NOTES [97 words]: Civil war historian Bruce Catton says that, during the war, this piece was second in popularity only to "When This Cruel War Is Over" among the sad songs. After the war, when the defeatist tone of "Cruel War" made it seem less patriotic, "Tenting Tonight" came to be first in the veterans' hearts.
Walter Kittredge (born 1834) composed this song in 1863 while under the threat of the draft. As it turned out, he was rejected for ill health. Publishers at first rejected the song as not martial enough -- but then it was picked up by the Hutchinson Family, and the rest is history. - RBW
Teraksen Soitto (Song of Steel)

DESCRIPTION: Finnish. "Teraksen muokkaajat, lisaarvon tuattajat." "Makers of steel, producers of wealth, Have heard the music of steel." The workers consider it wrong to add to the wealth of the rich. Workers are called upon to unite

AUTHOR: Axel Simonen (source: Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)

EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends); reportedly written about 1930

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage labor-movement technology

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 451-453, "Teraksen Soitto (Song of Steel)" (1 Finnish text plus non-poetic English translation, 1 tune)
File: KPL451

Terence's Farewell to Kathleen

DESCRIPTION: "So, my Kathleen, you're going to leave me All alone by myself in this place." She is leaving Terence for England. He warns her against the deceitful men. He can't stop her going and when she returns "spaking such beautiful English" he "won't know" her

AUTHOR: Words: Helen Selina Blackwood, Lady Dufferin, Countess Gifford (1807-1867)

EARLIEST DATE: before 1860 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(3764))

KEYWORDS: courting separation England nonballad

FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 89, "Terence's Farewell to Kathleen" (1 text)
Vikár/Panagapka-SongsNorthWoodsSungByOJAbbott 52, "Terrence's Farewell" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 74, "Terence's Farewell" (1 text)

Roud #3826

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(3764), "Terence's Farewell", A. Ryle and Co. (London), 1845-1859; also Firth b.26(248), Harding B 26(638), Firth c.26(121), 2806 c.15(333), Harding B 11(3766), Harding B 11(3767), Firth c.13(267), Firth b.27(99), "Terence's Farewell"

LOCSinging, as113450, "Terence's Farewell to Kathleen", H. De Marsan (New York), 1859-1860; also sb40522b, "Terence's Farewell to Kathleen"

NOTES [57 words]: Broadside LOCSinging as113450: H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS

According to [no author listed], The Library of Irish Music (published by Amsco), the tune for this is "The Pretty Girl Milking Her Cow." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: OCon0889

Term Lilt

DESCRIPTION: The singer says her term is over. She's leaving and a new girl will replace her; in six weeks she'll be forgotten. He answers that before three weeks "I'll come and sen' and see ye"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: courting parting farming dialog nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1518, "Term Lilt" (1 text)
Roud #12947

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "O Bonny Sandy" (two verses)

NOTES [95 words]: Greig/Duncan8 (Greig quoting Bell Robertson): "Her mother said above was sung by girls when near a term and they were to flit. Thinks there had never been any more." That is significant because, as Greig/Duncan8 notes, these two verses are very close to two verses of "O Bonny Sandy" but "evidently had an independent life." If not for this statement I would have considered this a fragment of "O Bonny Sandy."
Seasonal hiring of servants and farm workers usually was for six months, beginning May and November, and the term day marked the end of the employment period. - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD81518

Terra Nova Regatta, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls the Terra Nova regatta the year the Prince of Wales brought over a picked crew that lost to the local fishermen. Everyone was at the party that followed, with dancing, drink, food, and "rousing fights with some hard cases"

AUTHOR: Johnny Burke (1851-1930)

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA-Leach)

KEYWORDS: fight violence sports dancing drink food music party moniker

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1860 - The Prince of Wales's visit to Newfoundland

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

ADDITIONAL: Johnny Burke (John White, Editor), _Burke's Ballads_, no printer listed, n.d. (PDF available on Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 34, "The Terra Nova Regatta" (1 text)
Johnny Burke (William J. Kirwin, editor), _John White's Collection of Johnny Burke Songs_, Harry Cuff Publications, St. John's, 1981, #72, pp. 112-113, "The Terra Nova Regatta" (1 text)

RECORDINGS:
Morris Houlihan, "Regatta" (on MUNFLA-Leach)

NOTES [466 words]: Ben Schwartz's description is based on the MUNFLA-Leach text, not the Johnny Burke original. They are without doubt the same song, but I have not compared them in detail.

According to O'Neill-Oldest, p. 339, the Prince of Wales (the future King Edward VII) visited Newfoundland in 1860: "The Prince of Wales... was a guest at the 1860 Regatta and he offered a hundred pounds to the winners of the Fishermen's Race. Pedley writes that the prince 'gratified the fishermen by honouring their regatta with his presence and the wives of some of them still more, by going away from the holiday spectacle to examine the fishing stages in Quidi Vici, so as to learn something of the avocations of ordinary life.' Strangely enough, after this royal visit, there was not another regatta for eleven years." Edward apparently came back in 1870; there were reports that he fathered a child (p. 375).

O'Neill-Seaport, p. 689, reports of the 1860 visit, "The chambers of the Colonial Building were decorated with pink, white, and green bunting for a public ball in his honour," and adds on p. 525, "It was reported in the press that the feast encompassed '...all procurable delicacies from New York and such [sic.] wines including best claret and twelve dozen of champagne.' The cost for a ticket the the prince's dance and supper was fifteen shillings for gentlemen, seven shillings for ladies" -- an incredible price for Newfoundland at the time.

Major, p. 273, says that Protestants and Catholics, who were often in conflict in Newfoundland (sometimes violent), "came together in the summer... on the shores of Quidi Vidi Lake in what is the oldest continuous sporting event in North America -- the annual St. John's Regatta.... The regatta gained increasing prestige, enhanced by a visit from the Prince of Wales (the future Edward VII) in 1860. Newfoundlanders have always been keen on royalty (Catholics as well as Protestants), and when the prince made a circle of the lake by carriage, he was met with prolonged and lusty cheering from the assembled crowds, capped by the presentation of a Newfoundland dog.... [It] was presented as 'Avalon' [after the Avalon peninsula where St. John's was located?], though the prince chose to rename him 'Cabot' [presumably after the explorer credited with discovering Newfoundland]."

I find no record of Edward racing a crew of Newfoundlanders; merely of him awarding a prize in their race. Colton, p. 24, admits, "Whether Burke may have embellished the facts of the race under the guise of creative license is a matter of conjecture; however, there can be little doubt as to which boat he was cheering for.... Expressions of national identity are pervasive in Burke's more serious songs."

For a brief biography of Burke, see the notes to "The Kelligrew's Soiree." - RBW

Bibliography

• Colton: Glenn Colton, "Imagining Nation: Music and Identity in Pre-Confederation
Terra Nova Seal Fishing

DESCRIPTION: "Ye talk o' this, and talk o' that... But list taw me -- I ken ye weel Wad like tae hear aboot the seal." The singer describes the difficulties of sailing north to the ice, the difficulties of killing adult seal; he ends by describing the types of pelts

AUTHOR: Robert Brown

EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Harbour Grace Standard)

KEYWORDS: hunting ship nonballad recitation

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, pp. 27-28, "Terra Nova Seal Fishing" (1 text)
Roud #V44632

NOTES [244 words]: "Terra Nova" was one of the old names for Newfoundland, home of the great seal hunt. There was also a Newfoundland ship, the Terra Nova; see "The Terra Nova."
The description of seals in this song is about right; the harp seal (Phoca groenlandica) -- the main target of the seal hunt, because they were easy to kill -- had a white coat in its early days, and the sealers came out in mid-march because this was when the whitecoats were young and unable to flee off the ice (Busch, pp. 42-44).
The hooded seal, or "hood," (Cystophorq cristata) was larger and more dangerous (Busch, p. 45); although sealers would take one if they found one, they did not generally attack or seek "hoods." It was the "hoods" that offered the "great resistance" described in the song; baby "harps" made little attempt to flee death, and their mothers didn't make any real attempts to defend them.
Bedlamers are second year seals, not yet fully mature but able to care for themselves -- sort of the seal equivalent of teenagers. The title is a description of age; a bedlamer may be either a "harp" or a "hood." The origin of the name is uncertain; some connect it with "bedlam," because they create bedlam, others with French "bête de la mer," "beast of the sea" (Young, p. 33; StoryKirwinWiddowson, p. 37, prefer the "bedlam" sense, and first cite the term from 1766. Their second meaning, "bedlamer [boy]," refers to a youth approaching manhood; it is not attested prior to 1896). - RBW

Bibliography

- Young: Ron Young, Dictionary of Newfoundland and Labrador, Downhome Publishing Inc., 2006

Terra Nova, The

DESCRIPTION: "One Monday morning March the tenth, it opened fine and clear." "Slob ice" was to be seen, but Captain Kean still takes the Terra Nova sealing. Blocked by a pan, three men die before they escape. The song describes the three dead men

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1967 (collected from Norman Payne by Halpert & Fiander)
KEYWORDS: hunting ship death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1924 - The deaths of the three sailors
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, p. 98, "The Terra Nova" (1 text)
Roud #V44877
NOTES [2799 words]: "Terra Nova" was one of the old names for Newfoundland, so little wonder to find a Newfoundland ship by that name!
I don't know how many sealers were given the name _Terra Nova_ over the centuries; at least one small one sailed from Conception Bay in 1833 (Ryan-Ice, p. 475), one was lost in the ice in 1862 (Galgay/McCarthy, p. 102), and there was a later motor vessel MV _Terra Nova_ (Ryan/Drake, p. 82), plus a former ferry named _Maneco_ was renamed _Terra Nova_ and sent to the ice in 1963-1964 (Candow, p. 112), but none of these left much of a mark in the historical record. There is no doubt about which _Terra Nova_ was the most famous; spending almost sixty years in various tasks mostly around Newfoundland. Feltham, p. 132, declares her "undoubtedly the most famous of all the wooden steamers that were built to prosecute the Newfoundland seal fishery." It shows in the number of books about her, of which the most complete is probably Tarver's -- although that is mostly about her polar exploration trips; those interested in her time as a sealer will surely find it somewhat limited (this cuts both ways; England's book about one of her sealing voyages is surely the most detailed account of such a voyage ever written, but you'd think he'd never heard of the ship's polar history). The full title of Tarver's book is _The S. S. Terra Nova (1884-1943): From the Arctic to the Antarctic, Whaler and Polar Exploration Ship_, 2006. There is also Edward Adrian Wilson's _Diary of the Terra Nova Expedition to the Antarctic_, which of course ends with Wilson's death in 1912 as part of Scott's expedition, and England's book, which describes several weeks he spent aboard her in the 1920s. Sadly, most of her logbooks seem to have been lost; they were likely destroyed when the Liverpool offices of her owner Bowring's were bombed in World War II (Tarver, p. 188).
Built in 1884 (Paine, p. 509) in Dundee (Ryan/Drake, p. 29), at a cost of 16,000 pounds (Archibald, p. 66), she was the very last whaler built in Dundee (Archibald, p. 105); her builders Alexander Stephen and Co., the greatest builders of steam whalers, closed up shop after that and moved to the banks of Clyde to build ships of other types -- presumably because 1885-1886 saw a big decline in whales taken (Watson, p. 93); the industry had so depleted the fishery that there weren't enough whales to justify more ships.
The _Terra Nova_ began her career as a Newfoundland-based sealer in 1885 (O'Neill. p. 964). At 450 tons, she was one of the largest sealers of the time (Ryan-Ice, p. 150; Tarver, p. 26, gives her as 744 gross tons; similarly Watson after p. 84, who says she was 740 tons, but that's a different measure. He cites a newspaper which claimed she could carry 40,000 seal pelts). In 1903, her ability as an icebreaker had caused her to be sent to rescue Robert Scott's _Discovery_ expedition; at the time, she was called "the roughest and toughest icebreaker to be had" (O'Neill, p. 964). Certainly her 140 horsepower engine (Feltham, p. 132) exceeded that of most other sealers of her age.
Archibald, p. 197, says, "Known familiarly as 'Novey', _Terra Nova_ was the last Dundee built whaling ship and arguably the best. She was built to replace the successful whaling ship _Thetis_, which had been sold to the United States Government. All the skill and experience of the previous two decades of whaling ship construction created what was undoubtedly a superb example of an Arctic-worthy hunting vessel.... _Terra Nova_ was a fast ship, with a record passage of 11 days on her maiden voyage from Dundee to St. John's in February 1885." (This implies that she could sustain a speed of about ten knots, give or take, over that long voyage, which is indeed a pretty good clip for a whaler although, even in 1885, it would have been regarded as slow for a passenger ship. Little wonder she was racing the _Polynia_ in "The Old Polina.")
Similarly Greene, p. 53, declares that "The finest, if not the largest of [the wooden-walled sealers], were named the _Terra Nova_ and the _Neptune_ -- each of them having for many springs their fighting claims to be the Commodore of the Fleet's command."
From 1885 to 1898, the _Terra Nova_ worked for her builders. Yet she was not a financial success as a whaler; she is said to have lost more than 12,000 pounds in 1896-1897 alone (Watson, p. 137), after which she was sold to Bowring Brothers, the leading Newfoundland sealing firm. In later years, she was purchased by the British Admiralty in 1903 to rescue the _Discovery_ in Antarctica, then went on an arctic rescue trip; she went back to sealing in 1906 (Ryan/Drake, p. 29; Tarver, pp. 58-59). She had a relatively bad year at the seal fishery in 1908, and was significantly damaged (with her bows pierced and her rudder broken, plus she ran out of coal), but she made it home (Winsor, p. 63)

Her work in Antarctica so impressed Robert Scott that he bought her in 1909 (Feltham, p. 132) so that, in 1910, he could take her to Antarctica on his last expedition (Paine, p. 510; O'Neill, pp. 964-965; Tarver, p. 65, says that she was the "obvious next choice" once it was clear that Scott's old ship the Discovery was not available. Indeed, she was probably a better choice, given that the Discovery, although well suited for scientific work, had been badly designed and constructed for dealing with ice; Larson, pp. 115-116). After the end of Scott's expedition, Bowring's, the company that had sold her to the British government, took her back (it had been agreed when she was sold that Bowring's would have the option to do so; Keir, p. 203) and returned her to the sealing fleet; she took part in the attempt to rescue the survivors of the Florizel in 1917 (see the notes on "The Wreck of the Steamship Florizel"; also O'Neill, p. 962, or Brown, pp. 184-185, 192, 205-207).

It will perhaps tell you something about what sealing steamers were like that England on several occasions said that the Terra Nova was such a mess that she should be scrapped (after all, she had already been leaky at the time of Scott's voyage more than a decade earlier; Riches, p. 4), but that sealer Wilfred Andrews, who sailed on her somewhat after England did, said that she was a good ship still (Ryan-Last, p. 112) -- at least compared to the other wooden steamers he sailed in.

She underwent a rebuild in 1938, mostly to repair all the damage she had taken over the years (although her woodwork was found to be in surprisingly good shape for a ship that was half a century old), but while they were at it, they moved her bridge forward of her funnel (Tarver, pp. 187-188), which surely made her a better ship. She lasted until World War II. Her last year as a sealer was 1941; after that, because so few ships were available for dealing with the ice, she was chartered into service carrying freight to Greenland (Feltham, p. 139; Tarver, p. 189; Riches, p. 6). On May 28, 1943 (so O'Neill, p. 965) or May 29 (so Tarver, pp. 189-190), she left St. John's with a cargo intended for American bases in Greenland. (The discrepancy in dates may have arisen because her captain Llewellyn Lush seems to have later mis-stated when she sailed; see Tarver, p. 193.) She was damaged in the ice, and although she made it to Greenland, there was no suitable dock there (Tarver, p. 193). Although she had been partly repaired, she began to leak badly on her way home in September -- with water interfering with power to the pumps, so she couldn't be kept dry. She sank on September 13, 1943 (Feltham, p. 139 says September 12; O'Neill, p. 966, says it was September 14, but Tarver, p. 189, has a September 13 report describing her loss, and p. 225 prints the Atak's September 13 log entry of her sinking). The crew was rescued by the USCGS Atak, which then shelled her to hasten her end (Tarver, pp. 189-191); witnesses disagree on whether she was on fire when she went down. There is a map of her final voyages on p. 190 of Tarver.; Riches, p. 7, has a (tiny) photo of the Atak.

Tarver, pp. 242-244, has portions of Bowring's balance sheet for 1943; it lists the Terra Nova as a total loss (naturally) and lists her value as $12,500. The only other sealer still on their books, Eagle, was listed at $8000, but that was a depreciated value -- they had listed her at $11,500 at the start of 1943. Presumably the Terra Nova was also being depreciated; she was insured for $60,000. Terra Nova was rented for $4,899.76 in 1943, so she was earning money faster than she was being depreciated, at least.

The wreck of the ship was found off Greenland in 2012. Riches, p. 37, has two small underwater photos of the wreck. They don't look like anything except a few bright spots to me, but reportedly they show that she really was consumed by fire. I do not know if there has been any follow-up. I hope there will be; if any ship in Newfoundland history deserves a to be remembered and maintained, it is the Terra Nova.

Her final tally as a sealer was more than 850,000 pelts, making her third all-time (Watson, p. 177), behind the Neptune (the only ship to take over a million seals) and the Ranger. Much of that was due to their longevity (those three ships and the Eagle were the last four sealing steamers), but the Terra Nova was newer than Neptune and Ranger by a dozen years, so she was probably the most successful while she lasted.

Because of her long and distinguished service, it's easy to find photos of her; Tarver is of course full of them, and on p. 66 has a plan of her layout as she was modified for the Scott expedition (a substantial refit -- e.g. all her blubber tanks were taken out, and much work was done to clean out the stinks that pervaded all wooden sealers; Tarver, pp. 68-69). Tarver, pp. 210-223, also reproduces a description of the rebuild, although he notes enough historical inaccuracies that I'm not sure it should be cited. PontingEtAl also includes dozens of photos of the ship, although all are during Scott's expedition and all show her after her rebuild. Nonetheless several of them show just how crowded she was during Scott's expedition -- and she carried far fewer men on that trip than on her sealing cruises, although much space was given over to cargo, dogs, and ponies, so perhaps she was almost as crowded in 1910 as when Abram Kean was her commander. Keir, facing p. 204, O'Neill, p. 942, Paine, p. 510, and Ryan/Drake, p. 29, all show images of her in the Antarctic. (According to the caption to the O'Neill photo, that image "has become the logo of her owners, Bowring Brothers") Feltham, p. 180, has two pictures of her, one in port, one in the ice. Ryan-Ice, p. 149, also has a picture of her in the ice; so does Greene, facing p. 156. Chafe, facing p. 60, shows her frozen in at St. John's; Ryan/Drake, p. 52, shows her crew in 1934 preparing to blast her out. England, facing p. 180, has what is surely the first-ever aerial photo of her. Watson, after p. 84, has a photo in which she looks so clean that I almost wonder if it was a publicity shot, and after p. 148 has a picture of her with an inset image of Scott. Kean, facing page 1, also has a photo; so does Winsor, p. 63. Plus Australia issued a stamp of her in as an explorer (far too clean to be real), and there is also an Isle of Man commemorative series of Scott's expedition.

Other items in the Index which mention the Terra Nova include "The Sealer's Song (II)," "A Sealer's Love Letter," "Arctic Ice and Flippers," and "The Old Polina"; in the latter, she races the Polina to St. John's -- interesting in light of the comment that the Terra Nova was an unusually fast whaler. Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff treat a mention of "Terra Nova" in "Au Revoir To Our Hardy Sealers" as a reference to her as well, but it appears to me to be a reference to Newfoundland. "A Noble Fleet of Sealers" also refers to a ship Terra Nova, but this appears to be the MV Terra Nova rather than the SS Terra Nova.

There were several Captains Kean, patriarch Abram and his sons (for Abram Keen, see "Captain Abram Kean"), two of whom at one time or another commanded the Terra Nova; according to Feltham, p. 134, A[bram] Kean was her skipper in 1906-1908, 1917-1926, and 1932-1933; and W[estbury] Kean, 1927 -- but the fact that the song sees no need to distinguish which one is meant strongly implies that Abram is meant. Abram Kean wrote of what appears to be this particular incident in his biography (p. 58, and again on p. 92 in a discussion of raftering ice), although I would take his version with enough salt to supply his entire crew -- he calls it the "only accident" of his sealing career, which flatly ignores the Newfoundland Disaster. Tarver, pp. 165-166, summarizes and amplifies his account by saying that, in 1924, the sealing fleet, including Kean in the Terra Nova, set out from St. John's and almost immediately found themselves in ice. Men often went out on the ice to haul or cut a path as shipspushed through the pack (Ryan/Drake, p. 50, has a photo of sealers pulling the Southern Cross out of St. John's in just this way), and as this was happening, three men fell through a "deceitful pan" and drowned. It took the Terra Nova two days to get through the ice outside St. John's to start their trip to where the seals were.

Ryan-Last, p. 445, lists the names of the three men: David Whelan, Maurice Breen, and Hubert Hiscock.

According to Rosenberg, p. 86, the sealers admired his drive but were bothered by how he failed to care about his men. They wanted a "skipper [who] was concerned for their safety. It is in this quality that the sealers found Abram Kean lacking, but interestingly, it is not Kean's role in the Newfoundland disaster which earned him the animosity of the sealers." Rather, it was this event. "He kept backing down and butting ahead at the ice until the ship finally broke free. When this happened, thirty or forty men went into the water: '... he lost three men dere. And he didn't seem to trouble any more about 'em. After he had the rolls called, he saw ther was three men missin, an' that was it. He went on then. Didn't trouble any more about it. He was a hard old dog.' Another man... adds, 'And we knew nothing about it. He never even put the flag at half mast, an' he never came back, he went on'" (Rosenberg, pp. 86-87).

This incident was apparently legendary among sealers -- it was well enough known that the details became blurred; Thomas Hayden, e.g., recalled that five men died, not just three (Ryan-Last, p. 300); Roy Keel thought there were just two (Ryan-Last, p. 302); William Lowe recalled three dying out of two hundred who were hauling, but thought it took a week, not just two days, to get through the ice in the St. John's Narrows (Ryan-Last, p. 402). Jesse Codner, who sailed under Kean, also appears to refer to this incident in calling Abram Kean "an old bastard": "He drowned men, sure, and everything. He drowned them there in the Narrows, hauling them out through on the line, left the blood on the ice where the fellows went and got you in the blades. All blood on the water and ice and everything. He got away with that" (Ryan-Last, p. 149). Jack Boone's version was that Kean "runned over and cut up men in the Narrows going out. They were out on the line hauling her. They bust through and he steamed on over them" (Ryan-Last, p. 297).

Wilfred Tucker also described the incident: Kean "sung out for us to get a line and put to her quarter and try to twist her head out of the bay.... So all the crew got on the line and down went 10 or 15 men in a hole together. Most of them held on to the line, and them men on the outside pulling, pulled them out, but some of them let go and three were lost. We all came on board and we called the roll and there were three men missing. We stayed around and couldn't find nothing, and then went on" (Ryan-Last, p. 237).

It will perhaps tell you something about Kean that he spent as about much space boasting about the seals he took soon after the incident as he did describing the death of three men (Tarver, p. 168, has the text, which is mostly from the account Kean gave on p. 92). Kean, p. 43, has what appears to be another allusion to the incident, in which he describes politicians saying that it wasn't his fault. (And certainly things like this happened a lot in sealing expeditions). But Kean, p. 48, says that, without telling him, his parliamentary allies removed his name from the parliamentary ballot for that year. Kean was the most successful sealer of all time, and the Terra Nova was the ship probably most associated with him, but he had absolutely no sympathy for his sailors or their lives, and it probably hurt his political career. - RBW

Bibliography

• Brown: Cassie Brown, A Winter's Tale, Doubleday Canada Ltd., 1992
• Candow: James E. Candow, Of Men and Seals: A History of the Newfoundland Seal Hunt, Canadian Parks Service, Environment Canada, 1989
• Chafe: Levi George Chafe, Chafe's Sealing Book: A History of the Newfoundland Seal Fishery from the Earliest Available Records Down To and Including the Voyage of 1923, third edition, Trade Printers and Publishers, Ltd., 1923 (PDF scan available from Memorial University of Newfoundland)
• England: George Allan England, Vikings of the Ice: Being the Log of a Tenderfoot on the Great Newfoundland Seal Hunt (also published as The Greatest Hunt in the World), Doubleday, 1924
• Feltham: John Feltham, Sealing Steamers, Harry Cuff Publications, 1995
• Greene: William Howe Greene, The Wooden Walls among the Ice Floes: Telling the Romance of the Newfoundland Seal Fishery, Hutchinson & Co, London (PDF available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site)
• Kean: Abram Kean, with a foreword by Sir Wilfred Grenfell, Old and Young Ahead, 1935; I use the 2000 Flanker Press edition edited and with a new Introduction (and new photographs) by Shannon Ryan
• Riches: Tony Riches, Terra Nova: Antarctic Explorer, Preseli Press, Ltd., 2012
• Rosenberg: James Scott, in Neil V. Rosenberg, editor, Folklore & Oral History (Paper from the Second Annual Meeting of the Canadian Aural/Oral History Association, at St. John's, Newfoundland, October 3-5, 1975), Memorial University of Newfoundland, 1978
• Ryan/Drake: Shannon Ryan, assisted by Martha Drake, Seals and Sealers: A Pictorial History of the Newfoundland Seal Fishery, Breakwater Books, 1987
• Tarver: Michael C. Tarver, The S. S. Terra Nova (1884-1943), Pendragon Maritime Publications, 2006
• Winsor: Naboth Winsor, Stalwart Men and Sturdy Ships: A History of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery by the Sealers of Bonavista Bay North, Newfoundland, Economy Printing Limited, 1985
Terrell

DESCRIPTION: "Terrell was born near Gore, my boys, A place you all know well." He grows up to be a rambled and is sent to prison. He is said to have killed the Weldon Family. His parents pray for his release. Hearers are warned against "spite or jealousy"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2010 (Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection)
KEYWORDS: prison rambling father mother

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1878 - 18-year-old Bill Terrell convicted of the murder of three members of the Weldon Family (source: Grimes). The song does not explicitly mention the murder but says Terrell was accused of it
1884 - Terrell dies in prison of tuberculosis

FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 86, "Terrell" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
File: Grim096

Terrible Privateer, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer's ship Terrible sails from Plymouth and is intercepted by the Valance. The fight continues until "our captain and our men being slain, We could no longer the fight maintain." Twenty-seven are held in prison until "the Cartel did fetch us away"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1891 (AStton-Sailor)
KEYWORDS: battle prison rescue death sea ship sailor

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ashton-RealSailorSongs, #30, "The Terrible Privateer" (1 text)
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 45, "A Sea Song" (1 text)
Roud #9381
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth c.12(18)[some words illegible], "The Terrible Privateer" ("You sailors all of courage bold"), printer barely legible but probably J. Pitts, Seven Dials, (n.d. but if it is by Pitts it must be from before 1844)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Captain Death" (subject)
cf. "Captain Coulston" (plot)
cf. "Warlike Seaman (The Irish Captain)" (plot)
cf. "The Dolphin" (plot)
cf. "The French Privateer" (plot)
NOTES [225 words]: There seem to have been at least two songs about this incident, this one and one called "Captain Death." Both appear on the same semi-legible Bodleian broadside, and they are printed together in the Publications of the Navy Records Society by C. H. Firth available on Google Books (p. 204 in the print copy; p. 335 of the Google Books PDF file). Logan, The Pedlar's Pack, prints another text of "Captain Death" on pp. 30-31. According to the online book How Britannia Came to Rule the Waves, by W. H. G. Kingston, this refers to an incident of the Seven Years' War. The Terrible, 26 guns, commanded by Captain Death (really! -- though his true name seems to have been "Osborn"), had already taken one prize, but had suffered in the fight and was defeated by another privateer, the Vengeance of St. Malo; Death and half his crew were killed in the battle.
The story of the Terrible so aroused the British that a subscription was raised which eventually bought the freedom of the remaining privateers.
Logan's version of the legend is even more amazing than that of the broadsides: The Terrible "was equipped at Execution Dock, commanded by Captain Death. The appellation of his Lieutenant was Devil, and the surgeon's name was Ghost.." Logan does note that Ritson thought this catalog of coincidences "entirely void of foundation." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.4

File: BdTerPri

Terrier Dog, The

DESCRIPTION: The terrier pup has a distinguished career of extreme viciousness -- until it encounters an oversized cat. The pup's owner, seeing his dog killed, demands satisfaction of the cat's owner. She shoots him; though cured, he "never... raise[d] another pup."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1870
KEYWORDS: animal dog fight death
FOUND IN: US(MA,SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 123, "The Terrier Dog" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST FSC123 (Partial)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Terrier Pup
File: FSC123

Terry Toole's Cabbage

DESCRIPTION: "Torbay boys and did ye hear..." a goat got into Terry O'Toole's cabbage. Terry stabbed it to death and the boys dressed it "on the sly." They chipped in for the $3.50 fine.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: animal food punishment
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, p. 100, "Terry Toole's Cabbage" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9958
RECORDINGS:
Ned Rice, "Terry Toole's Cabbage" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Moose Song" (plot)
NOTES [8 words]: Torbay is about seven miles north of St John's - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: Pea100

Testament, The

DESCRIPTION: "Farewell my wife, my joy in life, I freely now do give thee My whole estate" which is very meager: a piece of soap, a frying pan, a broken pail, greasy hat, old tom cat.... "Don't cry ... Another spouse comes by-and-by, with money in his breeches"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: poverty bequest lastwill death humorous nonballad husband wife
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 702, "The Testament" (1 text)
Roud #6118
File: GrD3702

Teuchar Howe

DESCRIPTION: Singer says he'll never see the like of the Teuchar Howe girl he loves "and dearly she lo'es me": "her fortune's in her face sae fair." He would rather a "lass wi' a hert sincere" to "them wha wed for gear ... Their siller ... soon will wear awa"
Texarkana Mary

DESCRIPTION: "Wo, Texarcana (Ida/Mary), holl'rin, Wo, Lord. Wo, Texarkana Ida, Godamighty, God knows." "Won't you help me to call 'em." "I'm goin' crazy in the bottom." "Oh, Mary got married." "She married old Raymond." "Tell me, who is that devil?"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (recorded from Jesse Hendricks by Jackson)
KEYWORDS: prison work separation marriage hardtimes
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Jackson-WakeUpDeadMan, pp. 265-267, "Texarkana Mary" (2 texts, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Godamighty Drag" (lyrics)

NOTES [100 words]: As with so much else in Jackson, it is hard to tell where one song ends and the next begins. Jackson lumps two texts together here, splitting them from the song he calls "Godamighty," even though he admits that the "B" text of "Texarkana Mary" (which never mentions Texarkana or Mary) stands between the two songs. I could make a case for filing this "B" text with that song, or lumping the whole bunch -- or splitting this and "Godamighty" into at least four songs. But because the whole thing is such a mess, I've followed Jackson's split, except that I lumped the various "Godamighty" songs. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4
File: JDM265

Texas

DESCRIPTION: "We'll travel on together Till you and I must part, So fare you well, my honey, my love, I love you to my heart." The singer says he will die when they are parted; and rejoices when she returns; "We'll travel on together... We'll settle down in Texas."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi)
KEYWORDS: love courting separation reunion playparty home
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 156, pp.301-302, "Texas" (1 text)
Hudson-FolkTunesFromMississippi 40, "Texas" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

Roud #4510
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Now, My Friends, Our Meeting Is Over" (lyrics)

File: Hud156

Texas Cowboy (I), The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you Texas cowboys and warning take by me, Don't go out to Montana for wealth or liberty." The cowboy has worked in all sorts of places, but Montana is colder, you can only work (and so get paid) for six months a year, the food is bad, etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (The Glendive Independent)
KEYWORDS: cowboy work hardtimes warning
Texas Cowboy (III), The
DESCRIPTION: "With a sort of careless swagger, with a movement half a stagger... Is the way the Texas cowboy seems in town." Most of the rest of the song describes how the cowboy responds to various situations
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1884 (broadside)
KEYWORDS: cowboy
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 35, "Cowboy Boasters" (5 texts, 2 tunes; this is the "D" text)
Roud #11216
File: FCS035D

Texas Gambler, The
DESCRIPTION: "I was borned and raised in Texas, And did not come to fame, A gambler by profession, C. W. King by name." The singer, who "did not like to work," wanders and finds himself at a "country singing. He meets a red-headed girl who "fit the bill."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida)
KEYWORDS: work gambling rambling courting
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #18, "The Texas Gambler" (1 text)
Roud #5015
NOTES [38 words]: Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida's song seems to end in the middle, with the singer apparently about to either marry the girl or suffer some indignity at her hands. Since no other texts are known, we will probably never know which. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.7
File: Morr018

Texas Heroes
DESCRIPTION: "We lay the crown of memory Upon the place of rest Where noble heroes lie sleeping..." "Then strike the harp for those who fought for freedom long ago. At San Jacinto and the Mier and the blood-stained Alamo." Lists sites of battles for Texas independence
Texas Idol, A

DESCRIPTION: "I'm a buzzard from the Brazos on a tear, hear me toot!" The people call him "a pirate from the pampas." He lovingly describes how he abuses and flouts the law in various small towns.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1884 (Kansas Cowboy)
KEYWORDS: cowboy outlaw police
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 35, "Cowboy Boasters" (5 texts, 2 tunes; this is the "B" text)
Roud #11215
File: FCW025B

Texas Jack

DESCRIPTION: The singer will "try to tell you the reason why we are bound to roam." The singer was part of a caravan that was attacked by Indians. Only he and two other children were saved by Texas Jack. Brought up among cowboys, he knows no other life.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905
KEYWORDS: death battle Indians(Am.) rescue family
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 44, "Texas Jack" (1 text, 1 tune) DT, TEXASJCK*
Roud #11211
File: FCW044

Texas Rangers, The [Laws A8]

DESCRIPTION: The singer has left family and girlfriend to join a troop that finds itself fighting Indians. Many of the whites are killed; the singer describes the fight and what he left behind.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1874
KEYWORDS: battle Indians(Am.) warning army Civilwar fight violence war mother sister soldier
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 21, 1861 - First battle of Bull Run/Manasses fought between the Union army of McDowell and the Confederates under Johnston and Beauregard. (There was a second Bull Run battle a year later, but "Come All Ye Southern Soldiers" probably refers to this one, since it's the soldier's first battle)
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW,NE,NW,Ro,SE,So) Canada(Newf,Ont)
REFERENCES (42 citations):
Laws A8, "The Texas Rangers" (sample text in NAB, pp. 37-38)
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 336-339, "Texas Rangers" (3 texts plus plus mention of 5 more, 1 tune)
Randolph 177, "The Texas Rangers" (3 texts plus 2 fragments, 2 tunes)
Abrahams/Riddle-ASingerAndHerSongs, pp. 14-15, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 150, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 161-163, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #155, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart1 34, "Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 130, "Come, All Ye Roving Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 95, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text plus mention of 2 more)
Stout-FolksongFromIowa 84, p. 106, "The Texas Rangers" (1 fragment)
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 352-354, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 20, "The Texas Rangers" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 226-228, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text plus 1 excerpt, 1 tune)
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 105, "Western Ranger" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-HeritageBookOfBallads, pp. 138-139, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol1, pp. 44-46, "Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, pp. 31-32, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 63, "War Song" (1 text)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 73, "The Texas Ranger" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 179, "Come all ye Southern Soldiers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 53, "The Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, p. 23, "Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, pp. 134-135, "Texas Rangers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cliff Carlisle of WLAP, "T For Texas" (Gennett 7206/Supertone 9651 [as Amos Green], 1930)
Cartwright Brothers, "Texas Ranger" (Victor V-40198, 1930; Bluebird B-5355/Montgomery Ward M-4460/Sunrise S-3436, 1934; rec. 1929; on AuthCowboys, WhenIWas1, StuffDreams2)
Leo Gooley, "The Texas Rangers" (on ONEFowke01)
Sloan Matthews, "The Texas Rangers" (AFS, 1940s; on LC28)
New Lost City Ramblers, "Texas Rangers" (on NLCR02)
Ernest Stoneman, "The Texas Ranger" (OKeh 45054, 1926; Ernest Stoneman [and Eddie Stoneman], "Texas Ranger" (Vocalion 026320)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Come All Ye Southern Soldiers" (words, structure, plot)
cf. "The Western Rangers" (derivative text)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Texas Soldier

NOTES [1161 words]: Laws lists this as a native American ballad, and in its current form, it certainly is. Belden and others, however, note many similarities to British ballads; it is likely an extensive reworking of some earlier piece. - RBW

Digital Tradition notes, "Probably a rewrite of a Civil War song." Bingo; it's almost word-for-word identical to "Come All Ye Southern Soldiers," with only names, places and enemies changed. - PJS

This particular case is rather a conundrum. Paul Stamler supplies this description of "Come All Ye Southern Soldiers," known primarily from collections by Sharp in the North Carolina mountains: "Singer joins the 'jolly band' to fight for the South; their captain warns that before they reach Manassas they'll have to fight. Singer hears the Yankees coming and fears for his life; the battle is bloody and several of his comrades are lost. Singer invokes mothers, sisters, and sweethearts, and warns prospective soldiers that 'I'll tell you by experience you'd better stay at home.'" That this is recensionally different from "Texas Rangers" is clear; I would normally agree with Paul in splitting the two. Laws, however, explicitly lumps them, and throws in Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida's "Longstreet's Rangers" (another song I would split if it were just me) and of course Roud lumps them also. Given how rare "Southern Soldiers" and "Longstreet's Rangers" are, I decided to do the same, although I would explicitly note that these texts are deliberate rewrites (Morris, for instance, splits "Longstreet's Rangers" from his two "Texas Rangers" versions).

To add to the fun, Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, p. 31, says of this that it is "Said to be the first important ballad of the Far West, 'Texas Rangers' became current about the time of the Battle of the Alamo (March 6, 1836) and made a great impression upon the whole country." But that's based on a Lomax story, so its reliability is dubious.

The "Longstreet's Rangers" version is especially interesting. It is clearly another Civil War version; not only does it mention "Longstreet" (Lt. General James Longstreet, Robert E. Lee's second-in-command for most of the time Lee led the Army of Northern Virginia), but it also says that the troops marched "from the Rappahannock Unto the Rapidan," This clearly places the song in the Civil War, probably in the period from late 1862 (Battle of Fredericksburg, when Ambrose Burnside failed to cross the Rappahannock) to early 1864 (Battle of the Wilderness, when Lee was finally forced from the Rapidan/Rappahannock region). Both the Battle of Chancellorsville and the Battle of the Wilderness were fought between the Rapidan and the Rappahannock, and there were countless raids in the region as well.

But there are a number of problems with this text (which Morris says originated in Ohio). One is the mention of "Longstreet's Rangers" itself. "Rangers," in a Civil War context, surely means cavalry (very possibly irregular cavalry), and James Longstreet served entirely with infantry, from the time he commanded a brigade at First Bull Run to the time he surrendered his corps at Appomattox. Nor did he raise a unit of rangers; he went directly from being a Union paymaster to being a Confederate Brigadier (Boatner, p. 490).

So what unit might have been meant? The first thing that came to my mind was "Mosby's Rangers." It scans like, and has the same vowels as, "Longstreet's Rangers" -- and "Mosby's Rangers" were a real unit, which fought on the Virginia front; John S. Mosby, a former lawyer, organized a group of partisans who came together to raid, then vanished back to their home (HTIECivilWar, p. 514). They were so effective that a part of Virginia came to be called "Mosby's Confederacy" (Boatner, p. 571), and fought off repeated attempts to destroy them -- they fought so well that Grant authorized the use of terror tactics to suppress them (HTIECivilWar, p. 514), but it didn't work. (It is ironic to note that Mosby and Grant later became friends, and Mosby supported Grant for President). Fans of Mosby have claimed that he prolonged the war by months by siphoning off so many troops who would otherwise have been able to attack Lee (Boatner, p. 571).

The problem with the Mosby hypothesis is that Mosby operated mostly in the Loudoun Valley area (Boatner, p. 571), far from the Rappahannock front; it's actually north and west of Washington, D.C., in the area around Leesburg. His command was not organized until January 1863, and although it had some part in the Gettysburg campaign, it was not involved in the later stages (DAB, volume VII, p. 272; entry on John Singleton Mosby); its activities in that year are not a good fit for the battle in the song.

Another possibility is that the troops were called "Longstreet's Rangers" because, although they were infantry, there were actual Texas troops fighting in Longstreet's corps. Possibly the best single unit in Lee's army was the so-called "Texas Brigade," whose most famous commander was John Bell Hood. (McPherson, pp. 118-119, tells how Hood's division, "perhaps the hardest fighting outfit in the Army of Northern Virginia," was forced to halt their first decent meal in three days to save the day at Antietam. Save the day they did -- and were almost destroyed in the process; the First Texas is thought to have taken 80% casualties in the fight). The Texans also came close to winning the Battle of Gettysburg on the second day, and they were at the heart of Longstreet's great breakthrough at Chickamauga. And they were part of Longstreet's Corps from the day that unit was created. So it would be reasonable to call this brigade "Longstreet's Texas Rangers" -- but I've never heard that title used.

Finally, John D. Imboden's cavalry brigade was composed mostly of rangers -- one of its regiments was, in fact, the Virginia Partisan Rangers, Imboden's own organization (Sears, p. 57). Unlike Mosby's rangers, it did go into Pennsylvania -- but it didn't fight much, and it's hard to see how "Imboden" could have been turned into "Longstreet." If this is in fact the unit involved, it might make more sense to refer to its action during Jubal A. Early's 1864 Shenandoah Valley campaign (Boatner, p. 423).

None of these fits very well with the description of the battle in the song, which is said to have lasted nine hours. Cavalry fights tend to be short. The one major exception was the Battle of Brandy Station (June 9, 1863), fought at a time when the Confederate army was starting the move north that would end at the Battle of Gettysburg. Some units were in action for close to twelve hours; the battle itself lasted for sixteen (Sears, p. 72).

To sum up, we have no good fit for the unit of this song. Mosby's Rangers, Imboden's rangers, and the Texans weren't at Brandy Station; no partisan battle lasted nine hours; and the Texans weren't cavalry. But they all might have contributed parts. Which is just what one would expect from an adaption of an older song. - RBW

Bibliography

- Boatner: Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover)
- DAB: Dumas Malone, editor, Dictionary of American Biography, originally published in 20 volumes plus later supplementary volumes; I use the 1961 Charles Scribner's Sons edition with minor corrections which combined the original 20 volumes into 10

Texas Sailor Coming Down

DESCRIPTION: Call and response: response is "Texas sailor coming down the road, you will see them!"; calls include "we coming to get the prize on the road," "is the biggest banner round the town," "when you see we you got to run"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (WITrinidadVillage01)

KEYWORDS: bragging disguise ritual music nonballad

FOUND IN: West Indies (Trinidad)

RECORDINGS:

Dixon [Ebenezr] Philip, "Texas Sailor Coming Down the Road" (on WITrinidadVillage01)

NOTES [74 words]: This is a Trinidadian Carnival song that is not in the pattern of the "tent" road marches that have come to represent commercial pre-soca calypso. The liner notes describe battle songs between masquerading bands from the early 20th century (Donald R. Hill, Maureeen Warner-Lewis, John Cowley, Lise Winer, liner notes on WITrinidadVillage01; also see Donald R. Hill, Calypso Calaloo (Gainesville: University Press of Florida, 1993), p. 56). - BS

Last updated in version 5.2

File: RcTeSaCD
Texas Way
DESCRIPTION: "Down Texas way, 'Mid the clover and the new-mown hay, Where they'll be so glad, yes so glad To see me... I can see their happy faces And hear a sweet voice say Come along here." The singer hopes to come home soon, and blesses his family
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: home return love mother father
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, pp. 218-219, "Texas Way" (1 text)
File: BrPa218B

Tha Was a Wee Yow
DESCRIPTION: A ewe looks at the moon and sees wonders; it goes to Ireland and Aberdeen, returns home, and finds more wonders right there.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2)
LONG DESCRIPTION: A ewe looks at the moon and sees more wonders [?] than fifteen; it goes to Ireland and Aberdeen and returns home; the husband is herding, the pigs are inside, the wife supervising the girls making cheese; the cat is in the stall eating when a cinder burns its nose and it cries 'yeowe, yeowe, yeowe.'
KEYWORDS: return travel farming talltale animal sheep
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 134, "Tha Was a Wee Yow" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Popular Rhymes of Scotland (Edinburgh, 1870 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 27, ("There was a wee yowe") (1 text)
Roud #13067
NOTES [198 words]: Except for dialect the Chambers and Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 texts are the same. Chambers (1802-1871) records his text from Forfarshire. The preface included is to the third edition and is dated 1841. Notes for Greig/Duncan8 1635, "I'll Tell Ye a Talie," connects that text to this one but I don't see the connection.
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 p. xli: "Crawfurd supplied songs and rhymes for Robert Chambers ... it appears that versions of 143 'Cow the Nettle Airlie' and 144 'The Wee Wyfie' ... highly probable that 134 'Tha Was a Wee You' ... was from Crawfurd too."
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 p. xl: "Part of 134 'Tha Was a Wee You' may be compared with Opie 107; cf. also the Rymour Club Miscellanea vol. 2 (1921) p. 100 and Gomme 1.51." Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2/Chambers share no lines with Opie 107 but the description beginning when the ewe returns home has the beat and strangeness of image of Opie ("The cock's on the wood pile a-blowing his horn ...."); I would say the same for the comparison with Gomme 1.51 ("As I was going o'er misty moor I spied three cats at a mill-door ...."). I haven't seen the Rymour Club. - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: LyCr2134

Thank You, Ma'am, Says Dan
DESCRIPTION: Courting song in which Dan says "Thank you, ma'am," whatever the girl's mother says. She invites him in; he thanks her. She allows him to marry her daughter. She will stay with her daughter; he will have to support the whole family. He thanks her AUTHOR: Gerald and Joseph M. Crofts?
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love courting mother humorous
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H184=689, pp. 469-470, "'Thank You, Ma'am,' Says Dan" (1 text, 1 tune)
OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 92, "I Thank You, Ma'am," Says Dan (1 text, 1 tune)
Thanksgiving on the Ranch

DESCRIPTION: "We was settin' 'round the ranch house on the last Thanksgivin' Day" because the religious owner would not work on the day. Each cowboy explains what he thinks Thanksgiving means. Uncle Dick says that it's a way for people to give thanks by getting drunk

AUTHOR: James Barton Adams (source: Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)

KEYWORDS: cowboy drink

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 151-153, "Thanksgiving on the Ranch" (1 text)

That Bloody War (I)

DESCRIPTION: "I was just a little infant boy, I was raised out on a farm, Never so much as killed a flea" until "that bloody war." A policeman takes him into the army. Sent to France, he lives on poor food. He won't fight again if there is another war

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (recording, Joseph Able Trivett)

KEYWORDS: war soldier food hardtimes warning

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 172-173, "That Bloody War" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #5726

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "That Crazy War" (lyrics)
cf. "Battleship of Maine" (lyrics, theme)

NOTES [89 words]: This has similarities to both "That Crazy War" and "Battleship of Maine."

Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs notes the similarity to the latter but not to the former and thinks it an independent song that perhaps someone recorded in the Twenties or Thirties. This is possible, but I suspect it's a World War I adaption of "Battleship of Maine" or "That Crazy War" or some such -- very likely with some lyrics from another song mixed to create this composite (I have no idea whether it was Trivett or his source who combined them). - RBW

File: DalC172

That Crazy War

DESCRIPTION: Singer, drafted into World War I, humorously describes awful experiences, saying everyone (including him) was just trying to avoid getting shot "in that war, that crazy war." In one version, he says that if there's another war he'll be hard to find.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Jimmy Yates & His Boll Weevils)

KEYWORDS: army war France humorous soldier

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1914 - World War I begins in Europe
1917 - U.S. enters World War I

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 102, "That Crazy War" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 275, "That Crazy War" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 239, "That Bloody War" (4 texts, of which "C" and "D," both short, probably belong here; "A" and "B" are "Battleship of Maine")
That Dang Boat that First Took Me Over

DESCRIPTION: Paddy leaves Ireland for Scotland "where everything is free." His father and sweetheart are unhappy and his mother is sure he'll drown. There's a storm. He asks the captain to stop the ship so he can walk home. If he ever gets home he'll not roam again.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster)

KEYWORDS: farewell home parting sea ship storm Ireland Scotland humorous

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster 29, "That Dang Boat that First Took Me Over" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2907

NOTES [37 words]: This sounds a bit like it might be a parody on one of the songs in which an Irishman goes to Scotland and falls in love. Examples of that type include "Paddy's Land" and "The Shamrock Shore (The Maid of Mullaghmore)." - RBW

File: MorU029

That Dear Old Land

DESCRIPTION: "I'll sing tonight of a fairyland in the lap of the ocean set.... I'll sing tonight of Ireland's ancient days ... the dear old land, that sweet old land where the beautiful rivers flow." An exile remembers his home and its history.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: homesickness exile Ireland lament nonballad patriotic

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 70, "That Dear Old Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6368

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Scarborough Settler's Lament" (theme) and references there

File: GrMa070

That Is Even So

DESCRIPTION: "When first I heard the people tell Of finding gold in veins... [I] started o'er the plains." On the way west, the food runs short and the train has to winter at Salt Lake. The Mormons treat them badly. The singer advises leaving the "land of gold"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1858 (Put's Golden Songster)

KEYWORDS: gold mining hardtimes travel
That Little Face

DESCRIPTION: "As I sailed on the ocean, As I sailed on the sea, There was a lovely vision, That always 'peared to me." "That little face and big blue eyes They always take me to paradise, The sweetest angel In the whole wide world" keeps the singer out of trouble

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (High-OldOldFolkSongs)
KEYWORDS: sailor beauty love
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
High-OldOldFolkSongs, pp. 18-19, "That Little Face" (1 text)
NOTES [51 words]: High-OldOldFolkSongs's version of this is said to have been "typewritten by Miss Peggy Ann High," and includes her address on Route 1, Berryville, Ark. Fred High also lived on Route 1 in Berryville. It seems likely that Peggy Ann was Fred's granddaughter, and very likely wrote this as a school piece. - RBW

That Lonesome Train Took My Baby Away

DESCRIPTION: "Woke up this morning, found somethin' wrong, My lovin' babe had caught that train and gone...." The singer asks the depot agent to shut the depot down so she cannot leave. But the girl is lost, and the train "will take you baby and run right over you."

AUTHOR: Words: Probably Charlie McCoy, influenced by the lyrics of "Cow Cow's Blues"/Tune: "Cow Cow's Blues" by Charles "Cow Cow" Davenport EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Charlie McCoy)
KEYWORDS: train separation abandonment floatingverses
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 431-434, "That Lonesome Train Took My Baby Away" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, LONETRN
RECORDINGS:
Charlie McCoy, "That Lonesome Train Took My Baby Away" (OKeh 8863, 1931?; rec. 1930)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Cannonball" (floating verses)
File: LSRai431

That Old Time Religion

DESCRIPTION: "Give me that (or: It's the/that) old time religion (x3), And it's good enough for me." Verses describe those for whom it was good enough: "It was good for Paul and Silas" "It was good for the Hebrew children," "It was good for my dear parents," etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1872 ("Jubilee Songs as sung by the Fisk Jubilee Singers")
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE,So) West Indies(Bahamas)
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 200, "Ole-Time Religion" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 640, "That Old-Time Religion" (1 text) Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 640, "That Old-Time Religion" (2 tunes plus text excerpts)
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 91, "The Old Time Religion" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Randolph 628, "The Old Time Religion" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 438-440, "The Old-Time Religion" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 628)
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 65, "Old Time Religion" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 362, "Give Me That Old Time Religion" (1 text)
JournalOfAmericanFolklore, Elsie Clews Parsons, "Spirituals and Other Folklore from the Bahamas," Vol. 41, No. 162 (Oct-Dec 1928), Anthems: Rum Cay #4 p. 464, "Gi' me dat ol' time religion" (1 text)
Roud #6423
RECORDINGS:
The Blue Chips, "Give Me That Old Time Religion" (ARC 6-07-60, 1936)
Brother Son Bonds, "Give Me That Old Time Religion" (Decca 7024, 1934)
Emmett Brand, "Give Me That Old Time Religion" (on MuSouth06)
Morris Brown Quartet, "That Old Time Religion" (Bluebird B-8428/Montgomery Ward M-8765, 1940)
Columbia [Male] Quartet, "The Old-Time Religion" (Columbia A-827, 1910; rec. 1909)
Cotton Belt Quartet, "Give Me That Old Time Religion" (Vocalion 1022, 1926)
Cotton Top Mountain Sanctified Singers, "Give Me That Old Time Religion" (Brunswick 7100, 1929)
Dixie Jubilee Singers, "Give Me That Old Time Religion" (Banner 7237/ Domino 4220/ Challenge 937 [as Jewel Male Quartet], 1928)
Wally Fowler, "Old Time Religion" (Capitol 2182, 1952)
Golden Eagle Gospel Singers, "Gimmie That Old Time Religion" (Decca 7314, 1937)
Hampton Institute Quartet, "Ole Time Religion" (Musicraft 233, 1939)
Haydn Quartette, "The Old Time Religion" (Victor 4656, 1906)
Heavenly Gospel Singers, "Old Time Religion" (Bluebird B-8077, 1939; Montgomery Ward M-7871, n.d.)
Jubilee Quartet, "Old Time Religion" (Banner 1550/Regal 9848, 1925; Ajax 31582, n.d.)
Kentucky Ramblers, "Give Me That Old Time Religion" (Broadway 8270, c. 1932; rec. 1930)
Blind Willie McTell, "Old Time Religion, Amen" (on USWMcTell01)
Mellowmen, "That Old Time Religion" (Decca 28081, 1952)
Old Southern Sacred Singers, "The Old Time Religion" (Brunswick 161, 1927)
Old-Time Jubilee Singers, "That Old Time Religion" (Perfect 113/Ajax [Can.] 17041, 1924)
Original Valentine Quartet, "Give That Old Time Religion" (OKeh 8135, 1924)
Pace Jubilee Singers, "Old-Time Religion" (Victor 22097, 1929; Bluebird B-5811, 1935; rec. 1928)
Paramount Jubilee Singers, "That Old Time Religion" (Paramount 12073, rec. 1923)
Homer Rodeheaver, "Old Time Religion" (Columbia A-3856, 1923)
Ernest Thompson, "The Old Time Religion" (Columbia 15007-D, 1924)
Tuskegee Institute Quartet, "Old Time Religion" (Victor 18075, 1916; rec. 1915)
Tuskegee Quartet, "The Old Time Religion" (Victor 20519, 1927)
Congregation of Wesley Methodist Church, "Give Me That Old Time Religion" (on JohnsIsland1)
SAME TUNE:
Old Time Religion [parody] (DT, OLTIMREL, OLTIMR2, OLTIMR3; on PeteSeeger47; Pete Seeger, _Where Have All the Flowers Gone, a Musical Biography_, p. 136, "The 'Filksong' Old Time Religion")
NOTES [161 words]: This piece was copyrighted in 1891 by Charlie D. Tillman -- but given that the text sung by the Fisk Jubilee Singers was printed in 1880, the claim is obviously bogus. This seems, for all intents and purposes, to have become a parody of itself of late. All three Digital Tradition versions, for instance, are modern versions praising various improbable deities (I suspect that most of the verses are filk). It's not really surprising, given the excellent tune and the asinine lyrics of the original. - RBW
The McTell version does not use the usual structure or tune. The usual lines are there, but each verse is just one of the lines five times; for example, "Give me that old time religion, Amen" (2x) "Give me that old time religion" (2x) "Give me that old time religion, Amen." McTell's tune is a minor blues like "True Religion" ("Mother take the pillow from under my head") and his own "Just As Well Get Ready" and "Climbing High Mountains, Tryin' To Get Home." - BS
Last updated in version 6.0
File: R628
That Old Towpath
DESCRIPTION: "Most dear to my heart are the scenes of the towpath, No mortal its beauty can ever describe." The singer enjoys seeing nature along the path. He was happy there: "'Twas God, man, and nature all working together"
AUTHOR: Pearl R. Nye (source: Salt)
EARLIEST DATE: 1992 (Salt-BuckeyeHeritage-OhiosHistory)
KEYWORDS: work travel canal flowers animal
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Salt-BuckeyeHeritage-OhiosHistory, pp. 65-66, "That Old Towpath" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Old Oaken Bucket" (tune, according to Salt)
File: Salt065

That Prosperity Wave
DESCRIPTION: "We rise now to put the main question, Just how we should act and behave, When we're completely submerged by... that prosperity wave." McKinley's election was supposed to save the country, but the banks still failing and business is poor AUTHOR: L. P. Cummins (possibly author of the words only) EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Nevada Folklore pamphlet; probably written in 1897 or soon after)
KEYWORDS: political nonballad money suicide
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, pp. 76-77, "That Prosperity Wave" (1 text
ADDITIONAL: Nebraska Folklore, Pamphlet Twenty, "More Farmers' Alliance Songs of the 1890's," Federal Writers' Project. 1939, p. 17, "That Prosperity Wave" (1 text)
NOTES [41 words]: For more on the issues of the 1896 presidential election, see "Free Silver." Most Farmers' Alliance songs were set to widely familiar tunes. No melody is listed for this one, but if I had to guess, I'd guess "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean." - RBW
Last updated in version 3.6
File: Wels076

That Rogue Reilly
DESCRIPTION: "There's a boy that follows me every day, although he declares that I use him vilely." He is like "the very shadow at my feet." Her mother sends her away to make hay but Reilly is there. Her aunt recommends a nunnery but she would rather be bothered.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1863 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(3382))
KEYWORDS: courting farming
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 57, "That Rogue Reilly" (1 text)
Roud #6980
BROADSIDES:
File: OCon057A

That Suits Me
DESCRIPTION: John's letter says "the Holy Ghost came to make us better," and you'd better hurry if you want to go to Heaven. The singer says, "It just suits me" Some couplets float (Ezekiel wept, can't serve God and the Devil, Jacob's ladder: every round is higher)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Odum)
That the Stones of the Street May Turn Up the Pig's Feet

DESCRIPTION: "That the stones of the street may turn up the pig's feet If ever I cease to the love. That the tay may come down to three ha'pence a pound If ever I cease to the love"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Tunney-StoneFiddle)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad parody food
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tunney-StoneFiddle, p. 9, "That the Stones of the Street May Turn Up the Pig's Feet" (1 fragment)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "If Ever I Cease to Love" (subject and some text)
NOTES [56 words]: The current description is all of the Tunney-StoneFiddle fragment. The fragment is a parody of the "if ever I prove false" theme floating among songs such as "When First Into this Country" and "I Live Not Where I Love." It could be derived from "If Ever I Cease to Love" but the only line shared is "If ever I cease to [the] love." - BS
File: RcSSTUF

That Tumble Down Shack in Athlone

DESCRIPTION: "I'm a long way from home and my thoughts ever roam To ould Erin far over the sea." The singer remembers his home in Ireland, says there are people waiting there for him, and looks forward to returning to Athlone

AUTHOR: Words: Richard M. Pascoe / Music: "Monte Carlo" and Alma Sanders
EARLIEST DATE: 1918 (sheet music)
KEYWORDS: home Ireland emigration return
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 66-67, "That Tumble Down Shack in Athlone" (1 text)
Roud #21716
NOTES [21 words]: This song was apparently popular enough to inspire a movie in 1927, but I have no idea what the film, may have been like. - RBW
File: Dean066

That's a Mighty Pretty Motion

DESCRIPTION: "That's a mighty pretty motion, dee, di, dee (x3), Rise, Sugar, rise." "That's a mighty poor motion." [Or] "That's a very pretty motion, tra, la lut" (x3), Rise, sugar, rise."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (Trent-Johns-PlaySongsOfTheDeepSouth)
KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Trent-Johns-PlaySongsOfTheDeepSouth, pp. 22-23, "That's a Mighty Pretty Motion" (2 texts, 1 tune)
That's All Right (I)

DESCRIPTION: Floating verses: "Mind my mother how you're walking along/Your feet might slip and your soul be lost"; "Hush little baby don't you cry." "Jacob ladder so long and tall." Cho: "That's all right (x2) Since my soul got a seat up in the kingdom...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight)
KEYWORDS: warning floating verses nonballad religious mother
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight, p. 121, "That's All Right" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Johnny Brown, "That's All Right" (on USFlorida01)
Gullah Kinfolk, "Dat's Alrit'" (on USSeasIsland04)
Mabel Hillery and Johny Huntery, "That's All Right" (on JohnsIsland1)
Laura Rivers, "That's All Right" (on BeenStorm1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Down on Me" (floating verses)
cf. "Somebody's All de Time Talkin' 'Bout Me" (repeating line "that's all right," floating verse "talk about me")
NOTES [20 words]: Brown's text for "Somebody's All de Time Talkin' 'Bout Me" is a fragment. Possibly these two songs belong together. - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: RcThAlRi

That's All Right (II)

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: (("That's all right") (3x), "mama, Any way you do.")) Verses: mama and papa tell me "that gal you're fooling with Ain't no friend to you"; Singer is leaving town and "mama" "won't be bothered with me Hanging around your door"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (recording, Crudup)
KEYWORDS: love parting travel nonballad lover
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
Arthur "Big Boy" Crudup,"That's All Right" (Victor 20-2205, 1946)
Scott Dunbar, "That's Alright Mama" (on USDunbarS01)
Elvis Presley, "That's All Right" (Sun 209, 1954)
NOTES [42 words]: The description follows Presley whose record is clearly Dunbar's source, down to the final verse mouth music. Crudup has a verse that neither Presley nor Dunbar sing: "One and one is two, Two and two is four, I love that woman But I got to let her go." - BS
Last updated in version 5.1
File: RcThRi02

That's No Way To Get Along

DESCRIPTION: Singer complains to his mother that "these low-down women ... treated your poor son wrong" till he "wished he's dead and gone." He wants "some train to come along and take me away" ... "and that's no way for me to get along"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (StuffDreams2)
KEYWORDS: hardheartedness love sex nonballad lover mother
FOUND IN:
RECORDINGS:
Robert Wilkins, "That's No Way To Get Along" (on StuffDreams2)
File: RcTNWTGA
That's So
DESCRIPTION: "The world gets wiser every day, That's so and that's so; And woman's bound to have her way, And that's so too." The woman spends heavily and dresses in finery; the man should go along. "He talks of freedom and of right, But we can show him how to fight."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales)
KEYWORDS: humorous clothes money husband wife
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 423, "That's So" (1 text)
Roud #6609
File: TNY423

That's What It's Like in the Navy
DESCRIPTION: "I wish I'd never joined for a sailor, mother dear... The girls won't let us court them and the canteen's out of beer, And that's what it's like in the Navy." They are given medals, but they get seasick and live hard lives and get sent to awful places
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
KEYWORDS: sailor navy hardtimes mother
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 18, "That's What It's Like in the Navy" (1 text, with tune on p. 147)
File: Tawn001

That's Where My Money Goes
DESCRIPTION: "That's where my money goes, To buy my baby clothes, I'd do 'most any old thing To keep that woman in style. She's worth her weight in gold, My coal-black Venus, Say, boys, that's where my money goes."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: money clothes
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 464, "That's Where My Money Goes" (1 short text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 464, "That's Where My Money Goes" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roud #11797
File: Br3464

Thatchers of Glenrea, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer works in Argyle, then does a quick thatching job in Glenrea. When it is all done, he at last is able to return to his wife in Ireland, though he has been cheated (?) of some of the money he hoped he would earn. He will not return to Glenrea
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: work home separation return reunion money
FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H186, pp. 46-47, "The Thatchers of Glenrea" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13358
File: HHH186
Then Some wi Pins
DESCRIPTION: A plowing match is described with its problems and swearing. "In spite o' a' difficulties They gaily trudged on Aft times refreshed wi' mountain dew A bannock or a scone." Prizes are announced. "The unsuccessful's never please The judges gets the blame"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: contest farming drink food ordeal nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast, "Folk-Song in Buchan," p. 44, ("Then some wi' pins and some wi' props") (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 423, "Then Some wi Pins" (1 text)
Roud #5940
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Ploughing Match
File: GrD3423

Then We'll Have a New Convention
DESCRIPTION: "Katy, Katy, don't you want to marry? Your mother says you shall not marry... Until we kill the turkey hen." "Then we'll have a new convention And we'll kill the turkey hen... And we'll have the rights of man."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: marriage political bird
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 370, "Then We'll Have a New Convention" (1 text); also 371, "Colonel Harry, He Was Scared" (1 fragment, probably the same as the above or a parody, though it may be mixed)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 370, "Then We'll Have a New Convention" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roud #11747
NOTES [139 words]: The notes in Brown connect this with the Civil War: The "convention" refers to the state conventions called to bring states out of the Union, and the song reportedly was used to recruit soldiers. Which makes sense, though it hardly explains the song. The "turkey hen" presumably refers to the Union, or to Lincoln, but this is hardly a common usage.
The "Colonel Harry" of the second Brown text is unidentifiable in context. And the two songs between them have only eight distinct lines, making it very hard to tell what's going on. But the second looks like it might be a later answer to the first: Brown #370 is a triumphant call for a convention (and hence secession); #371, which mentions a convention of "the volunteers and the drafted men" must have arisen in 1862 or later, as opposition to Confederate policies increased. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Br3370

Then You'll Remember Me
DESCRIPTION: "When other lips and other hearts Their tales of love shall tell, In language whose excess imparts The power they love so well," perhaps there will come a reminder: "And you'll remember me." In hard times too, then "You'll remember me."
AUTHOR: A. Bunn? (Source: Bodleian references)
EARLIEST DATE: before 1846 (various Bodleian broadsides)
KEYWORDS: love abandonment nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Heart-Songs, pp. 52-53, "Then You'll Remember Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 125, "You'll Remember Me" (1 text)
Roud #13830
There Ain't No Flies on Jesus

DESCRIPTION: "There's flies on me, There's flies on you, But there ain't no flies on Jesus."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad bug

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 201, (no title) (1 fragment)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

Not linked.

NOTES [27 words]: There is an obvious temptation to link this to "Ain't No Bugs on Me." But, apart from the religious reference, the form seems to imply that they are separate. - RBW

File: ScNF201A

There Are Days I Like to Be All Alone

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: ("There are days I like to be all alone"(3x). "Tell God about my troubles When I am all alone.") Verses: "There are songs I like to sing When I am all alone ..." "There are prayers I like to pray When I am all alone ..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (USMississippi01)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

RECORDINGS:
The Southland Hummingbirds, "There Are Days" (on USMississippi01)

File: RcTADILA

There Cam a Laddie Frae the North

DESCRIPTION: "There cam a laddie frae the north... And he's fa'en in love wi' a bonnie lass That lived in Dundee." He offers to take her north to his home in Strathspey. She refuses; he goes home -- then comes again, asks again, and she consents

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan5)

KEYWORDS: love courting marriage travel home

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #43, p. 2, "The Laddie Frae the North" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan5 975, "The Laddie Frae the North" (8 texts, 7 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 103-105, "There Cam' a Laddie Frae the North" (1 text)
Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee 4, "There Cam a Laddie Frae the North" (1 text, tune referenced)

Roud #3951

ALTERNATE TITLES:

- Rollover and see other fragments.
There Comes a Fellow with a Derby Hat

DESCRIPTION: Lost love song: "There comes a fellow with a derby hat, They say he's jealous, but what of that? If he is jealous, I am gay; I can get a sweetheart any day." The rest floats -- the blind bird, a request that the sweetheart return

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: love bird clothes betrayal floating verses
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-Frank CBrownCollection NCFolklore 3 265, "There Comes a Fellow with a Derby Hat" (1 text)
Roud #15742
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Farewell He" (subject) and references there
File: Br3265

There Goes a Man Just Gone Along

DESCRIPTION: A man is taken to prison. The prisoners laugh and stare. The next day the turnkeys put his irons on. "Now Salisbury assizes is drawing near, Oh come, my lads, begin to cheer (x2) And wipe away all weeping tears"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Reeves-The Everlasting Circle)
KEYWORDS: prison trial
FOUND IN: Britain (England (South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Reeves-The Everlasting Circle 130, "There Goes a Man Just Gone Along" (1 text)
Roud #1355
NOTES [91 words]: Sam Richards and Tish Stubbs, The English Folksinger (Glasgow, 1979), pp. 210-211, 221, "There Goes a Man," adds two verses: the Salisbury Assizes are over and the singer has been condemned to the gallows. The source -- George Blake, 1906, collected by Gardiner -- is the same singer cited for Reeves-The Everlasting Circle, "previously published under the title 'Gaol Song' in The Foggy Dew (ed. F. Purslow), EFDS Publications Ltd, London, 1974." Did Gardiner collect two versions from George Blake in 1906 or did someone else add the verses? - BS
Last updated in version 2.7
File: ReCi130

There Is a Fountain

DESCRIPTION: "There is a fountain of Christ's blood, Wide open stretch'd for to drown our sins, Where Jesus stands with open arms Of mercy to invite us in." The sights of the passion are recalled" The crown of thorns, the piercing of Jesus's side. Hearers are warned

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Leather-FolkloreOfHerefordshire)
KEYWORDS: Jesus religious nonballad warning
FOUND IN: Britain (England (West))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Leather-FolkloreOfHerefordshire, pp. 197-198, "There Is a Fountain" (4 single-stanza texts, all effectively identical; 4 tunes)
ADDITIONAL: Jon Raven, _The Urban and Industrial Songs of the Black Country and Birmingham_, Broadside, 1977, pp. 170-171, "Fountain of Christ's Blood" (1 text)
ST Leath 197 (Partial)
Roud #663
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "There Is a Fountain Filled with Blood" (theme)
Alternate Titles:
Fountain of Blood

Notes:
Roud lumps this with "There Is a Fountain Filled with Blood," but to me they look like separate songs; there are few lyrics in common. Given that the idea is basic to Christianity, it could easily have occurred to two writers, so I have split the songs. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.3
File: Leath197

There Is a Fountain Filled with Blood

Description: "There is a fountain filled with blood Drawn from Immanuel's veins, And sinners plunged beneath that flood Lose all their guilty stains. The thief dying (by Jesus) repents. The singer will exalt Jesus's redeeming love until he dies

Author: Words: William Cowper (1731-1800)
Earliest Date: 1927 (recording, Copperhill Male Quartet)
Key Words: Jesus death religious nonballad
Found In: US(SO)
References (2 citations):
High-OldOldFolkSongs, pp. 34-35, "There Is a Fountain Filled with Blood" (1 text)
Warren-EveryTimelFeelTheSpirit, pp. 258-260, "There Is a Fountain" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #663
Recordings:
Copperhill Male Quartet, "There is a Fountain Filled With Blood" Columbia 15164-D, 1927
Cross-References:
cf. "There Is a Fountain" (theme)

Notes:
Roud lumps this with "There Is a Fountain," but to me they look like separate songs; there are few lyrics in common. Given that the idea is basic to Christianity, it could easily have occurred to two writers, so I have split the songs.
The repentant thief is described in Luke 23:39-43; the blood flows from Jesus's side in John 19:34 (although there are other references to Jesus's blood, or to the Blood of the Lamb).
For background on William Cowper, see the notes to "God Moves in a Mysterious Way." John Julian, editor, A Dictionary of Hymnology, 1892; second edition 1907 (I use the 1957 Dover edition in two volumes), p. 1160, reports, "This hymn was probably written in 1771, as it is in Conyers's Collection of Ps[alm]s and Hy[mn]s, 1772, in 7 stanzas of 4 lines. It was republished in the Olney Hymns, 1779, B[ook] i, No. 79, with the heading 'Praise for the Fountain opened.' It is based on Zech. xiii.1, 'In that day there shall be a Fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for uncleanness.... A well known form of this hymn is 'From Calvary's Cross a Fountain flows.'" Julian goes on to note the many revisions made to the poem over the years.
Although the tune is sometimes attributed to Lowell Mason, who apparently wrote a tune "Cowper" that is used for the piece, William Reynolds, Companion to Baptist Hymnal, Broadman Press, 1976, p. 219, says that it is most unlikely that Mason wrote the usual tune for this song. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.3
File: High034

There Is a Happy Land

Description: "There is a happy land, far far away, Where saints in glory stand, Bright bright as day, Oh how they sweetly sing, Worthy is our savior king, Loud let his praises ring." The listener is told of the pleasures of heaven and urged not to hesitate Author: Words: Andrew Young?

Earliest Date: 1843 (Sacred Song Book, according to Julian)
Key Words: religious nonballad
Found In: US(Ap,So)
References (4 citations):
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, pp. 210, "The Happy Land" (1 text)
McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, pp. 118-119, "There Is a Happy Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Heart-Songs, pp. 506-507, "Happy Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, HPPYLAND*
Roud #13784
RECORDINGS:
Rufus Crisp, "Brighter Day" (on Crisp01)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Know a Boarding-House" (tune, form)

SAME TUNE:
Old Soldiers Never Die (I) (File: FSWB277A)

NOTES [196 words]: In the Sacred Harp (where it is given with the tune-name "Happy Land"), this melody is said to be derived from Hindu religious music. John Julian, editor, A Dictionary of Hymnology, 1892; second edition 1907 (I use the 1957 Dover edition in two volumes), p. 1160, explains this:

In 1838 Mr. [Andrew] Young was spending an evening in the house of Mrs. Marshall, the mother of some of his pupils. Among other pieces she played one air which caught his attention. On inquiry he found it was an Indian air called "Happy Land." With the air ringing in his ears he composed this hymn to it. It was sung in his classes at Niddry Street School, Edinburgh, and there heard by the Rev. James Gall, who included it in the first series of the Sacred Song Book, 1843... from whence it passed into many hymn books.

Roud lumps this with another song with the title "Happy Land," but they do not appear the same to me. - RBW

Much parodied, this hymn seems to have been enduringly popular in the south. And elsewhere, as witness, "Cook House," popular among soldiers of the Lincoln Brigade during the Spanish Civil War. We've listed that, more or less, as "Old Soldiers Never Die (I)" - PJS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: DTtiahl

---

There Is No Luck

DESCRIPTION: "There's nae luck about the house... When our goodman's awa'" The mariner is due home and his wife is getting the house and children and herself ready. "I'm downright dizzy with the joy In troth I'm liker to greet!"

AUTHOR: William Julius Mickle (according to OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)

EARLIEST DATE: 1776 (Herd)

KEYWORDS: love return reunion separation nonballad children wife husband sailor

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 182, "There Is No Luck" (2 texts)

ADDITIONAL: David Herd, editor, Ancient and Modern Scottish Songs, Heroic Ballads, etc. (facsimile of (Edinburgh,1776) with an "Appendix... containing the pieces substituted in the 1791 reprint for those omitted of the 1776 edition, &c.") ("Digitized by Google"), Vol II, pp. 152-154, "The Mariners Wife" (1 text)

Roud #3717

File: OCC182

---

There Is No Place in the Height of Heaven

DESCRIPTION: "There is no place in the height of Heaven, There is no place like home, home, home, sweet home, There is no place like home. Kind friends, I bid you all farewell. I leave you in God's care. And if I never see you any more, I will see you there."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: religious home separation nonballad floatingverses

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 548, "There Is No Place in the Height of Heaven" (2 short texts)

Roud #11825

NOTES [41 words]: This steals lines from all over the place ("Home Sweet Home," "Now Our Meeting Is Over," and probably at least one unidentifiable spiritual). But it seems to be a free composition on these themes rather than a version of any of those songs. - RBW

File: Br3548
There Is Somebody Waiting for Me
DESCRIPTION: "Oh the moon shines bright and the stars they give light And the evening invites (you/me) to (stay/stray)." The singer describes (her)self as a bird in a cage, but happily announces "There is somebody waiting... There is somebody waiting for me."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 741, "There Is Somebody Waiting for Me" (2 texts)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 724, "The Stars Shine Bright" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #7394
NOTES [30 words]: The first line of this, of course, is from the "Bellman's Song." Don't ask me where the rest of the song went. - RBW
I don't know where it went, but someone is waiting for it. - PJS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: R741

There Lives a Man in Ardes Town
DESCRIPTION: A man "wi' little meat and sair wark" beats and starves a mare to death. Besides, "they say he beats his wife." The wives praise the dead mare and say they would have taken her themselves. Now they denounce the man but he does not let them bury her.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: abuse death horse burial
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 493, "There Lives a Man in Ardes Town" (1 text)
Roud #5979
File: GrD3493

There Livit an Auld Wife in Terwhiggin
DESCRIPTION: An old wife in Terwhiggan rides on a bundle of straw. It's four score miles to the dung hill But she rides only two score a day.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfursCollectionVolume2)
KEYWORDS: age humorous nonballad scatological witch
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfursCollectionVolume2 158, "There Livit an Auld Wife in Terwhiggin" (1 text)
Roud #15113
File: LyCr2158

There Once Was a Soldier
DESCRIPTION: A soldier left Annie and "in foreign lands he soon found another." He writes a letter to Annie that he has been fatally wounded "for the good of my country." She should find another. At the wedding with his new love he dies for love of Annie.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: courting infidelity wedding lie separation death soldier
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1128, "There Once Was a Soldier" (1 text)
Roud #6832
There She Blows (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Of all the venturous breeds of men In the Vineland's famous roster Lives one whose story attracts my pen... By the name of the Old Town Whaler." The Whaler had been everywhere and seen everything, including men swallowed alive; now he's dead

AUTHOR: Words: Samuel Keniston
EARLIEST DATE: 2014 (Huntington, The Gam; reportedly printed c. 1880)
KEYWORDS: whaler travel death
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 45-47, "There She Blows" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #27730
File: HGam045

There She Goes

DESCRIPTION: Sailors' complaint about the skipper. In bad weather he sets the crew to work while he drinks below. We get no drink but only curses. May he "never get a grave" but drown "where the sharks will have his body and the devil his soul"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)
KEYWORDS: sea ship work drink ordeal storm nonballad sailor
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
Roud #613
RECORDINGS:
Morris Houlihan, "There She Goes" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
File: RcThShGo

There Was a Crooked Man

DESCRIPTION: "There was a crooked man, and he walked a crooked mile, He found a crooked sixpence against a crooked stile, He bought a crooked cat, which caught a crooked mouse, And they all lived together in a little crooked house."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1842 (Halliwell, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: home animal
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, p. 107, "(There was a crooked man)" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 324, "There was a crooked man, and he walked a crooked mile" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #224, p. 148, "(There was a crooked man)"
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 202, "There Was a Crooked Man" (1 text)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 35, "There Was a Crooked Man" (1 text)
Roud #4826
NOTES [60 words]: The Baring-Goulds, Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, and Dolby-OrangesAndLemons all suggest that the crooked man of this song was the Covenantter Alexander Leslie, and the crooked sixpence Charles I (who was willing to use the Covenanters if it would preserve his throne but had no real use for them). This is another of those "possible but hardly demonstrable" cases. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.3
File: B6MG224
There Was a Fair

DESCRIPTION: "There was a fair into the toon, The lads and lasses a' were boun, Wi' glancin' buckles o' their shoon, An' floories i' their waistcoats"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: clothes
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 371, "There Was a Fair" (1 fragment)
Roud #5914
NOTES [52 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan3 fragment. Greig/Duncan3 referring to a note by Duncan: "Cf. [611 'Hey the Bonny Breistknots']." The first verse of "Hey the Bonny Breistknots" is close to the fragment here but each line is different enough that I am not convinced that these are the same song. - BS
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3371

There Was a Gallant Soldier

DESCRIPTION: A soldier meets a maid. He asks if she is pregnant; she says yes. Who is the father? A soldier like you. Where is he? Gone to war. What if he is slain? "The king will lose a man she said an I will loose a frien." Am I the man? Yes.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: war reunion pregnancy dialog soldier
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1472, Greig/Duncan8 Addenda, "There Was a Gallant Soldier" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
Roud #7183
ALTERNATE TITLES:
O Fair Maid
NOTES [14 words]: Greig/Duncan7 1472C gives the soldier's name as "Rob Runawa' when he's nae at hame." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD71472

There Was a Knicht

DESCRIPTION: "There was a knicht on a bonnie simmer nicht, Was huntin' the deer and the roe; He met wi' a lady in good greenwood; In greenwood she did go"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: knight hunting
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 833, "There Was a Knicht" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #6218
NOTES [11 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan4 fragment. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD4833

There Was a Lady in the East

DESCRIPTION: A lady with many suitors loves Jimmy, her father's clerk. Her father would disown her but she says she wants Jimmy more than treasure. Her father shoots her. Her mother faints and Jimmy commits suicide.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1820 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 c.18(76))
There Was a Lady Who Loved a Swine

DESCRIPTION: "Twere was a lady loved a swine, 'Honey,' said she, 'Pig hog, wilt thou be mine?' 'Humph!' said he." She offers the pig a silver sty, pinned with a silver pin, and begs for an answer. All the pig says is "Humph!"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry)

KEYWORDS: love animal humorous rejection

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 107-108, "There Was a Lady Who Loved a Swine" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #15530

File: LxSi107

There Was a Little Bird

DESCRIPTION: "There was a little bird that went hop-hop-hop. I said, 'Little bird, won't you stop, stop, stop?' I opened the window to say, 'How do you do?' He shook his little tail and away he flew."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry, from Minnie Stokes)

KEYWORDS: bird nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 241, (no title) (1 short text)

File: MHAp241A

There Was a Little Girl, And She Had a Little Curl

DESCRIPTION: "There was a little girl, and she had a little curl, Right in the middle of her forehead. When she was good, she was very, very good, But when she was bad, she was horrid."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1885 (Sugar and Spice, And All That's Nice, according to Opie/Opie-
There Was a Little Guinea-Pig

DESCRIPTION: "There was a little guinea pig, Who, being little, was not big. He always walked upon his feet, And never fasted when he'd eat." "When from a place he ran away, he never at that place did stay." The tale continues with similar tautologies

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1784 (Gammer Gurton's Garland, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: animal humorous

FOUND IN:
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 197, "There was a little guinea-pig" (1 text)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #74, pp. 80-81, "(There was a little Guinea-pig)"
- Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 206, "There Was a Little Guinea Pig" (1 text)
- Roud #19795

File: 002197

There Was a Little Man

DESCRIPTION: "There was a little man, And he had a little gun, And the ball was made of lead." The little man goes out to hunt ducks. He hits the duck in the head and brings her home to his wife to cook. (He goes out to shoot the drake, but it escapes)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1744 (Tommy Thumb’s Pretty Song Book)

KEYWORDS: bird hunting food

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South)) US(MW)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 220, "There Was a Little Man" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 131)
- Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 100, "There Was a Little Man" (1 text)
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 325, "There was a little man, and he had a little gun" (1 text)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #25, p. 38, "(There was a little Man)"

ADDITIONAL: Joseph Ritson, Gammer Gurton's Garland (London, 1810 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 45, "The Duck and the Drake" (1 text)

Roud #1289

File: B6MG025
There Was a Man and He Was Mad

DESCRIPTION: The madman spends his life jumping into things -- pudding bag, bottle of wine, bottle of beer, notched stick, etc. Finding each one unsatisfactory, he moves on to the next. Finally he winds up in a situation he cannot handle, and quits/dies

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1846 (Halliwell)
KEYWORDS: humorous talltale
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 99, "There Was a Man and He was Mad" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 321, "There was a man, he went mad" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #178, p. 128, "(There was a man, he went mad)"
ST E099 (Full)
Roud #5336
RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "There Was a Man and He Was Mad" (on PeteSeeger03, PeteSeegerCD03)

There Was a Man of Double Deed

DESCRIPTION: "There was a man of double deed Sowed his garden full of seed" (or) "A man of words and not of deeds Is like a garden full of weeds." After many similes, the rhyme may well end, "When my (heart/back) began to bleed, Twas death and death and death indeed"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1784 (Gammer Gurton's Garland), with a high probability that it is at least related to much older materials
KEYWORDS: playparty farming
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond),Scotland(Aber,High)) US Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 322, "There Was a Man of Double Deed" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame, pp. 442-443, ("San-tee-ti, San-tee-ti") (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #75, p. 81, "(A man of words and not of deeds)"
DT, SANDYTOY
ADDITIONAL: James Orchard Halliwell, The Nursery Rhymes of England (London, 1842), #166 pp. 100-101, ("A man of words and not of deeds") (1 text)
James Orchard Halliwell, "Popular Rhymes and Nursery Tales" (London, 1849 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 17-18, ("Double Dee Double Day, Set a garden full of seeds") (1 text)
Robert Craig Maclagan, The Games and Diversions of Argyleshire (London, 1901 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 131, "Sandie Toy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Edward W.B. Nicholson, editor, Golspie: Contributions to its Folklore (London, 1897 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 190-192, "There Was a Man" (2 texts, including Halliwell's 1849 text)
Helen Creighton, _A Folk Tale Journey through the Maritimes_, edited by Michael Tatt and Ronald Caplan, Breton Books, 1993, p. 48, "There Was a Man Who Had a Double Deed" (1 text)
Roud #2103
NOTES [522 words]: The form of the song is a couplet chain. Each couplet except the first is a simile: the first line "'twas like" the second line. Either the noun following "like" or the noun object of the following prepositional phrase becomes the subject of the next simile. For example "...'Twas like a ship without a belt. When the ship began to sail ..." or ... "'Twas like a bird without a tail. When the "bird" began to fly ...." The chain makes no sense -- is a rigmarole -- and may end "'Twas like a stick upon my back," or may go further until the singer's heart begins to bleed; then, it may be time for him to die indeed, or the chain may continue until "... the oil began to settle, Like our Geordie's bloody battle." Halliwell finds the text of "A man of words and not of deeds" in a 1659 collection and says -- for the version ending "Geordies bloody battle," which is the text he quotes -- it was converted in the 18th century "into a burlesque song on the battle of Culloden."
The Opie and Nicholson texts seem derived, primarily by omitting couplets, from Halliwell's 1849 text. Halliwell 1849: "The earliest copy of the saying, 'A man of words and not of deeds,' I have hitherto met with, occurs in MS. Harl. 1927, of the time of James I. Another version, written towards the close of the seventeenth century, but unfitted for publication, is preserved on the last leaf of MS. Harl. 6580." - BS
This is a complex puzzle. The Opies call it a "rhyme of strange fascination," with which I agree; it is very hard to get out of the head once one thinks of it. The Baring-Goulds call it a ball-bouncing song. Roud lists many versions under titles such as "Sandy Toy" and "The Other Side of Jordan"; I am far from convinced these are in fact all the same. And while many collected versions have tunes, the "Double Deed" versions all seem to lack them.
But what does it mean? The Opies mention many parallels with topical significance, but they are all clearly rewrites. There is a certain thematic similarity in the "A man of words and not of deeds" to the New Testament book of James, which declares (2:17) that "faith... if it has no works, is dead" and also says (3:6) that "the tongue is a fire," inflaming controversy. Yet there is no hint that the poem is quoting the Bible.
It is interesting to note that, in the reign of King Edward IV, a bit of propaganda (perhaps in ballad form?) called England "a garden full of weeds," according to the description in Charles Ross, Edward IV, 1974 (I use the 1997 paperback edition in the Yale English Monarch series with a new introduction by R. A. Griffiths), p. 300. If this is so, then the man of words and not of deeds is presumably the inept Lancastrian King Henry VI, whose government lost all English territories in France and went bankrupt along the way. On the other hand, Henry VI was overthrown in 1461, and eventually killed and his dynasty ended in 1471. That is obviously long before the first collection of the rhyme. There is no reason, other than the similarity of words and Henry VI's general ineptness, to link the poem with the events of the Wars of the Roses. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1
File: 0020322

There Was a Man of Thessaly

DESCRIPTION: "There was a man of Thessaly, And he was wondrous wise, He jumped into a thorn bush And scratched out both his eyes. And when he saw his eyes were out, With all his might and main, He jumped into another bush And scratched them in again."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1744 (Tommy Thumb's Pretty Song Book, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: injury healing
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 498, "There Was a Man of Thessaly" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #28, p. 40, "(There was a Man so Wise)"
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 126, "The Man of Thessaly" (1 text)
Roud #15749
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Johnny Lad (I)" (lyrics)
NOTES [155 words]: Katherine Elwes Thomas can always be counted on to produce a wild interpretation, but this one may set the record: According to the Baring-Goulds, she suggested that this is about the Rev'd. Dr. Hery Sacheverell (died 1724), who in 1709 preached a pair of sermons on church reform which produced riots and who was impeached then taken back into high favor with Queen Anne's government. As for any connection with Thessaly (or Nineveh, or any of the other places mentioned in versions of the song)... well, Dr. Sacheverell was quite learned, so presumably he'd heard of them....
An hypothesis I would regard as much more reasonable is that the song refers to Bellerophon, the Greek hero who slew the Chimera, came from Thessaly, and ended up falling off Pegasus, landing in a thorn bush, and becoming blind, although I don't know why there would be a nursery rhyme about him or why it would say he scratched his eyes in again. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: 002498

There Was a Pig Went Out to Dig

DESCRIPTION: "There was a pig went out to dig, Chris-e-mas day, Chris-e-mas day, There was a pig went out to dig, On Chris-e-mas day in the morning." Similarly, "There was a sparrow went out to harrow," "There was a cow went out to plow," etc.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs)
KEYWORDS: animal work Christmas nonballad
There Was a Piper Had a Cow

DESCRIPTION: The piper has no food for his cow but plays her a tune for consolation. The cow is either happy enough to give the piper a penny to play "corn rigs are bonny," or tells the piper to play for money and use that to feed her.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1805 (Songs for the Nursery, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: poverty food music animal humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber,Bord))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1655, "Corn Rigs" (2 texts)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 188, "There Was a Piper Had a Cow" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 416, "There was a piper had a cow" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #156, p. 117, "(There was a piper had a cow)"

Roud #13046
File: 002416

There Was a Squire

DESCRIPTION: "It's I hae haughs and I hae bowers, I hae castle and I hae towers, And I swear my wedded wife ye'll be For I canna live and want ye"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan4)

KEYWORDS: courting home wife

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 837, "There was a Squire" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

Roud #6220
NOTES [11 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan4 fragment. - BS

Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD4837

There Was a Watermelon

DESCRIPTION: "There was a watermelon, A-growing in the garden, And in the garden wall there was a hole. A skinny little nigger Said if he's a little bigger, He'd climb over the garden wall. He's sneak up like a rabbit, And then he'd grab it...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: food thief

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 465, "There Was a Watermelon" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 465, "There Was a Watermelon" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)

Roud #11798
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Watermelon on the Vine" (theme)
There Was a Young Couple

DESCRIPTION: A young couple, or three old maids skate "on a cold and frosty morning." The ice is thin and they fall in. Can someone help them out?

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1920s (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: playparty
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 107, "There Was a Young Couple" (3 texts)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Gathering Nuts in May" (tune, per Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
cf. "The Lamentation of a Bad Market" (possible source) and references there
cf. "Three Little Girls A-Skating Went" (theme)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Three Old Maids
NOTES [66 words]: Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame: "In a dance tradition which has turned even 'Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star' into a 'swinging play' it is not surprising to find that the 'Three Old Maids' is based on the nursery rhyme 'Three children sliding on the ice' (which, in turn, derives from a burlesque ballad 'The Lamentation of a Bad Market; or the Drowning of three Children in the Thames', c.1680...." - BS
Last updated in version 2.6

There Was a Young Lady named Drew

DESCRIPTION: "There was a young lady named Drew Who boarded the ship with the crew. When they got tough, Then she got rough, And they ended up black and blue."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps)
KEYWORDS: humorous fight sailor ship
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 26, "(no title)" (second of three Great Lakes Limericks) (1 short text)

There Was a Young Lady named Kitty

DESCRIPTION: "There was a young lady named Kitty Who lived down at Bay City. If you wanted to meet her, You had to treat her, And that is the end of my ditty."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps)
KEYWORDS: courting nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 26, "(no title)" (third of three Great Lakes Limericks) (1 short text)

There Was a Young Lady of Bangor

DESCRIPTION: "There was a young lady of Bangor, Who slept while the ship lay at anchor, She rose in dismay When she heard the mate say, 'Lift up the top sheet and spanker.'"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps)
KEYWORDS: humorous wordplay sailor ship
FOUND IN: US(MW)
There Was an Aul' Wifie

DESCRIPTION: "There was an auld wife" and everybody said she would be hanged. She called for a peg where a nail should be and went to her "wee beddie." She danced herself dead in her own house.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: nonballad death wife
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1425, "There Was an Aul' Wifie" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #7267
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Laird o' Cockpen" (tune, per Greig/Duncan7)
File: GrD71425

There Was an Old Lady (I)

DESCRIPTION: Floating bawdy or scatological verses to the tune of Turkey in the Straw. The chorus urges, "Come on you bastards, come on you whores, Pull up your dresses, pull down your drawers...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1953
KEYWORDS: bawdy scatological sex nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ro,So,SW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 253-255, "There Was an Old Lady" (1 composite text, 1 tune); see also under "Ditties," pp. 264-268, which contain other verses that fit "Turkey in the Straw"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Turkey in the Straw" (tune & meter) and references there
File: EM253

There Was an Old Man Was Smoking His Pipe

DESCRIPTION: An old woman shits next to an old man smoking his pipe. "The sparks from her arse flew in to his eee" and he tells her to move away.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1)
KEYWORDS: age dialog scatological drugs
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1 67, "There Was an Old Man Was Smoking His Pipe" (1 text)
Roud #3863
File: LyCr167

There Was an Old Miser

DESCRIPTION: The old miser's daughter is courted by a sailor. When the miser finds out, he pays a captain to impress the boy. The girl fails to save the boy, but his ship is wrecked and he escapes to shore almost alone. He finds the girl; they are married.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1854 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 c.16(16))
KEYWORDS: courting sailor father pressgang wreck escape marriage
FOUND IN: US(MA) Britain(England(Lond,South))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 48, "There Was an Old Miser" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 222, "Transport" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Harold Nestler, "Songs from the Hudson Valley" (article in _New York Folklore Quarterly_, Volume V, #2, Summer 1949), p. 78, "The Old Miser" (1 text, missing most of the action; I suspect it's this, but it might be Laws N6 or Laws N10)
ST FSC048 (Partial)
Roud #3913
RECORDINGS:
Chris Willett, "The Old Miser" (on Voice04)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 c.16(16), "Old Miser" ("It's of an old miser in London did dwell"), Swindells (Manchester), 1796-1853; also Johnson Ballads 572, "The Old Miser"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Disguised Sailor (The Sailor's Misfortune and Happy Marriage; The Old Miser)" [Laws N6]
NOTES [116 words]: Although this song shows many similarities to Laws N6 (plus a slight similarity to "William and Harriet," Laws M7), Cazden et al consider the ending sufficiently different that they regard it as a separate ballad. Since the policy of this index is to split rather than lump, here it stands.
Roud, interestingly, lumps it with Laws N10, "The Silk Merchant's Daughter." I was tempted to do the same with the short version in Nestler, before I realized it was this. - RBW
Chris Willett's version on Voice04 and Bodleian broadsides 2806 c.16(16) and Johnson Ballads 572 include the verses in the [Supplemental Tradition text, from Cazden et al] but omit the ending: no shipwreck or happy ending. - BS
_Last updated in version 4.4_
File: FSC048

There Was an Old Nigger, His Name Was Dr. Peck
DESCRIPTION: "There was an old nigger, his name was Dr. Peck, He fell in de well an' broke his neck. De cause ob de fall was all his own, 'Case he order look atter de sick An' let de well alone!"
With the "mourner, you shall be free" chorus and floating verses
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: doctor death humorous floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 197, "There Was an Old Nigger, His Name Was Dr. Peck" (1 text)
File: ScaNF197

There Was an Old Woman and Her Name Was Pat
DESCRIPTION: Rope-skipping game. "There was an old woman And her name was Pat, And when she died, she died like that. They put her in a coffin, And she fell through the bottom, Just like that. They put her in a bed, And she bumped her head, Just like that"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty death
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 106, "(There was an old woman)" (1 texts)
File: SuSm106A

There Was an Old Woman and She Had a Little Pig
DESCRIPTION: "There was an old woman and she had a little pig, It didn't cost much 'cause it wasn't very big." Despite good care, the pig never grows up. One day it dies. The owner(s) soon follow. The song ends; "if you want any more, you can sing it yourself"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1784 (Gammar Gurton's Garland, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: animal death
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,NE,SE,So) Britain(England)
REFERENCES (20 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 130, "The Old Woman and Her Pig" (2 texts plus mention of 1 more)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 130, "The Old Woman and Her Pig" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #225, "Old Joe Finley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 126, "The Old Woman Who Bought a Pig" (1 text, 1 tune)
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 68, "Old Sam Fanny" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 195, "Uncle Sam Simmie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 235, "The Old Woman and the Little Piggee" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, pp. 104-105, "Ole San Fannie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #99, "The Little Piggee" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-TheldiomOfThePeople 11, "Bessy Bingle" (1 text)
Sharp/Karpeles-EightyEnglishFolkSongs 77, "The Old Woman and the Little Pig" (1 text, 1 tune -- a composite version)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 308-310, "Tale of a Little Pig" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-SingingFamilyOfTheCumberlands, pp. 207-210, "There Was an Old Woman and She Had a Little Pig" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 21, "The Old Woman and the Pig" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 42, "Little Betty Pringle she had a pig" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnointedMotherGoose #37, p. 53, "(Little Betty Winkle she had a pig)"
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 175, "Old Sam Fanny" (2 texts)
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 160-161, "The Old Couple and the Pig" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sturgis/Hughes-SongsFromTheHillsOfVermont, pp. 54-57, "The Little Pig" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin-TreasuryOfNewEnglandFolklore, pp. 574-575, "The Little Pig" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST E068 (Partial)
Roud #746
NOTES [74 words]: Although the first instance of this seems to be from 1784, the idea appears to be older. Oliver Goldsmith (died 1774) produced a poem to mock the sententiousness of Thomas Percy. It began

A Dirge
Little Betty Winckle she had a pig,
It was a little pig not very big;
When he was alive he liv'd in clover,
But now he's dead and that's all over.
Last updated in version 4.3
File: E068

There Was an Old Woman Lived Under a Hill

DESCRIPTION: "There was an old woman lived under a hill, And if she isn't gone, she lives there still." Various endings seem to have been grafted on.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1744 (Tom Thumb's Pretty Song Book)
KEYWORDS: home nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
There Was an Old Woman Tossed up in a Basket

DESCRIPTION: "There was an old woman tossed up in a blanket" with a broom, many times higher than the moon. The singer asks what she's doing. She says she is brushing the cobwebs, or clouds, out of the sky. The singer asks to go with her, or says well done.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1784 (Gammar Gurton's Garland, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: nonballad talltale

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South),Scotland(Bord))

REFERENCES (7 citations):
- Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 228, "The Old Woman Tossed Up in a Blanket" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO OX 214)
- Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 144, "The Wee Wyfie" (1 text)
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 544, "There was an old woman tossed up in a basket" (1 text)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #35, p. 50, "(There was an old woman tossed in a blanket)"
- Montgomerie/Montgomerie-ScottishNurseryRhymes 175, "(There was a wee wifie rowed up in a basket)" (1 text)
- Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 37, "There Was an Old Woman Tossed Up in a Basket" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Popular Rhymes of Scotland (Edinburgh, 1870 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 34, "The Wee Wifie" (1 text)

Roud #1297

CROSS-REFERENCES:

- cf. "Lilliburlero" (tune) (per Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
- cf. "Slaves to the World" (theme: tossing in a blanket) and notes there

NOTES [157 words]: Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes: "Rimbault says this song is supposed to allude to James II.... In spite of the rhyming, the original wording was probably 'tossed up in a blanket Ninety-nine [instead of seventeen or nineteen] times as high as the moon', as in the William and Mary ballad, The Jacobite tossed up in a blanket." - BS

The Baring-Goulds report an even more extravagant story, connecting this to Henry V (reigned 1413-1422) and his invasion of France. But they add "The only trouble with this story is that there doesn't seem to be a word of truth in it." I couldn't have put it better myself. - RBW

Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 p. xli: "Crawfurd supplied songs and rhymes for Robert Chambers .... It appears that the versions of 143 'Cow the Nettle Airlie' and 144 'The Wee Wyfie' ...." Chambers 1870 notes these to be from "recitations in Fife and Ayrshire." Crawfurd's versions are from Ayrshire (p. xxxix). - BS

Last updated in version 3.3

File: 002544

There Was an Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe

DESCRIPTION: "There was an old woman who lived in a shoe, She had so many children she didn't know what to do; She gave them some broth without any bread; She whipped them all soundly and put them to bed."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1787 (Gammar Gurton's Garland, according to the Opies)

KEYWORDS: children abuse injury food poverty

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 546, "There was an old woman who lived in a shoe" (2 texts)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #87, p. 85, "(There was an old woman who lived in a shoe)"
- Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 208, "There was an old woman who lived in a shoe" (1 text)
- Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 38, "There Was an Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe" (1 text)
Roud #19132
NOTES [50 words]: Several sources connect this with King George II of Great Britain, but supporting evidence, as usual, is lacking. Dolby-OrangesAndLemons also mentions an Elizabeth Vergoose of Boston, who had six children and ten stepchildren, but again, no supporting evidence (as Dolby-OrangesAndLemons admits). - RBW
Last updated in version 3.3
File: 002546

There Was First Guid Ale
DESCRIPTION: "There was first guid ale, and syne guid ale, And second ale and some; Hink-skink, and ploughman's drink, And scour-the-gate, and trim"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1870 (Chambers)
KEYWORDS: drink nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 569, "There Was First Guid Ale" (2 texts)
ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Popular Rhymes of Scotland (Edinburgh, 1870 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 392, ("There's first guid ale, and syne guid ale")
Roud #5895
NOTES [8 words]: Chambers: "Different Kinds of Malt Liquor." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD3569

There Was Twa Auld Carles
DESCRIPTION: Two old men and a poor girl [quine] are in bed together. One moved off [jinkit aff], and the other moved in, and they played there.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: bawdy nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1722, "There Was Twa Auld Carles" (1 text)
Roud #13140
NOTES [10 words]: Greig/Duncan8: "[This is] from two manuscripts 1730-1760." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81722

There Were Two Birds Sat on a Stone
DESCRIPTION: "There were two birds sat on a stone, Fa la la la la de, One flew away and then there was one, Fa la la... The other flew after, and then there was none... And so the poor stone was left all alone." The (birds/crows) then fly back
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1767 (Newbery)
KEYWORDS: bird
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1680, "The Twa Corbies" (1 text, 1 tune)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #49, pp. 59-60, "(There were two birds sat on a Stone)"
Montgomerie/Montgomerie-ScottishNurseryRhymes 19, "(There were two crows sat on a stone)" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 51, "There were two birds sat on a stone" (2 texts)
DT, CRAWSTAN
ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers (Edited by Norah and William Montgomerie), Traditional Scottish Nursery Rhymes (1990 selected from Popular Rhymes) #13, p. 17, ("There were two craws sat on a stane, Fal de ral")
NOTES [82 words]: Sounds like "The Twa Corbies" told from the standpoint of their original perch. But there are just enough mentions of it that I thought it had better go in the Index.

Charles Kingsley quoted two stanzas of this in The Water Babies. (1863):

Two little birds they sat on a stone,
One swam away, and then there was one,
With a fal-lal-la-lady.
The other swam after, and then there was none,
And so the poor stone was left all alone,
With a fal-lal-la-lady.
The quotation is in chapter seven. - RBW

There'll Be a Hot Time (In the Old Town Tonight)

DESCRIPTION: A quatrain ballad, this is essentially an ever-changing collection of floating bawdy verses.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1896 (sheet music)

KEYWORDS: bawdy nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW,So)

REFERENCES (10 citations):
- Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 77, pp. 99-100, "Hot Time in the Old Town" (3 texts, all short)
- Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 213-214, "A Hot Time in the Old Town" (1 text)
- Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 532-534, "There'll Be a Hot Time" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 203-204, "A Hot Time in the Old Town" (1 text, 1 tune -- from the sheet music)
- Geller-FamousSongsAndTheirStories, pp. 138-143, "A Hot Time in the Old Town" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Messerli-ListenToTheMockingbird, pp. 217-219, "A Hot Time in the Old Town" (1 text)
- Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #136, "Hot Time" (1 text)
- Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 278-279, "A Hot Time in the Old Town"

ADDITIONAL: Robert A. Fremont, editor, _Favorite Songs of the Nineties_, Dover Publications, 1973, pp.117-121, "A Hot Time in the Old Town" (1 text, 1 tune, the 1897 sheet music)

Margaret Bradford Boni, editor, _Songs of the Gilded Age_, with piano arrangements by Norman Lloyd and illustrations by Lucille Corcos, Golden Press, 1960, pp. 36-38, "There'll Be a Hot Time" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST RL532 (Partial)

Roud #4324

RECORDINGS:
- Edward M. Favor, "Hot Time in the Old Town" (Berliner 0791-L, 1899)
- Bill Mooney & his Cactus Twisters, "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" (Imperial 1096, n.d. but post-World War II)
- Dan W. Quinn, "A Hot Time in the Old Town" (Berliner 527-Z, 1897)
- Bessie Smith & her Blue Boys, "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town" (Columbia 3173-D/Parlophone R-2477 [UK], 1938)
- Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers, "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" (Columbia 15695-D, 1931; rec. 1929)

SAME TUNE:

West Wallsend Football Song (Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, pp. 253)

There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight (Bryan Version) (File: McIn021A)

Kansas Jayhawker Song (File: SaKo142)

REC: Baritone solo, "Come Join the Ku Klux Klan in the Old Town Tonight" (KKK 75009, c. 1924)

REC: W. R. Rhinehart, "There'll Be a Hot Time - Klansman" (100% K-36, rec. c. 1924)

NOTES [218 words]: This was popular with military bands during the Spanish-American war -- so much so, according to Michael Blow, A Ship to Remember: The Maine and the Spanish-American War, William Morrow and Company, 1992, p. 391, that when American troops were landing around Manila, "many Filipinos thought it the American national anthem."

Fuld points out that the earliest (1896) sheet music refers not to "the old town" but to "Old Town" (in Louisiana). This version is by Joe Hayden (words) and Theodore A. Metz (music), and involves a dance and/or camp meeting. This camp meeting version, according to Spaeth, came to be "indelibly associated with the Spanish[-American] War."

According to Jon W. Finson, The Voices That Are Gone: Themes in Nineteenth-Century American Popular Song, Oxford University Press, 1994, p. 229, Metz claimed to have written the song in 1886 as a song and circus march. This may be true, but clearly the folk have taken things into their hands from there. - RBW

Indeed; [Dan W.] Quinn's recording, only a year after the sheet music, already calls it "The Old Town." - PJS

The cover sheet to the 1896 sheet music at LOCSheet Music B-570 [cover only] has the title as "A hot time in the old town"; the commentary notes the chorus as "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight, ma baby" - BS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: RL532

There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight (Bryan Version)

DESCRIPTION: "Me oh my just hear the people yell, If McKinley is elected our country's gone to -- well. If we elect Billy Bryan, we'll all be living well. There's be a hot time in the old town tonight, my honey."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks)

KEYWORDS: political nonballad wordplay

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 7, 1896 - William Jennings Bryan gives his "Cross of Gold" speech calling for a silver currency
1896, 1900, 1908 - Bryan's three runs for the presidency

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, p. 21, "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" (1 short text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "There'll Be a Hot Time (In the Old Town Tonight)" (tune) and references there

File: McIn021B

There'll Be No Dark Valley

DESCRIPTION: "There'll be no dark valley when Jesus comes (3x) To gather his loved ones home"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 164-165, "There'll Be No Dark Valley" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

NOTES [13 words]: The current description is based on the Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed fragment.

- BS

Last updated in version 3.5

File: Ow2E164

There'll Be No Distinction There

DESCRIPTION: "There'll be no sorrow on that heavenly shore, There'll be no woes at the cabin door...." Singer describes heaven as a place without sorrow, poverty, class distinctions, racism, adultery, nagging women, or booze.

AUTHOR: Blind Alfred Reed

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (recording, Blind Alfred Reed)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)
There'll Come a Time

DESCRIPTION: "Why are you sad, Papa, my darling? Why are those tears falling down?" The father calls the child "an angel," but he is afraid of what happens when he is dead: "There'll come a time someday When I have passed away" and the child will be unprotected

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1)

KEYWORDS: father mother children death

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, pp. 62-63, "There'll Come a Time" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #7125

NOTES [26 words]: This seems to have been very popular with a particular sort of conservative, hyper-controlling parent. Not many young performers seem to have sung in. Hm. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: BuMa062

There'll Never Be Peace Till Jamie Comes Hame

DESCRIPTION: Singer hears a man sing "The church is in ruins, the State is in jars, Delusions, oppressions, and murderous wars." His seven sons died fighting for James. "Now life is a burden that bows me down." "There'll never be peace till Jamie comes hame"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1819 (Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol1)

KEYWORDS: rebellion nonballad political Jacobites

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol1 38, "There'll Never Be Peace Till Jamie Comes Hame" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Greig/Duncan1 118, "There'll Never Be Peace Till Jamie Comes Hame" (2 fragments, 2 tunes)
- ADDITIONAL: James Kinsley, editor, Burns: Complete Poems and Songs (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #326, pp. 453-454, "There'll never be peace till Jamie comes hame--" (1 text, 1 tune, from 1791)

Roud #5782

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "There's Few Guid Fellows When Jamie's Awa" (tune, according to Burns)
- cf. "My He'rt It Is Sair" (tune)

NOTES [135 words]: Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol1: "It is very like Burns, but is given in Johnson's Museum as an old song without any alterations."

Greig/Duncan1: "... expresses the point of view of supporters of the claim to the throne of the son of James II, James Stuart (the Old Pretender)." - BS

The statement about the church being in ruins is particularly true at this time. There were still Catholics in the Highlands. It has been claimed that there were Anglicans there as well. The country was officially Presbyterian, but many old men remembered the Solemn League and Covenant, some with reverence, others with horror. And William III simply did not understand the Scottish Kirk. In England, he could largely rely on the powers of the Bishops. That didn't work at all in Scotland, where there were no bishops.... - RBW

There's a Bridle Hanging On the Wall

DESCRIPTION: "There's a bridle hanging on the wall and the saddle in an empty stall... gone where all the good ponies go." The rider mourns the death of the pony he thought of as a friend.

AUTHOR: Rex Allen (according to Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong)
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Carson Robison 78: see NOTES)
KEYWORDS: death nonballad horse
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong 9, p. 89, "There's a Bridle Hanging On the Wall" (1 text)
Roud #16057
RECORDINGS:
Jerome Downey, "There's a Bridle Hanging On the Wall" (on NFJDowney01)
NOTES [42 words]: Carson Robison's Buckaroos recorded "There's a Bridle Hangin' On the Wall" on 78 Montgomery Ward M4917 according to the "Rocky 52 The Rock & Country Encyclopedia and Discography" site at http://tinyurl.com/tbdx-CRobison, accessed February 16, 2015. - BS

There's a Brown Girl in the Ring

DESCRIPTION: "Theres a (brown girl or black boy) in a ring, (she/he) likes sugar and I like plum)." Dance instruction, like "stand and face your partner, wheel and turn your partner" or "skip across the ocean: show me your motion"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Jekyll-JamaicanSongAndStory)
KEYWORDS: dancing nonballad playparty bird
FOUND IN: West Indies(Jamaica) US(MA)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Jekyll-JamaicanSongAndStory 19, "Annancy and the Screech-Owl" ("There's a blind boy in the ring"): 109, ("There's a black boy in a ring") (2 texts, 1 tune)
Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads, pp. 126-127, "There Stands a Bluebird" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Olive Lewin, "Rock It Come Over" - The Folk Music of Jamaica (Barbados: The University of the West Indies Press, 2000), pp. 71-72, "Brown Girl in the Ring" (1 text,) (1 tune)
Martha Warren Beckwith and Helen Roberts, _Folk-Games of Jamaica_ (Poughkeepsie: Vassar College, 1922 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")) #64 pp. 74-75, "There's a Brown Girl in the Ring" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #13195
NOTES [90 words]: Lewin describes the game. A player in the middle of the ring, with a partner, is told by the partner how to perform, and the others on the ring follow her motion. Then the partner moves to the middle and a new girl becomes the caller.
The Jekyll-JamaicanSongAndStory texts show how a game song can be made part of an Anansi story. In this case the "brown girl" or "black boy" is replaced by a "blind boy" -- specifically Screech Owl blinded by daylight -- tricked by Annancy into staying awake till day so that he can easily be killed. - BS

There's a Dear Spot in Ireland

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls the "dear spot" where his aged mother lived with his brothers and sisters. Poverty has brought him over the sea. Now mother is dead. He hopes his brothers and sisters can join him; they will make a poor but honest home
There's a Fuck-up on the Flight Deck

DESCRIPTION: "There's a fuck-up on the flight deck, and the Wavy Navy done it. There's a prang on the gangway and they don't know who to blame." The song describes many mistakes made aboard an aircraft carrier on a mission.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
KEYWORDS: technology navy battle
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, pp. 104-105, "There's a Fuck-Up on the Flight Deck" (1 text, tune referenced)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Hut Sut Song" (tune)
NOTES [584 words]: The Fairey Albacore is a particularly fit airplane to be singled out for criticism in this song. When World War II began, the standard British carrier torpedo bomber was the Fairey Swordfish, a biplane with a top speed of 138 miles per hour that was so old that even the British knew that the "stringbag" needed to be replaced (Munson 68). So they came up with the Fairey Albacore. Which was, ahem, another biplane. In 1940. The Albacore was slightly faster than the Swordfish, and had a slightly longer range, and had an enclosed cockpit (more comfortable for the pilot), but otherwise, it was such a flop that the Swordfish "remained in service alongside, and eventually outlasted, the [Albacore]" (Munson, p. 62).

Brown, p. 60, reports, "In retrospect, the Albacore epitomised the ascendancy of the conventionalists over the visionaries; the least adventurous approach that could possibly have been made to solving the problem of replacing the venerable and patently obsolescent Swordfish. That the authorities should have opted to perpetuate the biplane configuration at a time when the imminence of its final demise in all operational roles was surely obvious to all is difficult to comprehend today, forty years on." He adds that the defects of the Albacore were its lack of maneuverability, its unresponsive controls, and its large size that made it harder to handle and easier for enemy gunfire to hit. It was a good plane as long as there were no enemies around, but too easy a target in combat.

Munson, p. 62, adds, "Production ceased in 1943 after 803 Albacores had been built, but by the end of that year all but two squadrons had been re-equipped with Barracudas or American Avengers. One of the squadrons, however, handed on their Albacores to the R.C.A.F., by whom they were employed in the D-day landings of June 1944." Fortunately for the Canadians, there were few Axis fighters to take advantage of the Albacore's pitiful lack of speed; for this plane, at least, the conditions of British landing fields were danger enough!

The Fairey Fulmar was another British flop. No, it wasn't just that Fairey was a lousy plane designer; other manufacturers were bad, too, often because the government wrote ridiculous specifications. So it was with the Fulmar: "The FAA requirement of two seats for its fighters guaranteed their inferiority" (Worth, p. 80). It didn't help that it was a rush job (Munson, p. 65). It did at least have decent firepower and maneuverability. But they did sink a lot -- they were one of the planes used on "CAM ships," or merchant ships with a catapult to launch a fighter to deal with enemy bombers (Gunston, p. 36), which however had to ditch after making its flight.

Brown seems to be the only writer with anything good to say about the Fulmar: "It was to be said of the handsome Fairey monoplane that it lacked the fighter's first essential -- speed. There is no gainsaying that it was slow by then contemporary land-bases single-seat fighter standards, but it was not short of other qualities and, if incapable of taking on a Messerschmitt Bf 109 on anything like equal terms, its advent was, in so far as the Fleet Air Arm was concerned, very welcome indeed" (p. 69).

For the King George V, see also the notes to "The Sinking of HMS Hood."
The Fulmar went into service in 1940, and began to be phased out in 1943; it was most widely used in 1942, which was also the height (or depth) of the Albacore's career. So I'd guess this song dates from that year. - RBW

Bibliography

- Worth: Richard Worth, Fleets of World War II, Da Capo, 2001

There's A Girl in the Heart of Maryland

DESCRIPTION: "In a quaint, old-fashioned garden in a quaint, old-fashioned town... Where the old Potomac's llowing, that is where I long to be." "There's a girl in the heart of Maryland with a heart that belongs to me." He asks that the parson be ready when he returns

AUTHOR: Words: Ballard MacDonald / Music: Harry Carroll

EARLIEST DATE: 1913 (sheet music)

KEYWORDS: love reunion marriage

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 88-89, "There's a Girl in the Heart of Maryland" (1 text)
Roud #9571

NOTES [62 words]: According to Sigmund Spaeth, A History of Popular Music in America, MacDonald and Carroll had two big hits in 1913: This and "On the Trail of the Lonesome Pine" (the latter apparently being the first-published, since it is mentioned on the sheet music of this piece). Both produced quite a few other pop hits, though very few of them made the jump into oral tradition. - RBW

There's a Good Time Coming

DESCRIPTION: "There's a good time coming, Boys, a good time coming. We may not live to see the day, But Earth shall glisten in the ray." There will be no more wars. The poor shall be no more. Children won't have to work. Hearers are urged to "wait a little longer."

AUTHOR: Words: Charles MacKay? / Music: Henry Russell (1812-1900) (see NOTES)

EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Scott), but best-known in the mid-nineteenth century

KEYWORDS: nonballad poverty help war freedom

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 92-93, "There's a Good Time Coming" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2316, p. 156, "There's a Good Time Coming" (4 references)
Roud #16621

SAME TUNE:
The World's All Before Us (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 50)
The Good Time Coming [Garfield Campaign Song] (Garfield and Arthur Campaign Song Book 1880, p. 10)
NOTES [104 words]: Talk about optimism.... This really doesn't seem like something that would go into tradition, and I have no clear proof that it has. But there is one short North Carolina fragment that Steve Roud lists among the Cecil Sharp MSS. that MIGHT be this, so I have very tentatively included it in the Index.

There seems to be agreement that Henry Russell wrote the music to this. He is the only author listed by Scott. But Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 156, lists four broadsides, one crediting it to "Charles MacKay," another to "Charles Macray." Since MacKay is a known poet, I have tentatively credited him with the lyrics. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2

File: ScES092

There's a Hole in the Bottom of the Sea

DESCRIPTION: "There's a hole in the bottom of the sea, There's a hole (x2), There's a hole in the bottom of the sea." "There's a rock in the bottom of the sea... There's a rock in that hole in the bottom of the sea." "There's a frog in the bottom of the sea."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: nonballad cumulative
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 135, "There's a Hole in the Bottom of the Sea" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 135, "There's a Hole in the Bottom of the Sea" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Gloria Dickens, "Childhood Songs from North Carolina" Vol. XXI, No. 1 (Apr 1973), p. 8, "(There's a hole in the bottom of the sea)" (1 text)

Roud #15766

File: Br31335

There's a Hole in the Bucket

DESCRIPTION: Circular song, "There's a hole in the bucket, dear Liza." "Then fix it..." "With what?" "Straw." "The straw is too long." Etc., until "...too dry." "Then wet it." "With what?" "Water." "With what shall I fetch it?" "The bucket." "There's a hole..."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends -- German version)
KEYWORDS: questions tasks dialog humorous husband wife
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 83-85, "Der Jug hot en Loch (The Jug Has a Hole)"; pp. 252-255, "Liewer Henry (Dear Henry)" (2 very distinct German texts plus English translations, 2 tunes)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 731, "Hole in the Bucket" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "Hole in the Bucket" (on PeteSeeger31) (on PeteSeeger47)

File: DT_holebc

There's a Little Box of Pine on the 7:29

DESCRIPTION: "'Dear warden,' wrote a mother, 'how much longer must I wait'' until her boy is sent home. The warden is forced to answer, "There's a little box of pine on the 7:29 Bringing back a lost sheep from the fold." The mother and community mourn the dead sinner

AUTHOR: Jos. Ettlinger, George Brown (Billy Hill), and De Dette Lee (De Dette Lee Hill)
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (copyright; recording by Tommy Reynolds an Wilie Robinson)
KEYWORDS: death train mother funeral prison
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
There's a Little Hand Writing on the Wall

DESCRIPTION: "There's a little hand writing on the wall, There's a little hand writing on the wall, All I say and all I do, that hand writing on the wall."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 519, "There's a Little Hand Writing on the Wall" (1 fragment)

Roud #11814

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Handwriting on the Wall" (subject)

NOTES [128 words]: The "hand writing on the wall" is obviously an allusion to Daniel 5. But, as 5:24-28 reveal, it was not writing the actions of King Belshazzar (who, incidentally, was never King of Babylon; he was the son of the last King, Nabonidas, if he is historical at all). Rather, the hand wrote a message of condemnation.
For more on this subject, see "The Handwriting on the Wall."
The bit about "all I say and all I do" may be an allusion to John 8:6, 8, where Jesus writes upon the ground. A few late manuscripts say that he wrote "the sins of every one of them," though most omit (and the earliest manuscripts all omit John 7:53-8:11).
If it is not an allusion to John 8, it may be a reminiscence to John 4:29, where Jesus told the Samaritan woman "all that I ever did." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: Be3519

There's a Little Wheel a-Turning

DESCRIPTION: "There's a little wheel a-turning in my heart, In my hear, yes, Lord, in my heart... O, for you, yes, Lord, for you." Remaining lines are variations on this theme

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 168, "Dere's a Little Wheel a-Turnin' in My Heart" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 100 in the 1901 edition)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 641, "There's a Little Wheel a-Turning" (1 short text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 641, "There's a Little Wheel a-Turning" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Hutson/Pinckney/Rutledge-SomeSongsTheNegroSang, pp. 274-275, "Uh Leetle Weel uh Tu'nnin' Een Muh Haat" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: Anne Hobson, _In Old Alabama_, (New York:Dubleday Page & Co, 1903 ("Digitized by Google"), pp. 188-191, "In My Heart" (1 text)

Roud #11936

File: Br3641
There's a Long, Long Trail

DESCRIPTION: The singer misses (his sweetheart), noting that "Nights are getting very lonely, days are very long." He remembers her in dreams. Chorus: "There's a long, long trail a-winding To the land of my dreams Where the nightingales are singing...."

AUTHOR: Words: Stoddard King / Music: Zo Elliot
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (sheet music)
KEYWORDS: separation loneliness nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England) US
REFERENCES (4 citations):
  - Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 216, "(no title)" (1 partial text)
  - Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, pp. 180-181, "There's a Long, Long Trail" (1 text)
  - Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 573-574, "There's a Long, Long Trail" DT, LNGTRAIL
Roud #23525
RECORDINGS:
  - John McCormack "There's a Long, Long Trail" (Victor 64694, 1917)
SAME TUNE:
  - There's a Long, Long Worm A-Crawling (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 162)
NOTES [15 words]: Not a proper folk song, but its popularity in World War I argues for its inclusion here. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: DTlngtra

There's A Man Going Round Taking Names

DESCRIPTION: "There's a man going round taking names (x2), And he took my mother's name, And he left my heart in pain, There's a man going round taking names." Similarly with father, sister, brother, etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: family death
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
  - Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 447, "Man Goin' Roun'" (1 short text, 1 tune)
  - Randolph 606, "The Angel of Death" (1 text, 1 tune)
  - Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 186, "There's a Man Goin' Round Takin' Names" (1 text, 1 tune)
  - Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, p. 591, "Man Goin' Round" (1 text, 1 tune)
  - Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 56, "There's A Man Goin' 'Round Takin' Names" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Moses Asch and Alan Lomax, Editors, _The Leadbelly Songbook_, Oak, 1962, p. 28, "There's A Man Goin' 'Round Takin' Names" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7548
RECORDINGS:
  - Carolina Tar Heels, "There's A Man Goin' Round Takin' Names" (Victor V-40053, 1929, rec. 1928)
  - G. B. Grayson & Henry Whitter, "There's a Man Going 'Round Taking Names" (Victor, unissued, 1928)
  - Paul Robeson, "Dere's a Man Goin' Round Takin' Names" (HMV[UK]8637/Victor 25809, 1937)
  - Kenneth Spencer, "There's a Man Goin' Roun' Takin' Names" (Sonora 1119, n.d.)
  - Joshua White, "There's a Man Going Around Taking Names" (Melotone 12861, 1933/Conqueror 8271, 1934)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  - cf. "Tanneray" (structure)
File: San447

There's a Meeting Here Tonight (I)

DESCRIPTION: "I take my text in Matthew, and by the Revelation, I know you by your garment, There's a (Meeting/Blessing) here tonight." "'Brother John was a writer, he write the word of God."
"Sister Mary said to Brother John, 'Brother John, don't write no more.'"

There's a Picture On Pinto's Bridle
DESCRIPTION: Cowboy finds a fallen horse with a broken leg and a dying boy. With his dying breath the boy asks the singer to save the horse, which has a picture of the boy's dead mother in his bridle.

There's a Pretty Robin In My Cherry Tree
DESCRIPTION: Singer hears a robin singing in her cherry tree. She asks that he leave some cherries for her so she "can do some singing too"

There's a Rest for the Weary
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "There is rest for the weary" (3x) / "There is rest for you" / "On the other side of Jordan / In the sweet fields of Eden / Where the tree of life is blooming / There is rest for you" Verses have to do with that home in glory.

RECORDINGS:
Denis Nash, "Pinto" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
Hank Snow, "There's a Picture On Pinto's Bridle" (Bluebird B-4655, 1939)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Pinto

RECORDINGS:
Margaret Luby, "There's a Pretty Robin In My Cherry Tree" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Heart-Songs, p. 279, "Rest for the Weary" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: James Smith, _The Revivalist_ (Toronto, 1870), #104 pp. 86-87, ("In the Christian's home in glory")
P. P. Bliss, _Gospel Songs_ (Cincinnati: John Church & Co.,1874 ("Digitized by Internet Archive"), p. 108, ("In the Christian's home in glory")
William Booth, _Salvation Army Songs_ (London: The Salvation Army Book Department, 1911)
There's a Set o' Farmers Here About

DESCRIPTION: The work of the men hired by farmers "here about": "They yoke at sax and lowse at ten, And then at twa they do the same; At sax at nicht comes whistlin' hame, And that's the boy for me"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1911 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: farming work

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Greig/Duncan3 385, "There's a Set o' Farmers Here About" (1 text)

Roud #5918

NOTES [18 words]: Greig/Duncan3 quoting Robertson, Song Notes: .. a protest of servants against the treatment they got." - BS

Last updated in version 2.4

File: GrD3385

There's an Empty Cot in the Bunkhouse Tonight

DESCRIPTION: "There's a cot unused in the bunkhouse tonight, There's a pinto's head bending low." The cowboy "Lumpy" has left an empty saddle. He had followed a stray calf, and found it -- but the night was cold and snowy, and Lumpy died in the harsh weather

AUTHOR: Gene Autry

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (copyright)

KEYWORDS: cowboy death storm

FOUND IN: US(So,SW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Tinsley-HeWasSinginThisSong, pp. 102-106, "There's an Empty Cot in the Bunkhouse Tonight" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #18081

File: Tinsl1102

There's Bound to be a Row

DESCRIPTION: Singer has "an awful wife." "If I do everything that's right, she'll find a fault somehow." He sleeps on the sofa when she takes in a lodger. She takes his money, gives him a meager allowance, "and if I spend it all at once, there's bound to be a row"

Author: unknown
Earliest Date: before 1867 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(3778))
Keywords: shrewishness marriage humorous wife
Found In: Britain(Scotland(Aber,Bord))
References: (3 citations):
Greig/Duncan7 1287, "There's Bound to be a Row" (1 text)
McMorland/Scott-Herd/LaddieOTheGlen, pp. 58-59, 150, "There's Bound to Be a Row" (1 text, 1 tune)
Additional: Willie Scott, "There's Bound to be a Row," School of Scottish Studies Archive, SA1962.027, Tobar an Dualchais/Kist o Riches accessed 14 September 2013 from http://www.tobarandualchais.co.uk/en/fullrecord/57703/1
Roud #1616
Recordings:
Jimmy McBeath, "Bound to be a Row" (on Voice01)
Broadside:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(3778), "There's Bound to be a Row," J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866; also Harding B 11(3777), "Theres Bound to be a Row"
Cross-References:
cf. "Devilish Mary" [Laws Q4] (theme)
cf. "The Wearing of the Britches" (theme)

---

There's Buckies i' Bog, There's Gairies i' Glen

Description: "There' buckies i' bog, there's gairies i' glen, Sing buckies again, sing buckies again."
Author: unknown
Earliest Date: 1873 (Harris manuscript)
Keywords: music
Found In: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
References: (1 citation):
Lyle/McAlpine/McLucas-SongRepertoireOfAmeliaAndJaneHarris, p. 161, "There s buckies i' bog, there's gairies i' glen" (1 fragment)
Roud #18045
Notes: [17 words]: The current description is all of the Lyle/McAlpine/McLucas-SongRepertoireOfAmeliaAndJaneHarris text.- RBW
Last updated in version 4.2
File: HLM161A

---

There's Culling to be Done

Description: "The word went round in Greymouth in the year of thirty-six, Internal Affairs Department was in something of a fix... The deer are far too numerous, there's culling to be done." Many join up to earn the bounties
Author: unknown
Earliest Date: 1983 (Graeme Caughey, The Deer Wars, according to Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ)
Keywords: hunting hardtimes New Zealand
Found In:
References: (1 citation):
Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, pp. 290-291, "There's Culling to be Done" (1 text)
File: Garl290

---

There's Nae Luck at Tullo's Toon

Description: "The maiden queen o' buttermilk She couldn't get a man, To be revenged on the male sex, She tried the soor milk plan." At Tullo town "stinkin" oatmeal and buttermilk force the men away.
There's No One Like Mother to Me

DESCRIPTION: The singer thinks of his childhood home "in that cottage far over the sea" He recalls that his mother had asked him to wait but then blessed him with a kiss. "I'll go back to that home o'er the sea For there's no one like mother to me"

AUTHOR: Gussie L. Davis (1863-1899)
EARLIEST DATE: 1885 (broadside, LOCSheet sm1885 25967)
KEYWORDS: homesickness separation nonballad mother home
FOUND IN:
Roud #17330
RECORDINGS:
The Carter Family, "There's No One Like Mother to Me" (Decca ???, 1935)
BROADSIDES:
LOCSheet, sm1885 25967, "There's No One Like Mother to Me ," J. C. Groene & Co. (Cincinnati), 1885 (tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "My Gray Haired Irish Mother"
cf. "My Mother's Last Goodbye" (subject)
NOTES [335 words]: "There's No One Like Mother to Me" and "My Gray Haired Irish Mother" are clearly related but clearly distinct. The question is: which is the original and which the derivative? The tunes are closely related though the rests in "There's No One Like Mother To Me" are filled with text in "My Gray Haired Irish Mother."
The theme of both songs is: an expatriot remembers his childhood in a "cottage far over the sea" and recalls especially the mother that blessed him with tears on her cheeks.
"There's No One Like Mother to Me" has two verses and a chorus. "My Gray Haired Irish Mother" has five verses and no chorus.
Here is the first verse of "There's No One Like Mother to Me"
Sadly I'm thinking tonight
Thinking of days long gone by Memories of childhood so bright
Come back like a dream with a sigh
I'm thinking of friends and of home
In that cottage far over the sea
Oh no matter where-ever I roam
There is no one like mother to me.
and the first two verses of "My Gray Haired Irish Mother"
How sadly I'm thinking tonight of my sire-land
Thinking of scenes and of days long gone by.
Memories of childhood so bright and so airy
Come rushing back to me with many's a sigh
I'm thinking of one whom I left far behind me
In that little thatched cottage far over the sea
Oh the one only cried Barney every noon and morning
Darling won't you come back to me.
The pattern is repeated in the remaining verse of "There's No One Like Mother to Me" and the third and fourth verses of "My Gray Haired Irish Mother."
We have sheet music dated 1885 for "There's No One Like Mother to Me" (LOCSheet sm1885 25967, by Gussie L Davis). The version recorded in 1936 by The Carter Family is almost identical to that original (source: Country Music Sources by Guthrie T Meade Jr, p. 324; the Bluegrass Lyrics
The John McGettigan recording of "My Gray Haired Irish Mother" in 1929 demonstrates that the songs co-existed. - BS
For brief background on composer Gussie L. Davis, see the notes to "The Baggage Coach Ahead."
- RBW
Last updated in version 4.3
File: BrLsm188

There's No One Like the Old Folks

DESCRIPTION: A father tells his wandering boy not to go away, saying, "There's no one like the old folks after all...but your dad and mother too / Will always stand by you..." But the boy goes away, never to return, while his father grieves
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (recording, Frank Stanley)
KEYWORDS: grief rejection farewell home parting father family
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
Roud #17222 and 11512
RECORDINGS:
[Leonard] Rutherford & [John] Foster, "There's No One Like the Old Folks" (prob. Brunswick, c. 1930; on KMM)
Frank Stanley, "There's No One Like the Old Folks" (Manhattan 208, c. 1906; Columbia A-314, 1909)
NOTES [16 words]: There must be a broadside or sheet music for this someplace, but I haven't found it yet. - PJS
File: RcTNOL0F

There's Plenty o' Donside Calfies

DESCRIPTION: There are plenty of Donside calves and cows, and "plenty of bonnie young lassies If the laddies werena sae shy"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: courting nonballad animal
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1857, "There's Plenty o' Donside Calfies" (1 text)
Roud #13593
File: GrD81857

There's Tillydeask

DESCRIPTION: The people of Tillydeask, Piltochie, Turnerha and Dudwick's Hill "think themsel's nae sma' But they canna cope wi Êlphin For Êlphin capes them a"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: pride farming nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 440, "There's Tillydeask" (1 text)
Roud #5954
NOTES [36 words]: Greig/Duncan3 has a map on p. xxxv, of "places mentioned in songs in volume 3" showing the song number as well as place name; Tillydeask (440) is at coordinate (h3-4,v9-0) on that map [roughly 19 miles N of Aberdeen]. - BS
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3440
These Are All My Father's Children
DESCRIPTION: "These all my father's children (x3), Outshine the sun. "My father's done with the trouble o' the world, with the trouble o' the world, with the trouble o' the world. My father's done with the trouble o' the world, Outshine the sun."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: religious death nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 101, "These Are All My Father's Children" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12059
File: AWG101

These Corns of Mine
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Lordy! These corns of mine, Just keep burnin' me all the time. I don't try to make no excuse, I can't wear no sharp-toed shoes.... Start out to walk, stop for to talk, Oh, Lordy, these dogs do burn." The singer must walk in the shade to avoid burns
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida)
KEYWORDS: injury work hardtimes nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #102, "These Corns of Mine" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #5004
File: Mor102

These Dry Bones of Mine
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "These dry bones of mine Shall come together in the morning." Verses: "What kind of shoes do you wear, Come together in the morning, That you make walk upon the air...." "If you get there before I do ... Look out for me, I'm coming too...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, p. 11, "Dese Dry Bones of Mine" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [28 words]: The reference to the Dry Bones is probably to Ezekiel 37, the Valley of Dry Bones, although that chapter never speaks of the resurrection of a person not already dead! - RBW Last updated in version 4.0
File: Bart011

These Temperance Folks
DESCRIPTION: "These temp'rance folks do crowd us awfully, crowd us awfully, crowd us awfully. These temp'rance folks.... they think I do not care." The singer complains about the threat to his liberty, concedes that drink has made him poor, and asks to be left alone
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Cox)
KEYWORDS: drink political
FOUND IN: US(Ap,So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 323, "These Temperance Folks" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 130, "Forward, Boys, Hurrah!" (1 text)
Roud #7797
CROSS-REFERENCES:
They All Love Jack
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, for 'is heart is like the sea, Ever hopen (sic), brave, an' free, And his girl must lonely be, Till 'is ship comes back. But if love's the best of all, What can a man befall? For every girl at all, They all love Jack!"
AUTHOR: Fred E. Weatherly and Stephen Adams (source: Heart-Songs)
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart-Songs)
KEYWORDS: sailor love separation
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, p. 166, "They All Love Jack" (1 text, 1 tune)
Heart-Songs, pp. 240-242, "They All Love Jack" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9444
NOTES [22 words]: For Weatherly, the reputed author of "Danny Boy," see the notes to that song.
Another Weatherly song in the Index is "Nancy Lee." - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: Doe166b

They Are A' A-Teasing Me
DESCRIPTION: The singer complains that "he I love sae well, who has my heart and a' ..., he's owre the seas awa'." Meanwhile, Charlie, Davie, and Willie "They winna lat me be ... they're a' teasing me." Rich Carl would marry but she'll wait for her Jamie.
AUTHOR: words by Kirby, Music by Latour (source: Whitelaw)
EARLIEST DATE: 1843 (Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong)
KEYWORDS: courting separation nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan7 1337, "They Are A' A-Teasing Me" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 477, "They're A' Teasing Me" (1 text)
Roud #7220
NOTES [17 words]: NLScotland, L.C.1269(156b), "They're A' Teasing Me" ("O' wha is he I love sae well?")], unknown, c.1880
Last updated in version 3.2
File: GrD71337

They Are Taking Us Beyond Miami
DESCRIPTION: "They are taking us beyond Miami, They are taking us beyond the Caloosa River,
They are taking us to the end of our tribe...." The singer and the singer's people are being exiled from Florida to "an old town in the west."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1933? (collected from Susie Tiger); published by Densmore 1972
KEYWORDS: Indians(Am.) exile home
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 319, "They Are Taking Us Beyond Miami"
(1 text)
File: CAFS1319

They Ca' My Faither Windy Tam
DESCRIPTION: "They ca' my faither windy Tam, An' my mither gley'd Girsy; An' me mysel', a fine fudgell...." "He bocht to me a paor o' glo'es" and bad the singer wear them because she was a fine fudgell. Similarly, the man supplies gown and shoon
AUTHOR: unknown
They Don't Allow Me to Beat Them

DESCRIPTION: "Don't allow me to beat them, Got to drag them along." The singer has been "Stumbling and falling, Trying to get away." "If my woman had of been here, I'd have been gone, She'd have brought my shooter." "Captain got a pistol and he wants to be bad...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (VaWork)

KEYWORDS: prison escape work nonballad worksong animal

FOUND IN: US(SE)

RECORDINGS:
Willie Williams, "Oh Lord, They Don't 'Low Me to Beat 'Em" (on VaWork)

NOTES [221 words]: The prisoner drives a mule team pulling a plow and, between verses, he hollers at and threatens the mules.

One verse begins "Captain got a pistol and he wants to be bad," and continues, "Must have been the first one That he ever had." That verse is also in Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs as "Cap'n got a 44 an' he try to play bad, Take it dis mornin' ef he make me mad" (John A. Lomax and Alan Lomax, American Ballads and Folk Songs (New York: The Macmillan Company, 1953), pp. 47-52,"Levee Camp 'Holler'"), in one of the Odum and Johnson books as "Captain got a luger [sic; should be 'luger' pistol used by the Germans in World War I], Tryin' to play bad, I'm goin' to take it in the mornin' If he makes me mad" (Henry W. Odum and Guy B. Johnson, Negro Workaday Songs (Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1926 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), pp. 105-106, "Don't You Give Me No Cornbread"), and in Hurston as "Cap'n got a pistol and he try to play bad, But I'm going to take it if he make me mad" (Zora Neale Hurston, Mules and Men (New York: Harper Perennial,1990 (paperback edition of J.B. Lippincott, 1935 original)), pp. 264-266, "Can't You Line It?"). The verse becomes tamer among the menhaden fishermen who have a different relationship to "the captain" (see "Going Back to Weldon"). - BS

Last updated in version 4.2

File: RcTDAMBT

They Put Me up to Kill Him

DESCRIPTION: "They put me up to kill him, my pore old white-haired dad, I done it with a horseshoe rasp, The only thing I had." The singer describes the murder, then voices his regrets at his foolishness

AUTHOR: Lloyd Robinson?

EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: homicide father family

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
June 3, 1935 - Lloyd Robinson murders his father, Robert Robinson. The younger Robinson was sentenced to life imprisonment, and allegedly wrote this song in prison

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 174, "They Put Me up to Kill Him" (1 text)
Roud #5489

File: R174
They Say That I Am Growing Old

DESCRIPTION: "They say that I am growing old; I've heard them tell it times untold. This frail old shell in which I dwell is growing old I know full well, but I am not the shell. Even with bad eyes, 'I still can see to follow him Who sacrificed his life for me...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad age
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 149, "They Say That I Am Growing Old" (1 text)
Roud #7524
File: Boet149

They Say There Is Gold on the Maggie

DESCRIPTION: "They say there is gold on the Maggie, They say there is gold on the Maud, They say there is gold on the Louis, But it all seems like bullshit to me. Bullshit, bullshit, it all sounds like bullshit to me, to me.... "We found no gold on the Maggie...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2009 (Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ)
KEYWORDS: gold mining travel hardtimes
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, pp. 273-274, "(They say there is gold on the Maggie)" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean" (tune) and references there
File: Garl273

They Sell't His Teeth to Teethe a Rake

DESCRIPTION: "They sell't his teeth to teethe a rake ... They sell't his ribs for riddle rims, His rumple banes to be claes pins. The blacksmith bocht his iron brogues, His carcase feasted the tanner's dogs."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: death horse
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 644, "They Sell't His Teeth to Teethe a Rake" (2 fragments, 1 tune)
Roud #6077
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Besuthan
NOTES [54 words]: The current description is based on the Greig/Duncan3 fragment. Greig/Duncan3 quoting a 1906 letter in Aberdeen Free Press: "["They Sell't His Teeth to Teethe a Rake"] refers to an old crofter or wandering tinker who had lost his horse, and the song goes on to tell how they disposed of his [i.e. the horse's] remains." - BS
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3644

They Shall Be Mine

DESCRIPTION: "They shall be mine when I make up my jewels (x2), Shall be mine, they shall be mine, THus said the Lord, they shall be mine." "If you cannot pray or preach like Peter, If you cannot pray or preach like Paul, Shall be mine...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1943 (Creighton collection)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad floatingverses
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
They Were Only Playing Leap-Frog

DESCRIPTION: "They were only playing leap-frog (x3) When one grasshopper jumped right over the other grasshopper's back. Oh, it's a lie... You know you're telling a lie." "They were only playing leap-frog When one staff officer jumped right over the other's... back"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)

KEYWORDS: soldier bug

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 46, "They Were Only Playing Leap-Frog" (1 text)
Roud #10526

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "John Brown's Body" (partial tune)

File: BrPa046

They're Moving Father's Grave

DESCRIPTION: "They're moving Father's grave to build a sewer." Father's remains are being moved "to irrigate some posh bloke's residence"; the singer hopes his ghost will haunt the pipes, "for they had the bleeding nerve/To muck about a British workman's grave"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Cray-AshGrove)

KEYWORDS: death burial worker ghost humorous

FOUND IN: Britain

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Cray-AshGrove, p. 35, "They Are Moving Father's Grave" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 267, "They're Moving Father's Grave" (1 text)
DT, SEWERMOV SEWERMO2
Roud #10391

NOTES [9 words]: Pity we don't have the keyword "class-struggle". - PJS

File: FSWB267

Thief of the World, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer loves "the thief of the world ... My heart was gone, my head was gone, my peace of mind likewise ... I'll have her up in court, I'll charge her with the felony." Her sentence: "Around my neck she'll have to hang until her dying day"

EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)

KEYWORDS: love humorous nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 63, "The Thief of the World" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [15 words]: Francis Arthur Fahy is probably most famous as the author of "The Ould Plaid Shawl." - RBW

File: OLcM063

Thimble Buried His Wife at Night

DESCRIPTION: Thimble's scolding wife dies; preparations are made for her burial. Thimble regrets that her diamond ring must stay on her finger. When an attempt is made to remove it, the dead woman walks to protect it. Thimble refuses any dealings with her

AUTHOR: unknown
Things About Comin' My Way

DESCRIPTION: "Ain't got no money, can't buy no grub... Now after all my hard trav'ling, Things about comin' my way." The singer complains about all the effects of poverty: Mother's cupboard is bare, the rent is due, sister can't get a doctor

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1973

KEYWORDS: poverty hardtimes food disease

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 76, "Things About Comin' My Way" (1 text)
DT, COMMYWAY"*

NOTES [39 words]: Without the other text it's hard to be sure, but I think this is a separate song from "I've Got the Left Hind Foot of a Rabbit, Things Are Coming My Way." - PJS
Paul is right; the latter is indexed as "Things Are Comin' My Way." - RBW

File: FSWB076A

Things Are Comin' My Way

DESCRIPTION: "I've got the left hind leg of a rabbit, And things are comin' my way." "He said, oh me... I feel happy all the time." "How good I feel, I got possession of an automobile, And I can eat chicken and I don't have to steal, Because things are comin'..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Sing Out)

KEYWORDS: animal nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
DT, EVMYWAY

ADDITIONAL: _Sing Out_ magazine, Volume 26, #2 (1977), p, 20, "Things Are Comin' My Way" (1 text, 1 tune, the Bessie Jones version)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Everything's Going My Way

NOTES [24 words]: Not to be confused with "Things About Comin' My Way," which is a near-blues about an out-of-luck singer who expects things to turn around. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4

File: S0v26n2a

Things I Don't Like to See

DESCRIPTION: "I don't like things that look queer to the eye" like ladies reading sonnets or wearing bonnets or corsets, or young boys smoking cigars exclaiming "I'm one of the boys," or broke Broadway dandies, or finely dressed wives of bankrupt men.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1865 (broadside, LOCSinging sb40560b)

KEYWORDS: vanity marriage clothes nonballad children drugs

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, pp. 232-233, "I Don't Like to See Boys" (1 text, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 126-127, "I Don't Like to See Boys" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2556, p. 173, "What I Don't Like to See" (1 reference)
Things I Used to Do

DESCRIPTION: "Things I used to do I don't do no mo' (x3), There's been a great change since I been born," "Chickens I used to steal I don't steal no mo' (x3), There's been a great change..." "Whisky I used to drink, I don't drink no mo' (x3), There's been...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad virtue
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 482, "Things I Used To Do" (1 text, 1 tune)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Great Change Since I Been Born

File: San482

Things Impossible

DESCRIPTION: "As I was walking in a grove All by myself as I supposed," the singer meets a pretty girl who asks "To tell her when I would marry." He sets conditions: "When saffron grows on every tree," "When Michaelmas falls in February," etc., then he will marry

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1869 (Logan-APedlarsPack)
KEYWORDS: love courting humorous rejection
FOUND IN: Britain(England) US(Ap,MW)
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 158, "Things Impossible" (1 text)
Wyman/Brockway-LonesomeSongs-KentuckyMountains-Vol2, p. 106, "The Inquisitive Lover" (1 text, 1 tune)
Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 360-362, "Improbability" (1 text)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 200, "Then My Love and I'll Be Married" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 221)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 258-260, "A Lady's Answer" (1 text, 1 tune; the text seems to mix "Things Impossible" and "My Wife Went Away and Left Me," in that the speaker is male but asks the woman to marry, not to return to him; perhaps it is close to the original source)

REFERENCES (9 citations):
JournalOfAmericanFolklore, G.L. Kittredge, editor, "Ballads and Songs," Vol. XXX, No. 117 (Jul-Sep 1917), pp. 352-353 "The Inquisitive Lover" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: J Woodfall Ebsworth, The Roxburghe Ballads, (Hertford, 1891) ("Digitized by
"O Then My Love and I Will Marry" (2 texts: "The Young Man's Resolution it the Maiden's Request", "The Maiden's Reply to the Young Man's Resolution")

Joseph Woodfall Ebsworth, editor, The Bagford Ballads: Illustrating the Last Years of the Stuarts (Hertford, 1878 ("Digitized by Google")), Second Division, pp. 534-538, "The Maiden's Answer to the Young Man's Request" (1 text).

John Ashton, A Century of Ballads (London, 1887 ("Digitized by Google")) pp. 315-318, "The Young Man's Resolution into the Maiden's Request" (1 text) [redundant; included here because Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan includes it as an example]

ST GC158 (Partial)

Roud #3686

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, Johnson Ballads 366 [many illegible words], "Improbability" or "The Batchelor's Dislike to a Married Life" ("As I was walking in the grove") , J. Evans (London), 1780-1812; also Harding B 17(137b), "Improbability" or "The Batchelor's Dislike to a Married Life"; Harding B 28(283), Harding B 25(895), "Improbability" or "An Answer to the Question"

EngBdsdBA 21225, Pepys 3.212, "The Young Man's Resolution to the Maiden's Request" ("As I was walking under a Grove, within myself as I supposed"), Josiah Blare (London), no date, accessed 08 Dec 2013.

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "My Wife Went Away and Left Me" (lyrics)

cf. "Of Late I've Been Driven Near Crazy" (list of improbabilities)

NOTES [2335 words]: This song has lyrics in common with the one indexed as "My Wife Went Away and Left Me"; both involve lists of impossible conditions. But this is a song in which the girl seeks the young man's hand; that is a song in which the man begs her to return after she abandons him. The conditions set are similar, the plots are not.

In addition, although there is a report of this song from Michigan and Kentucky and somewhere in New England, it seems to exist mostly in Britain, whereas "My Wife Went Away and Left Me" seems to be mostly from the southern United States. On this basis, I split them; Roud of course lumps them. Best to check both, though, the Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang version, for instance, seems to live between the other two.

Rorrer-RamblingBlues-LifeAndSongsOfCharliePoole's notes on "My Wife Went Away and Left Me" mention a song by Charles D. Vann called "Then My Darling I'll Come Back to Thee." I have not seen it, but it strikes me as possible that Vann took the English piece and rewrote it, resulting in the American version.

The idea of impossible requests is, of course, familiar from pieces such as "The Elfin Knight" [Child 2]. But this song is based on things that will not happen, not things that cannot be done. These sorts of conditions are quite familiar in folklore -- e.g. the fourteenth century "Prophecy of Thomas of Erceldoune," found in British Library MS. Harley 2253, has lines such as

When Londyon ys forest, and forest ys felde....

(Susanna Fein, editor, Studies in the Harley Manuscript: The Scribes, Contents, and Social Contexts of British Library MS Harley 2253, TEAMS/Western Michigan University, 2000 , p. 177). Or consider Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #3999 (DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #6384), which Rossell Hope Robbins dubs "When to Trust Women":

When nettles in wynter bere Rosis red [When nettles in winter bear roses red] & thornys bere figges naturally [And thorns bear figs naturally]
& bromeys bere appylles in euer meade [And brooms bear apples in every meadow]
& lorelles bere cheris in e cropis so hie [And laurels bear cherries in the crops so high] & okes bere dates so plentvosly [And oaks bear dates so plenteously] and lekes geve hony in ere superfluens [And leeks give honey in their superfluity]

Than put in a woman your trust & confidens [Then put in a woman your trust and confidence].

There are three more stanzas in a similar vein.

This is from the Richard Hill manuscript, Oxford, Balliol College MS. 354 (c. 1500) There is a second copy in the almost-equally-important Bodleian MS. Eng. Poet. e.1 (Bodleian 29734), for which see the notes to "The Golden Carol (The Three Kings)." A third copy appears in a flyleaf of a printed copy of Trevisa's "Bartholomew Angelicus" in British Library IB 55242. The first two of these manuscripts are so important, and their combination so significant, that I was almost tempted to index the piece independently -- I would have had it not been possible to mention it here.

For editions of the Balliol 354 text, see Roman Dyboski, Songs Carols, and Other Miscellaneous Poems from the Balliol Ms. 354, Richard Hill's Commonplace Book, 1908 (I use a [crummy] Forgotten Books print-on-demand copy made in 2016), pp. 114-115; Rossell Hope Robbins, Secular Lyrics of the XIVth and XVth Century, Oxford University Press, 1952, p. 103; Maxwell S.
Luria & Richard Hoffman, Middle English Lyrics, a Norton Critical Edition, Norton, 1974 p. 65, #63
223-224, "Impossible to trust women" (1 text).

I note that the last line of this sounds rather more modern than the rest, hinting that the list of Impossible Things is rather older than the warning against women. - RBW

This comparison looks at the six texts I have seen for "Things Impossible." In chronological sequence:

-- "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659): (Ebsworth-Roxburge, Broadside EngBdsdBA, Pepys 3.212, and Ashton). Ebsworth cites a reference to a 1658 event relating to Cromwell and estimates the date c.1659-1660

-- "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676): (Ebsworth-Roxburge). Ebsworth believes this must be later than "Young Man's Resolution" and earlier than his Bagford "Maiden's Answer".

-- Bagford (c.1684): (Ebsworth-Bagford). Ebsworth makes the date "about 1684, perhaps earlier, but after 1677."

-- Logan (c.1809): (Logan and Bodleian broadsides Johnson Ballads 366, Harding B 17(137b, Harding B 28(283) and Harding B 25(895)). With minor exceptions [must "swans" or "swarms"
"breed [probably should be "swim"] "upon dry banks" and a few omitted lines these are essentially the same. Logan found his text in "a broadside, printed in Scotland about 1809; the earliest of the Bodleian broadsides is dated before 1813.

-- Gardner (c.1865): (Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan) Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan cites "the Gernsey manuscript" as the source. The date of the manuscript was "written from 1841, or perhaps before, until the time of the Civil War at least" (p. 489).

-- Kittredge (1916): (Kittredge) "... taken down in 1916 ... [in] Kentucky."

-- Williams (c.1923): (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames) before 1923
The ballads may have an introduction and a conclusion. The body of each ballad is a set of one or more verses. Each verse has seven "improbabilities" and a final phrase close to "O then my love and I'll be married."

All of the versions beginning with the Logan (c.1809) set are derived from the three Ebsworth texts printed between c.1659 and c.1684: "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659), "Maiden's Reply"
(c.1676), and Bagford (c.1684). Of those, by far the most influential is "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) and the least influential is Bagford (c.1684). The influences are in the introduction and each of the "improbabilities." None of the later texts has a conclusion.

Description of "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659): The singer, walking in a grove, meets his sweetheart, who asked him "to tell her when I meant to marry." She promises not to interrupt him.
Improbabilities. She wishes him well and hopes he might find a wife. She says if all young men were of his mind "it would be when the Devil is blind, that we and our Lovers should be married."

Description of "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676): The singer tells "a young man" not to "think that I do wait your leisure." She "can have sweet-hearts at my pleasure" and will tell him "when I mean with you to marry." Improbabilities. No conclusion.

Description of Bagford (c.1684): "A Damsel fair ...
In a silent Grove stood musing, She seem'd to Marriage to incline, And yet she often was refusing. A young man then by chance came by And aske'd her why so long she tarried." Improbabilities. She has seen many married women wish they had remained single. She herself will remain single until "all these things shall come to pass."

Logan (c.1809), Gardner (c.1865) and Kittredge (1916) have introductions. Logan (c.1809) and Gardner (c.1865) introductions include most of the first verse of "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659); specifically, the singer, walking in a grove, meets his sweetheart, who asked him "to tell her when I meant to marry." Kittredge (1916) includes almost the entire introduction of "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659). The question, to be asked again, is what versions after Pepys carried the words to Kentucky 1916?

Williams (c.1923) has no introduction.
The "improbabilities" of the three Ebsworth texts are different. "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) has 49 improbabilities (a multiple of seven, as expected). "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676) has 63, of which only one is shared with "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) [a variant of "when saffron groes on every tree"]. Bagford (c.1684) has 56 improbabilities, of which one is shared with both earlier texts, two others with "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) and one other with "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676).

Of the later texts, allowing for variations discussed below, Gardner (c.1865) has one improbability and Williams (c.1923) has two that cannot be traced back to "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) or "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676). All of the Logan (c.1809) 35 improbabilities can be found in "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659). Of the Gardner (c.1865) 20 improbabilities [the oral texts no longer keep the structure of seven unique improbabilities to the verse], 17 can be found in "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) and two others in "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676). All 13 of the Kittredge (1916) improbabilities can be found in "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659). Of the Williams (c.1923) nine improbabilities three can be found in "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) and four others in "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676).

"Can be found in" is fine for trying to find ultimate sources of improbabilities but hides the intermediate texts. For that aspect we have to look at shared improbabilities. For example, while Logan (c.1809) cannot be an ultimate source for an improbability [since all of its improbabilities are found in "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) it is a likely intermediate text. Looking backwards:

-- "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676) [63 improbabilities] shares one improbability with "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659).
-- Bagford (c.1684) [56 improbabilities] shares three improbabilities with "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) and two with "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676).
-- Logan(c.1809) [35 improbabilities] shares 35 improbabilities with "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659), one with "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676), and two with Bagford(c.1684).
-- Gardner (c.1865) [20 improbabilities] shares 17 improbabilities with "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659), three with "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676), two with Bagford(c.1684) and 13 with Logan(c.1809).
-- Kittredge (1916) [13 improbabilities] shares all 13 improbabilities with "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659), 11 with Logan (c.1809), and 8 with Gardner (c.1865).
-- William (c.1923) [9 improbabilities] shares three with "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659), four with "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676), and two with Logan (c.1809).

I mentioned "variations" in improbabilities. "Shared" improbabilities are not always identical but seem to me to be closely related. Here are some examples:

-- What improbably grows on trees? "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) and Logan (c.1809): "when Saffron grows on every Tree"; "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676): "when Peasecods grow on every tree"; Bagford (c.1684): "when Guinnies grow on every tree"; Gardner (c.1865): "When sugar grows on cherry trees."

-- What about judges and February? "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659): "When Countrymen for judges sit, and Lambmass falls in February"; Logan (c.1809): "When country men for judges sit, And Michaelmass falls in February"; Garden (c.1865): "When country girls for judges set, And leaves don't fall till February"; Kittredge(1916): "When countrymen for judges sit, And lemons fall in February."

-- What do swans -- or in some Logan (c.1809) broadsides, "swarms" -- do, and is it improbable at all? "Young Men's Resolution" (c.1659): "[When] Swans upon dry rocks are breeding"; Logan(c.1923): "[When] swans upon dry banks are breeding"; Gardne r(c.1865): "[When] swans around dry rocks are swimming"; Kittredge(1916): "[When] swans upon dry rocks are swimming." And -- since I see mute swans breeding on dry banks -- why do we wait until Kittredge(1916) to get this "right"?

-- Notice that, in this case, Logan (c.1809) is skipped as a carrier. "Young Men's Resolution" (c.1659) and Gardner (c.1865): "[When] England into France is carried"; Kittredge (1916): "[When] Old English into France is carried."

An entirely different song following the same idea is "Of Late I've Been Driven Near Crazy" (see Harry B. Peters, editor, Folk Songs Out of Wisconsin (Madison, 1977), pp. 176-177). The deserted husband -- "She ran away with a Chinee" -- writes her "a million of letters" and she replies with lists of improbabilities ("Wait 'til the bank robbers in Canada Bring back all the money they stole. When Jay Gould and the great Knights of Labor And all the trade unions agree.

EngBdsdBA notes to Pepys 3.212 have J.S. [John Shirley] as the author. Ebsworth notes that the initials are variously reported as J.S and S.P., and suspects "the initials form another disguise for [John] P[hillips]. [S]atyr of Hypocrites" and claims J.S "cannot be James Shirley.

EngBdsdBA have the tune of "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659) as "In summer time." Ebsworth assigns "the Robin Hood tune, 'In summer time when leaves grow green,' to "Young Man's Resolution" (c.1659), "Maiden's Reply" (c.1676) and the Bagford "Maiden's Reply." - BS Last updated in version 5.3

File: GC158

Things That I Used to Do, The

DESCRIPTION: "Things I used to do I ain't gonna do no more." Singer looked for his lover but she was "hid out with her other man." He says he's sending his lover to her home and he'll go to his home. "I ain't gonna live this old life no more"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1953 (Recording, Guitar Slim)
KEYWORDS: infidelity sex parting home nonballad lover
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
  Guitar Slim (Eddie Jones), "The Things That I Used To Do" (Specialty XSP-482, 1953)
  George Lee 'Sun Bud' Spears, "I Ain't Gonna Live It No More" (on USMississippi01)
NOTES [82 words]: Sister Rosetta Tharpe's "Things That I Used To Do (And I Don't Do No More)" (1959, on "The Gospel Truth," Mercury MG 20412) (attributed to Katie Bell Nutin) is the same format as Guitar Slim's song, but Thorpe is singing a spiritual and the things she doesn't do are not anything like his. Tharpe's chorus is ("Things I used to do I don't do 'em no more" (x3) "What a bad change since I been born") She goes on "bad change ... goodbye" She sings "Lies I used to tell, I don't tell 'em no more." - BS Last updated in version 5.1
File: RcTTIUD

Think of Me

DESCRIPTION: The singer remembers Maggie. "How I wish love, I were near you as in happy days long past" He hopes she'd "think of golden summer evenings and think kindly dear of me"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan6)
KEYWORDS: love separation nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Greig/Duncan6 1255, "Think of Me" (1 text)
Roud #6791
File: GrD61255

Thinnest Man, The

DESCRIPTION: "The (thinnest/skinniest) man I ever saw Lived over in (Hoboken), And if I told you how thin he was, You'd think that I was joking." Various tall tales about the thin man's exploits, and the dangers he faces (e.g. falling through his pants and choking)

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1881 (Tom Warfield's "Helen's Babies" Songster)
KEYWORDS: humorous talltale
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 175, "The Skinniest Man I Ever Knew" (2 text, tune referenced)
Roud #15357
NOTES [74 words]: The Pankakes list at least one of their versions as being to the tune of "Take Me Back to Tulsa," but as they date that song to 1941, it can hardly be the original melody. The gag in the song seems to be widely known. For example, Peter and Iona Opie, I Saw Esau: Traditional Rhymes of Youth, #96, runs, "Chartlie, Charlie, in the tub, Charlie, Charlie, pulled out the plug. Oh my goodness, oh my soul, There goes Charlie down the hole." - RBW
File: PHCFS175

Thirteenth Lock, The
DESCRIPTION: A canal boat sails for the unlucky thirteenth lock. Women on shore cry. The man at the mast refuses to steer and is kicked overboard as a mutineer. A monster appears. Those on shore, including one who had lent the captain half his gold, wait in vain.
AUTHOR: Arthur Griffith (1872-1922)
EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)
KEYWORDS: canal humorous mutiny drowning parting disaster ship talltale monster sailor
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 1, "The Thirteenth Lock" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: 0LcM001

Thirty Bright Guineas Was to Be Your Fee
DESCRIPTION: "Thirty bright guineas was to be your fee, Right fal de diddle al de diddle dee; Other thirty and married ye shall be Wi' your firl a tirl a right Fal de diddle al de diddle dee"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: marriage money
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1791, "Thirty Bright Guineas Was to Be Your Fee" (1 fragment)
Roud #12993
NOTES [214 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 fragment. A real stretch. Is this couplet all that's left of "The Old Man Outwitted," a broadside "supposed by Mr Halliwell to date about the middle of the eighteenth century," [Leigh] which has the same general plot outline as "The Old Miser." That broadside includes the following lines: "'Here's thirty bright guineas I'll freely give thee If you can contrive to take him to sea" [lines 49, 50], "And that very minute you bring her to town, That moment I will pay thee five hundred pound. Nay that is not all, for to finish the strife, I'll freely agree for to make her your wife" [lines 131-134]; all lines are spoken by the old man but the first lines are spoken to the sea captain paid to arrange the impressment of the hero, while the second are spoken to the hero to arrange for the rescue from supposed impressment of the daughter.
See Egerton Leigh, editor, Ballads and Legends of Chesire (London, 1867 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 66-74, "The Old Man Outwitted"; Broadside Bodleian, Douce Ballads 3(31a), "The Fortunate Lover" or "The Old Man Out-Witted" ("Let all loyal lovers which around me do stand"), Diceys or Marshall (London), no date; also Harding B 3(77), "The Fortunate Lover" or "The Old Man Out-Witted" - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81791

Thirty Days Hath September
DESCRIPTION: "Thirty days hath September, April, June, and November; All the rest have thirty-one, Excepting February alone, And that has twenty-eight days clear, And twenty-nine in every leap year."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1849 (Halliwell); the earliest manuscript is said to be from the first half of the fifteenth century
KEYWORDS: nonballad MiddleEnglish
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (13 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 469, "Thirty Days Hath September" (1 text plus various related texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #328, p. 180, "(Thirty Days Hath September)"
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 50, "Thirty Days Hath September" (1 text)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #3571
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #5649
cf. Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 64, "(Thirty days has September, All the rest I can't remember)" (1 parody text suggesting looking at the calendar on the wall)
ADDITIONAL: Rossell Hope Robbins, _Secular Lyrics of the XIVth and XVth Century_, Oxford University Press, 1952, #68, "Days in the Months" (1 short text)
MANUSCRIPT: London, British Library, MS. Harley 2341, folio 5
MANUSCRIPT: Aberystwyth, National Library of Wales MS. Mostyn Welsh 129, folio 3
MANUSCRIPT: Ripon Minster Library, Cathedral MS (added in the flyleaf of a copy of Cicero's Letters)
MANUSCRIPT: San Marino, Henry Huntington Library MS. HU 1051, folio 48
Roud #20085
NOTES [234 words]: Robbins's version of this runs
Thirti dayes hath nouembir,
April, iune, and septembir;
Of xxviiiijti is but oon,
And all the remenaun xxxti and j.
Obviously the same piece, even if the words have wandered a little over the years!
This is from the British Library manuscript Harley 2341 (folio 5), but the Index of Middle English Verse lists four other manuscript versions. The British Library web site states that the manuscript is primarily a "Prayer manual with a calendar (ff. 2v-13), Psalter of Jerome, and prayers to Christ, the Virgin Mary, and various saints"; it is dated to the first half of the fifteenth century. Much of the text is in Latin; based on the IMEV, this is the only piece of Middle English verse in it.
A scan of the page with this particular verse can be found at http://www.bl.uk/catalogues/illuminatedmanuscripts/ILLUMINBig.ASP?size=big&IllID=56506
It is interesting to see that this verse, despite being out of place in such a volume, is clearly from the scribe of the codex, and decorated in the same style, although not as elaborately as the calendar above it.
Of the other manuscripts, Aberystwyth, National Library of Wales MS. Mostyn Welsh 129 has only two other Middle English items; the Huntington manuscript three, the Ripon manuscript has none at all, the Cooke manuscript as far as known had none. This seems to have been a bit of lore with no "folk" associations. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: 002469

Thirty Days in Jail

DESCRIPTION: "Good mornin', Blues; Blues, how do you do? (x2) I just come here to have a few words with you." "Thirty days in jail... back turned to the wall... Mr. Jailkeeper, put another man in my stall." "I don't mind being in jail, but I got to stay here so long."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl)

KEYWORDS: prison nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE,So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 174, "Thirty Days in Jail" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST Wa174 (Partial)
Roud #7492

File: Wa174
Thirty White Horses

DESCRIPTION: "Thirty white horses Upon a red hill, Now they tramp, Now they champ, Now they stand still."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1849 (Halliwell) (but see NOTES)

KEYWORDS: riddle animal

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 229, "Thirty white horses" (1 text)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #704, p. 275, "(Thirty white horses)"

NOTES [279 words]: Chances are, if you've met this riddle, it's from Tolkien's The Hobbit (p. 85 in my edition, in the chapter "Riddles in the Dark"; he uses a slightly different form of the text). But it is much older (even Gollum calls it "cheesnuit"). Tolkien's use of an item from oral tradition is not coincidence; Tolkien uses familiar riddles to imply the common ancestry of his characters.

The answer is "the teeth" or "the teeth and gums."

The Opies refer this to a riddle in the Holme manuscript, "Four and twenty white Bulls sate upon a stall, forth came the red Bull & licked them all." I suppose they're related, in that the answer is the teeth (plus, in this case, the tongue). But I wouldn't consider it exactly the same (apart from the fact that neither gets the number of teeth right: A person with wisdom teeth will have 32 teeth; one whose wisdom teeth are out will have 28).

The "Thirty white horses" form goes back at least to Halliwell. Duncan Emrich seems to think there is an American version of this; he quotes almost exactly this form on page 168 of Folklore on the American Land. But he cites no precise source, simply crediting much of the chapter to the research of Archer Taylor. Nonetheless the NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal version (related to something in the Brown collection) seems to prove he's right.

I do not know how old riddles of this type are, but English riddles of recognition based on such cryptic descriptions are effectively as old as English as a written language. Riddles of similar style are found in the Old English "Exeter Book," written probably between 950 and 1000 C.E., one of the four great collections of Anglo-Saxon verse. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: BGMG704

Thirty Years Ago (The Stinger)

DESCRIPTION: "In a recent Independent I read a sketch that told of affairs and folks in Ashland way back in days of old When the Stinger ran each Sunday...." The singer looks back on his good old days as he worked for the newspaper

AUTHOR: Rush Pennypacker?

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)

KEYWORDS: nonballad age

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 194-196, "Thirty Years Ago" (1 text)

NOTES [16 words]: Frankly, if this is the way the guy edited the newspaper, it's no wonder he's out of the job. - RBW

File: ThBa194

This Day (The Battle of Bull Run)

DESCRIPTION: "This day will be remembered by America's noble sons! / If it hadn't been for Irishmen, what would our Union done? / It was hand to hand we fought 'em, all in the blazing sun, / Stripped to the pants we did advance in the battle of Bull Run."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl)

KEYWORDS: Civilwar battle

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 21, 1861 - First Battle of Bull Run
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 25, "This Day (or, The Battle of Bull Run)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warner-FolkSongsAndBalladsOfTheEasternSeaboard, p. 29, "The Battle of Bull Run" (1 excerpt)
DT, BULLRUN
Roud #7465
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of Bull Run" [Laws A9] (subject: the battle of Bull Run) and notes and references there NOTES [164 words]: We can only assume this song refers to the First Battle of Bull Run; presumably, had the second (fought Aug. 29-30, 1862) been meant, the song would say so. It's hard to imagine what the Unionists were boasting of in this song. The First Battle of Bull Run was a fairly closely-fought fight, but ended with the complete rout of the Union forces. Federal commander Irvin McDowell, whose army was composed mostly of ninety-day volunteers (!), was pressured by Washington to do something before the enlistments ran out. He had no choice but to push his raw army forward. The Confederate troops were equally raw, but were on the defensive, and held off the Federals. The Union army then went completely to pieces -- but the Confederates, their forces just as badly off as the Federals, could not pursue.
According to Jonatha Lighter, the tune for this (sung by Yankee John Galusha, who seems to have been the only one to remember it) is somewhat similar to "The Lindonshire Poacher." - RBW

This Day Week I'll Nae Be Here
DESCRIPTION: "And this day week I'll nae be here This day fortnight I'll see my dear This day three weeks I'll be his bride And this day month I'll lie by his side"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: marriage sex nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1356, "This Day Week I'll Nae Be Here" (1 short text)
Roud #7234
NOTES [10 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan7 text. - BS

This Endris Night
DESCRIPTION: "This endris night I saw a sight, a star as bright as day, And ever among, a maiden sung, Lulley, by-by, lullay." The baby Jesus and his mother discuss his future: He will be great, and the mighty will bow to him -- but for now he asks her to care for him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1537 (Hill MS., Balliol Coll. Oxf. 354)
KEYWORDS: religious Jesus mother MiddleEnglish
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (19 citations):
Dearmer/VaughnWilliams/Shaw-OxfordBookOfCarols 39, "This Endris Night" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #151, pp. 10-12, "(no title)" (3 texts)
Rickert-AncientEnglishChristmasCarols, pp. 62-63, "This Endernight I saw a sight" (1 text, with a slightly different meter but enough similar words that I think it should be mentioned here)
Sidgwick/Chambers-EarlyEnglishLyrics LVIV, pp. 121-123, "(no title)" (1 text); compare LXIII, pp. 119-120; LXXXVII, pp. 157-158
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #3627; compare #3596
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #5729; compare #5683
ADDITIONAL: Roman Dyboski, _Songs, Carols, and Other Miscellaneous Poems from the Balliol Ms. 354, Richard Hill's Commonplace Book_, Kegan Paul, 1907 (there are now multiple print-on-demand reprints), #35, pp. 25-26, "[This enders nyght I saw a sight]" (1 text), with two additional texts and variant readings from a third on pp. 174-176
Thomas Wright, _Song and Carols, Now First Printed, From a Manuscript of the Fifteenth Century_, Percy Society, 1847, #X, p. 12, "(Thys endrysy3th)" (1 text)
cf. Carleton Brown, editor, Religious Lyrics of the XVth Century_, Oxford University Press, 1939, #5, pp. 7-8, "She Sang, Dear Son, Lullay" (1 text, with this first verse although the rest appears to be something else)
MANUSCRIPT: {MSEngPoetE1}, Oxford, Bodleian Library, MS. Eng. Poet. e.1 (Bodley 29734), folio 17 [IMEV #3627]
MANUSCRIPT: National Library of Scotland MS. Advocates 19.3.1, folio 210 [IMEV #3627]
MANUSCRIPT: London, British Library MS. Royal App. 58, folio 52 [IMEV #3627]
MANUSCRIPT: {MSEngPoetE1}, Oxford, Bodleian Library, MS. Eng. Poet. e.1 (Bodley 29734), folio 20 [IMEV #3596]
MANUSCRIPT: Cambridge, University Library MS. Additional 5943, folio 145 [IMEV #3596] (short text)
MANUSCRIPT: London, British Library MS. Additional 5666, folio 2 [IMEV #3596]
ST OBC039 (Partial)
NOTES [400 words]: Although no longer found in tradition, this seems to have been very popular in the fifteenth and early sixteenth centuries. It is in the Hill MS. (Balliol College, Oxford, 354, folio 226), in British Library MS. Add. 3192, in Sloane MS. 2593, Bodleian MS. Eng. poet. e.1 (folios 17v-18v), with music in British Library MS. Royal Appendix 58 (the manuscript most famous for containing "Westron Wind"), and in the Advocates Library, Edinburgh, MN. 19.3.1 (the source of Greene's text). The first verse is shown as a chorus in manuscript Oxford, Bodleian Library MS. Ashmole 189. Such wide currency, to me, implies that it belongs in the Index.
It is old enough that the Percy Society printing, at least, still uses a yogh ( ) rather than "gh." In the circumstances, it's rather sad to note that nothing whatsoever in this song is Biblical.
One other irony -- the manuscript containing the version of this with music, British Library Royal Appendix 58, is full of secular love lyrics ("A[hn] the sighs that come from my heart," "For my pastime upon a day!"/"Colle to me the rysshys grene," "The little pretty nightingale," "By a bank as I lay"), verses to a mistress (including the famous "Westron Wind"), and even an "erotic carol," "Kytt she wept; I axyde why soo"/"Kitt she wept I asked why so"/"Kitt hath lost her key."
There is another "This Endris Night" lyric, "This endris nyght, I saw a sygth, A mayd a cradyll kepe." This also occurs in Bodleian MS. Eng. poet. e.1; in addition it is in Cambridge University Library MS. Additional 5943 and in British Library Additional 5666. It very possibly deserves indexing too, but I decided it was sufficient to note it here, since it has not been printed as often. It's Brown/Robbins IMEV #3596, and Greene #151, and is cited in the manuscripts list after the list for IMEV #3627.
E. K. Chambers, _English Literature at the Close of the Middle Ages_, Oxford, 1945, 1947, p. 108, suggests that a carol in the earlier Grimestone manuscript, indexed as "Als I Lay Upon a Nith (As I Lay Upon a Night)" (IMEV #352, four copies II) is somehow ancestral to this, but that strikes me as a little too conjectural to list that piece here.
For more on manuscript Sloane 2593, see the notes to "Robyn and Gandeleyn" [Child 115].
For more about the famous anthology Bodleian MS. Eng. Poet. e.1 (Bodleian 29734), see the notes to "The Golden Carol (The Three Kings)." - RBW
Last updated in version 5.3
File: OBC039

This Is a Sin-Trying World

DESCRIPTION: "This is a sin-trying world (x4)." "Oh, heav'n is so high and I am so low, I don't know whether I'll ever get to Heav'n or no." "Jordan's stream is chilly and wide." "Way over yonder in the harvest field." "You many bury me in the east."

This Is East

DESCRIPTION: The singer, ten years old, lists what he has learned to distinguish: east from west, high from low, narrow from wide, mouth from chin, nose from eyes. He is also learning manners.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (ITMA/CapeShoreNL)

KEYWORDS: pride nonballad children

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Greig/Duncan3 368, "This is Halloweven" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #30674

RECORDINGS:

Frankie Nash, "This Is East" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)

File: ITMATHeA

This Is Halloween

DESCRIPTION: "This is Halloween, And the morn's Hallowday; If you want a true love, It's time you were away. Tally on the window-board Tally on the green, Tally on the window-board, The morn's Halloween."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: nonballad courting

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Greig/Duncan3 368, "This is Halloweven" (1 text, 1 tune)

Montgomerie/Montgomerie-ScottishNurseryRhymes 130, "(This is Hallowe'en)" (1 text)

Roud #5911

File: MSNR130

This Is Nae My Ain Lassie

DESCRIPTION: "O this is nae my ain lassie, Fair tho' the lassie be, For weel keen I my ain lassie, Kind love is in her e'e." His Jean can "steal a blink by a' unseen" and only he sees "the kind love that's in her e'e"

AUTHOR: Robert Burns (source: Dick -- but note that Dick attributes it to the Orpheus Caledonius, published before Burns was born)

EARLIEST DATE: 1733 (Orpheus-Caledonius, according to Dick)

KEYWORDS: courting nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (4 citations):

Greig/Duncan4 714, "This Is Nae My Ain Lassie" (1 text, 1 tune)

Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 414, "This Is No My Ain Lassie" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: James C Dick, The Songs of Robert Burns (London: Henry Frowde, 1903 ("Digitized by Microsoft")), #96 p. 90, "I See A Form, I See a Face" (1 text, 1 tune)

James Kinsley, editor, Burns: Complete Poems and Songs (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #507, pp. 630-631, "[O this is no my ain lassie]" (1 text, 1 tune, from 1795/1796)

Roud #6156

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Are You There Moriarity" (tune, per Greig/Duncan4)

cf. "This Is Nae My Plaid" (tune, per Greig/Duncan4)
This Is No My Ain House (I)

DESCRIPTION: "O this is no my ain house." "A carle came ... claim'd my daddy's place." The "cringing foreign goose" seized it. "Was it foul, or was it fair, To come a hunder mile and mair, For to ding out [beat] my daddy's heir, And dash him with the whiggin o't?"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1803 (Scots Musical Museum, #216)
KEYWORDS: political Jacobites home royalty children
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
    Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol1 37, "This Is No My Ain House" (1 text, 2 tunes)
    Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, pp. 413-414, "This Is No My Ain House" (1 text)
    Greig/Duncan1 119, "This Is Nae My Ain Hoose" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume III, #216, p. 225, "This is no mine ain house" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST GrD1119 (Partial)
Roud #3790
CROSS-REFERENCES:
    cf. "This Is Nae My Plaid" (tune)
NOTES [217 words]: Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol1 refers to "the allegory here of Scotland losing its rightful owner." - BS
A pretty thin allegory. The interesting question is whether it refers to the Williamite succession of 1689 or the Hannoverian of 1714.
Ewan MacColl, in "Songs of Two Rebellions," argues for 1714. Certainly some of the allusions argue that way -- e.g. the "cringing foreign goose" certainly sounds like Madame Kielmansegge, one of George I's mistresses, widely known as "the Goose." Thackerey (quoted by Christopher Sinclair-Stevenson, _Blood Royal, the Illustrious House of Hannover_, Doubleday, 1980, p.26), described her as follows: "The Countess [Kielmansegge was George's Countess of Darlington] was a large-sized noblewoman, and this elevated personage was denominated the Elephant." On the other hand, the reference to "com[ing] a hundred mile and mair" could refer either to William III's invasion of 1688 or George III's arrival in 1714. Both are hundreds of miles from London, but from the Netherlands to the Thames is only about half the distance from Hannover to England, and it's all sea distance. Most of the distance from Hannover is over land; the fastest route there (via the North Sea and the Weser) is probably three times the distance from the Texel to the English coast. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2
File: GrD1119

This Is No My Ain House (II)

DESCRIPTION: "This is no mine ain house I ken by the biggin o't... bread and cheese are my door cheeks And pancakes the riggin o't." "This is no my ain wean I ken by the greetie o't... I'll tak the curchie aff my head And row't about the feetie o't."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1724 (Johnson-Stenhouse, see Notes)
KEYWORDS: home baby nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
    Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 413, "This Is No My Ain House" (1 fragment)
NOTES [20 words]: Johnson-Stenhouse Illustrations p. 208 has this nursery rhyme as a source for Ramsay's "This Is No My Ain House" (III). - BS

Last updated in version 3.2
File: WhSo413
This Is No My Ain House (III)

DESCRIPTION: "This is no mine ain house I ken by the riggin o't." The singer is married and leaving her father's house. In her own house she intends "Avoiding ilka cause of strife That makes ane wearied of his wife"

AUTHOR: Allan Ramsay

EARLIEST DATE: before 1724 (Johnson-Stenhouse, see Notes)

KEYWORDS: love marriage home parting nonballad father husband wife

REFERENCES (3 citations):
* Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 413, "This Is No My Ain House" (1 text)

Roud #3790

NOTES [34 words]: Johnson-Stenhouse Illustrations p. 208: "This song was written by Ramsay, prior to the year 1724; but he borrowed a line or two from the following old nursery ditty [see This Is No My Ain House (II)]." - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: WhSo413A

This Is No My Plaid

DESCRIPTION: "This is no my plaid... Bonnie though the colours be," "The ground o' mine was mixed with blue, I gat it frae the lad I lo'e." The lad who wore the plaid "is now upon a distant shore," and "his name I daurna tell," but she hopes he will return and wed her

AUTHOR: W. Halley (source: Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong)

EARLIEST DATE: 1843 (Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong)

KEYWORDS: love clothes Jacobites separation exile

REFERENCES (3 citations):
* Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 260-262, "This Is No My Plaid" (1 text, 1 tune)
* Greig/Duncan5 1063, "This Is Nae My Plaid" (1 text, 1 tune)
* Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 414, "This Is No My Plaid" (1 text)

Roud #6720

SAME TUNE:
The Croppy Boy (Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol1 37)

NOTES [53 words]: Neither Ford nor Whitelaw connects this with Bonnie Prince Charlie, but there seems no doubt that he is the subject; hence the "Jacobite" keyword. - RBW

Apparently broadside Bodleian, 2806 c.11(140), "This Is No My Plaid" ("O this is no my plaid"), unknown, no date is this song but I could not download and verify it. - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: FVS260

This Is the Key of the Kingdom

DESCRIPTION: "This is the Key of the Kingdon: In that Kingdom is a city; In that city is a town; In that town there is a street" all leading to "A basket of sweet flowers. The game reverses: "Flower in a basket, basket on the bed... this is the key of the Kingdom"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (de la Mare)

KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad flowers

REFERENCES (3 citations):
* Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #664, pp. 264-265, "(This is the key of the kingdom)"
* ADDITIONAL: Katherine Briggs, _A Dictionary of British Folk-Tales in the English Language_, Part A: Folk Narratives, 1970 (I use the 1971 Routledge paperback that combines volumes A.1 and A.2), volume A.2, p. 563, "This Is the Key of the Kingdom" (1 text)
This Is the Nicht My Johnnie Set

DESCRIPTION: "This is the nicht my Johnnie set, And promised to be here; Oh, what can stay his longing step? He's fickle grown, I fear." She describes how carefully she has prepared for his coming. At last he arrives and they prepare for a snug evening.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1843 (Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong)
KEYWORDS: love separation nightvisit
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 84-86, "This Is the Night My Johnnie Set" (1 text)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #102, p. 2, "This Is the Nicht My Johnny Set" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan4 795, "This is the Nicht My Johnnie Set" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 146-147, "This Is the Nicht My Johnnie Set" (1 text)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, pp. 243-244, "This is the Nicht My Johnnie Set" (1 text)
Roud #5553
File: FVS084

This Is the Trouble of the World

DESCRIPTION: "I ask Father Georgy for religion, Father Georgy wouldn't give me religion; You give me religion for to run to my elder; O this the trouble of the world. This is the trouble of the world. O this is the trouble of the world."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad clergy
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, pp. 99-100, "This Is the Trouble of the World" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12057
File: AwG099B

This Is the Way We Wash Our Clothes

DESCRIPTION: "This is the way we wash our clothes, Wash our clothes, wash our clothes, This is the way we wash our clothes, (all on a summer's day)." Similarly, "Here we come with our dollies dear," "This is the way we comb their hair," etc.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1918 (Cecil Sharp collection)
KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad clothes
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 96, "The Dolly-Play Song" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 96, "The Dolly-Play Song" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 264, "Early Sunday Morning" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, pp. 28-29, "(Here we go round the mulberry bush)" (1 text, opening with "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush" and continuing with "This Is the Way We Wash Our Clothes")
Roud #3645
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush" (lyrics)
This Lady She Wears a Dark Green Shawl

DESCRIPTION: "This lady she wears a dark green shawl, A dark green shawl, a dark green shawl, This lady she wears... I love her to my heart." "Now choose for your lover, honey, my love...." "Now dance with your lover, honey, my love...." "Farwell to your lover...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: playparty clothes courting
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 142-143, "This Lady Dhe Wears a Dark Green Shawl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, p. 220, "This Lady Wears a Dark Green Shawl" (1 text)
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands, p. 104, "Pretty Green Shawl" (1 text)
ST ScaNF142 (Partial)
Roud #11589
File: ScaNF142

This Land is Your Land

DESCRIPTION: Singer, a wanderer, describes beauty of American (or other) land, sometimes with verses lamenting poverty. "As I went walking that ribbon of highway/I saw above me that endless skyway/I saw below me that golden valley/This land was made for you and me"

AUTHOR: Woody Guthrie
EARLIEST DATE: February 1940 (composed)
KEYWORDS: patriotic nonballad rambling beauty America
FOUND IN: US(All)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 30 "This Land is Your Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, THISLAND*
ADDITIONAL: Pete Seeger, _Where Have All the Flowers Gone: A Musical Autobiography_, A Sing Out Publication, 1993, 1997, pp. 142-146, "This Land Is Your Land" (many verses, both English and Spanish, 1 tune, plus a copy of Guthrie's original manuscript, with many corrections)
Roud #16378
RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "This Land is Your Land" (on PeteSeeger41)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "My Lovin' Father (When the World's On Fire)" (tune)
cf. "Little Darling, Pal of Mine" (tune)
SAME TUNE:
Is This Land Your Land? (Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 315)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
God Blessed America (Guthrie's original title)
Esta Es Mi Tierra
NOTES [203 words]: I include this composed song (originally an "answer song" to Irving Berlin's jingoistic "God Bless America") because it has entered into oral and aural tradition within my lifetime; it's taught in schools and camps, often as a traditional song, and is in oral currency among most of America's children.
More important, there have been dozens or hundreds of variants collected in the last forty years, in many nations and languages. These include an American Indian version: "This land is your land/But it once was my land..." Heck, my eight-year-old student wrote a couple of verses. - PJS
To me, there is no doubt that this is now a folk song. It is interesting to note, however, that unlike most folk songs, the establishment has largely managed to circulate "cleaned up" versions, so it no longer attacks the faults of the American political system....
The tune is a slight modification of "When the World's On Fire," perhaps learned from the Carter Family's recording (Victor V-40293). - RBW
No perhaps about it: Guthrie was a devoted admirer of the Carter Family. There's also a strong resemblance to another Carter Family song, "Little Darling, Pal of Mine" (Victor 21638, 1928), which we have not indexed. - PJS

Last updated in version 5.0
File: PSAFB030

This Little Light of Mine

DESCRIPTION: "This little light of mine, I'm gonna let it shine (x3), Ev'ry day (x4), Gonna let my little light shine." The singer thanks God for gifts given every day, warns that there is no hiding from sin, and urges all to let their lights shine.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (LoC recording by Doris McMurray, TX)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Warren-EveryTimeIFeelTheSpirit, pp. 95-96, "This Little Light of Mine" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 352, "This Little Light of Mine" (1 text)
DT, LITEMINE

RECORDINGS:
W. Emmons & Mt. Olive Soul Stirrers, "This Little Light of Mine" (Fortune 1318, n.d.)
Pete Seeger, "This Little Light of Mine" (on PeteSeeger27)
Betty Mae Fikes, "This Little Light of Mine" (on VoicesCiv)
Rutha Harris, Betty Mae Fikes et al, "This Little Light" (onSingFreeCD)
Doris McMurray, "This Little Light o'Mine" (AFS 02648b01, 1939)
Montgomery Improvement Association High School Trio, "This Little Light" (on SingFreeCD)
St. Paul Baptist Choir, "This Little Light of Mine" (Capitol 1069, 1950)
SNCC Freedom Singers, "Freedom Chant/Oh, Freedom/This Little Light of Mine" (on VoicesCiv)
Clara Ward Singers, "This Little Light of Mine" (Savoy 4038A, rec. 1952)

NOTES [47 words]: I've heard another song by this name floating around in Sunday School classes. Mercifully, I have forgotten it, but it clearly wasn't a traditional song. - RBW
Clearly the Montgomery recording wasn't the earliest date for this song, but it's the earliest one we've found so far. - PJS

Last updated in version 4.2
File: FSWB352C

This Little Pig Went to Market

DESCRIPTION: "This little pig(gy) went to market. This little pig stayed at home. This little pig had roast beef. This little pig had none. This little pig said, 'wee, wee, wee... All the way home' (or "I can't find my way home").

