
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Lunsford/Stringfield-30And1FolkSongsFromSouthernMountains, pp. 30-31, "The Ruin Cobbler" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 144, "Peg an' Awl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dunson/Raim/Asch-AnthologyOfAmericanFolkMusic, p. 40 "Peg and Awl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, p. 363, "Peg and Awl" (1 text)
DT, PEGNAWL*
Roud #4619
RECORDINGS:
Carolina Tar Heels, "Peg and Awl" (Victor V-40007A, 1928; on AAFM1; recorded Oct 11 1928)
Kelly Harrell, "Peg and Awl" (OKeh 40544, 1925; on KHarrell01)
Lawrence Older, "Peg and Awl" (on LOlder01)
Pete Seeger, "Peg and Awl" (on PeteSeeger13)
Hobart Smith, "Peg an' Awl" (on LomaxCD1702)
Clarence Ashley & Doc Watson, "Peg and Awl" (on WatsonAshley01)
NOTES [23 words]: The notes in Lomax imply that this is a bawdy song. I suppose it's possible, but I think this is a confusion with "The Long Peggin' Awl." - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: LoF144

Peggy and the Soldier (The Lame Soldier) [Laws P13]

DESCRIPTION: Peggy leaves her husband and child to go with a soldier who offers her gold and a high life. The two soon quarrel; the soldier beats her and sends her back to her husband. She arrives home and begs her husband to take her back; he rejects her

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1675 (broadside, Bodleian Douce Ballads 2(208a)); a song with this name was in William Thackeray's broadside catalog by 1690
KEYWORDS: infidelity separation soldier rejection family
FOUND IN: US(MW) Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Laws P13, "Peggy and the Soldier (The Lame Soldier)"
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 164-165, "The Lame Soldier" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan6 1129, "The Old Soldier" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 94-95, "Peggy and the Soldier" (1 text, 1 tune)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN1517, "It was a brave souldier that long liv'd in Wars"
DT 497, LAMESLDR* LAMESLD2
Roud #907
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Douce Ballads 2(208a), "The Souldier and Peggy" ("It was a brave souldier that long liv'd at wars"), F. Coles (London), 1663-1674; also Harding B 39(151), Douce Ballads 2(209b), "The Souldier and Peggy"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Rosie Anderson" (plot)
cf. "The Brewer Laddie" (plot)
NOTES [15 words]: In the Bodleian broadsides and Greig/Duncan6, at least, Peggy's husband takes her back. - BS
Last updated in version 5.0
File: LP13
Peggy Bawn

DESCRIPTION: An Irishman stops at a Scots farmer's house and courts daughter Jane. The farmer offers his daughter in marriage, money, and land. The singer thinks of Peggy and excuses himself: he must be off on the king's business. He will always be true to Peggy

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1788 (William Shield's opera "Marion," according to OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)

KEYWORDS: infidelity sex rejection separation Ireland Scotland father courting money

FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(England(Lond))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 5, "Peggy Bawn" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 162, "Peggy Bawn" (1 text)

Roud #661

RECORDINGS:
Walter Pardon, "Peggy Benn" (on Voice01)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 25(1481)[many illegible words], "Peggy Band," D. Wrighton? (Birmingham) [hand-written note on broadside], 1810-1820; also Harding B 26(149), Firth b.25(391), Harding B 20(131), Harding B 11(2699), Harding B 11(2700), Harding B 11(2982), Firth c.18(244), 2806 c.17(329), 2806 b.11(232), "Peggy Band"; Harding B 25(1480), "Peggy Bann"

NOTES [164 words]: OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads: "Once very popular in Northern Ireland and among the Irish in Scotland.

Duffy (1845): "The existence of this ballad is traceable for a century -- it is probably much older. It bears strong evidence of having been written in Ulster, where it holds its ground with undiminished popularity to this day."

I have to admit to some confusion. It seems clear that Jane and Peggy are not the same person but some broadside lines make it seem otherwise: "With hat in hand I came away, And parted with each one, And especially the pretty girl Who was tired of lying alone. With hat in hand I came away, But in my mind it ran, That blithe and merry were the days I had with Peggy Band." The counter argument, from broadside Bodleian Harding B 25(1481), "Peggy Band's Answer," D. Wrighton? (Birmingham), 1810-1820 has Peggy relating that her Jemmy, "a SCOTISH Lady did adore, And offered him her Hand, But he slighted all her Proffers For his dear PEGGY BAND." - BS