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1765 (Mother Goose's Melody)

KEYWORDS: animal home food

FOUND IN: New Zealand US(MW)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 183, "This Little Pig" (1 text)
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, p. 121, "(This little pig went to market)" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 412, "This Little Pig Went to Market" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #577, pp. 233-235, "(This Pig Went to Market)" (1 text plus several variants in the notes)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 165, "This Little Piggy Went to Market" (1 text)

File: 002412
This May Be Your Last Time
DESCRIPTION: "This may be your last time (x3), May be your last time, I don't know." The singer travels about, observes various people and their misdeeds, and warns against the dangers of sin.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, Jaybird Coleman)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 70-71, "(This May Be Your Last Time)" (1 text); pp. 229-230, "This May Be Your Last Time" (1 tune, partial text)
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeasIslands, pp. 166-167, "May be the Last Time I Don't Know" (1 text)
Hutson/Pinckney/Rutledge-SomeSongsTheNegroSang, pp. 288-289, "Een Dat' Low Lan'" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Harold Courlander, _A Treasury of Afro-American Folklore_, Crown Publishers, 1976, p. 336, "(This May Be Your Last Time)" (1 text)
Roud #10965
RECORDINGS:
Rich Amerson, "This May Be Your Last Time" (on NFMAla4)
Jaybird Coleman, "May Be My Last Time, I Don't Know" (Gennett, unissued; rec. 1927)
NOTES [46 words]: The verse in Hutson/Pinckney/Rutledge-SomeSongsTheNegroSang is "Come down (Ezekiel/Jacob/Moses/sinner/mourner) come down, It may be the last time, Ever you hear my voice again In that low land"; the chorus is "In that low land (x2) Never hear my voice again, In that low land" - BS
Last updated in version 5.1
File: CNFM070B

This Night We Part Forever
DESCRIPTION: "This night we part forever; Thou are nothing more to me. From thee each tie I'll sever That binds my heart to thee." She will not admit to sorrow, says she does not want his love, tells him to court another, says he blighted her hopes, and blesses him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: love separation nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 159, "This Night We Part Forever" (1 text)
Roud #3630
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I'll Be All Smiles Tonight" (theme)
NOTES [13 words]: Sort of an "I'll Be All Smiles Tonight" with less smiling and more griping. - RBW
File: BrII159

This Old Man (I)
DESCRIPTION: "This old man, he played one, He played knick-knack on my thumb, With a knick-knack, paddy wack, Give the dog a bone, This old man went rolling home." Similarly, "This old man, he played two, he played knick-knack on my shoe," and on upward
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #114, "Knick Knack" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 390, "This Old Man" (1 text)
Peacock, p. 21, "Old Tommy Kendal" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, THOLDMAN*
This Old World

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "This old world is full of sorrow, Full of sickness, weak and sore, If you love your neighbor truly, Love will come to you the more." Floating verses from other hymns: "We're all children of one father." "I will arise and go to Jesus." etc.

AUTHOR: (Some verses probably by John Newton)

EARLIEST DATE: 1966

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad floatingverses

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, p. 259, "This Old World" (1 text)

ST DarN259B (Full)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing (I)" (tunes)
cf. "Come, Ye Sinners" (tune, lyrics)

SAME TUNE:
Mercy O Thou Son of David (Sacred Harp, pp. 52, 56, 458)

NOTES [242 words]: The background to this song is confusing. The Golden Ring lists it as a set of words for "Mercy O Thou Son of David" (listed as by John Newton). But the Sacred Harp lists three tunes for those lyrics (which it also credits to John Newton): "Charlestown," "Villulia," and "Friendship." That Newton wrote the "Mercy O Thou Son of David" (Blind Bartimaeus) lyrics seems certain. How much of the rest he is responsible for is unclear.

To make matters worse, while all of those tunes fit "This Old World," none appear (at least in my copy of the Sacred Harp) to exactly match it.

If this song is anything, it's a placeholder for a variety of texts. There is almost a continuous gradation from this to songs of the "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing" group.

The common chorus "I will arise and go to Jesus, He will embrace me in his arms, In the arms of our dear Savior, Oh, there are ten thousand charms" is reportedly the work of Joseph Hart (1712-1768), according to Robert J. Morgan, Then Sings My Soul, Book 2: 150 of the World's Greatest Hymn Stories, Nelson, 2004, p. 47. His text, "Come ye sinners, poor and needy, Weak and wounded, sick and sore, Jesus ready stands to save you, Full of pity, love and pow'r," reportedly dates from 1759, but all Morgan can say of the tune is that it is an "American melody."

In any case, one should check both "Come Ye Sinners" and "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing (I)" to find all relatives of this piece. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: DarN259B

This Old World Ain't Going to Stand Much Longer

DESCRIPTION: "Because this ole world ain't goin' to stand much longer... Gettin' us ready for the judgment day." The singer praises his mother for teaching him to pray, warns of judgment, and points up the example of King Hezekiah

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (Wheeler)

KEYWORDS: religious Bible death

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Wheeler-SteamboatinDays, p. 73-75, "This Ole Worl' Ain't Goin' to Stan' Much Longer" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Sister Goldia Haynes, "That Great Judgement Day (This Old World)" (on Great Gospel Performers Document Records DOCD-5463 (1996))

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Little Black Train Is A-Comin'" (subject)
NOTES [79 words]: The story of Hezekiah's bout with sickness, God's threat, Hezekiah's repentance, and Isaiah's promise of fifteen additional years of life is told in 2 Kings 20:1-11 and briefly summarized in 2 Chronicles 32:24-26.
This story of Hezekiah is told in much the same words in "Little Black Train"; the two are certainly dependent in some way. But it may be just a case of spirituals mixing themes. The two songs appear to be independent except for that one bit of material. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2
File: MWhee073

This Pretty Girl of Mine
DESCRIPTION: "Here's a pretty little girl of mine Who's brought her bottle and glass of wine." She kneels on the carpet, then stands to choose her lover. When they're married they'll have a girl, then a boy, "seven years after, son and daughter"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1884 (Wodhams)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage nonballad children drink
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) New Zealand US(SE) Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #159, pp. 2-3, ("Do you see this pretty girl of mine?") (1 text)
Greig/Duncan8 1572, "This Pretty Girl of Mine" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 19, "Pretty Little Girl of Mine" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, pp. 263-264, "See This Pretty Little Girl of Mine" (1 text)
Pottie/Ellis-FolksongsOfTheMaritimes, pp. 112-113, "See This Pretty Little Girl of Mine" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 22, ("Oh, this pretty little girl of mine") (1 text with several variants)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, "Johnny Brown" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: John R. Wodhams, The Midland Garner (Banbury, 1884 ("Digitized by Google")), First Series, Vol. I, p. 32, ("See this pretty little girl of mine") (1 text)
Roud #8371
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Hokey Pokey" (one verse)
cf. "Oats and Beans" (lyrics)
cf. "King William Was King James's Son" (theme)
NOTES [50 words]: The "Johnny Brown" texts of this are rather different from "This Pretty Girl of Mine"; they look like they might have come in from another song. But both versions have the kneeling-on-the-carpet motif; although the openings may have originated separately, it's hard to separate the two pieces now. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: GrD81572

This Train
DESCRIPTION: "This train is bound for glory... If you ride it, you must be holy." "This train don't pull no gamblers..." (And so forth, through various sinners the train doesn't pull.) "This train don't pull no extras... Don't pull nothin' but the Heavenly Special."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (recording, Florida Normal Industrial Institute Quartet)
KEYWORDS: train religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Jones-MinstrelOfTheAppalachians-Bascom-Lamar-Lunsford, p. 223, "This Same Train" (1 text, 1 tune)
This Very Unhappy Man

DESCRIPTION: Bachelor decides to marry; he goes to a girl's house in his Sunday best and proposes. Her parents appear, he panics and runs, the dog chases him, he falls over a hornet's nest, and laments, "I can't begin to tell you the half of this very unhappy man."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1963 (recording, Margaret MacArthur)
KEYWORDS: courting humorous father mother
FOUND IN: US(NE)
RECORDINGS:
Margaret MacArthur, "This Very Unhappy Man" (on MMacArthur01)
NOTES [9 words]: Not to be confused with "The Very Unfortunate Man." - PJS File: RcTVUM

This Way Hen-er-y

DESCRIPTION: Something goes this way, then that way, then this way, "All day long" For example, "Here comes this one, Just like the other one, Here comes this one, All day long"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1969 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: playparty
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 114, "This Way Hen-er-y" (3 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #16803
File: OpGa114
This World Is Not My Home (I)

DESCRIPTION: "This world is not my home; I'm just a-passing through." "Oh Lord, you know, I have no friend like you. If Heaven's not my home, then, Lord, what will I do? Angels beckon me to Heaven's open door, And I can't feel at home in this world any more."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (recording, Stove Pipe No. 1)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 135, "The World Is Not My Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 354, "I Can't Feel At Home In This World Any More" (1 text)
DT, CANTHOME*

Roud #7481

RECORDINGS:
Alphabetical Four, "I Can't Feel At Home In This World Anymore" (Decca 7840, 1941; on AlphabFour01)
Carter Family, "Can't Feel at Home" (Victor 23569, 1931; Montgomery Ward M-4736, c. 1935; Bluebird B-6257, 1936)
Pete Cassell, "I Can't Feel At Home in this World" (Decca 6077, 1942; rec. 1941)
Kentucky Thoroughbreds, "This World Is Not My Home" (Paramount 3014, 1927)
Edith & Sherman Collins, "I Can't Feel At Home In This World" (Decca 5635, 1939; rec. 1938)
Golden Echo Quartet, "This World Is Not My Home" (Columbia 14572-D, 1931; rec. 1927)
Jessie May Hill, "This World Is Not My Home" (OKeh 8546, 1927)
J. E. Mainer's Mountaineers, "This World Is Not My Home" (Bluebird B-6088/Montgomery Ward M-4714, 1935)
Monroe Brothers, "This World Is Not My Home" (Bluebird B-6309/Montgomery Ward M-4745, 1936)
Prairie Ramblers, "This World Is Not My Home" (Banner 33449/Melotone 13416/Conqueror 8503, 1935)
Claude Sharpe & Old Hickory Singers, "This World Is Not My Home" (Columbia 20450, 1948; rec. 1946)
Southern Sons Quartette, "I Can't Feel At Home Any More" (Trumpet 143, n.d.)
Stove Pipe No. 1, "Lord Don't You Know I Have No Friend Like You" (Columbia 210-D, 1924)
Hank Thompson, "Can't Feel At Home In The World Anymore" (Capitol 1163, 1950)
Frank Welling & John McGhee, "This World Is Not My Home" (Champion 16585, 1933; rec. 1932)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Ain't Got No Home" (structure, lyrics, tune)

NOTES [16 words]: This is really a group or cluster of songs with verses that float effortlessly between them. - PJS

Last updated in version 4.3

File: Wa135

This World Is Not My Home (II)

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "This world is not my home"(2x) This world's a howling wilderness, This world is not my home" Verses: Since Christ wept for sinners, astonishing even the angels. "Let floods of penitential grief Burst forth from every eye"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, p. 9, "This World Is Not My Home" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: Bart009

Thomas and Nancy [Laws K15]

DESCRIPTION: Thomas's ship is ready for sea, forcing him to leave Nancy. She calls to him to remember his sweetheart and family. His ship is wrecked almost at once. Nancy finds Thomas's body, kisses its lips, and dies of grief

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1839 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(3473))
KEYWORDS: separation wreck death
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South)) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (7 citations):
  Laws K15, "Thomas and Nancy"
  Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 199, "Thomas and Nancy" (1 text)
  Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 54, "Thomas and Nancy" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Peacock, pp. 729-732, "Thomas and Nancy" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
  Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports, pp. 360-361, "Thomas and Molly (Thomas and Nancy)" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 107, "Thomas and Nancy" (1 text, 1 tune)
  DT 812, TOMNANCY
Roud #3232
RECORDINGS:
  Mike Kent, "Thomas and Nancy" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]; "Thomas and Nancy" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
BROADSIDES:
  Bodleian, Harding B 11(3473), "Thomas and Nancy," J. Catnach (London), 1813-1838; also Harding B 11(4123), Firth b.27(273), Firth b.25(109), 2806 c.16(120), Firth b.26(156), Harding B 16(287c), Firth c.13(298), Johnson Ballads 2915, "Thomas and Nancy"
  Murray, Mu23-y1:119, "Thomas and Nancy," unknown, 19C
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "The Wreck of the Lady Shearbrooke" (theme)
  cf. "The Lady of the Lake (The Banks of Clyde II)" [Laws N41] (theme)
SAME TUNE:
  Gallant Hussar (per broadsides Bodleian Firth b.27(273), Bodleian 2806 c.16(120))
NOTES [43 words]: Although the Bodleian broadsides list the tune as "Gallant Hussar," this doesn't really match "The Gallant Hussar (A Damsel Possessed of Great Beauty)" metrically; you can make it fit, but it's work. I suspect a different "Gallant Hussar" song is meant. - RBW

File: LK15

Thomas Cat, The

DESCRIPTION: The "Thomas" cat meets his Miss and asks if she's "been off keeping comp'ny with some other Thomas cat." "The cats they have a concert at the end of every year" marked by miaowing and fighting.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)
KEYWORDS: courting fight humorous nonballad animal
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong 23, pp. 140-142, "The Thomas Cat" (1 text)
Roud #21462
RECORDINGS:
  Tom Cornelly, "Thomas Cat" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
  Jerome Downey, "The Thomas Cat" (on NFJDowney01)
NOTES [83 words]: The tune is close to "The Bigler" without the chorus. There's a note about that tune at "The Tramway Line" and a list of songs related by that tune at "The Bigler's Crew [Laws D8]."
Also see a text and hear an excerpt of "Thomas Cat" among Newfoundland songs as sung by Tom Cornelly on the "MacEdward Leach and the Songs of Atlantic Canada" site at http://tinyurl.com/tbdx-ThomasCat, accessed February 17, 2015. Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong says Downey learned his version from Cornelly. - BS

Last updated in version 4.2
File: BeDo140
Thomas Cromwell [Child 171]

DESCRIPTION: (Someone) makes a request of (the King), who offers anything short of his crown. The petitioner asks the head of Thomas Cromwell. The king orders the earls of Derby and Shrewsbury to fetch Cromwell and have him executed.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1750 (Percy folio)

KEYWORDS: trial execution royalty nobility

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

June 10, 1540 - Arrest of Thomas, Lord Cromwell at the order of Thomas Howard, Duke of Norfolk.
July 28, 1540 - Execution of Cromwell by Henry VIII. (His fifth wife Katherine Howard, the Duke of Norfolk’s niece, is said to have put him up to it)

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Child 171, "Thomas Cromwell" (1 text)
Hales/Furnival-BishopPercysFolioManuscript, volume I, pp. 127-129, "Thomas Lord Cromwell" (1 fragment)

Roud #4002

NOTES [273 words]: According to David C. Fowler, A Literary History of the Popular Ballad, Duke University Press, 1968, p. 158 n. 25, this is one of eighteen ballads in the Child collection found only in the Percy Folio. And even that copy is only a fragment. There is a ballad in Percy’s Reliques called "On Thomas Lord Cromwell," but it is not the same piece.

Cromwell (c. 1487-1540) was one of Henry VIII’s chief ministers; he held power for many years as a result of his willingness to serve his master’s needs. As such, he was one of the main forces behind the Anglican Revolution (though Cromwell probably didn’t have strong feelings on the issue either way).

Born in obscurity, he entered Wolsey's service in 1514, and grew steadily in important and influence thereafter, being elected to parliament in 1523, then entering Henry's service in 1530. Among his productions was the 1534 Act of Supremacy (making the King of England head of the English church).

Made Earl of Essex in 1540, he arranged Henry's marriage with Anne of Cleves (wife #4); when this marriage proved an instant disaster, Henry sent him to the tower. Catherine Howard (wife #5) and her family probably helped secure his execution -- indeed, Hales and Furnivall suggest that she is the person who denounced Cromwell as the traitor (the song says that the person who asks for Cromwell's head is female, although she is not named in the surviving portion). But Hales and Furnivall also note that the fragment is inaccurate.

Ironically, Cromwell's great-great-nephew Oliver Cromwell would later pull down a King (though Charles I, of course, was not a descendent of Henry VIII). - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: C171

Thomas Duffy

DESCRIPTION: "Come all ye true-born Irishmen, wherever you may be." The singer tells of "ten brave Irishmen... Who died in Pennsylvania on the 21st of June." Thomas Duffy and James Carroll are hanged. Duffy always denied the charge. The singer hopes they are in heaven

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Korson)

KEYWORDS: labor-movement mining trial execution

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

Jun 21, 1877 - Hanging of ten alleged Molly Maguire members in Pennsylvania

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 152-153, "Thomas Duffy" (1 text)
Roud #4093

NOTES [903 words]: This is item dE32 in Laws's Appendix II.
For background on the Molly Maguires, see the notes to "Muff Lawler, the Squealer" [Laws E25]. The Mollies were Pennsylvania coal miners; there had been a spike of violence in the anthracite fields in 1874-1875, when the mine owners had tried to cut wages and benefits; Kenny, p. 8, has a list of murders with possible mining connections in 1862-1875. There are sixteen in all, of which two happened in 1874 and six in 1875. As a result, the mine owners hired the Pinkertons to improve the situation -- presumably by bringing the murderers to trial. It took some time for the Pinkertons to infiltrate, but eventually they accused many anthracite miners of crimes up to and including murder.

The trials that followed almost certainly would not meet today's standards of justice. As detailed in the entry on "Muff Lawler, the Squealer" [Laws E25], the testimony against those convicted came mostly from one man, the Pinkerton infiltrator James McParlan(d), whose job depended on securing convictions and who may have helped arrange some of the murders. The only supporting testimony came from informants such as Lawler; there was no physical evidence, and often the accused had people who were willing to swear to alibis -- but who, being Irish, were not taken seriously. Someone committed the murders, but it's hard to believe that the trials determined the truth.

They racked up an impressive body count, though. In all, twenty men were executed (Kenny, p.
270, has the list). Ten of them were executed on one day, "Black Thursday," June 21, 1877. Four were hung in Mauch Chunk, Pennsylvania, and six in Pottsville -- the "ten brave Irishmen" of this song, which also has the day correct. Two of the six who died in Pottsville were James Carroll and Thomas Duffy, both mentioned in this song.

In Duffy's case, "[James] Kerrigan [mentioned in this song, and the subject of his own song or poem, "James Kerrigan's Confession"] was the star witness, testifying for three days and covering how he and Duffy had been beaten up by Yost and McCarron, and how Duffy had sworn revenge and offered [James] Roarity ten dollars to kill Yost. So much for the motive, although it came from a notorious liar who contradicted his earlier testimony. Even so, no participation by Duffy in the murder itself could be proven, and the most damaging evidence was that he spent the night at Carroll's to provide an alibi" (Riffenburgh, p. 145). James McParland offered his usual testimony to claim that just about every Irishman in Pennsylvania was a Molly Maguire, but he had nothing specific on Duffy.

"When the case went to the jury it seemed far from proven, and Judge Walker's instructions 'leaned toward the side of mercy... [H]ardly a soul in the courtroom but was satisfied Duffy's chances of acquittal were more than even.' Nevertheless, early the next morning Duffy was pronounced guilty of first degree murder" (Riffenburgh, pp. 145-146).

"Of the ten men who were hanged on Black Thursday, the one whose conviction contemporary observers found most questionable was Thomas Duffy. The only evidence against him had been provided by the informer Jimmy Kerrigan, and it had come as a surprise even to the most hostile observers when he was convicted of first-degree murder the previous September. It was widely rumored in Pottsville that he would win a reprieve at the last moment..... The details are vague and incomplete, but according to several contemporary sources, Governor Hantranft had sent his private secretary, Chester N. Farr, to Pottsville with a reprieve for Duffy, to be used in the event that one or more of the other condemned men should declare Duffy innocent. Roarity did precisely that in his final words on the scaffold. But Farr apparently decided that this explicit statement of Duffy's innocence was inadequate; the reprieve stayed in his pocket, and Duffy was duly executed" (Kenny, pp. 255-256).

Before the execution, the six men in Pottsville received communion, along with Duffy's brother James (who was found guilty of perjury in the case -- his perjury basically being that he had given his brother an alibi, so if Thomas Duffy was innocent, then so was James) and others (Kenny, p.
253). The six men were hung in pairs (Kenny, p. 254), with Carroll and Roarity being the second pair (Kenny, p. 254) and Duffy and Thomas Munley the third; Duffy was attended at the end by a Father McGovern (Kenny, p. 255). Duffy, when asked if he had any last words, said, "There is no use." He and Mulney were hung at 1:20 p.m. (Kenny, p. 255).

According to Kenny, p. 291, Duffy had been born around 1852 in Donegal and emigrated to the U.
S. as a child.

Kenny, p. 290, says that Carroll was an American by birth, having been born of Irish parents in Wilkes-Barre around 1837. He doesn't seem to have ever been a mine worker himself. He moved to Tamaqua in Schuylkill County in 1872, and ran a hotel and saloon; he also became secretary of the local branch of the Ancient Order of Hibernians (the organization that the Pinkertons falsely equated with the Molly Maguires; while most Mollies seem to have belonged to the AOH, the reverse clearly was not true). The Pinkertons claimed that the assassination of Benjamin F. Yost -- the murder for which both he and Duffy died -- was planned at his saloon.

There are sketch portraits of Duffy and Carroll in Kenny's photo insert. - RBW

Bibliography
Thomas E. Watson

DESCRIPTION: "Down in the state of Georgia there lived a famous man, His name was Thomas Watson, he is known throughout the land." Watson "struggled for his native state" and "wrote the Jeffersonian," Now he is dead; "Georgia has lost her best."

AUTHOR: Rev. Andrew Jenkins

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (recording, Al Craver=Vernon Dalhart)

KEYWORDS: political death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1856-1922 - Life of Thomas E. Watson

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 317, "Thomas E. Watson" (1 text)
Roud #22284

RECORDINGS:
Vernon Dalhart (as Al Craver), "Thomas E. Watson" (Columbia 15053-D, 1925)

NOTES [1910 words]: Cohen's notes say most of what is positive about Thomas E. Watson: He was a genuine populist, and very much beloved. He ran for President as a populist in 1904, and had been a sort of an alternate Democratic vice presidential nominee in 1896. But, as editor of the Jeffersonian, he went from being a genuine populist to a sort of a Rush Limbaugh populist, raising rabbles with fiery claims. He was a racist and a bigot, and he was largely responsible for the hue and cry against Leo Frank in the Mary Phagan case (see the notes to "Mary Phagan" [Laws F20]). It is no surprise that there were many who praised him at his death -- in addition to Andrew Jenkins, Fiddlin' John Carson also wrote a tribute. But I am by no means convinced that Watson deserved the praise. At minimum, he suffered from southern racial prejudice in a particularly virulent form, or was willing to exploit it for his own ends.

The title "The Sage of Hickory Hill," used in the song, is mentioned in all the biographies. Dinnerstein, pp. 95-96, has a summary of Watson's career: "Tom Watson had an enormous following in Georgia. From the populist era until his death in 1921 [sic.; should be 1922], Watson remained one of Georgia's idols. Early in his career he had fought for the yeoman farmer -- both black and white -- who had been oppressed by tyrannical industrialists and a compliant government. Although elected to Congress on the Democratic ticket in 1890, by 1892 he had renounced the party and pronounced himself a Populist... [The Democrats denied him re-election that year by dramatic moves against him, including working on the Black vote.] In 1896 the Populist Party forced William Jennings Bryan to accept a Populist vice-presidential nominee in return for endorsing his presidential aspirations. To run with Bryan, the Populists selected Tom Watson. With defeat in 1896, Watson practically retired from politics... Eight years later he reemerged as the presidential nominee of an almost defunct Populist Party.

"Thereafter one noticed a great change in the old Populist. He had become a self-conscious defender of Southern mores and the Lost Cause. His former understanding of, and sympathy with, Negroes changed to a more orthodox Southern outlook. He began to refer to the 'bugaboo of negro domination' in Georgia politics. Furthermore, in 1906, Watson completely abandoned the Jefferson ideal of equalitarian and humanitarianism which he had championed only a decade earlier. In 1910 he formally returned to the Democratic Party [where one appearance] 'suggested the return of some Roman conqueror.'"

"Tom Watson thrived upon the ignorance and prejudices of rural Georgians. His weekly newspaper, The Jeffersonian, and his monthly, Watson's Magazine, circulated throughout the state and provided many Georgians their only contact with the outside world. Popular among illiterates, who listened to others read what Watson had written, and 'crackers,' Watso inspired 'an almost fanatical following, many who accepted without question anything he told them.' ... It was primarily these people that Tom Watson stirred with his diatribes against the financial manipulators of the North, whom he believed had been keeping the South in economic bondage. To cater to his followers' needs for vicarious excitement, and perhaps to provide himself with a satisfactory answer..." for why the world was 'plunging hellward,' Watson broadened his attack to include Catholics, the Pope, and finally Leo Frank [of the Mary Phagan murder case], who turned into the greatest sales bonanza in The Jeffersonian's history."

On p. 98, Dinnerstein points out that "His polemics were an ingenious weaving of fact and fantasy" and says that he "cannily played upon the hatreds, fears, and prejudices of his readers."

DAB, p. 549, offers a few personal details. His birth name was Edward Thomas Watson, but he reversed the first two names. His grandfather, Thomas M. Watson, was a planter who owned 45 slaves but died during the Civil War; an uncle also died during the war. His ancestors were Quakers who had been in Georgia since at least 1768. His father was John Smith Watson, his mother Ann Eliza Maddox Watson. He was born near Thomson, Georgia. His wife, whom he married in 1878, was Georgia Durham.

Martin devotes 22 pages (out of a 203 page history!) to Watson. On p. 133, he says, "Thomas E. Watson became the voice of the little man, black and white, the sharecropper, the tenant, the working man in the mill and the mine, men who, despite the prosperity around them, were growing more and more dissatisfied with their own lot. A lean, square-jawed, redheaded man with intense, hypnotic eyes, Watson burned with fierce desire to take political power from the hands of a Bourbon aristocracy supported by a complacent middle class and place it with the mass of the people, with the farmer and the laborer, who would take control of the state's politics and shape its destiny."

Martin, p. 134, reports that he was a temperance man, perhaps because his drunkard father had lost his land to creditors. He played fiddle and took part in dances. He became a teacher for a time, then read law and became a defense lawyer. In 1880, at a time when old Confederates (Joseph E. Brown, Alfred Colquitt, John B. Gordon) had been the leading forces in Georgia politics, Watson entered politics to oppose Colquitt's renomination as Governor. He didn't succeed, but he decided to stay in politics, and was elected to the House of Representatives in 1882 -- only to quit in frustration (Martin, p. 136). He returned to politics in 1888 to support Grover Cleveland, then ran for congress again in 1890, and again won (Martin, p. 137). His allies were all over Georgia politics -- nominally Democrats, but hardly hewing the party line! (Martin, pp. 138-139).

But when he ran for reelection to Congress in 1892, he lost. (DAB, p. 550, says that his district was gerrymandered and the election was "bloody.") "Watson pretended to take it calmly, but his loss of this election left a mark upon him that time could never erase, and shaped his attitude in bitter ways thereafter. He charged, justifiably, that the most arrantly corrupt practices had been used against him, including the buying of Negro votes, sometimes for money, often for a drink of cheap liquor. This, to Watson, was the sin unpardonable on the blavk mn's part" (Martin, pp. 139-140).

Suddenly, the Black was the enemy, and the allies, while they still stood for the small white worker, would no longer stand for the Black. In the Panic of 1893, he thought his views vindicated. He ran again for Congress in 1894, this time as a populist -- and lost again, in an election even messier than the last one (Martin, pp. 141-142). Having already decided that Blacks were the enemy, this election caused him to add Catholics to his list (Martin, p. 142). In 1896, the Populists joined the Democrats in nominating William Jennings Bryan for President, but nominated Watson for Vice President, whereas the Democrats chose Arthur Sewell. Things would have been interesting had Bryan won the Presidency, but Bryan lost to William McKinley. In 1904, he became the Populist nominee for President himself -- but the party was dead, and his candidacy dead with it (Martin, pp. 142-143. He would run again in 1908 -- Martin, p. 147 -- but the Populists were so far gone that he received fewer than 30,000 votes).

He continued to involve himself in Georgia politics, where he still had a fanatical following, and founded his two periodicals. In one of his editorials, he claimed that "civilization owed nothing whatever to the Negro" (Martin, p. 145). There was very little left in his politics but hate (Martin, p. 147). Having turned to hatred of the Black, and become so anti-Catholic that he grew angry just looking at them, by 1914 he had also become a violent anti-Semite (Martin, p. 148), as the Leo Frank trial showed.

In 1915, the Ku Klux Klan arose again in Georgia. "There is no evidence that Tom Watson was there among the hooded figures who set the cross on fire, though he had hinted editorially that a new Klan was needed. But no student of the times would question C Vann Woodward's observation: 'If any mortal man may be credited (as no one man may rightly be) with releasing the forces of human malice and ignorance and prejudice which the Klan merely mobilized, that man was Thomas E. Watson'" (Martin, p. 150). He then started a campaign against intervention in World War I -- and that finally resulted in him being silenced by the censors of the time (Martin, p. 151).

He ran for Congress yet again, but lost to Carl Vinson -- naturally claiming voter fraud (Martin, pp. 151-152). Then he ran for Senate on a plank opposing the League of Nations -- and was elected despite not being a party candidate (Martin, pp. 152-153). The old temperance man now fought against Federal enforcement of liquor laws, tried to all but dissolve the American military -- and tried to start fights with his Senate colleagues, having to be physically restrained on at least one occasion (Martin, pp. 153-154). While there, he expressed sympathy for the Soviet Union (DAB,
p. 551). Raging till the end, his last session of Congress was on September 22, 1922; three days later, he died of asthma ad/or bronchitis. The Klan send a cross of roses to his memorial service (Martin, p. 154).
Garrett, p. 787, says, "An era in Georgia politics ended on September 16, 1922, when Senator Thomas E. Watson died from a combined attack of bronchitis and asthma. Pending a special election to fill the vacancy, Governor Hardwick names Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton, 87, long a citizen of Bartow County, but formerly of De Kalb, to fill the vacancy temporarily. Het hus bestowed upon her the honor of being the first woman to serve in the United States Senate, though he had first tendered the appointment to Mrs. Watson, who declined." Along with all his other dislikes, Watson despised immigrants: "We have become the world's melting pot. The scum of creation has been dumped on us. Some of our principal cities are more foreign than American. The most dangerous and corrupting hordes of the Old World have invaded us. The vice and crime which they have planted in our midst are sickening and terrifying. What brought these Goths and Vandals to our shores? They manufacturers are mainly to blame. They wanted cheap labor..." (Hofstadter, pp. 82-83, quoting Watson's book Andrew Jackson).
DAB, p. 550, says of his later years, "Old traits of irascibility and vindictiveness gained the upper hand. His politics changed with his character. Shifting his followers from one Democratic faction to the other, he virtually dictated state politics. As bewildered Populists quit his ranks, their places were filled with recruits attracted by his sensational crusades against Catholicism, Socialism, foreign missions, the negro, and Leo M. Frank." The deaths of his children around the time of the Great War "temporarily crazed" him.
His DAB entry closes (p. 551) with this passage: "Some of the pathos and irony of his life may be captured in the 'Thomas E. Watson Song,' a ballad of 'a man of mighty power' who 'fought and struggle' and failed. It is still heard in backwoods Georgia."
There are at least two biographies of Watson, C. Vann Woodward, Tom Watson: Agrarian Rebeland W. W. Brewton, The Life of Thomas E. Watson. I have not seen them (and don't want to). - RBW

Bibliography

  volumes plus later supplementary volumes; I use the 1961 Charles Scribner's Sons edition with minor corrections which combined the original 20 volumes into 10. The entry on Thomas E. Watson, cited here, is in Volume X, pp. 549-551
- Dinnerstein: Leonard Dinnerstein, The Leo Frank Case, was originally published by from "The Notable Trials Library," 1991, which includes Dinnerstein's new preface to a 1987 edition of his book, plus a special article from The Tennessean
- Garrett: Franklin M. Garrett, Atlanta and Environs: A Chronicle of Its People and Events, volume II (1880s-1930s), 1954 (I use the 1988 printing of the 1969 facsimile reprint)

Last updated in version 6.0
File: CAFS1317

Thomas J Hodder, The

DESCRIPTION: Thomas J Hodder leaves Sydney. Captain Lake runs aground taking a short cut in Placentia Bay on March 8, 1952. People from Placentia Bay come out to offload Hodder. Evette also runs aground. Both are tugged free and Hodder is repaired at Burin.

AUTHOR: Lil Fitzgerald and Rose Pickett

EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)

KEYWORDS: sea ship ordeal

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 108, "The Thomas J Hodder" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #28982
NOTES [27 words]: Placentia Bay is on the south coast of Newfoundland. The song notes that Hodder is "a splendid boat, about one hundred ton" that ran from Placentia Bay to Boston. - BS

Last updated in version 6.1
File: LeBe108

Thomas Murphy

DESCRIPTION: Thomas Murphy ships on The Dolphin from Liverpool to Africa. On the way home the ship springs a leak, and the crew escape in long boats. "But when our boat she struck the shore she was burst in by a wave." Of fourteen, twelve, including Murphy, are lost.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship wreck sailor Africa
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
    Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, pp. 98-99, "Thomas Murphy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7356
CROSS-REFERENCES:
    cf. "The Georgina" (tune)
File: Ran098

Thomas Nicholson

DESCRIPTION: Looking for "as gentle a wife as John o' Badenyon," the singer gets his sweetheart alone and bars the door. Outraged, she leaves him and will not reconsider. Finally he marries a "gentle..." bastard milk maid his friends disdain.

AUTHOR: Rev. John Skinner (source: Greig/Duncan4)
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage rejection humorous bastard
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
    Greig/Duncan4 764, "Thomas Nicholson" (1 text)
Roud #6183
CROSS-REFERENCES:
    cf. "John of Badenyon (I)" (theme) and references there
NOTES [25 words]: Greig/Duncan4: "Lines by John Skinner [on Thomas Nicholson, farmer, Smallburn, Longside.-]." This just deepens the puzzle: who is John of Badenyon? - BS

Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD4764

Thomas o Yonderdale [Child 253]

DESCRIPTION: Thomas gets Lady Maisry pregnant and, hearing her lamenting, promises to marry her. He goes to sea and courts another woman, but a dream causes him to summon Maisry to be wed. Both prospective brides show up; he sends the other girl away

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Buchan, Ballads of the North, according to Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads {Child 253[A]})
KEYWORDS: love courting pregnancy separation dream reunion marriage
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
    Child 253, "Thomas o Yonderdale" (1 text)
    Bronson 253, "Thomas o Yonderdale" (2 versions)
    Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads, pp. 146-147, "Thomas o' Yonderdale" (1 text)
Roud #3890
CROSS-REFERENCES:
    cf. "Young Beichan" [Child 53]
    cf. "Fair Annie" [Child 62]
    cf. "Lord Thomas and Fair Annet" [Child 73]
Thomas Rymer [Child 37]

DESCRIPTION: Thomas the Rhymer of Ercildoune meets the Queen of Elfland. She takes him away from earth for seven years, putting him through various rituals which no doubt instill his prophetic powers.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1800 (Riewerts-BalladRepertoireOfAnnaGordon-MrsBrownOfFalkland); printed by Scott in 1802

KEYWORDS: magic prophecy abduction

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland) US(SE)

REFERENCES (38 citations):
- Child 37, "Thomas Rymer" (3 texts)
- Bronson 37, "Thomas Rymer" (2 versions)
- Bronson-SingingTraditionOfChildsPopularBallads 37, "Thomas Rymer" (2 versions: #1, #2)
- Riewerts-BalladRepertoireOfAnnaGordon-MrsBrownOfFalkland, pp. 218-219, "Thomas Rymer & Queen of Elfland" (1 text)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 10, "Thomas Rymer" (1 text)
- Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 131-135, "Thomas Rymer" (2 texts)
- Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 1, "Thomas the Rhymer" (1 text)
- Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 39, "Thomas Rymer" (1 text)
- Grigg-PenguinBookOfBallads 22, "Thomas Rhymer" (1 text)
- Gummore-OldEnglishBallads, pp. 290-292+361-362, "Thomas Rymer" (1 text)
- Hodgart-FaberBookOfBallads, p. 127, "Thomas Rymer" (1 text)
- Buchan-ABookOfScottishBallads 6, "Thomas Rhymer" (1 text)
- Whiting-TraditionalBritishBallads 35, "Thomas Rymer" (1 text)
- Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 422-425, "Sir John Gordon" (1 text, a truly curious version which retains the plot and lyrics of this song so closely that it cannot be called anything else, but with a different and inexplicable name for the hero)
- Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 116-119, "Thomas the Rhymer" (1 text)
- Leach-HeritageBookOfBallads, pp. 35-37, "Thomas the Rhymer" (1 text)
- Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads, pp. 469-478, "Thomas the Rhymer" (1 text)
- HarvardClassics-EnglishPoetryChaucerToGray, pp. 76-78, "Thomas Rymer and the Queen of Elfland" (1 text)
- DT 37, TOMRHYM* TOMRHYM2 TRUTOMAS

ADDITIONAL: Emily Lyle, _Fairies and Folk: Approaches to the Scottish Ballad Tradition_, Wissenschaftlicher Verlag Trier, 2007, pp. 5-11, "Thomas the Rhymer" (1 text plus sundry verses, 1 tune)

Karin Boklund-Lagopolou, _I have a yong suster: Popular song and Middle English lyric_, Four Courts Press, 2002, pp. 142-144, "(Thomas Rymer)" (1 text)

Katherine Briggs, _An Encyclopedia of Fairies: Hobgoblins, Brownies, Bogies, and Other Supernatural Creatures_, 1976 (I use the 1977 Pantheon paperback), pp. 415-417, article "True Thomas" (1 text plus discussion)

Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928; #136, "Thomas Rymer" (1 text)

Bob Stewart, _Where is Saint George? Pagan Imagery in English Folksong_, revised edition, Blandford, 1988, pp. 131-132, "Thomas the Rhymour" (1 text)

RELATED: versions of the romance of Thomas off Ersseldoune
- Child 37 Appendix, "Thomas off Ersseldoune" (1 text, based on the Thornton Manuscript version)
- Karin Boklund-Lagopolou, _I have a yong suster: Popular song and Middle English lyric_, Four Courts Press, 2002, pp. 131-138, "(Thomas of Ersseldoune)" (1 text, plus on p. 130 the preface to the poem that Child rejected)

Brown/Robbins-ImageryOffolkloreVerse, #365

DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #620

MANUSCRIPT: {MSCambridgeFf5.48}, Cambridge, University Library, MS. Ff.5.48, folio 119
NOTES [2486 words]: Very many of Thomas of Ercildoune's (True Thomas's) predictions are in circulation, though only a few are precisely dated or can be tied to specific events. As Kunitz/Haycraft point out (p. 177), "Soon after Thomas's death, prophecies made in his name became so popular that it is impossible to know which were his own."

Perhaps the most famous prophecy dates from 1286, the year Alexander III of Scotland died. The day before Alexander's death, Thomas had forecast that "before the next day at noon, such a tempest shall blow as Scotland has not felt for many years" (Douglas, p. 155) or perhaps that the next day would be "the stormiest day ever witnessed in Scotland" (Cook, p. 65). Kunitz/Haycraft, p. 177, think that it was just a vague oracular saying. When the next day proved clear, Thomas was taunted, but his forecast proved true -- Scotland would not again see peace until after the battle of Bannockburn in 1314.

He also became a hero of legend in his own right -- e.g. Briggs, pp. 233-235, prints a tale, "Canobie Dick and Thomas of Ercildoune," which is a variant on one of the Arthurian legends with Thomas cast in the Merlin role. It is because of stories like this that LindahlEtAl, p. 404, declare of him, "Scottish poet at the heart of an interesting complex of literature and legend."

Real and verifiable facts about Thomas are far fewer, but he does appear to have been a real person. "Thomas of Ercildoune" is a witness to a charter of c. 1265 (about the Haigs of Bemerside, also the subject of one of his couplets), and another Thomas, the son of "Thomas the Rhymer of Ercildoune," was an adult transacting in property in 1294.

Kunitz/Haycraft, p. 177, declare "That he lived and wrote at least some of the tales attributed to him is indisputable. Sometimes calling himself Learmont, sometimes The Rhymer, he owned property on a tributary of the Tweed River which to this day is known as Rhymer's Land.[Both Ercildoun (now Earlston) and the Eildon Hills are located in the region of Melrose and Berwick.] The Russian poet Lermontov believed himself a descendant of The Rhymer." They give his dates as fl. 1220?-1297?.

Alexander also gives 1297 as his last year: "A summons to return to Elfame in 1297 when Thomas was entertaining friends in the Tower of Ercildoune. A man came to him with a story that a stag and a hind had left the shelter of the forest and were walking about the village unafraid. At this portent Thomas immediately left his guests and followed the animals out of human ken to his fairy mistress." Hole, p. 63, observes that these stories of Thomas seem to be related to some of the legends about the death or departure of King Arthur.

GArnett-IHearAmericaSinging/Gosse, volume I, pp. 275-278, discusses what is known about the real Thomas. It credits him with being the at least the inspiration, if not the source, of Scottish poetry: "Many, perhaps most, ancient literatures claim a patriarchal founder, who from some points of view wears the semblance of a fable and from others that of a fact. Scotland had her Orpheus or Linus in THOMAS of ERCILDOUNE, called also THOMAS the RHYMER, who...[would] fulfill the requisites of a venerated ancestor, could we but be sure he was indeed an author. His actual existence is unquestionable. Ercildoune or Earlston is a village in Berwickshire, and ancient parchments demonstrate that two Thomases, father and son, dwelt there as landowners in the thirteenth century. The tradition of poetry appears to attach to the elder, whose appellation of 'Thomas the Rhymer' might seem decisive on the point if, by a strange coincidence, 'Rhymer' were not also another form of 'Rymour,' a surname then common in Berwickshire" (pp. 275-276).

LindahlEtAl, pp. 404-405, declare him "the first poet on Scottish soil using the 'Inglis' language (that is, Scots as opposed to Cumbrian or Gaelic) whose name is known." The authors compare the folktales about him to Sir Launfal, the first tale in the Mabinogion, and Sir Orfeo.

GArnett-IHearAmericaSinging and Gosse, on p. 276, say that Robert Manning's 1338 metrical chronicle "affirms [Thomas] to have been the author of a poem on Tristrem sufficiently popular to be habitually in the mouths of minstrels and reciters. This is strong testimony. It is thought to be invalidated by the fact that Gottfried of Strasbourg, writing his standard poem on the Tristram story nearly a century before Thomas of Ercildoune, declares himself indebted for it to another Thomas, Thomas of Brittany, whom chronology forbids us to identify with the Rhymer. But it is by no means clear that Thomas of Brittany was a poet. Internal evidence proves Gottfried's poem to be derived from a French version.

CHEL1, p. 316, is not convinced: "With the Tristram legend is connected the name of Thomas, a poet of the twelfth century, who is mentioned by Gottfried of Strasbourg in the early thirteenth century. The somewhat misty but historical Thomas of Ercildoune has been credited with the composition of a Sir Tristram story, but this was possibly due to a confusion of the twelfth century Thomas with his interesting namesake of the succeeding century. The confusion would be one to which the popular mind was peculiarly susceptible. Thomas the Rhymer was a romantic figure credited with prophetic gifts, and a popular tale would readily be linked with his name...." (GArnett-IHearAmericaSinging and Gosse do say, on p. 278, that the Tristram poem associated with Thomas is of "small" poetic merit; "Its defects are not so much of language, as of insensibility to the beauty and significance of the story; the versification is not inharmonious, but the poet... follows his original with matter of fact servility, and seems afraid of saying more than is set down for him: hence the strongest situations are slurred over and thrown away.")

Pp. 277-278 add that "A metrical romance composed on [Thomas's] name more that a century after his death represents him as the favored lover of the Queen of Fairy, as residing with her for three years in her enchanted realm, and as at length dismissed to earth lest he should be apprehended by the field, who is about to make his triennial visitation to Elfland, exactly like a bishop. As a parting gift the Fairy Queen endows him with the faculty of prophecy, which he turns to account by predicting a series of events in Scottish history some considerable time after they have taken place.... If, as is supposed, this original poem ended with the return of Thomas to Fairie, it cannot have been written by him, but no doubt embodies a genuine tradition respecting him."

(This description has its peculiar points, because Tolkien's study "On Fairy Stories," (pp. 7-8), says that the word "Fairy/Faire" is not attested before Gower, and only once before 1450, which poses problems in describing a tale allegedly of the fourteenth century.)

Derek Pearsall, on p. 27 of Brewer, similarly asserts, "There is a traditional association of Thomas of Ercildoune... but the extant Tristrem is probably a south-midland adaption of a lost work by Ercildoune."

The romance of Thomas is #365 in Rossell Hope Robbins and John L. Cutler's Supplement to the Index of Middle English Verse; they list ten manuscript copies, although most are fragments; a later version is #3889.5 in; they consider its proper opening line to be "Well on my way as I forthe wente / ouer a londe."

Wells, p. 224, describes the prophecy/romance of "Tomas of Ersseldoune" as having "three 'fitts,' and was probably originally Northern English. It is preserved in MSS. Thornton (1430-1440), 636 verses [i.e. lines]; Cambridge Unic. Libr. Ff V 48 (15th century), 492 verses [which has the unique text of "Robin Hood and the Monk" immediately after the text of "Thomas"]; Cotton Vitellius E X (late 15th century), very defective, 565 verses; and Sloane 2578 (c. 1550), 321 verses, only fitts 2 and 3 [i.e. it omits the material parallel to this ballad, leaving only the prophecies]. Scattered fragments are found in various MSS. The verses are four-stress abab; the prologue (in MS. Thornton) has 24 verses ababbbcbdeddedefgfgfg." (Making it pretty clear that the prologue is not from the same hand as the rest.) The first fit corresponds closely in plot although not in language with this song, and Child urged that this fit was originally independent of the rest; it is partly first person, partly third person (Wells, p. 225).

Wells does not mention the version on folios 24a-31a of British Library MS. Lansdowne 762. This appears to be a commonplace book of an unknown person who lived during the reign of Henry VIII (such dating hints as we have point to the late 1520s). There is very little else in the book that resembles a romance (see the list on pp. 131-133 of Parker; Parker, p. 143, says it is "the only narrative of any sort in the manuscript" -- and it ends unfinished in the middle of the page). Parker, p. 131, says that "many of the texts are impenetrable political prophesies." This suggests that "Thomas" was included because he was famous as a prophet. As further support we might note that there is an elaborate decorated initial on folio 31, the last folio of the Prophecy -- and that the scribal quality of the manuscript begins to decline immediately after that (Parker, p. 130).

Most would agree that the various pieces of the Prophecy arose independently. Boklund-Lagopolou, p. 139, says, "The prophecies are attached to the narrative very clumsily, by the simple device of having the Lady and Thomas repeat their farewell dialogue as often as is necessary to accommodate the added material." The strong implication is that additional prophecies were gradually added to the tale over the years, which would explain the discrepancies between the manuscript copies.
For an example of one of the prophecies, from the famous manuscript Harley 2253, see Robbins, p. 29, "Thomas of Erceldoune's Prophecy," beginning
When mad as ma a kynge of a capped man;
When mon is leuere o ermones yng en is owen....
The legend of the sleeper under the earth has many parallels; Baring-Gould lists several, of which he considers the Tanhauser legend the earliest; he considers (p. 121) the story of Thomas to be a variant upon that Thus Thomas's place in legend is very strong. Thomas's prophecies, however, were not "collected" until 1603; it would be difficult to prove the authenticity of most of these. Those wishing for samples can see Lyle, pp. 18-21. Several pages after that are devoted to the idea that Thomas himself will return to somehow set right the problems of the time.
Lyle, pp. 31-33, also compares a text of the ballad of Thomas with the Romance. The parallels are close enough to make dependence an effective certainty. (Fowler, p. 321, goes so far as to suggest that the ballad was composed by Anna Gordon Brown of Falkland.) Possibly the parallels would be even closer had not both items been damaged; Lyle thinks the ballad has lost part of its ending, while the romance "is well known to be incoherent." Lyle goes so far (p. 33) as to suggest that the ballad is the source for the romance, although there are genuine difficulties with this hypothesis and I do not believe she presents enough data to allow a real judgment. Nonetheless, Boklund-Lagopolou, p. 146, also declares "I personally feel it is a mistake to think of Thomas of Erceldoune as a romance on its way to becoming a ballad. It seems to me more likely that it is a ballad on its way to becoming a romance, which with the changing literary fashions never quite achieved conventional romance form or status."
Lyle also mentions some possible sources for the idea of standing somewhere and viewing heaven and hell and other places (integral here, and also found in some "House Carpenter" versions); her own suggested source is an item called "St. Patrick's Purgatory"; she also notes "The Adulterous Falmouth Squire" (for a modernized version of the latter, see Stone, pp. 82-88. It is far more of a moralizing piece -- mostly a sermon, in fact -- discussing the sacraments and talking about the sin of David before getting into the story of the squire). Much of the material she refers to could, however, come from Dante or a similar source.
Lyle, pp. 49-54, notes key similarities to the romance of "The Turk and Gawain"; she even published an article on the subject ("The Turk and Gawain as a Source of Thomas of Ercildoune") in 1970 (see Rice, pp. 537-538, for bibliography of this and of texts of "The Turk and Gowain," in Rice's spelling). "The Turk" is a piece from the Percy Folio (published by Hahn as "The Turke and Sir Gawain"); pp. 88-102 in the Hales/Furnivall edition of the Folio), and much damaged, so this is hard to prove. That there are similar motifs is beyond question -- Lyle lists among other similarities the journey with an other-worldly character (see Hahn, p. 341, lines 42-47), denying the hero food, including an order not to eat when plenty is available (Hahn, p. 341, lines 51-54; pp. 342-343, lines 83-94), an underground journey and storm (Hahn, p. 342, lines 66-72, but this section of the romance is damaged), and a castle (Hahn, p. 342, line 77).
Lyle points out that these parallels all occur in one short section of "Thomas" -- but does not point out that they occupy only a small part of "The Turk" -- roughly 60 lines out of the 337 still extant. And the direction the plot takes is completely different. I would be inclined to think that there is a common tale at the root of both. But it is interesting to note that Whiting/Fox, p. 74, declares that "Gawain's original mistress was a fairy, queen of the other world, and nameless." Whiting rather reduces the effect of this by claiming that fairy wives were common in folklore, but it is certainly of note that the Gawain tale here parallels the tale of Thomas. Although someone really needs to do a detailed examination of date; could "The Turk and Gawain" truly preceed the romance of Thomas?
Lyle also suspects a link to what she calls "Sir Landevale" -- the story LindahlEtAl call "Sir Launfal," which Marie de France made into the Breton lai of Lanval, which also exists in a fourteenth century English form as "Sir Landeale," and in the Percy folio text as Sir Lambewell (Hales/Furnival-BishopPercysFolioManuscript, volume I, pp. 142-164). There are certainly thematic similarities at some points. But to make this contention possible, she has to assume a lost original used by both. I personally think that they merely both picked up the same folklore themes. Ercildoune itself is now known merely as Earlston, according to Lyle, p. 8. For other place-names found in the versions of the ballad, see Lyle, pp. 12-17. The Eildon Tree of the song is long gone, but there is actually a memorial on its proposed site.
Supposedly this song was the inspiration for Keats's "La Belle Dame Sans Merci." - RBW Bibliography
• Alexander: Marc Alexander, A Companion to the Folklore, Myths & Customs of Britain, Sutton Publishing, 2002
• Baring-Gould: Sabine Baring-Gould, Curious Myths of the Middle Ages, new edition, 1894 (references are to the 2005 Dover paperback reprint)
• Boklund-Lagopolou: Karin Boklund-Lagopolou, I have a yong suster: Popular song and Middle English lyric, Four Courts Press, 2002
• Briggs: Katherine Briggs, British Folktales (originally published in 1970 as A Dictionary of British Folk-Tales), revised 1977 (I use the 1977 Pantheon paperback edition)
• Cook: E. Thornton Cook, Their Majesties of Scotland, John Murray, 1928
• Douglas: Ronald Macdonald Douglas, Scottish Lore and Folklore (this is the title on the dust jacket, although the spine and title page call it The Scots Book of Lore and Folklore), Beekman House, 1982
• Fowler: David C. Fowler, A Literary History of the Popular Ballad, Duke University Press, 1968
• GARnett-IHearAmericaSinging/Gosse: Richard GARnett-IHearAmericaSinging and Edmund Gosse, English Literature: An Illustrated Record four volumes, MacMillan, 1903-1904 (I used the 1935 edition published in two volumes)
• Hahn: Thomas Hahn, editor, Sir Gawain: Eleven Romances and Tales, TEAMS (Consortium for the Teaching of the Middle Ages), Medieval Institute Publications, Western Michigan
• Hole: Christina Hole, English Folk Heroes: From King Arthur to Thomas a Becket, 1948? (I use the 1992? Dorset Press reprint)
• Kunitz/Haycraft: Stanley J. Kunitz and Howard Haycraft, Editors, British Authors Before 1800: A Biographical Dictionary, H. W. Wilson, 1952 (I use the fourth printing of 1965)
• LindahlEtAl: Carl Lindahl, John McNamara, and John Lindow, editors, Medieval Folklore: A Guide to Myths, Legends, Tales, Beliefs, and Customs, 2000 (I use the 2002 one-volume paperback edition)
• Lyle: Emily Lyle, Fairies and Folk: Approaches to the Scottish Ballad Tradition, Wissenschaftlicher Verlag Trier, 2007
• Tolkien: J. R. R. Tolkien, "On Fairy Stories" (presented as a lecture in 1938, then in 1947 in Essays Presented to Charles Williams, then combined with "Leaf by Niggle" in the 1964 volume Tree and Leaf); I use the version published in The Tolkien Reader, Ballantine, 1966 (although, because "Tree and Leaf" has a separate pagination from the rest of the book, it likely is close to the pagination in Tree and Leaf)
• Wells: John Edwin Wells, A Manual of the Writings in Middle English 1050-1400, 1916 (references are to the 1930 fifth printing with three supplements)
• Whiting/Fox: B. J. Whiting, "Gawain: His Reputation, HisCourtesy, and His Appearance in Chaucer's Squire's Tale," essay reprinted (with modifications) in Denton Fox, editor, Twentieth Century Interpretations of Sir Gawain and the Green Knight, Prentice-Hall, 1968, pp. 73-78

Last updated in version 5.3
File: C037

Thomas Trim
DESCRIPTION: "I'm Thomas Trim a swell young man... girls think I'm okay... such a dandy dashing dude that you don't see every day." I don't waste time working or driving around. I just promenade "to show how cute I am"
AUTHOR: unknown
Thorwaldsen, The

DESCRIPTION: "Twas a noble craft and a gallant crew That leaved the port that day, The sea was calm and the sky was blue As she sped on her course that day," leaving behind women and babies depending on the crew. The ship is wrecked by a winter storm on its way home.

AUTHOR: unknown

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Feb 18, 1873 - Schooner _Thorwaldsen_, en route from Newfoundland to Gloucester reported missing (according to the Northern Shipwrecks Database 2002)

It sounds to me as if this song is a generic wreck song that simply had the Thorwalden plugged into it. - RBW

Those Poor Convicts

DESCRIPTION: Consider the sentencing and departure of Irish convicts bound for "Vandiamonds Land": O'Reilly from Cavan, three Duffys and Bryan Seery in Mullingar. "Unto their prosecutors they never done a wrong." "Think upon those traitors that's swore our lives away"

AUTHOR: unknown

NOTES [45 words]: Incongruously -- considering that these are supposedly innocent men -- this ballad shares lines with "The Edinburgh Convicts" and "Botany Bay" versions of "The Boston Burglar" [Laws L16]: "A warning take by me, I'd have you quit night walking, And shun bad company." - BS

Those Wedding Bells Shall Not Ring Out!

DESCRIPTION: A couple is about to be married. When the sexton asks if there are any objections, a man cries out, "Those bells shall not ring out"; the bride is his wife! He stabs her, then himself, saying "She's mine till death shall set her free."

AUTHOR: Monroe H. Rosenfeld (1862-1918)

EARLIEST DATE: 1896 (sheet music)

KEYWORDS: marriage wedding betrayal homicide suicide

FOUND IN: US(So) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Randolph 822, "Those Wedding Bells Shall Not Ring Out!" (1 text)
- Spaeth-WeepSomeMoreMyLady, pp. 231-233, "Those Wedding Bells Shall Not Ring Out!" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #7435

RECORDINGS:
- John Bulger, "The Forbidden Wedding" (on MUNFLA-Leach)

BROADSIDES:
- NLScotland, RB.m.143(124), "Those Wedding Bells shall not Ring Out," Poet's Box (Dundee), c. 1880-1900

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Fatal Wedding" (subject)

NOTES [298 words]: Randolph lists an 1896 London copyright in the name of Charles W. Heid. It seems more likely, however, that the claim by Monroe H. Rosenfeld is correct. Joan Morris writes of him, "Though he was a notorious womanizer and lost most of his money to bookmakers, Rosenfeld never wrote a song without a moral."

According to Finson, p. 64, not only was Rosenfeld a successful commercial songwriter, he also coined the term "Tin Pan Alley" for the region on West 28th Street in New York where many musical enterprises were located.

Jasen, pp. 16-17, says that Rosenfeld was known as "Rosie," and was a "most versatile man" -- journalist, songwriter, press agent, and general music promoter. He was a teetotaler, but also addicted to gambling (particularly on horses, which he apparently wasn't very good at). This left him constantly broke -- so much so that he stooped to forging checks. Once, when the police were after him, he jumped out a window, which left him with a deformed leg and a permanent limp. He was a prolific enough writer to have published under several names. He apparently had his first song published in 1882.

The original sheet music claims that this is an unamplified portrayal of something that actually happened in "a western city." The exaggerated tone of the song, and the failure to provide details, leave the matter open to question. Spaeth, p. 232, calls it a "flagrant imitation" of "The Fatal Wedding."

For a selection of Rosenfeld's more noteworthy pieces, which eventually start to seem rather like potboilers, see Spaeth, _Read 'Em and Weep_, pp. 181-187. Songs of his in the Index include "She Was Happy Till She Met You," "Take Back Your Gold" (which Jasen thinks was his biggest hit), "Johnny Get Your Gun (I)," and "Nothing's Too Good for the Irish." - RBW

Bibliography

- Spaeth: Sigmund Spaeth, _A History of Popular Music in America_, Random House, 1948

Last updated in version 4.4

File: R822

Thou Hast Learned to Love Another

DESCRIPTION: "Thou hast learned to love another, Thou hast broken every vow." The singer recalls how she and her false love "met in scenes of pleasure," notes how he now dotes upon another, wishes they had never met, and bids "Farewell, farewell forever"

AUTHOR: Charles Slade
Though the Last Glimpse of Erin with Sorrow I See

DESCRIPTION: "Though the last glimpse of Erin with sorrow I see, Yet wherever thou are shall seem Erin to me, In exile thy bosom shall still be my home...." Wherever he goes, "I will fly with my Coulin," or carry a lock of her hair, and remember

AUTHOR: Thomas Moore (1779-1852)
EARLIEST DATE: 1846 (Moore-IrishMelodies-1846)
KEYWORDS: love emigration Ireland home
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Moore-IrishMelodies-1846, p. 7, "Tho' the Last Glimpse of Erin With Sorrow I see" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 58, "Though the Last Glimpse of Erin" (1 text)
Roud #13395
File: HMHS058C

Thought I Fell in Ten Foot of Water

DESCRIPTION: Hammering song. "Thought I fell in, Uh! ten foot o' water, Uh! (x3), Over my head, Uh! over my head. Uh!" "Jay bird sat on, Uh! a hickory limb, Uh! (x3), Over my head, Uh! over my head. Uh!"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: worksong bird
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 217-218, "Work-Song" (1 short text, 1 tune)
NOTES [20 words]: Scarborough says the first part of this tune is "I've Been Working on the Railroad." Not quite, though it's close. - RBW
File: ScaNF217

Thoughts of Long Ago, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer invites "in fancy ... a trip across the sea" in order to think of those left behind. "Can you recall, sweetheart of mine, The place where I met you?" He recalls "when we set sail." "God forbid that we'd e'er forget Our dear little Isle"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1980 (IRHardySons)
Thoughts on the Newfoundland Sailing Voyage

DESCRIPTION: "Heigho, my lads, for the tenth of March, And a gallant ship and crew." The singer declares that the crew will happily go to sea, brave the conditions, fill the holds, and return to Harbor Grace.

AUTHOR: George T. Sheppard

EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff); reportedly written 1926

KEYWORDS: hunting ship

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, p. 117, "Thoughts on the Newfoundland Sailing Voyage" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #V44727

NOTES [209 words]: The lyrics of this appear to be based on "A Capital Ship" or one of its relatives; the verse form is the same and there are reminiscences in the lyrics (including an excessive fondness for "heigh-ho"). But there is no chorus; the author may not have meant it to be sung.

The tenth of March was, for many years, the day the sealing fleet left St. John's to head for the ice. This was the result of law and tradition; according to William Howe Greene, The Wooden Walls among the Ice Flows: Telling the Romance of the Newfoundland Seal Fishery, Hutchinson & Co, London (PDF available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 94 n. 1., the sealing fleet set out on that very day in 44 of the 71 springs from 1863 to 1933, and most of the other springs were close to that day.

It is interesting that the ship, at the end, is supposed to head for Harbour Grace, not St. John's, at the end of the trip. This implies that the poem is intended to evoke an earlier time in the sealing industry, before the steamers all were based in St. John's (although it is just possible that the ship would have picked up crew in Harbour Grace, it's not likely it would have returned them there, since they would not be paid until the fat made it to port). - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: RySm117

Thousand Miles Away, A

DESCRIPTION: "Hurrah for the Roma railway! Hurrah for Cobb and Co., An of! for a good fat horse or two to carry me Westward Ho." The singer enjoys the freedom of Australia, and boasts of the climate and of the meat it produces.

AUTHOR: Charles Flower? (source: Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads)

EARLIEST DATE: 1894 (The Queenslander)

KEYWORDS: food nonballad horse

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 209-211, "A Thousand Miles Away" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ward-PenguinBookOfAustralianBallads, pp. 130-131, "A Thousand Mile Away" (1 text)
Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads, pp. 64-65, "A Thousand Miles Away" (1 text)

Bill Beatty, _A Treasury of Australian Folk Tales & Traditions_, 1960 (I use the 1969 Walkabout Paperbacks edition), pp. 298-299, "A Thousand Miles Away" (1 text)

Roud #8393

CROSS-REFERENCES:
Thousands Are Sailing to America

DESCRIPTION: "Your sons and brave daughters are now going away, And thousands are sailing to America." The singer addresses those staying in Ireland and describes sad partings. You raise children, try to support them, "and when they are reared sure they will go away"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday)
KEYWORDS: emigration parting America Ireland nonballad family friend
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday 15, pp. 37-38,107,162-163, "Thousands Are Sailing to America" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2904
RECORDINGS:
John Maguire, "Thousands Are Sailing to Amerikay" (on IRJMaguire01)
NOTES [178 words]: Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday: "This is a song from the 1880s, by which time the enforced emigration of famine times had become a ritual, almost part of growing up." - BS
We should be a little careful in how we interpret these words. There were famines in Ireland before the potato blights, and all resulted in emigration, and the rate of emigration increased with the great famines of the 1840s.
But the potato blight, which resulted in the death or emigration of almost half the population, largely solved the problem of actual starvation; with the population down to a reasonable level, there were no more Mathusian catastrophes. The real problem was that the landlords owned the land, meaning that the tenants were still working for almost no reward. As another emigration song says, "'Twas not for the want of employment at home That causes the sons of old Ireland to roam. But those tyrannizing landlords, they would not let us stay...." And so the emigrant ships were filled, and stayed full for many years even after Ireland became independent.... - RBW
File: MoMa015

 Thousands or More

DESCRIPTION: Singer says time passes more cheerfully since they've found a new way (drink) to drive sorrows away. He has no credit, but you will find him at home with his bottle and friend. Neither rich nor poor, he's "as happy as those that's got thousands or more"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (recorded from Jim Copper)
KEYWORDS: drink nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 284, "Thousands or More" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1220
NOTES [43 words]: Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland suggests this may be a version of "Drive the Cold Winter Away". I don't hear it myself.... It's worth noting that... all versions of this song have come from one or another members of the Copper family of Rottingdean. - PJS
File: K284

Thra

DESCRIPTION: "Henry Thra he did invite The boys to go on Halloweave night" and get drunk and make a racket on the roads until morning. "When Thra raised up that dreadful noise He took brave Hughie by surprise." Hughie chases the boys on his horse.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland)
KEYWORDS: drink humorous horse
Thrashing Machine (I), The

DESCRIPTION: Farmer show his servant Nell the works of his thrashing machine. He straps her into the harness, she takes the handle and turns on the steam. Nine months later, when her apron won't pin, she says she'll have him transported for his thrashing machine.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1855 (broadside, Bodleian Firth b.25(339))

LONG DESCRIPTION: Farmer show his servant Nell the works of his thrashing machine; she tells him to come into the barn where they won't be seen. He straps her into the harness, she takes the handle and turns on the steam, and they begin working the thrashing machine. Nine months later, when her apron won't pin and her drawers won't go on, she says she'll have him transported for his thrashing machine.

KEYWORDS: sex punishment transportation pregnancy farming technology bawdy servant

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South)) Ireland Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick, pp. 92-94, "The Thrashing Machine" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople, p. 100, "The Thrashing Machine" (1 text)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #73, "The Thrashing Machine" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1491

RECORDINGS:
Anne [Annie] O'Neill, "The Thrashing Machine" (on FSB02, FSB2CD)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.25(339), "Thrashing Machine," E.M.A. Hodges (London), 1846-1854; also Harding B 15(330a), Firth b.27(87); Harding B 11(3808), Firth b.34(290), "Thrashing Machine"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Threshing Machine (I)" (subject, sort of)

NOTES [32 words]: This doesn't seem to be a parody of "The Threshing Machine" -- the tune and meter are different, and there's no overlap in the words. You should probably check that one out anyway, though. - PJS

Thread the Needle

DESCRIPTION: "Thread the needle, thread the needle, through the eye ...; Who likes pancakes? I, I, I!" or "who am I? One, two, three, if you want a pretty girl, come and fetch me" or "thro' the skin Sometimes out, and sometimes in"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1892 (Northall)

KEYWORDS: playparty food courting

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame, p. 1, "Thread the Needle" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: G.F. Northall, English Folk-Rhymes (London, 1892 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 397, ("Thread the needle thro' the skin") (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: J.B. Partridge, "The Game of 'Thread the Needle' and Custom of Church Clipping" in Folklore, Vol. XXIII, No. 2 (Jun 1912 (available online by JSTOR)), p. 199 ("Thread the needle, thread the needle, through the eye, eye, eye, eye") (Wiltshire, 1907); p. 203 ("Thread the needle, thread the needle, who am I?") (Wiltshire, c.1850) (2 texts)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Poor Jack (Shrove Tuesday)" (game)
cf. "King William's Troops" (game)
cf. "Call the Hogs to Supper" (game)
cf. "Grandy Needles" (game)
NOTES [615 words]: Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame lists seven texts to be sung with the game "Thread the Needle"; of those, only one includes that text. Partridge, "The Game .....," lists five texts; of those only two include the text.

According to Partridge, "The Game .....," the game was originally connected to pancake eating and church clipping -- "the encompassing of a parish church by a ring of children or young persons, who join hands so as to form a great circle" -- on Shrove Tuesday. As noted above, a great variety of texts went with the game and, in Partridge's second text the rhyme "suggests a courting game."

A review of four authors listing rhymes connected to the "Thread the Needle"/"Pig in the Gutter" game includes -- once duplicates are eliminated -- 60 texts.

The works included are:

Northall, pp. 397-398, 421-422.

Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame, pp. 33-46.

J.B. Partridge, "The Game of 'Thread the Needle' and Custom of Church Clipping" in Folklore, Vol. XXIII, No. 2 (Jun 1912 (available online by JSTOR)), p. 198-203

J.B. Partridge, "Cotswold Place-Lore and Customs (Continued") in Folklore, Vol. XXIII, No. 4 (Dec 1912 (available online by JSTOR)), p. 446

The rhymes have been indexed here under eight titles:

Brother Jack, If You Were Mine
Call the Hogs to Supper
Grandy Needles
How Many Miles to Babylon?
King William's Troops
The Needle's Eye
Poor Jack
Thread the Needle

Of these, four share few, if any, elements with the other four. These stand-alone rhymes are

Brother Jack, If You Were Mine
Call the Hogs to Supper
The Needle's Eye
Poor Jack.

The other four rhymes swap elements though they remain different enough to be clearly distinguishable from one another.

A comparison of their elements follows. Alternatives are separated by "/" or "OR." "NOT-SPECIFIED" is a choice among alternatives meaning "none of the others." Elements are assumed to occur all the time unless prefixed by "MOST OF THE TIME:,", "SOMETIMES:" or "ONCE OR TWICE::"

"Grandy Needles":
Thread grandmother's/tailor's/NOT-SPECIFIED needle]
[MOST OF THE TIME:
Open gates for King George and his bride/his lady/me
[MOST OF THE TIME:
Too dark/blind to see to thread grandmother's/tailor's needle]
[ONCE OR TWICE:
Sometimes out and sometimes in]
[ONCE OR TWICE:
We go through the long valley/lobby to see blue bells/King's horses]

"How Many Miles to Babylon":
How many miles to such-and-such a place? Can we get there by such-and-such a time? Yes.
[MOST OF THE TIME:
Open the gates for king and lady/family/host OR Open the gates for me/us]
[SOMETIMES:
Must curtsy/back-and-bow to be allowed through] [SOMETIMES:
Last one through has problem]
[ONCE OR TWICE:
Too dark to see to thread the needle]
[ONCE OR TWICE:
Thread the needle OR Jump little horse]
"King William's Troops":
Open gates for king and lady/troops/horses
[ONCE OR TWICE:
too dark to see to thread tailor's/NOT-SPECIFIED needle]
"Thread the Needle":
Thread needle through skin/eye/NOT-SPECIFIED
[ONCE OR TWICE:
Sometimes out and sometimes in OR
Let King George and I by OR Eye too little, needle too big OR Take me, a pretty girl/bonnie lassie OR Who likes pancakes? I do]
The mention of pancakes, as in "Thread the Needle" and "Poor Jack," is a reference to the special dish of Shrove Tuesday, when "Thread the Needle" games were often played. The problem for the last one through refers to the objective of some versions of the game to "capture" the last player.
- BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: 0pGa001

Three Acres and a Cow

DESCRIPTION: "You've heard a deal of talk about three acres and a cow, And if they mean to give it to us, why don't they give it to us now?" The singer is upset and broke. He repeatedly asks for some sort of relief and fairness, but says land and cow would be enough
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1918 (broadside Bodleian, Firth c.16(305))
KEYWORDS: farming hardtimes money
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-ThePainfulPlow, #21, "Three Acres and a Cow" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #24484
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth c.16(305)=Firth c.16(332) "Three Acres and a Cow" H. Such (London), 1886-1917
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Wish They'd Do It Now" (tune)
NOTES [184 words]: There is another Bodleian broadside entitled "Three Acres and a Cow"; obviously it is about the same topic, but it isn't the same song; it begins "I'm only just a labourer, Just Agricultural," with a chorus that begins "And I've got three acres, Three acres and a cow"; it is a humorous song about how the three acres and a cow aren't doing him any good. Incidentally, the proposal to give everyone in England three acres and a cow (attributed to one Jesse Collings in the 1880s) was not possible. Online sources say that Great Britain has a total area of 51.68 million acres, and at the 1901 census, Britain had 38.2 million people. So at the time, each person could have been given at most one and a half acres. (Today, it's down to about .75 acres). To be sure, the proposal probably means three acres PER FAMILY, not PER PERSON, but much of Britain is not tillable land. So although it would have been theoretically possible to hand out three acres to every family, each family would get a lot of useless land (or some would get good and some bad), and they still wouldn't be able to make a living.
- RBW
Last updated in version 5.1
File: PaPl021

Three Bells, The

DESCRIPTION: "They worked all day (x2) As brave tars only do. They sought to save from wind and wave A sinking vessel's crew." "All saved,' they cried, The shout rose high, Rose high o'er wind and wave. 'Twas a starry crew... That manned the good ship Three Bells."
AUTHOR: unknown
Three Blackbirds

DESCRIPTION: "Three blackbirds sat on a fence, They were as hungry as they could be." They find an old dead horse. A farmer kills all but one; that one is so frightened that his wings turn white -- and that is the origin of magpies, and is why they wait to eat grain

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 2009 (Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ)

KEYWORDS: bird death food farming colors

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, p. 269, "(Three Blackbirds)" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Three Ravens" [Child 26] (lyrics, theme)

NOTES [42 words]: Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ thinks this is derived from "The Three Ravens," and I sort of agree: I suspect it was a deliberate revision of that song to explain the origin of magpies. But the change was deliberate, so I file it as a separate song. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.3

File: Garl269

Three Blind Mice

DESCRIPTION: "Three blind mice (x2), See how they run (x2); They all ran after the farmer's wife. She cut off their tails with a carving knife. Did you ever see such a sight in your life As three blind mice?"

AUTHOR: Thomas Ravenscroft?

EARLIEST DATE: 1609 (Ravenscroft's Deuteromelia)

KEYWORDS: animal disability

FOUND IN: Britain(England,Scotland(Aber)) US(NE)

REFERENCES (11 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1672, "Three Blind Mice" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 297, "Three Blind Mice" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 267)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 283-284, "Three Blind Mice" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 348, "Three blind mice, see how they run!" (2 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #253, p. 156, "(Three blind mice, see how they run!)
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 212, "Three Blind Mice" (2 texts)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 111, "Three Blind Mice" (1 text)
Heart-Songs, p. 10, "Three Blind Mice" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fuld, p. 576, "Three Blind Mice"
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 413, "Three Blind Mice" (1 text)
DT, (THREEBLN*)
ST FSWB413A (Full)
Roud #3753

SAME TUNE:
The (Blind/Decrepit/Myopic) Rodents (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 208)

NOTES [119 words]: Fuld reports this as "the earliest printed secular song which is still extremely well known" (but compare "Greensleeves"). Fuld also prints a plate of the 1609 music -- in a somewhat pre-modern notation, and with words noticeably different from those sung today. Neither Fuld nor any other source I have seen offers an explanation for why this bit of silliness survives when so many better pieces died out. The Baring-Goulds note that there have been attempts to link it to political events -- e.g. the Farmer's Wife is Mary I Tudor (perhaps considered a farmer's wife because of her marriage to Philip of Spain), and the mice are Protestant leaders who opposed her. None of these explanations is very convincing. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0
File: FSwB413A

Three Block Tom
DESCRIPTION: "We was trailin' some stolen cattle In the winder of '98 From the Sierra Capitanes Past Dry Red Lake." He and Tom are separated. He thinks he finds Tom in Lamy surrounded by insects. But Tom has gotten them to Kansas City and wants a ticket home
AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: cowboy separation travel robbery bug
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 153-156, "Three Block Tom" (1 text)
File: ThLo153

Three Brave Blacksmiths
DESCRIPTION: Three brave blacksmiths from County Clare refuse to work for a grabber, are thrown in jail, refuse bail, and are treated as heroes when their term is up. "Blacksmiths, whitesmiths, tradesmen everywhere, Fathers, labourers, see your model there"
EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (_Prison Poems or Lays of Tullamore,_ according to OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)
KEYWORDS: prison work Ireland patriotic political
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1888 - Maguire, Maloney and Heaney are jailed in Miltown Malbay for supporting the boycott of a local landlord (source: notes to IRClare01).
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 71, "Three Brave Blacksmiths" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9768
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sing a Song of Sixpence" (tune, according to OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)
NOTES [34 words]: OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads: "Another of Sullivan's Land League songs." - BS
Sullivan is the author of a number of Irish patriotic poems, of which "God Save Ireland" is probably the best-known. - RBW
File: OLCm071

Three Brothers from Spain (Knights of Spain, We Are Three Jews)
DESCRIPTION: "We are three (brothers/dukes/knights/jews) come from Spain, Come to court your daughter Jane." "My daughter Jane is yet too young...." "It is for gold she must be sold." The (knight) turns away. The mother calls him back; he chooses the fairest
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1784 (Joseph Ritson, _Gammer Gurton's Garland: or, The Nursery Parnassus_, according to Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: courting beauty playparty
FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,NE) Britain(England,Scotland(Aber,Bord)) Australia
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1569, "We Are Three Lovers Come From Spain" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 199, "Two Brethren Come From Spain" (1 text)
Three Brothers in Fair Warwickshire

DESCRIPTION: "All four three brothers in fair Warwickshire, Three daring brothers you shall hear." The three turn to robbery. They rob Lord Granuvale. They are caught, tried, and condemned to die. They are 18, 19, and 20 year old. People are warned against bad company

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (recorded from Danny Brazil)
KEYWORDS: robbery trial execution death warning mother
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Roy Palmer, ""Birmingham Broadsides and Oral Tradition" -- essay found in David Atkinson and Steve Roud, Editors, _Street Ballads in Nineteenth-Century Britain, Ireland, and North America: The Interface between Print and Oral Tradition_, Ashgate, 2014, pp. 53-54, "Three Brothers in Fair Warwickshire" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3207
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Lamentation of W. Warner, T. Ward, & T. Williams" (theme)
NOTES [136 words]: Palmer connects this with a broadside, "The Lamentation of W. Warner, T. Ward, & T. Williams." Roud accepts the equivalence. There are certainly common elements -- the age of the young men (18, 19, 20), the fact that they are in Warwickshire, the fact that they rob someone whose name starts with "Gr...." But there are substantial differences, too. In the broadside, the three are not brothers; in the song, they are. The song adds a scene with the three brothers' mother bewail their fate. Only about half the verses have the same general contents. The song can't even decide whether it's in first or third person. My guess is that the song has taken on material from the broadside but that it either started as something else or was deliberately remade. Either way, I'd call it a separate although related song. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.4
File: AtRo053A

Three Brothers, The

DESCRIPTION: "A ship rides on the cruel wave" in sight of the Tuskar light at Carnsore. Three brothers leave shore and "steer for the vessel's side ... Then sink in the yawning wave."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship storm wreck sailor rescue
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, p. 115, "The Three Brothers" (1 text)
Roud #20542
NOTES [45 words]: Tuskar Lighthouse and Carnsore Point are on the Wexford coast. - BS
The name Three Brothers was common for Newfoundland ships, where families often operated a vessel and so it was common to find brothers owning a ship. Apparently the tradition came from Ireland. - RBW

_Last updated in version 5.0_

Three Butchers, The (Dixon and Johnson) [Laws L4]

DESCRIPTION: Three butchers are riding when they hear a woman calling out. They find her naked and bound. They free her; she blows a whistle which summons robbers. Two butchers yield, but Johnson fights and is close to winning when the woman stabs him from behind

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1678

KEYWORDS: outlaw trick death fight

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,NE,SE,So) Canada(Mar,Newf) Britain(England(Lond,South),Scotland)

Ireland Australia

REFERENCES (37 citations):

*Laws L4, "The Three Butchers"

Randolph 97, "Dixon and Johnson" (1 text, 1 tune)

Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 74-75, "Dixon and Johnson" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 97)

Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 238-244, "The Three Butchers" (1 text plus a broadside version, 1 tune)

Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 111, "The Three Jolly Butchers" (1 text, 1 tune)

Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #36, p. 1, "The Three Butchers" (1 text)

Greig/Duncan 186, "The Three Jolly Butchers" (11 texts, 6 tunes)

Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1 22, "The Three Jolly Butchers" (1 text)

Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 275-276, "The Two Jolly Butchers" (2 texts) (also Williams-Witshire-WSRO Wt 344)

Williams-Witshire-WSRO Wt 344, "Three Jolly Butchers" (1 text)

Broadwood-EnglishTraditionalSongsAndCarols, pp. 42-49, "The Three Butchers" (1 text, 1 tune)

Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 335, "Three Jolly Sportsmen" (1 text, 1 tune)

Copper-SongsAndSouthernBreezes, pp. 254-255, "Young Butcher Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)

Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #44, "The Three Butchers" (1 text, 1 tune)

Cox-FolkSongsSouth 86, "Jackson and Dickison" (1 text)

Sharp-EnglishFolksongsFromSouthernAppalachians 60, "The Three Butchers" (4 texts, 4 tunes)

Reeves/Sharp-TheThelidiomOfThePeople 106, "The Two Jovial Butchers" (2 texts)

Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 76, "Two Jolly Butchers" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #143, "Three Butchers" (1 text, 1 tune)

Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H185, pp. 128-129, "The Three Huntsmen/Wilson, Gilmore, and Johnson" (1 text, 1 tune)

MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 24, "The Three Butchers" (1 text, 1 tune)

Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 80, "The Three Butchers" (2 texts)

Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 80, "The Three Butchers" (1 excerpt, 1 tune)

Chappell-FolksongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 46, "Good Woman" (1 fragment)

Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #207, "The Three Butchers" (1 text, 1 tune)

Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 66, "The Three Butchers" (1 text)

Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, pp. 120-122, "The Three Jovial Huntsmen" (2 texts, 2 tunes, with the first being a peculiar variant in which the huntsmen all resist and Johnson kills the deceitful woman)

Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 97, "The Three Gallant Huntsmen" (1 text, 1 tune; this resembles the Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia version in which the huntsmen win the battle)

Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 37, "Johnson" (2 texts, 2 tunes)

Peacock, pp. 817-818, "Jolly Butchermen" (1 text, 1 tune)

Karpeles-FolksongsFromNewfoundland 33, "The Three Butchers" (2 texts, 2 tunes)

Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 59, "Three Boocher Lads" (1 text, 1 tune)

Scott-ACollectorsNotebook-31TraditionalSongs, p. 39, "((no title))" (1 fragment, found in the notes
Three C Railroad

DESCRIPTION: Hammer song. "Oh, baby, Uh! what you gwine to do? Uh! Three C railroad, Uh! done run through! Uh! "My and my partner, him and me!" "Oh, baby, what you gwine to do? Seaboard Air-line (or other train) done run through."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: railroading work

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 216-217, "Work-Song" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [21 words]: There are hints of this in some of Lead Belly's songs. But that may just be the common stuff of all railroad work songs. - RBW

File: ScNF216C

Three Crooked Criples

DESCRIPTION: Tongue-twister: "Three crooked cripples went through Cripplegate, And through Cripplegate went three crooked cripples. Hickup, snickup, rise up, rise up. Three drops in the cup are good for the hiccups."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1842 (Halliwell)

KEYWORDS: drink injury wordplay

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #745, p. 282, "(Three crooked cripples went through Cripplegate)" (1 short text)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 182, "Three Crooked Criples" (1 text)

Roud #22157
Three Danish Galleys
DESCRIPTION: "Three galleys came sailing to Porlock Side, And stole me away a new-wed bride. Who left my true love lying dead on the shore...." The Danish king offers to marry her. She refuses and is thrown into the sea. English ships destroy the Danes
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (collected by Ruth Tongue, according to Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs)
KEYWORDS: royalty death sea ship battle revenge rejection
FOUND IN: Britain(England)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 187-188, "Three Danish Galleys" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [257 words]: This is instance #2037 or so of a song that someone claims as the oldest English ballad. Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs suggests this describes events of the year 918. (Not 1918, 918.) And certainly the tenth and eleventh centuries were the primary period of Viking raids.
The reference seems to be to the Winchester manuscript of the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, which in the year 918 reports, "Here in this year a great raiding ship-army came over the south from Brittany, and with them two jarls [same root as English "earl"], Ohtor and Hroald [yes, that's "Hoald"]... and raided in Wales.... [T]hen they were met by the men from Hereford and Gloucester... [who] killed the jarl Hroald and the other Jarl Ohtor's brother and a great part of the raiding army.... [T]hey then stole up by night on two certain occasions, on the one occasion east of Watchet, and on another occasion at Porlock; then on each occasion they were hit, so that few came away, except only those who swam out to the ships" (Swanton, p. 98; compare Garmondsway, p. 98 -- yes, th same page number! ).
Note that no other Chronicle manuscript seems to mention the event, and the raiders are said to have been Bretons, not Danes (and Bretons are a lot more likely to be raiding the Severn than the Danes were!), and there is no hint of a Danish king or of a proposal to a woman. The idea that a song in Modern English, which has never been reported elsewhere, refers to an event of 918, and preserves details not preserved in actual history, strikes me as farcical. - RBW
Bibliography

Last updated in version 5.0
File: DalC187

Three Dogs in a Row
DESCRIPTION: "Ho, ho, ho! Three dogs in a row! Three dogs in a row! One dog's white, and so are the others, All three dogs are watching for their mother."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry, from Minnie Stokes)
KEYWORDS: dog mother
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 241, (no title) (1 short text)
File: MHAp241B

Three Dukes
DESCRIPTION: "Here comes (three dukes) a-ridin', a-ridin', a-ridin', Here comes a duke a-ridin' The raz-ma-taz-a-ma-tee." The duke comes to be married; the girls ask him to choose one of them. He calls them ugly; they say they're as good as he is. He chooses one.
Three Flies, The

DESCRIPTION: Three flies "resolv'd to travel." One stops on a cow turd, but "the others too dainty were." The second stops on butcher shop meat, but the third, being so dainty, stops in treacle and drowns. Moral: "stay at home", "be content with what you get"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1818 (Hudson)
KEYWORDS: home rambling death drowning food humorous bug
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 220, "The Three Flies" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO GI 65)
Additional: Thomas Hudson, Comic Songs (London, 1818 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 4-6, "The Three Flies" (1 text)
Roud #1290
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(3813), "The Three Flies" ("There were three flies, once on a time") , J.
Three Flowers of Chivalry, The

DESCRIPTION: The soldiers in the Crimea are depressed, when three Irishmen spring up, recall their homes and sweethearts, and rally the troops. In battle the next day, the British are victorious, but the three heroes die

AUTHOR: Andrew Orr

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Sam Henry collection, from a book said to have been published c. 1865)

KEYWORDS: soldier death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1853-1856 - Crimean War (Britain and France actively at war with Russia 1854-1855)

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenry'sSongsOfThePeople H99, pp. 89-90, "The Three Flowers of Chivalry" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #8146

File: HHH099

Three Flowers, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer met a girl with three flowers. He asked where she found them. She named each for where she found it: Michael Dwyer from the Wicklow hills, Wolfe Tone on Antrim Hill, and Robert Emmet in Dublin. She will keep them "Though all the world should fall"

AUTHOR: Norman G. Reddin (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

EARLIEST DATE: 2000 (Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

KEYWORDS: flowers patriotic Ireland

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 162, "The Three Flowers" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [112 words]: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815: "Michael Dwyer was a Wicklow man, a member of the United Irishmen, who fought during the 1798 rebellion, and who waged a guerilla war in the Wicklow mountains for several years afterwards." [For more on his story, see the notes to "Michael Dwyer (I)." - RBW]

Wolfe Tone: see the notes to "The Shan Van Voght."

Robert Emmet: see the notes to "Bold Robert Emmet." - BS

There is a certain asymmetry here; Tone and Emmet were killed, but Dwyer surrendered and was transported, even becoming a civic official in Australia. It would seem more logical to list someone such as Henry Joy McCracken as the third flower. But then, I'm not Irish. - RBW

File: Moyl162

Three Frightened Virgins, The

DESCRIPTION: Three daughters bathing naked in a pool at night are startled by a young man spying on them. Their father hears the commotion and, in the dark, takes his daughters for thieves. Eventually the truth is revealed and everyone takes it as a joke.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1719 (Pills to Purge Melancholy)

LONG DESCRIPTION: One night an old man's three daughters sneaked out bathe naked in his pond. A young man watching from a tree fell into the pond "and scar'd them out of the water" The old man heard the ruckus and ran out "with an old rusty soward" to stop what he thought were thieves. The girls ran over the old man, who was too startled to make out what was going on in the dark, and they went into the house. The old man told neighbors that roughians had run into his house. Barely seeing the girls the neighbors took them for spirits and ran out into the dripping wet young man. He explained what had happened and everyone, including the old man - "they are my daughters whom I ador'd ... why should I be in a passion" -- took it as a joke.

KEYWORDS: virginity hiding humorous father

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig/Duncan 1893, "All Ye Who Delights in a Jolly Old Song" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Wit and Mirth, or, Pills to Purge Melancholy (London, 1719 ("Digitized by Google")), Vol II, pp. 12-14, "The Wanton Virgins Frightened" (tune, p. 8)

Roud #12568

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 25(1902) [most words illegible], "The Three Frighted Virgins" ("You that delight in a jocular song"), T. Batchelar (London), 1807-1810

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Old Man Strangely Surprised

NOTES [41 words]: re A Collection of Old Ballads Vol II: Ambrose Philips, whose name does not appear in the Google Books copy is, according to Google Books, the editor. The New York Public Library catalog says "Compilation usually attributed to Ambrose Philips" - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD81893

Three Girls Drowned [Laws G23]

DESCRIPTION: Three young ladies, all Sunday School teachers, and a man named John Ash are on their way to church when they try to ford Gravel Run. The three girls are swept away and drowned, although Ash manages to survive

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, Vernon Dalhart)

KEYWORDS: river death drowning

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1849 - drowning of the three girls

FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,SE)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Laws G23, "Three Girls Drowned"
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 123, "Three Girls Drowned" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 210, "The Three Drowned Sisters" (1 text plus quotations from Gardner and Chickering)

Roud #3257

RECORDINGS:
Vernon Dalhart, "Three Drowned Sisters" (Brunswick 100, 1927) (Victor 20528) (Columbia 15126-D [as Al Craver], 1927)

File: LG23

Three Grains of Corn

DESCRIPTION: "Give me three grains of corn, mother, only three grains of corn, 'Twill keep this little life I have Till the coming of the morn." The dying singer asks what Ireland has done to deserve death by famine and neglect, and notes that others are starving too

AUTHOR: See NOTES

EARLIEST DATE: 1848 (broadside, LOCsheet sm1848 431920)

KEYWORDS: death Ireland starvation poverty

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1848 - First of several Irish potato blights. Although the blights did not mean that there was no food in Ireland, prices shot up to the point that many could not afford it. Many died in the famines, and others fled to America

FOUND IN: US(MW,Ro) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (8 citations):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 41, "Give Me Three Grains of Corn, Mother" (1 text, 1 tune)
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 15, pp. 22-23, "Give Me Three Grains of Corn" (1 text)
Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra 59, "Three Grains of Corn" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 56, pp. 172-173, "Three Grains of Corn" (1 text)
Scarborough-ASongCatcherInSouthernMountains, pp. 360-363, "Give Me Three Grains of Corn, Mother" (2 texts; 1 tune on p. 454)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #96, "Only Three Grains of Corn" (1 text)
DT, THREEGRN* GRANCORN
ADDITIONAL: Manus O'Conor, Irish Com-All-Ye's (New York, 1901 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 65, "Give Me Three Grains of Corn, Mother" (1 text)
Roud #4492
RECORDINGS:
Pattie Maher, "Give Me Three Grains of Corn" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
BROADSIDES:
LOCSheet, sm1848 431920, "Give Me Three Grains of Corn, Mother", Oliver Ditson (Boston), 1848 (tune)
NOTES [257 words]: Scarborough speculates, "Perhaps the American pioneer's affection for [this] song is the remembrance of the famine among the early settlers in New England, when starvation was held off as long as possible by the rationing of food, the giving of three grains of corn as each person's daily supply."
New England did face famine several times in its early existence. But this sounds strangely symbolic. Stout thinks it comes from the Great Hunger in Ireland, although his version has no local references. Other texts do mention Ireland.
The authorship of this is slightly uncertain, due probably more to transcription errors than anything else. Hazel Felleman's The Best Loved Poems of the American People attributes the words to Amelia Blandford Edwards. But broadside LOCsheet sm1848 431920 lists "words by Mrs A.M. Edmond, Music by O.R. Gross."
The latter attribution is supported by William H. A. Williams, 'Twas Only an Irishman's Dream, University of Illinois Press, 1996, p. 42, who adds that "A note on the cover explains that the title was taken from 'the last request of an Irish lad to his mother as he was dying of starvation.' She finds three grains left in her pocket and gives them to him. 'It was all she had, the whole family were perishing from starvation.'"
Thus, although the song seems to be known exclusively in North America, it is about the Irish famines; indeed, the song asks, "What has poor Ireland done, Mother, What has poor Ireland done? That the world looks on to see us starve, Perishing one by one." - RBW, (BS)
Last updated in version 5.2
File: San041

Three Grease Balls
DESCRIPTION: "Three dirty grease balls standin' in a row, A-bailin' out chow for the soldier boys to stow, One bailed java and the other bailed slum," while the third is drunk. Gradually one calamity or other eliminates the dirty cooks
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe)
KEYWORDS: soldier food cook drink
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe, p. 40, "Louse Song" (1 expurgated text)
File: NiM040

Three Grey Geese
DESCRIPTION: Tongue-twister: "Three grey geese in the green grass grazing, Grey were the geese, and green was the grazing."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose)
KEYWORDS: bird food nonballad wordplay
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Three Jolly Fishermen (I)

DESCRIPTION: "We are three jolly fishermen (x3), While the merry merry bells do ring. Make haste, make haste, you'll be too late, What fish, my friend? I cannot wait, For my fine fry of herring...." "We cast our nets upon the rocks." "We sell them three for fourpence"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs)
KEYWORDS: fishing food
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 99, "Three Jolly Fishermen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3496
File: PaSe099

Three Jolly Huntsmen

DESCRIPTION: Three jolly (Frenchmen/Welshmen/other) go hunting. Periodically they see things (barn, frog, moon) which they cannot identify. In each case they propound their theories and move on. Finally they see an owl. One says it is the "evil one"; they flee

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1613 (broadside, "Choice of Inventions, Or Seuerall sort of the figure of three"; earliest complete form 1219?)
KEYWORDS: humorous hunting nonsense
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North,South),Scotland(Aber),Wales) US(Ap,MA,MW,NE,SE,So) Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (35 citations):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 246-248, "Three Jolly Welshmen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 77, "We Hunted and Hollered" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 306-307, "Three Jolly Huntsmen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, pp. 88-89, "We Whooped and We Hollered" (1 text, 1 tune)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 119, "Three Jovial Huntsmen, or The Owl and the Jay Bush" (1 text, 1 tune)
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 87, "Three Jolly Frenchmen" (1 text)
Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 146, "Three Jolly Hunters" (1 text)
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, pp. 55-57, "Three Jolly Welshmen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, pp. 183-184, "Three Jolly Welshmen" (1 text)
Bush-FSoCentralWestVirginiaVol3, pp. 5-6, "The Three Irishmen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/BARRY-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 127-129, "The Three Hunters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 152, "The Three Huntsmen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 190, "Three Jolly Welshmen" (5 text, but only "A" and "B" go here; the rest are "The Bold Ranger")
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #217, "The Three Huntsmen" (1 text)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 57-58, "So We Hunted and We Hollered," "Old Circus Song" (2 texts, the second from a newspaper)
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, pp. 125-126, "We Hunted and We Hallooed" (1 text, 1 tune)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 290-292, "Three Jovial Huntsmen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 2, "Cape Ann" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 179-180, "Twas of Three Jolly Welshman" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 403)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 306, "Three Men Went A-Hunting" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hamer-GreenGroves, pp. 37-38, "The Englishman, Irishman And Scotsman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 125, "Three Jolly Hunstmen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gardham-EastRidingSongster 18, pp. 24, 49, "Three Men They Went a Yunting" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 93, "Three Men Went A-Hunting" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 168, "Three Men Went A-Hunting" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin-TreasuryOfNewEnglandFolklore, pp. 529-530, "Cape Ann" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 165, "The Three Farmers" (1 text, 2 tunes)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #31, p. 2, "The Hedgehog" (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan2 283, "The Hedgehog" (2 fragments, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 524, "There were three jovial Welshmen" (5 texts plus a reproduction facing p. 422 of the 1632 broadside "Choice of Inventions")
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #348, pp. 183-184, "(There were three jovial Welshmen)"
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #34, "There were Three Jolly Welshmen" (2 texts)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 243, "Cape Ann" (1 text)
DT 315, THREWLSH* JOLLWLCH
ADDITIONAL: James P. Leary, Compiler and Annotator, _Wisconsin Folklore_ University of Wisconsin Press, 2009, article "The Wanigan Songbook" by Isabel J. Ebert, pp. 214-215, "Three Happy Hunters" (1 text, sung by Emory DeNoyer)
Roud #283
RECORDINGS:
Jack Elliott, "We Went Along a Bit Further" (on Elliott01)
George Endicott, "Three Scamping Rogues" (on FieldTrip1)
A. L. Lloyd, "Three Drunken Huntsmen" (on Lloyd12)
Byrd Moore & his Hot Shots, "Three Men Went A-Hunting" (Columbia 15496-D, rec. Oct. 23, 1929, sung to the tune of "Wish I'd Stayed in the Wagon Yard"; on Ashley04)
New Lost City Ramblers, "Three Men Went a-Hunting" (on NLCR03)
Hywel Wood, "Three Men Went a-Hunting" (on FSB10)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
f. "The Bold Ranger" (theme, some lyrics)
f. "The Wild Cat Back on the Pipe Line" (theme, form)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
We Hunted and We Halloed
Look Ye There, Now
Three Jolly Hunters
The Three Huntsmen
Twas of Three Jolly Welshmen
Three Jovial Welshmen
NOTES [187 words]: What appears to be a stanza of this piece is quoted in the Shakespeare/Fletcher play "The Two Noble Kinsmen" (c. 1611). In III.v.67-71, immediately after singing a snatch of "The George Aloe and the Sweepstake," the mad jailer's daughter sings,
There was three fools, fell out about an howlet,
The one sed it was an owle, the other he sed nay,
The third he sed it was a hawk,
and her bels were cut away.
A stanza in William Davenant's 1668 play "The Rivals" seems to be on the same theme, though it uses a different metrical pattern:
There were three Fools at Mid-summer run mad
About an Howlet, a quarrel they had.
The one said 't was an Owle, the other he said nay,
The third said it was a Haek but the Bells were cutt away. - RBW
Where Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames has "an owl in an ivy bush, and that they left behind. The first man said it was an old cow ....", Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO has "an owl up in the ivy, and that they left behind. The first man said it was a shepherd's house ...." - BS
The "Cape Ann" versions of the song should not be confused with Gordon Bok's recent composition of the same name. - PJS
Last updated in version 6.0
File: R077
Three Leaves of Shamrock

DESCRIPTION: The singer, about to leave Ireland, meets a poor girl who bids him take a message to her brother Ned: "Three leaves of shamrock... Take these to my brother, for I have no other. And these are the shamrock from his dear old mother's grave."

AUTHOR: James McGuire (according to Wehman)

EARLIEST DATE: 1889: Harding's publication date per Wehman [see note re American Memory]; 1890 (Wehman's Collection of Songs No. 25); c.1880? (see note re Shoemaker)

KEYWORDS: death mourning burial mother brother sister emigration separation Ireland

FOUND IN: US(SE) Ireland

REFERENCES (7 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 135, "Three Leaves of Shamrock" (1 text plus mention of 4 more)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 135, "Three Leaves of Shamrock" (1 excerpt, 1 tune)
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 185, "Three Leaves of Shamrock" (3 texts)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 95, "Three Leaves of Shamrock" (1 text)

Henry W Shoemaker, North Pennsylvania Minstrelsy (Almeda: Almeda Tribune Company, 1919 ("Digitized by Internet Archive") #22 p. 65, "Three Leaves of Shamrock") (1 text)

Wehman's [Universal Songster] Collection of Songs No. 25 (New York, n.d. [but No. 24 says "the next number of this book will be ready January 2, 1890"], digitized by Internet Archive), p. 3, "Three Leaves of Shamrock" (1 text)

ST BrII135 (Full)

Roud #3769

RECORDINGS:
Charlie Poole and the North Carolina Ramblers, "Leaving Dear Old Ireland" (Columbia 15425-D, 1929; on CPoole03)
The North Carolina Ramblers and Roy Harvey, "Three Leaves of Shamrock" (Paramount, unissued, 1927)

NOTES [235 words]: Shoemaker [1919]: "Northern Pennsylvania. Popular in lumber and railroad construction camps forty years ago."

OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin has John Moulden informing him that Poole's recording was very popular [I assume in Ireland] in the 1920s.

LOC American Memory has a picture of the cover of "Three Leaves of Shamrock... as sung by Tho's J Farron. 1889" published by Harding's Music Office [Historic American Sheet Music, "Three Leaves of Shamrock," Music #3, Duke University Rare Book, Manuscript, and Special Collections Library]. No text is printed but the "as sung by" and Shoemaker's statement put 1889 as an early date in question.

The "American" versions -- Poole, Shoemaker, Hyland, Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 -- are slightly different from the Irish versions reported by OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin -- Cronin's song, Delaney's Irish Song Book No.1, 2, and a Nicholson broadside. For example, the Irish versions all have -- in the chorus -- "Take them to Phelim, then kindly tell him" while the American versions are all close to "Take them to my brother, for I have no one other." It's not the difference that surprises me, but the agreement by side of the Atlantic. Even if Poole was popular in Ireland he apparently was not Cronin's source.

OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin's Irish references are all later than Harding and Wehman. - BS

Last updated in version 6.1

File: BrII135

Three Little Girls A-Skating Went

DESCRIPTION: "Three little girls a-skating went, a-skating went, a-skating went. Three little girls a-skating went All on a summer day. "The ice was thin, they all fell in, they all fell in... Or else they've run away."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1651 (The Loves of Hero and Leander, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: playparty humorous drowning
FOUND IN: US(MW,NE,So) Britain
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, p. 88=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 204-205, "Six Little Girls A-Slapping Went" (1 text, 1 tune)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 288-289, "Three Children Sliding on the Ice" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 588, "Three Little Girls A-Skating Went" (1 text)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, pp. 190-191, "Three Maids A'Skating Away" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 99, "Three children sliding on the ice" (2 texts; there is also a print of the Mother Goose's Melody text in plate IX facing p. 200)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #32, p. 46, "(Three children sliding on the ice)"
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes, p. 19: "In The Lamentations of a Bad Market ... it is the twelfth, eighteenth, and nineteenth stanzas which are known to the world; that tell of 'Three children sliding on the ice' [Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 99, "Three children sliding on the ice"]."

NOTES [238 words]: Although most American editors seem unaware of the connection, this goes back at least to the eighteenth century in Britain, and was common in garlands in that period. It has been ascribed to John Gay and to the editor of Mother Goose's Melody (Oliver Goldsmith?). However, its appearance in Tommy Thumb's storybook pretty well precludes Goldsmith's authorship, and I know of no reason to believe in Gay's. The original air is said to have been "Chevy Chase," but this does not appear to have been the tune used in the U. S. - RBW

Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes, p. 19: "In The Lamentations of a Bad Market ... it is the twelfth, eighteenth, and nineteenth stanzas which are known to the world; that tell of 'Three children sliding on the ice' [Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 99, "Three children sliding on the ice"]."

See James Orchard Halliwell, The Nursery Rhymes of England (London, 1843 ("Digitized by Google")), #41 pp. 28-31, ("Come Christian people, all give ear"), "From 'Ovid de Arte Amandi, &c. Englished, together with Choice Poems, and rare Pieces of Drollery.' 1662." This is the original tragedy of "the death of three children dear" during a fire at London bridge [Opie speculates, February 1633]. Following Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes, see verses 12 ("Three children sliding therabouts"), 18 ("Ye parents all that children have") and 19 ("For had they at a sermon been"). - BS

Last updated in version 5.0

Three Little Kittens

DESCRIPTION: Mother cat says the kittens can't have pie because they have lost their mittens. When they find the mittens they put them on to eat pie and soil them. They wash the mittens and hang them out to dry. They smell a rat close by.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1853 (New Nursery Songs, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: food animal humorous clothes

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 289, "Three little kittens they lost their mittens" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #815, pp. 303-304, "(Three little kittens they lost their mittens)"
Brown-MyGrandmothersSongbook 9, "The Three Little Kittens" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [139 words]: Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes: "The tune is a variant of "The Seven Joys of Mary." - BS

The Opies and the Baring-Goulds note that these lines are sometimes attributed to Eliza Follen, Three Lost Babes of Americay, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come uncle, come tell me that wonderful tale ..." Three children are lost. Their father, mother and neighbors search in vain. They ask an Indian chief for help. The father, Indian chief and "two youths of [the] tribe" find the children

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)

KEYWORDS: help rescue America children father mother Indians(Am.)

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Peacock, pp. 30-32, "The Three Lost Babes of Americay" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 50, "Babes in the Wood" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Everett Bennett, "The Three Lost Babes of Americay" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Nick Daviesen, "The Three Babes" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Children in the Wood (The Babes in the Woods)" [Laws Q34] (theme)
cf. "The Lost Babe" (theme)

NOTES [18 words]: The similarity to "Babes in the Woods" will be evident; it appears that some scholars lump some of them. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: Peac030

Three Maidens to Milking Did Go

DESCRIPTION: "The maidens to milking did go (x2), And the wind it did blow high and the wind it did blow low And it tossed the milking pails to and fro." The singer asks a friend to help him hunt "birds." The singer wishes luck to blackbird and thrush

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1856 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(3968)); tune listed from 1828

KEYWORDS: bird hunting courting seduction

FOUND IN: Britain(England(All),Wales)

REFERENCES (13 citations):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 229, "Three Maidens a-Milking Would Go" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO GI 154)
Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #120, "The Milkmains" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kidson-TraditionalTunes, pp. 72-73, "Three Maidens a Milking Did Go" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 191, "Three Maidens to Milking Did Go" (1 text, 1 tune)
Copper-SongsAndSouthernBreezes, pp. 280-281, "Three Maidens" (1 text, 1 tune)
Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 128, "Three Maids a-Milking" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-TheTheldiomOfThePeople 102, "Three Maids a Milking" (3 texts)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 131, "Three Maids a Milking" (1 text)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #67, "Thee Maids A-milking" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #87, "Three Maidens to Milking Did Go" (1 text, 1 tune)
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 50, "The Bird in the Bush" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 160, "Two Maids Went A-Milking One Day" (1 text)

Maids A-Milking Would Go" (reproduction of a broadside page with "Three Maidens to Milking Did Go" and "The Butcher and the Tailor's Wife")

Roud #290

RECORDINGS:
Frankie Armstrong, "The Bird in the Bush" (on BirdBush1, BirdBush2)
Fred Hewett, "Three Maidens To Milking Did Go" (on Voice10)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(3968), "Three Maids A Milking Would Go", W. Jackson and Son (Birmingham), 1842-1855; also Harding B 11(3815), "Three Maids A-milking Would Go"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Spotted Cow" (theme)
cf. "Kitty of Coleraine" (theme)
cf. "Blackberry Grove" (theme)
cf. "Three Maidens to Milking Did Go" (theme)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Blackbird in the Bush
The Bird in the Lily-Bush

NOTES [55 words]: Most printed versions of this are "clean," but clearly there is much going on beneath the surface. Indeed, there is. In fact, this is one of the few descriptions of group sex in traditional music -- unless, of course, you count "The Ball at Kerriemuir," and I'd be more inclined to describe that with the word "mob." - PJS

Last updated in version 5.0
File: K191

Three McFarlands, The [Laws C18]

DESCRIPTION: A gang of teamsters "that knew not who was boss" sign up to work under the three McFarlands. The bosses drive them hard and treat them badly; the men look forward to leaving the camp and seeing the girls

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy)

KEYWORDS: work abuse boss

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Laws C18, "The Three MacFarlands"
Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy 15, "The Three McFarlands" (1 text, 1 tune)
Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra 15, "The Three McFarlands" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 826, MCFARL3*
Roud #2225

File: LC18

Three Men Drowned (The Grand River)

DESCRIPTION: Four men go boating on the Grand River. In rough water, they are flung from the boat; Benjamin Moore and two others drown. A boy brings word to Benjamin's parents. The singer talks about God's planning (and placing rocks in the river)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy)

KEYWORDS: river ship death drowning

FOUND IN: US(MW) Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy 34-I, (first of three "Fragments of Shanty Songs") (1 text)
Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra 34-I, (first of three "Fragments of Shanty Songs") (1 text)
Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #38, "The Grand River" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST Rick129 (Partial)
Roud #3680
Three Moore Brothers

DESCRIPTION: "This is why we love the Moore brothers so well, They feed us on the farm like they do in the Rice Hotel." The Moore family hires Texas prisoners to work, and gives them extravagantly good or bad treatment

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (recorded from "Chinaman" Johnson by Jackson)

KEYWORDS: work food prison

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Jackson-WakeUpDeadMan, pp. 53-61, "Three Moore Brothers" (2 texts, 2 tunes)

NOTES [95 words]: Jackson's notes describe a large farm, almost a feudal fiefdom, run first by Tom Moore Sr. and then by his sons Steve, Tom, and Henry. Often they rented out convicts from the Texas prison system. Folklore about the family was abundant.

Jackson calls the song a cante-fable, and the two versions found by Jackson are very distinct; "Chinaman's" version is full of whistles and recitations, while Johnny Jackson's is more a straight song. But Judy McCulloh calls "Chinaman's" one of the "peskiest" things she has ever had to transcribe. Clearly the piece is very fluid. - RBW

Three O'Donnells, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer dreams of a meeting in Innishowen "when we heard of liberty," of a barge with 24 Irish boys saying "Gainne's sons are free." A health to the O'Donnells. Father William fought at Waterloo; "He once was a bold lieutenant But he's now our clergyman"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Tunney-StoneFiddle)

KEYWORDS: dream nonballad political clergy

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tunney-StoneFiddle, p. 145, "The Three O'Donnells" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of Carrickshock" (subject: The Tithe War) and references there

NOTES [130 words]: Tunney-StoneFiddle: "In fact it is an anti-tithe song from Innishowen. The hero whose praises it sings was none other than Father William O'Donnell, the Waterloo Priest, as he is still affectionately referred to in his native Innishowen." Tunney gives the biography of William O'Donnell (1779-1856), including his 1839 arrest for being in arrears of tithe on his property. I cannot explain the references to "that meeting boys That was held at Innishowen" or "the loaded barge Going floating down the main With four and twenty Irish boys To guide her on the stream." - BS

For background on the Tithe War (the successful attempt by the Catholic Irish to stop paying a tithe to support the Protestant Church of England), see especially the notes to "The Battle of Carrickshock." - RBW

Three Old Men of Painswick, The

DESCRIPTION: "Oh! Painswick is a healthful town." A traveler sees a very, very old crying -- because, it turns out, his father has been abusing him! Further investigation reveals that even the man's grandfather is alive. The traveler flees this place of ancient folk

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1872 (Notes & Queries, according to Briggs)

KEYWORDS: age humorous travel father

FOUND IN: Britain(England)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Katherine Briggs, _A Dictionary of British Folk-Tales in the English Language_, Part A: Folk Narratives, 1970 (I use the 1971 Routledge paperback that combines volumes A.1 and A.2), volume A.2, pp. 216-218, "The Three Old men of Painswick" (1 text)

NOTES [247 words]: It is not clear whether this is a song or a poem; I suspect the latter, but better to include it just in case.

Briggs notes a number of analogies to this tale, especially Irish. But the oldest version known to me of the story of the man who ages forever but never dies is from Greek mythology: the story of Tithonos. The earliest version is probably from the Homeric Hymn to Aphrodite. In the Loeb Classical Library translation (Hugh G. Evelyn-White, translator, Hesiod, the Homeric Hymns and Homeric, Loeb, 1914), pp. 421-423, lines 218-238 read, in part,

"So also golden-throned Eos rapt away Tithonus.... And she went to ask the dark-clouded Son of Cronos [i.e. Zeus] that he should be deathless and live eternally; and Zeus bowed his head to her prayer and fulfilled her desire. Too simple was queenly Eos: the thought not in her heart to ask youth for him and to strip him of the slough of deadly age. So while he enjoyed the sweet flower of life he lived rapturously with golden-throned Eos... but when the first grey hairs began to ripple from his comely head and noble chin, queenly Eos kept away from his bed.... [W]hen loathsome old age pressed full upon him... she laid him in a room and put to the shining doors. There he babbles endlessly, and no more has strength at all, such as once he had in his supple limbs."

Later versions of the tale end up with Tithonos turned into a grasshopper or cicada. But the key point is that he was immortal but continued to age. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.6

File: BrigA216

---

Three Oxford Scholars

DESCRIPTION: "Three Oxford scholars just college, Their pride was a little too much for their knowledge." They drink themselves drunk. A ram strays into the pub cellar. The maid says it's the devil. One of the clerks claims he will subdue it. The ram defeats him

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Gardiner collection)

KEYWORDS: clergy drink animal humorous Devil

FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, pp. 100-101, "Three Oxford Scholars" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1668

File: PCL100

---

Three Perished in the Snow [Laws G32]

DESCRIPTION: A woman and her three young children are struggling through a snowstorm. The children ask their mother to make them warm, but she cannot help. The next morning the three are found clasped in each others' arms, dead

AUTHOR: Eddie Fox

EARLIEST DATE: 1878 (as "She Perished in the Snow")

KEYWORDS: family children death mother

FOUND IN: US(MA,SE,So)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Laws G32, "Three Perished in the Snow"
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, pp. 101-102, "Three Perished in the Snow" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 69, "She Perished in the Snow" (1 text, 1 tune)
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 98, "Three Perished in the Sow" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 715, PRSHSNOW*

Roud #1931

RECORDINGS:
Lester McFarland & Robert Gardner, "Perished in the Snow" (Brunswick 561, c. 1930)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Hush-oh-bye Baby" (plot)
cf. "It Was Early One Cold Winter's Morning" (theme)

File: LG32
Three Pigs

DESCRIPTION: "There was an old sow, she lived in a sty, And three little piggies had she." The grown pig said "Oink," the little ones "Wee! Wee!" The little pigs resolve to try to say "Oink" like grown-up pigs -- but can't do it, sicken, and die

AUTHOR: Alfred Scott Gatty (1847-1918) (source: Heart-Songs)

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart-Songs)

KEYWORDS: animal youth humorous death

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 307-308, "Three Pigs" (1 text, 1 tune)
Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 38, "The Old Sow" (1 tune) Heart-Songs, p. 481, "The Three Little Pigs" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: LxA307

Three Pirates

DESCRIPTION: "Three pirates came to London town, yo ho, yo ho! (x2) Three pirates came... to see the King put on his crown, Yo ho, ye lubbers...." They come to an inn, ask for drink, and ask about his daughter -- is she pretty and will she marry (one of) them

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales)

KEYWORDS: pirate drink royalty courting

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, pp. 43-44, "(no title)" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Mademoiselle from Armentieres" (tune, lyrics) and references there

File: TNY043

Three Ravens, The [Child 26]

DESCRIPTION: (Three) ravens decide that a new-slain knight would make a nice lunch. He is guarded by hawk, hounds, and leman, who either guard the body from the birds or abandon it to its fate

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1611 (Ravenscroft, Melismata)

KEYWORDS: death bird food

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland,England(South)) US(Ap, MW, NE, SE, So, SW) Canada(Mar, Newf)

REFERENCES (65 citations):
Child 26, "The Three Ravens" (2 texts)
Bronson 26, The Three Ravens" (21 versions)
Bronson-SingingTraditionOfChildsPopularBallads 26, "The Three Ravens" (6 versions: #1, #2, #3, #7, #8, #9)
Chambers-ScottishBallads, p. 252, "The Twa Corbies" (1 text)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfursdCollectionVolume1 40, "The Three Ravens" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kidson-TraditionalTunes, pp. 17-18, "The Three Ravens" (1 text, 1 tune)
Copper-ASongForEverySeason, p. 227, "Two Old Crows" (1 text, 1 tune)
Barry/Eckstorm/Smyth-BritishBalladsFromMaine pp. 435-437, "The Three Ravens" (notes plus a partial reprint of Ravenscroft)
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, p. 28, "The Two Crows" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 31-33, "The Three Ravens" (2 texts, plus 2 tunes not derived from Missouri)
Randolph 9, "The Three Crows" (2 texts, 1 tune) {Bronson's #18}
Davis-TraditionalBalladsOfVirginia 10, "The Three Ravens" (17 texts, some very short; the "Q" fragment may be another song; the additional songs in the appendix are "Johnny Fill Up the Bowl"; 4 tunes entitled "The Three Ravens," "[The] Three Crows"; 10 more versions mentioned in Appendix A) {I=Bronson's #16 J=K=#17, P is not printed by Bronson}
Davis-MoreTraditionalBalladsOfVirginia 13, pp. 84-88, "The Three Ravens" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
"The Three Ravens" (1 very short text)
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 5, "Three Black Crows" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson’s #4}
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, p. 256, "The Three Ravens" (1 fragment)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #151, "The Three Ravens" (1 short text)
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 6, pp. 72-73, "The Three Ravens" (1 fragment)
Hudson-FolkTunesFromMississippi 1, "The Three Ravens" (1 short text, 1 tune, in which the three crows go to chew gum!) {Bronson’s #19}
Scarborough-ASongCatcherInSouthernMountains, pp. 193-195, "The Three Ravens/The Twa Corbies" (1 short text, entitled "Three Old Crows" and typical of that type, plus the text from Ravenscroft for comparison)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 149, (no title) (1 fragment, mentioning three crows on a tree with an ending about a sick old horse; the whole might well be a dead horse song with a few "Three Ravens" lines, but without more text we cannot tell)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 12, "The Three Crows" (1 text, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, pp. 42-44, "Three Black Crows" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson’s #6}
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 14-15, "Three Black Crows" (1 text, 1 tune)
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 2, pp. 2-5, "The Three Ravens" (2 texts plus 4 fragments, several of them "Billy Magee Magaw" types)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 8, "The Three Ravens" (1 text plus a fragment)
Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, p. 21, "The Three Ravens" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson’s #11}
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 1, "The Three Crows" (1 text, 1 tune)
Pottie/Ellis-FolksongsOfTheMaritimes, p. 32, "The Three Crows" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, p. 129, "Three Black Crows" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders-AncientBalladsTraditionallySungInNewEngland1, pp. 243-256, "The Twa Corbies" (10 texts, many of them quite short, 3 tunes; the last two items, "I" and "J," appear to be somewhat rewritten)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, p. 289, "The Three Crows" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 111-113, "The Three Ravens/The Twa Corbies" (2 texts)
Leach-HeritageBookOfBallads, pp. 48-49, "The Three Ravens" (1 text plus a reproduction of the Ravenscroft version); p. 50, "The Twa Corbies" (1 text)
Leach-FolkBalladsOfLowerLabradorCoast 1, "The Three Ravens" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritson-AncientBalladsOfTheLowerLabradorCoastToTheRevolution, pp. 193-194, "The Three Ravens" (1 text)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 67, "The Twa Corbies"; 68, "The Three Ravens" (2 texts)
Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 23, "The Three Ravens (The Twa Corbies)" (3 texts)
Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 28, "The Three Ravens" (1 text)

Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, p. 21, "Blow the Man Down (IV)" (this text combines the words of "The Three Crows" with the tune and metre of "Blow the Man Down")
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, p. 212, "The Three Ravens" (1 text sung to the tune of "Blow the Man Down," taken from Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman)
Niles-BalladBookOfJohnJacobNiles 17, "The Three Ravens" (3 texts, 3 tunes, although the first piece, "Lovers' Farewell," is at best distantly related to this ballad)

Hirsh-MedievalLyric-MiddleEnglishLyricsBalladsCarols #45, "The Three Ravens" (3 texts [2 from Child, 1 from Niles]) Gummere-OldEnglishBallads, pp. 167+336, "The Three Ravens" (1 text)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 11 "The Three Ravens" (1 short text plus 2 fragments, 3 tunes) {Bronson’s #16, #15, #14}
Sharp/Karpeles-EightyEnglishFolkSongs 5, "The Two Crows (The Three Ravens)" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson’s #15}
Wells-TheBalladTree, p. 151, "The Two Crows"; p. 152, "The Three Ravens" (1 short text plus an excerpt, 2 tunes) {Bronson’s #15, #1}
Chase-AmericanFolkTalesAndSongs, pp. 114-115, "The Two Ravens" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hodgart-FaberBookOfBallads, p. 37, "The Three Ravens"; p. 38, "The Twa Corbies" (2 texts)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 31, "The Three Ravens" (2 texts, 1 tune) {Bronson’s #10}
Cox/Hercog/Halpert/Boswell-WVirginia-A, #5, pp. 19-20, "The Crow Song" (1 short text, 1 tune) {Bronson’s #5}
Whiting-TraditionalBritishBallads 36, "The Three Ravens" (1 text)
NOTE [291 words]: Interpretations of this peculiar song range from the mystic to the ridiculous. Some versions manage both -- e.g. David C. Fowler, A Literary History of the Popular Ballad, Duke University Press, 1968, calls it a "secularized, chivalric Pietà" (the church commemorations of the Virgin Mary holding the body of the dead Jesus). Never mind that the "fallow doe" that picks up the body is (a) a deer and (b) the knight's leman, not his mother. Perhaps because the original is obscure, the degree of degeneration suffered by the American versions of this song is phenomenal-- they are often quite silly, and if they retain the theme of the birds eating carrion, it is usually an animal, such as a horse. Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana's longer version is, in fact, a trick upon listeners: "You may think there is another verse -- but there isn't."

If it weren't for the intermediate versions, we could hardly recognize them as one piece. But that's oral tradition -- though Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety says the song was part of the minstrel tradition in the 1860s, and Flanders-AncientBalladsTraditionallySungInNewEngland notes the inclusion of a "rewritten form in books like Cleveland's Compendium of 1859." In many of these versions it is a horse, not a man, which supplies the birds' meal.

The by-blow "The Twa Corbies" is one of the handful of traditional songs in Palgrave's Golden Treasury (item CXXXVI). Not sure what that says about either Palgrave or the song. Properly, "The Twa Corbies" should probably be split off, since it is recensionally different from "The Three Ravens." But this is impossible in practice, because the degenerate forms often could come from either, or indeed recombine the two. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0
Three Sailors (Three Kings; Three Beggars; Thee Soldiers; Three Sweeps)

DESCRIPTION: Three sailors/tinkers/sweeps/... come courting and seeking lodging. Mother has daughter stay in bed and sends the suitors away. She wakes her daughter and accepts three kings. The daughter is found "not fit to walk with a king"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1880s (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: courting ring rejection mother royalty sailor soldier tinker
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) US(Ap,MA)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
  Greig/Duncan8 1568, "Here's Three Beggars" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 15, "Three Sailors" (2 texts, 1 tune)
  Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #2, "Three Kings" (1 text); #165, "Three Kings" (1 text)
Roud #12965
File: GrD81568

Three Score and Ten

DESCRIPTION: "Methinks I see some little craft spreading their sails a-lee, As down the Humber they do glide" to go fishing. But "Three score and ten, boys and men, were lost from Grimsby town" and many others from elsewhere in a great (February/October) storm

AUTHOR: Words: William Delph/Delf/Delft
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: ship fishing wreck disaster storm
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
  Feb 8-9, 1889 - the gale of 1889
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 138, "Three Score and Ten" (1 text, 1 tune) DT, THRSCORE*
  Roud #16873
ALTERNATE TITLES:
  In Memoriam of the poor Fishermen who lost their lives in the Dreadful Gale from Grimsby and Hull, Feb. 8 & 9, 1889 (original broadside title)
NOTES [86 words]: Although well known in pop folk circles, this does not seem to be very well known in tradition; there are only about five field collections, mostly from Yorkshire (i.e. in the area in which the disaster took place). The original poem by William Delph (no one seems to be sure of the spelling) was supposed to raise money for the survivors, but the song as it's usually now sung has lost more than half of his original lyrics.
I have not managed to find a copy of the original broadside to see what it actually said. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: PaSe138

Three Times Round

DESCRIPTION: "Three times round went our gallant ship, Till she sank to the bottom of the sea"
"Haul her up, cried the little sailor lass, Ere she sinks ...." "Then I will, cried the little sailor boy, Ere she sinks ...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Maclagan)
KEYWORDS: sea ship ordeal nonballad sailor
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber,High))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
  Greig/Duncan8 1593, "Three Times Round" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
  Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 52, "Gallant, Gallant Ship" (1 text, 1 tune) ADDITIONAL: Robert Craig Maclagan, The Games and Diversions of Argyleshire (London, 1901
Three Wise Old Women

DESCRIPTION: Three wise old women go walking in winter. One carries a ladder; another, a basket; "the wisest one, she carried a fan to keep off the sun." (At least) one climbs the ladder and is blown to sea. (They use the basket to bail, the fan as a sail)

AUTHOR: Mrs. E. T. Corbett, according to Felleman _The Best Loved Poems of the American People_

EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: humorous animal talltale

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 130, "Three Wise Old Women" (1 text)
ST R130 (Partial)
Roud #3271

NOTES [47 words]: Although hardly known in tradition, Randolph's text differs enough from the presumed original in Felleman that I have to think there was folk processing along the way. E.g., in the original, they climb the tree for fear of a bear; it seems as if the informant would remember that.

- RBW

File: R130

Three, Six, Nine

DESCRIPTION: "Three, six, nine, the goose drank wine." The monkey "chewed tobacco on the street car line" or "got tangled in a telephone line." "The line broke, the monkey got choked, And they all went to heaven" in a row boat/luxury boat," or all but the billy goat.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Fauset)

KEYWORDS: wine playparty animal bird

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond)) US(So)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 135, "Three, Six, Nine" (2 texts, 1 tune) JournalOfAmericanFolklore, Arthur Huff Fauset, "Negro Folk Tales from the South (Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Vol. XL, No. 157 (Jul 1927), #VII.3 p. 293 ("Once upon a time, the goose drank wine") (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Patricia Shehan Campbell, Songs in Their Heads (New York, 1998 (copyrighted material limited preview "Digitized by Google")) p. 43, ("Three, six, nine, The goose drank wine") (1 text)

Roud #18987

NOTES [57 words]: Somewhat similar is "Hopalong Peter": "...the duck drank wine, The goose played the fiddle on the pumpkin vine."

See Shirley Ellis's version [Congress 234, according to the Shirley Ellis discography on the Spectro Pop Express site], 'The Clapping Song', 1965 [which includes the 'Rubber Dolly' verse and 'Three, Six, Nine', among others]. - BS

Last updated in version 5.3

File: OpGa135
the wonders of the new threshing machine and the people who tend it

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Gardiner manuscript)
KEYWORDS: farming technology work moniker nonballad worker
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 231, "The Machiner's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, THRSHSNG
Roud #874
RECORDINGS:
Jim Copper, "The Thrashing Machine" (on Lomax41, LomaxCD1741)
NOTES [32 words]: While this is a non-ballad, I've included it -- mostly so that we may reference it when we get to "The Thrashing Machine", a bawdy song. - PJS
In any case, some of the stanzas have plots. - RBW
File: K231

Through All the World Below
DESCRIPTION: "Through all the world below God is seen all around, Search hills and valleys through, There he's found. The growing of the corn, the lily and the thorn...." The song describes God's part in the entire universe, and how the creation praises the deity
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1825 (Columbian Harmony)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 34, "Captain Kidd-I" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: _Sing Out_ magazine, Volume 38, #4 (1994), pp, 60-61, "Captain Kidd" (1 text, 1 tune, with three-part Sacred Harp-style harmony)
Roud #6667
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Wayfaring Stranger" (tune) and references there
File: LoF034

Through and Through, Sally Go
DESCRIPTION: "Through and through, Sally (or shally) go." The last one will be caught.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1898 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: playparty
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame, p.51, ("Through and through, Sally go") (1 text)
File: OpGap51B

Through the City Where He Rode
DESCRIPTION: "Through the city where he rode Was spotless white. He will lead me where No tears don't never fall. Oh yes, he is leading me, For I feel his hands on mine." "I shall know him by the prints Of the nails in his hands." All verses are variants on the first
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 642, "Through the City Where He Rode" (1 text)
Roud #11937
NOTES [95 words]: It was Thomas (John 20:24-29) who demanded to see the marks of the nails on Jesus's hands. The rest of the song doesn't make much sense. If the description of the city and the rider is a reference to Jesus's entry into Jerusalem, well, nowhere is there any mention of white in any of the gospel narratives. That leaves only references in the Apocalypse -- e.g. the white horse of Rev. 6:2 or the white robes of Rev. (3:4), 4:4, 6:11, 7:9, 13. Perhaps the likeliest reference is to Rev. 19:11, 14, where the King of Kings rides a white horse. No white city, though. - RBW

File: Br3642

Through the Groves (I)

DESCRIPTION: The singer hears a maid complain, "The lad I love is gone astray." If she had wings she would fly to him. If she would lock her heart to keep it from going astray. She searched for him "over hills and dales" among the shepherds in the snow.

AUTHOR: unknown
EALEST DATE: 1907 (Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle)
KEYWORDS: love separation nonballad shepherd
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 76, ""Twas Through the Groves" (1 text)
Roud #607
File: ReCi076

Through the Moss and Through the Muir

DESCRIPTION: Through moss and moor, corn and barley, "aye the foalie shook its tailie Through the woods o' Fyvie"

AUTHOR: unknown
EALEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: nonballad horse
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1771, "Through the Moss and Through the Muir" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13018
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Whistle Owre the Lave O't" (tune, per Greig/Duncan8)
File: GrD1771

Through the Wood as the Lady Ran

DESCRIPTION: "And thro' the wood as the lady ran, She pu'd a bram'le at the hin'er end."

AUTHOR: unknown
EALEST DATE: 1909 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1793, "Through the Wood as the Lady Ran" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #13021
NOTES [84 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 fragment. The notes to Greig/Duncan8 would have us compare this fragment to "The Stripling." While the fragment lines are not in the Greig/Duncan5 texts of that song the fragment here could conceivable be a missing piece to that song. - BS
People attempting to disguise their tracks would sometimes tie some sort of plant to their horses' feet or their own backs; I'm guessing that is what is happening here. But, obviously, we have no clue as to why. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.5
File: GrD81793
Throw Me Anywhere

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Throw (me, my body) anywhere, In that old field (x4)." Verses: "Members (deacons, preachers, brothers, ...), you want to die, Lord, In that old field (x4)."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands)

KEYWORDS: burial death nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands 20, pp. 108-111, "Throw Me Anywhere"; 40, pp. 175-177, "In That Old Field" (2 texts, 2 tunes)

RECORDINGS:

John Davis and the Georgia Sea Island Singers, "Buzzard Lope" (on LomaxCD1713)
Bessie Jones and the Georgia Sea Island Singers, "Buzzard Lope" (on LomaxCD1713)

NOTES [29 words]: The current description is based on the Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaIslands text. Parrish writes, "In ante-bellum days the slaves called the graveyard 'the ole field.'" - BS

Last updated in version 4.1

File: Parr020

---

Thunder Crew, The

DESCRIPTION: "Our iron bark's our home, you see, A tough old craft and true, And of our trade right proud are we, The gallant thunder crew. Each tar will at his station be" when storm or prize appear; otherwise, they will relax -- but always ready to fight

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1845 (The Buccaneer Songster, according to Frank-NewBookOfPirateSongs)

KEYWORDS: ship battle pirate

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Frank-NewBookOfPirateSongs 79, "The Thunder Grew" (1 text; #58 in the first edition)

Roud #V10226

File: FrPi079

---

Thurso Fishing Boat Disaster, The

DESCRIPTION: "A boat from Thurso Bay did go, out to the fishing ground... All wrapped in oilskins were the crew... In one fatal wave they drew their last breath Their bodies now roll in the wide Pentland Firth In a watery grave instead of on earth"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan1)

KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship storm wreck

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

Jan 18, 1874 - The herring fishing boat is lost in a gale in Pentland Firth (source: Greig/Duncan1)

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Greig/Duncan1 34, "The Thurso Fishing Boat Disaster" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

Roud #3804

NOTES [10 words]: The Greig/Duncan1 fragment has the date as June 18, 1889. - BS

Last updated in version 2.4

File: GrD1034

---

Thyme, It Is a Precious Thing

DESCRIPTION: The singer laments her precious thyme, which she had and lost. A sailor gave her a rose "that never would decay" to remind her of "the night he stole my bonny thyme away." She warns others against the same mistake

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1973
Tibbie Fowler

DESCRIPTION: "Tibbie Fowler [or Robie Stobie] in the glen" stole her mother's hen and got the blame. Whether roasted or raw, Tibbie ate her all.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: theft food parody chickens

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) US(Ap)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #159, p. 2, ("Robie Stobie doon the glen") (1 text)
Greig/Duncan8 1691, "Tibbie Fowler" (2 texts)
Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee 10, p. 22, "Tibby Fowler" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #5504

NOTES [301 words]: The current song seems a parody of another song with at least two major versions. See David Herd, editor, Ancient and Modern Scottish Songs, Heroic Ballads, etc. (Edinburgh, 1870 (reprint of 1776)), Vol II, pp. 104-105, "Tibby Fowler of the Glen"

Hans Hecht, editor, Songs From David Herd's Manuscripts (Edinburgh, 1904), #554 pp. 174-175,304-305, "Tibbie Fowler" [Not the same song as in Herd, above.]

James Kinsley, editor, Burns: Complete Poems and Songs (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #569, p. 673, "Tibbie Fowler" (1 text, 1 tune) is close to Hecht-Herd.

In any case, none of these has a verse that is a clear base for what I assume is a parody, though the first line of the Herd version and the form of Hecht-Herd is suggestive. On the other hand, none have a good word for the subject. The chorus of Hecht-Herd: "Wooing at her, pu'in at her, Courtin at her, cannae get her: Filthy elf, it's for her pelf That a' the lads are wooin at her"

Whitelaw, writing about the Herd/Chambers text: "In the Tea Table Miscellany, Ramsay has a song 'to the tune of Tibble Fowler in the Glen,' which proves that the air, at least is old.... The authorship has been ascribed to a 'Rev. Dr. Strachan late minister of Carnwath; but David Laing says that there has been no minister of Carnevath of that name for at least the last three hundred years" (source: Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, pp. 61-62, "Tibbie Fowler") - BS
Tibo (Thibault) [Laws C6]

DESCRIPTION: Tibo is one of a crew trying to clear a logjam. The logs he is on give way; Tibo is washed away and his comrade cannot keep hold of him. He leaves a widow and young children; the lumbermen make contributions for their support

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (JohnsIsland1)

KEYWORDS: logger death drowning

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES: 2 citations:
- Laws C6, "Tibo (Thibault)"
- DT 808, TEBO

File: LC06

Tic-Tac

DESCRIPTION: "Tic tac tic tac to wally-wally." "O Miss x someone's on the phone." "If it ain't Mr y tell him I ain't home."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (JohnsIsland1)

KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad technology

FOUND IN: US(SE)

RECORDINGS:
- Mabel Hillery, Janie Hunter and her grandchildren, "Tic-Tac" (on JohnsIsland1)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Ticky-Tack-Too" ("Tic Tac Toe" lyric)
- cf. "Rick Rick Toe" ("Tic Tac Toe" lyric)
- cf. "The Cobbler (III)" ("Tic Tac Toe" lyric)

File: RcTicTac

Tickle Cove Pond

DESCRIPTION: A man hauling wood with his mare "Kitty" takes a short cut across a frozen pond. The horse hesitates to cross the weak ice. The man ignores the horse and they fall in. The man shouts for help and neighbors come to haul the mare out with a chanty song.

EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, 2nd edition)

KEYWORDS: horse work rescue

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES: 5 citations:
- Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, pp. 16-17, "Tickle Cove Pond" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Mills-FavoriteSongsOfNewfoundland, pp. 8-10, "Tickle Cove Pond" (1 text, 1 tune)
- England-HistoricNewfoundlandAndLabrador, pp. 60-61, "Tickle Cove Pond" (1 text, 1 tune)
- DT, TCKLCOVE*

Roud #7313

RECORDINGS:
- Omar Blondahl, "Tickle Cove Pond" (on NFOBlondahl01,NFOBlondahl05)

NOTES [258 words]: A "tickle" is a narrow inlet of water. Tickle Cove is on the north-east coast of Newfoundland. Also, the song has a chanty included in it that is contextualized for the narrative of the song. For a colorful explanation of Newfoundland usage, see Harold Horwood, "Newfoundland" (Toronto: Macmillan of Canada, 1969) 83-84. - SH

The author is named by GEST Songs of Newfoundland and Labrador site.
If you are interested in the Newfoundland song tradition in general and the history of this song in particular be sure to read Taking Apart "Tickle Cove Pond" in Canadian Journal for Traditional Music, vol. 29, 2002 by Philip Hiscock, pp. 32-68, also available in PDF format at //cjtm.icaap.org/content/29/05-Hiscock.pdf. Hiscock does not just discuss the origins of the song. From his abstract: "Nowadays, the song has certain meanings for listeners. This paper suggests they reflect contemporary beliefs and 'imaginings' about Newfoundland's past."
"The tune is derived from the Irish tune 'Tatter [i.e., Father] Jack Walsh,' which also goes by several other names in Ireland." Hiscock, p. 40.
The words of some of the songs Hiscock attributes to Mark Waller may be found at the Bonavista Bay Songs section of the Newfoundland's Grand Banks sites - BS Mark Walker is listed as the author of several popular Newfoundland songs, "Tickle Cove Pond," "Fanny's Harbour Bawn," "The 'Antis' of Plate Cove," and "Lovely Katie-O"; a family tradition also says that he wrote "The Star of Logy Bay." See the notes to that song for discussion of the matter. - RBW

_Last updated in version 6.0_
File: Doy18

Tickle My Toe

DESCRIPTION: In successive verses of this bawdy cumulative song, the singer lays his finger or touches his lady friend on the toe, knee, thigh, "funny thing," etc. With each he asks what it is and she gives a nonsensical reply.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1859? [not later than 1867] (Chappell)
KEYWORDS: bawdy cumulative
FOUND IN: US(So) Ireland Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 89, "Mathew the Miller" (1 text)
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 545-551, "Tickle My Toe" (5 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #1050
RECORDINGS:
Pat MacNamara, "I Left My Hand" (on IRClare01)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Gently Johnny My Jingalo" cf. "A-Roving" (plot, such as it is)
cf. "Baltimore (Up She Goes)" (theme)
cf. "Yo Ho, Yo Ho" (plot)
NOTES [43 words]: Legman offers substantial notes on the history of this song in Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I. - EC
It can, obviously, be difficult to tell this from "A-Roving" and, especially, "Yo Ho." The reader is strongly advised to check that song as well as this. - RBW

_Last updated in version 2.7_
File: RL545

Ticklish Reuben (Snuff Box)

DESCRIPTION: "I'm always putting pepper in my daddy's snuff box, And it is a sight for to see. He coughs and he sneezes... Mother swore that was always tickling me." When the father recovers, "Then he took me out and then he tickled me."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)
KEYWORDS: mother father trick drugs punishment humorous
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 734, "Snuff Box" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #17640
Ticky-Tack-Too

DESCRIPTION: "Ticky-tack-too, tack-too, Ticky-tack-too, tack-tay" (x2)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (O'Crinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: nonballad nonsense
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Crinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 186, "Ticky-Tack-Too" (1 short text)
Roud #837
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Rick Rick Toe" ("Tic Tac Toe" lyric)
cf. "Tic-Tac" ("Tic Tac Toe" lyric)
cf. "The Cobbler (III)" ("Tic Tac Toe" lyric)
NOTES [84 words]: The current description is all of the O'Crinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin fragment.
Roud puts the O'Crinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin fragment with "The Shoemaker" (I). I think a better fit is Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 "Rap-a-tap-tap-tap, tacky-tack-too, This is the way to make a shoe" (2x).
O'Crinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin has it as "a cobbler's song" with a BBC recording by Mary Murphy, in May 1953, which -- like "The Cobbler" (I) -- is Roud #837. - BS

Tidal Wave at Burin

DESCRIPTION: "The day began with sunshine." The earthquake strikes in the afternoon. Waves "going forty miles an hour" destroying ships and dwellings, drive people "to the mountain." Afterwards many "got their losses [back] and some a darn sight more"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)
KEYWORDS: death disaster ordeal
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Nov 18, 1929 - Earthquake centered in Gulf of St. Lawrence is followed by a tidal wave, with 26 to 36 lives reported lost. See NOTES.
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
Roud #18242
RECORDINGS:
Gerald Aylward, "Tidal Wave at Burin" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
John James, "Tidal Wave" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
NOTES [113 words]: "Newfoundland Tidal Wave Claims Lives of Many -- Property Loss of Great Extent in Small Villages," AP, in Geneva Daily Times (Geneva NY, November 22, 1929), Vol. 35, No. 150, p. 1: "The tidal wave, 15 feet or more high, struck along the [Newfoundland] coast for a distance of 30 miles.... from Lamaline, at the tip of the [Burin] peninsula, to Rock Harbor [sic., s/b Rock Harbour], near the mainland." "Burin, the largest town affected, has a population of 1230 and is located on a narrow inlet. Reports said the wave reached a height of 40 feet there and swept away all property on the waterfront." The Burin Peninsula is at the east end of Newfoundland's Southern Shore. - BS

Tiddleywinks, Old Man

DESCRIPTION: "Tiddleywinks, old man, Find a woman if you can, If you can't find a woman, Do without, old man.' 'If it wasn't for your name and it wasn't for your shame, I'd let you have a go in a minute...." When the rock of Gibraltar Takes a flying leap at Malta....'
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: courting humorous nonballad nonsense rejection
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 37, "Tiddleywinks, Old Man" (1 text)
Roud #10344
RECORDINGS:
Jasper Smith, "Tiddliewink Old Man" (on Voice14)
File: BrPa037A

Tiddy High O!
DESCRIPTION: "An' now we are bound for ol' Bristol Town, Tiddy high O! high hay! Good-bye to them black gals, the yellars an' the browns, Tiddy high O! hay, high hay!" Verses give references to rum and sugar trading/loading.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Sharp-EnglishFolkChanteys)
KEYWORDS: shanty worksong clothes food drink
FOUND IN: West Indies Britain
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, p. 453, "Tiddy High O!" (1 text, 1 tune) [AbEd, p. 339]
Sharp-EnglishFolkChanteys, XLI, p. 46, "Tiddy I O" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #8288
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Haul 'Er Away (Little Sally Racket)" (character of Sally Rackett)
File: Hugi453

Tidy Irish Lad
DESCRIPTION: "I'm a tidy bit of an Irish lad, as you can plainly see, And I like a drop of the creature when I go out upon a spree." The singer boasts of Irish drink, and notes how the English need the Irish, who won the battles of Waterloo, Inkerman, and Sebastopol
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud)
KEYWORDS: Ireland drink soldier
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
June 18, 1815 - Battle of Waterloo
Nov 5, 1854 - Battle of Inkerman clears the way for the siege of Sevastopol (the city fell in the fall of 1855)
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 64-65, "Tidy Irish Lad" (1 text)
Roud #9561
File: Dean064

Tie Pile Song (Duke See the Tie Pile)
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, (Duke) see the tie pile and Duke git mad, Oh, Duke see the money pile and Duke git glad, Oh Daddy, git one." "Oh, tain't no use in foolin' around, Oh, all of them ties got to go to town, Oh Daddy, git one."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (Wheeler)
KEYWORDS: work nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Wheeler-SteamboatinDays, pp. 23-24, "Duke See the Tie Pile" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #10000
NOTES [78 words]: Wheeler explains that the call, "Oh Daddy, git one" was the call used by rousters to tell the next person in line to pick up his tie. For this reason, I have conjectured that this is not a composition by "Duke" Sims (Wheeler's informant), but a tie-carrying call. I have named it accordingly. Wheeler's version is more or less a standard blues form, using only four tones of the scale, but I wouldn't be surprised if there are "true" ballad versions in existence. - RBW

File: MWhe023A

Tie-Tamping Chant

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, tamp 'em up solid. So dey won't come down... Oh, you can do it." Any suitable verse may be used. Last line of chorus is repeated until the task is finished. Another verse is "All, right now, boys, Let me tell you 'bout Sis Joe this time...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs)

KEYWORDS: work worksong nonballad

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 17-19, "Tie-Tamping Chant" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 262-263, "Sis Joe"; "Track Lining Holler" (2 texts, 1 tune)

Roud #15522

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Pay Me My Money Down" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [20 words]: The Lomaxes quote all sorts of verses for this song. One suspects that not all actually came from their informant. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2

File: LxA017

Tiger Bay

DESCRIPTION: "Early in '82," the singer "thought I'd have a little cruise from the Well Street Home down Tiger Bay." He meets a pretty girl who takes him "to the house of Mother Wright., And I was shown a cosy room." He spends his money, but will visit Tiger Bay again

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: sailor sex clothes money

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Palmer 133, "Tiger Bay" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #16872

File: PaSe133

Till Cock Gets Higher

DESCRIPTION: A cante-fable, this tale with interpolated song tells of the encounter of a country boy with a prostitute, and their bargaining for price.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: bawdy whore bargaining

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms II, p. 603, "Till Cock Gets Higher" (1 text)

File: RL603

Till Home Sail Wylekyn (Willikin's Return)

DESCRIPTION: "Till home sail Willikin, this jolly gentle sheep, All to our comely King Harry this knight is knit ( ), Therefore let us all syng nowel. Willikin sails home to the Lord Prince, to the Lord Chamberlain, to the Lord "Fueryn"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1550 (British Library MS. Additional 19046)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #430, p. 292, "(Tyll home sull Wylekyn, this joly gentyl schepe)" (1 text)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #3742
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #5957
ADDITIONAL: Rossell Hope Robbins, _Historical Poems of the XIVth and XVth Century_, Columbia University Press, 1959, #82, pp. 198-199, "Willikin's Return" (1 text)
MANUSCRIPT: London, British LIbrary MS. Additional 19046, folio 74
NOTES [683 words]: This has, in its own right, absolutely no place in the Index. There is only one copy, in British Library MS. Additional 19046, which is a fifteenth century book of proverbs; this piece is written in the margins. There is no reason to think it of folk origin, and the attestation is poor. I have included it for two reasons: One is because Greene claims (p. 441) that it is "probably a close parody of a folk-song, to judge by its lilt and its use of repetitive formulas." I don't think I buy that, but the piece perhaps needs an entry so we can compare it against any other genuine folk songs of its era.

The second is that Greene suggests that this is about the 1470 "re-adaption" of King Henry VI, deposed in 1461 by Edward IV for utter incompetence (this apart from the fact that Edward IV, not Henry VI, was the heir of the old King Edward III). It was the Earl of Warwick who arranged to get Henry back on the throne (briefly -- Henry was restored only for a few months in 1470-1471 before Edward IV put paid to him permanently). Greene thinks the "Willikin" of this song is Warwick. This explanation is accepted without argument by Robbins, p. 361, who goes on to expand on Greene's explanations.

This strikes me as problematic. Warwick's name was not William; he was Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick and Salisbury. It's of course possible that he was called "Willikin" to conceal his identity -- but why? As long as Warwick was in charge (and he ran the government for Henry VI, who was not capable of ruling on his own), there was no need to conceal his name, and once Warwick died at the Battle of Barnet (April 14, 1471), there wasn't anything to write about.

And no one in his right mind would ever call Warwick a "sheep." A wolf in sheep's clothing, maybe, but no sheep.

What's more, although calling King Henry "comely" might be conventional, if it's meant literally, it doesn't seem to fit. We have no reliable portraits, but I can't recall any contemporary chronicle ever calling Henry particularly handsome, and when his alleged tomb was opened, he was found to have an unusually small skull. I wouldn't bet much on that corpse really being Henry, but there is a pretty good chance that he was anything but handsome.

There are two other instances, around the fifteenth century, of a King Henry coming over the sea to claim the throne. In 1399, Henry of Bolingbroke overthrew Richard II and became King Henry IV (he was Henry VI's grandfather). And in 1485, Henry Tudor overthrew Richard III and became King Henry VII.

Bolingbroke wasn't particularly associated with anyone named William; his chief supporters at the time were the father and son Henry Percy (the father being the First Earl of Northumberland and the son the famous Harry Hotspur) and Thomas Arundel, the displaced Archbishop of Canterbury. But Henry Tudor, although the leaders of his army were the de Vere Earl of Oxford and Jasper Tudor, overthrew Richard at the Battle of Bosworth mostly because of the actions of the brothers Thomas Lord Stanley, Earl of Derby, and his brother Sir William Stanley. At Bosworth, it was William Stanley who swooped down with his forces and killed Richard III. (For far more about this than you probably want to know, see the notes to "The Children in the Wood" (The Babes in the Woods)" [Laws Q34] and "The Ballad of Bosworth Field." ) William Stanley did not really come over the sea, but Thomas Stanley was technically King of the Isle of Man, so it's arguable that the Stanleys were "from overseas." And William Stanley was actually named William! So he would be my candidate for the Willikin of the song.

As a footnote, Sir William Stanley was Henry VII's Lord Chamberlain for a time (see Wagner, p. 257) until Henry executed him in 1495 for rebellion; the Stanleys were just too slippery! I don't begin to claim that this is proof. I'm not sure of anything. This could be about something completely different; there is nothing in the piece which is really identifiable. But I just don't trust Greene's identification, and indexed this piece to put my objections on record! - RBW

Bibliography

Tilly Illy Rey Dum Dee

DESCRIPTION: "Tilly illy rey dum daddie, Tilly illy rey dum dee" (2x)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1785, "Tilly Illy Rey Dum Dee" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #13527
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Drunken Sailor" (tune, per Greig/Duncan8)
NOTES [11 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 fragment. - BS.

Timber

DESCRIPTION: "From the bushmen to the breaker-out, From the breaker-out to the bend, From the benchie to the tailor-out, From the tailor-out to the yard. Timber, I want to go, Back to Ontario, Timber, I want to go home." And so the logs go on their way to the market
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (according to Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook)
KEYWORDS: lumbering travel
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, p. 54, "Timber" (1 text, 1 tune)

Timber (I)

DESCRIPTION: "We are trying to carry this timber to the building, Hallelujah, I don't know." "We will make doors and windows in that building, Hallelujah, I don't know." "We will build it to the glory of the Lord, Hallelujah, I don't know."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)
KEYWORDS: religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 386, "Timber" (1 short text, 1 tune)

Timber (Jerry the Mule)

DESCRIPTION: The singer encourages his mule, "Hollerin', Timber, Lord, this timber's gotta roll." He complains about his miserable boss. Jerry the mule can't pull more, so the boss beats him. Jerry kills the boss. The singer wonders why he didn't kill the boss himself
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973
KEYWORDS: work animal death boss
FOUND IN:
Timber for the Bridge at St. Paul's

DESCRIPTION: Men go to cut logs for a new bridge. Some men cut short and some long. Some worked hard and some worked light; the smallest man did the work of two. Some cut the soft wood and others did not. The boss "told every man different from what he told me"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports)

KEYWORDS: work boss worker

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports, pp. 363-364, "Timber for the Bridge at St. Paul's" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #25332

NOTES [171 words]: Guigné-ForgottenSongsOfTheNewfoundlandOutports says of this song, "It reflects local anxiety in the community concerning poor leadership in directing the construction of a bridge over the St. Paul's river. This is revealed directly in the third stanza of the song." I would not have seen that without Guigné's guidance. I thought it was a song about a job in which everyone does his own thing, and that the writer thought that a funny situation. In any case, Guigné goes on to quote a local resident: "The bridge didn't survive long." Guigné continues, "A new bridge of steel was eventually built." - BS

St. Pauls (my atlas shows it without an apostrophe) was a small town at the southern end of Newfoundland's Northern Peninsula, in an inlet between Rocky Harbor and Cow Head. A bridge over the inlet might have been useful, but I wonder what it would have connected to -- for practical purposes, there were no roads in that part of Newfoundland in 1913; the coastal boats were their means of contact with the outside world. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: Guig363

Timbrook

DESCRIPTION: "Timbrook has done gone and thrown the rider (x2), If you'd been there when the horses come around, You'd a swore to your maker they never touched ground." "Oh mister, oh mister, I'm risking my life To win money for you and your wife...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: racing horse gambling

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 4, 1878 - race between Ten Broeck and Miss Mollie McCarthy (won by Ten Broeck)

FOUND IN: US(S0)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 881, "Timbrook" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 391-392, "Timbrook" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 881)

Roud #2190

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Molly and Tenbrooks" [Laws H27] (subject)
cf. "Old Timbrook Blue" (subject)

NOTES [42 words]: Although Randolph's informant, almost certainly correctly, believe this to refer to the race that also spawned "Molly and Tenbrooks," the songs appear to be distinct (though Roud lumps them, and Cohen's notes to Randolph also seem to equate them). - RBW

File: R881
Time Enough Yet

DESCRIPTION: The young man begs the girl to marry; she replied that there is "time enough yet." After hearing enough of this he says he will never return. She soon asks him to come back. He replies there is "time enough yet." Girls are warned not to delay marriage.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1866 (Musick-JAF-TheOldAlbumOf-William-A-Larkin)
KEYWORDS: love courting rejection
FOUND IN: US(MW,So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 197-198, "Time Enough Yet" (1 text plus an excerpt from 1 more)
Randolph 369, "Time Enough Yet" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Musick-JAF-TheOldAlbumOf-William-A-Larkin 21, "Time Enouf Yet" [sic] (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 662, "Come All Ye Young Ladies" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #4264
File: R369

Time for Man Go Home

DESCRIPTION: Alternate lines are a chorus, "Time for man go home." The shantyman sings: It's night time when the crickets are "bawlin" and the agouti are out and it is the time to die. "Time for man go cover dem wife"

AUTHOR: unknown
KEYWORDS: sex shanty animal bug wife
FOUND IN: West Indies(St Vincent)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Abrahams-DeepTheWaterShallowTheShore, pp. 117-118, "Time for Man Go Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #354
File: AWIS117

Time Has Made a Change In Me

DESCRIPTION: "Time has made a change since my childhood days, Many of my friends have gone away." "Time has made a change in the old home place... Time has made a change in me." The singer notes how he has aged, and looks forward to the next world when pain will end.

AUTHOR: Harkins Freye
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Lomax recording, from Helena Buggs & Alfred Hamilton); probably written in the 1920w
KEYWORDS: nonballad age
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
DT, TIMEHAS
ADDITIONAL: _Sing Out_ magazine, Volume 35, #1 (1990), pp, 42-43, "Time Has Made a Change In Me" (1 text, 1 tune, with notes implying it was collected from tradition)
Roud #16072
File: DTtimeha

Time Is On the Wing

DESCRIPTION: Strew with roses life's rough path, and let's be gay, Thoughtless youth proposes, And trifle time away." "Love's sweet voice will oft betray ... Ev'ry flow'rr must fade away And time is on the wing"

AUTHOR: Words: Charles Diblin (1745-1815)/Music: William Reeve (source: Greig/Duncan5)
EARLIEST DATE: before 1820 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 12(109))
KEYWORDS: courting love flowers nonballad
Time o Year for Dippin Sheep, The

DESCRIPTION: At sheep-dipping time a farmer takes a minor revenge on a constable -- sent to verify that the procedure is done well -- who had crossed the farmer in the past.

AUTHOR: Buff Wilson (source: McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen)

EARLIEST DATE: 1989 (McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen)

LONG DESCRIPTION: It is time to dip the sheep by disinfecting them with DDT. A policeman is there to ensure it is done right. This policeman had given the singer's father a speeding ticket in the past; in the heat he says he is dry. Father says, "You're welcome tae aa ye want frae the [unlabelled] bottle by the rail" -- which turns out to be full of DDT. If you run into this policeman now "that's known as 'Dipper Jim' You can bet your last three halfpence -- there ain't no flies on him."

KEYWORDS: farming humorous nonballad sheep police drugs

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen, pp. 90-91, 153, "The Time o Year for Dippin Sheep" (1 text)
Roud #21753

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Garden Where the Praties Grow" (tune, per McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen)

File: McSc090

Time Wears Awa

DESCRIPTION: An old man recalls wooing his bride. Now time has stolen their youth. They still dream of the happy days of their youth but age brings "toil and pain" "[S]till the birds and burnies sing... [as] when we were young and free."

AUTHOR: Thomas Elliot (source: McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen)

EARLIEST DATE: 1989 (McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen)

KEYWORDS: age courting love marriage husband wife

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen, pp. 49-50, 150, "Time Wears Awa" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #21760

File: McSc049

Timekeeper's Lament

DESCRIPTION: "Come railroad men and comrades, come hear my tale of woe, It's of some hustling work we done, not many years ago." The singer lists many man in the camp. They build the railroad, finishing at 8:40 on October 14, 1914, and celebrate

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan)

KEYWORDS: work moniker railroading

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp. 216-218, "Timekeeper's Lament" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 104, "Timekeeper's Lament" (1 text)
Roud #6501

File: BBun216
Times are Hard

DESCRIPTION: "Times are hard, we all do know, For tradesmen and lab'rors and farmers too, But without money we can't find a friend, But we'll trust in him for the times to men." Poor people should not feel alone; "there's thousands more"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (collected by H. E. Piggott from "Mrs. Paul")

KEYWORDS: hardtimes poverty worker nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 36, "Times Are Hard" (1 text)

Roud #2697

File: Gund036B

Times Gettin' Hard

DESCRIPTION: "Times gettin' hard, boys, Money's gettin' scarce. If times don't get much better, boys, I'm bound to leave this place." "Take my true love by the hand, lead her through the town...." The singer prepares to depart for (California?) where times are better

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag; recording by Jaybird Coleman) -- but see NOTES for a probable instance from 1850

KEYWORDS: hardtimes poverty exile

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 242, "Times Gettin Hard, Boys" (1 short text, 1 tune)

Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 117, "Times Are Getting Hard" (1 text)

Roud #15620

RECORDINGS:

Jaybird Coleman, "Times Gettin' Hard -- Work's Been Gettin' Scarce" (Gennett, unissued; rec. 1927)

Pete Seeger, "Time's A-getting Hard" (on PeteSeeger06, PeteSeegerCD01) (on PeteSeeger26)

Wiggins Bros., "Times Am Gittin' Hard" (Brunswick 260, 1928)

NOTES [211 words]: Although there don't seem to be any printed or recorded versions of this prior to 1927, Greg Leatherwood pointed out to us a North Carolina account book by Seth Squires, copied 1850-1858+1861, which has some words of the song in the margin of an 1850 entry (p. 47). This text, a "speech bubble" placed in the mouth of a cartoon figure, reads something like this (the transcription is Leatherwood's, but I have no reason to disagree with it):

Times is getting hard
And money is getting scarce
If times does not alter
I am going to leave this place
 Tol lol diddle I do. Yes Sah!

Leatherwood observes, "The last couple of lines suggest that the song may have been part of a minstrel show script as the lines consciously imitate black dialect." I agree, though I haven't encountered the text elsewhere. Marginal entries are sometimes entered long after the fact, so I can't list this as the Earliest Date, but odds are very high that this was in existence by 1850. The Squires manuscript is now in the the University of North Carolina's Southern Historical Collection at the Louis Round Wilson Special Collections Library. It is available on microfilm; the microfilm gives the accession number as #3747. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: San242

Tin Swankey Pot, The

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, I am a sailor that plows the salt sea As quickly I'll show unto your; My home is whaler a-cruising for grease...." He used to work on land, and still remembers home fondly. The sailors enjoy eating and drinking from their tin swankey pots
Tinker, The

DESCRIPTION: The lady of the manor sends for the jolly tinker, who services her, her staff (including the butler) and then rides off, "little drops of semen pitter-patting at his feet."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: adultery bawdy Gypsy lover sex tinker

FOUND IN: Australia Britain(England,Scotland) US(MA,MW,So,SW) Canada

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 29-36, "The Tinker" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
- Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 113-117, "The Jolly Tinker" (3 texts, 1 tune)
- Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 59, "Bold Blackamoor" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, pp. 182-183, "The Jolly Tinker" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, JOLITINK JOLLTNK3

Roud #863

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Jolly Beggar" [Child 279]
- cf. "Clout the Cauldron"
- cf. "The Jolly Tinker (I)"
- cf. "The Jolly Tinker (III)"

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Highland Tinker
The Jolly Tinker

NOTES [35 words]: Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms provides a detailed history of this ballad.
- EC
This song can be told from "The Jolly Tinker (III)" by its description of the tinker's, um, improbable physical attributes. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: EM029

Tinkler's Waddin, The (The Tinker's Wedding)

DESCRIPTION: Amid drink and celebration, bridegroom Norman Scott is wed for the fourth time (no mention of divorce or widowerhood), to fortune-teller Meg McNeil; a cheerful brawl ensues

AUTHOR: William Watt

EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Ford); reportedly published 1835

KEYWORDS: marriage wedding fight drink party humorous tinker Gypsy

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber,Bord))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 1-4, "The Tinkler's Waddin" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #102, pp. 1-2, "The Tinkler's Waddin" (1 text)
- Greig/Duncan3 609, "The Tinklers' Weddin" (1 text fragment, 2 tunes)
- McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen, pp. 52-53, 150, "Tinker's Waddin" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #5408

RECORDINGS:
- Willie Kemp and Curly MacKay, "The Tinklers' Wedding" (on Voice13)
- Jimmy Scott, "The Tinkers' Weddin" (on Borders1)
- John Strachan, "The Tinkler's Waddin" (on Lomax43, LomaxCD1743)

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, Firth b.27(397/398), "The Tinkler's Wedding" ("In June when broom in bloom was seen"), unknown, n.d.
NLScotland, L.C.Fol.70(141b), "The Tinker's Wedding," unknown, c. 1840-1860; also L.C.Fol.70(141)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Rothesay-O" (tune)
NOTES [133 words]: The work "tinker" in Britain is applied both to workers in tin (i.e., menders of pots and kettles) and "travellers," or Gypsies. In many songs, including this, it's ambiguous which is meant -- but since many or most of the travelling tinkers were Gypsies, it barely matters. - PJS
According to Kennedy, William Watt was born in 1792, and also wrote "Kate Dalrymple," as well as a version of "The Peddlar." The tune used is reportedly identical to "Rothesay-O," though it is not entirely clear which came first. - RBW Greig/Duncan3: "Greig gives the text [which Greig/Duncan3 does not include] in Ob. [i.e., Greig] as it appears in Ford." Greig #102 commentary does not say that and there are minor spelling and punctuation differences between Greig #102 and Ford (at least in Ford's 1899 series). - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: RcTTWttw

Tinnaberna Fishermen (I), The DESCRIPTION: Tinnaberna fishermen out at nightfall November 14, 1815 are overtaken by a squall blowing them northwest. They can see "Poulder fading fastly from our view," the lighthouse at Tuskar, and the warning "bonfire on the hill" but cannot return to shore.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship storm wreck fishing
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Nov 1815 - Six of seven fishing boats were lost with their crews when they were blown across the channel to the Welsh coast (source: Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, pp. 42-43, "The Tinnaberna Fishermen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #20521
File: Ran042

Tinnaberna Fishermen (II), The
DESCRIPTION: "On the dark rocks of Wales our poor neighbors were lost ... Those tender-hearted Welshmen, we for them will ever pray That God may grant them pardon against their dying day"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship storm wreck fishing
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Nov 1815 - Six of seven fishing boats were lost with their crews when they were blown across the channel to the Welsh coast (source: Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, pp. 43-44, "The Tinnaberna Fishermen" (1 text)
File: Ran043

Tinnego
DESCRIPTION: Alternate lines are a chorus, "Tee-ay-ay Tinnego." The shantyman sings: Hold on.
Let's go to Walabo. It's time for us to go to Walabo. "Deacon Duncan Tinnego."
AUTHOR: unknown
KEYWORDS: dancing nonballad playparty
FOUND IN: West Indies(St Vincent)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Abrahams-DeepTheWaterShallowTheShore, pp. 88-89, "Tinnego" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [50 words]: Abrahams says "Tinnego" and "Jane and Louisa" seem to be the most popular of St Vincent ring games among the blackfish whalers. For other examples of West Indies ring games see "There's a Brown Girl in the Ring" and "Go Down Emmanuel Road" "Walabo" is Wallilabou Bay on the west coast of St Vincent. - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: AWIS088

Tippecanoe
DESCRIPTION: "A bumper around now, my hearties, I'll sing you a song that is new; I'll please to the buttons all parties And sing of Old Tippecanoe." The singer details the history of Tippecanoe, and declares, "Bid Martin Van Buren adieu."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1840 (Tippecanoe Song-Book)
KEYWORDS: political nonballad derivative
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Dec 2, 1840 - William Henry Harrison defeats Martin Van Buren
Mar 4, 1841 - Harrison (the first Whig to be elected President) is inaugurated. He gives a rambling inaugural address in a rainstorm and catches cold
April 4, 1841 - Harrison dies of pneumonia, making him the first president to fail to complete his term. After some hesitation, Vice President John Tyler is allowed to succeed as President
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3397,"Tippecanoe"(1text)
Salt-BuckeyeHeritage-OhiosHistory,pp.70-72,"OldTippecanoe"(1text,1tune)
Roud #6950
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Rosin the Beau" (tune) and references there
cf. "Old Tippecanoe (I)" (subject of the Harrison/van Buren election) and references there NOTES [28 words]: For details on the (thoroughly dirty) 1840 Presidential campaign, and the purely false picture it drew of William Henry Harrison, see the notes to "Old Tippecanoe." - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: Be3397

Tipperary (I)
DESCRIPTION: "Way out in old South Dakota... Once roamed the greatest of outlaws... His name was old Tipperary, Tipperary of rodeo fame, The greatest of all the bronc riders Will never forget that great name." The horse's methods of throwing riders are recounted
AUTHOR: Tex Fletcher EARLIEST DATE: 1954 ("Hoofs and Horns")
KEYWORDS: horse cowboy
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain68,"Tipperary"(1text,1tune)
NOTES [33 words]: According to Ohrlin, Tipperary was a great rodeo horse of the period following the First World War. Only one rider is recorded as having stayed on his back, and even that feat has been questioned. - RBW
File: 0hr068

Tipperary Christening, The
DESCRIPTION: Dennis is christened in Tipperary. Everyone is there. "After dancing, they went in to lunching ... They had all kinds of tea ... and everything that would please." After dinner there was speaking, match making... "they wished the next would be twins"
AUTHOR: unknown
Tipperary Far Away

DESCRIPTION: A rebel, Sean Treacy, is dying by moonlight on Talbot Street in Dublin. He asks a passing comrade to take a lock of his hair and take it to his mother in his "native home In Tipperary far away." His comrades bury him.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (IRClancyMakem03)
KEYWORDS: battle rebellion death Ireland IRA hair
FOUND IN: Ireland
RECORDINGS:
The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, "Tipperary Far Away" (on IRClancyMakem03)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sean Treacy" (subject: the death of Treacy)
cf. "The Station of Knocklong" (for other activities of Treacy)
NOTES [122 words]: According to Phoenix Publishing Short History of the 3rd Tipperary Brigade on the eircom site, this song refers to Sean Treacy, shot October 14, 1920 in Talbot Street, Dublin. Treacy's body was returned to Tipperary for burial at Kilfeacle. Treacy was a member of the Third Tipperary Brigade. - BS
Perhaps the most popular of at least two and possibly three Sean Treacy songs. Robert Kee, in Ourselves Alone, being volume III of The Green Flag, p. 116, quotes another, "Our lovely Sean is dead and gone, Shot down in Talbot Street." This is said to have been adapted from an "ancient Irish lament." He does not cite a source for this statement.
For more on Treacy's short, tumultuous career, see the notes to "Sean Treacy." - RBW

Tipperary Recruiting Song, The

DESCRIPTION: "'Tis now we'd want to be wary, boys, The recruiters are out in Tipperary, boys...." The Irish youths are advised to avoid the British sergeants and the free drinks they offer. They are reminded of all the harm John Bull has done in the past
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster)
KEYWORDS: Ireland recruiting drink soldier
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Galvin-IrishSongsOfResistance, p. 88, "Tipperary Recruiting Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 109, "Tipperary Recruiting Song" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), pp. 299-300, "Tipperary Recruiting Song" (1 text)
NOTES [58 words]: It is not immediately evident what time period this song refers to. The British desperation for soldiers might seem to imply World War I -- but in 1916 Britain instituted the draft (in England; it took a little longer in Ireland); the recruiting sergeant was a thing of the past. So an earlier period is indicated. Besides, the song is older. - RBW

Tipperty's Jean

DESCRIPTION: "In a wee thacket hoosie, far doon i' the glen, There lived a young lassie, the plague o' the men." Tipperty Jean's beauty has ensnared many, but she rejects them all -- even the Laird as too old. She has enough money to live, and so marries Puir Johnnie

AUTHOR: Peter Buchan
EARLIEST DATE: 1873 (Buchan, Legends of the North)
KEYWORDS: love courting money rejection marriage
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (3 citations): Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #173, pp. 1-2, "Tipperty's Jean" (1 text) Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 283-284, "Tipperty's Jean" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Peter Buchan, _Legends of the North: The Guidman O Inglismill and The Fairy Bride_, Edmonston and Douglas, 1873 (available on Google Books), pp. 41-43, "(no title)" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #5602
CROSS-REFERENCES: cf. "The Laird o Cockpen" (tune) and references there
NOTES [13 words]: Thanks to Alan Snyder for pointing out the _Legends of the North_ reference. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1
File: 0rd283

Tired o' Workin'

DESCRIPTION: "'Mang the noise o' wheels in motion, In a dark unhealthy den... Clouds o' dust eternal reign." There is no chance for a change; "I am getting tired o' workin', But to lose my job I'm feared." Workers cannot argue their case lest they be fired

AUTHOR: Words: David Carnegie? (see Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee)
EARLIEST DATE: 1878 (Carnegie's "Lays and Lyrics from the Factory," according to Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee)
KEYWORDS: worker hardtimes technology
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation): Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee 39, "Tired o' Workin" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #21587
File: Gath039

Tired o' Workin' Lyauvie's Braes

DESCRIPTION: "Tired o' workin Lyauvie's braes, An' tired o' gaun to Imphm's toon, I'll gang back to Peterhead, An' there I'll get my penny fun"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: work hardtimes farming worker
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation): Greig/Duncan3 350, "Tired o' Workin' Lyauvie's Braes" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #5900
NOTES [11 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan3 fragment. - BS
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3350

Tired Soldier, The

DESCRIPTION: "The tired soldier, bold and brave, now rests his weary feet, And to the shelter of the grave He made a safe retreat." "He's quartered in the arms of death, He'll never, never march again." He left home as a boy. His comrades and love gather at the grave

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Nestler)
KEYWORDS: soldier death love burial
FOUND IN: US(NE)
Tirmanagh Hill

DESCRIPTION: The singer excuses his rhyme -- "education I do not claim it" -- but has long promised himself to write about the wonderful hunting, shooting, dancing, and shady groves for courting, around Tirmanagh Hill. Now he must leave and finally writes this song.

AUTHOR: Frank Comber (source: IROConway01)

EARLIEST DATE: 2012 (IROConway01)

KEYWORDS: home separation pride courting fishing hunting dancing nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

Roud #25066

RECORDINGS:

Ollie Conway, "Tiermana Hill" (on IROConway01)

File: RcTirmHi

---

'Tis Not Always the Bullet that Kills

DESCRIPTION: "Please, dear Uncle, now tell me why you're sighing." The boy wonders why, if he survived the war, he is always sad. The boy's mother says that she loved the uncle, but married her sweetheart's brother when she thought the uncle dead. Both regret this

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1920 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: love soldier betrayal war family

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Randolph 815, "'Tis Not Always the Bullet that Kills" (1 text)

Roud #7431

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Two Little Girls in Blue" (plot)

File: R815

---

Tis Now, Young Man, Give Me Attention

DESCRIPTION: The singer complains of his sad life. He courts and marries a girl. After seven years, he finds her untrue, but cannot gain a divorce because he can't prove her infidelity. He wishes to sail away, but hates to live his little girl (?). He dies at sea

AUTHOR: Napoleon Stetson?

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: marriage betrayal sailor death ring

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 312, "Tis Now, Young Man, Give Me Attention" (1 text)

Roud #6648

File: BrII312

---

Tis Well and Good I Come Here Tonight

DESCRIPTION: "Tis well and good I come here tonight... For to do my Master's will." "Brother... show me the way... The way to the Promised Land."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealslans)
Tit for Tat, Butter for Fat (Wheel of Fortune)

DESCRIPTION: Game in which players try to pick a particular number from a "wheel of fortune": "Tit for tat Butter for fat, If you kill my dog I'll kill your cat."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)
KEYWORDS: play party nonballad food animal
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #85, "Wheel of Fortune" (1 text)
File: Newe085

Titanic (I), The ("It Was Sad When That Great Ship Went Down") [Laws D24] (Titanic #1)

DESCRIPTION: (Though the builders called her unsinkable), "On Monday morning... the great Titanic began to reel and rock." Rich and poor will not mix, so the poor on the lower decks drown first. The band plays "Nearer My God to Thee" and sixteen hundred people die

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (recording, Ernest V. Stoneman)
KEYWORDS: sea wreck family disaster death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.

FOUND IN: US (Ap, SE, So)
REFERENCES (15 citations):
Laws D24, "The Titanic I"
Randolph 693, "The Great Titanic" ("B" fragment only; Randolph's "A" text is "The Titanic (IV)" ("Lost on the Great Titanic") (Titanic #4))
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 287, "The Titanic" (5 texts plus an excerpt and mention of 2 more. The Laws data for this book is badly confused, but it appears the "C" and "D" texts are this song, and apparently the "E" fragment also; "A" and "B" are broadsides Laws does not classify (The first clearly based on "The Golden Vanity"; the second seems to be an adaption of this song to "There Will Be a Hot Time"), and "H" is "God Moves on the Water")
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 287, "The Titanic" (4 excerpts, 4 tunes, with "B" being presumably the same as Brown's "B" broadside, "D" and "E" being "Titanic (I)' It Was Sad When That Great Ship Went Down," and "H" being "God Moves on the Water" ("Titanic (III)"
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 88-89, "The Great Titanic" (1 text)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, pp. 10-11, "The Disaster of the Great Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)
Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 323, "The Titanic" (1 text+2 fragments)
Dunson/Raim/Asch-AnthologyOfAmericanFolkMusic, p. 60 "When That Great Ship Went Down" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin-TreasuryOfSouthernFolklore, p. 723, "The Ship Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, p. 77, "(The Titanic)" (1 text)
Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHome CompanionFolkSongBook, pp. 280-281, "The Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 184-185, "The Coast of Peru" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 55, "The Titanic" (1 text)
DT 616, TITANIC5*
ADDITIONAL: Harold Courlander, _A Treasury of Afro-American Folklore_, Crown Publishers, 1976, pp. 403-404, "Wasn't IT Sad When That Great Ship Went Down" (1 text)
Roud #774
RECORDINGS:
* Pink Anderson, "The Titanic" (on PinkAnd1, Class AfrAm)
* Vernon Dalhart, "The Great Titanic" (Champion 15121, 1926) (Radiex 4131=Grey Gull 4131 [as Jeff Calhoun], 1927)
* George Reneau, "The Sinking of the Titanic" (Vocalion 5077, 1926)
* Ernest V. Stoneman, "The Titanic" (OKeh 40288, 1925; rec. 1924); "Sinking of the Titanic" (Edison 51823, 1926) (CYL: Edison [BA] 5200, 1926); "Sinking of the Titanic" (on Stonemans02)
* William & Versey Smith, "When That Great Ship Went Down" (Paramount 12505B, 1927; on AAFM1)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. all the other Titanic songs (plot)
cf. "The Little Old Log Cabin in the Lane" (tune)
cf. "Grave Sinking Down" (form)

NOTES [517 words]: Despite this song (and other folklore), the band on the Titanic did NOT play "Nearer My God to Thee" as the ship sank. Instead, they played light music to prevent panic. The reference to rich and poor not mixing is accurate enough, though hardly unique to the Titanic. As with most liners of the time, the Titanic carried three classes of passengers: First class, second class, and steerage, for the poorest people (mostly emigrants, and mostly jammed in their cabins as tight as sardines)

Steerage passengers, of course, were stuck far down in the ship. Ballad, p. 168, has a side view of the ship's plans, showing that many of the steerage passengers were four floors below the main deck, near the waterline, whereas the first class passengers were mostly above the main deck, with easy access to the lifeboats. It showed in the casualties. According to Paine, 60% of the first class passengers survived (Ballard, p. 149, reports that every child in first class, save one, survived, and she died only because she wouldn't leave her mother, who wouldn't leave her husband). 42% of second class passengers survived, but only 25% of steerage (comparable to the 24% of the crew who survived). Some versions of this, including Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads's, have a reference to Paul's promise that "not a man should drown"; this is a reference to Acts 27:34, when Paul is on his way to Rome and the ship in which he is being held prisoner is driven by a storm. Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads wonders if there might not be an earlier song about Paul's wreck which gave rise to a Titanic text. It seems likely enough, and the verse about Paul is a likely survival, since it is almost irrelevant in its current place in the text. In fact, we might even make a guess as to the source of the verse. Most recordings of this song use an approximation of Ernest Stoneman's tune. But Wade Mainer eventually recorded a version (not cited here because I don't know the album number) which uses a tune effectively identical to the one he uses for "Home in the Rock." So that could be a source for scripture references.

To tell this from the other Titanic songs, consider the chorus:
It was sad when that great ship went down,
It was sad when that great ship went down.
There were husbands and wives,
Little children lost their lives,
It was sad when that great ship went down.

For an extensive history of the Titanic, with detailed examination of the truth (or lack thereof) of quotes in the Titanic songs, see the notes to "The Titanic (XV)" ("On the tenth day of April 1912") (Titanic #15)

In an interesting footnote, the Ernest Stoneman version of this almost didn't get released, according to Mazor, pp. 58-59. Stoneman had recorded two songs for OKeh, and Ralph Peer and Co. decided that the two cuts were too fast for popular release. They told Stoneman, and he offered to come to the studio at his own expense and re-record them, as long as he got to record two more sides. Peer and Stoneman made the agreement, and "The Titanic" was one of the songs released as a result. - RBW

Bibliography

• Ballard: Dr. Robert D. Ballard, The Discovery of the Titanic, Warner, 1987
Titanic (II), The ("The Titanic, Out on that Ocean") (Titanic #2)

DESCRIPTION: "The rich folks 'cided to take a trip On the finest ship was ever built. The cap'n persuaded these people to think This Titanic too safe to sink. Cho: Out on that ocean, The great wide ocean, The Titanic, out on that ocean, sinking down!"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)

KEYWORDS: ship wreck family disaster death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 254-255, "De Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4172

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. all the other Titanic songs (plot)

NOTES [73 words]: Despite this song (and other folklore), the band on the Titanic did NOT play "Nearer My God to Thee" as the ship sank. Instead, they played light music to prevent panic. This song is item dl26 in Laws's Appendix II. For an extensive history of the Titanic, with detailed examination of the truth (or lack thereof) of quotes in the Titanic songs, see the notes to "The Titanic (XV)" ("On the tenth day of April 1912") (Titanic #15) - RBW

File: San254

Titanic (III), The ("God Moves on the Water") (Titanic #3)

DESCRIPTION: The story of the Titanic. The women have to watch their husbands drown. Captain Smith awakens to gunshots. Millionaire Jacob Nash cannot pay his fare (to survive). Chorus: "God moves on the water (x3) And the people had to run and pray.

AUTHOR: Blind Willie Johnson?

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Blind Willie Johnson)

KEYWORDS: death ship wreck disaster religious

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 26-27, "God Moves on the Water" (1 text, 1 tune)
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 76-77, "(God Moves on the Water)" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 287, "The Titanic" (5 texts plus an excerpt and mention of 2 more. The Laws data for this book is badly confused, but the "H" text is this song; "C" and "D" are "The Titanic (I)," and apparently the "E" fragment also; "A" and "B" are broadsides Laws does not classify (The first clearly based on "The Golden Vanity"; the second seems to be an adaption of this song to "There Will Be a Hot Time"))
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 287, "The Titanic" (4 excerpts, 4 tunes, with "B" being presumably the same as Brown's "B" broadside, "D" and "E" being "Titanic (I) It Was Sad When That Great Ship Went Down;," and "H" being "God Moves on the Water")
DT, TITANIC4*

ADDITIONAL: Harold Courlander, _A Treasury of Afro-American Folklore_, Crown Publishers, 1976, p. 403, "God Move on the Water" (1 text)
Roud #4173

RECORDINGS:
Blind Willie Johnson, "God Moves on the Water" (Columbia 14520-D, 1930; rec. 1929; on BWJ02, CGospel1)
Bessie Jones et al, "The Titanic" (on LomaxCD1700, LomaxCD1708)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. all the other Titanic songs (plot)
cf. "Miami Hairikin" (form, lyrics)

NOTES [243 words]: This song is item dI27 in Laws's Appendix II. It should probably be given a proper entry, though; it seems to be the most popular of the Titanic songs except for "The Titanic (I) ('It Was Sad When That Great Ship Went Down')" [Laws D24].
The statement 'God moves on the water" is probably an allusion to Genesis 1:2, where "the spirit of God moved on the face of the water" ("ocean" or "abyss" might be a better translation there, but of course what matters is what the King James Bible says).
Lyle Lofgren makes the interesting observation that the oldest known version, Blind Willie Johnson's, does not actually use the phrase "God moves on the water." He lets the guitar play the phrase "on the water." Lyle speculates that that there may have been an older gospel song which would have let listeners know the missing phrase. This seems not impossible (perhaps "Wade in the Water" -- there are some similarities in the tunes I have heard). But the other possibility he suggests is that the song was already well known in 1929, so Johnson didn't need to sing the words. And, indeed, the Lomaxes report collecting it in 1933.
For an extensive history of the Titanic, with detailed examination of the truth (or lack thereof) of quotes in the Titanic songs, see the notes to "The Titanic (XV)" ("On the tenth day of April 1912") (Titanic #15)
The "Jacob Nash" mentioned in the Lomax version and others is almost certainly an error for John Jacob Astor. - RBW

Titanic (IV), The ("Lost on the Great Titanic") (Titanic #4)

DESCRIPTION: The Titanic is only a few hours' sailing from shore when it strikes an iceberg and sinks. Both rich and poor are lost with the ship. Husbands gallantly stand aside to let their wives be saved. The band plays "Nearer my God to Thee" as she goes down

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: ship wreck family disaster death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Randolph 693, "The Great Titanic" ("A" text only; Randolph's "B" text is "The Titanic I")
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, p. 104, "The Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, TITANIC2*
Roud #3526
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. all the other Titanic songs (plot)
cf. "Lost on the Lady Elgin" (tune)

NOTES [123 words]: This song is dD40 in Laws's Appendix I. Despite this song (and other folklore), the band on the Titanic did NOT play "Nearer My God to Thee" as the ship sank. Instead, they played light music to prevent panic.
To tell this from the other Titanic songs, consider these stanzas:
The great Titanic went sailing
Ninety-eight miles from shore
It suddenly struck an iceberg
And sank forevermore.
Lost, lost on the great Titanic,
Sinking to rise no more,
A number of sixteen hundred
Had failed to reach the shore.
For an extensive history of the Titanic, with detailed examination of the truth (or lack thereof) of Titanic (V), The (Many Hearts Surrendered to the Shipwreck) (Titanic #5)

DESCRIPTION: "The Titanic left Southampton With all its sports and gang, When they struck the iceberg, I know their mind was changed." The story of the wreck is briefly told, with a mention of John Jacob Astor, who is credited with trying to save the women.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan)
KEYWORDS: sea wreck family disaster death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 120, "The Titanic" (1 text)
ST GC120 (Partial)
Roud #3525
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. all the other Titanic songs (plot)
NOTES [180 words]: Perhaps best recognized by the chorus:
Many hearts surrendered to the shipwreck;
On the sea many hearts surrendered, Crying "Nearer My God to Thee."
This even though, as we've said in the notes to all the other Titanic songs, the band did not play "Nearer My God to Thee"; it played light music to prevent panic.
John Jacob Astor (1864-1912) did indeed die on the Titanic, though I don't know of any evidence that he was the prime mover in saving women and children. In fact, the only report I know of about his behavior while aboard was that, when the lifeboats were being loaded with women and children, he tried to make his way aboard the lifeboat holding his (trophy) wife. He had to be ordered back by the crew.
This is item dD41 in Laws's Appendix II. Roud lumps this with The Titanic (VI), but I don't see any common elements except the boat. For an extensive history of the Titanic, with detailed examination of the truth (or lack thereof) of quotes in the Titanic songs, see the notes to "The Titanic (XV)" ("On the tenth day of April 1912") (Titanic #15) - RBW
File: GC120

Titanic (VI), The ("Cold and Icy Sea") (Titanic #6)

DESCRIPTION: The Titanic sets out from Liverpool and sinks in the cold waters off Newfoundland. The ballad notes how both rich and poor, upper and lower classes, were lost in the disaster

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951
KEYWORDS: ship wreck disaster death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, p. 103, "The Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, TITANIC1*
Roud #3525
RECORDINGS:
Almeda Riddle, "The Titanic" (on LomaxCD1707)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. all the other Titanic songs (plot)
NOTES [81 words]: Despite this song (and other folklore), the band on the Titanic did NOT play..."
"Nearer My God to Thee" as the ship sank. Instead, they played light music to prevent panic. Roud lumps this with The Titanic (V), but I don't see any common elements except the boat. For an extensive history of the Titanic, with detailed examination of the truth (or lack thereof) of quotes in the Titanic songs, see the notes to "The Titanic (XV)" ("On the tenth day of April 1912") (Titanic #15) - RBW

File: MN2103

Titanic (VII), The ("As the Moon Rose in Glory/Gone to Rest/The Watchman") (Titanic #7)

DESCRIPTION: "As the moon rose in glory... She told her sad, sad story / Sixteen hundred had gone to rest." A watchman dreams of the Titanic's fate, but cannot get anyone to save the ship or even their families. The widows and orphans are left mourning

AUTHOR: Seth Newton Mize

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Darby & Tarlton)

KEYWORDS: ship wreck family disaster death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee 35, pp. 62-64, "The Titanic (As The Moon Rose in Glory") (1 text, 1 tune)
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, p. 105, "The Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, TITANIC3*

Roud #4779

RECORDINGS:
Carter Family, "The Titanic" (Acme 1000-B, mid-1950s)
New Lost City Ramblers, "The Titanic" (on NLCR14, NLCRCD2)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
f. all the other Titanic songs (plot)

NOTES [94 words]: Despite this song (and other folklore), the band on the Titanic did NOT play "Nearer My God to Thee" as the ship sank. Instead, they played light music to prevent panic. Characteristic of this song is the mention of plans to "raise the Titanic someday. There have been many suggestions to do this, including a movie. For discussion of this, plus an extensive history of the Titanic with detailed examination of the truth (or lack thereof) of quotes in the Titanic songs, see the notes to "The Titanic (XV)" ("On the tenth day of April 1912") (Titanic #15) - RBW

Last updated in version 2.6

File: MN2105

Titanic (VIII), The ("Fare Thee Well, Titanic, Fare Thee Well") (Titanic #8)

DESCRIPTION: "It was midnight on the sea, The band was playing 'Nearer, My God, to Thee'; Fare thee well, Titanic, fare thee well." The Titanic hits an iceberg; women and children survive; men die. Jack Johnson survives because he is refused passage

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1949

KEYWORDS: death ship wreck disaster religious Black(s)

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 77-78, (no title) (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Moses Asch and Alan Lomax, Editors, _The Leadbelly Songbook_, Oak, 1962, p. 26, "Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)
Harold Courlander, _A Treasury of Afro-American Folklore_, Crown Publishers, 1976, pp. 404-405, "Fare Thee Well, Titanic" (1 text)

Roud #11693
Titanic (X), The ("Down With the Old Canoe") (Titanic #10)

DESCRIPTION: The Titanic sets sail, but sinks. The singers then draw morals, including that the hand of Man is no match for God.