Last updated in version 6.1

File: OLcM005

Peggy Gordon

DESCRIPTION: "Oh Peggy Gordon, you are my darling, Come sit you down upon my knee, And tell to me the very reason Why I am slighted so by thee." Spurned, the singer wishes he were far away, or drinking, or doing something to ease the pain of separation

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Cox)

KEYWORDS: love separation rejection

FOUND IN: US(Ap) Canada(Mar,Newf) Britain(England)

REFERENCES (7 citations):
Gilbert-LostChords, p. 127, [No title] (1 fragmentary text)
Abrahams/Foss-AngloAmericanFolksongStyle, p. 164, (no title) (1 tune, partial text, probably this song)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 141, "Youth and Folly" (1 text, with many floating verses but such plot as it has derived from this song); 142, "Maggie Goddon" (1 text)
Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, pp. 194-195, "Peggy Gordon" (1 text plus 1 fragment, 1 tune)
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, pp. 74-75, "Peggy Gordon" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 475-476, "Love is Lovely" (1 text, 1 tune, strongly composite, starting with a verse perhaps from "Peggy Gordon," then the chorus of "Waly Waly (The Water Is Wide)," two more which might be anything, and a conclusion from "Carrickfergus")

DT, PEGGORDN"
Roud #2280
RECORDINGS:
Grace Clergy, "Peggy Gordon" (on MRHCreighton)
Ralph Pennell, "Keg of Brandy" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Fair and Tender Ladies" (floating lyrics)
cf. "I'm Deep In Love, My Mind Is Troubled" (lyrics)
cf. "O'Reilly from the County Leitrim" (lyrics in common with the "Youth and Folly" texts)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Maggie Gordon
File: G1127

Peggy Howatt
DESCRIPTION: Howatt, a barkeep, is shot and killed by "a brave engineer." When St. Peter declines to admit Howatt, the late bartender replies with obscenity and scorn.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: bawdy homicide Hell
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 468-470, "Peggy Howatt" (2 texts, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Casey Jones (I)" [Laws G1] (tune)
NOTES [52 words]: Jim "Peggy" [from his wooden leg] Howatt sold liquor in Joplin, Mo., Picher, Okla., and Pittsburg, Kansas, until his death from tainted moonshine about 1924. Annotator Legman posits this topical satire, sung to a set of the melody of "Casey Jones," was written by the composer of that ballad, Wallace Saunders. - EC
File: RL468

Peggy in the Morning
DESCRIPTION: "Noo, mither, confess, a' the lasses ye saw... And wasna my Peggy the flooer o' them a'??" The mother says the girl is lazy and sleeps late. The lad says her father has promised a fine dowry. The mother admits, "Your Peggy's better noo."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1894 (Murison collection, according to Lyle, _Fairies and Folk_)
KEYWORDS: love courting money dowry
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #37, p. 1, "Peggy in the Mornin'"; "Folk-Song in Buchan," pp. 37-38, "My Peggy" (2 texts)
Greig/Duncan5 1002, "Peggy in the Morning" (9 texts, 5 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 110, "Peggy in the Morning" (1 text)
Roud #5541
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Billy Grimes the Rover" (plot)
Note: Sort of a Scottish version of "Billy Grimes the Rover," with the sexes reversed. - RBW
In the Greig/Duncan5 versions Johnnie and Peggy marry and, in 1002B, "he's Peggy until his airms And made her the mither o' three bonny bairns." - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: Ord110
Peggy o' Greenlaw
DESCRIPTION: "I am a bold, undaunted youth, George Hewitt is my name... And there I had a sweetheart... My Peggy o' Greenlaw." But bad company pulls him away; he falls in love with another, marries her in haste, quickly becomes disillusioned, and regrets losing Peggy
AUTHOR: Alexander Shaw
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads)
KEYWORDS: love courting abandonment betrayal marriage
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 143, "Peggy o' Greenlaw" (1 text)
Roud #3949
File: Ord143

Peggy of the Moor
DESCRIPTION: "Come all you sporting young men and listen unto me, Come all you loyal lovers that live in unity...." The singer was one of many fascinated by Peggy of the Moor. A bold shoemaker will be successful with her. The singer wishes success to lovers
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love courting beauty drink
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H761, pp. 228-229, "Peggy of the Moor" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7979
NOTES [27 words]: It is not at all clear from the Henry text whether the singer is the "bold shoemaker" whose attention to Peggy will make all other lover's attentions "useless." - RBW
File: HHH761