Chorus: "Sailing out to win her fame, the Titanic was her name... Many passengers and her crew went down with that old canoe"

AUTHOR: Dorsey Dixon

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (recording, Dixon Brothers)

LONG DESCRIPTION: The Titanic sets sail amid gaiety and laughter, but sinks. The singers then draw morals, including that the hand of Man is no match for God, and that one should obey the commands of Jesus.

Chorus: "Sailing out to winter pain, the Titanic was her name/When she had sailed 500 miles from shore/Many passengers and her crew went down with that old canoe/They all went down to never ride no more"

KEYWORDS: pride death ship party disaster wreck religious Jesus

HISTORICAL REFERENCES: April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Joyner-FolkSongInSouthCarolina, pp. 55-56, "Down With the Old Canoe" (1 text, 1 tune)
- ADDITIONAL: Steven Biel, _A Cultural History of the Titanic Disaster_, 1996, pp. 98-99 (in the Norton edition), "Down with the Old Canoe" (1 text)

ST RcTDWtOC (Full)

RECORDINGS:
- Dixon Brothers, "Down With the Old Canoe" (Bluebird B-7449, 1938; on Dixons01, Dixons04)

CROSS-REFERENCES: cf. all the other Titanic songs (plot)

NOTES [204 words]: This can be distinguished from the other Titanic songs by the presence of the phrase, "Down with the old canoe," and by the proportion of narrative (1 verse) to moralizing (3 verses). - PJS

In light of the song's ludicrously un-Christian attempt at theology, it should probably be noted that, at the time the Titanic sank, the Germans already had an even bigger liner under construction. The Imperator had a number of design flaws, but she never hit any icebergs, and was retired, quite unsunk, in 1938 (by which time she had become the British Berengaria).

Lyle Lofgren thinks this is a rewrite of the Cofer Brothers song "The Titanic Was Her Name." There is some similarity in the chorus, but the rewriting is substantial; I'd be inclined to regard that as just an instance of a floating verse. But there seems no doubt that Dorsey Dixon wrote the song, because it is dated 25 years after the Titanic sank, i.e. around 1937. Which is right about the time the Dixon Brothers recorded the song.

For an extensive history of the Titanic, with detailed examination of the truth (or lack thereof) of quotes in the Titanic songs, see the notes to "The Titanic (XV)" ("On the tenth day of April 1912") (Titanic #15) - RBW

Last updated in version 3.8

File: RcTDWtOC
Titanic (XI), The ("The Titanic Nobly Bore Along") (Titanic #11)

DESCRIPTION: Titanic stops at Queenstown for Irish girls and boys. An iceberg floats by but "Titanic proudly bore along unmindful of her foe." Wireless operators send an SOS but help is too late. The Carpathia saves those in lifeboats and took them to New York.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Titanic, the pride of Belfast, leaves Southampton with millionaires and poor. She stops at Queenstown for Irish girls and boys. At night an iceberg floats by but "Titanic proudly bore along unmindful of her foe." When struck, Captain Smith has wireless operators send an SOS but help arrived too late. "Women and children" first saved seven hundred. The Carpathia saves those in lifeboats and takes them to New York.

KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship wreck rescue

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.

FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (3 citations):
McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen 67, "The Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, p. 128, "The Titanic" (1 text)
Hammond-SongsOfBelfast, pp. 30-31, "The Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. all the other Titanic songs (plot)

NOTES [73 words]: McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen: "In the Irish Tradition there are at least eight distinct ballads on the subject.... [This] version is the one most favoured by Irish traditional singers." - BS

Titanic (XII), The (You Landsmen All, on You I Call) (Titanic #12)

DESCRIPTION: "The Titanic called at Queenstown ... And eight hundred emigrants From Ireland sailed away." After four days "our ship struck an iceberg." The crew tries to save the women and children. Millionaires died but we mourn for our Irish lads that drowned.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (IRClare01)
KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship wreck

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.

FOUND IN: Ireland
Roud #18475

RECORDINGS:
Jamesie McCarthy, "The Titanic" (on IRClare01)

NOTES [333 words]: The Irish grief over the passengers on the Titanic is easily understood. As with most liners of the time, the Titanic carried three classes of passengers: First class, second class, and steerage. And steerage was mostly emigrants, and many of the emigrants Irish. Steerage passengers, of course, were stuck far down in the ship. Ballard has a side view of the ship's plans on page 168, showing that many of the steerage passengers were four floors below the main deck, near the waterline, whereas the first class passengers were mostly above the main deck, with easy access to the lifeboats.

The steerage passengers, by contrast, were actually barricaded into their below-decks area -- a quarantine measure to prevent the spread of disease (Wade, p. 22). But it meant that the third class passengers had to break down, or at least have the knowledge and nerve to talk their way past, the barriers to get off the ship!

It showed in the casualties. According to Paine, 60% of the first class passengers survived (Ballard, p. 149, reports that every child in first class, save one, survived, and she died only because she wouldn't leave her mother, who wouldn't leave her husband). 42% of second class passengers survived, but only 25% of steerage (comparable to the 24% of the crew who survived).
Lord's famous A Night to Remember gives a passenger list. Pages 207-209 catalogs the third class passengers who embarked at Queenstown (Cobh). There were 114 of them, mostly with typical Irish names. Only 40 (35%) survived.

Other sources differ slightly, Barczewski, p. 9, says that 123 passengers boared at Queenstown, of whom 113 paid the six pound ten shilling third class fare. Obviously the presence or absence of one passenger doesn't change the casualty rate much.

For an extensive history of the Titanic, with detailed examination of the truth (or lack thereof) of quotes in the Titanic songs, see the notes to "The Titanic (XV)" ("On the tenth day of April 1912") (Titanic #15) - RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 2.5

Titanic (XV), The ("On the tenth day of April 1912") (Titanic #15)

DESCRIPTION: "On the tenth day of April 1912 her whistles they did sound, Her power of motion was released, her twin screws turned around." The ship gives little attention to the dangers of the sea. The ship sinks 400 miles from cape race

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)

KEYWORDS: sea ship wreck technology

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

April 14/15, 1912 - Shortly before midnight, ship's time, the Titanic strikes an iceberg and begins to sink. Only 711 survivors are found of 2224 people believed to have been aboard.

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

ADDITIONAL: Eric West, _Sing Around This One: Songs of Newfoundland & Labrador Vol. 2_, Vinland Music, 1997, pp. 46-47, "The Titanic" (1 text, 1 tune, learned by Eric West from Frank Shea)

Roud #774

RECORDINGS:

Mrs. John Powers, "The Titanic" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

NOTES [20209 words]: Roud, following the Leach web site, includes this with "The Titanic (I)" ("It Was Sad When That Great Ship Went Down") [Laws D24] (Titanic #1). Clearly, though, it is a separate song; it lacks the chorus of Laws D24, has no lyrics in common that I can see, and includes a lot of details I haven't seen elsewhere, most though not all of them accurate.

Because this is one of the less inaccurate Titanic ballads, I'm going to use it as my basis for historical notes on the wreck.

I hesitated long before deciding to include a note on the Titanic disaster; after all, even though this is a very long note, there are many much fuller accounts elsewhere, which are the basis for this entry. I've included this relatively short history to document some of the features mentioned in the Titanic songs.

In what follows, I have included references to the various Titanic songs, in curly brackets for lack of a better notation. For example, the Titanic was, according to "The Loss of the Titanic (Titanic #13)," "The beauty of the White Star Line." The goal in building the Titanic was indeed to make a very ornate ship, so where I say White Star "would make their name on comfort," this is followed by the citation (#13), meaning that this accords with "The Loss of the Titanic." Where the songs are wrong (as, e.g., in the claim that the band played "Nearer, My God to Thee"), the citation will be {contra #1, #2...}.

It might be noted that, although there seem to be more folk songs about the Titanic disaster than any twentieth century event except the Irish 1916 rebellion and its aftermath, they represent a relatively small fraction of total compositions on the subject. Ritchie, p. 205, estimates that there were "some 300 works about, or somehow associated with," the loss of the Titanic. Smithsonian, p. 36, declares that "112 different pieces of music inspired by the loss of the Titanic were copyrighted in America in 1912 alone."

The story of the Titanic, in a way, begins in 1870, when the Oceanic created the transatlantic passenger liner (Wade, p. 13) and made the White Star Line's reputation for luxury crossings (Brinnin, p. 241). You could argue for an even earlier date -- e.g. Brinnin, p. 4, begins his account with the James Madison of 1818, which was the first packet to keep a regular schedule. But the Madison was a sailing ship, and not very comfortable. Samuel Cunard and others had replaced the sailing ships with steamers in the following decades, but though Cunard ships were very safe in an era when wrecks were common on other lines (Brinnin, p. 245 notes that Cunard never lost a passenger in the entire nineteenth century!), and Fox, pp. 128-139, tells how the loss of the Arctic and Pacific doomed the rival Collins Line), Cunarders weren't particularly enjoyable to be aboard; the idea was simply to get across the Atlantic.

The Oceanic converted the trip "across the pond" from a burden to something to be enjoyed. Brinnin, p. 242, calls her "the eponymous instance of the modern ocean liner." The small White Star Line, a bankrupt company which had sailed ships to Australia, was taken over to use as a vehicle to promote this new class of ship (Fox, p. 239). It was a major change. Very long and narrow, Oceanic did not confine her passengers to the stern areas as so many earlier ships had done. Staterooms were made larger. There was steam heat. She was far from perfect; many changes had to be made after her first voyage (Brinnin, p. 243). But she had changed the whole nature of transatlantic travel.

It didn't take long for competition to become intense. Three British lines -- White Star, Inman (which was rapidly failing and would soon be taken over by American interests), and the more-established Cunard -- were joined by several German competitors and a few small fry from other countries. By the end of the nineteenth century, it was becoming almost impossible to make passenger traffic pay due to the cutthroat competition (Ramsay, p. 11). The various companies all formed alliances. The Germans had some government support. Cunard eventually turned to the government as well, offering to produce fast liners that the Royal Navy could take over as auxiliary cruisers as needed. Thus were born the Lusitania and her sister the Mauretania (Brinnin, p. 328ff., Ramsay, pp. 15-17; Paine, p. 330).

White Star had to respond, but its answer was different. Rather than turn their independence over to the British government (a deal with the devil that would in fact eventually pose great difficulties for Cunard during World War I), they were in effect taken over by J. P. Morgan (Wade, pp. 14-15; Butler-Unsink, p. 9), which already owned Inman and some smaller American lines and had a deal with the Germans (Brinnin, p. 325).

For all his deep pockets and his cartel-like control over several shipping firms, even Morgan had to field a competitive steamer line. (The other tricks were mostly a failure; the year after Morgan died in 1913, the whole mess came apart in a series of transactions that included some illegal deals; Davenport-Hines, p. 56.) So what should be White Star's answer to Cunard's "greyhounds"? The Lusitania was a fine, fast ship (capable, in ideal conditions, of sustained speeds of 26 knots), but her design was radical in many ways -- long, narrow (which made the idea of using her as a warship rather silly; she would have been a lousy gun platform), and driven by the newfangled turbines.

White Star, although historically more radical than the conservative Cunard, preferred not to be so daring in designing their answer. They didn't even rely on the more powerful turbine-driven screws (Wade, pp. 270-271) (#15 incorrectly claims she had turbines and twin screws, not three). (Ironic, given that the Ismays, managers of White Star, had taken a ride on the world's first turbine-powered ship, Turbinia, on the day of her unveiling at Victoria's Diamond Jubilee; Turbinia at the time was the world's fastest ship, by a large margin; Brinnin, pp. 307-308.) The center screw used a turbine, but the port and starboard screws used the old, less efficient reciprocating engines (Butler-Unsink, p. 16). The major innovation was using expansion joints in the superstructure to let it flex (Matsen, p. 100), but that didn't affect the hull's strength or integrity. (Although Matsen, p. 240, claims that recent research shows that the hull "was" too weak; the owners had demanded that the thickness of the steel be reduced, leading Matsen and his sources to conclude that one reason the ship sank so quickly was that she wasn't strong enough and had her spine break.)

Rather than compete on crossing time (contra #2, #15), White Star's ships would make their name on comfort (#13; cf. #16, which describes her one voyage as a "pleasure trip"). White Star's new liners -- to become the Olympic, Titanic, and Britannic -- would be about three or four knots slower than Cunard's. That speed difference allowed a huge savings in engine weight; to get that three knot advantage, Lusitania needed 68,000 horsepower engines (Ramsay, p. 21) despite a gross tonnage of only 32,000 tons; Titanic, at 46,300 tons, had according to the advertisement reprinted in Ballard, p. 169, engines developing a mere 50,000 horsepower (a figure also quoted by Paine, p. 520; Ballard, p. 220, lists her as 46,000 horsepower; Barczewski, p. 3, as 55,000. Lord-Night, p. 174, says she was registered as 50,000 hp, but could reach 55,000. It is probable that the exact figure was never known; Titanic never once went up to full speed). Unlike the Lusitania and Mauretania, which had four propellers, she had only three screws {contra #15, which lists her as having two}.

The weight saved on the engines would all go into more ship -- and more comforts for the passengers. Olympic and Titanic were, for instance, the first liners to include swimming pools (Barczewski, p. 7); they also had Turkish baths (Brinnin, p. 362). The large size meant that passengers hardly even noticed that they were at sea; the ride was very smooth (Davenport-Hines, pp. 183-184). So large were the designs that builders Harland and Wolff of Belfast (#15) had to build new slips to hold the ships -- replacing three of their old slips with just two, one for Olympic and one for Titanic (Wade, p. 16).

First class was so fancy that it was simply expected that its occupants would bring their servants; there were separate facilities for first class passengers and the servants of those passengers (Butler-Unsink, p. 54). It is interesting to note that the Olympic ships significantly increased the space devoted to first class, so that it had room for about as many first class as third class passengers (Davenport-Hines, p. 67).

Over 3000 workers were involved in the construction of each ship (Barczewski, p. 214, who notes that the Belfast shipyard employed mostly Protestants, making Olympic and Titanic toys in the battle over Home Rule and the contest over relations between Ulster and the rest of Ireland. Little wonder that it was called "The Pride of Belfast" {#11}

At least give Lord Pirrie of Harland and Wolff this much credit: When Protestant shipbuilders tried to crowd out the Catholics, Pirrie threatened to fire the lot if they didn't let the Catholics back in; Davenport-Hines, p. 62. On the other hand, he made no efforts to improve the conditions in his company housing; Davenport-Hines, p. 64. Nor did he work hard to keep the yard safe; six men were killed in building Olympic, and three in building Titanic, with hundreds more hurt; dozens were injured badly enough that they could not return to shipyard work (Matsen, p. 124-125). On the evidence, Pirrie was an equal-opportunity robber baron.

The potential degree of luxury available seems almost obscene today. Butler-Unsink, pp. 36-37, lists the standard load of food and kitchen equipment. This included, among other things, 1000 pounds of hothouse grapes (from England, in April 1912, remember; there were no hybrid fruits that could last long enough to be shipped from a southern climate) and 100 pairs of grape scissors. According to Davenport-Hines, pp. 97-98, the whole thing was designed to imitate the luxury of accommodations at John Jacob Astor's St. Regis Hotel, built in 1904 at a cost of five and a half million dollars. The list of foodstuffs on Davenport-Hines, p. 250, shows that more than 100,000 pounds of fresh food were embarked, including 75,000 pounds of meat.

The cost of the two ships was on the order of a million and a half pounds each (see that advertisement in Ballard, p. 169). And that's 1908 pounds (I somewhere saw an estimate that it would take a half a billion 1990s dollars to build a replica). The builders were allowed to go all-out -- the White Star Line and Harland and Wolff had significant mutual ownership (Fox, p. 239; Davenport-Hines, p. 53 and Matsen, p. 72, says that Lord Pirrie, who controlled Harland and Wolff, was the #2 owner of White Star shares), so they didn't really contract for a price and specifications; rather, Harland and Wolff -- which did much of the design work as well as the building -- was paid their costs plus 4% (Fox, p. 240). The only real White Star input in the design was apparently to call for thinner steel in the hull in order to save money on coal (Matsen, p. 104).

It was a cozy relationship for the shipbuilders. Lord Pirrie was so secretive that his company, although it had other directors, was in effect a one man fief; his subordinates could not even manage the business after his death (Davenport-Hines, p. 39); he decided what he wanted, and that was what White Star got. Pirrie was also the one who induced Bruce Ismay to join the Morgan conglomerate (Matsen, p. 74).

Pirrie's self-absorption seems to have been almost total; he wanted a peerage, and wanted it so badly that he switched his financial support from Unionists to Liberals to another to get it -- and then betrayed the Liberals over Home Rule for Ireland (Davenport-Hines, pp. 40-41). He lived so extravagantly that he was thought to be one of the richest men in Britain -- but when he died, it was found that his assets were so mismanaged that he in fact was in debt by hundreds of thousands of pounds (Davenport-Hines, p. 44). "This" was the man who decided how the Olympic class of ships was to be built....

The Titanic was 882 feet long, her beam was 92 feet, and it was 60.5 feet from the waterline to the boat deck (she was eight decks tall), with the funnels rising another 115 feet (cf. Paine, p. 520, and the deck plans in Wade, pp. 174-183). Lord-Night, p. 174, puts this in down-to-earth terms: "11 stories high and four city blocks long." (Although those would be four very short city blocks -- 1/24 of a mile long. A standard American city block is 1/16 mile, and Titanic was as long as 2.67 of those, or just about exactly 1/6 of a mile.) Ballard, p. 219, reveals that Olympic and Titanic each were roughly two years on the slips before launching, and needed another year after that to complete.

Although there were four funnels, only three were real, because the ship had only three engines. The fourth funnel was added because Pirrie and Ismay didn't want passengers to think the ships were in some way inferior to the four-funnelled Lusitania and Mauretania (Matsen, p. 94). So much for efficient design.... And the hull of the Olympic, the very first time she came up to speed, "panted" -- that is, vibrated in and out (Matsen, p. 119). Pirrie claimed that was normal (Matsen, p. 123), but it was perhaps an omen of what was to come. Olympic's hull also suffered extensive hull cracking (Matsen, pp. 131-132) -- evidence, perhaps, that the steel was not really up to the stress it was under. Titanic was strengthened in the area of the cracks, but was that really the only defective spot?

(Matsen, p. 261, says that when Britannic was built, significant changes were made to the design to cover up defects that caused the Titanic to sink faster, but hid the changes because Pirrie and Ismay didn't dare admit the poor design: "A public discussion of the weaknesses in their Ship of Dreams would have ruined them. They'd had no choice but to keep them secret." But this is all based on some allegedly-concealed modifications to the design. It's a lot of conspiracy for not much evidence.)

Was that an omen? Perhaps never in history has a class of ships been so ill-fated. Olympic was the lucky one; she stayed afloat until she was taken out of service in 1935 (though she had to be heavily rebuilt after the Titanic wreck, so that she became much harder to sink; Wade, p. 328). But in her two dozen years of service she had had "four" collisions with other ships: with the tug O. L. Hallenbeck and with the H.M.S. Hawke in 1911 (Lord-Lives, pp. 29-31; Ritchie, p. 97, points out that she was being maneuvered by a harbor pilot at the time, but in the legal cases that followed, the court blamed White Star, according to Matsen, p. 129; the conclusion was that Olympic literally sucked the smaller ship into a crash), with the Fort St. George in 1924 (Paine, p. 376), and with the Nantucket Lightship in 1934 (Paine, p. 349). When Cunard and White Star merged in 1934, Cunard promptly got rid of Olympic (Paine, p. 376; Wade, p. 329).

The Britannic never sailed as a liner; she was not finished at the start of World War I, and was converted to a hospital ship. In that capacity, she hit a mine in 1916 and sank in less than an hour (Paine, p. 81) -- another example of the inadequate internal subdivisions of the design.

As for the Titanic -- well, we're getting to that.

The Olympic was finished first, starting her maiden voyage to New York on May 31, 1911 (Wade, p. 17). The ship seemed to work well, but the designers learned a few things (mostly cosmetic) which caused the Titanic to be slightly modified, primarily to add more passenger accommodations (Wade, pp. 18-19); in the process, her displacement increased by about a thousand tons. Titanic could still be considered Olympic's sister, but she was heavier -- the largest ship in the world at the time (#15) -- and somewhat more luxurious.

The Titanic would set out on her maiden voyage on April 10, 1912 (#9, #15). At noon, she left Southampton (#5, #9, #11, #13, #15, contra #6, which says she sailed from Liverpool, but Liverpool had been largely abandoned by the liners in the previous two decades because of its problematic tidal characteristics; Davenport-Hines, p. 10). She reached Cherbourg that evening, left France just a couple of hours later, arrived at Queenstown (#11, #12) around noon the next day, and set out for New York (#6) around 2:00 p.m. on April 11 (Lord-Night, p. 175).

It was not an auspicious start, really; there had been coal strike (Wade, p. 23; Barczewski, p. 263, notes that the strike ended April 6, but of course coal was only just starting to go back "into the pipeline"; it hadn't reached Southampton yet), causing White Star to requisition coal from other vessels, cancel their voyages, and transfer the passengers to Titanic. In the process, they started a small coal fire that never was entirely put out; the coal smoked the entire time of the voyage (Butler-Unsink, p. 37). Meaning that, unknown to the passengers, there was always a slight danger of a coal dust explosion (which is the most likely explanation for why the Lusitania sank three years later).

Borrowing coal and shifting passengers was not unreasonable. Sailing the largest ship in the world with a raw crew was more of a problem. Titanic would be going on her maiden voyage with a crew that did not know the ship; at this time, crews were mostly hired on a by-the-voyage basis (Barczewski, p. 264; cf. Wade, p. 24) -- and, on a vessel her size, they wouldn't be able to learn their way around in a day or two! Even second officer Lightoller, a veteran seaman with much experience on White Star ships, said it took him two weeks to learn his way around (Barczewski, p.
Many of the crew didn't have that much time, and though a lot of them had done at least one voyage on the Olympic (Barczewski, p. 266), most didn't have his background to help them learn their way.

Even if you ignore their unfamiliarity with the ship, it turns out that only 83 of the crew were actual sailors, used to dealing with a ship at sea (Wade, p. 210). The rest were stewards and other specialists -- important for the passengers, but they couldn't really run the ship. The engine crew seems to have been particularly green; according to Davenport-Hines, p. 252, "Few of the engine crew of firemen, greasers, and trimmers who had delivered the ship from Belfast signed on again for the maiden voyage" -- presumably because of poor conditions in the engineering spaces.

Nor had Titanic completed anything like proper sea trials -- for instance, she had never once worked up to full speed, and done very little emergency maneuvering (Wade, p. 184). In a great irony, it is reported that, it was only as she arrived in the vicinity of the ice that she worked her way up to the fastest speed she had ever attained (Wade, p. 28). Apparently she never tested her turning radius at full speed (Lord-Lives, p. 56), and she only did one "emergency stop"; it took her three and a quarter minutes, and 3000 feet, to halt from a speed of 18 knots (Lord-Lives, p. 33) -- a speed less than her cruising speed on her voyage across the Atlantic.

And there had never been a true boat drill conducted. There had been one partial demonstration, inadequate in every regard (Wade, p. 211). Normally drills were conducted on Sunday, but on Titanic’s maiden voyage, Captain Smith cancelled it to hold a religious service (Barczewski, p. 10). The passengers didn't know what to do should they need to get to the boats; worse, few of the crew knew how to lower them! (Lord-Lives, pp. 88). So, when the crisis came, the same few crewmen had to do all the work, meaning that the boats could not all be lowered at once (Lord-Lives, pp. 95-96; cf. {#9}, which says they lowered the lifeboats "one by one." It was actually one by one on each side, but close enough).

When the disaster struck, the handful of crewmen doing the lowering had to work so hard that, even on that cold night, they ended up sweating heavily; Officer Lightoller would take off his coat before the last boats were lowered, leaving him in dripping-wet pajamas (Lord-Night, p. 79).

Finally, the captain was not someone you'd be likely to pick to deal with an emergency situation. E. J. Smith had much experience, starting as a boy on a sailing passenger ship and quickly working his way up to mate and then captain (Barczewski, p. 162). Not satisfied with that, he transferred to the passenger liners and working his way up to command those as well. He had commanded over a dozen different liners (Lord-Lives, p. 28) when he was promoted to the pinnacle of the White Star line, the Olympic (Barczewski, p. 163). He was so well-liked that White Star made it a policy for him to break in new vessels (Barczewski, p. 165). On paper, he was the perfect captain for Titanic {#15}; his time on Titanic’s sister Olympic meant that he was one of the handful who had some real idea how the new ship worked.

But Smith's resume sounded better than it was. He was a good manager and diplomat -- but he had never had to deal with real problems. In an interview, he once declared, "When anyone asks how I can best describe my experience in nearly forty years at sea, I merely say, uneventful. Of course there have been winter gales, and storms and fogs and the like, but in all my experience I have never been in any accident of any sort worth speaking about" (quoted in Barczewski, p. 185; Butler-Unsink, p. 48; Lord-Lives, p. 29; Wade, p. 38. Eaton/Haas, however, note on p. 77 that his command the Germanic had capsized in New York harbor in 1899. Plus there was the Hawke collision, described below).

"Smith also had a reputation for high-speed, flamboyant arrivals and departures in the tight confines of harbors. He grounded Coptic in Rio de Janeiro in 1891, ran Republic aground off Sandy Hook in 1899, and put Adriatic on a soundbar in Ambrose Channel, near New York, in 1909" (Matsen, p. 137). It's arguably not a bad safety record, but it isn't perfect, either.

Describing the Hawke accident, Smith said, "Anyhow, Olympic is unsinkable, and Titanic will be the same when she is put in commission. Either vessel could be cut in halves and each section would remain afloat" (Matsen, p. 129). This is probably true (although it wouldn't be much comfort to those in the sliced-open sections), but hardly relevant, because what ship would have a sharp enough bow to slice Titanic in two? It was a side-on collision that was the danger.

He didn't have a mind set suited to surprises. In 1906, aboard the Adriatic -- a ship no one ever claimed was unsinkable -- he said, "I cannot imagine any condition which would cause a ship to founder" (Lord-Lives, p. 18; Tibballs, p. 227, gives a Boston Post story with the quote). By contrast, his second officer on the Titanic, Charles Lightoller, had already been through two shipwrecks! (Butler-Other, p. 58). Maybe Smith knew better, and was trying to encourage passengers -- but such statements surely encourage complacency.

He also seems to have been tired; he told a reporter before the Titanic sailed that he was ready to leave the sea (supposedly he even told that old story about wanting to carry an oar until he came to a place where no one knew what it was, and settle there -- Matsen, p. 135 -- although I strongly suspect this was journalistic exaggeration).

Even before the Titanic set sail, it was known that there were icebergs in the North Atlantic -- though {contra #11} she had not seen any herself. A warm year had caused many to break loose from the polar cap; another liner, the Niagara, in fact collided with one at about the time Titanic set out (Wade, p. 31), and at least two sailing ships, the Erna and the Maggie, seem to have been destroyed by the ice (Davenport-Hines, p. 3). What's more, although the Titanic's route was south of the normal extent of the ice pack in winter, it was in the northern part of the region where the charts declared icebergs to be seen regularly in spring (Mersey, p. 24).

No one in authority aboard Titanic seemed worried. Though several ships had been damaged by icebergs in recent years, all had survived (Wade, p. 32). And Titanic was much stronger than most of those ships. She was divided into 16 sections, designed to be watertight, with a central control on the bridge that could, in theory, instantly isolate the sections. She was designed to stay afloat if any two of the sections flooded, or if the front four (which were of course narrower) were breached (Ballard, p. 22).

This was not really such good protection as was claimed. Lord-Lives, pp. 20-22, discusses how early liners (notably the Great Eastern of 1858) had been designed to be unsinkable. Great Eastern had a true double hull (Titanic had a double bottom but not a full double hull; Barczewski, p. 4), a true set of partitions (15 bulkheads from front to back, as on Titanic, but with subdivisions within each cell, as on a battleship, so she was a true honeycomb), and her divisions reached all the way up to the upper deck. Water in one section simply could not work its way into another. But this had proved very inconvenient -- a steward or passenger in one section had to go all the way to the upper deck to move to another. Gradually, the partitions dividing port and starboard sides went out of ship designs, the bulkheads were lowered so that the upper decks were not partitioned, and doors were built into the bulkheads on the lower levels. And the decks of the Titanic were not watertight -- that is, if a particular deck filled with water, there was nothing at all to keep the water from rising up and starting to flood the next deck (Mersey, p. 8).

Mersey, p. 8, says that the various bulkheads on the Titanic reached either to the D deck (20 feet above the waterline) or the E deck (11 feet above the waterline) The diagram in Ballard (p. 22) purports to shows the bulkheads (compare p. 9 of Mersey). The six toward the stern reach two or three decks above the bulkhead -- an adequate distance, though higher would have been better. But those amidships and at the bow -- the ones most likely to suffer damage! -- are much lower; most reach only one deck above the waterline, and F and G are barely higher than the water (Lord-Lives, p. 22, says they rose only 10 feet above the waterline). If the ship went down by the nose -- as Titanic did -- the water could overtop the barriers, flooding at least eight to ten compartments. And the ship of course could not (and did not) survive "that". What's more, only A, B, and P were entirely free of doors (Mersey, p. 9).

Finally, the Titanic's watertight doors were theoretically controlled from the bridge, and also had floats so they could automatically close if they detected water (Mersey, p. 9). In fact, some had to be closed manually, so making the ship watertight was "not" an instantaneous process.

Given the way the ship was built, Mersey, p. 35, suggests that the existence of the watertight bulkheads actually shortened the life of the ship, because it means that all the flooding was in the front of the ship, causing her to go down by the bow and overtop the bulkheads. Had the water been free to go throughout the ship, she still would have sunk -- but on a more even keel and somewhat later (which, although he does not say so, would likely have saved lives). Lord-Lives, p. 23, comments acridly that Titanic was treated as unsinkable (#1, #2) not because she was properly built but because she looked too big to sink. "The appearance of safety was mistaken for safety itself."

Lynch/Marschall, p. 194, makes the interesting point that Titanic's near-sister Britannic sank when she hit a mine. That means that the damage was confined to a small area of the hull -- yet she sank anyway, and much faster than the Titanic. There really does seem to have been a problem with the partitioning in the Olympic class ships.

The Titanic had a near-disaster at the very beginning of her life; as the Olympic had sucked the Hawke into a collision, Titanic produced so much pull that she snapped the ropes of the New York. But, in this case, a collision was averted -- just barely (Lord-Lives, p. 26; Barczewski, p. 4; Tibballs, pp, 31-38).

One personal observation, based on looking at very many photos of the Titanic in the process of writing this article: It really doesn't appear to have been all it was cracked up to be. It was opulent, yes, in a heavy-handed Edwardian sort of way. But it didn't really appear all that well-built. There is a look to good construction, and it doesn't have it. Titanic had neither the hand-crafted strength of pre-nineteenth century construction, nor the technological veneer of the second half of the Titanic's so-advanced anchors, forged by modern metallurgy -- but being hauled to the ship by horses.

(My opinion about the construction of these ships seems to be borne out by the stories of the leading liners of the time. Very many of the new ships had design problems. The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse of 1897 had "lubberly propensities," according to Brinnin, p. 317, which caused her to be nicknamed "Rolling Billy." Cunard's flagship of the period, Lusitania, had had to be refitted due to excessive vibrations; see the notes to "The Lusitania." Titanic's record as the largest ship in the world would not last long; 14 months later, Germany's Hamburg-Amerika line would bring out the Imperator; Barczewski, p. 65. She was roughly 6000 tons heavier than Titanic, but top-heavy enough that she needed her funnels shortened and some of her fixtures replaced, plus they had to add 2000 tons of extra ballast; she also lost her figurehead due to her extreme rolling on just her third voyage; Brinnin, p. 388. After the war, Cunard took her over as Berengaria, but overhauled her again in 1921, and she suffered a series of fires in the late Thirties; Paine, p. 60. Luxurious the monster liners were, but they were perhaps too big for the designers of a pre-computer age.)

Interestingly, Titanic was nowhere near full on her maiden voyage. (Tibballs, xi, thinks this is because of the coal strike, which caused many people to postpone plans since they weren't sure the ship would sail, but most sources seem to think the real reason was that people didn't want to risk taking a new ship which hand't had a shakedown voyage.)

There were three classes of passengers: first class, which was incredibly luxurious; second class, which was also very comfortable (the gap between first class and second was much smaller than that between second and third; Davenport-Hines, p. 195) but where people were not expected to have servants and were not given complete freedom of the boat; and third class (steerage) -- down at the bottom of the ship, with relatively cramped spaces and no special restaurants. Steerage offered safe, clean accommodations and good food, but no special amenities and not much space. It was implicitly understood that first class was for the wealthy, second for the middle class, and third for the poor.

According to Wade, pp. 25-26, Titanic left Southampton on April 10, 1912 with only 46% of first class berth occupied, 40% of second class, and 70% of steerage space booked. (That's 337 first class passengers, 271 second class, and 712 in third class; cf. Barczewski, p. 51. Considering that Titanic was taking passengers from several liners, the totals are amazingly low. (Not that there was any shortage of money among them; #13 is right that there were "wealthy New York millionaires." Davenport-Hines estimates, p. 162, that the 337 first class passengers were worth $500 million. In 1912 dollars. First class passengers may not have been many, but they were certainly well-off!!)

She stopped at Queenstown the next day to take on a few more. That gives her 1320 passengers plus whatever the total was from Ireland -- comfortably more than the 1200 passengers mentioned in #13.

One song (#12) refers to 800 emigrants sailing from Ireland. This presumably refers to the total third class passengers; in all, only about 125 passengers boarded at Queenstown (now Cobh, or the Cove of Cork), of which number 113 (Barczewski, pp. 9, 281) or 114 (Lord-Night, pp. 207-209) were third class, and hence presumably emigrants. (It will tell you something about the size of Titanic that she could not even dock at Queenstown's pier; she had to anchor offshore and have passengers and cargo ferried aboard; Barczewski, p. 281).

Davenport-Hines, p. 225, gives an estimate that third class contained 118 British passengers, 113 Irish, 104 Swedes, 79 Lebanese, 55 Finns, 43 Americans, 33 Bulgarians, 25 Norwegians, 22 Belgians, 12 Armenians, 8 Chinese, 7 Danes, 5 Frenchmen, 4 Italians, 4 Greeks, 4 Germans, 4 Swiss, 3 Portuguese, 44 from the Habsburg Empire (mostly Slavs, with about half of them Croats), and 18 Russian subjects. Thus almost all of Europe, and some places beyond, were represented. For the first four days of the voyage, everything of course went well; the ship maintained a good speed, sailed smoothly, and everyone apparently had a fine time. Then came the "Night to Remember."

Complete details of what happened on the night of April 14-15 probably cannot be known, because most of the key figures were lost. Captain Smith went down with his ship, as did his chief officer (second in command) Henry Wilde, who was almost invisible in the saga (except that Lightoller, who had reason to resent him, accused him of slowing the evacuation; Lynch/Marschall, p. 109). Ironically, Captain Smith had requested Wilde be transferred from the Olympic so he could have a second who knew the ship; Butler-Unsink, p. 44; Lynch/Marschall, p. 76. Fat lot of good it did; as Butler-Unsink, p. 90, comments, Wilde "demonstrat[ed] very little initiative of his own, seemingly content to pass on Captain Smith's [incomplete] instructions, but never expanding them or clarifying them... and rarely issuing any orders of his own."

Also lost was first officer William M. Murdoch, who was the officer in command on the bridge when... the ship hit the iceberg and who also had charge of lowering the boats on one side (like Smith, he an officer brought over from the Olympic; Barczewski, p. 189. Sort of makes you wonder who was running the Olympic after they took all her officers). Chief Engineer Joseph Bell and almost all of the engineering crew, who kept several boilers running to maintain electricity for the lights and pumps (Ballard, p. 25; Butler-Unsink, p. 109), were lost as well.

Many witnesses pay well-deserved testimony to the bravery of the crew in the emergency which followed. (There were four officers senior enough to stand watches, Smith, Wilde, Murdoch, and second officer Charles H. Lightoller; Butler-Unsink, p. 53. Of these, only Lightoller survived, and he did not go off in a boat; he was washed away from the wreck as she went down and was able to make his way to an overturned "collapsible" lifeboat; as {#13} says, the crew stayed with the ship and sent the passengers off. Their problem lay not in courage but in intelligence.

Instead of information from her senior officers about what went wrong, what we have is the testimony of junior officers (including second officer Lightoller, who however was in his cabin at the time of the collision, and fourth officer Joseph G. Boxhall, responsible for plotting of icebergs as the warnings came in and for fixing the ship's position when she hit the iceberg). We also have accounts from the junior wireless operator, of some of the lookouts, and of course numerous passengers, none of whom, however, had any part in the ship's decision-making. Plus we have the information derived from Ballard's exploration of the sunken hull (which was not very helpful, however, since the part of the starboard bow which was damaged seems to be almost entirely buried in the mud; Ballard, p. 196).

The Titanic did not go to its fate unwarned. One crucial safety feature she had was a wireless, and two wireless operators, allowing one to be on duty at all times. (This wasn't just for safety; many of the first class passengers were sending messages all over the place. Barczewski, p. 11, notes that this was how the Marconi company earned its money; they didn't get paid for talk between ships.) Just on April 14, many ice warnings had come through -- one at 9:00 a.m. from the Caronia, one at 11:40 from the Noordam, two almost simultaneously around 1:45 from Amerika and from White Star's own Baltic, one from the Californian at 7:30, and one at 9:40 from Mesaba -- this one for the very region in which the Titanic was already sailing (Ballard, pp. 13-20; Lord-Lives, pp. 48-49).

And, finally, one more from the Californian, which was almost next door and had been stopped by ice.

How many of these warnings were actually read by the senior officers is not clear. Ballard claims that some never reached the top officers. Understand that wireless operators were not a proper part of the ship's crew. The shipping lines hired them from the Marconi company or one of its competitors. (This was common; many of the "staff" on the Titanic were in fact employees of other companies. The restaurant staff, for example, worked for organizations such as Gatti which had bought concessions on the Titanic -- Lord-Night, p. 68.)

When one of Titanic's radiomen received an ice warning, he could do little except hand it to an officer, who might pay attention or might just slip it in his pocket. To add to the problems, the apparatus had broken down on April 14 -- it was unusually powerful for the time (1500 watts -- Butler-Unsink, p. 62), but probably cantankerous as a result. Senior operator Jack Phillips had repaired it (radiomen at the time had intense training in electronics and such, and Phillips, though only 25, was one of the best; Butler-Unsink, p. 61), but was far behind on commercial traffic and had at times brushed off messages from other ships in order to get it out (Wade, pp. 143-144, 254) -- the more so since that final and most important ice warning, from the Californian, had not been sent as a priority message (Wade, p. 255). Plus, as Lord-Lives, pp. 51-52, points out, the radiomen were not navigators; they really had no idea which messages were most important.

So we don't know how much the crew knew about ice conditions. What is clear is that Captain Smith did not adjust her course significantly in response to the warnings, and the ship did not slow down.

Based on the reports from the Californian on the day of April 14, and from the Carpathia and the Mount Temple the following day, it appears that there was an almost-solid ice barrier across the Titanic's path. There would have been almost no way through without encountering ice (cf. Lord-Lives, p. 130; Lord-Night, p. 147, and the diagrams in Ballard, pp. 198-200). Under the circumstances, the decision to proceed full speed ahead was very dangerous.

The ship had no hope of setting a record {contra #7}; Fox, p. 413, declares that "the Titanic did not charge through that iceberg field with any hope of establishing a new record; she only wished to prove herself not too much slower than the Mauretania." But many captains, as a matter of pride, hated to slow down (Davenport-Hines, p. 85), and it is possible that Captain Smith was pressured to try to make the first crossing faster than the Olympic had made hers the year before (Butler-Unsink, p. 249; on p. 59, he speculates that Smith did this under pressure from White Star boss J. Bruce Ismay, who was aboard. Eaton/Haas, p. 9, however, argue that this is unlikely; if they arrived that early, they couldn't enter the harbor! And the coal supply was limited).

The fact that a record crossing was impossible might not have stopped Ismay from wanting to try, though; Fox, p. 393, calls Ismay, the son of White Star founder Thomas Ismay, a "doofus," and says that the Morgan takeover of White Star was partly maneuvered by other shareholders to keep Bruce Ismay from gaining too much control of the line. A contemporary called Ismay "a calamity; possibly not quite sane"; Fox, p. 395.

Whatever Ismay wanted, though, he was not the man in charge. If there is a fault, it's Captain Smith's for treating the ice messages utterly cavalierly. (According to Barczewski, p. 190, junior officers did not even have authority to reduce the ship's speed, though she cites no source for this statement.) The warnings needed to be studied; it was only when the messages were combined that they showed a wide band of ice all across the ship's path (Lord-Lives, p. 53). The officers did worry about the cooling of the air and sea -- but, apparently, their chief concern was that it might freeze the fresh water supply! (Ballard, p. 19; Butler-Unsink, p. 63; Lynch/Marschall, p. 77).

Captain Smith, in fact, was asleep at the time of the collision {#3}; he was content to let junior officers take him through the ice zone, though he did tell them to call him in the event of doubtful conditions (Ballard, p. 19). He was, after all, a fairly old man by the standards of the time -- 59, and planning to retire after Titanic made her maiden voyage (Lord-Lives, p. 32; Lord-Night, p. 27, says that he might not even have made this trip, except that he made a habit of captaining ships on their maiden voyages. It says something about how much the company respected him -- and about how fortunate he had been in avoiding accidents.

The claim of {X} that "Captain Smith... must have been a-drinking" is, however, quite certainly wrong. White Star regulations forbid it (Lynch/Marschall, p. 77), and even if he were fool enough to risk his pension on his very last voyage (which he was not), he was with a party that would have spotted it had he touched liquor.

Conditions for spotting icebergs were horrible. (Lynch/Marschall, p. 79, has the interesting note that a lookout on an earlier shift had "smelled" ice -- not as strange as it sounds, since most icebergs calved off glaciers carrying soils and sometimes lichens; the wet earth would not smell like salt water. But though that lookout smelled ice, he never saw any.) It was, of course, dark, and there was no moon (Lord-Lives, p. 47) {#16}. And observers agree that the sea was very calm, with hardly any waves at all -- and one of the best ways to spot an iceberg was to see the waves lapping at it. Easton/Haas, p. 19, states as a fact (though this cannot be known) that the iceberg had recently flipped over, making the upper surface dark and harder to see. To top it all off, the lookouts in the crow's nest did not have any binoculars (Wade, pp. 169-170; Butler-Unsink, p. 44, explains how they came to be missing).

The British inquiry would conclude that binoculars are no help in spotting icebergs (Lord-Lives, pp. 59-60) -- which is sort of true, but only sort of. Yes, as any birdwatcher can tell you, it's almost always easier to spot things with bare eyes. But shifting between eyes and binoculars keeps you alert, and using the binoculars sometimes causes you to see things you wouldn't otherwise see. It is now thought the solution to the Binoculars Problem is known: The key to the locker containing the optics was in the hands of an officer who was on the Titanic from Belfast to Southampton, but was bumped in the latter city to make room for the completely ineffectual Chief Officer Wilde (the man dropped was David Blair, who was second officer until Wilde came aboard; he lost his post and Lightoller was demoted to second officer; Eaton/Haas, p. 72. According to Davenport-Hines, p. 248, Wilde was brought over because the Olympic couldn't sail due to the coal strike). The bumped officer accidentally took the key to the locker with him, so the binoculars were left locked up. The key was auctioned off in 2007.

(Lord-Lives, p. 129, makes the interesting note that, when the Carpathia was steaming toward the Titanic, she dodged half a dozen bergs -- and all of them were spotted from the bridge, not the crow's nest. Apparently, on that dark and calm night, the lookouts aloft were at a severe handicap. It's not clear whether this is due to their angle or, perhaps, just the weather -- on a ship making 20+ knots, or even 17 as the Carpathia was doing, looking straight ahead into the wind of the ship's passage would have been very painful on that cold night.)

Very little is known about the actual iceberg. No other ship saw it with certainty (Butler-Unsink, in an illustration facing page 149, and Lynch/Marschall, pp. 92-93, have a photo of a berg taken by the Prinz Adelbert that may have been it, but the only evidence was some red that might have been paint, which is hardly proof). Even Titanic saw it for only minutes. But the statement {#13} that it was a growler (small berg) seems to have been false, since it was big enough for chunks of ice to fall onto Titanic's boat deck, more than sixty feet above the water. According to Ballard, p. 21, most witnesses stated that the berg reached only to about boat deck level. That's still pretty big. The testimony of Frederick Fleet, who had been on lookout that night, was perhaps not as helpful as it might have been; when called before an investigating committee, he was nervous, his Cockney talk almost unintelligible, and at one point he actually said, "I ain't got no judgment" in response to a question about distances. (He would eventually commit suicide in 1965, though probably not over the Titanic; Tibballs, p. 516.) But he did say that he spotted the iceberg around 11:40 on the night of April 14 (Wade, pp. 166-167) (#5; contra #6, which gives the date as April 17, and Lomax's #3, which says April 13; #15 has the right date, but gives the time as an hour before the dawn).

(Incidentally, Fleet wasn't the only person aboard to eventually kill himself; so did surviving passenger Jack Thayer, in 1945; Butler-Unsink, p. 231. And wireless operator Harold Bride retired from his job in 1913 and literally vanished; Butler-Unsink, p. 234, says that he assumed a new identity and no one knew where he went until decades after his death in 1956.)

Fleet called the bridge the moment he spotted the berg off the starboard bow. There was little time to react. What we know of the events comes mostly from helmsman Robert Hitchens -- not the most reliable witness; he ended up in command of Molly Brown's lifeboat, and his record in that job was of petty tyranny, lies, and panic; Lynch/Marschall, pp. 152-154, 161-163; in the end, White Star found him a job in South Africa, allegedly to silence him; Lynch/Marschall, p. 223)

According to Hitchens, First Officer Murdoch ordered the engines stopped and the ship turned to port. It was too late; moments later (Lord-Lives, p. 59, says 37 seconds later), the iceberg hit the Titanic on the starboard side (Wade, pp. 171-172; Ballard, pp. 20-21). A post-mortem found that Murdoch's actions, while they seemed the natural thing to do, in fact were unwise -- better a head-on collision, which would have destroyed the first few compartments but left the rest intact, than a glancing blow which opened many (Wade, pp. 182-183). But many ships have hit icebergs and survived. Indeed, there hadn't been a major disaster on a passenger ship since the Olympic wreck of 1873 (Butler-Unsink, p. 73; for background on that, see "The Loss of the Atlantic (I)"). Why did Titanic go down?

It is widely stated that the iceberg opened her front five (or even six) compartments. This has not, to my knowledge, ever been proved; all took on water, but it's not clear that anyone saw the leaks in all the compartments. What is certain is that it opened the fourth and fifth compartment, and at least two compartments before that. As the water rose, it went over those low bulkheads, and finally overcame the ship's buoyancy (Lord-Lives, p. 64).

In a way, it was lucky the ship stayed afloat as long as it did. The fifth compartment contained some of the boilers, which were of course running when water started coming in. Stokers had to work like mad in the rising waters to shut down the boilers and keep them from exploding (Lord-Night, pp. 19-21; Barczewski, p. 18).

Ballard's findings strongly support the hypothesis that the ship sank because the bulkheads between the allegedly-watertight sections were overtopped. The most notable finding was that Titanic snapped in two on her way down (diagrams in Ballard, pp. 204-205). The stern still had enough buoyancy to float when the bow wanted to sink, and the strain was too much for the ship's structure. The conclusion at the time, based on what testimony was available from belowdecks and the rate the ship filled, was that the iceberg had opened a gash about 250 feet long and less than an inch high on average (Lord-Lives, p. 64).

A modern guess is that the gash itself was not so big as was thought at the time, but that the impact caused the cold steel (which would be brittle) to pop rivets and start to weep water. This is supported by the fact that recovered hull samples have a high sulfur content, which would make the steel brittle and fracture-prone (Eaton/Haas, pp. 156-157, though they try to argue away the finding -- unsuccessfully, it seems to me). It wasn't a hole; it was a slow leak -- but a very large slow leak, or rather, a very large number of them (Ballard, pp. 196-197). It is also possible that the collision damaged the watertight bulkheads, so that compartments which were still watertight with respect to the ocean were not tight relative to the interior of the ship and could take in water from the compartments next to them; there was evidence of this in boiler room four (Lord-Lives, p. 65).

She picked a bad place to get hit, too. (#6) says she was off Newfoundland, (#4) claims the ship was only 90 (so McNeil's version) or 98 miles from shore (Randolph's version), but the 500 mile estimate in (#10, #16) is much closer; Titanic's broadcast distress call stated her position as 41 degrees 46 minutes north, 50 degrees 14 minutes west (Ballard, p. 22). This was Boxhall's dead reckoning fix (Lynch/Marschall, p. 108), but this may have involved as many as three errors: Boxhall may have assumed a higher speed than the ship actually managed (Butler-Other, p. 62, notes that her screws used a different pitch from Olympic's, on which Boxhall probably based his speed estimate); ignoring the local current (Eaton/Haas, p. 20); and failed to correct the chronometer for distance covered (Butler-Unsink, p. 242). Ballard, p. 199, moves the ship some 13.5 miles east southeast of her reported position.

But the error in the estimate hardly matters in reckoning her distance from land; in round numbers, she was 400 miles from the closest land at Cape Race (#13 -- which is from Newfoundland -- says she was heading for Cape Race, which is wrong, but she was communicating with Cape Race at the end; #15 accurately puts her 400 miles from Cape Race but gives the wrong distance to Boston), 450 miles from St. John's (the nearest significant port), 800 miles from Halifax (the closest port truly suitable for large ships), and 1200 from her destination in New York. She was beyond the continental shelf, even though the shelf (the Grand Banks) extends unusually far out to sea in this area.

It would be some time before it was determined that the ship was in danger. The impact felt slight. Frederick Fleet, the man who spotted the berg, initially thought the ship had merely had a "narrow shave" (Wade, p. 173). (Hence, perhaps, the report in some versions of (#1) that the ship "began to reel and rock" at 1:00 on Monday, which would have been April 15. The impact was on Sunday, April 14, but evacuation began the next day. The April 15 date is also found in (#2).)

There was no single source which reported the damage {contra #2, which credits "Bill" with reporting the problem}, although there is some uncertainty as to just who said what. Fourth Officer Boxhall was sent on an inspection tour (Butler-U sunk, p. 70), which revealed some water coming in. Carpenter Jim Hutchinson may have reported significant water below (Barczewski, p. 16, though Tibballs, p. 496, lists Hutchinson as a joiner, and Tibballs, p. 51, says that the carpenter, unnamed, who was sent to sound the ship never reported; Butler-U sunk, p. 70, and Lynch/Marschall, pp. 91-92, say that Hutchinson was sent to sound the ship, and came back reporting water below). A postal clerk probably reported at about the same time.

Soon the instruments showed a significant list. Butler-U sunk, p. 71, cites the testimony of Officer Boxhall, who reports that the commutator listed the ship as listing five degrees to the right and down two degrees at the head. This appears to have been what convinced Captain Smith that the ship was in trouble; Boxhall claims he muttered "Oh, my God" upon seeing that value.

The casualties might have been greater had not Thomas Andrews (1873-1912), the managing director of the shipyard that built Titanic, been aboard (he wanted to inspect her performance; Barczewski, p. 147). Captain Smith called on him to inspect the damage and estimate the situation (Butler-U sunk, p. 71). Andrews -- who seems to have been both a good people person and a highly competent engineer -- quickly realized the ship was doomed (Barczewski, p. 148; Butler-U sunk, pp. 71-72; Lord-Night, pp. 22-23, 26).

Smith, to his credit, accepted Andrews's estimate and started evacuation procedures, himself going to give instructions to the wireless crews (Lord-Night, p. 27). Andrews helped with the evacuation as best he could (Lynch/Marschall, p. 99), then was said to have gone to the first class smoking room; he reportedly was not wearing a lifebelt, and apparently had no intention of trying to save himself; his body was never found (Barczewski, p. 149).

But it is clear that there had been absolutely no planning for an evacuation. Passengers apparently weren't even told to get their lifejackets and go on deck; many of them went to the purser to reclaim their valuables, as if they were threatened with a stock market drop rather than a sinking ship (Lynch/Marschall, p. 99).

According to Wade, p. 144, the first wireless distress call went out 35 minutes after the collision -- just a few minutes too late; the wireless operator on the nearby Californian had gone to bed. (This may perhaps be the origin of the comment in some versions of (#1) that the wireless or wireless lines were on fire: Titanic was unable to communicate with the Californian. Or perhaps the reference is to Titanic's brush-off of Californian's earlier ice warning. I suspect, though, that the reference to the wireless being on fire is just an error.)

Incidentally, the wireless distress call is said to have been the first "SOS" call at sea (#9, #11); at first, the operators send "CQD" messages, which were the original distress code. But "SOS" had been sent recently adopted as the emergency call -- it's much easier to transmit in Morse -- and eventually the operators decided to send that; Lord-Night, p. 52. The distress call went out not long after midnight {contra #9, which says it was "about the break of day," probably confusing the beginning of the day with daybreak).

No one thought to send up rockets until a quartermaster at the stern of the ship noticed lifeboats leaving (he had not been told the ship was in danger!) and called the bridge. That aroused someone enough to order him to bring up the rockets (Lord-Night,p. 47). But, obviously, it took him some time to get them and bring them to the bridge of the big ship.

The statement in (#9) that the ship would "hold on to the last" does not appear to be based on an actual message from the Titanic; it sounds more like a message sent three years earlier when the Republic was sinking: "Ship's sinking, but will stick to the end" (Ritchie, p. 177). Still, many crew did stay on duty very late -- e.g. the engineers kept the lights on until just seconds before the final plunge, and senior wireless operator Jack Phillips stayed at his key even after Captain Smith told him that it was "every man for himself." The Virginian recorded a last faint "CQD" message at 2:17 (I'm not sure by whose clock; Butler-Other, p. 81, says that the Carpathia last heard a signal at 1:50, and it by then was the closest ship other than the Californian by a wide margin); that last signal was interrupted in mid-transmission (Butler-Other, p. 77). The ship is considered to have gone down at 2:20 (Butler-Other, p. 122). From then on, all that was left was the controversy. Perhaps the biggest controversy came because survival rates for the different groups on board were very different. Because women and children were given priority (#3, #9, #11), they of course had a higher survival rate than men -- but the first class men did almost as well as the third class women and children.

There were even two dogs rescued from first class (Lynch/Marschall, pp. 100-101). This being the era of the Filthy Rich, it was -- even more than today -- the era of the Completely Useless (and frequently disagreeable) Pet Dog. The Titanic had kennels, and even had crew members whose task was to walk the animals. In the early stages of the evacuation, when the boats were lowered half-empty, the two First Class Pooches were given spaces that could have gone to human beings. (Davenport-Hines, p. 174n., says that three dogs survived -- but since he lists 11 or 12 dogs belonging to first class passengers, their survival rate wasn't particularly high. Merely higher than that of, say, third class men.)

Much of the difference in casualty rates was due to the layout of the ship. The passengers in First Class were around the level of the boat deck, and were the first to reach the boats (the boats, absurdly, were at the very top of the ship, well above the main deck, which meant that there was less room for boats and that they were far above nearly every passenger on the ship).

As a result, 94% of first class women and children were saved (there is a table of casualty rates in Wade, p. 67, and a graph in Lord-Lives, p. 82). Only one first-class child went down with the ship, and that because she would not leave her mother, who in turn would not leave her husband; (Ballard, p 149; Lord-Lives, p. 83). Indeed, there was eventually a woman who turned up claiming to he a grown-up Loraine Allison, the little girl who was lost, but she was pretty clearly trying to get her hands on the money the child would have inherited had she lived (Lynch/Marshall, p. 214). Lord-Night, p. 105, notes that only four first class women died, and three of them decided to stay with their husbands. 31% of first class men were saved. In all, 60% of first class passengers survived.

Of second class passengers, 44% lived. In steerage, the figure was only 25% -- 47% of the women and 14% of the men. The survival rate for the crew was comparable to that for third class -- 24% (212 out of 890 crew members, according to Lord-Lives; note that (#15) says with fair accuracy there were 900 crew). Some initial news reports apparently claimed that no one in third class survived (Tibballs, p. 237).

It should be remembered that the third class passengers were physically blocked off from the upper decks due to quarantine regulations (steerage passengers were subjected to a physical examination before they could even board; Butler-Unsink, pp. 39-40), and in any case were many decks below the boats. (Hence the statement in (#1) that they "left the poor below." ) And they had previously been strictly told to stay in their areas -- as more and more emigrants came from Eastern Europe, the steerage passengers came to be treated more and more as undesirables to be separated from the good Anglo-Saxons of the upper decks (Fox, pp. 330-331, who points out that steerage accommodations had actually gotten worse in the late nineteenth century, simply because steerage passengers were viewed as being of an "inferior race").

There were, in fact, only seven doors connecting third class to areas with access to boats (Butler-Unsink, p. 106), and of course the steerage passengers didn't know how to find those doors or get to anywhere useful if they did find them. And although they were not actually confined to their cabins at night, all the outside amenities shut down at 10:00 p.m. (Davenport-Hines, p. 272), so they had nowhere else to be.

Based on testimony from the survivors, they were not blocked from going to the boat deck (with some exceptions -- and of course there could have been major exceptions which simply weren't reported; see Wade, pp. 276-277, Lord-Lives, pp. 84-88). But the crew -- which obviously had to tell them what to do and guide them to the boats -- were mostly concentrated on the upper decks. By the time the third class passengers knew of the disaster and could reach the boat decks, the boats were mostly away -- one witness told of a great flood of third class passengers swarming the boat deck at the very end.

Butler-Unsink, p. 105, has perhaps the best summary: "[Steward John] Hart's efforts [which helped many female passengers escape the lower decks] underscored the fact that... there really was no deliberate policy of discrimination against Third Class. What there was, and what may have been all the more insidious by being purely unintentional, was that simply no policy or procedure for looking after the Third Class passengers existed.... Somewhere in the chain of command communications had broken down, and... when Captain Smith had given no specific instructions, Chief Officer Wilde seemed incapable of initiating any action himself. The other officers [who were lowering the boats] were already thoroughly occupied and had little time to spare for wondering about what or who the captain and chief officer might have overlooked."

This had an interesting side effect: although the rule was "women and children first," or where Second Officer Lightoller was in charge, "women and children only," because of the way passengers made their way to the boats -- or, rather, didn't -- the "number" of men to survive actually was larger than the number of women: 338 adult men, compared to 316 adult women, according to Lord-Lives, p. 82. The reason a higher percentage of women survived was because there were a lot more men than women aboard -- 1667 men, 425 women.

The male survivors even included J. Bruce Ismay, the man in charge of running White Star; he had crowded into a boat at the last minute. Widely blamed for causing the disaster -- after all, he had allowed the ship to go to sea without enough lifeboats or a trained crew -- he lived another 25 years, mostly as a recluse; Lord-Lives, pp. 180-181. (To be fair, the wreck was a disaster for him in many ways; not only did it damage his firm's reputation and his finances, it also cost him the life of the two personal employees who sailed with him; Matsen, p. 172. So if he was even nuttier after that than he had been before, little wonder.)

(Reading the histories, I don't think Ismay should be blamed for the disaster as such -- he didn't run the ship; Captain Smith did. Ismay did bear significant blame for the lack of boats, though, which at the very least demonstrates that he hadn't properly researched the ship's capabilities. Plus he was a busybody who did nothing but get in the way during the evacuation -- one of the officers had to force him away from the boats. And, on a more individual note, when the ship's musicians were subjected to a pay cut and harsher working conditions, he pretty well blew them off; Barczewski, p. 129. One of the female stewards reported being required to work seventeen hours a day; Davenport-Hines, p. 257. So my verdict is: Criminal, not guilty; Jerk, guilty.)

The Titanic myth of men standing aside to let the women live did create some problems for adult male survivors, many of whom felt pressure to justify their continued existence. Biel, pp. 28-29, notes how Lawrence Beesley, a second class male survivor, later tried to get a part in a Titanic movie so he could be seen going down with the ship this time. (He was denied the role of an extra because he wasn't a member of Actor's Equity. Ironic to note that his daughter-in-law would write One Hundred and One Dalmatians; Davenport-Hines, p. 206.) One final observation on casualties: All numbers are slightly imprecise, because the lists of those aboard are slightly imperfect. (At least one man who was lost cannot ever be identified, because he went aboard using another man's stolen identification; Eaton/Haas, p. 72.) In round numbers, 1500 were lost (#9). Lord-Night, p. 176, says that the American inquiry put the figure at 1517, the British Board of Trade came up with 1503, and the British Enquiry 1490. Lord-Night inclines toward the middle figure. The figure of 1600 in (#1, #4, #5, #7, #16) is certainly too high, though not by much. One suspects the songs citing this figure were composed very soon after the wreck, before the enquiries had sorted things out. The other possibility is that it refers to the number of people actually on the ship when the last boats pulled away, estimated by Lord-Lives (p. 2) to be 1600. But a few of these survived, being hauled out of the water by the boats.

For the most part, the evacuation was orderly. Women and children were put in the boats, and men generally accepted it. Still, it appears that a few shots were fired. The shots did not (contra #3) wake Captain Smith, who of course was awake to order the evacuation. The officers had pistols, and fifth officer Lowe at one point fired a few rounds to prevent a rush on the boat (Lord-Night, p. 75; Lord-Lives, p. 99). This ended the rush, and no one was hurt in the incident. First officer Murdoch may also have used his pistol (Lord-Lives, p. 100; cf. Lord-Night, p. 76), but again, he fired in the air. So at most one passenger was killed by an officer to prevent chaos, and even this is relatively ill-documented (Lord-Lives, pp. 101-102).

The real tragedy of the Titanic, of course, is that everyone could have been saved had there been enough lifeboats. British Board of Trade regulations said merely that any ship over 15,000 tons had to have at least sixteen lifeboats. And the regulations were enforced; Butler-Unsink, p. 38, tells of the officers getting very upset with the Board of Trade inspector because he was so thorough. Titanic in fact had twenty (counting the four collapsible lifeboats that were not on davits and so were much harder to lower; two in fact were on a roof near one of the funnels and almost inaccessible; Lord-Lives, p. 97) -- but she was 46,000 tons, or three times the size envisioned when the regulation was written.

Adding more lifeboats would not have been a great hardship. More boats would have added some weight, of course, but they did not need more space; Titanic's davits were designed to carry multiple boats. Only two boats were actually designed to be lowered and then raised again (Davenport-Hines, p. 278); the rest were true lifeboats. Had she been fitted with a suitable number of lifecraft, and had crew competent to lower them, there was time to get everyone off. But there were boats for only 1178 people (Lord-Lives, p. 72). It was fortunate, in a way, that the ship was only half full; had she carried her full complement of 3547, there would have been boat space for only a third of them.

Making the matter worse, the lifeboats that did go out weren't full. This was not callousness or over-excitement; the lifeboat officers were not certain that fully-loaded boats could survive the drop after being lowered the long distance from the Titanic's decks (Wade, pp. 132-133), or that the crew were competent to lower full boats. (There had been a recent incident where a lifeboat from the Oceana had overturned, killing nine passengers, so many people were afraid of the boats; Davenport-Hines, p. 279.) Plus, with the ship going down, they were trying to get every boat down before she was swamped -- meaning they didn't wait to bring in as many people as possible. (The farce of the lifeboats may not have ended there. The boats were supposed to be equipped with oars, sails, and survival supplies. An eyewitness testified that most of these were lacking; Eaton/Haas, p. 36. It was fortunate that the sea was calm; if anyone had been thrown out of a boat, it might have been hard to rescue the lost person. And two of the "collapsible" boats were effectively useless, because they were in places from which they could not be lowered! -- Davenport/Hines, p. 279.)

So most of the boats that were sent off in the first hour or so were lowered half-empty -- and apparently no one ever considered using one or another boat as an elevator to send down more passengers. Toward the end, the officers were willing to put more people aboard, but with most of the passengers at the stern, there was no one around near the bow when the last boats at that end were lowered (Lord-Lives, pp. 94-95). As a result, about 400 seats in the boats that could have been filled instead were left empty.

That was not the end of the mishandling. Though the Titanic did not have enough boats, she did have enough lifebelts to keep everyone afloat -- if they were rescued quickly enough from the chill waters. In fact, a few people who did not make it off the sinking ship were rescued by the boats, though many of the boats rowed away from the wreck as fast as they were able (Wade, pp. 233-235; Lynch/Marschall, p. 129, claims that Captain Smith tried to call some of the half-full boats back, but I have not seen this claim elsewhere, and in any case, none of them obeyed). We note that many bodies would eventually be discovered, still afloat in their lifebelts (#4), carried northward by the current; most seem to have died of the cold (Wade, pp. 273-274; according to Lynch/Marschall, p. 176, one of the rescue ships found 17 bodies in the sea, and only one had water in the lungs, i.e. had drowned. The rest all died of hypothermia). Had more of the boats come to their rescue, it is probable that at least a few hundred more people would have survived.

When the song calls it a "cold and icy sea" (#6), it was only the truth; the waters were at 28 degrees F, and Second Officer Lightoller, who spent time in the water before reaching an overturned lifeboat (he was one of a number of men who survived by swimming to Collapsible A or Collapsible B, the lifeboats that the officers were still trying to get down when the ship sank), said that it felt like being stabbed with "a thousand knives" when he went into the sea (Barczewski, p. 29; Lord-Night, p. 114). In several cases, it took only a few minutes to kill; Barczewski, on the same page, relates the testimony of several people who pulled passengers into the lifeboats only to find them already dead, or to watch them die even after they were pulled from the water. Even some people who were never in the water suffered severely from the cold (Eaton/Haas, p. 41).

A recovery ship called the Mackay-Bennett (chartered by White Star in one of their few recorded instances of voluntary compassion; Butler-Unsink, p. 199) brought in at least 306 bodies (Barczewski, p. 41), mostly unhurt except for sea and cold, and many more were seen by other ships (Wade, p. 274); 22 more bodies were brought in by other vessels (Barczewski, p. 42), some also charted by White Star (Eaton/Haas, pp. 99-100); the last body was picked in mid-May (Eaton/Haas, p. 105). Many recovered bodies went unidentified (Eaton/Haas, p. 105, says that 128 were buried without their names being known; Barczewski, p. 45, notes the case of a baby whose identity was not firmly established until DNA testing was used in 2002). Eaton/Haas, p. 105, calculates that 1314 bodies were never brought back to land.

Most of the grief could have been spared had another ship arrived quickly. And there was another ship in the vicinity, the freighter Californian. The Californian had been one of the ships sending ice warnings; she had halted for the night in the face of the ice barrier -- her commander Stanley Lord was still fairly new to command, and had not faced ice before. (He was only 34 years old, according to Eaton/Haas, p. 128. Butler-Other, p. 50, says that he had commanded his first ship in 1906, but he had not moved to the Californian until early 1912.)

Since the Californian was carrying freight only (there was some passenger space on the ship, but it was not occupied; the ship had been designed as a pure freighter, with the passenger space added as an afterthought late in her construction, according to Butler-Other, pp. 42-43), there was no real urgency about arriving at his destination (as witness the fact that the ship had sailed April 5, according to Eaton/Haas, p. 39). This was not a boat trying for a fast crossing -- though Butler-
Stanley Lord claimed that the emergency stores not packed -- but only a couple of sailors on the. They had sails -- or at least they were supposed to, though they may have been among the disorganized rowers to reach in any reasonable time. (None of the Captain Lord's was the. Captain Smith did order the boats to head for the ship on the horizon, which by every reckoning but than Captain Lord claimed or there was a ship between the two. This, of course, was the heart of Titanic stated positions, was certainly more than seven miles away, and probably more than 16, and since the maximum distance her boats could see one was seven miles. Since the wireless officers.)

Butler, p. 156, notes an interesting argument made by a hydrographer at the time, which said that any ghost ship in that spot would have crashed straight into the ice barrier, so it is most unlikely that there was such a ship. The likely explanation for the lack of response to the lights -- Lord's defenders often claim there was a third ship between the two of them and the Californian never saw the Titanic (Eaton/Haas, p. 127) -- but the ghost ship has never been identified (proposals have been made; none are convincing).

At the heart of the problem was the fact that the Californian had only one wireless operator, who went off duty before the Titanic started sending distress signals. The officers of the Californian certainly saw Titanic's emergency rockets -- but ignored them until too late (Paine, p. 87). She didn't even have the excuse that she had to protect her passengers; since she was carrying only cargo (Lord-Lives, p. 134). Her inaction was at the instigation of her captain, Stanley Lord, who was trying to sleep and whose only response to the rockets was to tell his officers to try to contact the other ship by searchlight.

It's not clear why there was no response to the lights -- Lord's defenders often claim there was a second ship not far from them -- though most of the observers thought it too small to be the Titanic. (Butler-Other, p. 55, thinks this was because they saw it only under poor viewing conditions or after it had turned; Smithsonian, p. 37, offers a technical explanation -- "super refraction" -- for why the distances seemed off.) The Californian's crew saw a series of rockets fired, at times roughly corresponding to when the Titanic was sending off distress signals. They saw the ship to the south seemingly turn off most of its lights, and then disappear. These things happened soon after midnight. It was not until 4:00 a.m. that an officer really attempted to learn what was happening (Ritchie, pp. 32-33). The key questions are, Was this ship the Titanic, should the Californian have done something, and could it have done something had it tried?

According to Ballard's calculations, Californian was not more than 21 miles from where Titanic went down, and probably closer due to drift (Ballard, pp. 200-201, following the work of Jack Grimm; cf. Butler-Unsink, p. 243). Captain Lord would later give the distance as 17-19 miles (Ritchie, p. 33). Some estimates -- including Lord Mersey's official British inquiry (Ritchie, p. 33) -- have placed the two ships within five to ten miles of each other (Eaton/Haas, p. 151, though on p. 150 they argue for the 20 mile figure); Mersey had no doubt that the ship seen from the Titanic was the Californian (Mersey, p. 41 and elsewhere).

There is also suspicion that Californian's log was "cleaned up"; the official log has no record of seeing any rockets (although the accounts of the crew make it clear that she did) -- and the "scrap log," which usually contains information to be cross-checked before being entered into the official log, is missing for that time period, even though it is usually preserved (Butler-Unsink, pp. 243-244). Butler-Unsink, p. 244, argues that the course she was on would have left her south of her official position when stopped -- i.e. closer to the Titanic.

Butler-Other, p. 136, also notes the curious fact that Captain Lord had his officers swear out statements about the disaster even before they reached port, which he then locked in his safe. What's more, Lord would refer to his navigation data, which most captains made public, as "state secrets" (Butler-Other, p. 137).

At the heart of the problem was the fact that the Californian had only one wireless operator, who went off duty before the Titanic started sending distress signals. The officers of the Californian certainly saw Titanic's emergency rockets -- but ignored them until too late (Paine, p. 87). She didn't even have the excuse that she had to protect her passengers; since she was carrying only cargo (Lord-Lives, p. 134). Her inaction was at the instigation of her captain, Stanley Lord, who was trying to sleep and whose only response to the rockets was to tell his officers to try to contact the other ship by searchlight.

It's not clear why there was no response to the lights -- Lord's defenders often claim there was a second ship between the two of them and the Californian never saw the Titanic (Eaton/Haas, p. 127) -- but the ghost ship has never been identified (proposals have been made; none are convincing).

From what I can tell, it sounds as if any ghost ship in that spot would have crashed straight into the ice barrier, so it is most unlikely that there was such a ship. The likely explanation for the lack of response to the Morse lamp is that the officers of the Titanic had other things on their minds than sending lamp signals. Titanic's wireless operators could stay at their posts; they had no other duties -- but the ship's officers were busy evacuating. (Fourth officer Boxhall had tried signaling the mystery ship; according to Lynch/Marschall, p. 109, Captain Smith's words were "Tell him to come at once. We are sinking" -- the exact words quoted in {#9}, though they are there credited to the wireless officers.)

Butler, p. 156, notes an interesting argument made by a hydrographer at the time, which said that the maximum distance at which Titanic could see a ship on the horizon at night was 16 miles, and the maximum distance her boats could see one was seven miles. Since the Californian, based on stated positions, was certainly more than seven miles away, and probably more than 16, and since Titanic and Californian both unquestionably saw a ship, then either the two were closer together than Captain Lord claimed or there was a ship between the two. This, of course, was the heart of the argument.

Captain Smith did order the boats to head for the ship on the horizon, which by every reckoning but Captain Lord's was the Californian (Barczewski, p. 168), but she was too far away for the disorganized rowers to reach in any reasonable time. (None of the Titanic's boats were powered. They had sails -- or at least they were supposed to, though they may have been among the emergency stores not packed -- but only a couple of sailors on the Titanic knew how to sail a boat, so that was no help.)

Stanley Lord claimed that the Titanic was too far away to reach in time (Eaton/Haas, p. 129). But Californian had a top speed of 13.5 knots (Paine, p. 87; Eaton/Haas, p. 44). If he had reacted as strongly as the Carpathia, he would certainly have arrived at least half an hour before the Titanic went down (that based on the ships' official positions; it would have been sooner if, as suspected, the two ships were closer together than the Californian's official position indicated), allowing for much more complete rescue efforts. Condemnation of Californian's skipper Stanley Lord has not been universal -- Butler-Unsink, p. 241, notes that some maritime unions have a strong interest in not having him condemned -- but it is widespread; if the Californian was the mystery ship, there can be little doubt that Lord's behavior caused hundreds of avoidable deaths.

It is ironic to note that the Californian was owned by the Leyland Line, which was owned by International Merchant Marine, which also owned White Star and the Titanic (Butler-Other, p. 44). It was IMM, in fact, which had put the passenger space on Californian.

Of the books I have read, only Lynch/Marschall and Eaton/Haas can be considered Lordite; on pp. 190-191, the former argues, first, that the Californian's reported position and the Titanic's actual position were too far apart to allow easy visual contact; second, that it took the Californian two hours to reach the Titanic's death site (so also Eaton/Haas, p. 44, but they note that she initially steamed at a mere six knots), so she couldn't have gotten there quickly even had she responded to the pleas; third, that there may have been a third ship (this would be the alternate explanation for why witnesses on the Titanic thought that there was a moving ship within five or six miles of them -- Eaton/Haas, p. 37); fourth, that many on the Californian did not think the ship was big enough to be the Titanic, fifth, that the witnesses on both ships thought the other ship was moving even though both were stopped.

The first objection is meaningless, since it is based on one actual and one estimated position; the second is also meaningless, because the Californian headed for the reported position, not the actual position (when the Carpathia and the Californian actually rendezvoused, it was at 41 degrees 33' N, 50 degrees 01' W, or about 15 nautical miles from where the Titanic broadcast as the site of the disaster); the third is vitiated by the fact that, if there had been a third ship, the Carpathia or the Mount Temple should have seen it (Butler-Other, p. 158), and never did, and no ship is logged as being in the area; the fourth may have been an illusion of distance; and the fifth may also have been an illusion, or it may have been caused by the drift of the two vessels, which would have responded to ocean currents differently.

Butler-Other, pp. 171-176, describes Lord's testimony before the British investigatory tribunal; it is confusing and sounds like the account of a man trying to cover his guilt. On the other hand, he was being badgered by several questioners about events which happened in the middle of the night. I would allow the possibility that he simply didn't remember that well.

But not one of these objections in any way overcomes the basic flaw in the Lordite position: That Captain Lord saw distress rockets and ignored them. We don't know if Lord could have helped the Titanic. We "do" know that he ignored an obvious cry for help.

Ritchie, p. 33, notes that the bad publicity forced Captain Lord to quit the Leyland Line. He found another job, but it was with the Nitrate Producers Steamship Company, which cannot have been as prestigious. His record there is said to be unblemished.

We should stress: Stanley Lord was not guilty of murder. He did not know what was happening. Even if he had responded immediately to the first distress rocket, he might not have been able to reach Titanic in time to save everyone (Butler-Other, pp. 191-194, attempts to calculate what Californian could have done had she responded at once, and estimates that he might have saved 300 more lives. I would consider this number somewhat low, because the evacuation of Titanic might have been more orderly had there been word that a ship would arrive soon. But Butler is likely right that some would still have died). And if he had known with certainty that a ship was sinking near him, he would have surely done more than he did.

To repeat: All authorities agree Lord is innocent of deliberate murder. What he is guilty of is negligence and indifference. And, to be fair, his junior officers must bear part of the blame. To give Lord his due, he had gone to bed before the distress calls started. The junior officers made very little effort to wake him (Eaton/Haas, p. 151). There is certainly plenty of blame to spread among the Californian's officers.

Still, Butler-Unsink, pp. 191-194, 241-245, accuses Stanley Lord of terrorizing his officers until they couldn't act without his permission. Butler-Other, p. 199, offers as his verdict that "circumstances unconsciously conspired to reveal that Stanley Lord was a man without conscience: Stanley Lord was a sociopath." I do not think Butler proves this -- he says he consulted experts, and even lists them on p. 243 -- but he doesn't give details of their analysis, or of what information they used to reach their conclusions. Nor would I wish to trust a therapist who would reach such a posthumous conclusion. I'm not sure a diagnosis at this distance is even meaningful. Still, it would explain a lot. However, the diagnosis is very problematic, because "sociopath" is not even a proper clinical term. these days (it's not even mentioned in the index to the DSM-IV-TR); those who were once deemed sociopaths and psychopaths are now a considered a subset of those who suffer Antisocial Personality Disorder (although there are those who argue vehemently that psychopathy, at least, is a distinct condition). And Lord does not seem to fit that diagnosis. The DSM-IV-TR criteria for Antisocial Personality Disorder (p. 706) require that the person have shown signs of Conduct Disorder before age 15, and the only sign of this in the discussion of his life on p. 47 of Butler-Other is "willfulness."

As an adult, someone with Antisocial Personality Disorder must meet at least four of seven criteria. Butler would certainly argue that Lord met criterion (5), "reckless disregard for safety of self or others," and also criterion (7), "lack of remorse, as indicated by being indifferent to or rationalizing having hurt, mistreated, or stolen from another." But that is only two criteria, and it appears to me that he certainly does not meet (1), "failure to conform to social norms with respect to lawful behaviors." (3) "Impulsivity or failure to plan ahead" (Butler-Other, p. 54, shows just how Lord managed everything in nitpicky detail; he showed no impulsivity at all); (4) "irritability and aggressiveness, as indicated by repeated physical fights or assaults" (Lord was irritable, but he didn't get into fights!); and (6), "consistent irresponsibility, as indicated by repeated failure to sustain consistent work behavior or honor financial obligations." The whole reason Lord had command of a ship was his demonstrated responsibility!

So Lord was not, clinically at least, a sociopath; if I had to assign a diagnosis, I'd be much more tempted by Narcissistic Personality Disorder, which requires five traits (DSM-IV-TR, p. 717), of which Lord had (1), "a grandiose sense of self-importance," probably (5), "a sense of entitlement," (6), "is interpersonally exploitative," (7), "lacks empathy," and (9), "shows arrogant, haughty behaviors or attitudes." He also shows hints of some of the other criteria.

It should be remembered that Lord was called upon to make his choice in the middle of the night. He might simply have made a mistake because he was tired -- if he had been as alert a sociopath as Butler would make him, he would likely have gone to rescue the Titanic for the fame it would bring him. His real faults were that he intimidated his officers so much that they did not dare push him, and he never admitted his error. These failings are both consistent with Narcissistic Personality Disorder. But this too is diagnosis at a distance; it's merely a diagnosis that actually fits....

Whatever Lord's mental state, The Lordite controversy is covered in detail in almost every book on the Titanic; see e.g. Barczewski, p. 35 and after; Lord-Lives, p. 135ffff.; Eaton/Haas, pp. 150-152; Ritchie, pp. 31-34; it is the primary subject of Butler-Other. Nonetheless, it seems not to have been mentioned much in the songs, perhaps because the Californian did not show up in the news stories until some time after the disaster.

Not every ship and captain was so inert. Captain Arthur Roston of the Carpathia heard the distress call, and at once turned ship (#9, #11; cf. #15, which implies that people on the ship were awaiting the Carpathia specifically, which surely isn't true). His was by far the most decisive and effective action of the night. Unfortunately, his ship was roughly 60 miles from the Titanic, and the Carpathia, though only nine years old, had a normal top speed of just 14 knots (Paine, p. 96 Butler-Other, pp. 22-23, notes that she was not really intended to be a liner in the usual sense -- as built, she had large cargo holds and no first-class accommodations at all, just second class and steerage. In 1905, according to Butler-Other, p. 26, she was rebuilt to take first class passengers, and her third class space was expanded at the expense of the cargo space, but of course she was stuck with her old engines.)

Captain Roston and crew gave it everything they had, and supposedly got Carpathia going at 17 knots (Lord-Night, p. 141, though others have argued that she could not possibly have gotten above 16 knots; Butler-Other, p. 70. Since the ship never went that speed at any other time, we really cannot know). Despite her efforts, it took her some three and a half hours to reach the site of the Titanic, meaning that the larger liner had gone down about an hour before. Carpathia rescued such survivors as she could find, taking the first survivors aboard at 4:10 (Butler-Other, p. 105) and reaching the last boat at 8:30 (or about six hours after Titanic sank); by then of course the only survivors were those who had been in the boats. Indeed, some even of those pulled from the water by the boats had died; the cold and the shock (and, in a few cases, the effort of keeping a half-flooded boat afloat) proved too much.

After picking up every survivor, Captain Roston turned his ship about. Her destination was Europe, but he knew he had to get the survivors to land quickly. The only question was whether to head for New York (the passengers' intended destination) or Halifax (the nearest major port). After some consideration, he headed for New York (#11) (Lord-Night, pp. 160-161). It was to prove a difficult trip, both because of the crowding and because storms made some passengers fear that the Carpathia too was in danger (Lynch/Marschall, p. 163).
Lord-Night, pp. 189-209, gives the official passenger list, with those lost and saved, though he notes (Lord-Lives, pp. 36-38) that there were some errors in the list. Tibballs, pp. 483-506, gives a list which includes the crew, though some are miscategorized. Many books list only the "celebrity" passengers -- e.g. the very wealthy Isidor and Ida Strauss (just two of several millionaires (#6)), and American President Taft's advisor Archie Butt. (Several others big names booked passage but did not actually sail. J. P. Morgan, who ultimately owned the ship, was too ill to sail. Alfred W. Vanderbilt changed his mind so late that there wasn't even time to get his luggage off the ship; Ballard, p. 14; according to Eaton/Haas, p. 73, a servant stayed with the baggage and was lost with the ship. Some of Morgan's amazing antiquities collection was also supposed to go with the ship; by sheer luck, it didn't; Davenport-Hines, p. 13)

The Strausses are mentioned in the Cowboy Loye version of (#16); they were an "elderly philanthropist" and his wife (Lord-Lives, p. 35) who owned the Macy's department store (Ballard, p. 14). They reached the deck early on, but Isador Strauss, being a man, was denied a place in the lifeboats (Butler-Unsink, p. 109, and Eaton/Haas, p. 26, in fact say that he refused to enter a boat when given a chance). His wife could have left, but she declared that she would share his fate ("We have been living together for many years; where you go, I go"), went back aboard the ship, and of course died in the wreck (Wade, p. 61 -- a story that came out in the American hearings). But if Ida Strauss gets the award for Most Romantic Gesture, no passenger was given more publicity than John Jacob Astor (1864-1912) (#5; probably the "Jacob Nash" of Lomax's #3). He was probably the richest man aboard, though he had inherited rather than earned most of the money. He kept 18 automobiles, and had raised a regiment for the Spanish-American War, allowing him to take the title of Colonel (Barczewski, p. 58), even though he had no military training (and probably less aptitude, except for the mercilessness that came from his financial background).

As the boats went off, Astor apparently asked if he could go aboard with his (much younger trophy) wife, who was pregnant. (No, they didn't have the phrase "trophy wife" in 1912, but they had the idea, and Astor was largely cast out of society; Barczewski, p. 58. Barczewski adds that the girl was visibly pregnant even though they had been married only four months. It is perhaps revealing that Madeleine Force Astor would remarry in 1918 even though it meant giving up about seven million dollars in money from a prenuptial agreement. (Astor doesn't seem to have had much taste in women; his first wife was very beautiful but completely incompatible with him; they had little to do with each other although they didn't get divorced until after Astor's mother died; Davenport-Hines, p. 163.)

The flip side is, at least Astor married his New Cookie; other rich men pretended to be faithful and took mistresses. Benjamin Guggenheim, another of the ultra-rich passengers, had left his wife in New York to travel with his girlfriend; Butler-Unsink, p. 28.

Second officer Lightoller, who survived but only by swimming to a boat, flatly refused Astor's request to join her in the boat (Barczewski, p. 25).

Astor allowed her to go in the boat without him, but said that he would meet her in the morning (Barczewski, p. 60); either he expected the ship to survive (unlikely by then) or he expected to find another boat.

Quite a few legends arose about Astor immediately after the wreck, generally very positive (#5 says "all the women he tried to save"); Biel, p. 41, reports an account in which he is credited with saying "Not a man until every woman and child is safe in the boats." Not one of these accounts is from an actual beneficiary of his kindness, or even a reliable witness; all were reports of people who claimed they saw something he did (Barczewski, p. 63); we cannot in any instance prove that Astor was actually the man involved.

(This "men stepped aside" legend is found, e.g., in (#4); Biel, pp. 23-25, documents that this arose in the first hours after the sinking, before any of the survivors had told their tale; the stories weren't exactly false, but it was the ship's officers, not the passengers, who controlled access to the boats, and in the end, many men did survive.)

Astor's body was one of those found by the MacKay-Bennett; it was in very bad shape, but he could be identified by the monograms on his clothing (Barczewski, p. 40). Lord-Lives, p. 172, observes that the Astor family did not even file any claims for damages over his death -- something that obviously would not have happened in today's litigious society.

There were, to be sure, lawsuits filed -- a lot of them, totaling about $16 million. This led to interesting problems in dealing with British and American law (after all, it was a British ship owned by an American conglomerate.) In the end, White Star paid out $664,000 (Lord-Lives, pp. 172-177).

The fate of Captain Smith, mentioned in folklore, is in fact uncertain, except that he definitely did not survive. Wade, p. 58, and Barczewski, pp. 169-171 list several reports, from suicide to rescuing other passengers at the expense of his life. (Barczewski suggests that most of the more heroic
Brown was active in relief causes in World War I, but after that fell into quarrels with her children accounts which made her legendary were largely fictionalized. and helped others escape the building (Barczewski, p. 92). But Barczewski says that the popular their losses. It added up to a legend -- which was confirmed in 1925, when she survived a hotel fire grieving survivors (her skill in several languages helped), and set up a subscription to make up for could not pay for wireless messages (Barczewski, p. 90). She also tried to comfort some of the Aboard the Titanic, she distributed some of the seven pairs of socks she was wearing to those abandoned 25 gowns, 14 hats, and 13 pairs of shoes purchased in Paris; Barczewski, p. 87). When the ship hit the iceberg, she gathered some of her things (fortunately not all; no spartan, she suffered a stroke, and they legally separated in 1909.) She was in Europe when her grandson drifted apart. (According to Davenport-Hines, p. 166, her husband's temper had changed after he discovered gold in the Little Johnny Mine (Barczewski, p. 85). Molly, suddenly rich, then became active in a variety of social causes -- and became a world traveller after she and her husband drifted apart. (According to Davenport-Hines, p. 166, her husband's temper had changed after he suffered a stroke, and they legally separated in 1909.) She was in Europe when her grandson became ill, so she hurried back to the United States on the Titanic (Barczewski, p. 86). When the ship hit the iceberg, she gathered some of her things (fortunately not all; no spartan, she abandoned 25 gowns, 14 hats, and 13 pairs of shoes purchased in Paris; Barczewski, p. 87). Hustled into a lifeboat, she distributed some of the seven pairs of socks she was wearing to those who had come aboard less well-supplied (Barczewski, p. 89), and also tried to convince the quartermaster in charge of the boat to rescue those left behind. If the account in Barczewski, pp. 88-89, is even vaguely correct, his was one of the most despicable stories on that night; he refused to go back, and refused even to hand over the tiller, instead leaving it to the middle-aged Brown and one other woman to row.

Aboard the Carpathia, Brown tried to send out messages on behalf of poorer passengers who could not pay for wireless messages (Barczewski, p. 90). She also tried to comfort some of the grieving survivors (her skill in several languages helped), and set up a subscription to make up for their losses. It added up to a legend -- which was confirmed in 1925, when she survived a hotel fire and helped others escape the building (Barczewski, p. 92). But Barczewski says that the popular accounts which made her legendary were largely fictionalized. Brown was active in relief causes in World War I, but after that fell into quarrels with her children.
There was one small consolation out of the Titanic wreck: The British and Americans toughened regulations for liners. They had to have enough lifeboats, the crew had to know how to deal with them, they had to have full-time wireless officers, etc. (Wade, pp. 302-303). These would not prevent future disasters, as the Lusitania would demonstrate just over three years later, but they made them less inherently deadly -- the loss of life on the Lusitania was mostly because she sank in twenty minutes. Had she stayed afloat for more than two hours, as the Titanic did, nearly everyone aboard would have survived.

Wade, p. 318, notes the additional irony that this disaster did not strike one much-oppressed community: There were few Blacks aboard the ship as she sank -- Biel, p. 112, says none; Davenport-Hines, p. 200, says there was one, a Joseph Laroche, a Haitian who had been living in France but was returning to Haiti because of racism. A second class passenger, he did not survive, although it appears his family did. Of course, this eliminates the whole plot of "Shine and the Titanic" (contra #14).

That's just as well for Shine, given the report in the song that Captain Smith's daughter offered him her body if he would rescue her. Smith had only one child, a daughter, Helen Melville Smith -- and she was still just a girl, born in 1902 (Barczewski, p. 163); imagine what would have happened had Shine so much as touched a child that age! In any case, her name isn't in the passenger list in Lord-Night, and she was alive to dedicate a memorial to Smith in 1914 (Barczewski, p. 179). "Shine and the Titanic" is also ruled out by the fact that Shine could not have swum to safety; the water, as noted, was just too cold.

Racism also tinged the stories about the people who tried to rush the boats; they were usually labelled Asian or Italian or otherwise less than Anglo-Saxon. There is absolutely no evidence for this, and much reason to think it false (Barczewski, pp. 55-56). There is one documented instance of a crewman trying to steal another crewman's life vest; since there were no Blacks aboard, he cannot have been Black, and in fact the surviving witnesses never said he was -- but one press report calls him a Negro (Biel, pp. 50-51). (There was at least one Japanese man, Masabumi Hosono, in second class, according to Davenport-Hines, p. 200. He did survive, but I find no charges against him specifically. Incidentally, Blacks weren't the only subject of prejudice; the Slavs of eastern Europe also suffered from discrimination and segregation, according to Davenport-Hines, p. 226, although it wasn't quite as severe. But the liners tried to see to it that they boarded at only a few ports.)

The story of boxer Jack Johnson is more complicated; it appears that Leadbelly's song on the topic (#8): "Jack Johnson want to get on board, Captain said, "I ain't haulin' no coal") conflates two incidents. Lyle Lofgren tells me that Johnson was in Chicago at the time Titanic sank, but according to Barczewski, p. 64, Johnson was refused passage on a liner due to his skin color on another occasion. This was not a new problem. Cunard in the 1840s twice carried Frederick Douglass across the Atlantic, but on one occasion forced him to stay in steerage rather than among the first class passengers; on the other, it gave him a cabin but refused to let him mingle with the passengers (Fox, p. 200).

According to Lord-Lives, p. 8, no books on the Titanic were published from 1913 to 1955. In the publishing business, A Night to Remember started a Titanic boom (Biel, p. 149, calls the 1955 publication of A Night to Remember the biggest date in Titanic history other than 1912 itself.). But the songs on the subject hardly stopped -- indeed, some time around 1970, they taught us a comic parody of (#1) ("Oh, they built another ship Called the S.S. 92... And they christened it with beer, and it sank right off the pier, Wasn't it sad when that great ship went down") in elementary school. Ironically for the parody, the Titanic was never formally christened (Lord-Lives, p. 11).

In the late twentieth century, of course, the movie "Titanic" was released. I have not seen it, but the reports I've read (e.g. in Barczewski) say that it contains many historical inaccuracies. Perhaps it will be starting a new round of Titanic folklore.

Another irony is the effort which White Star went to to suppress the memory of the ship -- which obviously failed. After Carpathia dropped off the lifeboats at White Star's dock in New York, White Star stripped off all identifying markings; we don't even know what became of the boats (Lynch/Marschall, pp. 166-168; Easton/Haas, p. 49, thinks they were stripped by souvenir hunters and then rotted away at the dock; Butler-Other, in the photographs section, thinks they were used on other White Star ships, but of course without anyone knowing where they came from). They would probably be worth millions today.

Which brings us to one of the most vexed of all questions about the Titanic: What the band played on that last night.

There are a lot of misconceptions about the performance that night. For starters, the musicians were not a band as properly so understood -- they did not have a brass section. Their instruments were strings and piano.

In fact, the eight performers weren't even a group in the usual sense. They rarely if ever played together as an eight-piece ensemble (Lord-Lives, pp. 96-97). The musicians consisted of a string quartet with piano (the primary group, led by newly-engaged violinist Wallace Hartley, which played the main evening concerts and Sunday religious services), and a violin/cello/piano trio which played mostly at receptions and in the cafes (Barczewski, pp. 130-131). They can't have been very loud (especially away from a piano), and in an emergency situation, with the ship listing and sheet music not usable, they would have to rely on things everyone knew -- and even for that, they might not have parts properly assigned. (Eaton/Haas, p. 94, claims they had all 352 pieces in the White Star music collection memorized. This is patently absurd, though presumably they could play them all.) Incidentally, they played for tips (Davenport-Hines, p. 258), which tells you how poor their regular pay was.

I can't help but note the irony that two of them had been lured away from the Carpathia to serve on the Titanic (Lord-Night, p. 44). Though Butler-Unsink, p. 122, reports that Hartley was once asked what he would do on a sinking ship, and he had answered, "I would gather the band together and begin playing."

We don't even know how long they played (Lord-Lives, pp. 107-108). Going down with the ship was not part of their job. Although musicians on German ships actually doubled as ship's stewards (Brinnin, p. 312; this had the ironic effect that German ships, unlike English, "did" play "Nearer My God to Thee" on Sundays), English ships employed specialist musicians who were not formally employees of White Star. (In fact, White Star's passenger list shows them as second class passengers.) Shortly before the Titanic voyage, White Star had started contracting with an agent to supply musicians. The hiring agents booked most of the same musicians the liner companies had always employed -- but inflicted a large pay cut on them and used the difference to make their profits (Lord-Lives, pp. 114-116). White Star refused even to pay death benefits to the musicians (Lord-Lives, p. 117). However long they played, it was above and beyond the call of duty. In the end, all eight of them went down with the ship (Ballard, p. 24 -- a page which also shows a poster for the band).

Whether the musicians made attempts to save themselves cannot be known; some passengers stated that they quit playing about half an hour before the ship sank (Barczewski, p. 132) -- perhaps when the last boats left? But it is touching to quote the remark of Steward Edward Brown, who, when asked when they ceased playing, said "I do not remember hearing them stop" (Lord-Lives, p. 108). Hence, perhaps, the statement that the music "played as they went down" {#9}.

Interestingly, though most reports say the musicians played either hymns or ragtime on that last night, neither was the Hartley quintet's specialty; their primary clientele was the first class passengers (worth, according to Barczewski, over $500 million in 1912 dollars!), who apparently preferred classical music -- on the night the boat went down, the evening concert included Wagner, Dvorak, and Puccini, according to Lord-Lives, pp. 43-44. Apparently some of the listeners felt the band not quite up to the task (Lord-Lives, p. 43) -- but imagine five musicians trying to play Wagner!

We might add that ship's bands of this period played largely for charity (Preston, p. 141) -- though it seems that few passengers were particularly generous.

When the ship hit the iceberg, Captain Smith apparently roused the musicians to play during the evacuation (Barczewski, p. 132). At first, they seem to have played in the first class lounge; later, they moved toward the boats (though the piano players would have been unable to play on the boat deck itself, and without the piano the group would have been quiet indeed. Perhaps -- personal speculation only -- one of the piano players took over conducting, to try to keep the group together without the piano playing rhythm?).

As for what they played, most reports agree that the band started out by playing ragtime tunes (or at least "Alexander's Ragtime Band," which had been a big hit the year before but which critics have indignantly charged isn't ragtime), mixed with other light pieces (Lord-Lives, p. 109). Butler-Unsink, p. 91, apparently based on the report of Lawrence Beesley, mentions "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Great Big Beautiful Doll," "Can't You Hear Me Caroline," "A Little Love, A Little Kiss," and "Moonlight Bay."

According to Wade, pp. 61-62, it was a Mrs. Vera Dick who started one of the most enduring false stories. She was the one who reported that the band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee" as the ship went down #1, #2, #4, #5, #6, #7, #8, #9, #16}. Obviously, if she had been near enough to hear the band, she would have been sucked down with it; Lord-Lives, p. 109, says she was at least a quarter of a mile away. Of course, one newspaper account claimed that the sound of the hymn continued after the ship sank! (Barczewski, p. 137).
Lord also observes that "Nearer, My God, To Thee" has different tunes in Britain and America -- yet passengers from both sides of the ocean claim to have heard it played. Odds are that someone, probably Mrs. Dick, started the story, and it sounded so appropriate that people thought they remembered it. Or maybe it was a transferred memory from the memorial services; "Nearer, My God, To Thee" was played at some of the funerals (Barczewski, p. 44), including Hartley's (Barczewski, p. 139, though Eaton/Haas, p. 32, says that the tune used at Hartley's burial was "Proprior Deo," which few would have known as "Nearer, My God, to Thee").
The single most reliable account is that from junior wireless operator Harold Bride: "The water was then coming into our cabin. From aft came the tunes of the band. It was a ragtime tune. I don't know what. Then there was 'Autumn.' Phillips [the senior wireless operator] ran aft, and that was the last I ever saw of him alive" (Tibballs, p. 97; cf. Wade, p. 63).
This statement has frequently been taken to refer to the lively hymn "Autumn." "Autumn" was considered extremely appropriate, since it contains the line "Hold me up in mighty waters." But Lord-Lives, p. 110, offers very strong evidence against this suggestion; it is unlikely the band knew it or that passengers would recognize it. Lord-Lives, p. 112, suggests that Bride's reference was in fact to Archibald Joyce's "Sone d'Autumne," popular in 1912. We cannot possibly know; the evidence is too thin. But at least this piece is a reasonable suggestion, unlike "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Eaton/Haas, p. 32, mention a suggestion by Gavin Bryars that Bride actually said
"Aughton," and was misquoted.
Still, there are authorities who stand by "Nearer, My God, to Thee" -- e.g. Butler-Unsink, p. 131, and tentatively Eaton/Haas, p. 32. I have to think this is wishful thinking; though Butler-Unsink addresses the counter-claim for "Autumn," he does not acknowledge the various problems with the claim for "Nearer...."
(It is ironic to note that the sinking does seem to have inspired a publishing boomlet -- Lynch/Marschall, p. 213, shows three editions of "Nearer, My God, to Thee" with the Titanic on the cover.)
(I will add a minor speculation of my own here. Tibballs, p. 320, prints a report that a single violinist played "Nearer..." "[a]fter all his fellow musicians had been washed away." Speaking only for myself, if I were in a situation where I knew death was coming soon, I'd haul out one or another instrument and start playing -- it would be the best distraction and farewell I can think of. And Butler-Unsink, p. 57, says that there were many musicians among the third class passengers, who staged their own dances along the way. We also have tales of hymn-sings and such; Lynch/Marschall, p. 77. Could it be that one of the passengers played "Nearer..."?)
The report Tibballs cites (from the Western Daily Mercury) was an extensive one, printed two weeks after the accident, and it seems to have contained nearly every inaccuracy contained in the Titanic songs:
A. That Murdoch shot himself (pp. 320, 326, 333 in the Tibballs reprint)
B. "Explosions" (pp. 320, 325, 326, 328, 335; an exploding boiler is mentioned in Bessie Jones's version of {#3}, but in fact the Titanic crew shut down the boilers early to prevent an explosion, and Ballard saw no evidence of any such thing; if there were explosions, they were simply of compressed air and probably occurred far below the surface). To be charitable, the process of shutting down the boilers did involve venting steam, which was a noisy process (it even made it hard for the wireless operators to work; Lynch/Marschall, p. 108) which someone might have interpreted as an explosion. Or, perhaps, a passenger below-decks might have heard the launching of the distress rockets and thought that was an explosion (cf. the description of the sound in Butler-Unsink, pp. 97-98; Lynch/Marschall, p. 99, calls it an unearthly roar which forced passengers to shout in order to be heard over the sound.)
C. An attempt to cross the ocean in "record time" (p. 324; cf. {#7}), when the Titanic had no chance whatsoever to cross faster than the Mauretania's record
D. Sundry claims to have been on "the last boat" (p. 324), when in fact the last boat was Lightoller's, which hadn't even been launched when the water rolled over it, and its passengers are well known
E. A claim that Titanic's "plates were ripped open from a dozen feet in from the bow to the second funnel" (p. 327) or "from the forecastle to the bridge (p. 335), which of course would have sunk her much faster
F. Two "Italians" trying to rush the boats; one "Dago" (yes, that was the word used, which will tell you the quality of this particular report) had to be shot (pp. 329, 338)
Plus, of course, several stories of the "last musician" (pp. 320, 326)

Even if no one played "Nearer, My God, to Thee," there was at least one hymn directly associated with the sinking: Philip Paul Bliss's "Pull for the Shore." This was sung aboard one of the lifeboats as they rowed away from the scene of the wreck (Wade, p. 236). There was bitter logic in the words:

Pull for the shore, sailor, pull for the shore!
Heed not the rolling waves, but bend to the oar;
Safe in the life boat, sailor, cling to self no more!
Leave the poor old stranded wreck, and pull for the shore.

Harland & Wolff, which built the Titanic, continued to prosper into the Twenties, but the partition of Ireland and the decline of the shipping fleet cost it much business. From a peak in the tens of thousands of employees, it now has only a few hundred (one of the biggest factors in the decline of the Belfast economy), and is now Norwegian-owned; the land on which Titanic was built was sold off in 2003 (Barczewski, p. 245).

Southampton, the Titanic's home port, suffered more immediate losses; the larger part of the ship's crew came from there, meaning that hundreds of families lost a loved one. The Daily Graphic printed a report headed "Stricken Southampton" (Tibballs, pp. 239-240). Barczewski, p. 248, says that there was one school in the town where no fewer than 125 students had lost a close relative. On p. 264, she notes that the population in 1912 was around 120,000, meaning that more than one Southampton resident in 200 was aboard the Titanic and more than one in 250 died aboard the ship (p. 266 says that 699 of 898 crewmembers lived in the Southampton area, while, Butler-Unsink, p. 172, says that 80% of the crew came from the city. Davenport-Hines, p. 249, agrees that 699 of 898 crew had "Southampton addresses," although some had moved there from Liverpool or elsewhere when White Star changed its base of operations).

Many of the Titanic songs of course stress the theme of hubris and how the ship had to be punished somehow. (#10 is the most extreme, but we also find this e.g. in versions of #1). This bit of theology did not originate with the songwriters; Biel, pp. 59-63, and at other points in the chapter labelled "Mammon," shows how preachers of the time offered this argument (which is at best dubiously Biblical -- Jesus in fact quite explicitly said that special punishments did not come to special sinners; see e.g. Luke 13:4). Biel cites (#10) as an example of how this doctrine became entrenched. Butler-Unsink, pp. 222-223, also discusses the mass religious outpouring on the theme of "God did it to show that humans are incompetent worms."

There were a number of goofy ideas proposed over the years to, well, raise the Titanic (#7). Most are pre-Ballard -- the first was proposed in 1914 (Lord-Lives, p. 194) -- so they didn't realize the ship was in two pieces, and most were unworkable even with an intact ship; it seems unlikely that anything will ever come of this (though Arthur C. Clarke produced some ideas that might actually work). Nor did anyone really have any idea what to do with the ship once raised; the idea of a museum was proposed, but one wag calculated that it would be economically unviable just because of the amount of paint required for the ship (Lynch/Marschall, p. 201).

It is sad to report that scavengers have recovered some scrap metal -- and, reportedly, are turning it into wrist watches. Other artifacts have definitely been recovered. Sadly, the Gods have not seen to strike these grave-robbers with the sort of punishment they deserve.

The wreck of the Carpathia, which had been sunk by a U-boat on July 17, 1918, was discovered in 2002 (Butler-Other, pp. 210-211), so no doubt it too has been visited by scavengers since then. (The Californian was also lost to a U-boat, in November 1915, but it has not been found; Butler-Other, pp. 214-215)

The last survivor of the Titanic, Elizabeth Gladys "Millvena" Dean, died at the end of May 2009, more than 97 years after the sinking. (Davenport-Hines, pp. 231-232. She was only a few weeks old when the ship sank, the child of a family trying to emigrate to America.) The legend, it seems clear, will survive much longer. - RBW

Bibliography

- Ballard: Dr. Robert D. Ballard, The Discovery of the Titanic (Warner, 1987). The standard work on the story of the Titanic herself after the last survivors left her, with many photos both of the ship as she sailed and of her as was found on the bottom. But most of the material is modern and does not come into the Titanic songs.

- Barczewski: Stephanie Barczewski, Titanic: A Night Remembered (Hambledon Continuum, 2004). One of the few books I've seen that is properly footnoted, though the author seems to have a fascination with people stories (it's perhaps revelatory that she dedicates the book to her dogs). And large sections seem to be taken almost verbatim from Lord-Lives. On the other hand, it's very useful as a counterweight to the "Titanic" movie.
Biel: Steven Biel, Down with the Old Canoe: A Cultural History of the Titanic Disaster (1996; I use the 1997 Norton edition). Not really a history of the ship, but of people's reactions to the sinking. Of course, the reactions are what inspired the songs.... A caution about his accuracy, though: He calls Kirsty MacColl (Ewan's daughter, unless there are two of them) "Irish!

Butler-Other: Daniel Allen Butler, The Other Side of the Night (Casemate, 2009). Unlike Butler's other book, this has no footnotes, but it's an interesting twist on the Titanic story, giving its attention to the other ships in the area on the "Night to Remember.

Butler-Unsink: Daniel Allen Butler, "Unsinkable": The Full Story (Stackpole, 1998). Properly footnoted, for once. Occasionally it's off the wall (e.g. it claims the band did in fact play "Nearer, My God, to Thee"), but for the most part it is a clear and readable summary, and it has interesting insights into some of the key players in the tragedy.

Eaton/Haas: John P. Eaton and Charles A. Haas, Titanic: Destination Disaster, The Legends and the Reality, revised edition, Norton, 1996. Over-dramatic, it seems to me (it treats as fact much that can only be speculation), but with many interesting photos and lists I have not seen elsewhere. On the other hand, it seems to approve of the grave-robbing expeditions to the site, and it is Lordite. I frankly did not like this book at all. And the photos are sometimes dubious -- one shows a ship with smoke coming out of all four funnels, even though one of Titanic's funnels was fake. Either the photo has been doctored or it is another ship.

Lynch/Marschall: Titanic: An Illustrated History, text by Don Lynch, paintings by Ken Marschall, introduction by Robert D. Ballard, 1992; I use the 1998 Hyperion edition. A few too many illustrations, and an inconvenient format, but if a graphic can explain something, it probably has it.

Matsen: Brad Matsen, Titanic's Last Secrets, Twelve Books, 2008. About an examination of the wreck site, with a rather different axe to grind, and frankly too dramatic for my taste.

Mersey: Shipping Casualties (Loss of the Steamship "Titanic") [The Mersey Report, or the Report of the Commissioner of Wrecks on the Loss of the Titanic], His Majesty's Stationary Office, 1912

Preston: Diana Preston, Lusitania: An Epic Tragedy (Walker, 2002; I use the 2003 Berkley edition). Obviously another book about the Lusitania rather than the Titanic, but it is properly footnoted and has useful background about the liners of the era.

Ritchie: David Ritchie, Shipwrecks: An Encyclopedia of the World's Worst Disasters at Sea, 1996 (I use the 1999 Checkmark paperback edition). Not specific to the Titanic, of course, but it has many pages on the subject, with special attention to the Californian affair.

Smithsonian: Smithsonian magazine, March 2012 issue, article "Shadow of the Titanic" by Andrew Wilson

Tibballs: Geoff Tibballs, editor, The Mammoth Book of the Titanic (Carroll & Graf, 2002). A selection of statements by survivors and witnesses, plus press accounts. Unfortunately, it has no index, and a minimal table of contents, so it contains a lot of useful information I couldn't cite because I couldn't find it when I was writing the relevant portions of this essay.

- Wade: Wyn Craig Wade, The Titanic: End of a Dream (revised edition, Penguin, 1986). This calls itself a Titanic book. It's more a book about William Alden Smith and an American post-mortem on the ship's sinking. Wade seems to think Smith was a great man. He really sounds more like a demagogue populist to me, though the legislation he introduced certainly made liners safer. Wade also views the sinking of the Titanic as ending some sort of Great Romantic Era. Most would consider World War I more important in that regard.
- I should probably also mention Arthur C. Clarke's fictional The Ghost from the Grand Banks (1990), the last solo novel from the last of the great titans of Science Fiction, and the one who always gave the most attention to the science. It's not one of Clarke's great works, and the background comes almost entirely from Ballard and Lord (which made it rather pointless to cite it), but it is gives some genuine life to some of Ballard's more clinical descriptions of the dead hulk -- and also gives some actually useful ideas about how to raise the ship.

Last updated in version 4.4
File: RCTita15

Titles of Songs (Song of Songs, Song of All Songs, Song of Song Titles)

DESCRIPTION: Lyrics composed of titles or pieces of other songs, e.g. "Mickey O'Flannigan he had a Bull Pup, Down Where the Pansies Grow, Don't You Leave Your Mother, Tom, For Mary Kelly's Beau."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1863 (Foster's sheet music)

KEYWORDS: lyric nonballad parody

FOUND IN: US(MW,So)

REFERENCES (8 citations):
- Randolph 515, "Titles of Songs" (4 texts, 1 tune)
- Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 380-381, "Titles of Songs" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 515A)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 234, "Working on the Railroad" (1 text plus two unrelated fragments, the "B" and "C" fragments probably belong with "Roll on the Ground (Big Ball's in Town)"; the "A" text is a jumble starting with "Working on the Railroad" but followed up by what is probably a "Song of All Songs" fragment)
- Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 131, "Reminiscences" (1 text)
- Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 45-46, "The Song of All Songs" (1 text)
- Saunders/Root-MusicOfStephenCFoster-Vol2, pp. 339-342+450, "The Song of All Songs" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2181, pp. 146-147, "The Song of All Songs" (7 references); probably also #2182, p. 147, "The Song of All Songs, No. 2" (10 references); #2183, p. 147, "Song of All Songs, No. 3" (2 references); #2188, p. 147, "Song of Many Songs" (3 references); #2189, p. 147, "Song of Many Songs" (2 references)

Roud #7598, 7599

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Songs of Old Ireland" (theme)
- cf. "Scotch Medley (II)" (theme of song titles)
- cf. "Oi They Marched Through the Town (The Captain with His Whiskers)" (tune of some texts, according to broadsides)

NOTES [147 words]: There are actually several pieces which go under this title (Randolph's A, B, and C form one group, his D another; Dean-FlyingCloud's a third, specifically of Irish songs; Stephen Foster with Tony Pastor produced the piece printed by Spaeth in 1863 and cited by Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, though Saunders and Root note that the lyrics are not by Pastor or Foster, and suggest John F. Poole as the writer). The Shepard broadside is particularly interesting, because it appears to be a Song of All Songs made into a street cry -- the seller is hawking the broadsides he sells!

All these songs have a common mechanism, however, and since it is often hard to tell one from another, I am lumping them here.
This has, of course, no relation to the Song of Songs (Song of Solomon, Canticles) in the Bible. For one thing, the Biblical book is erotic (arguably obscene), while this is clean. - RBW

Tittery Nan [Laws H16]

DESCRIPTION: Joe Dimsey steals old Josiah’s mare; the old man repays the younger back by recovering his horse and pummeling him

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland)

KEYWORDS: robbery fight thief injury

FOUND IN: US(NE)

REFERENCES (3 citations):

Laws H16, "Tittery Nan"
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 292-293, "Tittery Nan" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 712, TITERNAN

Roud #2194

NOTES [78 words]: Laws says, correctly, that "this little piece with its gay refrain is hardly more than a nonsense song," though Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland is of the opinion that it's based on fact. What fact she does not know.

Roud lumps this with "Titter-ni-an," as sung by Barney McCarthy. This is understandable based on the title, since he had only the sound recording, but I would consider them separate (while allowing that "Tittery Nan" may be a bowdlerized remake). - RBW

File: LH16

Tittery-ry-an

DESCRIPTION: "An old women went out to the barn Some eggs for to hunt... A mouse ran up her cunt.." She runs to her husband, begging him to turn it around so it doesn't gnaw its way out. The husband has intercourse with her until the mouse runs out her sleeve

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (collected from Barney McCarthy by Lomax)

KEYWORDS: sex humorous animal clothes

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Roud #2194

ALTERNATE TITLES:

Titter-ni-an

NOTES [53 words]: Roud, based on the title, lumps the Lomax recording of Barney McCarthy with "Tittery Nan" [Laws H16]. It is evident from the text printed by Leary and March, however, that they are in fact separate songs -- though I would allow a slight possibility that "Tittery Nan" is a thoroughly bowdlerized rewrite of this song. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4

File: JPLRMTRA

Tittler's Jam

DESCRIPTION: The singer returns from war and mother says "Johnny, you've been fighting. What do you want for tea?" She does not put out Tittler's jam. [The soldier's text starts] wonderful Titter's jam sent in one pound pots is in his dreams every night.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1918 (Belton and Odell)

KEYWORDS: army war food playparty

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
To All You Ladies now at Land

DESCRIPTION: "To all you ladies now at land, We men at sea indite," telling how hard it is to write. The singer hopes the women will understand why they are slow to answer. He tells of the hardships at sea and hopes the ladies will be true

AUTHOR: Charles Sackville, Earl of Dorset (Source: Ashton-RealSailorSongs)

EARLIEST DATE: 1891 (Ashton-RealSailorSongs); reportedly written 1664-1665

KEYWORDS: sailor hardtimes separation

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ashton-RealSailorSongs, #77, "To All You Ladies now on Land" (1 text)
Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic II, pp. 154-155, "To All You Ladies Now At Land" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #13886

File: AshS077

To Anacreon in Heaven

DESCRIPTION: "To Anacreon in heav'n where he sat in full glee, A few sons of harmony sent in a petition." They ask the poet to be their patron, describe how they intend to drink and enjoy themselves, and wander off into sundry classical allusions

AUTHOR: Words: Ralph Tomlinson / Music: John Stafford Smith (?)

EARLIEST DATE: 1778 (The Vocal Magazine)

KEYWORDS: drink nonballad gods

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 128, "The Anacreontic Song" (copy of the first page of a 1779/80 British printing)
Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 8-11, "To Anacreon in Heaven" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 528-533, "The Star Spangled Banner"

DT, ANCREON, ANACRON2

ADDITIONAL: Reginald Nettel, _Seven Centuries of Popular Song_, Phoenix House, 1956, p. 150, "(Anacreon in Heaven)" (1 short text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

ct. "The Star-Spangled Banner" (tune) and references there (including Same Tune references)

SAME TUNE:
The Star-Spangled Banner (File: MKr015) and references there

NOTES [336 words]: Anacreon (c. 563-476 B.C.E.) was a Greek poet for whom the anacreonitic metre (^^-^-^--) was named. Only fragments of his poetry survive; what scraps remain are in praise of wine, love, and pleasure.

John Stafford Smith is most frequently listed as the author of this tune, and his name appears on the first dated sheet music (1799; the earliest printing, probably c. 1782, has no author listed). However, Samuel Arnold, who conducted the Anacreonitic Society's orchestra, has also been named. William Reynolds, _Companion to Baptist Hymnal_, Broadman Press, 1976, p. 167, considers the tune anonymous and thinks Smith simply responsible for the arrangement. This song was written for the Anacreonitic Society, devoted (like Anacreon's writings) to wine and pleasure. The society broke up in 1786.

For commentary on the various obscure allusions in this piece, the reader is referred to Spaeth's Read 'Em and Weep. Those who wish to see a list of all the (generally dreadful) lyrics set to the tune around the beginning of the nineteenth century, see Spaeth's History of Popular Music in America, p. 40; there are others listed as "Same Tune" references for "The Star-Spangled Banner." See also "Adams and Liberty."

Supposedly the Anacreonitic Society died of its own success. According to Reginald Nettel, Seven Centuries of Popular Song, Phoenix House, 1956, p. 150, it became so famous that the Duchess of Devonshire wanted to attend. Even though she was behind a screen, the performers, whose songs were scandalous, could not deal with the situation, and soon were resigning en mass, resulting in its downfall. - RBW

Anyone who complains that our national anthem is bad poetry (and some do) should look at the lyrics to this song, its ancestor. They are immeasurably worse. The Library of Congress conducted a study of the song's origins in the early part of this century; among other issues, they considered (and rejected) a suggestion that the tune was composed by the Irish harper Turlough O'Carolan. - PJS

To Coont My Kin an' Pedigree

DESCRIPTION: The singer is offended that his antagonist, in "the filthy stuff that ye composed [with help]," ridiculed "my kin an' pedigree ... ye are like Melchisedeck we dinna know your race." He notes his antagonist's name is shared by a hangman.

AUTHOR: Peter McCombie (source: Greig/Duncan3)

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: accusation nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 674, "To Coont My Kin an' Pedigree" (1 text)

Roud #6098

NOTES [353 words]: Greig/Duncan3 quotes Charles Murray's conclusion that this is part of a battle between rhymers: one being McCombie and the other named Milne. The Melchisedeck reference, according to Greig/Duncan3, is to Hebrews 7:3 [more likely 7.1-3]: "For this Melchsdek, king of Salem, priest of the most high God ... without father, without mother, without descent, ...." referring back to Genesis 14.18-20 and Psalms 110.4. - BS

While Greig/Duncan3 quotes Hebrews 7:1-3, the actual reference in the song is indeed to Hebrews 7:3, which is the source of the statement that Melchizedek is without father or mother or genealogy. There is no hint of this in Genesis (which simply refers to him as king of [Jeru]salem) or in Psalm 110 (which calls him a "priest forever" -- although in fact the text of the verse is somewhat unclear and some think that it does not refer to Melchizedek). The reference to Hebrews is further supported by the spelling "Melchisedec," which is the form used in Hebrews 7:1 of the King James Bible; the Old Testament of the KJV, and most modern translations, spell the name "Melchizedek," which corresponds more closely to the Hebrew.

We might add that every New Testament reference to Melchizedek is in Hebrews: 5:6, 10, 6:20, 7:1, 10, 11, 15, 17.

There is an interesting twist here, in that the words used in Hebrews 7:3 for "without father" and "without mother" often refer to orphans or even illegitimate children -- a useful insinuation in a slanging contest. However, it seems unlikely that our author knew that.

In any case, the whole thing is probably overblown. Although the name "Melchizedek" does suggest "King [root 'melch'] of righteousness [root 'zadok']," it is likely that the name as used in Genesis is that of an actual Canaanite king; "Zedek" might even be his god. If Jerusalem had had Yahwist kings, there would have been no need for David to conquer it in the centuries after Abraham's encountered with Melchizedek. Hebrews is working from a legitimate Jewish tradition (hinted at in the Psalm and expanded in extra-canonical writings), but it is hardly based on actual history. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4

File: GrD3674
To Daunton Me (I)
DESCRIPTION: "To daunton [subdue] me, and me sae young, And gude King James's auldest son, O that's the thing that ne'er can be, For the man's unborn that will daunton me." The singer claims that only poverty can keep him down: "Now I hae scarce to lay me on"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1821 (Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2)
KEYWORDS: exile nonballad Jacobites
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2 44, "To Daunton Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan6 1134, "To Daunton Me" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #6826
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "To Daunton Me (II)" (tune, pattern)
cf. "To Daunton Me (III)" (tune, pattern)
NOTES [269 words]: Here the singer plays the part of The Old Pretender, James [III and] VIII. Like "The Shan Van Voght" in Ireland, "To Daunton Me" provides a theme to be adapted to different situations and dates. Hogg provides two other examples: the singer of "To Daunton Me (II)" is a supporter of The Old Pretender who would see "King James at Edinburgh cross, Wi' fifty thousand foot and horse"; the singer of "To Daunton Me (III)" is a supporter of the [Young] Pretender ("For Charles we'll conquer or we'll die"). Then there's the Robert Burns version pitting youth against wealth and age ("An auld man shall never daunton me.") The fragment Greig/Duncan6 1134 may belong to any of these or to some other version entirely; the editor, Elaine Petrie, writes that "Volume 6, is the Heartbreak Hotel of the collection" [p. xviii]. Maybe so, but I would put the fragment either here, with "To Daunton Me (I)," (as would, apparently, Duncan [p. 551]), or the Burns version. - BS
I might add that this is a song utterly uncharacteristic of the Old Pretender; it seems to describe an optimistic, go-for-it sort of guy. But every book I can recall reading describes him as a pessimist, almost morose, unwilling to take risks even when the potential reward was great. The 1715 rebellion was an obvious example: It might have had a chance had he hurried to Scotland -- but he waited until after Sheriffmuir, came ashore just long enough to say he'd come, and left. Susan Maclean Kybett Bonnie Prince Charlie, Dodd Mead, 1988), p. 16. notes that James came to be called "Old Mr. Melancholy," and I have to say that the name fits. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.5
File: Hogg2044

To Daunton Me (II)
DESCRIPTION: "D'ye ken the thing that wad daunton me? Eighty-eight and eighty-nine, And a'the dreary years sinsyne" The singer wants "banishment to a' the Whigs," the return of King James to Edinburgh, and "the usurper forc'd to flee"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1821 (Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2)
KEYWORDS: nonballad Jacobites political
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2 46, "To Daunton Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6826
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "To Daunton Me (I)" (tune, pattern) and discussion there
cf. "To Daunton Me (III)" (tune, pattern)
NOTES [115 words]: William of Orange came to England in 1688 and formally became William III of England and William II of Scotland in 1689. - BS
The dating of this depends very much on the meaning of the word "return." Does the author mean that he wants King James II and VIII to come "back" to Edinburgh, where he was once King? In that case, it must be from before 1701, when James II died. Or does the author merely want the Stuarts back, in which case the Old Pretender, James III and VIII could be meant, and the song could come from almost any time.
For background on the Glorious Revolution of 1688-1689, see e.g. the notes to "The Vicar of Bray"; for the aftermath, see "The Battle of the Boyne (I)." - RBW
To Daunton Me (III)

DESCRIPTION: "At Moidart our young prince did land, With seven men at his right hand, And a' to conquer nations three: That is the lad that shall wanton me." Woe to those that exiled the king. "Raise the banner, raise it high; For Charles we'll conquer or we'll die"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1821 (Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2)
KEYWORDS: rebellion exile return nonballad Jacobites royalty
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 16, 1745 - Bonny Prince Charlie and "the seven men of Moidart" sail from Belle-Ile for Britain (source: Tim Robertson, "Bonnie Prince Charlie in Moidart, 1745-1746" at Moidart Local History Group site)
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2 45, "To Daunton Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "To Daunton Me (I)" (tune, pattern) and discussion there
cf. "To Daunton Me (II)" (tune, pattern)

To Make Your Mother Dance

DESCRIPTION: "To make your mother dance, Put ants in her pants."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty mother clothes
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 132, "(To make your mother dance)" (1 text)

To Market, To Market

DESCRIPTION: "To market, to market, to buy a (plum bun/plum cake/fat pig/etc.), Home again, home again, jiggety jig, To market, to market, to buy a fat hog, Home again, home again, jiggety-job"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1598 (Florio, A World of Words, according to the Opies)
KEYWORDS: animal commerce
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 339, "To Market, To Market" (2 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #565, pp. 230-231, "(To market, to market)"
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 112, "To Market, To Market, to Buy a Fat Pig" (2 texts)
Roud #19708

To Mary in Heaven

DESCRIPTION: "Mary! dear departed shade ... See'st thou thy lover lowly laid." The singer recalls their meetings. "Still o'er these scenes my mem'ry wakes And fondly broods with miser-care; Time but th' impression stronger makes"

AUTHOR: Robert Burns
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast)
KEYWORDS: grief love death lament nonballad
To Meet Again

DESCRIPTION: "I sit broken-hearted tonight, love, A-thinking of you, darling one...." "There’s no one to kiss me good night, love." He says, "God knows that I love you, But, darling, we have to part." She is now "no one's darling"; she hopes they will meet in heaven

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois)
KEYWORDS: love separation
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 233-234, "To Meet Again" (1 text)
Roud #4330
File: Neel233

To Men

DESCRIPTION: Young men are are concerned with their clothes, their snuff, and drink while they slight lasses. When courting they are "puffed up with pride" and "gar the siller flee" but after marriage "the hoose it is tae build the siller is tae borrow"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage warning clothes money drink drugs nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast 150, p. 1, "The Young Men" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 649, Greig/Duncan8 Addenda, "To Men" (5 texts, 2 tunes)
Roud #6078
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Sheffield Apprentice" (tune, per Greig/Duncan3)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
What Means Now A’ the Young Men?
I Wonder All Ye Young Men
Oh What Do All the Young Men Mean
File: GrD3649

To Reap and Mow the Hay

DESCRIPTION: The singer is in Scotland, driven from Ireland by the landlord and bad times. He is invited to stay a week "putting in the hay" with a 1914 veteran. He marries the farmer's niece. They'll go to Ireland now but return yearly to Scotland to make the hay.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (recording, Paddy and Jimmy Halpin)
KEYWORDS: marriage war travel return farming hardtimes Ireland Scotland family
FOUND IN: Ireland
Roud #12937
RECORDINGS:
To Roll Her In My Plaidie

DESCRIPTION: "There lives a lass by yonder burn... And aft she gies her sheep a turn That feed amang the bracken."
"Could I believe she'd woo wi' me... I'd afttimes slip out owre yon lea And roll her in my plaidie." The poor lovestruck lad tells how he would woo her.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads)

KEYWORDS: love courting

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES:
- Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 420, "To Roll Her In My Plaidie" (1 text)
- Roud #3948

File: Ord420

---

To the Man in the Chains

DESCRIPTION: A response to, or continuation of, The Leadsman's Lament." "To the man in the chains, Send an oilskin when it rains, And if it pleases You, Take me from the seaboat's crew."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)

KEYWORDS: sailor hardtimes storm derivative

FOUND IN: Britain

REFERENCES:
- Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 30, "To the Man in the Chains" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Leadsman's Lament" (apparent preface to this song)

File: Tawn012

---

To the Mast Nail Our Flag: The Pirate's Song

DESCRIPTION: "To the mast nail our flat, It is dark as the grave, Or the death which it bears while it sweeps o'er the wave." When the pirate takes a prize, "It is mine to divide it, and yours to obey." "I only shed blood where another sheds tears."

AUTHOR: Words: "L. E. L." / Music: Horatio D. Hewitt (sheet music cover reproduced by Frank-NewBookOfPirateSongs)

EARLIEST DATE: 1837 ("The Pirate's Own Book," according to Frank-NewBookOfPirateSongs)

KEYWORDS: pirate battle money wine

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES:
- Frank-NewBookOfPirateSongs 58, "To the Mast Nail Our Flag: The Pirate's Song" (1 text, 1 tune; #53 in the first edition, where it is entitled "The Pirate's Song (II) and has no tune)
- Roud #V30577

File: FrPi058B

---

To the Memory of the Late Captain Kennedy

DESCRIPTION: "Slowly today we wend our way To a grave in Belvedere Behind the corpse of a hero bold." The singer tells of Kennedy's voyages, and describes his heroism when the Viking caught fire.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (King, The Viking's Last Cruise)

KEYWORDS: ship fire rescue

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- 1931 - Explosion destroys the sealer "Viking"

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES:
- (1 citation):
NOTES [1932 words]: The Viking, the ship in this song, is also mentioned in "Captains and Ships," "Success to the Hardy Sealers," "Success to Every Man," and "A Noble Fleet of Sealers." She was built in Arendal, Norway in 1881 (Clarke, p. 291; FelthamSteamers, p. 153; O'Neill, p. 968). Fritjof Nansen used her for an arctic expedition in 1882. She became a sealer in 1904, and served under William Bartlett (related to Robert Bartlett of "Captain Bob Bartlett") for the first 22 of those years (FelthamSteamers, pp. 153-154).

Several sailors who sailed in her called her ill-designed to be a sealer; Wilfred Andrews recalled, "Now, the worst ship was the old Viking. The hatches were above us where we slept between decks. And when we were lying on our bunks the seal pelts used to fall on our bunks sometimes" (Ryan-Last, p. 112). Clarence Bartlett also said he "didn't like the Viking" -- and when he was offered a berth on her, he gave it to someone else instead (Ryan-Last, p. 134) and so avoided the disaster in this song. She is also said to have been underpowered (Ryan-Last, p. 367). Oliver James said she was "just like a big schooner" (Ryan-Last, p. 410), which hints that she was maneuverable but slow.

As a sealer, her results were steady but unspectacular, averaging barely more than 10,000 seals per year (FelthamNortheast, p. 95). This was somewhat less than half what the best sealers managed; admittedly she was small, and couldn't hold more than about 20,000 seals (FelthamSteamers, p. 156), but it's clear that she was rarely notable for success. On the other hand, that probably made her more than usually available for unusual duties such as the one which led to her end.

Whence this song. In 1930, a fellow named Varick Frissell decided to make what we would now probably call a sealing docu-drama, originally titled "White Thunder" but eventually released as "The Viking." O'Flaherty, p. 365, describes it as "a hokey love story with astounding scenes of moving ice floes and sealers jumping among them, scenes perhaps unequalled in film history." This followed an earlier (silent) documentary, "The Great Arctic Seal Hunt" (Ryan-Ice, p. 320 n. 23). In the initial filming, Frissell worked on the Ungava, with Robert Bartlett (for whom see "Captain Bob Bartlett") playing the Captain (somewhat incompetently, based on the jokes the crew made about his inability to remember his lines). It was definitely a scripted production; they even brought snow-making equipment and wind machines to the ice! (Ryan-Last, p. 275), and encouraged the men to engage in stunts and spectacular behaviors (Ryan-Last, p. 410). O'Neill, p. 968, reports that Charles Starrett, later known for an astounding number of cowboy films, had the lead role (credited as "Luke Oarum" by imdb.com), and that it was "the first American sound feature shot on location outside the United States," and the first sound feature shot in Canada. Unfortunately, O'Neill, p. 969, also tells us the "acting is pathetic."

However, after the film crew brought their material home, it was decided that more footage was needed. So the film crew went out again in 1931, this time in the Viking, with Abram Kean Jr., the nephew (so Ryan-Last, p. 101; others say son) of the famous Abram Kean (for whom see "Captain Abram Kean") in charge of the ship and Alfred Kean the first mate (FelthamNortheast, p. 96). (Bartlett, it should be stressed, had been on the earlier trip as an actor, not the man in charge.) Clarke, p. 291, gives Abram Kean Jr's dates as 1887-1958.

They set out on March 9, 1931 -- the very last ship of the sealing fleet to leave (FelthamSteamers, p. 157).

It was a tough voyage from the start; the season was stormy, and the ship started to take on water, so they had to make a stop for repairs before they even went to the ice (Keir, pp. 338-339; one account of the problems is on p. 413 of Ryan-Last, which has many accounts of the Viking disaster although most are so disorderly as to be unhelpful).

Apparently one of the film crew's ideas to improve the drama was to cause an explosion to set icebergs rolling and grinding. Sealers often carried gunpowder, in case they got stuck in the ice, and they were incredibly casual about fire (England, pp. 17-18). But, because the filmmakers wanted their fancy effect, it is said that there was extra powder aboard on this trip (Candow, p. 92); some think they had thermite as well (O'Flaherty, p 365). When the Viking was in the vicinity of the Horse Islands off Newfoundland's north coast (FelthamNortheast, in the map on p. x), on March 15, 1931, it blew up. Some reports claim there were two explosions (Keir, p. 339).

One sailor, Clarence Bartlett, later claimed that there was a plot to blow her up (Ryan-Last, pp. 134-135), but this was a memory from half a century later, and there is no way he could have known anyway. Winsor, p. 89, thinks that some flares had been damaged, and someone carried them off and they exploded. But it's all speculation.

There is disagreement about the number of men lost. FelthamSteamers, pp. 158-159, Candow, p. 92, and Winsor, p. 89, say 28 men; Looker, p. 47, says 58; Ryan-Ice, p. 450 [a contemporary
There is a photo of the Viking, who had his leg broken in three places in the explosion, recounted, "Jacob Kean in the Sagona left St. John's Sunday night and just before dark, Tuesday evening, picked up Clayton King, Captain Kennedy, and Sargent. They got driven away at a tangent from the disaster area. They must have gotten in the tide and drove out around the cape but we didn't.... Captain Kennedy died off Cape Bonavista and Fred Best [who had been with Kean] died in the summer" (FelthamNortheast, p. 99). According to Ernest Spracklin, an eyewitness who gave the longest account in Ryan-Last (pp. 412-416), "Captain Kennedy, the navigator, died in one of the boats on the way back to St. John's."

The survivors were mostly rescued by the Sagona and the Beothic II (FelthamNortheast, pp. 100-101, etc.). Clarke, p. 292, says the Foundation, Franklyn, and Eagle also were involved. The cause of the disaster was never really determined; the man who was in charge of the explosives was one of the dead (FelthamNortheast, pp. 104-105).

The survivors had to make their way across the ice pans to land (Looker, p. 47). Only one body was ever found (FelthamSteamers, p. 158). FelthamNortheast, p. 99, says there were 128 survivors, but Candow, p. 92, claims there were 147 on board (a figure also quoted by Andrieux, p. 105, and Green, p. 65). O'Flaherty, p. 365, claims a regular crew of 147 plus two stowaways and Frissell's crew of four; Clarke, p. 291, says "about 150"), which means that Candow would allow only 119 survivors.

Note that this text (probably a poem rather than a song) was published by Clayton King in his account of the disaster. Candow, p. 92, says there was no compensation for the victims, because the law didn't cover this sort of accident. (Plus Newfoundland was bankrupt and would soon lose its elected government; according to O'Flaherty, p. 365, news of the disaster interrupted the legislature as they wrestled with their fiscal problems.) On the other hand, survivor George Adams said that "[Richard] Squires was prime minister. He came to see us, shook hands with us, and gave us $50 each. We were lucky to get that, but, still, we lost all our belongings, our clothes, and everything we had. We had nothing left" (Ryan-Last, p. 105). Survivor Ernest Spracklin says that it was more of a merchandise credit -- they could buy $50 in supplies from the Royal Stores. On paper, that meant a profit for the men -- no one carried $50 worth of stuff to the ice; indeed, few sealers made that sort of money -- but it of course meant that they didn't get the pay they hoped for from the trip.

The footage for the film was thought lost for a time but was eventually discovered in 1950 and the film released in 1971 (Tarver, p. 168).

As was often the case in Newfoundland, tragedy brought forth much folk poetry, and newspapers often printed it. FelthamNortheast, pp. 106-107, has two examples of pieces about this disaster. NewfoundlandStories, pp. 13-15, has one by author Addison Bown; it's much too flowery for my taste (and, given the number of small errors found in Bown's article, I don't trust it much). There is a photo of the Viking on p. 182 of FelthamSteamers, one on p. 103 of Andrieux, one on p.
67 of Winsor, and another on p. 28 of Ryan/Drake. P. 69 of Ryan/Drake (actually a four page spread) has eight photos associated with the film that destroyed the Viking, including movie stills and shots of the production team as well as of the ship itself. Clarke, p. 291, has a damaged photo of Frissell and a number of his crewmen on shipboard. O'Neill, p. 948, has a photo -- probably meant to be publicity photo -- of Bob Bartlett in his role as the sealing captain.

Earl B. Pilgrim wrote a book, The Day of Varick Frissell (Print Atlantic, no date, and the copyright page claims it has an index, but it doesn't), which I unfortunately bought because I didn't know it was fiction. It does have a few interesting photos of Frissell and a distant photo of the Viking, plus a list of those who were aboard her and those who were lost.

For more on the Sagona, which was the main rescue ship, see the notes to "Greedy Harbour." - RBW

Bibliography

- Looker: Janet Looker, Disaster Canada, Lynx Images, 2000
- NewfoundlandStories: (H. Carter, editor), Newfoundland Stories and Ballads, Volume XX No. 2, Winter-Spring 1974, article "The Viking Disaster" by Addison Bown on pp. 3-15

Last updated in version 6.0

File: RySm105

To the North, To the North

DESCRIPTION: "To the north, to the north, Where the squatters go bung, Where greenhide's their mainstay... Where for tucker and water you'll often run short While humping your bluey In the land of the north." The singer describes the many problems of life in the north

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (Fahey-Joe-Watson-AustralianTraditionalFolkSinger)

KEYWORDS: travel hardtimes

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (1 citation):

*Fahey-Joe-Watson-AustralianTraditionalFolkSinger, [p. 18, page headed "Ditty: The plains of"], (no title) (1 text)
To the Stars

DESCRIPTION: "There are songs they sing in the army, Songs in the navy too; But we sing a song that rolls along, The song of the boys in blue." The airmen are "Zooming up boys to the stars!" "These words will guide us, Through adversity to the stars."

AUTHOR: Harold Walker (source: Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1941 (Bert Pearl, The Happy Gang book of war songs, according to Worldcat)
KEYWORDS: soldier technology nonballad war
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, pp. 72-73, "To the Stars" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #29424
File: Hopk072

To the Weaver's Gin Ye Go

DESCRIPTION: "My heart was ance as blythe and free As simmer days were lang," but a weaver "has gart me change my sang." Sent to the weaver, he "conveyed me through the glen." As for what happened after, "I fear the kintra soon Will ken as weel's mysel'."

AUTHOR: Words: Robert Burns
EARLIEST DATE: 1788 (according to Kinsley, _Burns_)
KEYWORDS: weaving seduction sex pregnancy warning
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
MacColl-ShuttleAndCage-IndustrialFolkBallads, p. 23, "To the Weavers Gin Ye Go" (1 text, 1 tune)
MacColl-PersonalChoice, pp. 52-53, "To the weavers gin ye go" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, GINYOUGO*
ADDITIONAL: James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume II, #103, p. 106, "To the Weaver's gin ye go" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: MacCS23

To the West A While to Stay

DESCRIPTION: "As I sit here sad and lonely, Thinkin' of my dear old home, Of my home an' dear old mother, How much further must I roam?" The singer recalls the sad parting when he told mother he was leaving. Now he learns that mother died while he was far away

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: death separation mother
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 191, "To the West Awhile to Stay" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 189-190, "To the West Awhile to Stay" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 191)
Roud #4050
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Ten Thousand Miles Away (On the Banks of Lonely River)" (plot)
NOTES [8 words]: This song is item dB37 in Laws's Appendix II. - RBW
File: R191

To Turra Toon on Business Bent

DESCRIPTION: A tailor went to Turra "on business bent ... Some said he had no business, But it was the opening day." He arrived and came to a table with "dainties there for all ...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: commerce food
To Your Tents O Erins

DESCRIPTION: "In Union, blessed Union, will Freedom be found." Union's first year is ending. Union "fills the traitors with fear." "Men to your Tents', now through Erin be sung ... Till Erin, loved Erin, from tyranny's freed."

AUTHOR: Theobald Wolfe Tone (1763-1798) (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

EARLIEST DATE: before 1804 (_Paddy's Resource_, according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

KEYWORDS: freedom Ireland nonballad patriotic political

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Oct 1791 - Society of United Irishmen founded in Belfast

NOTES [285 words]: Union, here, cannot be the Union of Ireland with Britain (which occurs in 1801, after Tone's death); it must be the formation of the United Irishmen, co-founded by Tone in 1791. The text begins by enthusiastically supporting "Union." It ends by repeating references to I Kings 12:16 in which deceased Solomon's kingdom is permanently split into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah; this, following Rehoboam's rejection of Israel's call for relief ("So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them, the people answered the king [Rehoboam], saying, What portion have we in David? neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse [Rehoboam again]: to your tents, O Israel: now see to thine own house, David [Rehoboam once again, and/or Judah [actually the Davidic dynasty, as represented by Rehoboam, David's grandson and Jesse's great-grandson - RBW]]. So Israel departed unto their tents.") - BS

Like so much in Irish history, I personally would regard the "to your tents" phrase as words of ill omen, not good. Effectively the same phrase occurs in 2 Samuel 20:1 (slightly obscured in the King James rendering, it seems to me) as part of the rebellion of Sheba son of Bichri, which was quickly crushed. The rebellion of Israel against the Davidic dynasty was not crushed, but neither was Israel very successful; it took half a century before a dynasty was established which lasted for more than a year beyond the death of its founder, and the nation as a whole lasted only about 200 years. The phrase "every man to his tent" occurs on a number of other occasions as well -- after battles in which the Israelites are defeated: The routed warriors flee to their own tents after the battle is lost.

- RBW

Toast to Beara, A

DESCRIPTION: "Let's drink a toast to Beara to the gallant sporting team: On the football fields of the County Cork today they reign supreme." Their victories are listed. The members of the team are named. "Here's success to all their followers"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (OCanainn-SongsOfCork)

KEYWORDS: sports moniker nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCanainn-SongsOfCork, pp. 86-87, "A Toast to Beara" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [14 words]: OCanainn-SongsOfCork: This song is about the 1933 Beara [Gaelic] football team.

- BS
Tobacco Pipes and Porter
DESCRIPTION: "Tobacco pipes, tobacco pipes, tobacco pipes and porter Mony ane will sing a sang, but few will sing a shorter."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: drink drugs nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 568, "Tobacco Pipes and Porter" (1 short text)
ADDITIONAL: David Buchan, editor, Scottish Tradition: A Collection of Scottish Folk Literature (Boston, 1984), #49a p. 141, ["Songs for Non-Singers"] ("Tobacco pipes, tobacco pipes, tobacco pipes and porter")
Roud #5894
NOTES [15 words]: Buchan: "Said or sung by persons unwilling or unable to comply with repeated requests" - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD3568

Tobacco Plenty
DESCRIPTION: Singer has bad luck. He sat down to smoke but his pipe was empty. He tried to shave but, lacking a cake of soap, used a potato instead. He tripped over a hole in his socks and broke his nose ... If times improve he may pay the rent.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan2)
KEYWORDS: hardtimes humorous drugs
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan2 285, "Tobacco Plenty" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
Roud #5856
ALTERNATE TITLES:
One Day As I Sat on my Loom
Tobacco Song (I), The
DESCRIPTION: "Ye fellows smokes tobacco, come pity my case, I'm here on this island without a damn taste." Desperate people without a draw or chaw are smoking tea and worse, or chewing wax. When the wind changes and the ice goes they'll get tobacco at St Peter's.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)
KEYWORDS: ordeal nonballad drugs
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 109, "The Tobacco Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Anita Best, "Tobacco" (on NFABest01)
File: LeBe109

Tobacco Union (Talking with the Social Union)
DESCRIPTION: "Come young and old and hear me tell / How strong tobacco smokers smell, / Who love to smoke the pipe so well. / For tobacco they will smell, To burn and smoke in union." A condemnation of tobacco, of those who spend money to buy it, and of its effects
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: drugs accusation
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Randolph 508, "Tobacco Union" (1 text, 1 tune) (compare also the "B" fragment of 408, "The Little Brown Jug")
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 378-380, "Tobacco Union" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 508)
McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, pp. 177-179, "The Tobacco Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 91, "Talking with the Social Union" (1 text, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, p. 71, "Tobaccer Union" (1 text, 1 tune) DT, TOBBACUN*
Roud #5721
NOTES [9 words]: Apparently an adaption of the hymn "Heavenly Union." - RBW
Last updated in version 5.1
File: R508

Tobacco's But an Indian Weed

DESCRIPTION: Tobacco is offered as a parable for life: "Grows green at morn, cut down at eve."
"The pipe... Is broke with a touch -- man's life is such." "The smoke... shows us man's life must have an end." The moral: "Think on this when you smoke tobacco."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1699 (Pills to Purge Melancholy); also in Trinity College (Dublin) MS. G.2.21

KEYWORDS: nonballad drugs

FOUND IN: Britain(England) US(Ap)

REFERENCES (11 citations):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 93, "A Peculiar Sermon for Shanty Boys" (1 text)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 45, "Tobacco Is an Indian Weed" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol2, p. 58, "Tobacco la an Indian Weed" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 262-263, "Tobacco" (1 text) Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic II, pp. 78-79, "Tobacco's But an Indian Weed" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland, Song #37, pp. 233-235, "Tobacco"
(1 text); Poem #8, pp. 36-39, "Smoking Spiritualised" (1 text)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 259-261, "Smoking Spiritualized"; pp. 452-453, "Tobacco" (2 texts)
Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 80-81, "Tobacco" (1 text, 1 tune)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN2658, "Tobacco is but an Indian weed"
ADDITIONAL: Norman Ault, _Elizabethan Lyrics From the Original Texts_, pp. 56-57, "A Religious Use of Taking Tobacco" (1 text)

DT, INDNWEED*

ST Log262 (Full)
Roud #1457

NOTES [169 words]: This also appears as a portion of a poem, "Smoking Spiritualized." The remaining portion is said to be "very inferior." "Smoking Spiritualized" was published under the name of Rev. Ralph (or "Ebenezer") Erskine in a book of Gospel Sonnets. Although some have thought that the Erskine version is older than that in Pills, the fact that Erskine was born in 1685 argues that the song is older than his work. Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland and Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland offers some details on this history; it is possible that Erskine added a second part to the poem, or simply reworked it to produce the "Smoking Spiritualized" form.

Ault offers an even earlier claim, crediting the piece to "Wisdom" and dating the poem "before 1568" (I'm not sure if that is based on the Trinity College manuscript or the dates for Wisdom or just pure fancy; my suspicion is the last). - RBW

Beck credits this to "some moralizing shanty boy of 1892." Surprise! - PJS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: Log262
Tobasco

DESCRIPTION: The singer notes, "You can talk about your cities... But the little place of Tobasco is good enough for me." Tobasco has no fancy buildings, ornate churches, or sidewalks, and is not right for everyone -- but it suits the singer just fine

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1982

KEYWORDS: nonballad home

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

FSCatkills 158, "Tobasco" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST FSC158 (Partial)

File: FSC158

---

Tobias Murphy and Tom Hann

DESCRIPTION: Two captains, Murphy and Hann, are on St Mary's banks in a September gale. Hann's boat runs aground rounding Cape St Mary's and all hands are lost. Murphy's boat heads for North Harbour but two men are swept overboard.

AUTHOR: Peter Leonard

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)

KEYWORDS: death sea ship storm wreck

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 110, "Tobias Murphy and Tom Hann" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #28981

RECORDINGS:

Mr. Fitzgeralds, "Two Vessels Lost at Cape St. Mary's" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

NOTES [123 words]: Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou: "According to Aunt Carrie Brennan, this sea tragedy occurred in 1878" - BS

1878 was indeed a bad year for storms and storm losses -- in 1879, the governor would comment on the heavy losses of ships in 1878 (Shannon Ryan, The Ice Hunters: A History of Newfoundland Sealing to 1914, Breakwater Books, 1994, p. 300), but I've yet to find an account of this particular tragedy. The story would be easier to trace if the song had the names of the ships rather than the captains....

Peter Leonard is credited with at least four songs in the Index, "The Schooner Annie," "The Hole in the Wall," "Soup Supper in Clattice Harbour," and "Tobias Murphy and Tom Hann," none of which seem to have been very well known.- RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: LeBe110

---

Toby

DESCRIPTION: "When I came down from the North country, I looked so poor and toggy, A lie I am not telling you, All were deceived in Toby." Time and again, Toby shows up in some situation and proves himself capable, e.g. he goes to a pub, and he is able to pay

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1891 (Baring Gould collection, from Matthew Ford)

KEYWORDS: clothes money cards trick disguise

FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 27, "Toby" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #3310

File: Gund027

---

Tochineal

DESCRIPTION: "Come a' my young lads, ye'll mak haste and be ready... An' we ane and a'... Maun leave Tochineal, nae mair to come back." "Awa to the West we maun a' gang thegither."
Many are forced to depart; the singer laments that the new home will not be Tochineal

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: home emigration
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 374, "Tochineal" (1 text)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 353, "Tochineal" (1 text)
Roud #4591

NOTES [82 words]: Nowhere does this song explain the reason for this mass emigration, but one has to suspect it is the result of the Highland Clearances. Given the title and the metrical form, I suspect this of having been sung to "Teddy O'Neill," though neither Ord nor Grieg had a tune. - RBW
Greig/Duncan3 has a map on p. xxxv, of "places mentioned in songs in volume 3" showing the song number as well as place name; Tochineal (374) is at coordinate (h6-7,v5) on that map [roughly 45 miles NW of Aberdeen]. - BS

Last updated in version 2.4
File: Ord353

Toco Bad Lumber

DESCRIPTION: The singer warns "bad lumber" that she will never marry no matter how she "grease you' heel" or "pare you' toe"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (Elder-FolksongsFromTobago)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage warning nonballad
FOUND IN: West Indies(Tobago)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Elder-FolksongsFromTobago 33, "Toco Bad Lumber" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [75 words]: Elder-FolksongsFromTobago: "In 'Toco Bad Lumber' the [reel dance] drummers sing about the female of bad reputation who seeks marriage, a highly prized achievement in the rural village. But peasants have codes of moral behaviour and anyone who does not conform to them is denounced as 'bad lumber.'"
Toco is the village in Trinidad that the Herskovitses reported on in 1939. It is on the north-east corner of Trinidad, the closest point to Tobago. - BS

Last updated in version 4.0
File: ElTo033

Today

DESCRIPTION: "Today, while the blossom still clings to the vine," the singer intends to enjoy life. He won't worry about the future or "be contented with yesterday's glory... Today is my moment, and now is my story I'll laugh and I'll cry and I'll sing."

AUTHOR: Randy Sparks (according to Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong)
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1964 (see notes); 1980 (Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong)
KEYWORDS: lyric nonballad
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong 25, pp. 148-149, "Today" (1 text)
Roud #24303
RECORDINGS:
Jerome Downey, "Today" (on NFJDowney01)

NOTES [33 words]: Bennett/Downey-JeromeJustOneMoreSong: "This song was originally composed as part of the sound-track of a Hollywood movie, 'Advance to the Rear' (1964), set at the time of the American Civil War." - BS

Last updated in version 3.6
File: BeDo148
Todlin' But and Toddlin' Ben (The Wee Little Totum)

DESCRIPTION: "Some say to live single it is the best plan, But I was ne'er happy till I got a man, When I got a man I soon got a wean...." "It gangs toddlin' but, and gangs toddlin' ben." The singer describes the toddler's cheerful rambles, and rejoices in her life

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: marriage love baby wife
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan5 1072, "Oor Wee Little Tottum" (5 texts, 5 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 137, "The Wee Totum" (1 text)
Roud #5551
NOTES [58 words]: Greig/Duncan5 quoting Gillespie: "Mrs Gillespie and myself, from a Mr Reid, precentor at Strichen and singing teacher about 1869." - BS
Not to be confused with the poem "Todlen butt, and todlen ben," found in Ramsay's 1724 Tea-Table Miscellany. That is listed as a modified old song, so it may be derived from this, but the plot is different. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.0
File: 0rd137

Todlin Hame

DESCRIPTION: "When I've a saxpence under my thumb, Then I get credit in ilka town: But ay when I'm poor they bid me gang by, O! poverty parts good company." The singer and his wife enjoy their ale as they wake. His wife is sweet when drinking but a fighter sober.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1733 (Ramsay)
KEYWORDS: marriage drink humorous nonballad husband wife
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 72, "Todlin' Hame" (1 text)
James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume III, #275, p. 284, "Todlen Hame" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST AdART167 (Partial)
Roud #6493
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "George Ridler's Oven" (one verse) and references there
NOTES [170 words]: "'Todlin Hame' is one of the bacchanalian rants of our forefathers, in the days when honest burgesses got innocently muddled on twopenny ale: it used to be sung with such effect by an Edinburgh writer of the last century, that his boon companions had him painted in the appropriate attitude which he always assumed in correspondence with the first line -- 'When I has a saxpence under my thoum....'" (source: "Scottish Songs", William and Robert Chambers, editors, Chambers's Edinburgh Journal (London, 1836 ("Digitized by Google")), No. 190, September 19, 1835, p. 26).
Robert Burns: "Scottish Bacchanalians we certainly want, though the few we have are excellent. For instance, 'Todlin hame' is, for wit and humour, an unparalleled composition; and 'Andrew and his cutty gun' is the work of a master" (source: letter to Mr Thomson, 19 November 1794, in John Lockhart, _The Works of Robert Burns_ (Boston, 1846 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 418).
See "George Ridler's Oven" for information on a possible earlier date. - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: AdART167

Toll Bar, The

DESCRIPTION: "Something cam' in" when the cart toll was twopence; at fourpence now it's "growin' vera thin; But I'll pay my rent when it comes to be due, Gin Providence send not something
Tom a Bedlam (Bedlam Boys)

DESCRIPTION: The singer is determined to find her Tom. She describes (his or her) visions.

Chorus: "Still I sing bonny boys, bonny mad boys, Bedlam boys are bonny. For they all go bare, and they live by the air...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1720 (Pills to Purge Melancholy); "Mad Tom of Bedlam" was in William Thackeray's broadside catalog by 1690
KEYWORDS: madness love separation
FOUND IN: Britain(England)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
  Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 172-189, "Tom a Bedlam" (there are eight texts in this section; the one labelled "Mad Maudlin" on pp. 181-182 is this one)
  Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic I, pp. 175-178, "Tom a Bedlam" (7 fragmentary texts, at least one of which is this one; 1 tune; the next piece, "Gray's Inn Masque, or Mad Tom, or New Mad Tom of Bedlam," (for which see also Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN910, "Forth from my sad and darksome cell") appears to be an unrelated literary song, found also in Percy, pp. 344-347, "Old Tom of Bedlam," the first of six "Mad Songs")
  Ritson-AncientSongsBalladsFromHenrySecondToTheRevolution, pp. 359-362, "Tom of Bedlam" (1 text); pp. 363-366, "Another Tom of Bedlam" (1 text, which looks as if it might be to the same tune; both texts look literary)
  DT, BEDLMBOY*
ADDITIONAL: Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928; #310, "Tom O'Bedlam" (1 text)
ST Log172 (Full)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "Nancy's Complaint in Bedlam" (theme)
NOTES [298 words]: The Hospital of St. Mary of Bethlehem (Bedlam), in London, was the first hospital for insane men in England. Magdalene Hospital (Maudlin), mentioned in some versions of the song, was the first hospital for insane women. - PJS
"Bedlam songs" seem to have been a phenomenon in the eighteenth century and after. To make matters worse, they all seem to mix and match. Many of Percy's texts, e.g., resemble Logan-APedlarsPack's, which resemble Chappell's, which are like Ritson's. It's very hard to tell them apart. There is a reference one as early as 1675. Hyder E. Rollins, _An Analytical Index to the Ballad-Entries (1557-1709) In the Register of the Company of Stationers of London_, 1924 (I use the 1967 Tradition Press reprint with a new Foreword by Leslie Shepard), p. 229, #2656, is "Tom of Bedlam," registered March 1, 1675, and p. 164, #1878, is "A new Mad Tom of Bedlam," registered March 1, 1675 -- but I can't prove which Bedlam song it is.
Under the circumstances, I've listed the most traditional-seeming of the bunch ("Tom a Bedlam") here, and hope cross-references in the "References" field will suffice for the others.
In Aldington's _The Viking Book of Poetry of the English-Speaking World_ we find a Tom o' Bedlams Song starting
From the hag and hungry goblin
That into rages would rend ye,
And the spirit that stands
By the naked man
In the book of moons defend ye....
It's not this piece (the chorus is different), but there is undeniable dependence. Aldington attributes the piece to Giles Earle (dates unknown but early seventeenth century). _Granger's Index to Poetry_, however, lists the author of this as unknown -- and it has plenty of supporting evidence, since it
Tom and the Parson

DESCRIPTION: Tom Brown climbs a tree at night while looking for a missing cow. He sees the parson kissing "a nimble lass." Tom asks if the parson has seen his cow. The parson bribes Tom to keep the secret of his lovemaking. Tom goes home happy without his cow.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: adultery sex promise gold farming animal clergy
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 190-191, "Tom and the Parson" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 253)
Roud #1676
File: Wt190

Tom Bird's Dog

DESCRIPTION: The singer goes bird hunting. Tom Bird's dog pursues. The singer escapes. "I don't know how many birds you got" but wishes someone had killed the dog.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: escape hunting humorous dog
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Peacock, pp. 101-102, "Tom Bird's Dog" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9959
File: Pea101

Tom Bowling (I)

DESCRIPTION: "Here a sheer hulk lies poor Tom (Bowling/Bowline), the darling of our crew." Tom, faithful, kind, virtuous, and beautiful, has now "gone aloft." His family and friends are mentioned. They hope he finds "pleasant weather" in heaven

AUTHOR: Charles Dibdin (1745-1815)
EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Eliot)
KEYWORDS: death sailor religious
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (4 citations):
  Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, pp. 96-97, "Tom Bowline" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, pp. 161-163, "Tom Bowling" (1 text, 1 tune)
  DT, TOMBOWLI
Roud #1984
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Frank Fidd"
NOTES [116 words]: As a folk song, this hasn't been very popular (I indexed it mostly for the parallels to "Frank Fidd," which see). But, like many Dibdin pieces, it was widely published in broadsides, and has also shown up in a number of modern anthologies; there are six citations in Granger's Index to Poetry. According to Stanley J. Kunitz and Howard Haycraft, Editors, British Authors Before 1800: A Biographical Dictionary, H. W. Wilson, 1952 (I use the fourth printing of 1965), p. 153, Dibdin wrote this to commemorate the death of his brother, Captain Thomas Dibdin, who had helped introduce Charles Dibdin to the stage.
For a fuller account of Charles Dibdin, see the notes to "Blow High Blow Low," - RBW
Last updated in version 5.1
Tom Cat
DESCRIPTION: "Funniest thing that ever I seen Was a tom cat stitchin' on a sewin' machine! O-ho, my baby, take a-one on me!" "Sewed so easy and he sewed so slow, Took ninety-nine stitches on the tom-cat's toe, O-ho, my baby...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: animal technology
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 91, "Tom Cat" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST ScaNF091 (Full)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Take a Whiff on Me" (lyrics, form)
NOTES [34 words]: Presumably from the same roots as "Take a Whiff On Me" or something like it. With only two verses, I can't really tell if it's a separate song or not -- but we're splitters, so we file it as if it is. - RBW

Tom Cat Blues
DESCRIPTION: Singer praises old "Ring Tail Tom" for his sexual prowess: "I got an old tom cat; When he steps out All the pussy cats in the neighborhood, They begin to shout, 'Here comes Ring Tail Tom, He's boss around the town...." Etc.
AUTHOR: Probably Cliff Carlisle
EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (recording, Cliff Carlisle)
KEYWORDS: sex bawdy humorous nonballad animal
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 213, "Tom Cat Blues" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 160, "Tom Cat Blues" (1 text)
DT, TOMCATBL*
RECORDINGS:
Cliff Carlisle,"Tom Cat Blues" (Vocalion 5492, c. 1932; on TimesAint04) "Ringtail Tom" (Vocalion 02656, 1934)
Jimmie Davis, "Tom Cat and Pussy Blues" (Bluebird B-6272, 1936)
New Lost City Ramblers, "Tom Cat Blues" (on NLCR01)
NOTES [23 words]: I can't tell without hearing them whether the two Cliff Carlisle recordings are the same performance, but they're clearly the same song. - PJS

Tom Cornealy
DESCRIPTION: Tom ships on board the Lighter Home, bound to Labrador. "At last we reached that awful land Where the snow and ice was beating" and head north to Ungava "Up in the Arctic Ocean ... the salmon was so thick" but all we found were starving "huskies"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs)
KEYWORDS: fishing ordeal sea ship Eskimo
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar,Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, p. 188, "Tom Cornealy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2716
RECORDINGS:
Tom Cornelly(?), "Trip to the North Pole" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
NOTES [13 words]: The MUNFLA/Leach singer may also be the Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs
Tom Corrigan

DESCRIPTION: Corrigan is racing on the horse "Waiter." He is just overtaking the leader when he is thrown and killed.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (Fahey-Joe-Watson-AustralianTraditionalFolkSinger)

KEYWORDS: death racing horse

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 138-139, "Tom Corrigan" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Fahey-Joe-Watson-AustralianTraditionalFolkSinger, [p. 16, page headed "When I was at school..."], "Tommy Corrigan" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Donald Campbell" (theme)
- cf. "The Death of Alec Robertson" (theme)
- cf. "Alec Robertson (I)" (theme)
- cf. "Alec Robertson (II)" (theme)

NOTES [88 words]: "Banjo" Paterson wrote a piece, "Tommy Corrigan (Killed, Steeplechasing at Flemington)" -- but the two are not the same.

Gwenda Beed Davey and Graham Seal, A Guide to Australian Folklore, Kangaroo Press, 2003, p. 75, has this entry for Tommy Corrigan: "Sometimes said to have been Australia's greatest jockey, Corrigan was killed in an accident a Caulfield racecourse in August 1894. His death was the subject of song and poetry, including a widely known Melbourne broadside usually titled 'The Death of Tommy Corrigan'." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.5

Tom Dixon

DESCRIPTION: "Tom Dixon runs a cathouse way down on Harlow street," a frequent destination for loggers. "The girls are not so pretty, but I guess they're not so slow." The singer talks of his trips back and forth between lumber camp and Dixon's establishment

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951

KEYWORDS: logger whore bawdy

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, p. 251, "Tom Dixon" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9423

Tom Dooley [Laws F36A]

DESCRIPTION: Tom Dula/Dooley has killed Laura Foster. He has few regrets except that he didn't get away with it. He curses Sheriff Grayson, who has captured him. He expects to be hanged tomorrow

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: homicide execution fiddle

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- 1866 (probably May 25) - Murder of Laura Foster, allegedly by Thomas C. Dula (and his new sweetheart Ann Melton). Dula apparently killed Foster because he had contracted a venereal disease from her, which she had reportedly caught from Grayson.
- May 1, 1868 - Dula is hanged for the murder.

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (18 citations):
Laws F36A, "Tom Dooley"
Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 228, "Tom Dooley" (1 text)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 118, "Tom Dooley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warner-FolkSongsAndBalladsOfTheEasternSeaboard, pp. 59-60, "Hang Down Your Head, Tom Dooley" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 303, "Tom Dula" (3 texts, all very short; in addition, the "B" text of Brown's #304, "Tom Dula's Lament," is a single stanza found in the Profitt version of "Tom Dooley")
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 303, "Tom Dula" (1 excerpt, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, p. 9, "Tom Dooley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-FolkSongUSA 82, "Tom Dooley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 139, "Tom Dula" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 235-240, "Tom DOoley" (1 text)
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 137, "Tom Dooley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 207-208, "Tom Dooley" (1 text)
Amrett-IHearAmericaSinging, p. 188, "Tom Dooley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 225, "Tom Dooley" (1 text)
DT, TOMDOOLY*
ADDITIONAL: John Edward Fletcher, PhD (with a foreword by Edith Marie Ferguson Carter), _The True Story of Tom Dooley: From Western North Carolina Mystery to Folk Legend_, History Press, 2013, pp. 149-150, "Tom Dooley" (the Profitt/Warner version)
Frances H. Casstevens, _Death in North Carolina's Piedmont: Tales of Murder, Suicide, and Causes Unknown_, History Press, 2006, pp. 110-111, "(Untitled Folk Version of the Tom Dula story)," "Tom Dooley" (2 texts, one from Manley Wade Wellman and perhaps rewritten, the other based on Profitt)
Roud #4192
RECORDINGS:
Sheila Clark, "The Ballad of Tom Dula" (on LegendTomDula)
Glenn Neaves & band, "Tom Dooley" (on GraysonCarroll1)
New Lost City Ramblers, "Tom Dooley" (on NLCR02) (NLCR12)
Frank Profitt, "Tom Dooley" [excerpt] (on USWarnerColl01)
Evelyn & Douston Ramsey, "Tom Dooley" (on FarMtns2)
Doug & Berzilla Wallin, "Tom Dula" (on FarMtns3)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Murder of Laura Foster" [Laws F36] (subject)
cf. "Tom Dula's Lament" (subject, lyrics)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Tom Dooly
NOTES [10969 words]: G. B. Grayson, who (along with Henry Whitter) made the earliest known recorded version of the song, was descended from the sheriff who captured Dula. - PJS Nitpick: A relative of Grayson -- his uncle, not his direct ancestor, according to Fletcher, pp. 45, 116 -- helped capture Dula, but he wasn't a sheriff. But read on....
After the Civil War, Laura Foster disappeared from her home in North Carolina. After a lot of searching, her body and clothing were found in a shallow grave. Thomas C. Dula, a returned Confederate veteran was charged with the murder and hung. Those are the bare facts. The details are much messier.
To summarize what we'll tell in detail below, Dula was charged with the murder of Foster and his seeming lover Ann Melton with being an accessory before the fact. The trial was moved to a different venue, and after some maneuvering, Dula and Melton were tried separately. The trial was badly conducted, and Dula was granted a new trial by the state supreme court. The verdict did not change. Dula, on his last day, wrote a statement to the effect that he was solely responsible for the murder. Belief at the time seemed to contradict this. At least one witness said that Melton would have hung with Dula had she not been so beautiful.
I know of no absolute confirmation of the story that Laura Foster, Tom Dula, and company all suffered from a venereal disease, although Dula and Foster certainly did -- Dr. George Carter, the only doctor in that area of North Carolina, would testify that Dula had had it, and that Dula thought he got it from Laura Foster (West, p. 78; Foster, p. 90); and Pauline Foster testified that Dula's lover Ann Melton eventually became sick and used the blue pills that were the standard syphilis treatment, and furthermore that Melton had gotten "the pock" from Dula; West, p. 80; Fletcher, p. 24). The notes in Brown to "The Murder of Laura Foster" mention that Ann Melton in later life is said to have admitted a part in the killing -- and that she later went blind. Blindness is a known side effect of syphilis. But, as we shall see, no one else mentions the blindness. Peña/Hayes, p. 72, says that many in Wilkes County still believe Dula was innocent. In 2001/2, an attempt was made in North Carolina to convince the governor to grant Dula a posthumous pardon (Casstevens, p. 31). This seems rather far-fetched. Dula may not have been guilty of murder, but he did abandon Foster, and if he didn't commit the crime, he was probably an accessory after the fact to murder by Melton. There is a lot of folklore about the Dula case, most of it false. The story is, if anything, even more ugly than the folklore. And it is unlikely that much can be done to clarify the matter now, because most of the evidence has been lost. Laura Foster was reburied, but the site of her original grave, the "Bates Place," is not certain and the area has been clearcut and otherwise modified in the last century and a half (Fletcher, p. 30). Those aren't the only uncertainties. Earlier versions of the Index gave the date of Laura Foster's murder as January 25, 1866. I'm not sure where I found that information, but the ultimate source is clear: one of the court records of Dula's trial gives that date (West, p. 68). That date is wrong, but the exact date cannot be guaranteed. It's worth remembering that many of the people involved in the case were illiterate, and even if they could read, they likely didn't have calendars (West, p. 69). So they would not have recorded the exact date. They knew days of the week, because of Sunday church, but that was it. But some things are know. There is universal testimony that Foster disappeared during the planting season -- so some time between April and June. Every source cited by West says that Foster disappeared during the day on a Friday. Of the half-dozen dates or so dates mentioned in the extant records, only Friday, May 25, 1866 is a Friday in the planting season of 1866 (West, p. 69), so West is convinced this was the date. He is likely right, but it shows how unreliable all the evidence in the case is! In addition to a useful summary in Cohen, there seem to be at least four non-fiction books about the Dula/Foster/Melton affair, plus shorter summaries in other books, as well as two or more fictional works (one of which, by Karen Wheeling Reynolds, seems to have been deliberately marketed as non-fiction even though it is a patent dramatization of the tale which doesn't even really list sources; according to Casstevens, p. 31, it blames Pauline Foster and perhaps Jack Keaton). Unfortunately, all the books were written after the Kingston Trio hit, so all are based on court records and the like rather than eyewitness testimony. Of the books, I have seen: -- West, which was written by a twentieth century resident of the area and one-time president of the North Carolina Folklore Society -- a man who knew descendants of the Dula and Foster families -- Fletcher, who is the great-great-grandson of Ann and James Melton (Fletcher, p. 79. It would seem that the Tom Dula craze, these days, exists mostly among those from the area of the murder) -- Gardner, a largely-undocumented pamphlet with some useful records but little in the way of firm evidence. All the books seem to have axes to grind. Fletcher's is to make Dula entirely the guilty party, making everyone else seem like an upstanding citizen. West's is to make Dula's trial appear unfair. And Gardner's is to try to blame everything on Melton and Pauline Foster, with Dula innocently caught between Melton and Laura Foster. (Gardner, p. 4, mentions Dula's musical skills and even says that such a musician couldn't have been a murderer, as if that is in any way relevant!) Casstevens, which devotes only a few pages to the case, on pp. 32-33, also suggests that Pauline Foster and Ann Melton had stronger motives than Dula. Winkler, like Fletcher, was a member of the extended Dula/Foster family. says that his great-grandmother Robbins "had been born a Dula and, as my mother tells it, would slip into a paroxysm of rage at the merest drop of the name Ann Melton." He adds that the name Dula "figured prominently in the Caldwell County of my growing up. It was shared by rich and poor, black and white -- which may or may not hint at sizable slave holdings at one time" (p. 84). Trying to trace the family name, Winkler encountered a family in Marburg, Germany. No connection has been demonstrated in immigration records, but it seems not unlikely that this part of Germany is the origin of the Dula name. West, p. 10, says Thomas C. "Tom" Dula had dark brown hair, brown eyes, and was of roughly average height. West, p. vi, describes him as rather a catch by local standards; handsome and a few weeks short of 22 at the time of the crime, his family was slightly better off than most others in the area of Wilkes County, and since both of Dula's brothers had died in the war, the land would be Dula had lost his father in 1854, when he was about ten (Fletcher, p. 19); there doesn't seem to be any record of this affecting his behavior for the worse at the time. He was still living with his mother at the time of the murder (West, p. 87. You have to pity poor Mary Dula, who lost two sons in the war and her only surviving boy to the Foster murder case).

Ann Melton (properly Angeline Pauline Triplett, according to Fletcher, p. 19) was a year older than Dula, and also fatherless. She had been married to the cobbler James Gabriel Melton in 1859 at the age of 16 (he was 21 at the time, according to Fletcher), but apparently the marriage was not happy and Melton was very temperamental (West, p. vii). They nonetheless had -- or at least Ann had and James raised -- a daughter Jane, born probably in 1861 (Fletcher, p. 23).

The New York Herald account, from 1868, said that "She is apparently about twenty-five years of age, is the illegitimate daughter of one Carlotta (Lotty) Foster [Fletcher, p. 132, argues that Lotty's children were not illegitimate but were abandoned by their father, causing Lotty to change the family name from "Triplett" back to her family name "Foster"], and is a most beautiful woman. She is entirely uneducated, and though living in the midst of ignorance has the manner and bearing of an accomplished lady, and all the natural powers that should grace a high born beauty" (West, p. 120; Gardner, p. 26).

Ann was the first cousin of Laura Foster; Wilson Foster, the father of Laura Foster, was the brother of Ann's mother (Fletcher, p. 55).

West, p. v, says Laura Foster was the oldest of five children of Wilson Foster; her father reported at trial that, at the time of her disappearance, her mother Martha Bowman Foster was dead (West, p. 73). (By contrast, Gardner, p. 6, reports only that she had two brothers, and that they were tenant farmers. West is right; Casstevens, pp. 20-21, lists the 1860 census records for her four siblings, three boys and a girl.)

Gardner describes Laura Foster as "a lovely girl with chestunt (sic.) hair and dark brown eyes" who was a weaver. However, Gardner also calls her a "respected girl," but every other report seems to say she had round heels; she was reported to be "wild as a buck" (Casstevens, p. 21). The New York Herald reporter who covered Dula's last days wrote that there was a rumor that she was pregnant at the time of her murder (West, p. 118; Gardner, p. 24; Casstevens, p. 34, seems to accept the rumor without offering evidence), but there seems to be no record of this in the court papers (Fletcher, p. 30, and I saw no hints of it in the testimony in West). Laura Foster is called "frail" in the newspaper reports, as is her cousin Pauline Foster (West, p. 119); this apparently is code for "not a virgin."

A number of sources claimed Laura was 18 at the time of her murder (so, e.g., Gardner, p. 37), but her father said that she was 22. The 1860 census gave her age as 17 (Casstevens, p. 20), so obviously the people who listed her as a teenager at the time of her death were wrong. Folklore also credits her with suitors other than Dula, but these other suitors can't even be shown to have existed (e.g. Gardner, pp. 37-38, has an account of one Bob Cummings, who elsewhere is said to have helped capture Dula; but this "Cummings" name is in fact a mistake for "Grayson," who lived in Tennessee and never saw Laura in his life). Nor are other suitors likely; after all the losses in the Civil War, there were a lot more young women than young men in western North Carolina!

Pauline Foster isn't mentioned in the ballads or in short accounts of the case, but she was a key witness; keep her in mind. By the sound of things, Pauline was none too bright, even by the standards of the Fosters (I find myself wondering about in-breeding; West, p. 2, notes that many in the large Dula family were double first cousins, and Pauline had both Dula and Foster blood). To be sure, it sounds as if Pauline Foster, along with all her other "fragilities" (read: extreme promiscuity that resulted in her contracting syphilis) was an alcoholic; she apparently threatened to kill a deputy while dead drunk and talking to other deputies (Fletcher, p 49).

Dula had enlisted in the Confederate army in March 1862 (West, p. 9), meaning that he was not yet 18 at the time (born June 20, 1844, according to West, p. 8, making him a few months younger than his future victim Laura Foster). Give him credit, perhaps, for volunteering rather than being drafted. It was an interesting choice, given that many in the mountains of Wilkes County were pro-Union (Peña/Hayes, p. 70) and slavery, although not unknown, was rare (Peña/Hayes, p. 69). His brothers had also enlisted, as had James Melton (Fletcher, p. 19; Casstevens, p. 21, reports that James Melton was twice wounded, once at Gettysburg and once late in the war; he was a member of the 26th North Carolina, which as a unit of Pettigrew's Brigade was part of Pickett's Charge); the oldest Dula brother, John, died of disease in 1862, and the middle brother, William, died of disease as a POW in 1865 (Fletcher, p. 20). Many of the men later involved in Tom Dula's trial had known him in the army (Fletcher, p. 21). At least one of them, Washington Anderson, said that Dula's conduct while in the army had been good (West, p. 85). Gardner prints several of Dula's military records, and they seem to confirm Anderson's statement.
Reading the accounts of Dula's behavior after the Civil War makes me wonder about some sort of post-traumatic disorder. I know of no research on this point, but Wallis, pp. 30-31, observes that crime statistics in the United States soared after the Civil War. Wallis blames the increased availability and efficiency of firearms, but in fact all major weapons types available after the war had pre-war equivalents. All recent difficult wars, from Vietnam to Iraq, have left many veterans with post-traumatic stress problems. Surely the Civil War would have done the same!

And perhaps the nature of Dula's service might have made him especially vulnerable. He was a member of the 42nd North Carolina regiment (West, p. 70, although West's military reporting is very bad -- he confuses battalions, which weren't even a normal Civil War formation, with brigades!). Unlike a lot of North Carolina regiments, the 42nd for the larger part of the war stayed in its home state and did not serve with the Army of Northern Virginia. But it was called north in time for the Richmond campaign of 1864 -- the grimmest example of trench warfare in the entire conflict. NCRegiments, p. 796, says that the 42nd in late 1863 became part of James G. Martin's Brigade, which served to guard the Bermuda Hundred lines around Richmond; the regiment fought hard when the Army of the James attacked this position. Martin's brigade then became part of Robert F. Hoke's division (NCRegiments, p. 798), and took part in the appalling battle of Cold Harbor, where thousands of Federals were killed in just a few minutes -- although Hoke's own casualties were so light that he claimed there were none at all (Furgurson, p. 161). Rhea, p. 340, reports, "Martin's three North Carolina regiments had done yeoman's work, fending off portions of [three brigades]... Martin, a forty-five-year-old professional soldier who had lost his right arm in the Mexican War, reveled in the fight."

"General Martin cheered his men, and their enthusiasm was great,' the adjutant [Charles G.] Elliott remembered. 'Mostly armed with smooth-bore muskets, they poured an incessant fusillade of buck and ball into the brave lines that charged and recharged, and fell, many of them, on our works.' Martin's losses were slight, although among them was Colonel A. Duncan Moore, commanding the 66th North Carolina" (Rhea, pp. 340-341).

The map on p. 321 of Rhea shows the 42nd in the middle of Martin's brigade, which faced John Gibbon's assaulting division (although the map on p. 146 of Furgurson implies that Martin's brigade was between assaulting columns); in either case, it was well-entrenched and faced federals attacking over open ground. Gibbon in the charge lost on the order of 1100 men (Rhea, p. 361; other estimates are higher). Thus Dula, in his first major battle, was probably involved in inflicting many casualties without seeing many of his comrades die. Gibbon's casualties were so high that they approached the total strength of the brigade they were assaulting. So odds are that someone died as a direct result of Dula's shooting. Whereas Rhea, p. 362, reports that the divisions of Kershaw and Hoke together lost no more than 300 men, which would make the losses in Martin's brigade perhaps fifty. So they inflicted casualties at a 10:1 rate or better.

Late in the day, the brigade was ordered out of its trenches to attack the Federals -- an attack which, like all attacks on trenches, was repulsed with ease. The Confederates suffered about a hundred casualties for absolutely no benefit (Rhea, pp. 383-384). So in their first real day of battle, Dula's regiment first slaughtered their enemies and then were slaughtered themselves for no reason whatsoever. If that isn't traumatic, I don't know what is.

Later, the regiment was one of those involved in the desperate fight to hold Petersburg until Lee's army could arrive (NCRegiments, pp. 799-800), and it then settled down to trench warfare outside that town. In August 1864, the unit it belonged to became Kirkland's Brigade. In December, 1864, it was released from the lines outside Petersburg and Richmond to help with the defence of Wilmington (NCRegiments, p. 802; Gragg, p. 60, although he notes that it took quite a while to get there because of the failing Confederate rail network). Within hours of arriving, parts of the unit came under fire from the Federal navy assaulting the area -- artillery fire which they had absolutely no way to answer (Gragg, pp. 81-82). Fort Fisher, which guarded the port, managed to hold out for the moment, but was captured by the Federals soon after. Meanwhile, William T. Sherman's troops were marching north from Savannah through the Carolinas, The 42nd was finally run down at Bentonville (NCRegiments, pp. 803-804), where Joseph E. Johnston tried and failed to defeat Sherman and failed. The regiment was then surrendered and disbanded.

Although other regiments took more casualties, there can't have been many with more traumatic experiences.

There is a record of Dula being in hospital in late 1864 (West, p. 71) -- although we have no record of whether this was the result of injury or illness (an earlier hospital stay, in 1862, was more likely illness; Gardner, p. 39). He was captured by the Federals, along with 1500 or so others, on March 8, 1865 (West, p. 71; Gardner, p. 40, reports that he was released on June 11 of that year). It all adds up to a military career that was likely to have been psychologically particularly hard on those who experienced it.
The other side of it is that Dula's morality seems to have been questionable all along. There were reports that he had shown a violent streak even while in the army, with rumors that he had committed an earlier murder (so the New York Herald reporter, as cited on West, p. 123, Gardner, p. 28) -- although there seems to be no evidence of it elsewhere; I suspect it was an attempt to blacken Dula's name at the time of his death. Still, West, p. 10, indicates that he had already been sleeping around for years even before the war; he was apparently found in bed with Ann Melton when they were both about fifteen; West, p. 14 says that Tom had once been chased from Ann's bed by Ann's mother Lotty Foster (although Fletcher, p. 82, suggests that this was an error of understanding and that this actually referred to the period in late 1861 when James Melton was in the army but Dula had not yet signed up, meaning that Ann had married Melton before she became involved with Tom, who shacked up with Ann when she was a lonely army wife).

One witness, James Isbell (whom Dula would call a liar in his final speech) claimed that Ann Melton slept around with other men as well, but he had this only as hearsay and he was clearly a hostile witness (Fletcher, p. 83). There seems to be no other evidence that Ann slept with anyone except her husband and Dula. James Melton is said to have adored his wife despite her behavior (Fletcher, p. 84 -- but Fletcher is descended from the Meltons, so he had reason to try to make them look good).

Ann, Laura, and Lotty were not the only Fosters involved. There was also another cousin, Pauline Foster -- a fourth cousin of Laura, according to Fletcher, p. 22. She was even closer to Tom -- his second cousin, if I read Fletcher, p. 23, correctly. She apparently also slept with Tom. And, seemingly, with anyone else who came along. A reporter wrote of her, "Pauline Foster, the principal witness against the accused... may be dismissed with the statement that she has since married a white man and given birth to a Negro child" (West, p. 16; the full context is on pp. 120-121 of West and on p. 26 of Gardner. Fletcher, p. 131, thinks the charge false, but can only suggest that her prospective husband may have been a mulatto whose son somehow ended up darker than either his father or mother; the odds of this are low. Fletcher, p. 89, says that Pauline was engaged as early as January 1866, then sought treatment for syphilis, but did not marry until some time after Dula's 1866 trial but before his 1868 trial. In other words, Pauline not only slept with Dula, but slept with him while she was engaged). At least three other men, including Ann's brother, were said to have slept with Pauline, although one of them denied it. She officially admitted in court that she had a venereal disease, and had come to the Meltons to earn the wages to pay for treatment (West, p. 82).

Exactly what Pauline did with Dula is disputed. Fletcher, p. 91, has her claim that she did not have intercourse with him. But the trial record in West reports her as saying, p. 83, that "I also slept with Dula for a blind at Ann Melton's insistence."

The situation was so extreme that the New York Herald writer reported that "A state of immorality unexampled in the history of any country exists among these people, and such a system of freelovism prevails that it is 'a wise child that knows its father'" (Fletcher, p. 17; West, p. 3, has a slightly different version of the quote; West, p. 119, and Gardner, p. 24, print it in context). West assures us that this is exaggerated, but clearly there wasn't much social control over the young people of the district, at least in the post-War era when poverty and recriminations were widespread.

It seems clear that Dula was sleeping regularly with both Ann and Laura in early 1866 (West, p. 15), as well as having (perhaps only one) roll in the hay with Pauline Foster. Laura's father Wilson Foster said that Dula had visited Laura several times, and that he had once caught them in bed together (West, p. 73) -- or perhaps more than once (Fletcher, p. 24). He said Dula had started visiting regularly about two months before the murder.