Peggy on the Banks o' Spey
DESCRIPTION: The singer is enthralled by "Peggy on the banks o' Spey" bleaching her clothes. He thinks "she fain wad be my dearie." He imagines some night that he would "wed her frae her daddy O I'll kiss her ower and ower again And row her in my plaidie O"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: sex nonballad father clothes
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1131, "Peggy on the Banks o' Spey" (1 text)
Roud #6846
File: GrD61131

Peistie Glen, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer wanders by Peistie Glen and "imbibes meditation" urging him to "write measured words eulogizing" the place. He recalls the history of the place. Now the ship calls him away; he bids farewell to his home
AUTHOR: Frances Heaney ?
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: home emigration nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H654, pp. 170-171, "The Peistie Glen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9685
CROSS-REFERENCES:
Penal Servitude

DESCRIPTION: "I have just arrived from Australia, Where I have been for a change of air." He described the "jolly living" there "Where they feed you, and they clothe you Better than a working man or soldier." He tells his history and how he was transported

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Anderson-FarewellToOldEngland); Anderson dates his broadside c. 1830

KEYWORDS: crime travel transportation

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Anderson-FarewellToOldEngland, pp. 91-93 "Penal Servitude" (1 text)
Roud #V27681
File: AnFa091

Peninsula Pike, The

DESCRIPTION: "There's a railroad they call the Peninsula Pike -- Go get me the Bible and read it."
The singer describes the "two streaks of rust" that mark the ill-maintained railroad, which he claims was built immediately after the flood

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Ilwaco Tribune, according to Cohen)

KEYWORDS: train humorous

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 624-625, "The Peninsula Pike" (1 text)
File: CAFS2624

Penny Fair, The

DESCRIPTION: The Penny Fair drifts from the wharf. The crew are wakened and scramble to tie her up. Jack Lushman, on the ferry, not only sleeps through the hubbub but sleeps while the ferry runs aground. Everyone has a good laugh.

AUTHOR: Blanche Pink

EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)

KEYWORDS: sea ship ordeal

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 86, "The Penny Fair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #26967
File: LeBe086

Penny Wager, The

DESCRIPTION: A traveller with one penny in his pocket stakes his purse in a pub wager. He wins; when he asks the landlord's wife what he owes, she tells him to give her a kiss and go. (He rejoices that he has won the wager; otherwise he'd have had to sell his horse)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1845 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(3387))

KEYWORDS: wager travel gambling money landlord

FOUND IN: Britain(England(West)) Australia

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 280, "The Penny Wager" (1 text, 1 tune)
MacColl/Seeger- TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 115, "The Penny Wager" (1 text, 1 tune)
Pensioner's Complaint, The

DESCRIPTION: "You neighbours all listen, a story I'll tell." The Waterloo veteran has a pension of 18 pounds a year, and his wife takes too much of it. She drinks, she gossips, she does no work, leaving him cold and tired from his tasks. He wishes she were taken away

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Hammond MS.)
KEYWORDS: soldier money wife hardtimes
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, pp. 68-69, "The Pensioner's Complaint" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1663
NOTES [40 words]: Purslow suggests that this was originally meant to be sung to the "Limerick Rake" tune (also known as "Champion at Keepin' 'em Rollin'", "Champion at Driving 'Em Crazy," etc.). This seems likely, but it might also be "Arthur McBride." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: PCL68

People Are A-Coming, The

DESCRIPTION: "I hearkened in the east and I hearkened in the west, And I heard a fifing and a drumming, and my heart bobbed up... For I knew that the people were a-coming" to support Lincoln. New York political establishments and the South are worried

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales); probably composed for the election of 1860
KEYWORDS: political nonballad derivative
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, pp. 363-364, "The People Are A-Coming" (1 text)
Roud #V39414
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Jordan Am a Hard Road to Travel" (tune) and references there
NOTES [27 words]: Thompson says he does not know what tune this was sung to, but it is quite clear that the melody was "Jordan Am a Hard Road to Travel" or one of its variants. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2

File: TNY363

People Will Talk

DESCRIPTION: "We may get through the world, but 'twill be very slow, If we listen to all that is said as we go"; people shouldn’t get bogged down in worries and warnings even though people talk. So "the best way for you is to do as you please"

AUTHOR: Music: S. M. Grannis (source: New-Comic-Songster) EARLIEST DATE: 1870 (New-Comic-Songster)
Pera Lee

DESCRIPTION: Pera Lee's gone to the "worldly fair." She "ain't coming back no more"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1963 (MJHurt04)
KEYWORDS: courting separation travel nonballad
FOUND IN:
RECORDINGS:

Mississippi John Hurt, "Pera-Lee" (on MJHurt04)

Pere Marquette 18, The

DESCRIPTION: "Out through the piers at Ludington one dark September day, The Pere Marquette 18 steamed proudly on her way. Her captain, Peter Kilty, looked on his ship with pride," but the mate announces the ship is sinking. They call for help, but 28 drown
AUTHOR: Frank McCauley
EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (collected from Manus J. Bonner, brother-in-law of the Pere Marquette 18's captain, by Walton)
KEYWORDS: ship disaster death drowning technology
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 177-179, "The Pere Marquette 18" (1 text)
Roud #19834
NOTES [600 words]: Although this wreck is historical, there seems to be some uncertainty about the facts. I checked four sources: Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, Berman, Shelak, Thompson.
Berman's brief comment, p. 259, says merely that the Pere Marquette 18, 2090 tons, built 1902, foundered September 9, 1910, near Sheboygan, with the loss of 27 lives.
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors agrees with the tonnage and the date of sinking; it says that "more than two dozen" lives were lost, including Captain Peter Kilty. The ship foundered some twenty miles from Sheboygan. The remaining crew members were saved by the Pere Marquette 17, a sister ship.
The most detailed accounts are in Shelak and Thompson. Shelak, pp. 144-147, describes her as 338 feet long, with a beam of 56 feet and a draft of 20, and lists her as 2909 tons (it will be seen that this and Berman's figures are easy typographic variants of each other). The ship was a car ferry; there were reportedly 29 railroad cars aboard. The ship had been recently inspected, and the weather on her final voyage, though stormy, was not really extreme. Reportedly there were 62 passengers and crew, and two stowaways, aboard.
The voyage was a "routine cruise" from Ludington to Milwaukee. Shelak seems to say that the voyage began in the early morning of September 8, but gives no date for the actual sinking (though he claims the fatal leak was discovered around 3:00 a.m.)
When water started coming in, the first mate made an inspection and concluded it was "nothing more than a damaged deadlight or porthole cover." But the pumps could not handle the flooding. Not even pushing out nine of the loaded railroad cars could keep the ship afloat. Finally a distress call went out. The Pere Marquette 17 responded, but the 18 went down just before rescue operations could begin. Pere Marquette 6 and Pere Marquette 20 also arrived eventually. 33 passengers and crew were saved, but all officers were lost, and two crew from the Pere Marquette 17 died in the rescue attempts.
The cause of the disaster was never determined, but a likely culprit is the rear deck area where the railroad cars were loaded.
Thompson, p. 285, says "On September 9, 1911, the Pere Marquette Railroad's Pere Marquette 18 got caught out on the lake in a severe storm and began taking on water through a number of portholes that were smashed out by the pounding seas. When the pumps couldn't keep up with the incoming water and the stern of the ship continued to settle deeper in the seas, the captain had the radio operator send out a message in Morse code asking for help.
"The distress call was heard by the Pere Marquette 17, which arrived on the scene just as the flooded ferry sank.... CREWmembers from the Pere Marquette 17 managed to pull thirty-two people from the stormy waters. Twenty-seven others went down with the ship or drowned before rescuers could get to them."
Thompson has another account of the sinking, on page 27, which says that "many lives" were lost in the sinking, but 35 were saved. This passage gives the date as September 9, 1910, as in all the other sources. It seems clear that this is the correct date, but apparently the number killed and the number saved is slightly uncertain.
Thompson also says that this was the first rescue on the Lakes made possible by radio. (There had already been one on the high seas.) Radios were still optional equipment on boats, but the Pere Marquette railroad company had voluntarily installed radios on their ship, and in this case it paid off handsomely. - RBW

Bibliography

- Shelak: Benjamin J. Shelak, Shipwrecks of Lake Michigan, Trails Books, 2003
- Thompson: Mark L. Thompson, Graveyards of the Lakes, Wayne State University Press, 2000

Last updated in version 5.0
File: WGM177

Perigoo's Horse

DESCRIPTION: Lawyer Walter Perigoo visits Whalen's Inn and puts his horse in the stable. Local boys (led by Whalen's son?) cut off the horse's tail and paint it red, white, and blue. Perigoo eventually finds the disguised animal and threatens retribution
AUTHOR: George or John Calhoun?
EARLIEST DATE: 1971
KEYWORDS: horse trick lawyer humorous disguise
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Doerflinger - Songs Of The Sailor And Lumberman, pp. 266-268, "Perigoo's Horse" (1 text)
Roud #4165
NOTES [8 words]: This song is item dH48 in Laws's Appendix II. - RBW
File: Doe266b