Pauline came to Wilkes County to see a doctor, and was granted lodging by James and Ann Melton in exchange for work. West, p. 15, says she is the first of all these people who is known to have actually sought treatment for "the pock" (syphilis) -- but she later said that "We all have it" (West, p. 16). However, there is no evidence that anyone had it until she showed up; she came to Wilkes County specifically to see the only doctor in the area. That was early in March 1866. Dula first visited the same doctor for treatment around the beginning of April in that year (apparently the doctor did not keep proper case records); Ann Melton also visited him later (at least according to Pauline).

A big question hanging over the story is who started the chain of disease transmission that ended with Tom, Ann, and James Melton. Was it Pauline Foster, who gave it to Tom, who gave it to Laura and to Ann, who gave it to James Melton? Or was it Laura Foster, who then gave it to Tom, and so forth? Dula blamed Laura Foster -- and, on at least one occasion, claimed he would kill her for giving it to him. From the standpoint of who did what, it hardly matters whether he was right or not; he acted on his hypothesis. But it would be nice to know.
West, p. 17, thinks Pauline arrived soon enough that Dula could have caught the disease from her. But it was only about three weeks from the time she showed up until Dula sought treatment. Given that it usually takes several weeks for the first symptoms to appear, that implies that the two of them shacked up very quickly after Pauline arrived in the area. What's more, the chances of transmission of syphilis based on a single sexual encounter is not more than 10%. What are the odds that Dula managed to get into her fast enough to get the disease in time to need treatment a mere three weeks after Pauline came to the area? They appear very low.

What's more, Wilson Foster testified that Laura had "the pock" at the time of her death; he had seen the boils on her shoulder (West, p. 74). I can't prove that Dula got the disease from Laura Foster, but I doubt he got it from Pauline. And the same schedule that makes it hard for Dula to have gotten it from Pauline makes it almost impossible for him, if he got it from Pauline, to have given it to Laura. Indeed, Fletcher, p. 26, points out that it would have been impossible for Dula to have gotten the disease from Pauline and given it to Laura if he slept with Laura only in early March and not thereafter. It is of course possible that Dula didn't get it from either Laura or Pauline, but acquired it earlier (perhaps in the army, which might explain his hospitalizations and might also help explain his misbehavior in the army) and that he was the one who gave the disease to both Laura and Ann. Fletcher, pp. 92-93, argues that, chronologically and logically, it makes more sense to assume that Dula was right and that it was Laura who was the source. Of course, that raises the question of where Laura got it, but we have no data on that.

(Oh to have been able to do modern genetic testing on the disease....)
Wherever he actually got it, R. D. Hall reported that Dula in mid-May had said that he would kill the woman who gave him his disease (West, p. 78).

The stunning part of all this is that Laura Foster apparently still expected to marry Dula. And so, apparently, was prepared to leave home to meet him in 1866 so they could elope (one local legend has it that they were preparing to leave the area when Ann Melton showed up and stabbed Laura; Casstevens, p. 29). This makes no real sense -- since both Laura and Tom were over 21 at the time, they had the right to marry and had no need to elope (Fletcher, p. 31). But it would seem Tom talked her into running away anyway. She stole away from home on the night of May 24/25, 1866 (probably not long before daybreak), taking her father's badly-shoed horse to a meeting with Dula, and was never seen again except by a neighbor who talked to her as she was on her way (West, p. 20; this neighbor was the one who said that Laura was planning to run away with Dula). Laura's attempt to leave home should perhaps not surprise us; her relations with her father do not seem to have been good, if it is true, as one of her neighbors testified, that her father said he would kill her if she found her after she ran away with his horse (West, p. 22. Wilson Foster expressly denied saying this at the trial; West, p. 74).

Dula showed up at the Melton home on May 26, where James Melton worked on his shoes and Dula and Ann talked. Both of them, according to Pauline Foster, made suspicious remarks, Dula saying that he had no use for Laura and Ann later saying that she had murdered Laura. All of this said in Pauline's hearing. Believe that if you can.

According to Pauline Foster, the night Laura Foster supposedly died, Ann Melton had been out, and showed up late and all wet (West, p. ix). When Wilson Foster came to look for his missing horse, Ann had nothing to tell him.

Dula, like Ann, spent much of the day after Laura Foster disappeared in bed. Nor, when the time came, was he willing to help in the search for Laura Foster. So it appears both Tom and Ann were out overnight on the night Laura vanished, both came home tired and slept a lot the next day, and neither seems to have done much to establish an alibi (West, pp. 20-22; for Pauline Foster's testimony on this point, see West, p. 80). Dula was said to have been present at his home by no later than noon, but the one testifying to this was his mother (Fletcher, p. 33), so the evidential value of the claim is obviously limited. The first attempt to trace Laura's behavior was by Wilson Foster on the morning of May 25 -- he wanted his horse back! -- but he said he lost the trail in "an old field" (West, p. 21). He later found the horse at his home, trailing a broken rope (West, p. 74). Foster described later finding the other end of the rope near the site of Laura's grave (leaving the rope on the horse was a stupid mistake by the killer, as it turned out, since it was a hint as to the site of the murder).

It's not entirely clear when other people first began wondering about Laura; the 1868 New York Herald report says it took several days (West, p. 118; Gardner, p. 24). The horse she had taken from her father made its way home on May 26 (West, p. 24), but that doesn't seem to have caused her father to do anything except feel relief. Searches perhaps began a few days later, but it appears the first comprehensive hunt began on June 23, or about four weeks after the disappearance (West, pp. 25-26). By then, word had begun to spread that Dula was the murderer (West, p. 26).
Not long after, enough attention had been aimed at Dula that he concluded that he had to leave the area; according, once again, to Pauline Foster, he came to Ann and told her he was leaving (West, p. 27). A formal arrest warrant was issued for Tom Dula and Ann Melton, plus Ann Pauline Dula and Granville Dula, on June 28 (text on p. 28 of West), based on the sworn complaint of Laura's father Wilson Foster (Fletcher, p. 41) -- although apparently the justice of the peace who issued it stopped the hunt for all of them but Tom on the next day (at least, this is what West, p. 28, seems to say).

Fletcher, p. 42, and West, p. 29, disagree on who "Ann Pauline Dula" was; West says she was another first cousin once removed of Tom Dula; Fletcher thinks the warrant was for Pauline Foster and that the warrant was confused because her grandfather was a Dula whose son, Levi Foster, was illegitimate and whose family was sometimes known as "Dula" after their natural father. Granville Dula was Tom's cousin (West, p. 29, says second cousin but gives an ancestry that makes them first cousins once removed); he played no further part in the case either as suspect or witness. The reason Granville Dula was named is not known, but Fletcher reminds us that none of these people were literate and could not read what the warrant said to correct it!

In any case, Ann Melton, Pauline Foster, and Granville Dula were taken into custody, were found to have alibis for when Laura was thought to have disappeared, and were released (Fletcher, p. 42). The attention was now firmly on Tom Dula -- even though no body had yet been found. Fletcher thinks that it was at this time that the search really got serious. It certainly seems to have scared Pauline Foster, who proceeded to turn state's evidence (Gardner, p. 21; Casstevens, p. 29). Tom, who had already crossed the Tennessee line, started calling himself Hall (West, p. 28; according to Fletcher, p. 44, Dula later explained this as "a joke"). According to Gardner, p. 10, his flight was seen as a sign of guilt by the people at home, but as we have seen, feelings in North Carolina were already against him. Tom briefly went to work for James Grayson. Grayson, like many in the east Tennessee mountains, was a Unionist; he had been an officer in the Federal 4th Tennessee and 13th Tennessee regiments (West, p. 29), and had gone on to serve in the Tennessee legislature. When Wilkes County deputies Jack Adkins and Ben Ferguson came for Dula, Grayson helped them arrest him (West, p. 30). Dula was taken back to Wilkes County on a horse of Grayson's (West, p. x) with his feet tied beneath his horse, and made at least one attempt to escape.

What comes next is the strangest part of the story. Pauline Foster and Ann Melton apparently had a shouting match about the crime. Foster was overheard by a deputy making comments that sounded as if she had had a part in the murder (Casstevens, p. 23. West, p. 31, says that a deputy heard Pauline say, "Yes, I and Dula killed her, and I ran away to Tennessee." This is confirmed by the New York Herald account on p. 119 of West. Mrs. James Scott said at the trial that Pauline once proposed killing the deputy to cover up the crime; West, p. 85.) Upon being questioned, Pauline spilled a most improbable tale -- unless syphilis was affecting Ann Melton's mind by this time. If we are to believe Pauline, Ann showed Pauline (who had gone away to Tennessee for a time then come back) roughly where the body was buried; apparently Melton wanted Pauline to make sure the grave didn't wash away or otherwise reveal Laura's body (West, p. 31). Ann also supposedly told Pauline that Laura Foster had given "the pock" to Tom, who had given it to Ann, who had given it to James, and that Ann would kill Pauline if she talked (Fletcher, p. 27).

In other words, if Pauline Foster's testimony is right, Ann revealed to Pauline the grave site, and a motive for murder, even though Pauline had no reason whatsoever to keep things quiet. If Pauline's testimony is true, it shows that, first, that Ann was at least an accessory to the murder, and second, that she was almost as dim a bulb as Pauline. Or, alternately, that Pauline had taken part in the murder, which was the obvious import of her comment. But if Pauline had taken part in the murder, why didn't she know exactly where the grave was? Frankly, Pauline's reported testimony makes no sense.

Whether her testimony made sense or not, on September 1, 1862, Pauline led searchers to the general area of the grave, and a large search party eventually found the exact burial site. This meant that, for the first time, there was proof that murder had been committed, although the body was decayed enough that the doctor could give only limited information about how it was done (West, pp. 33-34). Several people who knew her nonetheless testified that it was Laura's body (West, p. 34) -- although one of those who testified was Pauline Foster, whose testimony surely counts as tainted! But some of her clothes could be recognized, and apparently Laura had unusual teeth that were also recognizable.

This finally meant that there was a real basis for a murder charge; until that time, Tom Dula had been held without bail merely on suspicion (West, p. 34), presumably because there was no one to file a writ of habeas corpus.
Laura had been stabbed in the breast, close to the heart, although the body was decayed enough that the doctor couldn't actually say whether the heart had been hit or not (West, pp. 33-34). One report claimed that her apron had been folded over her face in a neat way that implied a woman had done it (Casstevens, p. 23).

And, given that Ann Melton had told Pauline about the site of the grave, Melton not unnaturally joined Tom in prison, while Pauline was set free (Fletcher, p. 58, absurd as that seems given that she had said once she committed the murder).

On October 1, the Grand Jury formally brought murder charges against Dula and Melton; he was charged with murder and she with inciting him to do it and with aiding him afterward (West, pp. x-xi, 36). The indictment, as printed by West, looks almost medieval -- e.g. the Devil is said to have induced Dula's action. Fletcher, p. 63, points out that it contains statements that could not possibly have been known, such as the hand in which the murderer held the knife, and that many of the claims were not relevant to the charge of murder. My guess, though, is that someone just took down the words as some illiterate on the Grand Jury maundered on. This would also explain why it gives the date of Foster's murder as June 18 (Fletcher, p. 97), which is more than three weeks after Foster's disappearance. Oddly, no one seems to have made an issue of that.

When Laura's body was found, it was in a grave that wasn't even big enough for it; she had had to be curled up to fit (West, p. ix; Casstevens, p. 23, says that her legs were broken). There was no direct evidence of Dula's involvement; the state would later rely heavily on the testimony of Pauline Foster to convict him (West, p. 15). The state's official version, according to West, p. 22, was that Dula murdered Foster late on May 25, rather than early in the day, which makes him wonder why Foster waited around so long for Dula to show up. But this was just the state's hypothesis -- there was no valid forensic evidence on when Laura was murdered; all we have is the time she was last seen and the fact that the body was substantially decomposed when it was discovered.

The charge that Melton aided Dula after the fact was dropped by the prosecutor, leaving only the count of incitement (West, p. 37; Fletcher, p. 63, suggests that this was because she had an alibi at the time the murder was thought to have been committed -- although of course we do not know the time of the murder).

Strange twist #300 or so: Zebulon Vance, who had governed the state during the Civil War, decided to defend Dula pro bono (West, p. 37). This even though the war had ruined Vance and he was only starting to rebuild his reputation and fortune (West, p. 38). He didn't do this for personal reasons; he didn't know Dula (some folk accounts claim otherwise; stories of links between them are listed on pp. 122-123 of Fletcher. Some claimed, e.g., that Dula served under Vance in the war -- but he didn't; they were in different regiments. It is interesting that James Melton had served in the regiment that Vance commanded early in the war (Fletcher, p. 61. Fletcher, p. 125, suggests that perhaps Vance had originally decided to defend the wife of his comrade Melton and ended up, in effect, getting stuck with Dula too).

The former governor managed to win a change of venue, causing the case to be moved from Wilkes County to the county seat of the next county to the southeast, Statesville in Iridell County (West, p. 39; Fletcher, p. 64, says that the judge might have decided to do this on his own, since as a circuit rider he was due to move to Iridell County anyway). Vance also managed to separate the trials of Dula and Melton (West, p. 42).

The presiding judge who agreed to the change of venue was Ralph P. Buxton; he also presided over the trial after it was transferred (West, p. 41). Buxton was a Republican appointed by Republicans in unreconstructed North Carolina (Fletcher, pp. 59-60); I can't help but think that he likely obtained his post for political reasons rather than reasons of competence, and he might well have been prejudiced against a Confederate soldier. Gardner, p. 10, claims that the jury was "evidently composed mostly of renegade carpet baggers," but West, who otherwise tries to discredit the trial, makes no mention of this that I can find.

Ann Melton and Dula were both moved to prisons in Iridell; Melton was allowed to stay in the county jail, but Dula was deemed such a flight risk that he was kept in the prison in shackles with an extra guard contingent! (Fletcher, p. 66.) Melton was present at Dula's trial but did not testify. According to West, p. 43, she was not "allowed" to testify, even though witnesses were permitted to report things she had said; Fletcher, p. 66, seems to think that she was instead claiming her fifth amendment right.

The legal maneuvers were the limit of what Vance could accomplish. Eighty-three witnesses were called in the trial, although there is no report of what sixty-three of them said (West, p. 43). Even the witnesses who testified had little to say except that they saw Dula carrying a mattock around the time of the murder near the grave site (e.g. West, p. 75, gives this as the entire content of the testimony of Carl Carlton, Hezekiah Kindall, and Mrs. James Scott, and has similar testimony from Martha Gilbert and Ann Melton's brother Thomas Foster on p. 77) -- suspicious behavior, obviously, but Dula's explanation that he wanted to improve the trail is at least possible. There is dispute about just how much work he did on the trail (Fletcher, p. 27), but there was testimony from several sources that Dula did at least some work on it.
Betsy Scott's testimony was simply that she had seen and talked to Laura as she ran away from home and that Laura said she was meeting Dula (West, pp. 74-75). Scott was also the only person to place Dula anywhere near the murder site at the time Laura disappeared (Fletcher, p. 32).
The primary testimony was Pauline Foster's, and a very substantial part of it consisted of her denying the truth of a large number of things she had previously said. For instance, she declared that she had been joking when she said that she would swear a lie any time for Tom Dula (a statement recorded in the testimony of J. W. Winkler; West, p. 87, and made to George Washington Anderson; it was overheard by deputy Jack Adkins; Fletcher p. 42), and of course she claimed she was joking when she said she had murdered Laura Foster (West, p. 83). Foster also testified "It is true that I sat in Dula's lap for a blind, one day when a woman came to James Melton's... I also slept with Dula for a blind at Ann Melton's insistence." (This implicitly contradicts the testimony of Anderson, who says that Pauline voluntarily spent a night in the woods with Dula;
West, p. 85; Fletcher, p. 24, seems to think Pauline slept with both Dula and Anderson that night.
In any case, what was sleeping with Dula a blind "for"? And why would Dula sleep with someone known to have syphilis simply as "a blind"?)
It is not clear from the record, but my guess is that Pauline was a stupid young woman carefully coached by the prosecution to tell their story, and if ever questioned about her past remarks, to either deny the claim or call it a joke. Possibly they had a signal to tell her which tactic to use. And the jury perhaps accepted her testimony because they thought her too addled to lie. I personally find it hard to believe anything she said. As Fletcher says on p. 93, "Pauline may have been a loose-lipped simpleton, but she was not a complete fool"; she would do whatever was required to shift blame.
We do not know the prosecutor's actual lines of argument, but Fletcher argues it as follows:
* That, although the time of the murder is not known, it must have happened on the day Laura Foster disappeared, or someone would have seen her.
* That Dula and Melton could not have done it together; although both were unaccounted for at one time or another on the day Foster died, there was no time when both were missing simultaneously for long enough to do the deed (Fletcher, p. 112)
* That Dula had a motive, in that he had contracted syphilis.
* That Dula had said that he would kill the person who gave it to him, and had also stated that he had it from Foster (Fletcher, pp. 113-114)
* That Ann Melton was jealous of Foster, and would have encouraged Dula to be rid of her (Fletcher, p. 114)
* That Dula had a knife similar to the murder weapon (Fletcher, p. 113, states "Thomas Dula was known to possess what may have been the murder weapon." Of course, the number of people in rural North Carolina who possessed six inch knives was, what, all of them?)
* That Laura Foster was reported to have stated, the last time she was seen, that she was going to meet (run away with?) Dula (Fletcher, p. 114).
* (On the other hand, there was no evidence to prove that Dula actually met Foster after her disappearance, and there were no witnesses to the murder; no witness ever placed Dula at the murder scene; Fletcher, pp. 114-115).
* Dula had borrowed a mattock at the time the grave was dug, and supposedly there were mattock marks near the grave (Fletcher, p. 116) -- although I note that a mattock cannot dig a grave, it can merely break up the soil. Something is needed to dig out the dirt once broken up. No one is recorded as seeing Dula with a shovel.
* That Ann Melton knew where the grave was, and told Pauline Foster roughly where it was (Fletcher, p. 115). Foster did not know the exact location -- or, at least, said she did not, although of course she we cannot prove that she did not know. The obvious presumption is that, if Melton told Foster, then Melton either did the deed or had been told by the one who did the deed.
This, it seems to me, leaves us with four possibilities:
1. That Ann Melton committed the murder and told Pauline about it. Note that, because Melton's trial had been separated from Dula's, the jury did not have to decide on this possibility, except to allow it as a possible alternative to Dula's guilt.
2. That Dula committed the murder as charged, with Melton an accessory after the fact (since she didn't report the crime) who tried to cover up for Tom.
3. That Pauline Foster did it, and concocted the story about Ann and Tom, to cover up her own guilt. This might be because she had loved Dula and been rejected (admittedly she was engaged, but that certainly didn't stop her from fooling around!), or because she resented Ann, who was her employer but (by all accounts) not a particularly nice person (although it's not obvious why she would kill Foster in that case rather than knocking off Ann or Tom).

4. (A very faint possibility, but a possibility:) That someone other than Melton, Dula, or Pauline Foster did it, and Pauline reasoned out where the grave must be based on where Laura was last seen, and concocted the story as in scenario 3. If this is the case, then Wilson Foster is perhaps the leading candidate -- after all, his daughter had round heels and he had threatened her. And the entire story about the broken rope and the badly-shoed horse comes from him; his was one of the few other pieces of testimony that actually added something to what Pauline said. (There are, to be sure, other stories that floated about who murdered Laura Foster. One version, printed in 2001 and repeated on p. 121 of Fletcher, is that Ann Melton and Pauline Foster, not Dula, conspired to do the deed, with Melton actually wielding the knife. But this was an old woman's retelling of something she heard from someone she had heard as a young girl from someone who was very young at the time -- probably too young to genuinely remember. All such stories are possible, but all are so unlikely that they need not detain us. The jury had only the four possibilities above.)

If I had been the defense, I would have gone all-out against Pauline -- demonstrating her promiscuity, her conflicting evidence in past situations, her complete worthlessness. Without her testimony, the case against Dula would surely have collapsed. (Indeed, I don't think it stands on its own even with Pauline's testimony.) But it appears that the defense made no such attempt. Perhaps this is a token of Vance's indifferent legal abilities; DAB (Vol. X, p. 158) reports that "He was never a close student of the law," being more interested in politics -- the law of course being a good way to practice his speaking and get his name in the news.

With all that non-evidence to sort through, the trial took two full days, October 19-20 (West, p. 44). The jury deliberated overnight; the next morning, Sunday, October 21, 1866, Dula was convicted of murder. The defense made a series of motions, including one to delay sentencing, but these were denied (West, pp. 44-45). Judge Buxton sentenced Dula to be hanged on November 9, 1866. In the 1860s, appeals were not the automatic result they are now, but Dula's lawyers filed one -- and, because Dula was indigent, he was allowed to appeal without giving security (West, p. 45).

Interestingly, because there was no trial record, the judge and court clerk wrote a summary of the result to take to the appeals court. This included testimony from only twenty witnesses (less than a quarter of the total), and that not verbatim (West, p. 45; even what we have was not clearly written and hard to read; West, p. 72. There is a second, seemingly unofficial, record of Pauline Foster's testimony, printed by West, pp. 100-103. It does not supply much information not in the official transcript, but at least it supports the accuracy of the official record as far as it goes).

To make things worse, of the twenty witnesses whose testimony is summarized, only five were witnesses for the defense (Fletcher, p. 67). This surely biases the trial record, although it's hard to know exactly how. (It is intriguing to note that among the witnesses were Thomas C. Land and Calvin L. Triplett, both of whom wrote poems about the case; Land is thought to be responsible for "The Murder of Laura Foster" [Laws F36]; what is perhaps his original text is recorded on pp. 12-16 of Gardner. But no testimony was recorded from either Land or Triplett; Fletcher, p. 108.)

The lack of a proper transcript of the trial meant that the information seen in the appeal was both incomplete and biased by the opinions of the judge and clerk. But the appeal did go forward; the Supreme Court noted four procedural errors by the local court, including the use of hearsay evidence, and ordered a new trial (Fletcher, p. 68). Because the courts met so rarely, that meant the case was not taken up again until April 1867 (West, p. 45) -- and then had to be held over until the fall term because some of Dula's witnesses who had not appeared at the first trial were unavailable (Fletcher, p. 68). This resulted in a postponement, with Dula and Melton in jail the whole time, and this time, it was the prosecution that had trouble getting its witnesses (including James Grayson who had helped take Dula into custody; West, p. 46; Fletcher, p. 69). Grayson was busy with his duties as a Tennessee legislator, but because no relevant records exist, we don't really know why either side asked for the witnesses it did). Eventually a new trial started in January, 1868 (West, p. 47, says January 21; Fletcher, p. 70, says January 3; they agree that William M. Shipp was the judge). As before, the defense moved to separate the trials of Dula and Melton, and once again the motion was granted.

The retrial did not change the result (West, p. 48). There was another appeal to the state Supreme Court, which delayed the execution but did not result in any relief for Dula (West, p. 48; Fletcher, p. 70 says that no new material was submitted to the Supreme Court, so naturally they didn't interfere). Once the appeal failed, the judge set the date for Dula's hanging as May 1, 1868 (18 days after the sentencing; Fletcher, p. 70).

Despite all the problems in procedure, and the poor evidence, Fletcher, p. 157, notes that both presiding judges seem to have been convinced of Dula's guilt, which may be better evidence than the surviving court records.

Dula's behavior at this time was interesting. He refused to see a clergyman -- or even his relatives (West, p. 49).

He apparently had been trying to escape by abrading his shackles. He didn't finish in time (West, p. 49).

On April 30, 1868, the day before his execution, Dula wrote several papers. It's not clear whether he wrote them himself; we're not certain that he was literate (census records show that in 1860 he was fifteen and in school; Gardner, p. 41; but after the Civil War he had signed his release paper with an X; Fletcher, p. 65). The most important of the papers that he left was a note in which he said that only he had a role in the murder of Laura Foster (West, p. 49; the New York Herald version of the note is on p. 121 and Gardner, p. 27). He did finally accept baptism that night, and apparently engaged in a long string of incoherent prayers (West, p. 50) -- but reportedly refused to admit any part in the murder of Foster even to the minister (Fletcher, p. 71).

Dula was hung at Statesville on May 1 after giving a long speech about the wages of sin in which he accused some of the witnesses against him of lying (West, p. 124). The gallows was incompetently built; the drop did not break his neck, and it took some ten minutes for him to die by strangulation (West, p. 51; Fletcher, pp. 72-73).

Ann Melton had never been called to testify. Dula apparently never mentioned her prior to that last note. After Dula's death, Melton was taken back to Wilkes County to be tried (Fletcher, pp. 75-76). The case was tried in the fall term of 1868 (Fletcher, p. 76). The trial was brief and Melton was allowed to go free, mostly on the strength of Dula's note admitting guilt (West, p. 52). She was released, having spent about two years in prison. This even though the locals apparently regarded her as guilty (Fletcher, p. 76). In fact, according to Fletcher, p. 158, "The popular view in much of Wilkes County [today] is to deny that Tom Dula actually committed the act of murder and that Ann Melton did the actual killing." But things were different at the time; Fletcher, p. 159, quotes one man who saw her who said (much later) that "Ann Melton was the purtiest woman I ever looked in the face of. She'd a-been hung too, but her neck was jist too purty to stretch hemp. She was guilty, I knewed it... Ef they'd a-been any womern [any women] on the jury, she'd a-got first degree. Men couldn't look at the woman and keep their heads."

Unfortunately, or perhaps fortunately, there do not appear to be photographs of any of the principals to verify this. None of the books has a photo of Dula, Melton, Laura Foster, or Pauline Foster.

Thomas Land's poem "The Murder of Laura Foster" does not mention Ann Melton by name -- but then, it doesn't mention Tom Dula either! However, the fourth stanza (as printed by Gardner, p. 12) says that "She [Laura] met her groom and his vile Guest" -- which would have to be Dula and either Melton or Pauline Foster.

Interestingly, West, pp. 54-55, does not mention Brown's story that Melton went blind later in life -- but he does mention some reports that hint that she went insane in the years before her death some time between 1871 and 1874 (there seems to be no definitive record of her death). Another account reports that there were "black cats running up and down the walls" in the place where she died (Casstevens, p. 29), which sounds like a variation on the same thing. Insanity, like blindness, can be a side effect of severe syphilis, which kills about one person in six who contracts it. But Fletcher points out (p. 76) that she managed to bear another healthy child, Ida Melton, in 1871, so presumably the syphilis wasn't affecting her too severely at that stage. Indeed, Fletcher, p. 77, says there is no proof that either Melton ever had syphilis; the only evidence we have is that of Pauline Foster (plus, of course, the fact that Melton slept with Dula).

At least one report claimed that she died as a result of injuries in an overturned horse-drawn vehicle (Fletcher, pp. 76-77). Which makes you wonder a little if James Melton got tired of his wife. One also wonders if the Melton children were in fact James Melton's (Fletcher, p. 86, says that the older daughter, from her photograph, clearly resembles James Melton -- but doesn't print the photos to prove it). James outlived Ann by many years, and went on to marry another wife (West, p. 55).

Foster, p. 162, says that there was not sufficient time for Melton to have committed the murder by herself. Probably true, although all this is based on the witnesses' accounts of events that happened some time before as recalled still later by the judge and clerk -- if we accept that evidence, then the murderer was either Tom Dula or an unknown party. But this is, in practice, weak hearsay evidence.

There are two obvious questions arising out of the case: Did Dula kill Laura Foster, and did he deserve his punishment? The answer to the former is, frankly, that we do not know with certainty. Dula knew; Ann Melton may have known; but neither really told us much. Dula is certainly the best candidate, with Melton being the only other likely alternative (Fletcher, p.117, is convinced that they are the only possible alternatives; I can only say that I am not convinced), but there appears to be no real evidence against Dula except his obvious disdain for Foster. And there was that comment by Wilson Foster that he would kill his daughter for stealing his horse, and all the garbage that Pauline Foster spouted....

The court case is what is truly disturbing. Recall that a warrant was sworn out for Dula before Laura Foster's body was found -- in other words, before it was even known that she was dead! And Dula was extradited from Tennessee before the body was found, without legal process; the deputies from North Carolina simply showed up in Tennessee, and Grayson helped them take Dula. Even once he was in custody, it is by no means clear that the case against him was strong enough to keep him in prison. As for the trial itself, we cannot be sure, because we have no proper trial record -- just the summary prepared by the judge and court clerk. Given that guilt must be demonstrated beyond a reasonable doubt, the evidence as it now appears does not seem sufficient to convict. Especially since so much depended on Pauline Foster, who seems to have changed her story at least once and to have been a ninnyhammer anyway. Either that, or she was out to get Dula -- she did sleep with him, after all; is it possible that she wanted more and he didn't? No way to tell, now.

And Dula in his last speech -- when he had nothing to lose -- said that some of the witnesses had lied about him, and Fletcher agrees -- he states that James Isbell (who actually helped pay for the prosecution) had given biased testimony (Fletcher, p. 162), and he adds on p. 163 that some of Pauline Foster's testimony "is certainly questionable, if not an outright lie."

West, pp. 128-133, consulted a relative who was a lawyer, seeking his opinion of whether the outcome met the rules of proper justice. That lawyer objected to the process on four points. Two struck me as quite cogent. Dula's "arrest in Tennessee and removal to Wilkes County was, to say the least, most informal, compared to the legal standards required to extradite a person from another state's jurisdiction under today's circumstances" (West, p. 128). (Fletcher's answer, pp. 45-46, was that the deputies who took Dula were in "hot pursuit," which they perhaps thought was true, but remember, the body still hadn't been found! He also says that North Carolina, which was unreconstructed after the Civil War, was under martial law. True but irrelevant -- Tennessee, which had a large Union population, had been reconstructed and was once again a full member of the Union).

Second, the lawyer pointed out (West, p. 131) that the evidence against Dula was all circumstantial. He implied that that was bad; we now know that circumstantial evidence is better than personal testimony when the evidence is truly relevant. But none of the circumstantial evidence was strong. To repeat, Dula was clearly the best candidate for the murderer. But there are at least three others: Ann Melton, Pauline Foster, and Wilson Foster -- who may have been getting tired of maintaining his unmarried and hard-to-marry daughter (remember, whatever else we know about Laura Foster, she was not a virgin, had syphilis, and had no inheritance or noteworthy skills). With three other possible murderers, did the evidence add up to guilt beyond a reasonable doubt?

The lawyer West talked to concludes, "I do not think it takes a lawyer to conclude, after reviewing this record, that the evidence presented against Tom Dula does not meet at least one of these standards [for conviction]. The evidence is not, however, subject only to the interpretation of the guilt of Tom Dula and therefore does not exclude every reasonable hypothesis. [In other words, there are other reasonable scenarios which are also consistent with the evidence.] It shows only a motive and the opportunity which is generally held insufficient to support a conviction."

Based on the evidence available to me, I have to agree. Although I genuinely think he was guilty, Dula probably deserves a "Scots verdict" of "Not proven."

On the other hand, given his other activities, I think it could be argued that the world was better off without him.

Polenberg, pp. 66-74 gives an eight page summary of this case which adds nothing that I can see to the above summary, and which is often so brief as to prejudice the case, but he offers a photo of Dula in Confederate uniform (the only photo of Dula I've ever seen) on p. 67; given that the uniform is in good shape and Dula does not appear underfed, I'd guess it was taken around the time of his enlistment. Page 69 has a very poor photo of Grayson; page 70 has a photo of Governor Vance. Page 268 has a list of recent Dula memorials.

Peña/Hayes, p. 73, has a photo of Dula's gravestone, which I am quite certain is modern; p. 74 has a photo of Vance.

West and others are quick to condemn this song as inaccurate. Certainly the folklore about Dula is often wrong. But the neighbors also remembered incorrectly -- e.g. the Rev. R. L. Isbell (the son of James Isbell, who had been one of the searchers for Laura Foster and one who testified against Dula), who was a child in the area at the time, claimed that the murder happened in 1865, not 1866, and says that the proper name of Laura's father Will Foster was not "Wilson Foster" but "William Foster" (Gardner, p. 20) and that Dula was captured in Virginia, not Tennessee (Gardner, p. 22) and he wrongly believed that Foster's horse was found still tied up near the murder scene. To be fair, Isbell said that the events he described had happened "eighty-six years ago" -- Gardner, p. 23 -- so he must have been about ninety at the time he was reminiscing.

Compared to that, the ballad often has the details right:

"Stabbed her with my knife": Whoever killed Foster did it with a knife (probably about six inches long), according to Dr. George Carter, who did the autopsy (West, p. 78).

"Hadn't been for Grayson, I'd have been in Tennessee." Dula was in Tennessee when James Grayson assisted in his arrest. The folklore in Doc Watson's family, that Grayson was a rival for the love of Laura Foster, is obviously false; Grayson never met Foster in his life (Fletcher, p. 13) -- but the ballad itself never claims Grayson had anything to do with Foster.

"Take down my old violin, play it on my knee." Dula was a fiddler, and apparently a fairly good one (West, p. 24).

Other versions of the song have him play the banjo instead; indeed, according to Fletcher, p. 122, folklore claimed that it was his banjo playing that first brought him to the attention of his defense lawyer Vance. But West, p. 71, and Fletcher, p. 122, agree that there is no evidence that he ever played banjo. Presumably the mention of the fiddle is older. He had served as a drummer in the Civil War (Fletcher, p. 21).

"Met her on the mountain, As everybody knows... and there you hid her clothes." Dr. George Carter told the court that a bundle of clothes was buried with her (West, p. 78). Betsy Scott had testified that, when Laura had left her home for the last time, she was carrying extra clothing (Fletcher, p. 29).

"Down in some lonesome valley, Hanging from a white oak tree." Dula was hanged, but not in a lonesome valley or from a tree; it was from a public scaffold in Statesville with a very large crowd watching (Fletcher, p. 72). On the other hand, there apparently were rumors of lynchings as he was taken from Tennessee to North Carolina.

Although people usually spell the names "Laura Foster" and "Tom Dula," the pronunciations in the song are correct: the Dulas were called "Dooley/Doolie," and Laura Foster was called "Laurie" (West, p. xviii). The spelling "Dooley" is used on both Dula's parole as a POW and his oath of allegiance to the re-united United States (shown on pp. 21-22 of Fletcher), although Dula did not sign the former and (I suspect) did not sign the latter. At least once in the court papers, he is called "Dooley" (Fletcher, p. 65), although Fletcher reports that he corrected that to "Dula." Gardner, before p. 1, shows a Union list of Confederate parolees; the reproduction (which appears to be a bad photocopy) is almost illegible, but the Union recorder seems to have given Dula's name as "Dooly." On p. 41 Gardner says that Dula signed the parolee list as "Dooley" to match his name in the list, then wrote "Dula" above it.

The Kingston Trio version is said to have eventually sold three million copies (Polenberg, p. 66). Not surprisingly, this produced copyright lawsuits, with G. B. Grayson (who first recorded it) apparently not even being considered as a copyright-holder and Frank Proffitt (the direct source of the version the Kingston Trio recorded) getting only a half-share, with Frank Warner also getting a half share and the Lomaxes, who had collected a version, getting the rest (Polenberg, p. 74). That story was almost as ugly as the murder itself, and surely an even bigger travesty of justice.

It turns out that there was a movie, "The Legend of Tom Dooley," sort of inspired by this song (Casstevans, p. 18). Looking over the cast, it cannot have been based on anything real; it starred Michael Landon as Tom and Jo Morrow as Laura Foster -- but the cast does not include parts for Ann Melton or Pauline Foster. And it does include one for "Charlie Grayson," who of course did not exist (and who surely did not have a big enough role to be the #3 person in the cast list!).

A North Carolina resident, H. M. "Hub" Yount, wrote to a paper to say that the movie had it all wrong (Gardner, p. 34). He had the story from his father and aunt. Ironically, Yount made errors of his own -- he said the murder took place in 1867 and the hanging in 1869. This account also claims that the Tom Dooley song was already known at the time, and cites the chorus. I suspect, however, that Yount was confusing "Tom Dooley" with "The Murder of Laura Foster." - RBW

Bibliography

• DAB: Dumas Malone, editor,Dictionary of American Biography, originally published in 20 volumes plus later supplementary volumes; I use the 1961 Charles Scribner's Sons edition with minor corrections which combined the original 20 volumes into 10
Tom Dula's Lament

DESCRIPTION: "I pick my banjo now, I pick it on my knee, This time tomorrow night, It'll be no more use to me." Dula says that Laura (Foster) loved his banjo playing, and says he never knew how true her love was. He bids Ann (Melton) to kiss him goodbye.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: death execution music love

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 304, "Tom Dula's Lament" (2 texts, but the second is a single-stanza fragment, not found in the "A" text, and is included in the "Tom Dooley" text sung by Frank Profitt)
- McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, p. 24, "(Tom Dula)" (1 text)

ST BrII304 (Full)

Roud #6645

RECORDINGS:
- Sheila Clark, "Tom Dula's Own Ballad" (on LegendTomDula)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

NOTES [152 words]: This song may possibly be a rewritten version of "Tom Dooley" (or vice versa); they share lyrics, and can be sung to the same tune. But this one is in the first person, "Tom Dooley" mostly in third person. Plus this one shows Dula lamenting his errors -- which he never showed any sign of doing. They look separate to me, as they did to the editors of Brown. As usual with goodnights, there is no evidence whatsoever that Tom Dula wrote this. And there was a reporter present at his execution, and John Edward Fletcher, PhD (with a foreword by Edith Marie Ferguson Carter), The True Story of Tom Dooley: From Western North Carolina Mystery to Folk Legend, History Press, 2013, p. 142, points out that this reporter makes no mention of Dula writing any such song (even though he was known to be a fiddler. He did not play banjo).

For background to the Dula story, see the notes to "Tom Dooley" [Laws F36A]. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: BrII304
Tom Halyard
DESCRIPTION: Tom Halyard, mortally wounded, asks his ship's captain if he has done his duty. Assured that he has, he asks the captain to send his love a lock of his hair. He dies with Kate's name on his lips.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950
KEYWORDS: battle death farewell hair
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol1, pp. 42-43, "Tom Halyard" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4773
File: MN1042

Tom Kelly's Cow
DESCRIPTION: Tom Kelly brews poteen "that exceeds them all." John's cow drinks up the still and wakes drunk with a broken horn. She makes a deal with Tom: if he won't tell John about her drinking she "will bring [him] against Lammas a fine heifer calf."
AUTHOR: John Maguire (source: Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday)
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday)
KEYWORDS: promise drink humorous animal
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday 8, pp. 17,103,158, "Tom Kelly's Cow" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2924
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Cow that Drank the Poteen" (theme: cow hides drinking problem)
NOTES [32 words]: Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday: John Maguire wrote the song on request of the schoolmaster who had kept John after school one day to inquire about John's cow and Tom Kelly's poteen. - BS
File: MoMa008

Tom O'Neill [Laws Q25]
DESCRIPTION: A rich girl tries to convince Tom O'Neill to leave the priesthood and marry her. When he refuses, she claims that Tom got her pregnant. He is sentenced to transportation. He is reprieved when another man admits he fathered the child for money.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1853 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 26(189))
KEYWORDS: money clergy pregnancy trick trial punishment transportation lie sex
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar) Ireland
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Laws Q25, "Tom O'Neill"
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 87, "Tom O'Neil" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladsOfIreland, pp. 8-9, "Father Tom O'Neil" (1 text)
McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen 29, "Father Tom O'Neill" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 534, TOMONEIL
Roud #1013
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 26(189), "Father Tom O'Neale," J. Moore (Belfast), 1846-1852; also 2806 b.11(240), "Father Tom O'Neale"; Harding B 26(574), "The Rev'd Father Tom O'Neil"
File: LQ25

Tom Pearce (Widdicombe Fair I)
DESCRIPTION: The singer asks Tom Pearce to lend his old mare to go to the fair. Tom wants the horse back soon, but it is slow in returning, for it has taken sick and died. (Now the horse's ghost can be seen haunting the moors at night)

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1889
KEYWORDS: horse ghost travel
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South)) Canada(Ont) US(Ap)
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 308, "Tom Pearce" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 75, "Illsdown Fair" (1 text)
Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 112, "Midsummer Fair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hamer-GarnersGay, pp. 10-11, "Bedford Fair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 171, "Widdicombe Fair" (1 text)
Bush-FSoCentralWestVirginiaVol3, pp. 16-17, "Joe Maybe" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 398, "Tam Pierce" (1 text)
DT, WIDDECOM* TAMPRCE*
ADDITIONAL: Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928; #80, "Widicombe Fair" (1 text)
Roud #137
RECORDINGS:
Tom Brown, "Widdlecombe Fair" (on Voice07)
George Maynard, "Lansdown Fair" (on FSB10)
Bill Westaway, "Widdicombe Fair" (on FSB10, FieldTrip1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Widdicombe Fair (II)" (lyrics)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Bedford Fair
John Jones's Old Mare
Stow Fair
NOTES [129 words]: According to Marc Alexander, _A Companion to the Folklore, Myths & Customs of Britain_, Sutton Publishing, 2002, p. 316, Widdicombe Fair is:
"The fair held at the Dartmoor village of Widecombe-on-the-Moor.... The fair is held on the second Tuesday in September with a Master of Ceremonies dressed in an old-fashioned farm worker's smock and holding a crook. In the local dialect he announces various events, including such traditional games as the slippery pole and a cross-country foot race. The fair has been held at Widecombe-on-the-Moor since the middle of the nineteenth century."
Alexander, pp. 316-317, adds a tale of when Satan supposedly visited Widecombe in 1638, when a severe storm hit the town and damaged the church of St. Pancras, killing several inside. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: K308

Tom Potts [Child 109]

DESCRIPTION: A high-born lady loves Tom Potts, a serving man. She refuses Lord Phoenix's offer of marriage but her father overrides her. She sends word to Tom, who, aided by his master, challenges Phoenix. After several forms of contest he wins her.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1657 (broadside, according to Child)
KEYWORDS: nobility servant courting contest father
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Child 109, "Tom Potts" (3 texts)
Hales/Furnival-BishopPercysFolioManuscript, volume III, pp. 135-150, "Thomas of Potte" (1 text)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN3263, "All you lords of Scotland fair"
Roud #66
NOTES [106 words]: In addition to the broadside cited by Child, the Stationer's Register for March 1, 1675 mentions a piece, "Tommy Potts" (see Hyder E. Rollins, _An Analytical Index to the Ballad-
Tom Quick

DESCRIPTION: "Tom Quick he lived on Sullivan hill By the Delaware's a-roaring tide." He lives alone with his dogs and his daughter Iona. When he is away, Indians find her. He attacks and kills them, but he dies soon after and she leaves the home

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads)

KEYWORDS: Indians(Am.) fight death father children rescue

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1734-1795/6 - Life of Tom Quick, who was both reviled and revered for his conflicts with the local Indians.

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads, pp. 28-29, "Tom Quick" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #11487

File: ByGo028

Tom Taits

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1870 (Chambers)

KEYWORDS: farming food dialog animal

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #161, p. 2, ("Fa's are ye? I'm Tam Tat's") (1 fragment)

Greig/Duncan8 1634, "Tam Tat's" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Popular Rhymes of Scotland (Edinburgh, 1870 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 24-25, ("What ca' they you?")

Roud #13068

File: GrD81634

Tom Tidler's Ground

DESCRIPTION: "I'm on Tommy (Tidler's/Tickler's) ground, Picking up gold and silver." A game for deciding a boundary

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad money

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #156, "Tom Tidler's Ground" (1 text)

File: Newe156

Tom Toozick the Gentleman

DESCRIPTION: Gaelic. "A drinking-song, in which 'Tom Toozick' recounts his exploits in the local hostelry, where he habitually spent all his earnings. In the end he resolves to mend his ways, and asks God's forgiveness for his previous behaviour."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage drink
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 188, "Tom Toozick the Gentleman" (2 texts, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Elizabeth Cronin, "Tom Toozick the Gentleman" (on IRECronin01)
NOTES [46 words]: The description follows the "English Summary" provided by OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin. A few words of English are scattered throughout, such as, "come landlady and open the door" and "come, bring us some toddy my jewel, for here is Tom Toozick the Gentleman!" - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: OCC188

Tom Twist

DESCRIPTION: "Tom Twist was a wonderful fellow; No boy was so nimble and strong." Shipwrecked among cannibals, he escapes; he rides a condor to China and is made a mandarin; he at last returns home, then somersaults out the window and far away

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Flanders and Brown)
KEYWORDS: travel ship cannibalism talltale
FOUND IN: US(NE,Ro)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, pp. 173-176, "Tom Twist" (1 text, tune referenced) Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #174, "Tom Twist" (1 text)
DT, TOMTWIST*
Roud #5448
File: FlBr173

Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son (I)

DESCRIPTION: Tom, "the piper's son, Stole a pig and away did run." He eats the pig, he is beaten, and runs crying or roaring down the street.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1810 (Ritson)
KEYWORDS: punishment theft animal
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond)) Canada(Ont)
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 509, "Tom, Tom, the piper's son" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #126, p. 105, "(Tom, Tom, the piper's son)" (1 text)
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 217, "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son" (1 text, in the notes to "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son (II)" Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 149, "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son" (1 text plus a fragment of "O'er the Hills and Far Away (I)"
JournalOfAmericanFolklore, F. Eileen Bleakney, "Folk-Lore from Ottawa and Vicinity," Vol. XXXI, No. 120 (Apr-Jun 1918), #18 p. 166 ("Tom, Tom, the piper's son") (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Joseph Ritson, Gammer Gurton's Garland (London, 1810 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 35, ("Tom Thumb the piper's son") (1 text)
Elizabeth Mary Wright, "Rustic Speech and Folk-Lore" (London, 1913), pp. 119-120, ("Tom, Tom, the baker's son") (1 text)
Roud #19621
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son (II)" (lyrics)
NOTES [212 words]: The Wright text is from Lincolnshire: "Tom, Tom, the baker's son. Stole a wig, and away he run; The wig was eat, and Tom was beat, And Tom went roaring down the street." Wright explains that "a wig (in gen. dial. use) is a kind of cake or bun, a plain wig is a bun without currants, ... The ordinary version substitutes 'pig' for 'wig', and makes Tom's father a 'piper'. It is a question for textual critics to settle, but natural sequence of idea and detail is on the side of the 'wig'-version being the original one; and it is easy to see how in a literary nursery, authority would say that the most omnivorous of small boys could not eat a periwig, and therefore the word must be pig. This change once made, Tom's father becomes a piper for the sake of alliteration, rather than because there is any historical connexion between a piper and a pig." - BS

A textual critic generally looks for the reading which more easily could be corrupted into one of the others -- and Young Tom might have had some trouble carrying off a whole pig. A wig-bun would at least be easier of transport. So I don't think it can be absolutely settled. Indeed, some textual critics of the more radical sort might propose an emendation -- perhaps "fig" rather than either "pig" or "wig." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: 002509

Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son (II)

DESCRIPTION: When Tom plays "Over the hills and far away" on his pipe, "those who heard him could never keep still; As soon as he played they began to dance." Even pigs, cows, old Dame Trot and a "cross fellow ... beating an ass" had to dance.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1843 (Halliwell)
KEYWORDS: magic dancing music animal
FOUND IN: Britain US
REFERENCES (17 citations):
Arnett-IHearAmericaSinging, p. 17, "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 507, "Tom, he was a piper's son" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #127, p. 105, "(Tom, he was a piper's son)" (1 text)
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 216, "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: James Orchard Halliwell, The Nursery Rhymes of England (London, 1843 ("Digitized by Google")), #113 pp. 79-80, "(Tom, he was a piper's son)" (1 text)
RELATED: Versions of the fabliau "The Friar and the Boy"/Jack and His Stepdame" -- Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #977
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #1599
ADDITIONAL: Frederick J. Furnivall, _Bishop Percy's Folio Manuscript: Loose and Humorous Songs_., printed by and for the Editor, London, 1868, pp. 9-28, "Ffryar and Boye" (1 text)
Melissa M. Furrow, _Ten Bourdes_, TEAMS (Consortium for the Teaching of the Middle Ages), Medieval Institute Publications, Western Michigan University, 2013, pp. 21-43, "Jack and His Stepdame" (1 edited text)
Roman Dyboski, _Songs, Carols, and Other Miscellaneous Poems from the Balliol Ms. 354, Richard Hill's Commonplace Book_, Kegan Paul, 1907 (there are now multiple print-on-demand reprints), #103, pp. 120-127, "Jak & his Stepdame, & of the Frere" (1 text)
MANUSCRIPT: Oxford, Bodleian Library, MS. Rawlinson C.86 (Bodleian 11951), folio 52
MANUSCRIPT: {MSPorkington10}, Aberystwyth, National Library of Wales, MS. Porkington 10, folio 139
MANUSCRIPT: {MsRichardCalle}, Cambridge, Cambridge University Library MS. Ee.4.35 (Part I), folio 6
Roud #19621
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Over the Hills So Far Away" (lyrics)
cf. "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son (I)" (lyrics)
cf. "Dolly and Hodge" (few lines)
NOTES [536 words]: See TMI D1415.2.4, "Magic pipe causes dancing." [Not TMI, D1427.1, "Magic pipe compels one to follow"; ATU Type 570 "The Rat-Catcher (The Pied-Piper)"]. However, Baring-Gould (p. 104 fn. 11) writes, "This song is apparently a version of an old metrical tale, 'The Friar and the Boy,' probably the nearest British approach to the German legend of the Pied Piper of Hamelin." I doubt the connection to either "The Friar and the Boy" or "The Pied Piper." [I doubt it too, but Baring-Gould reaffirms it elsewhere, and lists other parallels; see Baring-Gould's Myths, p. 241. "The Friar and the Boy" was printed by Wynken de Worde, which means it was in existence by 1535. - RBW]

Steevens summarizes "The Friar and the Boy". The boy "suffers from the capricious cruelty of a mother-in-law." A magician gives the boy three gifts: "the first is an unerring bow; the second a pipe which would compel all who heard it to dance; the third must explain itself [makes his mother-in-law fart]." For revenge, mother-in-law employs "the frere ... to persecute the boye" who makes the friar dance until his clothes are shredded. The friar calls in a magistrate for relief. The magistrate, against the friar's warning, asks to hear the boy play; so, the boy "throws all the participants into another fit of dancing, in which the offycyall himself is compelled to join, and the stepdame [sic] exhibits fresh proofs of her flatulency. The tired magistrate at last entreats our hero to suspend his operations, and, on his compliance, immediately reconciles him to his enemies." (Johnson/Steevens Vol. II, pp. 338-341). [See also the version in Briggs, pp. 250-254 - RBW.]

"Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son" (II) shares two lines with "Dolly and Hodge". For example, Baring-Gould's Annotated Mother Goose #127, II. 15, 18: "As Dolly was milking her cow one day ... Till the pail was broken and the milk ran on the ground" as the pail was knocked over when Tom played and "Doll and the cow danced." In the "Dolly and Hodge" broadsides, II. 1,20 [LOC Singing as101460 and Bodleian Johnson Ballads 616]: "As Dolly sat milking her cow ... [the cow] Kick'd the stool, milking pail, down and all" as the cow grew impatient to be milked while Dolly ignored her in favor of Hodge. - BS

The TMI motif D1415 is listed by Thompson as occurring in England, Wales, Iceland, and the United States (TMI, volume II, p. 226). For "The Friar and the Boy/Jack and His Stepdame" ("The Frere and the Boy" in the earliest texts) see the RELATED references. In addition to the sundry manuscripts listed (several of which were owned by middle class merchants), there were at least six early printed editions, contemporary with the manuscripts, the earliest printing of which was by Wynkyn de Worde early in the sixteenth century. Based on linguistic features, Furrow, p. 26, suggests it originated in Norfolk.

"The Friar and the Boy" obviously exists in many sources, but the only one indexed by Steve Roud is Furnivall's text from the Percy Folio; this is Roud #9838. The STC lists at least three early printed versions, catalogued on p. 325 under "Jest" (#14522, #14523, #14524), printed by J. Alde 1568/1569; E. Alde 1617, and again by E. Alde without a date. - RBW

Bibliography

- Baring-Gould's Myths: Sabine Baring-Gould, Curious Myths of the Middle Ages, new edition, 1894 (references are to the 2005 Dover paperback reprint)
- Briggs: Katherine Briggs, British Folktales (originally published in 1970 as A Dictionary of British Folk-Tales), revised 1977 (I use the 1977 Pantheon paperback edition)
- Furrow: Melissa M. Furrow, Ten Bourdes, TEAMs (Consortium for the Teaching of the Middle Ages), Medieval Institute Publications, Western Michigan University, 2013
- Johnson/Steevens: Samuel Johnson and George Steevens, Supplement to the Edition of Shakspere's Plays (London, 1778 ("Digitized by Google"))
- (The) TMI: Motif-Index of Folk-Literature revised and enlarged by Stith Thompson, (Bloomington, 1955)

Last updated in version 5.3

File: 002507

Tomah Stream

DESCRIPTION: The singer warns against drinking and hiring out to Tomah Stream. Instead of the easy work and good food he was promised, he finds mud roads, thin shelters, and poor and inadequate rations. He ends by exchanging insults with the boss Natty [Lamb].

AUTHOR: attributed to Larry Gorman (1846-1917)
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (Doerflinger)
KEYWORDS: logger work drink hardtimes boss
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 216-217, "Tomah Stream" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ives-LarryGorman, pp. 106-108, 201, "Tomah Stream" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4074
NOTES [20 words]: Tomah stream is in eastern Maine, not far from the Canadian border.
This song is item dC53 in Laws's Appendix II. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: Doe216

Tomahawk Hem, The

DESCRIPTION: "Now, boys, if you will listen to my few lines of care, Although heart-broken in sorrow we came here." "Twas on the tenth of March" that they went to the woods. The singer lists his companions. He recalls leaving Maggie and looks forward to going home
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (recording, Emory DeNoyer; Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)
KEYWORDS: separation logger moniker floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, pp. 79-80, "The Tomahawk Hem" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: James P. Leary, Compiler and Annotator, Wisconsin Folklore. University of Wisconsin Press, 2009, article "The Wanigan Songbook" by Isabel J. Ebert, pp. 212-214, "The Tomahawk River Hymn" (1 text, 1 tune, sung by Emory DeNoyer)
Roud #9075
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Lumber Camp Song" (theme) and references there
cf. "The Banks of the Nile (Men's Clothing I'll Put On II)" [Laws N9] (lyrics)
NOTES [132 words]: This is a complex conundrum. Most of the song is a standard logging/moniker song, talking about going to the woods and listing all the characters one meets in the camps. This might well be based on one of the many other songs of this type, although with the names changed. But it has also picked up a few lines from "The Banks of the Nile (Men's Clothing I'll Put On II)" [Laws N9] or one of its many relatives, and there is also a bit about "when the stormy winds do blow." There may be other floating materials I didn't recognize at a glance. I'm filing it under its own number because it's so composite -- but very little of what is here is really original. The really funny part, however, is how whoever transcribed Emory DeNoyer's recording heard "Tomahawk Hymn" as "Tomahawk Hem." - RBW
Last updated in version 2.7
File: Pet079

Tomahawking Fred (Tambaroora Ted)

DESCRIPTION: The singer is "just about to cut for the Lachlan To turn a hundred out...." He shears for the money, not for pleasure: "Give me sufficient cash and you'll see me make a splash, for I'm (Tambaroora Ted), the ladies' man." He boasts of his shearing skills
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: "Tomahawking Fred" printed 1912 by Jack Bradshaw; collected in 1974 from Joe Watson by Warren Fahey
KEYWORDS: sheep work Australia bragging
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 138-139, "Tambaroora Ted" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fahey-Joe-Watson-AustralianTraditionalFolkSinger, [p. 13, page headed "When I asked Mr. Watson..."], "Tambaroora Ted" (1 short text)
NOTES [55 words]: To "tomahawk" was to sheer a sheep too close to the skin, and was a common result when a poor shearer tried to shear too fast.
According to Davey/Seal: Gwenda Beed Davey and Graham Seal, A Guide to Australian Folklore, Tommy and the Apple

DESCRIPTION: "As Tommy was walking one fine summer day, Some rosy-cheeked apples he saw on his way. They seem to call to him. He climbs the tree to gather some, and falls off the branch, "And down came poor Tommy, the apples, and all." He won't steal apples again.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Edith Fowke Collection)

KEYWORDS: food injury theft

FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Vikár/Panagapka-SongsNorthWoodsSungByOJAbbott 32, "Tommy and the Apple" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #8723

File: AbFo032

Tommy Johnson Is No Good

DESCRIPTION: "(Tommy Johnson/Diane Carson) is no good, Chop (him) up for (fire/kindling) wood, When he's dead, boil his head, Make it into gingerbread." Or "...wood, If she is no good for that, Give her to the old tom cat."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty injury food animal

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 131, "([Diane Carson] is no good)" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Peter and Iona Opie, _I Saw Esau: Traditional Rhymes of Youth_, #21, "(Tommy Johnson is no good)" (1 text)

Roud #20791

File: SuSm131C

Tommy Murphy was a Soldier Boy

DESCRIPTION: Tommy Murphy leaves Katy to join a marching regiment. He loses a leg. It is replaced by a hickory limb. He can't help marching when he hears the band. Katy sees him "after six months or more of adventures in war" but he marches away when the band plays.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (for USBallinsloeFair, according to site irishtune.info, Irish Traditional Music Tune Index: Alan Ng's Tunography, ref. Ng #2614)

KEYWORDS: war injury humorous soldier separation

FOUND IN: Recordings:
Dinny (Jimmy) Doyle and Larry Griffin, "Tommy Murphy was a Soldier Boy" (on USBallinsloeFair)

File: RcTMWaSB

Tommy Tompkins and Polly Hopkins

DESCRIPTION: "Howdy do, Mr. Tommy Tomplins, Howdy do, Howdy do?" "Howdy do, Miss Polly Hopkins." "Oh, say, Mr. Tommy Tompkins, Won't you buy a broom?" "Oh, yes, Miss Polly Hopkins, I will buy a broom... If you'll be my bride And sweep the room."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry, from Elsie Burnett)

KEYWORDS: courting marriage

FOUND IN: US(SE)
Tommy, Make Room for your Uncle

DESCRIPTION: "Fred Jones, Hatter, of Leicester Square, Presents himself to you." A widow on a train falls in love with him, and she has a spoiled boy. The widow orders her boy, "Tommy, make room for your uncle." Tommy constantly causes trouble as they court.

AUTHOR: T. S. Lonsdale

EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Scott)

KEYWORDS: courting children humorous

FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,NE) Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 140-141, "Tommy, Make Room For Your Uncle" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #23764

File: ScES140

Tommy's Gone to Hilo

DESCRIPTION: Shanty. Characteristic line: "Away, (H)ilo... Tommy's gone to (H)ilo!" The girl complains that her Tommy has left her and gone to Liverpool, Baltimore, Bombay, or wherever it is that she least wants him to be. She may offer/threaten to follow.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1894 (Alfred M. Williams, _Studies in Folk-Song and Popular Poetry_, p. 7)

KEYWORDS: shanty separation sailor

FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,NE) Ireland

REFERENCES (16 citations):
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, p. 30, "Tommy's Gone to Hilo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 67-68, "Tommy's Gone to Hilo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bone-CapstanBars, pp. 61-62, "Tom's Gone to Hilo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen, p. 71-72, "Tom's Gone to Hilo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, p. 73-74, 260, "Tommy's Gone to Hilo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 261-264, "Shiloh Brown," "Tom's Gone to Hilo," "Tommy's Gone Away" (5 texts, 3 tunes - 1st text is only a fragment that might appear to be a variant of "Shallo Brown" due to the first chorus of "Shiloh, Shiloh Brown," but all the rest of it is "Tommy's Gone to Hilo") [AbEd, pp. 191-194]
Sharp-EnglishFolkChanteys, LX, p. 64, "Tommy's Gone Away" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, p. 103, "Tommy's Gone to Hilo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 150-151, "Tommy's Gone to Hilo" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, pp. 36, "Tommy's Gone to Hilo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H53d, p. 96, "Tom's Gone to Ilo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Terry-TheShantyBook-Part1, #24, "Tom's Gone to Hilo" (1 tet, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 92, "Tommy's Gone to Hilo" (1 text)
DT, TOMMYHLO*

ADDITIONAL: Frederick Pease Harlow, _The Making of a Sailor, or Sea Life Aboard a Yankee Square-Rigger_, 1928; republished by Dover, 1988, pp. 258-259, "Tommy's Gone to Hilo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #481
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "Hieland Laddie" (floating lyrics)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
  Johnny’s Gone to Hilo (Ilo)
NOTES [1671 words]: Most versions of the song use the name "Hilo" (Hugill says all; this was before the Henry collection was published), but the town, according to Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, Shay, etc., is not the village in Hawaii but the port of Ilo in southern Peru, a major source of nitrates.
That’s nitrates as in "saltpeter." As in "gunpowder." Gunpowder consists of sulfur, charcoal, and saltpeter -- with the mixes used in the nineteenth century requiring 75% saltpeter and just a handful of the other two components (Field p. 171). And saltpeter was the hardest component to find -- since ancient times, a little had been made from human urine, and Europe had set up major factories in India starting around the eighteenth century (Bown, p. 40). But it still wasn't enough. (For background on this, see the notes to "Chamber Lye.")
It was Friedrich Wilhelm Heinrich Alexander Baron von Humboldt (1769-1859) who made the next key step. He went on a world tour in 1799 in which he explored the west coast of Latin America and discovered the nitrate deposits of Chile and Peru (Asimov-Encyc, p. 238, entry #334). Bown, p. 143, notes that the Latin American coast is washed by a cold current from Antarctica (the "Humboldt Current"). This carries much organic material, and since the water is cold, it also has much oxygen. As a result, it is full of fish and other life forms which attract birds. The birds nest on the shores nearby, leaving their droppings behind. And the major component of those droppings is urea -- a good source of nitrates. (So much so that the Incas apparently rationed the guano as a fertilizer among their various provinces; Bown, p. 145).
A curiosity of the climate in the area is that, due to peculiar air circulation patterns, it almost never rains. So there is absolutely nothing to disturb the heaps of guano. They just kept on piling higher (Bown, pp. 144-145).
Chile had a slightly different source of nitrate. Its deserts were never home to much life; according to Asimov-Build, the nitrates there were the residue from dried-up ancient lakes.
Exports of Chilean nitrates began in 1830 (Darrow, p. 216). At this time they were presumably used mostly for explosives -- though the Chilean deposits, known as "caliche," were largely sodium nitrate, with about a 50% mixture of miscellaneous dirt, so they had to be purified and then converted to potassium nitrate (Bown, pp. 148-149). But, once it was learned how to convert sodium nitrate and potassium chloride into saltpeter (a process discovered in 1846), caliche became a fully viable product (Bown, p. 156). In addition, methods were eventually discovered to keep sodium nitrate from absorbing moisture, so it could be made into a fairly reliable gunpowder (Bown, p. 156).
The Peruvian guano also found another use: It was one of the main sources of dyes in the early eighteenth century; it wasn't until 1856 that William Henry Perkin found the first of the analine dyes (Schwarcz, pp. 218-222, 225), which eventually eliminated the need for organic hues.
Shortly before the discovery of the caliche conversion process, Justus von Liebig (1803-1873) conducted his experiments in soil fertility which proved that nitrogen was a necessary fertilizer. So the demand for nitrates, already high, took another jump. And the guano was organic, and made a better fertilizer than caliche, and was coveted as such. (Though caliche too would be used for fertilizer in time.) Plus the caliche, though readily accessible, was inland, and shipping it to the coast was tricky (Bown, p. 149). This made the guano, available right at the coast, that much more valuable. Indeed, for some decades, fees on the trade provided the vast majority of revenue for Peru, and were all that kept that nation solvent (Bown, pp. 153-154).
Liebig went so far as to predict future wars over fertilizers and other resources, noting that Great Britain was consuming more than its share (Buckingham, p. 64). Buckingham poo-poos the notion of wars over resources -- but let's not forget the Persian Gulf War. What's more there was a war fought over nitrates, though it did not involve a major power; the participants were Bolivia, Chile, and Peru. The problems went back to the period of Spanish rule. "The War of the Pacific (1879-83) was a contest for possession of the bleak Atacama Desert reaching six hundred miles from Chilean Copiapo to Peruvian Arica... In disdain for this sorry land, Spain had never bothered to establish a boundary between Peru (which in colonial days included Bolivia) and Chile" (Herring, p. 585).
When the war began, Chile was much smaller than today. The region from roughly Talca in what is now Chile to the mouth of the rive Loa north of Tocopilla was in Bolivian hands, giving Bolivia a large chunk of the Andean nitrates as well as access to the sea. The region north or that, including the town of Iquique, was part of Peru, and it too contained nitrate beds, though they were not as large as those in Bolivia (for a map of this, Barraclough, 97). But it was Chile which was exploiting the beds, backed by European capital, though they paid royalties to Bolivia and Peru. It was an attempt by Peru and Bolivia to increase these royalties that led to the war. Bolivia and Chile had already been involved in diplomatic wrangles over the caliche beds; Despite controlling part of the Pacific coast of Latin America, Bolivia had very poor access to its seacoast due to the Andes (Roberson, p. 422) -- the Bolivians had almost no way to defend the region. When a dictator in Bolivia set aside the fragile agreement between the two countries, Chile promptly attacked (though the declaration of war came slightly later; Robertson, p. 423). Peru (which also had only tenuous links to its nitrate region, according to Bown, p. 160) soon joined the Bolivian side, but as Bolivia dissolved in internal squabbles, the allies were utterly defeated by Chile, which conquered the entire nitrate region, and even occupied Lima from 1881 to 1884 (Herring, p. 586).

A peace treaty was finally made in 1884. Robertson, p. 426, notes that "This treaty embodied a thinly veiled cession of the nitrate desert to the victor in the War of the Pacific." It also left Bolivia entirely landlocked, and largely lacking in natural resources that could be exploited at the time; little wonder that the nation remained poor and subject to frequent revolutions! (To this day, they want the land back, according to Bown, p. 162, and maintain a navy of sorts on Lake Titicaca in hopes they will someday have an ocean fleet again.)

It is reported that, in the 1850s and 1860s, guano was mined from Peru at an average rate of four hundred thousand tons per year, with about a quarter of that going to the United States and the rest to various ports served by British ships. The guano trade was messy, smelly, and sometimes led to outbreaks of illness, but even so, the profits were high -- according to Bown, p. 146, the demand for South American guano consistently outstripped supply in the mid- to late nineteenth century, and Herring, p. 586, says that it supplied two-thirds of the Chilean government's revenue in the 1890s. The jingoistic American governments of the period went so far as to capture some of the islands, according to Bown, p. 147.

The need to bring as much guano as possible to market produced terrible abuses. Heaven help the sailor who got drunk in Callao or Ilo or even Chilean Valparaiso and ended up working the Chincha islands (the best source of guano, off the Peruvian coast not too far from Lima and Callao). Bown, pp. 150-151 describes slavery conditions worse than even those in the American south. The workers sometimes worked 100 hours a week, were given inadequate shelter, limited and poor food, were driven by merciless overseers -- and, of course, had to breathe the extraordinary fumes of ammonia and other dangerous chemicals; many also contracted diseases carried by the bird feces. Suicide was common.

Bown, p. 152, says that most of the workers were Chinese brought in on five year "contracts" which few of them survived. Others came from the Pacific Islands. This form of slavery was not controlled until the 1870s. Although the quality of guano declined after the 1870s, when the best beds were used up (there was lots of guano left, but it wasn't as high quality due to rain leaching out the nitrates, according to Bown, p. 154), demand for nitrates did not really start to decline until the early twentieth century, when the Haber process and its successors allowed artificial nitrates to be generated, and the guano trade was still strong going into the 1920s -- but Darrow, p. 233, notes its collapse in that period. In particularly, in the year 1926, the nitrate companies had a market value of 3,578,000 British pounds at the beginning of 1926, but only 1,634,000 pounds at the end of the year.

According to Shay, even ships not carrying guano (e.g. whalers) were likely to stop at Ilo; there were periods when Chilean ports were closed to foreigners, leaving Ilo as the major watering-port for ships rounding Cape Horn. The Panama Canal would have cut into that trade also, starting in 1914. Little wonder, then, that Ilo is now just another medium-sized town in Peru.

Ilo wasn't the only place that had a nitrate boom. In the 1840s, the island of Ichaboe (Tcheroe), off the west coast of modern Namibia, had also had a "white gold" (guano) run, with many of the abuses later found at Ilo (Battersby, p. 148).

Incidentally, though effectively all nitrate fertilizer is now artificial, the Chilean nitrate beds are now used as a source for iodine. Roughly 40% of the world's current iodine needs are supplied by Chile (Emsley, p. 198); the compounds involved are sodium iodate, NaIO3, and calcium iodate, Ca(IO3)2. (Heiserman, p. 195) Emsley also observes, p. 197, that the element iodine was actually discovered during the Napoleonic Wars by French scientists who were trying to increase saltpetre manufacture.

- RBW

Bibliography

- Asimov-Encyc: Isaac Asimov, Isaac Asimov's Biographical Encyclopedia of Science &
Tons of Bright Gold

DESCRIPTION: "Down by the Launey" the singer meets "a handsome and charming young dame ... herding her kine." If he owned many fine lands he would give them all "to obtain her," "For tons of bright gold, of course, I won't tell her name" until their wedding day

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (OCanainn-SongsOfCork)
KEYWORDS: love marriage animal
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCanainn-SongsOfCork, pp. 88-89, "Tons of Bright Gold" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Pride of Kilkee" (motif: hiding a sweetheart's name) and references there
cf. "Ar Eirinn Ni Neosfainn Ce hi (For Ireland I Will Not Tell Whom She Is)" (motif: hiding a sweetheart's name)
NOTES [51 words]: OCanainn-SongsOfCork: "[This song's] text is clearly related to the Maigue poem "Ar Eirinn ni neosfainn ce hi" (For Ireland I'd not tell her name)." [In this song the promise not to tell, or to tell, her name is the last line of each verse; that is also the pattern of "Ar Eirinn Ni Neosfainn Ce hi."] - BS
File: OCan088

Tony Went Walking

DESCRIPTION: Tony goes walking on a summer day and finds an apple tree. He climbs, to pick some apples, but the branch breaks and "down came Tony, apples and all"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1961 (recording, Stanley G. Triggs)
KEYWORDS: food injury FOUND IN: Can(West)
RECORDINGS:
Stanley G. Triggs, "Tony Went Walking" (on Triggs1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Rock-A-Bye Baby" (lyrics)
NOTES [8 words]: Talk about a minimal plot. But a plot it is. - PJS
File: RcTonWWa
Too Late Sinner

DESCRIPTION: "Too late, too late sinner, Carry the key and gone home." Jesus locked the door.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Johnson and Johnson)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus sin

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Hutson/Pinckney/Rutledge-SomeSongsTheNegroSang, pp. 292-293, "Cya' duh' Key, Gone Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
- ADDITIONAL: James Weldon Johnson and J. Rosamond Johnson, The Books of American Negro Spirituals (New York: Viking Press, 1969 (copyright 1925, 1926)), Book 2, pp. 102-104, "Too Late" or "Done Carry de Key an' Gone Home" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #16657

RECORDINGS:
- James Garfield Smalls, "Drive Those Songs/Too Late Sinner" (on USSeasIsland03)
  File: RcToLaSi

Too Much of a Name

DESCRIPTION: "Some people are anxious for honor and fame And they strive all their lifetime in getting a name. But too much of a name is a possible thing" As a practical joke my parents named me Jonathan Joseph Jeremiah ... Jehosaphat." So long a name causes problems

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: wedding humorous nonballad talltale clergy

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf) US(Ap,Ro)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 170, "Longest Name Song" (1 text)
- Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #181, "Longest Name Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 201, "Too Much of a Name" (1 text)
- Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol4, pp. 57-58, "Jonathan Joseph... Timothy Pack" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, TOONAME

Roud #7041 and 4824

NOTES [25 words]: Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland states that this is "a variant of a once popular music-hall song 'Jonathan, Joseph, Jeremiah.'" - BS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: GrMa170

Too Much Time for the Crime I've Done

DESCRIPTION: "I got too much time, buddy... for the crime I done.... If I had just a-knowed it, could a broke and run." The singer thinks he should have gotten two or three years, but got ten or more.

He wishes he had a gun, and thinks about what to do if free

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (recorded from J. B. Smith by Jackson)

KEYWORDS: prison hardtimes violence

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Jackson-WakeUpDeadMan, pp. 151-154,"Too Much Time for the Crime I've Done" (2 texts, both from the same informant; 1 tune)

NOTES [65 words]: This song, and several others by J. B. Smith, brilliantly illustrates the problem of classifying Black prison songs. This is clearly a personal song by Smith, who was serving a life term for killing his girlfriend, but the themes and many of the words come from other songs. Given the extent of Smith's rewriting, I classified it separately, but there is no good way to file such things.

- RBW

Last updated in version 2.4

File: JDM151
Too Rally
DESCRIPTION: This quatrain ballad of naval origins describes the special privileges accorded to officers of increasingly high rank.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: scatological sailor humorous
FOUND IN: Britain(England) US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 400-403, "Too Rally" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #10300
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Botany Bay (I)" (tune)
NOTES [15 words]: This was collected by Pete Seeger in the Pacific theater during the Second World War. - EC
File: EM400

Too Young to Marry
DESCRIPTION: Dance tune with slight lyrics: "I'm my mammy's youngest child (youngest son, darling child), I am my mother's (baby), I'm my mammy's youngest child, I am too young to marry."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: youth marriage nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 107, "Too Young to Marry" (3 texts)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 107, "Too Young to Marry" (2 tunes plus text excerpts) NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, John Allen Davidson, Jr., "The Songs of Caleb Mashburn," Vol. XX, No. 1 (Feb 1972), pp. 58-59, "I'm my mamma's darlin' chile" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #16864
NOTES [33 words]: I have to suspect that this is the mnemonic lyric to some well-known fiddle tune. But there is no way to tell which tune. The two tunes in BrownSchinhan are both in 2/2 but by no means the same. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: Br3107

Too-ra-loo-ra-loo-ral, That's an Irish Lullaby
AUTHOR: J. R. Shannon
EARLIEST DATE: 1913 (sheet music)
KEYWORDS: nonballad lullaby
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
DT, LULLBY
RECORDINGS:
Betty Deveraux, "Irish Lullaby" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
SAME TUNE:
Study Oft on Sunday (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHome CompanionFolkSongBook, p. 98)
NOTES [28 words]: This, obviously, is not a folk song -- and it's not a lullaby! (It contains one, but there is a song around it.) But people think it's a folk song, so here it is.... - RBW
File: DTlullby
Too-Ril-Te-Too (The Robin and the Cat)

DESCRIPTION: "Oh! Too-ril-te-too was a bonny cock robin, He tied up his tail with a piece of blue bobbin, His tail was no bigger than the tail of a flea, Too-ril-te-too Thought it pretty as a tail could be." The bird flies to a rail to show off and is eaten by a cat

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland)
KEYWORDS: bird food death animal
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 293-294, "Too-Ril-Te-Too" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST Lins293 (Full)
Roud #3745
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Rory O'More" (tune)
File: Lins293

Took My Gal a-Walkin'

DESCRIPTION: "I took my gal a-walking', it was on one Saturday night... I asked her if she's marry me... She said she wouldn't marry me If the rest of the world was dead." The lonely singer vows he will "milk the cows and chickens" on the farm if he can't find a girl

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, Charlie Poole)
KEYWORDS: courting farming love nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Rorrer-RamblingBlues-LifeAndSongsOfCharliePoole, p.81, "Took My Gal a Walkin'" (1 text)
Roud #11550
RECORDINGS:
Charlie Poole and the North Carolina Ramblers, "Took My Gal a Walkin'" (Columbia 15672-D, 1931, rec. 1928; on CPoole01, CPoole05)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Going Across the Sea" (floating lyrics)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
I Ain't Got Nobody
NOTES [69 words]: Rorrer-RamblingBlues-LifeAndSongsOfCharliePoole observes that there is no known source for this recording; Charlie Poole may well have created the piece. It has, however, proved to be popular with Old-Time performers, and for this reason I include it here. The key verse, about the girl not marrying "if the rest of the world were dead" is traditional; a variant is found in the southeastern banjo tune "Italy." - RBW
File: RcTMGAW

Toolie Low

DESCRIPTION: "Toolie low, toolie low, toolie low, I am Mammy's little black baby chile. Toodie noodie, mammy's baby, Toodie noodie, mammy's child. Toodie, noodie, toodie."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: love children nonballad lullaby
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 153, (no title) (1 short text)
File: ScNF153B

Tooney O

DESCRIPTION: "Tooney, Tooney, my Tooney O. She hopped upon her poney And ran away from Tony; If you see her just let me know and I'll meet you in the Sally Tooney O."
Tooraloo (Boy With No Shoes, All Tattered and Torn, I Dreamt I Had Died)

DESCRIPTION: The singer goes out and sees various sights, e.g. a poor man eating grass, whom he tells that the grass is longer in back. He goes to heaven, where he is the first from his town, and Hell, where there are many from the place. The adventures are diverse

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Gardham-EastRidingSongster)
KEYWORDS: death hell travel humorous food drink marriage courting
FOUND IN: Britain(England(All))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gardham-EastRidingSongster 14, pp. 18-19, "A Rolling Stone Gathers No Moss" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1407
NOTES [44 words]: I'm not sure I've ever seen two versions of this with the same title. Steve Gardham describes it as a bar song to the tune of "Sweet Betsy/Villikens," with many verses made up on the spot to describe particular difficulties of the singer. Sounds about right. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.5
File: Gard014

Toots and Ronald

DESCRIPTION: "Toots an Ronald a walk a road, No gie dem water to drink, If you gie dem water to drink a you yard, Lie go lef a you door"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (Elder-FolksongsFromTobago)
KEYWORDS: accusation warning nonballad Caribbean
FOUND IN: West Indies(Tobago)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Elder-FolksongsFromTobago 27, "Toots and Ronald" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [48 words]: Elder-FolksongsFromTobago: "Toots an' Ronald are really imaginary names for two culprits about whom the song casts derisive remarks. They seem to be brother and sister, both of them such notorious liars that ... if you allow them to pass through your yard, lies will remain on your door." - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: ElTo027

Top Beat

DESCRIPTION: "I don't mind those city lights On these long winter nights, When I take my annual spree In the lap of luxury... There's no place I'd rather be Than top beat With a snowline boundary."
The singer has no interest in country life or those who live it
AUTHOR: Words: Joe Charles
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1960 (according to Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook)
KEYWORDS: home nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, p. 26, "Top Beat" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: Clev026
Top Hand
DESCRIPTION: "While you're all so frisky I'll sing a little song... It's all about the Top Hand when he's busted flat." The Top Hand/top screw boasts of his prowess as a cowhandler, but it's all boasting and lies. The cowboys try to expose him, and label him a Jackass
AUTHOR: (Credited by Thorp to Frank Rooney, c. 1877)
EARLIEST DATE: 1899
KEYWORDS: cowboy bragging lie trick
FOUND IN: US(SW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Thorp/Fife-SongsOfTheCowboys V, pp. 61-65 (17-18), "Top Hand" (2 texts); Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 156-158, "Top Hand" (1 text)
Roud #8050
ALTERNATE TITLES:
  Top Screw
  Waddie Cowboy
File: TF05

Top Loader
DESCRIPTION: Recitation; Bill Kirk is top loader. One day he's knocked off the load by a "cannon." His comrades rush to save him, but he's wedged into a crack. They pull the log out, and by a miracle he's not hurt, but he curses because his new pipe is cracked.
AUTHOR: Probably Marion Ellsworth
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Recitation; Bill Kirk is top loader at Pollock's camp; one day he's knocked off the load by a "cannon" (a log that pivots sideways on top of the load). His comrades, thinking him crushed, rush to save him, but he's wedged into a crack. They pull the log out, and by a miracle he's not hurt, but he curses because his new pipe is cracked.
KEYWORDS: lumbering work logger recitation rescue
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 100, "Top Loader" (1 text)
Roud #8880
NOTES [33 words]: Top loaders were always in danger, trying to get the maximum number of logs on the load. This, like the other pieces probably written by Ellsworth, does not seem to have entered oral tradition. - PJS
File: Be100

Top of Mount Zion
DESCRIPTION: "On the top of Mount Zion is a city" -- the city of salvation. The singer briefly describes it and makes plans to go there.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (recorded from Buna Vista Hicks)
KEYWORDS: Bible religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, pp. 95-96, "On the Top of Mount Zion" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7133
RECORDINGS:
  Buna Hicks, "Top of Mt. Zion" (on USWarnerColl01)
NOTES [165 words]: In secular usage, the name "Zion" and "Mount Zion" referred to the more eastern of the hills on which Jerusalem rested -- the name first occurs in the Bible in 2 Samuel 5:7, where David attacks the "stronghold of Zion," the key to the city of the Jebusites, which became the City of David -- i.e. the citadel of the Davidic capital. The term is generally used in the Psalms to include the broader area around the Temple -- i.e. the City on Mount Zion is the whole city of Jerusalem.
The name is not common in the New Testament, and six of the eight New Testament usages to be Old Testament citations -- most notably, Romans 11:16 (citing Isaiah) says that the deliverer comes from Zion. But the two uses of the name not derived from the Hebrew Bible are noteworthy: Hebrews 11:22 refers to coming to "Mount Zion and the city of the living God, while Revelation 14:1 says that the lamb stood on Mount Zion. Thus Mount Zion is an accepted, though not a common, name for the heavenly city. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1
File: RCToMZi

Top Side Woman (Belle Garden Gal)

DESCRIPTION: The singer tells a Top Side gal to give him his hat; he is going back to the Low Side to mind his mama. Chorus: he should say he is not courting or married yet but is going back to mind his mama. The verse is repeated for bag, stick, clothes....

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1954 (Elder-FolksongsFromTobago)
KEYWORDS: courting clothes nonballad mother Caribbean
FOUND IN: West Indies(Tobago)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Elder-FolksongsFromTobago 28, "Top Side Woman (Belle Garden Gal)" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [62 words]: Elder-FolksongsFromTobago: "In a small island like Tobago it is interesting to note how regional differences affect the family and kinship. The eastern half of the island is 'Top Side', the western half is 'Low Side'..... there are subtle differences between people residing in each 'side'..... no villager is allowed to forget which part of the island he was born in." - BS

Last updated in version 4.0
File: ElTo028

Topsail Shivers in the Wind, The

DESCRIPTION: "The topsail shivers in the wind, Our ship she casts to sea, But yet my soul, my heart, my mind, Are, Mary, moored with thee." The singer touches on the difficulties of the voyage and thinks constantly of his return home

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1776 (Journal from the Ann)
KEYWORDS: sailor home love
FOUND IN: Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 59-60, "The Topsail Shivers in the Wind" (1 text plus part of another, 1 tune)
Roud #2017
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Sailor's Adieu
File: SWMS059

Torbay Ramblers

DESCRIPTION: Torbay Ramblers listen to named lumberjacks who said "Millertown for mine." Some swear not to return. Only when the market for fish leaves them short do some go back.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)
KEYWORDS: warning fishing lumbering work ordeal moniker nonballad logger
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
Roud #18243
RECORDINGS: Jack Houlihan, "Torbay Ramblers" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
NOTES [86 words]: Millertown is an old lumber camp town in central Newfoundland. According to Wikipedia article Millertown, Newfoundland and Labrador it was founded in 1900 (at https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Millertown,NewfoundlandandLabrador, accessed February 23, 2017). Torbay is far away, not far from St. John's.
Other hard times songs about the off-summer (that is, when no money is to be made fishing) Newfoundland lumbering occupation include "The Boys at Ninety-Five," "Jerry Ryan," "Reid's Express," and "Twin Lakes." - BS

Tornado Blues

DESCRIPTION: "I uster own the Chickabee farm, I'm washing dishes today, Becaws a tornado comes along And takes my farm away." "It takes the cows, and the gelding... The doggone thing leaves me nothing But the wife and the mortgage due."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (Cambiaire)

KEYWORDS: disaster storm farming hardtimes

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
March 7, 1933 - "[A] terrible tornado caused great damage in East Tennessee (Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads)

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, p. 10, "Tornado Blue" (1 text)
Roud #12636
File: Camb010

Toronto Volunteers, The

DESCRIPTION: "In the year of Eighty-five Sure the tidings did arrive.... From the snowy plains afar Where those roving Indians are...." "Oh those volunteers did go And face the storms and snow... And when the drums did beat How the rebels did retreat"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1957

KEYWORDS: battle Canada soldier

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 12, 1885 - Battle of Batoche. Defeat of the Metis under Louis Riel

FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke/Mills/Blume-CanadasStoryInSong, pp. 130-131, "The Toronto Volunteers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4515

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Riel's Song" and references there (subject)

NOTES [31 words]: For the history of Louis Riel and the Metis Uprising, see "Riel's Song." Edith Fowke's informant claims to have had this piece from soldiers who had actually campaigned in Saskatchewan. - RBW
File: FMB130

Torramh an Bhairille (Wake of the Barrel)

DESCRIPTION: Irish. It's a delight to be at a Ballymacoda wake. No one is turned away without a drink in that pub. "The poor wretch without food or purse will get the cask free To drink without stint"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (OCanainn-SongsOfCork)

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage drink death nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCanainn-SongsOfCork, pp. 68-69, "Torramh an Bhairille" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [13 words]: The description follows O Canainn's "rough guide to what it's all about." - BS
File: OCan068
Torry Brig, The

DESCRIPTION: "Noo friens I think ye're like mysel' and anxious for to see" the new Torry bridge across the Dee. The singer describes the celebration he expects: lasses in new hats, men in new suits, "gently walking sweetly talking" dancing and drinking beer

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: clothes technology dancing drink nonballad
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 1881 - Formal opening of Victoria Bridge across the Dee from Aberdeen to Torry (source: Greig/Duncan8).
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1904, "The Torry Brig" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13561
File: GrD81904

Toss the Turk

DESCRIPTION: "One evening lately I dressed up nately, With Sunday clothes, plug had and all." The singer meets a gang which intends to rob him. But he backs up against a wall, and beats them off using tricks he learned at Donegal.

AUTHOR: Tom Cannon (lyrics and music adaption)
EARLIEST DATE: 1877 (sheet music)
KEYWORDS: fight
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 114-115, "Toss the Turk" (1 text)
Roud #21718

NOTES [44 words]: Eric Partridge's A Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English lists "Turk" as a gutter word for an Irishman, though it cannot trace it before 1949. This song gives evidence that it is much older, since "Toss the Turk" seems to mean "rob the Irishman." - RBW

File: Dean114

Tossed and Driven (The Poor Pilgrim)

DESCRIPTION: "I am a poor pilgrim of sorrow, I am left in this wide world to roam... I've started to make Heaven my home." "Sometimes I'm so tossed and driven. Sometimes I know not where to roam." The singer has left his family; after death he hopes to see them again

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: religious death travel
FOUND IN: US(Ap,So)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Randolph 610, "Tossed and Driven" (2 text plus a fragment, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklife3 643, "Tossed and Driven" (1 text, a seemingly-simplified form with the same chorus but the verses consist of advice from relatives: "(Father/Mother/Sister/Brother) told me when he was dying... Dear daughter, live for Jesus; This world is not my home")
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 192-193, "The Pilgrim of Sorrow" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #5425

RECORDINGS:
I. D. Beck & congregation, "Poor Pilgrim of Sorrow" (on LomaxCD1704)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Am a Pilgrim"

NOTES [54 words]: This song instantly made me think of "Man of Constant Sorrow," and also of "Wayfaring Stranger," but I cannot tell if there is any connection. And "pilgrim" songs all sound alike somehow. - RBW

George Pullen Jackson sees a resemblance between this song and the one we've indexed as Tossing of the Hay

DESCRIPTION: The singer goes out on a summer morning and sees a beautiful girl tossing her hay alone. She reports that her brother has left her alone. He kisses her; she screams; he promises that if she marries him, there will be time to mow the hay.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan5)

KEYWORDS: love courting marriage work

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) Canada(Newf) Ireland

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H635, pp. 455-456, "The Tossing o' the Hay" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Karpeles-FolkSongsFromNewfoundland 80, "The New Mown Hay" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Greig/Duncan5 957, "The Turnin' o' the Hay" (7 texts, 4 tunes)

Roud #2940

RECORDINGS:
- Eddie Butcher, "Tossing the Hay" (on Voice05, IREButcher01)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- The Raking of the Hay
- The Shaking of the Hay

NOTES [86 words]: Why do I get the feeling that this happened somewhere along the Banks of the Bann?

According to Purslow, this occurs as a broadside called "Joy After Sorrow," but the text of that title I've seen does not appear to be the same piece. - RBW

"Joy After Sorrow" is separately indexed. In that ballad the man in the story is a sailor or soldier, and not the singer. The title follows from the reaction of the woman: cursing the hour of her seduction at the birth of her baby and blessing that hour after the wedding. - BS

Last updated in version 2.6

File: HHH635

Touch Not the Cup

DESCRIPTION: "Touch not the cup, it is death to the soul... Many I know that have quaffed from that bowl... Little they thought that a demon was there, Blindly they drank and were caught in the snare...." A sermon, without illustrations, on the evils of drink.

AUTHOR: Words: J.H. Aikman (?) / Music: T.H. Bayley?

EARLIEST DATE: 1885 (Franklin Square Song Collection 3)

KEYWORDS: drink virtue

FOUND IN: US(NE,So)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Randolph 330, "Touch Not the Cup" (1 text)
- Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 76, "Touch Not the Cup" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST R330 (Partial)

Roud #6951

NOTES [16 words]: Yes, this piece is as obnoxiously moralizing as it sounds... and I say that as a teetotaler. - RBW

File: R330

Tough Utah Boy, A

DESCRIPTION: "I am a Mormon, from Utah I came, And I am a tough boy and Wells it is my name." The singer travels the southwest, reveling in his toughness -- and then comes home to Mother because he has no lover. He will return again to Utah: "for Utah I will sail."

AUTHOR: "Rasty" Wells? (source: Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah)
Toura for Sour Buttermilk

DESCRIPTION: "Toura for sour buttermilk Belleek for the brandy The Commons was the devil's hole But Mulleek was the dandy"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Tunney-StoneFiddle)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tunney-StoneFiddle, p. 52, "Toura for Sour Buttermilk" (1 fragment)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Fermoy Lasses" (tune, according to Tunney-StoneFiddle)

NOTES [48 words]: The current description is all of the Tunney-StoneFiddle fragment. Mulleek, Belleek and Toura are in County Fermanagh. Commons may be in Belleek. The words of the Tunney-StoneFiddle fragment remind me of "Coffee Grows" and "Weavily Wheat" though its reel tune is not at all similar. - BS

File: TSF052

Tout Pitit Negresse

DESCRIPTION: Creole French: "Tout pitit Negresse en bas bayou, A-pe laver chimise ye' mama! A, alla, mamselle, les Blanchiseuses! (x2)" A very small black woman washes shirts on the bayou; a boy washes underclothes

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 212-213, "Tout Pitit Negresse" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: ScaNF212

Towering Heights of Newfoundland

DESCRIPTION: Singer remembers times long past roaming the hills, valleys and coastline around St. John's. He recalls meeting his sweetheart and the places they trapped together. He would love to see those places -- Cabot Tower, Quidi Vidi, Bannerman Park -- again.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
MUNFLA/Leach, #18244, "Towering Heights of Newfoundland" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Catherine Powers, "Towering Heights of Newfoundland" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Flatrock Hills" (theme: Home sickness for the hills around St John's, Newfoundland)
cf. "Old Newfoundland" (theme: Home sickness for the hills around St John's, Newfoundland)
Town I Loved So Well, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls growing up in hard times in "the town I loved so well." He formed a band and married. The music is gone but he hopes for peace and a bright new day "in the town that I loved so well"

AUTHOR: Phil Coulter (source: notes to IRHardySons)
EARLIEST DATE: 1980 (IRHardySons)
LONG DESCRIPTION: "In my memory I can always see The town that I loved so well" The singer recalls playing school ball by the smoky, smelly, gas yard wall and "running up the dark lane By the jail." Mothers were called from Creggan, the Moor, and the Bog to work in the shirt factory early in the morning. Men on the dole minded the children and trained the dog without complaining. The singer formed a band and married. Now the music is gone. He hopes for peace. "We can only pray for a bright new day, In the town that I loved so well"

KEYWORDS: poverty violence unemployment work hardtimes Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):

RECORDINGS:
Big John Maguire and daughter Kate, "The Town I Loved So Well" (on IRHardySons)
NOTES [481 words]: Notes to IRHardySons: "This is a contemporary song written by Phil Coulter in the early 1970s that has been sucked into the tradition and altered somewhat in the process. Recorded by The Dubliners."

Wikipedia re "The Town I Loved So Well": "'The Town I Loved So Well's a song written by Phil Coulter about his childhood in Derry, Northern Ireland. The first three verses are about the simple lifestyle he grew up with in Derry, while the final two deal with the Troubles, and lament how his placid hometown had become a major military outpost, plagued with sectarian violence."

"The Town I Loved So Well" at Triskelle site, dated Dec. 13, 2005: "After 21 June 1972, Bloody Friday, the British army started a huge scaled military operation known as Operation Motorman. Army units with tanks and bulldozers cleared the barricades surrounding the so-called no-go areas in Creggan, Bogside and Andersontown. Northern Ireland really had become a war-zone."- BS

The mention of the Dole is, in many ways, even more indicative of Ulster's situation in this period than are the references to the Troubles. Violence in Ulster was not as high as we sometimes think -- the murder rate was lower than most big American cities in the same period (according to the chart on p. 260 of Ruth Dudley Edwards, An Atlas of Irish History, second edition, Routledge, 1981, even the worst year of the Troubles, 1972, saw fewer than 400 killed, and no other year witnessed as many as 300 deaths -- dreadful, yes, but not so high as to automatically destabilize a society. Northern Ireland's population at this time was about one and a half million, so we have a murder rate of about 25 per 100,000. Comparing this to the data for the United States (as found in the Statistical Abstract of the United States 2000, which covers the year 1998 -- the lowest crime rate year I found in a quick and incomplete sample), the murder rate in Detroit was 43.0 per 100,000; that in Baltimore was 47.1; that in New Orleans 48.8; that in Washington, DC, 49.7. In all, there are at least nine American cities which, in that good year, had higher murder rates than Ulster in its "worst" year.

But the decline of the British merchant fleet, and of the whole British economy, doomed the Belfast shipbuilding industry. The region's other major industry was textiles, and that too faded in the period. And the small size of Ulster made it economically inefficient, and the Irish Republic was an economic basket case due to the inefficiencies of the de Valera period, and the border regions were generally worst of all. Unemployment in Northern Ireland rose steadily in the 1970s to levels well above 10% -- by 1980, half the regions of Ulster had unemployment rates exceeding 15% (Edwards, p. 263); in perhaps a fifth of the country, it exceeded 20%. Edwards shows the Derry area as being in the 15-20% unemployment range. - RBW

File: RcTTILSW

Town o' Arbroath, The

DESCRIPTION: "Although far awa frae my ain native heather, And thousands o' miles across the blue sea," the singer still dreams of his home in Arbroath. He recalls the lessons his parents taught him. Now rich, he intends to return to his home.

AUTHOR: Words: Charles Myles ?
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan3); 19C (broadside, NLScotland L.C.Fol.70(29b))
KEYWORDS: home emigration return
Town of Antrim, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer bids farewell to Ireland; he will wander "far from Paddy's green countrie." He recalls the beauties of County Antrim, his birthplace. He promises to remember all these things in his new home.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (JIFSS)

KEYWORDS: emigration home

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H632, p. 203, "Paddy's Green Countrie" (1 text, 1 tune)
- OLochlann-IrishStreetBallads 20A, "The Town of Antrim" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry, p. 25, "The Town of Antrim" (1 text)

Roud #2746

File: HHH632

Town of Oranmore, The (If You Ever Go Over to Ireland)

DESCRIPTION: Singer, possibly American, warns against women of Ireland; one of them has made a fool of him. He picks her up; she asks him to take her to dinner at Cleary's; he wraps her in his cloak; she scratches his nose, tears his clothes, and, apparently, robs him.

AUTHOR: Shaun O’Nolan

EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (sung by Margaret Barry on Voice04)

KEYWORDS: request warning travel theft humorous

FOUND IN: Ireland

Roud #5277

RECORDINGS:
- Margaret Barry, "If You Ever Go Over to Ireland" (on Voice04)
- Margaret Barry w. Michael Gorman, "If You Ever Go Over to Ireland (The Town of Oranmore)" (on Pubs1)

NOTES [59 words]: The plot is somewhat confused. Oranmore is located at the extreme east of Galway Bay, and it was a popular place for Travellers to part their caravans, especially around the time of the Galway race meeting. The song originated in the Irish music-halls. - PJS

File: RcToOran

Town of Passage (I), The

DESCRIPTION: "The town of Passage is neat and spacious, All situated upon the sea." The boats, sailors, bathers, lovers, and ferry to Carrigaloe are described. Molly Bowen has a lodging house where "often goes in one Simon Quin" to his bed among the fleas.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1839 (Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)

KEYWORDS: sea ship shore humorous nonballad bug

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland, pp. 254-256, "The Town of Passage" (1 text)
- Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, pp. 82-83, "The Town of Passage" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Town of Passage (II), (III)" (subject)
NOTES [153 words]: Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland: "The town of Passage ... is situated between Cork and its Cove...." - BS
It is also a very old town; according to T. W. Moody, F. X. Martin, and Dermot Keough, with Patrick Kiely, The Course of Irish History, fifth edition, 2011 (page references are to the 2012 paperback edition), p. 111, it is located near the junction of the rivers Suir and Barrow, and it was there that Strongbow first landed when the Anglo-Normans invaded Ireland in the twelfth century. - RBW
Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland: "This song was introduced, with considerable effect, upon the London stage by the late Mr Charles Connor, in Lord Glengall's very amusing farce of the 'Irish Tutor.'" - BS
It apparently made an impression, too; Edward Harrigan, The Mulligans, G. W. Dillingham, 1901, p. 307, has an Irish character, quote it, implying that it was (though to be) very well known in Ireland at the time. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: CrPS254

Town of Passage (II), The

DESCRIPTION: "Passage town is of great renown." Steamboats on Lough Mahon, whale-boats "skipping upon the tide," prison ships bound for Botany Bay, foreign ships, ferries, and fishing boats are described. The women hunt snails, shrimp, and cockles at low tide.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1839 (Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)

KEYWORDS: commerce fishing sea ship shore nonballad

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland, pp. 256-258, "The Town of Passage" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Town of Passage (I), (III)" (subject)

NOTES [111 words]: Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland: "The town of Passage ... is situated between Cork and its Cove...." - BS

It is also a very old town; according to T. W. Moody, F. X. Martin, and Dermot Keough, with Patrick Kiely, The Course of Irish History, fifth edition, 2011 (page references are to the 2012 paperback edition), p. 111, it is located near the junction of the rivers Suir and Barrow, and it was there that Strongbow first landed when the Anglo-Normans invaded Ireland in the twelfth century. - RBW

Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland points out that "The Town of Passage (II)" quotes "The Town of Passage (I)" and must therefore be "a subsequent composition to No. I." - BS

Last updated in version 2.8
File: CrPS256

Town of Passage (III), The

DESCRIPTION: "The town of Passage ... situated Upon the say, 'Tis nate and dacent." Ships at anchor, ferries to Carrigaloe, but also mud cabins, melodious pigs and dead fish abound. Foreign ships deal in whisky-punch. Convicts are bound for Botany Bay.

AUTHOR: Father Prout [Rev Francis Sylvester Mahony (1804-1866)] (source: Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)

EARLIEST DATE: 1839 (Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)

KEYWORDS: sea ship shore humorous nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland, pp. 258-260, "The Town of Passage" (1 text)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 99-100, "The Town Passage" (1 text)

Roud #9574

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Town of Passage (I), (II)" (subject)

NOTES [154 words]: Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland: "The town of Passage ... is situated between Cork and its Cove...." - BS

It is also a very old town; according to T. W. Moody, F. X. Martin, and Dermot Keough, with Patrick
Kiely, The Course of Irish History, fifth edition, 2011 (page references are to the 2012 paperback edition), p. 111, it is located near the junction of the rivers Suir and Barrow, and it was there that Strongbow first landed when the Anglo-Normans invaded Ireland in the twelfth century. - RBW

Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland notes Father Prout's comment on his "The Town of Passage (III)" as a parody of I and II: "Its reverend author, or rather concocter, has described it as 'manifestly an imitation of that unrivalled dithyramb, 'The Groves of Blarney,' with a little of its humour, and all its absurdity.'" - BS

Father Prout, however, did not compose "The Groves of Blarney"; his great work is "Bells of Shandon." - RBW

---

Towns of Jamaica

DESCRIPTION: The singer says Jamaica has towns and districts with funny names and names some towns and parishes.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (WILBennett01)

KEYWORDS: humorous moniker nonballad

FOUND IN: West Indies(Jamaica)

RECORDINGS:

Louise Bennett, "Towns of Jamaica" (on WILBennett01)

NOTES [28 words]: The song reminds me most in tune and pattern of The Flanagan Brothers' "The Half a Crown Song" (1996, on "The Tunes We Like to Play on Paddy's Day," Viva Voce CD 007). - BS

---

TP and the Morgan

DESCRIPTION: Work song for tie-tamping: "TP throwed the water, Water in Morgan's eye...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1940

KEYWORDS: worksong railroading

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Botkin/Harlow-TreasuryOfRailroadFolklore, p. 448, "TP and the Morgan" (1 text)

---

Trace-Boy on Ligoniel Hill, A

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls with pride the days of the horse trams when he was a trace-boy on Ligoniel Hill. Today his "friends all departed, and work now so scarce," he sleeps on open brick kilns. "The only thing left is a ride in a hearse"

AUTHOR: Hugh Quinn (1884-1956) (source: Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong)

EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (Hammond-SongsOfBelfast)

KEYWORDS: age poverty pride unemployment hardtimes nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (4 citations):

Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong 16, "A Trace-Boy on Ligoniel Hill" (1 text, 1 tune)

Hammond-SongsOfBelfast, p. 50, "A Trace Boy on Ligoniel Hill" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, LIGONIEL

Bell/O Conchubhair, Traditional Songs of the North of Ireland, pp. 78-80, "A Trace-Boy on Ligoniel Hill" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Green Gravel" (tune)

NOTES [83 words]: Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong: Two horses were added to a Belfast horse-drawn tram team for the pull up steep inclines. "This task was done by trace-boys who waited at the bottom of steep hills such as Ligoniel.... The Ligoniel Tramway system started up in the summer of 1885. The kiln reference is to open kilns at brick manufacturing companies: "After a day's firing the kilns retained their heat for a considerable time so that many tramps and paupers took advantage of the free heat for the night." - BS

File: Leyd016

Track Lining

DESCRIPTION: Story-song about the work of laying track, with a musical line such as "Ain't but the one train riding this track (hah!). Run down to Macon and right straight back (hah!)." The singer may describe other members of the gang or the work itself

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1981 (Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices)

KEYWORDS: railroading work recitation

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, p. 124, "Track Lining" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #16269

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Can'cha Line 'Em" (subject)

ALTERNATE TITLES:

Track Calling

File: Rose124

Track to Knob Lake, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer signs a contract to spike three months on the Knob Lake track. Food is awful. After a month 18 men quit. Each day the first to finish has lots of food but none is left for the last. He still hopes to come back the next year.

AUTHOR: Albert Roche

EARLIEST DATE: 1961 (Peacock)

KEYWORDS: railroading worker food

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Peacock, pp. 797-798, "The Track to Knob Lake" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9811

RECORDINGS:

Gerald Campbell, "The Track to Knob Lake" (on PeacockCDROM)

ALTERNATE TITLES:

cf. "Twin Lakes" (lyrics)

cf. "The Bonavist Line" (theme)

NOTES [105 words]: First verse -- only -- is stolen from "Twin Lakes." Peacock says "the track to Knob Lake [is] a railroad pushed through the wilderness of central Quebec to rich deposits of iron ore." The track was laid in the 1950s. "In ballads of this type it is customary to complain about working and living conditions, and the composer does his best.... However, with planes flying the workers in and out I suspect that most Newfoundlanders never had it so good." - BS

If you're looking for Knob Lake on the map, it is usually marked "Lac Knob" on maps of Quebec; it is just on the Quebec side of the very irregular Quebec/Labrador border. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: Pea797

Tract for the Hard Times, The

DESCRIPTION: "How to dodge the hard times is the hardest of tasks, For 'Whatever becomes of us?' everyone asks." The questioner receives advice, e.g. "Make the wool into cloth, raise your coals from the land... Be your own linen drapers For the Colony issue... papers"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1869 (Wellington Evening Star, according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

KEYWORDS: hardtimes nonballad New Zealand work clothes Trader, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer tells of the wreck of the Trader, bound from Galway to London. A dream warns the Captain of disaster. A storm blows up; the rudder is wrecked; the ship goes aground; seven of the crew are drowned. The singer hopes they will be remembered
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (Sam Henry collection; reportedly found in an 1827 broadside)
KEYWORDS: ship death storm wreck disaster dream
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H11, pp. 110-111, "The Trader" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2952
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Ye Banks and Braes of Bonnie Doon" (tune)
File: HHH011

Trading-Out Blues
DESCRIPTION: "In the middle of the night if you hear a scream And there's a flame burnin'... the road... It's just a bunch of cowboys Tradin' out at the next rodeo." The song describes the wild driving cowboys do as they travel from rodeo to rodeo
AUTHOR: Johnny Baker
EARLIEST DATE: 1973
KEYWORDS: cowboy travel technology
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 97, "Trading-Out Blues" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [64 words]: According to Öhrlin, professional rodeo cowboys would often rearrange their riding schedules so that they could appear at two events simultaneously. This was known as "trading out." Not all rodeos permit trading out, but some do in order to increase the number of top-flight cowboys entered. But, of course, it leaves the riders having to really make time between events. Hence this song.
File: Ohr097

Tragedia de Heraclio Bernal
DESCRIPTION: Spanish: "Ano de noventa y quatro en la ciudad de Mazatlan...." Bernal is a robber who steals from the rich, gives to the poor, kills the police (and uses their skin for boots). But he is killed by treachery in Mazatlan in 1894.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage outlaw robbery death police funeral
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 368-371, "Tragedia de Heraclio Bernal" (1 text plus prose translation, 1 tune)
File: LxA368

Tragedy at Meadow Lea
DESCRIPTION: "'Twas winter and the wind blew keen, Blew with its might and main, And more and more the snow did blow Across the stormy plain." John Taylor and family are safe at home when a fire stars and they must "freeze or burn." Mrs. Taylor and three girls die

Tragedy of Sunset Land, The

DESCRIPTION: "There's a little western city in the shadow of the hills, Where sleeps a brave young rebel 'neath the dew." He died saying "'Boys, I always did my best' Where the old Chehalis River flows its way," Wesley Everest died to encourage workers to organize

AUTHOR: credited to Loren Roberts

KEYWORDS: worker death burial river

FOUND IN: Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 627, "The Tragedy of Sunset Land" (1 text)

File: CAFS2626

Tragic Romance

DESCRIPTION: Singer recalls a girl he loved long ago; he left her her in the arms of another man. Many years later he meets the girl's brother. He learns she died awaiting his return, never knowing why he left. (The brother was the man who was in her arms.)

AUTHOR: Louis M. "Grandpa" Jones

KEYWORDS: infidelity love rambling abandonment death family

FOUND IN: Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 41, "Tragic Romance" (1 text with variants, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:

Morris Brothers, "Tragic Romance" (RCA Victor 20-1905, 1946)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

NOTES [62 words]: When this song first came to my attention, I refused to accept the attribution to "Grandpa" Jones, since the plot is straight from "After the Ball" and the tune is "Omie Wise." Jones, however, confesses, "I had been singing the old 1890s song, After the Ball, and I borrowed the story from that and the tune from the old folk song Naomi Wise and began to work it out." - RBW

File: CSW041

Trail to Mexico, The [Laws B13]

DESCRIPTION: The singer is hired by A.J. Stinson to drive a herd to Mexico. While away, his sweetheart has left him for a richer man. Though she asks him to remain at home and safe, he sets out for the trail again and swears to spend the rest of his life on the trail

AUTHOR: unknown

KEYWORDS: cowboy rejection poverty

FOUND IN: US(So) Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (14 citations):
Laws B13, "The Trail to Mexico"
Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice #70, p. 241-242, "I Made Up My Mind (The Trail to Mexico, Laws B13)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Larkin-SingingCowboy, pp. 61-63, "Trail to Mexico" (1 text, 1 tune)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 138, "The Mexico Trail" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 285-286, "The Trail to Mexico" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 66, "The Trail to Mexico" (5 texts, 1 tune, of which only the "A" and "B" texts go here; "C" and "D" are "Early, Early in the Spring" and "E" is "Going to Leave Old Texas")
Botkin-TreasuryOfAmericanFolklore, pp. 858-859, "Trail to Mexico" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 62, "Trail to Mexico" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
ArkansasWoodchopper, pp. 34-35, "The Trail to Mexico" (1 text, 1 tune)
Tinsley-HeWasSinginThisSong, pp. 36-39, "The Trail to Mexico" (1 text, 1 tune)
Saffel-CowboyPoetry, pp. 197-199, "The Trail to Mexico" (1 text)
DT 380, TRAILMEX
ADDITIONAL: _Sing Out_ magazine, Volume 25, #4 (1977), pp, 22-23, "Following the Cowtrail" (1 text, 1 tune, the Carl T. Sprague version)
Powder River Jack and Kitty Lee's _Songs of the Range: Cowboy Wails of Cattle Trails_, Chart Music, 1937, p. 50, "The Trail to Mexico" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #152
RECORDINGS:
Bill Bender (The Happy Cowboy), "Trail to Mexico" (Elite X17, n.d., rec. 1939)
Harry "Mac" McClintock, "The Trail to Mexico" (Victor V-40016, 1929; Montgomery Ward M-4469 [as Harry "Mac" McClintock and his Haywire Orchestra], 1934)
Len Nash & his Country Boys, "The Trail to Mexico" (Brunswick 354, 1929; Supertone S-2069, 1930)
Pete Seeger, "Trail to Mexico" (on PeteSeeger07, PeteSeeger07a)
Carl T. Sprague, "Following the Cow Trail" (Victor 20067, 1925; Montgomery Ward M-4468, 1934; on AuthCowboys)
Texas Rangers, "The Trail to Mexico" (Decca 5183, 1936)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
    cf. "Early, Early in the Spring" [Laws M1] (plot)
    cf. "Buffalo Skinners" [Laws B10a] (a few overlapping lyrics)
NOTES [67 words]: Cox and Fife both consider this to be derived from "Early, Early in the Spring" [Laws M1], and even Laws concedes kinship. Roud in fact lumps the songs. However, as Laws also notes, "the cowboy ballad... shows considerable reworking." - RBW
It's also worth noting that this song, "Boggy Creek," and "Buffalo Skinners" share enough lyrics, plot elements, etc. to make life interesting and confusing. - PJS
Last updated in version 5.3
File: LB13

Train Done Left Me
DESCRIPTION: "The train's done left me, and the jitney bus has gone (x2), Lord... I won't be here long." The singer is leaving and will not be back. His woman is "further down the road" and has another man. The train has fourteen coaches
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Carolina Tar Heels)
KEYWORDS: love separation train travel floatingverses
FOUND IN: US
Roud #22490
RECORDINGS:
    Carolina Tar Heels [Clarence Ashley, Garley Foster, Dock Walsh], "Train Done Left Me" (1929; on Ashley04)
File: RcTDLM

Train I Ride
DESCRIPTION: "Train I ride 16 coaches long, ... carried my babe from home." "Love my baby tell the world I do ... she loves you too." "mama meat shakes on your bones ... a poor man's dollar gone." "1 and 1 is 2, 2 and 2 is 4, You don't want me but you can't let me go"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (USMississippi01)
KEYWORDS: love infidelity sex rejection parting train nonballad derivative
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
Lovey Williams, "Train I Ride" (on USMississippi01)
NOTES [80 words]: From David Evans's liner notes to USMississippi01: "Lovey Williams adds traditional verses to 'Train I Ride,' itself based on a more or less traditional blues recorded by Junior Parker in 1953." Little Junior's (Parker) Blue Flames's "Mystery Train" (Sun 192, 1953) is the Evans reference that shares its first verse with Lovey Williams's track, as does Elvis Presley's "Mystery Train" (Sun 223, 1955). Lovey Williams's song seems all floating verse with the third line twisted. - BS
Last updated in version 5.1
File: RcTraIRi

Train Is A-Coming, The
DESCRIPTION: "The train is a-coming, oh, yes! Train is a-coming, oh, yes! Train is a-coming, train is a-coming, Train is a-coming, oh, yes!" "Better get your ticket...." "King Jesus is conductor...." "I'm on my way to heaven...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: train religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 253-254, "The Train Is A-Coming" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11618
File: ScaNF253

Train on the Island (June Apple/June Appal)
DESCRIPTION: Floating verses, "Train on the island, thought I heard it blow, Go tell my true love, I'm sick and I can't go." "Train on the island, listen to it squeal, Go and tell my true love how happy I do feel." Verses mostly about courting and separation
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, J. P. Nestor)
KEYWORDS: courting separation floatingverses separation abandonment nonballad music
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Dunson/Raim/Asch-AnthologyOfAmericanFolkMusic, p. 97, "Train on the Island" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, TRAINIS
Roud #17376
RECORDINGS:
Charlie Higgins et al, "June Apple" [instrumental] (on LomaxCD1702)
Tommy Jarrell, "Train on the Island" (on FarMtns4)
J. P. Nestor, "Train on the Island" (Victor 21070A, 1927; on AAFM3, TimesAint01, StuffDreams2)
New Lost City Ramblers, "Train on the Island" (on NLCR13)
Crockett Ward & his Boys "Train on the Island" (OKeh, unissued, 1927); Fields Ward, Glen Smith & Wade Ward, "Train on the Island" (on HalfCen1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Going Across the Sea" (floating lyrics)
NOTES [27 words]: As a rule of thumb, this seems to be called "Train on the Island" when it is sung but "June Appal" when played as a fiddle tune. There are exceptions, of course. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: ADR97
Train Run So Fast

DESCRIPTION: "Train, train, train, train run so fast, Couldn't see nothing but de trees go past." "Don't tell mama where I'm gone, Cause I'm on my way back home." "Mister, Misters, I don't want to fight, I got de heart disease, don't feel just right."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: train disease floatingverses home nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 466, "Train ... Run So Fast" (1 short text, probably a mixture of several songs)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 466, "Train... Run So Fast" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roud #11786
NOTES [66 words]: This has a good deal in common with Darby and Tarlton's recording "Captain Won't You Let Me Go Home" ("Show Me the Way to Go Home," emphatically not the same as the other Brown fragment, "Show Me the Way to Go Home, Babe"); there is clearly dependence one way or the other. But the recording uses a different stanza form and is all about war service; I tentatively treat them as separate songs. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Br3466

Train That Carried My Girl from Town, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer asks about the train that's just left; "if I knew the number I'd flag her down." He wishes it would wreck and kill the crew; "some low rounder stole my jelly roll." He asks if there's a woman a man can trust.

AUTHOR: possibly Frank Hutchison
EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (recording, Frank Hutchison)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer asks about the train that's just left; "if I knew the number I'd flag her down." He wishes it would wreck and kill the crew; "some low rounder stole my jelly roll." He asks if there's a woman a man can trust. Chorus: "Hate that train that carried my girl from town/Hey, hey, hey"

KEYWORDS: grief jealousy loneliness infidelity sex train travel abandonment railroading floatingverses lover hate
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol2, pp. 26-27, "The Train That Took My Gal From Town" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 426-430, "The Train That Carried My Girl from Town" (1 text plus a text of Maynard Britton's "I Wish That Train Would Wreck"; 1 tune)
Roud #7027

RECORDINGS:
Frank Hutchison, "The Train That Carried the Girl from Town" (OKe 45064, 1926) (OKe 45111 [45114?], 1927); "Train That Carried My Girl from Town" (OKe 45114, 1927)
V. L. & Cleve Sutphin, "The Train That Carried My Girl from Town" (on CloseHomeMS)
Doc Watson, "The Train That Carried My Girl From Town" (on Watson01, ClassRR)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Hate the Train the Carried My Girl from Town

NOTES [69 words]: A white blues; it's possible Hutchison composed this, but he also may have learned it from black musicians. Certainly his performance, with knife-slide guitar, sounds very African-American. - PJS
Cohen speculates that Hutchison had it from an acquaintance, Bill Hunt. It's not clear to me why Cohen lists Hunt rather than Hutchison; in any case, the song resembles other blues in that it has many floating lines. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: RcTTCMGF
Train That Never Returned, The

DESCRIPTION: A train sets out, but "Did she ever return? No, she never returned, Though the train was due at one. For hours and hours the watchman stood waiting For the train that never returned." The song describes some of those who waited for it

AUTHOR: Music by Henry Clay Work

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording by Fiddlin' John Carson); Stout-FolkloreFromIowa's source claimed to have learned it in 1888

KEYWORDS: train railroading separation death derivative

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE,So)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 53, "The Train That Never Returned" (1 text)
Randolph 694, "The Train that Never Returned" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 215, "The Ship That Never Returned" (1 text, filed as "c" under the parodies)
Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs, pp. 42-43, "The Train That Never Returned" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lyle-ScaldedToDeathByTheSteam, p. 31, "The Train That Never Returned" (1 text, tune references)
Spaeth-WeepSomeMoreMyLady, p. 139, "The Train that Never Returned" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #23794

RECORDINGS:
Fiddlin' John Carson, "Did He Ever Return" (OKeh 45176, 1928; rec. 1927)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Ship that Never Returned" [Laws D27] (tune & meter) and references there
cf. "The Wreck of Old 97" (tune & meter)
cf. "The Rarden Wreck of 1893" (tune & metre, theme)
cf. "The Flying Colonel" (tune)

SAME TUNE:
Whitey Johns, "The Train That Never Arrived" (Romeo 1205, 1930)

NOTES [24 words]: I am assigning the Whitey Johns recording to this title, without having heard it, but I'm calling it a SAME TUNE to be on the safe(r) side. - PJS

Last updated in version 4.2

File: R694

Train That Will Never Be Found, The

DESCRIPTION: "Remember the Church Hill Tunnel, Near a mile under Richmond." One bleak autumn afternoon, a train and crew are in the tunnel when it collapses. Many try to dig them out, but "Brothers keep shovelin' For the train that's never been found."

AUTHOR: Llewellyn Lewis & Billy Pierce (source: Lyle)

EARLIEST DATE: 1991 (Lyle)

KEYWORDS: train disaster death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Oct 2, 1925 -- Collapse of the Church Hill Tunnel in Richmond, VA. The tunnel was under repair at the time, and a train in the tunnel; men from both train and repair crew were lost. The tunnel, which had a bad safety record, was closed after the collapse, and the train and some bodies were left in it

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lyle-ScaldedToDeathByTheSteam, pp. 116-124, "The Train That Will Never Be Found" (1 text, in a chapter titled "The Church Hill Tunnel Disaster")
Roud #14024

File: LySc116

Train Whistle Blues

DESCRIPTION: "When a woman gets the blues, she hands her little head and cries... When a man gets the blues, he grabs a train and rides." The singer wishes the train would take him home. His whole world is blue; he can't find a job

AUTHOR: Jimmie Rodgers (but based on much traditional material)
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Jimmie Rodgers)
KEYWORDS: train home travel
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 452-455, "Train Whistle Blues" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Jimmie Rodgers, "Train Whistle Blues" (Victor 22379, 1930; rec. 1929)
File: LSRai1452

Tramp (I), The
DESCRIPTION: The hobo has been wandering till his shoes are worn to pieces. He asks a woman for work; she replies, "Tramp, tramp, tramp, keep on a-tramping, There is nothing here for you." Everywhere he tries, he is threatened with prison if he returns
AUTHOR: Joe Hill
EARLIEST DATE: 1913 (_The Industrial Worker_, May 22, 1913, according to William M. Adler, _The Main Who Never Died: The Life, Times, and Legacy of Joe Hill, American Labor Icon_, p. 206)
KEYWORDS: work hardtimes poverty prison hobo unemployment IWW
FOUND IN: US(Ro)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 185, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, Keep On a-Tramping" (1 text)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 281-282, "The Tramp" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 52, "The Tramp (1 text)
DT, THETRMP*
Roud #9929
RECORDINGS:
Frank Crumit, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, Keep On A'Tramping" (Victor V-40214, 1930)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!" (tune) and reference there
NOTES [7 words]: For the life of Joe Hill, see "Joe Hill." - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: San185

Tramp (II), The
DESCRIPTION: "I'm a broken-down man without money or friends... I wisht I had never been born." The tramp reports that people constantly tell him to get a job, but none will offer a job. He recalls another tramp thrown off a train and killed on the track
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, McGee Brothers); a version was printed c. 1880 in _De Marsan's Singer's Journal_
KEYWORDS: hobo death hardtimes unemployment
FOUND IN: US(MW,So) Canada(Newf,Ont)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 347-350, "Because He Was Only a Tramp" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 71, "The Tramp's Lament" (1 text)
Randolph 843, "The Tramp" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 48, "Broken-Down Sport" (1 text)
Roud #4305
RECORDINGS:
Jack Edwards, "The Tramp" (Supertone 9711, 1930)
Leo Gooley, "The Tramp" (on ONEFowke01)
McGee Brothers, "The Tramp" (Vocalion 5171, 1927)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Remember the Poor Tramp Has to Live" (plot)
NOTES [63 words]: Cohen theorizes that this started as two songs, one about a tramp who can't find work, the other about a tramp thrown from a train and killed. As evidence he prints a version which lacks the dying tramp stanzas. This seems not unlikely, but until we find a version of the song with the tramp thrown from the train without the other part, there isn't much point in splitting.
- RBW

Last updated in version 2.6
File: R843

Tramp on the Street
DESCRIPTION: "Only a tramp, was Lazarus's sad fate, He who lad down at the rich man's gate....
They left him to die like a tramp on the street." "He was some mother's darling... Once he was fair and once he was young." Hearers should care for the poor.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Cray-AshGrove)
KEYWORDS: religious poverty punishment Hell hobo
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cray-AshGrove, p. 41, "Only a Tramp" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #17691
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "Dives and Lazarus" [Child 56] (subject) and references there NOTES [32 words]: Jesus's story of the rich man and Lazarus -- which, be it noted, was a warning, not a description of an actual event -- is found in Luke 16:19-31 (the Lazarus of John 11, 12 is unrelated). - RBW

Last updated in version 4.3
File: CrAGr41

Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!
DESCRIPTION: The prisoner cries as he recalls mother and home. He recalls the battle where he was taken. But then he recalls that the troops are coming, and cheers his fellows: "Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching, Cheer up comrades they will come...."
AUTHOR: George F. Root
EARLIEST DATE: 1864 (sheet music published by Root & Cady)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar prisoner freedom
FOUND IN: US(Ro)
 REFERENCES (15 citations):
  Root-StoryOfAMusicalLife-GeorgeFRoot, pp. 246-249, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!" (1 text, 1 tune) Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #242, "In the Prison Cell I Sit" (1 short text, which appears to be this although Hubbard does not so identify it) Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 214-217, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! or The Prisoner's Hope" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, pp. 420-421, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! or The Prisoner's Hope" (1 broadside text plus a copy of the sheet music cover, both from Root & Cady)
  Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 35-37, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! (The Prisoner's Hope)"; p. 37,
"Tramp! Tramp! Tramp, II (Southern Version)" (2 texts, 1 tune) Silber-SoldierSongsAndHomeFrontBalladsOfCivilWar, pp. 86-87, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!" (1 text,
1 tune)
  Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2368, p. 159, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! The Prisoner's Hope" (7 references)
  Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, pp. 118-119, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! (The Prisoner's Hope)" (1 text)
  Messerli-ListenToTheMockingbird, pp. 149-150, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!" (1 text)
  Heart-Songs, p. 449, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 347-348, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!" (1 text)
  Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 66, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!" (1 text)
  Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, pp. 85-86, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! or The Prisoner's Hope"
(1 text)
  Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, p. 588+, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!"
DT, TRMPTRMP*
Roud #10911

RECORDINGS:
S. H. Dudley, "Tramp Tramp Tramp" (Berliner 0157-Y, rec. 1898)
Frank J. Gaskin, "Tramp Tramp Tramp" (Berliner 0157-Z, rec. 1896)[
Frank C. Stanley, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!" (CYL: Edison 5002, c. 1898)
Unknown baritone "Tramp Tramp Tramp" (Berliner 0157, rec. before 1895)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Tramp (I)" (tune)
cf. "An Anti-Fenian Song" (tune)
cf. "The Bounty Jumper's Lament" (tune)
cf. "God Save Ireland" (tune)
cf. "The Salutation" (tune)

SAME TUNE:
The Wallaby Brigade (File: FaE186)
In Bohunkus, Tennessee (File: EM354)
The Little Busy Bee (by William McGavin; in _The Song Wave for School and Home_, 1882)
Jump! Jump Jump! Our Friends Are Coming (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 80)
On! On! On! A Sequel to Tramp, Tramp, Tramp ("Oh! the day it came, at last") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 117)
Rum! Rum! Rum! The Bummer's Hope. A Parody on The Prisoner's Hope ("In the marble halls I sit," by John C. Cross) (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 137)
We Have Chosen for Our Chief (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 170)
When the Bonny Moon (by G. M. Dodge, [class of 18][68]) ("When the bonny moon is seen Glinting down on Bowdoin green") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, pp. 129-130)
The Chimes ("To the busy morning light, To the slumbers of the night") (by F. W. Finch) (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 109)
Hope for the Toiling ("Daily at my task I work, Thinking, brothers dear, of you") (by B. M. Lawrence) (Foner, p. 112)
Song for Working Voters ("In the fields and shops we drudge, Working on from day to day") (Foner, p. 114)
Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! (Greenback version) ("Upon the western breeze, and from the eastern seas, The cheering cry of 'Liberty' is heard") (by Mary Dana Schindler) (Foner, p. 141)
Labor's Chorus ("In the labor ranks we stand! Joining earnest heart and hand") (by E. A. Bacon) (Foner, p. 157)
March! March! March! ("In the crowded scenes of toil, in the workshop and the mine") (Foner, p. 164)
Eight-Hour Song (1) ("Let us gather once again, Let us strike with might and main") (Foner, p. 217)
Eight-Hour Song (2) ("We have toiled for others' gains, And have robbed both purse and brains") (Foner, p. 218)
The Toiler's National Anthem ("Toiling brothers, why contend Till your youthful days are spent") (by M. J. Heany) (Foner, p. 232)
Bang! Bang! Bang! ("Come, ye toilers of the land, Join the people's party band") (Foner, p. 280)
Marching Song ("In our poverty and toil Lookin upon the world") (by Charles H. Kerr) (Foner, p. 314)

NOTES [114 words]: Root-StoryOfAMusicalLife-GeorgeFRoot, pp. 136-137, writes of this song, "As I have said, when anything happened that could be voiced in a song, or when the heart of the nation was moved by particular circumstances or conditions caused by the war, I wrote what I thought would then express the emotions of the soldiers or the people.... I voiced the feeling of the people in regard to the treatment of prisoners by 'Starved in prison,' and gave a more hopeful view in 'Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching.'"
On pp. 151-152, he calls this his last successful war song; it "had but a short life -- less than a year, but in that time our profit on it was ten thousand dollars." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: RJ19214

Tramp's Story, The

DESCRIPTION: The tramp asks to sit and rest. Tramps have to live, "though folks don't think we should." He used to be a blacksmith. Then a stranger led his love Nellie astray. She died soon after he abandoned her. The tramp intends to find and punish the stranger

AUTHOR: Edward Harrigan?

EARLIEST DATE: 1930

KEYWORDS: hobo love abandonment betrayal death revenge

FOUND IN: US(SE,So)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Randolph 844, "The Tramp's Story" (1 text)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 358, "Tale of a Tramp" (1 text)
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 358, notes only
- Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 148, "Down in the Lehigh Valley" (1 text)

Roud #7448

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Can I Sleep In Your Barn Tonight?" (plot)
- cf. "The Lehigh Valley" (plot)
- cf. "Remember the Poor Tramp Has to Live" (plot)
- cf. "The Deserted Husband" (theme)

NOTES [160 words]: This is a difficult conundrum: It is unquestionably related to "The Lehigh Valley," with which it shares a plot and occasional words. The question is, which is original? The natural inclination, of course, is to think that "Lehigh Valley," which is more firmly traditional and, in its crude way more vigorous, is the source. And yet, "The Tramp's Story" is so much more feeble that it's hard to imagine "Lehigh Valley" being expurgated so far.

It is worth noting that Brown's version contains a reference to the Lehigh Valley. Plus, this song adds the moralizing conclusion about the girl's death. It's really a bit thick -- as any half-decent songwriter would surely recognize. So I'm just not sure.

The original by Edward Hannigan is said to be from the 1882 play "Squatter Sovereignty." Milburn prints no fewer than six songs on this theme. Obviously the plot proved popular.

For background on Edward Harrigan, see the notes to "Babies on Our Block." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1
File: R844

Tramps and Hawkers

DESCRIPTION: "Come a' ye tramps and hawker lads and gaitherers o' blaw... I'll tell tae ye a rovin' tale, an' places I hae been, Far up intae the snowy north or sooth by Gretna Green." The singer describes his travels, sights he has seen, worries he hasn't had

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: rambling

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber,Bord))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Greig/Duncan3 487, "Come All Ye Tramps and Hawkers" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 358, "Tramps and Hawkers" (1 text, 1 tune)
- McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen, pp. 51, 150, "Come Aa Ye Tramps and Hawkers" (1 text, 1 tune)
- DT, HAWKRS*
- Roud #1874

RECORDINGS:
- Jimmy MacBeath, "Come All Ye Tramps And Hawkers" (on Lomax43, LomaxCD1743, Voice20)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Davy Faa (Remember the Barley Straw)" (tune)
- cf. "Paddy West" (tune)
cf. "Hermitage Castle" (tune)
SAME TUNE:
Davy Faa (Remember the Barley Straw) (File: K188)
Paddy West (File: Doe113)
Hermitage Castle (File: McSco056)
Doctor Fletcher (Dr. Pritchard) (File: Guig111)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Jolly Beggar
NOTES [100 words]: This song is best known not for its banal lyrics but for its widely-recognized and used tune (also known as "Paddy West"). - RBW
Yates, Musical Traditions site Voice of the People suite "Notes - Volume 20" - 15.1.04: "It was first collected from both James Angus and James Morrison in 1909 and appears in the Greig-Duncan Collection Vol 3 p.271."
Greig/Duncan: "Hamish Henderson mentions in the notes to the record Come A' Ye Tramps and Hawkers (Collector Records, Jes 10) that the song 'is reputed to have been composed by 'Besom Jimmy,' a much travelled Angus-born hawker of the last century." - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: K358

Tramway Line, The
DESCRIPTION: "Men are toiling night and day" to finish the Belfast Tramway. "Red Roger he's to be a guard ... to keep people from falling out." Lord Lurgan and Lord Lieutenant Went looked it over. A Belfast girl "says she knows Red Roger" who may get her a ticket.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1989 (Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong)
KEYWORDS: commerce humorous nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong 18, "The Tramway Line" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [98 words]: Leyden-BelfastCityOfSong: "This song recalls the opening of [the Belfast tramway system service to Balmoral] ... in the early 1890s. It is very much in the music hall idiom with its sing-along chorus and light-hearted content."
Leyden's tune is close to that of "The Crummy Cow"/"The Bigler." Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople p. 25, about that tune: "The air is a 'stock' Irish air to which many old songs were sung ...." Unlike the Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople tune, Leyden's includes the chorus ("Pipe it, twig it, it is a gorgeous show...."). - BS
File: Leyd018

Tranent Muir
DESCRIPTION: "The Chevalier, being void of fear, did march up Birsie brae, man," and prepares for battle against John Cope. The battle results in a complete win for the Jacobites. Many soldiers taking part in the battle are listed.
AUTHOR: "Mr. Skirving" (source: Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2)
EARLIEST DATE: 1797 (Scots Musical Museum #102)
KEYWORDS: Jacobites battle moniker humorous
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sept 21, 1745 - Battle of Prestonpans. Bonnie Prince Charlie's Highland army routs the first real Hannoverian force it encounters
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2 62, "The Battle of Prestonpans" (1 text)
DT, TRANMUIR
ADDITIONAL: James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume II, #102, pp. 103-104, "Tranent Muir" (1 text, 1 tune)
Michael Brander, _Scottish and Border Battles and Ballads_, 1975 (page references to the 1993 Barnes & Noble edition), pp. 272-276, "The Battle of Prestonpans" (1 text)
ST DTtranmu (Partial)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Johnnie Cope" (subject: the Battle of Prestonpans)
cf. "Where Ha'e Ye Been A' the Day?" (subject: the Battle of Prestonpans)
SAME TUNE:
Praelium Gillicrankianum (Scots Musical Museum, appendix to #102; a Latin piece along the same lines but apparently about Killiecrankie)
NOTES [627 words]: Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2: "This popular song was made by Mr. Skirving, a Lothian farmer...."
The tune is Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol1 17, "The Battle of Killiecrankie." - BS
This has been recorded by Archie Fisher (on "The Fate o' Charlie," under the title "The Battle of Prestonpans"), so it's perhaps worth indexing.
Despite the quality of the source, I rather doubt it's traditional; I know no field recordings, and the only printed version prior to Hogg seems to be that in the Scots Musical Museum. Which is extremely long (15 8-line stanzas), and quite dull unless you're a Jacobite trying to recall all the officers at Prestonpans. Whoever chopped the song down to the length recorded by Fisher did everyone a favor.
On the other hand, the Scots Musical Museum tune isn't the same as Fisher's, so maybe there has been some oral tradition in there somewhere.
I checked three sources to try to understand the battle: Reid, pp. 29-34; Wilkinson, pp. 95-108; and Magnusson, pp. 592-596. These sources can only be reconciled by assuming that the map on p. 103 of Wilkinson is printed with north and south reversed. But the general story is clear. In September, the newly-assembled Jacobite army arrived in Edinburgh. Even as this was happening, Lt. General John Cope was landing his force at Dunbar (Wilkinson, p. 95). Cope's force was small (Reid, p. 32, give estimates on the order of 2000 soldiers), mostly inexperienced (though many of the troops were from famous regiments, including the Black Watch, they were generally reserve companies and new formations), and ill-equipped. Still, that description applied to the Jacobite army also; they had, according to Magnusson, p. 593, "no artillery and not many muskets." Although Cope's plan to defend Edinburgh had failed, he still decided to advance. When he learned that the Jacobite army had marched out to meet him, he took up a strong position on the road from Haddington to Edinburgh. He was on a height, and his right was protected by the sea (Firth of Forth), while his left was guarded by a broad, boggy meadow known as the Meadow or Moor of Tranent. The hamlet of Tranent was to the south of the meadow. Preston and Prestonpans, the town for which the battle was named, were west of the battle site (Prestonpans, according to Smout, pp. 102-103, earned its name because it house the [salt]-pans of Preston, which will tell you how close to the sea it is). Had the Highlanders followed the main road, they would have passed through Prestonpans to attack Cope.
Unfortunately for Cope, a local led the Jacobite army by a track through the Tranent Moor (Wilkinson, p. 100; Magnusson, p. 593). Cope learned of this early enough to reface his army east (so the map in Magnusson, p. 595) or southeast (so Wilkinson and Reid), but his positional advantage was lost. Plus the sun was in the defenders's eyes. And he didn't have enough artillery to slow a Highland Charge.
Prestonpans was hardly a battle; it was an almost instant rout. The conflict is typically said to have lasted only ten minutes (Magnusson, p. 594). It ended with Cope's entire army in flight, with the general eventually carried away himself. The Highlanders had no cavalry with which to pursue, so Cope's losses were relatively light -- Reid, p. 38, and Magnusson, p. 594, both accept that about 150 were killed. But over a thousand were taken prisoner, and the Jacobites also picked up a fair number of muskets, Cope's handful of artillery, and some cash. Plus, of course, they gained a huge morale boost.
For more details on Prestonpans, see the notes to "Johnnie Cope."
Incidentally, the reference to Charles as a Chevalier was more than just poetry; one of his father's titles was "Chevalier de Saint George." - RBW
Bibliography

- Reid: Stuart Reid, 1745: A Military History of the Last Jacobite Rising, Sarpedon, 1966
- Wilkinson: Clennell Wilkinson, Bonnie Prince Charlie, Lippincott, no copyright listed but after 1932
Transport's Lament, The

DESCRIPTION: "All you distressed tradesmen, wherever you may be," listen and learn that it is poverty that causes crime. The singer couldn't find work, and so he turned highwayman to feed his family and is transported. If people had jobs there would be no crime.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1867 (broadside Bodleian Firth c.17(54))

KEYWORDS: work family separation transportation warning

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Anderson-FarewellToOldEngland, pp. 72-73, "The Transport's Lamentation" (1 text)
Roud #V20190

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth c.17(54), "The Transport's Lamentation," J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866; also Firth c.17(211), "The Transport's Lamentation," (unknown), n.d.

NOTES [19 words]: Anderson dates his broadside c. 1830, but since it is the Harkness broadside, it must be from 1840 or after. - RBW

Travel On (Trabel On)

DESCRIPTION: "Sister Rosy, you get to heaven before I go, Sister, you look out for me, I'm on the way, Trabel on, trabel on, you heaven-born soldier, Trabel on, trabel on, Go hear what my Jesus say."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 31, "Travel On" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11986

Traveling Man (Traveling Coon)

DESCRIPTION: Protagonist, a trickster, makes his living stealing chickens/money; he's arrested, shot, sent home for burial, but escapes his coffin, etc. Cho: "He was a travelin' man, certainly was a travelin' man/Travelin'est coon that ever come through the land...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Brown)

LONG DESCRIPTION: The protagonist is a trickster who makes his living stealing chickens and money; he's arrested, shot, and sent home for burial, but escapes from his coffin; he sails on the Titanic, but when it sinks he's found shooting dice in Liverpool. Carrying water ten miles from a spring, he stumbles, but runs home for another bucket and catches the water before it hits the ground. Chorus: "He was a travelin' man, certainly was a travelin' man/Travelin'est coon that ever come through the land...." KEYWORDS: rambling travel crime theft punishment resurrection burial death gambling ship wreck England humorous talltale thief

FOUND IN: US(SE,So)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 428, "The Traveling Coon" (1 text plus mention of 1 more)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 428, "The Travelling Coon" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roud #11771
RECORDINGS:
Alabama Sheiks "Travelin' Railroad Man Blues" (Victor 23265, 1931)
Smilie Burnett, "He Was a Travelling Man" (Perfect 13011/Melotone 13046, 1934)
Virgil Childers, "Traveling Man" (Bluebird B-7487, 1938)
Si'd Harkreader, "Travelling Coon" (Paramount 3101, 1928)
Tony Hollins, "Traveling Man Blues" (OKeh 06523, 1941)
Prince Albert Hunt's Texas Ramblers, "Travelling Man" (OKeh 45446, 1930; rec. 1928; on GoodForWhatAilsYou)
Jim Jackson, "Traveling Man" (Victor V-38617, 1930; rec. 1928)
Coley Jones, "Traveling Man" (Columbia 14288-D, 1928; rec. 1927)
Luke Jordan, "Traveling Coon" (Victor 20957, 1927)
Charlie & Bud Newman, "The Old Travelling Man" (OKeh 45431, 1930)
Phineas [or 'Finious'] "Flat Foot" Rockmore, "Traveling Man" (AFS 3988 B1, 1940; on LomaxCD1821-2)
Dock Walsh, "Travelling Man" (Columbia 15105-D, 1926)
Washboard Sam, "Traveling Man" (Bluebird B-8761, 1941)
Henry Whitter, "Travelling Man" (OKeh 40237, 1924)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Didn't He Ramble" (lyrics)
NOTES [58 words]: This was the theme song of the East Coast medicine show singer Pink Anderson. - PJS
The oldest version, in the Brown collection, bears an interesting relation to "Didn't He Ramble"; in this text, the chorus runs, "Well, he travelled and was known for miles around, And he didn't get enough, he didn't get enough Till the police shot him down." - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: RcTMTC

Traveling Shoes

DESCRIPTION: Death comes to the door of the sinner, the gambler, the Christian, etc., asking if they are "ready to go." The sinner says, "I'm not ready to go; I ain't (got/put on) my travelin' shoes." The Christian, by contrast, is ready and eager to go
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (recording, Selah Jubilee Quartet)
KEYWORDS: religious death
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, p. 70, "(Got No Travellin' Shoes)" (1 text); p. 233, "Traveling Shoes" (1 tune, partial text)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 172-173, "Travelin' Shoes" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Harold Courlander, _A Treasury of Afro-American Folklore_, Crown Publishers, 1976, p. 335, "(Got No Travellin' Shoes)" (1 text)
Roud #10968
RECORDINGS:
Selah Jubilee Quartet, "Traveling Shoes" (Decca 7628, 1939)
Vera Hall Ward, "Travelling Shoes" (on NFMAla5)
File: CNFM070A

Travelling Candyman, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer Pat O'Flanagan sails to Glasgow, can't find work, so becomes a "candyman" -- a rag dealer. A woman accuses him of stealing her frock from the line; he denies it, and she hits him. Chorus: "For I take in old iron/I take in old bones and rags..."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1954 (recorded from Jennie Davison)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer, Pat O'Flanagan, sails from Belfast to Glasgow, can't find work, so as a last resort becomes a "candyman" -- a rag dealer. A woman accuses him of stealing her frock from the line; he denies it, and she hits him. Chorus: "For I take in old iron/I take in old bones and rags...My name is Pat O'Flanagan/I'm a travelling candyman"
KEYWORDS: poverty accusation violence rambling travel theft clothes commerce work worker
Gypsy migrant
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 359, "The Travelling Candyman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2163
RECORDINGS:
"Rich" Johnny Connors, "Rambling Candyman" (on IRTravellers01)
NOTES [88 words]: Not to be confused with the American blues song "Candy Man." While ragpicking was usually considered to be a last resort among Travellers, in fact several seem to have made considerable fortunes at the trade. - PJ
The version on IRTravellers01, "made and sung by 'Rich' Johnny Connors," describes an event that happened to the singer. Instead of the frock episode, his episode is about an old man who tried to sell him a sack weighted with "bricks you could plainly see" with which he could not fool
"any rambling candy man." - BS
File: K359

Treadmill, The
DESCRIPTION: "The stars are rolling in the sky, The earth rolls on below, And we can feel the rattling wheel Revolving as we go." The singer urges others to take their turns at the treadmill, and praises the pleasures of life among the mill workers
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1892 (Trifet's Budget of Music)
KEYWORDS: work technology
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 497, "The Treadmill" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7587
File: R497

Treat Me Right
DESCRIPTION: "If you treat me right, I'd sooner work than play; If you treat me mean, I won't do neither way."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Henry)
KEYWORDS: work nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 197, "Treat Me Right" (1 text)
File: MHAp197

Treat My Daughter Kindly (The Little Farm)
DESCRIPTION: The singer meets and falls in love with a girl. Her father asks him to "Treat my daughter kindly, never do her harm. When I die I'll leave you my little house and farm." The two are happily married and live a contented life
AUTHOR: James Bland EARLIEST DATE: 1878 (sheet music for "The Farmer's Daughter, or The Little Chickens in the Garden" published)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage father
FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,NE,SE,So) Britain(England) Ireland
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 119, "I Once Did Know a Farmer" (1 text plus an excerpt)
Randolph 668, "The Little Chickens in the Garden" (1 text plus a fragment, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 175, "The Farmer's Daughter" (1 text)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 77, "Treat My Daughter Kindly (or, The Little Farm)" (1 text)
Tree of Liberty, The

DESCRIPTION: "Sons of Hibernia, attend to my song, Of a tree call'd th' Orange." Barbarians and Frenchmen are joined against the tree. "Hundreds they've burn'd of each sex, young and old". Exit Sheares and other traitors. "Derry down, down, traitors bow down"

AUTHOR: "by J.B. Esqu, of Lodge No. 471" (Source: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

EARLIEST DATE: 1798 (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

KEYWORDS: rebellion execution Ireland patriotic

FOUND IN:
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 95, "The Tree of Liberty" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Derry Down" (tune) and references there

NOTES [430 words]: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion: "John and Henry Sheares, who were United Irishmen -- and Protestants --, were hanged in Dublin in July 1798." - BS
Very many leaders of the 1798 -- including Wolfe Tone -- were in fact Protestant; they had the education and the income to be in position to form such conspiracies. And Ireland was not yet so polarized over religion as it later became; as Robert Kee points out (see The Most Distressful Country, being Volume I of The Green Flag, p. 99):
"This whole system of torture [and repression of the rebellion] was being carried out on the Irish population largely by Irish soldiers, a great proportion of them Catholics of the poorest class in the militia, who were ready enough to do their duty against their fellow-countrymen as unworthy rebels. Of all the troops available for the government in Ireland before and during the coming rebellion, over four-fifths were Irish."
The Sheares brothers were lawyers (Kee, p. 54), who succeeded to high places in the United Irish leadership after the arrests of the initial leadership council in March 1798. They themselves were in custody on May 21 (Kee, pp. 100-101). Thus they played no real part in the rebellion, but they were hung as what we might call accessories before the fact.
In any case, they don't seem to have been very well equipped for their role; Thomas Pakenham, The Year of Liberty, p. 59, says they were "hardly the stuff to lead a revolutionary army," and they were far too trusting, bringing an informant into their confidence based simply on his taste in literature (p. 78). Maybe it was because John Sheares, at least, was given to bombast himself; Pakenham (p. 96) prints a proclamation he was found to have written at the time of his arrest, and it's way over the top.
The Liberty Tree was originally a French symbol (which in English was spread by the writings of Thomas Paine), but the idea became popular in areas governed by England; this song and "Ireland's Liberty Tree" are examples of its use in Ireland. Scotland also had Liberty Tree songs, although there is little evidence that they became traditional; for an example, see p. 109 of Kenneth Logue's article "Eighteen-Century Popular Protest: Aspects of the People's Past" in Edward J. Cowan, editor, The People's Past: Scottish Folk, Scottish History 1980 (I use the 1993 Polygon paperback edition). There are also some Liberty Tree songs in American songsters, and Jean Thomas published something we have filed as "The Liberty Tree (I)," although I again question whether these are traditional. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.4
Tree Toad, The
DESCRIPTION: "A tree toad loved a she toad... She was a three-toed tree toad, A two-toed tree toad he." The male toad courts the female because she lives in a beautiful tree. But "He couldn't please her whim... The she toad vetoed him."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987
KEYWORDS: animal wordplay love recitation
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Meredith/Covell/Brown-FolkSongsOfAustraliaVol2, p. 169, "The Tree Toad" (1 text)
File: MCB169

Trees Are All Bare (Christmas Song)
DESCRIPTION: "The trees are all bare, not a leaf to be seen, And the meadows their beauty have lost." The weather is cold and work is hard for people and animals; even the birds and hares cannot find food. Christmas is come; rejoice in the new year
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (Copper-ASongForEverySeason)
KEYWORDS: farming hardtimes food Christmas
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Copper-ASongForEverySeason, pp. 202-203, "Christmas Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1170
File: CopSe202

Trelawny
DESCRIPTION: King James II has imprisoned Bishop Trelawny in the Tower of London.
"Trelawney he may die But twenty thousand Cornish bold Will know the reason why."
AUTHOR: Rev. Robert Stephen Hawker (1803-1875), according to Turner
EARLIEST DATE: 1846 (Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland)
KEYWORDS: royalty clergy political rebellion
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1688 - Bishop Trelawney (1650-1721) is imprisoned for seditious libel after protesting James II's Declaration of Indulgence granting religious tolerance to Catholics. He was tried and acquitted.
(sources: Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland; "Sir Jonathan Trelawney,
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
(1 text)
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, pp. 54-55, "Trelawny" (1 text plus Cornish translation, 1 tune) references are to the 1992 Dover edition), pp. 58-59, "The Song of the Western Men" (1 text)
Roud #3315
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Come All Ye Jolly Tinner Boys" (lyrics)
cf. "Wheal Rodney" (tune, according to Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall)
SAME TUNE:
Wheal Rodney (file: DeSh070)
NOTES [84 words]: According to Turner, R. S. Hawker claimed to have based his poem on "three traditional lines in the second stanza, but nobody else has found evidence of their antiquity." But something very like Hawker's words are in Dixon. And the whole thing looks like "Come All Ye Jolly Tinner Boys." There has been controversy about this that I can't settle. I'm not the only one; Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall writes, "Everything about the origin of Trelawny, words and tune alike, is baffling." - RBW
Last updated in version 4.5
Trench Blues
DESCRIPTION: "When I was a-stealin' 'cross the deep blue sea, Lord, I's worryin' with those submarines...." The singer serves in the trenches in World War I. He has trouble understanding the women. He visits various places along the front
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (collected from John Bray)
KEYWORDS: war courting ship technology fight death
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 202-204, "Trench Blues" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3583
File: LoSi202

Trent-et-un Du Mois D'aout, Le
DESCRIPTION: French. Forebitter shanty. "Le trente et un di mois d'aout, Nous vimes arriver sur nous," an English frigate comes against the French. The French captain asks if his lieutenant will board her. Despite being heavily outgunned, the French win the battle
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Hugill-SongsOfTheSea)
KEYWORDS: ship battle foreignlanguage shanty
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, p. 133, "Le Trente-et-un Du Mois D'Aout" (2 texts, French & English, 1 tune)
NOTES [15 words]: Hugill dates this to the reign of Louis XVI but does not offer a basis for this dating. - RBW
File: HSoeSe133

Trentham
DESCRIPTION: "I'd love to live in Trentham For a week or two, To work all day for fun and pay And live on army stew. The potatoes they are rotten And the meat will walk to you; I'd like to live in Trentham For a week or two!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1991 (Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook)
KEYWORDS: soldier hardtimes food
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, p. 118, "Trentham" (1 short text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Oh! Susanna" (tune) and references there
File: Clev118

Trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, The DESCRIPTION: "Here's a story that's worth repeating, It's a story that ends the same, Of a man gone astray and the price he must pay." The song describes Hauptmann's trial and the witnesses against him; the jury finds against him
AUTHOR: Bob Miller
EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (recording, Bill Cox)
KEYWORDS: homicide trial death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Mar 1, 1932 - The Lindbergh Kidnapping
FOUND IN: US
Trial of John Twiss, The

DESCRIPTION: Twiss bids sister Jane farewell from the scaffold. He is innocent of the murder of Donovan. "Paid spies and informers, my life they swore away." At the Cork assizes he is tried, convicted, and sentenced. He blesses the mayor of Cork and other supporters.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (OCanainn-SongsOfCork)

KEYWORDS: execution homicide trial

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCanainn-SongsOfCork, pp. 44-45, "The Trial of John Twiss" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [27 words]: OCanainn-SongsOfCork: "John Twiss from Castleisland was sentenced to death at the Cork assizes for the murder of James Donovan and was hanged in Cork in 1895." - BS

Trials, Troubles, and Tribulations (Here We Go through the Jewish Nation)

DESCRIPTION: "Here we go through the Jewish nation, Trials, troubles, and tribulation."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)

KEYWORDS: travel nonballad playparty Jew

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #39, "Trials, Troubles, and Tribulations" (1 short text)

Tribulations d'un Roi Malheureux, Les (Misfortunes of an Unlucky "King")

DESCRIPTION: Canadian French. "Estil rien sur la terre De plus interestant." "Now where in all the country Could e'er be found again A tale as sad as this one Of McDougall and his men?"

McDougall comes to Metis country thinking to claim free land, but has to pay

AUTHOR: Words; Pierre Falcon (source: MacLeod-SongsOfOldManitoba)

EARLIEST DATE: 1869 (according to MacLeod-SongsOfOldManitoba)

KEYWORDS: Canada money humorous foreignlanguage

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1869 - As part of the organization of the Dominion of Canada, the western regions of the new nation were surveyed. William MacDougall was appointed governor of the territory in which the Metis lived. The Metis regarded him as an interloper coming to take their lands; the result was Louis Riel's first rebellion

FOUND IN:
MacLeod-SongsOfOldManitoba, #5, pp. 31-40, "Misfortunes of an Unlucky 'King'" (1 French text plus English translation, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Riel's Song" (subject of the Metis rebellion) and references there
 cf. "Chanson des Metis (Song of the Metis, or McDougall at the Border)" (subject of McDougall's attempt to govern the Metis)
 cf. "The Wandering Jew" (tune, according to MacLeod-SongsOfOldManitoba)
Trifling Woman

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Lord, I been working like a dog all day, Just to make another dollar for you to throw away." The husband (?) complains of his wife's profligacy; she won't cook or work, but wants fine clothes to look good in. He wishes she would leave or he would die

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl)

KEYWORDS: clothes husband wife poverty work

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 136, "Trifling Woman" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST Wa136 (Partial)

Roud #4626

File: Wa136

---

Trimble's Crew

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, it's of a pair of jobbers who had a jolly time All in some old log shanty where the jobbers settle down." A disjointed song describing the work in Trimble's camp and how hard the life is: "A man who'd work for Trimble might better be in jail."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Fowke)

KEYWORDS: logger lumbering work hardtimes

FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #8, "Trimble's Crew" (1 text, tune referenced)

ST FowL08 (Partial)

Roud #4467

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Lumber Camp Song" (theme, tune)

File: FowL08

---

Trinity Bay Tragedy

DESCRIPTION: The small boats out sealing in Trinity Bay on February 27, 1892, are caught in wind and sleet. Some make shore at Heart's Delight the next morning but most freeze to death.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast)

KEYWORDS: death fishing sea storm

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Feb 28, 1892 - the Trinity Bay tragedy

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 71, "Trinity Bay Tragedy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, pp. 37-38, "Trinity Bay Tragedy" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST LLab071 (Partial)

Roud #9983

NOTES [277 words]: Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast reprints a detailed account from D. W. Prowse History of Newfoundland (London, 1896), p. 520.

Heart's Delight is on the northwest corner of the Avalon Peninsula, which is separated from the main body of Newfoundland by Trinity Bay - BS

The extent of this disaster is somewhat unclear. The Northern Shipwrecks Database says 250 men perished. Prowse's account, as cited by Leach and also printed on p. 303 of Ryan, lists a much smaller total: 215 men out sealing, most of whom survived; 24 froze or otherwise died of exposure. Ryan on the same page cites a newspaper calculation that 25 men died. Ryan calls it "The most terrible landsmen's catastrophe which has been recorded." ("Landsmen" were seal hunters who..." went out in small boats from their homes and returned to land regularly, as opposed to the organized seal hunts based in large sailing or steam vessels, which sailed from the major ports and had dozens or hundreds of sealers on each boat and spent weeks away from land.) Greene, p. 65, calls it a "typical example of a land fatality" in the seal fishery. Keir, p. 159, reports that the day was clear and calm at first, so a great many small boats went out to take seals. Keir agrees that 24 died on the ice. Similarly Greene, p. 66: "Thirteen men were reached when frozen to death in their punts; whilst eleven others, who had taken refuge on the Floe, were blown out to sea on the ice-pans."
There is a recent book about the event, Eldon Drodge, Peril on the Sea. But having read one of Drodge's other books, I find that he invents things and calls them history, so I have not tried to find this book. - RBW

Bibliography

Trinity Cake (Mrs. Fogarty's Cake)

DESCRIPTION: "As I leaned o'er the rail of the Eagle The letter boy brought unto me A little gilt edged invitation Saying the girls want you over to tea" for "a slice of the Trinity Cake." Everyone tries the inedible cake and "all of them swore they were poisoned"

AUTHOR: Johnny Burke

EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud); a probable version is from the Golden Gate Songster of 1888, and a song with the same plot came out in 1885 (see NOTES)

KEYWORDS: party food humorous moniker nonballad talltale

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf) US(MW,SE)

REFERENCES (10 citations):
- Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 43-44, "Mrs. Fogarty's Cake" (1 text)
- Mills-FavoriteSongsOfNewfoundland, pp. 18-19, "Trinity Cake" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 74, "Miss Fogarty's Christmas Cake" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Morris-FolkSongsOfFlorida, #233, "Miss Fogarty's Christmas Cake" (1 text)
- Behan-IrelandSings, #57, "Mrs. Hooligan's Christmas Cake" (1 text, 1 tune, modified)

ADDITIONAL: Johnny Burke, _Burke's Popular Songs_., self-published, 1929 (a PDF is available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. [3], "Trinity Cake" (1 text)

Johnny Burke, _Burke's Christmas Songster 1926_, self-published, 1926 (PDF copy available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), [no page number], "Trinity Cake" (1 text)

Johnny Burke (John White, Editor), _Burke's Ballads_, no printer listed, n.d. (PDF available on Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 38, "The Trinity Cake" (1 text)

Johnny Burke (William J. Kirwin, editor), _John White's Collection of Johnny Burke Songs_, Harry Cuff Publications, St. John's, 1981, #24, pp. 41-42, "The Trinity Cake" (1 text)

Roud #5000

RECORDINGS:
- Omar Blondahl, "Trinity Cake" (on NFOBlondahl05)
- The McNulty Family, "Miss Fogarty's Christmas Cake" (on IRMcNulty-Night1)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- Mrs. Fogarty's Cake
- Miss Fogarty's Cake

NOTES [306 words]: According to GEST Songs of Newfoundland and Labrador site the author died in 1930. - BS

The above presumably refers to Johnny Burke. Given the likely songster version, I doubt Burke wrote the original, though he surely created the Newfoundland ("Trinity Cake") version. The Newfoundland version is clearly localized; it has the singer be a sailor who received word on his boat rather than from the postman at home. I would assume the Eagle of the Burke version is the sealing steamer of that name; for more about that ship, see "The Ice-Floes."

Johnny Burke wrote another piece, "The Wedding Cake at Betsy's Marriage in Fogo," that seems like a combination of, or practice for, "Trinity Cake" and "The Kelligrew's Soiree"; it's about a wedding cake, but the list of improbable ingredients is very like "Kelligrew's Soiree." For a brief biography of Johnny Burke, see the notes to "The Kelligrew's Soiree."

Whatever the original of this song, the idea is found in 1885 in a song named "Miss Mulligan's Home Made Pie," by C. F. Horn. William H. A. Williams, 'Twas Only an Irishman's Dream, University of Illinois Press, 1996, p. 143, quotes two stanzas, beginning

As I sat to my rosewood peanny [piano] one day,
Making chords that were solemn and grand,
Mr. Mulligan's footman came over the way,
With a big billy doo [billet doux] in his hand.

As a neighbor and friend I was asked to attend,
A party at Mulligan's social and high,
And I found by the way 'twas the very first day,
That Miss Mulligan tried to bake homemade pie.

Helen Flanders may have found a traditional version of this, although I have not seen the text to be able to verify it. But what are the odds of another song labelled "Mrs. Mulligan's Homemade Pie"? The song also features a character named "Fogarty," although obviously not the baker of the offending pastry. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0
File: Doyl3062

Trip on the Erie, A (Haul in Your Bowline)

DESCRIPTION: "You can talk about your picnics and trips on the lake, / But a trip on the Erie you bet takes the cake!" A summary of life on the Erie canal, ending with comments about the cook: "A dumpling, a pet, / And we use her for a headlight at night on the deck!"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (collected from E. W. Armstrong and Edward Navin by Walton)

KEYWORDS: cook canal humorous

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1825 - Erie Canal opens (construction began in 1817)

FOUND IN: US(MA,MW) Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 167-168, "The E-ri-o Canal" (1 text)
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 94, "Haul in Your Bowline" (1 text+fragments, 1 tune)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 35, "A Trip on the Erie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 455-457, "Ballad of the Erie Canal" (1 text, composite and probably containing stanzas from other Erie Canal songs); pp. 459-463, "The Erie Canal Ballad" (8 texts, some fragmentary, most of which belong here though at least one is "The E-ri-e"); pp. 465-466, "A Trip on the Erie" (1 text)
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 246, "(no title)" (2 exerpts) DT, TRIPERIE*

Roud #6555

CROSS-REFERENCES:
* cf. "The E-ri-e" (theme) and references there
* cf. "The Erie Canal"
* cf. "The Stomach Robber" (theme)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Haul In Your Towline

NOTES [185 words]: The Erie Canal, as originally constructed, was a small, shallow channel which could only take barges. These vessels -- if such they could be called -- were normally hauled along by mules or, in a few cases, oxen ("horned breezes").
The Lomaxes, in American Ballad and Folk Songs, thoroughly mingled many texts of the Erie Canal songs (in fairness, some of this may have been the work of their informants -- but in any case the Lomaxes did not help the problem). One should check all the Erie Canal songs for related stanzas.

It does appear that, of all the Erie Canal songs, this is the most amorphous. The Walton text (which may also be composite) has an eight-line chorus, starting with the "Haul in your bo'lin" chorus characteristic of this song, then tacking on the "For the Erie she's a-rising" chorus of "The E-ri-e."

The verses are also a mix: The crew thinks they've spotted a pirate in the fog; they hit a lump of coal; they end up in jail. I've tagged the song "humorous" mostly based on that wild text.

I really wish Walton had obtained a tune for his version. It must have been interesting.- RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
File: Wa035

Trip on the George C. Finney, A

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you bold sailors who follow the Lakes And in a canaller your living do make." The singer tells of sailing the Finney on the Great Lakes, starting in the Erie Canal and traveling up the Lakes to Chicago. Many ports are mentioned

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (collected from John S. Parsons by Walton)

KEYWORDS: sailor ship travel

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation): Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 124-125, "A Trip on the George C. Finney" (1 text)

Roud #19850

NOTES [99 words]: The notes to Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors think this is based on "Red Iron Ore," which it obviously resembled thematically. The difficulty is that its form is more typical of "The Dreadnought" [Laws D13]. Of course, Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors's version of "Red Iron Ore" seems to use the tune of "The Dreadnought." But at least one other Great Lakes version of "Red Iron Ore," Dean-FlyingCloud's, uses the Derry Down tune. So we have a complicated question of dependence here, which Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors ignore. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: WGM124

Trip on the Lavindy, A

DESCRIPTION: "Cone all you yoiung sailors and landlubbers too, An' listen to a song that I'll sing to you, It's about the Lavindy, the schooner of fame." The ship leaves Port Huron and heads for Mackinac. They cross the big lake (Superior) in record time

AUTHOR: probably J. Sylvester "Ves" Ray

EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (collected from "Ves" Ray by Walton)

KEYWORDS: sailor ship travel

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation): Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 139-142, "A Trip on the Lavindy" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #19858

NOTES [56 words]: Walton lists this as being sung to "The Cumberland Crew" [Laws A18]. However, it is not the tune I know for that song. Many "Cumberland Crew" versions are in minor, and use eight lines stanzas; "A Trip on the Lavindy" is in major, and the stanzas are four lines long. Metrically, it does match the first half of "The Cumberland Crew." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: WGM139

Trip on the Schooner Kolfage, A

DESCRIPTION: "We shipped aboard the Kolfage at Chatham, County Kent, The fourth day of October, for Johnson's Harbor bent. Commanded by MacDonald...." The Vick takes her onto the lake. They bump a sreamer, then win a race with it. The singers quit the ship.

AUTHOR: Jack MacCosh and Herb Pettigrew?
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (collected from John MacDonald b Walton)
KEYWORDS: ship sailor separation
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 147-149, "A Trip on the Schooner Kolfage" (1 text)

NOTES [64 words]: According to John "Red" MacDonald, his father Captain John MacDonald, when short-handed, had brought in the two untrained men, Jack MacCosh and Herb Pettigrew, to help man the Kolfage. They soon wanted out, but were not permitted to leave the ship until they composed this song. One wonders what they would have written had they not been trying to butter up Captain MacDonald. - RBW

File: WGM147

Trip Over the Mountain, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer comes to his girlfriend's door at midnight. He asks if she will come with him over the mountain. (After some hesitation,) she consents; they sneak off while her parents are still asleep. She never regrets her decision

AUTHOR: Hugh McWilliams (source: Moulden-McWilliams)
EARLIEST DATE: 1831 (according to Moulden-McWilliams)
KEYWORDS: courting elopement
FOUND IN: Ireland Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHennysSongsOfThePeople H61a+b, pp. 459-460, "I'm from over the Mountain" (1 text, 1 tune)
Tunney-WhereSongsDoThunder, pp. 27-28, "The Trip We Took Over the Mountain" (1 text)
Graham-Joe-Holmes-SongsMusicTraditionsOfAnUlsterman 74, "The Trip O'er the Mountain" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: John Moulden, Songs of Hugh McWilliams, Schoolmaster, 1831 (Portrush,1993), p. 9, "The Trip o'er the Mountain"

Roud #9632
RECORDINGS:
Jim Molloy, "Over the Mountain" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Ned Williams, "I Went To My Love's Window" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(2794), "The Truelover's Trip O'er the Mountain" ("One night as the moon illumined the sky"), H. Such (London),1863-1885; also Firth c.18(281), 2806 c.15(129), Harding B 19(92), 2806 b.9(262), "The Truelover's Trip O'er the Mountain"; Firth c.14(377), Harding B 17(319a), "Trip O'er the Mountain"

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Come With Me Over the Mountain

NOTES [156 words]: The Bodleian broadsides do not agree on some interesting details. She says, in considering elopement, that "it might be attended with danger": her friends or parents would frown. Then, what happened after the trip over the mountain to "the alter of Hymen"?
So now in contentment we spend the long day,
Tho' the anger of marriage was soon blown away,
We oftmes chat when we've little to say,
On the trip we took over the mountain. [Harding B 11(2794), Firth c.18(281), 2806 c.15(129), Harding B 19(92), 2806 b.9(262)] or
The danger of marriage was soon blown to an end,
And often times talk when with a friend. [Firth c.14(377)]
or
And the pleasure of it is not soon stole away; [Harding B 17(319a)] but
The anger of parents it soon wore away [Tunney-WhereSongsDoThunder]
Moulden-McWilliams' original has "the anger of marriage...." and, quoting a local source, speculate... without parental blessing...." - BS

Trip to the Grand Banks, A

DESCRIPTION: When spring comes, "The Penobscot boys are anxious their money for to earn." They set out for the Grand Banks and send out their dories. They persist through summer, despite bad conditions; at last they get to head for home.

AUTHOR: Amos Hanson ?

EARLIEST DATE: 1932

KEYWORDS: ship fishing work

FOUND IN: US(NE)

REFERENCES: (1 citation):
- Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 179-180, "A Trip to the Grand Banks" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
- Omar Blondahl, "Off to the Grand Banks" (on NFOBlondahl04)

NOTES: Blondahl04 has no liner notes confirming that this song was collected in Newfoundland. Barring another report for Newfoundland I do not assume it has been found there. There is no entry for "A Trip to the Grand Banks" in Newfoundland Songs and Ballads in Print 1842-1974 A Title and First-Line Index by Paul Mercer. - BS

File: Doe179

Triplett Tragedy, The

DESCRIPTION: On Christmas the Triplett brothers are drinking Marshall Triplett's wife tries to stop a fight, but Lum Triplett stabs him to death. Lum meets Marshall's son Gran and confesses. Gran beats him; he dies. Gran is sentenced to 18 months on the chain gang.

AUTHOR: Lyrics: Ed Miller/tune: traditional

EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (recorded by Sophronie Miller)

LONG DESCRIPTION: On Christmas the Triplett brothers are drinking together when a fight breaks out. Marshall Triplett's wife tries to stop them, but Lum Triplett stabs him to death. Lum goes away, intending to surrender, but he meets Marshall's son Gran, a deputy, and confesses the murder. Gran beats him severely and takes him to jail, where his injuries become inflamed and he dies. The brothers are buried together; Gran is arrested and sentenced to 18 months on the chain gang. Listeners are warned about the perils of drink.

KEYWORDS: fight violence abuse crime homicide law prison punishment revenge death drink brother family

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- Dec. 25, 1909: Marshall Triplett of Elk, NC is stabbed to death by his brother, Columbus (Lum) Triplett during a fight over whiskey. Lum attempts to surrender, but he meets Marshall's son Granville, a deputy; despite Lum's pleas for mercy and refusal to fight back, Granville beats and kicks him and takes him to the jail at Boone, where he dies, either as a result of his injuries or possibly from a heart attack.
- Mar. 20, 1910: After Sophronie Triplett, Lum's widow, testifies that her husband was subject to heart trouble, which might have caused his death rather than the beating, Granville Triplett is sentenced to 18 months on the chain gang; he seems to have served only 3 months of his sentence.

FOUND IN: US(SE)

RECORDINGS:
- Sophronie Miller, "The Triplett Tragedy" (on Watson01)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Claude Allen" (tune)

NOTES: The singer, Sophronie Miller, was the widow of Columbus Triplett; this is the only ballad of which I'm aware that was verifiably collected from one of the principals in the story it relates. - PJS
Tripping Over the Lea [Laws P19]
DESCRIPTION: The singer sees a pretty girl on a (May) morning. (Even though she is very young,) he seduces her, then tells her he has no interest in marriage. She is left alone to await the birth of her baby.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1839 (Scots Musical Museum)
KEYWORDS: seduction pregnancy abandonment age
FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Laws P19, "Tripping Over the Lea"
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H794, pp. 385-386, "Under the Shade of a Bonny Green Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 10, "The Bonny Green Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
McBride-FlowerOfDunaffHillAndMoreTradSongsInnishowen 12, "The Bonnie Green Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 69, "The Bonnie Green Tree" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT 501, AEMAYMRN
Roud #2512
RECORDINGS:
Louis Killen, "One May Morning" (on BirdBush2)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Willie Archer (The Banks of the Bann)" (plot)

Trois Graines de Peppernell
DESCRIPTION: "Mon pere, mon pere, vous me tenez dans votre bouche." French version of the "Singing Bone" motif. Two hungry children are sent by their parents to find food. The girl finds three grains; the boy drowns her and takes the seeds; the seeds reveal the truth
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Creighton-Journey)
KEYWORDS: death food brother sister foreignlanguage drowning recitation
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Helen Creighton, _A Folk Tale Journey through the Maritimes_, edited by Michael Taft and Ronald Caplan, Breton Books, 1993, pp. 140-142, "Thee Grains of Peppernell (Trois Graines de Peppernell)" (1 text, with a prose introduction to the three-verse recitation)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Twa Sisters" [Child 10] (plot)

Trois Marins de Groix, Les
DESCRIPTION: French. Forebitter. "Nus etions trois marins de Groix (x2), Embarques sur le Saint Francois." Three sailors from Groix sail on the Saint Francois for 45 francs a month and win with every meal. A sailor falls in the sea when a rope parts and is never found
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Hugill-SongsOfTheSea)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage sailor death money shanty
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, p. 47, "Les Trois Marins de Groix" (1 text, 1 tune)
Trois Mois d'Campagne (Three Months in the Country)
DESCRIPTION: French. Three months in the country, I'll never do more. My wife is drunk and I have more to drink. Chorus: "P'tits pois, p'tits pois fayot, c'est la musique, sique, sique, c'est la musique tchqu'emploi" meaning "Peas, bean peas, the music of work"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage drink food humorous nonballad
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peacock, p. 799, "Trois Mois d'Campagne" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Mme. Josephine Costard, "Trois Mois d'Campagne" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
File: Pea799

Trois Navires de Ble (Three Wheat Ships)
DESCRIPTION: French. Three wheat ships are blown to land. The youngest daughter of the king asks a sailor the price of wheat. She asks him to give up sailing and play here with her. She says she hears her children crying. He says she has no children yet.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage courting bargaining sea ship shore storm sailor food
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 111, "Trois Navires de Ble" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: LeBe111

Trolley, The
DESCRIPTION: "Heigh-ho, away we skim o'er the city's highways; Waking the quiet byways, clang goes the gong!" Everyone is happy on the trolley. It moves with "force vulcanic." A throng watches its progress. Everyone can take the trolley
AUTHOR: John S. Russ (source: Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends); reportedly written 1900
KEYWORDS: technology nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 459-460, "The Trolley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7745
File: KPL459

Trooper and Maid [Child 299]
DESCRIPTION: A trooper comes to a girl's door and convinces her to sleep with him. In the morning he is called to the colors; she follows and begs him to return or let her come with him. He will not let her come and will not promise to return
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Buchan)
KEYWORDS: courting soldier abandonment
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West,South),Scotland(Aber,Bord,High)) Ireland Canada US(Ap,MW,NE,SE,So)
REFERENCES (26 citations):
Child 299, "Trooper and Maid" (4 texts, 1 tune) {Bronson's #3}
Bronson 299, "Trooper and Maid" (27 versions)
Bronson-SingingTraditionOfChildsPopularBallads 299, "Trooper and Maid" (4 versions: #3, #12,#13, #17)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 45, "The Trooper and the Maid" (3 short texts, 3 tunes) {Bronson's #11, #12, #10}
Barry/Eckstorm/Smyth-BritishBalladsFromMaine pp. 371-373, "The Trooper and the Maid" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #14}
Randolph 41, "A Soldier Rode From the East to the West" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #8}
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 209-212, "A Soldier Rode" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Davis-TraditionalBalladsOfVirginia 51, "Trooper and Maid" (2 texts, 1 tune entitled "The Trooper and Maid") {Bronson's #16}
Davis-MoreTraditionalBalladsOfVirginia 46, pp. 356-360, "Trooper and Maid" (1 fragment, probably this but short enough that it might be something else)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 49, "Trooper and Maid" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 49, "Trooper and Maid" (1 fragment plus an excerpt, 1 tune)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 60, "The Soldier's Farewell" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 27, "Trooper and Maid" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #9}
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 102-103, "The Soldier and the Maid" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 684-686, "The Trooper and Maid" (1 text)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 10, "A Bold Dragoon" (1 text)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, pp. 22-23, "The Dragoon and the Maid" (1 slightly composite text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #}
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 121, "As I Roved Out" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan7 1470, "The Trooper and the Fair Maid" (5 texts, 3 tunes) {A=Bronson's #7, B=#2, C=#4}
Greig/Duncan8 1852, "I'm Nae Awa" (1 fragment)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 365-366, "The Trumpet Sounds at Burreldales; or, The Trooper and the Maid" (1 short text)
Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice #61, p. 224-225, "Three Stralion Dragoons (Trooper and Maid, Child 299)" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #26}
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 57-58, "The Trooper and the Maid" (1 text, 1 tune)
Niles-BalladBookOfJohnJacobNiles 65, "Trooper and Maid" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 161, "The Trooper And The Maid" (1 text)
DT 299, TROOPRMD (TROOPRM2*) LGHTDRAG
Roud #162
RECORDINGS:
Harry List, "The Light Drag'on" (on FSB02, FSB2CD)
Dillard Chandler, "The Soldier Traveling from the North" (on OldLove, DarkHoll)
Seamus Ennis, "As I Roved Out" (on FSB01) (on FSBFTX13)
Ewan MacColl and Peggy Seeger, "The Trooper and the Maid" (on SCMackSeeger01) {the text is Bronson's #18, but the tune is different}
Jimmy McBeath, "The Trooper and the Maid" (on FSB5 [as "The Trooper Lad"], FSBBAL2) {Bronson's #17}
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Love My Love (I) (As I Cam' Ower Yon High High Hill)" (lyrics)
cf. "Ung Sjoman Forlustar Sig, En (A Young Seaman Enjoys Himself)" (theme)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Trooper and the Maid
The Bugle Britches
The Bugle Boy
The Soldier and His Lady
The Soldier Travelling From the North
NOTES [220 words]: Randolph's are the first bawdy versions of the venerable ballad to see the light of print. - EC
Many versions of this have mixed with the "Seventeen Come Sunday" [Laws O17], the result may be known as "As I Roved Out" (so, e.g., the version in Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland), and you should probably check the references under both songs. It is often difficult to decide where to file such a piece (indeed, I managed to file the Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland text under both songs before finally deciding it belonged here). - RBW
Verse 3 of Child 299.B and verse 9 of Child 299.D is close to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 180, "Wine and cakes for gentlemen" (earliest date in Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes is 1898)
Child 299.D: "Bread and cheese for gentlemen, An corn and hay for horses, Pipes and tobacco for auld wives, And bonnie lads for lasses." [For this see also Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose
#173, p. 127, ("Cheese and bread for gentlemen") -- though they describe it as "a fragment of a harvest song." The Opies say Crofton had a Welsh equivalent but do not give any additional information. - RBW

Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 180: "Wine and cakes for gentlemen, Hay and corn for horses, A cup of ale for good old wives, And kisses for young lasses." - BS

Last updated in version 5.3
File: C299

Trooper and the Tailor, The DESCRIPTION: The trooper is away on duty, so his wife goes to bed with the tailor. When their business is done, they go to sleep. When the trooper shows up, the tailor hides in a cabinet. The chilly trooper wants to burn the cabinet, and finds the hidden tailor.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1889

KEYWORDS: infidelity husband wife soldier humorous hiding

FOUND IN: US(MA) Britain(England(South,Lond),Scotland(Aber)) Canada(Newf) Ireland

REFERENCES (12 citations):
- Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 139, "The Trooper and the Tailor" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Greig/Duncan7 1463, "The Bold Trooper" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
- Copper-SongsAndSouthernBreezes, pp. 270-271, "The Trooper" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 200, "The Game-Cock" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #105, "The Groggy Old Tailor" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster 45, "The Wee Croppy Tailor" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday 50, pp. 144-145,174-175, "The Wee Croppy Tailor" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Peacock, pp. 243-248, "The Bold Trooper" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
- Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 116, "Tiddy, the Tailor" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 96-97, "The Bold Trooper" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 86, "The Bold Trooper" (1 text)

DT, TRPRTAIL

Roud #311

RECORDINGS:
- Charlie Chettleburgh, "Game-Cock" (on FSBFTX19)
- Nora Cleary, "The Bold Trooper" (on Voice06)
- Harry Cox, "The Groggy Old Tailor" (on HCox01)
- Joshua Osborne, "The Bold Trooper" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, 2806 c.17(414), "Tailor and Trooper," unknown, n.d.

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Boatsman and the Chest" [Laws Q8] (plot) and references there

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Cropped Tailor

NOTES [111 words]: This and similar songs are sometimes traced back to a story in Boccaccio (seventh day, second story: Gianella, Peronella, and her husband). But the story is really one of the basic themes of folktale, and doubtless predates Boccaccio as well as these songs. - RBW

The Morton-FolksongsSungInUlster text ends when the trooper "caught hold of the tailor just by the two ears, And he clean cut them off with his own little shears...." That explains that text's title: "The Wee Croppy Tailor." Notes to IRClear01 give as one of the explanations of the politically charged term "Croppy," "the practice of punishing convicted felons by cutting off the tops of their ears." - BS

Last updated in version 4.3
File: FSC139

Trooper Cut Down in His Prime, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer sees a trooper "wrapped up in flannel yet colder than clay." He dies as "the bugles were playin'," and details of the burial are given. His gravestone warns, "Flash-girls of the city have quite ruined me."

AUTHOR: unknown
Trooper Watering His Nag, The

DESCRIPTION: Euphemistically, a man and a woman describe their sexual organs as a horse (pony) and a fountain. The horse drinks at the fountain, "An' I reckon you know what I mean."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1992 (Legman); the concept is found in 1707 (Pills to Purge Melancholy, v.iii p. 55, according to Farmer)

LONG DESCRIPTION: "There was an old woman lived under the hill, And it's green so green the leaves...." "It was a bold trooper rode up to the inn." He beds the woman's daughter. The girl, "fever in her belly," looks over his body and repeatedly asks "what is this here." The man and a woman describe their sexual organs as a horse (pony) and a fountain. The horse drinks at the fountain, "An' I reckon you know what I mean."

KEYWORDS: sex bawdy

FOUND IN: Canada Britain(England) US(MA,So)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 44-52, "The Trooper Watering His Nag" (9 texts, 2 tunes)
- Gilbert-LostChords, p. 71, "You Know Very Well What I Mean" (1 partial text)
- Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 60-61, "The Trooper's Horse" (1 text, 1 tune)
- DT, TROOPNAG* TRPHORSE*
- ADDITIONAL: Thomas d'Urfey, Wit and Mirth, or, Pills to Purge Melancholy (New York: Folklore Library Publishers, 1959 (facsimile reproduction of 1876 reprint of the 1719-1720 edition ("Digitized by Internet Archive"))), Vol V, pp. 13-14, "The Trooper Watering His Nagg" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Roud #1613

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- "The Shoemaker's Kiss" (chorus lyrics)
- "Ye Ken Pretty Well What I Mean, O" (lyrics, style)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- I Reckon You Know What I Mean
- Green Leaves So Green

NOTES [50 words]: I'm tempted to lump this with "Ye Ken Pretty Well What I Mean, O" -- the lyric and sly tone are obviously quite close. But Roud and Ben Schwartz both leave them separate, so I am very tentatively doing the same. But almost all authorities seem to confuse them somewhat; you had better see both songs. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: RL044
Trottin' Song

DESCRIPTION: First song: "Here me goes, here me goes, Going downtown to get my old shoes lined and bound. Old hare hip and old hare and old hare eat my turnip top." Second song: "Here me goes... Goin' down to grandpa's some grapes... and bring my pa two apples"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama)
KEYWORDS: food animal nonballad father clothes
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 35, "Trottin' Song [1]" and "Trottin' Song [2]" (2 short texts, 2 tunes)
Roud #16315

NOTES [60 words]: Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama reports these as two different songs -- and they do have different tunes, and even different time signatures. But they start with the same line, and have the same sort of feel; until and unless something shows up to distinguish them, I am lumping them. "Trotting" refers not to a means of locomotion but "trotting a baby to sleep." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2
File: Arno0035

Trotting Horse, The

DESCRIPTION: "I can sport as fine a trotting horse as any well in town." The singer declares that the animal can travel at fourteen miles per hour. He describes its intelligence and racing abilities, and says how quickly it can bring him home from far away

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1830 (broadside, Bodleian Firth c.19(78))
KEYWORDS: horse racing nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #69, "Trot Away" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland, pp. 244-245, "The Trotting Horse" (1 text)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 438-439, "The Trotting Horse" (1 text)

NOTES [129 words]: Bell attributes his text and the Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland text to W. H. Ainsworth. I assume this is Harrison Ainsworth, author of Rookwood, who also gave us the legend of Dick Turpin and Black Bess. Ainsworth did not create the song -- there are numerous broadside copies -- but I wouldn't trust Ainsworth's version very much as an example of the type; he would be too tempted to fiddle with it. - (BS), RBW

The broadsides are recognizably the same song but verses are omitted from some. There are a few lines notably different; for example, "She'll trot fifteen miles an hour I'll bet you a thousand pounds" vs. "To trot you 14 miles an hour I will bet you five to one." The Ainsworth-influenced text is closer to "the five to one" set. - BS

Last updated in version 4.2
File: BeCo438

Trouble for the Range Cook (The Chuck Wagon's Stuck)

DESCRIPTION: "Come wrangle your broncos and saddle them quick, For the chuck wagon's boggin' down there by the crick." The riders make every effort to free the wagon, for "There's nothing to eat when the chuck wagon's mired."
Trouble I've Had All My Day

DESCRIPTION: The singer complains that he has had "trouble all my days" and it will carry him to the grave. Mama warned him he'd have trouble where ever he'd go. His girl quits him. Police arrest him and he has no one to go his bail.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1963 (MJHurt04)
KEYWORDS: courting rejection prison nonballad lover police
FOUND IN:
RECORDINGS:
Mississippi John Hurt, "Trouble I've Had All My Day" (on MJHurt04)

File: RcTIHAMD

Trouble in Mind (I)

DESCRIPTION: "Troubled in mind, I'm blue, but I won't be blue always; The sun's gonna shine in my back do' some day." "I'm gonna lay my head on some lonesome railroad line...." "I love all you pretty women, I love you all the same...."