Perry Allen

DESCRIPTION: "Merry little man with a twinkle in your eye, Indeed you hold my envy, and I will tell you why. I envy you the golden days that you have seen." The poet goes on to describe all the places Perry Allen has seen and the people he has met AUTHOR: George A. Belding (source: Beck-Lore Of The Lumber Camps)
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Beck-Lore Of The Lumber Camps)
KEYWORDS: nonballad lumbering recitation
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-Lore Of The Lumber Camps 118, "Perry Allen" (1 text)
Roud #18183
File: BeLo118

Persian's Crew, The [Laws D4]

DESCRIPTION: The Persian sets out [from Chicago] and disappears on Lake Huron. Since nothing is known of the wreck, the singer can only wonder at and lament the fate of the lost crew.
The mate, Daniel Sullivan, may be specially praised

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1877 (published as a poem in the Buffalo Express, according to Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors; the first traditional version appears to have been Dean's)

KEYWORDS: ship storm death

FOUND IN: US(MW) Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (12 citations):
Laws D4, "The Persian's Crew"
Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen, pp. 203-204, "The Persia's Crew" (1 text, 1 tune)
Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy 46, "The Persian's Crew" (1 text plus a fragment, 2 tunes)
Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra 46, "The Persian's Crew" (1 text plus a fragment, 2 tunes)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 29-30, "The Persian's Crew" (1 text)
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 191-194, "Lake Huron's Rockbound Shore (The Ill-Fated Persian)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, "The Persia's Crew" (1 text, 1 tune)
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 86, "Lake Huron's Rock-Bound Shore" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 99, "Lake Huron's Rock-Bound Shore" (1 text)
DT 677, PERSIACR

Sing Out magazine, Volume 33, #1 (1987), pp, 46-47, "Persia's Crew" (1 text, 1 tune, apparently the Stanley Baby version)
Roud #2230

RECORDINGS:
Stanley Baby, "The 'Persian's Crew" (on GreatLakes1)
John W. Green, "The Ill-Gated Persian" (1959; on WaltonSailors -- not the same as the text in Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors; it sounds as if two recordings have been combined due to Green's memory troubles)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Maggie Hunter" (subject, tune)
NOTES [806 words]: According to Beck, possibly composed by the daughter of Dan Sullivan, the Persian's first mate. - PJS
I suspect something rather more complicated, given the handful of melodies for this piece. Laws lists four versions with melodies, two in Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy and one in Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen. Rickaby's first, from Dean, is approximately "Tramps and Hawkers." His second, from Art C. Milloy, has a somewhat similar shape but but is mixolydian and not necessarily related. And Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen has yet another tune with similar shape but distinct tonal differences.

Perhaps some of the variations are due to the fact that so little is known about what actually happened, which might have inspired rewrites. According to Ratigan, p. 98, "the schooner Persia went down with all hands" in November 1869 (a memorable storm which also destroyed the Volunteer and other ships), and inspired a song" (presumably this). And yet, Berman, p. 257, does not even list the Persia as a Great Lakes shipwreck. He does note the screw steamer Persian (note the presence of the n at the end; the ship wrecked in 1869 was Persia, not Persian). The Persian burned near Long Point, Ontario, in August 1875. Long Point is in Lake Erie, not Lake Huron, but might it have contributed to some confusion? Parker, p. 147, says that a schooner Persian was lost in 1868, not 1869, by collision, and "sank off 40 mile Pt., 10 lives lost."

Norm Cohen's research (which I would imagine exceeds that of all the others listed here) says that the song was by Patrick Fennell, and that the ships involved were the Persian and the E. B. Allen. He wrote an article on the subject for the December 1969 New York Folklore Quarterly Fennell, who apparently appeared publicly as "Shandy Maguire," published a text in his book Recitations, Epics, Epistles, Lyrics and Poems, Humorous and Pathetic; this is, I believe, why Cohen cites him as the author. The book contains no background on the song, but it does seem to be an intact text; if it is not the original, it is very close. It is surprising to see the song go into tradition; Fennell wrote mostly about railroads, and frankly I wasn't very impressed by the other pieces of his in his book. Nor were publishers, apparently, since he had to self-publish.
I did find an item in The Railroad Trainmen's Journal, Volume VII, January to December 1890 (available on Google Books) about Fennell:

"Almost every reader of labor publications has read something from the pen of 'Shandy Maguire,' who, for many years past has furnished delightful entertainment for those who appreciate the music of words. But probably not all of them know that 'Shandy Maguire' is Patrick Fennell, a practical railroad man employed on the D. L. & W., and something about this railroad poet and his productions will be interesting and instructive to our readers. Mr. Fennell was born in Ireland in 1841, and became a resident of Oswego, N. Y., in 1849. In 1864 he began railroad life as a fireman on the Oswego & Syracuse and in due course of time became an engineer. After seven years' service at the throttle he was made Engine Dispatcher, which position he still holds. For the past nine years he has been Commissioner of the Common Schools of Oswego, and has served three terms as President of the Board of Education. Seventeen years ago Mr. Fennell appeared as a regular contributor to the Engineers' Journal, and as the advent of a real poet is a very unusual occurrence he at once attracted wide attention. In 1886 the demand for his productions justified the publication of a volume of four hundred pages, which was well received and has, we believe, reached its third edition."

Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors generally agrees with Cohen about the story of the Persian, saying that there was a "persistent rumor" that the Allen had had a collision, possibly with the Persian (the name it uses) in 1869. The crew of eight, including captain and owner John Long, came from Oswego, New York. According to them, Patrick Fennell wrote the poem under the pen name Shandy Maguire, but later published it under his own name. Solomon Foster, who contacted me to point out the Fennell book, notes that the wreck of the Persian that (presumably) collided with the Allen was found in 1991. An underwater image of the wreck shows what appears to be the mark of a collision between the two visible masts. - RBW

Northern Shipwrecks Database shows two Lake Huron shipwrecks outbound from Chicago. In November 1869 the Persia foundered in a storm. The comments are "See Persian 1868.09?" so the evidence is apparently questionable. The other entry, in September 1868 is for the Persian, bound for Oswego, a total loss and sunk after a collision. - BS

Bibliography

- Parker: Jack Parker, "Shipwrecks of Lake Huron... The Great Sweetwater Sea", Avery Color Studios, 1986 (I use the 1990 reprint)

Last updated in version 5.2

File: LD04

Personal Friend of Mine, A

DESCRIPTION: "It's easy to see she's not my mother, 'Cause my mother's 49. It's easy to see she's not my sister... It's easy to see she's not my sweetie, 'Cause my sweetie's too refined... She's just a personal friend of mine" who does not tell what they do together

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)

KEYWORDS: sex soldier courting nonballad

FOUND IN: Canada

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, p. 136, "A Personal Friend of Mine" (1 short text)

Roud #29416

File: Hopk136A

Pete Knight

DESCRIPTION: "Pete Knight was a rider of horses, The best that I ever did see, But often a life in the saddle Is not what it's cracked up to be." "Ten thousand fans saw him carried Away from the field and the horse."

AUTHOR: unknown
Pete Knight, the King of the Cowboys

DESCRIPTION: "List a while to my story 'Bout a lad from the wide open plain Who has won a great name the world over, Pete Knight of rodeo fame." Knight's success as a rider is detailed; the song ends with his marriage

AUTHOR: Wilf Carter (1937)

Pete Knight's Last Ride

DESCRIPTION: The singer reports "My whole life's full of heartaches and sighs... For I've just lost a pal, like a brother to me...." Expert rider Pete Knight falls and dies; the singer hopes to meet him "on that heavenly range"

AUTHOR: Wilf Carter

Pete Orman

DESCRIPTION: "I'll tell all you skinners from John Day to Bend That the road south o' Shaniko ain't got no bend." Pete Orman "never had time to get over the spree" but is sent out on the road. The drunken truckers (?) try to make a fast run.

Author: unknown

Earliest Date: 1953 (Tennessee Folklore Society Bulletin, according to Cohen)

Keywords: technology travel drink

Found In:

References: (1 citation):

*Cohen-American Folk Songs A Regional Encyclopedia 2, p. 638, "Pete Orman" (1 text)

File: CAFS2638

---

Peter Amberley [Laws C27]

Description: Peter Amberley leaves Prince Edward Island to go lumbering in New Brunswick. Fatally injured in a logging accident, he bids farewell to the father whose unkindness sent him away, to his mother, sweetheart, and home.