AUTHOR: Richard Jones
EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (copyright)
KEYWORDS: courting hardtimes floatingverses
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 313, "Troubled in Mind" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Bertha "Chippie" Hill, "Trouble in Mind" (OKeh 8312, 1926/Conqueror 8937, 1937; Vocalion 04379, 1938) (Circle J-1003, n.d.) (Vocalion 1248, 1929)
Roscoe Holcomb, "Trouble in Mind" (on Holcomb-Ward1, HolcombCD1, ClassOT)
Karl Jones, "Trouble in Mind" (Mercury 2002, 1945)
R. M. Jones: "Trouble in Mind" (Bluebird B-6569, 1936; Bluebird B-6963, 1937)
Leon's Lone Star Cowboys, "Trouble in Mind" (Decca 5340, 1937)
Jane Lucas [pseud. for Victoria Spivey] "Trouble in Mind" (Vocalion 03346, 1936)
Lucky Millinder & his Orch.; Rosetta Tharpe, vocalist, "Trouble in Mind" (Decca 48053, rec. 1941)
Jesse Rodgers, "Troubled in Mind and Blue" (Bluebird B-6924, 1937)
Georgia White, "Trouble in Mind" (Decca 7192, 1936), "Trouble in Mind Swing" (Decca 7521, 1938)
Bob Wills & his Texas Playboys, "Trouble in Mind" (Vocalion 03343, 1936; Columbia 20109, n.d.; Conqueror 9041, 1938; Columbia 37306, 1947)
SAME TUNE:
Jack & Leslie, "Trouble in Mind #3" (Decca 5561, 1938)
Shelton Brothers, "New Trouble in Mind" (Decca 5339, 1937)
Georgia White, "New Trouble in Mind" (Decca 7332, 1937)

File: LoF313

Trouble in My Way

DESCRIPTION: "Trouble is in my way I have to cry/mourn sometime, Jesus will take me by and by." "I've got a bleeding heart." "Blessed are the pure in heart." "The Holy Bible said it's true My God died for me and you," "If I walk right he will take me."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (recording, The Dixie Humming Birds)
KEYWORDS: Bible nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Roud #17293

RECORDINGS:
The Dixie Humming Birds, "Trouble in My Way" (Peacock 1705, 1952)
Peerless Four, "Trouble in My Way" (on LomaxCD1708)

NOTES [126 words]: At least one reference for "The Holy Bible said it's true My God died for me and you" is 2 Corinthians 5:14-15 (King James): "For the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then all were dead: And that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again."
- BS
Similarly Romans 6:10, "For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God" (KJV)/"The death he died, he died to sin, once for all; but the life he lives, he lives to God" (New Revised Standard Version). This is the basis of the doctrine of the Atonement, and is common both in the New Testament and in Christian theological writings. - RBW

Trouble O

DESCRIPTION: "Climbing up de mountain Creeping on me knee I was tryin' to see me Jesus To tell Him all my troubles ... Trouble oh The whole world in trouble"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Elder-FolkSongAndFolkLifeInCharlotteville)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: West Indies(Tobago)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Elder-FolkSongAndFolkLifeInCharlotteville, p. 54, "Trouble O" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: E1Ch054

Trouble of the World, The

DESCRIPTION: "I want to be my Father's children (x3), Roll, Jordan, roll." "Ah, say, ain't you done with the trouble of the world (x3), Roll, Jordan, roll." "I ask my father how long I held them (x3), held them to the end." "My sins are so heavy I can't get along...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad sin
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 8, "The Trouble of the World" (1 text, 1 tune plus a (partial?) variant)
Roud #11855
NOTES [31 words]: Allen, Ware, and Garrison admit that it is "impossible to represent in notes" the strange timing of this piece. I suspect it is sort of a patter song inspired by "Roll, Jordan, Roll." - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4
File: AWG008
Trouble Will Bury Me Down

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Why brother (sister)" "Poor me, poor me, Trouble will bury me down" (2x). Verse: Hallelujah once, hallelujah twice, Trouble..., The Lord is on the giving hand...." "Sometimes I think I'm ready to drop.... Thank the Lord I do not stop...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, p. 24, "Po Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: Bart024

Trouble, Trouble

DESCRIPTION: "Trouble, trouble, I had them all my day... Well, it seem like trouble go'n let me to my grave." The singer is going to the South where it is dry. He is in his cell and missing his Mamma. He works his team.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (collected from James Hale)
KEYWORDS: work hardtimes prison
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 352-354, "Trouble, Trouble" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #15598
File: LoSi352

Troubled In My Mind (I)

DESCRIPTION: "I'm troubled (x3) in my mind; If (trouble doesn't kill me, I'll live a long long time." Remainder is mostly floating verses: "My cheeks were as red as the red blooming rose." "I'll build me a cabin on the mountain so high." "I'm sad and I'm lonely."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: nonballad loneliness floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 102, "I'm Troubled" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, pp. 98-99, "I'm Troubled In Mind"
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 290, "Troubled in Mind" (2 texts); also 250, "The Wagoner's Lad" (3 texts plus 3 fragments; the texts "A"."C" are "The Wagoner's Lad," and "D" has an associated verse, but "E" and "F" are fragments of a love song, perhaps "Farewell, Charming Nancy" or "Omie Wise,," both of which have similar lyrics; "D" also shares this single verse, and "E" adds a "Troubled in Mind" chorus); also 443, "I Had a Banjo Made of Gold," a fragment of this song or something related
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 250, "The Wagoner's Lad" (6 tunes plus text excerpts, five of which are probably "The Wagoner's Lad" but the "Ef" tune is something else but has a chorus which might go here); 290, "Troubled in Mind" (2 tunes plus text excerpts)
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 173, "Trouble On Your Mind" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12091 and 14067
RECORDINGS:
Blue Sky Boys, "I'm Troubled, I'm Troubled" (Bluebird B-6538, 1936)
Rufus Crisp, "Trouble on my Mind" (on Crisp01)
Doc Watson & Arnold Watson, "I'm Troubled, I'm Troubled" (on Watson01)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I'm Sad and I'm Lonely" (floating verses)
cf. "Going Across the Sea" (floating verses)
cf. "I Wish That Girl Was Mine" (theme, floating lyrics)
NOTES [121 words]: Other than the tune, and perhaps the first verse, the Lomax text seems to be composed entirely of floating verses from songs such as "The Wagoner's Lad (On Top of Old
Troubled In My Mind (II)

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "I'm troubled (x3) in mind, If Jesus don't help me I surely will die." Verses: The singer asks Jesus for help in times of trouble. Jesus helped the singer to bear the "dark days of bondage"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Marsh)

KEYWORDS: hardtimes slavery nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE,So)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 236, "I'm Troubled in Mind" (1 text, 1 tune)
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 51, "I'm Troubled in Mind" (1 text)
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 171, "I'm Troubled" (1 short text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: J. B. T. Marsh, The Story of the Jubilee Singers (London: Hodder and Stoughton, 1903 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), #6 p. 164, "Children We Shall All Be Free" (1 text) (1 tune)

Roud #10971

NOTES [101 words]: Marsh: "The person who furnished this song (Mrs. Brown of Nashville, formerly a slave), stated that she first heard it from her father when she was a child."

Marsh/Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute and Work are close, in form, to Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 290A and the Blue Sky Boys recording of "Troubled in My Mind (I)"; "I'm troubled(x3) in mind, And if trouble don't kill me I'll live a long time." Marsh/Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute has a minor variant of the Blue Sky Boys' tune. - BS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: Dett236B

Troubles, The

DESCRIPTION: Orange and Green fight. "Corney" ended the terror; Humbert ended peace. "Orange for Croppies went grousing." "Paddies completely divided" let John Bull adopt Union: "I'll take from them Commons and Peers" leaving "shackles and chains to the slave"

AUTHOR: James Hope (?-1847) (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

EARLIEST DATE: 1887 (Madden's _Literary Remains of the United Irishmen of 1798_, according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

KEYWORDS: rebellion Ireland nonballad political

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May-June 1798 - Irish rebellion against British rule
June 1798-March 1801 - Cornwallis is Viceroy of Ireland after the uprising (source: "Charles Cornwallis" at the site of the Grand [Masonic] Lodge of British Columbia and Yukon)
August-September 1798 - A French force under General Jean-Joseph-Amable Humbert lands in Ireland and is defeated.
January 1801 - Act of Union of Ireland and Great Britain

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 148, "The Troubles" (1 text)

NOTES [549 words]: "This piece ... was written by Jemmy Hope, one of the Northern United Irish leaders. Hope survived the rising and died in 1847."

The ballad makes a hero of Cornwallis as viceroy and commander-in-chief sent to Ireland to keep the peace after the 1798 uprising. Then it blames the Orangemen for the revival of terror after Humbert's defeat. After discussing Union it retells Aesop's fable in which a fox [England] steals the prize [Ireland] for which a lion and bear [Orange and Green] fight. It ends with a sarcastic tribute to "our gracious good monarch ... And also our free Constitution, And shackles and chains to the slave." - BS

Lord Lieutenant Camden, who was in charge in Ireland when the 1798 rebellion started, had no idea what to do. The British came up with a typically bad compromise: They put the dreadful General Lake in charge of the army, but appointed Cornwallis to be Lord Lieutenant. Despite his failure in America (for which see "Lord Cornwallis's Surrender"), Cornwallis had done good service in the fifteen years prior to his appointment; he had spent six years in India, and had demonstrated (and would demonstrate again in Ireland) that he had none of the self-importance of the typical British politician (Pakenham, p. 263-264).

Cornwallis was clearly more humane than most of the alternatives. Fry/Fry, p. 206, write that "He overrode Lake: troops were certainly not to be let loose on the countryside and there would be no punishment without trial."

He also issued written pardons (called "Cornys") to rank and file rebels who surrendered quickly (Kee, p. 123).

When Humbert invaded, Cornwallis organized the pursuit that captured him (Fry/Fry, p. 207; Kee, p. 140).

Cornwallis and his secretary Lord Castlereigh also helped arrange the Act of Union, but this was based on Orders From On High. His personal feelings were very different: "I despise and hate myself for every hour engaging in such work" (Golway, p. 90; Kee, p. 159). But he and (especially) Castlereigh bought enough Irish peers to eventually pass Union (Fry/Fry, p. 211).

The religious conflicts in Ulster to which this song refers actually began even before 1798; see such songs about the Defenders, the Peep o' Day Boys, and the Orangemen as "The Noble Ribbon Boys," "Bold McDermott Roe," "The Boys of Wexford," and "Lisnagade."

Most of the sources I checked do not mention James Hope, but he is all over the pages of Smyth. He is said (p. 30) to have had only 15 weeks of formal schooling. In 1796, he travelled from Belfast to Dublin to spread the United Irish message (p. 152), and also visited Armagh, Monaghan, Cavan, and Leitrim (p.158) to bring the Defenders into the United framework. After the arrests of 1796-1797 he became one of the few remaining United Irish leaders coordinating the activities of the various local chapters (p. 160); perhaps his travels made him harder to catch. It appears that Smyth regards him as a radical inclined toward socialism (p. 165).

OxfordCompanion lists Hope's birth date as 1764, and says he wrote his memoirs in 1843; they were published in 1846. It does not know his death date; it appears that Moylan's date is a conjecture from the fact that Hope was still alive when the memoirs were published, but he made little further impression on history. - RBW

Bibliography

- Fry/Fry: Peter and Fiona Somerset Fry, A History of Ireland, 1988 (I use the 1993 Barnes & Noble edition)
- Golway: Terry Golway, For the Cause of Liberty, Simon & Schuster, 2000
- Kee: Robert Kee, The Most Distressful Country, being volume I of The Green Flag (covering the period prior to 1848), Penguin, 1972

Last updated in version 2.5
File: Moyl148

True American, The

DESCRIPTION: Vote for Pierce and King for President and Vice President and defeat Winfield Scott

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Thompson-APioneerSongster)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Winfield Scott is criticized for first opposing the vote for naturalized citizens
-- to gain votes -- and then supporting that vote to gain the Irish vote. "[W]e'll make the blue dome ring With shouts of joy and victory for gallant Pierce and King. Then to the breeze we'll fling The flag of Pierce and King"

KEYWORDS: nonballad political

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1852 - Presidential campaign. Franklin Pierce and William Rufus Devane King Democratic candidates for president and vice-president. The Whig candidates were Winfield Scott and William Alexander Graham. Pierce wins with 51% of the popular vote (to 44% for Scott and 5% for the Free Soil candidate) and 254 electoral votes to 42 for Scott. It is the last election in which the Whig party is a significant factor; in 1856, they will be replaced by the Republicans.

FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-APioneerSongster 62, "The True American" (1 text)
Roud #2833
File: TPS062

True Bottom'd Boxer, The

DESCRIPTION: Supposedly about a nineteenth century boxer, Tom Spring: "Spring's the boy for a Mousley-Hurst rig [fight], my lads, Shaking a flipper and milling a pate." In language non-boxers will find incomprehensible, the song praises Spring's abilities

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Finger-FrontierBallads)
KEYWORDS: fight nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Finger-FrontierBallads, pp. 50-51, "The True Bottom'd Boxer: (1 text)
Roud #8832
File: Fing050

True Friends and Relations of High and Low Stations

DESCRIPTION: "Now we're preparing for war we're declaring, I hear people say we'll have corpses this year." "the times they are awful the Irish unlawful." "this mean rotten super' that sent our five troopers to the gaol in Tralee."

AUTHOR: Sean O Tuama (Johnny Nora Aodha) (source: OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: war prison
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 189, "True Friends and Relations of High and Low Stations" (1 text)
Roud #16240
NOTES [43 words]: I have no idea what's going on here. Is this about a literal war? The first World War? The Irish Civil War? - BS
I would guess (wildly) the Boer War: A lot of Irish fought it, but Ireland was not in the political ferment that preceded the First World War. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.2
File: OCC189

True Love (I)

DESCRIPTION: "Tell me who's your true love. Fare ye well. Oh, tell me who's your true love. Fare ye well. She told me who's her true love. [Spoken: I didn't, didn't.] She told me who'se her true love. [I didn't didn't.] Let's stamp him down, let's stamp him down."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)
KEYWORDS: love dialog nonballad
True Love from the Eastern Shore

DESCRIPTION: Singer tells sweetheart who spurned him/her that s/he "would not serve you as you served me." Singer plans to mourn and weep, and tells sweetheart to grieve over his/her tombstone. (Singer vows to "court the girl, the old lady ain't in")

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1918 (Cecil Sharp collection)

KEYWORDS: courting rejection death mourning burial lover

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 187, "True Love from the Eastern Shore" (2 texts, 2 tunes)

Roud #3610

RECORDINGS:
Texas Gladden, "Love's Worse Than Sickness" (on USTGladden01 -- a fragment with some words similar to this)

NOTES [33 words]: Sharp's "A" version doesn't define the sex of the singer or sweetheart. The "B" version is a fragment, which doesn't really overlap the "A" version; Sharp may have been using this as a catchall. - PJS

Last updated in version 5.3

File: ShAp2187

True Lovers' Discussion (I), The

DESCRIPTION: The boy asks the girl why she has changed her mind about him. She explains. He offers counter-arguments, elaborately reasoned. They quarrel. He prepares to leave her. She grows sad and begs him to stay.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland); before 1900 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 19(102))

KEYWORDS: love courting rejection accusation

FOUND IN: Ireland Canada(Mar,Newf)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H164, pp. 362-364, "The True Lovers' Discussion" (1 text, 1 tune)
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 114, "One Pleasant Evening As Pinks and Daisies" (2 texts)
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 39B, "The True Lovers' Discoursion" (1 text, 1 tune)
Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi 96, "The True Lovers' Discussion" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 77-79, "The True Lover's Discussion" (1 text)
ST HHH164 (Partial)

Roud #2948

RECORDINGS:
Henry Campbell, "The True Lovers' Conversation" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
Robert Cinnamond, "The True-Lover's Discussion" (on IRRCinnamond02)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 19(102), "The True Lover's Discussion," J.F. Nugent & Co. (Dublin), 1850-1899; also 2806 b.9(228)[some words illegible], 2806 c.15(65), 2806 c.15(43)[many illegible words], [The] True Lover's Discussion

NOTES [291 words]: The notes to Sam Henry credit it to a "schoolteacher M'Kittrick," at a date before 1860, and it certainly seems likely enough that it is composed. But I cannot prove the
The notes to Henry/Huntington/Herrmann list several other versions of this song, so I suppose it must have had some oral currency. But I can't believe it really had much popularity (despite Sam Henry's claims that he had many requests). It is dense, talkative, repetitive, foolish, and long (18 8-line stanzas in the Henry text, 20 8-line stanzas in Creighton and in Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi). It is also much too fond of elaborate words to be a good folk song. I wonder if Henry wasn't confusing this with "Two Lovers Discoursing" [Laws O22] (a confusion Creighton also suffered; see Ben Schwartz's note); they share a title, and a theme, but the forms are utterly different. - RBW

Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick: "There must be some relation between 39A and B. The former seems to have originated with the folk and the latter to have been a literary composition taken over by the folk. They are placed together because of subject matter and also because singers give variants of the same title." If so they have grown so far apart that there is no hint in the words that they are related. For 39A see "Two Lovers Discoursing" [Laws O22]. On IRRCinnamond02, Cinnamond sings the first two and last verse [of "32"] that are very close to Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H164. He points out that the last verse claims "In Magheratimpan [near Ballynahinch], if you inquire, you will find the author of these simple lines"; that corresponds to the note in Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople about authorship. - BS

Last updated in version 4.5
File: HHH164

True Tale of Robin Hood, A [Child 154]

DESCRIPTION: The Earl of Huntington, incomparable archer, consumes his wealth and is outlawed due to indebtedness to an abbot. Renamed Robin Hood, he is cruel to clergy and kind to the poor. Several adventures and his death by bloodletting are recounted.

AUTHOR: Martin Parker

EARLIEST DATE: 1632 (Stationer's Register entry, which in this case we can be sure applies to this ballad)

KEYWORDS: Robinhood poverty outlaw clergy death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1198 - ninth year of Richard I, which the cover of the broadsheet reports as Robin's death date

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Child 154, "A True Tale of Robin Hood" (1 text)
Ritson-RobinHood, pp. 91-106, "A True Tale of Robin Hood" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: R. B. Dobson and J. Taylor, _Rymes of Robyn Hood: An Introduction to the English Outlaw_, University of Pittsburg Press, 1976, pp. 188-190, "A True Tale of Robin Hood" (1 excerpt, consisting of stanzas 1-5 and 104-120 plus postscript)
Stephen Knight and Thomas Ohlgren, editors, _Robin Hood and Other Outlaw Tales_, TEAMS (Consortium for the Teaching of the Middle Ages), Medieval Institute Publications, Western Michigan University, 2000, pp. 602-625, "A True Tale of Robin Hood" (1 text, based primarily on the Bodleian broadside of c. 1632)
Roud #3996

NOTES [458 words]: For background on the Robin Hood legend, see the notes on "A Gest of Robyn Hode" [Child 117]. Child would later write that he should have made "The Tale of Robin Hood" (which is presumably this) "an appendix and not given it a number" (Brown, p. 125). This would have been a good idea, since it is not traditional and not very valuable.

The Martin Parker who wrote this also, somewhat later, wrote "When the King Enjoys His Own Again" (1643). The latter was a better piece, but that's only because this is both banal in content and dreadful in form. Parker also wrote about King Arthur and Saint George, no doubt with equal (lack of) insight, and has a few other possible index. It is ironic that his tale provides a great mass of circumstantial detail about Robin Hood-- but circumstantial detail based on late sources or pure imagination.

The publisher's blurb on this promises "Truth purged from falsehood." I suppose that's true: Parker took every old, valuable, true element of the Robin Hood legend, and purged it, leaving all the falsehood to be read by gullible buyers. (Dobson/Taylor, p. 187, suggest that the "True Tale" contains allusions to lost Robin Hood tales. This is possible, but I see no reason to believe the material they are considering to be anything other than Parker's own creations. It seems nearly certain, e.g., that the anti-clericalism of the "True Tale" -- which is even more extreme than, say, that in the "Gest" -- reflects the Protestantism of Parker's time, not something he took from his sources. Note, for instance, that Robin is bled to death by a friar, not -- as in the "Gest" and "Robin Hood's Death" [Child 120] by the Priess of Kirklees.)
Parker is thought to have been born around 1600 and died around 1656, with A History of that Joseph Ritson called him a "Grub-street scribbler and great Ballad monger of Charles the Firsts time" (Ancient Songs and Ballads, notes to "John and Joan; or, A Mad Couple Well Met," p. 372 in the Singing Tree Press edition.)
Those interested in Parker should probably see the article "Martin Parker, Ballad-Monger," by H. E.
Rollins, published in Modern Philology XVI, 1919 (citation from Dobson/Taylor).
Rollins, p. 199, #2308, cites as a version of this piece the "Robin Hood" registered by Richard Cotes on November 9, 1633. More clearly this is p. 237, #2742, "a True tale of Robyn Hood or a breife touch of the life and deth of that renowned outlaw Roberte Earle of Huntington &c by M: P:" -- registered February 29, 1632 by Francis Grove. This was printed by T. Cotes on behalf of Grove, and apparently published as "A True Tale of Robbin"; see STC, p. 441, #19275. - RBW
Bibliography

- Brown: Mary Ellen Brown, Child's Unfinished Masterpiece: The English and Scottish Popular Ballads, University of Illinois Press, 2011
- Dobson/Taylor: R. B. Dobson and J. Taylor, Rymes of Robyn Hood: An Introduction to the English Outlaw, University of Pittsburg Press, 1976
- NewCentury: Clarence L. Barnhart with William D. Haley, editors, The New Century
- Rollins: Hyder E. Rollins, An Analytical Index to the Ballad-Entries (1557-1709) In the Register of the Company of Stationers of London, 1924 (I use the 1967 Tradition Press reprint with a new Foreword by Leslie Shepard) England, Scotland & Ireland And of English Books Printed Abroad 1475-1640, The Bibliographical Society [of London], 1963

Last updated in version 5.3
File: C154

True-Born Irish Man (With My Swag All on My Shoulder; The True-Born Native Man)

DESCRIPTION: The singer arrives in (Australia/Philadelphia) from Ireland and sets out to ramble.
The girls rejoice at his presence. (A tavern-keeper's daughter) is scolded by her mother for wanting to follow him. She is determined to do so anyway
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1837 (Leander R. Miller manuscript; see NOTES)
KEYWORDS: rambling emigration mother courting
FOUND IN: Australia US(MA,MW,So) Ireland Canada(Mar,Ont)
Britain(England(Lond,South),Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (25 citations):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 62, 122, "Dennis O'Reilly"; p. 138, "Tramp the Bushes of Australia" (3 texts, 3 tunes) Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 112-114, "With My Swag All on My Shoulder" (1 text, 1 verse)
Ward-PenguinBookOfAustralianBallads, pp. 68-69, "Like a True-born Native Man" (1 text)
Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads, p. 18, "Dennis O'Reilly" (1 text)
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 126, "The Roving Irishman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bethke-AdirondackVoices, p. 97, "The Roving Ashlaw Man" (1 text, 1 tune, heavily localized); pp.
134-135, "The Roving Cunningham" (1 text, 1 tune, which Roud files with #498, "The Roving Gambler (The Gambling Man)" [Laws H4], but while the first two lines resemble that song, the rest seems to be more like this)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 124-125, "The Roving Irishman" (1 text) Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 48, "The Roving Irishman" (1 text, 1 tune, Rickaby's transcription of Dean)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 39-40, "The Roving Gambler"; "The Gamboling Man"; "The Roving Journeyman" (3 texts, 1 tune; the first two are "The Roving Gambler," but "The Roving Journeyman" is a short form of this piece)
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 76-77, "Denis O'Reilly" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fahey-PintPotAndBilly, pp. 16-17, "Denis O'Reilly" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan71397, "Scrogie's Bell" (1 fragment)
Reeves/Sharp-ThelidiomOfThePeople84, "The Roving Journeyman" (1 text)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland353, "The Roving Journeyman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSROMI696, "Roving Navigator" (1 text)
Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, pp. 36-37, "With My Swag All on My Shoulder (Denis O'Reilly)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Paterson/Fahey/Seal-OldBushSongs-CentenaryEdition, pp. 125-127, "With My Swag All On My Shoulder" (1 text)
Smith/Hatt/Fowke-SeaSongsBalladFromNineteenthCenturyNovaScotia, pp. 86-88, "The Rambling Irishman" (1 text)
Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick15, "The Roving Journeyman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke-TraditionalSingersAndSongsFromOntario37, "The Rambling Irishman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2040, p. 137, "The Roving Journeyman" (1 reference)
DT, DENNOREI* ROVJOURN*
ADDITIONAL: Roger Elbourne, Music and Tradition in Early Industrial Lancashire 1780-1840 (Totowa, 1980), p. 74, "The Roving Journeyman" (1 fragment)
Bill Wannan, _The Australians: Yarns, ballads and legends of the Australian tradition_, 1954 (page references are to the 1988 Penguin edition), pp. 166, "The Diggers" (1 excerpt)
Bill Beatty, _A Treasury of Australian Folk Tales & Traditions_, 1960 (I use the 1969 Walkabout Paperbacks edition), p. 307, "The Diggers" (1 short text)
ST MA062 (Partial)
Roud #360 and 676
RECORDINGS:
Paddy Doran, "The Roving Journeyman" (on FSB3)
Tom Willett, "The Roaming Journeyman" (on Voice20)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(3353), "Roving Journeyman," J. Catnach (London), 1813-1838; also Harding B 11(1229), Harding B 11(1479), Johnson Ballads 2807, Harding B 11(3354), Harding B 11(3355), 2806 b.11(33), Firth c.18(249), Harding B 11(3352), Harding B 11(804), 2806 d.31(40), Harding B 11(1228), 2806 b.11(203), Firth c.26(218), Harding B 25(1671), "[The] Roving Journeyman"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Union Boy" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Neuve Chappelle" (tune, form)
SAME TUNE:
Neuve Chappelle (File: HHH526)
NOTES [1268 words]: The popular version of this piece, "With My Swag All on My Shoulder," is by A.B. "Banjo" Paterson, but the song appears to be older. Perhaps more characteristic than any particular plot is the second half of the first verse, which often becomes a chorus:
With my (swag/bundle) on my shoulder,
My (stick/billy) in my hand,
I'll travel round (the country/Australia/etc.)
(Like/I'm) a (true-born Irishman/true-born native man/roving journeyman).
What appears to be the earliest datable version of this is the text found in the Supplemental Tradition, dated 1837 and supplied to us by John Aldrich. It was written out, according to its colophon, on January 31, 1837 by Leander R. Miller. Aldrich supplied this information about Miller: Leander R. Miller was born in Cumberland, Rhode Island on June 22, 1818 and died March 16, 1842. He did not marry. He is buried at the Elder Ballou Meeting House Cemetery in Cumberland.
He was the fifth child of ten children of Jonathan and Polly (Ballou) Miller of Cumberland. His father Jonathan was a farmer and boat builder and is the son of William Miller. His mother Polly is daughter of Oliver Ballou. One of his brothers is the Hon. Edwin Ballou Miller who was a very successful businessman, real estate developer and member of the General Assembly of Rhode Island in 1888.
Oliver Ballou is the son of Noah Ballou Sr. who is a descendent of Maturin Ballou. Maturin Ballou is the first Ballou to have immigrated to New England around 1640. Oliver Ballou and son Dexter Ballou (younger brother of Polly and uncle to Leander) were honored as very successful pioneers of the cotton spinning mill industry in Woonsocket Falls.

Noah Ballou Jr. was another son of Noah Ballou Sr. and was the brother of Oliver (uncle to Polly and great uncle to Leander). At the age of 16, Noah volunteered in the Continental army just after the battle of Bunker Hill and rose to be sergeant with Gen. Greene. Later, Noah was a proprietor of a store/livery stable where he sold molasses, rum, lumber, tobacco, coffee, salt, sugar, chocolate, and other items and he rented out his horse, oxen, wagon and sleigh. Noah Ballou kept a ledger that documented the sale of each item and the amount owed by each customer. The name of the customer was at the top of each page (a separate page for each customer) and a list of items purchased or rented was documented in this ledger and noted when payment was met. Customers included Oliver Capron, William Eddy, Ariel Cook and Jonathon Miller (I believe to be the father of Leander). The ledger is dated from 1806 to 1817. It is believed that this ledger was passed down through the family, to Noah's brother Oliver and then to his daughter Polly. It is here where it is believed that the children of Jonathan and Polly Miller wrote in the empty pages and spaces of this ledger some thirty years later. Writings include "The Voice of Her I Love," "The Prentice Boy," "The Hazel Dell," "The Lake of the Dismal Swamp" and what is believed to be the original writing of "Roving Irishman" dated and signed January 31, 1837 by Leander R. Miller.

This ledger continued to be passed down through the generations into my possession since I am a descendent of Jonathan and Polly (Ballou) Miller.

Is it possible, as Aldrich contends, that this 1837 text is the original of this well-known song? The song is known in the U.S., including in the northeastern part of the country, and the Miller text is clearly localized to Philadelphia and Pennsylvania -- not just by the mention of Philadelphia but also by the mention of the Pennsylvania Dutch.

Miller's is not only the earliest text, it appears to be the only non-broadside text from before about 1880. And it precedes what appears to be the earliest American broadside by at least sixteen years.

On the other hand, although the song is known in the U.S., it is much more widely known in Britain and Ireland, which makes it more likely that it originated there.

And then there are the British broadsides. The Bodleian collection contains two copies of a broadside of this piece printed by James Catnach -- Harding B 11(3353) and Harding B 11(3355). It has one by J. Pitts -- Harding B 11(1229). Catnach was active 1813-1838; Pitts was active 1819-1844. Thus, although we cannot absolutely date their broadsides, in terms of time, 92% of Catnach's period of activity preceded the Miller copy, and 72% of Pitts's active period. Also, the Catnach and Pitts versions are much longer than Miller's and set in Carlow, implying that there must have been some sort of rewriting between the Catnach and Miller text (although we of course cannot know who did the rewriting).

Sadly, the scans of the broadsides on the Bodleian site are not good enough to reveal watermarks in the broadside paper, so we have little evidence to date the prints within Catnach's and Pitts's active periods. However, Steve Roud tells me that that a catalog of Catnach's publications from 1832 includes the song. Thus, although we cannot prove that the Bodleian broadside predates the Miller text (because broadside printers sometimes reprinted their texts), we can say with certainty that Catnach had printed the song before the Miller copy was transcribed.

It should also be kept in mind that, until the mid-twentieth century and the creation of the songwriting-industrial complex, to "write" a song usually meant to "copy" or "transcribe" it, not "compose" it -- and the Miller text as written has in any event no tune.

Nonetheless the Miller text remains the earliest American version, and is very interesting as an example of how a song could be rewritten. - RBW

The Elbourne fragment is from a weaver version of "The Roving Jouneyman."

The Greig/Duncan7 fragment is from a navvy version of "The Roving Journeyman." It is tempting to make this a separate version on the assumption that navvies modified the more common song for their own use, but the songs are too close to support the split. The fragment begins "I hadna been in Huntly toun a week but barely three"; the Great North of Scotland Railway (GNSR) came to Huntly around 1853 (source: "Great North of Scotland Railway" at the Steam Index [British Steam Locomotive History] site). This passage illustrates the other -- besides the "navvy" reference -- difference between the navvy version and the more common "Roving Irishman" texts: in these the singer roves in Scotland or England (see "The Navvie Man," Sam Richards and Tish Stubbs, The English Folksinger (Glasgow, 1979), p. 111, and the EFDS LP sited below) or Scotland (Greig/Duncan7), rather than Pennsylvania or Australia.

Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland, on page 801 note to Kennedy-
Trundle Bed
DESCRIPTION: "As I rummaged through the attic, List'ning to the falling rain," the singer sees the trundle bed in the corner. It reminds him of his mother's singing, and the prayers she said for him. She is long dead, but her memory still inspires his faith
AUTHOR: J. C. Baker
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart-Songs)
KEYWORDS: mother death
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Heart-Songs, pp. 234-235, "My Trundle-Bed" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #15496
File: HeSo234

Trusty
DESCRIPTION: Trusty, a mastiff, bites a boy. The boy's mother hires an assassin to take revenge. The dog is shot to death[?]. Mother regrets her action: "at even when I'm wakin' and weary Oh wha will bark an keep me cheery"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)
LONG DESCRIPTION: "There was a tyke, a tyke o' fame An Trusty was the doggie's name." Trusty bites a boy whose mother takes the boy to a doctor. Expecting her son to die she wants "the venimous beast" killed. She takes her complaint to a judge who claims that, with the law as it stands, "nae judge nor jury upon earth Can gar the doggie gie his aith." Mother hires a lad who "laid the doggie fairly deed" "wi' a round spouter." The deed done, she repents and mourns the murder. "Tho' baith [mother and son] were deid, there's nae great scaith The dog was better than them baith." [The story ends here but we were promised at the beginning that Trusty's "coat o' guid black hair ... His coat o' mail, it did him save"]
KEYWORDS: revenge death humorous dog mother doctor judge
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 496, "Trusty" (1 text)
Roud #5981
File: GrD3496

Trusty Lariat, The (The Cowboy Fireman)
DESCRIPTION: An ex-cowboy, now a railway fireman, sees a child on the track. He throws his lariat around a pole, ties the end to the smokestack. The train is jerked off the track, crushing him. "He killed two hundred passengers/But, thank God, he saved that child"
AUTHOR: Attributed to Harry "Mac" McClintock
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Harry "Mac" McClintock)
LONG DESCRIPTION: A former cowboy is working as a railway fireman because the pay is better.
He sees a child on the track ahead. With great presence of mind he throws his trusty lariat around a pole, then fastens the other end to the smokestack. The train is jerked off the track and crashes, crushing the fireman. He is deeply mourned: "He killed two hundred passengers/But, thank God, he saved that child"

KEYWORDS: train rescue death railroading work crash disaster wreck humorous talltale children cowboy

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- DT, COWFIRE
- _Sing Out_ magazine, Volume 29, #4 (1983), p. 33, "The Trusty Lariat" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
- Radio Mac [pseud. for Harry McClintock], "The Trusty Lariat" (Victor V-40234, 1930)

NOTES [22 words]: Unless I miss my guess, McClintock was parodying the 1874 song "Saved From Death" by George William Hersee and J. W. Bischoff. - PJS

Truth Sent From Above, The

DESCRIPTION: "This is the truth sent from above, The truth of God, the God of love." The singer tells how God created man, then woman, and set them in Paradise. But they ate from the tree (of knowledge), and now all suffer their punishment

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Leather-FolkLoreOfHerefordshire)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Leather-FolkLoreOfHerefordshire, p. 196, "The Truth Sent From Above" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Dearmer/VaughnWilliams/Shaw-OxfordBookOfCarols 68, "The Truth From Above" (1 text, 1 tune with two arrangements)
- DT, TRUABOVE*

ADDITIONAL: Ian Bradley, _The Penguin Book of Carols_ (1999), #86, "This Is the Truth Sent From Above" (1 text)

Roud #2109

NOTES [32 words]: The story of the Fall is, of course, found in Genesis chapter 3. The version of creation in which man preceded woman (as opposed to both being created at the same time) is in Genesis 2:4-23. - RBW

Truth Twice Told, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all young men and maidens... I will tell you what you are doing, now at this present time." The young folk are treating their parents with disrespect; they are condemned for failing to work

AUTHOR: James W. Day ("Jilson Setters")

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 187-188, "The Truth Twice Told" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Putting On the Style" (theme)

NOTES [34 words]: Setters claimed that this excrescence "has set many a giddy one to studyin' and they mended their ways." Wishful thinking, I suspect. The result looks like a bad knock-off on "Putting on the Style." - RBW

File: ThBa187
Truxton's Victory

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you Yankee sailors With swords and pikes advance"; the "Brave Yankee Boys" are urged to battle against France. Truxton with the Constellation defeat l'Insurjente and haul her into St.Kitts. The singer toasts Truxton

AUTHOR: Credited to "Mrs. Rowson of Boston"

EARLIEST DATE: 1799 (printed by Thomas & Andrews)

KEYWORDS: ship battle

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Feb 9, 1799 - Battle between the Constellation and L'Insurjente

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 153, "Truxton's Victory" (1 text, a copy of the original broadside)

NOTES [1447 words]: Obviously not a traditional song, but The Boarding Party recording may have made it well-known enough to deserve documentation. Thanks to Dolores Nichols for digging up the source.

Dichter/Shapiro, p. 25, lists details about the original publication. It was published by Thomas & Andrews of Boston in 1799, and sold for a rather excessive 25 cents. The music is titled "Truxton's Victory. A Naval Patriotic Song. Sung by Mr. Hodgkinson. Written by Mrs. Rowson of Boston."
The setting is during the Quasi-War with France. France, still lurching back and forth politically in the aftermath of the revolution, with Napoleon gradually gaining power, had little respect for neutral rights, especially when the neutrals were trading with Britain. This naturally incensed the Americans. In November 1796, France suspended diplomatic relations. Soon after, they rejected the credentials of new ambassador Charles C. Pinckney. In May 1797, president John Adams appoints a commission (Pinckney, John Marshall, and Elbridge Gerry) to try to smooth things out. At the end of the month, the U. S. government reports 300 ships taken by the French.

On October 18, the American commissioners suffer the humiliation of the "XYZ affair" -- three nameless Frenchmen who demand a "loan" (read: tribute) from the Americans plus a large bribe to French foreign minister Tallyrand (Jameson, pp. 728-729; Morison, pp. 349-350). This was not as unreasonable a demand as some would declare it -- the Americans were paying bribes to the Barbary States at this time; the French could see no reason they shouldn't get a share of the loot. But the United States was also, for the first time, building a genuine (if small) navy. Pinckney allegedly told the French, "Millions for defence, but not one cent for tribute."

On May 28, 1798, Congress authorized the Navy to go after French vessels engaged in commerce-raiding. On July 7, Congress formally abrogated the treaty of alliance that went back to the Revolution. As Bryant puts it on, p. 124, "The two republics were now thoroughly enmeshed in an undeclared war in the best monarchist manner."
The American navy was small, but the quality was very high. Designed Joshua Humphries, knowing that only a handful of ships would be available, created a new class of super-frigates -- rather comparable to the battle cruisers of a century later: Fast enough to outrun any line-of-battle ship, heavy enough to destroy any ordinary frigate. (It tells you a good bit about naval thinking that the American frigates were considered excellent, but the battle cruiser was quickly discarded. The reason for the failure of the latter was more bad tactics than anything else.)

In the end, six ships were built -- United States, Constitution, Constellation, President, Congress, and Chesapeake -- of which only the first three were ready for war. The Constellation (called the "Yankee Race Horse") was the first to see action. She met the French L'Insurjente, reportedly the fastest sailing frigate in the world (Pratt, p. 61), but in terms of broadside just an ordinary frigate with a weight of broadside only about three-fourths that of the Constellation, in the Carribean. The French ship was badly under-manned, and her captain Barreault was not aware he was at war with the United States. She was flying an American flag, but an exchange of signals showed she was not an American ship. The Constellation closed in for the kill, much as described in this song; between the American ship's higher quality and her fuller crew, there wasn't much doubt about the outcome (though no one in Europe yet realized how strong the new American frigates were; this would not become clear until 1812 and the Constitution/Guerriere battle). Pratt, p. 61, reports that Truxton had only three casualties, compared to seventy on the French ship.
The result was a sensation. There had been sea battles in the Revolutionary War, but the American ships were almost all privateers or purchased in Europe. This was the first battle ever fought by an American "regular navy" ship.

It was also the highlight of the Constellation's career. She would fight one more battle in the Quasi-War: On February 1, 1800, she would meet the Vengeance, a much heavier ship than the L’Insurgente though slower than the Constellation. Constellation could be considered the tactical victor, killing about 50 and wounding over 100 men on the French ship, which barely stayed afloat and had lost two of three masts (Pratt, p. 62). But the Constellation lost 25 killed and 14 wounded (a strange ratio, that), and lost her mainmast; Vengeance escaped, making the battle a strategic draw. Captain Thomas Truxton would be awarded a gold medal anyway. (Bryant, p. 130).

Peace with France was concluded two days later. It would be a while before the ships at sea knew it, of course, but the Constellation's part was finished. She would serve for a while in the contest with the Barbary pirates, without any major engagements, and spent almost the entire War of 1812 blockaded in her home port of Norfolk (see Borneman, p. 175; Mahon, p. 122). Thus Truxton was the only commander to lead her in a real battle.

In 1854, the Constellation was broken up. Much of the surviving wood was used to make a new Constellation, and this is often listed as the same ship. This was a fairly common trick for the U. S. Navy in the nineteenth century: Congress didn’t like new defence spending, but would pay to maintain old ships, so the Navy would request money for repairs, then build a new ship with the money plus some timber from the old. But the new Constellation was 12 feet longer than the old, and her hold was half again as deep (19.3 feet for the new, 13.5 feet for the old); it was clearly a new ship. (Sez I. This apparently caused quite a literature to spring up; Paine, p. 120, lists five writings on this subject).

This wasn't her only major rebuild. Chapelle, pp. 91-92, writes, "The Constellation had a long and distinguished career and is still afloat, though it must be admitted that there is little or nothing of the original ship left. She has been completely rebuilt a number of times, from the keel up, as in 1805-1812 when the was widened 14 inches and again in 1854 when she was lengthened and cut down one deck, each time her lines being altered to some extent."

Thomas Truxton himself (1755-1822) was probably the most important American naval figure between John Paul Jones and Stephen Decatur; according to Pratt p. 58, he was "the real prize drawn by the nascent navy... its fifth-ranking captain..." He had served on various privateers in the Revolutionary War (he was a lieutenant in the Congress in 1776, commanded the Independence in 1777, then took charge of the St. James from 1781). He became a regular navy captain from 1794, and acted as commodore during the Quasi-War. According to Pratt, "even before putting to sea, [he] drew up a long series of letters to his officers and petty officers laying down the duties of each in the most minute manner, which letter would be the foundation of definitive navy regulations."

He was also a firm disciplinarian. Pratt describes, e.g., how when a water cask sprung a leak, he put his entire crew on reduced water rations until discipline met his standards (p. 58) -- though he thought it better to set an example than use the lash (according to Guttridge, p. 87, he once said, "Discipline is to be effected by a particular deportment much easier than great severity"). His strict methods also caused at least two of his officers to resign (Pratt, p. 59).

He himself ended up resigning early in the nineteenth century in a dispute over authority: Instructed to lead the assault against the Barbary Pirates, he was not promoted to (rear) admiral (the navy did not officially establish ranks above Captain until the Civil War), and so would be simply senior captain commanding the squadron, and still responsible for his own ship. This apparently caused him to quit in a fit of pique (Pratt, p. 65).

There is at least one fairly recent biography, Eugene S. Ferguson, Truxton of the Constellation, The Life of Commodore Thomas Truxton, U. S. Navy, 1755-1822. A World War I-era destroyer was named after Truxton, according to Parkin, p. 7. Launched on September 20, 1920, she was "sponsored" by Isabelle Truxton Brumbly, Thomas Truxton's great-great-granddaughter. She was wrecked on the coast of Newfoundland on February 18, 1942 (Parkin, pp. 14-15); Parkin considers her to have been the second United States destroyer lost in the second world war (following her sister ship the Reuben James). - RBW

Bibliography

- Mahon: John K. Mahon,The War of 1812, 1972 (I used the undated Da Capo paperback edition)
Trying to Make a Hundred

DESCRIPTION: "I'm singing, Trying to make a hundred, Ninety-nine and a half won't do." "I'm mourning, trying to make a hundred." "I'm praying, trying to make a hundred." "Ninety-nine and a half, it won't do, it just won't do, It's an uphill journey....."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, "Tryin' to Make a Hundred" (1 text)
Roud #18147
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Ninety-Nine and a Half
NOTES [70 words]: I've heard several versions of this song, but to date, I've never heard an explanation of what is so special about one hundred, as opposed to six, or 433, or 1281. Nor do the versions say what the singer is trying to make a hundred OF. Percent, maybe? I strongly doubt the person who came up with this song knew what percentage was. So it's a very curious song -- at least to me as a person with mathematical training. - RBW

Tseit Kotst Immer Op, De

DESCRIPTION: Pennsylvania Dutch. "De tseit kotst i,mer op (x2), De tseit, de tseit kotst immer op." "Nuch Nei Yaroosalem" "Gutt visht de traina op." "My time is growing short." "To New Jerusalem." "God takes our tears away."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (Leach & Glassie)
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage religious travel nonballad death
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):

Tsimshian Song of Welcome to a Chief, A

DESCRIPTION: "Ee-ya-ho-ho ee-ya-heh-eh (x2), Ee-eh-yah-ha-ha ha hee-yah-heh (x2), Ee-yah-ah-ah-ee-ya-heh! Soo-wa-deh-es Gi-da-ra-nit-zeh! (x2)...." "Now we hail or great chieftain! We hail, we hail our noble chief, We welcome him... From the people of Gidaranitzeh!"

AUTHOR: unknown (English translation by Alan Mills)
EARLIEST DATE: 1951
KEYWORDS: Indians(Am.) nonballad foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: Canada(West)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke/Mills/Blume-CanadasStoryInSong, pp. 6-7, "A Tsimshian Song of Welcome to a Chief" (1
Tuapeka Gold

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas in the year of sixty-two as near as I can guess, I left my dear old hometown in trouble and distress." No one at home wanted him. He goes to the Tuapeka goldfields and strikes it rich. Now everyone wants to be friends, but he knows better

AUTHOR: Phil Garland

EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry)

KEYWORDS: gold home rejection return

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 50, "Tuapeka Gold" (1 text, 1 tune) (p. 28 in the 1972 edition)

RECORDINGS:
Dave Calder, "Tuapeka Gold" (on NZSongYngCntry)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Wild Rover No More" (plot)

NOTES [62 words]: This looks to me like a New Zealand rewrite of "Wild Rover No More": just as in that song, the singer faced rejection, then got rich and finds doors opening for him. Phil Garland wrote at least one other song modifying a traditional type in this way; "The Banks of the Waikato" is a "Men's Clothing I'll Put On" type of song adapted to New Zealand hunting conditions. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.4

File: Col028

Tugal McTagger

DESCRIPTION: "Would you'll know me, my name is Tugal McTagger, She'll brought hersel' down frae the braes o' Lochaber." The Gaelic-speaking girl tries to adapt to Lowland life and business. Unable to handle the life, she ends up bankrupt (and returns to her old home?)

AUTHOR: Dougal Graham ?

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Ford); alleged author Graham died 1779

KEYWORDS: commerce work poverty trial humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 252-254, "Tugal M'Tagger" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13092

File: FVS252

Tullahoma Laundry Blues

DESCRIPTION: "We all live in and around Tullahoma... We work in the laundry with the rest of the trash, As we are called, you know." The singer works long hours for low pay. She never has any money. Osborn (the boss?) is unfair. The singer hopes for a better afterlife

AUTHOR: Lily Bell Whipple?

EARLIEST DATE: 1997 (Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee); probably collected c. 1950 from Lily Bell Wipple

KEYWORDS: hardtimes work

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee 65, pp. 106-107, "Tullahoma Laundry Blues" (1 text, listed as a song although no tune is given)
Roud #11033

File: BoWo075
Tullochgorum

DESCRIPTION: "Come gie's a song, Montgomery cried, An' lay your disputes ' aside." The singer asks, "Let Whig and Tory all agree," and asks that all dance "The reel of Tullochgorum." Those who disagree are wished "dule and sorrow."

AUTHOR: Words: John Skinner / Music: "The Reel of Tullochgorum" (source: Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice)

EARLIEST DATE: 1776 (broadside, according to Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice)

KEYWORDS: political nonballad dancing

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice #23, pp. 151-152, "Tullochgorum" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #5658

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(3248), "The Reel of Tullochgorum" (unknown, n.d.)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Young Jimmie Drummond (The Choring Song)" (tune)

NOTES [71 words]: Supposedly Reverend John Skinner was at a dinner hosted by a Mrs. Montgomery when a political dispute broke out, and she requested a song from him, perhaps to the melody of the fiddle strathspey "The Reel of Tullochgorum." This pacific piece was the result. The year was supposedly 1776, so there were still some memories of the raw Whig and Tory quarrels that led to the Hannoverian Succession and the Jacobite Rebellions. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: RPG023

Tumba-Bloody-Rumba

DESCRIPTION: The mustering boss tries the new man at everything. Despite claims of many adventures and skills, he proves incompetent at every job (except drinking and smoking). The crew is glad to see him paid off and heading back to wherever he came from

AUTHOR: Words: John Wolfe? (tune set by Warren Fahey)

EARLIEST DATE: 1984

KEYWORDS: talltale work

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 176-177, "Tumba-Bloody-Rumba" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, TMBARMB

File: FaE176

Tune The Old Cow Died On, The

DESCRIPTION: "The old cow might have been living yet, A-chewin' her cud with glee, If Farmer John hadn't sung of this song...." Farmer John sings, the cows gather in surprise. The old cow tries to join in, and it kills her AUTHOR: Joseph E. Winner?

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: death animal farming music humorous

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,So)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 411, "The Tune the Old Cow Died On" (1 text plus 2 fragments, 1 tune -- although the "C" fragment does not appear related to the first two)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 352-354, "The Tune the Old Cow Died On" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 411A)
Roud #4352

RECORDINGS:
Warde Ford, "The Tune the old cow died on" (AFS 4212 A2, 1939; in AMMEM/Cowell)

NOTES [132 words]: Carl Sandburg wrote in 1936, "A man having nothing to feed his cow sang to her of the fresh green grass to come; this is the tune the old cow died on." One suspects that this phrase was part of popular idiom, and someone created a song to explain it. This would also explain why there is a distinct fiddle tune with the same name. Marge Steiner informs me that "there is a fiddle tune by that name as well. John Kirk, of Greenfield Center, New York, found a 19th-century manuscript of it in the Lockwood Collection, found in an attic in an old house."

Cohen reports an 1880 copyright of a song with this title, credited to George Russell Jackson and Eastburn (Joseph E. Winner), but adds that the song "must date from the 1850s or 1860s." He does not, however, give evidence for this claim. - RBW

File: R411

Turalai

DESCRIPTION: "The enlisted men pull in a whaler, The captain he rides in a barge... It gives the old bugger a charge." The life of the senior officers is compared to that of the men. The sexual life of the camel also comes up. Only hedgehods are safe on ship.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1989 (Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea)

KEYWORDS: ship sailor sex animal bawdy navy

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, pp. 178-179, "Turalai" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Brand-BawdySeaSong 7[B], "Turalai" (1 text)
- Roud #8351

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Botany Bay (I)" (tune)
- cf. "The Sexual Life of the Camel" (subject)

NOTES [56 words]: Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea's uncredited tune appears to be "Botany Bay (I)." The song is clearly related to "The Sexual Life of the Camel," but the amount of additional material makes me think there has been a rewrite along the way, which might make it a separate song. I'm not sure, though; I wish I had all of the versions Ed Cray knew! - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: Kins178

Turfman from Ardee, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer meets a turfman on the road. The turfman says his ass is tired; he'd like to sell his load. The singer says cart and ass look old and abused; the turfman says he has abused the ass, but it has never been without shoes, nor his axle without grease.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (learned by Margaret Barry)

KEYWORDS: age disability sex accusation travel bawdy humorous animal worker political

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 23, "The Turfman from Ardee" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Roud #5187

RECORDINGS:
- Margaret Barry & Michael Gorman, "The Turfman from Ardee" (on Barry-Gorman1)
- David Harper, "The Turfman from Ardee" (on TradIre02)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Save Your Money When You're Young" (tune)

NOTES [58 words]: "Sex"? "Bawdy"? Well, certainly double-entendre on Margaret Barry's part. She notes that she learned it from an 80-year-old man named Tynan in 1945; he, in turn, had learned it from the McNulty Family of Donegal, who put it on a 78. As we have no date earlier than 1945, though, I'm putting that down as earliest -- but I'd love to find that 78. - PJS

Last updated in version 2.6

File: RcTurArd
Turkey Buzzard
DESCRIPTION: "Shoot that turkey buzzard Come flopping down the hollow (x2)." "Shoot old Davy Dugger dead; He eat my meat and stole my bread." "Shoot old Davy Dugger, Take his wife and hug her." "Oh, that girl with the blue dress on, She stole my heart..."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: bird death hunting nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 105, "Turkey Buzzard" (1 text plus 2 fragments which may or may not be related)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 105, "Turkey Buzzard" (2 tunes plus text excerpts)
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, pp. 168-169, "Shoot the Turkey Buzzard" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jones-MinstrelOfTheAppalachians-Bascom-Lamar-Lunsford, p. 247, "Turkey Buzzard" (1 tune, possibly this)
Roud #7653
RECORDINGS:
Chancey Bros., "Shoot That Turkey Buzzard" (on FolkVisions2)
J. E. Mainer's Mountaineers, "Shoot the Turkey Buzzard" (King 819, 1949)
Doug & Berzilla Wallin, "Shoot That Turkey Buzzard" (on FarMtns3)
File: Br3105

Turkey Hammock
DESCRIPTION: "Up on the hill top, Belly to the sun, Tail began to wiggle And the goodie began to come." At Red Bug Branch, the "same old son fiddled And the little pigs danced." Other strange tale of animals follow
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida)
KEYWORDS: animal music dancing floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #109, "Turkey Hammock" (1 text)
Roud #5031
NOTES [21 words]: A Google search reveals that Turkey Hammock is a (now-drained) wetland in Florida, apparently just north of Lake Okeechobee. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.7
File: Morr109

Turkey in the Straw
DESCRIPTION: "As I was going down the road With a tired team and a heavy load... Turkey in the straw, Haw haw haw, Turkey in the hay, Hey hey hey... Whistle up a tune called turkey in the straw." Lyrics usually involve the strange things encountered by a teamster
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1896 (recordings, Billy Golden)
KEYWORDS: travel animal bird nonballad dancetune
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (15 citations):
Randolph 274, "Turkey in the Straw" (2 texts plus a fragment, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 234-237, "Turkey in the Straw" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 274A)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 94, "Turkey in the Straw" (1 fragment); also 511, "The Preacher Song" (1 text, a complex mix of verses from "Turkey in the Straw" and "Some Folks Say that a Preacher Won't Steal" with the "Uncle Eph" chorus)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 94, "Turkey in the Straw" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 94-97, "Turkey in the Straw" (2 texts plus a fragment, 1 tune;
Henry-Songs Sung in the Southern Appalachians, p. 112, "One More Drink" (1 fragment, a single stanza about the hen laying eggs all over the farm and calling for a drink; it might come from anywhere but seems more typical of this than anything else)

Lomax-Folk Songs of North America 49, "Turkey in the Straw" (1 text, 1 tune, plus a "Zip Coon" text)

Linscott-Folk Songs of Old New England, pp. 83-85, "Haymaker's Jig" (1 tune with dance instructions)

Abernethy-Singin' Texas, pp. 75-76, "Turkey in the Straw" (1 text, 1 tune)

List-Singing About It-Folk Songs in Southern Indiana, pp. 124-131, "(Old Zip Coon)," "(Turkey in the Straw)" (1 complete and 1 partial sheet music version of "Old Zip Coon," 1 text, 1 tune of "Turkey," both files under "The Miller Boy")

Silber/Silber-Folksingers Wordbook, p. 37, "Turkey in the Straw" (1 text)

Pankake/Pankake-Prairie Home Companion Folk Song Book, p. 23, "I Went to Cincinnati"; p. 54, "Oh, I Had a Little Chicken" (2 texts, tune referenced)

Fireside Book of Folk Songs, p. 66, "Turkey in the Straw" (1 text, 1 tune)

Fuld-Book Of World Famous Music, pp. 591-592, "Turkey in the Straw (Zip Coon)"

DT, TURKSTRW (TURKST2)

Roud #4247

RECORDINGS:

Blue Ridge Duo, "Turkey in the Straw" (Edison 51502, 1925)

Dock Boggs, "Turkey in the Straw" [instrumental version] (on Boggs3, BoggsCD1)

Boone County Entertainers [Red Fox Chasers], "Turkey in the Straw" (Champion 15522/Supertone 9163, 1928)

Fiddlin' John Carson, "Turkey in the Straw" (OKeh 40230, 1924); "Turkey in the Hay" (OKeh 45167, 1927)

Arthur Collins, "Turkey in the Straw" (Zonophone 637, c. 1907) (CYL: Edison 4011, n.d.)

Hobbs Brothers, "Turkey in the Straw" (Jewel 5458, 1928)

Peg Leg Howell & Eddie Anthony, "Turkey Buzzard Blues" (Columbia 14282-D, 1928; on Protobilly)

Kessinger Brothers, "Turkey in the Straw" (Brunswick 235, 1928)

Silas Leachman, "Turkey in de Straw" (Victor A-804, c. 1901)

Neil Morris & Charlie Everidge, "Turkey in the Straw" [dance calls] (on LomaxCD1701)

George Reneau, "Turkey in the Straw" (Vocalion 5031/Vocalion 14812, 1924)

Doc Roberts, "Turkey in the Straw" (Conqueror 7741, 1931; Perfect 12929/Melotone 12746, 1933)

Eck Robertson, "Turkey in the Straw" (Victor 19149, 1923)

Stove Pipe No. 1 [pseud. for Sam Jones], "Turkey in the Straw" (Columbia 201-D, 1924; Harmony 5100-H, n.d.)

Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers, "Turkey in the Straw" (Columbia 15084-D, 1926)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Old Tobacco Box (There Was an Old Soldier)" (tune, floating lyrics)

cf. "Old Zip Coon (I)" (tune, floating lyrics)

cf. "The Catfish (Banjo Sam)" (floating lyrics)

cf. "Bunkhouse Orchestra" (tune)

cf. "Charleston Gals (Clear the Kitchen)" (floating lyrics)

cf. "Mary Mack (I)" (floating lyrics)

cf. "There Was an Old Lady" (tune)

cf. "The Delhi Jail" (tune)

cf. "Whoo! Hal Buck and Jerry Boy" (portions of tune)

SAME TUNE:

Old Zip Coon (File: RJ19258)

Old Farmer Brown (Pankake/Pankake-Prairie Home Companion Folk Song Book, p. 145)

There Was a Little Rooster (Pankake/Pankake-Prairie Home Companion Folk Song Book, p. 196)

Do Your Ears Hang Low (Pankake/Pankake-Prairie Home Companion Folk Song Book, pp. 210-211)

Fiddlin' John Carson, "Turkey in the Hay" (OKeh 45167, 1927)

Carson Robison, "1942 Turkey in the Straw" (Bluebird B-11460, 1942)

Quadrille (VI) (square dance call) (Welsch-Nebraska Pioneer Lore, pp. 118-119)
NOTES [77 words]: Generally regarded as a rewriting of "Old Zip Coon." Sometimes regarded as the forerunner of "The Old Tobacco Box (There Was an Old Soldier)" (with which it often shares a tune), but the latter also has its own independent tune and form. - RBW
Paul Stamler found a source which attributed this to Bob Farrell, but that was probably a reference to "Old Zip Coon." And it's an open question whether he wrote even "Old Zip Coon"; see the notes to that song. - (PJS, RBW)
_Last updated in version 5.3_
File: R274

Turkey Rhubarb

DESCRIPTION: "Turkey rhubarb, Turkey rhubarb, Turkey rhubarb I sell, I came here from Turkey to make you all well, Don't you all know me, Oh my name it is Dan, For I am the celebrated Turkey rhubarb man."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1967 (Hamer-GarnersGay)

KEYWORDS: commerce nonballad food

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hamer-GarnersGay, p. 20, "Turkey Rhubarb" (1 short text, 1 tune)

Roud #1073

File: HaGa020

Turkish Lady, The [Laws O26]

DESCRIPTION: A British ship is captured by the Turks and its crew enslaved. The singer suffers until his owner offers to free him if he will accept Islam and marry her. He refuses to abandon Christianity. She eventually decides to turn Christian and marry him

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1782 (broadside, "Four Excellent New Songs")

KEYWORDS: love courting religious sailor foreigner

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar) Britain(England(South),Scotland)

REFERENCES (10 citations):
Laws O26, "The Turkish Lady"
Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 11-18, "The Turkish Lady" (1 text)
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 141-143, "The Turkish Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
Karpeles-FolkSongsFromNewfoundland 35, "The Turkish Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, pp. 123-124, "Turkish Rover" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 13, "Turkish Rover" (1 text, 1 tune) Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia 17, "The Turkish Lady" (2 texts)
Forget-Me-Not-Songster, pp. 169-170, "The Turkish Lady" (1 text)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN797, "Down in a cypress grove as I was lying" (?)

DT (53), TURKLADY*

ST LO26 (Full)

Roud #8124

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 17(322b)[tear: words missing], "The Turkish Lady," T. Birt (London), 1828-1829; also Harding B 11(3907), Firth c.13(303), Harding B 11(1973), Harding B 25(1958), "The Turkish Lady"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Young Beichan" [Child 53]

cf. "The Araby Maid" (subject)

cf. "Mustang Gray (The Maid of Monterey)" (plot)

cf. "The Belfast Sailor" (theme)

NOTES [95 words]: This song is sometimes treated as a variant of "Young Beichan" [Child 53]. The setting, obviously, is similar -- but the difference in the ending marks them as separate ballads.
"Young Beichan" stresses the lover's return; "The Turkish Lady," the change in the woman's faith (which, incidentally, was a dangerous thing to do: Islam tolerates Christianity, but many Islamic cultures do not tolerate turning from Islam to Christianity. Though the direct comment on an Islamic woman marrying a pagan, in the Quran, Surah 60:11, merely requires the recovery of her dowry). -
Turn Again, Whittington

DESCRIPTION: "Turn again, Whittington, thou worthy citizen, Turn again, Whittington, (thrice) Lord Mayor of London. Make a good fortune, Find a good wife, You will know happiness all through your life. Turn again....."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: money political nonballad

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
c. 1354-1423 - life of Richard Whittington
1397 - Whittington's first (of four) terms of Lord Mayor

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 218, "Turn Again, Whittington" (1 text)
DT, WHITTNG*

NOTES [69 words]: As a rhyme, this is very well known, so I'm including it here, although I am far from sure it is a folk song. Richard Whittington was a very real character, but most of the folktales about him are false -- he was a younger son, but not penniless, and there was no cat. He went to London to become a mercer, became a very successful businessman, and prospered in the reigns of Richard II, Henry IV, and Henry V. - RBW

Turn Back and Pray

DESCRIPTION: "Pray leader, why don't you pray? Oh the pretty star shall be your guide, Turn back and pray." Verses include "Go down to the fountain if you're dry ... There you'll drink your full supply" and "Mary weep and Martha mourn ... Yes my Lord was crucified"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories)

KEYWORDS: floating verses nonballad religious Bible Jesus

FOUND IN: West Indies (Bahamas)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories 22, "Turn Back an' Pray" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [89 words]: The description is based on the Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories text. The verse is call and response, with "Turn back and pray" the response to each verse line. Floating verses include "The tallest tree in Paradise ... The Christians call it 'Tree of Life'" and "I was a mourner just like you ... Didn't I mourn till I got through." - BS

The reference to Mary weeping and Martha mourning is presumably to John, chapter 11, in which Lazarus of Bethany dies and his sisters Mary and Martha lament before Jesus shows up to revive Lazarus. - RBW

Turn that Cinnamon

DESCRIPTION: "Oh turn that cinnamon round and round, Turn that cinnamon round and round, Oh turn that cinnamon round!" "She's my sugar-lump, I'll never give her up, She's my sugar-lump, I'll never give her up, Oh turn that cinnamon round!"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)

KEYWORDS: love food play party

FOUND IN: US(SE,So)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Randolph 583, "Turn that Cinnamon" (1 short text)
Turn Ye To Me

DESCRIPTION: "The stars are shining cheerily, cheerily, Horo, Mhairi Dhu, turn ye to me. The seamew is moaning drearily, drearily...." "Hushed be thy moaning, lone bird of the sea.... Thy home is the angry wave, mine but the lonely grave...."

AUTHOR: Words: John Wilson ("Christopher North")

EARLIEST DATE: reportedly written 1816

KEYWORDS: love separation bird

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
DT, TURNYEME*

Roud #23557

NOTES [75 words]: This song by Christopher North was beautifully recorded by Gordon Bok; although I am far from sure it is traditional, I've included it on that basis. The interesting question is the tune. The Gesto Collection of Highland Music has a Gaelic tune, "Ho Ro Mhairi Dhu," or "Black Mary" (i.e. "dark-haired Mary"). It doesn't appear to be the same song, but the form implies that it might have been the original of the tune. Or might not, of course. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2

File: DTturnye

Turn, Julie-Ann, Turn

DESCRIPTION: Playparty: "Circle around, my Julie-Ann/Circle around I say...I ain't got long to stay." "I'll go on the mountaintop... If I can't get the girl I want/Let that old girl go." Chorus: "Turn, Julie-Ann, turn/Turn Old Jubilee."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (recording, Jean Ritchie)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Playparty: "Circle around, my Julie-Ann/Circle around I say...I ain't got long to stay." "My truelove spied me down the road/She hung her head and cried/Said, yanner come a booger-man/O where can I hide." "I'll go on the mountaintop, give my horn a blow/If I can't get the girl I want/Let that old girl go." Chorus: "Turn, Julie-Ann, turn/Turn Old Jubilee."

KEYWORDS: courting love dancing playparty nonballad floatingverses

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

Roud #5747

RECORDINGS:
Jean Ritchie, "Turn, Julie-Ann, Turn" (on Ritchie03)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Liza Jane" (floating verses)
cf. "Cindy (I)" (floating verses)

NOTES [44 words]: I rather suspect this is the same as one or another of the floating verse singing games out there; I thought seriously about lumping it with "Julie Ann Johnson." But we're splitters, and in any case it's not obvious just which of those songs to lump it with. - RBW
File: RcTJAT

Turn, Sinner, Turn O!

DESCRIPTION: "Turn, sinner, turn today, turn, Sinner, turn O!" (x2). "Wait not for tomorrow's sun." "Tomorrow's sun will sure to shine." "The sun may shine, but on your grave." "Hark, I hear them sinner say" "If you get to heaven I'll get there too."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad death
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, pp. 36-37, "Turn, Sinner, Turn O!" (2 texts, 1 tune with variants)
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, pp. 245-246, "Turn, Sinner, Turn" (1 text)

Roud #11991

NOTES [35 words]: Possibly suggested by Jesus's parable of the Rich Fool in Luke 12:16-21, in which God says to a man who has devoted all his energy to short-term wealth, "Fool! This very night your soul is demanded of you...." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
File: AWG036

Turner's Camp on the Chippewa [Laws C23]

DESCRIPTION: A tale of the lumberman's life and troubles in the woods of Michigan. Most of the events are described in very general terms

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (recording, Bill McBride)
KEYWORDS: logger lumbering
FOUND IN: US(MW) Canada(Ont)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Laws C23, "Turner's Camp on the Chippewa"
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 12, "Turner's Camp on the Chippewa" (1 text)
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, "Turner's Camp on the Chippewa" (1 text)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 19, "Turner's Camp on the Chippewa" (1 text)
Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #10, "Turner's Camp" (2 texts, 1 tune)
DT 840, TURNRCPM

Roud #1926

RECORDINGS:
Bill McBride, "Turner's Camp on the Chippewa" (AFS, 1938; on LC56)
Leo Spencer, "Turner's Camp" (on Lumber01)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Lumber Camp Song" (theme) and references there

NOTES [111 words]: Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps says that "The Chippewa River runs from Coldwater Lake and empties into the Tittabawasee River near Midland, [Michigan]." However, there is also a Chippewa River in the wooded country of Wisconsin, It runs through Chippewa Falls and Eau Claire in Wisconsin, and enters the Mississippi below Lake Pepin (which is thought to be partly caused by the runoff dumped by the Chippewa). Given that there are no collections from Wisconsin, Beck is probably right to assume that the song is from Michigan (his informant said that it was composed in the camp of Charlie Turner in 1871), but we probably shouldn't regard it as having been proved. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
File: LC23

Turnip Greens

DESCRIPTION: Singer dreams he meets Gabriel. Asked what he'll eat; he says, "Turnip greens."
Asked why Ozark people are rough, yet clean; "Turnip greens." Gabriel says God's kingdom on earth is coming. Chorus: "...Cornbread and buttermilk/And good old turnip greens!"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, H. K. Hutchison)

KEYWORDS: food humorous

FOUND IN: US(MW,So)

REFERENCES (5 citations):

[Randolph 287, "Turnip Greens" -- deleted in the second printing]

Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 243-245, "Turnip Greens" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 287)

Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 75, pp. 202-203, "Turnip Greens" (1 text)

McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesOfIllinoisOzarks, p. 27, "Turnip Greens" (1 text)

Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 9, "Turnip Greens" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #4491

RECORDINGS:

Shorty Goodwin, "Turnip Greens" (Columbia 15411-D, 1929)

H. K. Hutchison, "Good Old Turnip Greens" (Gennett 6464/Champion 15525, 1928)

W. A. Lindsay & Alvin Connor, "Good Old Turnip Greens" (Okeh 45346, 1929; rec. 1928)

Neil Morris, "Turnip Greens" (on Lomax CD 1707)

Pie Plant Pete [pseud. for Claude Moye], "Turnip Greens" (Champion 45063, 1935)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Greens" (theme)

NOTES [72 words]: The description of this song is based on the Neil Morris recording. The Pankake text is much shorter, and is about Atmore residents rather than residents of the Ozarks. Similarly, Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi's text is about the residents of Mississippi, and McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesOfIllinoisOzarks's mentions "Salem."

I have not heard all the 78 recordings listed above, so they too may be local or parodized versions.

- RBW

Last updated in version 4.3

File: RcTG

---

Turnip Patch, The

DESCRIPTION: "I went down to the turnip patch... To see if my old hen had hatched." "There set a possum on the rail, Reached up and grabbed him by the tail." "Got him on the ground and he tried to fight... Reached up my right foot and kicked out the light."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: animal chickens fight

FOUND IN: US(Sc)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Randolph 454, "The Turnip Patch" (1 text)

ST R454 (Full)

Roud #7602

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Who Broke the Lock (on the Henhouse Door)?" (lyrics)

cf. "Sixteen Chickens and a Tambourine" (lyrics)

File: R454

---

Turnip-Hoer, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer hires on a farm; the farmer says he's first class. He hires elsewhere, and says if he had a son he'd be better off going to jail. He says that while some delight in harvesting and mowing, "of all the jobs that be on a farm/Give I the turnip-hoing."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer hires on a farm; the farmer says he's first class. He hires on another farm, and says if he had a son he'd be better off going to jail. He says that while some delight in harvesting and mowing, "of all the jobs that be on a farm/Give I the turnip-hoing." Chorus: "For the flies...got on the turnips/It's all me eye and no use to try/To keep 'em off them turnips"
KEYWORDS: farming work worker boss
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South,West))
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, p. 70, "Turmut-Hoeing" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 261, "The Turnip-Hoer" (1 text, 1 tune)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #10, "Turnit Hoeing" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cologne/Morrison-WiltshireFolkSongs, pp. 64-65, "Turmut Hoeing" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1376
RECORDINGS:
Fred Perrier et al, "The Turmut [Turmont] Hoer's Song" (on Lomax41, LomaxCD41)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Flies Are On the Tummits" (them of a turnip farmer's life)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Turmut-hoeing
NOTES [318 words]: Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland states, "[T]he song has attached itself to Wiltshire and was adopted as the regimental march of the Wiltshire Regiment... now amalgamated [in 1959] with the Berkshire Regiment [to form] the Duke of Edinburgh's Royal Regiment." Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook says this took place in 1881. According to Hallows, p. 206, however, the quick march of the Duke of Edinburgh's Regiment is The Farmer's Boy and the slow is Auld Robin Gray. And while some regiments dropped their historical tunes on amalgamation, so the Wiltshire regiment could have used this piece in the past, it was normal to keep both tunes. Roud lumps this with "The Flies Are On the Tummits," with which it shares some lyrics, but Ben Schwartz and I both consider the general plots distinct enough to split them. "The Turnip-Hoer" is about the singer's employment history; "The Flies Are On the Tummits" about the hard life of a farmer.
Widespread growing of turnips, incidentally, was a relatively recent practice (turnips, after all, are bitter and rather unpleasant to eat); they are grown because they replenish the soil, and can be farmed on a field that would otherwise have to lie fallow (Beales, p. 36). Large-scale turnip planting began around the beginning of the nineteenth century (Marshall, pp. 8-9) because turnips could be saved and fed to livestock in winter, thus making more fresh meat available at that time. According to Palmer, p. 49, who quotes what appears to be a stanza of this song, several of the tasks performed on a farm around harvest time were relatively specialized and required significant skill. Palmer does not explicitly list turnip-hoeing among these, but the context implies it. This perhaps explains this song; The singer is celebrating his skill. - RBW
Bibliography

- Beales: Derek Beales,From Castlereigh to Gladstone, 1815-1885, Norton, 1969

Last updated in version 4.2
File: K261

TVA, The

DESCRIPTION: "My name is William Edwards, I live down Cove Creek Way, I'm working on the project They call the TVA. The government is upgrading the valley. The singer writes to Sal to say, "The government has saved us; just name our wedding day."

AUTHOR: Buddy Preston
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)
KEYWORDS: work marriage hardtimes technology
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 232-234, (no title) (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [132 words]: The Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA), founded in 1933, is one of the most enduring of all the New Deal programs. Founded to create jobs and at the same provide electrical power to a primitive part of the country, it is still in existence today, generating power and managing the river. - RBW

Botkin quotes his source, Jean Thomas's Ballad Makin' in the Mountains of Kentucky, as saying the song was written by a Preston, and "first sung at the American Folk Festival with a kinsman of the composer giving the explanation of its origin." She also says it had indeed become traditional in Kentucky, at least. - NR

Reading Thomas's account, I'm not convinced of this; it's properly a folk revival song, if a very early one. But the number of citations perhaps justifies its presence here. - RBW

File: Arn172

Twa and Twa

DESCRIPTION: Dance tune lyrics; "Twa and tawa made the bed/Twa and tawa lay together/When the bed begun to heat/The one got up abune the other." That's all.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (collected from Jeannie Thompson)

KEYWORDS: sex dancing

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 124, "Twa and Twa" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, TWANTWA*

Roud #5407

NOTES [12 words]: Runner-up to "Papa Loved Mama" for title of World's Shortest Ballad. - PJS

File: McCST124

Twa Brothers, The [Child 49]

DESCRIPTION: Two brothers agree to wrestle on their way to school. In the process, one is wounded by the other's knife. The unwounded brother (often) tries to save the wounded one, but it is too late; all that is left is to arrange for his burial and make excuses

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1825 (Motherwell)

KEYWORDS: contest death fight stepmother brother homicide magic

FOUND IN: Britain(England,Scotland(Aber,Bord)), US(Ap,MA,MW,NE,NW,SE,So) Canada(Mar,Newf)

REFERENCES (42 citations):

Child 49, "The Twa Brothers" (8 texts)

Bronson 49, "The Twa Brothers" (41 versions plus 4 in addenda)

Bronson-SingingTraditionOfChildsPopularBallads 49, "The Two Brothers" (5 versions: #1, #22, #25, #29, #37)

Chambers-ScottishBallads, pp. 111-113, "The Twa Brothers" (1 text)

Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 160, "The Twa Brichters" (1 text)

Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice #76, p. 253-255, "The Twa Brothers (Child 49)" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #13.1}

Barry/Eckstorm/Smyth-BritishBalladsFromMaine pp. 99-106, "The Two Brothers" (1 text plus many excerpts including a complete Kentucky version, 1 tune) {Bronson's #21}

Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 33-34, "The Two Brothers" (1 text)

Randolph 10, "The Two Brothers" (3 texts plus a fragment, 4 tunes) {Bronson's #13, #40, #3, #2}

Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 24-25, "The Two Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 10A) {Bronson's #13}

High-OldOldFolkSongs, pp. 47-48, "Two Boys Away at School" (1 text)

Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 9, "The Twa Brothers" (2 texts, 2 tunes) {Bronson's #28, #30}

Flanders/Olney-BalladsMigrantInNewEngland, pp. 96-99, "Edward Ballad [listed as "Child 13" but obviously this piece though Bronson considers it a "too literary" mix of the two ballads with a peculiar tune]; pp. 230-232, "Martyr John" (2 texts, 2 tunes) {Bronson's #41, #38} Flanders-AncientBalladsTraditionallySungInNewEngland1, pp. 316-331, "The Twa Brothers" (4 texts, 5 tunes; the last two tunes are variants taken from the same informant) {A=Bronson's #41,
B=38}
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 278-280, "The Rolling of the Stones or The Twa Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #14}
Davis-TraditionalBalladsOfVirginia 11, "The Twa Brothers" (11 texts, 6 tunes) [#23, #31, #5, #33,
#10, #24]
Davis-MoreTraditionalBalladsOfVirginia 15, pp. 92-101, "The Twa Brothers" (5 texts, 5 tunes)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBarrowsCollectionNCFolklore2 13, "The Two Brothers" (1 text)
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 6, "The Two Brothers" (1 text)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #152, "The Twa Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #12}
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 7, pp. 73-74, "The Two Brothers" (2 texts)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 14A, "Yonder School"; 14B, "Willie and Johnny" (2 texts, 2 tunes) Scarborough-ASongCatcherInSouthernMountains, pp. 166-167, "The Twa Brothers" (1 text, locally titled "The Two Brothers")
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 9, "The Two Brothers" (2 texts)
Cox/Hercog/Halpert/Boswell-Virginia-A, #6, p. 21, "The Two Brothers" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
{Bronson's #8}
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 30-31, "Our Young Son John" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton/Senior-TraditionalSongsOfNovaScotia, p. 25-26, "The Twa Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune)
{Bronson's #39)
Peacock, pp. 827-830, "The Two Brothers" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 163-167, "The Twa Brothers" (2 texts)
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, pp. 136-138, "Two Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 63, "The Twa Brothers" (1 text)
Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, pp. 169, "The Twa Brothers" (2 texts) Niles-BalladBookOfJohnJacobNiles 20, "The Twa Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune -- a fragmentary text that opens like "The Twa Brothers," but has an ending that might be anything)
Gummere-OldEnglishBallads, pp. 174-175+343, "The Twa Brothers" (1 text) Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 12 "The Two Brothers" (12 texts, often short, plus a fragment ("E") that may be this; 13 tunes) {Bronson's #17, #10, #31, #24, #18, #19, #11, #9,
#.15, #27, #25, #32)
Sharp/Karpeles-EightyEnglishFolkSongs 11, "The Two Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune -- an expanded composite version) {Bronson's #11}
Pound-AmericanBalladsAndSongs, 18, pp. 45-46, "Two Little Boys" (1 text)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 7, "The Twa Brothers" (2 texts)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads, pp. 157-158, "The Twa Brothers" (1 text)
DT 49, TWOBROS TWOBROS2* TWOBROS3* TWOBROS4* ROLLSTON*
ADDITIONAL: Bob Stewart, _Where Is Saint George? Pagan Imagery in English Folksong_, revised edition, Blandford, 1988, pp. 23-24, "The Two Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928; #52-53, "The Wta Brothers" (1 text)
Roud #38
RECORDINGS:
Charlotte Decker, "The Two Brothers" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Texas Gladden, "The Two Brothers" (AFS 5230 A2; on USTGladden01) {Bronson's #20}
Lizzie Higgins, "The Twa Brothers" (on LHiggins01)
Nellie McGregor, "The Two Brothers" (FSBBAL1)
Hobart Smith, "The Little Schoolboy" (on LomaxCD1702)
Belle Stewart, "The Two Brothers" (on Voice03) {Bronson's #13.2 in addenda}
Lucy Stewart, "The Two Brothers [The Two Brothers]" (on FSB4, FSBBAL1) (on LStewart1)
{Bronson's #11.1 in addenda}
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Unquiet Grave" [Child 78] (lyrics)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Rolling of the Stones
The Murdered Boy
Two Little Boys Going to School
The Cruel Brother
NOTES [1065 words]: In Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads's A version, the brother is killed, not wrestling for fun, but in a fit of passion. - PJS
Indeed, this motif (which is not unusual; many of Davis's texts have it, for instance) gives rise to the possibility that what we have here is two songs mixed. Call them "The Twa Brothers" and "The Rolling of the Stones." In the former, the one brother kills the other as a result of accident or perhaps a (step?)mother's malice.
"The Rolling of the Stones," though it involves a death and is usually listed as a version of this song, has a very different feel. It is definitely a song of passion and jealousy, and ends with Susie, the girl of the piece, dancing to try to bring the dead man back to life. (Thompson motif E50, "Resuscitation by music" or one of its variants, e.g. E55.1, "Resuscitation by song" or E63.2, "Resuscitation by nine-day dance and prayers.")
The two have certainly mixed verses, making them hard to tell apart, but I'm not at all convinced that they are the same song. A curiosity is that the "Rolling of the Stones" texts seem to be mostly American, even though American texts rarely involve magic. But it should be noted that the endings of the texts in Child are very diverse; it may be that he simply hadn't found one of the "magic" endings.
Stewart evidently thinks the whole thing goes back to early myth; on p. 24 he declares, "The story is clearly found in Celtic and pre-Celtic myth and lore, in classical mythology, and in ancient Egyptian and Eastern religious allegory.
"The plot is very simple, one brother kills another in competition for a woman. The murdered man is then brought back to life by his true love."
In other words, Stewart sees this song as a a version of the Egyptian tale of Osiris, Seth, and Isis (Osiris having been murdered by his brother Seth and revived by Isis). Given the content of "The Rolling of the Stones," it does appear that something like the Osiris story was known in Britain. But it must be repeated that most versions of this song don't have a resurrection theme. They're a much more basic tale, of a stepmother's desire to gain an inheritance for her son over her older stepson.
Stewart, furthermore, suggests that the questions at the end are an attempt to gather oracles from a dying man. Certainly the idea that the dying can see the future is well-attested. But why, then, are the dying brother's answers all excuses for the younger brother or, in one case, a curse? And, at that, a curse which apparently never comes true?
Again, Stewart thinks the "Rolling of the Stones" variants hint at human sacrifice. At most, it appears to me, they hint at the mass, and the conversion of wine into the blood of Jesus.
In any case, everything that gets Stewart's mythological juices flowing comes from variants of "The Rolling of the Stones," not the mainline versions of "The Twa Brothers."
Linscott has one of her usual folklorish explanations: "The event from which the ballad gets its theme happened near Edinburgh in 1589, when one of the Somervilles was killed by the accidental discharge of his brother's pistol." This connection ignores the fact that brothers are more than a little apt to quarrel over inheritances....
Chambers, p. 72, quotes a passage from a thirteenth(?) century fragment of a song which has not been connected with this piece, but which I find rather interesting:
Atte wrastlinge my lemman I ches,
And atte ston-kasting I him for-les.
In other words, Chambers goes on to note a command from William of Wykeham, Bishop of Winchester (1384), "which condemns the pollution of graveyards, alike by dissolute dances and by stone-castings." We do not know what stone-castings are -- but they occur in graveyards, they are condemned by the church, and they are connected somehow with "dissolute dances," i.e. probably carols. A connection with a resurrection ritual sounds not unlikely.
Linscott has one of her usual folklorish explanations: "The event from which the ballad gets its theme happened near Edinburgh in 1589, when one of the Somervilles was killed by the accidental discharge of his brother's pistol." This connection ignores the fact that brothers are more than a little apt to quarrel over inheritances....
Chambers, p. 72, quotes a passage from a thirteenth(?) century fragment of a song which has not been connected with this piece, but which I find rather interesting:
Atte wrastlinge my lemman I ches,
And atte ston-kasting I him for-les.
i.e.
At wrestling my love I chose,
And at stone-casting I him lost.
Greene, p. xxxv, also quotes the piece, and seems to think it a (folk?) carol. If so, then the odds of a connection with this song is surely greater.
Chambers goes on to note a command from William of Wykeham, Bishop of Winchester (1384), "which condemns the pollution of graveyards, alike by dissolute dances and by stone-castings." We do not know what stone-castings are -- but they occur in graveyards, they are condemned by the church, and they are connected somehow with "dissolute dances," i.e. probably carols. A connection with a resurrection ritual sounds not unlikely.
In another interesting, but probably meaningless, footnote, the two boys of the song are sometimes William and John. I found the following tale on p. 123 of Moody/Martin/Keogh/Kiel:
It is found by the jury that, whereas William Bernard, on the Sunday after the Nativity of St. John Baptist last, in the town of Newcastle of Lyons, was playing at ball with the men of that town and the ball was struck in the direction of John McCorcan, who was standing near to watch the game, John ran towards the ball, which William was following in pursuit, and met him so swiftly that he wounded William in the upper part of his right leg with a knife which he, John, had upon him, which knife unfortunately without John's knowledge pierced its sheath and so injured William, to his damage of five shillings. And the jurors, being asked if John did this from ill-timed zeal or ran against William from malice aforethought, say that it was not so, but that it was for the purpose of playing that he ran toward him to hit the ball.

Incidentally, it appears very likely that Charles Dodgson (Lewis Carroll) knew some form of this piece as a very young man. One of his earliest poems, written while he was still a schoolboy, is called "The Two Brothers," and the opening is quite similar to "The Twå Brothers" [Child 49]; it begins

There were two brothers at Twyford school,
And when they had left the place,
It was, "Will ye learn Greek and Latin?
Or will ye run me a race?
Or will ye go up to yonder bridge,
And there will we angle for dace?"

Later verses are more reminiscent of "Edward" [Child 13] or "Lizzie Wan" [Child 51]:

"Oh what bait's that upon your hook,
Dear brother, tell to me?"

"It is my younger brother," he cried,
"Oh woe and dole is me?"

[ ... ]

"And when will you come back again,
My brother, tell to me?"

"When chub is good for human food,
And that will never be!"

The final verse might be from "It Was A' For Our Rightful' King" or similar:

She turned herself right round about,
And her heart brake into three,
Said, "One of the two will be wet through and through,
And 'tother'll be late for his tea."- RBW

Also collected and sung by Ellen Mitchell, "Twa Brothers" (on Kevin and Ellen Mitchell, "Have a Drop Mair," Musical Tradition Records MTCD315-6 CD (2001)) - BS

Bibliography

- Chambers: E. K. Chambers, English Literature at the Close of the Middle Ages, Oxford, 1945, 1947

Last updated in version 5.3

File: C049

Twa Bumbees, The

DESCRIPTION: "There were twa bumbees met on a twig, Fim-fam, fiddle-faddle, fum, fizz!" The two insects set out to find a home, frightening Jenny Wren in the process. After the babies are born, they quarrel; the male warns other bees about a "wayward, wanton wife."

AUTHOR: Charles Spence

EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Ford); Spence died in 1869

KEYWORDS: bug courting home humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 231-233, "The Twa Bumbees" (1 text)
Roud #13086

NOTES [31 words]: This appears to have been founded on "The Twa Corbies" (or, rather, one of its silly offspring), but without a tune, it's hard to prove.

Needless to say, this isn't how bees reproduce. - RBW

File: FVS231
Twa Knights, The [Child 268]

DESCRIPTION: A squire bets a knight that, if the knight leaves home for a time, he can seduce the knight's wife. He traps the wife into offering to come to his bed, but she sends her niece instead. When the truth is revealed, the niece weds the squire.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Buchan)

LONG DESCRIPTION: A squire bets a knight that, if the knight leaves home for a time, he can seduce the knight's wife. He traps the wife into offering to come to his bed, but she sends her niece instead. He cuts off the ring and finger to prove his victory. The knight's wife demonstrates that she still has her finger. The niece is offered the right to either kill the squire or marry him for his abuse. After much hesitation, the niece weds the squire.

KEYWORDS: gambling trick abuse injury infidelity family marriage wager

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Child 268, "The Twa Knights" (1 text)

Roud #303

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Boy and the Mantle" [Child 29] (theme)

\(\text{NOTES} [71 \text{ words}]: \) The notion of wagering over a woman's fidelity is common in folklore; in the Child canon, cf. e.g. "The Boy and the Mantle" [Child 29]. The substitute in bed idea is extremely ancient, going back to the story of Jacob, Leah, and Rachel in Genesis 29. Roud and others have linked this with the tale of "The Hog's Heart," but the links are entirely thematic (and far from complete); I agree with Ben Schwartz in splitting them. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.8

File: C268

Twa Lads Frae Neiborin' Toons

DESCRIPTION: Two lads come to the singer's house to woo lasses. The boys brag about mother, horses and daily chores and, when those topics are exhausted, leave with excuses about work that had to be done. The singer expects no such excuses if they ever return.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Greig/Duncan4)

KEYWORDS: courting bragging farming humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Greig/Duncan4 893, "Twa Lads Frae Neiborin' Toons" (2 texts, 2 tunes)

Roud #6231

ALTERNATE TITLES:

It Fell Aboot a Lammas Time

File: GrD4893

Twa Magicians, The [Child 44]

DESCRIPTION: A (blacksmith) sees a girl who pleases him, and sets out to sleep with her. She tries to foil him with magic transformations, but he proves as sorcerous as she, and gains her maidenhead.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Buchan)

KEYWORDS: magic seduction rape shape-changing

FOUND IN: Britain(England,Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (14 citations):

Child 44, "The Twa Magicians" (1 text)

Bronson 44, "The Twa Magicians" (1 version plus 11 versions of "Hares on the Mountain")

Bronson-SingingTraditionOfChildsPopularBallads 44, "The Twa Magicians" (1 version: #1, plus #2 and #12, which are "Hares n the Mountain")
Greig/Duncan 2 334, "The Twa Magicians" (1 fragment)
Barry/Eckstorm/Smyth-BritishBalladsFromMaine pp. 442-445, "The Two Magicians" (notes plus a copy of Buchan's text and a stanza of "Hares on the Mountain")
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 152-154, "The Two Magicians" (1 text)
Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 25, "The Twa Magicians" (1 text)
Sharp-OneHundredEnglishFolksongs 20, "The Two Magicians" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #1}
Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 22, "The Two Magicians" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #1}
Wells-TheBalladTree, pp. 168-169, "The Two Magicians" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #1, but somewhat changed}
Buchan-ABookOfScottishBallads 47, "The Twa Magicians" (1 text)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads, p. 159, "The Twa Magicians" (1 text)
DT 44, MAGICN2*
Roud #1350
RECORDINGS:
A. L. Lloyd, "Two Magicians" (on Lloyd3, BirdBush1, BirdBush2) [tune by Lloyd]
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Hares on the Mountain" (theme)
cf. "Les Metamorphoses (Metamorphoses)" (theme of transformations)
cf. "Je Caresserai La Belle Par Amitie" (theme of transformations)
NOTES [470 words]: Sharp bowdlerizes "gain my maidenhead" to "change my maiden name" (!) - PJS
Bronson believes that the ballad "Hares on the Mountain" is a very-much-worn-down version of this piece. This is, at best, currently beyond proof; personally, I don't believe it.
The idea of gaining a lover who is changing shape has ancient roots. We find it in Ovid's "Metamorphoses;" where Peleus (the father of Achilles) finds Thetis in a cave and attempts to couple with her. To defeat him, she turns into a bird, a tree, and a tigress. The latter scares him off, but eventually he catches her while asleep (XI.225ff.; the story also occurs in Quintus of Smyrna's account of the War with Troy, book III, starting around line 620). And Zeus, of course, used myriad guises to gain access to women.
There is a Welsh equivalent, which some may also have encountered in partial form in Lloyd Alexander's Chronicles of Prydain. It concerns the great bard Taliesin. He was born Gwion Bach. As a young man, he served the witch Ceridwen (Ceridwen, Keridwen, Keritwen; Mercantante/Dow, p. 227; according to Bromwich, pp. 312-313, the name means "Fair and Loved," even though she was a hag, and so has led to assorted emendations to the story, which I don't buy) -- and once, while brewing a wisdom potion of hers, swallowed some of it and became wise. She sought to punish him, and they engaged in a shape-shifting contest. Finally, he became a kernel of grain, and she a hen that swallowed him -- but he was reborn after she swallowed him, and became Taliesin (Alexander, p. 285).
The tale of "The Magician and His Pupil" (Thompson type 325; see Thompson, pp. 69-70) also involves this sort of competitive transformation and may involve a similar ending.
For other examples, see Lyle, p. 138.
Stewart, p. 41, proposes an alternate explanation, that the song derives from early Christian legends of saints combatting shape-changing priests. In medieval Catholic England, it is true that these stories would likely have been better-known than Ovid. But the parallels are less close. In any case, it seems to me there are plenty of shape-changing tales in folklore which might provide the root of this song!
Lyle, p. 81, suggests that this is a "levelling" ballad, with the low-status blacksmith pursuing a member of (presumably) the gentry or even the nobility. Unfortunately, with so few substantial British texts to work from, I think this has to remain speculation. She also suggests (p. 82) that the song is a "conception story"-- that is, a tale of how some significant figure came to be born. I agree that it has many of the hallmarks of such a tale (as witness the links to the Taliesin story), but of course the drawback is that there is no hint in the extant versions that the lady becomes pregnant, let alone bears a noteworthy child. - RBW
Bibliography

- Bromwich: Rachel Bromwich, editor, Trioedd Ynys Prydein: The Triads of the Island of Britain, fourth edition [posthumous, with a new preface by Morfydd E. Owen], University of Twa Sisters, The [Child 10]

DESCRIPTION: A knight woos two (three) sisters, choosing the younger. The older drowns the younger. Her body is recovered and made into an instrument by a passing miller/musician. As the knight prepares to wed the older sister, the instrument sings out the truth.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1656 (broadside)

KEYWORDS: courting homicide music minstrel sister drowning

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber),England(All)) US(Ap,MA,MW,NE,SE,So,SW) Canada(Newf) West Indies(Jamaica)

REFERENCES (79 citations):

Child 10, "The Twa Sisters" (25 texts, 3 tunes) {Bronson's #79, #12, #14}

Bronson 10, "The Twa Sisters" (97 versions plus 6 in addenda)

Bronson-SingingTraditionOfChildsPopularBallads 10, "The Two Sisters" (14 versions: #7, #13.2, #28, #35, #42, #49, #50, #53, #55, #61, #67, #79, #81, #83)

Chambers-ScottishBallads, pp. 265-267, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text)

Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 206-210, "The Cruel Sister" (1 text)

Lyle/McAlpine/McLucas-SongRepertoireOfAmeliaAndJaneHarris, p. 171, "Benonie" (1 fragment, 1 tune) {Bronson's #14}

Riewerts-BalladRepertoireOfAnnaGordon-MrsBrownOfFalkland, pp. 200-205. "The two Sisters/The Cruel Sister" (2 parallel texts plus a photo of the badly-transcribed tune; also two reconstructed tunes on p. 290)

Greig/Duncan 213, "Binorie" (19 texts, 17 tunes) {B=Bronson's #4, E=#21, G=#16?, H=#6, I=#13, J=#5?, K=#8?, L=#11, M=#9, N=#10, P=#17, Q=#18, O=#19}

Buchan/Moreira-TheGlenbuchatBallads, pp. 29-31, "Hey a Rose Malindey" (1 text)

Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 8-9, "Binnorie; or, The Cruel Sister" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #7}

Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 118-119, "The Barkshire Tragedy" (1 text, 1 tune)

Barry/Eckstorm/Smyth-BritishBalladsFromMaine pp. 40-46, "The Two Sisters" (5 texts plus 2 fragments, one from the same informant as one of the texts, 1 tune) {Bronson's #68}

Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissouriFolkloreSociety, pp. 16-24, "The Twa Sisters" (6 texts, 3 tunes) {Bronson's #38, #46, #30}

Randolph 4, "The Miller's Daughters" (8 texts, 5 tunes) {A=Bronson's #66, C=#32, E=#70, F=#94, G=#51}

Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 18-21, "The Miller's Daughters" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's #4C) {Bronson's #32}

Ritchie-FolksSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 57, "Bow Your Bend to Me" (1 text, 1 tune)

Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 6A, "The Twin Sisters"; 6B, "Two Sisters" (1 text plus 1 fragment, 2 tunes)

Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart1 15, "Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune)

Grimes-StoriesFromTheAnneGrimesCollection, p. 48, "The Jealous Sister" (1 text)

Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 2, "The Two Sisters" (2 texts, 2 tunes, but the "B" text is "Peter and I Went Down the Lane") {A=Bronson's #22}

Gray-SongsAndBalladsOfTheMaineLumberjacks, pp. 75-77, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text, plus an excerpts from Child's "B" text to pad out the story.

Flanders/Olney-BalladsMigrantInNewEngland, pp. 209-210, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 3-4, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #54}
Flanders-AncientBalladsTraditionallySungInNewEngland1, pp. 150-170, "The Two Sisters" (5 English texts plus a fragment; also two variants of a Polish text plus tune and translation; 4 tunes for the English versions) {A=Bronson's #96, B=#54}
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, pp. 393-394, "(The Twa Sisters)" (1 text, probably an excerpt)
Davis-TraditionalBalladsOfVirginia 5, "The Twa Sisters" (9 texts plus 2 fragments, 6 tunes entitled "The Old Lord of the North Country, or The Three Sisters," "The Old Woman of the North Countrie," "The Two Sisters, or Sister Kate, or The Miller annd the Mayor's Daughter," "The Two Sisters"; 2 more versions mentioned in Appendix A) {Bronson's #25, #71, #40, #55, #27, #39}
Davis-MoreTraditionalBalladsOfVirginia 6, pp. 35-50, "The Two Sisters" (10 texts, 7 tunes)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 4, "The Two Sisters" (3 texts plus 2 fragments)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 4, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text plus 4 excerpts, 5 tunes)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #147, "The Two Sisters" (3 texts, 2 tunes) {Bronson's #87, #88}
Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs, p. 27, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Chappell-FolksongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 3, "The Two Sisters" (1 short text)
Jones-MinstrelOfTheAppalachians-Bascom-Lamar-Lunsford, p. 201, "Old Man in the North Country (The Two Sisters)" (1 text, 1 tune) {same source as Bronson's #23, but the transcription is different}
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, pp. 29-30, "Bow and Balance" (1 text, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, pp. 82-83, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 3, p. 68, "The Two Sisters" (1 text)
Hudson-FolkTunesFromMississippi 25, "The Two Sisters" (1 fragment, 1 tune) {Bronson's #76}
Scarborough-ASongCatcherInSouthernMountains, pp. 164-165, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text, locally titled "The Two Sisters")
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 4, "The Twa Sisters" (1 short text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #78}
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 1, pp. 1-2, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 6, "The Two Sisters" (4 texts plus a fragment, 1 tune) {Bronson's #44}
Carey-MarylandFolkLegendsAndFolkSongs, pp. 93-94, "Balance Unto Me"; p. 95, "Bow Down" (2 texts)
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 3, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text)
Peacock, pp. 179-180, "The Bonny Busk of London" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 74-78, "The Twa Sisters" (3 texts)
Leach-HeritageBookOfBallads, pp. 11-13, "The Two Sisters" (1 text)
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, pp. 150-156, "The Two Sisters"; "The Two Sisters (Wind and Rain)" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 23, "Binnorie" (1 text)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 98, "The Two Sisters That Loved One Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #2, "The Two Sisters" (1 text)
Niles-BalladBookOfJohnJacobNiles 7, "The Twa Sisters" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
Gummere-OldEnglishBallads, pp. 171-173+343, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 5 "The Two Sisters" (14 texts, 14 tunes) {Bronson's #91, #55, #27, #39, #74, #73, #50, #34, #45, #63, #59, #47, #65, #41}
Sharp/Karpeles-EightyEnglishFolkSongs 6, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune -- a composite text) {Bronson's #45}
Wells-TheBalladTree, pp. 149-150, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 90, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #67}
Hodgart-FaberBookOfBallads, pp. 32, "The Two Sisters" (1 text)
Buchan-ABookOfScottishBallads 3, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune in appendix) {Bronson's #79}
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 3, "The Twa Sisters" (3 texts, 1 tune) {Bronson's #43}
Cox/Hercog/Halpert/Boswell-WVirginia-A, #2A-B, pp. 10-13, "There Was an Old Farmer," "All Bow Down" (2 texts, 1 tune) {Bronson's #69}
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5, pp. 86-88, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Thomas-DevilsDitties, pp. 70-73, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #48}
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 10-12, "The Sister's Murder" (1 text, 1 tune)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, pp. 32-33, "The Lord of the North Country" (1 text, 1 tune); pp. 164-165, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 430-432, "The Bonnie Mill-Dams o' Binorrie"; pp. 459-460, "Hey the Rose and the Lindsay, O" (2 texts, 1 tune)
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 3, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text plus two variant verses, 1 tune)
Whiting-TraditionalBritishBallads 9, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text)
HarvardClassics-EnglishPoetryChaucerToGray, pp. 54-56, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text)
Abrahams/Foss-AngloAmericanFolksongStyle, pp. 20-24, "The Two Sisters"; "The Two Sisters (The Wind and Rain)" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Pound-AmericanBalladsAndSongs, 4, pp. 11-12, "The Two Sisters"; pp. 12-13, "The Old Man in the North Countree" (2 texts)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads, pp. 260-261, "The Cruel Sister" (1 text)
Jekyll-JamaicanSongAndStory 3, "King Daniel" (1 text, 1 tune)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 56-59, "The Two Sisters"; "Rollin' a-Rollin'"; "Wind and Rain" (3 texts)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 224, "The Two Sisters" (1 text)
DT 10, BINORI* TWOSIS* TWOSIS5* WINDRAIN* SWANSWIM* TWOSIS8 TWOSIS9 TWOSIS10 TWOSIS11
Tristram P. Coffin and Hennig Cohen, _Folklore in America: Tales, Songs, Superstitions, Proverbs, Riddles, Games, Folk Drama and Folk Festivals_, Doubleday, 1966, pp. 49-50, "The Two Sisters" (1 text, 1 tune)
Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928; #427, "The Twa Sisters" (1 text)
Roud #8
RECORDINGS:
Horton Barker, "The Two Sisters" (AAFS 33); "Bow and Balance" (on Barker01) {Bronson's #67} Anita Best and Pamela Morgan, "The Two Sisters" (on NFABestPMorgan01)
Loman D. Cansler, "The Two Sisters" (on Cansler1)
Lula Curry, "The Squire's Daughter" (on JThomas01)
Charlotte Decker, "The Bonny Busk of London" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Bradley Kincaid, "The Two Sisters" (Supertone 9212, 1928)
Eunice Yeatts MacAlexander, "The Cruel Sister" (on FarMtns1)
Jean Ritchie, "The Two Sisters" (AFS; on LC57); "There Lived an Old Lord" (on JRitchie02)
Kilby Snow, "Wind and Rain" (on KSnow1)
Lucy Stewart, "The Swan Swims So Bonnie O" (on LStewart1)
John Strachan, "The Twa Sisters" (on FSBBAL1)
John Strachan, Dorothy Fourbister, Ethel Findlater [composite] "The Twa Sisters" (on FSBBAL1) (cf. Bronson's #16.2 in addenda)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Trois Graines de Peppernell" (plot)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Bows of London
The Cruel Sister
Rolling a-Rolling
The Wind and Rain
The Swan Swims Bonnie
The Old Lord by the Northern Sea
Bowie, Bowerie
The Little Drowned Girl
Lay the Bent to the Bonny Broom
Old Man from the North Countree
The Youngest Daughter
Minorie
The Mull Dams o' Binorrie
NOTES [839 words]: The refrains sung with this ballad vary tremendously, but virtually all versions have a refrain of some sort. - PJS
And generally a lyrically attractive one ("the swan swims bonnie," etc.), as has been pointed out by several scholars. I wonder if there isn't something about this ballad that encourages variation; Jean Ritchie reports that, even though they presumably learned the song from the same source, her family had twelve distinct versions. - RBW

The Kilby Snow recording is an unusual one; it contains every element of, "The Twa Sisters" except the sisters; the murderer in this case is the girl's lover. Snow reconstructed the song from early childhood memories of his grandfather (a Cherokee) singing it, though, so it may have diverged at that point. - PJS

Compare the first verse lines of Child 10.H to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 479, "There were three sisters in a hall" (earliest date in Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes is c.1630)

Child 10.H: "There were three sisters lived in a hall,... And there came a lord to court them all...." Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 479 is a riddle beginning "There were three sisters in a hall, There came a knight amongst them all ...." - BS

This item is also found as Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #702, p. 275, but this appears to be simply a greeting rhyme unrelated to the various rather murderous ballads (notably Child 10 and 11) using these lines.

Child of course finds many analogies to this ballad. Joseph Jacobs, collector, English Fairy Tales, originally published 1890; revised edition 1898 (I use the 1967 Dover paperback reprint), on p. 236 stresses particularly Grimm #28, "The Singing Bone," in which a murdered man's bone tells the tale of his murder. The similarity to this song is obvious -- but it applies only to this one motif (Thompson E632, "Reincarnation as musical instrument"; E632.1, "Speaking bones of murdered person reveal murder," which Thompson lists as being found in cultures as far-separated as Japan, India, and the Ibo of Nigeria); the conditions leading up to the murder are quite different. The tale of "The Singing Bone" is Aarne-Thompson catalo tale-type #780.

Furthermore, the idea of bones-used-as-stringed-instrument also shows up in the Kalevala, e.g., Vainamoinen uses the bones of a pike to build a kantele, and strings another kantele with the hair of a singing girl. When he leaves the world, the kantele remembers him. This occurs not only in the final Kalevala but in Lonrot's much shorter first edition; see the summary in Juha Y. Pentikainen, Kalevala Mythology, expanded edition, 1987, translated and edited by Ritva Poom, Indiana University Press, 1989, pp. 55-58 (the incidents are in poems 22, 29, and 32 of the "Old Kalevala"; in the revised Kalevala, the making of the kantele from the pie is in poem 40, and the rest de-emphasized. Interestingly, in poem 41, no one but Vanamoinen can play his kantele, which reminds me faintly of the versions of this ballad in which the fiddle can play only the one song). - RBW

Jekyll-JamaicanSongAndStory's "King Daniel" is classified by Jekyll as an "Annancy" story. It is a cante fable following the Ashanti (West African) tradition: King Daniel is courting Miss Wenchy. Miss Lumpy is jealous and throws Miss Wenchy in a pond where Miss Wenchy drowns. A parrot sees the murder. Miss Lumpy tries to bribe "pretty Polly" with a gold cage with a silver door. The parrot rejects the offer and reports the murder to King Daniel and takes him to the pond where Miss Wenchy's body is found. King Daniel executes Miss Lumpy. The only parts of the story that are sung is the parrot's rejection and report of the crime: "No, no, I don't want it, for the same you serve another one you will serve me the same" and "I brought, I brought a news to the young King Daniel; Miss Lumpy kill Miss Wenchy loss, on becount of Young King Daniel."

Broadwood, looking at the sung text and the parrot as messenger connects this story to Child 4 and Child 68 because of the part played in those ballads by the parrot as messenger (Lucy E. Broadwood, "English Airs and Motifs in Jamaica" in Walter Jekyll, Jamaican Song and Story (New York: Dover Publications, 1966 (Reprint of David Nutt, 1907)), #3, p. 286, "King Daniel"). The parrot's rationale -- you will serve me the same -- is the same as found in Child 68. However, looking at the messenger as the critical part of the story ignores the plot of story itself and another Caribbean [Crucian] example of Child 81 in which a parrot is introduced in place of the porter as a tale carrier (see note there re "Matty Gru"). In "King Daniel" the parrot as messenger replaces the fiddle made of the victim's bones and hair as messenger. My point is that the form of the messenger and the nature of the bribe is a sure indicator that the cante fable tradition has been affected by the Child parrot-as-messenger motif but the plot itself shows how the story should be classified within the Child tradition. - BS

Last updated in version 6.0
Twangman, The

DESCRIPTION: Twang hawker and rag-picker Mickey Baggs courts a girl who "kep' a Traycle Billy depot." Baggs wins her heart taking her to play "Billy-in-the-bowl." So "with his twang kni-ef [twangman] tuk the li-ef Of the poor ould gather'em-up!"

AUTHOR: probably Michael J. Moran (Zozimus)

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads)

KEYWORDS: courting homicide humorous

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (4 citations):
OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads, pp. 231-232, "The Twangman" (1 text, 1 tune)
Behan-IrelandSings, #91, "The Twangman's Revenge" (1 text, 1 tune, modified)
DT, TWANGMAN

ADDITIONAL: Frank Harte _Songs of Dublin_, second edition, Ossian, 1993, pp. 44-45, "The Twangman" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [202 words]: In response to queries in earlier editions of the Index, Tom O'Leary informs me that "twang" is toffee. He adds that a "'Traycle depot' [was] a sweet shop, which in this case, was near to, or on one side of the Carlisle Bridge, Dublin." Harte, on the other hand, says that it was Treacle Billy that was the toffee and twang another sort of sweetmeat. It makes little difference; the twangman certainly sold toffee.
The song says that the twangman only sells his wares "when the mileetia wasn't wantin"; this is no particular constraint on his schedule, as militia in this period was a very part-time organization except when there was a rebellion in process. - RBW, (BS)
I might add that Eric Partridge A Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English (combined fifth edition with dictionary and supplement), Macmillan, 1961, in his supplement says that "twang" means opium in twentieth century Australian slang. But this usage seems to be more recent than O Lochlainn's text of the song.

Note also that Harte questions whether this is actually by Zozimus. But his evidence is negative: The song is not mentioned in the Zozimus memoirs. For background on Zozimus, see the notes to "The Finding of Moses." - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2

File: OLoc231B

Twankydillo (I -- The Blacksmith's Song)

DESCRIPTION: Singer toasts the blacksmith, the pretty girl "who kindles a fire all in her own breast," and the Queen. Chorus: "Which makes his bright hammer to rise and to fall/There's the Old Cole and the Young Cole and the Old Cole of all/Twankydillo..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1889 (Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer raises a health to the blacksmith who works at his anvil while the boy blows the bellows; if a gentleman calls with a horse to be shod, the smith can be persuaded to work by giving him drink. Singer also toasts the pretty girl "who kindles a fire all in her own breast," and to "our sovereign the Queen" and all the Royal Family. Chorus: "Which makes his bright hammer to rise and to fall/There's the Old Cole and the Young Cole and the Old Cole of all/Twankydillo, twankydillo...And the roaring pair of blow-pipes, made from the green willow"

KEYWORDS: love work drink nonballad worker royalty

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South))

REFERENCES (9 citations):
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 138-139, "Twankydillo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 135A, "Twankydillo" (1 text)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 166, "Twanky Dillo" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 373, "Twankydillo")
Copper-ASongForEverySeason, pp. 262-263, "Twanky Dillo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 286, "Twankydillo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #5, "Twankydillo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #102, "Twankydillo" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, TWNKDLLO*

ADDITIONAL: Jacqueline Simpson, _The Folklore of Sussex_, B. T. Batsford, 1973, p. 139, "(Here's a health to the jolly blacksmith)" (1 short text)

Roud #2409
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Twankydillo (II)" (refrain) and references there
NOTES [190 words]: "The aim of the ballad was twofold: praise of the British blacksmith, and the glorification of the beverage manufactured by the British brewer,...' Oh, he who drinks good ale is the prince of good fel-LOWS!'" (source: "The Chronicles of Heatherthorp" in Baily's Magazine of Sports and Pastimes (London, 1870 ("Digitized by Google")), December 1869, Vol. XVII, p. 303). As for the word "Twankydillo", Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs quotes Bunting (1840) about a "song about a goose and a shepherd's dog, arranged by J. Hook. It had a refrain of 'Twankidillo, and he played on the merry bagpipes beneath the green willow.'" The last lines of a couple of Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs verses is "... Twankydillo, A roaring pair of bagpipes made of the green willow." I assume the reference is to Edward Bunting, The Ancient Music of Ireland (Mineola, 2000 (Dover reprint of 1840 Dublin edition)), but I haven't yet found it there. There is a long indecisive thread on "Meaning of Twanky Dillo" at Digital Tradition. - BS
Hammond, in 1906, reported a Dorset song, "The Life of a Shepherd," with the "Twankydillo" chorus. - PJS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: K286

Twankydillo (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Twankydillo ... he [the shepherd] played on his merry bagpipes." If his sheep go astray his dog will fetch them. If he meets the old shepherd's horse he'll cut off its tail "close up to his erse"; if he meets his wife he'll cuckold the old shepherd.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle)
KEYWORDS: sex nonballad dog horse sheep shepherd
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 135B, "Twankydillo" (1 text)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, p. 105, "Twankydillo!" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2409
NOTES [78 words]: "Twankydillo (I -- The Blacksmith)" shares part of a chorus with this song: "Twankydillo ... A roaring pair of bagpipes made of green willow." The pair of bagpipes is a reasonable double entendre applied to a blacksmith, but seems a stretch applied to a shepherd. Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle: "It appears to me as if the 'Twankydillo' refrain has a separate existence from the various stanzas to which it has been attached, and it may be older than any of these." - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: ReCi135B

Twas Aneuch to Gar the Maister Tak

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas aneuch to gar the maister tak Rheumatics in his toes"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: disease
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1883, "'Twas Aneuch to Gar the Maister Tak" (1 fragment)
Roud #13569
NOTES [11 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 fragment. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81883

'Twas Getting Late Up in September

DESCRIPTION: In Labrador, "'Twas getting late up in September"; the singer meets a girl come to fill her buckets at the fountain. He proposes, she accepts, "a priest came up on the steamer," they marry and "live in a nice little cottage, Down by the side of the sea"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (Peacock)
KEYWORDS: courting love marriage wedding
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Peacock, pp. 601-602, "'Twas Getting Late Up in September" (1 text, 1 tune)
Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, "'Twas Getting Late Up in September" (1 text, 1 tune): p 78 in the 3rd edition
Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, p. 104, "'Twas Getting Late Up In September" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST Doyl3078 (Partial)
Roud #7288
File: Doyl3078

'Twas in the Month of August In the Middle of July (She Said the Same to Me)
DESCRIPTION: "'Twas in the month of August, or the middle of July, One evening I went walking, a fair maiden I did spy; She was mournin' for her true love, who was in Amerikee, Agh, divil a word I said to her, and she said the same to me!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: humorous nonsense paradox separation emigration
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) US(MW)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1704, "'Twas in the Month of August" (1 text)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 38-39, "She Said the Same to Me" (1 short text, 1 tune)
DT, SAIDSAME
Roud #13616
NOTES [164 words]: Roud has five references for numbers #13523 (Sandburg) and #13616. Besides Sandburg and Greig/Duncan8, he has "It Was on a Month of Sunday" ("It was on the month of Sunday in the city of July"), "On a Cold and Frosty Morning" ("A cold and frosty morning in the middle of July"), and "The 25th of Liverpool" ("On the 24th of Liverpool, in the city of July"), all from recordings. It seems reasonable to me that these are all the same song. Each verse of Sandburg and Greig/Duncan8 is nonsense, on the order of "Three Little Girls, À-Skating Went" and "'Twas a dark and stormy night and the moon was shining bright ...." Greig/Duncan8 shares Sandburg's first two lines in a first verse "'Twas in the month of August, In the middle of July, The snow was falling thick and fast The weather being dry." The singer hires a tramway car to cross the sea, falls in love with a French girl from a few miles out of Tipperary, and tells about his father "being a dairymaid, Aboard a Sunday boat." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: San038

'Twas in the Pleasant Month of May
DESCRIPTION: "'Twas in the pleasant month of May, When flowers began a-springing, The little lambs did skip and dance, And the birds began a-singing"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: flowers animal
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 805, "'Twas in the Pleasant Month of May" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #6206
NOTES [110 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan4 fragment. I think the Greig/Duncan4 fragments of "'Twas on the Twenty Second of March" and "'Twas in the Pleasant Month of May" are so brief and use such standard imagery that lumping them together is not justified. See also, for example, "Girls of the Shamrock Shore" and the note about O'Conor's text of "The Shamrock Shore." - BS
It is possible that this is the same as the song we have indexed as "The Merry Haymakers" (Roud #153), which also sometimes appears as "The Pleasant Month of May." But that is English, and Twas in the Town of Parsboro

DESCRIPTION: Drunk in Parsboro, "the gallant slugger Dunkerson ... challenged Baxter [McLellan] there to fight in Bill Mahoney's barn." Baxter beats him "inside of fifteen seconds." Dunkerson staggers home and cannot get a drink, "badly licked by a sober... man"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Creighton-NovaScotia)
KEYWORDS: fight drink
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 148, "'Twas in the Town of Parsboro" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1843

NOTES [48 words]: This song is item dH44 in Laws's Appendix II. Creighton-NovaScotia: Parsboro is a town in Nova Scotia. The song refers to "when the Scott Act was in force." The Scott Act, or Canada Temperance Act was passed in 1878 (source: The Prohibition entry for The Canadian Encyclopedia site). - BS

Twas of One Summer's Morning (The Maid's Lament)

DESCRIPTION: The singer is told "my love was quite gone away" He says, "how shall I get married?" He hugs and kisses her "Till she had changed her mind She changes with the weathercock." "How shall I get married"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople)
KEYWORDS: love marriage rejection nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople, pp. 233-234, "(O 'twas of one summer's morning)" (1 fragment)

Roud #1684

File: ReSh233A

'Twas on the Napanee

DESCRIPTION: A young man leaves his parents' home to become a raftsman; he is drowned while rafting saw logs. His parents and friends mourn

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks)
KEYWORDS: lumbering death mourning work logger
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
* Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 54, "'Twas on the Napanee" (1 text)
* Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 81, "'Twas on the Napanee" (1 text)

Roud #4057

CROSS-REFERENCES:
* cf. "The Jam on Gerry's Rock" [Laws C1] (plot)

NOTES [309 words]: In the mid-nineteenth century, a young man named Anthony Barrett was killed on the Napanee river. Beck states that this song seems to have been composed in Canada around 1860; it was collected from a Mrs. Barrett, of Mt. Pleasant, Michigan -- possibly a relative of the deceased? - PJS

It would be difficult to prove that Barrett was the subject of this song; he is never named. Beck's text (apparently the only one known) does not give a name. It merely says that the young man was from Bedford, that he was the youngest son of living parents, that he left home on May 24 of an unnamed year and died on June 2, and that the death took place on the Napanee.
The Napanee River, and the town of the same name, are on the north side of Lake Ontario, about a fifth of the way from Kingston to Toronto. There were lumber drives in that part of Ontario in the nineteenth century. Bedford, Ontario is a small town north of Kingston, a substantial distance away from Napanee; it appears that it is in good timber country. It is also possible that "Bedford" might be an error for, e.g., "Belleville," the next large town west of Napanee.
Although we cannot prove that Anthony Barrett is the man intended, it seems highly likely. Anthony Barrett was the great, great, great uncle of James Barrett, who wrote to me in August 2010 and informed me that "Anthony Barrett... died rafting logs on the Napanee River, June 2, 1880. Beck states that this song seems to have been composed in Canada around 1860; but it is actually 1880, and the reference indicates that it was collected from a Mrs. Barrett, of Mt. Pleasant, Michigan -- possibly a relative of the deceased. This Mrs. Barrett of Mount Pleasant would be Anthony Barrett's sister-in-law, Margaret Barrett, wife of Martin H. Barrett."
As "'Twas on the Napene," this song is item dC36 in Laws's Appendix II. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: Be054

'Twas on the Twenty Second of March

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas on the twenty second of March In the middle of the Spring O, When merry lambs began to bleat, And birds began to sing O"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: animal
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 804, "'Twas on the Twenty Second of March" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #6205
NOTES [61 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan4 fragment.
I think the Greig/Duncan4 fragments of "'Twas on the Twenty Second of March" and "'Twas in the Pleasant Month of May" are so brief and use such standard imagery that lumping them together is not justified. See also, for example, "Girls of the Shamrock Shore" and O'Conor's text of "The Shamrock Shore." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD4804

'Twas on Yin Night in Sweet July

DESCRIPTION: Three lads courting one night at a farm climb a ladder to the bedroom window and stay till two. They hear the father coming upstairs, go out the window and pull down the ladder. The farmer finds his ladder broken. The cook identifies the escapees.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (Willie Scott SA1962.027)
KEYWORDS: courting sex nightvisit father cook
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOT heGlen, pp. 39-41, 149, "'Twas on Yin Night in Sweet July" (1 text,
1 tune)
an Dualchais/Kist o Riches accessed 30 September 2013 from http://www.tobarandualchais.co.uk/fullrecord/57715/1 (one verse, chorus and commentary)
Wat Ramage, "The Brundenlaws," School of Scottish Studies Archive SA1977.205,Tobar an Dualchais/Kist o Riches accessed 30 September 2013 from http://www.tobarandualchais.co.uk/fullrecord/42570/1
Roud #9257
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Brundenlaws
NOTES [35 words]: McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOT heGlen: "The Brundenlaws... is a farm lying close to Jeddart (Jedburgh)."
Twas You, Sir

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas you that kissed the pretty girl ... I'm sure you kissed the pretty girl ... Oh, sir; no, sir; How can you wrong me so sir? I did not kiss the pretty girl, But I know who."
AUTHOR: Lord Mornington (source: _The Universal Songster_)
EARLIEST DATE: 1834 (_The Universal Songster_)
KEYWORDS: courting nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 301, "'Twas You, Sir" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 183)
- _The Universal Songster or Museum of Mirth (London, 1834)_, Vol I, p. 170, "'Twas You, Sir" ("'Twas you, sir, 'twas you, sir") (1 text)
Roud #1333
NOTES [53 words]: Oliphant: "Music by W. Cranford, one of the Singing-men of St Paul's Cathedral."
Wildridge at Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO quoting Williams: "They never popular with the ordinary village minstrels and were seldom, if ever, heard at the inns", referring to "Come Hither, Tom," and "'Twas You, Sir," and "Poor Johnny's Dead." - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: WT301

Tweedledum and Tweedledee

DESCRIPTION: "Tweedledum and Tweedledee Agreed to have a battle, For Tweedledum said Tweedledee Had spoiled his nice new rattle. Just then flew by a monstrous crow, As (big/black) as a tar-barrel, Which frightened both the heroes so, They quite forgot their quarrell."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1805 (Harris, Original Ditties for the Nursery, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: battle bird
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 521, "Tweedledum and Tweedledee" (1 text)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotationsMotherGoose #167, p. 125, "(Tweedledum and Tweedledee)"
- Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 222, "Tweedledum and Tweedledee" (1 text)
Roud #19800
NOTES [73 words]: Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes reports that John Byrom (or Swift, or Pope, or SOMEONE) coined the names "Tweedledum" and "Tweedledee" to describe the composers Bononcini and Handel in a quarrel where outsiders couldn't tell which side was which. But this does not explain how the two became characters in this poem. It does not seem to have been particularly well-known -- until, of course, Lewis Carroll got his hands on it. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.3
File: 002521

Twelfth of July, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer tells how Montreal Irish lick the "yellowbacks." On July 12, Fawcett fires a revolver. Hackett fires back, but is mortally wounded. Listeners are reminded that King Billy "tore down Catholic churches..." but they can't do it in Montreal
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (recording, Tom Brandon; also in Fowke/Ontario)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer tells how the Irish Catholics of Montreal licked the "yellowbacks." On July 12 an Orangemen's parade clashes with Unionists; one Fawcett fires a revolver, swearing to "kill every papist dog." Hackett fires back, but is mortally wounded. Listeners are exhorted to remember that King Billy and his supporters "tore down Catholic churches from Lewis to Donegal," but they can't get away with it in Montreal.

KEYWORDS: hate battle fight violence death homicide Ireland

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 12, 1877: Clash between Irish Catholics and Protestants in Montreal
FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke-TraditionalSingersAndSongsFromOntario 38, "The Twelfth of July" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Tom Brandon, "The Twelfth of July" (1957, on Ontario1)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Belfast Riot" (Canadian political situation)

NOTES [323 words]: Despite the song, there was no Orangemen's parade on July 12 (the day when Irish Protestants celebrate William III's victory in the battle of the Boyne); according to newspaper accounts, plans for a parade had been dropped due to rising tensions. However, brawling broke out in a mixed crowd of Orangemen and Unionists in Victoria Square; in the fight, Francis Hackett was fatally shot.

It is ironic to note that many of Durham's reforms, such as local representation, were liberal and have become universal in the years since his time (see James L. Stokesbury, Navy & Empire, Morrow, 1983, p. 228). His problem was that he, like many reformers, talked to the "wrong" people, so the elites despised him, but he didn't know how to appeal to the general population.

In addition to the disturbance of 1877 apparently cited here, Graeme Wynn reports that "Limbs were bruised and heads broken when Protestant Orangemen celebrated the victory of William of Orange over Irish Catholic forces at the Battle of the Boyne on July 12, 1690, clashed with 'Green' Catholics in and around the Irish districts of several cities [in Canada] in the 1830s and 1840s." (From Craig Brown, editor, The Illustrated History of Canada, p. 267).

Last updated in version 2.6
File: Rc12July

Twelfth of May, The

DESCRIPTION: "'Tis always on the twelfth of May, We meet and dress so gaily; For tonight will merry be (x3), We'll sing and dance so gaily." "The sun is up and the morn is bright." "Yonder stands a lovely lady." A collection of floating material to celebrate May
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Palmer); said to be from Morley, c. 1900
KEYWORDS: nonballad floatingverses
FOUND IN: Britain(England(West))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Roy Palmer, _The Folklore of Warwickshire_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 162, "(no title)" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Wheel of Fortune (Dublin City, Spanish Lady)" (floating lyrics)
File: RPFW162

Twelve Days of Christmas, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer's true love gives gifts throughout Christmastide, with the quantity of gifts increasing each day
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1780 (Mirth without Mischief)
KEYWORDS: Christmas cumulative
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber),Wales) US(Ap,NE,SE,So) Canada(West)
REFERENCES (24 citations):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 512-513, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text)
Flanders/Olney-BalladsMigrantInNewEngland, pp. 213-216, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, pp. 86-87, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 52-54, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-OneHundredEnglishFolksongs 96, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 729, "Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 fragment)
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 38, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text plus a Cornish translation, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 52, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (3 texts, though two are summarized)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 52, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (2 excerpts, 2 tunes)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #218, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 36, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 94, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (2 texts, apparently summarized)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 124, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-SingingFamilyOfTheCumberlands, p. 172, "Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 100, "The first day of Christmas" (3 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnnotatedMotherGoose #424, pp. 196-199, "(The First Day of Christmas)"
Greig/Duncan3 637, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text)
Montgomerie/Montgomerie-ScottishNurseryRhymes 123, "Thirteen Yule Days" (1 text)
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 246, "Good King Wenceslas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 384, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" (1 text)
DT, XMAS12DY*
ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Popular Rhymes of Scotland (Edinburgh, 1870 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 42-43, "Yule Days"
Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928, notes to #258, ("On the First Day of Christmas") (1 text)
Roud #68
RECORDINGS:
John Thomas, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" [sung in Welsh] (on Saskatchewan01)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The First Day of Yule" (form)
SAME TUNE:
The Ten Days of Finals (File: EM373)
Russian Convoy Escort's Song (File:Tawn068)
Kiwi Twelve Days of Christmas (New Zealand parodies) (Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, p. 297)
NOTES [497 words]: Chambers, p. 47, cites his source as "a large manuscript collection of hitherto unpublished Scottish songs, by Mr P. Buchan." - BS
A legend (passed to me by a friend, with no authorities cited) claims that this was a covert Catholic catechism, composed to sneak by the Protestant authorities.
The Baring-Goulds offer some minor supporting evidence, in that a partridge (for the first day) is "known as a bird that deserts its young" -- hence the idea of people who have deserted their faith. Possible, I suppose -- but clearly most people who have sung the song know nothing of such things, and many of their heavily-folk-processed versions would not be suitable for such purposes (assuming the original was).
Ian Bradley in the _Penguin Book of Carols_, on the other hand, claims it's a drinking forfeit: You have to remember all the gifts offered by previous givers and add one of your own. The problem with this theory, of course, is that the gifts are stereotyped.
They may be even more stereotyped than we realize, in fact. The Baring-Goulds argue that the "five gold rings" of the fifth verse are in fact the rings on the neck of a pheasant (though those rings aren't golden on any pheasant I've seen), meaning that the first seven gifts are all birds. They also argue for a French origin for the piece.
The Opies conclude that the meaning of the song "has yet to be satisfactorily explained." In light of the variety of explanations offered, I think that would be my conclusion also.
A handful of versions of this -- that of the Montgomeries, and Gomme's "B," and Chambers -- are clearly recensionally different: The verses begin, "The king sent his lady on the (first, second, third...) Yule day." The final line is, "Who learns my carol, and carries it away." This may include thirteen Yule days. I thought seriously about calling this a separate song -- but the general form appears related, and so are many of the gifts. Besides, most people would probably seek the song here. But it should be clear that it's a deliberate rewrite.
There is a partial French analogy, "La Perdriole" or "The Twelve Months of the Year"; it can be found in Maud Karpeles, Folk Songs of Europe, Oak, 1956, 1964, p. 130. It counts the months of the year rather than the days of Christmas, and many of the gifts are different -- but it ends (at least in the Karpeles translation) with "Two turtle-doves, And a little partridge... in the woods."
We should be cautious with the French song, though. Not all texts follow this format, though it appears all are cumulative. Grace Lee Nute, The Voyageur, 1931 (I use the 1987 Minnesota Historical Society Press edition), pp. 115-117, examines several versions of the song she calls "Une Perdriole." All are cumulative, but the number of cycles varies, and it counts days in the month of May, not months of the year. I am inclined to suspect that this song began simply as a cumulative song and was perhaps even adapted toward the English form. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: F0213

Twelve Gates to the City

DESCRIPTION: Spiritual: "Oh, what a beautiful city/There's twelve gates to the city, halleluiah"; "Three gates in the east, three gates in the west/Three gates in the north, three gates in the south."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Norfolk Jubilee Quartet)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Warren-EveryTimeIFeelTheSpirit, pp. 72-73, "Oh! What a Beautiful City" (1 text, 1 tune)
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 81, "Twelve Gates to the City" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cray-AshGrove, p. 39, "Twelve Gates to the City" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 349, "Twelve Gates to the City" (1 text)

DT, TLV Gateway

Roud #18908

RECORDINGS:
Marian Anderson, "Oh! What a Beautiful City" (Victor 10-1040, 1943)
Blind Gary [Davis], "Twelve Gates to the City" (ARC 7-04-55, 1937; rec. 1935) (1992, on "Harlem Street Singer," Prestige Bluesville CD OBCCD-547-2(BV-1015); recorded 1960)
Blind Boy Fuller w. Sonny Terry, "Twelve Gates to the City" (Vocalion 05465, 1940)
Galilee Singers, "What a Beautiful City" (Decca 7765, 1940)
Norfolk Jubilee Quartet, "Oh What a Beautiful City" (Paramount 12929, 1930; rec. 1929)
Pete Seeger & Sonny Terry, "Twelve Gates to the City" (on SeegerTerry)
Pete Seeger, "Beautiful City" (on PeteSeeger18); "Twelve Gates to the City" (on PeteSeeger42); "Oh, What a Beautiful City [Twelve Gates to the City]" (on PeteSeeger47)
Sonny Terry [pseud., Saunders Terrell], "Beautiful City" (on Terry01)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Tell My Mother" (floating lyrics)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Oh, What a Beautiful City

NOTES [75 words]: I know there are earlier recordings of this piece (it was a showpiece for Rev. Gary Davis), and probably earlier printed citations too, but I haven't found them yet. - PJS

The image of the heavenly city may possibly be derived from Chapter 21 of the Apocalypse, which mentions "the holy city, the new Jerusalem" (21:2), but the twelve gates of the city, three on each side, although mentioned in 21:3, are ultimately taken from Ezekiel 48:30-34. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
File: PSAFB081
Twelve Little S-Boats

DESCRIPTION: "Twelve little S-boats 'go to it' like Bevin, 'Starfish' goes a bit too far, Then there were eleven." And so on, though eight more boats, until "Four fearless S-boat, too far out to sea, 'Sunfish' bombed and scrap-heaped, We are only three."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 ("One Of Our Submarines," according to Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)

KEYWORDS: technology navy death

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, pp. 113-114, "Twelve Little 'S'-Boats" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Starfish Song" (subject: The S-boat Starfish)

NOTES [607 words]: According to Bagnasco, p. 110, the first four units of the "S" class of submarines were built at Chatham in 1930-1933. "In 1930, the Royal Navy, in accordance with the plan to modernize the submarine force, decided to build a new type of boat, suitable for employment in the North Sea and restricted waters such as the Mediterranean."

They were small for submarines of the 1930s: the first group (Seahorse, Starfish, Sturgeon, Swordfish) had a displacement of just 737 tons surfaced; their dimensions 202.5"x24"x10.5". They were slow, too, on the surface: 13.75 knots (although they could manage an impressive 10 knots submerged), and as built had a range of just 3800 miles at ten knots. They had six torpedo tubes, all in the nose, carried a 3" gun, and had crews of three dozen.

Despite their limited abilities, the British liked them and ended up building more than sixty of them (Bagnasco, p. 111). The next group of eight (Sealion, Salmon, Spearfish, Shark, Snapper, Sunfish, Sterlet, Seawolf), built starting in 1933, were six feet longer, and had a surface displacement of 768 tons, which serve primarily to increase their range to 6000 miles at ten knots. The British built 51 more S-boats later, but these were the ones available at the start of the war. They really didn't have the range to sail outside of European waters, but the Royal Navy found a way: "To achieve greater range for the boats bound for the Far East, several sections of the ballast tanks were adapted for use as fuel tanks.... Stores, especially food and ammunition were increased and were stored in any available space; a small ammunition locker was placed under the table in the officers' quarters" (Bagnasco, p. 112). It sounds like the song's complaint about them is dead on; when on Pacific duty, they must have been almost uninhabitable. Especially the early ones, which had stability problems (Worth, p. 117).

Despite those limitations, Bagnasco, p. 112, concludes, "The combination of their qualities -- none of which, in itself was above average -- together with the reliability of their equipment and the great ease of operation and maintenance made them very effective and safe." But he never had to serve on one!

If I read p. 115 of Bagnasco correctly, a total of 21 S-boats were lost during the war, including seven in 1940 alone -- those seven obviously all being from the dozen that were at sea by then. If we take them in the order Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy lists them:

Starfish - lost Jan. 9, 1940, to surface ships; Young, p. 147; see the notes to "The Starfish Song"
Seahorse - lost Jan. 7, 1940, to surface ships; Young, p. 141 (thus Tawney has the losses out of order)
Sterlet - lost April 18, 1940, to surface ships; Young, p. 148
Shark - lost July 6, 1940, to surface ship and air attack; Young, p. 142
Salmon - lost July 9, 1940, to a mine off Norway; Young, p. 138
Spearfish - lost August 2, 1940, to an attack by another submarine (U-34); Young, p. 146
Swordfish - failed to report, November 1940; last known location in the Bay of Biscay; cause of loss unknown; Young, p. 150 (thus matching the song's description of her disappearance)
Snapper - failed to report, February 1941; last known location in the Bay of Biscay; cause of loss unknown; Young, p. 145
Sunfish - transferred to Russia 1944; sunk by mistake by British planes July 27, 1944; Young, p. 149

Given that seven of the nine losses came in 1940, and the eighth in early 1941, one strongly suspects this was originally written in 1940/1941 and supplemented when Sunfish was lost -- especially since many other S-boats from later groups had been lost by 1944. - RBW Bibliography

• Bagnasco: Erminio Bagnasco, Submarines of World War Two, 1973 (Italian edition); English
Twelve Pears Hanging High

DESCRIPTION: Riddle. "Twelve pears hanging high, Twelve (knights/men) came riding by, Each (knight) took a pear, And (yet) left eleven hanging there." Answers vary; the most common may be Just one knight, named Each or Eachknight, took a pear

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1943 (Halliwell, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: riddles nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 399, "Twelve pears hanging high" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #694, p. 273, "(Twelve pears hanging high)" NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, (Peggy Cole and Sally Poole, informants), "Riddles," Vol. 1, No. 1 (Jun 1948), p. 28, "(Twelve Pears Hanging High)" (1 text)
Roud #20010

Twelve Stone Two

DESCRIPTION: The singer is "dreadful nervous" because he is about to marry "an agricultural Irish girl that's twice the size of me": she weighs twelve stone two. He would like to break the contract but she would beat him. She did the courting and he had no choice.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland); c.1885 (broadside, NLScotland L.C.Fol.70(48b))
KEYWORDS: courting wedding humorous nonballad shrewishness
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 79, " Twelve Stone Two" (1 text)
Roud #18290

Twelvemonth More Has Rolled Around, A

DESCRIPTION: "A twelvemonth more has rolled around Since we attended on this ground, Ten thousand scenes have marked the year Since we last met to worship here."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (Ritchie)
KEYWORDS: religious
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ritchie-SingingFamilyOfTheCumberlands, p. 83, "[A Twelvemonth More Has Rolled Around]" (1 text)
Twenty Men from Dublin Town

DESCRIPTION: Twenty men from Dublin join Michael Dwyer to fight the redcoats and avenge the death of Wolfe Tone.

AUTHOR: Arthur Griffith (1871-1922) (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

EARLIEST DATE: 2000 (Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

KEYWORDS: rebellion Ireland nonballad patriotic

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- 1798 - Irish rebellion against British rule
- Nov 10, 1798 - Wolfe Tone (1763-1798) condemned to execution; he cuts his own throat to avoid hanging as a criminal (his request to face a firing squad had been denied)

FOUND IN:
- Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 147, "Twenty Men from Dublin Town" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Michael Dwyer (I)" (subject of Michael Dwyer) and references there
- cf. "The Shan Van Voght" (subject of Wolfe Tone)

NOTES [94 words]: For the history of Michael Dwyer, who held out as a rebel for about five years before surrendering to the British, see the notes to Michael Dwyer (I)" or Michael Dwyer (II)." Wolfe Tone's part in the 1798 rebellion is covered in "The Shan Van Voght."

Arthur Griffith was the founder of Sinn Fein, the party that eventually led Ireland to (approximate) independence; after the foundation of the Irish Free State, he became the first head of state, dying in that office in no small part because of the pressures of trying to head a state suffering a civil war.

- RBW

File: Moyl147

Twenty Pound Dog, The

DESCRIPTION: "My name it is (Michael McCarthy) and I live in this town of renown, I made a bet with one Terrence Mahaffey that my bulldog could wallop the town." But Murphy's dog kills the singer's dog. He cries for vengeance

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud)

KEYWORDS: dog fight revenge

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 68-69, "The Twenty Pound Dog" (1 text)
- Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 252, "The Twenty Pound Dog" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Roud #3495

NOTES [98 words]: I found an online reference to this song, stating that it was widely known in the nineteenth century as a result of a decision in Britain to ban sports such as bear-baiting. Those who liked the blood sports turned to fighting dogs, since they were smaller and more normally kept as pets.

According to the site, bulldogs were the typical breed used for this purpose -- but their lack of mobility made the fights uninteresting. So other breeds were mixed in to produce the pit bull. This does seem to fit well with the song, since the dog Murphy wins the fight with has terrier blood.

- RBW

Last updated in version 2.6

File: Dean068B

Twenty Years Ago (Forty Years Ago)

DESCRIPTION: "I wandered to the village, Tom, and sat beneath the tree... That sheltered you and me... But none were left to greet me, Tom... Who played with us upon the green Just (twenty/forty) years ago." The singer tells how the people have changed with the years

AUTHOR: unknown
Twenty Years Ago (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Twenty years ago today, the yellow sun was settin', A soldier boy marched to the fray, And left his parents frettin'," He asks his parents to say goodbye to his girl. Although only a trombonist, he runs to rescue the flag and has his legs blown away.
Twenty-Fourth of May, The

DESCRIPTION: "O, the twenty-fourth of May Is the Queen's birthday. If you don't give us a holiday, We'll all run away." "Where will you run to? Down Stony Lane, Then old Mr. Bently will come wi' his cane, and quickly then he'll chase you all back again"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1875 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: royalty nonballad
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 24, 1819 - birth of the future Queen Victoria
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar) Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi, p.35, (no title) (1 text)
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 20, "Oka Ball Day" (1 text); p. 61, "(Hip, hip, hooray)" (2 texts)
ADDITIONAL: Marjorie Rowling, _The Folklore of the Lake District_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 120, "(If you don't give us a holiday)" (1 short text)
NOTES [135 words]: The songs in Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi were collected in two spurts: The Lord Beaverbrook collection was made around 1947, and Manny started gathering material about ten years later. It would be interesting to know how many of her informants went to school during Victoria's reign -- I wonder if Manny didn't recall the piece herself.
The Rowling text, apparently sung around 1920, does not mention the queen (after all, she was dead for a generation by then), but has the "holiday" lyrics, so I file it here.
Even more interesting is Sutton-Smith's "Oka Ball Day" lyric, which he said was collected in 1875. It too has the "holiday/run away" rhyme, but a nonsense first line. And no mention of Victoria. That says that there is an ancestor of this song out there somewhere that I haven't identified. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: MaWip35

Twenty-Inch Mill, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you iron workers and listen to my song, It's all about the twenty-inch." The rolling-mill workers are a diverse lot but have common troubles. They do good work; hearers are advised, "And for your life don't let them go to any other mill."
AUTHOR: unknown (tune added in Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
EARLIEST DATE: 1894 (April 26 National Labor Tribune, according to Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: technology work
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 430-431, "The Twenty-Inch Mill" (1 text, 1 tune, the latter certainly not from tradition and the former perhaps not either)
File: KPL430

Twenty-One

DESCRIPTION: "At twenty-one I first began to court a neighbour's child...." "At twenty-two no man could view what beauty she possessed...." "At twenty-three she slighted me..." to marry Mike Whelan instead. The singer laments her falsity (and sets out to ramble)
AUTHOR: Mark Walker (1846-1924) ? (Source: Philip Hiscock of MUNFLA, Canadian Folk Music
Twenty-One Years [Laws E16]

DESCRIPTION: A convict is sentenced to twenty-one years in prison. He begs his sweetheart, for whom he endured a dirty jail, to ask the governor for clemency. As nothing seems to come of this, he warns young men not to trust women.

AUTHOR: Bob Miller?

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Lester McFarland & Robert Gardner)

KEYWORDS: prison rejection

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So) Britain(England)

REFERENCES (12 citations):
- Laws E16, "Twenty-One Years"
- Randolph 168, "Twenty-One Years" (4 texts plus an excerpt, 1 tune, with the last three texts being diverse sequels to the first text and excerpt; see "Answer to Twenty-One Years")
- Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 156-158, "Twenty-One Years" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph’s 168A)
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 352, "Twenty-One Years" (1 text)
- Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #30, "TwentyOneYears" (1 text, 1 tune, plus the "Answer")
- Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 69-70, "Twenty-One Years" (1 text)
- MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 100, "Twenty-One Years" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
- Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 310-311, "Little Willie's My Darling" (1 text, 1 tune, with a plot of "Twenty-One Years" [Laws E16] but which has swallowed "Down in the Valley" almost entire)
- Johnson-BawdyBalladsAndLustyLyrics, pp. 41-43, "Twenty-One Years" (1 text)
- DT 354, (YRS21*)

ADDITIONAL: Old Favourites Reprinted from The Family Herald and Weekly Star 1898 (Montreal: The Family Herald Publishing Co., 1898 (“Digitized by Internet Archive”), pp. 144-145, "Twenty Years Ago" ("I’ve wandered to the village Tom, I’ve sat beneath the tree") (1 text)
- Wehman’s Song Book [of 148 Songs] No. 59 (New York, September 1, 1898 (“Digitized by Internet Archive”)), p. 17, "Twenty Years Ago" ("I have wandered by the village, Tom; I’ve sat beneath the tree") (1 text)
- Roud #2248

RECORDINGS:
Edward L. Crain, "Twenty-One Years" (Crown 3238 [as Edward L. Crain (The Texas Cowboy)], 1932; Homestead 22990, c. 1932; rec. 1931)
Lonesome Pine Fiddlers, "Twenty-One Years" (RCA Victor 20-5011, 1952)
Frank Luther, "Twenty-One Years" (Polk 9087, n.d.)
Lester McFarland & Robert Gardner, "Twenty-One Years" (Brunswick 483, 1930)
Bob Miller, "Twenty-One Years" (Supertone S-2764, c. 1931)
New Lost City Ramblers, "Twenty-One Years" (on NLCR13)
Riley Puckett, "Twenty-One Years" (Columbia 15719-D, 1932; rec. 1931)
Red River Dave, "Twenty-One Years" (Musicraft 287, 1944)
Renfro Valley Boys [Karl Davis & Harty Taylor], "Twenty One Years" (Paramount 3311/Broadway 8318, rec. 1932)
Dick Robertson, "Twenty-One Years" (Victor 23616, 1932; Montgomery Ward M-3311, n.d.; rec. 1931)
Carson Robison's Trio, "Twenty-One Years" (Banner 32305/Oriole 8100, 1931)
Kate Smith, "Twenty-One Years" (Columbia 2605-D, 1932)
Uncle Bud & his Plow Boys, "Twenty-One Years" (Clarion 5418-C, 1931)
Marc Williams, "Twenty-One Years" (Decca 5010, 1934)
SAME TUNE:
Answer to Twenty-One Years (File: Morr030B)
Frank Luther Trio "New Twenty-One Years" (Vocalion 5491, c. 1932; Melotone 12602/Banner 32679 [both as Buddy Spencer's Trio]/Perfect 12884 [as Buddy Spencer]/Conqueror 8100, 1933; rec. 1932)
Lester McFarland, "Twenty-One Years, No. 2" (Brunswick 596, 1932)
Bob Miller, "New Twenty-One Years" (Columbia 15739-D [as Bob Ferguson], 1932) (Electradisk 1907 [as Palmer Trio], 1933) (Victor 23693, 1932; Bluebird B-5013 [as Bill Palmer Trio]/Montgomery Ward M-4233, 1933)
Dan Parker, "New 21 Years" (Crown 3266, 1932) [I strongly suspect this is a pseudonym, but since I don't know whether it's Frank Luther or Bob Miller I give it its own listing for now]
Dick Robertson, "New Twenty-One Years" (Victor 23647, 1932/Montgomery Ward M-4821, 1935)
NOTES [146 words]: The copyright and collection information on this song reveal something or other. The notes in Randolph's second edition list it as copyright 1931 by Bob Miller. But Randolph's informant, Lillian Short, thought she learned it in 1931, and not from Miller. Henry's version is from 1932; Brown's dates from around 1936. Plus the three sequels, which Laws considers distinct, were collected 1935, 1934, and 1941. Johnson's book, printed in 1935, shows no knowledge of an author; neither does Laws, nor Brown, though Norm Cohen accepts the attribution to Miller. Draw your own conclusions. - RBW
Well, the McFarland-Gardner record was made in June 1930 and probably issued later that year, so Ms. Short could well have learned it from there. In the discographical notes to that record, though, the author credit is given to Miller. The Robison recording also dates from that year. - PJS
Last updated in version 4.3
File: LE16

Twenty-Third, The

DESCRIPTION: "The Twenty-third was drawn in line and ready for the strife, Each man for his country would freely give his life...." A toast to the soldiers who fought bravely "On the thirty-first of May in the Shenandoah lowlands, lowlands low...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl); 19C (see Wolf)

KEYWORDS: battle Civil war

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 31-Jun 1, 1862: Battle of Fair Oaks/Seven Pines

FOUND IN: US (MA)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 36, "The Twenty-Third" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [556 words]: The fragment given by the Warners (collected from Yankee John Galusha) is historically troublesome; I suspect it is damaged. There were no Civil War battles fought on May 31 in the Shenandoah valley! (see Phisterer, pp. 84, 102, 138, 177, 212). The logical guess would be that the reference is to Jackson's Shenandoah campaign of 1862. Fighting was almost constant in May and June of that year -- but on May 31 Jackson was extracting his troops from between converging Federal columns.

The song does not really identify the regiment, but here we can make a better guess. Even though John Galusha was from New York, it is not the 23rd New York (which, unlike the formation in the song, did not have a colonel named Neal). I suspect it is the 23rd Pennsylvania, which was commanded from February 1862 until he received command of a brigade after Antietam. This regiment, however, was in the Peninsular Campaign, not the Shenandoah campaign (it was in Couch's first division of Keyes's Fourth Corps). If it really is the 23 Pennsylvania, we have a "fit" for the battle: It was the battle of Fair Oaks/Seven Pines, May 31-June 1, 1862. At that time, according to BLII, p. 218, the 23rd Pennsylvania was in Abercrombie's second brigade of Couch's division. What's more, it played a major role in the battle -- Abercrombie's brigade suffered 624 casualties, which is probably in excess of 15% of its available strength, and the second-highest brigade total in the Union army. Abercrombie himself was wounded in the fighting. According to Boatner, p. 273, the 23rd and 61st Pennsylvania regiments were on the Federal right flank and so came under heavy Confederate attack.

All that sleuthing seems to be confirmed by the Wolf broadside (which I noticed only because I had done all the work to figure that out). It includes a number of Galusha's lyrics; it's much longer, but appears to be the same song. Where Galusha got the "Shenandoah" chorus I don't know; it's not in the broadsides. Thus we must suspect the "Shenandoah" reference to be in error -- though even it can be explained.

Later in the war, the 23 Pennsylvania was in the Sixth Corps (part of the first brigade, third division from Fredericksburg to Gettysburg; at the Wilderness, it was part of 4/1/VI), and the Sixth Corps was sent to the Shenandoah in 1864. We know, however, that the battle mentioned in the song is not part of the 1864 campaign; by that time Neill was commanding a brigade in a different division of the corps and had no association with the 23rd Pennsylvania.

Still, it might explain the confusion: Originally the song was an ode to the 23 Pennsylvania, with references to its various exploits, and a chorus referring to the Shenandoah campaign was transferred to the section about Fair Oaks/Seven Pines. Who Boggs was I cannot guess; there was no general by that name (according Warner and to pp. 247-343 of Phisterer), nor Pennsylvania colonel (according to Hunt), nor major Pennsylvania figure (according to PennsylvaniaBD) but odds are that he was a company officer anyway.

It's interesting to observe that John Galusha knew another song ("The Irish Sixty-Ninth") about a Pennsylvania regiment that fought at Fair Oaks. Did he at some point know someone with a large collection of Pennsylvania songs? - RBW

Bibliography

- BLII: Clarence C. Buel and Robert U. Johnson, editors, Battles and Leaders of the Civil War, four volumes, 1888 (reference here is to the second volume)
- Boatner: Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover)
- PennsylvaniaBD: (no author listed), Pennsylvania Biographical Dictionary, American Historical Publications, 1989
- Phisterer: Frederick Phisterer, Campaigns of the Civil War: Statistical Record of the Armies of the United States, 1883 (I use the 2002 Castle Books reprint)
Twila Was a City Maiden

DESCRIPTION: The singer, a country boy, describes meeting and falling in love with a beautiful city girl. He begs her to marry him, and for a while they exchange love letters. But eventually she grows tired of him and marries another man.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: love courtship separation betrayal marriage
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 821, "Twila Was a City Maiden" (1 text)
Roud #7436
File: R821

Twilight A-Stealing

DESCRIPTION: "Twilight a-stealing over the sea, Shadows are falling, dark on the lea, Borne on the night wind, voices of yore Come from the far-off shore." The singer tells of the home beyond the twilight where memories and good things wait.

AUTHOR: Words: Aldine Sillman Kieffer (1840-1904) / Music: B. C. Unseld (according to _The Song Wave_)
EARLIEST DATE: 1882 (_The Song Wave_); published in 1877, according to McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong
KEYWORDS: religious home
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Ritchie-SingingFamilyOfTheCumberlands, pp. 30-31, "[Twilight A-Stealing]" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 49, "Twilight A-Stealing" (1 text, 1 tune)
McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, pp. 112-113, "Twilight Is Stealing" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: H. S. Perkins, H. J. Danforth, and E. V. DeGraff, _The Song Wave_, American Book Company, 1882, pp. 18-19, "Twilight Is Falling" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #5745
RECORDINGS:
Ritchie Family, "Twilight A-Stealing" (on Ritchie03)
The Stoneman Family, "Twilight Is Stealing over the Sea" (Victor, unissued, 1928)
File: JRSF030

Twill Never Do To Give It Up So

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, twill never do to give it up so (Old Uncle Ben/Mr. Brown), 'twill never do to give it up so" (x2). "Old Mr. (Brown/Coon/Jones), you come too soon, the girls won't be ready till tomorrow afternoon" (x2).

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana); reportedly sung by 1844 (see NOTES)
KEYWORDS: playparty courtship
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 100-101=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 220-221, "Walk Along John" (1 text, 2 tunes, probably a combination of "Walk Along John (I) and "Twill Never Do To Give It Up So")
Roud #7824
SAME TUNE:
Philadelphia Riots ("Oh in Philadelphia folks say how") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 126)
NOTES [150 words]: Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana notes that there was a key change in the version given to her, which she adjusted (while also printing the collected version of the tune). I suspect that her version is in fact a combination of two songs, "Walk Along John" (the first stanza) and "Twill Never Do to Give It Up So," which I know I've heard somewhere but can't seem to find in any traditional collections. I'm filing this as an independent fragment in hopes that someone will someday find the rest.
According to Jon W. Finson, _The Voices That Are Gone: Themes in Nineteenth-Century American_
Popular Song, Oxford University Press, 1994, p. 180, "Twill Nebber Do to Gib It Up So" was one of the songs sung by the Virginia Minstrels (Dan Emmett's group) before they broke up in 1844. If so, there is obviously a possibility that Emmett had something to do with the song, but I have no proof of this. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Wolf100

Twin Ballots, The
DESCRIPTION: Two ballots are cast together on election day. One is by the local brewer, the other by a "Sunday school man." The Sunday school man spends all day denouncing saloons, but votes for rum. The song waxes sarcastic about this hypocrisy
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: drink political clergy
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Randolph 310, "The Twin Ballots" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 259-206, "The Twin Ballots" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 310)
DT, TWINBLLT*
ADDITIONAL: Fred W. Allsopp, Folklore of Romantic Arkansas, Volume II (1931), p. 211, "The Twin Ballots" (1 text)
ST R310 (Partial)
Roud #7787
File: R310

Twin Lakes
DESCRIPTION: "As I was sitting in my own cozy corner, Thinking all on a few dollars to make, My wife says ... They're making good wages up on the Twin Lakes." He finds the contractors "keep you right down with their foot on your neck ... keep clear ... of Twin Lakes"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)
KEYWORDS: lumbering hardtimes logger work money
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 161, "Twin Lakes" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 761-762, "Twin Lakes" (1 text, 1 tune)
Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, p. 51, "Twin Lakes" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #17693
RECORDINGS:
Omar Blondahl, "Twin Lakes" (on NFOBlondahl02, NFOBlondahl03)
Frankie Nash, "The Shores Of Grand Lake" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)
Arthur Nicolle, "Twin Lakes" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Jerry Ryan" (theme)
cf. "The Track to Knob Lake" (lyrics)
NOTES [105 words]: The AND [Anglo-Newfoundland Development] company was involved in logging across Newfoundland.
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland says "most of the lumbering is let out to individuals who do it under contract, and 'subbing' means to take a sub-contract. Twin Lakes is in the interior of the island [Newfoundland]."
The ITMA/CapeShoreNL text is very close to the Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland text, AND company and all. The two locations are both in the northern interior of Newfoundland. - BS
Other songs that mention AND are "The Badger Drive" and "The Business of Makin' the Paper." - RBW
Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star

DESCRIPTION: "Twinkle, twinkle little star." The singer wonders what the star is. It shows its light while the sun is down. It "lights the traveller in the dark" so he can see which way to go.

AUTHOR: Jane Taylor (1783-1824)
EARLIEST DATE: 1806 (Rhymes for the Nursery, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)
KEYWORDS: lyric nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 674, "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" (1 tune; the text was not recorded)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 489, "Twinkle, twinkle, little star" (1 text)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #168, pp. 125-126, "(Twinkle, twinkle, little star)"
Jack-PopGoesTheWeasel, p. 226, "Twinkle, twinkle, little star" (2 texts)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 150, "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" (1 text)
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 243, (no title) (1 fragment)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 593-594, "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star -- (ABCDEFG; Baa, Baa, Black Sheep; Schnitzelbank)"
ADDITIONAL: Florence Milner, "Poems in Alice in Wonderland" (1903), now reprinted in Robert Phillips, editor, Aspects of Alice_, 1971 (references are to the 1977 Vintage paperback), p. 249, "The Star" (1 text, with "Alice"-related context)

Twinkling Stars are Laughing, Love

DESCRIPTION: "Twinkling stars are laughing, love, Laughing on you and me, While your bright eyes look in mine, Peeping stars they seem to be." She, like the stars, is a source of light

AUTHOR: J. P. Ordway (source: Heart-Songs)
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart-Songs)
KEYWORDS: nonballad love
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Heart-Songs, pp. 427-429, "Twinkling Stars are Laughing, Love" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: HeSo427
Two Boys from Bruley
DESCRIPTION: Two men from Bruley go to St Peter's for rum. On the way home a spring snowstorm almost sinks them. Captain Harvey and his crew rescue them. Warning: don't go to St Peter's in spring; Captain Harvey may not be waiting to save your life
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA-Leach)
KEYWORDS: rescue sea ship storm sailor
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
Roud #26142
RECORDINGS:
John James, "Two Boys from Bruley" (on MUNFLA-Leach)
NOTES [48 words]: Brule and St Peter's are in Nova Scotia. - BS
However, "Bruley" (also spelled "Brule" and "Brewley") is in Newfoundland, so this might be about Newfoundland, not Nova Scotia. There is no town of St. Peter's in Newfoundland that I can find, but there are landmarks named St. Peter's. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: ML32BfrB

Two Brothers
DESCRIPTION: "Two brothers on their way (x3), One wore blue and one wore gray." The cannon of the Civil War doesn't care that one of them is kind; it kills one and all. When they return, "Two girls waiting by the railroad track; One wore blue and one wore black."
AUTHOR: Irving Gordon
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (copyright, according to Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar soldier death wife
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 363-364, "Two Brothers" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, TWOBROCW*
File: SCWF363

Two Budding Lumberjacks, The
DESCRIPTION: Two lumberjacks work for the Underhills "upon a floating bog Upon Dungarvon's Flats." Whistling Rufus criticizes them for leaving a log behind. Instead of going back for the log their father takes a fence rail from someone else "and call it square"
AUTHOR: Ben, Frank and Albert Peters, 1895 (Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi)
EARLIEST DATE: 1962 (Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi)
KEYWORDS: lumbering
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi 43, "The Two Budding Lumberjacks" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST MaWi043 (Partial)
Roud #9185
NOTES [79 words]: Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi: The song is about an experience Ben [age 12] and Frank [age 14] Peters, and their father Leon taking sub-contracts from Millet Underhill "who ran lumber camps for the Snowball Lumber Company of Chatham." The ballad says they came from Prince Edward's Isle. - BS
Albert Peters, the informant, was the younger brother of the two boys involved in the exploit. Reading the plot, you would probably think this a humorous song. It isn't, somehow. - RBW
File: MaWi043

Two Constant Lovers, The
DESCRIPTION: Dialog between Sarah Barnwell and Samuel. Her friends would kill him. He would fight for her. Her brother, Captain Barnwell, comes. After Sarah's failed intervention they duel. Samuel wins. Brother agrees to the marriage as the price of his life.
Two Cormacks Who Died Innocent in Front of Nenagh Gaol, The DESCRIPTION: The condemned stand on the trap and proclaim their innocence. "The day of their execution, as they stood on the drop, The thunder came so dreadful that it did the people shock." At their death "the thunder still continued, with both lightning and rain"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1858 (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)
KEYWORDS: execution homicide trial storm lament Ireland political
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 11, 1858 - William and Daniel Cormack, or McCormack, are hanged for murder. (source: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)

FOUND IN: Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 64, "The Lamentation of the Two Cormacks Who Died Innocent in Front of Nenagh Gaol" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [202 words]: For another broadside on the same subject see Bodleian, Harding B 19(10), "Lamentation of The Two M'Cormacks Who Were Innocently Hanged at Nenagh Gaol" ("Come all yon Roman Catholics, I hope you will attend"), unknown, n.d.; also 2806 b.9(272), 2806 c.15(231), "Lamentation of The Two M'Cormacks Who Were Innocently Hanged at Nenagh Gaol" [the texts for this ballad are the same]

This broadside adds some details: the brother's names are William and Daniel, the murdered man's name is Ellis, and the judge's name is Keogh. It says nothing about the storm at the hanging. Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion: "A land agent detested by the people was shot near Templemore, County Tipperary, on 22nd October, 1857. Two brothers ... were charged with the murder upon very suspect evidence.... According to the Tipperary Examiner, 'the [execution] day was beautifully fine....' In the following weeks the excitement increased, and on 30th August, from twelve to fifteen thousand men assembled in a protest meeting on the place of the execution."

Zimmermann also refers to "a broadside ballad entitled 'The Memory of the two McCormacks Who Was Hanged at Nenagh Gaol', printed and sold in County Tipperary in 1908." - BS

File: Zimm064

Two Dollar Bill (Long Journey Home)

DESCRIPTION: Singer has lost "lost all my money but a two dollar bill"; he's homesick, lonesome and blue. He sees the smoke of a train, and says he's on his long journey home.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (recording, Monroe Brothers)
KEYWORDS: poverty homesickness loneliness train travel lyric nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 177, "My Long Journey Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Jim Eanes, "Long Journey Home" (Blue Ridge 201, n.d.)
Monroe Brothers, "My Long Journey Home" (Bluebird B-6422, 1936)
New Lost City Ramblers, "My Long Journey Home" (on NLCR03, NLCRCD1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Worried Man Blues" (tune)
NOTES [17 words]: This should not be confused with the song composed by Rosa Lee and Doc Watson, "Your Long Journey." - PJS
File: CSW177

Two Faithful Lovers
DESCRIPTION: A story of a couple "yet, though feeble, old and gray / they're faithful lovers still."
They've had "dull November hours as well as days of May" since they first courted. "Together hand-in-hand they pass, advancing down life's hill," faithful to the end
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Rutherford & Foster)
KEYWORDS: age love marriage lover
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
Roud #11515
RECORDINGS:
File: Rc2FaLov

Two Gypsy Girls, The
DESCRIPTION: Dandling song. Two pretty Gypsy girls, Hat and Kate, go hawking with bundles on their backs and babies at their breasts. The boys sing, "He's a gay old singer/Here comes the galloping major"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1962 or 1966 (collected from Caroline Hughes)
KEYWORDS: hunting humorous nonballad Gypsy
FOUND IN: Britain(England)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 125, "The Two Gypsy Girls" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [12 words]: This seems to be derived from a music-hall song, "The Galloping Major." - PJS
File: McCST125

Two Hundred Years A-Brewing
DESCRIPTION: A song for "thirsty tourists" about "our famous stout" made "down by the Liffey'side," "our grand brewery at the top of James's Street" and "Our barges neat nigh Watling Street ... full of double X," a favourite at the Brien Boru after a funeral.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1961 (recording, Margaret Barry and Michael Gorman)
KEYWORDS: commerce drink Ireland nonballad
FOUND IN:
Roud #12930
RECORDINGS:
Margaret Barry and Michael Gorman, "Two Hundred Years A-Brewing" (on Voice13)
NOTES [17 words]: See "The Wreck of the Vartry" for more about Double X, the Guiness brewery and barges on the Liffey. - BS
File: Rc200YB

Two Irish Laborers
DESCRIPTION: "We are two Irish laborers, as you can plainly see, From Donegal we came when
Two Jinkers

DESCRIPTION: The two jinkers of the title are Jimmie Walsh and Steven. Bad luck to have on board, they were only hired here because men are hard to find. Their ship runs aground and Jimmie and Steven are responsible. The perturbed singer plans to quit his job.

AUTHOR: Patrick Kevin Devine (1859-1950)?
EARLIEST DATE: 1940
KEYWORDS: ship wreck hardtimes work
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, "Two Jinkers" (1 text, 1 tune): p. 11 in the 2nd edition, p. 82 in the 3rd, p. 27 in the 4th, p. 56 in the 5th (titled "Two Jinkers or Jimmie Walsh and Stephen" in the 4th and 5th editions)
- Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, pp. 34-35, "Two Jinkers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7315
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Captain Glen/The New York Trader (The Guilty Sea Captain A/B) [Laws K22]" (Jonah theme) and references there
NOTES [154 words]: People who are bad luck on ships are referred to as "Jonahs." [After Jonah, in the Bible, whose presence aboard a ship brought on a storm. - RBW] Smaller vessels were usually run on a family basis or by a very close group, which led to intolerance of strangers. For more about Jonahs, consult Horace Beck, Folklore and the Sea (Mystic, Conn.: Mystic Seaport Museum, 1985) 303-304. - SH
The author is named by GEST Songs of Newfoundland and Labrador site. - BS
In at least some versions of Newfoundland dialect, a "jinker" ("jinxer") is a stowaway, and stowaways were thought to bring bad luck (see Cassie Brown (with Harold Horwood), Death on the Ice: The Great Newfoundland Sealing Disaster of 1914, 1972 (I use the undated Anchor Canada paperback edition), p. 35).
P. K. Devine, who is believed to have written this song, was Gerald S. Doyle's uncle; the Doyle songsters are likely responsible for its popularity. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0
File: Doy11

Two Legs Sat Upon Three Legs

DESCRIPTION: Riddle: "Two legs sat upon three legs, With one leg in his lap; In comes four legs, And runs away with one leg; Up jumps two legs, Catches up three legs, Throws it after four legs, And makes him bring back one leg."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1600 (Booke of merry Riddles, according to the Opies)
KEYWORDS: riddle food animal dog
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 302, "Two Legs Sat Upon Three Legs (1 text)
- Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #709, p. 276, "(Two legs sat upon three legs)"
- Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 186, "Two Legs Sat Upon Three Legs" (1 text)
Roud #20142
NOTES [72 words]: The Opies note that describing characters by their number of legs goes all the way back to the Riddle of the Sphinx in the Theban legend. They also note a faintly similar tag in a writing attributed, almost certainly falsely, to the Venerable Bede: "See, a biped on top of a triped sits; walks the biped; falls the triped." It is easy to see why people connect them, but I think the only actual link is the idea of counting legs. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.3
File: 002302

Two Letters, The (Charlie Brooks; Nellie Dare)

DESCRIPTION: Charlie writes that he wishes to break off the engagement, saying it would never work, and asks for his ring back. (Nellie) returns ring, photos, etc. She asks him to tell his new girl that he once gave another his ring. She claims she burned his letters

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: betrayal love request
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Randolph 735, "Charlie Brooks" (2 texts, 1 tune) Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 486-489, "Charley Brooke" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 735A)
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 70, "Charley's Letter" (1 text, 1 tune) Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 320, "Dear Nell" (2 texts plus 2 excerpts, 3 tunes)
Roud #3534
RECORDINGS:
Leo Boswell and Elzie Floyd, "Nellie Dare" (Columbia 15150-D, 1927)
Vernon Dalhart, "Nellie Dare and Charlie Brooks" (Brunswick 143) (Victor 20058, 1926)
Bradley Kincaid, "Charlie Brooks" (Superior 2788, 1932)
Holland Puckett, "Charles A. Brooks" (Gennett 6163/Herwin 75556 [as by Robert Howell], 1927)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Ella Dare
NOTES [161 words]: Although this is not, to my knowledge, based on an actual incident, things like this were in fact common in the nineteenth century. In fact, it happened to none other than Robert Peary, the future "discoverer" of the North Pole. (For Peary and his almost certainly false polar claim, see "Hurrah for Baffin's Bay"). According to Robert M. Bryce, Cook & Peary: The Polar for his release [apparently on the basis that they were living in different cities and he had no intention to return]. In return he received a letter asking for an explanation, and when he had given it, another, reproachful in tone. It closed with the remark that he considered their correspondence at an end, and she requested that if Bert [Peary] had anything further to say, he should address it to her father. In December she returned all of his letters, and he hers, along with her ring." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2
File: R735

Two Little Blackbirds

DESCRIPTION: "Two little blackbird in the ring, One named Peter, one named Paul. Fly away, Peter, fly away, Paul. Come back, Peter, Come back, Paul." "Under the carpet (?) we must go, Like a jaybird (?) in the air." "Then, Sally, will you marry?"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1765 (Mother Goose's Melody)
KEYWORDS: bird marriage floating verses nonballad
FOUND IN: West Indies New Zealand
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 132, "Two Little Dicky Birds" (2 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #596, p. 237, "(There were two blackbirds)" Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 182, "(Two little dicky birds sitting on a wall)" (1 text)
Dolby-OrangesAndLemons, p. 113, "Two Little Dicky Birds" (1 text)
Roud #16401
RECORDINGS:
Elda Blackwood, "Two Little Blackbirds" (on USWarnerColl01)
NOTES [115 words]: The Warners identify this with the mother goose rhyme, "There were two Blackbirds Sta upon a Hill, The one nam'd Jack, The other nam'd Gill, Fly away Jack, Fly away Gill, Come again Jack, Come again Jill," now more commonly known as "Two little dicky birds." The similarity in lyrics is obvious, but the shift from Jack and Gill to Peter and Paul is peculiar, and most of Elda Blackwood's version is distinct anyway. Unfortunately, the Warner recording of Blackwood is so noisy as to verge on incomprehensible (note the number of question marks in my transcription). I think we must treat the matter as unsettled. But I've filed the nursery rhyme here, since it appears clearly traditional. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.4
File: Rc2LiBla

Two Little Fleas
DESCRIPTION: "Two little fleas sat on a rock. One to the other said: I've had no place to hang my hat Since my poor dog's been dead. I've searched this whole world over; No longer shall I roam. The first dog that shall show himself Shall be my home, sweet home."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: dog humorous food bug
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 192, "Two Little Fleas" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 192, "Two Little Fleas" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roud #15771
File: Br3192

Two Little Girls in Blue
DESCRIPTION: A young man finds his uncle gazing at a photograph in tears. When asked why, the uncle explains the photo is of the boy's mother's sister, who married the uncle. The uncle and his wife have parted, and now he regrets it
AUTHOR: Charles Graham
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (original publication)
KEYWORDS: family separation
FOUND IN: US(MA,MW,So) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (10 citations):
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 106, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 74-75, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (1 text)
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 41, pp. 57-58, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (2 texts plus 2 fragments)
Randolph 816, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (1 text)
Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, p. 12, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (1 text)
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 163-164, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (1 text)
Browne-AlabamaFolksLyric 115, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (2 texts plus mention of 5 more, 2 tunes)
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 61, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (1 text)
Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 181-181, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (1 fragmentary text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Margaret Bradford Boni, editor, _Songs of the Gilded Age_ with piano arrangements by Norman Lloyd and illustrations by Lucille Corcos, Golden Press, 1960, pp. 77-79, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST FSC106 (Partial)
Roud #2793
RECORDINGS:
Leo Boswell, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (Columbia 15290-D, 1928)
W. C. Childers, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (Gennett 7223/Champion 16098 [as Enos Wanner]/Supertone 9778 [as Andy Hopkins], 1930; Champion 33042, n.d.)
Murray Keller, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (Brunswick 188, 1927)
Bradley Kincaid, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (Decca I.4456, n.d.)
Bela Lam and His Green County Singers, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (OKeh, unissued, 1927)
R. Sheaves, "Two Little Girls in Blue" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Two Little Kittens
DESCRIPTION: "Two little kittens one stormy night Began to quarrel and then to fight. One had a mouse, the other had none...." The two start to fight; the woman sweeps them out into the snow. When finally allowed back in, they decide warmth is better than fighting
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads)
KEYWORDS: animal storm fight
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, pp. 184-185, "Two Little Kittens" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST FlBr184 (Partial)
Roud #5450
File: FlBr184

Two Little Lads (Tommy and Jack)
DESCRIPTION: "Two little lads they had been friends Ever since childhood days" -- but both fall in love with the same girl. Jack wins and weds the girl, but soon dies. Tommy marries the widow -- and soon thinks of Jack in his grave and concludes, "Envy you Jack"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1953 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)
KEYWORDS: love courting marriage death humorous
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 139, "Tommy and Jack" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #5358
File: Brne139

Two Little Niggers Black as Tar
DESCRIPTION: "Two little niggers black as tar, Tryin' to git to heaven on a 'lectric car, De street car broke, down dey fell; 'Stead a going to heaven they went to hell."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: death Hell
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 467, "Two Little Niggers Black as Tar" (2 very short texts)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 467, "Two Little Niggers Black as Tar" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roud #11788
File: Br4367

Two Lovers Discoursing [Laws O22]
DESCRIPTION: Mary accuses her lover of breaking his promise to marry her; he denies this and asks who has spread the rumor that he is courting Nancy. But he still will not wed, until Mary points out that even birds are truer than he is. He gives in; they are married
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1954 (Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage promise infidelity
Two O'Donahues, The

DESCRIPTION: "We came from Tipperary a few short weeks ago, With spirits light and airy, two emigrants, you know." The two O'Donahues intend to get rich, return to Ireland, and become famous

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud)
KEYWORDS: home emigration
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 130, "The Two O'Donahues" (1 text)
Roud #9587
File: Dean130B

Two Rigs of Rye [Laws O11]

DESCRIPTION: (The girl tells her lover that her family opposes her marriage.) Uncertain of her dowry, he has doubts about the marriage. When she breaks into tears, he assures her he did not mean it. The two settle down to a long and happy marriage

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: courting dowry marriage
FOUND IN: US(MW) Britain(England,Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Laws O11, "Two Rigs of Rye"
Greig/Duncan5 1054, "The Rigs o' Rye" (29 texts, 24 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 31-32, "The Rigs of Rye" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 58, "Two Rigs of Rye" (1 short text, 1 tune)
DT 475, RIGSORYE*
ST LO11 (Full)
Roud #985
BROADSIDES:
NLScotland, RB.m.143(122), "Twas in the Month of Sweet July," Poet's Box (Dundee), c. 1890
CROSS-REFERENCES:
Two Sisters Courted One

DESCRIPTION: Shanty call-and-response. Response: "Oh, huro, my boys." Calls: "Two sisters courted one ... And they lived in the mountains..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1811 (_Landsman Hay_, per Hugill; see NOTES)

KEYWORDS: courting shanty

FOUND IN: West Indies(Jamaica)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Abrahams-DeepTheWaterShallowTheShore, p. 16, ("Two sisters courted one") (1 fragment)

The description has all of the Abrahams-DeepTheWaterShallowTheShore fragment text. It is tempting to consider this a fragment of "The Twa Sisters" [Child 10]. In favor of that approach is that there is a Jamaican reference to Child 10 (Jekyll-JamaicanSongAndStory 3, "King Daniel") though Jekyll's is a cante fable that does not have the "two sisters loved one man" introduction in its story or song. Also in its favor is that Child 10 often has a call-and-response structure and the listeners are (assumed to be?) responders (see Henry's quote from James Warr Raine, _The Land of the Saddle Bags_ (Mellinger E. Henry, "Still More Ballads and Folk-Songs from the Southern Highlands" in _The Journal of American Folklore_, Vol. 45, No. 175 (Jan-Mar 1932 (available online by JSTOR)) p.2). Against putting this with [Child 10] is that there is not enough to the fragment to support the connection, and that I've not seen the "they lived in the mountains" reference elsewhere. - BS

Last updated in version 4.2

Two Soldiers Lying As They Fell

DESCRIPTION: "Two soldiers lying as they fell Upon the reddened clay... Breathe their lives away." The one from New Hampshire has a wife and light-haired girl; the Georgian, a dark-haired girl. Both will be orphans. The soldiers die with their hands clasped

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)

KEYWORDS: death children orphan Civilwar soldier

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, pp. 232-233, "Two Soldiers Lying As They Fell" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #15673

File: Pet232

Two Squirrels, The

DESCRIPTION: "There were two squirrels that lived in a wood. The one was naughty, the other was good." The bad one, Dandy Jim, strays too far and too late and dies on the railroad track; the good one, Johnny Black, stays near home and comes home early and lives

AUTHOR: "E. E. W.," according to _The Nursery_

EARLIEST DATE: 1869 (The Nursery, Volume 5)

KEYWORDS: animal mother warning death

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown-MyGrandmothersSongbook 10, "The Two Squirrels" (1 text, 1 tune)

Two Sweethearts
DESCRIPTION: "A bunch of young fellows one night at a club were telling of sweethearts they had." They tease one boy about not having a love; he says he loves two women: His mother and his sweetheart
AUTHOR: Words: E. P. Moran / Music: J. Fred Holf?
EARLIEST DATE: 1897 (copyright claim)
KEYWORDS: mother love
FOUND IN: US (So) Canada (Newf)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Randolph 864, "Two Sweethearts" (1 text)
  Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 93, "Two Sweethearts" (1 text plus a mention of 1 more, 1 tune)
Roud #1783
RECORDINGS:
  Albert DeWitt, "Sweethearts" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
  Agnes Powers, "My Sweetheart" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
File: R864

Two T.D.'s
DESCRIPTION: Political rhymes: "Artists draw pictures and barmaids draw beer"; the TD's draw 480 a year. Hitler brags of conquering the Rhineland; we conquered Beare Island. Telegram cost is a hardship on us and delivery is faster by bus....
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (OCanainn-SongsOfCork)
KEYWORDS: humorous nonballad political
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
  1936 - German forces reoccupy the Rhineland, occupied and demilitarized by the French after World War I
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  OCanainn-SongsOfCork, pp. 78-79, "Two T.D.'s" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [12 words]: OCanainn-SongsOfCork: "T.D. (teachta dala or member of parliament)" - BS
File: OCan078

Two Travellers, The
DESCRIPTION: Two travellers compare notes. One has been everywhere, done everything and seen the wonders of the world. The other asks what of Ireland the first has seen: "the man that ne'er saw Mullinahone Shouldn't say he had travelled at all"
AUTHOR: C.J. Boland
EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)
KEYWORDS: travel Ireland humorous nonballad
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  OLochlann-MoreIrishStreetBallads, pp. 259-261, "The Two Travellers" (1 text)
SAME TUNE:
  cf. "Hannigan's Aunt" (tune)
File: OLCM259

Two Wenches at Once
DESCRIPTION: The singer was happy until Cupid "put into my head that I wanted a wife." He fell in love with two sisters, Betsy and Mary. He always preferred the one he was not with. Suddenly they both marry, leaving him "in the lurch." Never court two wenches at once

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1818 (Hudson)
KEYWORDS: courting love marriage sister youth
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 283-284, "Betsy and Mary" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 429)
- ADDITIONAL: Thomas Hudson, Comic Songs (London, 1818 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 21-22, "Two Wenches at Once" ("Till I fell in love, I war happy enow") (1 text)

  Roud #1318
  BROADSIDES:
  - Bodleian, Harding B 11(1649), "Two Wenches at Once" ("Till I fell in love I were happy enow"), J. Pitts (London), 1819-1844; also Harding B 11(3923), 2806 c.16*(121), 2806 d.31(2), "Two Wenches at Once"
  File: WT283

Two White Horses (I)

DESCRIPTION: "Two white horses, Two white horses, side by side (x3), Nobody can ride but the sanctified." "Daniel was a man in the lion's den The good Lord proved to be Daniel's friend." "Zek'l was a man and he rassled with sin Heb'n gate opened... he rolled... in"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)
KEYWORDS: religious Bible nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 646, "Two White Horses Side by Side" (1 fragment)
- Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 472-473, "Two White Horses" (1 text, 1 tune)

  Roud #11939
  NOTES [43 words]: The story of Daniel in the lion's den is found in 6:6-24. There is no explicit reference to Ezekiel wrestling with sin (let alone rolling right into heaven) -- but certainly Ezekiel spent more time than any other prophet wrestling with wild, crazed visions. - RBW
  File: San472

Two-Cent Coal

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the bosses' tricks of 'seventy-six, They met with some success, Until the hand of God came down and made them do with less." Miners are paid only two cents (per bushel of) coal. Now the frozen river hurts the bosses. The singer hopes for cooperation
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: mining hardtimes river boss
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 390-391, "Two-Cent Coal" (1 text, 1 tune)

  Roud #7723
  File: KPL390

Two-Gun Cowboy, The (Son of a Gun)

DESCRIPTION: "Out on a ranch way out west," the cowboys "never rest" until Saturday. One cowboy rides into town to see his girl, and is greeted by a shot through his hat. He finishes off the assailants, meets his girl, and heads off to be married
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Henry, collected from Jessie Pressley)
KEYWORDS: cowboy fight death marriage horse
Tyburn Hill

DESCRIPTION: "A beggar man laid himself down to sleep, Rumsty-o, Rumsty-o. A beggar man laid himself down to sleep, On the banks of the Mersey so wide and steep." Two thieves come by and rob the beggar. The singer sees them in the dock, then on Tyburn gallows

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1887 (College Songs)

KEYWORDS: thief begging punishment execution

FOUND IN: US(NE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 295-296, "Tyburn Hill" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST Lins295 (Partial)

Roud #3746

NOTES [244 words]: Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland points out that executions at Tyburn (Tye Burn) stopped in 1783 (after which time they took place at Newgate), implying that that dates this song. This doesn't really follow; "Tyburn" had by then become a byword of sorts. In fact the song seems somewhat confused; why would robbers who worked near the Mersey be hanged at Tyburn? Nonetheless, the confusion is early: The version in College Songs also says that the crime took place by the Mersey and the criminals executed at Tyburn. Curiously, although College Songs says the piece is "Used by permission," it does not list an author or say by whose permission it is used! Finally, the form looks rather like a singing game. It's most unfortunate that we can't find more versions of this piece.

Since I wrote the above, Peter Andrews of Louisburg, NC, has written to tell me that "My mother used to sing at least parts of that song to me.... She was American but grew up in China where her father taught at two Chinese government universities, approx. 1902-1919. She probably learned it from her uncle, Alexander Lattimore, a colorful gay man who knew a great variety of songs, many of them bawdy or irreligious," adding that this version, " started with A beggar man laid himself down to sleep, by the banks of the river so wide and deep, Rumsty-o, Rumsty-o. I don't remember the Mersey river or the gallows at Tyburn Hill. It may have been changed to a China setting." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: Lins295

Tying a Knot in the Devil's Tail [Laws B17]

DESCRIPTION: Two cowboys, having spent a wild time in town, are returning to camp when they meet the Devil. The Devil tries to collect their souls; the cowboys have the better of the fight, leaving the Devil tied up, branded, and with its tail in knots

AUTHOR: almost certainly Gail Gardner (1892-1987)

EARLIEST DATE: 1917

KEYWORDS: Devil cowboy fight humorous

FOUND IN: US(SW)

REFERENCES (15 citations):
Laws B17, "Tying a Knot in the Devil's Tail"
Larkin-SingingCowboy, pp. 75-78, "Rusty Jiggs and Sandy Sam" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 74, "Tying Knots in the Devil's Tail" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 203, "Tyin' a Knot in the Devil's Tail" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 406-409, "Tying a Knot in the Devil's Tail" (1 text)
Ohrlin-HellBoundTrain 27, "The Sierry Petes" (1 text, 1 tune)
Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging 19, pp. 127-132, "The Soughrty Peaks" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 535-536, "The Sierry Petes, or Tying Knots in the Devil's Tail" (1 text)
Tinsley-HeWasSinginThisSong, pp. 158-161, "Tying Knots in the Devil's Tail" (1 text, 1 tune)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 174-176, "Tying a Knot in the Devil's Tail" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 112, "Tyin' À Knot In The Devil's Tail" (1 text)
DT 384, DVLTAIL*
ADDITIONAL: John I. White, _Git Along, Little Dogies: Songs and Songmakers of the American West_, 1975 (page references are to the 1989 University of Illinois Press edition), pp. 117-125, "Gail Gardner, Cowboy 'Poet Lariat'" (1 text, 1 tune, plus various excerpts and a history of the song)
Powder River Jack and Kitty Lee's _Songs of the Range: Cowboy Wails of Cattle Trails_, Chart Music, 1937, p. 20, "Tying a Knot in the Devil's Tail" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hal Cannon, editor, _Cowboy Poetry: A Gathering_, Giles M. Smith, 1985, pp. 3-5, "The Sierry Petes" (1 text)
Roud #3238
RECORDINGS:
Cisco Houston, "Tying a Knot in the Devil's Tail" (Disc 5069, 1940s)
Harry Jackson, "Tying a Knot in the Devil's Tail" (on HJackson1)
Powder River Jack & Kitty Lee, "Tying A Knot In The Devil's Tail" (Victor 23527, 1930; Montgomery Ward M-4462, 1934; on AuthCowboys, BackSaddle, WhenIWas1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "De Hoffnung" (theme)
SAME TUNE:
East Texas Red (by Woody Guthrie) (on Thieme03)
NOTES [165 words]: Logsdon-WhorehouseBellsWereRinging lists various authors who have been credited with this piece, but states pretty unequivocally that Gail Gardner is the actual author. Gardner did obtain the copyright, and Logsdon's evidence does add up to a very strong case; none of the other claimants appear to have any real supporting documentation. I do find it fascinating that Powder River Jack Lee listed himself as the author in his songbook, with no hint that there is another author; most of his songs are listed as "arranged" by Lee.
According to Cannon, the "Sierry Petes" (Gardner's official title) refers specifically to the Sierra Prieta range in Arizona. Cohen records that "Buster Jig" was a nickname for Gail Gardner himself, while "Sandy Bob" was Bob Heckle.
For details on Gardner, see the John I. White article listed among the ADDITIONAL items. He comments that Gardner eventually resigned himself to others appropriating his song, but resented it when they got the words wrong. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.1
File: LB17

Tyler and Robinson

DESCRIPTION: Two champions, Robinson and Tyler, fight in London for fifty guineas. Robinson is favoured. Tyler knocks Robinson out and Robinson dies on the spot. Tyler is going to marry "a rich lady" but he dies "and the lady went in mourning"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1867 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(4326))

KEYWORDS: death mourning money sports

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople 18, "Bold Robinson" (1 text)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 151, "Bold Champions" (1 text)
Roud #2411

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(4326)[all lines truncated], "Young Tyler and Robinson Huzza" ("Come all you young fellows that delight in any game"), J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866; also Firth c.19(10), "Taylor and Robinson"; Firth c.19(9), "Tyler and Robinson"
NOTES [81 words]: I did not find any record of this fight in the Times of London up to 1880. Very few prize fights were reported as sporting events. Most reports were about the arraignment or trial of the victor when the loser was killed in the ring. If Robinson died in the ring and Tyler died soon after there may have been no one left to prosecute and so, the fight, if not otherwise noteworthy, might have gone unreported. Was there an equivalent of The Ring in mid-nineteenth century England? - BS

Last updated in version 2.6
File: ReSh018

Tylus and Talus

DESCRIPTION: "Tylus and talus and rippity-ting, All the girls gather and all the boys sing, Choose you the nearest one, Choose you the dearest one, All join together to make a big ring." Verses begin "Tylus and talus" and encourage the couples

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: playparty courting

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 542, "Tylus and Talus" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7655

File: R542

Tyne Exile's Lament, The

DESCRIPTION: "I sat by the side of a broad rolling river That sparkles along on its way to the sea; By my thoughts fly again o'er the wide-heaving main... I wish I were again on the banks of the Tyne." The singer recalls Tynside and hopes to be buried there

AUTHOR: Words: Anonymous (John Stokoe)/Music: Samuel Reay

EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland)

KEYWORDS: homesickness river exile burial

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 78-79, "The Tyne Exile's Lament" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3143

NOTES [40 words]: The notes in Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland say that an anonymous author wrote this and wanted his name to remain secret. It seems rather likely that Stokoe himself was responsible for this banal piece of local patriotism. - RBW

File: StoR978

Tyrie Plooin' Match, The

DESCRIPTION: The contestants at Tyrie "warlike were ... Their tickets drew wi' anxious han', Ilk ane thinkin' he'd be the man." "They did their wark in first-rate style." "Jim was well pleased" although he had the tenth prize, "the hinmost ane o' a' the lot"

AUTHOR: William D. Jeffrey (1845-1892) (source: Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast)

EARLIEST DATE: 1866 (copy of text, according to Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast)

KEYWORDS: contest farming

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #161, p. 2, ("A plooin' match here I'll insert") (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 424, "The Tyrie Plooin' Match" (1 text)
Roud #5941

NOTES [7 words]: Greig: "... I would extract a few verses." - BS

Last updated in version 2.4
Tyrle, Tyrlo (Tyrley, Tyrlow)

DESCRIPTION: "Tyrle, tyrlo, So meryye the shepperdes began to blowe." "About the fyld they pyped full right." A light and a company of angels come from heaven. They lead the shepherds to Bethlehem, where they meet "that mek chyld."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1537 (Hill MS., Balliol Coll. Oxf. 354)

KEYWORDS: carol Christmas sheep nonballad religious MiddleEnglish

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (11 citations):
Dearmer/VaughnWilliams/Shaw-OxfordBookOfCarols 169, "Tyrley, Tyrlow" (1 text, 1 modern tune)
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #50, "(no title)" (2 texts with variants)
Sidgwick/Chambers-EarlyEnglishLyrics LXVI, p. 126, "(no title)" (1 text)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #112
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #204

ADDITIONAL: Roman Dyboski, _Songs, Carols, and Other Miscellaneous Poems from the Balliol Ms. 354, Richard Hill's Commonplace Book_, Kegan Paul, 1907 (there are now multiple print-on-demand reprints), #20, p. 11, "(Tyrl tyrlow)" (1 text)

MANUSCRIPT: {MSRichardHill}, The Richard Hill Manuscript, Oxford, Balliol College MS. 354, folio 222
MANUSCRIPT: {MSEngPoetE1}, Oxford, Bodleian Library, MS. Eng. Poet. e.1 (Bodley 29734), folio 60
MANUSCRIPT: {MSPageantShearmen}, Coventry, Thomas Sharp MS. (burned 1879), folio ?