Author: John Calhoun (sometimes attributed to Larry Gorman)

Earliest Date: 1903

Keywords: logger death farewell father

Historical References:

- around Jan. 1881 - Peter Amberly is fatally wounded. He is eighteen years old, and has been in the woods less than a year

Found In: US (MA, NE) Canada (Mar, Newf, Ont)

References: (26 citations):

- *Laws C27, "Peter Amberley"
- *Doerflinger-Songs Of The Sailor And Lumberman, pp. 225-233, "Peter Emberley" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
- *Gray-Songs And Ballads Of The Maine Lumberjacks, pp. 63-69, "Peter Ambelay" (3 texts)
- *Beck-Folklore Of Maine, pp. 255-257, "Peter Amberley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-New Green Mountain Songster, pp. 115-117, "Peter Emery" (1 badly damaged text, 1 tune)
- *Greenleaf/Mansfield-Ballads And Sea Songs Of Newfoundland 164, "Peter Hembly" (1 text)
- *Fowke/Johnston-Folk Songs Of Canada, pp. 80-81, "Peter Amberley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Fowke/MacMillan-Penguin Book Of Canadian Folk Songs 27, "Peter Emberley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Creighton-Songs And Ballads From Nova Scotia 138, "Peter Rambelay" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Creighton-Folk Songs From Southern New Brunswick 118, "Peter Emberley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Pottie/Ellis-Folk Songs Of The Maritimes, pp. 102-103, "Peter Emberley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Guigné-Forgotten Songs Of The Newfoundland Outports, pp. 306-308, "Peter Emberley (Peter Hembly; Peter Amberley)" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Mackenzie-Ballads And Sea Songs From Nova Scotia 116, "Peter Amberlay" (1 text)
- *Dibblee-Dibblee-Folksongs From Prince Edward Island, p. 33, "Peter Emberley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Ives-Drive Dull Care Away-Prince Edward Island, pp. 235-236, 252-253, "Peter Emberly" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Ives-Folksongs Of New Brunswick, pp. 99-103, "Peter Emberley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Manny/Wilson-Songs Of Miramichi 38, "Peter Emberley" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-Folk Songs Of The Catskills 5, "Adieu to Prince Edward's Isle" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Linscott-Folk Songs Of Old New England, pp. 269-272, "Peter Emily" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Scott-The Ballad Of America, pp. 270-273, "Peter Emberly" (1 text, 1 tune)
- *Beck-Songs Of The Michigan Lumberjacks 9, "Peter Ambelay" (1 text)
- *Beck-Lore Of The Lumber Camps 31, "Peter Ambelay" (1 text)
- *Fowke-Lumbering Songs From The Northern Woods #36, "Peter Emery" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- *Barry/Eckstorm/Smyth-British Ballads From Maine pp. 258-264, "Mary Hamilton" (the "C" fragment actually comes from a text of this song rather than a version of "Mary Hamilton")
- *Darling-New American Songster, pp. 181-182, "Peter Emberly" (1 text)
- DT 608, PTRMBRLY PTRMBRL2
- *Roud #668

Recordings:

- *Omar Blondahl, "Peter Amberley" (on NFBlondahl04)
- *John Conners, "Peter Hennessey" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
- *Marie Hare, "Peter Emberley" (on MRMHare01)
- *Wilmot McDonald, "Peter Emberley" (on Miramichi1)
- *Pat Murphy, "Peter Amberley" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Peter and I Went Down the Lane

DESCRIPTION: "Peter and I went down the lane, down the lane (x2), Peter and I went down the lane, And sister came behind." Both sisters love Peter. "Sister was bending over the well When splash, splash in she fell." The survivor marries Peter; he abandons her

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan)
KEYWORDS: love courting death homicide betrayal sister
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 2, "The Two Sisters" (2 texts, 2 tunes; the "A" text is "Child #10, but the "B" text is this) {B=Bronson's #97}
Roud #8

NOTES [45 words]: Gardner and Chickering file this as a version of "The Twa Sisters," and certainly it appears to be the same plot. But the tune approximates "London Bridge," and the story is simplified. While it's probably built upon "The Twa Sisters," I'd call it a separate song. - RBW

File: C010A

Peter and Lizzie

DESCRIPTION: Peter Davidson is a poor miller. He and Lizzie are in love. Lizzie is to be married to a rich man. Peter dresses neatly and attends the wedding with ten men. The bridegroom had thirty, or fifty, but Lizzie leaves with Peter.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1911 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: courting elopement wedding
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #174, p. 2, "Peter and Lizzie"; #177, p. 3, "Peter and Lizzie" (1 text plus 4 fragments)
Greig/Duncan5 1031, "Peter and Lizzie" (2 texts)
Roud #6290

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Peter Davidson

File: GrD51031
Peter and Paul

DESCRIPTION: "One summer day it came to pass That Peter and Paul upon an ass" go up to "Jerusalem the Golden" to drink. They see a pretty barmaid, and hope to pursue an acquaintance (ahem) when a monastery bell rings; they hurry home to army camp

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe)

KEYWORDS: soldier drink bawdy

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe, pp. 23-26, "Peter and Paul" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Kathusalem (Kafoozelum) (II)" (form)

File: NiMo023

Peter Clarke

DESCRIPTION: Peter Clarke and Jimmy Clarke are stopped by a robber. Peter refuses to be robbed; rather than give up his valuables, he attacks the outlaw barehanded. The robber shoots Clarke, but Clarke has a hand on his throat. Clarke dies, but the robber is taken

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1960

KEYWORDS: outlaw fight death Australia

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 100-102, "Bold Peter Clarke" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ward-PenguinBookOfAustralianBallads, pp. 75-77, "Galant Peter Clarke" (1 text)

DT, PETECLRK

RECORDINGS:
John Greenway, "Peter Clarke" (on JGreenway01)

NOTES [91 words]: The facts about this case are a bit uncertain. Folklore does not give a name to the bushranger (unusual indeed in Australia!), and claims that Peter and Jimmy Clarke were unrelated.

John Greenway, however, reports that the two were brothers, and (along with their brother Acton and some others) were overtaken near Warland's Range by twenty-year-old Harry Wilson. (The time was April, 1864.) Wilson shot several members of the party, but could not release himself from Peter Clarke's dying grip. Wilson was tried and hung on October 4, 1864. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.5

File: MA100

Peter Coutt's Canis

DESCRIPTION: "Peter Coutts had seven bairns Nether sheet nor plaid upo' them, Ilka ane took up a neuk An' hauled on the canis o' them, Haul on, trail on, Peter Coutts's canis"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: farming harvest family clothes

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1884, "Peter Coutt's Canis" (1 text)

Roud #13570

NOTES [25 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 fragment. Greig/Duncan8: "Canis as you must know was the canvas on which the winnowing was done." - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD81884

Peter Fishing

DESCRIPTION: Peter catches a fish, which urges, "Take me home, Peter (x3), oh mah ding."
Peter takes it hom; the fish says, "Kill me now." Then, "Clean me now," "Salt me now," "Cook me now," "Eat me now," "I got you now!" (and Peter vanishes)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry, from Mrs. Walter Scott Jr.)

KEYWORDS: fishing food devil

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES:
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 221-222, "Peter Fishing" (1 text)

NOTES: Henry's informant said that Peter was punished by the Devil for fishing on a Sunday. I'd be inclined to say that listening to a dead fish wasn't too smart, either. - RBW

---

Peter Go Ring Them Bells

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Peter go ring them bells (x3), I heard from Heaven today (x3), Thank God, and I thank you to, I heard from heaven today." Verses: "I wonder where sister Mary (brother Moses, ...) has gone"(x3) "I heard from heaven today"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES:
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 204-205, "I Heard From Heaven To-day (Peter, Go Ring Dem Bells)" (1 text, 1 tune; pp. 174-175 in the 1874 edition)

Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 46, "Peter, Go Ring Them Bells" (1 text)

*Roud #12081

NOTES: Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute quotes Fenner's 1874 statement from J.M. Waddy: "A secret prayer-meeting song, sung by Thomas Vess, a blacksmith and a slave." - BS

*Last updated in version 6.0

File: Dett204

---

Peter Gray

DESCRIPTION: Peter Gray, of Pennsylvania, loves Lucy Annie Pearl. Her father sends her west; he considers suicide, but instead goes west himself and is scalped by Indians. She takes to her bed and dies. Chorus: "Blow ye winds of morning, blow ye winds heigh-o."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1859 (Duke University broadside, https://library.duke.edu/digitalcollections/hasm_cP478G/)

KEYWORDS: courting separation father Indians(Am.) death humorous

FOUND IN: US(So,SW) Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES:
Dime-Song-Book-2, p. 45, "Peter Gray" (1 text)

Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 252-253, "Peter Gray" (1 text, 1 tune)

Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 53, "Peter Gray" (1 text, 1 tune)

Greig/Duncan8 1897, "Peter Gray" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

Heart-Songs, p. 359, "Peter Gray" (1 text, 1 tune)

Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1870, p. 126, "Peter Gray" (1 reference)

Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 56, "Peter Gray" (1 text, 1 tune)

Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 240, "Peter Gray" (1 text)

New-Comic-Songster, p. 33, "Peter Gray" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, part III, p. 38, "Peter Gray" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peter Murphy's Little Dog

DESCRIPTION: This teasing song involves Murphy giving his girl friend a dog that wants to poke its nose into the woman's privates.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: bawdy dog humorous

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