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Coventry Carol" (background on the Coventry Plays)

NOTES [270 words]: There is no proof that this piece is traditional, but there are hints that it was at least somewhat popular. The first is its inclusion in the Hill manuscript, which includes some folk pieces. And this is not the only source; Greene's text is from Bodleian MS. Eng. poet e.1, which is thought to date from the fifteenth century which also contains much folk material, and a now-destroyed manuscript once owned by Thomas Sharp -- the same copy of the Coventry Pageant of Shepherds and Tailors which also contained "The Coventry Carol" -- is said to have had music for it. Three copies, one of them from the Hill Manuscript, and one from the source of "The Coventry Carol," are perhaps enough to justify its inclusion here. Certainly it has been cited frequently since; the Index of Middle English Verse lists six reprints.
The Coventry version is different from, and shorter than, the others:
As I out rode this enderes night,
Of thre ioli shpehedes I saw a sight,
And all a-boute there fold a star shone bright;
They sange terli terlow;
So merely the sheppards ther pipes can blow (Craig, p. 31).
The story of the birth of Jesus and the shepherds is found in Luke 2:8-20.
A facsimile of the Hill manuscript is now available at the Balliol Library manuscripts resource at the Bodleian web site; go to http://image.ox.ac.uk/list?collection=balliol and scroll down to MS. 354.
For more on the lost Sharp manuscript and the Coventry Pageant, see the notes to "The Coventry Carol."
For more about the famous anthology Bodleian MS. Eng. Poet. e.1 (Bodleian 29734), see the notes to "The Golden Carol (The Three Kings)." - RBW

U S U Range, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come, cowboys, and listen to my song... about West Texas and the U S U Range.” The singer hired on with a well-dressed man. The food and houses are bad. The work is hard. He declares that he will not stay any longer.

U Tudini

DESCRIPTION: "Farewell my Dalmatia, farewell lovely homeland, To a foreign land I now go, there to dig that kauri gum." The singer left his home for New Zealand. Now he works hard day and night "Far from homeland and family."

U. S. A., The

DESCRIPTION: "Tell me, daddy, tell me, why the men in yonder crowd, Can you tell me why they are marching...?" The father tells his son that they are marching because they are proud of American freedom; both his grandfathers died fighting for it.

U. S. E. D.

DESCRIPTION: "U. S. E. D., suckers ev'ry day, Fifty cents an hour, four bucks a day... They make you whistle for your money." Hawaiians complains about the United States Engineer Department; others complain about life in Hawaii.
U. S. Lightship 98, The

DESCRIPTION: "They may boast of their dreadnaughts and cruisers likewise... But there is another whose fame I'll relate, It's Uncle Sam's little watchdog, the L. V. 98." She has a red hull, a small, efficient crew. It's a lonely job. We should take off our hats to her

AUTHOR: probably Frank McCauley
EARLIEST DATE: before 1952 (Walton collection)
KEYWORDS: ship nonballad
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
November 6-13, 1913 - The Great Storm on the Lakes
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 185-186, "The U. S. Lightship 98" (1 text)
Roud #19860

NOTES [485 words]: This song does not tell the eventual fate of the Lightship 98, but if the vessel is remembered at all, it is as one of the vessels which sank in the "Great Storm of 1913." The Lightship 98, stationed near the foot of Lake Huron, foundered on the night on November 9-10; all of her six crewmen were lost.

Ratigan, p 125, says "It is generally agreed that Lake Huron's 1913 storm was the greatest ever to strike the Lakes. Beyond all argument it must be called the worst in loss of life and loss of shipping. No other Lake storm in modern history even begins to compare with its toll of 235 lives and forty shipwrecks." On page 135, he quotes a monument set up at Port Sanilac, Michigan: "The grim toll was 235 seamen drowned, ten ships sunk, and more than twenty others driven ashore. Here on Lake Huron all 178 crewmen on the eight ships claimed by its waters were lost. For sixteen terrible hours gales of cyclonic fury made men and his machines helpless."

Thompson, p. 250, tells of the first storm flags being raised on Friday, November 7, "when the storm was still centered over Minnesota. It wasn't until late Sunday morning... that the worst of the storm hit the lakes." He observes that, because there was no flag for gale-force winds, many captains ignored the flags. Especially since the storm did not grow severe until two days after the flags went up. Thompson, p. 252, implies that this came about when a second low pressure system (this one from the south) collided with the pressure system which had formed over Lake Superior and headed east.

"Most of the twenty-four ships that sank or were seriously damaged on Lake Huron during the storm were sneaking along the west shore of the lake on Sunday when the approach of the second storm caused winds to veer unexpectedly to the northeast and leave them in dangerously exposed positions."

Even the first storm was fairly severe. Wolff, p. 148, says that "Head-of-the-Lakes residents were enjoying lovely Indian Summer weather on Thursday, November 6, with the mercury at 58 degrees F... Storm warnings were raised at Duluth at 10:00 a.m., November 7. The weathermen were correct. A 60 mph gale struck Duluth around 6 p.m., raging for several hours before diminishing to lesser blasts the next day. A sharp temperature drop saw the thermometer descending to 20 degrees above zero accompanied by strong winds and local snows." But, because the wind blew mostly down the lake, losses on Lake Superior were lighter than those on Lake Huron.

In all this, little wonder that none of the books specifically mention the Lightship 98. Thompson, p. 252, does mention the Lightship 82, which was based at Buffalo and sank with six sailors. There is even a photo of the Lightship 82 being salvaged; presumably the Lightship 98 was fairly similar. Amazingly for such a major event, there seem to be few songs about ships lost in the 1913 storm. - RBW

Bibliography

- Thompson: Mark L. Thompson, Graveyards of the Lakes, Wayne State University Press, 2000
- Wolff: Julius F. Wolff Jr., Lake Superior Shipwrecks, Lake Superior Port Cities Inc., Duluth, 1990
Ugly and Rotten
DESCRIPTION: "Your face is ugly and rotten. Nyaaa....."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1986 (List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, p. 87, "Ugly and Rotten" (1 short text, 1 tune)
File: List087D

Ugly Woman
DESCRIPTION: "If you want to be happy... marry a woman uglier than you." She will have your eatings on time and will be good to you in bed. "A pretty woman... can very often cause [your] downfall... exhibiting herself to Peter and Paul"
AUTHOR: Hubert R. Charles (Roaring Lion)
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Hubert R. Charles recording)
KEYWORDS: adultery infidelity love marriage sex warning beauty food nonballad husband wife
FOUND IN: West Indies(Trinidad)
RECORDINGS:
Hubert R. Charles, "Marry an Ugly Woman" (1934, on Melotone 12965)
The Lion with Gerald Clark and his Caribbean Serenaders, "Ugly Woman"(1941, on Decca 18143A)
The Lion and Frederico's Calypso Band, "Ugly Woman" (n.d., on "Calypso in Britain (1950-1953)"
Vol. 2 [recorded 1951])
Sir Lancelot with Gerald Clark and His Calypso Orchestra, "Ugly Woman" (n.d., on "Calypso Legends - Sir Lancelot (1940-1952)" [recorded 1941])
Duke of Iron and Gerald Clark and the Band, "Ugly Woman" (1999, on "Calypso at Midnight, Rounder CD 11661-1840-2 [recorded 1946])
Jimmy Soul, "If You Wanna Be Happy" (1963, S.P.Q.R 3305)
NOTES [573 words]: The Lion recorded his song as Hubert R. Charles on a trip to New York in 1934. American singer and radio/movie personality Rudy Vallee was in the studio, heard Lion sing this song, and had him perform it on his radio show, on "a coast-to-coast hookup" [Donald R. Hill, this song at break-neck speed; I still have trouble picking up the words even after hearing other people perform it and Lion's own later, more leisurely, performance. The numbers in this case are significant: excluding instrumental interludes, Lion sings each of five eight-line verses in 17 seconds (and not for lack of time since the recording runs 2:30 minutes, when three minutes was the rough limit for 10" 78rpm disks). In 1941 he recorded the song again, the same way, with Gerald Clark's orchestra. Clark, who had a regular gig at the Village Vanguard in New York, had two singers with him: Macbeth the Great and Sir Lancelot. "Ugly Woman" was among Lancelot's songs. "Sir Lancelot... appears immaculate in a white-coated dinner jacket. He stands erect, his head thrown back, and enunciates each word clearly and distinctly as he sings" [Malcolm Johnson,
"Gerald Clark and His Calypso Artists at the Village Vanguard," The New York Sun, April 5, 1940,
p. 27]. The point is made in the discussion of "Hold 'im Joe," that the mostly white midtown and Village New York audience appreciated calypso singers they could understand. When Sir Lancelot recorded "Ugly Woman" with Gerald Clark's orchestra he sang each of the five eight-line verses in 25 seconds -- almost half again the time of Lion's performance -- and the recording runs three minutes.
In the 1946 Town Hall "Calypso at Midnight" concert "Ugly Woman" was one of the three songs
Alan Lomax chose to warm up the audience. "Ugly Woman" records had sold well in the United States [Steve Shapiro, "Forward" for liner notes on "Calypso at Midnight," Rounder CD 11661-1840-2, 1999]. The other two were recent hits in the popular market. How would "Ugly Woman" be performed? Once again, Gerald Clark is the orchestra leader and this time Duke of Iron, a popular calypsonian in New York, sang. With no time limit imposed by record capacity, but with a live audience to work, Duke of Iron sang only four verses, doing each verse in 28 seconds, and the song ran 2:45 to -- as the old song sheets used to claim -- "great applause."
Incidentally, Lion recorded the song again in 1951. After a new introductory explanation he sings only four verses, each in 22 seconds, and the record runs 3:08.
In 1963 Jimmy Soul recorded "If You Wanna Be Happy." The tune and structure are different but 14 of his 16 lines are very close to the Lion/Lancelot 1941 version. The lines replaced describe the ideal woman, whom your friends may denigrate -- "See a mouse falling from her eye/ Around her lips a Confirmation bow tie" -- by "Go ahead and marry anyway/ Take it from me she's a better catch." Both the Duke of Iron and Lion himself in 1951 drop the verse altogether, possibly as not being appreciated by their current audience. Covers of Soul's version remain popular and even today (2015) are the music for a popular country line dance: "Crazy Foot Mambo."
I have included this song because of the part it plays in the history of commercial calypso music.
For the context see the discussion of "Hold 'im Joe." - BS
Last updated in version 5.2
File: RcUglWo

Un Canadien Errant

DESCRIPTION: Canadian French: A Canadien rebel has been forced from his home. Stopping by a stream, he bids it -- should it flow through his homeland -- to greet his friends. He promises not to forget his homeland
AUTHOR: M. A. Gerin-Lajoie
EARLIEST DATE: 1842
KEYWORDS: exile rebellion Canada foreignlanguage
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1837 - Revolt in Canada. The failure of the uprising forces many rebels into exile
FOUND IN: Canada(Que)
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Fowke/Johnston-FolkSongsOfCanada, pp. 26-27, "Un Canadien Errant" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke/Mills/Blume-CanadasStoryInSong, pp. 82-84, "Un Canadien Errant" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 4, "Un Canadien Errant" (1 English and 1 French version, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 339, "Un Canadien Errant (An Exiled Canadien)" (1 text)
DT, CANADERR
ADDITIONAL: Edith Fowke and Richard Johnston, _Folk Songs of Quebec (Chansons de Quebec)_ , Waterloo Music Company, 1957, pp. 16-17, "Un Canadien Errant (Once a Canadian Lad)" (1 French text plus English translation, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "Un Canadien Errant" (on PeteSeeger29)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "An Anti-Rebel Song" (subject)
cf. "Farewell to Mackenzie" (subject)
cf. "Les Metamorphoses" (tune)
NOTES [25 words]: For further details about the Canadian revolt, caused by the oppression of an oligarchic government, see the songs mentioned in the cross-references. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.1
File: FJ026

Un, Deux, Trois

DESCRIPTION: Creole French: "Un, deux, trois, Caroline qui fais comme sa, ma chere?" The singer asks Caroline what is the matter. She reports that mama says yes but papa says no. She is determined to have the young man anyway.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)
KEYWORDS: courting love family father mother foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 120, "Un Deux Trois" (1 short text, 1 tune) Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 218-219, "Un, Deux, Trois" (1 text plus translation, 1 tune)
Una Bhan (Fair Una)

DESCRIPTION: Irish Gaelic: Una's father locks her up rather than let her marry the singer. Ill, she sends for him; he finds the gates shut. If he doesn't hear from her before he has crossed the river, he won't return. A servant reaches him too late. Una dies of grief

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (recording, Maire Aine Ni Dhonnchadha)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Irish Gaelic: Una's father imprisons her in her room rather than allow her to marry the singer. Ill, she sends for him, but he finds the gates shut against him. Angry, he turns away, crying that if he doesn't hear from her by the time he has crossed the river, he'll never return. He hesitates midstream; a servant is sent after him, but he has crossed the river before the servant arrives. Una dies of grief; still bitter, he comes to visit her grave for the last time, asking her spirit to visit him (and telling her it's awful for her to be lying there with the rotting corpses). Nothing happens, and he turns away into the darkness

KEYWORDS: captivity disease grief hardheartedness courting love rejection corpse death mourning foreignlanguage lament father lover

FOUND IN: Ireland

RECORDINGS:
Maire Aine Ni Dhonnchadha, "Una Bhan" (on TradIre01)

NOTES [22 words]: Maire Aine Ni Dhonnchadha learned the song from an old woman in Rosaveel, the only person from whom it's apparently been collected. - PJS

File: RcUnaBha

Uncle Bill Teller

DESCRIPTION: "Uncle Bill Teller died las' fall, Young maiden, where ye bound to? We jigged t'ree days an' river got one, Across de Western Ocean." "Bill K is de divil fer fat, Hang to 'er, b'ys, hang to 'er." "Billy K. got a fine old bark."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (England, Vikings of the Ice)

KEYWORDS: hunting derivative

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, p. 106, "Uncle Bill Teller" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: George Allan England, _Vikings of the Ice: Being the Log of a Tenderfoot on the Great Newfoundland Seal Hunt_ (also published as _The Greatest Hunt in the World_), Doubleday, 1924, p. 129, "(no title)" (1 text)

Roud #V44701

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Across the Western Ocean" (form, lyrics)

NOTES [446 words]: Evidently a sealing parody of "Across the Western Ocean."
The notes to Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff give no hint as to what this is about, and my references don't offer any mention of a "William Teller." Is he the same as the "Billy K."
of the second stanza? And if so, is the name William Teller K[...]," or is it "William K. Teller"?
I can't say who Bill Teller might be, but I think I know who "Billy K." is. Chafe, p. 97, has a list of all men who commanded sealing steamers. There are four captains named William K: William Kean, William Knee, William Knight, and William Kent. But we are told that "Billy K. is de divil for fat." In other words, he was a successful sealer. This eliminates Kent at least; he led only one sealing trip, which was a flop, taking only 2759 seals.
William Kean did better; he had three trips, averaging 10899 seals per year, in 1863 and 1874-1875 (Chafe, p. 92) -- plus he was a member of the famous Kean family, for which see "Captain Abram Kean"; they later became very well-known indeed.
William Knight had more years as a steamer captain than Kent or Kean -- six (1870-1875; Chafe, p. 92) -- but averaged only 7709 seals per trip.
Which leaves William Knee. He is listed with sixteen trips to the ice (1877-1893; Chafe, pp. 92-93), averaging 12593 seals per year. And in "The Sealer's Song (I)," he was called "Billy Knee the Jowler" -- meaning that he was a great finder of seals. And he, like William Kean, was the head of a sealing dynasty -- e.g. his son Job Knee is mentioned in "Captains and Ships" and "The Sealer's Song (II)." Surely he is the best candidate by far. There is another faint hint of a link to Knee in this song. The third line of the first verse is "We jigged three days and never got one." This might of course be simply a reference to bad hunting; many ships had trouble finding seals. In 1883, Knee, in command of the Falcon, claimed he found seals early -- but that many of them were stolen (along with his ship's bunting), forcing him to spend more time on the ice to gain a full load of seals (Ryan, pp. 170-171).

Knee also probably had a good reputation among sealers. Many sealing captains would do nothing to help other ships, especially if they belonged to other companies. Knee was different. In 1890, the Terra Nova (for which see "The Terra Nova") left hundreds of her men behind on the ice. Having little choice, they headed for Knee's Kite. The Kite was a small ship (for its story, see "The 'Kite' *Abandoned in White Bay'"), but Knee put out his ship's boats and started coal fires and not only kept the men alive, he eventually turned the whole thing into a party (Keir, pp. 171-172).

Uncle Bud

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, Uncle Bud goin' down the road, Haulin' women by the wagon load, Uncle Bud (x3), Bud, Doggone it, Uncle Bud." About Uncle Bud's odd exploits, sexual anatomy, and extravagant farming methods, as well as poverty and perhaps the hope for salvation

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recording, Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers)

KEYWORDS: humorous drink death sex bawdy

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Wheeler-SteamboatinDays, pp. 95-97, "Uncle Bud" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #10035

RECORDINGS:

Anonymous singer, "Uncle Bud" (on Unexp1)

Grant & Wilson, "Uncle Joe" (QRS, 1929) (Decca, 1938)

Booker T. Sapps, "Uncle Bud" (AFS 370 A1, 370 A2, 1935)

Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers, "Uncle Bud" (Columbia 15134-D, 1927; rec. 1926) (Columbia 15221-D, 1928; rec. 1927)

NOTES [57 words]: Most versions of this song are bawdy, to a greater or lesser extent. A Texas variant, recorded by the anonymous singer on Unexp1, recounts stories about Uncle Bud Russell, who was in charge of transporting prisoners to the state prison at Huntsville -- but the song clearly existed in tradition before then, and was adapted to local use. - PJS

File: MWhee095

Uncle Dan Song, The

DESCRIPTION: "A sly young maid" warns Uncle Dan of a predatory widow who "set her cap" for him. He thanks the maid for the warning; if she marries she should treat her man well but "If he should die and you want another man, Just clear the road for Uncle Dan"

AUTHOR: Dan Riley

EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland)

KEYWORDS: courting warning humorous

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 48-49, 256, "The Uncle Dan Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ives-21FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 44-45, "Uncle Dan" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13998

RECORDINGS:
Mary Cousins, "The Uncle Dan Song" (on MRElves01)

NOTES [21 words]: Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland and Ives-21FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland are the same June 25, 1957 performance. - BS

Last updated in version 3.6
File: IvDC048

Uncle Doody

DESCRIPTION: "Well, old Uncle Doody in the shade of the tree, Played on the fiddle in the key of C." Various disasters strike the farm, but Uncle Doody doesn't care; he just keeps playing. Not even Aunt Viney's yelling, or a bad harvest, can distract him AUTHOR: Sam McGee?

EARLIEST DATE: 1981 (Burton-TennesseeTraditionalSingers)

KEYWORDS: music farming hardtimes family fiddle

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Burton-TennesseeTraditionalSingers, pp. 135-136, "Uncle Doody" (1 text)

File: BTN135

Uncle Eph

DESCRIPTION: About Uncle Eef/Eph/Ephraem's exploits, usually in hunting raccoons. May include recitations. Chorus: "Uncle Eph's got the coon and gone on And left us looking up a tree."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (recording, Dunham Jazz Singers)

KEYWORDS: animal hunting nonballad floatingverses humorous talltale

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 433, "Broder Eton Got de Coon" (1 text); also 511, "The Preacher Song" (1 text, a complex mix of verses from "Turkey in the Stray" and "Some Folks Say that a Preacher Won't Steal" with the "Uncle Eph" chorus)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 433, "Broder Éton Got de Coon" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 101-102, "Brother Ephrum Got de Coon and Gone On" (1 text, 1 tune, with even more floating material than usual, e.g. from "Don't Get Weary Children (Massa Had a Yellow Gal)"
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 122, "Bro' Ephram" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol1, pp. 14-15, "Uncle Ethan" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, (BRORPHUS -- on the face of it, a combination of this with a song about Moses)
Roud #11775

RECORDINGS:
Anglin Twins, "Uncle Eph's Got the Coon" (Vocalion 03904, 1937; ARC 8-02-52, 1938)
Dunham Jazz Singers, "Ephraim Got the Coon" (Columbia 14609-D, 1931)
Grandpa Jones, "Uncle Eph's Got The Coon" (King 867, 1950)
Art Thieme, "Uncle Eph/The Great Raccoon Hunt" [combines song and tall-tale] (on Thieme03)
Wade Ward, "Brother Ephram" (Okeh, unissued, 1925); "Uncle Eef" [instrumental] (on Holcomb-Ward1)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Uncle Reuben" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Mourner, You Shall Be Free (Mooanish Lady)" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [92 words]: In 1878, Bob Allen's published a song, "Old Uncle Eph," which I had guessed was the same song, but Gary Reid sent me a link to the sheet music (https://www.loc.gov/resource/sm1878.10392.0?st=gallery) which says that only the music is by Allen. And I would not consider it the same song.
It is interesting to note that at least two versions of this song -- Brown's #511 and the Hedy West text recorded in the Digital Tradition -- combine this with the chorus, "Where you going, Moses? None of your business. Come here, Moses. I ain't gonna do it." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0
File: RcUncEph

Uncle Joe and Aunty Mabel

DESCRIPTION: Joe and Mabel are restored to sexual vigor by a glass of Ovaltine. (Alternately, Fleischmann's Yeast or other improbable concoction)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Anecdotæ Americana)

KEYWORDS: bawdy humorous derivative

FOUND IN: Britain(England) US

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 374-376, "Uncle Joe and Aunty Mabel" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 37, "Fleischmann's Yeast" (1 text, tune referenced)
- DT, OVALTPM

Roud #10325

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" (tune)

File: EM374

Uncle Joe Cut Off His Toe (Rock the Cradle Joe)

DESCRIPTION: "Uncle Joe cut off his toe And hung it up to dry; And all the girls began to laugh And Joe began to cry." "Rock the cradle, rock the cradle, Rock the cradle, Joe...." Remaining verses, if any, appear to float; those quoted are characteristic

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: nonballad injury floating verses play party

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 97, "Uncle Joe Cut Off His Toe" (3 texts plus mention of 2 more, but "B" is probably "Shady Grove"; "A" is an incredible mix with verses typical of "Raccoon," "If I Had a Scolding Wife," a "Liza Jane" song, a mule song, and "Shady Grove")
- Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 153-154, "Cradle Song" (1 text)

Roud #741

File: Br3097

Uncle John -- The Sealer, 1951

DESCRIPTION: "Among the sealers who came home... was... Uncle John, As mad as he could be." John complains of the new law which allows sealing to begin before March 13, forcing them to take seals too young. He will not rest till the old law is restored

AUTHOR: Solomon Samson?

EARLIEST DATE: 1963 (A Glimpse of Newfoundland in Poetry and Pictures)

KEYWORDS: hunting political

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, p. 154, "Uncle John -- The Sealer, 1951" (1 text)

Roud #V44702

NOTES [391 words]: The song does not give enough details to be sure who the "Bradley" mentioned is, but I suspect it's Frederic Gordon Bradley (1888-1966), who first joined the Newfoundland government in 1924 as a Minister without portfolio and held several high offices after that. He was opposed to Newfoundland's loss of self-government in the 1930s. He helped arrange for Confederation with Canada after World War II, and was the first Newfoundlander to join the Canadian parliament (DictNewf, pp. 29-30). Whether he had anything to do with the changes in the sealing season I don't know.
Gordon Higgins (1905-1957) was one of the seven members of the first class of Newfoundlanders to join the Canadian parliament -- ironic, since he opposed Confederation. He represented St.
John's East, which might be why the song appeals to him -- but it might just be that he was a staunch opponent of policies imposed by Ottawa. "Mr. St. Laurent" is presumably Louis St. Laurent (1882-1973), the Prime Minister of Canada from 1948-1957, and so presumably the head of government at the time this piece was written.
The law in Newfoundland had for long required sealers to stay in port until March 10 (according to Greene, p. 94 n. 1, out of 71 seasons from 1863 to 1933, the fleet set sail on precisely March 10 in 44 of them), and the sealing season did not start until after that. This was an attempt (only partly successful) to maintain the seal population. But, in the 1950s, the Newfoundland sealers found themselves being displaced by sealers from the Maritimes and even Norway (Candow, pp. 110-111). In 1952, Canada and Norway -- despite advice that the seals were being driven to extinction, with the researchers wanting to shorten the season -- instead informally agreed to lengthen the season, allowing hunting to start at dates from March 5 (in the Gulf of St. Lawrence) to March 10 (Candow, p. 114). Presumably that is the event to which this poem refers.
The argument that the song makes -- that whitecoats taken on March 5 were too young -- is certainly true from the old-timers' standpoint; young seals wouldn't have any fat. But the value of the seal fat was declining fast; by the 1950s, furs were becoming more valuable, so the time of harvesting mattered less. Of course, killing seals for their coats soon provoked a backlash of a different sort. - RBW

Bibliography

- Candow: James E. Candow, Of Men and Seals: A History of the Newfoundland Seal Hunt, Canadian Parks Service, Environment Canada, 1989
- DictNewfLabrador: (Robert H. Cuff, managing editor), Dictionary of Newfoundland and Labrador Biography, Harry Cuff Publications, 1990
- Greene: William Howe Greene, The Wooden Walls among the Ice Floes: Telling the Romance of the Newfoundland Seal Fishery, Hutchinson & Co, London (PDF available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site)

Last updated in version 5.0
File: RySm154

Uncle John is Sick Abed

DESCRIPTION: "Uncle John is sick abed, What shall we send him? Three good wishes, three good kisses, And a slice of ginger bread." "Who shall we send it by?" "[Player's name], so they say, goes a-courting night and day... And takes Miss [name] for his bride."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana)
KEYWORDS: courting playparty food disease
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,NE,So) Britain
REFERENCES (7 citations):
  Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, p. 97=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, p. 234,
  "Uncle Johnie's Sick A-Bed" (1 text, tune referenced) McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, p. 67, "Uncly Johnny Sick Abed" (1 text, 1 tune) Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains, pp. 12-13, "Johnny's Home Sick in the Bed" (1 text, 1
  tune) Randolph 678, "Ride About, Ride About" (1 text plus a fragment, 1 tune; the "B" text starts with a stanza of this though the "A" and the last two stanzas of "B" appear to be something unrelated) Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 30, "Uncle John(I)"; Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 30, p. 160, "(Cockie Bendie's lyin' sick)"; Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 31, "Uncle John(II)" (5 texts, although some of these are "Cockabendy")
  Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #16, "Uncle John" (1 text)
  JournalOfAmericanFolklife, Jean Olive Heck, "Folk Poetry and Folk Criticism, as Illustrated by Cincinnati Children in Their Singing Games and Their Thoughts about These Games." Vol. XL, No.
  155 (Jan 1927), #11 p. 13 ("Uncle John is sick in bed") (1 text)
Roud #13080
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Cockabendy" (lyrics, theme)
cf. "Yankee Doodle" (tune)
NOTES [342 words]: This is rather a puzzling piece. Roud lumps it with the old Scots game of "Cockabendie," collected several times by Grieg. Certainly they share lyrics, and both are game songs. The overall text, however, is fairly distinct. Randolph's version begins with a verse from this, then goes off on what appears a different game -- and yet many of the lyrics appear in Gomme's "Uncle Tom is Very Sick."

If we take as our starting point the line "Uncle X is sick abed," we find that one of the few coherent versions is Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana's, which is used as the basis for the description here. She describes her version as a kissing game, though the figures have been lost. The tune is "Yankee Doodle."

Laura Ingalls Wilder, On the Banks of Plum Creek, chapter 21 (p. 159 of the paperback edition) has a version which is very similar to Wolford's but shorter -- and peculiar, since it appears to have ten lines, not eight or 12 or 16.

This raises an interesting question: Wilder seems to imply that her version is a ring game, not a kissing game. But Laura disliked kissing games, and once brushed off a suitor because he put his arm around her waist (see John E. Miller, Becoming Laura Ingalls Wilder: The Woman Behind the Legend, University of Missouri Press, 1998, p. 64. If you want a measure of how sexually conservative Laura was, consider the fact that, at the end of their lives, she and her husband had separate beds even though the evidence is strong that she still loved him -- after he died, she preferred to sleep in his bed! -- Miller, p. 251).

Also, if this were the same as "Cockabendie," how did it end up being sung to the tune of "Yankee Doodle" -- hardly a Scottish tune!

My tentative conclusions:
1. That this song, though from the same roots as "Cockabendie," is now so distinct as to deserve separate filing.
2. That it was known as a kissing game, even to Wilder
3. That Wilder really did play it in Walnut Grove, Minnesota -- why else cite it at that point, since she would presumably have disapproved of the song? - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: LIWUJISA

Uncle John's Fiddle
DESCRIPTION: Uncle John -- "the greatest performer that ever was known" -- died and left the singer his wonderful fiddle. He describes his uncle's feats, his fiddle's miraculous attributes and, now, his own playing feats which are not quite as good as his uncle's.
AUTHOR: James Davidson (source: Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast)
EARLIEST DATE: 1861 (Davidson, Poems: Chiefly in the Buchan Dialect, according to Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: death fiddle music humorous
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #38, pp. 1-2, "Uncle John's Fiddle"; #30, p. 2, "Uncle John's Fiddle" (1 text plus 1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan4 742, "Uncle John's Fiddle" (3 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #5641
NOTES [59 words]: Greig: "Mr John Milne, Maud, says he first heard 'Uncle John's Fiddle' some time between 1856 and 1860, when it was sung into popularity by Wm. M'Kay, Bransbog, Strichen, and other local singers. 'Uncle John' was an eccentric character and well known in the district. He was no fiddler, and Davidson is simply making fun of his attempts at playing." - BS

Last updated in version 2.6
File: GrD4742

Uncle Ned
DESCRIPTION: Uncle Ned was so old when he died that he had no wool (hair) on his head, no teeth, and was blind. Even so, both his fellow-slaves and his owners grieved at his death
AUTHOR: Stephen C. Foster
EARLIEST DATE: 1848 (copyright)
KEYWORDS: death mourning slave
FOUND IN: US(MW,SE,So)
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Randolph 261, "Uncle Ned" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randoph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 223-225, "Uncle Ned" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 261)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 420, "Uncle Ned" (2 texts plus an exaggerated parody, "There was an ancient colored individual, and his cognomen was Uncle Edward")
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 420, "Uncle Ned" (2 tunes plus text excerpts)
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 236-237, ("Uncle Ned") (1 fragment plus a Great Depression parod noting that "All the Democrats are working on the State Highway Job And the Republicans are all on Relief")
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 92, pp. 116-117, "Old Uncle Ned" (2 short texts)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2389, pp. 160-161, "Uncle Ned" (4 references)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, p. 5, "Uncle Ned" (1 text)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #124, "Uncle Ned" (1 text)
ST R261 (Full)
Roud #4871
RECORDINGS:
Elda Blackwood, "Uncle Ned" [fragment] (on USWarnerColl01)
Fiddlin' John Carson, "Old Uncle Ned" (OKeh 40263, 1925; rec. 1924)
Al Hopkins & his Buckle Busters, "Old Uncle Ned" (Brunswick 300, 1929; rec. 1928)
Uncle Dave Macon, "Uncle Ned" (Vocalion 5011, 1926)
Harry "Haywire Mac" McClintock, "Darkie Uncle Ned" (on McClintock02)
Chubby Parker, "Uncle Ned" (Silvertone 25103, 1927; Supertone 9192, 1928)
Leake County Revelers, "Uncle Ned" (Columbia 15470-D, 1929)
Oscar Seagle, "Uncle Ned" (Columbia A-3582, 1922)
BROADSIDES:
Murray, Mu23-y4:0048, "Uncle Ned," unknown, 19C
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Johnny Walk Along to Hilo" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Way Down on the Old Peedee" (plot)
SAME TUNE:
Uncle Ned's Ghost (broadside Murray, Mu23-y1:011, "Uncle Ned's Ghost," J. Bristow (Glasgow), no date; a sequel to this song describing Ned's afterlife)
"Dere Was a Little Man, and His Name was Stevy Dug" (Campaign song for Abraham Lincoln, 1860, quoted in Bruce Catton, _The Coming Fury_, p. 93; Paul F. Boller, Jr., _Presidential Campaigns_, second revised edition, Oxford University Press, p. 112)
"We've a noble rail splitter, and his name is Honest Abe" (Campaign song for Abraham Lincoln, 1860, quoted in Paul F. Boller, Jr., _Presidential Campaigns_, second revised edition, Oxford University Press, p. 103)
There's a Land of Bliss (words by N. C. Brook) (cited in John Tasker Howard, _Stephen Foster: America's Troubadour_, p. 398)
Escape from Slavery of Henry Box Brown ("Have you seen a man by the name of Henry Brown, Ran away from the South to the North") (Foner, p. 91, with a broadside reprint on p. 92)
NOTES [560 words]: Randolph, following White, says this song is common in African-American tradition, but collections from tradition (Black or White) seem relatively few. (And it's hard to see why African-Americans would make it their own, given its obvious pro-slavery bias. White found several versions, and Talley had one much-modified text, but that's about it for collections from non-Whites.) Brown had a genuine collection; Randolph also has one, plus there is also a fragment in Laura Ingalls Wilder's _Little House in the Big Woods_ (chapter 5). But the latter two versions, we might note, have Ozark connections.
This was one of Foster's very earliest pieces, and one of his first big hits. According to DeVoto, p. 134, 'in March of [1846] a twenty-year-old Pittsburg youth failed of appointment at West Point, and so at the end of the year he went to keep books in his brother's commission house at Cincinnati. He took with him the manuscripts of three songs, all apparently written in this year, all compact of the minstrel-nigger tradition. One celebrates a lubly collud gal, Lou'siana Belle. In another an old
Uncle Reuben

DESCRIPTION: "Uncle Reuben caught a coon, done gone, Chick-a-chick, done gone... and left me here behind." Assorted verses about animals, hunting, love: "Rabbit running through the grass, Foxes close behind, Trees and weeds and cockleburrs Is all the foxes find"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1973

KEYWORDS: animal hunting nonballad floatingverses

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 38, "Uncle Reuben" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Possum Up a Gum Stump" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Uncle Eph" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [124 words]: This seems to be almost purely floating verses (e.g. "Possum up a 'simmon tree..."), but the collection as a whole does not seem to go with any other song, and so it gets its own listing.

Paul Stamler has suggested that this is a version of "Uncle Eph." They probably have some common ancestry. But this is less of a talltale, and the form is different, so I tentatively split them -- at least until I find out where the Silber version came from. (A perpetual problem with Silber.) - RBW

Silber's version almost certainly came from folk-revival singer Tom Glazer, who recorded it in the Uncle Sam's Farm

DESCRIPTION: "Of all the mighty nations in the east or in the west, Oh this glorious Yankee nation is the greatest and the best... Here's a general invitation to the people of the world." The singer promises them farms, lists the U.S. boundaries, praises its freedom

AUTHOR: The Hutchinson family (credited to Jesse Hutchinson Jr.)

EARLIEST DATE: 1850 (sheet music)

KEYWORDS: political nonballad America technology work

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 20, 1862 - President Lincoln signs the Homestead Act

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 399, "Uncle Sam's Farm" (1 text)
Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 408, "Uncle Sam's Farm" (1 text, a copy of an Andrews broadside)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2394, p. 161, "Uncle Sam's Farm" (7 references)
DT, USFARM

ADDITIONAL: James Taylor Dunn, _The St. Croix: Midwest Border River_, reprint edition with new introduction published 1979 by the Minnesota Historical Society press, p. 58, [no title] (1 fragment, which he dates to the Civil War and which has an addendum stating that the farm is in Polk County in northwestern Wisconsin, i.e. in the same county as St. Croix Falls and Balsam Lake)

Roud #4556

CROSS-REFERENCES:
 cf. "Uncle Sam's School" (lyrics)

SAME TUNE:
Uncle Sam's School (File: Stou103J)
I'm In Want of a Substitute (File: Pet233B)
A Parody on "Uncle Sam's Farm" ("Of all the reformations, in the east or in the west") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 124)

NOTES [178 words]: The statement, "Uncle Sam's rich enough to give us all a farm" appears to refer to the Homestead Act, allowing anyone to acquire western land for a nominal fee. Obviously it dates from before 1923, when the U. S. effectively closed its doors to immigrants. It will be noted that the song seems to predate the Homestead Act. It does not, however, predate the idea of a homestead act. J. G. Randall's _The Civil War and Reconstruction_ (second edition by David Donald, Heath, 1961), p. 81, notes that "Southern congressmen repeatedly helped defeat homestead legislation which would have encouraged free-soil settlement of the national territories." Once the South was out of Congress due to the Civil War, the act passed.

Laura Ingalls Wilder quotes a snippet of this in chapter seven of _By the Shores of Silver Lake_; she does not follow the Hutchinson Family words very closely. I find myself wondering what Laura -- who was quite conservative -- would have thought of the song had she realized that it was by those radical egalitarian liberals the Hutchinsons. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.5

File: Br3399

Uncle Sam's Funeral

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas but a little while ago That Copperheads were found With their great Vallanding-hammers A-hammering around." They declare Uncle Sam (i.e. the Union) dead. But Uncle Sam rises up "and the Coppers sneaked To where they all belong."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales)

KEYWORDS: Civilwar desertion humorous wordplay

FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 362, "Uncle Sam's Funeral" (1 text)
Roud #6608

NOTES [97 words]: In the American Civil War, the Copperheads were politicians (mostly Democratic) who favored letting the Confederates succeed without a fight, and their most significant spokesman was Ohio congressman Clement Vallandigham (1820-1871), who is referred to in the song. At one time he was turned over to the Confederates (who hardly wanted him), but when he returned north, he was allowed to continue his anti-Union message. He obviously didn't end the war, and I doubt he did anything to prolong it, but he certainly wasn't popular with Republicans or others who favored the war. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.0
File: TNY362

Uncle Sam's School

DESCRIPTION: "Of all the institutions in the east or in the west, The glorious institution of the schoolroom is the best, There is room for every scholar...." "Then come along, take no delay... For Uncle Sam is rich enough to send us all to school."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Stout-FolkloreFromIowa)
KEYWORDS: derivative nonballad
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 103, pp. 127-133, "Early Iowa School Songs" (11 texts, of which "J" is this song)
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 82-84, "Uncle Sam" (1 text, 1 tune, plus a photo of a manuscript copy)
Roud #21647
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Uncle Sam's Farm" (lyrics, form, tune)

NOTES [72 words]: This is so precise a parody of the westward migration song "Uncle Sam's Farm" that I think it must be sung to the same tune. I'd say about 80% of the text of Stout-FolkloreFromIowa's version is taken from "Uncle Sam's Farm." List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana's version is very similar to Stout's, and while the tune is not identical to "Uncle Sam's Farm" as I learned it, it certainly appears to be derived from it. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: Stou103J

Unclouded Day, The

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "O the land of cloudless days, O the land of an unclouded sky, O they tell me of a home where no storm clouds rise, O they tell me of an unclouded day." Friends are there, a King on a snow-white throne, the tree of life, and a city of gold.

AUTHOR: J. K. Alwood (source: Townsend)
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (recording, Homer Rodeheaver)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Mrs. A.M. Townsend, ed., The Baptist Standard Hymnal with Responsive Readings (Nashville: Sunday School Publishing Board National Baptist Convention U.S.A., 1924 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), #606 p. 523, "The Unclouded Day" ("O they tell me of a home far beyond the skies") (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #17614
RECORDINGS:
Reverend Gary Davis, "The Unclouded Day" (1953, on "If I Had My Way: Early Home Recordings of Reverend Gary Davis," Smithsonian Folkways SFW40123)
Walter Lee Hood, "They Tell Me of an Uncloudy Day" (on USMississippi01)
Homer Rodeheaver, "The Unclouded Day" (Victor 17456, 1914)
The Staple Singers, "Uncloudy Day" (1959, on "Uncloudy Day," Vee Jay VJLP 5000)
The Stoneman Family (or Pop Stoneman), "Uncloudy Day" (2008, on "28 Classics," Gusto GT7-0697-2)

NOTES [46 words]: From David Evans's liner notes to USMississippi01: "... the influence of the Mississippi-born Staples Singers can be detected in ... 'They Tell Me of an Uncloudy Day.' The commercial background ... has not obliterated all traces of traditional style and content, however." - BS

Last updated in version 5.1
File: RcUncDay

Undaunted Female, The (The Box Upon Her Head; The Staffordshire Maid; The Maid and the Robber) [Laws L3]

DESCRIPTION: A servant girl sets out for home to help her father. She meets a robber and kills him. She meets another stranger who returns with her to the body. They find a whistle which summons more robbers. Girl and stranger dispose of them and agree to marry

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1825 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 c.17(446))

KEYWORDS: outlaw marriage

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar) Britain(England(All),Scotland(Aber,Bord)) US(Ro)

REFERENCES (12 citations):
Laws L3, "The Undaunted Female"
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #35, p. 2, "The Maid and the Robber" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan2 268, "The Maid and the Robber" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfursCollectionVolume1 56, "A Yarmouth Story" (1 text)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 280-281, "It's of a Pretty Fair Maid" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO OX 293, "Female Robber")

BROADWOOD/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 60-61, "The Beautiful Damsel" (1 text, 1 tune)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #46, "The Box Upon Her Head" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #144, "The Undaunted Female" (1 text, 1 tune)

Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia 130, "The Box Upon Her Head" (1 text)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #143, "The Fair Damsel from London" (1 text, 1 tune)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN514, "Come all ye young gallants and listen a while" (?)

Roud #289

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 c.17(446), "The Undaunted Female" ("It's of a fair damsels in London did dwell"), W. Armstrong (Liverpool), 1820-1824; also Harding B 11(3939), Firth c.17(22), Firth c.17(23), Johnson Ballads 610, Firth b.25(41/42), Johnson Ballads 3154, Firth c.26(47), Harding B 11(3940), Harding B 11(3934), Harding B 11(3935), Harding B 11(3941), Harding B 11(3937), Harding B 11(3936), Harding B 16(292c), 2806 d.31(40), 2806 c.17(448), 2806 c.17(447), Harding B 20(229), Harding B 25(1962), "The Undaunted Female"; Harding B 1(99), "The Tinker and Staffordshire Maid" ("Come all you bold Britons and listen awhile"), J. Jennings (London), 1790-1840

Murray, Mu23-y1:052, "The Undaunted Female," James Lindsay (Glasgow), 19C

File: LL03

Under the Bram Bush

DESCRIPTION: "Under the b ram bush, Under the sea, True love for you, my darling, True love for me." We'll get married and have a boy for you, a girl for me"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)

KEYWORDS: love marriage sea playparty children

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 137, "Under the Bram Bush" (2 texts, 1 tune)

Roud #18988

NOTES [18 words]: I can't make anything of the tune, except for the "Shave and a Haircut" ending "Um tiddley um dum, sex-y!" - BS
Under the Coconut Tree
DESCRIPTION: "Under the cocoanut tree... you promised to marry me... you gave me your heart... you took my heart from me... let's go back."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (WILBennett01)
KEYWORDS: courting love marriage dialog nonballad
FOUND IN: West Indies(Jamaica)
RECORDINGS:
Louise Bennett, "Under the Coconut Tree" (on WILBennett01)
NOTES [18 words]: Performed on Bennett's track as a dialog. Bennett says "this is the only Jamaican folksong in waltz time." - BS
Last updated in version 3.7
File: RcUtCCN

Under the Garden Wall
DESCRIPTION: The singer spies a man and a maid under or over the garden wall. The two have sex, leaving the spy sexually aroused and unfulfilled.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: bawdy sex hiding
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 535-537, "Under the Garden Wall" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #8382
File: RL535

Under the Greenwood Tree
DESCRIPTION: "In summertime, when flow'rs do spring, And birds sit on the tree, Let Lords and Knights say what they will, There's none so merry as we. There's Will and Moll, with Harry and Doll, and Tom and bonny Bettee... Under the greenwood tree
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1686 (The Dancing Master)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic II, pp. 53-54, "Oh, How They Frisk It, or, Leather Apron, or Under the Greenwood Tree" (1 tune; partial text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Dame Durden" (form)
cf. "Widdicombe Fair (II)" (form)
SAME TUNE:
cf. Bronson's notes to "Robin Hood and the Monk" [Child 119]
NOTES [31 words]: This may not be traditional, but it appears to be the earliest example of this form of "lusty lads and lasses are merry" sort of song, so I put it in here for cross-reference purposes. - RBW
File: ChWII053

Under the Moon One Thing I Crave
DESCRIPTION: She says, "without you, nothing I find That can bring contentment to my mind." She complains that he is hard hearted but she'll "be like unto yon dove that's chaste." He says he loves her and he'll cross hills and mountains and the sea to be with her.
AUTHOR: unknown
Under the Willow She's Sleeping (The Willow Tree)

DESCRIPTION: "Under the willow she's laid with care (Sang a lone mother while weeping,) Under the willow with golden hair, My little one's quietly sleeping. Fair, fair and golden hair...." The mother laments that the girl sings and plays no more
AUTHOR: Stephen C. Foster
EARLIEST DATE: 1860 (sheet music)
KEYWORDS: death love burial mother children
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, p. 484, "Under the Willow" (1 text)
Randolph 711, "The Willow Tree" (1 text, a fragment which Randolph calls "pretty close" to the Foster song, although it has only a few phrases found in the original Foster text)
Saunders/Root-MusicOfStephenCFoster-Vol2, pp. 89-92+427, "Under the Willow She's Sleeping" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2400, p. 161, "Under the Willow She's Sleeping" (2 references)
Roud #7377
SAME TUNE:
The Nation Is Weeping ("Lincoln has fallen! the good and the great," by Louise S. Upham) (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 105)
File: R711

Under Way

DESCRIPTION: "Hurrah my lads, get underway, Right welcome comes the warning." The ship is homeward bound. The singer calls on his comrades to work hard that they may make the voyage safely. They will arrive with banners flying
AUTHOR: George E. Mills? (see Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang)
EARLIEST DATE: 1854 (Journal of the Java)
KEYWORDS: sailor ship return home
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 142-143, "Under Way" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #27544
File: HGam142

Unemployment Insurance

DESCRIPTION: "I'm sitting here waiting for the mail" with my unemployment insurance cheque. "I go into the office to fill out my claim, Praying to Jesus the jobs will be few." The cheque arrives. "Dear Lord.... If you find work for someone I sure hope it's not me!"
AUTHOR: Alton MacLean
EARLIEST DATE: 1982 (Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland)
KEYWORDS: unemployment political humorous nonballad
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 219-221, 256, "Unemployment Insurance" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13999
CROSS-REFERENCES:
Unfortunate Boot, The

DESCRIPTION: A blacksmith is courting Jessie when two farmers rap on her window to court her and her sister. He hides, thinking it is her father, but runs off with one of their boots when the sex resumes. In the snow next day one brother had to carry the other home.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan2)

KEYWORDS: sex trick humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan2 315, "The Unfortunate Boot" (2 texts)
Roud #5867

NOTES [121 words]: In the ballad the blacksmith is called "Vulcan." The whole tale then becomes an analog for the Hephaestus/Vulcan, Aphrodite, Ares triangle in which Hephaestus uncovers the illicit affair between the other two and exposes them to public ridicule.

Greig/Duncan2: "Written about 1852" about events the previous year at Pitnycalder in the parish of Aberdour. The notes name the participants. - BS

"The love of Ares and Aphrodite crowned with flowers" occurs first in the Odyssey, told as a tale in book VIII, starting around line 300. It was a popular tale, and came to the Latin-speaking world, e.g., through Ovid, Metamorphoses, book IV, starting around 170. I have to wonder how a folk poet would know about it, though. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4

File: GrD2315

Unfortunate Man, The

DESCRIPTION: The "unfortunate man" has all sorts of troubles. His sweetheart jilts him. He runs off with another man's wife, but is quickly captured. His friends cheat him. Now he can only hope a girl will "think more of my heart than she did of my face."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: courting separation adultery punishment trick loneliness

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Randolph 440, "The Unfortunate Man" (3 texts, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 319-320, "The Unfortunate Man" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 440A)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 187, "The Unfortunate Man" (1 text, 1 tune) DT, UNFORTU2*
Roud #6367

NOTES [33 words]: Not to be confused with the pop folk song "The Warranty Deed" (sometimes known as "The Unfortunate Man" or "The Very Unfortunate Man") about the poor lawyer and the disassemblable woman. - RBW, PJS

Last updated in version 3.3

File: R440

Unfortunate Miss Bailey

DESCRIPTION: Captain Smith seduces Miss Bailey, who hangs herself. One night her ghost returns and upbraids him, saying she's been ill-used, and the parson won't bury her. The captain gives her money to bribe the sexton, whereupon she vanishes, content.

AUTHOR: George Colman
EARLIEST DATE: 1803 (Love Laughs at Locksmiths)
KEYWORDS: seduction suicide humorous nightvisit ghost soldier
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond)) Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 54, "Unfortunate Miss Bailey" (1 text)
- Fowke/Johnston-FolkSongsOfCanada, pp. 183-185, "Unfortunate Miss Bailey" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 88, "Unfortunate Miss Bailey" (1 text)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 182, "Unfortunate Miss Bailey" (1 text)

DT, BAILYGHO
Roud #4549
BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, Hard B 25(1257), "Miss Bailey's Ghost," J. Evans (London), 1780-1812 [only partly legible]; also probably Harding B 25(1869), "Unfortunate Miss Bailey," J. Jennings (London), 1790-1840 [illegible]
CROSS-REFERENCES:
SAME TUNE:
The Kola Run (File: PaSe152)
NOTES [264 words]: This song is variously credited to George Colman the elder (1732-1794) and George Colman the younger (1762-1836). As it appears in the latter's play "Love Laughs at Locksmiths," the younger seems a stronger candidate. - RBW

The first four verses of "Unfortunate Miss Bailey" appear... in "Love Laughs at Locksmiths." The comic-opera (piss-poor, BTW; I've read it) premiered on July 25, 1803 at the Haymarket Theatre, London. The "new song" was written by someone only identified as "Risk." It was a curtain closer and the action had no relation to the play.

[A version appears in the] Levy Collection:
- Box 049 Item 070 Page 001 Box 049 Item 070 Page 002
Levy Call Number: Box 049, Item 070
Title: Unfortunate Miss Bailey.
Composer, Lyricist, Arranger: na
Publication: London : M. Kelly at his Musical Saloon Pall Mall
Date: [n.d.]
Form of Composition: strophic with chorus
Instrumentation: piano and voice
First Line: A Captain bold in Hallifax that dwelt in Country Quarters
First Line of Chorus: Oh Miss Bailey unfortunate Miss Baily
Performer: Sung By Mr. Mathews, in the Comic Opera of Love Laughs at Locksmiths.
Subjects: Courtship & love; Suicide; Hangings; Intoxication;
Deceit; Supernatural beings; Briber

The occasionally-sung fifth verse (Marais & Miranda, me, some feller up at Old Songs Fest a few weeks back) is hand written on this copy of the song. There's no hint who wrote it or when or where but (for the little I can tell) it's in quill pen & 19th century.
The play opened in NY as soon as 1807 and the song was also printed and instantly became a pop hit there. - AS

Last updated in version 4.4
File: FR054

Unfortunate Rake, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets a young man/woman wrapped in flannel. The young person says that he/she is dying, originally of syphilis but in some versions of wounds or unspecified disease. The young person requests an elaborate military funeral.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1790
KEYWORDS: disease death dying funeral lament whore
FOUND IN: Britain (England(All),Scotland(Aber)) Ireland US(Ap,MA)
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Greig/Duncan7 1404, "Disordered" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
VaughanWilliams/Lloyd-PenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs, p. 108, "The Young Girl Cut Down In Her Prime" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 131, "St. James's Hospital, or The Sailor Cut Down in his Prime" (2 texts, 2 tunes, but the "B" text really belongs with "Streets of Laredo")
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 386, "Wrapped in Red Flannels" (1 text, short enough that it might go with any of the "Unfortunate Rake" family or might be independent, but since it starts with a mention of red flannels, I file it here)
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 104-105, "The Unfortunate Rake" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, p. 150, "The Unfortunate Rake" (1 text, included with the text and tune of "The Streets of Laredo [Laws B1])
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 217, "Young Man Cut Down In His Prime (St. James Hospital)" (1 text)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, p. 5, "The Unfortunate Rake" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Kenneth Lodewick, "'The Unfortunate Rake" and His Descendants," article published 1955 in _Western Folklore_; republished on pp. 87-98 of Norm Cohen, editor, _All This for a Song_, Southern Folklife Collection, 2009
Roud #2
RECORDINGS:
Harry Cox, "The Young Sailor Cut Down in His Prime" (on FieldTrip1)
Texas Gladden, "One Morning in May" (AFS, 1941; on LCTreas)
A. L. Lloyd, "St. James's Hospital" (on Lloyd2, Lloyd3)
Pete Seeger, "St. James Hospital" (on PeteSeeger16)
BROADSIDES:
Murray, Mu23-y4:039, "The Unfortunate Lad," unknown, 19C
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Streets of Laredo" [Laws B1] (tune & meter, plot) and references there
cf. "The Bad Girl's Lament (St. James' Hospital; The Young Girl Cut Down in her Prime) [Laws Q26] (tune & meter, plot)
cf. "Dying Crapshooter's Blues" (theme, floating verses)
cf. "The Sailor Cut Down in His Prime" (tune & meter, plot)
cf. "My Home's in Montana" (tune, floating lyrics)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Unfortunate Lad
The Whores of the City
NOTES [581 words]: Syphilis first appeared in Europe in epidemic form, with devastating effects, in the early 1500s. It was often treated with compounds of mercury, mentioned in some versions of the song.
Clearly this is the ancestral ballad to "The Bad Girl's Lament", "St. James Infirmary", "The Whore's Lament", "Streets of Laredo", "The Dying Marine", etc. -PJS
Silber & Silber subtitle their text "St. James Hospital," since the name is mentioned in the text. This title, however, seems to be associated primarily with the "Bad Girl's Lament."
Archaeological findings indicate that syphilis had a long history in the Americas, but what seem to be the oldest cases in Europe date from 1494-1495, during a French incursion into what is now Italy (Kohn, p. 106). It has been speculated that Columbus's sailors brought it back from the New World after their extensive relations with the women of the Carribean.
At least a few versions refer to dosing syphilis with "arsenic and salts of white mercury." Mercury as a cure is older, as Paul notes; according to Le Couteur/Burreston, p. 187, the earliest use of mercury against syphilis apparently goes back to about the beginning of the sixteenth century. It was a cure nearly as bad as the disease: "[M]ercury could hardly be considered a magic bullet for syphilis, as it often killed its patients. Victims died of heart failure, dehydration, and suffocation during the process of being heated in an oven while breathing mercury fumes. If one survived this procedure, typical symptoms of mercury poisoning -- loss of hair and teeth, uncontrolled drooling, anemia, depression, and kidney and liver failure -- took their toll" (Le Couteur/Burreston, pp. 186-187).
Consumption of mercury salts was perhaps slightly better, but not much. The use of the "corrosive sublimate" of mercury (i.e. HgCl2) as a treatment for syphilis goes back to the late fifteenth century (Emsley-Blocks, pp. 255-256). Henry VIII and Robert Burns are among those found to have had high levels of mercury in their bodies at the time of their death, possibly due to treatments for venereal disease (Emsley-Blocks, p. 257). Emsley-Elements, pp. 15-19, offers strong evidence that Charles II also died of mercury poisoning, although in this case he does not suspect a treatment for venereal disease. (No idea why not, given Charles II's lifestyle.)

Arsenic was also used in various medicines during the nineteenth century and earlier, some of them effective but mostly, like mercury, more dangerous than helpful. Arsenic as a true remedy for syphilis came into use in 1909, when Paul Ehrlich found arsphenamine (Salvarsan) to be effective; it remained in use until the coming of penicillin (Emsley-Blocks, p. 42; Timbrell, p. 224). It sometimes had dangerous side effects (Emsley-Elements, p. 108), but it sure beat syphilis!

Ehrlich had earlier discovered dyes which stained some cells and not others; he thought it would therefore be possible to find the "magic bullet" which could attack bacteria or diseased cells while leaving ordinary cells alone. (He eventually called this "chemotherapy.") He didn't have much luck; arsphenamine was his #606, which failed to do any good against the target organisms (trypanosomes) -- but a few years later was found to be effective against spirochaetes, the syphilis organism (Porter, pp. 204-205). This obviously dates the arsenic and mercury stanzas before 1909, when the first truly effective (although still rather toxic) cure came out.

- RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 4.5
File: VWL108

Unfortunate Swain, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer goes to a meadow to pick a rose and asks why he must "love a girl that will break my heart." He will love only her. "He that loves an unkind maid, I am sure he strives against the stream" When she dies he will still think about her.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (recording, Jasper Smith)

KEYWORDS: love separation death ship flowers grief floatingverses nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))

Roud #60

RECORDINGS:

Jasper Smith, "Down In The Meadow" (on Voice11)

BROADSIDES:

Bodleian, Harding B 22(312), "The Unfortunate Swain" ("Down in a meadow fair and gay"), unknown, n.d.

NOTES [173 words]: The description is from broadside Bodleian Harding B 22(312). Roud puts this with "Love Has Brought Me to Despair" [Laws P25]. I agree that it shares floating verses with the family of songs Roud lumps together under that number. If I had only the Jasper Smith version on Voice11 I would have done the same. The broadside Bodleian Harding B 22(312), has (almost) the same first verse and shares the remaining two verses of Smith's version including one that I haven't seen among the floaters:

A ship there is that sails the sea.
She's loaded deep as deep can be,
But not so deep as the love I'm in.
I care not whether I sink or swim.

The broadside makes it clear that the man of the couple is the singer. It ends

When my love is dead and at her rest
I'll think of her whom I love best.
To wrap her up in linen strong
I'll think of her when dead and gone.
Smith's version seems so likely to have come directly from this or a closely related broadside that I think I am justified in making the broadside and its derivative a separate song. - BS
File: RcUSDitM

Ung Sjoman Forlustar Sig, En (A Young Seaman Enjoys Himself)

DESCRIPTION: Swedish shanty. Sailor meets a maid in a meadow, suggests that they make a bed of roses. By morning the roses have faded, and with them the girl's beauty. She begs him to marry her anyway, he refuses saying his ship is ready to sail.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1840 (Gavle)

KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage shanty sailor courting betrayal abandonment beauty

FOUND IN: Sweden

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 530-532, "En Ung Sjoman Forlustar Sig" (2 texts-Swedish & English, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Trooper and Maid" [Child 299] (theme)

ALTERNATE TITLES:

Sjomans Visa Fram Bohuslan (Finnish or Swedish version)
Ein Junger Sesmann Schlenderte (German version)

NOTES [39 words]: Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas took this from Sternvall's "Sang under Segel", and added a note that the oldest known written version is from Gavle, 1840. He mentions several versions of this found in various Scandinavian countries. - SL

File: Hugi530

Unhappy Jeremiah (The Brats of Jeremiah)

DESCRIPTION: The singer, Jeremiah, takes a wife. But soon she turns her attention from her husband to a lodger. She bears two children, but "they did not look... one bit like Jeremiah." At last she runs off with the lodger, "and left the brats for Jeremiah"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1858 (broadside)

KEYWORDS: family children husband wife infidelity

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 134, "The Brats of Jeremiah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2403, pp. 161-162, "Unhappy Jeremiah, a Highly Popular Comic Song" (2 references)

ST FSC134 (Partial)

Roud #4610

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Rocking the Cradle (and the Child Not His Own)" (plot)

cf. "Hush-a-Bye, Baby" (plot)

NOTES [34 words]: Although rare in tradition, this song seems to have been very popular in print; indeed, the broadsides listed in Wolf-AmericanSongSheets bear the title "Unhappy Jeremiah A Highly Popular Comic Song." - RBW

Last updated in version 3.5

File: FSC134

Unhappy Transport, The

DESCRIPTION: "Draw near a while my loving friends And lend lis'ning ear." Singer William Dale was brought up "an honest farmer's son" and apprenticed to a tinsmith, but fell in with bad companions, robbed a house, was transported; released, he returns to his mother

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1821 (Anderson-FarewellToOldEngland,) Unicorn

DESCRIPTION: The orphaned singer is "going home to the old country" as a sailor on Unicorn. It is hard work and hard bread for twelve days to Liverpool. At Glasgow "girls were very kind ... I bid farewell To the darned old Unicorn"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Creighton-NovaScotia)

KEYWORDS: rambling sea ship sailor floating verses

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 149, "Unicorn" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST CrNS149 (Partial)
Roud #1844

NOTES [32 words]: This song is item dD46 in Laws's Appendix II. - BS
Although this seems to be an independent song, I've given it the keyword "floating verses" because so many of the lines are commonplace. - RBW

File: CrNS149

Union Boy, The

DESCRIPTION: "When first I arrived in Quirindi, those girls they jumped with joy, Saying one unto another, 'Here comes a Union boy.'" A girl falls in love with him. Her father says that he was once a scab. She says he has joined the union and is reformed.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1956

KEYWORDS: labor-movement courting

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 256-257, "The Union Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, p. 117, "The Union Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Maids of Simcoe (Ontario)" (tune, floating lyrics)
cf. "True-Born Irish Man (With My Swag All on My Shoulder; The True-Born Native Man)" (floating lyrics)

File: MA256

Union from St John's, The

DESCRIPTION: On December 18 a heavy storm drives the Union ashore. A rescue team boards the next morning and finds "three frozen seamen lashed to the pumps while six in her cabin lay cold."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA/Leach); 19C (broadside, LOCSinging as114210)

KEYWORDS: death sea ship storm wreck

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf) US(NE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Peacock, pp. 978-980, "The Union from St John's" (1 text, 2 tunes)
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 112, "The Wreck of the Union" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Roud #4371
RECORDINGS:
Michael Aylward, "The Union from St John's" (on PeacockCDROM)
Mrs. Wallace Kinslow, "The Union from St John's" (on PeacockCDROM)
Francis O'Brien, "The Wreck of the St. John" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

BROADSIDES:
LOCSinging, as114210, "Union of St. Johns," L. Deming (New York), 19C

NOTES [359 words]: Broadside LOCSinging as114210, as well as one cited by Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou as being printed in Minstrelsy of Maine by Eckstorm and Smyth, have the site as Mt Desert Rock. There is a Mount Desert Rock in Maine which has been the site of a number of wrecks; there have also been a number of [ships named] Union with St John's registry wrecked; I cannot find any Union wrecked at Mount Desert Rock, or wrecked around February 9 (the date in the broadside), or November 18 or January 14 (the date in Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou versions A and B, respectively).

Eckstrom and Smythe Minstrelsy of Maine: "nobody knew it, but only knew someone else who used to know it. [One of the three] leaders in popularity among the shipwreck songs of the Maine coast ... About 1904, Mr Walter M Hady ... learned that the Union was a brig, wrecked off the Maine coast at least as early as 1837 .... [One broadside] may yet show that the wreck of the Union dates back into the eighteen-twenties." ( pp. 270, 276, 280). Unfortunately the broadside at America Singing is undated (printed by L Deming, No 62 Hanover Street, Boston). It would be nice to be able to date it early enough to rule out the Dec 21, 1884 wreck of the schooner Union, registered at St John, NB, at Mt Desert Island en route from New York to St John. (source: Northern Shipwrecks Database). - BS

I can't find any ships that fit, either (O'Neill, pp. 1034-1035, mentions hundreds of ships which visited St. John's, but no Union), but with the date and the place both in doubt, how would we know if we had a fit? I wonder, too, if this might not be a case of two stories getting combined. Union seems to have been a popular name for Newfoundland ships; Galgay/McCarthy1, p. 92, lists a sealing brig under J. Delaney which went to the ice for the first time on March 1, 1834 and was never seen again; Galgay/McCarthy2, p. 111, mentions a brig from Harbour Grace wrecked at Sprout Cove on December 2, 1872. It's interesting to see that Newfoundland, which had no labour unions until much later and which hated the idea of union with Canada, was so fond of "Union" as a ship name. - RBW

Bibliography

- Galgay/McCarthy1: Frank Galgay and Michael McCarthy, Shipwrecks of Newfoundland and Labrador, [Volume I], Harry Cuff Publishing, 1987

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Pea978

Union Girl, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer oversees a shearer talking with a girl. He is trying to con her into sleeping with him, pointing out that he can get rich as a scab during a strike. [Remainder omitted because Meredith & Anderson refused to print it]

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968
KEYWORDS: scab money seduction
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 201-202, "The Union Girl" (1 text)
File: MA201A

Union Man

DESCRIPTION: "I think I sing that little song, Hope I say it nothing wrong, Hope my song she bring good cheer.... Union man! Union man! He must have full dinner can...." (John) Lewis demands a good contract. There is a strike; the workers win; the singer gets druk
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1946 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: mining labor-movement strike humorous drink
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 393-394, "Union Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7723
File: KPL393

Union River Drivers, The
DESCRIPTION: "Here's Johnny Archer, that blacksmith of skill... And the top of his head like the full moon doth shine." A description of those on the river crew, mixing compliments and mild sarcasm
AUTHOR: Larry Gorman (1846-1917)
EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Ives-LarryGorman)
KEYWORDS: lumbering river moniker nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ives-LarryGorman, pp. 90, 201, "The Union River Drivers" (1 text, highly composite)
Roud #25115
NOTES [33 words]: Ives lists this song (or, rather, conflated set of stanzas from many informants) as being by Larry Gorman, but I wonder. It's just a moniker song, with very little of the usual
Gorman acid wit. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: LaGoURDr

Union Soldier's Alphabet, The
DESCRIPTION: "A is our army so true and so brave." The song cites Inspection, a hiding Lieutenant, Muster, Uncle Sam's ugly conscript, Veteran,... The chorus says "I'd buy me a shirt if I had a greenback... I'd go for a soldier the bounty to jump"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest)
KEYWORDS: army battle Civilwar war humorous nonballad soldier wordplay
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sep 19-20, 1863 - Battle of Chickamauga
September-November 1863 - Confederate siege of Chattanooga and Union victory
Dec 15-16, 1864 - Battle of Nashville
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 181, "The Alphabet" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #21721
NOTES [337 words]: Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest has "F is the flogging that [Union Major General George H] Thomas gave [Confederate Major General John Bell] Hood" at the Battle of Chickamauga?]. While Hood was wounded at Chickamauga, the Confederates won. If the reference is to Chattanooga, Hood was recovering from his amputation and was not in that battle. - BS
The reference to Chickamauga is just barely understandable and makes some slight sense.
Braxton Bragg was the Confederate commander and W. S. Rosecrans the head of the Union army.
But an assault headed by James Longstreet and spearheaded by Hood's division broke the Union forces in two. Rosecrans fled the field with half the army; Thomas took charge of the remaining Union forces, holding off the overwhelming Confederate attacks and earning the nickname "The Rock of Chickamauga." So although the Confederates beat the Union forces, one could perhaps argue that Thomas beat (off) Hood.
As Ben notes, Hood was recovering from wounds at the time of Chattanooga -- and Longstreet's forces, including Hood's division, weren't at Chattanooga anyway; they were trying to force Ambrose Burnside out of Nashville. So Chattanooga cannot be meant.
It is much more reasonable to assume that the reference is to the Battle of Nashville in late 1864. Hood, now in command of the army that had been Bragg's, had invaded Tennessee with an army that he had done a fine job of ruining. Thomas, assigned by General Sherman to guard Tennessee, smashed the Rebel army completely; it was the last real field battle of the war, and it destroyed Hood's Confederate force. Hood resigned, but the war, already all but over, from that time on was irretrievably lost.

This doesn't appear to be the only "Union Alphabet"; Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2408, p. 162, "Union Alphabet" (1 reference) begins "A is for Anderson, both gallant and brave" (referring to Robert Anderson, commander of Fort Sumter); this appears to be a separate song. The tune is listed as "Continental March." - RBW

Last updated in version 3.5
File: MooSW181

Union We'll Maintain, The

DESCRIPTION: "Ye loyal sons of Ulster, why slumber and be still? Once more your rebel foemen demand a Home Rule Bill." "Had they an Irish Parliament, 'twere '98 again" "Forbid it ... the Union we'll maintain." Remember Bloody Mary; remember Derry and the Boyne.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark)
KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad political
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smyth/Bush/Long-OrangeLark 19, "The Union We'll Maintain" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Home Rule for Ireland" (subject: the quest for Home Rule)
cf. "A Loyal Song Against Home Rule" (subject: opposition to Home Rule)
NOTES [165 words]: William Ewart Gladstone became British prime minister in 1868 and supported Home Rule for Ireland. He introduced his first Home Rule Bill, which was defeated, in 1885. His second Home Rule Bill was defeated in 1893. (source: "Home Rule" on the Irelandseye site) - BS
The invocation to remember Bloody Mary is, at best, pretty improbable. Mary Tudor (reigned 1553-1558) was a Catholic who did violently punish Protestants, but
1. She ruled very little of Ireland; it was not until Elizabeth came along that large parts of Ireland were conquered
2. There were effectively no Protestants in Ireland at the time
3. Mary Tudor did not rule Scotland, and most Ulster Protestants were Scots brought in in the aftermath of Elizabeth's conquest
For the siege of (London)derry, see the notes to "The Shutting of the Gates of Derry." For the Battle of the Boyne, see "The Battle of the Boyne (I)." For extensive background on home rule, and the opposition to it, see "A Loyal Song Against Home Rule." - RBW
File: OrLa019

Union, The

DESCRIPTION: "How did they pass the Union?" Perjury and fraud. Pitt and Castlereagh used pitchcap, bayonet, gibbet and rack. "How thrive we by the Union?" Ruined trade, wealth decayed and slavery. "And shall it last?" "All Ireland thunders, No!" We'll conquer again

AUTHOR: Sliabh Cuilinn (said to be John O'Hagan, according to Sparling, _Irish Minstrelsy_, pp. 505,508)(source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
EARLIEST DATE: 2000 (Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad political
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1801 - Act of Union of Ireland and Great Britain
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 151, "The Union" (1 text, 1 tune) NOTES [456 words]: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815: "This piece was published in The Nation [; it was composed "around the 1840s or 50s"].... The Act of Union of Ireland and Great Britain was passed in the Irish Parliament on the 1st of August 1800.... Its passage was assured by the exercise of an extraordinary amount of bribery and corruption, even for that time and place."

"Pitch capping": filling a cap with boiling pitch and putting it on a peasant's head. (source: "The Search for Weapons" in 1798 Rebellion at Rathregan National School site). [This is, in fact, the milder form of pitch capping: Kee, p. 98, describes the more extreme form, in which the pitch was allowed to harden slightly, then set fire. This naturally increased the torture greatly, and generally caused permanent scarring of the scalp and loss of hair. It was not generally fatal, but even George W. Bush would surely call it torture. - RBW]

Sparling, Irish Minstrelsy p. 505: re John O'Hagan (1822-1890) "The splendid ringing songs and heartfelt poems which appeared in the Nation over the nom de plume of 'Sliabh Cuilinn' have often roused inquiry as to their author, but although attributed with great probability to Judge O'Hagan, have never been publicly acknowledged by him."

The 1801 "Act of Union" was supported by Pitt and Robert Stewart (Lord Castlereagh). Pitt was Prime Minister and Castlereagh was his Irish chief secretary. The Act formed the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland" and abolished the Dublin Parliament. (sources: Act of Union on the Spartacus Educational site site) - BS

We should note that the song is inaccurate in its charges -- though the true story is hardly better. The British did use torture (pitch-capping, half-hanging) in suppressing the 1798 rebellion (though the Irish too committed their share of atrocities, notably at Scullabogue). But, just as no violence was used to pass the Union of England and Scotland a century earlier, no torture was involved in passing the Irish Act of Union -- because there was no need for popular support. The English simply had to bribe enough members of the Irish parliament to pull it off. The bribes were huge -- viceroy Cornwallis would confess, "I despise and hate myself for every hour engaging in such work" (Kee, p. 159; Golway, p. 90; for the general chicanery involved, see those sources or Fry/Fry, pp. 209-212 and after). But Cornwallis and (especially) Castlereigh bought enough peers to eventually pass Union.

It is ironic to note that, around 1770, the American colonies had desperately wanted Union (that is, a place in Parliament), and had been denied it; the Irish despised Union, and had it forced upon them. British colonial policy was an amazing thing.... - RBW

Bibliography

- Fry/Fry: Peter and Fiona Somerset Fry, A History of Ireland, 1988 (I use the 1993 Barnes & Noble edition)
- Golway: Terry Golway, For the Cause of Liberty, Simon & Schuster, 2000
- Kee: Robert Kee, The Most Distressful Country, being volume I of The Green Flag (covering the period prior to 1848), Penguin, 1972

Last updated in version 2.5
File: Moyl151

Unite and Be Free

DESCRIPTION: "The right hand of friendship to you I'll extend" no matter what Trade or Religion if you love Union. Reject the kings and "duplicates of a priest" who say "divide and conquer": "Hibernians were made to unite and be free"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1796 (_,Paddy's Resource_ (Belfast), according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad political freedom
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 23, "Unite and Be Free" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [21 words]: From the date, this presumably was a reference to the United Irishmen who were largely responsible for the 1798 rebellion. - RBW
File: Moyl1023

United Order, The

DESCRIPTION: "Forty years ago and over, God's command was giv'n, Consecrate your earthly substance, learn the law of heav'n." "Unite together, join the order" is the call today. "We're a little Unknown Pine Log Rider, The

DESCRIPTION: Joe Muldoon is trapped by a log drive but a stranger rides a pine log to rescue him from "the rushing roaring timber pack." He "hurtled Muldoon upon the land ... Then disappeared and left no name"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick)
KEYWORDS: rescue river recitation logger
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick, pp. 177-178, "The Unknown Pine Log Rider" (1 text)
Roud #1966
File: IvNB177

Unlucky Digger, The

DESCRIPTION: "We've been somehow left out in the cold In these new schemes of class legislation. We are unlucky diggers, we're told, Good for nothing but heavy taxation." The singer catalogs the troubles of his life and declares that diggers won't be oppressed

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1870 (Hokitika "Lantern," according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)
KEYWORDS: mining hardtimes political nonballad
FOUND IN: Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, p. 65, "The Unlucky Digger" (1 text)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, p. 65, "The Unlucky Digger" (1 text)
NOTES [24 words]: As printed, this has no stanza divisions, and no tune is indicated; I strongly doubt that it was either a song or a traditional recitation. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.3
File: BaRo065

Unquiet Grave, The [Child 78]

DESCRIPTION: After a young man dies/is killed, his lover mourns by his grave for a year and a day and beyond. This prevents the dead man from resting. He comes to his sweetheart begging for release

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1832 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 c.17(460))
KEYWORDS: ghost mourning freedom
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,NE,SE) Britain(England(All),Scotland) Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (41 citations):
Child 78, "The Unquiet Grave" (7 texts)
Bronson 78, "The Unquiet Grave" (43 versions+9, mostly tunes only, in addenda)
Bronson-SingingTraditionOfChildsPopularBallads 78, "The Unquiet Grave" (5 versions: #10, #27, #35, #36, #41)
Leather-FolkLoreOfHerefordshire, pp. 202-203, "Cold Blows the Wind; or, The Unquiet Grave" (1 text, 1 tune, from different informants) (Bronson's #12)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 76, "Cold Blows the Winter's Wind" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 370)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 136, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Broadwood-EnglishTraditionalSongsAndCarols, pp. 50-55, "The Unquiet Grave (I, II, III)" (3 texts, 3 tunes plus an excerpt on pp. 119-120)
Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee 24, "How Cauld Those Winds" (1 fragment, which appears to be this although Gatherer's informant treated it as a whaling song)
Hammer-GarnersGay, p. 56, "Cold Blows the Wind (The Unquiet Grave)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #130, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text, 1 tune) {cf. Bronson's #21}
Brookebank/Kindersley-DorsetBookOfFolkSongs, p. 10, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text, 1 tune) (Bronson's #42)
Flanders/Olney-BalladsMigrantInNewEngland, pp. 232-233, "Cold Blows the Wind" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders-AncientBalladsTraditionallySungInNewEngland2, pp. 184-186, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text, 1 tune) (Bronson's)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 58, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 10, "The Unquiet Grave" (2 texts, 2 tunes) (Bronson's #36, #31)
Wells-TheBalladTree, pp. 154-155, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text, 1 tune) (Bronson's #36)
Peacock, pp. 410-412, "The Unquiet Grave" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Karpeles-FolkSongsFromNewfoundland 10, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text, 1 tune)
Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, p. 111, "The Auld Song From Cow Head" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 262-263, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Leach-HeritageBookOfBallads, pp. 51-52, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 34, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 32, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text, 1 tune)
Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 31, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Sharp-OneHundredEnglishFolksongs 24, "The Unquiet Grave (or Cold Blows the Wind)" (1 text, 1 tune) (Bronson's #35)
Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 30, "The Unquiet Grave, or Cold Blows the Wind" (1 text, 1 tune) (Bronson's #40)
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 34-35, "Cold Blows the Wind" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hodgart-FaberBookOfBallads, p. 146, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Whiting-TraditionalBritishBallads 30, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Niles-BalladBookOfJohnJacobNiles 32, "The Unquiet Grave" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
Hirsh-MedievalLyric-MiddleEnglishLyricsBalladsCarols #44, "The Unquiet Grave" (4 texts [3 from Child, 1 from Niles])
Abrahams/Foss-AngloAmericanFolksongStyle, pp. 40-41, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text, 1 tune) (Bronson's #36)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 218, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 31-32, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Morgan-MedievalBallads-ChivalryRomanceAndEverydayLife, pp. 26-27, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
DT 78, UNQUIGR1* UNQUIGR2*
ADDITIONAL: Charlotte Sophia Burne, editor, Shropshire Folk-Lore (London, 1883 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 542-543,651, "Cold Blows the Wind" (1 text, 1 tune)
Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928; #371, "The Unquiet Grave" (1 text)
Roud #51
RECORDINGS:
Omar Blondahl, "The Auld Ballad from Cow Head" (on NFOBlondahl04) [fragment]
Jim Keeping, "The Unquiet Grave" (on PeacockCDROM)
New Lost City Ramblers, "The Unquiet Grave" (on NLCR16)
Jean Ritchie, "The Unquiet Grave" (on JRitchie02)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 c.17(460), "The Weeping Lover," W. Wright (Birmingham), 1820-1831; also 2806 c.17(461), "The Weeping Lover"; Firth c.18(123), Harding B 11(634), "Cold Blows the Wind"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Twa Brothers" [Child 49] (lyrics)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Wind Blew Up, the Wind Blew Down
The Resurrected Sweetheart
The Green Grave
The Restless Dead
The Restless Grave
Charles Graeme
Cold Falling Drops of Dew
Cold Blows the Winter's Winds

NOTES [140 words]: Bronson speculates that a version of this inspired the carol "There blows a colde wynd todaye, todaye" (c. 1500; in MS Bodl. 7683=Ashmole 1379; Brown/Robbins Index #3525; for texts see Greene, #45, pp. 105-107, #45; Stevick-MEL 93; Luria/Hoffman #166, though the latter two offer noticeably different texts of the same unique original). I must say that I find this a stretch; the similarities are slight indeed. Greene says that "There blows a colde wynd" appears to be a parody of a secular song on the grounds of internal evidence, offering this as the most likely source of the parody.

The notion that excessive mourning (usually meaning mourning for more than a year and a day) results in the ghost being unable to rest is at least hinted at in several other songs, the most noteworthy being "The Wife of Usher's Well" [Child 79]. - RBW

Bibliography

- Stevick-100MEL: Robert D. Stevick, One Hundred Middle English Lyrics, Bobbs Merrill, 1964

---

Unseaworthy Ship, The

DESCRIPTION: "The doomed ship weighs anchor, out she is bound, With cargo too heavy and timbers unsound." "Honour to Plimsoll, his labors will save Thousands of brave men from watery graves." The singer recalls lost ships and calls for the passage of Plimsoll's bill

AUTHOR: "J. Smith, Denholme, near Bingley" (source: broadside Firth c.16(408)

EARLIEST DATE: before 1900 (broadside Bodleian Firth c.26(223)=Firth c.26(251))

KEYWORDS: ship disaster political

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 128, "The Unseaworthy Ship" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #V20171
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth c.26(223)=Firth c.26(251), "The un-seaworthy ship," T. Pearson (Manchester), 1850-1899; also Firth c.12(122) (unknown, n.d.); Firth c.16(408) (unknown, n.d.)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Driven from Home" (tune)

NOTES [141 words]: Samel Plimsoll (1824-1898) was MP for Derby 1868-1880, and was deeply concerned with ship safety. He promoted various laws on the subject, but the one that "stuck" came in 1876, when the "Plimsoll Mark" was adopted to show the "Plimsoll Line" -- that is, to show whether a ship was overloaded or not: if the Plimsoll Mark (which you can easily see online) was submerged below the safe line, then the ship was overloaded and was forbidden from sailing.
The idea proved so useful that ships still have Plimsoll Marks to this day, and I even heard about a recent lawsuit over whether the Mark can be trademarked. (Such is the state of copyright law that, even though it is self-evident that the Plimsoll Mark is out of copyright, the company using the Mark stopped making T-shirts with it just because it was too expensive to fight the case.) - RBW

Unser Salwi hot en Kaldi (Our Salome Has a Cold)

DESCRIPTION: German. "Unser Salwi hot en Kaldi, Hot en hilzni Pischtol." Chorus (nonsense): "Ludel lei, lei, ludell lei, lei..." "Our Salome has a cole, has a wooden pistol." Other verses are unrelated, about eating peanuts, and about a dreadful mother-in-law

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: foreign language nonballad food
FOUND IN: US (MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 102-103, "Unser Salwi hot en Kaldi (Our Salome Has a Cold)" (1 German text plus non-poetic English translation, 1 tune)

Unsuccessful Swell, The

DESCRIPTION: "I'll sing now of a fine young swell Who in a ship did sail here," hoping to get rich in the gold fields. He can't even get a good price for the tools he bought. He grows poorer and poorer. Even when he works a good place, he has no luck

AUTHOR: Charles R. Thatcher (1831-1878)? (source: AndersonStory)
EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (AndersonStory)
KEYWORDS: gold mining travel hardtimes
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 32-34, "The Unsuccessful Swell" (1 text, 1 tune)
Anderson-GoldrushSongster, pp. 70-71, "The Unsuccessful Swell" (1 text, 1 tune)
Anderson/Thatcher-GoldDiggersSongbook, pp. 17-19, "The Unsuccessful Swell" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [29 words]: For brief background on Charles Thatcher's career, see the notes to "Where's Your License?" For an extensive collection of his songs, see Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong.

Until I Die

DESCRIPTION: "I'm going to sit in the humble chair." "Going to rock from side to side(x2) Until I die" (repeated several times). "I'm going to rock side by side until I die"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaslands)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US (SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaslands 7, pp. 62-63, "Until I Die" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [15 words]: The current description is based on the Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaslands text. - BS

Until I Found the Lord

DESCRIPTION: "I moaned and I moaned, I moaned and I moaned, Until I found the Lord. My soul, I couldn't rest contented, my soul, I couldn't rest contented until I found the Lord." "I prayed and I prayed, Lord...." "I cried and I cried...."

Up

DESCRIPTION: It's Spring. The birds united in song are Up. Plants, flowers, weeds are Up. Trees, brambles, crops, frogs, cocks all are Up. "The progress of this rising rage, No human power can stop. Then Tyrants, cease your war to wage, For Nature will be -- Up"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1797 (_Northern Star_, according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

KEYWORDS: flowers animal bird nonballad political

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 77, "Up" (1 text)

NOTES [102 words]: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815: "The word 'Up' was a password of the United Irishmen." - BS

Unfortunately for the United Irish, in 1798 not only were the plants, flowers, trees, weeds, frogs and whatnot not up, but neither were most of the Irish. Large numbers had been disarmed (and they were going to be armed only with pikes anyway). Their leadership was imprisoned. The French came too late and in numbers too small. The rebellion fizzled almost completely; see, e.g., the notes to "The Shan Van Voght," "Boulavogue," "The Boys of Wexford," "General Monroe," and "Edward (III) (Edward Fitzgerald)." - RBW

File: Moyl077

Up a Tree

DESCRIPTION: Once I had friends that "came to dine and drank my wine." Now that I'm poor "when they see me on the Clyde They pass me on the other side." "While you have it keep it, or you'll soon be 'up a tree'." If I recover, "preserve me from my friends"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1868 (broadside, Bodleian Firth b.27(66))

KEYWORDS: poverty money drink abandonment hardtimes

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast 63, p. 3, ("Once I could drive my four-in-hand") (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan3 668, "Up a Tree" (2 fragments)

Roud #6095

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.27(66), "Up a Tree" ("You see before you one who's been in life through many a changing scene"), The Poet's Box (Glasgow), 1868

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Hard Up and Broken Down" (theme) and references there
cf. "Buddy, Can You Spare a Dime" (theme)
cf. "Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out" (theme)
cf. "If But One Heart Be True" (theme)

NOTES [38 words]: Greig/Duncan3 entries are fragments; broadside Bodleian Firth b.27(66) is the basis for the description. - BS

"Passing by on the other side" is pretty clearly a reference to the parable of the Good Samaritan, Luke 10:30-35. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4

File: GrD3668
Up an' Waur Them A', Willie (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Up an' waur them a', Willie ... Up an' shak' your pistol fit, An' tak her fae them a' ... Up an' kiss a bonny lass"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan6)

KEYWORDS: courting nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1268, "Up an' Waur Them A', Willie" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

Roud #6790

NOTES [129 words]: The current description is based on the Greig/Duncan6 fragment. Roud assigns this the same number as Johnson, Scots Musical Museum 2 pp. 195-196 (No. 188), which I take to be the same Jacobite song as "Up an' Waur Them A', Willie (I).". Hogg says of that song that it was "apparently made to the favourite old tune of 'Up an' waur them a', Willie'...." Greig/Duncan6 says,"Stenhouse quotes from an older version of the words [than Johnson or Hogg]; the above may be from it." Since there is no "bonny lass" in the Jacobite songs I can't bring myself to lump this together with "Up an' Waur Them A', Willie (I)." The chorus of the Jacobite song is "Up and war them a' Willie, Up and war them a', Willie, Up and sell your sour milk, And dance, and ding them a', Willie." - BS

Last updated in version 2.5

File: GrD61268

Up Anchor for Home Boys

DESCRIPTION: "Up anchor for home, boys, our cruise is complete, The billows are dancing our good ship to greet, Far away... Smiles a home of bliss in the land of the west." Other lands have their pleasures, but there is nothing like returning home

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1854 (Journal of the Vernon)

KEYWORDS: sailor travel return home

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, p. 117, "Up Anchor for Home Boys" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #27520

NOTES [119 words]: In a small way, this song perhaps indicates the continuity of history and of folk song. According to Huntington, the master of the Vernon on the voyage in which this song was taken down, was Luther Little. I assume that this is the man for whom the schooner Luther Little was named, and it was the story of the Luther Little and the Hesper that inspired Lois Lyman's modern song "Wiscasset Schooners." (One of the very few modern songs that I actually sing; it's a very effective story of the ships' sad fate.) Incidentally, it's worth googling "wiscasset schooners"; there are a lot of interesting photos out there. Some of those sites might have more about Luther Little the man; I haven't checked. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: HGam117

Up and Down the Railroad Track

DESCRIPTION: "Up and down the railroad track And halfway swing around... Do-si-do my darling Miss with the white slippers on." "The higher up the cherry tree...." "Wish I had a needle and thread..." And miscellaneous other floating verses

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914

KEYWORDS: dancing floatingverses love horse

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 100, "Up and Down the Railroad Track" (1 text)

Roud #11091

CROSS-REFERENCES:
Up and Waur Them A', Willie (II)

DESCRIPTION: In battle against the Whigs the Highland standard loses its top and "second-sighted Sandy said, We'll do nae gude at a.'" In battles the Whigs showed fear, but if you ask who won the day: "We baith did fight, and baith were beat, And baith did rin awa"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1821 (Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2)
KEYWORDS: rebellion nonballad Jacobites
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Nov 13, 1715 - Battle of Sheriffmuir
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2 5, "Up and Waur Them A', Willie" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: James Kinsley, editor, Burns: Complete Poems and Songs (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #212, pp. 320-322, "Up and warn a' Willie" (1 text, 1 tune, from 1788)
Roud #6790
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of Sheriffmuir" (subject of Sheriffmuir)
cf. "Will Ye Go to Sheriffmuir" (subject of Sheriffmuir)
NOTES [430 words]: Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2: "...there not being a Willie of any note in the whole Jacobite army. So that the chorus must have been an older one, adapted, not improbably, from a song of King William's time."
Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2, regarding the standard, quoting George Charles of Alloa: "The Earl of Mar erected the Chevalier's standard there, on the 6th of September, 1715, and proclaimed him King of Scotland, England, France, and Ireland, &c.... It is reported, that when this standard was first erected the ornamental ball on the top fell off, which depressed the spirits of the superstitious Highlanders, who deemed it ominous of misfortune in the cause for which they were then appearing."
For a political anti-Whig song to the same tune and format see Robert Burns, The Complete Poems and Songs of Robert Burns (New Lanark, 2005), p. 277, 'Election Ballad for Westerha'." - BS
That John Erskine, Earl of Mar (1675-1732) could mess up even something this elementary is easy to imagine. He had signed the Act of Union joining England and Scotland, then tried to have it repealed (Fry/Fry, p. 191). The accession of George I caused him to send what Magnusson, p. 562, calls a "grovelling letter of loyalty," but George snubbed him (Mitchison, p. 322) and Mar decided to rebel and join the Jacobites. He had to leave London in disguise aboard a collier, He raised the Jacobite standard -- but he hadn't told his alleged King James VIII and III! (Magnusson, p. 563). Naturally it took the Old Pretender some time to arrive.
Mar meanwhile managed to raise a mixed force of Highlanders and Lowlanders -- but at Sheriffmuir, on November 13, 1715, could not beat an army he outnumbered at least two to one (Magnusson, pp. 564-565). Nor could he hold together his army after that (Magnusson, p. 566). The only other significant Jacobite field force had surrendered at Preston at almost the same time (Fry/Fry, p. 192. This was the force led by Lord Derwentwater, hero of the ballad of the same name). Combine the incompetent Mar with the unenthusiastic Old Pretender, and you had a disaster. The reference to 'baith' sides running away is presumably to Sheriffmuir; both armies at that battle had their right wings flee (Mitchison, p. 323).
One wonders what would have happened had "second-sighted Sandy" told those around him that Mar would flee the country in 1716, to live in exile with the Old Pretender -- and become a double agent selling secrets to Westminster (OxfordCompanion, p. 616). The man had the brains of a sea slug, and even less principle. - RBW

Bibliography
Up Green Medder (Up Green Meadow)

DESCRIPTION: Singing game. "Up green medder/meadow, down shady grove, Last one squats has to tell his beau." Game is said to be similar to "Ring Around the Rosie."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains)

KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad love

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains, p. 15, "Up Green Medder" (1 short text, 1 tune)

File: Skea015

Up in a Balloon

DESCRIPTION: "One night I went up in a balloon, On a voyage of discovery, to visit the moon." The balloon goes out of control, hits city hall, and leaves the singer clinging to a steeple. He ends up among the stars -- and falls out of bed, and realizes it was a dream

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1870 (New-Comic-Songster)

KEYWORDS: dream humorous technology travel

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
New-Comic-Songster, p. 11, "Up in a Balloon" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #4882

NOTES [45 words]: New-Comic-Songster prints both men's and women's versions of this (in the women's version, she is interested in a man who disappears in a balloon), but it appears that the handful of traditional collections are of the men's version, upon which the description is based. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3

File: NCSupBal

Up in Gurrane

DESCRIPTION: In Gurrane we're such good neighbors we share so that rations and gas restrictions don't bother us. We attacked City Hall "when the Corporation tried to raise the rent." We'll be there at Gabriel's horn because "it's only a step to Paradise up in Gurrane"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (OCanainn-SongsOfCork)

KEYWORDS: pride nonballad

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCanainn-SongsOfCork, pp. 118-119, "Up in Gurrane" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [34 words]: OCanainn-SongsOfCork, quoting the singer: "Gurrane is situated on the Northside of the city and was built around the time of the second World War.... I suppose it was a fairly tough area at the time...." -BS

File: OCan118
Up Jumped the Rabbit

DESCRIPTION: "Up jumped the rabbit with a great big smile A hound dog run him a solid mile." Animal hunting and gambling couplets: "Skeeter and a bumble bee playing seven up, Skeeter won the money but afraid to pick it up"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (StuffDreams1)
KEYWORDS: gambling hunting floating verses humorous animal bug
FOUND IN:
RECORDINGS:
Georgia Pot Lickers, "Up Jumped the Rabbit" (on StuffDreams1)
File: RcUpJtRa

Up on Elk Lake

DESCRIPTION: "I stand and gaze at a little stream That flows from Elk Lake to the Bay. My mind goes back, and in a dream, I'm a boy again at play." The singer recalls the furnace, chemical plant, and all the buildings of a mill town, as well as his own father

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps)
KEYWORDS: lumbering technology home dream father
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 106, "Up on Elk Lake" (1 text)
Roud #18181
File: BeLo106

Up Roanoke and Down the River

DESCRIPTION: Corn-husking song. "Up Roanoke and down the river, Oho, we are 'most done." "Two canoes, and nary paddle. "There is where we run the devils." Jack de Gillam shoots the devils with "blue ball and a pound of powder," and kills them

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: Devil work
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 205, "Up Roanoke and Down the River" (1 text)
NOTES [40 words]: The first part of this actually sounds like some sort of rafting song, about running a rapids (perhaps a section called "the devil"?). This seems to have suggested the theme of killing the devils. But that's pure speculation on my part. - RBW
File: Br3205

Up the Alley, Courting Sally

DESCRIPTION: "Where have you been, All this live-long day, Down the alley, courting Sally, Picking up cinders, breaking winders" Sometimes also "feeding monkeys, riding donkeys, chasing bull-dogs"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1892 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: courting play party
FOUND IN: Australia Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame, pp. 403-404,442, "Up the Alley, Courting Sally" (3 texts)
Roud #16803
NOTES [95 words]: Sally has been in an alley with someone at least since Henry Carey (d. 1743) wrote "Sally in Our Alley," published in 1729 (source: Thomas Campbell, Specimens of the British Poets (Philadelphian, 1855 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 498-499, "Sally In Our Alley" ), and at least as recently as Steeleye Span's "Senior Service" on "Sails of Silver" (BGO BG0CD371: "Sally's in the alley and Nancy's on the game, Emily is pregnant and wondering who is to blame"). The only thing these songs share is the alliteration (see also "Bully in the Alley" and "Shinbone Alley"). - BS

Last updated in version 2.6

File: 0pGa403

Up the Oak, Down the Pine

DESCRIPTION: "Up the oak, down the pine, Up the oak an' down the pine, Tell my mama I'm down the line. Oh, Lord, tell my mama I'm down the line. Oh, mama, I'm goin' home, Oh, mama, I'm goin' home."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1981 (Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices)
KEYWORDS: religious travel mother nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, p. 86, "Up the Oak, Down the Pine" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #16266
File: Rose086

Up the Raw

DESCRIPTION: "Up the Raw, down the Raw, Up the Raw, lass, ev'ry day; For shape and colour, ma bonny hinny, Thou bangs thy mother, ma canny bairn." The mother (?) complains lovingly of the mischief her child gets into. (I think that's what it means)

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland)
KEYWORDS: nonballad children
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 122-123, "Up the Raw" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: [Cuthbert Sharp], _The Bishopric Garland, A Collection of Legends, Songs, Ballads, &c Belonging to the County of Durham_, 1834 (references are to the 1969 reprint), p. 66, "Up the Raw" (1 text, 1 tune on p. 85)
ST StoR122 (Full)
Roud #3155
File: StoR122

Up the Street, Down the Street

DESCRIPTION: Described as a "Rhyme for a Race": "Up the street, down the street, Here's the way we go, Forty horses standing in a row; [Name] on the white one, [Name] on the black, Riding to (Harrisburg) (five) miles away."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty racing horse nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #72, "Rhymes for a Race" (1 text plus an unrelated piece)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Up the Streets and Down the Streets" (lyrics)
File: Newe072

Up the Streets and Down the Streets

DESCRIPTION: "Up the streets and down the streets And in a narrow planting, Isn't (name) a nice young lassie? Isn't (name) as nice as she? They shall be married And they shall agree.... It's love... and don't say 'nay.' Next Monday morning is her wedding day."
Up to the Rigs

DESCRIPTION: Singer goes to Cheapside in London, where he picks up a girl. He takes her to dinner; she invites him to bed. When she falls asleep, he steals a snuff box, gold watch, diamond ring, and money, then locks her in. He tells men to remember his example.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1851 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 25(1624))

KEYWORDS: courting seduction sex crime theft food trick

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber)), Ireland Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- Greig/Duncan2 299, "The Rigs of London" (4 texts, 3 tunes)
- Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 192, "Up to the Rigs" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople 80, "The Rigs of London Town" (1 text)
- Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 254, "Up To the Rigs of London Town" (1 text)

Roud #868

RECORDINGS:
- Harry Cox, "Up to the Rigs of London Town" (on HCox01)
- Raymond Noseworthy, "Up to the Rigs" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
- Charlie Wills, "Up to the Rigs [of London Town]" (on FSB02, FSB2CD, Voice07)

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, Harding B 25(1624), "The Rigs of London Town" ("As I walk'd up London streets one day"), C. Croshaw (York), 1814-1850

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- The Rigs of London Town
- Cheapside
- London Town

NOTES [3 words]: Tables turned. - PJS

Last updated in version 4.2

File: K192

---

Up Wi' the Widow

DESCRIPTION: The singer tells Johnny that when he's 20 we could have plenty... horses and cattle, barnful of grain, lots of money and a farm. You would have plenty to sell at market and fair. You'd "drive like a laird." "Ye may do waur than tak up wi' the widow"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1827 (Lyle)
Uphead and Scatter, Boys

DESCRIPTION: "Uphead and scatter, boys, to learn how to row, You treat me so dirty it's a mis'ry in my soul." "When I had money, I had friends all around, But now I've no money, no friend can be found."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1944 (Wheeler)

KEYWORDS: work poverty hardtimes loneliness

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Wheeler-SteamboatinDays, pp. 83-84, "Uphead an' Scatter, Boys" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #10029

File: Mwhee083

Upidee, Upidah

DESCRIPTION: German shanty. Chorus: "Upidee, Upidah! Schnalls is goot for de cholera! Upidee, Upidah"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Baltzer, _Knurrhahn_), but see NOTES

LONG DESCRIPTION: German shanty. Chorus: "Upidee, Upidah! Schnalls is goot for de cholera! Upidee, Upidah." Hugill gives two versions of the verses. The first begins "In the Flying P Line, I served my time" but the rest, according to Hugill is too coarse to include. In the second version the song told by the ship's cook, describing how he rises early to work, keeps the pots clean, and cooks various dishes.

KEYWORDS: shanty foreignlanguage cook sailor

FOUND IN: Germany

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 485-488, "Upidee, Upidah" (3 texts-English & German, 2 tunes)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Julia" (similar tune)

NOTES [298 words]: My German dictionary translates "schnale" as "buckles," which hardly seem likely to help with cholera. I assume "schnalls" is "snails." These hardly seem more likely to be useful, but the main trick in treating cholera is to keep the patient from dehydrating or dying of lack of salts or sugars. Perhaps the snails, if heated, could be dissolved in water and used to supply the needed nutrients.

Alternately, perhaps, the sailors thought snails caused cholera?

i would assume that this is from the same roots as the song "Upidee" found on p. 40 of Henry Randall Waite, _College Songs: A Collection of New and Popular Songs of the American Colleges_, new and enlarged edition, Oliver Ditson & Co., 1887, and on p. 20 of the 1876 edition; it is also on pp. 88-89 of Heart-Songs and is #161 in Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd. Waite cites an 1859 copyright for the song, but lists no author. Heart-Songs doesn't list an author either.

The Waite text supposedly is sung at Harvard, with many local allusions, causing Waite to substitute words from Longfellow. Thus it is not possible to definitively establish a connection. It maybe that the word "Upidee" was simply popular at this time; Waite,pp. 41-43, also has a "Song of the Spoon" with words by P. B. Porter, with the first line "Welcome, welcome, eve of gladness,
Upon a Morning of May, In the Morning Grey

DESCRIPTION: "Weep no more for me, sweetheart, Weep no more for me, As sharp a dart has pierced my heart That you should mourn for me." The singer walks in a pleasant garden and is shocked to see someone, all in black, whose flesh is leaden

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1700 (British Library, MS. Harley 1317)

KEYWORDS: travel colors clothes love MiddleEnglish

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #462, p. 312, "Apon a mornyng of May" (1 text)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #3836.5
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #6123

MANUSCRIPT: London, British Library, MS. Harley 1317, folio 94

NOTES [258 words]: When I came across this in Greene, my first thought upon reading the chorus was that it sounded very folk-like. Then I read the verse and found it not folk-like at all. Ordinarily I would not have indexed such a piece -- it occurs in only one copy, and that in a manuscript which contains only two pieces of poetry, although both are "folky." But Greene (p. 450) also thinks the chorus sounds like a folk song. So, in effect, I'm indexing the chorus, with the rest of the song along for a ride.

Several hands were involved in the writing of MS. Harley 1318 (generally dated c. 1600, and it cannot be from before 1509 since contains a copy of a letter from Henry VIII) -- one wrote the main text and three others added odds and ends. This poem/song is the only item written by this particular scribe.

The first publication of this suggested that it was incomplete (there are only three stanzas), and I think this is true: Is the man (?) in black, with leaden face, ill, or suffering the effects of lost love, or something else? Greene thinks it might be either religious or a secular tale. I'm reminded, in a number of regards, of Chaucer's Book of the Duchess -- the singer wandering (in Chaucer's case, in a dream, but still, wandering), a May morning, meeting a man in black, and finding that man very unhappy. But I have no reason to suspect dependence; some of those are commonplaces of dream visions. (Partly because of Chaucer, to be sure!)

I'm surprised the piece hasn't been printed more often. Even the non-folk part is intriguing. - RBW

File: MSapAMoM

Upon Sir Francis Drake's Return

DESCRIPTION: "Sir Francis, Sir Francis, Sir Francis is come, Sir Robert and eke Sir William, his son, And eke the good earl of Huntingdon, Marched gallantly on the road." The Queen welcomes Drake and Gilbert and their mariners

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (The Common Muse); Palmer suspects it was composed 1581-1584

KEYWORDS: royalty sailor nonballad travel

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Palmer-OxfordBookOfSeaSongs 3, "Upon Sir Francis Drake's Return from his Voyage about the World, and the Queen's meeting him" (1 text)

Roud #V3888

File: PsSe003
Upon the Rock
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Upon the rock (3x), Let the water run out, Upon the rock (3x) of ages."
Verse: "Brother Andrew, where you been when the dry weather come, 'Been on the rock,' says, 'waiting for rain''' (x2)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories 21, "Opon de Rock" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [12 words]: The description is based on the Edwards-BahamaSongsAndStories text. - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Edwa021

Upon the Twelfth o' August
DESCRIPTION: "I took my gun oot owre my shoulder A bag o' leads, a flask o' pouder And strode awa oot owre the heather Upon the twelfth o' August"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: soldier
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1765, "Upon the Twelfth o' August" (1 fragment)
Roud #13013
NOTES [11 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 fragment. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81765

Uppermost Tub, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer "scarce could get any fun" goes to Leeds Fair, "bound for a spree." On the way he enters a church for the first time. He doesn't understand what is going on. At the end he offers to pay for the entertainment but is told there is no cost.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: humorous nonballad religious
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 686, "The Uppermost Tub" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6109
NOTES [88 words]: Unfortunately, I would be in the same position as the singer in that I don't understand what he is seeing either. There are two "lads": one, in an "uppermost tub" seems in charge of the service. The other, in a "lowermost tub," "mocked every word that the lad in the uppermost tub said." When "the lad in the uppermost tub says, Come let us sing, ... the lad in the lowermost tub made a' the hoose to sing." - BS
I would guess it's minister in the upper tub and the precentor in the lower, but beyond that I can say little. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3686

Upside Down
DESCRIPTION: The singer and companions used to live a roving life, "but to my sad grief I married a wife...." His wife abuses him for drinking. His sister advises him to "hit her a smack across her back and turn her upside down." The remedy works
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (Sam Henry collection)
Used Up Miner, The

DESCRIPTION: A miner washes out his pan looking for gold in the rain but finds none. "Here's to that old digger Though empty is his pan That grumbling d[md old miner A perfect used up man"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Thompson-APioneerSongster)

REFERENCES: gold mining work ordeal nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES: (1 citation):
Thompson-APioneerSongster 59, "The Used Up Miner" (1 text)
Roud #2830
File: TPS059

Useful Plow, The

DESCRIPTION: "A country life is swert! In moderate cold and heat, To walk in the air, how pleasant and fair!" The singer describes those who "follow the useful plow." Other professions are alluded to, without approval; they do not give to the poor.

AUTHOR: Words: Martin Parker?

EARLIEST DATE: 1846 (Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland)

REFERENCES: farming worker food

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES: (2 citations):
Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland, Song #3, pp. 169-171, "The Useful Plow, or the Plowman s Praise" (1 text)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 365-366, "The Useful Plow; or, The Plowman's Praise" (1 text)
ST BeCo365 (Partial)
Roud #23103

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Praise of Ploughmen" (theme)

Last updated in version 5.3
File: BeCo365

Utah Carroll [Laws B4]

DESCRIPTION: A cowboy sadly remembers the death of his partner, Utah Carroll. When the herd stampedes, Utah manages to rescue the boss's daughter (who stood in the stampede's path), but himself dies in the process

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Lomax, Cowboy Songs)

REFERENCES: cowboy death rescue friend

FOUND IN: US(MA,So)

REFERENCES: (14 citations):
Laws B4, "Utah Carroll" Vacant Chair, The

DESCRIPTION: "We shall meet but we shall miss him, There will be one vacant chair, We shall linger to caress him While we breathe our evening prayer." The family remembers its beloved Willie, who now lies dead in a narrow grave, killed for his country

AUTHOR: Words: Henry S. Washburn / Music: George F. Root

EARLIEST DATE: 1861 (sheet music published by Root & Cady)

KEYWORDS: Civilwar death burial mourning family

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (14 citations):

Root-StoryOfAMusicalLife-GeorgeFRoot, pp. 250-252, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 251, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 308-309, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 167-168, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 375, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text plus a reproduction of an early sheet music cover)
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 137-139, "The Vacant Chair (We Shall Meet but We Shall Miss Him)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber-SoldierSongsAndHomeFrontBalladsOfCivilWar, pp. 30-31, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2447, p. 164, "The Vacant Chair" (11 references)
Heart-Songs, p. 32, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #15, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text)
Emerson-StephenFosterAndCo, pp. 115-116, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text)
Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, pp. 83-84, "The Vacant Chair" (1 text) Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 269 "The Vacant Chair" (1 text) DT, VCNTCHAR*
Roud #7714
RECORDINGS:
Columbia Stellar Quartet, "The Vacant Chair" (Columbia A1808, 1915)
Frank Coombs, "The Vacant Chair" (Columbia A913, 1910)
Arthur Fields, "The Vacant Chair" (Grey Gull 4205/Radiex 4205, 1928)
Byron G. Harlan, "The Vacant Chair" (CYL: Edison 8535, 1903)
Charles Harrison, "The Vacant Chair" (Resona 75074, 1920)
Frank & James McCravy, "The Vacant Chair" (Brunswick 4455, 1929; Supertone 2024-S, 1930; rec. 1928)
McKee Trio, "Vacant Chair" (Victor 18230, 1917)
New Lost City Ramblers, "The Vacant Chair" (on NLCREP4)
Shannon Four, "The Vacant Chair" (Pate 20606, c. 1921)
Elizabeth Spencer, "The Vacant Chair" (Edison 1713, n.d.)
NOTES [151 words]: Ironically, this song for a dead soldier was written in early 1861, when few battles had been fought. At this time, a few tens of thousands were mourning their lost soldier boys; four years later, those who had lost a loved one or friends would number in the millions (total losses in the Civil War exceeded 600,000, with the bulk of the losses coming in 1862-1864). Root-StoryOfAMusicalLife-GeorgeFRoot, p. 136, writes of this song, "As I have said, when anything happened that could be voiced in a song, or when the heart of the nation was moved by particular circumstances or conditions caused by the war, I wrote what I thought would then express the emotions of the soldiers or the people.... 'O, come you from the battle-field?' and 'Brother, tell me of the battle' represented the anxiety of those who had fathers or sons or brothers in the army, and 'The Vacant Chair' the mourning for the lost one."
Last updated in version 6.1
File: R251

Valiant Conscript, The

DESCRIPTION: "How are you, boys? I'm just from camp, And feel as brave as Caesar." The singer expects to frighten the Yankees even though he was recently a plowboy. But when he accidentally fires his gun, he is ready to run and begs his comrades to do the fighting
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1894 (Williams)
KEYWORDS: soldier Civilwar humorous
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 201-202, "The Valiant Conscript" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Alfred M. Williams, _Studies in Folk-Song and Popular Poetry_, Houghton Mifflin, 1894, pp. 64-66, "The Valiant Conscript" (1 text)
File: SCWF201

Valiant London Apprentice, The [Laws Q38]

DESCRIPTION: The youth, sent to Turkey, praises Queen Elizabeth above all kings. When challenged, the youth breaks the Turkish prince's neck. Thrown to the lions, he kills the beasts. The Turkish emperor admits English superiority; his daughter marries the youth
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1595
KEYWORDS: royalty fight animal contest marriage apprentice
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1558-1603 - Reign of Elizabeth I of England
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Laws Q38, "The Valiant London Apprentice"
Ritson-AncientSongsBalladsFromHenrySecondToTheRevolution, pp. 318-323, "The Honour of a London Prentice" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan5 1064, "The Honour of a London Prentice" (1 fragment)
Valley Below, The (She Lives in the Valley Below)

DESCRIPTION: "The broom bloomed so fresh and fair... As I wandered to breathe the fresh air, By chance a rich treasure I found." The singer praises the beauty and voice of the girl he sees. He will offer her his home and wealth if she will come with him

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1812 (The Ulverston New Poetical Miscellany)

KEYWORDS: love beauty

FOUND IN: Ireland Britain

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H47, pp. 236-237, "The Valley Below" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: The Ulverston New Poetical Miscellany: Containing a Selection of the Most Fashionable Songs, with Many Originals, Not Inserted in Ashburner's Vocal and Poetic Repository, G. Ashburner, Ulverston, 1812 (available on Google Books), p. 99, "The Valley Below" (1 text)
Roud #9446
NOTES [45 words]: Henry offers evidence (based on birds mentioned in the song) that this piece must have originated in England, and a British printing is known. But the plot and style are very Irish.
Kennedy lumps this with "Well Met, Pretty Maid (The Sweet Nightingale)." He's nuts. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.5
File: HHH047

Valley of Kilbride, The

DESCRIPTION: On a French battlefield, a soldier from Newfoundland thinks back to "boyhood days in the valley of Kilbride." A dying soldier asks him to comfort his parents, sister, and the girl he used to walk with "in Bowring Park."

AUTHOR: probably John Burke (1851-1930)

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)

KEYWORDS: war dying France soldier death family farewell

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jul 1, 1916 - Battle of Beaumont Hamel, at which the Newfoundland Regiment was slaughtered.
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndWillSingYou 113, "The Valley of Kilbride" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Johnny Burke (William J. Kirwin, editor), _John White's Collection of Johnny Burke Songs_, Harry Cuff Publications, St. John's, 1981, #28, pp. 46-47, "Valley of Kilbride" (1 text)
Roud #18245
RECORDINGS:
Jacob Noseworthy, "Valley of Kilbride" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Dying Soldier (III)" (subject of Newfoundlanders dying in World War I)
cf. "Soldier's Last Letter" (subject of Newfoundlanders dying in World War I)
cf. "The July Drive" (subject of Beaumont Hamel)
NOTES [700 words]: Lehr/Best-ComeAndWillSingYou speculates that "this song was possibly written by Johnny Burke." If [this] is right, the ballad refers to World War I. Burke died in 1930. Bowring Park in Saint John's was opened in 1911 (Source: Tide's Point Magazine site for the "Newfoundland and Labrador Magazine for Workers"). GEST Songs of Newfoundland and Labrador site includes the following note for "The Valley of Kilbride," but does not claim the battle is the inspiration for the Ballad: "Between 7:30 and 8:00 a.m., on July 1, 1916, the First Newfoundland Regiment, part of the 29th British Division, was virtually annihilated at Beaumont Hamel as they advanced into point-blank enemy fire. Of the 801 who went into battle, only 68 were able to answer the roll call the next day."
Kilbride is a suburb south of St John's. I don't know about a Valley of Kilbride. - BS
This doesn't feel like the work of Johnny Burke to me, but I can't prove it; it certainly looks like an imitation of many other soldier's-last-message songs such as "Bingen on the Rhine," and Burke wrote many imitations of folk songs. And, of course, it "is" in a Burke collection.
I think it pretty clear that it's about World War I rather than World War II. The song refers to No Man's Land, and there wasn't much trench warfare in World War II. And Kilbride, Newfoundland, borders Bowring Park.
And Newfoundland's losses in the war were indeed severe -- the Newfoundland Regiment (renamed the "Royal Newfoundland Regiment" during the war due to its high distinction; according to Major, p. 332, the Newfoundlanders were the only regiment to be given that distinction during the war) had 6242 men serve in its ranks during the war, and 1305 were killed, 2314 wounded, and 180 captured. That's more than 20% killed and more than 50% wounded (Noel, p. 122). Even in World War I, that's an extremely high rate. Major, p. 333, claims that one in seven men from St. John's aged 18-22 was killed during the war.
The "July Drive" of the song fits well with the Beaumont Hamel attack, which took place on the very first day of the Battle of the Somme. Cadigan, pp. 187-188, has this to say of Beaumont Hamel: "The Newfoundland Regiment acquitted itself well through many of the toughest battles of the war. It fought the Turks at Gallipoli and the Germans in the muddy trenches of France in the Battle of the Somme in the summer of 1916.... Allied command assigned the regiment a leading role by asking it to capture an area in the vicinity of Beaumont Hamel, behind the German front line. On 1 July 1916, about 810 officers and men of the Newfoundland Regiment went over the top against the Germans.... Within minutes the regiment was nearly annihilated. Only two officers and 95 of the men of the regiment answered roll call the next day. Fifteen officers and 95 other men lay dead on the field, while 16 officers and 479 men were wounded. One officer and 114 soldiers were missing somewhere among the mud, blood, craters, spent shells and barbed wire. The attack was a military disaster.
"Almost everyone in St. John's lost a family member or friend at Beaumont Hamel.... The myth of Beaumont Hamel quickly emerged, 'emphasizing bravery, determination, imperial loyalty, Christian devotion, and immortal achievement' on the part of the Newfoundland Regiment."
Chadwick, p. 126, gives slightly different numbers, but the distinction hardly matters:
"Of 5,482 [Newfoundland] men who went overseas, close on 1,500 were killed, 2,314 wounded and 234 decorated or mentioned in dispatches. The massacre at Beaumont Hamel remains, even today, a proud, sad memory to sacrifice. On 1 July 1916 753 Newfoundlanders went into action there. Next morning only 68 were left to answer the roll-call."
Major, p. 330, has similar numbers: "Left to answer the roll call the next day were 68 men. The battle buried 272 of their comrades, and wounded the rest. It is the single greatest tragedy in the history of Newfoundland and Labrador. For a country of a quarter million, still reeling from the great seal hunt disasters of two springs before [for which see "The Southern Cross" and "The Newfoundland Disaster (I)"], it was a monstrous cruelty to bear. - RBW

Bibliography
Valley of Knockanure (I), The

DESCRIPTION: Coming from Mass, three IRA flying column boys are caught "on a bridge near Gortaglanna ... In the Valley of Knockanure" in May 1921. The three are named. They are beaten and shot.

AUTHOR: Tim Leary (source: OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)

EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)

KEYWORDS: battle rebellion execution patriotic IRA

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 12, 1921 - A troop of Black and Tans capture and shoot Lyons, Walsh and Dalton in Gortaglanna, Knockanure, County Kerry. (source: the Moyvane site)

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
OLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads 42, "The Valley of Knockanure" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [246 words]: The "Black and Tans" were British reinforcements to regular British soldiers sent to Ireland in 1920. The "Auxiliary Cadets" were veteran British army officers sent to help the Black and Tans. (source: Michael Collins: A Man Against an Empire copyright by and available on the History Net site). For more information see RBW note for "The Bold Black and Tan" - BS

The IRA's "flying columns" were not quite what is usually meant by this term. They were guerrilla groups, usually of only a few dozen men, who did most of their damage in small raids on supply lines. Nonetheless, they were very effective -- the main strength of the rebellion, in fact. As a result, they were subject to severe punishment when caught. This particular atrocity was fairly typical of the Black and Tan war -- minor enough that it is not mentioned in any of the history books I checked. Sadly, there are many similar incidents recorded. This one is remembered because it caught the fancy of poets.

The existence of two songs called "The Valley of Knockanure," both referring to the same event, has caused some confusion. (Not least in earlier versions of this index). O Lochlainn lists the author of this as Tim Leary of Listowel, while Tunney lists the author of "Knockanure (II)" as Brian McMahon of Kerry. But the Digital Tradition lists "Knockanure (II)" as by "Tim Leahy" (presumably an error for Leary) Tunney's claim of (II) for McMahon is supported also by Soodlum's Irish Ballad Book. - RBW

File: OLcM042

Valley of Knockanure (II), The

DESCRIPTION: "You may sing and speak of Easter week and the heroes of ninety-eight" but nothing was said about Knockanure. Dalton, Walshe, and Lyons are killed by the Black and Tans. Dalton's mother wishes she could kiss him before burying him.

AUTHOR: Bryan McMahon (source: Tunney-WhereSongsDoThunder)

EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Tunney-WhereSongsDoThunder)

KEYWORDS: battle rebellion execution patriotic IRA

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 12, 1921 - A troop of Black and Tans capture and shoot Lyons, Walsh and Dalton in Gortaglanna, Knockanure, County Kerry. (source: the Moyvane site)

FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Tunney-WhereSongsDoThunder, pp. 46-48, "The Valley of Knockanure" (1 text)
DT, KNOCKNUR
Roud #9761
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Valley of Knockanure (I)" (subject) and references there NOTES [51 words]: The first line is a reference to songs: "Who fears to speak of Ninety-Eight?"
from John Kells Ingram's "The Memory of the Dead," and the 1916 song "Who fears to speak of Easter Week?" - BS
For background on this song, and the confusions about authorship, see the notes to "The Valley of Knockanure (I)." - RBW
File: TST046

Valley of the Ruhr, The DESCRIPTION: "There was flak, flak, bags and bags of flack, In the Ruhr, in the Ruhr." "My eyes are dime I cannot see; The searchlights they have blinded me." "There were fighters, fighters, bags of bloody fighters." "There was twitch" "There was panic"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)
KEYWORDS: soldier death technology flying
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, p. 120, "The Valley of the Ruhr" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #29425
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Quartermaster Corps (The Quartermaster Store)" (tune)
NOTES [85 words]: When the Royal Air Force had built up its bomber squadrons enough to attack Germany heavily, much of the early attention went to the Ruhr Valley, because it was relatively close to Britain and because it was heavily industrialized. It was also heavily defended, by anti-aircraft guns, radar, searchlights, and fighters. "Bomber" Harris's squadrons usually suffered heavily when attacking -- but he kept sending his planes there, because he thought it an effective way to hurt the Germans. Hence this song. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: Hopk120B

Valleys of Mormond, The DESCRIPTION: "How sweet is my home in yon lovely valley" where birds sing, the spring is running, "in the valleys of Mormond, the home of my Jean"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: home lyric nonballad bird wife
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1812, "The Valleys of Mormond" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13001
File: GrD81812

Valleys of Screen, The DESCRIPTION: The singer tells the listeners of the beautiful girl he has seen. He gives directions for finding her, and describes her beauty. He recalls speaking to her, and her refusal to give her name. He compares her to classical beauties
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love courting beauty
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Vampire, The (A Pirate Song)

DESCRIPTION: "Creeping round a headland as the sun was brightly rising... A raking pirate schooner... Her captain walked the quarterdeck where quarter ne'er was granted." He shows no mercy -- dead men tell no tales -- but he and his crew are taken and hung

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1889 (sheet music, according to Frank-NewBookOfPirateSongs)

KEYWORDS: pirate execution homicide navy

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Frank-NewBookOfPirateSongs 62, "The Vampire (A Pirate Song)" (1 text, 1 tune; #34 in the first edition)

Roud #V30419

File: FrPi062

Van Dieman's Land (I) [Laws L18]

DESCRIPTION: Three poachers are taken and sent to Van Dieman's Land. Sold to planters, they are used to drive plows and live miserable lives until (Susan Summers), a fellow prisoner now married to a planter, treats them somewhat better

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1830 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 25(1979))

KEYWORDS: transportation abuse help poaching

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South),Scotland(Aber)) Canada(Mar,Newf) Ireland Australia US(MW,Ro)

REFERENCES (33 citations):
Laws L18, "Van Dieman's Land"
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #33, p. 2, "The Gallant Poachers" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan252, "Van Dieman's Land" (5 texts, 2 tunes)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 263-264, "Poor Tom Brown, of Nottingham Town" (2 texts) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Ox 258)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #52, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Palmer-ThePainfulPlow, #11, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-ThelidiomOfThePeople107, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text)
Broadwood-EnglishTraditionalSongsAndCarols, pp. 2-3, "Van Diemen's Land or The Gallant Poachers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #145, "Van Diemen's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen, p. 172, "Van Diemen's Land" (1 text)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, p. 412, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune) [AbEd, p. 314]
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 95, "Vandiemens Land" (1 text)
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 12, p. 21, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 fragment)
Beck-FolkloreOfMaine, pp. 92-93, "Van Diaman's Land" (1 text, with no source indicated)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #144, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 708-709, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text)
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 63, "Van Diemen's Land" (1 text, 1 tune) Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia 122, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 262, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
OLochlainn-IrishStreetBallads 21, "Van Diemen's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 20-21, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hodgart-FaberBookOfBallads, p.224, "Van Diemen's Land" (1 text)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 384-285, "The Poachers" (1 text, 1 tune)
Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 17-18, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Anderson-FarewellToOldEngland, pp. 82-83, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Manifold-PenguinAustralianSongbook, pp. 14-15, "Van Dieman's Land" (1 text, 1 tune)
Poor Tommy Brown from Nenagh Town, Jack Murphy and poor Joe
We were three daring poachers as the gentry well do know.
One night we were trepanned by the keepers hid in sand,
Who for fourteen years transported us unto Van Dieman's Land.

Van Diemen's Land was named after Anthony Van Diemen of the Dutch East India Company; Van Diemen chartered the expedition which discovered the island. Said expedition was led by Abel Tasman, who found the island in 1642 (as well as sighting New Zealand and some lesser islands). The reputation of Van Diemen's Land was so bad that the residents in the nineteenth century demanded a name change. It therefore was renamed Tasmania after its discoverer. (In an interesting footnote, Lady Jane Franklin, the wife of Sir John Franklin of Northwest Passage infamy, was the chief campaigner for this during the time Sir John was governor of the colony; see Ken McGoogan, Lady Franklin's Revenge: A True Story of Ambition, Obsession and the Remaking of Arctic History, Harper Perennial, 2005, p. 210).

The irony is that Van Diemen's Land was not really overburdened with "hard cases"; some were sent to the island, but most wound up on Norfolk Island or in settlements like Moreton Bay. But the settlers of Van Diemen's Land were perhaps the most destructive of all the colonists; the Tasmanian aborigines were systematically eradicated, as compared to simply being brushed aside in most of Australia.

The reference to convicts driving the plows is an exaggeration -- of the wrong sort. At many of the British colonies, the convicts were indeed used instead of draft animals (few of which were available). But they didn't normally use plows; they had to hoe their own furrows! - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: LL18

Van Dieman's Land (II -- Young Henry's Downfall)

DESCRIPTION: (Six) poachers are taken and sent to Van Dieman's Land. Destined to work for a planter, the singer is frightened to see the conditions of the workers, but is instead picked out to be a bookkeeper. He meets another prisoner, Rosanna; they fall in love

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1845 (broadside, Bodleian Firth c.19(62))

KEYWORDS: transportation poaching love

FOUND IN: Australia Britain(England(Lond,South))
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 16-17, "Henry's Downfall" (1 text, 1 tune)
Anderson-FarewellToOldEngland, pp. 51-53, "Henry's Downfall" (1 text)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 91, "Me and Five More" (1 text)
Kidson-TraditionalTunes, p. 130, "Young Henry the Poacher" (1 fragment)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, pp. 112-113, "Young Henry the Poacher" (1 composite text, 1 tune)
Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #57, "Young Henry the Poacher" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: Roy Palmer, _The Folklore of Warwickshire_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 146, "Young Henry the Poacher" (a facsimile of a broadside print)

RECORDINGS:
Walter Pardon, "Van Dieman's Land" (on Voice04)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth c.19(62), "Young Henry the Poacher," J. Pitts (London), 1819-1844; also Harding B 11(4369), Harding B 11(4370), Harding B 11(4371), Harding B 11(4372), "Young Henry the Poacher"; Firth c.19(61), "Henry's Downfall"; Harding B 17(349a), "Young Henry's Downfall"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Van Dieman's Land (I)" [Laws L18] (plot)
cf. "The Girls of the Shamrock Shore" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [141 words]: Yates, Musical Traditions site Voice of the People suite "Notes - Volume 4" - 19.8.02: "Roy Palmer has traced this song (which has been found only in England [sic]) to two real poaching affrays that occurred in Warwickshire in 1829." - BS
The "other" "Van Dieman's Land" has a plot so similar that I was not sure but that they should be classified as one. The tunes and texts are, however, distinct.

A typical stanza of this version is:
I and five more went out one night
To Squire Dunhill's park
To see if we could get some game
But the night it proved too dark.
And to our sad misfortune
They've hemmed us in with speed
They sent us off to Warwick Gaol
Which caused our hearts to bleed.
Chorus:
Young men all now beware
Lest you are drawn into a snare.
For notes on the history of Van Diemen's Land, see the entry on "Van Diemen's Land (I)." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
File: FaE16

Vance Song, The [Laws F17]

DESCRIPTION: [Abner] Vance is charged falsely with murder. Recalling his beautiful home, he castigates those who have caused his unjust condemnation. He bids his family farewell

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1918 (Cox)
KEYWORDS: homicide execution farewell
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE,So)
REFERENCES (9 citations):
Laws F17, "The Vance Song"
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 41, "The Vance Song" (3 texts)
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 322-323, "The Vance Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Finger-FrontierBallads, pp. 81-83, "The Vance Song" (1 text plus an excerpt Burt thinks might be of another Vance song)
Vanities of Life, The

DESCRIPTION: "What are life's joys and gains?" Not power, pride, beauty, ambition, or wealth. "The lesson how to live is but to learn to die"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1720 (manuscript _World's Best Wealth_ according to Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland)

KEYWORDS: greed pride vanity beauty death nonballad recitation

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland, Poem #1, pp. 1-7, 241, "The Vanities of Life" (1 text)

Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 235-240, "The Vanities of Life" (1 text)

Roud #V47309

File: DixP001

Venadito

DESCRIPTION: Spanish: "Young Dear." First line: "Lo que digo de hoy en dia Lo que digo sostengo." The singer promises that "What I say today I will always say." (He) will wait for (her) in the kiosk at eleven o'clock, and "you will know I love you."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)

KEYWORDS: love courting nonballad Mexico foreignlanguage

FOUND IN: Mexico

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 294-295, "Lo Que Digo" (1 text plus translation, 1 tune)

File: San294

Venezuela

DESCRIPTION: "I met her in Venezuela with a basket on her head.... I knew she'd do to pass away the time in Venezuela." He gives her a sash of blue. When he leaves, he tells her there will be more sailors coming to Venezuela. He will remember her for a long time

AUTHOR: unknown
VENI EMMANUEL (O COME, O COME, EMMANUEL)

DESCRIPTION: Latin: "Veni veni Emmanuel, Captivum solve Israel...." English: "O come, o come, Emmanuel, And ransom captive Israel." The advent of Emmanuel the savior, descendant of David, is requested, and people are told to celebrate his coming

AUTHOR: English words: J. M. Neale (1818-1866)

EARLIEST DATE: English words by J. M. Neale, 1851; Latin words and tune 15th century or earlier

KEYWORDS: religious Jesus nonballad rescue

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Charles Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns (Hallberg, 1982), p. 13, "O Come, O Come Emmanuel" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [2130 words]: Although I know of no field collections which include this song, it seems to me that it is now widely enough sung that it belongs in the Ballad Index. Certainly it is "old" enough. Johnson claims the words come from the seventh century and Morgan offers the period of the 800s. These dates, especially the former, are probably too early (my guess is that that's based on theories about the history of Latin hymnwriting). But the whole is found in the French National Library manuscript (Bibliothèque Nationale) fonds latin MS 10581 (however, Reynolds, p. 155, reports this as the source of the tune, not the text; I cannot clarify this matter, but I suspect Reynolds is right, since he lists the text as "Bone Jesu dulcis cunctis." A black-and-white scan of the manuscript is now available on the National Library of Paris website -- search for "Latin 10581." The "Bone Jesu dulcis cunctis" text is on folio 90 (manuscript foliation; the website calls it folio 91; it is, however, in plainsong notation, not modern notation; it looks rather different to me)

Manuscripts of this era are very difficult to date; book hands hardly changed from the twelfth to fifteenth centuries. The New Oxford Book of Carols proposes a thirteenth century date for the manuscript. I would have guessed, based on the writing and ornaments, that it's fourteenth century (but I haven't seen it in color). We can at least say that it is from the fifteenth century or earlier, with the text very likely older. The Latin was in print by no later than 1710, in the Psalterium Cantionum Catholicarum (Reynolds, p. 155)

Stulken, p. 134, gives a hint as to how the earlier dates may have arisen. Much of it seems to have been based on a series of Latin antiphons (the "O antiphons") which were sung in December and which date back to the ninth century. Reflections of several of them can be found in the hymn:
"O Emmanuel, rex et legifer noster" ("O Emmanuel, our king and lawgiver")
"O Sapientia, que ex ore altissimi" ("O wisdom, who comes from on high")
"O Adonay et dux domus Israel" ("O Adonai [Hebrew for Lord] and leader of the house of Israel")
"O Radix Jesse qui stas in signum populorum" (O root of Jesse who stood as a sign for/standard of the people)
"O Clavis David et sceptrum domun" ("O key of David and scepter of home")
"O Oriens, splendor lucis aeternae" ("O eastern light, splendor of eternal light")
"O Rex gentium et desideratur" ("O king of the nations also longed-for")

The standard translation of the Latin text is by J. M. Neale (1818-1866), who also gave us the much weaker "Good King Wenceslas." He originally translated the first line as "Draw nigh, draw nigh, Emmanuel," but changed the text by 1861 (Reynolds, p. 155). The New Oxford Book of Carols gives an alternate translation (termed a revision) by T. A. Lacey, which according to Julian, p. 1721, appeared in the 1906 "English Hymnal." It appears, at first glance, a more accurate translation -- but distinctly worse as poetry (e.g. the last line of the first Latin stanza is "privatus Dei Filio," loosely, "deprived of the Son of God." Neale butchers this as "until the Son of God appear," but at least gets an easy-to-sing line. Lacey produced "far from the face of God's dear son").

Julian, p. 74, gives a full history of all this:
1. An early metrical rendering of the separate Antiphons was made by Canon William Cooke, and appeared in the Cooke and Denton Hymnal of 1863. Canon Cooke's account of the same is:

"Where it is possible, the translator and arranger (who was William Cooke), took the words of Mr. A. J. Beresford Hope's translation of the hymn 'Veni, Veni Emmanuel,' in the Hymnals N.; retaining the prayer of the Prose Anthem for the Advent of Christ." The opening line of each Antiphon is: i. "O Wisdom, who o'er earth below;" ii. "Ruler and Lord, draw nigh, draw nigh;" iii. "O Rod of Jesse's stem, arise;" iv. "Key of the House of David, come;" v. "O Morning Star, arise;" vi. "O Thou on Whom the Gentiles wait;" vii. "Draw nigh, draw nigh, Immanuel."

2. A second translation by Earl Nelson appeared in the Sarum Hymnal, 1868, as "The Advent Anthems...."

3. These Antiphons were also translated by W. J. Blew, and included in his Church Hymnal & Tune Book, 1852.

4. Some time, Dr. Neale supposes about the 12th century [McKim, p. 9, notes that other prefer the thirteenth century], an unknown author took five of these Antiphons, and wove them into a hymn in the following order:-- st. i. O Emmanuel; ii. O Radix Jesse; iii. O Oriens; iv. O Clavis David; v. O Adonai. This hymn begins with the line:--

"Veni, veni, Emmanuel," and adding to each verse the refrain, which is not found in the original prose:--

"Gaude, gaude, Emmanuel Nascetur pro te, Israel." [McKim, p. 9, suggests a similarity to Zechariah 9:9, but the words are not parallel; they simply share the concept of a coming Messiah]

Daniel has given the full text in his Thes. Hymn. ii.336 (1844). From Daniel's text, Dr. Neale translated his:--

5. Draw nigh, draw nigh, Emmanuel, and published it in the 1st ed. of his Mediaeval Hymns, 1851, p. 119, in 5 stanzas of 6 lines. [This text went through various minor changes.] In the trial copy of Hymns Ancient and Modern in 1859, an altered version of Neale's translation was given beginning

6. O come, O come, Emmanuel.

And it was this version which took off, although it didn't stop the production of new translations; Julian already knew of three more in English and one in German. Reynolds, pp. 284-285, says in addition that Henry Sloane Coffin added translations of two more stanzas to Neale's version. "Emmanuel" ("God With Us") refers back to Isaiah 7:14, where Isaiah prophecies that the threat to Judah from Israel and Damascus shall ease before the new-born child Immanuel (as it is properly transliterated from the Hebrew) reaches the age of having moral sense. This prophecy is picked up in Matthew 1:23, which uses the Greek spelling "Emmanuel" (which worked its way into Latin and hence into the song). There is rather a curiosity here, in that Matthew normally translates the Hebrew himself, but in this particular version cites the previous Septuagint translation, which has in fact a mistranslation (Septuagint and Matthew read "a virgin shall bear a son," but the Hebrew reads "a young woman shall bear a son"). Clearly this ties in somehow with the Matthean doctrine of the Virgin Birth (which is found in full form only in Matthew; while Luke calls Mary a virgin at the time of her betrothal, he doesn't say that Joseph didn't touch her after that).

Several verses of the song refer to Emmanuel as a descendent of David. This does not come from Isaiah; again, it's Matthew who provides the link, giving a genealogy of Jesus going back to David (Matt. 1:2-16, though Matthew's genealogy omits several names known from the Book of Kings, plus it is at least six or seven generations too short to bring us from the Exile to the time of Jesus). All of this is somewhat reinforced by Luke. Luke never mentions Emmanuel, but he does have a genealogy linking Jesus to David (Luke 3:23-38), though it differs from Matthew's in irreconcilable ways. (Not that it matters. It was a thousand years from David to Jesus. By the time Jesus was born, everyone in Judea was descended from David, though not necessarily in the male line). Luke also provides much of the imagery of celebration at the arrival of the Messiah (see chapter 2).

John Mason Neale, whose translation made this song famous in English, is regarded as one of the great producers of hymns. His biography in Julian occupies more than five pages of small type (pp. 785-790). Some highlights:

"[He] was b[orn] in Conduit Street, London, on Jan. 24, 1818. He inherited intellectual power on both sides: his father, the Rev. Cornelius Nele, having been Senior Wrangler, Second Chancellor's Medalist, and Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and his mother being the daughter of John Mason Good, a man of considerable learning. Both father and mother are said to have been 'very pronounced Evangelicals.' The father died in 1823, and the boy's early teaching was entirely under the direction of his mother.... He was educated at Sherborne Grammar School, and was afterward a private pupil, first of the Rev. William Russell, Rector of Shepperton, and then of Professor Challis.
"In 1836 he went up to Cambridge, where he gained a scholarship at Trinity College, and was considered the best man of his year. But he did not inherit his mathematical tastes, and had, in fact, the greatest antipathy of the study; and as the strange rule then prevailed that no one might aspire to Classical Honours unless his name has appeared in the Mathematical Tripos, he was forced to contend with an ordinary degree. This he took in 1840....

"He gained, however, what distinctions he could, winning the Members' Prize, and being elected Fellow and Tutor of Downing College; while, as a graduate, he won the Seatonian Prize no fewer than eleven times. At Cambridge, he identified himself with the Church movement, which was spreader there in a quieter, but not less real, way than in the sister University.

"In 1842, he married Miss Sarah Norman Webster, the daughter of an evangelical clergyman, and in 1843 he was presented to the small incumbency of Crawley in Sussex. Ill-health, however, prevented him from being instituted to the living. His lungs were found to be badly affected; and, as the only chance of saving his life, he was obliged to go to Madeira, where he stayed until the summer of 1844. In 1846 he was presented by Lord Delawarr to the Wardenship of Sackville College, East Grinstead.

"[Being offered a church post in Perth, he] was obliged to decline it as the climate was thought to be too cold for his delicate health. In the quiet retreat of East Grinstead, therefore, Dr. Neale spent the remainder of his comparatively short life, dividing his time between literary work, which all tended, directly or indirectly to the advancement of that Church revival of which he was so able and courageous a champion, and the unremitting care of that sisterhood of which he was the founder. He commenced a sisterhood at Rotherfield on a very small sale... but in 1856 he translated it to East Grinstead, where, under the name of St. Margaret's, it has attained its present proportions. The blessing which the East Grinstead sisters have been to thousands of the sick and suffering cannot here be told. But it must be mentioned that Dr. Neale met with many difficulties, and great opposition from the outside, which, on one occasion, culminated in actual violence.... He also found opponents in higher quarters; he was inhibited by the Bishop of the Diocese for fourteen years.... Dr. Neale's character, however, was a happy mixture of gentleness and firmness; he had in the highest degree the courage of his conviction.... while at the same time he maintained the greatest charity towards, and forbearance with, others who did not agree with him.

"His last public act was to lay the foundation of a new convent for the Sisters on St. Margaret's Day (July 20), 1865. He lived long enough to see the building progress, but not to see it completed. In the following spring his health, which had always been delicate, completely broke down, and after five months of acute suffering he passed away on the Feast of the Transfiguration (Aug. 6), 1866...."

Neale wrote several volumes of original hymns (listed on pp. 786-787 of Julian), as well as volumes on church figures and a commentary on the Psalms that was finished by his friend Littledate, but his most important work was as a translator: "It is in this species of composition that Dr. Neale's success was pre-eminent, one might almost say unique." (Julian, p. 787). When there were no doctrinal issues involved, his translations are said to have been both highly accurate and highly skilled. The one issue came when there were theological issues in the sources "The Roman Catholics accused him of deliberate deception because he took no pains to point out that he had either softened down or entirely ignored the Roman doctrines" in certain of his sources (ibid.). Julian, pp. 789-790, lists 66 commonly used hymns by Neale, and Julian's list does not represent his full output. None is familiar to me, although his "Jerusalem the Golden" is widely known. Reynolds, p. 155, reports that the tune "Veni Emmanuel" was first printed in 1856, in Thomas Helmore's Hymnal Noted; it was Helmore (1811-1890) who fitted the tune to this piece. He took it from a French manuscript that was not identified until 1967 -- probably because he apparently said it was in Lisbon when in fact it is the Paris manuscript listed above. - RBW

Bibliography

- Julian: John Julian, editor, A Dictionary of Hymnology, 1892; second edition 1907 (I use the 1957 Dover edition in two volumes)

Last updated in version 4.2
File: CJ013
Venir Voir Bongo (Bongo Night)
DESCRIPTION: Come see Bongo night, tonight. "Dance your bongo in time." "Dance your bongo in line." Even Jackasses cannot resist.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Elder-FolksongsFromTobago)
KEYWORDS: dancing nonballad Caribbean
FOUND IN: West Indies(Tobago)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Elder-FolksongsFromTobago 7, "Venir Voir Bongo (Bongo Night)" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [32 words]: Elder-FolksongsFromTobago: "The last night of a bongo session is really 'bongo night.' All bongo dancers attend to take part in the last lap and the best dancing and singing may be seen." - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: ElTo007

Venus and Adonis
DESCRIPTION: The singer, Adonis meets Venus in the forest and asks her for one kiss. She replies, "No! I can't love you!" He asks her to stay with him as night falls. She agrees: "you've fairly won my heart, And I from you, love, never more will part"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs)
KEYWORDS: courting love dialog
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 122-123, "Venus and Adonis" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1383
NOTES [32 words]: Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs (1893): "From Mr Grantham ...; he originally came from Sussex, and learnt the song sixty years ago there; he has since made it popular about Holmwood." - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: BrMa123

Venus, My Shining Star
DESCRIPTION: "Some think to love another is vain, But with them I disagree, None has ever come... 'Twixt Venus, my lover, and me. Venus, my star-kindled lover.... Sweet Venus mine, None as bright as my darling, So far, far above... I think how dear I love you...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ala)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 8, "Venus, My Shining Star" (1 text, 1 tune, probably defective)
Roud #11379
NOTES [48 words]: George M. Cohan wrote a piece, "Venus, My Shining Love," in 1894. I would not call this the same. But they might well have come from the same roots -- this looks like what would result if someone heard the Cohan song, remembered only a few fragments, and tried to turn it into a song. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.3
File: Brne008

Vermont
DESCRIPTION: "In vain we lavish out our lives To gather the empty wind. The choicest blessing earth can yield Will starve an hungry mind. Come and the Lord shall feed our sould With more substantial meat, With such saints in glory love, With such as angels eat."
AUTHOR: William Billings
Vermont Boys in Gardner, The

DESCRIPTION: "The boys from Vermont to Gardner did go, In search of a job, as you very well know." They are advice, "Don't leave old Vermont... They'll call you the scamps from the Green Mountain hills." The song lists those who left Vermont and came back

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster)

KEYWORDS: hardtimes emigration return moniker

FOUND IN: US(NE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 110-111, "The Vermont Boys in Gardner" (1 short text, 1 tune)

ST FING110 (Partial)

Roud #4660

NOTES [43 words]: I've tagged this as a moniker song because the second verse in Flanders et al looks like it belongs to a sequence of verses about people who left Vermont and got in trouble -- but with only one known version, and that only two verses long, I can't be sure. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.0

File: FING110

Vermont Farmer's Song, The

DESCRIPTION: "Did you ever hear tell of the farmers that live among the hills, Where ev'ry man's a 'Sov'reign' and owns the land he tills." The singer praises the strong men, the pretty girls, the stock, the workers, and presumably anything else he can think of

AUTHOR: Words: John Godfrey Saxe (1816-1887)

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster; reportedly written 1850; a tune -- not the traditional one -- was printed in _The Tabernacle_ in 1864)

KEYWORDS: farming nonballad home

FOUND IN:
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARregionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 35-36, "The Vermont Farmer's Song" (1 text)
Flanders/Ballard/Brown/Barry-NewGreenMountainSongster, pp. 102-105, "The Vermont Farmer's Song" (1 text, 2 tunes)

Roud #4659

CROSS-REFERENCES:

Cf. "The Lincolnshire Poacher" (tune, according to Flanders et al)

File: CAFS1035

Vermont Sugar-Maker's Song

DESCRIPTION: "When you see the vapor pillars lick the forest and the sky, You may know the days of sugar-making then are drawing nigh." Describes sugar-making; "Sweetest joys indeed we sugar-makers know." "Bubble, bubble... goes the pan." Use of sugar is advised

AUTHOR: Perrin B. Fiske ? (born 1837)

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads)

KEYWORDS: food work nonballad

FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, p. 33, "Vermont Sugar-Maker's Song" (1 text)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 238-239, "Maple Sweet" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 26, "Maple Sweet, or, Vermont Sugar-Maker's Song" (1 text)
ST FlBr033 (Partial)
Roud #5444 and 3737
File: FlBr033

Vernita Blues
DESCRIPTION: Singer "can't get along" with Vernita. "...tell her to hurry home." When she came home last night "the moon was shining bright." He met Alberta across the sea; she wrote him no letter. He would have Vernita change her mind and "treat me nice and kind"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (recording, Sleepy John Estes)
KEYWORDS: love request rejection derivative nonballad parody lover
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
Sleepy John Estes, "Vernita Blues" (Decca 7342,1937; on USChartersHeroes)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Alberta Blues" (original source)
NOTES [175 words]: Estes is taking off on Mississippi Shieks' "Alberta Blues." Shieks sing "Alberta, Alberta, where'd you stay last night... Come home this morning sun is shining bright" while Estes's Vernita came home "this morning ... the moon was shining bright." Singers that cover the "across the sea" verse are singing about their own lover. So, Furry Lewis sings, "I see Roberta going 'cross the sea"; Jimmy Gordon sings, "Alberta went across the sea." In keeping with the idea of the original, Estes would have his Vernita across the sea. Instead he copies the Shieks' line "I met Alberta way across the sea"; he's not only talking about the Sheiks' lover rather than his own, but, unlike other covers, he meets her there, as the Shieks do. Finally, Estes uses two tunes, neither anything like the Shieks' "Alberta Blues." To take Henry Lewis Gates Jr's term, there's "Signifyin(g)" going on here, but I don't understand how it works. Is "Vernita Blues" parity? Respectful referencing? Or something else? The liner notes for USChartersHeroes is silent on this.
- BS
Last updated in version 5.2
File: RcVernBl

Versos de Montalgo
DESCRIPTION: Spanish. First line: "En el mil nueve cientos y diez -- Y los cuento sin edal...." Montalgo is killed from ambush in 1910 ten years after he killed Encarnacion. A month later, his body is found. His family mourns. Last verse says the other verses are lies
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)
KEYWORDS: Mexico homicide death trick foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: Mexico
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 302-303, "Versos de Montalgo" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [73 words]: Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag prints this report from Frank J. Dobie: "In the year 1900, Encarnacion Garcia waylaid and killed another Mexican in Cameron County. Montalgo, a Mexican deputy sheriff, rode up on Encarnacion as the latter was burying his victim. Encarnacion resisted arrest, or at least Montalgo always so claimed, and Montalgo killed him. Ten years later to a day, Encarnacion's gente got their revenge by killed Montalgo." - RBW
File: San302

Very First Time I Saw My Love, The
DESCRIPTION: "The very first time I saw my love, I was very sick in bed, And the only request I asked of her Was to tie up my head. O, love it is a killing thing, Did you ever feel the pain?" The singer wishes his love were a rose and he a gardener.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)

KEYWORDS: love rejection flowers floating verses disease

FOUND IN: US (MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 128, "The Very First Time I Saw My Love" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #4233

NOTES [21 words]: Just about every word of this floats, but I don't recall the combination existing except in the Jacobs family of Wisconsin. - RBW

_Last updated in version 2.6_

_File:_ Pet128

Very Same Lord, The

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Very same, very same, Very same Lord went in the lion's den." Verse response: "Very same Lord went in the lion's den." Verse calls include floaters (see notes for examples)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (LomaxCD1708)

KEYWORDS: Bible floating verses non-ballad religious

FOUND IN: US (SE)

Roud # 17294

RECORDINGS:

Silver Leaf Quartet, "The Very Same Lord" (on LomaxCD1708)

NOTES [39 words]: Daniel in the lion's den is from Daniel 6. The floating calls include "One of these days 'bout twelve o'clock ... This old world's gonna reel and rock" and "When I get to heaven gon' sing and shout ... There's nobody to turn me out." - BS

_Last updated in version 5.0_

_File:_ RcVeSaLo

Vesta and Mattie's Blues

DESCRIPTION: "I've got a belly full o' whiskey an' a head full o' gin, The doctors say t'will kill me but they don't say when." Chorus: "'I'm a long line skinner an' my home's out west, Lookin' for a man to buy me a hobble dress." Verses float between blues

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Arrangement copyright by W. C. Handy)

KEYWORDS: floating verses drink love separation clothes

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Handy/Silverman-BluesAnAnthology, p. 60, "Vesta and Mattie's Blues" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Easy Rider" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [60 words]: This looks to me like another one of those blues collections of floating verses (in addition to the first, from "Cocaine Blues" or the like, the second is from "Easy Rider": "Pretty papa, pretty papa, look what you've done: You made your mama love you, now your woman's come"). The notes in Handy, however, imply that it is an actual folk song, so here it is. - RBW

_File:_ Handy060

Veteran, The

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas on one Sabbath morn the bells did chime for church, The young and gay were gathering there around that rustic porch." A veteran accuses them of ignoring him. He points to his gravestone, says no one recalls him, and asks to be remembered

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (Copper-ASongForEverySeason)

KEYWORDS: ghost burial soldier

FOUND IN: Britain (England (South))
Veteran's Song, The

DESCRIPTION: The Union veteran lists all the fights he's fought, and all the wounds he's received, and notes that he consistently gave better than he got. He says "[I] will not sheathe my sword Until from Florida to Maine the Stars and Stripes shall proudly float"

AUTHOR: words: John Ross Dix

EARLIEST DATE: 1864 (broadside copyright)

KEYWORDS: Civilwar soldier injury

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 21, 1861 - First Battle of Bull Run
May 31-June 1, 1862 - Battle of Fair Oaks/Seven Pines
Sept. 17, 1862 - Battle of Antietam
Dec. 13, 1862 - Battle of Fredericksburg

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 392, "The Veteran's Song" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2456, p. 165, "The Veteran's Song" (2 references)
Roud #11754

BROADSIDES:
LOCSinging, amss002964, "The Veteran's Song" ("Come gather 'round the Camp-fire -- and till the break of day"), Charles Magnus (New York), 1864

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Virginia Low Lands" (tune, according to the broadsides)

NOTES [264 words]: This is unquestionably a composed song, and not about an actual individual. You don't take "a grapeshot in my knee" and walk again thereafter! Nonetheless, the mention of the grapeshot is in the original John Ross Dix poem.

There are other signs of confusion in the song -- e.g. there is a reference, between the mention of Fair Oaks and that of the Peninsula, to service in "Fighting Joe's Brigade" and crossing the Rapidan at Culpeper with Averell. But "Fighting Joe" Hooker never commanded a brigade in combat in the Peninsular campaign; he was already in charge of a division. And while William Woods Averell did lead a rearguard action in the Peninsula, it was during the retreat to the James.

The reference to Culpeper is probably an errant reference to the Chancellorsville campaign. The reference to General Bragg also seems out of place in the story of an Eastern soldier; Braxton Bragg spent his entire combat career in the west (although he did spend some time at a desk job in Richmond after being forced out of field command -- but that was long after any datable event in the song, and apparently after the poem was copyrighted!). Nonetheless that mention too is in the original Dix poem.

The copyright on the Library of Congress broadside is from 1864, but the last event specifically mentioned is the Battle of Fredericksburg in late 1862. I suspect it took author Dix most of a year to sell the thing. I note that he was a fairly prolific songwriter (there are five poems by him in the "Same Tune" references) -- but this is the only item to reach tradition at all. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: Br3392

Veterans' Song

DESCRIPTION: "We are veteran union boys, We uphold the Constitution, We'll help the boys to win this strike...." The singer recalls fighting against slavery in 1861, and for Wall Street in 1916, and now wants repayment. The singer says to join the union

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 2001 (Lynch, according to Cohen)

KEYWORDS: labor-movement strike Civilwar

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Dec 1936-Feb 1937 - General Motors Strike

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 415-416, "Veterans' Song" (1 text)
File: CAFS2415

Vi Styrté Utover Atlanten (We Set Out Over the Atlantic)

DESCRIPTION: Swedish shanty. No story line, just sailing comments and complaints. i.e. "Callao was our port, so we go... Like a louse on a tarry fist." Chorus: "Hala hem! Hala hem! Hala hem a belagg! (Haul them home, haul them home, haul them home and belay)"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Sternvall, _Sang under Segel_ )
KEYWORDS: foreignlanguage shanty sailor
FOUND IN: Sweden
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, p. 552, "Vi Styrté Utover Atlanten" (2 texts-Swedish & English, 1 tune)
Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, p. 30, "Vi Styrté Utover Atlanten" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [69 words]: Note in Sternvall that this was sung aboard the Richelieu of Stromstad in 1903. - SL
This is not unlikely, since the late nineteenth century was they heyday of the South American guano trade (for which see the notes to "Tommy's Gone to Hilo"). Ilo and Callao were the two chief ports of this trade. And, of course, carrying guano was one of the less pleasant jobs for a sailor, and did generate complaints. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: Hugi552

Vicar of Bray, The

DESCRIPTION: "In good King Charles's golden days... A zealous high churchman was I, and so I got preferment." In the reigns that follow, the Vicar changes his opinions to suit the monarch, "That whatsoever king shall reign, I'll be the Vicar of Bray."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1813 (broadside Bodleian, Douce Ballads 4(49))
KEYWORDS: clergy political royalty
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- 1660-1685 - Reign of Charles II (an Anglican, but devoted to "High Church" and probably baptised Catholic on his deathbed)
- 1685-1688 - Reign of James II (brother of Charles II; Catholic)
- 1688 - Glorious Revolution. William III of Orange overthrows James II in his own behalf and on behalf of his wife, James's daughter Mary II. William is Dutch, and favors a more Reformed faith.
- 1688-1702 - Reign of William III (first cousin of Mary and nephew of James. Mary died in 1694)
- 1702-1714 - Reign of Anne (second daughter of James II; Protestant but conservative)
- 1714-1727 - Reign of George I (a cousin of Charles II and James II, and far down in the line of succession -- but the closest relative of the Stuarts to be safely Protestant)
FOUND IN: Britain(England) US(SE)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic II, pp. 122-123, "The Country Garden, or, The Vicar of Bray" (1 text, 1 tune)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #210, "The Vicar of Bray" (1 text)
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #78, "The Vicar of Bray" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 314, "The Vicar of Bray" (1 text)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN1416, "In Charles the second's Golden Reign" DT, VICARBRY*
ADDITIONAL: Reginald Nettel, _Seven Centuries of Popular Song_, Phoenix House, 1956, pp. 124-126, "(The Vicar of Bray)" (1 text)
Roud #4998
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Douce Ballads 4(49), "The Time Server, or, Vicar of Bray," T. Evans (London), 1790-1813
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "When the Rebels Come A-Marchin'" (theme)
SAME TUNE:
The American Vicar of Bray ("When Royal George ruled o'er this land and loyalty no harm meant") (Rabson-SongbookOfTheAmericanRevolution, pp. 62-63)
NOTES [7035 words]: According to Nettel, p. 126, "the song seems to have been derived from an early one by Ned Ward called The Religious Turncoat, sung to the tune of London is a fine Town." Perhaps true, but this is far better known.
Although the song is mostly a commentary on political trimming, it also reveals the strange and complex religious situation in late seventeenth century England. The ferment had been rising since the death of Elizabeth, really: James VI and I (reigned over England 1603-1625, having previously been king of Scotland) was inclined toward absolute monarchy, and his son Charles I (reigned 1625-1649) was even more so. This also naturally inclined them toward a hierarchical, ritualistic church. Neither king was popular, so they could do little to prevent the rise of the hard-line puritan denominations.
And then, of course, came the rebellion against Charles I, with Scotland turning to the Covenantant version of Presbyterian and England increasingly Puritan. When Oliver Cromwell died and the Commonwealth crumbled, Britain restored the monarchy, but it didn't at once solve the issue of the national faith. And, of course, for many years, the monarch had been the primary influence on the church: Henry VIII had instituted the Anglican church, Edward VI (or, rather, his ministers) had tried to codify it, then Mary I had inclined back toward Catholicism, leaving it for Elizabeth I to try to find a middle road.
It doesn't seem to have been a particularly big deal to Charles II on his restoration. Clark, p. 18, writes, "The king himself was the son and heir of one who was regarded as a martyr for the church of England, but he never showed much feeling for that church. He was without serious personal religion, and his theological opinions, so far as he had any, were those of the deism which was by this time common among unprejudiced men of position. He was therefore inclined to be tolerant of differences of belief, and he was disposed to be particularly indulgent to the Roman Catholics, that body among his subjects who were the most generally feared and ill-treated." Hence, perhaps, the description of the era as a "golden time"; there wasn't much persecution of anyone.
But there seemed to be something about Catholicism that struck a note in the heart of all the Stuarts. Prall, p. 44, records that "Charles II had developed a feeling of sympathy for the Roman Catholic Church and for French ways during his years of exile. How deeply his religious views went is certainly problematic, but there was an air about the court at Versailles [where Charles II spent much time after his father's execution and his own exile], Catholic and monarchical, that deeply impressed the young man in exile."
Certainly Charles liked control -- in the latter years of his reign, funded by a subsidy from France as well as revenues voted him for life by his subjects, he dispensed with parliament (Trevelyan, p. 22). Hence, presumably, the line in the song, "Kings are by God appointed" (something his father and grandfather believed even more profoundly; James I had actually written a book Trew Law of Free Monarchies, which set forth his belief in the Divine Right of Kings; Davies, p. 30. Charles I didn't write any books, but he did say that he "owe[d] the account of [his] actions to God alone," and that a king "cannot be tried by any superior jurisdiction"; Davies, p. 32. Compare also the quotes from Charles I's trial in Wedgwood-Coffin, pp. 121-134. Somehow, that didn't stop parliament from executing him). Charles II is said to have joined the Catholic church on his deathbed (Kenyon, p. 224; Prall, p. 89).
And Charles II had no heir; he had sundry illegitimate children, the most important of whom became Duke of Monmouth, but even when England had had illegitimate Kings (William the Conqueror, Henry VII), great effort was made to pretend they were legitimate. Nor was Monmouth to prove a particularly good leader; shortly after his father's death in 1685, he tried to raise a rebellion (Chandler, p. 3, and most of the rest of his book; Trevelyan, pp. 26-27; Clark, pp. 113-115, etc.), and was quickly quashed at the battle of Sedgemoor; he was executed, and his followers suffered very badly (Kenyon, pp. 228-229), as songs of the time tell:
Oh Lord, where is my husband now --
Where once he stood beside me?
His body lies at Sedgemoor
In grave of oak and ivy;
Come tell me you who beat the drum,
Why am I so mistreated? (Chandler, p. 92; Alexander, p. 268, notes that there are exceptionally many tales of ghosts told about the Sedgemoor battlefield).
But that left only one other possible successor to Charles II: His brother James (II and VII). James, contrary to the song, did not "usurp" the throne -- but he was Catholic. Proudly and openly Catholic. Maybe it was the family attitude; maybe it was the effects of the exile he had shared with Charles II. But he openly professed the Roman faith (Prall, p. 46). At this time, Catholics were barred from almost every office in England by the Test Act and the penal laws. And here was one on the throne! (It is perhaps possible that a parliament might have barred James from the throne before his accession, but as noted, Charles II managed to avoid summoning parliament in the latter years of his reign; they had no opportunity to do so.)

What's more, James gained firm control in the aftermath of Monmouth's rebellion, and although he failed to induce parliament to repeal the penal laws against Catholics (Trevelyan, pp. 33-34; Kenyon, p. 229, says that he never even raised the issue), he "did" induce them to vote him subsidies for life (parliament would learn from this, and never again give a monarch life subsidies; Trevelyan, p. 26). Free of financial needs, James protracted the parliament after it met for just a week and a half (this even though it was the most pro-Monarch parliament in decades; Prall, p. 92, says that its composition would have "made any Tudor or earlier Stuart king weep with envy"). Free of outside restrictions, James began to show clear favor to Catholics -- and to turn the machinery of government over to them ("Every effort was made to recruit Catholics and suitable Dissenters as magistrates and sheriffs" -- Kenyon, p. 238). And he was intent on creating a standing army -- something that was anathema to both the radical Whigs (because they didn't trust him) and the otherwise reliable Tories (because they remembered Cromwell and the Commonwealth and what it had done to the Church of England; Trevelyan, pp. 29-30). Trevelyan, p. 34, writes, "James, in short, in his desire to restore Romanism in England, found it necessary to become an absolute monarch like the other Princes of Europe."

The reference to the Vicar "read[ing] the Declaration" in the reign of James is perhaps somewhat confusing, because the natural thought would be that he is referring to the Declaration of Right, issued by William and Mary when they came to the throne. But James had made his own Declaration -- the Declaration of Indulgence (1687). This was, in effect, a unilateral repeal of the Test Act and anti-Catholic legislation (Prall, p. 126). This, on its face, was a liberal move -- James not only lifted the restrictions on Catholics but on Protestant Dissenters (Kendall, p. 236). But it was clear that he meant to use it to appoint more Catholics to high positions. And -- the key point, this -- he had done it without consent of parliament. The Test Act might be needless; it was certainly (by modern standards) odious, but it was the law. What James had done was patently unconstitutional. Fortunately for the peace of the country, James's two daughters, Mary (born 1662) and Anne (born 1665), were safely Protestant, and Mary, James's heir, was safely married to the equally Protestant William of Orange. Unfortunately, James's first wife Anne Hyde had died in 1671. And his second wife, Mary of Modena (1658-1718), was Catholic (Clark, p. 77). Parliament had opposed this marriage in 1674, but Charles II had allowed it to go forward (Kenyon, p. 209). It had looked for a time as if it wouldn't matter; Mary became pregnant five times, and none of the children lived (Kenyon, p. 239, attributes this to a venereal disease -- James's, not Mary's). And she had been barren for several years by the time James came to the throne. But then, in late 1687, it was announced that she was pregnant (Prall, p. 173). And the child proved to be a boy -- the future Old Pretender, "James III," of Jacobite fame. He proved to be not a very forceful character, but he was healthy, and everyone knew he would be raised Catholic, and he was now heir to the throne (Trevelyan, p. 49). The fragile religious balance in England was suddenly no balance at all. And across the channel was William of Orange, stadtholder of the Netherlands, the husband of James's daughter Mary. Being both James's nephew (he was the son of James's older sister Mary) and his son-in-law, he had long expected to succeed James (Prall, pp. 173-175). And, indeed, he desperately needed to succeed James, because his tiny country was trying to hold off the Frane of Louis XIV, and he could hardly hope to hold out much longer on his own. (This was a big reason Louis XIV had paid off first Charles II and then James II: To keep England from joining the Dutch war on the side of a fellow Protestant nation.)

On June 30, 1688, a group of English barons, frightened of James and his policies, issued an appeal to William of Orange to do something about the King (Trevelyan, p. 50; Clark, p. 127; Kenyon, p. 243, described William as actively inducing them to make their appeal; this may be his interpretation of a comment by William that he would not intervene in English affairs unless invited. For this situation, see Clark, p. 127f., Prall, p. 174ff.). Whatever William's original intentions, once the invitation came, he pounced. His timing was excellent; the French navy was unavailable and could not stop him (Clark, p. 129), and the French army headed off on a wild goose chase into Germany (Clark, p. 130; Trevelyan, p. 56). William managed to get to sea by November. And he succeeded in a great gamble: He chose to sail past the English fleet (which, to be sure, was in a state of near-mutiny after James had installed Catholic chaplains; Clark, p. 132). Helpful weather allowed him to sail past them and land in the southwest of England; the conditions worked so well that people called it a "Protestant Wind" (Kenyon, p. 249); note the reference in the song to the "new wind.

James of course was still "in possession" in England, but it was not to last. The people were learning the tune "Lillibullero" (Trevelyan, p. 58), which was to "whistle James from his throne," and the lords started bailing out not long after (Trevelyan, p. 61). Hence the Vicar set aside the "doctrine of non-resistance" and "passive obedience," which basically meant, when ordered by a monarch to do something immoral, to refuse to do it but remain loyal (Clark, p. 33; the doctrine is stated most explicitly in 1 Peter 2:13-17, but is in accordance with passages such as Matthew 5:39). With the whole country turning against him, James's government fell apart.

The outcome was settled when James went into a panic. Everyone expected a parliament to be called -- but James, rather than letting it meet and hoping to dominate it, burned the writs of summons and fled to France (Prall, pp. 237-238). Perhaps, with his absolutist trend of mind, he thought that the government would be paralyzed -- it was, after all, the King's government, and without him parliament could not meet. In theory (cf. Trevelyan, p. 67). In practice, they managed to use a legal fiction to cover up what had happened. By fleeing, James II was held, after some discussion, to have abdicated (Kenyon, pp. 254-257; Prall, p. 261; Trevelyan, p. 77). Parliament was regarded as having been properly summoned. And that parliament declared the infant James son of James (who of course had gone off with his father; Kenyon, p. 255) illegitimate, or at least ineligible for the crown (Kenyon, pp. 259-260) because of his presumed Catholicism (Trevelyan, pp. 77-78).

Another compromise made the William of Orange and James's daughter Mary joint monarchs -- William III and Mary II -- with William being given control but it being understood that whichever lived longer would be sole monarch after the death of the other, and their children if any would succeed them, with Mary's sister Anne being next in line. (Since William was a dozen years older than Mary, and sickly, it was expected that she would outlast him, so it wasn't expected that the joint monarchy would matter. As it turned out, Mary died of smallpox in 1694 at the age of just 32 (Gregg, p. 101), and William in 1702, and they had no children -- a problem suffered by several other Stuarts as well).

A series of additional compromises -- the "Glorious Revolution" -- assured greater religious freedom and a more constitutional government, with an independent judiciary and stronger parliamentary controls (Trevelyan, p. 88, etc.), enshrined in the "Declaration of Right" (Trevelyan, p. 79). Not everyone was reconciled to the Revolution -- most of Ireland would follow James II to the banks of the Boyne, and Scotland would later break out in the Jacobite rebellions -- but the matter was pretty well settled in England, and what England said, went. Hence the Vicar's prompt conversion.

(Incidentally, it was probably a very good thing that James was displaced. Had William and then Anne not been monarchs at the start of the eighteenth century, England would have been less anti-Catholic, and the France of Louis XIV would very likely had won the War of the Spanish Succession, resulting in France dominating all of Europe -- possibly for centuries to come.)

William himself, and his closest Dutch advisors, were "Calvinists in belief, congregationalists in religious observance -- the English dissenters were in a very real sense their coreligionists" (Kenyon, p. 236). But the Netherlands by this time was fundamentally tolerant; William did not impose any real religious restrictions. The Vicar needed only to return to the Protestant fold. But then Mary died, followed by William, and Anne took the throne. William and Mary had in effect governed from the center of the newly-forming Whig/Tory spectrum -- the deposition of James II was entirely a Whig idea, but James's behavior had forced most Tories to join the anti-James crowd (Trevelyan, pp. 76-77); only the Jacobite extremists still held out for the full Tory position. Anne wanted no part of this; she had the Stuart conservatism in a fairly pure form, and insisted on a Tory government -- although Gregg, p. 134, suggests that she disliked the whole idea of parties and factions, and eventually she was put off by the "High Tories" and tried to balance Tories and Whigs. Still, most agree that she was a firm believer in High Church Anglicanism (e.g. Gregg, pp. 15-16), which was a key tenet of the Tories, and even Kenyon, who thinks she wasn't so strongly Anglican, admits that everyone "thought" she was (Kenyon, p. 299). And, politically, even Kenyon admits that her "reign opened with a bang, with the dismissal of every Whig in sight and their replacement with firm Tories" (Kenyon, p. 300).

By 1707 she had settled on a policy of working with anyone who would work with her (Gregg, p. 255). It must have been great for the Vicar.

There is however agreement (e.g. Kenyon, p. 299) that she had no use at all for the habit of "occasional conformity" -- the fairly common practice of a Dissenter going to an Anglican church a few times a year to meet the requirements of the Test Act, allowing him to serve in government. Anne at the start of her reign tried to promote a law against occasional conformity, which failed (Gregg, pp. 162-163), but in 1711 she pushed through a bill stopping this practice (Clark, p. 222), which the Vicar naturally approved of, as long as it was on the statute books. It didn't last long. Anne herself died childless in 1714. Which revived the succession problem. When the Glorious Revolution took place, the succession had been defined only as far as Anne, to succeed William and Mary; Anne had just given birth at that time to the future Duke of Gloucester, and it seemed likely that the succession could pass through him. But the Stuarts truly were jinxed, genetically as well as historically. Something caused them to have few (and often emotionally troubled) children. It is possible that this is due to the genes of King Charles VI of France. The mad king was the father of Queen Katherine of Valois, wife of Henry V. Her son by Henry V, who became King Henry VI, was feeble-minded and had at most one son. By her second husband/paramour Owen Tudor, Katherine was the grandmother of King Henry VII -- and while Henry VII was healthy, his heir Henry VIII's wives repeatedly miscarried, and of his three legitimate and one illegitimate children to reach the age of one year, none would have offspring of their own. Charles I was the great(x6)-grandson of Charles VI -- via Katherine of Valois, Owen Tudor, Henry VII, Margaret Tudor, James V of Scotland, Mary Queen of Scots, and James VI and I -- and had nine legitimate children, six of whom died without legitimate issue. Of the remaining three, James II, like Henry VIII before, caused his wives to miscarry repeatedly, and Mary the mother of William of Orange had only one child. William and Mary, both grandchildren of Charles I, were childless, and Mary herself had been through miscarriages. James the Old Pretender had two sons, but neither produced a legitimate heir. And Anne -- well, Anne went through many pregnancies, almost all of which produced babies who died very young. The child of 1689 lived to become the Duke of Gloucester -- but then died in 1700 while still a boy. That produced a crisis, which William of Orange sort of resolved by passing the Act of Settlement in 1701 (Prall, pp. 287-288). This made it official: A Catholic could not ascend to the throne of England (later broadened to all of Britain by the passage of the Act of Union in 1707), nor could the monarch marry a Catholic. This was the "Protestant Succession." Anne had repeatedly talked, at the end of her life, of passing the throne to the Old Pretender, who was after all her closest living relative (her half-brother). Thackeray wrote, "Had the Queen lasted a month longer; had the English Tories been as bold and resolute as they were clever and crafty; had the Prince whom the nation loved and pitied been equal to his fortune, George Louis had never talked German in St. James's Chapel Royal" (quoted in Sinclair-Stevenson, p. 11). But Anne died too soon, and the law was not altered. The hunt was on for a Protestant heir. In fact, the Protestant heir was already known -- except that he was far down the line of succession. Several people could have supplanted him -- but they would have had to give up their Catholic faith. It really helps to see a genealogy here; I used the one in Oman, p. 458. Under strict blood succession, the heirs of Anne (after setting aside the Old Pretender) would have been the descendants of Henrieta, the daughter of Charles I who had married Philip, Duke of Orleans. These were, apart from the Old Pretender, the only legitimate descendants of Charles I. But they were all Catholic. That left the offspring of Elizabeth, the daughter of James I. (She and Charles I were the only children of James I to live to have children.) Elizabeth had had a truly sad history: Born in 1596 (Oman, p. 1), her early portraits show a very pretty red-haired girl, who apparently was also quite clever (Oman, p. 36). Not too surprisingly, half a dozen princes were mentioned as possible marriage prospects (for the list, see p. 469 in Oman's index). Somehow, though, James decided to favor the suit of Frederick V, who, when he came of age in 1614, would be the Elector Palatine of the Holy Roman Empire (Oman, pp. 52-53). James's wife Anne of Denmark wasn't so happy (Oman, p. 62), but the young pair (Frederick was the older by just a few days; Oman, p. 54) were formally betrothed at the end of 1612. (Some think that Shakespeare's "The Tempest," or at least the Masque in IV.I.106 and following, was modified to suit her wedding; we know, according to The Riverside Shakespeare, p. 1606, that it was performed as part of the elaborate marriage festivities.) Dill, p. 33, describes Frederick as "young, handsome, charming... and a Calvinist," but not even that combination of traits could bring calm to Germany. The rest of Elizabeth's life was not so happy. Frederick soon decided to accept the vacant throne of Bohemia (Oman, p. 170), against the advice of most of those around him (Wedgwood-Thirty, pp. 97-99: the Bohemians, after all, had just ousted the previous King even as he was being elected Holy Roman Emperor; Wedgwood-Thirty, pp. 90-97). That decision put Frederick squarely at the center of the Thirty Years' War; Bohemia, which was trying assure its Protestantism, was the front line. Elizabeth came to be called "The Winter Queen," because it was foretold that her husband, "The Winter King," would vanish with the snows (Oman, Earl of Warwick (died 1471). Warwick became an earl in the reign of King Henry VI, to whom he many instances of turning one's coat. The greatest example I can think of is Richard Beauchamp, allegiance is by no means unknown in British history. The Wars of the Roses in particular brought Although there does not seem to have been an actual Vicar of Bray, this sort of shifting-of-Vicar of Bray. But the various other candidates aren't much better.

Faced two Jacobite rebellions (1715 and 1719), there was never any serious danger of his offspring at all, and Rupert had no legitimate children. That left three: Charles Louis, the Elector Palatine (restored after the 1648 Peace of Westphalia, but with reduced territory; Dill, p. 37), whose offspring were Catholic; Edward, whose offspring were Catholic, and Sophia, who married the Elector of Hanover. (It is interesting to note that the Guelfs of Hanover had only recently become electors -- they were given a new, ninth electorate in 1692; Dill, p. 43. Thus the Hanoverian dynasty only became Electors “after” the Glorious Revolution!)

By 1710, it was of course clear that none of the people ahead of her would turn Protestant, so Elizabeth’s daughter Sophia became Anne’s heir apparent. She did not quite live to succeed, dying in 1714 at the age of 84 (perhaps, some have argued romantically, as a result of news from England which seemed to imply that Anne would disinherit her; Sinclair-Stevenson, pp. 13-15).
And so, in default of anyone else, George Lewis, Elector of Hannover, became King George I of England. He was not in any way exceptional -- Sinclair-Stevenson, p. 24, quotes an unnamed source as saying, “To imagine George I possessed any exalted views regarding either the supremacy of the Protestant religion or the economic and progressive development is to credit a mollusc with the aspirations of an eagle.” As it turned out, none of his descendants to the present day has been exceptional, either (except George III, who was exceptional for stupidity); the only one whom I can imagine making even a decent ruler in his own right is George V. But England had had its handsome Plantagenets and its triumphant Lancastrians and its romantic Stuarts; maybe it had had enough of exceptional monarchs. George was much laughed at -- for his lack of English, his two ugly mistresses, his clan of German friends (Sinclair-Stevenson, p. 26). But even though he faced two Jacobite rebellions (1715 and 1719), there was never any serious danger of his overthrow. Even Our Vicar had little to say about George’s theology -- except that he would follow it.

The reference to George arriving in Pudding Time has perhaps as many as three meanings. It refers to a the beginning of a meal, as George was the beginning of a new dynasty. It also implies a good meal, in which case the Vicar might be using it to try to compliment the new king. And -- well, George I, by the time he succeeded to the English throne, was rather pudgy, and his expansive cheekbones made him appear pudgier. He had the look of a man fond of his pudding.
Many candidates have been proposed for the "real" Vicar of Bray, although I don't believe any of them. The earliest is the one supported by Nettel, p. 124: Simon Alwyn, who was Vicar during the reigns of Henry VIII, Edward VI, Mary I, and Elizabeth I, and thus went from Catholic to Protestant to Catholic to Protestant. This proposal of course has two problems: First, it has nothing to do with the song (which refers to events a century after Alwyn’s death), and second, many clerics went through this lurching process in the years from 1536 to 1558; there is no reason to choose the Vicar of Bray. But the various other candidates aren’t much better.

Although there does not seem to have been an actual Vicar of Bray, this sort of shifting-of-allegiance is by no means unknown in British history. The Wars of the Roses in particular brought many instances of turning one's coat. The greatest example I can think of is Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick (died 1471). Warwick became an earl in the reign of King Henry VI, to whom he initially gave his loyalty (Ross-Wars, p. 34). But then he joined the opposition under the Duke of York (Ross-Wars, p. 31). Eventually he became one of the "Yorkist Earls" who invaded England to overthrow Henry VI (Ross-Wars, p. 45). When York was killed, it is possible that Warwick thought to try to rule again through Henry, but then Henry VI fell back into the hands of Queen Margaret (Ross-Wars, p. 52), so Warwick, in desperation, joined with York's son Edward IV, who went on to become King.

Warwick had become "The Kingmaker" (Ross-Wars, p. 54), but soon grew disillusioned with his role and began to intrigue on behalf of Edward IV's brother George of Clarence (Ross-Wars, p. 77). This failed, so Warwick eventually made a deal with ex-Queen Margaret and the French to support the old King Henry VI (Ross-Wars, p. 85). They briefly drove out Edward IV, and "re-adopted" (their spelling, and their invented word; Kendall, p. 100) King Henry. But Edward IV killed Warwick at the Battle of Barnet (Ross-Wars, p. 90). The Kingmaker's career was over.

But Warwick at least was overt in his actions. A better example of the pure trimmer comes in the form of the brothers Thomas Stanley (c. 1435-1504), later Earl of Derby, and his brother Sir William Stanley (c. 1440-1495). Thomas Stanley succeeded his father as Lord Stanley in 1459 (a title bringing with it control of the Isle of Man); this was in the reign of Henry VI, though the Wars of the Roses were already underway. Longford, p. 48, says that Henry VI admitted him to the Order of the Garter (though Kendall, p. 381, attributes this to Richard III), then Edward IV made him Steward of the Household. Stanley retained power under Richard III, even though he had married Margaret Beaufort (the mother of the future Henry VII) around 1482. He brought an army to Bosworth (where Richard III died), carefully did not fight in the battle, but when Richard died, reportedly put the crown on Henry VII's head.

That's the short version. In fact it appears the situation was even more complicated than Longford admits. Kendall, p. 404, notes that the Stanleys "throve by daring to make politics their trade, by sloughing off the encumbrances of loyalty an honor, by developing an ambiguity of attitude which enabled them to join the winning side."

Kendall implies that, early on, the brothers Stanley deliberately played both sides (see pp. 404-406): In 1459, William joined the Yorkists (and was attainted by a Lancastrian parliament), while Thomas, claiming to be Lancastrian, kept his troops idle at Blore Heath. Thomas did fight for the Lancastrians at Northampton, but when Edward IV became King, Thomas was made Chief Justice of Cheshire and Flint.

When in the late 1460s Warwick made the first of two attempts to bring back Henry VI, Thomas made sympathetic noises but did nothing and was taken back into favor. In the second attempt, he joined Warwick -- but did nothing at the battles of Barnet and Tewkesbury. Since William had joined the Yorkists, Thomas was allowed to rejoin the government. It was after this that he became Steward. During the reign of Richard III, even though his wife lost her estates after Buckingham's rebellion, Thomas Stanley became treasurer.

Then came the invasion of Henry VII, which eventually overthrew Richard. Stanley was, by now, the third-greatest landholder in England, after the Howard Duke of Norfolk and the Percy Earl of Northumberland. When Henry VII landed, Stanley asked to be allowed to leave Richard. Richard consented, though he made Stanley turn over his son Lord Strange as a hostage. (But, we note for the Richard III haters out there, once it was clear that Stanley would not support Richard at Bosworth, Richard let Strange live.)

Even after the death of Richard, the Stanleys kept their feet in both camps. Thomas became Earl of Derby (a title that is still in his family) -- though Kendall, p. 457, says that Margaret Beaufort eventually refused to share his bed any longer. But William, the man who had ordered the counter-charge that killed Richard III and won England for Henry, did not even receive a peerage. He allegedly conspired with the pretender Perkin Warbeck, and the Stanley luck finally ran out; Henry VII had him executed. (To be sure, there are those who think Henry just wanted Sir William's money; Poole, p. 18.)

It should be noted that Kendall's was the most vigorous defense of Richard III in the twentieth century; to preserve Richard, he must inherently blacken the Stanleys. But others tell the same story. Gillingham's seems to try to be balanced, in that it does not condemn Richard out of hand (but he betrays his bias in failing to note that Henry VII faced as many rebellions in his first two years as Richard did in his, and had a little support from peers; the only difference is that Richard was killed at Bosworth, whereas Henry won his battle at Stoke -- fortunately, since there would have been at least one more round of civil wars had he lost). But Gillingham's account of the Bosworth campaign (pp. 233-242) cannot conceal the extensive treachery of the Stanleys, though it tries to hide it under the cloak of necessity.

Seward-Roses, pp. 303-304, in the space of two pages manages to refer to "Lord Stanley's well-deserved reputation for trimming," and his "treacherous behavior in 1470-1471," also mentioning that "Thomas Stanley had survived the Wars of the Roses... by his shrewdness in identifying and backing the more powerful side" and noting that Henry and the Stanleys "were men of utmost cynicism," as well as that "the Stanleys were never men of their word."

Long after I wrote the above, I was amazed to find that Ross-Richard, p. 162, took exactly the same view, referring to "the Vicar of Bray attitude which the Stanley family usually adopted."

Perhaps the best evidence of all comes from the will of William Catesby, one of Richard III's closest associates. Three days after the Battle of Bosworth, as he prepared for execution, he wrote his will. Cunningham, pp. 76-77, shows a reduced image of the will, which reads in part, "My lords, Stanley, Strange and all that blood help and pray for my soul for you have not for my body as I trusted in you."

No matter what source you consult, both brothers had careers with even more changes of coat than the Vicar of Bray (who just went along with whoever was in charge).

For additional details on Richard III's story, see the notes to "The Children in the Wood (The Babes in the Woods) [Laws Q34]" and "The Rose of England" [Child 166].

England had also had a period of almost as much religious instability from about 1530-1560. Henry VIII (reigned 1509-1547) began as a staunch defender of Catholicism against Lutheranism, but when he wanted to dump his wife Catherine of Aragon to marry Anne Boleyn (Williamson, p. 111), and was refused, he created Harryism (as it should have been called) or Anglicanism (as it calls itself). By 1529, he summoned the Reformation Parliament, which would work with him in creating the new denomination (Scarisbrick, p. 245).

Following Henry VIII was his son Edward VI. Although only a boy, his protector, Somerset, was a zealous Protestant who moved toward a much more strict reformist position (Ashley, p. 637).

Somerset did not last long, but his opinions lasted until Edward VI himself died, still in his teens, in 1553 (Loach, p. 167). Edward had been persuaded to name Jane Grey, the "Nine Days' Queen," as his successor (Ashley, p. 638). But Henry VIII's eldest daughter, Mary (I), raised an army and was able to take control (Loach, p. 170).

Had her supporters known what was coming, they might not have been so adamant. She was a fanatical Catholic, and a foolish one, with no understanding of the people; her attempts to reimpose Catholicism earned her the name "Bloody Mary" (Ashley, p. 640). She lost Calais, England's last possession in the continent, and had no heir; she died, as 2 Chronicles says of Jehoram, "with no one's regret." Her half-sister Elizabeth succeeded, and put Anglicanism in roughly its final form (Ashley, p. 641): Largely Catholic in worship and in episcopal organization, but separate from Rome and with a more Protestant theology.

It would have taken a rare trimmer to manage to keep his congregation from 1529 to (say) 1559, however. Henry VIII disposed of uncompromising Catholics, Bloody Mary burned any number of Protestants (and didn't trust those who recanted), and even Elizabeth was at times forced to deal harshly with Catholics (Ashley, p. 642). It was a far harsher period than 1685-1714; James II and William III, because their positions had been so weak, had generally been willing to accept any followers they could find. Whereas Bloody Mary was a true zealot. - RBW

The form of broadside Bodleian Firth c.8(33), "Beef and Butt Beer, Against Mum and Pumpernickle" or "A Bumper to Old England, Huzza," B. C. (London), 1743, shows it either to be a forerunner or derivative of "The Vicar of Bray." Here is the first verse:

In good King G---'s golden days,
Whoe'er advis'd the King, Sir,
To give H---r the Bays,
Deserv'd a hempen String, Sir.

For this is true, I will maintain,
Give H----r away, Sir,
Or whatsoever K---g shall reign,
Will ne'er have a happy Day, Sir. - BS

The king in the item above must be one or another King George (no other English king has had the initial "G," unless you count Richard of Gloucester). And since the king mentioned clearly is no longer on the throne, and the song was published in the 1740s, it must be George I.

This strongly implies that "H----r" is Hanover, the German principality that England had inherited with George I.

My guess is that the reference is to the Battle of Dettingen (1743) during the War of the Austrian Succession (1740-1748). Britain had joined the war on the Austrian side, partly because France was on the other side, partly because Hanover was part of the Holy Roman Empire (of which the Habsburg Emperor of Austria was usually Emperor, though an exception had had to be made at this time; Maria Theresa of Austria was a woman and therefore ineligible), and partly because Britain wanted to maintain the balance of power.
The War of the Austrian Succession was very expensive for Britain, and unpopular, causing several governments to fall rather spectacularly. Dettingen was of particular note because it was very bloody, and a strategic defeat for the British, who ended up sitting and licking their wounds, rather than continuing to campaign, afterward (Browning, p. 140). Dettingen also was remembered because George II personally led troops (Browning, p. 137; the last time a British monarch was directly involved in battle). It frankly should have been a worse defeat, except that the French Duke of Grammont gave up an almost unassailable position, allowing the British to escape a trap (Browning, p. 139). According to Browning, p. 139, "George II basked in his long-sought (and unmerited) glory." But Browning, p. 140, notes that he wore Hanoverian, not British, insignia in the battle (something his British officers strongly resented; Brumwell/Spew, pp. 175-176). Also, the Hanoverian connection was very unpopular in Britain, where it was felt that the Georges paid too much attention to their continental domains. It is easy to understand a British writer saying, "Give Hanover away!"

George I was, of course, the last King mentioned in the "standard" Vicar of Bray. It thus seems likely that the Bodleian broadside is a follow-on to the Vicar -- which in turn implies that the Vicar was in existence by the reign of George II if not earlier.

Just how traditional "The Vicar of Bray" is is an open question. That it's well-known, however, cannot be denied. Improbable as it sounds, a bark named The Vicar of Bray was built in 1841. After a complicated career, it ended up in a decrepit state in Port Stanley in the Falklands. It still exists as part of a pier there, and is believed to be the only surviving ship to have made the voyage to San Francisco during the 1849 gold rush (Paine, pp. 546-547). The song also gave its name to a biological theory. Ridley, p. 31 etc., describes how biologists for long thought that sex existed in order to promote the diffusion of good genes, helping along evolution. This came to be called the "Vicar of Bray" theory. Alternatives go by such names as the "Tangled Bank" and the "Red Queen" (after the Red Queen's Race in Through the Looking Glass). Unlike its namesake, though, the "Vicar" theory proved inadequately adaptable. The basic premise is sound: Sex allows the diffusion of genes (i.e. it allows genes A and B, which arose independently, to end up in the same organism), and sharing of genes is indeed helpful when a species must seek to optimize behavior; it is the best way to create superior mixes of genes. But this does not explain why so many creatures reproduce only by means of sex. Mammals use sex exclusively, and most other vertebrates and many invertebrates also reproduce exclusively sexually.

The problem with the Vicar of Bray is that sex is not needed for genetic diffusion. It's perfectly possible to swap genes without sex; bacteria often do it, and viruses manage it by invading a cell and adding their DNA to its. And in the ordinary course of things asexual reproduction (cloning or fissioning) is a faster way to reproduce. Indeed, we see a mix of such strategies in many creatures (strawberries, for instance, send out runners to populate their local area, while spreading seeds to the wind. And there are a number of species which reproduce primarily asexually while going through an occasional sexual phase, e.g. at the end of a growing season). Plus, while sex serves to distribute good genes, it also serves to break up good gene combinations. As Ridley puts it on page 47, "Sex disobeys that great injunction, 'If it ain't broke, don't fix it.'"

It has been noted, however, that asexual reproduction seems to be a very rare thing; if one looks at a "Tree of Life" (one of those drawings that show species splitting off from each other), and marks the multicellular creatures which reproduce asexually, they are few and scattered (description in Dawkins, p. 425). The one major exception is the bdelloid rotifers, which -- unlike all other rotifers -- reproduce exclusively asexually, and have managed to persist for an estimated 85 million years and spawn some 360 species (Judson, pp. 219-220; Dawkins, p. 425). Judson, p. 213, calls it a "notorious scandal" (in the circles of evolutionary biology). According to Ridley, p. 85, it was John Maynard Smith who first used the term. Scandal they may be, but they are still very much the exception. Almost every other species reproduces sexually. It must have some strong advantage -- but no one knows what.

(This gives rise to an irony: The Vicar of Bray in the song kept himself in business by selfishly concerning himself solely with his own survival. The Vicar of Bray hypothesis regarding evolution failed because it does not take into account the selfish desires of each creature that its genes, and only its genes, survive.) Because of these problems, there is still debate about why sex persists. It will be interesting to see the name applied to the consensus theory if and when a consensus forms. - RBW

Bibliography
DESCRIPTION: Singer has the Vicksburg blues: "my baby didn't want me no more" but "she's restin' on my mind." He looks for her in town but "she had moved away." He leaves, gets word where she may be, and is going to hop a freight back.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Montgomery)
Scott Dunbar, "Vicksburg Blues" (on USDunbarS01)
Little Brother Montgomery, "Vicksburg Blues" (Paramount 13006, 1930); (1968, on "Faro Street Jive," Folkways Records FTS 31014)

NOTES [529 words]: The description combines both Little Brother Montgomery recordings listed. He recorded different versions of "Vicksburg Blues" after 1930, including a "Vicksburg Blues No. 2" (Bluebird B6072, 1935) and "Vicksburg Blues Part 3" (Bluebird B6697), with different words. Other singers had their own "Vicksburg Blues" -- with their own words -- using Montgomery's tune and influenced by Montgomery's piano arrangement. Arthur "Big Boy" Crudup has "Crudup's Vicksburg Blues" (Victor 20-2205, 1946). Otis Spann hads "Vicksburg Blues" (1966, on "Otis Spann's Chicago Blues," Testament T-2211). Scott Dunbar's version includes lines from Little Brother Montgomery and Span or -- more likely -- Crudup (one Dunbar line is "I got the Big Boy blues"). The "Forty-Fours" complex of blues -- starting with "Vicksburg Blues" and the two "Forty-Four Blues" -- is explored in great detail in his "The Forty-Fours" in Paul Oliver, Screening the Blues (New York: De Capo Press, 1968). Here are a snippets from that long article:

"... the piano tune of The Forty Fours or Vicksburg Blues -- is the unifying theme that holds all the variants together ...." (p. 95)

"...1922 ... I come over to Vicksburg..." explained Little Brother Montgomery '.... That's where I met Ernest Johnson ... that's where we originated these numbers like Vicksburg Blues, 44 Blues and things like that." (p. 94)

"Eurreal Montgomery did not claim exclusive credit for composing the theme. Among the people that he mentioned who played the tune in its formative period were ....

"On the tune which these men developed Little Brother Montgomery commented, 'It's a blues, it's a barrelhouse, honky-tonk blues. People danced by that, did the shimmy by that. It's a thing we just made up; you could keep addin' to it.' From this it appears that originally The Forty-Fours was a piano piece for dancing. The shimmy dances, though depending on undulating movements of the body which shook the heavily fringed shift dresses of the period, were not necessarily fast. The sensuous 'snake-hip' movements of the shimmy or the shuffle of the 'slow drag' would have been effective at the medium tempo of the tune.

If The Forty-Fours began as a dance tune it probably had no words initially, and this is supported by Roosevelt Sykes's assertion that there were no lyrics to the tune when he first heard it. But when he recorded his '44' Blues and Little Brother Montgomery made his Vicksburg Blues both had definite, though very different, vocals." (pp, 94-95).

"It is interesting that while Sykes's vocal is on a different tune from the piano theme, Little Brother Montgomery's vocal line is closely related to the melody of the piano theme, itself. It is possible therefore, that the piano tune was modelled on a pre-existing vocal tune which survives in Vicksburg and that Sykes had not known of the vocal but learned the mature piano version." (p. 95)

"Roosevelt Sykes, ... learned the tune from {Lee] Green ..." (p. 102)

"[Green's] vocal had a rise and fall shape similar to that of Little Brother's ... his earlier [1929] recording showed greater affinity to Roosevelt Sykes in the vocal ...." (p.104) - BS

Last updated in version 5.1

File: RcVicksB

Victorious Goalers of Carrigaline and Kilmoney, The DESCRIPTION: "There's joy throughout the nation... our goalers ... have won the victory... on the plains of Onnabuoy" Ancient heroes of the game would join the acclamation. The game is described. O'Day is the hero. Players on both teams are named.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1839 (Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)

KEYWORDS: pride sports Ireland moniker

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland, pp. 148-155, "The Victorious Goalers of Carrigaline and Kilmoney" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Mourneen Gal Ma Chree" (tune, according to Croker-PopularSongsOfIreland)
Victorious March

DESCRIPTION: General Grant sets out to capture Vicksburg. He wins assorted small battles and besieges the city; it surrenders on July 4.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety), based on a diary entry from 1864

KEYWORDS: Civilwar battle

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- Nov 1862 - Union general Ulysses S. Grant begins his Vicksburg campaign. His first four attempts to reach the city fail
- Apr 16, 1863 - Porter's gunboats run past Vicksburg, opening the way for Grant's final successful campaign
- May 12-17, 1863 - Grant fights a series of minor battles which bring him to the defences of Vicksburg
- May 22, 1863 - Grant's attempt to take Vicksburg by storm is a bloody failure. The Union army settles down to a siege
- July 4, 1863 - Lt. General Pemberton surrenders Vicksburg

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 369-371, "Victorious March" (1 text)
- Roud #7765

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Battle of Vicksburg" (subject)
- cf. "Late Battle in the West" (subject)

NOTES (438 words): Historical allusions in this piece include:
- "In the early part of May": Grant actually brought his forces across the Mississippi below Vicksburg on April 30, 1863
- "Grand Gulf": On May 1, two Confederate brigades arrived from Grand Gulf to dispute Grant's crossing. The actual battle was fought at Port Gibson, and resulted in a rebel defeat. The survivors then abandoned Grand Gulf to Grant.
- "Raymond": After crossing the river, Grant had intended to head downstream and capture the auxiliary fortress of Port Hudson, but instead decided that Vicksburg was his primary objective. He moved inland, defeating a small force at Raymond, Mississippi on May 12.
- "Jackson" and "the seniors of rebellion": There were two rebel forces in central Mississippi: Pemberton's Vicksburg garrison, and an additional force under Joseph E. Johnston near Jackson. Johnston was the senior officer in the west, and in theoretical charge of Pemberton -- but he couldn't get Pemberton to obey him, and his own force was small (no more than 12,000 men, and probably less than 10,000). Grant, with at least a 4:1 advantage, beat the force at Jackson on May 14, freeing the Union army to deal with Pemberton without worrying about his back.
- "Champion Hill": Properly Champion's Hill. Johnston had vainly tried to get Pemberton to pitch into Grant's army while Johnston was still fighting. Pemberton sat -- then finally came on on May 15, changed his mind, and awaited Grant on the hill. Grant attacked on May 16, and after a bloody battle pushed Pemberton back toward Vicksburg.
- "Black River": On May 17, Pemberton tried a rearguard action at the river crossing. Grant forced a crossing without much trouble, and Pemberton was trapped. Grant besieged the city starting May 19, although his initial assault was defeated.
- "General Pemb": Lt. Gen. John C. Pemberton (1814-1881), the commander of the Vicksburg garrison. His handling of the campaign was so inept that some Confederates accused him of treason (he was born in the North).
- "General Logan": John A. Logan (1826-1886). Commander of a division in the Union army.
- "Their works he undermined": Union engineers twice (June 25, July 1) exploded mines under the...
Confederate works. Neither explosion produced a breakthrough, though they may have influenced Pemberton's decision to surrender. "All hope of Johnston's aid": After the battle of Jackson, Johnston tried to assemble a relieving force, but the only troops available were green as grass. In addition, Grant was given some 30,000 additional troops, with which to hold off Johnston. Johnston declared on June 15 that Vicksburg could not be saved. - RBW

Victory Nugget

DESCRIPTION: "The magic of yellow that shows in the pan Has captured the fancy of many a man" although many strive long without finding gold. Peter Pesini comes from Italy to hunt. After many years, he finds a large nugget -- but dies soon after taking it to the bank

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 2010 (Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry)

KEYWORDS: mining gold death immigration

FOUND IN: New Zealand

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 52, "Victory Nugget" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: Col2052

Victory Shall Be Mine

DESCRIPTION: "Victory, victory shall be mine (x2); Just hold your peace and the Lord will fight your battles, Victory, victory shall be mine." "Victory, victory shall be mine in the morning..." (Or, "When in trouble," or "In the evening," etc.)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (3 citations):

Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 176, "Victory Shall Be Mine" (1 text, 1 tune)

Warner-FolkSongsAndBalladsOfTheEasternSeaboard, p. 57, "Victory" (1 text)

ST Wa176 (Partial)

Roud #16403

NOTES [128 words]: Yes, the Warners' informant (name uncertain) pronounced it "victory" -- a peculiar error for an American, as it is considered characteristic of Cockney speech (and even in that dialect, some insist that its frequency is exaggerated) and other parts of East Anglia and southeastern England. The NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal article declares the exchange of v and w to be characteristic of Outer Banks dialect.

The tune has another, even more surprising, peculiarity: It uses quarter tones. And not just any quarter tone; it has a quarter tone in place of the fifth (i.e. A # instead of G in the key of C). At least, that's how it shown in Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl ; I don't see it in the NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal transcription. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: Wa176

Victory Won at Richmond, The

DESCRIPTION: "The southern boys may longer lie On the first and fourth of sweet July, Our General Beauregard resound For his southern boys at Richmond." In a bloody battle, the southerners save Richmond while the Yankees run

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Cox)

KEYWORDS: battle Civilwar

FOUND IN: US(Ap)
NOTES [626 words]: This song is item dA37 in Laws’s Appendix II. Laws lists two texts in Cox, but this is a typographical error.

This song is truly a curiosity. The form and lyrics are straight from "The Heights of Alma" (with this clearly being a rewrite) -- yet "The Heights of Alma" was about an event of the Crimean War; what was it doing being parodied in the American South in the 1860s? I suppose there could be an earlier song which inspired both (Alma was hardly the sort of battle to produce a brilliant broadside), but I hadn’t found it.

The history here is also confused. The only general named on either side is Beauregard. But Beauregard never commanded at Richmond. He could be treated as the Confederate commander at First Bull Run/Manasses (though the actual field commander was Joseph E. Johnston), but that was a long way from Richmond (McPherson, pp. 339-346, especially p. 340). Beauregard did command the defenses of Petersburg (south of Richmond) in 1864, and fought the Yankees in the Bermuda Hundred campaign (Boatner, p. 55) -- but this was as a subordinate of Lee’s.

It seems likely that this line is an interpolation, as it does not fit the stanza form. But that just leaves things more murky. So do the initial dates: The first and fourth of July. No significant battles happened on those days -- except the Battle of Gettysburg (July 1-3, 1863) and the surrender of Vicksburg (given up on July 4, 1863; for the dates of battles, see Phisterer, pp. 83-220), neither of which a Confederate would celebrate.

The description of the battle also fails to match any actual battle. The casualty ratios are reminiscent of two fights (Fredericksburg, where according to Boatner, p. 313, the Union lost 12,700, compared to 5200 Confederates; and Cold Harbor, where Boatner, p. 163, makes the ratio of casualties 7000:1500), but again, these were Lee’s battles, and neither was fought near Richmond. In any case, the Confederates fought all of the above battles on the strict defensive; nowhere did they capture a height.

If one were to list one battle as a "Victory at Richmond," it would probably be the Seven Days' Battles, but this was Lee’s fight, with an army recently Johnston’s; Confederate losses * exceeded* Union casualties (McPherson, p. 470), and at no point did the Confederates take a ridge (they in fact signally failed to take one in the Battle of Malvern Hill).

I think the only possible conclusion is that this is a localized version of "The Heights of Alma," not based on an actual battle but rather on a few names the writer had heard. It may even be conflation of northern and southern versions (that would explain a lot of the confusions). Alternately, it may be that it conflates battles. Second Bull Run was fought August 29-30, 1862 (Phisterer, p. 112; Boatner, pp. 104-105), with an afterthought at Chantilly on 1 September, 1862. Maybe the author heard the news on 1 or 4 September, confused the date with July -- and then confused Second Bull Run, with Lee commanded, with First Bull Run, where Beauregard sort of commanded. In any case, the result is a mess.

It's too bad, in a way; the version of "Heights of Alma" I know is incredibly energetic, and could use a solid American version.

As a footnote, there was a "Battle of Richmond" in Civil War annals. And it was a clear Confederate victory -- "as near to a battle of annihilation as any had been seen so far in this war" (Anders, p. 216) But it was a small conflict fought near Richmond, Kentucky in August 1862 (Phisterer, p. 112). Beauregard was not involved, of course; the Confederate commander was Edmund Kirby Smith. It is interesting to note that it took place on the same day as the Second Battle of Bull Run. Maybe that added to the confusion of the songwriter. - RBW

Bibliography

• Boatner: Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover)
• Phisterer: Frederick Phisterer, Campaigns of the Civil War: Statistical Record of the Armies of the United States, 1883 (I use the 2002 Castle Books reprint)
View the Land

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Way over Jordan, View the land (x2), Way over Jordan, View the heavenly land (x2)." Verses: The singer is "born of God," wants to go to heaven and wear "gospel shoes," warns "stop telling your lies" and "let your neighbor be"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 138-139, "View de Land" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 182 in the 1874 edition)

Roud #15246

NOTES [54 words]: Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses follow the chorus pattern "view the land, view the land" and "view the heavenly land." - BS

Presumably this is an allusion to the story of Moses, who was not allowed to enter the Promised Land but was allowed to view it from Mount Pisgah. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.0

File: Dett138

Vilikens and his Dinah (William and Dinah) [Laws M31A/B]

DESCRIPTION: Dinah is in love with (William/Vilikens); her father insists that she will marry someone else. Dinah steals away, writes a note to her love, and drinks poison. Her love finds her body and in turn kills himself. They are buried in the same grave

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: M31A: before 1821 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 c.17(469)). M31B: before 1853 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 26(662))

KEYWORDS: courting death poverty

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW,NE,So,SE) Canada(Mar) Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber,Bord)) West Indies(Jamaica)

REFERENCES (32 citations):
Laws M31A, "William and Dinah A"/M31B "Vilikens and His Dinah (William and Dinah B)"
Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 64-65, "Vilikens and His Dinah" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 345, "William and Dinah" (1 text)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, pp. 110-111, "William and Dinah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan2 211, "Vilikens and His Dinah" (1 fragment, 2 tunes)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfursCollectionVolume2 133, "Diana" (1 text)
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 147-148, "Wiliks and Dinah" (1 text)
Randolph 80, "Vilkens and Dinah" (1 text plus an excerpt, 1 tune)
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 50, "Vilkens and his Dinah" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 162, "Young Diana" (2 texts plus mention of 1 more, 1 tune; the "A" text is "William and Dinah"; "B" is "Vilkens")
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 105, "Vilikins and His Dinah" (1 text)
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 90, "Billy and Diana" (1 short text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 204, "Wiliks and His Dinah" (1 text plus 1 excerpt and mention of 3 more)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 204, "Wilkins and His Dinah" (2 excerpts, 2 tunes)
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #181, "Wilkins and Dinah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 33, pp. 146-147, "Vilikins and His Dinah" (1 text)
Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee 25, pp. 46-47, "Wilkins and His Dinah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, p. 49, "Dinah's Lovers" (1 text, in which William becomes "Sambo")
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 301-303, "Willikins and His Dinah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Creighton-SongsAndBalladsFromNovaScotia 17, "Diana and Sweet William" (1 text, 1 tune); 18, "Villikens and his Dinah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 767-769, "Villikens and his Dinah" (2 texts)
Leach-HeritageBookOfBallads, pp. 180-181, Jimmy and Diana" (1 text)
Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 53-54, "Villikens and His Dinah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2461, p. 165, "Vilikens and His Dinah! or, The Cup of Cold Pison" (2 references)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 118-119, "William and Dinah" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 266, "Vilikins And His Dinah" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 603-604, "Vilikens and His Dinah -- (Sweet Betsey from Pike)"
DT 435, VILDINAH*
ADDITIONAL: Peter Davison, _Songs of The British Music Hall_, Oak, 1971, pp. 20-23, "Villikins and His Dinah" (1 text, 1 tune, a full music-hall version with much patter between musical portions.)
Aline Waite & Robin Hunter, _The Illustrated Victorian Songbook_, Michael Joseph Ltd., 1984, pp. 66-68, "Vilikins and His Dinah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Martha W Beckwith, "The English Ballad in Jamaica: a Note Upon the Origin of the Ballad Form" in _Publications of the Modern Language Association_ [PMLA], Vol. XXXIXI, No. 2 (Jun 1924 (available online by JSTOR)), #10 pp. 479-482, "Adinah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Harold Nestler, "Songs from the Hudson Valley" (article in _New York Folklore Quarterly_, Volume V, #2, Summer 1949), pp. 91-912, "William and Dinah" (1 text, which seems to consist of the opening of "Vilikens and his Dinah (William and Dinah)" [Laws M31A/B] with the happy ending of "Cupid's Garden (I) (Covent Garden I; Lovely Nancy III)" or something similar grafted onto the end)
Roud #271
RECORDINGS:
Logan English, "William and Dinah" (on LEnglish01)
BROADSIDES:
Laws M31A:
Bodleian, 2806 c.17(469), "William and Diana," G. Thompson (Liverpool), 1789-1820; also Harding B 15(379a), Harding B 11(3592), Harding B 11(1311), Johnson Ballads 1842, "William and Dinah"
Laws M31B:
Bodleian, Harding B 26(662), "Villikins and His Dinah," J. Moore (Belfast). 1846-1852; also Firth c.18(231), Firth b.27(61), "Vilikens and His Dinah"; Firth b.27(159), Harding B 11(3981), Firth c.18(232), "Vilikens and His Dinah"; Harding B 11(3982), "Vilikins and His Dinah!"
LOCsinging, as114360, "Villikins and Dinah," Horace Waters (New York), 1854 (tune)
LOCsinging, sm1854 551640, "Vilikens and His Dinah," Horace Waters (New York), 1854 (tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sweet Betsy from Pike [Laws B9]" (tune & meter)
cf. "The Grand Hotel" (tune & meter)
cf. "Squarin' Up Time" (tune & meter)
cf. "Blinded by Shit" (tune & meter)
cf. "Dinky Die" (tune)
cf. "Pokegama Bear" (tune)
cf. "The H'Emmer Jane" (tune)
cf. "Johnston's Hotel" (tune)
cf. "Moses Ritoora-li-ay" (tune)
cf. "Duncan Campbell (Erin-Go-Bragh)" [Laws Q20] (tune)
cf. "Four Horses" (tune)
cf. "Nothing at All" (tune)
cf. "Dalmuir Ploughing Match" (tune)
cf. "Hans and Katrina" (theme, lyrics, tune)
SAME TUNE:
Sweet Betsy from Pike [Laws B9] (File: LB09)
The Grand Hotel (File: FJ180)
Squarin' Up Time (File: FJ182)
Blinded by Shit (File: EM125)
Dinky Die (File: EM403)
Pokegama Bear (File: RcPokeqB)
Johnston's Hotel (File: RcJohHot)
Four Horses (File: Rc4Horse)
Nothing At All (File: RcNoAtAl)
The Abolition Show (The Great Baby Show) (File: KPL454)
Dalmuir Ploughing Match (File: GrD3427)
A Fast Pair of Skis (File: BaRo145)
The Stoker's Lament (File: Tawn017)
A-25 (File: Hopk130)
We Sing of the Polar Bear (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 43)
They Died as They Lived (per broadside Bodleian Firth b.27(61))
John Dean and His Own Mary Ann, or, The Gallant Young Coachman and the Cruel Father (plus two sequels) (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 77-78)
Mrs. Cunningham and the Baby ("A child must be born, an heir to Burdell") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 102)
The New York Ice-Man ("My name it is Michal from Dutchland I came") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 108)
Parody No. 2. on "Vilikins and His Dinah" ("There is a young damsel in Woodbridge doth dwell") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 123)
Pat and the Priest ("Pat fell sick on a time, and he sent for the Priest") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 124)
The Prince of Wales, No. 3 ("Ye Flora McFlinsey's and Frederick Fitz Foodles") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 130)
The Rich Country Gal and the Wicked City Chap (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 135)
Song of These Times ("Good people, all, I pray attend") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 148)
Susy and Pat Murphy ("Och, it's of a rich farmer in Limerick did dwell") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 152)
The Toper's Lament. A Doleful Ditty. ("It's come all you bold drunkards, and hear to my song") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 158)
The Two Lovers ("There was an old woman who somewhere did dwell") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 160)
The Yellow Haird Boy 16 Months Old ("Behind him now creeping on the carpeted floor") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 183)
Uncle Abe, or A Hit at the Gimes ("In the town of Chicago as you know very well") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 196)
Away to the Mountain/Away from the Mountain (both by A. D. Wheeler, [class of 18]27) (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, pp. 110-111)
Biennial (by Gilles Babcock, Jr., [class of 18]60) ("As Prex sat one evening a-talking with Linc") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 111)
Sing Tangent, Co-Tangent (by F. Browning, [class of 18]61) ("There was a Professor in New York did dwell") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 46)
Examinandum Est ("'Old Parabola' rose one fine morning in June") (by Hoffman and Lott, and with the listed tune of "Sing Tangent") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 70)
The Flunker ("There was a young man, who in New York did dwell") (with the listed tune of "Sing Tangent") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensia: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_ first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 70)
The Washington Tragedy ("It's of a rich gentleman who in Washington did dwell, He had a fair lady who cut a great swell, Mrs. Teresa Sickles was this lady's name, On to her family brought murder and shame") (about the murder of Barton Key by Daniel Sickles, 1859) (Broadside in the American Memory collection)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Diana
Jimmy and Diana
Billikins
NOTES [335 words]: As Laws's numbers show, this ballad has two versions. The first, "William and Dinah," is a straightforward tragic piece. At some point this was rewritten as a comic piece, "Vilikens and His Dinah." The two retain enough similarity that they can still be treated as one song. There are enough claims of authorship that I chose to leave the "Author" field empty. Jonathan Lighter and John Moulden, in posts to Ballad-L in 2010, reports that two early but undated printings in the Levy collection list John Parry as the author; another lists John Barnard. But sheet music attributions aren't always very reliable.
Waites & Hunter declare that the first singer of the comic version was one Frederick Robson, who alternated between comic and pathetic presentations -- and who would often stop in mid-performance, when the audience was laughing, and declare "This is not a comic song!" -- encouraging still more fits of laughter. According to Scott, it was his "most celebrated song. He introduced it at the Olympic Theatre, during Vestris and Planchet's management, and later at the Grecian Saloon."
In the department of Truly Useless Knowledge, we might note that the cat Dinah of Caroll's Through the Looking Glass derived its name from this song. The two cats kept by the Liddell family were Villikens and Dinah.
As for why Dinah is a character in the Alice books and Villikens wasn't... according to Colin
Gordon, Beyond the Looking Glass: Reflections of Alice and Her Family, Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 1982, p. 113, the cat Villikens died of poison. I'm not making that up, although Gordon may have been.... - RBW
I have a problem with the Beckwith text and tune: a verse of "Little Musgrave" is in the middle of the first chorus. I believe that is an editing error, possibly caused by a misplaced page. Without that insertion, Beckwith has a good example of a "Vilikins" text, tune, chorus and all. Beckwith identifies the tune as "Springfield Mountain" but it is the tune commonly used for "Vilikins." - BS
Last updated in version 5.1
File: LM31

Villainy Rewarded, or The Pirate’s Last Farewell to the World DESCRIPTION: "Well may the world against us cry, for these our deeds most base, For which, alas, we now must die." The singer and his comrades stole a ship and turn pirate. They had much success, but at last "are unto justice brought." Other pirates are warned
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Firth)
KEYWORDS: pirate ship robbery punishment execution death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1927 - Death of Vince Leahy of Peterborough
FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #43, "Vince Leahy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3683
File: FowL43

Vince Leahy
DESCRIPTION: The singer tells of the drowning of Leahy. The young man is well liked for his hard work at Young's Point. The morning of his death, his mother begs him to stay home. But he goes to work, slips into a "stop log place," and is found much later
AUTHOR: Dave McMahon
EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Fowke)
KEYWORDS: death drowning lumbering river family
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1927 - Death of Vince Leahy of Peterborough
FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #43, "Vince Leahy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3683
File: FowL43
Vingt-cinq de Juillet, Le (The Twenty-fifth of July)

DESCRIPTION: French. July 25 the ship sets sail for France. Surviving a storm, the ship arrives safely at Rochelle. The girls go on board with their men. When the owner is told that his ship has arrived safe and sound with a load of cargo and silver he thanks God.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)
KEYWORDS: foreign language sex commerce sea ship storm
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 114, "Le Vingt-cinq de Juillet" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Anita Best and Pamela Morgan, "Le Vingt-cinq de Juillet" (on NFABestPMorgan01)
File: LeBe114

Virgin Mary Had a Little Baby

DESCRIPTION: "The Virgin Mary had a little baby, O, glory hallelujah. O, pretty little baby, Glory be to the newborn King." "What you gonna name that pretty little baby?" "Some call him one thing, think I'll call him Jesus"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1953 (R. C. Seeger, American Folk Songs for Christmas); probably 1904 (Murphy)
KEYWORDS: religious Jesus Christmas
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Cray-AshGrove, p. 44, "Virgin Mary Had a Little Baby" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 384, "Virgin Mary Had One Son" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Jeanette Robinson Murphy, "Southern Thoughts for Northern Thinkers and African Music in America", Banndana Press, 1904, p. 33 "Mary, What You Gwine to Name dat Purty Leetle Baby" (1 text, 1 tune, probably this)
Roud #12207
RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "Glory to the New Born King" (on PeteSeeger37, PeteSeeger42)
File: FSWB384A

Virgin Mary's Bank, The

DESCRIPTION: A ship sees Virgin Mary praying on the bank. The captain leads the crew in jeering and a storm wrecks the ship "on Ichidony's rock." The crew are drowned. Local fishermen call "that hillock green 'the Virgin Mary's bank.'"

AUTHOR: J. J. Callanan
EARLIEST DATE: 1855 (Edward Hayes, The Ballads of Ireland (Boston, 1859), Vol II)
KEYWORDS: death ship storm wreck religious supernatural
FOUND IN: Ireland Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 115, "The Virgin on the Strand" (1 text, 1 tune)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 77, "The Virgin Mary's Bank" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Edward Hayes, The Ballads of Ireland (Boston, 1859), Vol II, pp. 177-178, "The Virgin Mary's Bank"
Roud #18246
RECORDINGS:
Leonard Molloy, "Virgin Mary's Banks" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Jim Rice, "Virgin Mary's Bank" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
NOTES [105 words]: There is a certain amount of confusion about this author. Most sources list his name as James Joseph Callanan, but he is also sometimes listed under the name "Jeremiah" (and, yes, it is known that it is the same guy). Most sources agree that he was born in 1795, but his death date seemingly varies; Hoagland and MacDonagh/Robinson give 1829. He wrote some poetry of his own, but is probably best known for his translations from Gaelic. Works of his found in this index include "The Convict of Clonmel," "The Outlaw of Loch Lene," "Sweet Avondu," "The
Virgin Most Pure, A

DESCRIPTION: "A virgin most pure, as the prophets do tell, Hath brought forth a baby, as it hath befell." "Set sorrows aside; Christ Jesus, our Savior, was born on this tide." Jesus is born in Bethlehem, in a stable -- you know the rest

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1822 (Gilbert)

KEYWORDS: Jesus, religious, animal

FOUND IN: Britain(England(West)) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 56-57, "In Bethlehem City"; pp. 78-79, "A Virgin Unspotted" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
- Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 96, "The Virgin Unspotted" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Roud/Bishop-NewPenguinBookOfEnglishFolkSongs #151, "A Virgin Unspotted" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Cox-FolkMusicInANewfoundlandOutport, pp. 99-100, "The Virgin Whose Purity" (1 text, 1 tune); pp. 191-192 (4 tunes)
- ADDITIONAL: Ian Bradley, _The Penguin Book of Carols_ (1999), #3, "A Virgin Most Pure" (1 text)

Roud #1378

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, Harding B 25(1984), "The Virgin Unspotted" ("A Virgin unspotted the prophets foretold") , W. Armstrong (Liverpool), 1820-1825; also Douce adds. 137(21), Douce adds. 137(67), Douce adds. 137(45), "The Virgin Unspotted"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Now let us sing, both more & lesse" (lyric on the nativity, from Richard Hill's manuscript; see Roman Dyboski, _Songs, Carols, and Other Miscellaneous Poems from the Balliol Ms. 354_, Richard Hill's Commonplace Book_, #6, p. 3-4) (lyrics)

SAME TUNE:
- Glad Tidings Good People (File: CoxN112)

NOTES [54 words]: The history of this song is a little murky; according to the New Oxford Book of Carols, the "rejoice and be merry" refrain and 11-syllable lines is attested as early as 1661. It then fades away for a century and a half until found in Gilbert and Sandys. Bradley cites the tune as "Admiral Benbow" as given in Chappell.

Virgin's Wreath, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer, "a maiden sad and lonely" is courted by "a nice young man" Now she is "abroken down." Cocks are crowing....

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle)

KEYWORDS: courting, chickens

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle, p. 287, "The Virgin's Wreath" (1 fragment)
- ADDITIONAL: _Littell's Living Age_ (Boston, 1895 ("Digitized by Google")), Sixth Series Vol. VII, No. 2661, July 6, 1895, p. 2, "The Virgin's Wreath" (1 text)
- S. Baring-Gould, "Among the Western Song-Men" in _The English Illustrated Magazine_ (London, 1892 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 476, ("I am a maiden sad and lonely") (1 text)

Roud #1070

NOTES [213 words]: Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle cites an undated Baring-Gould manuscript from Penrose with two verses and the first line of the third verse with "three lines of dots after the last line." In "Among the Western Song-Men," Baring-Gould quotes, without title, what appears to be a complete song "that has a reference in a long-forgotten custom of hanging the wreathes borne before virgins to their graves in the church as memorials." Where Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle has the couter "a nice young man," "Among Western Song-Men" has "a squire's son"; where Reeves-
The Everlasting Circle refers to "lilies tall in gardens growing And all abroken down like me," "Among Western Song-Men" has "The lily, rose, and e'en the thistle Are bruised and bent and broke like me." The wreath is in one of verses in "Among Western Song-Men" but not in Reeves-The Everlasting Circle. Where does the title for the Reeves-The Everlasting Circle manuscript come from? The Littell's Living Age text is printed with the title but without attribution. It is almost the same as the "Among Western Song-Men" text. Where the latter has, in the last verse (not in Reeves-The Everlasting Circle), "He'll think of me with thoughts of mourning," Littell's Living Age has, "He'll think of me with thoughts unscorning." - BS

Virginia Lived down in Treoqueen

DESCRIPTION: "Virginia lived down in Treoqueen, Married a Baltimore boy who was long and lean," Sam two-times her; she declares, "You thought I was blind but now I see" -- and admits to having an "off-side man [whp] keeps his light-house on the sea."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Henry, collected from Ray Bohanan)
KEYWORDS: infidelity humorous
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry-SongsSungInTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 17, "Virginia Lived down in Treoqueen" (1 text)
NOTES [30 words]: I strongly suspect that this was learned, perhaps indirectly, from a recording (based on the "hip" euphemisms and the stanza form), but I can't locate a probably original. - RBW

File: MHAp17

Virginia Lover, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer courts (Martha), who returns his affection. Her mother/brother opposes the marriage because he is unpropertied, and offers her land/gowns if she'll reject him. She weeps; he tells her "if you hadn't been so faithful, I wouldn't have been so true"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Cecil Sharp collection)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer courts fair Martha (Polly) (of Blackwaters, dark waters), who returns his affection, but her mother (brother) opposes their marriage because he is unpropertied, and offers her land (or gowns) if she'll reject him. She weeps; he asks if he's given her any occasion to be angry, and tells her "if you hadn't been so faithful, I wouldn't have been so true"
KEYWORDS: grief poverty courting marriage brother lover mother clothes
FOUND IN: US(Ap, SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 124, "The Virginia Lover" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
Roud #420
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Wagoner's Lad" (plot)
NOTES [49 words]: The plot of this song powerfully resembles others, notably "The Wagoner's Lad," but it seems to be distinct. - PJS
Burton and Manning lump it with their "A Man of Honor from Virginia Came," which is also heavily composite; these are the sorts of songs that are really hard to classify.... - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1
File: ShAp2124

Virginia Strike of '23, The DESCRIPTION: "In the dear old town of Princeton... Fire hundred railroad employees were as happy as could be... But they believed in Satan and quit their jobs that fall." The singer was one of those fooled into striking. Now he wishes he had his job back.

AUTHOR: Roy Harvey
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Roy Harvey and Earl Shirkey)
KEYWORDS: train strike hardtimes request railroading labor-movement
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Nov 8, 1923 - about two thirds of the employees of the Virginia Railroad go on strike. The company brings in replacements; the company suffers several accidents in coming years but never rehires the strikers

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 591-595, "The Virginia Strike of '23" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 225, "The Virginian Strike of '23" (1 text)

RECORDINGS:
Roy Harper [pseud. for Roy Harvey] and Earl Shirkey, "The Virginia Strike of '23" (Columbia 15535-D, 1930; rec. 1929)
Mike Seeger, "The Virginian Strike of '23" (on MSeeger02)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "When the Work's All Done This Fall" [Laws B3] (tune)
NOTES [64 words]: According to Cohen, Roy Harvey was an engineer on the Virginia Railroad, and was one of those who struck in 1923. He and many of his fellow workers came to believe that they had been deceived by their union. He reportedly wrote this song to try to get his job back. Reportedly there was some sympathy for him in the company, but not enough. And then, of course, came the Depression. - RBW

File: LSRai591

Virginia's Bloody Soil

DESCRIPTION: The singer calls on his audience to listen as he tells of the troubles of the Civil War, and describes how Unionists sprang to the colors after Fort Sumter. The rest of the song describes the battle of the Wilderness, and the death of the captain there AUTHOR: James McCoy?
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar battle death
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 5-7, 1864 - Battle of the Wilderness

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 24, "Virginia's Bloody Soil" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warner-FolkSongsAndBalladsOfTheEasternSeaboard, p. 70, "Virginia's Bloody Soil" (1 excerpt)
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 254-255, "Virginia's Bloody Soil" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber-SoldierSongsAndHomeFrontBalladsOfCivilWar, pp. 80-81, "Virginia's Bloody Soil" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 52, "Virginia's Bloody Soil" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST Wa024 (Partial)
Roud #2802
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Battle of the Wilderness" (subject)

NOTES [1358 words]: It appears that this song has been collected only once, by the Warners. Their informant, "Yankee" John Galusha, said that this was a song local to his area, written by James McCoy about Captain Dennis Barnes, killed at the Battle of the Wilderness.
This seems likely enough. Although two battles were fought in the Rappahannock Wilderness (The Wilderness in 1864 and the earlier Battle of Chancellorsville on May 1-4, 1863), the song seems better suited to the 1864 battle, as it mentions the fires which consumed the Wilderness and also denies that the Federals retreated (after Chancellorsville the Union forces retreated; after the Wilderness, although it had suffered almost as bad a pounding as at Chancellorsville, Grant and Meade forced the federal army on to Spotsylvania).
Following a hint on the Internet, I was able to find a record of Captain Barnes. He was an officer in the 93rd New York regiment. NYReport, Volume 3, p. 91, reports that Dennis E. Barnes was commissioned a captain in the 93rd NY on Jan. 30, 1862, with the commission being dated November 22, 1861. So he was commissioned at the time the regiment formed. He was breveted Major New York Volunteers. He was killed in action in the Wilderness on May 6.
And if he is indeed the hero of the song, the battle must have been the Wilderness, because the 93rd was not really engaged at Chancellorsville. It was part of the Army of the Potomac's provost guard from 1862 through Gettysburg and beyond (Young, p. 384). But in 1864, in an effort to recruit up the army, many men and units on special service were put back in line (Catton, pp. 44-48). The 93rd became one of ten regiments in Alexander Hays's second brigade of David B. Birney's third division of Winfield Scott Hancock's II Corps (Rhea, Order of Battle following p. 452). Hays's brigade was definitely mauled in the Wilderness. The first day of that battle was really two minimally connected struggles. The larger part of the Union Fifth Corps, later reinforced by much of the Sixth Corps, fought Richard Ewell's Confederate Second Corps in the northern fight, and got nowhere. Hancock's Second Corps fought in the south against elements of A. P. Hill's Confederate Third Corps. The Second Corps, plus Getty's division of the Sixth Corps, was put in piecemeal against the Confederate division of Harry Heth (see map on p. 192 of Rhea). Birney's division was supposed to support this attack. After Getty and parts of the Second Corps had failed in their attacks, Birney "decided to play his trump card. Fiery Alexander Hays, the red-bearded friend of Hancock's and Grant's, would be sent in with his whole brigade" (Rhea, p. 202). That was the unit containing the 93rd New York.

In the dense forest, it was hard to advance and easy to get killed. One soldier in the 93rd wrote, "The woods light up with the flashes of musketry as if with lightning, while the incessant roar of the volleys sound like the crashing of thunderbolts" (Rhea, p. 203). Rhea adds that the 93rd managed to stay at the front for about twenty minutes before collapsing. The losses in the regiment, and the whole brigade, were severe; General Hays himself was among those killed (Rhea, p. 204).

That was on May 5, the first day of the battle. Federal losses had been substantial, and they had not shaken the Confederates at all; earlier in the war, the Union army might well have retreated after that. But neither General Meade, in direct command of the Army of the Potomac, nor General Grant, the Union General in Chief, was willing to give up that easily. They decided that they would make another push on May 6, with attacks all along the line, but the main thrust to be by Hancock's Second Corps (Rhea, p. 264). And the spearhead of the assault was to be made by the brigades of McAllister, Ward, and the now-dead Hays (Rhea, p. 269).

At first, the assault went well; they attacked the frazzled, disordered Confederate divisions of Heth and Wilcox, which had done an amazing job the day before but simply were too tired, and their organization and positions too messed up, for them to fight well (Rhea, pp. 281-288). The Confederate line started to collapse. Freeman, volume III, p. 356, declares, "There had been no danger [to Lee's army] more acute since the day the Federals had shattered the Confederate line at Sharpsburg."

"Leading the Union drive was Hays's brigade, now commanded by Elijah Walker, of the 4th Maine" (Rhea, pp. 293-294).

But the Federals had their own problems. The Wilderness was incredibly tangled, and it was hard to control the attacking troops. If the Confederate lines were disarrayed, the Federals found it almost impossible to stay in good order. "It was Braddock and his British Regulars fighting the Indians all over again, and the scrub pines, the brush piles, and the massed saplings broke the advancing lines apart, leaving fragments that felt isolated and alone" (Catton, p. 74). What was needed was additional troops to exploit the breakthrough. And those troops were available: Ambrose Burnside's Ninth Corps had been ordered to support the assault. But they didn't show up. The Federal advance slowed up to try to get their lines straightened out (Rhea, pp. 291-292). And then James Longstreet's corps arrived, headed by the famous Texas Brigade (widely regarded as the best unit in the Confederate army), and blasted right through the Federal front (Freeman, pp. 356-359; Rhea, pp. 301-303). "This was Longstreet's fight, and he was doing a spectacular job of it, even by Lee's exacting standards" (Rhea, p. 313).

"Longstreet had reason to be proud. Within two hours, he had dramatically reversed the battle's momentum. With two divisions... Longstreet had brought nearly five victorious Union divisions to a standstill, mauling several so badly that they had ceased to function as combat units" (Rhea, p. 316).

Then, just as had happened a year ago in the same Wilderness when Stonewall Jackson was mortally wounded, Confederates fired on Confederates. Brigadier General Micah Jenkins and two others were killed, and Longstreet took a bullet that went through his throat into his right shoulder (Freeman, p. 365). He was alive, but would be out of service for months -- at the time, there were fears the wound would be mortal (Rhea, p. 371). Even as preparations were made to get him to a hospital, he explained his plans to Lee and the generals nearby, but there was no experienced officer to take charge (Freeman, p. 366) -- Longstreet's two division commanders were both new to the job and had no idea how to lead a corps. It may have saved the Union army an even more severe blow. Still, the leading Federal elements had been severely mauled and forced back. With Hays's brigade at the very forefront. It was presumably at this time that Captain Barnes was killed, trying to hold back Longstreet's counterattack.

The desperate defense succeeded, more or less; in the end, the Battle of the Wilderness was basically a draw. The Army of the Potomac was able to continue its campaign toward Richmond. But the cost had been very high -- official figures were 2,246 Union soldiers killed, and total casualties of 17,666 (Rhea, p. 435) -- and Rhea thinks even that number a little low. On p. 436, he estimates that the Union army lost a sixth of its men, or roughly 20,000. That means probably 2,500-3,000 killed. Captain Barnes had lots of company.

Lee's losses cannot be precisely known; too many reports were not filed or were lost. But they were clearly on the same order (Rhea, p. 440). And he had lost his only trustworthy corps commander, and in consequence of that and other losses, only three of his eight division commanders had led their divisions as recently as Gettysburg, and only one had led his division at Chancellorsville. Both armies had been badly hurt, and would never be the same -- but Lee's army was probably closer to collapse. He would manage to keep up the fight for almost another year, but the sacrifices of Captain Barnes and others, although they had few short-term results, brought the end of the war a little closer.

This song is item dA35 in Laws's Appendix II. - RBW

Bibliography

- Catton: Bruce Catton, A Stillness at Appomattox, Doubleday, 1953
- Freeman: Douglas Southall Freeman, Lee's Lieutenants, 3 volumes, Scribners, 1942-1945
- NYReport: (no author listed), State of New York Annual Report of the Adjutant General 1868, 3 volumes, Charles van Benthuysen & Sons, 1868
- Young: Jesse Bowman Young, The Battle of Gettysburg, 1913 (I use the 1996 John Kallman edition with a brief biography of the author)

Virginian Maid's Lament, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer, a woman, was sold after seven years service, by Captain Welsh to Madam Guy. She tells how "we are yoked in a plough," badly fed and "whipt at every meal," and must keep her baby quiet. She wants to return to Scotland. "I'm weary, weary, O"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Buchan)

KEYWORDS: ordeal slavery America Scotland baby servant

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Greig/Duncan6 1095, "The Virginian Maid's Lament" (2 fragments, 1 tune)
- Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 186-187, "The Virginian Maid's Lament" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: Peter Buchan, Ancient Ballads and Songs of the North of Scotland (Edinburgh, 1875 (reprint of 1828 edition)), Vol II, pp. 205-206,322, "The Virginian Maid's Lament"
- Roud #3919

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Slave's Lament

NOTES [66 words]: One Greig/Duncan6 fragment has the singer sold to Madam Guy and separated from a lover.

Buchan: "The practice of kidnapping or stealing children from their parents, in the north of Scotland, from 1735 down to 1753, a period of eighteen years inclusive, and selling them for slaves to the planters of Maryland, Virginia, &c. in North America, is too notorious to require any illustration here." - BS

Last updated in version 2.7

File: Gr61095
Visit to Morans, The

DESCRIPTION: "In the month of January, ninety-two... We harnessed up our team" and visited John Moran in DeGros Marsh. On the way home the snow forces them off the road. They replace a broken harness with rope and make it to Martin's for beer, then go home next day.

AUTHOR: Lawrence Doyle and Patrick William Farrell
EARLIEST DATE: 1969 (Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland)
KEYWORDS: ordeal storm travel
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ives-DriveDullCareAway-PrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 204-207, 256, "The Visit to Morans" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #14000
NOTES [12 words]: DeGros Marsh is on the east coast of Kings County, Prince Edward Island. - BS
File: IvDC204

Vivandeer, The

DESCRIPTION: Vivandeer was built "to sail the ocean round ... But they left her on Blackwater Bank, a dire and total wreck." Tinnaberna men launch their boats, step aboard, and, with help of a tug, "brought the gallant Vivandeer safe into Wexford Quay"

AUTHOR: Miley Roche, Kilmuckridge
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
KEYWORDS: sea ship wreck sailor help
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, pp. 112-113, "The Vivandeer" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7354
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The North Star" (tune)
NOTES [48 words]: 1885: "The new sailing ship Vivandiere struck the Blackwater Bank.... She was abandoned by her crew. A local group from Tinnabearna put out and boarded her. They succeeded in bringing her into Wexford with the aid of a tug." (source: Bourke in Shipwrecks of the Irish Coast v1, p. 71) - BS
File: Ran112

Vive la Canadienne!

DESCRIPTION: French: The singer rejoices in his Canadien girl. He celebrates her blue eyes. He describes their meeting, mentioning how quickly their hearts are beating. "So go the hours a-flying Until our wedding day."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1880 (E. Gagnon, "Chansons Populaires de Canada")
KEYWORDS: love courting marriage foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: Canada(Que)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Fowke/Johnston-FolkSongsOfCanada, pp. 146-147, "Vive la Canadienne! (Of My Canadian Girl I Sing)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 45, "Vive La Canadienne!" (1 English and 1 French text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Edith Fowke and Richard Johnston, _Folk Songs of Quebec (Chansons de Quebec)_ , Waterloo Music Company, 1957, pp. 28-29, "Vive La Canadienne! (Of My Canadian Girl I Sing)" (1 French text plus English translation, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "Vive La Canadienne" (on PeteSeeger29)
File: FJ146
Vive la Compagnie

DESCRIPTION: "Let Bacchus to Venus libations pour forth, Vive la compagnie. And let us make use of our time while it lasts, Vive la compagnie. Vive la, vive la, vive l'amour...." Bachelors toast their lasses, husbands their wives, all toast their friends

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1818

KEYWORDS: drink friend nonballad

FOUND IN: US Britain(England) Germany

REFERENCES (8 citations):
- Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 218-221, "Vive la Compagnie" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Heart-Songs, pp. 58-59, "Vive La Compagnie" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #159, "Vive l Compagnie!" (1 text)
- Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 288, "Vive la Compagnie" (1 text)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 235, "Vive La Compagnie (Vive l'Amour)" (1 text)
- Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 606-607, "Vive la Compagnie"

DT, VIVLAMOR

ST RJ19218 (Full)

SAME TUNE:
- Vive le Captain John (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 161)
- Chivalrous C. S. A. ! ("I'll sing you a song of the South's sunny clime") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 187)

Let Every Young Sophomore (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensis: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_, first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 100)

Tegere Te Cura ("Away with your books and your cares for tonight, Tegere te cura!") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensis: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_, first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 129)

Vive le Capitaine John ("In ye days when ye Salvages lived in ye land" [sic.]) (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensis: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_, first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 43)

Remarkable ("We'll sing you a very remarkable song, Vive l'Sixty-five!") (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensis: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_, first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 46)

The Ship ("O! the ship of Cornell is out on the sea, Cleaving the ocean blue") (by Albert Osborne, class of 1872) (Henry Randall Waite, _Carmina Collegensis: A Complete Collection of the Songs of the American Colleges_, first edition 1868, expanded edition, Oliver Ditson, 1876, p. 115)

NOTES [37 words]: Fuld points out that this song has been printed in England, America, and Germany, but no early French printings are known. It may, in fact, be an English song; at least, the tune is close to "The Lincolnshire Poacher." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: RJ19218

Vive La Republican

DESCRIPTION: January 2 "they cried, 'to arms my clever fellows The Russians are advancing."

"Vive la! the new convention, Republican, America "for it was in you that it a' began." America

"have spent their dear heart's blood To plant the tree of liberty."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan1)

KEYWORDS: America nonballad political

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Greig/Duncan1 142, "Vive La Republican" (1 text)

Roud #5775

NOTES [61 words]: Greig/Duncan1: "The war episode suggested in stanza 1 has not been identified. The refrain may refer to the new convention held in Edinburgh in November 1793."
"Vive la" and "Tree of Liberty" occur in Irish political songs. See, for example, "Rouse Hibernians" for the former and "Freedom Triumphant," "Ireland's Liberty Tree" and "The Liberty Tree" for the latter. - BS
Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD1142

Vive les matelots!
DESCRIPTION: French (Voyageurs): "Nous etions trois garcons, tous jolis capitaines (x2), Y'en a un a Paris, et a'autre a La Rochelle. Vive les matelots dessus la mer jolie...." Song concerns three captains. One comes to court a girl. He cares not if he is rejected
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1937
KEYWORDS: courting sailor nonballad foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: Canada
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke/Mills/Blume-CanadasStoryInSong, pp. 21-24, "Vive les matelots!" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: FMB021

Voice from the Tombs (Lonely Tombs)
DESCRIPTION: The singer passes a tomb and hears a voice, "I once lived as you live, walked and talked as you talk, Then from earth I was soon torn away." Other voices chip in about the joys of heaven and the brevity of life. At last his mother's voice says she is safe
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (recording, Wade Mainer)
KEYWORDS: death ghost religious grief loneliness mother
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 87, "Voice from the Tombs" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #35, "O Those Tombs" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST Wa087 (Partial)
Roud #3399
RECORDINGS:
J. E. Mainer's Mountaineers, "Lonely Tombs" (King 661, 1947)
Wade Mainer, "Lonely Tombs" (Bluebird B-7424, 1938)
Preston & Hobart Smith, "Lonely Tombs" (on LomaxCD1704)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Hark from the Tombs (Plenary)" (theme)
NOTES [25 words]: I find, in looking through our keywords, that we have Hell as a place name but not Heaven. Given our subject matter, that's probably appropriate. - PJS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Wa087

Voice of Her I Love, The
DESCRIPTION: "How sweet at close of silent eve The harp's responsive sound... But oh, more soft, more sweet to me The voice of her I love." He will suffer all insults and "frowns of fate," "Content and bless'd whene'er I hear, The voice of her I love."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1822 (Bodleian broadsides Johnson Ballads fol. 14, Johnson Ballads fol. 15)
KEYWORDS: love nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 14, "The Voice of Her I Love" (1 text)
Roud #8228
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Johnson Ballads fol. 14=Johnson Ballads fol. 15 (=Harding B 36(29)?)","The voice of her
I love. An Italian air,” J. Catnach (London), 1822; also Harding B 11(422), "The voice of her I love," J. Catnach (London) 1813-1838; also Harding B 11(2173), "The voice of her I love," J. Walker (Durham), n.d.; also Firth c.18(60)=Harding B 16(297c), "The voice of her I love," J Pitts (London), 1819-1844; also Harding B 14(315), "The voice of her I love," T. Watts (Birmingham), 1846
File: HMHS014C

Volunteer Organist, The

DESCRIPTION: The preacher announces that the organist is ill. No one volunteers to play except a drunken-looking man. He tells his story in music, amazing them all. The preacher doesn't try to preach; he just has the congregation pray as the man leaves

AUTHOR: Words: William B. Gray ("Glenroy") (died 1932) / Music: Henry Lamb
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: music clergy
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 826, "The Volunteer Organist" (1 text)
Spaeth-ReadEmAndWeep, pp. 191-192, "[The Volunteer Organist]" (1 excerpt)
Roud #5378
RECORDINGS:
John McGhee, "The Volunteer Organist" (Champion 15483, 1928)
NOTES [93 words]: Spaeth (A History of Popular Music in America, p. 271) calls this "the sport of 1893," and goes on to detail how it spawned a play of the same title -- as well as a short-lived rush to produce imitations.
I suspect that the most popular imitation (indeed, the only one still remembered at all) is Myra Brooks Welch's "The Touch of the Master's Hand." Welch was born in 1877, according to Internet sources, and wrote her piece in 1921, which fits.
The author of the lyrics, William B. Gray, is also responsible for "She's More to Be Pitied Than Censured." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1
File: R826

Volunteers, The

DESCRIPTION: Mabel asks her mother about the passing troops and their leader. Mother answers that the men are the Volunteers and Grattan their leader. "They rose to guard from foreign foes, as well from British guile" Witness "the baffled hosts of Gaul"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1855 (Hayes)
KEYWORDS: pride army England France Ireland dialog patriotic
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 117-118, "The Volunteers" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Edward Hayes, The Ballads of Ireland (Boston, 1859 (reprint of 1855 London edition)), Vol I, pp. 235-236, "The Volunteers"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Song of the Volunteers" (subject) and references there
NOTES [287 words]: The Belfast Volunteers were formed in 1778 because of the threat of war between France and Britain. Similar groups formed, became politicized, and supported "those in favour of legislative independence from the British parliament and the removal of impediments to Irish commerce." Henry Grattan and Harry Flood supported this program in the Irish House of Commons. (Source} Moylan)
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland shows the author as "M.O.B." I posted an inquiry for speculation as to who "M.O.B." might be. John Moulden -- researcher at the "Centre for the Study of Human Settlement and Historical Change" at National University of Ireland, Galway, whose subject is "the printed ballad in Ireland" -- gave me two leads. First, he pointed out that Hayes (see ADDITIONAL, above) -- possibly O'Conor's source -- has the author as "M.O'B" and that another good resource might be David James O'Donoghue, The Poets of Ireland: a Biographical Dictionary (O'Donoghue, 1892-3). One possibility in O'Donoghue is O'Brien, M.E., a "very frequent contributor of verse to Sentimental and Masonic Magazine of 1794-5.... He may have been the 'O'B' of
For more on Grattan, see e.g. "Ireland's Glory." For the Volunteers, see among others "The Green Cockade," "The Shamrock Cockade," and "The Song of the Volunteers."

The reference to the "baffled hosts of Gaul" makes me think this might refer to a period somewhat after Grattan's great success (which Ben's research on the author indirectly supports). This sounds as if it might come from around the period of the French failure at Bantry Bay -- when Grattan's parliament was functioning but before the 1798 rebellion. - RBW

Volunteers' March, The

DESCRIPTION: "Was she not a fool, When she took off our wool, To leave us so much of the Leather, the leather? It ne'er entered her pate, That a sheepskin well beat, Would draw a whole nation Together, together."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1780s (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)
KEYWORDS: nonballad patriotic clothes
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 2, "The Volunteers' March" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
NOTES [768 words]: The current description is all of the Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion fragment.

Zimmermann p. 117: "'The Volunteers' March' ... represents the first group of really nationalist Irish songs written in English, though most of the words are lost."

Moylan notes the tune Zimmermann uses for this entry and thinks it unlikely. "In fact the verse would fit a slide or jig tune, but not one in 2/4 time. In fact the verse would fit perfectly to the tune 'Larry Grogan' to which song [Zimmermann] 40 below is set, and was in all probability made with that tune in mind." (Moylan 2, "Favourite March of the Old Irish Volunteers") Consider this comment when using the tunes assigned by both Moylan and Zimmermann. - BS

Though it rarely is mentioned in song, one of the worst ways Britain oppressed Ireland was by controlling her trade. One instance of this was that they restricted Irish clothing from entering England. On several occasions England seemed to encourage one or another industry (e.g. linen) only to chop it down.

Kee, p. 21, writes, "The later English parliament took advantage of this constitutional subservience to see that local economic interests in the Kingdom of Ireland should present no threat to those in the Kingdom of England. Irish trading and manufacturing opportunities were severely restricted to protect England's own trades and manufactures. For instance, in 1699 the export of woolen goods from Ireland... was totally forbidden to everywhere but England where English import duties were themselves prohibitive." (Compare Cronin, pp. 86-87: "The 1699 legislation destroyed the Irish woolen industry at a stroke.")

Similarly, Ellis, p. 48, reports, "In 1666 Parliament forbade irish cattle being imported into England thus bringing about the ruin of the cattle industry."

I don't know if this song reflects that, but it might. - RBW

The Belfast Volunteers were formed in 1778 because of the threat of war between France and Britain. Similar groups formed, became politicized, and supported "those in favour of legislative independence from the British parliament and the removal of impediments to Irish commerce."

(Source: Moylan, p. 1)

"In 1778, the Prime Minister, Lord North, proposed to relieve the commercial restraints of Ireland by allowing a free and general exportation of all kinds of goods, except the woolen manufacture, 'that article being reckoned too sacred to be yet meddled with.' But so great was the commotion excited in the manufacturing towns of England that Lord North had to reconsider his proposal. 'A general alarm,' says MacPherson, 'spread through most of the trading and manufacturing parts of the kingdom.' They considered the 'admittance of Ireland to any participation in trade as not only destructive, in the most ruinous degree, of their property, but as being subversive of their rights.' .... The British Parliament yielded to the pressure from without, and only some slight modifications of the commercial code were effected...."

"[T]he Volunteers were demanding free trade with arms in their hands. In February, 1779, 'The Sheriffs of Dublin represented to the Lord Lieutenant that 19,000 persons connected with the weaving trade in that city, besides many other poor, were on the brink of starvation, and that nothing but an extension of trade and free export of manufactures could save them.' .... Meanwhile, the Volunteers seconded their demand for free trade by giving the best practical encouragement to the industries of the nation. They clothed their regiments and troops in Irish manufacture... Associations for the use of Irish manufactures sprung up in every part of the country, to the serious alarm of the English clothiers... Trade revived.... "The Volunteer guns were made to express the national sentiment and advocate the causes of Irish wool.... With more point, perhaps, than poetry, words had been fitted to a stirring march-tune adopted by the regimental bands, and the moment the roll of the drums was heard the popular memory suggested the verses: -- "Was she not a fool...." (from IrishWool). I have seen the song quoted many places but there is never more to it than is quoted in the description. The song is attributed to "Tom Molloy" by Charles Lever (Lever, p. 214). You can find more information about the movement to grant "to the Irish nation the liberty of exporting their produce" [p. 67] in the source for Zimmermann's fragment: Thomas Mac Nevin, The History of the Volunteers of 1782 (Dublin, 1845 (fourth edition ("Digitized by Google"). The fragment is in a footnote on p. 119, "Was she not a fool." - BS

Bibliography

• Cronin: Mike Cronin, A History of Ireland, Palgrave, 2001
• Kee: Robert Kee, The Most Distressful Country, being volume I of The Green Flag (covering the period prior to 1848), Penguin, 1972
• Lever: [Julia Kate Neville, editor,] The Novels of Charles Lever: Sir Jasper Carew (London, 1897 ("Digitized by Google"))

Last updated in version 2.5
File: Zimm002

Von Hertzen wolln wir singen (Let Us Sing from the Heart)

DESCRIPTION: Amish hymn in German.. "Von Hertzen wolln wir singen, In Fried und Einingkeit." "Let us sing from the heart, In peace and in unison. Let us strive toward perfection With energy and sincerity, That we might please God... take it now to heart."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1742 (Amish Ausbud, #119, according to Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 157-158, "Von Hertzen wolln wir singen (Let Us Sing from the Heart)" (1 short German text plus not-very-literal translation, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Hildebrandlied" (tune, per Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
File: KPL157

Voodoo Man, The

DESCRIPTION: Of a woman courted by a man; when she rejects his advanced because "he had no situation," he "hoodoes" her elaborately. Now she is sick and hopes someone can stop the voodoo man even though all are afraid of him. She wonders if she is dead
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: courting poverty rejection magic disease
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 429, "The Voodoo Man" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 429, "The Voodoo Man" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Vote for Joey Ward

DESCRIPTION: "Vote, vote, vote for Joey Ward! He is sure to win the day. For we'll get a salmon tin, And we'll stick Bill Massey in, And we'll all shout, Hip, hip, hip, hooray!"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1914 (Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)
KEYWORDS: political New Zealand
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1906-1912, 1928-1930 - Sir Joseph George Ward (1856-1930) Prime Minister of New Zealand
1912-1925 - William Ferguson Massey (1856-1925) Prime Minister of New Zealand
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, p. 101, "(no title)" (1 short text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Sir Joseph Ward" (subject)
NOTES [422 words]: Presumably a fragment of a campaign song that was collected after (or during?) an election contest between Ward and Massey. My guess would be that it is from 1914, but 1919 and 1922 are also possible, and perhaps 1912 as well.

NewZealandEncyclopedia, p. 589, says of Joseph Ward (1856-1930) that he was Prime Minister 1906-1912 and 1928-1930; he was born in Melbourne but was taken to New Zealand at a young age. Starting in politics in 1876, he was a member of parliament from 1887 until after World War I, then was re-elected in 1925. He held the seat until ill health forced him to resign shortly before his death. He held various cabinet posts before becoming Prime Minister. He gave up the post after the 1912 election left him without a governing majority, and William Massey was able to form what amounted to a minority government. Ward "was an able and articulate man of limited imagination."

NewZealandEncyclopedia, pp. 355-356, says that William Massey was born in Ireland; his family moved to New Zealand in 1870. After working on farms and stations, he first ran for parliament in 1893, and lost, but became an MP after a by-election in 1896. He was promptly appointed opposition whip, when became Leader of the Opposition in 1903. He was a leading organizer in 1909 of the "Reform Party." This succeeded in taking over parliament in 1912, making Massey Prime Minister.

The election of 1914 didn't show much confidence in Massey. Massey's forces won 40 seats, Ward's Liberals 34, and Labour 6. Massey remained Prime Minister, but without a governing majority; New Zealand was run by a "National" (Unity) government during World War I. The next election in 1919, gave Massey a clear majority -- but the election of 1922 again resulted in a hung parliament in which Massey ran a minority government.

Massey became the subject of significant folklore. NewZealandDictionary, p. 19, defines "Bill Masseys" as a pair of army boots (similarly p. 165 calls the boots just "Masseys"), and "Bill Massey's Tourists" as the members of the New Zealand Expeditionary Force sent to Egypt in 1914. Obviously both refer to his position as wartime Prime Minister.

NewZealandEncyclopedia, p. 356, sums him up, "Massey was a stolid, shrewd man with great organizing ability and a domineering personality. In many ways he was a divisive influence, extraordinarily conservative, even reactionary." The Massey/Ward period does not seem to have been a time of great leadership in New Zealand -- which may explain silly songs like this one.

RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 5.2
File: BaRo101
Vote for Tommy Seddon, Boys

DESCRIPTION: "If you vote for Tommy Seddon, boys, On the right road you'll be heading, boys, He'll make the roads to your abodes And bridge all the streams to heaven, boys." He will take his father's place and do good work.

AUTHOR: Ned McCormack (source: Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)
EARLIEST DATE: 1967 (Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)
KEYWORDS: political New Zealand
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1893-1906 - Richard John Seddon (1845-1906) Prime Minister of New Zealand
1906 - T. E. Y. Seddon takes his father Richard's place in parliament, holding office until 1922 and again in 1925-1928
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, pp. 107-108, "Vote for Tommy Seddon, Boys" (1 text)
NOTES [44 words]: For background on Richard John Seddon, the father of Tommy Seddon, see the notes to "Sir Joseph Ward." Despite being the son of New Zealand's longest-serving Prime Minister, the younger Seddon doesn't seem to have been particularly noteworthy in his own right. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: BaRo107

Vowels, The

DESCRIPTION: "B-a, ba; b-e, be; B-i, bick-a-bi; B-o, bick-a-bi-bo; B-u, bu, bick-a-bi-bo-bu." Similarly through the alphabet: "C-a, ca; C-e, ce, C-i, cick-a-ci." (The text does not specify whether "cick" is pronounced "sick" or "kick").

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: wordplay nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 139, "The Vowels" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 139, "The Vowel" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Randolph 873, "The Alphabet Song" (6 texts, 6 tunes, but the "E" and "F" texts are "The Vowels")
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 131, "B-A-Bay" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3303
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Alphabet Songs"
File: Br3139

Voyage of the Buffalo, The DESCRIPTION: "Come all you jolly seamen bold... Concerning of a voyage to New Zealand we did go, For to cut some lofty spars to load the Buffalo." After taking a load of emigrants from Portsmouth to Australia, they go logging in New Zealand

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1836? (citation in the diary of W. H. Cheeseman, according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)
KEYWORDS: ship emigration logger New Zealand
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, pp. 18-19, "The Voyage of the Buffalo" (1 text)
Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, pp. 31-32, 182, "(The Voyage of the Buffalo)" (2 texts, although they seem mostly to be rearrangements of each other)
File: BaRo018
Voyage on New Holland, A

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you bold whalmen that plow the rough main Off the coast of New Holland or off that of Spain." An extremely detailed (more than 70 stanza) description of a whaling voices, describing the places they visit, the whales, ships seen, the return home

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1852 (Marble Family papers, according to Huntington)

KEYWORDS: whaler travel ship home

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 76-85, "A Voyage on New Holland" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #27542
File: HGam076

Voyage to Australia, The

DESCRIPTION: "Left Plymouth one day in July and soon was on the ocean," getting sick in the Bay of Biscay. The passengers on their way to Australia fish for and catch a shark. The passengers pretend to see a ship and other sights

AUTHOR: Charles R. Thatcher (1831-1878) (source: AndersonStory)

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (AndersonStory)

KEYWORDS: immigration ship travel trick

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Thatcher-ColonialMinstrel-Songsters, p. 173, "The Voyage to Australia" (1 text, from the "Victoria Songster")
Anderson/Thatcher-GoldDiggersSongbook, pp. 1-2, "The Voyage to Australia" (1 text, 1 tune)
Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 29-30, "The Voyage to Australia" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hoskins-GoldfieldBalladeer-LifeAndTimes-Charles-R-Thatcher, pp. 7-8, "(no title)" (2 excerpts)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Bow Wow Wow" (tune)

NOTES [80 words]: This song is at least semi-autobiographical; Charles R. Thatcher went from England to Australia as a young man, and didn't enjoy the voyage much. For brief background on Charles Thatcher's career, see the notes to "Where's Your License?" For an extensive collection of his songs, see Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong.

Anderson does not say so, but the tune of this is clearly "Bow Wow Wow" -- more evidence that it is by Charles R. Thatcher, since he was fond of that tune. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3

File: AnSt029

Voyage, Le

DESCRIPTION: "Ah! c'est un mariage Que d'epouser le voyage. Je plains qui s'y engage Sans y etre invite." The life of a voyageur is like a marriage. Safety, comfort and contentment must be given up "dans le course du voyage."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1944

KEYWORDS: nonballad foreignlanguage marriage travel

FOUND IN: Canada(Queb)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Botkin-TreasuryMississippiRiverFolklore, p. 582, "Le Voyage (The Voyage)" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: BMRF582

Voyez Ce Mulet La

DESCRIPTION: Bamboula in Creole French: "Voyez ce mulet la, Miche Bainjo, Comme il est insolent! Chapeau sur cote, Miche Bainjo, La canne a la maine, Miche Bainjo...." The singer describes the strutting about of "Mister Banjo."
Vulture (of the Alps), The DESCRIPTION: A family of shepherds is out with their sheep when a vulture swoops down and carries off their youngest child. Though the baby cries and reaches out to its father, there is nothing the others can do

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: set to music c. 1842 and sung by the Hutchinson Family
KEYWORDS: bird family disaster death
FOUND IN: US(Ap,So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol2, pp. 108-113, "The Vulture"; "The Vulture of the Alps (2 texts, 1 tune)
ST MN2108 (Partial)
Roud #4777
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Lonesome Dove (I - The Minister's Lamentation)" (theme)
cf. "The Lost Babe" (theme)
cf. "Fair Margaret O'Craignaritie" (approximate theme)
NOTES [262 words]: I perhaps need to explain the cross-reference to "The Lonesome Dove." On its face, this has nothing to do with that song, in which a child is carried off by consumption. But that song describes the disease as a vulture. I wonder if this might not be a badly messed up form of the same idea.
It is highly unlikely that a vulture would carry off a baby, and only slightly more likely that an eagle or other carrion bird would do so. At least in America; our babies are too big. But this may well be one of those subliminal fears, like the fear of snakes (now known to be an instinct in monkeys, even those which have never seen a snake). I base this on comments in Lee R. Berger, In the Footsteps of Eve: The Mystery of Human Origins, Adventure Press, 2000. pp. 157-163. On page 162, Berger mentions that the Crowned Eagle of South Africa "is a specialist in primate hunting and has even been known to take human children."
What is more, it is Berger's belief that the Taung child -- a member of the species Australopithecus africanus now about three million years old and first documented by Raymond Dart in 1925 -- was killed by an eagle. There remains much debate about just where Australopithecus africanus stands in the lineage of humanity, but it hardly matters. If eagles were hunting that sort of australopithecine, they would hunt the others -- and one of those australopithecine species was our ancestor. American parents probably don't have to worry about vultures -- but we have at least two and a half million years of history of thinking we should. - RBW

W. P. and A.

DESCRIPTION: "Where did you get that pretty dress all so bright and gay? I got it from my loving man on the W. P. and A." The singer tells of how the WPA allowed him to re-establish credit and earn good money for little work -- but also how he is resented by friends

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl)
KEYWORDS: work unemployment hardtimes
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 6, 1935 -- Creation of the Works Progress Administration (W.P.A.), which had been authorized April 8. The program lasted until Dec. 4, 1942
FOUND IN: US(SE)

File: ScaNF119

File: MN2108
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 138, "W. P. and A." (1 text, 1 tune)
ST Wa138 (Partial)
Roud #7476
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The W.P.A. Gathering" (subject)
NOTES [70 words]: The Works Progress Administration was responsible for a number of important building projects during the Depression. One of the key pieces of the New Deal, it helped many unemployed people survive the period. In the North Carolina backwoods, the wages it paid were considered very good, and the work relatively slight. But not everyone could sign on with the W.P.A. Hence this song -- and the resentment it describes. - RBW
File: Wa138

W.P.A. Gathering, The
DESCRIPTION: "Uncle Sam was very kind, He gave the people aid; The W.P.A. is working hard, Good roads will soon be made." This effort makes possible the Lost Hope Hollow Singing Gathering.
AUTHOR: James W. Day ("Jilson Setters")?
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)
KEYWORDS: music travel nonballad
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
May 6, 1935 -- Creation of the Works Progress Administration (W.P.A.), which had been authorized April 8. The program lasted until Dec. 4, 1942
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, p. 244, (no title) (1 text)
Roud #13961
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The W. P. and A." (subject)
NOTES [42 words]: This is even more suspicious than most of the songs in Thomas, since it actually mentions her by her ridiculous title of "The Traipsin' Woman."
The piece is likely by Jilson Setters, but Thomas's notes make it impossible to be absolutely certain. - RBW
File: ThBa244

Wabash Cannonball, The
DESCRIPTION: In praise of the amazing Wabash Cannonball, a train which can apparently accomplish anything. The song mentions various places the train visits and the impression it makes on the townsfolk. It may close with a eulogy for "Daddy Claxton"
AUTHOR: Original ("The Great Rock Island Route") credited to J. A. Roff; rewritten as "Wabash Cannon Ball," perhaps by William Kindt, who copyrighted it; Cohen suspects the rewrite preceded Kindt's 1904 publication, and common tune is not the same as either Roff's or Kindt's EARLIEST DATE: 1882 (sheet music, as "The Great Rock Island Route"; first use of the "Wabash Cannonball" title is Kindt, in 1904)
KEYWORDS: train railroading travel
FOUND IN: US(SE,So)
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 373-381, "The Wabash Cannonball" (2 texts, one of them Kindt's, plus a text and sheet music cover of Roff's "The Great Rock Island Route," 1 tune)
Randolph 840, "The Wabash Cannonball" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 385-386, "The Wabash Cannonball" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 840)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 220, "The Wabash Cannon Ball" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin/Harlow-TreasuryOfRailroadFolklore, p. 462, "The Wabash Cannonball" (1 text, 1 tune)
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 85, "Wabash Cannonball" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 100 "The Wabash Cannonball" (1 text)
DT, WABASHCB*
Waddin o McPhee, The

DESCRIPTION: "At mony sprees I've been, but the best I've ever seen" is this wedding. Everyone got drunk, including the minister. Food beyond counting "but the bridegroom and the bride were cremated side by side High up on the hill on Ben Lomond."

AUTHOR: unknown

KEYWORDS: wedding drink food humorous parody husband wife clergy

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen, pp. 93, 153, "The Waddin o McPhee" (1 text)

Roud #21762

CROSS-REFERENCES:
Wade in the Water

DESCRIPTION: "Wade in the water, Wade in the water, children, Wade in the water, God's gonna trouble the water." The singer warns of the coming signs of the end. The victory of Heaven over Hell is considered assured. The singer looks forward to future freedom

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (recording, Sunset Four Jubilee Singers)

KEYWORDS: religious freedom nonballad worksong

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (8 citations):
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 216-217, "Wade in the Water" (1 text, 1 tune)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 167, "Wade in the Water" (1 text, 1 tune)
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealslands 38, pp. 170-171, "Wade in nuh Watuh Childun" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warren-EveryTimeIFeelTheSpirit, pp. 97-98, "Wade in the Water" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 242, "Wade in the Water" (1 text, 1 tune)
Arnett-IHearAmericaSinging, p. 63, "Wade in the Water" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 356, "Wade in the Water" (1 text)
DT, WADEWATR*

Roud #5439

RECORDINGS:
Birmingham Jubilee Quartet, "Wade in the Water" (Vocalion 1563, 1930)
Empire Jubilee Quartet, "Wade in de Water" (Victor 23340, 1932; rec. 1929)
Famous Blue Jay Singers of Birmingham, "Children Wade in de Water" (Paramount 13128, 1932; Broadway 1246, n.d.; Champion 50026, 1935; on VocalQ2)
Fannie Lou Hamer, "Wade in the Water" (on VoicesCiv)
Timothy Hays and Group, "Wade in the Water" (on VaWork)
Lincoln Four Quartette, "Wade in the Water" (Paramount 12621, 1928)
Sunset Four Jubilee Singers, "Wade in the Water" (Paramount 12273, 1925)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Bear the News, Mary" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Walk In Jerusalem Just Like John" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Hand Me Down My Walking Cane" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Heaven and Hell" (floating lyrics)
cf. "If You Get There Before I Do" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Is Your Lamps Gone Out" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [40 words]: The VaWork recording uses "Wade in the Water" as a work song, in this case for shucking oysters commercially. The shucking blows are not delivered simultaneously: each shucker works to his/her own rhythm, though they all sing together. - BS

Last updated in version 4.3

File: LoF242

Wade the Water to My Knees

DESCRIPTION: The leader sings "I wade the water to my knees," "The water's so cold," "Lord have mercy," with each line repeated. The response, as alternate lines, is "I'm going to pray, going to pray" and "I'm going to pray till I die."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1983 (McIntosh1)

KEYWORDS: death ordeal nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

RECORDINGS:
Lucille Holloway and the McIntosh County Shouters, "Wade the Water to My Knees" (on Wadham's Song

DESCRIPTION: Coast sailing pilot's guide "from Bonavista Cape to the Stinking Isles ... till Pilley's Point covers Syme's Stage." Directions on how to reach Notre Dame Bay from Bonavista

AUTHOR: R.N. Wadham

EARLIEST DATE: 1756 (cf. Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: sea ship nonballad recitation sailor

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (7 citations):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 119, "Wadham's Song" (1 text)
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, p. 13, "Wadhams Song" (1 text)
Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland "Wadham's Song" (1 text): p. 70 in the 4th edition; p. 83 in the 5th

ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, editor, _Songs Sung by Old-Time Sealers of Many Years Ago_, James Murphy Publishing, 1925 (PDF available from Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 15, "Wadhams Song" (1 text)

John Feltham, _Northeast from Baccalieu_, Harry Cuff Publications, 1990, pp. 2-3, "The Song of the Wadhams" (1 text)

Bruce Stagg, _The Blackwood Schooner_, Flanker Press, 2009, pp. 3-5, "The Song of the Wadmans" (sic.) (1 text, taken from Feltham)

ST GrMa119 (Partial)

Roud #5449

NOTES [193 words]: According to GEST Songs of Newfoundland and Labrador site, "although called a song it was always recited and there is no tune available"; Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland heard it recited.

On the other hand, the Renaissance Dance site claims "Pilot verses were sailing directions sung to popular tunes ... Hugill [apparently not in Shanties from the Seven Seas] quotes [Wadham's Song] to the tune of 'I'll Tell me Ma', which is still well known." - BS

Doyle4 says that the song "was placed n record in the Admiralty's Court in London after it was first composed and was considered the best coasting guide for that part of our Island to which it refers." Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland report that they heard it recited because it's still accurate. The Wadham islands, mentioned in this song and presumably related to its title, are a series of mostly-uninhabited islands about ten miles east of Fogo and twenty miles northwest of Cape Freels. They were famous, or infamous, as a sealing site, e.g. the horrid "Spring of the Wadhams" is named after them; for that dreadul year, see the notes to "Maurice Crotty." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: GrMa119

Wae Be to that Weary Drink, John Anderson, My Jo

DESCRIPTION: Jean: Why drink up all your money with your friends? I have burned the barn door for heat; we have no cow or ewe; let's both "join the total abstinence." John agrees. Both: "hand in hand we'll go, And we'll sleep thegither at the foot"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: drink derivative dialog husband wife

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan3 600, "Wae Be to that Weary Drink, John Anderson, My Jo" (2 texts)

Roud #6050

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "John Anderson, My Jo (!)" (words)
cf. "John Anderson, My Jo, John" (words)
Wae's Me For Prince Charlie

DESCRIPTION: "A wee bird came tae our ha' door... And aye the (burden) o' his lilt, Was "Wae's me for Prince Charlie." The singer asks the bird about Charlie's fate. The bird tells how Charlie is pursued in the Highlands. The bird says it will live in Scotland no more

AUTHOR: William Glen? (Source: Digital Tradition)

EARLIEST DATE: 1821 (Hogg, according to the Digital Tradition); 1825 (chapbook, "Nonny Mally Stewart; Her blue rollin' e'e, The braes o' Fleniffer, Waes me for prince Charlie, printed by W. Macnie of Stirling)

KEYWORDS: bird Jacobite hardtimes escape

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1720-1788 - Life of Charles Edward Stuart, "Bonnie Prince Charlie"
1722-1790 - Life of Flora MacDonald
1745-1746 - '45 Jacobite rebellion led by Bonnie Prince Charlie
Apr 16, 1746 - Battle of Culloden. The Jacobite rebellion is crushed, most of the Highlanders slain, and Charlie forced to flee for his life.
Jun 28-29, 1746 - Aided by Flora MacDonald, and dressed as her maidservant, Charles flees from North Uist to Skye in the Hebrides.
Sep 20, 1746 - Charles finally escapes to France

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
DT, WEEBIRD

Roud #16902

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 c.14(175), "Waes me for Prince Charlie," unknown, n.d.

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Bonnie House o Airlie" [Child 199] (tune, per broadside Bodleian 2806 c.14(175))

NOTES [42 words]: In addition to the Bodleian broadside cited above, I have a badly damaged chapbook by W. Macnie (Stirling), 1825, "Bonny Mally Stweart/Her blue rollin' e'e, The braes o' Fleniffer, Waes me for prince Charly." I have not seen this chapbook online. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
File: DTwebird

Wag at the Waa, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer drinks with cronies: "It's a quarter tae twa, the last bus is awa" and he promised he'd be home at eleven. He drinks again with cronies but this time he resists temptation: "'It's the wife,' A declare, 'A wid stop but for fear o her anger"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1989 (McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen)

KEYWORDS: shrewishness drink humorous husband wife

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
McMorland/Scott-HerdLaddieOTheGlen, pp. 77-78, 152, "The Wag at the Waa" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #21733

File: McSc077
Waggin' o' Our Dog's Tail, The

DESCRIPTION: "We hae a dog that wags his tail -- He's a bit o' a wag himsel', O! A' day he wanders thro' the toun -- At nicht as news to tell, O!" The dog tours the town, sees many silly people, and concludes that, if people had tails, they'd be almost as good as dogs

AUTHOR: Norman McLeod

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Ford)

KEYWORDS: dog humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 214-217, "The Waggin' o' Our Dog's Tail" (1 text)
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #172, pp. 2-3, "The Waggin' o' Oor Dog's Tail" (1 text)

Roud #6292

File: FVS214

Waggoner, The

DESCRIPTION: "September last, on the seventh day, I geared my team to start away, To the South Yadkin...." The singer describes his route, talks of the cold and difficulties of the trip, and happily recounts his arrival

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety)

KEYWORDS: travel

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 300-301, "The Waggoner" (1 text)

Roud #3584

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Heights of Alma (I) [Laws J10]" (meter, lyrics)

NOTES [120 words]: Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety believes this piece tells of travel across the Appalachians, which, given the geography, makes sense. The initial line and the meter seem to imply acquaintance with "The Heights of Alma" (though in this case the song is rather worn down). That is a rather late date for such a piece. This may be further evidence of the "proto-Alma" song.

Roud lumps this with Lomax's piece "Ox Driving Song." There are a few words in common, but only a few, and those of the sort that could float or even occur to an author spontaneously; really, only thing they have in common that I can see is that both involve travel. -I can see Roud's point, but I'm not quite ready to agree. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2

File: Beld300

Wagoner's Curse on the Railroad, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all ye bold wag'ners, turn out man by man, That's opposed to the railroad or any such plan." The teamster says that all the goods he used to haul now travel by rail. Blacksmiths and wheelwrights are hurting too. He curses railroads and canals

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)

KEYWORDS: railroading technology travel hardtimes canal

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 255-257, "The Wagoner's Curse on the Railroad" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: KPL255

Wagoner's Lad, The

DESCRIPTION: Young woman is courted by wagoner's lad. Her parents don't like him because he is poor; he tells her he is self-supporting and not ashamed. He tells her he is leaving; she asks him to linger with him, but he refuses. She laments women's hard fortune

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (collected by Olive Dame Campbell; in Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians); +1907 (JAFL20)
KEYWORDS: courting love farewell parting dialog worker lyric rejection warning floatingverses
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE,So)

REFERENCES (30 citations):
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp.738-740, "The Wagoner's Lad" (2 texts, with the "A" text belonging here and the "B" text a composite of "Wagoner's Lad" and "Old Smokey" verses)
Randolph 740, "Texas Cowboy" (1 text, with much floating material but the plot seems to be here)
High-OldOldFolkSongs, pp. 22-23, "Fair U-Well-Lizza" (1 text, mostly this; the first verse might be something else but is so messed up that it's hard to tell what)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 250, "The Wagoner's Lad" (3 texts plus 3 fragments; the texts "A"-"C" are "The Wagoner's Lad," and "D" has an associated verse, but "E" and "F" are fragments of a love song, perhaps "Farewell, Charming Nancy" or "Omie Wise," both of which have similar lyrics; "D" also shares this single verse, and "E" adds a "Troubled in Mind" chorus)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 250, "The Wagoner's Lad" (6 tunes plus text excerpts, five of which are probably "The Wagoner's Lad" but the "E" tune is something else)
Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 42, "Lamkins" (1 text, apparently a fragment of Child #93 (containing only a threat of cannibalism) plus three "My Horses Ain't Hungry" stanzas)
Scarborough-ASongCatcherInSouthernMountains, pp. 272-282, "The Waggoner's Lad" (9 texts, 6 tunes on pp. 428-431, but the entry combines many songs; A (no title), B ("My Fortune's Been Bad"), and E ("My Horses Ain't Hungry") are extended versions of "The Wagoner's Lad"; C ("The Last Farewell") is a short text probably of "The Wagoner's Lad", D ("Old Smokie") combined one "Smokey" verse with three "Wagoner's Lad" verses; F ("Old Smoky") is a very long "Old Smokey" text which seems to have gained parts of other songs; G ("A False Lying True Love") is "Old Smokey" minus the first verse; H ("I'll Build My Cabin on a Mountain So High" is "Old Smokey" with a first verse from a drunkard song and a final floating verse supplying the title; I (no title) is a fragment probably of "Old Smokey")
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 44-45, "My Horses Ain't Hungry" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #17, "The Wagoner Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 117, "The Wagoner's Lad" (6 texts, 6 tunes)
Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, p. 37, "Loving Nancy" (1 text)
Wyman/Brockway-LonesomeSongs-KentuckyMountains-Vol1, p. 62, "Loving Nancy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, p. 79, "Pretty Polly" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hudson-FolkTunesFromMississipipi 6, "The Wagoner Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 284-285, "Rabble Soldier" (1 text, 1 tune -- a strange version, probably composite, in which the wanderer is a "rabble soldier")
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 34, p. 49, "The Wagoner's Lad" (1 fragment, probably this although it might be a "Rye Whiskey" excerpt)
Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 243-244, "My Horses Ain't Hungry" (1 text, which is probably derived from this but ends with the girl leaving home to go with him)
Lunsford/Stringfield-30And1FolkSongsFromSouthernMountains, pp. 20-21, "I'm Goin' Back to Georgia" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 112, "The Wagoner's Lad"; (1 text, 1 tune)
Dunson/Raim/Asch-AnthologyOfAmericanFolkMusic, p. 30 "The Wagoner's Lad" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 6, "The Wagoner's Lad" (1 text, 1 tune); 83, "Old Paint" (3 texts, 1 tune, of which the "C" text appears actually to be a version of this piece or perhaps "Rye Whisky")
Chase-AmericanFolkTalesAndSongs, pp. 181-182, "The Wagoner's Lad" (1 text, 1 tune)
McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, p. 19, "The Wagoner's Lad" (1 text)
Abrahams/Foss-AngloAmericanFolksongStyle, pp. 38-39, "Wagonner's Lad" (1 text)
Seeeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 21, "My Horses Ain't Hungry" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 171 "The Wagoner's Lad"; p. 174 "My Horses Ain't Hungry"; p. 186 "Hard Is The Fortune Of All Womankind" (3 texts)
Saffel-CowboyPoetry, pp. 211-213, "Jack o' Diamonds" (1 text; this particular Lomax offering contains elements of "Jack o' Diamonds/Rye Whisky," "The Wagoner's Lad," The Rebel Soldier," and others)

North Carolina Folklore Journal, Charles W. Joyner, "The Repertory of Nancy Jones as a Mirror of Culture in Scotland County," Vol. XXI, No. 3 (Sep 1973), p. 92-93, "Farewell, my dear true love, I'll bid you adieu" (1 text, two verses that might be "Fare You Well, My Own True Love (The Storms Are on the Ocean. The False True Lover, The True Lover's Farewell, Red Rosy Bush, Turtle Dove)" or "Rye Whiskey" or "The Wagoner's Lad" or, frankly, almost anything; there is a mention of emigration)

DT, WAGONLAD* MOONSHI2*
ST R740 (Full)
Roud #414

RECORDINGS:
Dock Boggs, "Loving Nancy" (on Boggs3, BoggsCD1)
Acie Cargill, Debra Cowan, Kristina Olsen, "The Waggoner's Lad" (on HCargillFamily)
Vernon Dalhart, "My Horse's Ain't Hungry" [sic] (Edison 52077, 1927)
G. B. Grayson & [Henry] Whitter, "My Mind is to Marry" (unissued; on StuffDreams1)
Kelly Harrell, "My Horses Ain't Hungry" (Victor 20103, 1926; on KHarrell01)
Buell Kazee, "The Wagoner's Lad" (Brunswick 213B, 1928; Brunswick 437, 1930; on AAFM1) (on Kazee01)
Mr. & Mrs. John Sams, "Wagoner's Lad" (on MMOKCD)
Pete Seeger, "Fare You Well, Polly" (on PeteSeeger07, PeteSeeger07a);The Wagoner's Lad" (on PeteSeeger17)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Cuckoo" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Goodbye, Old Paint" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Rye Whiskey" (floating lyrics)
cf. "The Gambler (I)" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Oh Lily, Dear Lily" (floating lyrics)
cf. "The Lady's Case" (floating lyrics)
cf. "I Am a Young Maiden (If I Were a Blackbird)" (lyrics)
cf. "The Rebel Soldier" (floating lyrics)
cf. "The Rue and the Thyme (The Rose and the Thyme)" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Farewell, Sweet Mary"
cf. "Goodbye, Little Bonnie, Goodbye" (theme)
cf. "Moonshiner" (floating lyrics)
cf. "The Virginia Lover" (plot)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
An Inconstant Lover
I'm a Rambler, I'm a Gambler
The Rambling Gambler

NOTES [264 words]: This song, which barely qualifies as a ballad even in its full forms, has produced many non-ballad offspring, of which "On Top of Old Smokey" is the best known. Randolph apparently thinks his "Texas Cowboy" piece to be related but separate, but (based on his text) I would have to say they are the same. It is very hard to tell certain versions of this from "Rye Whiskey"; the two have exchanged many verses. But the "core" versions seem to be distinct. An even greater problem is posed by the relationship between this song and "On Top of Old Smoky." The two are occasionally listed as one song (e.g. by Leach); indeed, this was done in early versions of the Index. This was done under the influence of the Lomaxes, who classify the songs together. Further study, however, seems to show that all versions which have common material are derived from the Lomaxes. The plots of the two songs are different, their tunes are distinct, and true cross-fertilization seems very rare. It would appear that the identification of the two is purely the result of the sort of editorial work the Lomaxes so often committed. Due to this inconsistency, it is suggested that the reader check all versions of both songs, as well as both sets of cross-references, to find all related materials. Another closely related song is "Farewell, Sweet Mary," as much as three-quarters of which may derive from this song. It has taken a slightly different direction, however, and is at least a distinct subfamily of this piece. Since it doesn't have anything about horses or wagoners, I list it separately.

- RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
Waihi Miners' Song (There in Waihi)
DESCRIPTION: "There in Waihi, with its toil an its treasure, Men's lives are squandered while earning a crust, Leaving homes desolate and a grave for some loved one, Ruthlessly slain by the battery dust."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (collected by Mona Tracy, according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)
KEYWORDS: mining death burial
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, p. 119, "(no title)" (1 fragment)
File: BaRo119

Wait a Little While
DESCRIPTION: "Wait a little while, then we'll sing the new song (x2)." "My heavenly home is bright and fair, Then we'll sing the new song. No pain or sorrow over there. Then we'll sing...."
"Sometimes I get a heavenly view... And then my trials are so few."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 69, "Wait a Little While" (1 text)
Roud #12086
File: FSAN069B

Wait for the Wagon (Free Silver version)
DESCRIPTION: "Wait for the wagon, the Free Silver Wagon, Wait for the wagon and we'll all take a ride." "Here comes the wagon, the Free Silver Wagon, Here comes the wagon, and we'll all take a ride."
"Hop on the wagon, the Free Silver wagon....."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks)
KEYWORDS: political nonballad money
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
July 7, 1896 - William Jennings Bryan gives his "Cross of Gold" speech calling for a silver currency 1896, 1900, 1908 - Bryan's three runs for the presidency
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, p. 21, "Wait for the Wagon" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Wait for the Wagon (I)" (tune) and references there
cf. "Free Silver" (subject of William Jennings Bryan and the 1896 election) and references there
File: McIn021A

Wait for the Wagon (I)
DESCRIPTION: The singer invites Phyllis "to yon blue mountain free." He describes his cabin and the fine lands around it. Another suitor offers wealth, but he offers youth and health. He bids her to "Wait for the wagon (x3) And we'll all take a ride."
AUTHOR: unknown (see NOTES)
EARLIEST DATE: 1851 (copyright registry and LOCSheet sm1851 501260; the relevant sheet music is dated 1850)
KEYWORDS: courting home money farming pioneer playparty
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South)) US(Ap,MW,So)
REFERENCES (12 citations):
Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 222-225, "Wait for the Wagon" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 514, "Wait for the Wagon" (1 text)
Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 98-99=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 202-203, "Wait for the Wagon" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 563, "Wait for the Wagon" (1 text, 1 tune)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, p. 196, "Wait for the Wagon" (1 text, 1 tune)
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 285-286, "Wait for the Wagon" (text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 175, "Wait For The Wagon" (1 text)
Messerli-ListenToTheMockingbird, pp. 81-82, "Wait for the Wagon" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 609-610, "Wait For The Wagon"
Thatcher-ColonialMinstrel-Songsters, p. 178, "Wait for the Waggan" (1 text, from the "Victoria Songster", a comic adaption)

DT, WAITWAGN* (WAITWAG2* -- Confederate Parody)
ST RJ19222 (Full)
Roud #2080
RECORDINGS:
Wenatchee Mountaineers, "Wait for the Wagon" (Banner 32868/Melotone M-12795/Perfect 12940/Romeo 5269/Conqueror 8195, 1933; Oriole 8336Melotone [Canada] 93041, 1934; Minerva M-920, 1936)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Johnson Ballads 1137, "Wait for the Waggon" ("O come with me, my Phillis dear"), A. Ryle and Co. (London), 1845-1859; also Harding B 11(4007), Harding B 15(354b), Harding B 15(354a), 2806 c.15[21][some words illegible], Harding B 19[12][some words illegible], Harding B 11[4008], Firth b.25[420], Harding B 11(735), 2806 d.31[45], Firth b.34[305], Firth b.25[584], Firth b.26[91], Firth c.18[218], Harding B 16[298c], Firth b.26[482][chorus omitted], Wait for the Waggon"
LOCSheet, sm1851 501260, "Wait for the Wagon", Peters, Webb and Con (Louisville), 1851; also sm1851 500770, sm1851 500790, sm1851 681810, sm1852 520240, sm1852 520810, sm1853 561470, sm1854 550760, sm1854 741360, sm1856 630350, " Wait for the Wagon" (tune)
LOCSinging, as114480, "Wait for the Wagon!" ("Will you come with me my Phillis, dear, to yon blue mountain free"), W. S. & J. Crowley (Baltimore), no date; also sb40585a, "Wait for the Wagon"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Brass-Mounted Army" (tune)
cf. "We're Coming, Arkansas (We're Coming, Idaho)" (tune)
cf. "The Southern Wagon (Union)" (tune)
SAME TUNE:
Wait for the Wagon (Free Silver version) (File: McIn021A)
Wait For the Dragon (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 229)
Ballad of the 117th New York (broadside regarding a Civil War regiment by D. Prosser)
The Old Union Wagon (Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, p. 195; Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 390; Wolf-AmericanSongSheets pp. 116-117)
The Southern Wagon (Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, p. 196)
Wait for the Wagon, or, A Hundred Thousand Northmen (Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, p. 120)
Good Morning, Master Lincoln! (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 52)
The News Boy ("Oh! 'tis early every morning, about the break of day") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 109)
The Sons of New Jersey ("There was a call for Volunteers sometime in last year") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 148)
Sparking Sarah Jane ("Sitting on the sofa, leaning on my breast") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 149)
That's What's the Matter ("They say Johnny Bull is sending") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 155)
That's What's the Matter #2 ("If down South they'd hear to reason") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 155)
Wait for the Lager. A Parody on "Wait for the Wagon" ("Will you come with me, my Billy, down into the cellar, near") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 167)
Wait for the Wagon (III)

DESCRIPTION: "Come with me good Democrats and rally round our flag to fight the Black Republicans ... Wait for the waggan, The old Democratic waggan ... We'll give those Negro worshippers a good November ride"

AUTHOR: Music: R Bishop Buckley (1851) (source: Thomson-Pioneer)
EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Thompson-APioneerSongster)
KEYWORDS: bragging nonballad political Black(s)
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1856 - Presidential campaign. James Buchanan and John C. Breckenridge were Democratic candidates for president and vice-president. (Buchanan won the nomination largely because he had been out of the country and so had made few recorded statements on the big issues of the time.) The Republican candidates were John C. Frémont and William L. Dayton. It was the first time the Republican party had fielded a candidate. Millard Fillmore ran as a Know-Nothing. The Democrats won 45% of the popular vote, and 174 electoral votes; Fremont won 33% of the popular vote and 114 electoral votes (but no state south of Ohio); Fillmore won 22% of the popular vote and Maryland's eight electoral votes.
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-APioneerSongster 64, "Wait for the Wagon" (1 text)
Roud #2835
NOTES [28 words]: Thomson-Pioneer: "The Democratic party sang this campaign song in the year 1856." - BS
For background on the 1856 election, see the notes to "Lincoln and Liberty." - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: TPS064

Wait on the Lord

DESCRIPTION: "I wonder where Spencer gone, That used to preach up town. The church is all in mourning...." "I'm waitin' on de Lord...." "Some say John de Baptist Is nothing but a Jew." "A Baptist, Baptist is my name, And a Baptist I will die"
Wait Till the Clouds Roll By

DESCRIPTION: "Jenny, my own true lover, I'm going far away, Out on the bound'ring billows, Out on the deep blue sea." The singer promises to think of Jenny while on the sea, and vows to return, and urges her to "Wait till the clouds roll by."

AUTHOR: Words: J. T. Wood / Music: H. J. Fulmer
EARLIEST DATE: 1881 (sheet music published by T. B. Harms & Co. of New York)
KEYWORDS: love separation sailor

NOTES: Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric incorrectly lists the name of the author of the music as "J. J. Fulmer," which he says was a pseudonym for Charles E. Pratt, and seems to think that Fulmer tried to make it appear to be a scarce item (to drive up the price?). He lists many songster editions, mostly from the 1880s (although "Charles Diamond's Milanese Minstrel Songster" he dates to 1877, before the sheet music was published). There was also an answer to this song, plus parodies such as "Wait Till the Cash Runs Dry" and "Wait Till the Keg Runs Dry." Amazing that a song that was so popular in the 1880s did not show up more in traditional collections. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.3

Wait Till the Ship Comes Home

DESCRIPTION: "Jack went away to sea one day and left his Polly behind." An old man comes courting Polly. She refuses, saying "Wait till the ship comes home." At last word arrives that the ship is home and Jack safe. The old man dies and leaves Polly his money

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: love separation courting age lastwill money death

NOTES: Sort of an Irish version of the story of Penelope.... - RBW

Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie

DESCRIPTION: A girl mourns her rained-out Sunday picnic. Her sweetheart comforts her: "Wait till the sun shines, Nellie, and the clouds go drifting by...." She had hoped to "show off her brand new gown"; suddenly the sun comes out; she says he has won her heart

AUTHOR: Words: Andrew B. Sterling / Music: Harry von Tilzer EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (copyright; others list a 1902 copyright)
Wait, Mister Mackright

DESCRIPTION: "Wai', Mister Mackright, an' 'e yedde what Satan say: Satan full me full of music, an' tell me not to play. Mister Mackright cry holy; O Lord, cry holy."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad horse

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 43, "Wait, Mr. Mackright" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #11999

NOTES [105 words]: This song probably had a very short lifetime. According to the notes, it was about a "milk-white" horse left behind by Confederate general Drayton. General Drayton is Thomas Fenwick Drayton (1808-1891), a West Point graduate who became a planter in 1836. He became a brigadier in 1861, and was responsible for the defence of Port Royal in 1861. I would guess that that was the occasion which led to this song. Drayton after this was assigned to the Army of Northern Virginia, but his brigade's performance in the Antietam campaign was poor enough that Lee dissolved his brigade. Drayton spent the rest of the war in the west. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.4

File: AWG043B

Waitekauri Everytime!

DESCRIPTION: "There's a good old war-cry sounding, it hangs on every lip." Everywhere, you hear, "Waitekauri, Waitekauri, Waitekauri Everytime!" After the gold rush, the land and people of Waitekauri are utterly transformed

AUTHOR: Words: probably Edwin Edwards (source: Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ and Colquhoun, although attributed to W. W. Rowe in the first publication)

EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (Hauraki Plains Gazette, according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

KEYWORDS: New Zealand gold home

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1875 - Gold first found at Waitekauri

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, pp. 67-69, "Waitekauri Everytime!" (1 text, 1 modern tune)
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 57, "Waitekauri Ev'rytime" (1 text, 1 "reconstructed" tune) (p. 35 in the 1972 edition)
Waiting For a Train (II)

DESCRIPTION: Singer waits to hop a train. A brakeman tells him that if he has money "I'll see that you don't walk," then puts him off the train in Texas. "My pocketbook is empty/And my heart is filled with pain/I'm a thousand miles away from home/Waiting for a train"

AUTHOR: Jimmie Rodgers? (see note)

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Jimmie Rodgers)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer, a hobo, is out in the rain waiting for a train to hop. A brakeman tells him that if he has money "I'll see that you don't walk." He has no money; the brakeman slams the boxcar door, then puts him off the train in Texas. "My pocketbook is empty/And my heart is filled with pain/I'm a thousand miles away from home/Waiting for a train"

KEYWORDS: loneliness poverty rejection rambling train travel hobo

FOUND IN: US

RECORDINGS:
- Mississippi John Hurt, "Waiting For a Train" (on MJHurt04)
- Riley Puckett, "Waiting for a Train" (Columbia 15408-D, 1929)
- Bud Reed, "Waiting for a Train" (on Reeds1)
- Hoke Rice, "Waiting for a Train" (Champion 15767/QRS 9012, 1929)
- Jimmie Rodgers, "Waiting for a Train" (Victor V-40014, 1929)
- Ed (Jake) West, "Waiting for a Train" (Broadway 8109, c. 1931)
- Harry Wilson, "Waiting for the Train" (Perfect 12556, 1930)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Ten Thousand Miles Away from Home (A Wild and Reckless Hobo; The Railroad Bum)" (subject, a few lyrics)

SAME TUNE:
Let the Mermaids Flirt With Me (recorded by Mississippi John Hurt)

NOTES [154 words]: This composed song seems to be moving into oral tradition, both Anglo- and Afro-American (blues singer Furry Lewis used to perform it); Mississippi John Hurt used its melody for "Let the Mermaids Flirt With Me." - PJS

Larry Saidman points out to me,
"I was advised the following by Jon Bartlett,
"According to the Gordon collection in the Library of Congress, this song preceded the version credited to Jimmie Rogers. (Gordon 1720). It was called The Hobo Song, with most of the same verses (slight variations) but with some additions. It was apparently picked up from Terrell McKay in 1926. It ends up with the protagonist losing a leg, and the last line is 'to live I have to beg/"It starts out with 'All along the water tank, waiting for that train.'
"It was apparently used as a begging song."
I have not yet verified that the Gordon song indeed meets the Ballad Index criteria for "same-ness," but kinship is likely. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.0

Waiting for Kingdom Come

DESCRIPTION: "He's getting his dead from their lonely graves And lumping them all together; There's some of them fools, but more of them knaves, And he's yarding them all together... Waiting for kingdom come, Rotten with whiskey and rum," they pass away the years

AUTHOR: Words: probably William Satchell

EARLIEST DATE: 1902 (Satchell, Land of the Lost, according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

KEYWORDS: burial death

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, p. 128, "(no title)" (1 excerpt)

File: BaRo128B
Waiting for the Day (The Worst Old Ship)

DESCRIPTION: Singer describes life on "the worst old brig that ever did weigh." Built in "Roman time"/Nelson's times," it's held together with twine and undermanned. They spring a leak and bail their way to dock. Chorus: "Waiting for the day (x3) that we get our pay"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1950s (recorded from Bob Roberts)

LONG DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the worst ship the yard's ever laid, Steamed out of (Plymouth) on a (winter's) day," Singer describes life on "the worst old brig that ever did weigh." Built in "Roman time"/Nelson's times," it's held together with twine and seriously undermanned. They spring a leak off Orford Ness and bail their way along the coast and up the Humber to dock. Chorus: "Waiting for the day, waiting for the day/Waiting for the day that we get our pay"

KEYWORDS: sea ship work sailor worker navy hardtimes humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 37, "Waiting for the Day" (1 text, probably a navy modification of a civilian song)

Roud #1855

RECORDINGS:
Bob Roberts, "Waiting for the Day (The Worst Old Ship)" (on LastDays)

NOTES [8 words]: Again, pity we don't have a keyword "bitching." - PJS

Last updated in version 5.1

File: RcWftD

Waiting for You (I Forgive You Before I Go)

DESCRIPTION: The singer's woman's "cruel ways" may shorten his life. When he dies he'll forgive her but wait for her beyond Jordan. He would trade his pass to glory to stay with her on earth, if that pass were not for two.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1963 (MJHurt05)

KEYWORDS: grief hardheartedness courting love death

FOUND IN:

RECORDINGS:
Mississippi John Hurt, "Waiting for You (I Forgive You Before I Go)" (on MJHurt05)

File: RcWfYIFY

Wakamarina, The

DESCRIPTION: "On the banks of the Wakamarina... A splendid goldfield's been discovered." The singer is "waiting for fresh information" to know if he should go there. The singer describes the effects of the rush (e.g. high prices) and tells how the new chums struggle

AUTHOR: Words: Charles R. Thatcher (1831-1878)

EARLIEST DATE: 1864 (Thatcher's "Songs of the War," according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)

KEYWORDS: gold humorous trick New Zealand

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, pp. 60-62, "The Wakamarina" (1 text, 1 modern tune)
Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry, p. 53, "Wakamarina" (1 text, 1 modern tune) (p. 31 in the 1972 edition)
Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, pp. 50-51, "The Wakamarina" (1 text, 1 modern tune)
Hoskins-GoldfieldBalladeer-LifeAndTimes-Charles-R-Thatcher, pp. 175-176, "The Wakamarina" (1 text, 1 tune)
Anderson-GoldrushSongster, pp. 62-3, "The Wakamarina" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Tamburlane, "Wakamarina" (on NZSongYngCntry)

NOTES [136 words]: Curiously, although both Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ and Colquhoun-NZ-Folksongs-SongOfAYoungCountry give tunes, and both are attributed to Neal Colquhoun, they are not the same tune! They are close, but Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ's transcription is in Wake Nicodemus

DESCRIPTION: "Nicodemus, the slave, was of African birth And was bought for a bagful of gold." When he dies at a great age, he asks to be awakened when freedom came. He forecasts the end of slavery and the battles it causes. Freedom proves his words true

AUTHOR: Henry Clay Work

EARLIEST DATE: 1864 (sheet music published by S. Brainerd's Sons with copyright by Root & Cady)

KEYWORDS: slave slavery freedom

FOUND IN: Work-SongsOf-Henry-Clay-Work, pp. 9-12, "Wake Nicodemus" (1 text, 1 tune, a copy of the original sheet music)

Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, pp. 102-103, "Wake Nicodemus" (1 text)

Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2481, p. 167, "Wake Nicodemus!" (5 references)

Foner-AmericanLaborSongsOfTheNineteenthCentury, p. 134, "Nicodemus" (1 excerpt)

Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 291, "Wake Nicodemus" (1 text)

DT, NICDEMUS

Roud #4988

NOTES [68 words]: It occurs to me that the name "Nicodemus" means "victor/conqueror of/over the people," which might be significant in context -- Nicodemus the slave was victorious over the people who enslaved him. But I have no idea if Henry Clay Work had the Greek to know that. The name would most likely derive from the Gospel of John, where Nicodemus was a fairly important Jew who was a semi-secret follower of Jesus. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: FSWB291

Wake of Bevington, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you jolly labouring men and listen to my song; The theme is well known to you all, it is of Bevington." Over five years, workers turned tangled oak forest to farmland. Mr. Webb promised to stand treat when they finished. The singer celebrates

AUTHOR: Arthur Allchurch, Southe Littleton (source: Palmer)

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Palmer)

KEYWORDS: work farming drink fight

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

ADDITIONAL: Roy Palmer, _The Folklore of Warwickshire_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 52, "The wake of Bevington" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Auld Lang Syne" (tune, according to Palmer)

File: PalWa052

Wake of William Orr, The

DESCRIPTION: "Here our murdered brother lies." He called for his countrymen to unite. The singer recalls 600 years of warfare, "Crumbled by a foreign weight; And by worse, domestic hate"

"Monstrous and unhappy sight! Brothers' blood will not unite" A new day begins AUTHOR: William Drennan (1754-1820) (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815;

Wake Up Boys, the Corn Is a-Falling

DESCRIPTION: Corn-shucking song: "Wake up, boys, the corn is a-falling, The corn is a-falling at the door. Wake up, boys, the corn is a-falling, The corn is a-falling at the door."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1974 (NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal)

KEYWORDS: food nonballad work

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Celia M. Benton, "Corn Shucking in Sampson County," Vol. XXII, No. 4 (Nov 1974), p. 136, "(Wake up boys, the corn is a-falling)" (1 short text, 1 tune)

File: NCF224WB

Wake Up Children

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Wake up children, wake up! Arise! Wake up children, wake up! And I will serve that living God." Verse: "Old Satan thought he had me fast, And I will serve..., But thank the Lord, I'm free at last, And I will serve...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Devil

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, p. 13, "Wake Up Children" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: Bart013

Wake Up, Jacob

DESCRIPTION: "Wake up, Jacob, day's a-breakin', Peas in the pot and hoe-cake's caking'.
Bacon's in the pan and coffee's in the pot, Come on round and get it while it's hot. (Spoken:) Wake, snakes, and bite a biscuit!"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: cowboy food nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 65, "Wake Up, Jacob" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 184, "Wake Up, Jacob" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, p. 375, "Cowboys' Gettin'-Up Holler" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5, p. 547, "Peas in the Pot, Hoe Cake A-Bakin'" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 109, "Wake Up, Jacob/Cowboy's Gettin' Up Holler" (1 text)
Roud #6694
RECORDINGS:
Harry Jackson, "Morning Grub Holler" (on HJackson1, CowFolkCD1)
Pete Seeger, "Wake Up, Jacob" (on PeteSeeger07, PeteSeeger07a)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Shanty Boy's Reveille" (theme)
NOTES [46 words]: I don't know if this is an allusion to Genesis 32:26, where Jacob wrestles with a strange being, and the being ends the fight by saying, "Let me go, for the day is breaking.
Obviously the words are similar, but Jacob of course got no sleep that night; he spent it wrestling! - RBW
Last updated in version 2.4
File: LoFi184

Wake Up, Jonah (Jonah III)
DESCRIPTION: "Wake up, Jonah, you are the man! Reelin' and a-rockin' o' the ship so long!"
"Captain of the ship got trouble in mind...." The sailors throw Jonah into the sea; he is swallowed by a whale and proceeds to Ninevah
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (recording, Rich Amerson & Earthy Anne Coleman)
LONG DESCRIPTION: Captain of a rolling ship has troubles, searches for the cause, finds Jonah asleep and says, "Wake up Jonah, you are the man". They pitch him overboard; a whale swallows him, then pukes him onto dry land again. A gourd vine grows over his head; an inchworm comes and cuts it down, forming a cross over his head
KEYWORDS: religious Bible ship accusation travel religious animal whale sailor
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 57-58, ")(Wake Up, Jonah") (1 text); pp. 223-224, "Wake Up, Jonah" (1 tune, partial text)
Roud #10960
RECORDINGS:
Rich Amerson & Earthy Anne Coleman, "Jonah" (on NFMAla2)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Hide Away (Jonah and the Whale)" (subject) and references there
NOTES [77 words]: This song summarizes the Book of Jonah, emphasizing the events of the first chapter: Jonah flees from God aboard ship; the ship is caught in a storm; the sailors cast lots to see who is to blame; the lot falls on Jonah, who is sleeping through the storm. - RBW
This song omits much of the Bible story and adds its own bits. Note that it says "whale"; the Hebrew Bible unambiguously says "fish" (for more about this, see the notes to "God's Radiophone"). - PJS, RBW
Last updated in version 3.5
File: CNFM223
Wakes in the Morning

DESCRIPTION: "Mommy wakes in the morning, Mommy wakes in the pukkah, Hee-ho, coffee cannot please her." Similarly, "Johnny wakes in the morning," etc.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (recorded from Edith Perrin)

KEYWORDS: nonballad mother food

FOUND IN: West Indies

Roud #16396

RECORDINGS:

* Edith Perrin, "Wakes in the Morning" [excerpt?] (on USWarnerColl01)

Wal I Swan (Giddyap Napoleon, Ebenezer Frye)

DESCRIPTION: Singer's adventures as he wanters and meets various crooks. He takes a prize at a fair, gets drunk, gives away his bull. A sharper asks him for "two tens for a five." Etc. Chorus: "Wal I swan, must be getting on/Giddyap Napoleon, it looks like rain..."

AUTHOR: Benj. Hapgood Burt

EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (sheet music)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer meets two bunco men on a train, sends them packing. He goes to a county fair, takes a prize, gets drunk and gives away his old bull. At a tent show, a sharper asks him for "two tens for a five"; the singer arrests him. His horse runs off at the sound of a train. He has suspicions that his son, off in Philadelphia, is "up to some kind of hell." Chorus: "Wal I swan, must be getting on/Giddyap Napoleon, it looks like rain..."

KEYWORDS: crime theft farming drink humorous animal police

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (2 citations):

* Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, pp. 64-65, "Wal, I Swan" (1 text)

DT, WALISWAN

Roud #4647

RECORDINGS:

* John Bennett, "Wal I Swan" (Madison 1928, 1928)
* Al Bernard, "Wal I Swan" (Vocalion 15262, 1926) (Harmony 154-H, 1926)
* Byron G. Harlan, "Wal, I Swan!" (Victor 17263, 1913; rec. 1912)
* Riley Puckett, "Wal I Swan" (Columbia 15078-D, 1926)
* Gid Tanner & his Skillet Lickers, "Giddap Napoleon" (Columbia 15695-D, 1931; rec. 1929)

NOTES [46 words]: Spaeth (Read 'Em and Weep, p. 234) does not print this song, but does mention that it is "in constant demand both as a solo and as a rural quartet number. The interpretation is traditionally in a high-pitched, nasal voice, with a facial expression indicating toothlessness." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

Walk Along John (I)

DESCRIPTION: Weasel invades the henhouse, rats invade the dairy, Black Sam invades the kitchen, etc. Chorus: "Walk along, John, (piper's/fifer's) son, Now ain't you mighty glad your day's work's done. Walk along, John, git towards home, Ain't you mighty glad...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana)

KEYWORDS: animal work nonballad playparty

FOUND IN: US(MW,So)

REFERENCES (3 citations):

* Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 100-101=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 220-221, "Walk Along John" (1 text, 2 tunes, probably a combination of "Walk Along John (I) and "Twill Never Do To Give It Up So")
* Randolph 296, "Walk Along John" (1 text, 1 tune)

'Long John" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7824
NOTES [67 words]: Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana notes that there was a key change in the version given to her, which she adjusted (while also printing the collected version of the tune). I suspect that her version is in fact a combination of two songs, "Walk Along John" (the first stanza) and "'Twill Never Do to Give It Up So," which I know I've heard somewhere but can't seem to find in any traditional collections. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.8
File: R296

Walk Down the Path

DESCRIPTION: A game where a parent traces parts of an infant's head: "Walk down the path [part of the hair], Knock at the door [tough the forehead], Peep at the windows [open eyelids], Lift up the hatch [nose], And walk in [open the mouth; perhaps put fingers in]"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)
KEYWORDS: playparty
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 183, "Walk down the Path" (1 text)
File: SuSm183A

Walk in Jerusalem Just Like John

DESCRIPTION: "I want to be ready (x3) To walk in Jerusalem just like John." "John said the city was just foursquare... And he declared we'd meet him there." "When Peter was preaching at Pentecost, He was endowed with the Holy Ghost"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)
KEYWORDS: religious Bible nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, pp. 34-35, "Walk Jerusalem Jes Like John" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 33, "I Want to Be Ready" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 163 in the 1909 edition)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 11, (no title) (1 fragment)
Warren-EveryTimeIFeelTheSpirit, pp. 60-61, "I Want to Be Ready (Walk In Jerusalem)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 356, "Walk In Jerusalem, Just Like John" (1 text)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Charles W. Joyner, "The Repertory of Nancy Jones as a Mirror of Culture in Scotland County," Vol. XXI, No. 3 (Sep 1973), p. 94, "(I want to be ready, I want to be ready)" (1 text)
DT, WALKJERU
Roud #12109
RECORDINGS:
Bill Monroe & His Blue Grass Boys, "Walking In Jerusalem Just Like John" (Decca 28608, 1953)
Excelsior Quartet, "Walk In Jerusalem Just Like John" (OKeh 4619, 1922)
Homer Rodeheaver, "Walk In Jerusalem Just Like John" (Rainbow 1092, 1923)
Sunset Four Jubilee Quartette, "Walk In Jerusalem Just Like John" (Paramount 12292, 1925)
West Virginia Collegiate Institute Glee Club, "Walk In Jerusalem Just Like John" (Brunswick 3498, 1927; Supertone S-2126 [as Harmony Glee Club], 1930)
NOTES [58 words]: The Biblical references here are a bit confused. The New Jerusalem is said to be descending in Rev. 21:2, and is said to be foursquare in Rev. 21:16 -- but there is no promise to meet John there. The coming of the Spirit at Pentecost is told in Acts 2 -- but the Spirit came FIRST, upon a large group, and only then did Peter preach about it. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: FSWB356A
Walk on the Bay
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Walk on the bay Let me see you walk." The response to every verse line is "Let me see you walk." Singer sees his darling downtown and tells her to walk and talk. She asks "Do you want me to be your bride"; he tells her to walk and talk.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (LomaxCD1708)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage questions
FOUND IN: US(SE) West Indies(Bahamas)
Roud #17295
RECORDINGS:
Nat Rahmings, Hobart Smith, and Ed Young, "Walk on the Bay" (on LomaxCD1708)
NOTES [17 words]: Matthew Barton, liner notes to LomaxCD1708: "...this rousing song... is traditional in the Bahamas." - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: RcWotBay

Walk Together Little Children (Great Camp Meeting in the Promised Land)
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, little children, let us walk together, Little children, don't get (worried/weary), Walk together, little children." "Comin' up,, is... a Great camp meeting in the Promised Land." "Let us (sing/shout/pray) together, little children..."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, pp. 45-46, "Great Camp Meeting" (1 text)
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, pp. 40-45, "Walk Together, Little Children" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Big Camp Meeting in the Promised Land" (theme, chorus structure)
File: Rose040

Walk Tom Wilson
DESCRIPTION: "Old Tom Wilison, he had him a horse, His legs so long he couldn't get across." "Walk, Tom Wilson, get out o' the way! Walk, Tom Wilson, don't wait all the day!" The various verses relate Wilson's improbable exploits
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1949 (Talley)
KEYWORDS: talltale animal horse
FOUND IN: US(Ap,So)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee 81, pp. 130-132, "Walk, Tom Wilson" (1 text, 1 tune, about half "Old Dan Tucker" and half "Walk Tom Wilson," with probably a few other stray elements as well)
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, pp. 30-31, "Walk Tom Walker" (1 text, 1 tune)
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric 128, "Tom Wilson" (1 short text)
Roud #11014
NOTES [88 words]: Many of the versions of this seem to mix freely with "Old Dan Tucker" -- hardly surprising, given that the names have the same scansion and both are talltale songs. Plus Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama's informant says it's primarily a banjo song, which means the the lyrics aren't very important anyway.
Browne-AlabamaFolkLyric's text is a single verse about Tom Wilson getting hit with a snowball. It could certainly belong to some other piece. But since it uses the "Tom Wilson" name, I have filed it here; Roud does the same. - RBW
Walk With Me

DESCRIPTION: 'I'm your child, Lord, I'm your child (x2), When I'm on this old tedious journey, I'm your child...." "Walk with me, Lord, walk with me (x2), When I'm on this... Walk with me." "Hear my pray, Lord, hear my prayer." "Try to sing, Lord, try to sing."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1982 (Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad travel

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, p. 33, "Walk With Me" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #16263

File: Rose033

Walk, Billy Abbott

DESCRIPTION: The response to each line is "weavin' low." The call lines are "Walk Billy Abbot," "Shout Billy Abbot," "Shout I tell you," "Swing your partner"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (LomaxCD1708)

KEYWORDS: nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

Roud #13976

RECORDINGS:
Willis Proctor and the Georgia Sea Island Singers, "Walk, Billy Abbott" (on LomaxCD1708)

NOTES [56 words]: On LomaxCD1708 Lomax is told that this is a "shout" sung at Christmas and New Years. I have no idea what this song is about. The phrases are repeated many times. The cross-rhythmic clapping is typical of Gullah "shout" hymns (William T. Dargan, Lining Out the Word (Chicago: Center for Black Music Research, 2006), pp. 58, 130, 206). - BS

Last updated in version 4.2

File: RcWBiAbb

Walk, Johnny Wilson

DESCRIPTION: "Mean Johnny Wilson went to town (x3), He took a barrel of moonshine down." "The hoop did break and the barrel did swell," killing Wilson. Chorus: "Walk, Johnny Wilson, walk, walk." Other verses about hens, guns, and one-horse towns

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol4)

KEYWORDS: drink death bird

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol4, pp. 45-46, "Walk, Johnny Wilson" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #7042

NOTES [29 words]: This feels like it's assembled from floating verses; it's disjointed and has an easy-to-assemble form. But I don't recognize any of the parts as being found in other songs. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: BwV4045

Walkalong, Miss Susiana Brown

DESCRIPTION: Halyard shanty. No story line to any of the available verses. The characteristic last chorus line is "Walkalong Miss (Susiana/Juliana) Brown."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Colcord-SongsOfAmericanSailormen)

KEYWORDS: shanty worksong
Walkalong, My Rosie

DESCRIPTION: Halyard shanty. "Oh, Rosie, she'm the gal for me. Away you Rosie, Walkalong! She hangs around the big levee. Walkalong my Rosie!" Rhyming verses, no story line.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1961 (Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas)

KEYWORDS: shanty worksong nonballad

FOUND IN: West Indies Britain

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, p. 363, "Walkalong, My Rosie" (1 text, 1 tune) [AbEd, pp. 273-274]

Roud #9130

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Walk Along Rosey

File: Hug363

Walkin' in the Parlor

DESCRIPTION: "I never went to free school nor any other college, But... I will tell you how the world was made in the twinkling of a crack. Walk in, walk in, walk in I say, go in the parlor and hear the banjo ring." Sundry observations about the creation and the Bible

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Scarborough)

KEYWORDS: religious Bible humorous

FOUND IN: US(Ap,Ro,SE,So)

REFERENCES (21 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 177, "Walking in the Parlor" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 288, "History of the World" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 246-248, "History of the World" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 288)
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, pp. 104-105, "Bible Tales" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 341, "Walk in the Parlor" (4 texts plus 1 excerpt and 1 fragment; the "E" text seems more a floating verse collection with this chorus, and "C" lacks the chorus and is at best marginally related)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 341, "Walk in the Parlor" (3 tunes plus text excerpts)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 181-182, "Story of Creation" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hubbard-BalladsAndSongsFromUtah, #178, "The World Was Made in Six Days" (3 texts, 1 tune)
Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, pp. 203-205, "The Darky Sunday School" (1 text, t tune)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, p. 344, "De History ob de World" (1 text)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 351-354, "Darky Sunday School" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 178, "Creation Song" (1 text)
Bush-FSoCentralWestVirginiaVol3, pp. 30-31, "Walk Up In the Parlor" (1 text, 1 tune) Bush-FSoCentralWestVirginiaVol5, pp. 3-4, "The History of the World" (1 text, 1 tune, without a chorus, so it might be a separate song)
Coleman/Bregman-SongsOfAmericanFolks, pp. 90+92-94 (book is mis-paginated), "Live a-Humble" (1 text, 1 tune)
Jones-MinstrelOfTheAppalachians-Bascom-Lamar-Lunsford, p. 246, "Walking in th Parlor" (1 tune, perhaps this) Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, pp. 184-187, "Bible Stories" (1 text, 1 tune, almost certainly composite) Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, pp. 186-189, "Young Folks, Old Folks (or The Silly Sunday School)" (1 text, tune referenced)

DT, SUNSCHOL
ADDITIONAL: Johnny Burke (John White, Editor), _Burke's Ballads_, no printer listed, n.d. (PDF available on Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 59, "The History of the World" (1 text, clearly remade for Newfoundland conditions but close enough to the original that it can still be filed here)
Johnny Burke (William J. Kirwin, editor), _John White's Collection of Johnny Burke Songs_, Harry Cuff Publications, St. John's, 1981, #89, pp. 130-131, "The History of the World" (1 text, clearly remade for Newfoundland conditions but close enough to the original that it can still be filed here)
Roud #766

RECORDINGS:
Charlie Oaks, "Adam and Eve or 'Darkie's Sunday School'" (Vocalion 5113, c. 1927; rec. 1925)
Obed Pickard, "Walking in the Parlor" (Columbia 15246-D, 1928; rec. 1927)
Kilby Reeves, "Walkin in the Parlor" (on Persis1)
Art Thieme, "Walkie in the Parlor" (on Thieme02) (on Thieme06)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Bible Story"
cf. "Windy Bill (I)" (theme)
cf. "Old Jesse" (lyrics)
cf. "Root, Hog, or Die (V)" (lyrics)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Sunday School Song
Walkie in the Parlor
NOTES: Not to be confused with a fiddle tune of the same name. - PJS
The chorus of this song varies quite a bit; the Lomax version is "Young folks, old folks, everybody come, Join our darky Sunday School, and make yourself to hum. There's a place to check your chewing gum and razors at the door, And hear such bible stories as you never heard before."
The Pankakes have something similar, but less racist. (Their version is also incredibly full -- 21 verses!
If they didn't conflate it, someone else did.) The version in Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol3 has a "Walkin'" chorus, but that in Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5 has none.
It is quite likely that these versions originated as separate songs, and I thought about splitting them. But the only distinguishing feature is the choruses. Under the circumstances, it seemed better to place all listings in the same place.
I initially excluded Randolph's "History of the World," partly by accident, as just too distinct from the versions I had seen. It's now clear that it's the same song.
Those who wish to know more are referred to Cox's extensive notes on songs of this type.
Among the sundry references in this song:
"Jonah... took a steerage passage in a transatlantic whale": The Bible says "fish" (for more about this, see the notes to "God's Radiophone"), and the fish never left the Mediterranean, and Jonah wasn't planning on entering the Atlantic either. (Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5 has a curious slip here; Shem falls into the water, and a whale comes along and picks up Jonah, not Shem; one suspects some words have been lost.)
"Esau... sold [his farm] to his brother for a sandwich and a beer": In Gen. 25:29-34, Esau came back hungry from hunting, and sold his birthright (probably pasturage, not a farm) to his younger fraternal twin Jacob for "bread and lentil stew."
"Noah was a mariner... with half a dozen wives and a big menagerie": Although many of the patriarchs had multiple wives, Noah himself seems to have had only one (cf. Gen. 7:7).
"Elijah was a prophet who attended county fairs, He advertised his business with a pair of dancing bears": hardly worth refuting, but it is worth noting that Elijah was a solitary prophet at a time when most prophets came in groups ("the sons of the prophets"). He spent much of his time trying to be left alone, not advertising his services (cf., e.g., 1 Kings 19:3-4, 2 Kings 1:9ff.)
"Ahab had a wife, and her name was Jezebel... She's gone to the dogs... Ahab said he'd never heard of such an awful thing": Jezebel was indeed Ahab's wife, and was eaten by dogs (2 Kings 9:30-37) -- but Ahab had been dead for a dozen years by the time she was killed. "Salome was a chorus girl who had a winning way": This is textually complicated. All accounts say that a girl captivated Herod Antipas by dancing for him, and that he executed John the Baptist as a result. Matt. 14:6 says that the girl was "the daughter of Herodias"; the best manuscripts of Mark 6:22 call her his [Herod's] daughter Herodias. But nowhere is she called "Salome"; we learn this name from Josephus. "Now Joey was unhappy in the bowels of the soil": Refers to the selling of Joseph into Egypt (Genesis 37). Joseph, however, was not a farmer but a herdsman, and there is no evidence he was unhappy; he spent his time dreaming about ruling over his brothers. "Samson was a husky guy from the P.T. Barnum show": While Samson probably belonged in a circus (it's hard to imagine someone so thoroughly inept; had he not been a strong man, he would have been a joke), the Bible tells his story "straight" (Judges 13-16). "Meshach, Shadrach, and Abednego": The Hebrews in the Fiery Furnace (Daniel 3). "Methuselah was crabby 'cause he couldn't save a joke": Methuselah lived longer than any other figure in the Bible (the Hebrew of Gen. 5:25-27 lists him as living to the age of 969), but gives no indication of his character or the length of his whiskers. "Pharaoh kept the Israelites to make his cigarettes": This is almost accurate, in that the Israelites did, in effect, go on strike in Exodus. However, tobacco was not known in Egypt at the time (it grows only in the New World); the Israelites "struck" for the right to worship in their own way, plus better living conditions. "David was a fighter, a plucky little cuss": 1 Samuel 17. "Daniel was a Naughty man, he wouldn't mind the King" -- Formally, Daniel defied the king, but it was actually the King's counselors who came up with the law Daniel defied (Daniel 6). Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol3's version is non-biblical (perhaps cleaned up by some too-religious type?) but equally scandalous, as it accuses George Washington of "courtin'... A darky girl with a wooden leg." That he would court a girl with a wooden leg is most unlikely, but that he would have relations with a Black woman is not; he was, after all, a slaveholder. This raises the possibility that the Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5 version is a conflation of the old religious song and the secular song of Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol3. It reaches Jonah in the Bible -- then shifts to a half-verse about Columbus, a half-verse about the Spanish-American War, a half verse of about the Kaiser taking over France, and two half-verses about Henry Ford making a Tin Lizzy. The Dewey lines run: 'Long come Dewey with the battleship Maine, United States licked the devil out of Spain." The sinking of the Maine of course resulted in the Spanish-American War, but Commodore Dewey had nothing to do with her; for background, see the notes to "My Sweetheart Went Down with the Maine." - RBW

Walking Boss
DESCRIPTION: "Walking boss (x2), I don't belong to you. I belong (x2) to that steel driving crew." "Work one day, just one day, just one day, Then go lay in the shanty two." Etc. Verses loosely descriptive of life on a railroad crew.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (collected by Newman Ivey White)
KEYWORDS: railroading work nonballad worksong boss
FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation): Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 96, "Walking Boss" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7693
RECORDINGS:
Clarence Ashley, "Walking Boss" (on Ashley03, WatsonAshley01)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Take This Hammer" (lyrics)
NOTES [38 words]: A "walking boss" was a foreman who gave orders to workers' immediate supervisors, rather than to the workers themselves.
Source: Clarence "Tom" Ashley recalled this song being sung by railroad workers, probably in the 1920s. - PJS
File: CSW096
Walking Down Canal Street

DESCRIPTION: This formula song chronicles the difficulties the narrator encounters in attempting to (find and) have sex with a whore.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2)

KEYWORDS: bawdy sex whore

FOUND IN: US(MW,Ro,So,SW)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 213-214, "Walking Down Canal Street" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 560-563, "Walking Down Canal Street" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
- Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 61, "Canal Street" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #17938

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Rosemary Lane" ("Bell-bottomed Trousers" tune)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
- This Mornin'

File: EM214

Walking in the Green Grass

DESCRIPTION: "Walking in the green grass, green grass, green grass, Walking in... grass, so early in the morning." One party has come to get married, and chooses (Susie). Two groups discuss how they will overcome obstacles. At last both agree to the wedding

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads)

KEYWORDS: playparty courting marriage travel food

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads, pp. 123-125, "Walking in the Green Grass" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Walking on the Green Grass" (lyrics)

NOTES [29 words]: Roger Abrahams suggests that this is a repurposed version of "Walking on the Green Grass," which is certainly possible, but it's so different that I decided to split them. - RBW

File: ByGo123

Walking in the Light

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "We are walking in the light (x3), "We are walking in the light of God (x2)." Verses: "Hallelujah to the Lamb, Jesus died for every man"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute); 1893 (see notes)

KEYWORDS: Bible nonballad religious floatingverses Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 116-117, "We Are Walking in de Light (Walking in de Light)" (1 text, 1 tune; pp. 102-103 in the 1901 edition) [for 1893 edition, see notes]

Roud #15255

NOTES [228 words]: Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses include the floaters, "If religion was a thing that money could buy, The rich would live and the poor would die" and "I thank God it is not so, The rich and poor together must go," The second and fourth line of each verse is "We are walking in the light."

The Biblical reference is John 1:29: John the Baptist sees Jesus coming and says, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (King James). - BS

And there are many Biblical references to the light and walking in it, especially in John, e.g. John 1:7, "But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the Walking In the Light of God

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Walk you in the light (3x), Walking in the light of God." Verse: Singer says parents should teach their children to pray. He asks his sisters to help him sing as Moses's sister helped him. Elijah declared: only the righteous shall go to heaven.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1874 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)

KEYWORDS: Bible nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 24-25, "Walk You in de Light" (1 text, 1 tune; pp. 238-239 in the 1874 edition)

Roud #15266

NOTES [366 words]: In Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses, every alternate line is "Walkin' in de light o' God."
The reference to Moses's sister helping him to sing is from Exodus 15:1-21: "Then sang Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the Lord .... the horse of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, and the Lord brought again the waters of the sea upon them; but the children of Israel went on dry land in the midst of the sea. And Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron (and Moses), took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances. And Miriam answered them, Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and rider hath he thrown into the sea" (King James). It seems likely that the subject of Miriam's song was not lost on Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's singers.

[Miriam helped Moses in another, even more important way: When Moses was set afloat on the Nile because Pharaoh was killing the Hebrew boys, Miriam watched him and arranged with the daughter of Pharaoh to have Moses's own mother nurse him; Exodus 2:4-8. - RBW]
The Elijah reference is not clear to me. Is this from the very end of the King James Old Testament, Malachi 4? "For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall burn them up... But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise .... Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord: And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to the fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse." - BS

Alternately, perhaps, it is a reference to Elijah's own ascent, in 2 Kings 2:1-12. Elisha, his successor, did not ascend to heaven, but he asked Elijah to inherit his spirit, and Elijah said that if Elisha saw Elijah's ascension, then Elisha would inherit his power. Elisha did see it. Elisha, although he did not ascend, was involved in Elijah's ascension. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.0

File: Dett024

Walking John

DESCRIPTION: "Walking John was a big rope horse" who "was willing and stout and strong," but "he sure enjoyed his joke." Every morning he tried to throw his first rider -- but then settled down to be a hard worker

AUTHOR: Henry Herbert Knibbs

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Knibbs, Songs of the Last Frontier)
Walking on the Green Grass

DESCRIPTION: "Walking on the green grass, Walking side by side, Walking with a pretty girl, She shall be my bride." Boys and girls pair off and dance; the "king" chooses a "queen"; they go around the ring

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903
KEYWORDS: playparty courting dancing nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame pp. 118-119, "(Here we come upon the green grass)" (1 text)
Botkin-TreasuryOfAmericanFolklore, pp. 807-809, "Walking on the Green Grass" (1 text plus a possibly related fragment, 1 tune)
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #162, "Walking on the Green Grass" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST BAF807 (Full)
Roud #1381
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Green Grass (I)" (lyrics)
cf. "Walking in the Green Grass" (lyrics)

NOTES [24 words]: Roud lumps this with "Green Grass (I)," apparently on the basis that they're both playparties about green grass. They look distinct to me. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.5
File: BAF807

Walking the Floor Over You

DESCRIPTION: The singer "walks the floor" because "darling, I know your love ain't true."

AUTHOR: see notes
EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Tubb recording; see notes)
KEYWORDS: courting love nonballad infidelity derivative
FOUND IN: US
RECORDINGS:
Mississippi John Hurt, "Walking the Floor Over You" (on MJHurt05)

NOTES [55 words]: Ernest Tubb wrote and first recorded his song in 1941 on Decca 5958 (Tony Russell, Country Music Records, 1921-1942 (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2008),p. 914). The description is based on the Hurt version. The tune is close to Tubb's but Hurt reworks the Tubb title line and drops all else of the Tubb chorus and verses. - BS

Last updated in version 4.0

File: RcWTF)Y
Wallk-Talky Jenny

DESCRIPTION: Minstrel recitation with chorus: "O, walky-talky Jenny an' a hubble for your trouble...." Incidents include a fight with a racist, an argument with a woman he has rescued from a fire, and an incident with his baby and a dog.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)

KEYWORDS: recitation nonballad Black(s)

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 48-49, "Wallk-Talky Jenny" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: San048

---

Wallbug

DESCRIPTION: Sundry silliness: "Bought an old cow from Farmer Jones, She weren't nothing but skin and bones. Fattened her up as fine as silk; She jumped the fence and skimmed her milk. Wallbug, wallbug, you can't fool me...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl)

KEYWORDS: nonsense animal nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 164, "Wallbug" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, WALLABUG

ST Wa164 (Full)

Roud #7483

File: Wa164

---

Wallaby Brigade, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer boasts of the life of the swagman. He gives advice for finding (or not finding) work, and surviving the travelling life. "When the shearing's at an end we'll go fishing in the bend, Then hurrah for the Wallaby Brigade."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Paterson, _Old Bush Songs_)

KEYWORDS: work sheep Australia rambling

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 186-187, "The Wallaby Brigade" (1 text, 1 tune)
Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads, pp. 37-38, "The Wallaby Brigade" (1 text)

Roud #27797

ALTERNATE TITLES:
cf. "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!" (tune)

NOTES [46 words]: According to Gwenda Beed Davey and Graham Seal, _A Guide to Australian Folklore_, Kangaroo Press, 2003, p. 264, "The Wallaby Brigade" is a "Term for itinerant bush workers carrying their swags in search of work." They believe this song dates from the nineteenth century. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: FaE186

---

Wallaby Joe

DESCRIPTION: "The saddle is hung on the stockyard rail... And never was seen such a regular screw As old Wallaby Joe of Bellegarew." Joe, a horse, wanders off one day. Stockman Bill, his owner, decides to hunt gold; he finds the horse's corpse in his digging

Wallaby Track, The

DESCRIPTION: "Roll up your bundle and make a neat swag, Collar onto your billycan and the old tuckerbag. It's no disgrace to be seen with your swag on your back, While searching for work on the wallaby track."

Wallflowers

DESCRIPTION: Playparty. "Wallflowers, wallflowers, growing up so high, All of you young ladies Are meant to die." One girl is excepted, because of her great skill at (something).
Wallins Creek Girls

DESCRIPTION: Singer and a friend come to Wallins Creek and pick up girls. "The only thing they want to do, smoke cigarettes and car-ride." Men offer boys loose tobacco but the prefer cigarettes. "If [girls] could get them one cigarette, they'd car-ride every day"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1937 (field recording, Daw Hudson)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer and a friend, rounders, come to Wallins Creek and pick up two girls in their car. "The only thing they want to do, smoke cigarettes and car-ride." He says the girls regularly flag drivers down and go from town to town. The men offer the boys Prince Albert (loose tobacco) but they'd rather have Old Gold (rolled cigarettes). Singers says the girls are pretty, but "if they could get them one cigarette, they'd car-ride every day"

KEYWORDS: drugs courting travel technology

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

RECORDINGS:
Daw Henson, "Wallins Creek Girls" (AFS, 1937; on KMM)

File: RcWaCrGi

Walnut Girl, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer meets a pretty walnut vendor. He tells her he's sick of single life, and "O won't we be happy until wedlock breaks us here?" Chorus: "Ten-a-penny walnuts, my Nellie she were by/Fresh from Common Garden, please to come and try...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1974 (collected from Nelson Ridley)

KEYWORDS: courting love marriage beauty commerce work food worker

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 35, "The Walnut Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2520

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Molly Malone" (subject)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Little Walnut Gel
NOTES [136 words]: According to MacColl & Seeger, "When John Lydgate (1370?-1450?) wrote 'The London Lykpeny,' he started a fashion for poems and songs about London's street-vendors and their cries which was to last for more than four hundred years...lavender, oysters, watercresses, pretty flowers, codlings, cockles and mussels, and even cat-meat." Haven't heard that last one.- PJS
Of course, many of these songs are on rather less pleasant topics. Consider "The Oyster Girl" or "Queer Bungo Rye."
I think the claim a little strong anyway; while Lydgate was a prolific author, just try to find anything he wrote! He's usually lumped with the "other poets" of the Chaucerian era. His may well be just another example of an author taking advantage of a popular street form. For more details, see the notes on "The London Lackpenny." - RBW
Last updated in version 3.2
File: McCST035

Walsingham

DESCRIPTION: Coming from "the holy land Of Blessed Walsingham," the singer asks (a jolly palmer) about the singer's love. The (palmer) asks questions and is told that she has left him, but his love endures
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1765 (Percy folio; tune dates at least to 1596)
KEYWORDS: love separation travel
FOUND IN: Britain(England)
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Hales/Furnival-BishopPercysFolioManuscript, volume III, pp. 465-472, "As yee came from the Holye" (1 text)
Percy/Wheatley-ReiquesOfAncientEnglishPoetry II, pp. 101-105, "As Ye Came From the Holy Land" (2 text, one from the Percy folio and the other the touched-up version in the _Reliques_) Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic I, pp. 69-71, "Walsingham" (1 tune, partial text) Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN284, "As I went to Walsingham"
ADDITIONAL: Norman Ault, _Elizabethan Lyrics From the Original Texts_, pp. 282-284, "As You Came From the Holy Land" (1 text)
ST Perc2101 (Partial)
NOTES [916 words]: This piece has been very popular in poetry anthologies; Granger's Index to Poetry lists some two dozen printings, it mentions the attribution to Sir Walter Raleigh, without accepting the attribution.
One of those who tentatively accepts the attribution to Raleigh is Ault, who dates a manuscript containing it (Bodley MS. Rawl. Poet. 85) "before 1600." This dating is also accepted, at least by implication, by Chambers, who also prints the Bodleian text (with no indication of doubt about whether this is by Raleigh.) Of course, Ault also claims that this is "How Should I Your True Love Know." Which it isn't, though it has similar lines; I wouldn't be surprised if this inspired that.
The tune too is different (at least from the version of "How Should I" that I've heard), though again there are some similarities, probably caused more by the metrical form than anything else. Several references mention the great popularity of this song, and it is quoted in John Fletcher and Francis Beaumont's 1611 play "The Knight of the Burning Pestle," Act II, scene vii:
As you came from Walsingham,
From that holy land,
There met you not with my true love
By the way as you came?
There seem to be two openings to the piece, the one above (found also in the Percy folio) and that quoted by Chappell:
As I went to Walsingham,
To the shrine with speed,
Met I with a jolly palmer,
In a pilgrim's weed.
Something similar is quoted in the Pepys collection. I have not seen a full text of the latter, and it is possible that they are distinct, but I cannot prove it. The piece does not seem to survive in oral tradition, but there are enough references to it that I thought it proper to include it here. It also seems to have given rise to yet another song,

King Richard's gone to Walsingham,
To the Holy Land,
To kill the Turk and Saracen, that the truth do withstand....

According to Nettel, p. 89, this song is "traditionally associated with Ophelia," but gives no details. This would argue that the tune predates Raleigh, however. Another popular tune, "The Merry Milkmaids," is supposedly a version of this converted to the major mode. (The version in Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic is in natural minor with some sharpened thirds.) The notes to Chappell and Percy (on "Gentle Herdman, Tell to Me") note that Walsingham was a pilgrimage site at least from the time of Henry III. It seemingly acquired its reputation around the Norman Conquest.

The shrine was the result of a vision by one Richelde de Faverches, who had a vision of the Annunciation to the Virgin Mary (for which see Luke 1:26-38) at Walsingham. Mary told her to make a model of the "Holy House" there (Porter, pp. 117-118). She managed to get the thing built (Kerr, p. 164), and somehow people came to believe that the vision was real and the model was holy. Alexander, p. 308, says that Whit Monday was a particularly popular day for pilgrimages to Walsingham.

Walsingham seems to have been well-patronized -- e.g. Cunningham, p. 12, tells of a pilgrimage to Walsingham by Edward IV and his brother Richard of Gloucester when Edward's throne was under threat by the Earl of Warwick. Allmand, p. 158, mentions that Henry V went there after the Treaty of Troyes made him the heir to the French throne. Edward I visited the site while working on his great alliance in France during the 1290s (Powicke, pp. 665-666). Queen Margaret of Anjou went there in thanks once she finally became pregnant after years of sterility (Laynesmith, p. 111). No doubt other kings went there at less memorable times -- e.g. Henry III, who loved to go on pilgrimage, made one of his journeys there (Tyerman, pp. 339-340).

Ironically, Elizabeth of York, the mother of Henry VIII, went there in 1495.

Nor was the patronage confined to royalty. The Pastons of Norfolk, in the 1400s, were only of the gentry (and relatively new even to that status), but they at least contemplated pilgrimages there and at least once offered a wax statue (Castor, p. 30).

Walsingham figures in other poems as well, also seemingly as a pilgrimage destination. Walter de la Mare, Come Hither, revised edition, 1928, in the notes to #473 prints a fragment beginning, "Gentle herdsman, tell to me, Of courtesy I thee pray, Unto the town of Walsingham Which is the right and ready way" (compare the item in Percy).

The supreme irony came in 1511, when Katherine of Aragon bore a son, Henry, to Henry VIII. The king went on a pilgrimage to Walsingham -- and the baby died after seven weeks (Skidmore, p. 11). One cannot help but wonder if that influenced Henry's later actions. To add to the irony, Henry VIII's chief councilor Cardinal Wolsey once went there to give thanks for recovering from the Sweating Sickness (Scarisbrick, p. 68). Walsingham was closed down in 1538 when Henry VIII dissolved the monasteries. Supposedly people still go on pilgrimage to Walsingham (Kerr, p. 165), but not to the original site; all that still stands of the church at Walsingham is the east wall -- really, not much more than a gateway arch. (The original site was excavated in 1961, according to Porter, p. 118, locating parts of the original construction and one of the original wells by which it was located.) Despite the destruction of the original, the site was re-opened for pilgrimages in 1931 (Alexander, p. 309), although the restored image doesn't look much like we would expect of a Palestinian setting in Roman times (there is a photo following p. 260 of Alexander).

- RBW

Bibliography

- Allmand: Christopher Allmand,Henry V, University of California Press, 1992
- Castor: Helen Castor,Blood & Roses: The Paston Family in the Fifteenth Century, Faber & Faber, 2004
Walter Lesly [Child 296]

description: Walter Lesly invites the girl to drink. He then makes off with her; he intends to marry her (for her money). But he falls asleep before she does, and she escapes. She outruns his men and makes her way home.

author: unknown

earliest date: 1828 (Buchan)

keywords: courting abduction escape money

found in: Britain(Scotland)

references (2 citations):
- "Walter Lesly" (1 text)
- "Walter Lesly" (1 text)

Roud #3925

cross-references:
- cf. "Eppie Morrie" [Child 223] (plot)

notes [149 words]: There was a Walter Leslie who married the heiress of the Earldom of Ross in the reign of David II of Scotland; he was involved in many political quarrels in the reign of the next king, Robert II, and died in 1382. Another Walter Lesley was a crusader in this period. There is no reason to connect either with the villain of this piece except similarity of names (and, of course, the fact that there was a lot of this sort of thing in the anarchic Scotland of Robert II)

For a song with similar plot, and notes on actual historical instances of this sort of abduction-for-money, see the notes to "Eppie Morrie" [Child 223].

R. M. Wilson: The Lost Literature of Medieval England, Philosophical Library, 1952, p. 131, notes that the Complaynt of Scotlande mentions what sounds like a ballad or romance, "the tail of Syr valtir, the bald Leslye," but we know nothing of this except the name. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.8

File: C296

Walter Mullin

description: Walter Mullin "changed his home in Whitneyville For a Canadian soldier's grave ... in the European War" The singer recalls the youth they shared. "Now you are wanted at the Front, But you will not take your stand. O why can't you be like my comrade" author: Wallace Travis (Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi)

earliest date: 1962 (Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi)

keywords: request army war death memorial patriotic

found in: Canada(Mar)

references (1 citation):
- "Walter Mullin" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST MaWi044 (Partial)

Roud #9184

notes [148 words]: Whitneyville, now Whitney, is near the junction of the Little Southwest and Northwest Miramichi Rivers, about 10 miles west of Newcastle, New Brunswick.

Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi: "The song was made up by Wallace Travis of the Nor'West Miramichi, in memory of a friend killed in the First World War."

Since the song is a plea for others to enlist to fight in a war my guess is that this was written during the second World War. - BS
On the other hand, there is no hint of a second War -- or even of the end of the first. I incline to think it comes from the early part of the first War.
This is apparently based on "The Graves of a Household" by one Mrs. Henmans, found in the "Royal Readers" used in the nineteenth century in New Brunswick schools. More evidence for an early date, I'd say; I don't know about you, but I can't remember anything from my grade school readers.... - RBW
File: MaWi044

Waltz the Hall
DESCRIPTION: "First couple out, couple on the right, Charge them pards an' waltz 'em out of sight." "When you're through remember my call, Charge 'em again an' waltz the hall." "Skip to my Lou, boys, skip to my Lou... When you're through remember my call...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: playparty nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Randolph 517, "Waltz the Hall" (1 text, 1 tune)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, pp. 198-199, "Waltz the Hall" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7649 and 7927
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Skip to My Lou" (lyrics)
NOTES [25 words]: Randolph notes that this is derived from "Skip to my Lou," but since it has new lyrics and its own dance elements, it deserves separate listing. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: R517

Waltzing Matilda
DESCRIPTION: A swagman (rover) camps by a pool. He sees a sheep come down to drink, and grabs it. He is spotted by (three troopers/the landowner), who call on him to justify his actions. Rather than face up to his crime, the swagman drowns himself in the pool
AUTHOR: words almost certainly by A. B. "Banjo" Paterson (1864-1941) / original tune fitted (and possibly adapted) by Christina MacPherson; common tune further adapted by Marie Cowan EARLIEST DATE: probably 1895 (reported date Paterson and Christina Macpherson combined text and tune, although the manuscript is not dated); certainly by 1903 (sheet music by Marie Cowan published)
KEYWORDS: sheep suicide robbery ghost rambling
FOUND IN: Australia US
REFERENCES (20 citations):
Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 73-74, 95, "Waltzing Matilda" (2 texts, 1 tune, the latter being a fragment of a bawdy version)
Fahey-Eureka-SongsThatMadeAustralia, pp. 234-235, "The Blackboy's Waltzing Matilda" (1 text, 1 tune -- a pidgin English semi-parody)
Paterson/Fahey/Seal-OldBushSongs-CentenaryEdition, pp. 308-310, "Black Boy's Waltzing Matilda" (1 text -- the same adaption as the preceding)
Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 119, "Waltzing Matilda' (1 text)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H566, pp. 122-123, "Waltzing Matilda" (1 text, 1 tune -- but collected from Australian children rather than Ulster natives)
Manifold-PenguinBookOfAustralianSongbook, pp. 160-163, "Waltzing Matilda" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Ward-PenguinBookOfAustralianBallads, pp. 180-181, "Waltzing Matilda" (1 text)
Stewart/Keesing-FavoriteAustralianBallads, p. 195, "Waltzing Matilda" (1 text)
Shay-BarroomBallads/PiousFriendsDrunkenCompanions, pp. 122-124, "Australian Highwayman's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 216, "Waltzing Matilda" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 339, "Waltzing Matilda" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 619-620, "Waltzing Matilda"
DT, WALTZMAT*
Virtually every aspect of this song -- its historical basis, its words, its tune(s) - has been the subject of disputation, although there is now consensus among scholars on the following basic facts:

1. While visiting Dagworth station (a pastoral holding in outback Queensland) in 1895, the poet A.B. (Banjo) Paterson heard a tune hummed and played on the autoharp by Miss Christina McPherson, sister of station manager Robert McPherson. [Dagworth is on the Diamantina River, a wide, marshy stream that had many water holes. The nearest important town seems to have been Winton, but it was a long way away. Robert McPherson managed Dagworth from 1884 to 1907; May, p. 14.]

2. Miss McPherson indicated she had heard the tune some time previously at a race meeting in Warrnambool in Victoria, played by a local band. She understood the tune was called "The Bonnie Wood of Craigielea." (A ballad of this name by Robert Tannahill of Scotland was set to music by Robert Barr in the early 1800s and, according to Magoffin, a march arrangement by Gordon Parker was performed at the Warrnambool races on 24 April 1894. [For this cf. Magoffin, pp. 28-29; he however cautions that the tunes are significantly different. On p. 38, Magoffin describes the evidence that the song was played at Warrnambool. - RBW.] At Dagworth Miss McPherson rendered the tune from memory.

3. While at Dagworth Paterson wrote words to fit Miss McPherson's tune. The words he wrote were those of the poem/song "Waltzing Matilda."

4. Paterson's setting of McPherson's tune was quickly picked up and sung around the district, including at the Winton races on 24 and 25 May 1895.

5. At these races Christina McPherson wrote out and gave to family friends the Barlams the song's words and music. (This manuscript only came to light in 1971. Its authenticity has since been verified by, for example, by the National Library of Australia, which included it in its recent major exhibition of treasures from the world's libraries.) [That date is slightly uncertain, e.g. Lindner, p. 211, dates the discovery "around 1972" - RBW.]

6. Following the Winton race meeting the song travelled further afield, entering oral tradition. In the process the song's words (and possibly also its tune) evolved through the "folk process." The major change was that Paterson's wimpish "drowning himself by the Coolibah tree" in the last verse gave way to the more defiant "'You'll never catch me alive!' said he."

7. The song first appeared on sheet music in 1903, published in Sydney by James Inglis & Co. While the lyrics were attributed to Paterson they were in fact the "folk processed' words (possibly with additional textual changes introduced by the publisher); the music was cited as being "arranged' by Marie Cowan. Cowan was the spouse of Mr. W. Cowan, James Inglis & Co.'s Manager. (Cowan's version has similarities with, but is distinct from, the tune in the McPherson manuscript. The extent to which the Cowan version reflects the tune as it evolved through oral transmission, and the extent to which it incorporates changes introduced by Mrs. Cowan, is not known. While Mr. Cowan later claimed the sheet music tune was entirely his wife's composition, its similarities with that in the 1895 McPherson manuscript suggests 'arrangement' was indeed the more appropriate term.) The sheet music version became the standard rendering of the song.

8. Paterson gave his approval to the 1903 sheet music text and music. Fourteen years later he included his original text as a poem in his book Saltbush Bill J.P. and Other Verses. An entirely different tune, set to Paterson's original 1895 lyric, was obtained in the early 1950s by John Manifold from John O'Neill, who later indicated he had heard his father singing it around 1912. This is known as the Queenslander, or sometimes the "Buderim," version.

There have been suggestions the song predates 1895, and so was, at best, modified by Paterson. Certainly, it is possible that Paterson, either consciously or unconsciously, drew upon an earlier song in writing his text. Claims however that the song itself predates Paterson rely upon second-hand accounts of persons who claim to remember hearing it prior to 1895 [in particular one Rufus Perrin, who claimed his father had known the song in the 1870s; Lindner, p. 211. This obviously amounts to hearsay evidence - RBW]. No documentary evidence to support this proposition has come to light, and these days the claim is given little credence.

In 1941 the suggestion was raised via the Sydney Bulletin that the tune and word structure of Waltzing Matilda is based upon a song 'The Bold Fusilier' which, on account of its reference to the Duke of Marlborough, was assumed to date from the early 1700s. Several correspondents attested to the song's existence. One claimed to have heard it as a child in England, another to have heard it in Australia from his grandfather. The tune was said to be recognisable as that used for Waltzing Matilda, and while only one verse and a chorus of the text were remembered in either case, a strong structural resemblance to that song was apparent. Unfortunately, extensive efforts by scholars to trace the song have thus far been fruitless, and no full text, musical notation or other documentary evidence of its existence prior to 1895 has come to light.

The 'Bold Fusilier' vs 'Craigilea' debate impacts hardly at all on Paterson's claim to authorship. Should further research establish the existence of the Bold Fusilier prior to 1895, then obviously it is a possibility that Paterson knew of it and drew upon its word structure in writing Waltzing Matilda. A number of Australian bush songs are parodies, and so such a circumstance would be unremarkable. Regarding the Bold Fusilier tune we can say little, for at present the only version of it we have dates from the 1940s, some four decades after the publication of the Cowan tune for Waltzing Matilda. In that time all manner of opportunity existed for failures or tricks of memory to occur.

For these various reasons, the consensus in Australia is clear: Paterson wrote the words in 1895 to a tune played from memory by Christina McPherson, and subsequently both text and tune evolved in oral transmission. Further changes may have been introduced consciously at the time the song was published as sheet music in 1903. - MK

The above was written in response to my original rather caustic comments about the authorship of "Waltzing Matilda." I must admit that I still have some misgivings. And, being the editor, I get to rebut...

First, I think it likely that "The Bold Fusilier" is an authentic folk song, and most unlikely that it was composed after "Waltzing Matilda" -- although May, p. 17, cites Ann Gilchrist's opinion that the song was popular rather than folk; she thinks it real but does not think that a folk song of that era would have used this rhythmic pattern. Nor do I regard it as believable that this stanza form would have been evolved independently by Paterson. Of course, the likeliest explanation is that he wrote his text to fit a Christina MacPherson's tune, so that's no argument; the real question is whether "The Bold Fusilier" influenced "Waltzing Matilda" or if the two are independent.

Richardson, pp. 113-116, outlines an hypothesis that the "Bold Fusilier" tune, being about the War of the Spanish Succession, was somehow associated with the Germans who went "auf der walz" with their "matildas" more on that below). I think this most unlikely -- but I agree with the statement on p. 116 that "The Bold Fusilier" is "So close... to 'Waltzing Matilda' that a direct creative link is indisputable." The only question is, which influenced the other? Richardson, p. 117, mentions several early allusions to 'The Bold Fusilier," and on p. 214 mentions a claim that Kathleen Cooper heard part of it from her grandfather, who had it from his grandfather (born c. 1760) -- but she never got to hear the whole song, apparently because it was dirty. None of these mentions is individually particularly compelling (since they're all after the fact); it is only collectively, and when combined with the fact that the song only makes sense when referring to the War of the Spanish Succession, that the claim that it is early becomes strong. It should be admitted, though, that all mentions of the tune are post-Waltzing Matilda. So it is theoretically possible that there was an old "Bold Fusilier" text which used a different tune, and that it picked up the "Waltzing Matilda" tune later.

On the other hand, the claim that Christina MacPherson must have known "Thou Bonnie Woods of Craigielie" has its problems too. It is true that she attended an event, the 1894 Warrnambool races, where it was played (the photo insert following p. 150 of O'Keeffe shows the program for the race she attended, although not the list of songs; Richardson, p. 118, has the musical program, on which the march "Craigielea" is listed). That's strong evidence, although not quite proof, that she heard the piece. But....

Anyone who knows anything about human memory knows that the fact that Christina MacPherson once heard "Craigielea" does "not" mean she would remember it based on that one hearing; this is extraordinarily unlikely. If anything, she would remember a tune she actually knew which sounds a little like "Craigielea." We know that the tune she actually played was not identical to the one she would have heard (Richardson, p. 25). To put it another way, although there is good reason to think MacPherson heard "Craigilie," there is every reason to think she remembered something more familiar which sounded a bit like "Craigilie" -- which might (or might not) be "The Bold Fusilier." Richardson, p. 119, explains the differences between MacPherson's tune and "Craigielie" (and, for that matter, the differences between MacPherson's tune and the common version of "Waltzing Matilda") as due to the effects of oral tradition. Possible, but the amount of assimilation is curious. Richardson's conclusion, p. 119, is that "However firmly common sense says 'Fusilier', historical research keeps saying 'Craigielie'" ("Craigielie" being the name Godfrey Parker used for his arrangement of "Thou Bonnie Woods of Craigieliea" that converted it to a march; Richardson, pp. 119-120). The difference is that I don't trust memories as much as Richardson does. This does not affect Paterson's authorship of the lyrics of "Waltzing Matilda" in any way, of course, merely the source of the tune that was used. But I think dependence a practical certainty.

It strikes me as curious that Paterson wrote this piece for music, but his other poetry is just that: Poetry, and rarely in a style suitable for folk song (although he did create the text of a play, "Club Life," that had music added by Ernest E. P. Truman; Lindner, p. 200). Indeed, O'Keeffe, p. 242, says he was tone deaf! (O'Keeffe argues that this means that Christina MacPherson must have had more to do with writing the song than is usually admitted, but this is true only if words and music were created at the same time -- and that is only possible with a singable tune, which the tune as transcribed by MacPherson is not.) In 1956, Russell Ward pointed out that the song is unlike anything else Paterson wrote (Richardson, p. 150), and although Richardson, p. 182, suggests that this is merely Paterson being whimsical and preserving local words, he does mention some words Paterson does not use elsewhere (including "jumbuck" and, indeed, "waltzing Matilda"). Some have taken it as evidence that Paterson did not write the poem; I would instead consider it support for the hypothesis that Paterson was influenced by something older.

John Meredith met informants who claimed "their" sources (fathers) knew the song before Paterson's composition. None of these claims can be verified, and all are secondhand -- but of course written records of Australian folk songs before 1895 are quite rare. We might also mention that May, pp. 38-40, has a whole list of variants on the received story that were told by his witnesses, although I think May is correct to dismiss all of them; they generally don't make chronological sense.

There are scholars, such as John Greenway, who clearly did not believe in Paterson's authorship (although, ironically, when Greenway recorded the song, he used words that in some ways were closer to Paterson's than is the received text). Learmonth, p. 408, says that Paterson's alleged authorship of Waltzing Matilda is uncertain, and p. 569 quotes Oscar Mendelsohn's A Waltz with Matilda as attributing the music to one Harry Nathan and doubting Paterson's authorship of the words. Even John Meredith had his doubts. Most of these stated their opinions before the MacPherson manuscript was discovered. But the manuscript, while it strengthened the arguments on the pro-Paterson side, did not weaken those on the anti- side. (Lindner, p. 7, observes that the MacPherson manuscript is undated. While there isn't really any doubt that MacPherson and Paterson started the chain of transmission, there is real doubt as to when they did so.) Thus, despite Keith McKenry's well-researched statements above, I still consider the matter slightly open -- especially with regard to the tune; my feeling is that MacPherson's tune is not a modified form of "Craigielie" but rather "The Bold Fusilier."
Another possibility, which I have not seen mentioned, is that Paterson included some fragments of an existing song into a largely new composition based on a local event. This frankly feels right to me -- it would explain the informants who thought they knew the song before 1895 -- but again there is no evidence whatsoever for it.

There is also the interesting fact that there are variations in the tune and chorus form. Manifold, p. 122, recalls learning the piece: "Not very long before Mr. May's book came out, John O'Neil of Buderim gave me a totally different version. His version was nothing like 'Craigielie', but his words were Paterson's own, as published in Saltbush Bill J.P. in 1917. Yet he had good reason to remember learning both tune and words from his father in 1915, before Saltbush Bill J.P. came out. MacDougall, p. 300, declares that "The tune of the 'Queensland' version has a bouncier melody than the slow one sung in the south." Magoffin, p. 81, explains the "Queensland" tune, as having arisen from the piano playing of one Josephine Pene, which, like everything else in this story, is possible -- but requires a lot of people to remember a minor performer's piano playing! If Pene did learn the tune, it was from someone close to the source: she had an illegitimate son by Bob MacPherson, Christina MacPherson's older brother, who managed the Dagworth station until it failed in 1906 (Richardson, p. 82).

For more on Christina MacPherson -- specifically her infancy -- see the notes to "The Death of Morgan."

Christina MacPherson had more to do with the song than just supplying the tune -- she was the link that brought Banjo Paterson to Dagworth, where many claim wrote his text (although MacPherson later recalled teaching Paterson the tune at Winton, not Dagworth; Lindner, pp. 233-234). Christina was a friend of Sarah Riley, who was engaged to Paterson (Richardson, p. 26, says they had been engaged for eight years, which tells us either how little money Paterson had at the time or how unwilling he was to commit; Lindner, p. 34, based on what is known of their respective schedules, thinks he rarely actually saw Riley!); Paterson, who had just had his first book published (Manifold, p. 118), went to the MacPherson home at Dagworth when Riley paid a holiday visit to her friend (Magoffin, p. 40; Richardson, p. 42, suggests that some of Paterson's memories of this trip influenced his novel An Outback Marriage).

Most students of the song have dated the meeting of Paterson and MacPherson to January 1895. However, Lindner, pp. 158-159, says that Christina, her sister Jean, and her widowed father Ewen did not set out for Dagworth until June 1, 1895, and probably arrived around June 20 -- in other words, in Australian winter, not Australian summer -- and Paterson wasn't there yet. (Lindner, p. 227, adds that neither Paterson nor MacPherson ever said the song was written at Dagworth; that claim is from secondary sources. However, it must have been written at about the time they visited Dagworth, because that was the only time they were together.)

May, p. 16, makes an observation that is relevant to Lindner's point, although he does not draw the conclusion: In January the ranch workers tended to work early and late to avoid the extreme summer heat. There was little time or energy for the evening conversation which allegedly inspired Paterson. In June, when temperatures were cooler, it would have been much easier to tell stories such as those which supposedly underlie the song.

Despite being engaged, O'Keeffe, p. 13, suggests that Paterson had a "love affair" with Christina MacPherson. Lindner, p. 40, reprints a newspaper article headed "How Banjo won Christina's heart." There seems to have been a tradition in the MacPherson family that she at least was interested in him, and this tradition has some support from the Riley family (Lindner, pp. 40-41). The one thing that is certain is that he never married Riley, who moved to England after they split (Richardson, p. 83; O'Keeffe, p. 243); when he finally wed, it was to Alice Walker, eight years after his visit to Dagworth (O'Keeffe, p. 14. It probably won't surprise readers that Paterson the skirt-chaser was 39 when he married, his bride just 26; Lindner, p. 207).

No one seems to have offered any direct evidence that Paterson was interested in MacPherson. And I'm not convinced that the fact that MacPherson never married is evidence; by 1895, she was 31 and already arguably a spinster, and by all accounts quite introverted; with that history; there is no need to postulate a broken romance with Paterson to explain why she remained single. (Interestingly, three of her brothers never married either; May, p. 26. That's out of nine MacPherson children.) Her letters show that she didn't even know how to spell Paterson's name (she spelled it "Patterson"; see Lindner, p. 233.) And Lindner, p. 171, believes that Paterson may only have been at Dagworth for a week, and certainly no more than six; that would have to be one fast fling! On this basis, Lindner, p. 172, conjectures that the song was written some time between August 11 and August 31, 1895.

What's more, MacPherson and Riley were still engaged in friendly correspondence more than twenty years later (Lindner, p. 190). What are the odds of that if MacPherson had broken up Riley's engagement?
O'Keeffe's suggestion of an affair with MacPherson may derive from Paterson's second book An Outback Marriage (published in 1900; Lindner, p. 204) which tells of a love triangle (Richardson, p. 83). If Paterson truly was describing his own life (and Lindner, p. 206, admits "remarkable" parallels), then yes, it would seem he had an affair with MacPherson. But even if An Outback Marriage is purely autobiographical, would he really have told his own story exactly as it happened?

O'Keeffe, pp. 236-238, also cites testimony from Dianna Baillieu, who knew her grand-aunt Christina MacPherson well when Baillieu was very young but only recounted the tale something like three-quarters of a century later -- and claimed that Paterson was ordered to get away from Dagworth. Baillieu was definitely close to Christina; the MacPherson manuscript was in her possession (Lindner, pp. 53-54; p. 261 says that Christina left her papers to her sister Margaret, who left them to her daughter Mim, who left them to Baillieu). Even so, this strikes me as weak evidence, although better than the argument from Paterson's book.

Richardson, p. 84, reminds us that "There is nothing else to affirm the implication that any feeling between Banjo and Chris busted his ties with Sarah," although he adds that Paterson was "a heartless flirt. One letter writer says he 'jilted' Sarah; another, cryptically, suggests she had to drop him because of the attentions he paid to the sewing mistress at Dagworth." (Note that, if Paterson was indeed chased from Dagworth, those attentions, rather than an affair with Christina, might be the explanation. Lindner, p. 252, softens this somewhat: "Banjo was never expelled ('kicked off')" Dagworth Station for his conduct there, but the MacPherson brothers resolved not to invite him back, it seems." Manifold's great-aunt told him, "Paterson was highly attractive to women, and seldom out of girl-trouble until he married Alice Walker of Tenterfield in 1903 (Manifold, p. 120).

What is certain is that Paterson and Riley split up soon after; by October 1895, Paterson was described as engaged to one Alice Cape; Lindner, p. 187 -- though he was still dating other women at the time (Lindner, p. 198). Which to me argues that Paterson must already have been close to Cape by the time he went to Dagworth, and certainly that his eye was wandering; by the sound of things, if Paterson had an affair, it was with Cape, not MacPherson!)

The story of a water-hole haunted by a man drowned there certainly predates this song. Hole, p. 10, refers to an English spot called "Hoggett's Hole. There Thomas Hoggett, a highwayman, was drowned in the eighteenth century while escaping from the watch. His ghost haunted the pool and has since drowned many...."

Although the story in the song is similar to the Hoggett tale, it is widely believed that Paterson took the story from a local event. May p. 2, declares unequivocally that "the drowning of the swagman at Combo Waterhole provided the story." There had been a drowning near Dagworth in 1891, which sounds like this -- but it didn't wasn't reported as a suicide, or a confrontation with patrollers, and no one saw it happen (Lindner, pp. 109-110); no one seems to think it provided any inspiration.

Lindner, pp. 273-275, reprints the record of the inquest; it is extremely sketchy, but simply labels the death a drowning and lists no suspects or true witnesses.

Magoffin, pp. 55-57, gives a slightly different story, concerning the death by gunshot (formally listed as a suicide) of Samuel "Frenchy" Hoffmeister, who reportedly had been engaged in a raid on Dagworth during the 1894 shearers' strike. (The strike was very bitter, and had resulted in shearers burning a number of sheds; that at Dagworth was the eighth and last to be burned; O'Keeffe, p. 200. Hoffmeister himself is so ill-documented that his country of origin is not certain and there is more than a ten year discrepancy in listed birth dates; Lindner, pp. 105-107. Lindner, p. 271, gives a transcript of Hoffmeister's death certificate; apparently Queensland does not make copies of the originals. It lists him as 43 years old and born in "Batavia," which is not a nation but which also appears on Hoffman's naturalization certificate, an actual copy of which appear on p. 272.)

The parallel with the song is poor -- Hoffmeister died of a gunshot, not by drowning. And Magoffin's evidence for this presents itself as a verbatim transcript of the conversation of those who had raided Dagworth. What, someone made a tape recording decades before tape recorders were invented? (It's those sorts of claims that make me so hyper-skeptical. Lindner, pp. 74-78, demonstrates that there is strong reason to distrust the results of the inquest -- there was the possibility of collusion of the witnesses, and even so, there were inconsistencies in the testimony.) Nonetheless O'Keeffe, p. 112, states the connection between song and the death of Hoffmeister as fact, and it is likely enough that Paterson, who worked as a journalist, was interested in the story of the raid on Dagworth when he visited there with Sarah Riley (Magoffin, p. 60; this raid was the last significant act of the shearers' strike of 1894).

Richardson, p. 61, reports that station owner MacPherson and three constables went to investigate the Hoffmeister suicide, hinting that the squatter and three troopers of the song are an allusion to this party. Note, however, that in history, these three showed up after Hoffmeister died; they did not induce his death. And the means of suicide was different anyway. If it was suicide; O'Keeffe, pp.
214-219, is sure there was some sort of a cover-up, and seems to think Hoffmeister was murdered to break the shearers' strike. (As with much in O'Keeffe, I think he turns a possibility into a certainty. Yes, the inquest into Hoffmeister's death was hurried, but this was the Queensland frontiers; what did he expect -- C.S.I. Australia?) In Lindner's reconstruction, Paterson was nowhere near the site when all this happened, although later letters show that he did know of some of the events near Dagworth (Lindner, p. 216).

The billabong involved in the story is said to be an actual billabong by Dagworth, an artificially improved place called the "Combo" (Magoffin, p. 66, although Richardson, p. 73, points out that some texts have the swagman camp "in the billabongs" rather than "by a billabong." A billabong, according to Morris, p. 29, is "an effluent from a river, returning to it, or often ending in sand, in some cases running only in flood time"; his earliest citation of the word is from 1860). Supposedly it was there that Paterson was told the story that he converted into this text, but Magoffin, p. 68, admits that no one died there by suicide or drowning, and that the Combo is hardly large enough to allow death by drowning.

Much has been made of this reconstruction originally offered by Magoffin, but it's important to keep in mind that it is entirely reconstruction. Lindner, p. 46, says, "Sydney May, the first historian to research the song, made no reference to the strike at all. Presumably neither did any of his informants in the early 1940s" -- the only witnesses testimony we have, even if it is very late and from peripheral sources. We might also mention that May, pp. 38-40, has a whole list of variants on the story told by his witnesses, although I think May is correct to dismiss all of them; they generally don't make chronological sense.

Magoffin, pp. 69-70, claims that Paterson was at a meal at Dagworth when a worker there came in and reported that little had happened that day; "only a bagman waltzing Matilda down along the river." Not knowing the terminology, Paterson asked for an explanation and was told that the term "waltzing Matilda" was the local terminology for what elsewhere was known as "humping bluey." (It is interesting that Jack Carter, the man who told him this, was a jackaroo, according to Manifold, p. 119 -- meaning that he didn't have much experience outside the city. So his vocabulary may have been atypical of the time and place.) This inspired the text, with MacPherson's melody giving him the tune. However, Lindner, p. 230, says this report is second-hand hearsay (that is, the report of someone who heard it from someone who heard it from yet a third source).

Richardson, p. 109, claims Bob MacPherson, brother of Christina MacPherson, "must have" been the inspiration for the "squatter mounted on his thoroughbred," presumably since Bob MacPherson was a landowner who liked horses; this strikes me as conceivable but very far from certain, although at least one of his obituaries included the claim, and stated it as fact (Lindner, p. 97).

To account for the variations in the text, Magoffin claims that one Herbert Ramsey learned the song from Paterson and Co. and spread it in the area of Winton (Magoffin, p. 76). Thus it supposedly went into oral tradition even before it was published. He suggests that defiant shearers, defeated in the union struggles of 1894, supplied the well-known line "You'll never take me alive," instead of Paterson's "Drowning himself by the coolibah tree." Certainly the traditional line is better than Paterson's; I'm not sure that that is proof that Paterson's line is older.

MacDougall hints that says that one Marie Cameron of the firm Inglis and Co. (makers of Billy Tea) fiddled with the words and tune to make it fit their products; this might explain the variation. The name "Cameron" is, however, an error; Davey/Seal, pp. 264-265, also tell this story, but call the woman "Marie Cowan," as in McKentry's account above. Magoffin, p. 84-85, claims, on the basis of two witnesses rather than an extant copy, that the song was first printed in 1902 in Hughenden. But the first seemingly-official copy, with a piano arrangement by Marie Cowan, came out in 1903.

Curiously, although this was the first widely-available edition, it differs in several particulars from the standard version. (As well as being pitched in the well-nigh unsingable key of F. Magoffin does not say so, but there were significant differences in this version from MacPherson's transcription in the equally unlikely key of E; the fact that MacPherson's transcription requires the singer to repeatedly hit the A two octaves above Middle C really makes me wonder about why she transcribed it so. Magoffin, pp. 111-112, says that some have called MacPherson's transcription un-performable; I am inclined to agree. Someone really should do some sleuthing about the music of the two versions. It is curious to note that one of the two "MacPherson Manuscripts" comes not from the MacPherson or Paterson families but from the family of W.B. Bartlam, who lived in the area of Dagworth but was not part of the MacPherson family; Lindner, p. 185).

The Cowan edition, with its slightly modified tune and altered words (which were approved by Paterson; Richardson, p. 114) was supported by James Inglis of the Billy Tea company, who included it in tea packages (apparently because it refers to the swagman waiting for his billy to boil), though he had a disagreement with Cowan over using the song for advertising purposes (Magoffin, pp. 85-87). Richardson, p. 115, suggests that Paterson himself supplied the song, and a manuscript of MacPherson's transcription -- and offers the possibility that Cowan saw elements of "The Bold Fusilier" in the tune, and moved it closer to that song. One of the biggest changes in the song was making the swagman "jolly"; this was intended to help tea sales. Cowan also removed the mention of the Matilda "leading the waterbag" (Richardson, p. 134) which is still found in some traditional texts.

Manifold, p. 124, says "My father learnt 'Waltzing Matilda' by ear on Sesbania Station, adjoining Oondooroo as it was, shortly before the printed version began to achieve popularity. He used a tune that different from the printed (Cowan) tune only to the extent of a bar or two; but it did differ; and that is how I have inherited a slight feeling of distrust and possibility to the Cowan version." But Cowan's tune really has only a bar or two of difference from MacPherson's, with the difference being in the first line where it is most noticeable; did Manifold's father learn the original tune? We can't tell now.

Richardson's conclusion, on p. 128, is that "The hybrid tune [Cowan] finished with scans with the lyrics, and sounds like the song as we know it today. Its grandmother is 'Craigielee,' its mother is Chris MacPherson's melody. As for the father's identity, we admit it's not so easy to be sure, but readily suspect 'The Bold Fusilier.'" The difficulty with this, obviously, is that it means that Paterson and "The Bold Fusilier" had to come up with their unusual stanza pattern independently.

Eventually there was a dispute between the Cowan estate and one Thomas Wood, who had printed and helped popularize the song. Both eventually received part of the credit. As for Christina MacPherson, or (horrors!) oral tradition... there was neither credit nor royalties (Magoffin, p. 88).

Much later, there was a copyright controversy over who owned the rights to the song (described on pp. 102-112 of Magoffin), but that was really over the rights, not the authorship; it doesn't have much importance for the history of the song. Fights over the copyright also included a 1941 attack on Paterson's authorship (a fight which took place soon after Paterson's death) to eliminate his copyright claim (Magoffin, p. 109). This is presumably the 1941 claim referred to by McKenry above. I'll admit that, if anything, the fact that it was lawyers rather than folklorists who were involved in the fight strengthens rather than weakens Paterson's case. On the other hand, the way Magoffin treats "The Bold Fusilier" rather balances that off. He ignores the piece until p. 117, when he declares that "no manuscript or sheet music has ever been found," which he implies makes it a fake. But, of course, what it really implies is folk origin, which is exactly the argument that it is the source for "Waltzing Matilda." Elsewhere, he implied that English troops in the Boer War took over "Waltzing Matilda" and set their own lyrics (Richardson, p. 212), which makes very little sense; it assumes, first, that the English troops remember "The Bold Fusilier" despite not having a tune (which is hard to believe); second, that "The Bold Fusilier" came by this stanza pattern independently; and third, apparently, that the troops in the Boer War anticipated Marie Cowan's tune. To me, this boggles belief.

Also, the 1903 sheet music already calls the song "Popular." How exactly could it be popular if it had never been published and was recently composed?

Australians reported taking the song abroad as early as the Boer War (Magoffin, p. 80), which is an extremely rapid spread. These same travelers reportedly carried the song to Sydney. As Keith McKenry say, Paterson's version was published in 1917 in Saltbush Bill and Other Verses, then again in a 1918 book intended for the troops in World War I (Richardson, p. 138) -- but it seems to have been known by the soldiers by then.

Regarding the tune, it is noteworthy that Paterson reported that Christina MacPherson played her tune on the autoharp (Magoffin, p. 65; Lindner, p. 242). Autoharps of course existed in 1895 (the instrument was patented in 1882), but the instrument was still in its infancy, with fewer chord bars, and it was still generally played on the lap. I strongly doubt MacPherson could actually render a tune on the thing. (In this regard, Lindner's alternate chronology would make a lot more sense, since MacPherson might have taught the tune to Paterson on the piano, where she could genuinely render the tune.)

The claim that the tune is "The Bonnie Wood of Craigielea" is extraordinarily complicated. As Richardson points out on p. 108, the tune of "Craigielea" (original words by Robert Tannahill, with music by James Barr) cannot be made to fit "Waltzing Matilda," nor vice versa. However, the tune of "Craigielea" was arranged as a march by Thomas Bulch, who signed his arrangement as by Godfrey Parker and called it "The Craigielea March"; it was this that Christina MacPherson heard (O'Keeffe, pp. 226-227).

However, according to Paterson, Christina MacPherson did not know where she learned it, and told him "It hasn't got any words that I know of, but it must have had at some time. I believe it was an old Scottish hymn" (Richardson, p. 71) or "It hasn't any words that I now of, but it must have had at one time. I believe it is an old Scottish tune" (Manifold, p. 119). MacPherson herself recorded that "I could not tell him" what the song was (O'Keeffe, pp. 257-258, full text in Lindner, p. 233), reporting a letter which was never sent -- which hints to me that perhaps she doubted what she wrote. She certainly never reported what the tune actually was. In other words, she did "not" tell anyone that it was "Craigielea," although she did claim to have heard it at the Warrnambool races. Based on this, various people sleuthed out that she likely heard Craigielea played as a march in 1894 -- but that's not proof that she gave that melody to Paterson, even in modified form; it's not often that one learns a tune, even imperfectly, on one hearing when one has not even played it! The whole hypothesis is based on a minor implausibility: That MacPherson's memory was so good that she could recall a melody based on one hearing, but was so bad that she couldn't recall anything else about this melody that so took her fancy that she memorized it! This even though she could have had a printed program with the title on it, but could not have had the sheet music.
Richardson, p. 122, also notes that Paterson was Australia's first collector of bush songs -- in other words, if anyone at Dagworth had known "The Bold Fusilier," it would be him. Is it possibly that he knew the song and his version influenced MacPherson's memory? For this we have no evidence.
(Indeed, we know she had to reconstruct the music, because one of the MacPherson manuscripts
-- reprinted on p. 54 of Lindner -- shows only the pitches of the notes, not the timings.)
To be sure, Paterson's accounts are inconsistent; late in life he said he got the tune from Jean MacPherson McCowan, the sister of Christine MacPherson (Magoffin, p. 72; Lindner, p. 242).
That's a pretty drastic error, which seems to confuse Christina MacPherson with her sister and with Marie Cowan all at once! (Magoffin, p. 106. To be fair, Jean had gone to Dagworth along with Christina and Ewen MacPherson , only to fall in love with and marry a local; Lindner, p. 159).
Nonetheless there seems little doubt that Christina MacPherson's manuscript is the oldest transcription of the song; Magoffin, p. 78, records the tests to which the copy was put, which include both subjective (handwriting comparison) and absolutely objective (examination of the paper, pen, and ink).
According to Richardson, p. viii, "Chris" MacPherson, whose tune probably had more to do with making "Waltzing Matilda" popular than did even Paterson himself, soon after returned to Melbourne (although Lindner, p. 186, says that it wasn't until May 28. 1896 that she returned there), where she lived the rest of her life. She never married, and never got much recognition for her role. Indeed, the MacPhersons, who had hosted Paterson at Dagworth, had devoted too much of their money into buying the place, and when they failed to get the income from shearing that they expected, they went bankrupt and lost the property (Richardson, p. 13).
To sum up both the evidence and my own conclusions, my personal hypothesis differs both from the standard story and the revisionists. Christina MacPherson supplied the tune, but I don't think it was a botched-up version of "Craigielea"; I think it was a botched-up "Bold Fusilier"; she simply didn't remember the source of what she had heard. The text is mostly Paterson's, but he borrowed some words and ideas, and oral tradition perhaps transferred in a few other words, which would explain why people thought they had heard the song before he wrote it: They had heard "parts" of it. Thus the standard story is mostly correct -- Paterson created the first complete text, and MacPherson supplied the tune. But the text has older elements -- and the tune probably was somewhat modified by MacPherson, meaning that she arguably deserves some credit as composer, not just supplier of the tune, although not full composition credit.
Of course, others will continue to disagree.Lindner, p. 255, concludes his main narrative, "The history of the origins of Waltzing Matilda remains incomplete. There may be more to the story, but that depends on the disclosure of family secrets by descendants of those whose lives touched the narrative over 120 years ago."
A few other points about the song. All commentators agree that the swagman in the song did not grab a jumbuck (sheep) and stuff it, whole and presumably alive, into his tucker-bag. Rather, he took it, killed it, butchered it, possibly cooked it, and put some of the meat in his bag (so, e.g.
Richardson, pp. 78-79). This was a major complaint of the station-owners: not only did rovers steal the sheep, they weren't even efficient about it, taking only some of the meat and leaving the rest to rot, and spoiling the fleece and the hide while they were at it. This widespread practice didn't really cost the owners much more than if the swagman had eaten the whole sheep, but it added insult to injury.
Beatty, pp. 11-12, discusses the origin of the term "Waltzing Matilda" itself. Although mentioning many tales about how the term came to be, the one he likes claims that Matilda was 'the first woman swaggie to be seen in Australia. She and her husband, Joe, were very well known and respected throughout East Gippsland; their surname was unknown...." Joe and Matilda each carried blueys, his larger than hers. Supposedly, when Matilda wanted to leave home to go with Joe, her father exploded, "Do you think I'd let you go a-waltzing Matilda all over the countryside?"

When she died and Joe buried her, he declared to his pack, "Oh well, bluey, you'll have to be Matilda to me now, and we'll waltz along together till the end."
I have yet to find an instance of a linguist who believes this.

More believable, but still strongly folkloric, is the explanation in Magoffin, p. 16, and Richardson, pp. 75-77, that "Mathilde" (whence "Matilda") was the name European (especially German) journeyman craftsmen gave to their female companions, and hence to the other thing that accompanied them, their packs. And they referred to their travels as being "auf der walz" or "on the waltz." So the term Matilda, it is claimed, is older than the settlement of Australia, and so is the idea of "waltzing" it; presumably English-speakers picked it up during the War of the League of Augsburg, or the War of the Spanish Succession, or some similar war.

May, p. 9, thinks that the name was just chosen at random; personally, I'd guess he's right.

The term "matilda" and "waltzing matilda" were apparently both originally rare; elsewhere, swagmen carried swags! The term is sufficiently local that the first Australian dictionary, Morris's, does not even mention it (that's in 1898, after Paterson wrote his text!).

May, pp. 10-11, discusses the origin of "Jumbuck," which he thinks has not been definitively traced. His favorite hypothesis is that it is a slurred-down version of "jumping buck," but confesses a lack of evidence. The citations he offers show the word was used in Aboriginal pidgin by 1845, but there is no proof that it comes from an Aboriginal language. It looks as if he lifted his citation from Morris, p. 224.

The coolibah tree is the species Eucalyptus coolibah (May, p. 13). Learmonth, p. 129, "An aboriginal and popular name for a form of box eucalyptus, the Flooded Box, Eucalyptus microtheca. The Coolibah is medium-sized, with pale, narrow leave up to 18 cm. long, growing widely on black soil plains and along watercourses of the interior." There is a photo facing p. 13 of May, and it shows a coolibah by a billabong that casts very little shade. Studying other coolibah photos around the Web, this seems typical: it is not a good shade tree. The fact that Paterson mentions such a tree is perhaps a hint that this song does refer to an actual billabong, although that is not evidence that the stories connecting the song to the death of Hoffmeister are true.

There has been much debate about what the song itself really "means." It bears similarities to events at Dagworth, but is assuredly not a retelling. It is, on its face, a strange tale -- what sort of person would drown himself when merely asked about where he got a sheep, without even having been arrested yet? This has led many to see it as some sort of allegory -- e.g. O'Keeffe, pp. 126-127, links the swagman's billy to the lines "She's going to light another fire And boil another billy" from Henry Lawson's revolutionary "Freedom on the Wallaby," written a few years earlier. This would be more convincing if there were clearer evidence....

May, in the photo inset facing p. 21, shows Australian "Waltzing Matilda" tanks in World War II. This is a little too much folklore. I do not doubt that there were Australian tanks in the war that were called "Waltzing Matilda." But the model name of the tank May pictures was not the "Waltzing Matilda" but simply the "Matilda" (properly, the Matilda II; the Matilda I was armed with nothing heavier than a machine gun, so it wasn't really a tank). A picture and description can be found on p. 86 of Dougherty. The Matilda II was under-gunned and extremely slow, but it was well-armored and very hard to kill (especially for the under-armed Japanese tanks the Australians faced in New Guinea), so it was no doubt popular with those who drove it.

Richardson, pp. 142-143, says there have been more than six hundred different recordings of the song since it was first waxed by an unknown singer in 1927.

Lindner, p. 263, says that Paterson never saw how popular his song would become. This is a little exaggerated -- it was certainly well-known in Australia by the time of his death in 1941. Outside Australia, it wasn't as well known. It appears to me, based on the parodies, that it was spread to the wider world by Australian troops fighting in World War II, probably starting in North Africa (where the Australians were an important part of the British force from a very early date; battalions of the 9th Australian Division were at least once "farmed out" to train other troops about North African conditions; Delaforce, p. 37). One must suspect that they were singing it a lot for the song to have been picked up by forces from other British territories.

Although everyone now seems to refer to Paterson as "Banjo," his personal nickname was "Barty." "The Banjo" (with no surname given) was the pseudonym in which he published his first poetry, including his two most important pieces, "Clancy of the Overflow" and "The Man from Snowy River"; he took the name from a famous horse (O'Keeffe, pp. 104-105). Interestingly, Dagworth Station was also named after a racehorse (May, p. 36); Paterson, the horseracing nut, must have loved it.

Although now treated as Australia's unofficial anthem, Lindner, pp. 263-264, reminds us that it cannot have been intended so, since Australia was not federated until 1901; until then, the provinces were separately governed. Of course, the idea of a united Australia was in the air, but Paterson clearly wasn't paying attention to that. - RBW

Bibliography
Waly Waly (The Water is Wide)

DESCRIPTION: The singer laments the effects of unrequited love and an untrue lover. Typical symbols include the rotten-hearted oak that looks solid but breaks and the beautiful flower protected by thorns. In some versions the lover is untrue; sometimes (s)he is dead.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1714 (Ritson, _Scotish Song_)

KEYWORDS: love rejection lyric nonballad lament lover death

FOUND IN: Britain(England,Scotland(Aber)) Ireland US(Ap,NE,SE) Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (30 citations):

- Child 204 notes, "Waly, Waly, Gin Love Be Bony" (1 text)
- Bronson (204), 8 versions (including "Jamie Douglas")
- Bronson (204), "Jamie Douglas" (2 tunes, of which #1 is this song)
- Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, pp. 521-522, "Waly Waly" (1 text)
- Barry/Eckstorm/Smyth-BritishBalladsFromMaine pp. 469-474, "Jamie Douglas" (notes and scattered stanzas; the only full text is in fact this piece)
- Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 149, "Deep in Love" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 336-337, "Picking Lilies" (1 text)
- Greig/Duncan 1918, "I Spied a Ship Sailin' on the Sea" (1 fragment)
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #173, p. 2, ("I spied a ship sailin' on the sea") (1 fragment)
- Peacock, pp. 475-476, "Love is Lovely" (1 text, 1 tune, strongly composite, starting with a verse perhaps from "Feggy Gordon," then the chorus of "Waly Waly (The Water Is Wide)," two more which might be anything, and a conclusion from "Carrickfergus")
- Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 546-551, "Jamie Douglas" (3 texts, with only the third text belonging with this piece)
- Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 101, "Jamie Douglas" (2 texts, with only the second text belonging with this piece)
- Karpeles-TheCrystalSpring 13, "Waly Waly, or The Water is Wide" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Sharp-OneHundredEnglishFolksongs 39, "O Waly Waly" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Reeves/Sharp-TheldiomOfThePeople 108, "Waly Waly" (1 text, a composite of four versions)
Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 30, "Deep in Love", "Picking Lilies" (2 texts)
Sanburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 16-17, "Waillie, Waillie!" (1 text, 1 tune) {Bronson's #8}
Copper-SongsAndSouthernBreezes, pp. 218-219, "Love" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hodgart-FaberBookOfBallads, p. 143, "O Waly, Waly" (1 text)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 70, "Love is Pleasin'" (1 text, 1 tune, of four verses, two of which go here, one belongs with "Fair and Tender Ladies," and the fourth could be from several sources; the whole could be a "Love is Teasing" variant)
HarvardClassics-EnglishPoetryChaucerToGray, pp. 323-324, "O Waly, Waly" (1 text)
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 77, "The Water Is Wide" (1 text, 1 tune)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H683, p. 393, "The Apron of Flowers" (1 text, 1 tune -- apparently a collection of floating verses including one that goes here)
Smith-SouthCarolinaBallads, pp. 3-4, "(no title)" (1 text)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, p. 89, "Cockle Shells and Silver Bells" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 145, "Waillie"; p. 163, "The Water Is Wide" (2 texts)
ADDITIONAL: James Johnson, Editor, _The Scots Musical Museum_ [1853 edition], volume II, #158, p. 166, "Waly, Waly" (1 text, 1 tune)
Alfred M. Williams, _Studies in Folk-Song and Popular Poetry_, Houghton Mifflin, 1894, pp. 89-91, "Waly, Waly, gin Love by Bony / Lady Anne Bothwell's Lament" (1 text)
Roud #87
RECORDINGS:
Freeman Bennett, "Love is Lovely" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Liam Clancy, "The Water is Wide" (on IRLClancy01)
Mobile Strugglers, "Trouble, Trouble's Followed Me All My Days" (on AmSkBa, classified there for want of a better place; it's really a collection of floaters, and could as easily go with "I Wish, I Wish/ Love Is Teasing." It shares the verse "If I had wings like Noah's dove" with "Dink's Song," but not its distinctive chorus. - PJS)
Pete Seeger, "The Water is Wide" (on PeteSeeger18) (on PeteSeeger34) (on PeteSeeger47)
Gladys Stone, "Deep In Love" (on FSBFTX15)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Jamie Douglas" [Child 204] (lyrics)
cf. "Love Is Teasing" cf. "Careless Love"
cf. "Died for Love"
cf. "Dink's Song" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Oh, Johnny, Johnny" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Arthur's Seat" (lyrics: two verses)
SAME TUNE:
Though I May Speak (1972 paraphrase of 1 Corinthians 13 by Hal Hopson found in Presbyterian hymnals; cf. LindaJo H. McKim, _Presbyterian Hymnal Companion_, Westminster/John Knox Press, 1993, p. 236)
An Upper Room Did Our Lord Prepare (1973 hymn by Fred Pratt Green found in Presbyterian hymnals; cf. McKim, p. 94)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
A Ship Came Sailing
When Cockle Shells Turn Silver Bells
NOTES [169 words]: Some scholars consider this a degraded form of "Jamie Douglas" [Child 204], with which it shares several lyrics. It can hardly be denied that they are related. Since, however, "Waly Waly" has worn away to a purely lyric piece (and some even believe it to be the older of the two songs, which has provided a few chance lyrics to "Jamie Douglas"), it is my firm opinion that the two should be kept separate. Paul Stamler considers at least some of the versions of "I Wish, I Wish/Love is Teasing" to belong here. To me, they look more like versions of "The Butcher Boy." Still, it shows you how lyric this piece has become.
Under the title "Forsaken," this is one of the handful of traditional songs in Palgrave's _Golden Treasury_ (item CXXXIII)- RBW
The two verses shared with "Arthur's Seat" are neither common floaters nor verses shared with "Jamie Douglas": one is the title verse ("Now Arthur-Seat shall be my bed ....") and the other the Wanderer (I), The

DESCRIPTION: "Cease ye winds to blow ... I think I hear my true love's voice ... don't think 'tis he ... Oh where is my wanderer gone." "I fear my love has lost his way." "The moon behind the cloud is lost ... The lightnings gleam no more...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1771 (_The London Magazine_)

KEYWORDS: love separation nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 234, "Cease, Ye Stormy Winds" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 78)

Roud #1299

BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, Firth b.25(362), "The Wanderer" ("Cease ye winds to blow "), E.M.A. Hodges (London), 1846-1854; also Harding B 11(4022), Johnson Ballads 2879, "The Wanderer"
- NLScotland, RB.m.169(209), "The Wanderer" ("O cease a while ye winds to blow"), M'Intosh (Glasgow), c.1849

NOTES [46 words]: The text from _The London Magazine_ is headed "Rondeau, Sung by Miss Cowper in Vauxhall Gardens, and set by Mr Bach." The text excludes the last verse, beginning "the moon behind the cloud is lost," printed on the Bodleian broadsides and Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames. - BS

Wanderer's Warning, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer quarrels with his father and prepares to leave home. His mother begs him not to; her heart will be broken. He leaves anyway. Now he is in a boxcar while his mother longs for the boy who will never return. He cautions others not to imitate him

AUTHOR: Carson Robison - Frank Luther

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Frank Luther)

KEYWORDS: grief homesickness loneliness warning farewell home parting rambling train travel father mother hobo

FOUND IN: US

RECORDINGS:
- Ken Houchins, "Wanderer's Warning" (Champion 16553, 1933)
- Frank Luther, "The Wanderer's Warning" (Banner 6464/Jewel 5667/Conqueror 7396, 1929)

Wanderin'

DESCRIPTION: "My daddy is an engineer, My brother drives a hack, My sister takes in washin' An' the baby balls the jack, An' it looks like I'm never gonna cease my wanderin'." Tales of work and poverty, held together by the refrain "never gonna cease my wanderin'."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)

KEYWORDS: work hardtimes rambling nonballad

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (7 citations):
- Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 188-189, "Wanderin" (2 texts, 1 tune)
- Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 335-336, "Wandering" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 218, "Wand'rin" (1 text, 1 tune)
Darling-NewAmericanSongster, p. 281, "Wandering" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 59, "Wandering" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 507, "I Got de Hesotation Stockings and de Hesotation Shoes" (1 short text, with a verse and chorus from "Hesitation Blues" and a verse from "Wanderin")

DT, WANDERIN*
Roud #4399
RECORDINGS:
Vernon Dalhart, "Wanderin'" (Columbia 1585-D, 1928)
NOTES [47 words]: The total irrelevance of plot to this song is shown by the fact that Scott's version (which is mostly about the traveler's rambles, except for the line "If the Republicans don't get you, the Democrats must") shares only three lines, apart from the refrain, with the DT version. - RBW
File: San188

Wandering Boy, The
DESCRIPTION: "Out in this cold world and far away from home, Somebody's boy is wandering alone...." The mother begs, "Bring me back my wandering boy, He's all that's left to give me joy." She tells how his place still waits for him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (unissued recording, Kentucky Thorobreds) earliest publication 1928 (recording, Emry Arthur)
KEYWORDS: rambling mother children separation
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,So)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Randolph 845, "The Wandering Boy" (1 text)
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 149, "The Wandering Boy" (1 short text)
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 237-238, "My Wandering Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST R845 (Partial)
Roud #4227
RECORDINGS:
Emry Arthur, "Bring Back to Me My Wandering Boy" (Vocalion 5244, 1928)
Blue Sky Boys, "Brink Back My Wandering Boy" (Bluebird B-8128, 1939)
W. C. Childers, "Bring Back My Wandering Boy" (Champion 16052 [as Enos Wanner]/Superior 2525 [as George Holmes], 1930)
Kentucky Thorobreds, "Bring Back My Wandering Boy" (Paramount, unissued, rec. 1927)
NOTES [17 words]: This should not be confused with "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight," which is a different song. - PJS
Last updated in version 5.3
File: R845

Wandering Cowboy (I), The [Laws B7]
DESCRIPTION: A cowboy sadly tells the tale of why he left home: He had killed a childhood friend in a quarrel over a girl: "So that's the reason why I am compelled to roam. A sinner of the darkest strain, Far far away from home"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928
KEYWORDS: death fight cowboy rambling love friend homicide burial
FOUND IN: US(SE,So,SW) Canada
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Laws B7, "The Wandering Cowboy"
Randolph 190, "The Wandering Cowboy" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 265, "A Jolly Group of Cowboys" (1 text)
Larkin-SingingCowboy, pp. 144-146, "Wandering Cowboy" (1 text, 1 tune)
McNeil-SouthernFolkBalladsVol1, pp. 157-159, "The Wandering Cowboy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wandering Cowboy (II), The

DESCRIPTION: Cowboy describes ranches he's worked at. He signs on with a ranch, works summer and fall, then drifts to Arizona for a winter job. It's too lonely and boring, so he moves on again. One night in Wyoming, he dreams of his home rancho and decides to return

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (recording, Patt Patterson & Lois Dexter)

KEYWORDS: loneliness home rambling travel work cowboy worker

FOUND IN: US

RECORDINGS:

Patt Patterson & Lois Dexter, "The Wandering Cowboy" (Banner 32091, 1931)
Patt Patterson & his Champion Rep Riders, "The Wandering Cowboy" (on WhenIWas1)

NOTES [27 words]: Pretty thin plot, yes. But a plot nonetheless, and I've indexed it chiefly to distinguish the song from "The Wandering Cowboy (I)", which has a real narrative. - PJS

File: RcTWaCII

Wandering Cowboy (III), The

DESCRIPTION: Singer has no home, no one to love him. He's wandering down the trail, coming to the end of his life, and thinking the only home he will ever find is "on some other shore"

AUTHOR: B. Cartwright

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (recording, Cartwright Bros.)

KEYWORDS: loneliness love death nonballad cowboy

FOUND IN: US

RECORDINGS:

Cartwright Brothers, "The Wandering Cowboy" (Victor V-40247, 1930; rec. 1929)

NOTES [29 words]: Darn near no plot at all, even thinner than "Wandering Cowboy (II)," and depressing besides. I index it solely to distinguish it from the other "Wandering Cowboy" songs. - PJS

Last updated in version 4.3

File: RcTwaC3

Wandering Dollar, The

DESCRIPTION: Game in which a coin is passed hand to hand while one player has to guess where it is. "Dollar, dollar, how you wander, From the one unto the other, Is it fair, is it fair, TO leave [Miss Anna] so long without a chair?"
Wandering Girl, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer's lover has deserted her and their baby. She'll go home but knows she'll be turned away by her mother. "She'll tell me to wander as I've wandered before." She warns girls not to trust young men.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1829 (broadside, Bodleian Firth c.18(104))

KEYWORDS: sex desertion floating verses baby mother youth

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond))

Roud #1691

RECORDINGS:

Freda Palmer, "The Wandering Girl" (on Voice10)

BROADSIDES:

NOTES [68 words]: The Bodleian broadsides have the girl turned away by her father as well as her mother. Floating lines may include "Once I loved a young man as dear as my life He oftentimes told me he'd make me his wife," "Once I was as fair as the bud of a Rose And now I'm as pale as the Lilly[sic] that grows" and "They'll kiss you and court you and swear they'll be true And the very next moment they'll bid you adieu." - BS

File: RcTwGir

Wandering Shepherd Laddie, The

DESCRIPTION: Bring my crook and bring my plaid." The singer would go to her "wandering shepherd laddie." She'll go through mountain storms to "his black-face yowes on the heather hills" and rest with him "when the moon comes over the top o' the hill"

AUTHOR: John MacDonald (source: Yates, Musical Traditions site _Voice of the People suite_ "Notes - Volume 20" - 15.1.04)

EARLIEST DATE: 1974 (recording, John MacDonald)

KEYWORDS: nonballad lover sheep shepherd

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

Roud #5150

RECORDINGS:

John MacDonald, "The Wandering Shepherd Laddie" (on Voice20)

File: RcWaShLa

Wandering Willie

DESCRIPTION: "Oh have you seen our wand'ring Willie In his journey through your state?" He travels with "a wadding gait," and his luggage is filled with "solid cash." He "pulled the party though." Now they have "passed him from the door."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1895 (Marshall County Sentinel, according to Cohen)

KEYWORDS: money political humorous

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

1891-1895 - William W. Taylor, President of the First National Bank of Redfield, South Dakota, serves as State Treasurer
Jan 10, 1895 - Taylor's bank fails; he flees the state
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, p. 484, "Wandering Willie" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Kingdom Coming (The Year of Jubilo)" (tune)
NOTES [270 words]: Robert F. Karolevitz, Challenge, the South Dakota Story, Brevet Press, 1974 (I use the eighth printing from 2004), p. 215, has this to say about the Taylor affair:
"After he had been re-elected to a second term, [Governor Charles H.] Sheldon publicly praised retiring State Treasurer William Walter Taylor for protecting the public funds throughout the unstable fiscal conditions created by the national depression. Then, on January 8, 1895, it was revealed that the former Redfield banker had fled to South America and that the treasury was short $367,000. The monstrous scandal was almost the last straw for a state already reeling under other adversities.... After several months Taylor returned to South Dakota, was convicted of embezzlement and sentenced to 20 years in prison, the term being reduced later to two years which the ex-treasurer served. His personal assets, the state funds he foolishly had placed in the hands of his Chicago attorneys (who had apparently advised him to leave the country) and the forfeiture of his bond restored a major portion of the missing sum, but when it was all over, the people of South Dakota sill lost almost $100,000...."
A minor side effect was that an ex-governor, Arthur C. Mellette, had stood as one of Taylor's bondsmen and lost his own money. It contributed to his early death in 1896 at the age of 52. The affair also badly damaged the state Republican party; the Democrats swept into power in the election of 1896 -- and there was so much concern about the handling of money that the new governor, Andrew E. Lee, ordered a physical count of the state's cash. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.7
File: CAFS2484

Want to Go to Heaven When I Die
DESCRIPTION: "Want to go to heaven (see my mother (father, sister, Jesus)) when I die (x3), Good Lord, when I die (x4)."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 53, App.II, "Want to Go to Heaven When I Die" (2 texts, 2 tunes; p. 170 in the 1909 edition)
Roud #12244
File: Dett053

Wanted -- My Darling Papa
DESCRIPTION: "To the Minneap'lis Tribune came a little child one day," asking to run an ad to find her father: "Wanted, my darling papa, to come home right away." The message from Mamie is read in the mining camp, and the father sets out for home at once
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2008 (Cohen)
KEYWORDS: family father separation mining reunion
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 676-677, "Wanted -- My Darling Papa" (1 text)
File: CAFS2676
Wanton Seed, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer meets a pretty maid who wants "the chiefest grain"; she accepts his services, asking him to sow her meadow with "the wanton seed." After forty weeks she returns with a slender waist (presumably having borne a child), wanting more of the wanton seed.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1813 (broadside, Bodleian Firth b.34(307))

KEYWORDS: sex pregnancy farming magic

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (4 citations):

- Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 137, "The Wanton Seed" (1 text)
- DT, WNTNSEED*

ADDITIONAL: Jon Raven, _The Urban and Industrial Songs of the Black Country and Birmingham_, Broadside, 1977, pp. 96-97, "The Wanton Seed" (1 text)

Roud #17230

RECORDINGS:

- A. L. Lloyd, "The Wanton Seed" (on BirdBush1, BirdBush2)

BROADSIDES:

- Bodleian, Firth b.34(307)[some words illegible], "The Wanton Seed" ("As I walk’d forth one morning fair"), J. Evans (London), 1780-1812

CROSS-REFERENCES:

- cf. "Seeds of Love" (theme)
- cf. "The Next Market Day" (plot) and references there
- cf. "The Mower"

ALTERNATE TITLES:

- The Chiefest Grain

NOTES [40 words]: Again, I've refrained from calling this "bawdy," preferring "erotic." And I've keyworded it as "magic" because of the clear connection the song makes between the fertility of grain and sexuality, a common folk strain of sympathetic magic. - PJS

Last updated in version 5.2

File: DTwtntnse

---

Wanton Trooper, The

DESCRIPTION: "There came a trooper to this town, I thank you for your gentleness, He would have maidens nine or ten, To cure him o' his wantonness." The miller's lass takes him on. They have sex nine times the first day, then six, etc.; this cures his wantonness.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1840 (Buchan, Secret Songs of Silence)

KEYWORDS: sex soldier miller

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Roud #12567

File: ThWanTr

---

Wanton Wife of Bath, The

DESCRIPTION: "In Bath a wonton wife did dwell, As Chaucer he did write." She dies. Adam tells her that, as a sinner, she has no place in heaven. She points out his sins; he flees. Similarly Jacob, etc.. Finally she is admitted to heaven because she knows of Christ.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1600? (June 26, 1600 Stationer's Register entry for "The Wanton Wife of Bath"); before 1681 (Bodleian Wood E 25(93),Douce Ballads 2(241a))
This is not Chaucer's "Wife of Bath's Tale," but it's based on it, making it a sort of post-medieval romance. It's both poorer and cruder than Chaucer's tale, of course, and the long version, at least, far less feminist and less interesting. The shorter version is truer to the Wife, who can turn Scripture to her ends, but it doesn't use much of the Wife's tale.

Based on that lack of credentials, I don't think it traditional, but Betsy Bowden thinks it passed through oral tradition, so it's in here. I don't trust her logic, though; in essence, she claims that there are variations in the text of the prints, so there must be oral tradition represented. But the only variants she actually describes are very small - the ones that no-very-accurate printers would produce when typesetting mostly from memory. I really think this is a song sustained entirely by print, though it was presumably sung to sell broadside copies.

Bowden describes two versions of the piece. The longer version (650+ lines) with which Bowden closes her article (Appendix II), is to a large extent a sermon, and very dull; it is entitled "The Wife of Bath Reformed and Corrected, Giving an Account of her death, And of her journey to heaven, How on the road she fell in with Judas, who led her to the gates of Hell," etc. (Bowden calls it the "New Wife of Bath"). The Wife eventually gets to heaven, but the amount of religious blather along the way is close to intolerable. Under no circumstances will I believe that "that" went into tradition. Bowden, p. 41, claims that it was created by around 1700, based on the earlier version, to get past the censors (who in 1632 sent Henry Goskin to prison for printing the early version).

The shorter is a legitimate broadside, about 140 lines; Bowden prints that as her Appendix I based on a broadside by Pitts. It too is mostly moralizing, but at least it won't kill you with boredom, though still a little too repetitive for my taste. The shorter is the version cited in the description; the long version includes the interlude with Judas and the visit to the devil. Bowden claims a total of 54 prints of one or the other version (27 of each, in fact, although she does not catalog them), but some of these are duplicates. She found copies at Cambridge, the Bodleian at Oxford, and the Harvard Library.

Mark Allen and John A. Fisher with the assistance of Joseph Trahern, A Variorum Edition of the Works of Geoffrey Chaucer, Volume II, Part 5A, The Wife of Bath's Prologue and Tale, University of Oklahoma Press, 2012 (based in large part on the work of Caroline F. E. Spurgeon) have a section on adaptions and responses to Chaucer's tale of the Wife. On pp. 36-37, they report that the "earliest [re-use] (before 1600), the Wanton Wife of Bath, makes several appearances through 1778.... This ballad tells an engaging story of the Wife talking her way past St. Peter to get into heaven. The beginning of the ballad was sung in two plays,... in Act 2 of Thomas Jevon's The Devil of a Wife (1686), first three stanzas only, and as Air 10 (first two stanzas only) in Charles Coffey's redaction The Devil to Pay (first published 1738). The phrase 'wanton wife' associated with Bath also appears in An excellent new medley (1620, STC 17777.5...), although we are told little more than 'in: Bath a wanton wifre did dwell, / She had two buckets to a well'.... The ballad itself was recast and expanded in 1700 under the title The New Wife of Bath to include a trip to hell.... Alfred Tobler... suggests that the two ballads are independent productions."

The logic of the piece is quite solid if you don't bring an anti-female opinion. The Wife can points out sins by Adam, Jacob, Jonah, Judith, Thomas, etc. - even Peter. When she accuses Peter, Jesus defends both, letting the wife into heaven.

It is interesting to find a reference to Judith, whose story is in the Apocrypha, not the Old or New Testament. The Anglican Church did not absolutely reject the Apocrypha to the extent other Protestant churches did, but it didn't build doctrine on it. Could it be that the tale on which the poem is based predates the Reformation?

I love the fact that the Wife ends up a lawyer in Heaven. It'd perfect.

In addition to her North Carolina Folklore Journal article, Bettsy Bowden in 2017 published The Wife of Bath in Afterlife: Ballads to Blake, Lehigh University Press. Reviews show that it includes a section on this piece -- but the book is very expensive, and has minimal folk connections, so I haven't pursued it.

Note: I've listed as "related" versions of Chaucer's "Wife of Bath's Tale." But there are probably thousands of editions of the Canterbury Tales, and about eighty manuscript copies. So I've decided to list only the four most important modern editions of Chaucer (none of them retellings or modernized versions, although two have modernized the orthography), and the most important manuscripts.

The scriptural characters with whom the Wife contends (in the version printed by Child) are as follows:

ADAM: The line "Thou wert the cause of all our woe" of course refers to the Fall, told in Genesis 3. The line blaming him for sin "in pleasure of thy wife" does not, I think, refer to sexual relations before the fall; all Adam's and Eve's children were born after they were expelled from the Garden of Eden. I think this means that he listened to his wife's advice to eat the forbidden fruit (see Genesis 3:6, 12).

JACOB: Jacob's deceptions were many and various; the stories about him are not at all edifying. One could lay many charges against him. Probably this is based on his tricking his brother Esau out of his birthright (Genesis 25:29-34), then, when his blind father Isaac was dying, Jacob pretended to be Esau to steal the blessing Isaac meant for Esau (Genesis 27). He also deceived his father-in-law Laban, although Laban was cheating Jacob at the same time.(Genesis 29-30).

LOT: This should have preceded Jacob. After the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, Lot and his daughters fled to the hills, and Lot refused to leave his desert habitation. His two daughters, seeing no other way to have children, got him drunk and slept with him; the peoples of Moab and the Ammonites were said to be offspring of this union (Genesis 19). Lot did not deliberately sin, but his children were certainly incestuous.

JUDITH: This should have come after David and Solomon. It's from the Book of Judith, which is extremely historically inaccurate fiction. The general Holofernes is invading Judea, and Judith, a beautiful widow, comes on to him then murders him. This assuredly never happened; the chronology is nonsense.

DAVID: The specific reference here is to David seducing Bathsheba, the wife of Uriah the Hittite, and having Uriah killed to cover his crime (2 Samuel 11). There are hints of other crimes on David's part -- not least, rebelling against Saul -- but this is the one that was explicitly acknowledged.

SOLOMON: 1 Kings 11 lists Solomon's errors, including having 700 wives and 300 concubines (1 Kings 11:3), as well as many foreign women. With all that to occupy his time, little wonder he let Israel crumble! And, as the Wife says, the foreign wives "turned away his heart after other gods" (11:4).

JONAS (JONAH): Presumably a reference to Jonah fleeing his prophetic calling in the first chapter of the book of Jonah.

THOMAS: In the account of the Gospel of John, the Apostle Thomas did not see the risen Jesus as early as the other disciples, and did not believe in the resurrection until Jesus met him personally (John 20:24-29). Hence the name "Doubting Thomas."

MARY MAGDALENE: We don't really know much about Mary Magdalene except that Jesus cast "seven demons" out of her (Luke 8:2; repeated in the spurious Mark 16:9) -- but she was widely believed to have been a prostitute, based possibly on a false equivalence with Luke 7:36-48, since that woman and Mary of Bethany both anointed Jesus's feet (Mary of Bethany's act of so doing is in John 12:1-8). Then all you have to do is equate Mary of Bethany with Mary Magdalene and suddenly Mary the demon-possessed becomes the same as an unnamed woman who may have been a prostitute! But they believed it in the Middle Ages. The Wife further conflates Mary Magdalene with the Woman Taken in Adultery in "John 7:53-8:12," another spurious passage but one in which Jesus wrote on the ground while the woman's accusers stole away. There is a very real similarity to that story and this: Many come to accuse the Wife of Bath of sin, but she reveals the sin of each of them. What the Wife would have done if some lesser personage had shown up, whose sin was not known, I have no clue.

Peter's denial of Jesus before the crucifixion is told in all four gospels, with differences in details; the basic account is Mark 14:29-30 (the denial foretold), 14:66-72 (the denial itself).

Paul's persecution of the church is narrated in Acts 7:58-8:3, 9:1-2; Paul admits to it in various of his letters.

The Wife's mention to wandering sheep is probably an allusion to the parable of the Lost Sheep/the Ninety and Nine, Matthew 18:12-14/Luke 15:3-7. The "one poor silly word" that brought a thief to paradise is surely a reference to the repentant thief to Luke 23:39-43. The Prodigal Son forgiven by his father is Luke 15:11-32. - RBW

War Bird's Burlesque, A

DESCRIPTION: "A portly Roman Senator was sipping his Rock and Rye When a classic Vestal Virgin caught his educated eye." But while the "Senator" is away, a junior young officer slips into her bed. Finally the "Senator" forgives her

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)

KEYWORDS: adultery seduction humorous

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 438-439, "A War Bird's Burlesque" (1 text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "The Sea Captain and the Squire" [Laws Q12] (plot)

File: San438

War Correspondent, The

DESCRIPTION: "You've all heard of 'Banjo' Paterson and of course I needn't say That he's the best and the greatest correspondent of the day...." The singer, alleged to be Paterson, boasts of all the people he knows and of his great journalistic skills

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia)

KEYWORDS: bragging humorous

FOUND IN: Australia

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 274-275, "The War Correspondent" (1 text, 1 tune)

Meredith/Tritton-DukeOfTheOutback, pp. 88089, "The War Correspondent" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [43 words]: Meredith and Anderson's informant, "Duke" Tritton, was of the opinion that Banjo Paterson wrote this piece as a parody of his exploits (Paterson was a war correspondent
War in Missouri in '61, The DESCRIPTION: The title tells the subject. "Claybourn Jacks" tries to pull Missouri out of the Union, and Harney does little to stop him. Price and Blair and the Lion (Lyon) stop him. But the Lion is killed by McCulloch. The author asks forgiveness for his rough verse

AUTHOR: B. F. Lock?

EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety)

KEYWORDS: Civilwar battle death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
- Jun 17, 1861 - Battle of Boonville
- Jul 5, 1861 - Battle of Carthage
- Aug 10, 1861 - Battle of Wilson's Creek

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, pp. 366-367, "The War in Missouri in '61" (1 text)
- Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 368-369, "The War in Missouri in '61" (1 text)

Roud #3698

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Jolly Union Boys" and references there (concerning Battle of Wilson's Creek)

NOTES [2581 words]: To explain everything about this song (if it is a song and not just a poem) would take a small book; Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety's notes try to cover it, but they have some defects. I'll try to give a little more information about the characters and events named, although this is no substitute for a proper history.

"Claybourn Jacks": Claiborne Fox Jackson (1806-1862), Governor of Missouri from 1860; tried and failed to pull the state out of the Union when the South seceded. A secessionist himself, he had called a convention to vote Missouri out of the Union, but the delegates voted to stay (McPherson, p. 290. Eventually a minority of the state legislature, meeting away from the capital and without a quorum, claimed to take Missouri out of the Union, but most parts of the state stayed loyal, although it no longer had a functioning government except the convention and its appointees; McPherson, p. 293).

"Tom Price": Thomas Lawson Price (1809-1870), railroad builder and war democrat, who opposed secession. (He had been a follower of that staunch Unionist Thomas Hart Benton, and was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1848 on the strength of his alliance with Benton.) Elected to congress in 1860, he opposed the administration and was defeated for re-election in 1862 (DAB, volume VIII, pp. 218-219), but none of this would have been evident in 1861.

"Price (#2)"

"Harney": William A. Harney (1800-1889), commander of the Department of the West (centered at St. Louis) when the war began. Loyal to the Union but a friend of slaveholders, he did little to control Missouri secessionists, was suspected of sympathy with the rebellion, and was superseded May 29, 1861 (Boatner, p. 376).

The "Harney Compromise" was an agreement between Harney and former governor Sterling Price (1809-1867), former governor of Missouri and Confederate commander of Missouri troops. He had chaired the convention that kept Missouri in the Union, but the policies of Blair and Lyon drove him toward the Confederacy. Governor Jackson had appointed him to command the Missouri Guard soon after the conflict began, before it was clear what Missouri's role in the war would be (DAB, volume VIII, p. 216). Price would be leader of half the troops at Wilson's Creek.

"Frost": Daniel M. Frost (c. 1823-1900), West Point graduate and Missouri businessman. Appointed by the Confederates to take over the St. Louis arsenal, he was captured by Lyon instead, later being exchanged and becoming a Confederate general.

"Lyon" or "the Lion": Nathaniel Lyon (1818-1861), initially a regular army captain serving in St. Louis. Alarmed by Jackson's actions and Harney's inaction, he and Frank Blair conspired to keep Missouri in the Union. On May 10, he captured Frost and his hundreds of supporters at Camp Jackson (the only Union casualties were Lyon, who was kicked in the stomach by one of his artillery officer's horses -- Phillips, p. 189 -- and Franz Sigel, also lightly injured by a horse). Unfortunately, rioting followed, and many civilians were hurt (MacPherson, p. 291). Lyon would later die at Wilson's Creek.

Legally, very little that Lyon did was permissible; when he detected artillery being shipped to Camp Jackson by the Confederate government, the lawyer on his planning team insisted that he could not simply attack Frost's forces to take it back; he had to obtain and serve a writ (Philipps, pp. 184-185); Frost's forces were not openly in rebellion and had legally been assembled under Missouri law at Jackson's order. Lyon ignored the law, and surrounded Camp Jackson with five-thousand-odd militia and a few regulars (Philipps, pp. 187-188). Frost felt -- and was -- betrayed, but he was outmaneuvered, and when he tried to negotiate, Lyon demanded and got an unconditional surrender (Phillips, p. 189).

After the failure of the Harney Compromise, there was a meeting between the sides to try to work out another truce. Lyon would have none of it, and told Jackson and Sterling Price "This means war" (Phillips, p. 214). He then mounted an expedition from Saint Louis (the most Unionist part of the state) toward the state capitol, Jefferson City. Price and Jackson decided the Jefferson City was indefensible, and retreated toward Boonville, where Price ordered his troops to assemble (Phillips, p. 217).

"Boonville": You can tell that this piece was written early in the war, because it notices the tiny "battle" of Boonville. Lyon, having secured Jefferson City, continued to pursue the Confederates, and caught them at this town sixty or so miles up the Missouri River (it's almost due wet of Columbia, and west northwest of Jefferson City). There were only a few dozen casualties, about equally split between the sides, but Lyon's artillery (Totten's battery, which was managed by actual regulars) scared the Confederates, and he captured about sixteen of their militia; the Confederates fled toward southwest Missouri (Phillips, pp. 219-220; Gerteis, pp. 38-39). Their retreat was so rapid and disorganized that it was called the Boonville Race (Brooksher, p. 90).

"Frank Blair": Francis Preston Blair, Jr. (1821-1875), Missouri congressman and later union general. While Nathaniel Lyon ran the military operations in Missouri, Blair handled the politics, pulling the strings to get rid of Harney and put Lyon in charge.

"Totten": James Totten (1818?-1871), an artillerist in the regular army, who commanded the cannon which were key to the battle of Boonville (Phillips, pp. 219-220; Gerteis, p. 35; according to HessEtAl, p. 261, his unit was Company F, 2nd U.S. Artillery). He would receive brevet promotions for Boonville, as well as Wilson's Creek and others; he also served as General Frémont's Chief of Staff and served with distinction throughout the war -- but was cashiered in 1870 for what sounds like financial misdeeds or lack of respect toward his superiors or both (Boatner, p. 843). His more obvious problem was drink. According to Brooksher, p. 104, he was "nicknamed 'BOTTlenosed Totten' because he always carried a canteen of brandy, also becoming a favorite for the manner in which he gave orders: 'Forward that caisson, goddamn you, sir!' or 'Swing that piece in line, goddamn you, sir.' Pvt. Eugene Ware alleged the men would walk a half mile to listen to him for five minutes anytime."

"Sigel": Franz Sigel (1824-1902), Union officer (later general). He would prove dreadfully incompetent, but at the time, he was one of the few trained officers available, though the training had come in Germany.

After the successes in Saint Louis, Lyon clearly tried for too much. When Lyon set out for Jefferson City to the northwest, he meant to have a second column, under his second-in-command in the old army, Thomas Sweeney, head southwest to Rolla and, beyond that, to Springfield in the southwest corner of the state. If he controlled Springfield, he would have almost the whole state under control -- but the railroad ended at Rolla (Map in Brooksher, p. 85), meaning that the force headed for Springfield would have a hundred or so miles of supply line running over poor roads and no way to reinforce quickly. If his subordinate got in trouble, Lyon's whole campaign could fail. And said subordinate did a very good job of getting in trouble. Lyon concluded that he needed Sweeney to stay in Saint Louis for the moment, so he gave the Springfield command to Sigel (Phillips, p. 216). The German advanced to Springfield, then even farther west, apparently hoping to defeat the troops of Price and Jackson in detail (Brooksher, p. 108).

It might have worked if Sigel had had proper intelligence information and known how to use it. Or even if he had had better troops. But none of those applied. He found himself almost surrounded at Carthage (July 5). Outnumbered by three or four to one, Sigel was forced to retreat (Phillips, p. 229). The retreat was well run, but it was a retreat, and a strategic defeat for the Union that gave the Confederates a big morale boost (although once again the battle losses were light -- "probably fewer than fifty killed, one hundred fifty wounded, and sixty captured"; Brooksher, p. 125). And Sigel's panicky messages caused Lyon to have to come running to the rescue, upsetting the campaign plan. Lyon had to direct his main force to Springfield.

It may be that Lyon, like Sigel, hoped to defeat his enemies in detail (Brooksher, pp. 147-148), but he simply couldn't get things together in time. It didn't change his planning; many experts think the strain was starting to get to him (he had, obviously, never had anything like his current responsibilities!), and he lost his ability to respond to circumstances.

At Wilson's Creek, a little southwest of Springfield, Lyon learned that department commander General Frémont (who had been appointed to head the newly-created Western Department and arrived in Saint Louis on July 25; Boatner, p. 314) would send him no reinforcements, meaning that Lyon's only real choice was retreat in the face of an army with twice his numbers. But he, encouraged by his subordinate Sweeney, decided to strike a blow before falling back (Phillips, p. 247). The result was the Battle of Wilson's Creek.

The plan Lyon eventually came up with was complex, involving a frontal attack by his main body while one brigade (about a quarter of his force) took the Confederates in the rear. It might have worked -- if the detached brigade had done anything. But it failed completely, being routed almost at first contact with the Confederates. The brigade hadn't even done much firing at the Confederates; their commander decided that the troops advancing on them must be victorious Federal forces! (Brooksher, p. 201). This failure cost the Union forces any faint chance for victory. And who led this maneuver? Franz Sigel. Indeed, according to Phillips, p. 250, it was Sigel's idea, and Lyon went along because he feared Sigel's political influence.

Sigel in the retreat lost 64 killed, 147 taken prisoner; all his artillery and at least one regimental flag were captured (Brooksher, p. 209). That's a sixth of his force killed or captured, with more presumably wounded. Sigel himself hid in a cornfield for a time, then rode straight for Springfield, where, instead of doing something useful, he went to bed, inspiring a Confederate taunt, Old Sigel fought some on that day, But lost his army in the fray;
Then off to Springfield he did run, With two Dutch guards, and nary a gun. (Brooksher, p. 210.)

Lyon almost certainly never even found out what happened to his flanking force. The whole Union side seemed to have "we-have-to-fight-itis." Lyon reportedly expected to die (Phillips, p. 252), but didn't leave the front even after receiving a severe leg wound, then having his horse killed, then receiving a head injury (Phillips, p. 254). At that point, he was about ready to give up, but his chief of staff, John M. Schofield, urged him on. He needed help to get on an orderly's horse, but he led another attack -- and was shot dead (Phillips, pp. 255-256), sending him "back to his den" as the song puts it. His troops weren't even organized enough to bring his body back with them (Phillips, pp. 258-259).

Even though the Union forces had to retreat to Rolla after his death, Lyon had still done what had to be done: "The Union's great sweep to subdue southwestern Missouri was over -- a failure in the eyes of the South; a victory in the eyes of the North. The sweep was indeed a failure if one considers only that the Union left the field to the Rebels. It was a victory, however, if one looks at the larger picture -- Missouri certainly would not leave the Union in the near term nor, in all likelihood, would it ever secede" (Brooksher, p. 227). On p. 234, Brooksher concludes that the battle wasn't worth the fight; Springfield wasn't worth having. But, perhaps, by heading to the southwest, Lyon secured Jefferson City and Saint Louis and the Missouri River, which were the keys to the state. So maybe even the defeat had some value.

Parson: Belden conjectures this is Lewis Baldwin Parsons (1818-1907), who was from Missouri but who became a Union officer. This seems a very poor fit. I believe it is Mosby M. Parsons (the spelling used by Brooksher, Phillips, and Boatner; Gerteis calls him "M. Mosby Parsons"), whose Confederate troops had possession of Lyon's body for a time (Phillips, p. 259). According to HessEtAl, p. 262, he commanded the "6th Division" (actually an under-strength brigade) in Ben McCulloch's Arkansas forces; Gerteis, p. 29, says he commanded the sixth military district of Missouri (a region just south of the Missouri River).

If Parsons is indeed Mosby Parsons, it would explain the line ""For he can whip the devil and all the time retreat." The reference is most likely to the Battle of Carthage. Sigel, although outnumbered by four to one or so (more, if you count unarmed Confederates) hoped his more disciplined forces could beat the Missouri troops under Governor Jackson. They couldn't; Sigel's forces were forced to engage in a fighting retreat. But they gave much more than they got; Sigel lost 44 men, the Confederates about two hundred (Gerteis, p. 48). Parsons, who fought in the battle, also lost a good friend, so he had particular reason to remember it. The reference would also fit the situation after Wilson's Creek, with the Federals retreating first to Springfield and then all the way to Rolla after inflicting heavy casualties on the Confederates; with Lyon dead, Sigel was given command of the Union forces for a time, until the non-German troops grew disgusted with him (Gerteis, pp. 73-74; Brookshear, p. 227, says that Sigel tried to stage an election that would let him keep command, but Major Sturgis, the Federal commander who had taken charge after Lyon's death and ordered the retreat of the main force, flatly refused). In any case, Sigel's command was quite temporary, and doesn't seem to fit the song's chronology; I think the reference is to Carthage.

Price was not present at Carthage.

"McCullough" or "Old Ben": Belden thinks both references are to Ben McCulloch (1811-1862), commander of Arkansas troops at Wilson's Creek and theoretical commander (though in effect he and Price led two independent armies). He would be killed in 1862 at Pea Ridge. No doubt the first reference is indeed to McCulloch. But the poem says that "Old Ben" was killed at Wilson's Creek -- and McCulloch wasn't. However, another senior officer named Ben did die there. This was Colonel Ben Brown (Brooksher, p. 223), who commanded "Brown's Cavalry," the largest unit in Parsons's division of Price's army. If "Old Ben" indeed refers to Brown, it would eliminate the one clear error in the account in this piece. - RBW

Bibliography

- Boatner: Mark M. Boatner III, The Civil War Dictionary, 1959 (there are many editions of this very popular work; mine is a Knopf hardcover)
- Brooksher: William Riley Brooksher, Bloody Hill: The Civil War Battle of Wilson's Creek, Brassey's, 1993
- DAB: Dumas Malone, editor, Dictionary of American Biography, originally published in 20 volumes plus later supplementary volumes; I use the 1961 Charles Scribner's Sons edition with minor corrections which combined the original 20 volumes into 10

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Beld366

War Song of the Revolution

DESCRIPTION: "Come ye Americans and tremble Here before your might God." The singer describes women and children slain and husbands and families destroyed by war. Storms and fires destroy cities. Listeners are warned to turn to God

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissouxFolkloreSociety)

KEYWORDS: battle death storm disaster warning religious

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissouxFolkloreSociety, p. 295, "War Song of the Revolution" (1 text)
Roud #7953

NOTES [66 words]: Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissouxFolkloreSociety knew nothing of this save that the informant thought it concerned the Revolutionary War. Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissouxFolkloreSociety notes that, if it does date back that far, it's probably Tory. He's likely right -- but I wonder if it isn't two songs merged together, with the second being some sort of hymn based on the Apocalypse. - RBW

File: Beld295
Ward Line, The

DESCRIPTION: "De cap'n's in dce pilot house ringin' de bell, Who's on de way, boys, who's on de way? 'N' de mate's down atween decks givin' de niggas hell, Tell me, whar you goin?" Complains of a Black sailor on a Great Lakes ship

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1933 (collected by Walton from several Great Lakes sailors)

KEYWORDS: ship sailor hardtimes

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, pp. 41-45, "The Ward Line" (1 composite text plus some stray verses, 1 tune)
Roud #19878

NOTES [83 words]: Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors reports that Sam Ward founded the Ward Line in 1820, and that Captain Eber Brock Ward was Michigan's richest man at the time of his death in 1875. One of the ships of the Ward Line was the Sam Ward, known as the "Old Black Sam." Julius F. Wolff, Jr., Lake Superior Shipwrecks, Lake Superior Port Cities Inc., Duluth, 1990, p.4, says the Sam Ward was a 433 ton steamer which had an accident in 1854 but survived. She was wrecked in 1861. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: WGM043

Warlike Seamen (The Irish Captain)

DESCRIPTION: Singer's ship sails for the coast of Ireland. They encounter a French ship. They report that they're from Liverpool and they will show the Frenchmen what they're made of. They badly damage the French ship, which surrenders; they drink the captain's health

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople)

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer, a sailor on an English ship with an Irish captain, sails for the coast of (Africa/Ireland). They encounter a French ship, which hails them and demands to know their name and port. They reply that they're from Liverpool (their ship is the, "London", "Lion" or "Marigold") and they will show the Frenchmen what they're made of. They fire the cannons, and the French ship, badly damaged, surrenders; they land in Plymouth and drink the captain's health

KEYWORDS: pride battle fight navy violence ship drink France sailor

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Oct 11, 1746 - Battle between the British "Nottingham" and French "Mars"

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South))

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople 57, "The London, Man of War" (1 text)
Palmer-FolkSongsCollectedBy-Ralph-VaughanWilliams, #70, "Liverpool Play" (1 text, 1 tune)
Copper-ASongForEverySeason, pp. 284-285, "Warlike Seamen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Frank-NewBookOfPirateSongs 29, "Liverpool Play" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, WARLIKES

Roud #690

RECORDINGS:
Bob & Ron Copper, "Warlike Seamen (The Irish Captain)" (on LastDays)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The French Privateer" (plot, lyrics)
cf. "The Brooklyn" (plot, lyrics)
cf. "The Dolphin" (plot, lyrics)
cf. "The Terrible Privateer" (plot)
cf. "General Armstrong" (form)

NOTES [949 words]: While the second half of this song is identical to that of "The French Privateer," their openings are different, so I've split them. - PJS

Roud lumps them, naturally, and throws in "The Dolphin" (and perhaps others) for good measure. There is a discussion of this on mudcat.org, which suggests the following: The captain was not Irish and was not Somerville; he was Philip Saumaurez, and he apparently wrote an early version of this song to praise his own exploit. He was killed in 1747 while serving under Admiral Hawke (for whom see "Bold Hawke"). Thus, although not nearly as popular as, say, "The Dolphin," it would appear that this was the original of the family.
The fight between H.M.S. Nottingham and the French Mars took place on October 11, 1746 (i.e. during the War of the Austrian Succession/The War of Jenkins's Ear).

The de Sausmarez family was from Guernsey (one of the Channel Islands); Philip and his relatives anglicized this as "Saumarez" (Rousham, p. 1).

Saumarez had already gathered a fair bit of attention before the events in this song, though. In 1740, as a lieutenant, he was part of George Anson's long, deadly, but highly profitable voyage around the world, including some time as acting commander of the 8-gun sloop Tryal (Herman, p. 257; Williams, p. 37). After Anson combined his decimated crews on a single ship, it was Saumarez who led the (tiny) boarding party from Anson's Centurion that took over the damaged Spanish treasure ship the Nuestra Senora de Covadonga (called that Cobadonga by Rousham and Heaps, based presumably on Saumarez's spelling), in the process capturing almost a million pounds' worth of treasure (Herman, p. 259). Saumarez then commanded the Covadonga as the British took her back to port in China (Williams, p. 166). In human terms, the voyage was a disaster (Anson had lost roughly three-fourths of his 1900 men, mostly due to starvation, death, or the unexplained loss of their ships) -- but it made both Anson and Saumarez famous. It also won Saumarez promotion to captain (despite a squabble between Anson and the Admiralty over whether Anson had the right to make the appointment; Williams, p. 203). That entitled him to command of a major ship. He was made captain of the Nottingham, the ship mentioned in this song; according to Williams, p. 209, it was a 60-gun ship of the line.

"Philip Saumarez was perhaps the most capable and talented of [all Anson's subordinates]... In 1746 he was given his own command in the Nottingham and captured the Mars, one of the most prized French men-of-war, off Cape Clear [on the south coast of Ireland]" (Heaps, p. 258).

"The gruelling hardships of the four year circumnavigation of the Centurion thoroughly exhausted all who survived. When Saumarez had at last recovered a measure of his health... he went on to serve with unusual distinction and commanded his own vessel, the Nottingham, in the war with France. He captured the great French warship the Mars and achieved other notable victories in the short time left to him. In 1747 a cannon ball struck him down as he fought against the French fleet off Finisterre. He was 34 years old" (Heaps, pp. 16-17).

If Saumarez had a fault, it was craving attention -- e.g. he wrote a letter to Anson (although he may not have sent it) arguing that his seamanship on the Tryal had not gained enough recognition (Williams, p. 47). "He was obsessed with the idea of distinguishing himself" (Heaps, p. 16). He sounds like a man willing to blow his own horn. To be fair, he seems to have backed up his fame-seeking:

"In 1746 he was in command of the 60-gun Nottingham. In an engagement off Cape Clear, he captured the Mars, a French man-of-war with 64 guns. The Lords of the Admiralty complimented him for this act of courage and seamanship" (Rousham, p. 45).

Saumarez was credited with designing the first official uniform for British naval officers (Heman, p. 261). "Yet Philip Saumaraz would never wear the uniform he designed. He had died the year before, commanding his ship Nottingham in a furious gun duel off Cape Finisterre against a more heavily armed armed ship of the the line, a French ship this time not Spanish, the 74-gun Intrepid" (Herman, p. 262). According to the surgeon who examined his body after his death, he was dying anyway, despite being not yet forty; something -- probably the privations he had suffered on Anson's voyage -- was causing a deformity and wasting of the lungs (Williams, p. 209).

The Samaurezes were a noteworthy naval family; a relative, James Saumarez (1757-1836) became an admiral and was made a peer. Another Samauraz, James, would be a naval captain in the Napoleonic era. The British named a World War I destroyer and a World War II destroyer Saumarez after the family (Wragg, p. 198; Worth, p. 114). it is interesting that the captain in the Copper Family version of the song is named Somerville; apparently one of the Somervilles (another famous naval family) wrote about the Saumarezes in the 1930s, but I have not seen the work involved.

Although this song has wandered far from its origins in Saumarez's own poem, it still has some images that remind me of Saumarez's writings. For example, Rousham, pp. 40-41, prints some parts of his account of the battle with the Cobadonga:

Our first broadside had a good effect both with his men and rigging. After near an hour's space we... could observe the officers running about confusedly as if they were preventing the desertion of their men from their quarters.

The ship was surprisingly shattered in her hull, masts, and rigging; the mainmast was half shot through, and few of the shrouds left standing. - RBW

Bibliography

- Heaps/Saumarez: Leo Heaps, Log of the Centurion (Based on the original papers of Captain
Warlock Laird o' Skene, The

DESCRIPTION: A magician swears an oath that after "ae nicht's frost ... He would drive o'er the Loch o' Skene." He casts a spell, calls out his coach and horses, and crosses the lake. Since then no fowl or fish is caught in that track.

AUTHOR: Alexander Gordon (1811-1873) (source: Walker)
EARLIEST DATE: 1850 (according to Walker)
KEYWORDS: magic witch
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #65, p. 2, "The Warlock Laird o' Skene" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan2 345, "The Warlock Laird o' Skene" (2 texts)
Roud #5874
CROSS-REFERENCES:
 cf. "Robert Gordon of Gordonston" (motif: wizard rides across a frozen lake)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Laird o Skene
NOTES [53 words]: Greig/Duncan2: ".. a tradition that the wizard was Alexander Skene who died in 1724.... It is still affirmed that every winter the marks of the wheels are clearly visible upon the ice" - BS
Walker's text, apparently the last four verses of Gordon's text, includes three verses not in the Greig/Greig/Duncan2 texts. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD2345

Warning to Girls, A

DESCRIPTION: "I once loves a young man So dear to my life, He told me so often He would make me my wife." "He fulfilled his promise, He made me his wife... I have ruined my whole life." In floating verses, she laments her sick baby and drunken husband and warns others

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Cox)
KEYWORDS: love betrayal drink floatingverses baby disease
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cox/Hercog/Halpert/Boswell-WVirginia-B, #14, pp. 153-154, "A Warning to Girls" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #413
CROSS-REFERENCES:
 cf. "On Top of Old Smokey" (floating lyrics)
 cf. "Green Grows the Laurel (Green Grow the Lilacs)" (floating lyrics)
 cf. "I'm Sad and I'm Lonely" (floating lyrics)
NOTES [77 words]: This song, or at least the version collected by Cox, is almost all floating verses
(the only significant exception is the second stanza in which the man marries the singer). But that verse changes the tone of the whole piece (what would otherwise be a lost love song becomes a bad marriage song), causing me to file it separately. Roud, curiously, files it with "The Cuckoo." If I had to file it with one well-known song, it would be "On Top of Old Smokey." - RBW

File: CoxII14

Warranty Deed, The (The Wealthy Old Maid) [Laws H24]

DESCRIPTION: A lawyer, underemployed and impoverished, at last decides to marry a wealthy old maid. The bride prepares for their wedding night by taking off wig, false teeth, false eye, and other decorations. The husband, who failed to get a "warranty deed," flees

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: old maid marriage humorous disguise
FOUND IN: US(NE,So)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
- Laws H24, "The Warranty Deed"
- Sturgis/Hughes-SongsFromTheHillsOfVermont, pp. 34-37, "The Warranty Deed" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Randolph 465, "The Warranty Deed" (1 text, 1 tune)
- DT 651, (UNFORTUN)
Roud #2188
CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Old Maid and the Burglar" [Laws H23]
- cf. "Only Nineteen Years Old" (theme)
- cf. "After the Ball Was Over, Sally Plucked Out Her Glass Eye" (theme)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
- The Unfortunate Man
- The Very Unfortunate Man
NOTES [158 words]: Gilbert has a piece (pp. 194-195), "It Takes A Girl to Fool You Every Time," which has this exact plot but entirely different lyrics, reportedly by Ned Oliver. I strongly doubt the latter went into oral tradition (it's not as good a song, anyway), but it may have been inspired by this piece.

Arnold Keith Storm also sings a piece, "Patched Up Old Devil," on this theme. It appears to be from family tradition; I have not encountered it elsewhere. As with Gilbert's piece, the plot is the same but the song quite distinct.

The pop folk version of this, "The Very Unfortunate Man," was reportedly assembled (I use the word advisedly) by Jimmy Driftwood.

I have heard that there was an unpublished 1898 play by Mark Twain with this exact plot. It sounds extremely close to this song. It sounds as if there has to be dependence -- with this probably the original, since the Twain play ended up in a drawer, almost entirely unseen until around 2005. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.8

File: LH24

Warrego Lament, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer asks if the listener has ever been in Queensland. In Warrego, in Queensland, is his love. "She was black -- but what of that?... She was just the sort for a bushman." He enjoyed her company, but then found she had given him a social disease

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968
KEYWORDS: disease whore bawdy
FOUND IN: Australia
REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Meredith/Anderson-FolkSongsOfAustralia, pp. 190-191, 223, "The Warrego Lament" (2 texts, 1 tune)

File: MA190
Wars o' Germanie, The

DESCRIPTION: "O, wae be to the orders that marched my love awa', And wae be to the cruel cause that gars my tears down fa.'" The singer recalls her soldier's departure for the wars overseas. Her family chides her, but she says they do not understand

AUTHOR: William Motherwell

EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads)

KEYWORDS: love separation soldier war

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 359, "The Wars o’ Germanie" (1 text)

Roud #5608

CROSS-REFERENCE:

cf. "High Germany (I)" (lyrics, theme)

NOTES [40 words]: Ord-BothySongsAndBallads credits this to William Motherwell, and it's perfectly reasonable to assume Motherwell padded out a fragment of an existing song (probably "High Germany"). I do think there was that traditional fragment, though. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.7

File: Ord359

Wars of America, The

DESCRIPTION: "I have two sons and a son-in-law, Fightin' in the wars of America. But I don't know if I'll see them more Or whether they'll visit old Ireland's shore." The singer seeks the boys; at last one comes home -- but crippled from the wars

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (A Garland of Green Mountain Song, according to Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry)

KEYWORDS: mother children separation war soldier injury disability

FOUND IN: US(NE) Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (3 citations):

Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 198-199, "The Frenchman's Ball" (1 text, 1 tune)

Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 17, "The Wars of America" (1 text, 1 tune)

Creighton-FolksongsFromSouthernNewBrunswick 75, "My Son Ted" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #678

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Johnny, I Hardly Knew Ye" (plot)

cf. "By the Hush" (plot)

NOTES [52 words]: Roud links this to "Mrs. McGrath." The plot similarity is obvious, but the songs themselves appear distinct to me. In Lomax's version, the conflict appears to have been the French and Indian Wars, and the soldier is named Terry. Perhaps the name "Ted" in Creighton's version was influenced by "Mrs. McGrath?" - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2

File: LoF017

Warwickshire Hiring Song

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you lads that be here for service, Come here, you jolly dogs, Who will help me with my harvest?" The famer offers a likely fellow "five pounds in standing wages" and good food, and tells him to come on Thursday; "my servants do all leave me."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1976 (Palmer)

KEYWORDS: farming work commerce

FOUND IN: Britain(England)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

ADDITIONAL: Roy Palmer, _The Folklore of Warwickshire_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, p. 123, (no title) (1 text, reportedly traditional although no source is listed)

File: RPFW123
Wary Bachelors
DESCRIPTION: "Come all you wary bachelors, come listen unto me... Before my wife was married, she was a dainty thing," but now she never finishes her work, but dresses up and goes out. "If my wife and your wife were in one boat together," the singer would drown both
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Thomas-DevilsDitties)
KEYWORDS: wife hardtimes clothes warning
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-DevilsDitties, pp. 126-127, "Wary Bachelors" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #8889
File: ThDD126

Was dragt di Gans uff ihren Schnawwel? (What Does the Goose Carry on Her Bill?)
DESCRIPTION: German. "Was dragt di Gans uff ihren Schnawwel? En Schissel mit de Subbfes. Un em Jaejer war di Gans." "What does the goose carry on her bill? A knife and fork. And the goose belongs to the hunter." The goose carries other things on other body parts
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends)
KEYWORDS: bird food hunting foreignlanguage
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Korson-PennsylvaniaSongsAndLegends, pp. 71-72, "Was dragt di Gans uff ihren Schnawwel? (What Does the Goose Carry on Her Bill?)" (1 German text plus non-poetic English translation, 1 tune)
NOTES [29 words]: The article in Korson says that versions of this are known in Germany, but I have been unable to find any under this precise title, so I do not list it as FOUND IN Germany... - RBW
Last updated in version 3.2
File: KPL071

Was It Right?
DESCRIPTION: "If you girls and boys will listen, I will tell them in my song, Of a sad thing that I noticed...." Two little children started to fight. Then a third boy comes along and causes them to make peace. "That was right, that was right."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Stout-FolkloreFromIowa); reportedly learned around 1885
KEYWORDS: fight children
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Stout-FolkloreFromIowa 103, pp. 127-133, "Early Iowa School Songs" (11 texts, of which "I1" and "I2" are this song)
Roud #21641
File: Stou103I

Was You Ever See?
DESCRIPTION: "There was John and Jane and Betsy/Eating buns and drinking whisky/Dancing jigs upon the fiddle/Up the sides and down the middle"; singer's sister Bella is never without her umbrella; brother Joe went to Chester College for to get a bit of knowledge; etc.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1954 (recorded from Manfrie Wood)
LONG DESCRIPTION: "There was John and Jane and Betsy/Eating buns and drinking whisky/Dancing jigs upon the fiddle/Up the sides and down the middle"; singer's sister Bella is never without her umbrella; his brother Joe went to Chester College for to get a bit of knowledge;
etc. Chorus: "Was you ever see?/Was you ever see?/ Was you ever see such a jolly time before?"
KEYWORDS: nonsense moniker nonballad music
FOUND IN: Britain(Wales)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 309, "Was You Ever See" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2144
RECORDINGS:
Manfrie Wood, "Was You Ever See?" (on FSB10)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Cosher Bailey's Engine" (tune, structure) and references there
NOTES [52 words]: Because this is identical in form to "Cosher Bailey," I was tempted to lump them -- but Cosher isn't in it, so I split them. - PJS
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland regards "Cosher Bailey" as an offshoot of this song. But Kennedy thinks everything is a version of everything else; he offers no evidence. - RBW
File: K309

Wash Me in the Water
DESCRIPTION: "Wash me in the water That washed your dirty daughter/the Colonel's daughter,
Then I shall be whiter Than the whitewash on the wall...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: soldier children
FOUND IN: Britain Australia
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 54, "Wash Me in the Water" (1 text)
Scott-ACollectorsNotebook-31TraditionalSongs, p. 37, "(no title)" (1 fragment)
Roud #10550
NOTES [90 words]: Ewan MacColl's autobiography doesn't say where he learned this, but if he places it in the right context, he would have learned it in northern England in the early 1920s -- which makes it quite likely that he got it from a veteran of World War I (which would explain why he doesn't identify the source, since he rarely mentions the war or the soldiers). His is among the earliest, if not the earliest, versions of the standard text, but in the absence of clearer documentation, I have listed an EARLIEST DATE from a more reliable source. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: BrPa054A

Washin' Song
DESCRIPTION: "Some of these brethren gone wrong (x3), Oh, Lord, some of these brethren gone wrong." "Git right, brethren, git right." "Similarly with sisters, deacons, and presumably anyone else who has ever disagreed with the singer
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 142, "Washin' Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #16298
NOTES [20 words]: There are no references in the text of this to washing; it's just that the informant's informant sang it while washing. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Arno142
Washing Day

DESCRIPTION: "The sky with clouds was overcast, The rain began to fall, My wife she whipped the children And raised a pretty squall... Oh, the deil a bit o' comfort's here upon a washing day." The singer describes how his good wife turns evil on washing day

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1849 (Logan-APedlarsPack)

KEYWORDS: work wife husband punishment

FOUND IN: Britain(England,Scotland) US(NE)

REFERENCES: (5 citations): Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 296-299, "Washing Day" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 153, "The Washing-Day" (1 text)
Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 381-382, "The Washing Day" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Roy Palmer, _The Folklore of Warwickshire_, Rowman and Littlefield, 1976, pp. 56-57, "](Washing Day)" (1 fragment plus a response, "Fuddling Day" or "Saint Monday")
Jon Raven, _The Urban and Industrial Songs of the Black Country and Birmingham_, Broadside, 1977, p. 236-237, "Washing Day" (1 text)

SAME TUNE:
Fuddling Day (Jon Raven, _The Urban and Industrial Songs of the Black Country and Birmingham_, Broadside, 1977, p. 238, listed as an "answer" to this.)

NOTES [132 words]: The similarities between the handful of truly-traditional texts of this song (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads and Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland) is such that I have to suspect broadside influence -- and, indeed, most of the texts listed by Roud are broadside or songster versions. Palmer admits his version is from a broadside -- as is the "Fuddling Day" response. Eric Partridge's _A Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English_ (combined fifth edition with dictionary and supplement, Macmillan, 1961) defines "fuddling" as drinking to excess or being stupefied with drink -- presumably related to being "befuddled," but with alcohol being apparently a necessary component.
Evidently, when the husband is washing (on Monday), the husband goes out and gets drunk -- so he pays either way. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.1

File: Lins296

---

Washington

DESCRIPTION: "We have a bold commander, Who fears no sword or gun, A second Alexander, Whose name is Washington."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands)

KEYWORDS: soldier nonballad

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1732-1799 - Life of George Washington

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES: (1 citation):
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 196, "Washington" (1 fragment, fifth of seven "Quatrains on the War")

ST Fus196A (Full)

NOTES [58 words]: Doubtless a fragment of one of the many broadsides about Washington, but with such a short text, I can't identify a source.
Honesty forces us to point out that this song is over-fulsome; Alexander the Great never lost a major battle, and Washington lost more than he won. But, of course, Washington won the battles that ended up counting most. - RBW

File: Fus196A

---

Washtub Blues, The

DESCRIPTION: "I washed dat woman's clo'es And I hung 'em on de line, My back most a-breakin', I's a-hurtin' all de time." The singer brings the clothes to their owner, who races "and she flung 'em on de flo'." The singer laments her pain and labor
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: work
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 247, "The Washtub Blues" (1 text)
File: Br3247

Wasn't That a Wonder
DESCRIPTION: "Wasn't that a wonder in the Heaven (x2), Mighty wonder in the Heaven, That woman clothe with the sun, moon under her feet." "Read about the wonder in the heaven ...." "John saw the wonder in the heaven...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealslands)
KEYWORDS: Bible nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealslands 28, pp. 139-140, "Wasn' That a Wonder" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "John Done Saw that Number" (some shared themes)
NOTES [105 words]: The current description is based on the Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSealslands text. Parrish has "That woman clothe with the sun, moon under her feet" as a tag line for each verse; Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 16-21, "John Done Saw That Number" has "Angel flew from the bottom of the pit, Gathered the sun all in her fist; Gathered the moon all 'round her wrist; Gathered the stars all under her feet; Gathered the wind all round her waist."
King James Revelation 12:1: "And there appeared a great wonder in heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars." - BS
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Parr028

Wasp Bite Nobi on Her Conch-Eye, A
DESCRIPTION: "A wasp bite Nobi on her conch-eye" (x2). Mama is summoned to hold the light; the Germans will fight.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1935 (Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry)
KEYWORDS: bug nonballad
FOUND IN: West Indies(Bahamas)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, p. 86, "A Wasp Bite Nobi On Her Conch-Eye" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #15648
File: LoSi086

Wasp Stinging Frolic
DESCRIPTION: "Then broadside and broadside full at it they went The Wasp stung the Frolick unto her content." Frolic is defeated and ordered toward port but a British 74 takes both the nest day.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Thompson-APioneerSongster)
KEYWORDS: battle war rescue death sea ship America England patriotic
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
October 18-19, 1812 - American sloop battles and boards English brig Frolic; the next day a British 74 [the _Poictiers_] takes both ships (source: Thompson-APioneerSongster)
Wassail Song (III)

DESCRIPTION: "Jolly come to our jolly wassail." Wishes for a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. Have "pockets of money and a cellar of beer" A ship in full sail is in the ocean gale. Get apples for cider. "I know you'll reward us for singing wassail"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (recording, Wassailers on Voice16)
KEYWORDS: request drink nonballad wassail ship storm Christmas
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, p. 56, "Wassail Song" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #209
RECORDINGS:
Wassailers, "Wassail Song" (on Voice16)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Somerset Wassail" (subject) and references there
NOTES [69 words]: Roud lumps this with the many other wassail songs, but they all have different forms. I'm not absolutely sure that the Voice16 and Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall songs are the same (or, indeed, that Gundry's two texts are the same; the second is an apple tree wassail), but they are closer to each other than any other Wassails, and at some point we have to stop producing infinite wassail songs.... - RBW
Last updated in version 4.5
File: RcWasSo3

Wat Wi Doht

DESCRIPTION: Capsan shanty. German (Plattdeutsch). "Un wenn wi nu na Hamborg kamt." When they come to Hamburg, the sailors will pay for girls. The singer lists a few of the whores he might meet, and where they can be sought

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Hugill-SongsOfTheSea)
KEYWORDS: shanty sailor home whore money
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hugill-SongsOfTheSea, p. 70, "Wat Wi Doht" (2 texts, German and English; 1 tune)
File: HSoSe070

Wata Come a Me Y'Eye (Tears Come to My Eyes)

DESCRIPTION: Jamaican patois: Whenever the singer remembers Liza, whenever he thinks of his "nice gal Liza," "wata come a me 'eye." "Come back Liza."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Roberts)
KEYWORDS: grief love rejection nonballad
FOUND IN: West Indies(Jamaica)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Murray-FolkSongsOfJamaica, p. 12, "Wata Come a Me Y'Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Jim Morse, _Folk Songs of the Caribbean_ (New York: Bantam Books, 1958), pp. 96-97, "Wata Come a Me Y'eye" (1 text, 1 tune)
William Attaway and Lyle Kenyon Engel, _Calypso Song Book_ (New York: Calypso Music, Inc, 1957), pp. 16-17, "Water Come a Me Eye" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Edric Connor with the Caribbeans and Earl Inkman, "Wata Come a Me Y'Eye" (on WIEConnor01)

NOTES [104 words]: Morse adds two verses that don't seem to fit: Every time he kisses, touches, loves or holds Liza, "wata come a me y'eye."
The Roberts text is combined with the first verse of "Linstead Market." The second verse is typical of "Wata Come a Me Y'Eye" and is very close to Lord Flea's: "Come back Charlie come back gal/ Wateh coveh me eye! When me look 'pon Mahdi so, wateh coveh me eye." [Flea sings "... when me look upon Mary Lin ...."] - BS

Last updated in version 5.3
File: JaMu012

Watch and Chain
DESCRIPTION: "Who has stole my watch and chain, my fair lady?" "Off to prison you must go"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1985 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: playparty prison theft
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 9, "Watch and Chain" (3 texts)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "London Bridge is Falling Down" (tune, per Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
File: OpGa009

Watch that Lady
DESCRIPTION: "I been all around my last time, last time, last time, I been all around my last time. Young lady, hold the key. Just watch that young lady how she hold that key (x2). Young lady, hold the key."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (recording, children of Lilly's Chapel School)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE) West Indies
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, p. 158, "(Watch That Lady)" (1 text); pp. 278-279, "Just Watch That Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Harold Courlander, _A Treasury of Afro-American Folklore_, Crown Publishers, 1976, pp. 536-537, "Watch That Lady" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11006
RECORDINGS:
Children of Lilly's Chapel School, "Watch That Lady" (on NFMAla6)
File: CNFM158

Watch, Barrell, Watch (Mackerel Song)
DESCRIPTION: "Watch, barrel, watch, mackerel for to catch! White may they be, like blossom on the tree, God send thousands, one, two, three; Some by the head, some by the tail, God send mackerel and never fail... God send as many as we can lift in!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Simpson)
KEYWORDS: fishing nonballad
Watcher, The

DESCRIPTION: In the cold windy night a mother and her dying baby see a mansion where "a hundred lights are gleaming ... and merry feet are dancing." In the morning she and the baby are dead.

AUTHOR: Sara Josepha Hale (1788-1879) (source: Thomson-Pioneer)

EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Thompson-APioneerSongster)

KEYWORDS: death poverty dancing baby mother

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Thompson-APioneerSongster 84, "The Watcher" (1 text)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemensSang, p. 299, "The Watcher" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2499, p. 169, "The Watcher" (1 reference)

Roud #2848

BROADSIDES:
VonWalthour,CDDrive>w>w(186), "The Watcher" ("The night was dark and fearful"), J. Andrews (New York), 1853-1859

NOTES [40 words]: The current description is based on the Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 text. There is a fairly well-known hymn by Henry L. Gilmour, "Watchman, Blow the Gospel Trumpet," but this does not appear to be a version of that. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2

File: Brs5769

Watchman's Call, The

DESCRIPTION: "The watchman blows the trumpet loud, Come listen to the trumpet's sound, And be assured there's danger there. How many are prepared to die? Your days ahead will soon be o'er, And time to you return no more. Oh, some soul to save, What will I have..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad death

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 769, "The Watchman's Call" (1 short text, 1 tune)

NOTES [40 words]: The current description is based on the Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 text. There is a fairly well-known hymn by Henry L. Gilmour, "Watchman, Blow the Gospel Trumpet," but this does not appear to be a version of that. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1

File: TPS084
Water Boy (I -- Water on the Wheel)
DESCRIPTION: "Water boy, water boy! (x2) Water on the wheel, How does the sun shine that I feel, Little water time, hey, little water boy (x2), Water on the wheel, How does the sun shine that I feel, Little water boy."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (recording, Annie Grace Horn Dodson)
KEYWORDS: worksong nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 86-87, "(Water Boy)" (1 text, 1 tune)
RECORDINGS:
Annie Grace Horn Dodson, "Water on the Wheel" (on NFMAla6)
File: CNFM086

Water Boy Drowned in the Mobile Bay
DESCRIPTION: "Did you hear about, oh yeah! the water boy drowned... In Mobile Bay." "They dropped him, oh yeah! in forty feet of water... Over his head." "Did you hear about... Lu Etta Water... The poor girl dead." She died at home of tuberculosis.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1968 (USMississippi01)
KEYWORDS: death drowning nonballad worksong disease
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
Inmates at Parchman Farm, "Water Boy Drowned in the Mobile Bay" (on USMississippi01)
NOTES [53 words]: The form of the Parchman Farm recording is a call-and-response track-lining work song. The form is an aab blues. In each verse the first line call is broken in half by responses "o yeah!" The second line repeats the first. The first half call of the third line gets the response of "Lord, Lord" and the repeated call. - BS
Last updated in version 5.1
File: RcWBDIMB

Water Lue
DESCRIPTION: "One dark and dismal morning, As I from bed did rise," the singer sees a sailor part from his wife and baby boy, saying, "When shall we meet again?" The boy dies asking for his father; months later, the wife receives word that the sailor's ship sank
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1879 (Journal of the Andrew Hicks)
KEYWORDS: love separation father children sailor death
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 340-341, "Water Lue" (1 text, 1 tune)
File: HGam340

Water of Tyne, The
DESCRIPTION: "I cannot get to my love, if I would dee, The waters of Tyne stand between him and me, And here I must stand with a tear in my e'e, Both sighing and sickly my true love to see." She begs for a boatman to carry her across the river
AUTHOR: unknown (see NOTES)
EARLIEST DATE: 1812 (Bell)
KEYWORDS: love separation river
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 30-31, "The Waters of Tyne" (1 text, 1 tune)
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, p. 3, "The Water of Tyne" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [282 words]: Thompson et al list this as by John Lennard -- but I note that most of the pieces in Thompson were contributed to the book by their authors, and this song was printed fifteen years before Thompson.

I've never seen this mentioned as an explanation for this song, but for much of history the Tyne, not the Tweed, marked the eastern boundary between Scotland and England -- Hadrian's Wall ended at the Tyne, and the border still stood there into the second millennium C.E. (with the complication that the independent kingdoms of Northumbria for a long time stood between what would become England and what would become Scotland, occupying what we would now call the Scottish lowlands, Cumbria, Northumbria, and even as far down as Yorkshire; see e.g. the map in Brooke, p. 85).

The boundary was particularly fluid in the time of William the Conqueror (Douglas, p. 226), in no small part because there weren't enough Normans to really garrison the north. The city of Newcastle, in fact, was founded in the reign of William the Conqueror (1066-1087) as the New Castle on the Tyne after Northumbria was claimed by Malcolm Ill Canmore of Scotland (Magnusson, p. 66). The site was selected by the Conqueror's son Robert Curthos (Douglas, p. 241); Newcastle was a strong position far enough south that William could be confident of holding it.

The current Solway-to-Tweed border was finally settled in the reign of Alexander II in the first half of the thirteenth century (Magnusson, pp. 90-92). From that time on, the Tyne no longer divided nations. Obviously this song cannot have existed in its present form at that time. But perhaps it's just possible that this represents a memory of that time. - RBW

Bibliography

- Douglas: David C. Douglas, William the Conqueror, University of California Press, 1964

Last updated in version 4.3
File: StoR030

Water Witch, The

DESCRIPTION: Water Witch is wrecked on a Horrid Gulch reef near Pouch Cove. Pouch Cove fishermen save some. The Humane Society of Liverpool sent "Gold medals to those fishermen who never knew no fear, The Governor's lady pinned them on"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1912 (Murphy, Old Songs of Newfoundland)
KEYWORDS: rescue death sea ship storm wreck
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 116, "The Water Witch" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, editor, _Old Songs of Newfoundland_, James Murphy Publishing, 1912 (PDF available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 10, "Bravery of Pouch Cove Fishermen" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, _Songs Their Fathers Sung: For Fishermen: Old Time Ditties_, James Murphy Publishing, 1923 (PDF available from the Memorial University of Newfoundland) web site), p. 11, "Loss of the 'Water Witch"" (1 text)

Roud #7316

RECORDINGS:

Richard Moores, "The Water Witch" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

NOTES [253 words]: Harbour Main is at almost the southernmost point of Conception Bay. Pouch Cove is near Cape St Francis which is turned on the way from St John's to Conception Bay. - BS

The sources checked (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou, Northern Shipwrecks Database, Doyle4) disagree on details of this tragedy, dating it November 25 or 29, 1873 or 1875. The casualty count also differs: nine of 20 or 11 of 24. - BS, (RBW)

Frank Galgay and Michael McCarthy, Shipwrecks of Newfoundland and Labrador, [Volume I], Harry Cuff Publishing, 1987, p. 93, offers that Waterwitch was a "Schooner, sailed out of Brigus. Lost at Horrid Gulch near Pouch Cover, 29 Nov. 1893. Eleven of 20 on board were saved through the heroic efforts of the fishermen of Pouch Cove." It mentions that Alfred Moore was given the Royal Humane Society medal for being lowered over a 500 foot cliff to help with the rescue.

There is a book by Eldon Drodge, Newfoundland Stories: The Loss of the Waterwitch, which I assume to be about this event. But having read one of Drodge's other books, I find that he invents things and calls them history, so I haven't attempted to see this. I can't recommend anything by an author who doesn't understand the difference between fiction and non-fiction.

This ship, incidentally, should not be confused with the American survey ship Water Witch, built in 1853, which served as a blockade ship during the American Civil War, but was captured by the Confederates in 1864 and later burned. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: LeBe116

---

Water's Deep, Love, I Canna Wide, The

DESCRIPTION: "Where would I get a tiny boat To carry my love and ?" He buys a tiny boat for five pounds and "that very night the two were married"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1910 (Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast)

KEYWORDS: elopement sea floating verses

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #121, p. 3, ("The water's deep, love, I canna wide") (1 fragment)

Greig/Duncan7 1359, "The Water's Deep, Love, I Canna Wide" (1 text)

Roud #7237

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Waly Waly (The Water is Wide)" (verse)

NOTES [23 words]: The first verse is the familiar one from "Waly Waly (The Water is Wide)" suggested by the title. The second verse completes the story. - BS

Last updated in version 2.6

File: GrD71359

---

Waterbound (I)

DESCRIPTION: Singer can't go home because of flooding. His girl's father is mad, but the singer doesn't care "as long as I get his daughter": "If he don't give her up, we're gonna run away." He and his friends state that they're going home "before the water rises."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (unissued recording, Grayson County Railsplitters)

KEYWORDS: courting elopement flood father

FOUND IN: US(Ap,SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Darling-NewAmericanSongster, pp. 252-253, "Waterbound" (1 text)

DT, WATRBOND

RECORDINGS:

Grayson County Railsplitters, "Way Down in North Carolina" (unissued, 1929; on TimesAint05)
Watercresses

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets a damsel who has "a bunch of watercresses." She agrees to marry but "has some bills to pay" first, so he gives her money. Next day he get a letter that she's already someone's wife. "Sure you must have been greener than watercresses"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1886 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 11(4046))

LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer, a dairy farmer, goes to town, meets a pretty girl, asks the way to Camberwell and falls in love. He proposes, citing his farm and herds; she accepts, but tells him she will need money for wedding expenses. He gives her a sovereign; they kiss and part. She sends him a letter telling him that next time he proposes, he should be certain his intended is a maiden or a widow, not a wife, and promises to repay the sovereign, someday. Refr.: "She promised she would marry me upon the first of May/And she left me with a bunch of water cresses"

KEYWORDS: courting promise money love marriage rejection beauty humorous lover wife

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar,Newf,Ont) US(So) Britain(England,Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (7 citations):
   Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #137, p. 1, "The Bunch of Water-cresses" (1 text)
   Greig/Duncan2 300, "The Bunch of Watercresses" (2 texts, 1 tune)
   Peacock, pp. 320-321, "Watercresses" (1 text, 1 tune)
   Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 66, "Water Creases" (1 text, 1 tune)
   Ives-FolksongsOfNewBrunswick, pp. 106-108, "Watercresses" (1 text, 1 tune)
   Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi 63, "The Dairy Farmer (Water Cresses)" (1 text, 1 tune)
   Vikár/Panagapka-SongsNorthWoodsSungByOJAbbott 40, "A Bunch of Watercresses" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST Peac320 (Partial)
Roud #1653

RECORDINGS:
   O. J. Abbott, "The Bunch of Water Cresses" (on Abbott1)
   Everett Bennett, "Watercresses" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]

BROADSIDES:
   Bodleian, Harding B 11(4046), "Water Cresses!," H. Such (London), 1863-1885

CROSS-REFERENCES:
   cf. "The Park in Portadown" (theme: the married woman pretending to be single)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
   Watercress
   The Watercress Girl

NOTES [153 words]: In [O. J. Abbott's version of] the song, the young man says he is from Belvishire. There is no such shire in England. On the other hand, Camberwell is a borough of London. - PJS

The Southwest Missouri State University site Max Hunter Folk Song Collection includes "Watercress" ["'Twas on the first of April When I arrived in town ..."], a version collected in Arkansas. In this one Mrs. Tray writes "But to think that I would marry you Upon the first of May You must think that I'm as green as watercrest's."

I don't consider this to be the same as the following ballad at Bodleian Library site Ballads Catalogue:
Bodleian, Harding B 11(4047), "The Water-Cress Girl" ("While strolling out one evening by a running stream"), unknown, n.d.; also Harding B 11(1233), "The Water-Cress Girl"
In this one the singer finds Martha gathering water-cresses, they "often strolled together," marry and live happily ever after. - BS

Waterford Boys, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer pays 5 shillings for a room and dry bread and cheese; he fight rats all night. Tavern-keeper would refund 5s for a cure for rats. "Just invite them to supper" and "charge them five shillings and never the rat will again cross your floor."

AUTHOR: Harry Clifton
EARLIEST DATE: before 1879 (broadside, LOCSinging as203820)
KEYWORDS: bargaining emigration Ireland humorous
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 72, "The Waterford Boys" (1 text)
  O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladsOfIreland, pp. 115-116, "The Waterford Boys" (1 text)
Roud #3107
RECORDINGS:
  Frank Knox, "The Waterford Boys" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
  Paddy Tunney, "The Waterford Boys" (on IRPTunney03)
BROADSIDES:
  LOCSinging, as203820, "Waterford Boys," H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878
SAME TUNE:
  The Flaming O'Flannigans (per broadside LOCSinging as203820)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
  Wrestling With Rats

NOTES [118 words]: According to GEST Songs of Newfoundland and Labrador site the tune is "The Humours of Whiskey" and the dates for the author are 1832-1872. [Other sources say 1824-1872 - RBW.]

The "Waterford Boys" title is sensible considering the first lines
Well boys, for diversion, we're all met together:
I'll tell you how from Waterford hither I came and the last line of the chorus: "Who can compare with the Waterford boys." - BS

For background on author Harry Clifton, see the notes to "The Good Ship Kangaroo." - RBW

Broadside LOCSinging as203820: H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS

Waterford Strike, The

DESCRIPTION: Waterford staff strikes for pension rights. Union "Meter Maids" cross the line. Police are scabs and a crowd is treated to an ice hockey shutout of the Police by "Fire Boys." Nevertheless, the "cops keep order, and they're taking home the pay."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1979 (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)
KEYWORDS: strike labor-movement worker
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
  1977 - Four month strike at Waterford Hospital, St John's (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
  Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 117, "The Waterford Strike" (1 text)

Waterloo (I) [Laws J2]

DESCRIPTION: The singer is pressed and forced to leave his sweetheart. The new Redcoat serves in Belfast, then is sent to Waterloo, where he loses an arm and a leg. Now he is at least free of the army and due a pension of thirty pounds

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland)

KEYWORDS: war Napoleon

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
June 18, 1815 - Battle of Waterloo

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Laws J2, "Waterloo"
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 81, "Waterloo" (1 text, 1 tune)
Peacock, pp. 1020-1023, "Waterloo" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
DT 815, WATLOOX

Roud #1921

RECORDINGS:
Charlotte Decker, "Waterloo" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]

Watermelon on the Vine

DESCRIPTION: "You may talk about your apples, your peaches, and your pears... But... The watermelon am de fruit for me." "But gimme, oh, gimme me... That watermelon hanging on the vine." The singer begs for, or makes other plans to acquire, the watermelon

AUTHOR: Thomas P Westendorf (1882) (see Notes) (credited to Johnny Marvin on the Whitter recording)

EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Chamberlain and Harrington)

KEYWORDS: food theft floatingverses

FOUND IN: US(SE) West Indies(Bahamas)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 454, "Oh, Dat Watermilion" (2 fragments, possibly other songs mixed with this, but too short to bother classifying separately); 468, "Watermelon Hanging on the Vine" (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 454, "Oh, Dat Watermilion" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)

ADDITIONAL: David B Chamberlain and Karl P Harrington, _Songs of All The Colleges_, (New York: Hinds & Noble, 1900 ("Digitized by Google"))pp. 22-23, "Gib Me Dat Water-Million" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST Br3454 (Partial)
Roud #11795

RECORDINGS:
Bela Lam and His Green County Singers, "Watermelon Smiling on the Vine" (OKe, unissued, 1929)
The Monroe Brothers, "Watermelon Hangin' on the Vine" (Bluebird 6829)
Ernest Stoneman, "Watermelon Hanging on the Vine" (Edison 51864, 1926) (CYL: Edison [BA] 5191, 1926)
Uncle Dave Macon, "Watermelon Smilin' on the Vine" (Vocalion 15063, 1923)
Henry Whitter, "Watermelon Hanging on the Vine" (OKe 40296, 1925; rec. 1924)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "There Was a Watermelon" (theme)
cf. "Watermelon Spoiling on the Vine" (title line only; see Notes)

NOTES [183 words]: Bob Black, who played with the Blue Grass Boys for a couple of years, describes this as Bill Monroe's "theme song" (Come Hither to Go Yonder, p. 40), but obviously it preceded him. - RBW

Chamberlain and Harrington has "words and music by Thos. P Westendorf." Date of 1882 is from Country Music Sources by Guthrie T Meade Jr with Dick Spottswood and Douglas S. Meade (Chapel Hill, 2002), p. 477.

See "Watermelon Spoiling on the Vine" for a comment on the Thomas Cartwright recording for Smithsonian Folkways, an instrumental using the same tune as Higgs.

In 1955 in New York I heard a version from a Bahamian man that was close, in text, to the U.S. version I had heard previously from Harry West. The tune was syncopated and not like West's tune
Watermelon Spoilin' On The Vine

DESCRIPTION: "O baby, watermelon is spoilin on the vine." The singer's girl is breaking his heart. He wants his letter and ring back. Floating verses [see notes]. "Needle and thread" [let's go down the road] "Make my chimney higher"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (Blind Blake Higgs: see WIHIGGS01)
KEYWORDS: courting request rejection floatingverses
FOUND IN: West Indies (Bahamas)
RECORDINGS:
  - Blind Blake Higgs, "Watermelon Spoilin' On The Vine" (on WIHIGGS01)
  - Thomas Cartwright and the Boys, "Watermelon Is Spoilin' on the Vine" (1997, on "The Bahamas Islands of Song" Smithsonian Folkways SF 40405 CD [instrumental])
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  - cf. "Watermelon on the Vine" (title line only; see Notes)
  - cf. "Lynchburg Town" (floating verses; see Notes)
  - cf. "Liza Jane" (floating verse; see Notes)
  - cf. "Fly Around, My Pretty Little Miss" (floating verse; see Notes)
  - cf. Grandpa Jones, "Goin Down Town"
NOTES [245 words]: According to the liner notes by Kayla Olubumni Lockhart Edwards for the Cartwright instrumental -- which has the same tune as Higgs -- "[Watermelon is Spoilin' on the Vine] is a traditional Bahamian folk song, possibly created during an abundant year of watermelons in the 1920s." Since the Higgs song has little to do with watermelons the question is whether the Edwards note refers to this song or to "Watermelon on the Vine." The floating verses found in the U.S. are "Now I wish'd I had a needle/ As fast as I could sew/ I'd sew my baby to my side/ And down the road I'll go" (often in "Liza Jane" and "Fly Around, My Pretty Little Miss") and "Now I wish'd I had ten thousand bricks/ To build my chimney higher/ To stop the mighty big black cat/ From dropping in my fire (see Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag's "Goin Down Town.") Grandpa Jones's recording of "Goin Down Town" (see "Lynchburg Town") has both of Higgs U.S. floaters. In fact, the "needle and thread" verse is closer to the main idea of this song than is the watermelon theme. Higgs's chorus picks up the last line of "needle and thread": "Down the road/ Here we go walking/ Down the road/ Laughing and talking/ Down the road/ Here we go baby/ Down the road."
It seems likely that the following verse is a West Indies floater, but I have no other instances: I went to the governor's gate/ And I asked her for a break/ I wheeled right round and I stayed right round/ And I give the governor the break - BS

Waters of Dee, The

DESCRIPTION: The bride waits at home for the bride-groom. She and her maiden look for him but "he'll never win owre the waters o' Dee." At dinner the bridegroom raps at the gate. The bride gets a horse and they elope "And so they were mairriet wi' candle-light"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2)
KEYWORDS: elopement marriage home horse
FOUND IN: Britain (Scotland (Aber,Bord))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 617, "The Waters of Dee" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 139, "Black Waters o Dee" (1 text)
Watkin's Ale

DESCRIPTION: A girl laments "I am afraid to die a maid." A man overhears and offers her "Watkin's Ale." She accepts. After much witty repartee, they part. Nine months later, her child is born. The moral: "It is no jesting with sharp-edged tools."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: mentioned twice in 1592 (Munday, Chettle)
KEYWORDS: seduction pregnancy sex bawdy bastard

NOTES [148 words]: Chappell in the nineteenth century deemed the text of this song unprintable, but it was not always so -- although the printer apparently was not willing to risk listing his name, and it does not seem to have been entered into the Stationer's Register. But A. W. Pollard, G. R. Redgrave, et al, A Short-Title Catalogue of Books Printed in England, Scotland & Ireland And of English Books Printed Abroad 1475-1640, The Bibliographical Society [of London], 1963, p. 585, #25107, is "A ditty delightfull of Mother Watkins ale," which they guess to be from around 1590. This probably is not a traditional tune; the words are too fiendishly clever and the music too complex to have arisen in oral tradition. The song is rather frequently mentioned, however, particularly for such a bawdy piece. Chances are it was popular enough to include here. And I happen to think it too clever to omit. - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: ChWI265

Watty and Meg

DESCRIPTION: Watty goes to the local alehouse and complains to Mungo about Meg's nagging. Mungo recommends Watty threaten to leave her. Watty follows the advice, threatening to enlist. Meg begs him to stay and promises never to nag him. He stays.

AUTHOR: Alexander Wilson (1766-1813) in 1792 (source: Ford)
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Ford); c.1800 (broadside, NLScotland RB.m.143(002))

LONG DESCRIPTION: Watty goes to the local alehouse and complains to Mungo about Meg's nagging. Mungo recommends Watty threaten to leave her. Meg comes to get him for "bringing wife and weans to ruin, Drinking here wi' sic a crew." The nagging continues on the road and when they reach home. He bids her farewell in the morning. She begs him to stay. He says he has heard that before and this morning he will enlist: "Ower the seas I march this morning." His price for staying is that she "swear to drap your flyting." She solemnly swears "by everything that's gude, Ne'er again your spouse to scal' him" or complain about his drinking. She swears again. Watty is ecstatic.
"Syne below the blankets, gloriousa, Held anither Hinney-Moon."

KEYWORDS: shrewishness sex drink dialog husband wife

NOTES [118 words]: Greig/Duncan3 is a fragment; broadside NLScotland RB.m.143(002) is the basis for the description.
Ford: "Not Paisley, as is generally supposed, but Lochwinnoch, I believe, was the scene of this world-known poem.... 'Mungo Blue' was really notorious in the village scandal. His real name was Jamie Orr..... He led a joyous but short life, and went through his 'subject' by drinking and other debaucheries. His changehouse [alehouse] at Lochwinnoch.... In the east end was situated the wretched domicile of Wattie Mathie and his wife, the hero and heroine of the wonderfully graphic poem, which is true in every respect to the character of Watty, and to the flying and tinkler nature of his wife, Meg Love." - BS

Last updated in version 2.4
File: GrD3595

Watty Grimes
DESCRIPTION: Watty Grimes blames Billy McKeever for blackmailing him into leaving his family to join a raid to aid Antrim. They "spent that whole night with a bottle and glass." Watty is deserted in the field, flees, is taken, jailed in Coleraine, tried and executed.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1845 (Shield's _Songs and Ballads in use in the Province of Ulster...1845_, according to Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
KEYWORDS: rebellion execution manhunt prison trial drink gallows-confession family
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jun 7, 1798 - "A party of insurgents led by William M'Keiver assembled at Crew Hill, near Maghera, Co. Derry, in order to assist the United Irishmen of Antrim" (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 81, "Watty Grimes" (2 texts)
Roud #V13535
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 26(666), "Watty Grimes" ("In the year '98, as you may understand"), The Poet's Box (Belfast), 1846-1852
File: Moyl081

Watty's Wooing
DESCRIPTION: "Watty Wylie was a grieve and served at Whinnyknowe, And he had gien his promise to marry Bessie Lowe," but repeatedly puts off the wedding, pleading poverty. At last she gives up on him and marries another. She is happy, but Watty is mocked AUTHOR: William "Ryming Willie" Penman ?
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads); Penman died 1877
KEYWORDS: love courting betrayal rejection poverty
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 282-283, "Watty's Wooing" (1 text)
Roud #5601
File: Ord282

Waukin' o' the Claes, The DESCRIPTION: Betsy and Jeannie are waulking one cold night. Betsy taunts Jeannie that she has no lover to keep her warm. Jeannie's lover shows up too late. Betsy becaomes pregnant. Jeannie taunts Betsy "now your laddie's gone ... my laddie's proved constant"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: sex abandonment pregnancy lover
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #98, p. 2, "The Waukin' o' the Claes" (1 text plus 1 fragment)
Wave Over Wave

DESCRIPTION: The singer is a sailor who loves the sea. His wife doesn't understand why he leaves home ten months a year, with children to raise, while he "must sail the salt sea"

AUTHOR: Jim Payne

EARLIEST DATE: 1983 (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)

KEYWORDS: sea children wife sailor

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 118, "Wave Over Wave" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #27926

NOTES [36 words]: The song identifies the singer as a "shareman," meaning that he had a share in every voyage he made. He had to sail or he wouldn't earn anything. And there weren't many other ways to make money in Newfoundland.... - RBW

Last updated in version 6.1
File: LeBe118

Waxies' Dargle, The

DESCRIPTION: "Says my aul' one to your aul' one, Will ye come to the Waxies' Dargle?" The hearer hasn't a farthing to take a trip. Neither can they go to the Galway races. They agree, "When food is scarce, And you see the hearse, You'll know you died of hunger."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Behan-IrelandSings)

KEYWORDS: food travel hardtimes poverty

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Behan-IrelandSings, #95, "The Waxie's Dargle" (1 text, 1 tune, modified) DT, WAXDARGL*

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Girl I Left Behind Me" (II - lyric) (tune)
cf. "Brighton Camp" (tune)

NOTES [107 words]: Waxies were candlemakers (or, according to Robert Gogan, 130 Great Irish Ballads [third edition, Music Ireland, 2004], p.105, people who waxed bootlaces). Soodlum's Irish Ballad Book declares that the Waxies' Dargle was an annual meeting of candlemakers held in Bray in County Wicklow. Gogan, however, declares that the poor waxies could not afford a visit to such a posh place, and so went instead to a beach in Dublin.
The versions I've seen don't make it clear why times are so hard in this song; it doesn't sound like a famine song. I suspect its survival has much to do with being fitted to the much-loved tune "Brighton Camp." - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2
File: DTwaxDar

Waxworks, The

DESCRIPTION: "We'll all go over to the waxworks, the waxworks, the waxworks, We'll all go over to the waxworks, yo ho, yo ho, yo ho." There they can see Napoleon, Robespierre, Oliver Twist, and more. The Labor Party's attempts to overthrow the crown won't stop them.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe)
Way Bye and Bye

DESCRIPTION: "Way bye and bye (x2), We goin' a have a good time, Way bye and bye." "Way in Beulah land (x2), we goin' a have a good time, way bye and bye." "Meet my mother over there...." "One morning soon...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1963

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 253-254, "Way Bye and Bye" (1 text, 1 tune)

Way Down Below

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, a good beef steak and' a mutton chop, Way down below! Make dat nigger's lip go flip flap flop, Way down below (x2), Ole Aunt Kitty am honin' for de sea, Way down below." Verses float (e.g. "My old master promised me"); lines 2 and 4-6 are the chorus

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: slave freedom floatingverses food

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 492, "Way Down Below" (1 text)

Roud #11870

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "My Ole Mistus Promised Me" (floating lyrics) and references there

NOTES [23 words]: This looks like it might have been built on the broken fragments of a sea shanty, but the verses have clearly come from tradition ashore. - RBW

Way Down East Among the Shady Maple Trees

DESCRIPTION: Down east, among the shady maples, live Eloise and her mother. The singer would marry Eloise but her mother would not be left alone. He promises Eloise's mother they will take care of her. They marry and have children that play with grandma

AUTHOR: Tony Stanford (source: broadside, DukeDC a2358)

EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Broadside DukeDC a2358); in tradition, 1951 (MUNFLA-Leach)

KEYWORDS: age courting love marriage promise children husband mother wife

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

Roud #26049

RECORDINGS:
Joe Sutton, "Shady Maple Tree" (on MUNFLA-Leach)

BROADSIDES:

File: Ml3ShMaT

Way Down in Cuba

DESCRIPTION: Fragment of a shanty: "I've got a sister nine feet tall, 'Way down in Cuba, Sleeps in the kitchen with her feet in the hall, 'Way down in Cuba.' "I've got a girl friend, name is Jane, 'Way down in Cuba, You can guess where she gives me a pain...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Shay)
KEYWORDS: shanty talltale
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, p. 95, "'Way Down in Cuba" (1 short text)
Roud #8820
NOTES [29 words]: I suspect this may be a broken-off fragment of a better-known shanty (Shay says it's from the Mississippi River), but with only two verses and no tune, it's hard to tell. - RBW
File: ShSea095

Way Down in Maine

DESCRIPTION: "Once upon a time I loved a feller, Way down in Maine, He seed me hum (home) under his umbrella." Her calico ends up torn by the frightening rain. Her mother feeds the man. He will not marry her. So she declares, "I'm in the market still."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales)
KEYWORDS: courting rejection humorous
FOUND IN: US (MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 405, "'Way Down in Maine" (1 text)
Roud #6586
File: TNY405

Way Down in Old Virginia

DESCRIPTION: "'Way down in old Virginia Where I was bred and born, On the sunny side of that country I used to hoe the corn." The singer recalls those happy times: "And I couldn't stay away." He recalls his old mistress and master, who were "good and kind"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud)
KEYWORDS: slave home work food
FOUND IN: US (MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 225-226, "'Way Down in Ole Virginia" (1 text)
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 111, "I Couldn't Stay Away" (1 text)
ST ScaNF225 (Partial)
Roud #9578
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" (theme)
NOTES [47 words]: I find it highly unlikely that this is of actual Black composition; I suspect that the woman who sent it to Scarborough was unclear or inaccurate about its source. The fact that Dean (whose repertoire is strongly northern and contains much from the stage) has it may be indicative. - RBW
File: ScaNF225

Way Down in Rackensack (Old Coon Dog)

DESCRIPTION: "Somebody stole my old coon dog, I wish they'd bring him back, He drove the big 'uns over the fence An' the little ones through the crack. It's gettin' out the way o' the fiddler O (x3), Way down in Rackensack."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (recording, Fiddlin' Doc Roberts)
KEYWORDS: animal dog theft
FOUND IN: US (So)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Randolph 350, "Way Down in Rackensack" (1 text)
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 185, "Roll Johnny Booger" (1 text, 1 tune) McNeil-SouthernMountainFolksong, pp. 172-173, "Ol' Coon Dog" (1 text, 1 tune, with many floating verses and the chorus of "Whoa Mule (The Kickin' Mule)" but the largest share of the lyrics from "Way Down in Rackensack (Old Coon Dog)"

Roud #7627

RECORDINGS:
Bradley Kincaid, "Old Coon Dog" (Brunswick 485, c. 1930)
George "Shortbuckle" Roark, "My Old Coon Dog" (Columbia 15383-D, 1929; rec. 1928; a melange that also includes bits of, among other songs, "Whoa, Mule," "Possum Up a Gum Stump," and "Shoo Fly")
Fiddlin' Doc Roberts, "My Old Coon Dog" (Gennett 6558, 1928)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Coon Dog (I)" (lyrics)

NOTES [104 words]: Roud's Folk Song Index has [the] Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest [text] as Roud #764 ("Old Grimes"; accessed 03 May 2014) and a case can be made for that choice, or a number of other choices: the first verse is "Old Father Grimes, that good old man, As ever I did see, His eyes looked like two auger holes Bored in a buckeye tree." The chorus of "Roll Johnny Booger, roll (3x), The boys can't beat our time" is not like "Johnny Booker" as I know it. The second and third verses, "Somebody stole my old coon dog...." and "Somebody stole my banty hen...." seem to belong with "Old Coon Dog" so I put it here. - BS

Last updated in version 4.2
File: R350

Way Down in Tennessee (I)

DESCRIPTION: "Farewell you girls of this cold countree," "I can no longer stay with you. " "I left my wife and a baby." Chorus: "Away over the ocean." "Tennessee is a-rolling." Lines are repeated three times, followed by "I'm bound/way-down for Tennessee"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Smith/Hatt/Fowke-SeaSongsBalladFromNineteenthCenturyNovaScotia)

KEYWORDS: nonballad shanty

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smith/Hatt/Fowke-SeaSongsBalladFromNineteenthCenturyNovaScotia, p. 23, "Way Down in Tennessee" (1 text)
Roud #9415

NOTES [23 words]: Smith/Hatt/Fowke-SeaSongsBalladFromNineteenthCenturyNovaScotia: Smith's comment is "A favourite with Liverpool [Nova Scotia] sailormen." - BS

File: SmHa023

Way Down in Tennessee (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Way down in Tennessee, That's where I long to be, Right at my mother's knee, She thinks the world of me." The singer recalls all the wonderful sights. "They'll be right there to meet me, Just imagine how they'll greet me When I get back To my home in..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)

KEYWORDS: home travel mother music flowers floatingverses

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 218, "(no title)" (1 text)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Roll On, Buddy (II) [Roll On, Buddy, Roll On]" (lyrics)

NOTES [46 words]: I am not sure there is an original word in the lyric printed by Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang; every line floats. It seems so familiar that I looked at it and heard a string band playing it in my head! But I can't find any other songs that are demonstrably the same. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.5
'Way Down Near Alpena

DESCRIPTION: "Way down near Alpena in a far-distant land, There's a hard-hearted, hard-spoken band." The men go on a spree. The singer describes their fights. Chorus: "Hurray, hurrah! For the fruit you can bet/Let's take of a drink, boys, for our credit's good yet."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy)
KEYWORDS: logger drink party fight moniker
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Beck-SongsOfTheMichiganLumberjacks 39, "'Way Down Near Alpena" (1 text)
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp 223-224, "'Way Down Near Alpena" (1 text, 1 tune)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 112, 'Way Down Near Alpena" (1 text)
Rickaby-BalladsAndSongsOfTheShantyBoy 34-II, (second of three "Fragments of Shanty Songs") (1 text)
Rickaby/Dykstra/Leary-PineryBoys-SongsSongcatchingInLumberjackEra 34-II (second of three "Fragments of Shanty Songs") (1 text)
ST Be039 (Partial)
Roud #6503
File: Be039

Way Down on the Old Pee dee

DESCRIPTION: "Away down south, on the old Pee dee, Away down in the cotton and the corn, There lived old Joe, and he lived so long That nobody knows when he was born." The song describes how the old, old slave was buried

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: slave death burial age playparty
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 421, "Way Down on the Old Pee dee" (1 text plus a possibly-related fragment)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 421, "Way Down on the Old Pedee" (sic.) (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaslands 22, pp. 122-123, "Way Down In the Ole Pee dee" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11770
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Uncle Ned" (plot)
NOTES [174 words]: Brown's "B" text, which is the basis for the description, is so like "Uncle Ned" in its ideas, and even its style, that I can't help but think it designed to take advantage of that early Foster work. But I haven't located a source.

Ben Schwartz suggests that the two Brown texts should be separated, into "Old Darkey Joe" and "Way Down on the Old Pee dee," with Brown 421B being the former and Brown 421A and Parrish-SlaveSongsOfTheGeorgiaSeaslands being the latter. He points out that: Parrish is similar to the Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 fragment 421A. It's playparty with no plot.
The chorus is "Way down in the Ole Pee dee (x2) Summer night the moon shine bright, Sally you can see"; Parrish's verses are "I wish that gal was mine (x2), Summer night the moon shine bright Sally you can see" and "Good-bye my honey I'm gone (x2), If you call me honey spen' my money Good-bye my honey I'm gone."
I suspect Ben is right. But we're still stuck with only one copy of "Old Darkey Joe." So I'm waiting for the moment. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: Br3421
Way Down the Ohio
DESCRIPTION: Fragment: "Way down the Ohio my little boat I steered/In hopes that some pretty girl on the banks will appear/I'll hug her and kiss her till my mind is at ease/And I'll turn my back on her and court who I please"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: courting sex infidelity travel lover
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 198, "Way Down the Ohio" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #3616
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Green Brier Shore (II)" (lyrics)
NOTES [29 words]: This is very like the chorus of "Green Brier Shore (II)," itself a composite, but it lacks that song's theme of parental disapproval. And in this one, the young man's a cad. - PJS
File: ShAp2198

Way Down the Old Plank Road
DESCRIPTION: Floating verses, some mentioning jail, stitched together with the usual Uncle Dave Macon logic. Chorus: "Won't get drunk no mo' (x3), Way down the old plank road."
AUTHOR: Uncle Dave Macon
EARLIEST DATE: 1926 (recording, Uncle Dave Macon)
KEYWORDS: prison drink humorous nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Dunson/Raim/Asch-AnthologyOfAmericanFolkMusic, p. 94, "Way Down The Old Plank Road" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 202, "Way Down the Old Plank Road" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 252, "Marina Girls" (1 short text, 1 tune)
DT, OLPLNKRD
Roud #18527
RECORDINGS:
Uncle Dave Macon, "Way Down the Old Plank Road" (Vocalion 5097=Vocalion 15321, 1926; on AAFM3, RoughWays1)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Fare You Well, My Own True Love (The Storms Are on the Ocean, The False True Lover, The True Lover's Farewell, Red Rosy Bush, Turtle Dove)" (words)
cf. "The Old Gray Goose (I) (Lookit Yonder)" (words)
cf. "My Wife Died on Saturday Night" (floating verse)
NOTES [121 words]: I put Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 252 ("Marina Girls") here only because because half of it is a floating verse that's also in this song ("Sixteen pounds of meat a week/Whisky for to sell/How can a pretty girl stay at home/The soldiers fare so well" -- note that Uncle Dave reversed the sexes!) Although it was collected in 1918, I'm not assigning it as "Earliest Date" because it's not really "Way Down the Old Plank Road," but I note the fact of the floater. - PJS
Roud makes "Marina Girls" a separate song (his item #3661), but the only known text appears to be Sharp's short fragment from Laura V. Donald; until and unless more distinct text shows up, it's hard to know how to file the thing anyway. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.8
File: ADR94

Way Down Yonder (Soup to Soup)
DESCRIPTION: "Way down yonder, Soup to soup! Where dem white folks Soup to soup, Just singin' and prayin'... Tryin' to make man... Biscuits hot... Corn bread cold... Thank God Almighty... Just give me a little mo'...."
'Way in the Kingdom (Aunt Susie)

DESCRIPTION: "Oh the bells did ring when Massa did die, 'Way in the kingdom, And the darkies didn't they holler and cry." "Sinners won't you rise and tel, Jesus has done all thing well." "Hallelujah to the lamb." "Come along Moses,, Stretch your rod and come across"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Huntington-FolksongsFromMarthasVineyard)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad death
FOUND IN: US(NE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-FolksongsFromMarthasVineyard, pp. 65-66, "'Way in the Kingdom" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11620
NOTES [83 words]: Roud lumps this with "'In the Kingdom," but the contents are so different that I've split them. Moses's rod is referred to many times in the Bible, starting in Exodus 4:3 where God turns it to a snake; this is one of the techniques Moses uses to convince others, and the staff is also used to initiate some of the plagues of Egypt. But the most relevant usage here is surely from Exodus 14:15, where Moses uses the staff to part the Sea of Reeds ("Red Sea," in many of the modern mistranslations). - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: HuVi065

Way Out in Idaho (I)

DESCRIPTION: A railroad man, enticed by "Kilpatrick's man, Catcher," goes to Idaho to work on the Oregon Short Line. Disillusioned by hard work and bad food, he winds up "happy, down in the harvest camps" and plans to marry a girl and bring her "back to Idaho."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (recording, Blaine Stubblefield)
KEYWORDS: railroading work marriage train travel
FOUND IN: US(MA,Ro)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 269-270, "Way Out in Idaho" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-LongSteelRail, pp. 560-566, "Way Out in Idaho" (1 text plus a text of "The Arkansaw Navvy"="The State of Arkansas (The Arkansas Traveler II)" [Laws H1], 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp 583-584, "Way Out in Idaho" (1 text)
Botkin/Harlow-TreasuryOfRailroadFolklore, p. 440, "Way Out in Idaho" (1 text, 1 tune) DT, OUTIDAHO*
Roud #16409
RECORDINGS:
Blaine Stubblefield, "Way Out in Idaho" (AFS 1634 B1, 1938; on LC61)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Son of a Gambolier (I)" and references there (tune)
cf. "The Buffalo Skinners" (lyrics, plot)
NOTES [27 words]: The Digital Tradition notes that the tune for its version is a "slight variant on Son of a Gambolier." But Lomax says that it is the same tune as "Sam Bass." - RBW
Last updated in version 3.2
File: BRaF440
Way Out There

DESCRIPTION: Singer, a hobo, jumps off a freight train, makes camp, falls asleep, dreaming "the desert sand was a milk and honey land." He awakens to the sound of a returning train; he catches it on the fly. Refrain: "It gets lonesome way out there" or similar

AUTHOR: Bob Nolan
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (recording, Sons of the Pioneers)
KEYWORDS: homesickness loneliness rambling train travel dream hobo
FOUND IN: US
RECORDINGS:
- Bill Boyd & his Cowboy Ramblers "Way Out There" (Bluebird [US, Canada] B-6670, 1936; Montgomery Ward M-7193, 1937)
- Homer & Walter Callahan, "Away Out There" (ARC 7-05-59/Conqueror 8854, 1936)
- Hall Brothers, "Way Out There" (Bluebird B-6843, 1937)
- Riley Puckett, "Way Out There" (Bluebird B-8354, 1940)
- Sons of the Pioneers, "Way Out There" (Decca 5013, 1934)

Way Out West in Kansas

DESCRIPTION: Complaints about life "Way out west in Kansas": "The sun's so hot the eggs will hatch... It'll pop the corn in a popcorn patch." The people are prone to fighting and often physically peculiar; the lack of amusements makes for a boring life

AUTHOR: Carson Robison
EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (recording, Billy Murray & Ed. Smalle)
KEYWORDS: home family
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 32, "In Kansas" (2 texts, 1 tune, the "B" text being this piece while the "A" text is "In Kansas")
- List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 219-220, "Away Out West in Kansas" (1 text, 1 tune)

Way Over in the Blooming Garden

DESCRIPTION: Playparty/courting game. "Sweet peas and roses, Strawberries on the vine Way over in the blooming garden Where sweet lilies grow." "Choose you a partner and choose him to your side." "Hug him neatly and kiss him so sweetly."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934
KEYWORDS: courting playparty nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 293-294, "Way Over in the Blooming Garden" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: RcWOT

File: RCW032B

File: LxA294
Way Over in the Heavens
DESCRIPTION: "I wish't I had-a heard when ye called me (x3) To sit on the seat by Jesus. Way over in the heavens...." "Sister, my soul's happy...." "I have a mother in the heavens...." "Won't you be glad when he calls you...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1943
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad Jesus
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 127, "Way Over in the Heavens" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6681
File: LoF127

Way Over in the New Buryin' Groun'
DESCRIPTION: "The hammer keeps ringin' on somebody's coffin (x2), Way over in the new buryin' groun'." "Somebody's dying way over yonder (x2), Way over in the new buryin' groun'!" "Hearse keeps a-rollin' -- somebody's dyin'...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)
KEYWORDS: death burial
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, pp. 35-36, "New Burying Ground" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 614, "The New Buryin' Ground" (3 texts, with common verses though "A" never mentions the burying ground)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 614, "The New Burying Ground" (2 tunes plus text excerpts) Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 473, "Way Over in the New Buryin' Groun'" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #11052
RECORDINGS: Willie Williams and Group, "The New Burying Ground" (on VaWork)
SAME TUNE: Woody Guthrie, "Union Burying Ground" (on Struggle2)
File: San473

Way to Wallington, The DESCRIPTION: "O canny man, o! Shew me the way to Wallington: I've got a mare to ride, and she's a trick o' galloping." Sandy tells of his determination to reach the town; he is told he is on the road. He sets off "like the wind"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1900 (Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland)
KEYWORDS: horse travel
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Stokoe/Reay-SongsAndBalladsOfNorthernEngland, pp. 148-149, "Shew Me the Way to Wallington" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST StoR148 (Partial)
Roud #3165
NOTES [33 words]: This is said to be a pipe tune, with words defective. It looks as if it might be political -- but too little is left, at least in the texts I've seen, to make even an intelligent guess as to what. - RBW
File: StoR148
Way Up at Leota

DESCRIPTION: "Come all you jackpine savages wherever you may be"; the singer will tell of working for John Griffin at Leota. It's cold. They have to get rise 4:00 a.m. The work is too hard. When they finish, they'll drink until they feel better -- and return next year

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1956 (Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan)

KEYWORDS: work lumbering hardtimes drink

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp. 50-51, "Way Up at Leota" (1 text)
Roud #6517

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Lumber Camp Song" (theme) and references there

File: BBun050

Wayerton Driver, The

DESCRIPTION: "I'm a heart-broken driver, From Wayerton I came, I courted a sweetheart, Mary Dolan by name." Paul buys her a ring but she turns him down. He gets drunk and visits her again. She prefers Melvin Grant. Pretty fair maids, warns Paul, are "slyer than mice"

AUTHOR: probably Paul Kingston

EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi)

KEYWORDS: courting ring rejection drink

FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi 45, "The Wayerton Driver" (1 text, 1 tune)
ST MaWi045 (Partial)
Roud #9183

NOTES [54 words]: Wayerton is far up the Northwest Miramichi River in New Brunswick. - BS
The note on the tune says that this derives from "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and there is in fact a strong resemblance in the shape of the melody. But the first verse, at least, is clearly based on "Jack Haggerty (The Flat River Girl)" [Laws C25]. - RBW

File: MaWi045

Wayfaring Stranger

DESCRIPTION: The singer confesses, "I'm just a poor, wayfaring stranger / A-travelling through this world of woe." The singer plans to cross the Jordan (into heaven), there to meet with family and loved ones and live forever free from trouble and burden

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1816 (Kentucky Harmony, as "Judgement")

KEYWORDS: religious death

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,SE,So)

REFERENCES (27 citations):
Cazden/Haufrecht/Studer-FolkSongsOfTheCatskills 77, "Poor and Foreign Stranger" (1 text, 1 tune)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 93, "A Poor Wayfaring Pilgrim" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 208, "I'm Just A-Going Over Jordon" (1 text, clearly this though it lacks the "Wayfaring Stranger" lines)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, pp. 80-81, "I Am a Pilgrim" (sic.) (1 text, 1 tune)
Bush-FSoCentralWestVirginiaVol5, pp. 41-42, "The Wayfaring Stranger" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abrahams/Riddle-ASingerAndHerSongs, pp. 94-95, "The Wayfaring Stranger" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 771, "Wayfaring Stranger" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Joyner-FolkSongInSouthCarolina, p. 81, "Wayfaring Stranger" (1 text)
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, pp. 68-69, "I Am a Poor Wayfaring Pilgrim" (1 text, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, p. 33, "Wayfaring Stranger" (1 text, 1 tune); p. 91, "Wayfaring Stranger" (1 text)
Wayward Boy, The

DESCRIPTION: The Wayward Boy has sex with a girl, who gives him "pimples thick" upon his penis in exchange for the "two little mutts up her guts."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE:

KEYWORDS: bawdy rake rambling seduction sex pregnancy disease

FOUND IN: US(SW,So)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 86-89, "The Wayward Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)

Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, p. 146, "Two Ruby Red Lips" (1 text, 1 tune)
We All Grow Old in Time

DESCRIPTION: "'One day while strolling down the street, an old man lost his way.' He asks some boys for help; they make fun of him. A newsboy apologizes to him and tells them to stop. The old man has no heir, the newsboy no parents; the old man adopts the newsboy

AUTHOR: Words: E. P. Moran / Music: J. Fred Helf (source: List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana)

EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (copyrighted, according to List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana)

KEYWORDS: age abuse orphan help

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 247-249, "We All Grow Old in Time" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #16810

RECORDINGS:
Charlie Craver ("Arkansas Charlie"), "We All Grow Old in Time" (Vocalion 5367, 1929?)

File: List247

We All Love Mother

DESCRIPTION: Singer's mother has "gone to meet her Jesus." "We will never forget ... she helped you all her way." "... we all love mother." "Some day you'll meet your mother On that bright and happy day"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (StuffDreams1)

KEYWORDS: death nonballad religious mother Jesus

FOUND IN:

RECORDINGS:
Crowder Brothers, "We All Love Mother" (on StuffDreams1)

File: RcWeALMo

We Are Almost Down to the Shore

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Put it on (x2), Children and don't turn back We are almost down to the shore." Verse: "Peter Peter on the sea, Drop your nets and follow me" God places the commandments in Moses's mind. Moses dies and "where he's buried never been told"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute); 1893 (see notes)

KEYWORDS: Bible nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 84-85, "Fighting On" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 93 in the 1901 edition) [for 1893 edition, see notes]
Roud #15259

RECORDINGS:
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Fisherman Peter" ("Peter on the sea" theme)
cf. "Who Did Swallow Jonah?" ("Peter on the sea" theme)
NOTES [308 words]: Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's and Strothers's verses are couplets followed by "We are almost down to the shore."
Strother's "Peter on the Sea" verse may have floated from "Who Did Swallow Jonah?" The "drop your nets" reference is from Matthew 4:18-20: "And Jesus, walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers. And he saith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men. And they straightway left their nets, and followed him" (King James). [This is also the sense of John 21:3-7, although the language of Matthew 4:18-20=Mark 1:16-18 -- the "Fishers of Men" passage -- is closer. - RBW]
The Moses references of receiving the commandments and death and burial are Exodus 19-20 and Deuteronomy 34:5-6 ("So Moses, the servant of the Lord died ... according to the word of the Lord. And he buried him in a valley ... but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day" (King James)), respectively.
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's chorus has "Fighting on, Hallelujah" in place of "Put it on" (x2). Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses are about Jesus; for example, "Hallelujah to the Lamb; Jesus died for every man," and "In my room right by my bed, Jesus take me when I'm dead"; John the Baptist sees Jesus coming and says, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29, King James version).
The index to the 1893 edition [of Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute] has "Fighting on" on page 98 (Thomas P. Fenner and Frederic G. Rathbun, Cabin and Plantation Songs (New York: G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1893)). I have not seen page 98. - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: Dett084

We are Almost Home
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "I'm almost home (3x), To ring those charming bells." Verse: "Come along my brother (sister, preacher, mother, deacon, mourner, sinner,...) For your time is drawing near And the angels say there's nothing to do But to ring those charming bells"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)
KEYWORDS: nonballad, religious, family
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, p. 15, "Dem Charming Bells" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 89, "We Are Almost Home" (1 text) (1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: J.B.T. Marsh, The Story of the Jubilee Singers Including Their Songs (London: Hodder and Stoughton, 1903 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), #84 p. 238, "We Are Almost Home" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #15269
NOTES [11 words]: The description is based on the Barton-OldPlantationHymns text. - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: Bart015

We Are Anchored By the Roadside, Jim
DESCRIPTION: Singer (a "sacker" in the lumber camps) tells Jim that times were formerly good for drinkers, but that good booze is now hard to find. He says that despite this, cold water (i.e., temperance) is not for either or them, so they will "drink the old jug dry"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (recording, Pat Ford); 19C (Wolf)
KEYWORDS: drink, worker, logger
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
DT, ROADJIM
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #1738, p. 117, "The Old Whiskey Jug" (1 reference)
Roud #5750
RECORDINGS:
Pat Ford, "We're anchored by the roadside, Jim" (AFS 4210 B2, 1939; in AMMEM/Cowell)
BROADSIDES:
LOCsinging, sb30386a, "The Old Whiskey Jug" ("We're anchored by the roadside, Jim"), Andrews (Chatham, NY)
File: RcWAABTR

We Are Bound Down South Alibama
DESCRIPTION: Alternate lines are a chorus, "Oh Miss Celia oh/We are bound down South Alibama." The shantyman sings: Miss Celia should be ashamed for messing with the boy on the bed.
AUTHOR: unknown
KEYWORDS: sex derivative shanty lover youth
FOUND IN: West Indies(St Vincent)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Abrahams-DeepTheWaterShallowTheShore, pp. 109-111, "We Are Bound Down South Alibama" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #325
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "South Australia (I)" (form, lyrics)
NOTES [55 words]: A derivative of "South Australia (I)" where the destination changes first to South Alabama, and then "Alibama" becomes a man's name. Abrahams quotes a blackfish whaler who says that "they make this song, see how Miss Celia [owner of a whaling boat] had to be ashamed, be she lie in bed with Alibama - this man was name Alibama." - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: AWIS109

We Are Building on a Rock
DESCRIPTION: "We are building on a Rock," a "mighty true Rock," a "mighty solid rock," "on high, on high." "Christ Jesus is the Rock" that will prevail against "the very gates of hell." "Help me build on the rock"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, p. 115, "We Are Building on a Rock" (1 text, 1 tune; p. 123 in the 1901 edition)
Roud #15256
NOTES [75 words]: In Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses, every alternate line is "On high, on high." - BS
This would appear to be based on Jesus's description of Peter, "You are Peter [Greek , "Petros" means "Rock," so Peter -- in Greek, again "Petros" -- is "the Rock" or, by analogy, "Rocky"], and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it" (Matthew 16:18). - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: Dett115

We Are But Little Saiors Weak
DESCRIPTION: "We are but little sailors weak, Our pay is fourteen bob a week. The more we do the more we may It makes no difference to our pay. Our hours per day are twenty-four. We thank the Lord there are no more"; if there were, they'd have to work those too

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
KEYWORDS: sailor work hardtimes money
FOUND IN: Britain(England)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, pp. 137-138, "We are but Little Sailors Weak" (1 text, tune referenced)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
ct. "We Are But Little Children Weak" (tune)
File: Tawn104

We Are Coming, Father Abraham

DESCRIPTION: "We are coming, Father Abraham, three hundred thousand more... We leave our plows and workshops Our wives and children dear...." The song describes how those left behind are doing the young men's work so they may put down the rebels

AUTHOR: Words: James Sloan Gibbons
EARLIEST DATE: 1862 (New York Evening Post)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar soldier
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (7 citations):
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 104-107, "We Are Coming, Father Abr'am" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber-SoldierSongsAndHomeFrontBalladsOfCivilWar, pp. 44-45, "We Are Coming, Father Abr'am"
(1 text, 1 tune)
Saunders/Root-MusicOfStephenCFoster-Vol2, pp. 217-220+436, "We Are Coming , Father Abraam, 300,000 More" (1 text, 1 tune) Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 364, "We Are Coming, Father Abraham" (1 text plus a collection of parodies) Colonial-Dames-AmericanWarSongs, pp. 113-114, "We Are Coming, Father Abraham" (1 text, with a photo of the original manuscript facing p 114) Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2510, p. 169, "We Are Coming, Father Abraham, 600,000 more" (11
references)
Hill-PoemsAndSongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 213-214, "We Are Coming, Father Abraham" (1 text)
ST SCW44 (Full)
Roud #31244
BROADSIDES:
LOCSheet, rpbaasm 1180 ["words from the New York Evening Post ; music composed and arranged by S.J. Adams"], "We Are Coming Father Abraham 3000,000 More," Henry Tolman & Co.
(Boston), c.1862; also rpbaasm 1184 ["set to music by P.S. Gilmore"]. "We Are Coming Father Abraam Three Hundred Thousand More"; rpbaasm 1185 ["words by William Cullen Bryant music by G. R. Poulton"], "300,000 more!" (tune)
LOCSinging, sb40573b, "We Are Coming, Father Abraham," H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864; also cw10594a, "Three Hundred Thousand More"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
ct. "Hold On, Abraham"
SAME TUNE:
How Are You Green Backs? ("We're coming, Father Abram, one hundred thousand more, Five hundred presses printing us....") (tune from one or another version of this song, probably Foster's, plus a chorus from Foster's "That's What's the Matter"; Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 364; Deems Taylor et al, _A Treasury of Stephen Foster_, Random House, 1946, p. 147; Wolf-AmericanSongSheets p. 61)
We're Coming Fodder Abraham (Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 365) NOTES [233 words]: This was originally published as a poem, "Three Hundred Thousand More," in the July 16, 1862 edition of the _New York Evening Post_.
It was so popular that at least eight musical arrangements were published, including those by L.O.
Emerson (this last may have been the most popular; at least, it's the one Silber quotes), Stephen
C. Foster (the Foster sheet music doesn't even mention the name of Gibbons!), and P. S. Gilmore.
(For the full list, see the notes to Saunders & Root. See also the list of printed versions on p. 169 of
We Are Marching On

DESCRIPTION: "We are marching on (x2), To the land of light, To the land of love, We are marching on." "Where the angels wait At the golden gate, To conduct us there To a mansion fair...." "We are marching on, Happy pilgrim band... To the heavenly land."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 647, "We Are Marching On'' (1 text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 647, "We Are Marching On'' (1 tune plus a text excerpt)

Roud #11940

File: Br3647

We Are the Barbie Girls

DESCRIPTION: The barbie/mercy [Mersey?] girls wear their hair in curls and wear dungarees, father's shirt, brother's tie, "And when we want a guy We simply wink the eye/when it comes to boys We treat them as toys"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1969 (Jivani)

KEYWORDS: courting playparty

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord)) Ireland US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame, p. 478, ("We are the barbie girls") (2 texts)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
Stonewall Girls

NOTES [66 words]: In 1969, "'We are the Stonewall girls we wear our hair in curls; we wear no underwear; we show our pubic hair.' The battle-cry of the Stonewall drag queens as they charged the police [in New York]" (source: Alkarim Jivani, It's Not Unusual: A History of Lesbian and Gay Britain in the Twentieth Century (Bloomington, 1997 (copyrighted material limited preview "Digitized by Google")) p. 159). - BS

Last updated in version 2.6

File: 0pGa478C

We Are the Peckham Boys

DESCRIPTION: The Peckham boys "know our manners," spend our money, are well respected, "winners of the boys." "When you hear a copper shout, 'Put that dirty Woodbine [cigarette brand] out.'"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1993 (recording, Ray Driscoll)
We Be Soldiers Three

DESCRIPTION: "We be soldiers three, Pardona moy, je vous an pree, Lately come forth from the low country, With never a penny of money." The soldiers drink to their hearers, or beg their listeners to give a drink to the men who fought for them

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1609 (Ravenscroft, Deuteromelia)
KEYWORDS: soldier home drink
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic I, p. 133, "We Be Soldiers Three" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dallas-TheCruelWars-100SoldiersSongs, pp. 144-145, "We Be Soldiers Three" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, p. 108, "Sailors Three" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES: Just barely traditional, if traditional at all (there is a field collection, but I wonder if it wasn't influenced by print), but it's old, and the tune is excellent, so I've indexed it. Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea's "Sailors Three" strikes me as very dubious. On its face, it is a version of this in which the three soldiers are made into sailors, and the "low countries" changed to the "West Country, and any verses specific to soldiers simply omitted. Otherwise, it's almost verbatim from Chappell. What are the odds of such a thing? I doubt the result was ever traditional (Kinsey, after all, lists no source); even if Kinsey collected it rather than rewriting it himself, the informant must have seen a printed text. - RBW

We Be Three Poor Mariners

DESCRIPTION: "We be three poor mariners, newly come from the seas, We spend our lives in jeopardy, while others live at east. Shall we do dance the Round, around, around (x2)...." The singer praises merchantmen "that do our states maintain."

AUTHOR: Thomas Ravenscroft?
EARLIEST DATE: 1609 (Deuteromelia)
KEYWORDS: ship sailor commerce nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Chappell/Wooldridge-OldEnglishPopularMusic I, pp. 134-135, "We Be Three Poor Mariners" (1 partial text, 1 tune)
Shay-AmericanSeaSongsAndChanteys, pp. 120-121, "We Be Three Poor Mariners" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Noah Greenberg, ed., An Anthology of English Medieval and Renaissance Vocal Music, pp. 202-204 (1 text, 1 tune with harmonization)

NOTES: The text of this is pretty definitely not traditional (it looks like Ravenscroft hacked it up as a merchant sailor's equivalent of "We Be Soldiers Three"), but the tune, which Chappell describes as a dance tune "Brangill/Branle of Poctu," may be. - RBW

We Beat 'Em on the Marne

DESCRIPTION: We beat 'em on the Marne, We beat 'em on the Aisne, They gave us hell at Neuve Chapelle But here we are again."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: war nonballad soldier
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sep 6-10, 1914 - Battle of the Marne, in which the French and British beat back the German attempt to encircle Paris (and so caused World War One to change from a battle of maneuver to a marathon of trench warfare)

Sep 13, 1914 - Beginning of the French counter-attack on the Germans, sometimes called the First Battle of the Aisne

Mar 10-13, 1915 - The British attempt an offensive at Neuve Chapelle in Artois, but fail to significantly alter the situation

We Conquer or Die
DESCRIPTION: "The war drum is beating, prepare for the fight, The stern bigot Northman exults in his might." Southerners are urged to prepare for battle, to never think of retreat, to defend the South, and to maintain the motto, "We Conquer or Die"
AUTHOR: James Pierpont (source: Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar)
EARLIEST DATE: 1861 (sheet music published by P. P. Weriein & Halsey, according to Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar nonballad patriotic
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 74-75, "We Conquer or Die" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [19 words]: James Pierpont also gave us "Jingle Bells." Sounds like his should have stayed in the North when the war started. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.2
File: SCWF074

We Don't Get No Justice Here in Atlanta
DESCRIPTION: "Oh, we don't get no justice here in Atlanta (x2), For if you say the law ain't right, in the jail you'll spend the night." The rest of the song is variations on these lines.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1934 (Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry)
KEYWORDS: prison hardtimes
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 313-314, "We Don't Get No Justice Here in Atlanta" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #15601
File: LoSi313

We Go to College
DESCRIPTION: The ladies of this quatrain ballad -- who go to college to major in bed -- recount their various sexual adventures with students, faculty, administration, and staff.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Anecdota Americana)
KEYWORDS: bawdy humorous sex nonballad
FOUND IN: Australia Britain(England) US(MA,MW,So,SW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Cray-EroticMuse, pp. 295-301, "We Go to College" (3 texts, 1 tune) Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms I, pp. 229-230, "We Go to College" (1 text, 1 tune
Roud #10286
ALTERNATE TITLES:
We Are the Pi Phi's
We Are from Campus Hall
We Are Whoredean
We Are from Rodeen (sic)
File: EM295

We Gonna Have a Good Time

DESCRIPTION: "Way by and by, way by and by, We gonna have a good time, Way by and by."
"Gonna meet King Jesus over there." "Gonna meet my (mother/father) over there." "Gonna shout, troubles over, over there." "Gonna shake hands..." "Gonna take my seat..."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US (So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 161, "We Gonna Have a Good Time" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #16307
File: ARno161

We Had to Walk from the Train to the Camp

DESCRIPTION: "We had to walk from the train to the camp. My shoes got dusty. The white dust came up and settled on my shoes. I looked down at them and began to cry. Never before had my shoes been dusty. It was the first time I cried."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (Burt-AmericanMurderBallads)
KEYWORDS: clothes exile war
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jan 14, 1942 - President Roosevelt issues his Alien Registration proclamation, calling for the registration of foreigners. From there, it was only a short step to the detention of aliens. Roosevelt authorized sending Japanese immigrants to concentration camps on February 20
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Burt-AmericanMurderBallads, p. 155, (no title) (1 short text)
NOTES [43 words]: Burt-AmericanMurderBallads reports this to be a verse by a nisei boy upon being sent to one of the American detention camps for the Japanese. It's not very good, and it surely was not perpetuated -- but, in context, it surely qualifies as a Folk piece! - RBW
File: Burt155

We Happy Herdsmen Here

DESCRIPTION: "We happy herdsmen here May sing and eke rejoice, For angels bright and clear
We saw and heard rejoice." The herdsmen have heard of "the King of all mankind." He is in Bethlehem with his mother. They will go visit the baby

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1624 (Shanne MS., according to Friedman)
KEYWORDS: carol religious travel shepherd
FOUND IN: Britain (England (North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
and Middle English Studies in Honour of Rossell Hope Robbins_, Kent State University Press, 1974, pp. 300-301, "(We happie hirdes men heere)," "(We happy hardmen here)" (2 texts)
Roud #3331
File: MSWHHHe

We Have Fathers Gone to Heaven

DESCRIPTION: "We have fathers gone to heaven, O do tell me if you know, Will those fathers
We Have Lived and Loved Together

DESCRIPTION: "We have lived and loved together Through many changing years, We have shared each other’s gladness." He has known no sorrow as long as he can see her smile. He hopes to share her sorrows and her joys

AUTHOR: Charles Jeffreys (source: Bodleian broadside site)

EARLIEST DATE: before 1840 (various broadsides)

KEYWORDS: love nonballad

FOUND IN: Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 11, "We Have Lived and Loved Together" (1 text)

Roud #13836

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, p. 11, "We Have Lived and Loved Together" (1 text)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.25(80)=Johnson Ballads 188, Johnson Ballads 287, "We have liv'd and lov'd together" J. Catnach (London), 1813-1838; also Johnson Ballads fol. 115=Johnson Ballads fol. 116, Harding B 11(486), "We have liv'd and loved together," J. Pitts (London), 1819-1844; also 2806 c.13(67)=2806 c.14(69), "We have lived and loved together," J. Harkness (Preston), 1840-1866; also Harding B 18(556), "We have lived and loved together," C. Magnus (New York), c. 1860; also Firth b.25(600/601)=Firth b.34(275), "We've liv'd and lov'd together," W. Ordoyno (Nottingham), n.d.; also Firth b.27(341), "We have liv'd and lov'd together," unknown, n.d.; also Harding B 16(302a), "We have lived and loved together," unknown, n.d.; also Firth b.27(153), "We have liv'd and lov'd together," unknown, n.d.; also 2806 c.13(239), "We have lived and loved together," unknown, n.d.

File: HMHS011

We Have the Navy

DESCRIPTION: A parody of the Federal "On to Richmond"; both begin "Well, we have the navy an' we have the men...." The song catalogs the various Southern generals and troops who fought McClellan in the Peninsula

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1866 (manuscript known to Randolph)

KEYWORDS: Civilwar battle patriotic parody

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Mar 17, 1862 - General George McClellan moves the first troops of the Army of the Potomac to Fort Monroe, inaugurating the "Peninsular Campaign" (the attempt to capture Richmond by proceeding up the "Peninsula" between the York and James Rivers)
May 31-June 1, 1862 - Battle of Fair Oaks/Seven Pines. Confederates under Joseph E. Johnston attack McClellan's army. The battle is roughly a draw (McClellan continued his advance), but Johnston is wounded and Robert E. Lee appointed in his place June 25-July 1, 1862 - Seven Days' Battle - In a series of battles, Lee induced McClellan to... abandon the attack on Richmond

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Randolph 212, "We Have the Navy" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 382, "Never Mind Your Knapsack" (1 short text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 382, "Never Mind Your Knapsack" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 231-232, "On to Richmond!" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #7702

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "On to Richmond! (I)"

NOTES [233 words]: Although details about the battle are lacking in this song, the generals mentioned clearly indicate that it refers to the Peninsular Campaign (and the fact that it quotes "On to Richmond" demonstrates that it is a parody).

The generals listed include:
Lee - Robert E. Lee, the Confederate commander. Although his tactical performance was imperfect (the Confederates took nearly 25% casualties in the Seven Days' Battle; the Federals less than 15%), his strategy was brilliant
Jackson - Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson, who had just fought a brilliant campaign in the Shenandoah Valley but performed poorly when recalled to Richmond
Longstreet - James Longstreet, Lee's second in command and leader of one of his largest divisions. His performance was not inspired, but he went on to serve as one of Lee's best corps commanders McGruder - John Bankhead Magruder, commander of the Department of the Peninsula His division had done a fine job of slowing McClellan's advance up the Peninsula (mostly through playacting), but his performance in combat was poor; he was soon sent off to Texas.
"Butler was the Cry" - Refers to the brutal Union general Benjamin F. Butler, who commanded occupied New Orleans and came to be called "Beast Butler"
McClellan - George B. McClellan, the Federal commander, who did a fine job of training and inspiring his troops but was too cautious to lead them effectively. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1

File: R212

---

We Haven't Seen the Kaiser (We Haven't Seen the Sergeant)

DESCRIPTION: "We haven't seen the (kaiser/sergeant) for a hell of a time, a hell of a time, a hell of a time. He came up to see what we were doin', Number eight platoon will be his bloody ruin... Perhaps he's gone up with a mine... Strafe him, he's no cousin of mine"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: soldier war technology
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 47, "We Haven't Seen the Sergeant" (1 text)
Roud #10530
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "He's a Cousin of Mine" (tune)

File: BrPa047A

---

We Invite You All to Come Along

DESCRIPTION: "We invite you all to come along, We'll have a glorious time, We're going to the mansions Where the moonlight never shine. There'll be no night there, we need not fear, forever will be day, For God alone shall be our guide and lead us all the way."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1975 (Cox-FolkMusicInANewfoundlandOutport)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
We Know Our Manners (We are the ... Boys)

DESCRIPTION: "We are the regimental boys (East End boys, Peckham boys, First Herts boys, or any other force), We never make a noise, We know our manner, We can spend our tanners, We are respected everywhere we go"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: soldier
FOUND IN: Britain(England)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 48, "We Know Our Manners" (1 text)
Roud #10514
File: BrPa048C

We Leaves Detroit Behind Us

DESCRIPTION: "We leaves Detroit behind us, We set our canvas tight, The tug slows up and casts off, Old Erie heaves in sight. "You'd swear that whiff of D.C. feed Came clear from Buffalo." "There's no such thing as stiddy wind Around Lake Erie here."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Buffalo Express, according to Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors)
KEYWORDS: sailor travel
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Walton/Grimm-Windjammers-SongsOfTheGreatLakesSailors, p. 96, "We Leaves Detroit Behind Us" (1 text)
Roud #19852
File: WGM096A

We Left the Port of Sydney

DESCRIPTION: The crew leaves Sydney for Argentia with a load of coal and extra men on board. A storm comes up and sinks the ship and the passengers below deck are trapped and drowned. They had gone to Lunenburg to save money since the fishery was bad.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1977 (Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou)
KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship storm wreck
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lehr/Best-ComeAndIWillSingYou 119, "We Left the Port of Sydney" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #28980
NOTES [66 words]: No names are mentioned here. Lunenburg, like Sydney, is in Nova Scotia. Argentia is on the west side of the Avalon Peninsula (about 60 air miles from St John's) - BS Sydney was the main point for shipment from Nova Scotia to Newfoundland, being the nearest port tot he island. So traffic from Sydney to Newfoundland was fairly heavy. And, of course, there were a lot of storms in the area. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.1
File: LeBe119

We Live on the Banks of the Ohio

DESCRIPTION: "We live on the banks of the O-hi-o, O-hi-o, O-hi-o, Where the mighty waters rapidly flow And the steamboat sweeps along." "Ole Massa to his darkies is good... He gives us our clothers...." Slaves, being so well-treated (!), are encouraged not to "droop"
We Love the Name of Texas

DESCRIPTION: "I am the Texas cowboy." He describes his job, the herds of longhorns, the Spanish ponies, and the danger of lightening-triggered stampede. Paid off in Kansas City, he loafs around, then heads back to Texas and Mary, whom he hopes to marry.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest)
KEYWORDS: cowboy work money gold love marriage
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moore/Moore-BalladsAndFolkSongsOfTheSouthwest 145, "We Love the Name of Texas" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6362
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I'm Bound to Follow the Longhorn Cows" (theme)
File: MooSW145

We Met, 'Twas in a Crowd

DESCRIPTION: "We met, 'twas in a crowd, and I thought he would shun me." The singer meets an old lover; they say little, but both are clearly moved. She, the rich girl, could not marry him because of her mother's opposition; both are now wed to others

AUTHOR: Thomas Haynes Bayly (source: Scott, who spells the name "Bayley") EARLIEST DATE: 1858 (Journal of the Pavilion); said to have been from "Songs of the Boudoir";
19C (Wolf)
KEYWORDS: love separation reunion mother husband wife
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H638, p. 431, "We Met, 'Twas In a Crowd" (1 text, 1 tune)
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 251-252, "We Met Twas in a Crowd" (1 text, 1 tune)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 207-208, "We Met, 'Twas in a Crowd" (1 text, 1 tune)
Scott-EnglishSongBook, pp. 94-95, "We Met" (1 text, 1 tune)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2519, p. 170, "We Met" (1 reference)
ADDITIONAL: Reginald Nettel, _Seven Centuries of Popular Song_, Phoenix House, 1956, p. 163,
"(no title)" (1 text)
Roud #2066
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Lady Mary (The Sad Song)"
NOTES [64 words]: This reminds me very much of "Lady Mary (The Sad Song)," though the form and the details are very different. There is also something of the feeling of Dickens here; see the ending of Great Expectations. This is reported by Sam Henry to be quite popular, and is mentioned in John Masefield's "The Bird of Dawning." I will admit to some surprise; the song is distinctly flowery. - RBW

We Need a Change in Business All Around
DESCRIPTION: "Since new (things/songs) are all the rage, In this great and glorious age, On a few things I surely will propound... Just to make a change in business all around." The singer describes those who, if they would just adapt, could change their business
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Uncle Dave Macon)
KEYWORDS: technology humorous worker music
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Beck-TheyKnewPaulBunyan, pp. 235-237, "Just to Make a Change in Business" (1 text, 1 tune, adapted to lumber camps)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 61, "Just t Make a Change in Business" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6499
RECORDINGS:
Carolina Twins, "A Change In Business All Around" (Victor V-40243)
Uncle Dave Macon, "We Need A Change In Business All Around" (Vocalion 5374, 1929)
File: BBun235

We Part My Love to Meet Nae Mair
DESCRIPTION: "We part, my love, to meet nae mair, 'Tis cruel fate's decree; And a' the waes o' bleak despair This widowed heart maun dree." The singer recalls his lost love. He hopes to be reunited with her in death
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Ord-BothySongsAndBallads); Ord claims a date of 1817
KEYWORDS: death separation
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, p. 364, "We Part, My Love, To Meet Nae Mair" (1 text)
Roud #4595
File: Ord364

We Poor Labouring Men
DESCRIPTION: "O, some do say the farmer's best, but I do need say no, If it weren't for we poor labouring men what would the farmers do?...There's never a trade in old England like we poor labouring men," The singer toasts laborers; good times will come again
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1962 or 1966 (collected from Caroline Hughes); the Butterworth/Dawney-PloughboysGlory version is probably from 1909
LONG DESCRIPTION: "O, some do say the farmer(baker, butcher)'s best, but I do need say no, If it weren't for we poor labouring men what would the farmers do? They would beat up all their old odd stuff until some new come in. There's never a trade in old England like we poor labouring men." After several of these verses, the singer offers a toast to labourers, saying that when the hard times pass, good times will come again
KEYWORDS: pride farming work hardtimes nonballad worker
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (4 citations):
We Read in the Bible and We Understand

DESCRIPTION: "We read in the Bible and we understand, Methuselah was the oldest man, He lived nine hundred and sixty-nine." "We read in the Bible... Samson was the strongest man." "Joshua was the son of Nun, God was with him till the work was done."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1915 (Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad Bible

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, p. 36, "(We read in the Bible and we understand)" (1 text, described as incomplete)

File: WFAN036

We Sailed Around Old Butler's

DESCRIPTION: "We sailed around old Butler's, No danger did we fear, Until we came to Sawmill Ritt, Went plumb against the pier." "Big Mose" rescues what he can. The chorus floats: "And shove around the grog, boys... We are the boys that fear no noise...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales)

KEYWORDS: lumbering wreck clothes drink

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Thompson-BodyBootsAndBritches-NewYorkStateFolktales, p. 280, "(no title)" (1 short text, probably an excerpt although not so labelled)
Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads, pp. 25-26, "The Raftsmen's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #6607

File: TNY280

We Set Sail

DESCRIPTION: "First we set sail for the Canaries, With a cargo of 47 fairies, We laid about the bunks With those 47 punks, Till all our teeth sprouted caries." Other limericks about various destinations and unfortunate cargoes follow, e.g. "Hawaiians... lions"
We Shall Come the Unemployed
DESCRIPTION: "We shall come the unemployed, The disinherited of this earth, We shall come into your temples And your marble halls of mirth." "We shall come as you have made us, Ragged, lousy, pale and gaunt." The poor suffer, but the rich shall suffer in Hell
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2009 (Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ)
KEYWORDS: worker hardtimes unemployment
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, p. 163, "(We Shall Come the Unemployed") (1 text)
File: GarNZ163

We Shall Not Be Moved
DESCRIPTION: "The Union is behind us, We shall not be moved... Just like a tree That's standing by the water, We shall not be moved." Similarly "We're fighting for our freedom, We shall not be moved"; "We're fighting for our children"; "We'll build a mighty Union."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (recording, Pete Seeger)
KEYWORDS: labor-movement nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 344-345, "We Shall Not Be Moved" (1 text, 1 tune)
Seeger-AmericanFavoriteBallads, p. 38, "We Shall Not Be Moved" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 135, "We Shall Not Be Moved" (1 text)
Roud #9134
RECORDINGS:
Pete Seeger, "We Shall Not Be Moved" (on PeteSeeger01) (on PeteSeeger47)
SNCC Freedom Singers, "We Shall Not Be Moved" (the civil rights version; on Voices Civ)
Union Boys, "We Shall Not Be Moved" (on "Songs for Victory", Asch 346, 1944)
CROSS-REFERENCES: cf. "I Shall Not Be Moved"
SAME TUNE:
We Shall Not Be Moved -- union parodies (Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, p. 17)
NOTES [134 words]: [Although not printed at that time, the union version of this song goes back at least to] 1941, [since] Woody Guthrie, in Bound for Glory, refers to singing it with Cisco Houston on Dec. 7, 1941, to break up a possible lynching of Japanese-Americans after the attack that day on Pearl Harbor.
The song was adapted from a traditional hymn, "I Shall Not Be Moved," by labor organizers working with southern tenant farmers in the 1930s. It was also adapted into an anthem of the civil rights movement in the 1960s. - PJS
Given the extreme variations in traditional versions of the hymn (one of Brown's informants actually sang the chorus as "I Shall Not Be Blue!") we originally listed the source and its adaptations here. The civil rights version, in particular, is close to the hymn. Best to check both. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.1
We Shall Overcome

DESCRIPTION: "We shall overcome (x3), Some day, Oh deep in my heart, (I know that) I do believe, We shall overcome some day." Verses about the troubles of life, and how (with help from God/brothers/etc.) they can be overcome/survived. Many modern verses known

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (sung in miner's union meeting in Alabama, as reported in the United Mine Workers' journal)

KEYWORDS: religious discrimination nonballad

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (7 citations):
Joyner-FolkSongInSouthCarolina, pp. 107-108, "We Will Overcome" (1 text, 1 tune)
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 352-353, "We Shall Overcome" (1 text, 1 tune)
Arnett-IHearAmericaSinging, p. 216, "We Shall Overcome" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 296, "We Shall Overcome" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 623-627+, "We Shall Overcome"

DT, OVERCOM*

Roud #21324

RECORDINGS:
Mississippi Bracy [pseud. for Ishmon Bracey?] "I'll Overcome Some Day" (Okeh 8904, 1931; rec. 1930)
Pete Seeger, "We Shall Overcome" (on PeteSeeger05) (on PeteSeeger38) (on PeteSeeger48)
SNCC Freedom Singers, Pete Seeger et al, "We Shall Overcome" (on SingFreeCD)
SNCC Freedom Singers, "We Shall Overcome" (on VoicesCiv)
Unnamed singers at mass rally, "We Shall Overcome" (on VoicesCiv)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I'll Be All Right" (tune, structure, lyrics)

NOTES [378 words]: The "common version" of this song was created by Zilphia Horton, Frank Hamilton, Guy Carawan, and Pete Seeger. In this form it became an anthem of the civil rights movement. Traces of the old spiritual survive, however, and it is of course very easy to make up new verses to fit a particular situation.

Fuld gives a detailed analysis of the musical and textual sources of the piece. Reading them, though, one cannot help but think that he has completely missed the actual sources of the black spiritual. - RBW

Isn't one of the sources "I'll Be All Right," a traditional spiritual? - PJS

It at least has associated texts, but is not mentioned as a source by Fuld, and is mentioned only tangentially in a footnote. Hence my comment. - RBW

The recent discovery that "We Will Overcome," the earlier form of the song (Pete Seeger changed "will" to "shall" because it was better for singing) was being sung as early as 1908, and in the context of a labor struggle no less, casts some ambiguity on the question of which song was the ancestor and which the descendant. See the entry for "I'll Be All Right." - PJS

Pete Seeger, in the text of Where Have All the Flowers Gone, pp. 32-35, discusses the history of the song, printing two source songs "I'll Overcome Some Day" (by Charles Tindley, 1903) and "I'll Be All Right"; the form is closer to the latter, but the common version of "We Shall Overcome" clearly owes lyrics to the former. I think Seeger's summary of the situation is pretty reasonable.

In 2017, the whole issue of authorship came up in court, because the copyright holders were demanding high royalties for the use of the song. It came out that Zilphia Horton had taken the song down from some unknown person. She died before copyright (in the name of Horton, Frank Hamilton, and Guy Carawan) was applied for. Pete Seeger's name was later added -- not by Seeger -- probably to give the version more clout. Seeger said he accepted it at the time to prevent Hollywood from messing with the song, but he asked in 1994 that his name be taken off the copyright. In September 2017, the court ruled that the first verse, at least, was public domain; the copyrighted version did not differ sufficiently from traditional versions. Which is pretty clearly true. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0
We Shall Rise, Hallelujah

DESCRIPTION: "We shall sing until we die! We will preach and testify! In that Holy Ghost religion we shall rise, Oh hallelujah! Oh we'll sing until we die, We will preach... Till my Savior's precious face again I see... On the resurrection morning we shall meet him"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 634, "We Shall Rise, Hallelujah" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #4309
RECORDINGS:
Byron Parker & his Mountaineers, "We Shall Rise" (Bluebird B-8551, 1940)

File: R634

We Shall Walk Through the Valley

DESCRIPTION: "We shall walk through the valley of the shadow of death, We shall walk though the valley in peace, And if Jesus himself shall be our leader, We shall walk through the valley in peace." "We will meet our Father over there...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, p. 7, "Walk Through the Valley in Peace" (1 text, 1 tune)
Work-FolkSongOfTheAmericanNegro, pp. 55-56, "Walk Through the Valley" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 359, "We Shall Walk Through The Valley" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Moses Asch and Alan Lomax, Editors, _The Leadbelly Songbook_, Oak, 1962, p. 59, "We Shall Walk Through the Valley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11691
File: FSWB359A

We Shepherds Are the Best of Men

DESCRIPTION: "We shepherds are the best of men that e'er trod English ground." We spend freely at the ale-house. We pen our sheep safely in spite of hale, rain and snow; then "unto a jovial company good liquor for to taste"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1793 (according to Broadwood)
KEYWORDS: drink storm England nonballad sheep shepherd
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South,West))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Broadwood/Maitland-EnglishCountySongs, pp. 82-83, "The Shepherd's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 241-242, "Shepherds Are the Best of Men" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 116)
Browne-FolkSongsOfOldHampshire, pp. 90-91, "The Shepherd's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #284
RECORDINGS:
Fred Jordan, "We Shepherds Are the Best of Men" (on Voice20)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Lonely Life a Shepherd Leads" (contrary viewpoint)
NOTES [56 words]: Yates, Musical Traditions site Voice of the People suite "Notes - Volume 20" - 15.1.04: "Fred learnt this from the song-collector Fred Hamer, who had it from Lucy Broadwood's English County Songs [1893]." Broadwood said it was taken in 1793 in Gloucestershire (source: "The Shepherds' Song" in Song Database at the Folkinfo site).

Last updated in version 5.0
File: RcWSATBM

We Three Kings (Kings of Orient)

DESCRIPTION: "We three kings of orient are, Bearing gifts we travel afar." The three "kings" come from different lands to visit the Christ Child; they offer their gifts and explain that they have been guided by a star

AUTHOR: John Henry Hopkins, Jr. (1820-1891)
EARLIEST DATE: 1865 (sheet music); probably composed 1857, and there is a published edition with a dedication claiming a date of 1863
KEYWORDS: Jesus Bible Christmas carol religious

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Dearmer/VaughnWilliams/Shaw-OxfordBookOfCarols 195, "Kings of Orient" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 627-628, "We Three Kings"
DT, WE3KING*
ADDITIONAL: Ian Bradley, _The Penguin Book of Carols_ (1999), #94, "We Three Kings of Orient Are" (1 text)
Roud #24751

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Golden Carol (The Three Kings)" (subject)

SAME TUNE:
We Three Kings (The Rubber Cigar) (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 115; DT, WE3KING2)
We Three Kings of Orient Are (New Zealand parody from Fred Dagg/John Clarke) (Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, p. 297)

NOTES [222 words]: The basis for this song is Matthew 2:1-12. The story has been expanded and modified heavily, however. We note the following:
1. There is no reason to believe that there were three visitors. All we know is that they gave three gifts. Their names are completely unknown. They may not even have been from the east (the orient); it was the star which was in the east (though their title hints that they came from the east).
2. The visitors were not kings and were not wise men. They were "magi" -- Babylonian mystics and perhaps astrologers. Jews would generally consider magi to be evil sorcerers. For more on the common misconceptions about the visitors, see the notes to "The Golden Carol (The Three Kings)."

LindaJo H. McKim, _Presbyterian Hymnal Companion_, Westminster/John Knox Press, 1993, p. 64, says that Hopkins published this song in his _Carols, Hymns, and Songs_ in 1857, but I have been unable to verify a date before 1865. McKim, pp. 64-65, says that Hopkins was born in Pittsburg in 1820 and went to the University of Vermont and General Theological Seminary. He worked as a pastor and then became professor of church music at General Theological Seminary. He also edited a religious magazine and designed stained glass windows. He died in Hudson, New York in 1891. I know of nothing else memorable from his pen. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2
File: OBC195

We Want None of Thee

DESCRIPTION: "Old Johnny Bull's over the ocean, Old Johnny Bull's over the sea; He wants to dictate to our people, But Johnny we want none of the. Ah, there! Stay there!...." Millionaires are "loading Mark Hanna with boodle" to elect William McKinley and support gold

AUTHOR: Words: Nellie Saunders
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Nevada Folklore pamphlet; probably written in 1896)
KEYWORDS: political nonballad derivative gold

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1896 - William McKinley first elected President, over William Jennings Bryan, the supporter of "free silver." Mark Hanna was largely responsible for McKinley's election.

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, pp. 74-76, "We Want None of Thee" (1 text, tune referenced)
ADDITIONAL: Nebraska Folklore, Pamphlet Twenty, "More Farmers’ Alliance Songs of the 1890’s," Federal Writers' Project, 1939, p. 12, "We Want None of Thee" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "My Bonnie Lies over the Ocean" (tune)
cf. "Free Silver" (subject of William Jennings Bryan and the 1896 election) and references there
NOTES [13 words]: For more on the issues of the 1896 presidential election, see "Free Silver." - RBW
Last updated in version 4.3
File: Wels074

We Was Logging in Kentucky

DESCRIPTION: "We was loggin' in Kentucky With Jerry and Joe, Draggin' up the timber.... Jerry and Joe was oxen white." "Bob" goes out to find the missing oxen. They eventually find a "skeeter," which had eaten Jerry and was ringing his bell to get more food
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Smith-SouthCarolinaBallads)
KEYWORDS: humorous talltale animal cattle work lumbering bug death
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Smith-SouthCarolinaBallads, pp. 30-31, "(no title)" (1 text)
File: ReSm030

We Will Always Have Our Sealers

DESCRIPTION: "We will always have our sealers While there's a ship to sail, While sturdy crews have fish and brewis, While there is rain and hail." The poet admits that there are many changes, but affirms that there will always be a need for the seal hunt
AUTHOR: Otto P. Kelland (1904-2004)
EARLIEST DATE: 1960 (Kelland); reportedly written 1945
KEYWORDS: hunting technology
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, p. 155, "We Will Always Have Our Sealers" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Otto P. Kelland, _Anchor Watch: Newfoundland Stories in Verse_ (privately printed, 1960), pp. 89-90, "We Will Always Have Our Sealers" (1 text)
Roud #V44718
NOTES [227 words]: For information about Otto Kelland, the author of this piece, see the notes to "Western Boat (Let Me Fish Off Cape St Mary's)."
This reportedly was written as Kelland watched the sealing fleet set out in 1945 (although Kelland printed it in _Anchor Watch_ without any commentary or explanation). An old sealer commented that the few ships sailing would be the last (apparently meaning that they would not be replaced when they broke down). Kelland wrote this piece as a counter-argument.
Obviously the truth was somewhere in between. The steam sealers that had been the heart of the fleet since the 1860s were almost gone by 1945. The ships that had anchored the fleet for half a century, the _Neptune, Ranger_, and _Terra Nova_, had all been lost in the early 1940s, leaving just one of the old steamers. That very last steamer, the _Eagle_, was scuttled in 1950; see "The Ice-Floes." In that sense, Kelland was wrong; the sailing of the fleet would never again be as majestic as it was in, say, the 1910s and 1920s, when Kelland was first watching it.
Kelland was right in that seal-hunting continued, and still continues in a small way, but between the over-harvesting that has destroyed the herds, and the general changes in the economy, and environmental protests, it seems likely that the seals of Canada will soon be safe -- such of them as remain. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: RySm155
We Will March Through the Valley
DESCRIPTION: "We will march through the valley in peace (x2). If Jesus himself be our leader, We will march through the valley in peace." "We will march... Behold, I give myself away." "This track I'll see and I'll pursue." "When I'm dead and buried...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad death burial floatingverses
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 73, "We Will March Through the Valley" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12033
File: AWG073B

We Will Not Go to White Bay with Casey Any More
DESCRIPTION: "Tom Casey being commander Of the Saint Patrick by name," 28 men sign up to go sealing. They quickly become "jammed in White Bay Until the last of May." After many hard times, the sealers manage to return home
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1925 (Murphy, Songs Sung by Old Time Sealers of Many Years Ago)
KEYWORDS: hunting wreck disaster hardtimes ship
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Ryan/Small-HaulinRopeAndGaff, p. 16, "We Will Not Go To White Bay With Casey Any More" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, editor, _Songs Sung by Old-Time Sealers of Many Years Ago_, James Murphy Publishing, 1925 (PDF available from Memorial University of Newfoundland website), p. 3, "We Will Not Go To White Bay With Casey Any More" (1 text)
Shannon Ryan, _The Ice Hunters: A History of Newfoundland Sealing to 1914_, Breakwater Books, 1994, p. 215, "(We will not go to White Bay with Casey anymore)" (1 text)
ST RySm016 (Partial)
Roud #27067
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Davy Lowston" (plot)
NOTES [335 words]: Although this sounds as if it should refer to an actual event, no one seems to know the time or date. It's not clear that it's traditional, either, though Ryan and Small don't list an author, and claim there is a different version known. According to Ryan, p. 272 n. 13, Tom Casey commanded the _St. Patrick_ in 1838, perhaps 1839, 1841, 1845-1848, and perhaps beyond. Murphy, who published the song, called it "very old." Even apart from the mention of Casey and the _St. Patrick_, the internal evidence supports this claim. Captain Casey never commanded a steamer, nor did a Captain Kelly, according to the lists in Chafe, strongly implying that they date from before the age of steamers (which began in 1863). Nor was there a seamer named _Kitty_, either, although there was a _Kite_, and there was a sailing sealer named the _Kitty Clyde_ in 1858 (Ryan, p. 220). The ship has only 28 sealers -- far too small for the steamers, or even for the brigs that immediately preceded them; this strongly argues for a date before 1850. The ship sailed on March 1; starting in 1869, ships were banned from sailing prior to March 10 (with some minor exceptions; cf. Chafe, p. 49; Candow, p. 57). The ship sails from Carbonear; by the steamer era, almost all ships sailed from St. John. (There were "land hunters" not based in St. John's, but such a ship would not have gone as far as White Bay.) Captain Casey tells the men they will take five thousand seals -- a pitiful total for a steamer (in which hauls of 20,000 or 30,000 or more were known), or even for the later brigs. None of this allows a precise date, but it was definitely early. The decision to sail into White Bay was a gamble; according to Ryan, p. 215, going there was "always a risky decision, given it long v-shape which could become packed solid with ice in a northeast wind."
Being stuck in the ice until May was indeed extreme; the last baby seals left the ice in April. Sealers could hunt old seals after that, but this rarely brought in much. - RBW
Bibliography
We Will Walk Through the Streets of the City
DESCRIPTION: A "Come Though Fount of Every Blessing" text, with distinctive chorus: "We will walk through the city, Where our friends have gone before, We will sit on the banks of the river Where we meet to part no more."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1924 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 562, "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing" (1 short text)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 562, "Come, Thou Fount of Every Blessing" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)
Roud #11885
RECORDINGS:
Blind Gary Davis, "Goin' To Sit Down on the Banks of the River" (1992, on "Harlem Street Singer," Prestige Bluesville CD OBCCD-547-2(BV-1015); recorded 1960)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing" (text)
File: Br3562

We Wish You a Merry Christmas
DESCRIPTION: "We wish you a merry Christmas (x3) And a happy New Year." "We want some figgy pudding (x3) And a cup of good cheer." "We won't go until we get some (x3), So bring it out here!"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE:
KEYWORDS: Christmas food nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 376, "We Wish You A Merry Christmas" (1 text)
DT, MERYXMAS
Roud #230
File: FSWB376C

We Won't Go Home Until Morning
DESCRIPTION: "We're all met here together (x3) To eat and drink good cheer." "(For) we won't go home until morning (x3) Till daylight does appear." "We'll sing, we'll dance and be merry (x3) And kiss the lasses dear." "The girls they love us dearly (x3)..."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1842 (arrangement by William Clifton published by Thomas Birch) (tune dates to 1783 or earlier)
KEYWORDS: drink friend nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,So)
REFERENCES (11 citations):
Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 22-23=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 139-140, "All Go Down to Rowser's" (1 text, 1 tune)
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 146-151, "We'll All Go Down to Rowser's" (1 text, 1 tune, plus sheet music reprints of "Malbrouck" and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow")
Randolph 528, "We'll All Go Down to Rowser's" (3 texts plus an excerpt, 1 tune)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, pp. 168-169, "Rowser's" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, pp. 141-143, "The Game of 'Howsers'" (1 text with game instructions, seemingly most closely related to Randolph's version but probably a combination of several game songs)
Jackson-PopularSongsOfNineteenthCenturyAmerica, pp. 226-228, "We Won't Go Home Until Morning" (1 text, 1 tune)
Pound-AmericanBalladsAndSongs, 119, pp. 237-238, "We'll All Go Down to Rowser's" (1 text, with "Rowser's" and "Pig in the Parlor" verses)
Messerli-ListenToTheMockingbird, pp. 64-64, "We Won't Go Home Till Morning" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 231-233, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow -- (Malbrouk -- We Won't Go Home till Morning! -- The Bear Went over the Mountain)"
ADDITIONAL: Richard M. Dorson, _Buying the Wind: Regional Folklore in the United States_, University of Chicago Press, 1964, pp. 378-379, "Let's Go Down to Rowsha's" (1 text, 1 tune)
Harry Dichter and Elliott Shapiro, _Early American Sheet Music: Its Lure and Its Lore, 1768-1889_, R. R. Bowker, 1941, plate 20, shows an early sheet music cover
ST RJ19226 (Full)
Roud #4251
CROSS-REFERENCES:
  cf. "Malbrouck" (tune)
  cf. "The Bear Went over the Mountain" (tune)
  cf. "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" (tune)
  cf. "Christ Was Born in Bethlehem" (tune)" cf. "Old Tippecanoe (I)" (tune)
  cf. "Pig in the Parlor" (floating lyrics, form)
  cf. "Chickens They Are Crowing" (floating lyrics in a few texts)
  cf. "I'll Never Get Drunk Any More (III)" (tune)
  cf. "I'm Glad I Live In Wyoming" (tune)
SAME TUNE:
The Bear Went Over the Mountain (File: DTbearmt)
Malbrouck (File: K108)
For He's a Jolly Good Fellow (File: FSWB250)
Christ Was Born in Bethlehem (File: MA189)
Old Tippecanoe (File: Wa073)
The Reformed Drinker (Logan, pp. 231-232)
I'll Never Get Drunk Any More (III) (File: CrPS096)
I'm Glad I Live In Wyoming (File: CAFS2577)
NOTES [301 words]: The earliest dated example of this tune ("Malbrouk") comes from 1783, though there are hints that it was in circulation in France for some decades before this (it is reliably reported to have been sung to one of Marie Antoinette's children in 1781, and see the tune cited for Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN1337, "I sing not the battle (so famed) of Lepanto"). Its origin is unknown, though fanciful stories (e.g. of Spanish or even Arabic origin) are common. (Spaeth compares it with a Chanson of 1563, "Le Convoi de Duc de Guise.")
After 1783 the tune became popular in France, and was used by Beethoven in 1813, but no evidence of English versions is found until the 1840s. The American sheet music of "We Won't Go Home..." dates to 1842; the English is undated but probably dates between 1841 and 1846. By 1854, the song was popular enough that crowds were using it to heckle Senator Douglas when he spoke in favor of the Kansas/Nebraska Act in Chicago. (Douglas said he would silence the mob if it took all night, and the crowd answered with this song.) "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" appears to have been first printed in 1870; "The Bear Went over the Mountain" is not attested until 1920, but is probably older. All four of Randolph's versions mention "Rowser" or "Rowser's" in the first verse, but the only tune given is this one, three of the four are about drink (the fourth, Randolph's "D" text, could possibly be a separate piece), and the "A" text has the "We won't go home until morning" stanza. Pound describes her text (also a "Rowser's" version) as a "game song," but offers no further details.
Linscott, in her notes to "A Bear Went Over the Mountain," claims the tune "is said to have been sung by Crusaders under Godefrey de Bouillon in the latter part of the eleventh century." Uh-huh. -RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: RJ19226

We Won't Let Our Leader Run Down

DESCRIPTION: The Irish Parliamentary Party and Gladstone want to condemn Parnell. "Give Parnell the thing he requires, Home Rule and Prosperity ... then he will retire." "He has fought for prosperity unto the last, That is what the people say in Ireland"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1891 (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion)
KEYWORDS: Ireland nonballad political
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 89, "We Won't Let Our Leader Run Down" (1 text)
Roud #V37150
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 26(671), "We Won't Hear our Leader Run Down," unknown, n.d.
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Bold Tenant Farmer" (subject of Charles Stewart Parnell) and references there
NOTES [649 words]: "In December 1889, Parnell became involved in a divorce that was to end his political influence and the trauma of this divorce probably hastened his early death.... Parnell managed to split the party that represented many of the people of Ireland at Westminster - the Irish Parliamentary Party. Some sided with Parnell while others did not." He married the divorced woman in June 1891 and died in October. (source: "Charles Stuart Parnell" at History Learning Site) - BS

We should note that almost all sources spell Parnell's name "Charles Stewart Parnell."
In fact the situation was even more complicated than the above can describe. Parnell (1845-1891), who had helped found the Land League and won major rights for Irish tenants (see "The Bold Tenant Farmer"), had for long led the Irish parliamentary faction -- which he had finally welded into a cohesive enough block that it generally held the controlling hand in the British House of Commons.
Since he was in alliance with Prime Minister Gladstone, who wanted Home Rule for Ireland, a Home Rule bill were introduced in 1886. But the political opposition in the Lords, and the overwhelming revulsion caused by the Phoenix Park murders (for which see, e.g., "The Phoenix Park Tragedy"), caused it to go down.
And then there was Parnell's Great Indiscretion. In 1880, before his power had even reached its peak, he had begun an affair with Katherine O'Shea, the wife of Captain William O'Shea, a Home Rule M.P. (Fry/Fry, p. 259). Their first child was born in 1882; although she died, they had two more children in 1883 and 1884.
Some men might have gotten away with this (Bill Clinton, anyone?). It was harder for Parnell. According to O'Connor, p.16, Parnell "was a landlord and an aristocrat who challenged the aristocracy and defied the landowners. He was not witty or eloquent as traditional Irish leaders had been. He was cold and often disdainful." In other words, his power was based on his opinions, not his personality. He didn't charm anyone -- except "Kitty" O'Shea.
Exactly how Parnell and Captain O'Shea felt about each other is not entirely clear (Kee, pp. 85-86, 112-113; also Fry/Fry, p. 259). But by 1886 O'Shea resigned from Parliament, and in 1889, he divorced his wife. Parnell married her in 1891 (Fry/Fry, p. 260). If Parnell had resigned, his platform might have survived. But he didn't, and it didn't; he was voted out of office in 1890 (Wallace, p. 140).
It will tell you what the politics of the time were like that a preacher in the run-up to the election of 1892 said, "Parnellism is simply love of adultery and all those who profess Parnellism profess to love and admire adultery" (Kee, p. 117).
Moody/Martin/Keogh/Kiely, p. 256, write that "Parnell's fall deprived the Irish Party of a leader whose genius was irreplaceable, and seriously injured the home rule cause among the British public. It was all the more tragic because, in the supreme crisis of his life, Parnell abandoned the stern realism that had hitherto governed all his political conduct and allowed his passion and pride to overcome him. His refusal to accept even a temporary retirement forced an excruciating decision on a majority of his party."

Parnell tried to rebuild his support by a series of lectures and speeches, but collapsed and died not long after (Kee, p. 115, who writes, "He died at Brighton with his wife by his side on 10 October, and his body was brought into Kingston harbour on... 11 October, and buried in Glasnevin cemetery. The chances of Home Rule for the next twenty years were buried with him."

Despite his final failure, Parnell became part of Ireland's folklore. O'Connor, p. 18, writes, "[His] coffin was drawn in silence through Dublin past stricken crowds who stood in the streets in numbers that have never been equalled since.... To an extent it is true that the Irish never got over Parnell's death...." - RBW

Bibliography

- Fry/Fry: Peter and Fiona Somerset Fry, A History of Ireland, 1988 (I use the 1993 Barnes & Noble edition)
- Kee: Robert Kee, The Bold Fenian Men, being volume II of The Green Flag (covering the period from around 1848 to the Easter Rising), Penguin, 1972

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Zimm089

We Work for Hay and Company

DESCRIPTION: "We work for Hay and Company, we do the best we can, I'll tell you what our jobs are, each and every man." The singer proceeds to do so, ending with himself: "I start at five in the morning, and it's six before I'm through...."

AUTHOR: Ron Sisson?
EARLIEST DATE: 1964 (Fowke)
KEYWORDS: logger work lumbering
FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fowke-LumberingSongsFromTheNorthernWoods #26, "We Work for Hay and Company" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #4466
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Old Holly, Crab, and I" (subject)
cf. "The Wabash Cannonball" (tune) and references there
File: FowL26

We'll Sell the Pig and We'll Sell the Cow

DESCRIPTION: "The horn do blow, the cotton do grow, Driver blow this horn... We'll sell the pig and we'll sell the cow, O never let the child be sold." "When you hear the church bells ring, Dream sinners, dream"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1943 (Creighton collection)
KEYWORDS: animal commerce farming
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Pottie/Ellis-FolksongsOfTheMaritimes, pp. 84-85, "We'll Sell the Pig and We'll Sell the Cow" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #31158
File: PoEll084
We'd Better Bide a Wee

DESCRIPTION: "The poor aul' folks at hame, ye min', are frail an' aillin' sair, An weel I ken they'd miss me, lad, if I came hame nae mair... I canna lea' the aul' folk, lad, we'd better bide a wee." The girl gives reasons why she must stay with her parents for now

AUTHOR: Credited to Claribel (Charlotte Alington Barnard, 1830-1869) in Heart Songs and in Songs That Never Grow Old (1913)

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Heart Songs)

KEYWORDS: family mother father loneliness age

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H598, pp. 61-62, "Better Bide a Wee" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Heart-Songs, pp. 388-389, "We'd Better Bide a Wee" (1 text, 1 tune)

BROADSIDES:
- NLScotland, L.C.Fol.70(26b), "I Canna Leave the Auld Folk," Poet's Box (Dundee), c. 1890

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Castleroe Mill" (theme)
- cf. "Betsy of Dramoor" (theme)

NOTES [62 words]: According to the notes at the NLScotland site, this was quoted by Louisa May Alcott's 1886 novel Jo's Boys. For brief background on Claribel, see the notes to "Come Back to Erin." William H. A. Williams, 'Twas Only an Irishman's Dream, University of Illinois Press, 1996, p. 41, seems to consider that her biggest hit, followed by "I Cannot Sing the Old Songs." - RBW

Last updated in version 6.0

File: HHH598

We'll All Go A-Hunting Today

DESCRIPTION: "What a fine hunting day and as balmy as may And the hounds of the village will come... We'll all go a-hunting today." A lame farmer, a judge, a doctor, a parson conducting a marriage -- all leave their work to go hunting

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland)

KEYWORDS: hunting work clergy marriage

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 263, "We'll All Go A-Hunting Today" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #127, "We'll All Go A-Hunting Today" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #1172

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Hunting Priest (Parson Hogg; Sing Tally Ho!)" (theme)

NOTES [41 words]: The thene of gentlemen who prefer hunting to church is an ancient complaint in Britain; "The Mourning of the Hare" is the tale of a creature which is pursued by huntsmen who do not wait for mass; it is thought to date to the fifteenth century. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.7

File: K263

We'll Crown Them with Roses

DESCRIPTION: "We'll take up our stand for the youth of our land And weave them a garland to wear, Though no leaves of the vine in our wreath we'll entwine For we'll crown them with roses so fair." The singers will bring up their children to stay away from alcohol

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Randolph)

KEYWORDS: drink flowers children

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Randolph 334, "We'll Crown Them with Roses" (1 text)

Roud #7806
We'll Fight for Uncle Abe
DESCRIPTION: "Way down in old Virginy, I suppose you all do know, They have tried to bust the Union, But they find it is no go... We're going down to Washington To fight for Uncle Abe." The song describes the various attacks being made on the rebel cause AUTHOR: Words: C.E. Pratt / Music: Frederick Buckley
EARLIEST DATE: 1863 (sheet music published by Oliver Ditson & Co., according to Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar)
KEYWORDS: Civilwar battle patriotic
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 108-110, "We'll Fight for Uncle Abe" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Silber-SoldierSongsAndHomeFrontBalladsOfCivilWar, pp. 34-35, "We'll Fight for Uncle Abe" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [229 words]: The historical references in this song are rather confused. The second stanza refers to Grant and his Vicksburg campaign, which was in full swing in 1863. It also refers to his move to the East to command the armies against Richmond; this took place in 1864.
Finally, it mentions Grant being opposed by "General Johnson." There was no important Confederate general named Johnson. The commander at Vicksburg was Pemberton. General J. E. Johnston (with a t) did command a force in central Mississippi, and Grant had fought general A. S. Johnston at Shiloh.
The third verse refers to events BEFORE Grant made a name for himself, when George McClellan commanded the Army of the Potomac in the Peninsular Campaign. As it happened, McClellan was beaten back in the Peninsula. He fought the Confederates to a bruising draw at Antietam, but hardly "ma[de] the Rebels fly."
The third verse refers to the possibility of England and France recognizing the Confederacy. This might have happened in early 1862; both had use for southern cotton. But Antietam allowed Lincoln to issue the Emancipation Proclamation, which made the war into a crusade against slavery (to a limited extent). England could not recognize a country devoted to the preservation of slavery, and France could not go it alone.
In summary, there is no time of the war which fits all the references in the song. - RBW
Last updated in version 3.2
File: SCw34

We'll Get There All the Same
DESCRIPTION: The singer promises that the temperance crusaders will "get there [to Prohibition] just the same." As examples of those who overcame equal adversity, the singer cites the oppressed Hebrews, Noah, and the American revolutionaries AUTHOR: H. S. Taylor and J. B. Hebert?
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Randolph); reportedly composed 1887
KEYWORDS: drink political
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Randolph 321, "We'll Get There All the Same" (1 text, 1 tune)
  Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 271-273, "We'll Get There All the Same" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 321)
Roud #7795
File: R321

We'll Go to Our Bed, Said Sleepyhead
DESCRIPTION: Sleepy head says let's go to bed. Slow would sit a while instead. Greedy gut wants the pot put on: "let's sup before we go"
AUTHOR: unknown
We'll Have Another Drink before the Boat Shoves Off

DESCRIPTION: "We'll have another drink before the boat shoves off (2x), And we'll go to Mother Rackett's and we'll pawn our monkey jackets, And we'll have another...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951
KEYWORDS: sailor drink parting
FOUND IN: US(MA)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, p. 167, "We'll Have Another Drink before the Boat Shoves Off" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #9443
NOTES [23 words]: According to Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman's informant, Mother Rackett kept a waterfront saloon in Hong Kong around 1875. - RBW

File: Doe167

We'll Meet You By and By

DESCRIPTION: "I have heard W. V. Allen preach And I've heard O. M. Kem tell, There ay be a plaxe like Paradise, but there's no such place as... Hallelujah; and we'll meet you by and by." Republicans, Democrats, English capitalists, Bryan are warned of coming elections

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore)
KEYWORDS: political nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Welsch-NebraskaPioneerLore, pp. 68-70, "We'll Meet You By and By" (1 text)
NOTES [100 words]: W. V. Allen is William Vincent Allen (1847-1924). The Dictionary of American Biography calls him a Populist, from an Abolitionist family, who joined the Union army at the age of fifteen. He became a lawyer, married in 1870, and moved from Iowa to Madison, Nebrasks in 1884. He became a Populist in 1890, and was chosen a judge in the next year. He became a Senator in 1893, and was noteworthy for filibustering an attempt to repeal the Sherman Silver Purchase Act. He failed of re-election in 1899, but was appointed by the governor to serve until 1901. He had little role in politics thereafter. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.6
File: Wels068

We'll Rant and We'll Roar

DESCRIPTION: Sailor Bob Pittman describes his skills as a sailor, then settles down to describing his wedding plans. Having settled on a suitable wife (after much soul-searching), he makes arrangements for wedded life and bids farewell to all the other girls

AUTHOR: Henry W. Le Messurier (1843-1931)
EARLIEST DATE: c. 1880
KEYWORDS: courting marriage sea
REFERENCES (10 citations):
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 132, "The Ryans and the Pittmans" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke/Johnston-FolkSongsOfCanada, pp. 42-43, "We'll Rant and We'll Roar (The Ryans and the Pittmans)" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 12, "The Ryans and the Pittmans" (1 text, 1 tune)
Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, p. 10, "We'll Rant and We'll Roar" (1 text, 1 tune)
Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, "The Ryans and the Pittmans" (1 text, 1 tune): p. 53 in the 2nd edition; p. 51 in the 3rd; p. 39 in the 4th; p. 37 in the 5th
Mills-FavoriteSongsOfNewfoundland, pp. 16-17, "The Ryans and the Pittmans (We'll Rant and We'll Roar)" (1 text, 1 tune)
England-HistoricNewfoundlandAndLabrador, p. 62, "Ryans and the Pittmans" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: James Murphy, editor, _Old Songs of Newfoundland_, James Murphy Publishing, 1912 (PDF available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 6, "The Ryans and the Pittmans" (1 text)
James Murphy, _Songs Their Fathers Sung: For Fishermen: Old Time Ditties_, James Murphy Publishing, 1923 (PDF available from the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 15, "The Ryans and the Pittmans" (1 text)

Roud #687

RECORDINGS:
Omar Blondahl, "We'll Rant and We'll Roar" (on NFOBlondahl05)
Clare O'Driscoll, "We'll Rant and We'll Roar (The Ryans and the Pittmans)" (on MUNFLA/Leach)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Spanish Ladies" (plot, tune, lyrics) and references there

SAME TUNE:
The Saguenay Song (File: Hopk038)

NOTES [317 words]: A Canadian rewrite of "Farewell and Adieu to you Spanish Ladies." The author's title is "The Ryans and the Pittmans," but tradition has paid little attention to that, though scholars often respect it. - RBW

Bruce Fisher's Songs of Newfoundland site points out that the song, in each version, tours a local circuit of ports and outports. - BS

It's interesting to observe that the outports involved -- Toslow, Bruley, Valen, St. Kyran's, Presque, etc. -- are in Placentia Bay. But the Pittman family is apparently most associated with New Perlican on Trinity Bay; Seary, p. 258, says that the Pittman Family "used to do logging" in the area of New Perlican, Heart's Content, Old Perlican, and Pitman's Pond, all on the east coast of Trinity Bay, and Evans, p. 87, says that Pittmans were shipbuilders in the New Perlican area. Furthermore, the name "Pittman" is obviously English (and the churches of east Trinity Bay are all Anglican or United Church, according to McManus/Wood, plate 8.4) while "Ryan" is Irish (and there were at least some Catholic churches in the Placentia Bay area). And Newfoundland politics was dominated by the conflict between English Protestants and Irish Catholics. This raises strange thoughts about Bob Pittman being kicked out of the family home -- although there is obviously no hint of it in the song.

According to DictNewLabrador, pp. 197-198, H. W. LeMessurier became a clerk while still a teenager, and went into business while in his early twenties. In 1885, while in his thirties, he was elected to the House of Assembly, but lost his bid for re-election in 1889. He spent a few years editing the Evening Herald, then joined the Customs Department, becoming Deputy Minister in 1898 and staying in the post for thirty years. This song is his most famous work, but he also wrote articles on history, and is said to have helped introduce curling to Newfoundland. - RBW

Bibliography

- Evans: Calvin D. Evans,Master Shipbuilders of Newfoundland and Labrador, Volume One: Cape Spear to Boyd's Cove, Breakwater Books, 2013
- Seary: E. A. Seary,Place Names of the Avalon Peninsula of the Island of Newfoundland, University of Toronto Press, 1971
We'll Roll the Old Chariot Along

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "And we'll roll the (old/golden/omit) chariot along (x3), and we'll all hang on behind." Sometimes sung as a shanty, with the sailors describing what they would want on shore; alternately, "If the devil's in the way, we will roll it over him..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)

KEYWORDS: shanty religious Devil

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW,SE)

REFERENCES (10 citations):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 192-193, "Roll de Ole Chariot Along" (1 text, 1 tune; pp. 106-107 in the 1901 edition)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 650, "We'll Roll the Old Chariot Along" (1 text)
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, pp. 48-49, "Holy Ghost" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 49-50, "We'll Roll the Golden Chariot Along" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 117, "Roll the Old Chariot Along" (1 text)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, pp. 196-197, "Roll the Chariot" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, pp. 151, "Roll the Old Chariot" (1 text, 1 tune) [AbEd, pp. 122-123]
Kinsey-SongsOfTheSea, p. 99, "Roll the Old Chariot" (1 text, 1 tune)
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 215-216, (no title) (1 text)

DT, ROLLCHAR*

RECORDINGS:
Paul Robeson, "Roll the Chariot Along" (HMV [UK] B-4421, 1933)

SAME TUNE:
Roll the Union On (various authors cited) (Greenway-AmericanFolksongsOfProtest, p. 223; DT, ROLLUN)

NOTES [236 words]: This song has seen very diverse use; sailors used it as a "stamp and go" shanty; Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag had it from Salvation Army singers, and in another form it was quoted by Laura Ingalls Wilder in chapter 11 of The Long Winter. (Which, if her memory is right, gives us an EARLIEST DATE of c. 1880. But it must be remembered that the "Little House" books contain a great deal of historical fiction.) I wonder what she would have done if someone told her that sailors often sang, "Oh, a night with a woman wouldn't do me any harm....." - RBW
Not to mention the next verse, "Oh, a trip to the doctor wouldn't do me any harm...." - PJS

Some versions refer to "Nelson's Blood"; since Nelson's body was preserved in a vat of liquor after Trafalgar, alcoholic beverages came to be called "Nelson's Blood."
The Union adaption quoted by Greenway was a deliberate adaption (said to have been made up "in 1937 by a Negro woman in Little Rock"), but this song has so little plot that the versions cannot properly be separated. - RBW

Sorry, but this isn't the same tune as any version of , "Roll the Union On " I've ever heard, although they may be related. "Roll the Union On," is, I think, derived from another, separate hymn. - PJS
It doesn't fit the tune I know for "Roll the Old Chariot" either, but it's the tune cited by Greenway. - RBW

I think Greenway may be wrong; see the notes to "Roll the Union On". - PJS

Last updated in version 5.1

We'll Sail Away to Heaven (Like a Feather in the Wind)

DESCRIPTION: "We'll sail away to heaven Like a feather in de wind (x3), We'll sail away... We'll sail away to heaven by me by." "O, (sisters/brothers/fathers/mothers), don't be weary, weary, Lord, weary, Oh, (sisters), don't be waey, We'll sail away to heaven...."
We'll Set the Children Free

DESCRIPTION: "Joey Ward is Premier, but he hasn't long to live, He's sold our country's children, and a Dreadnought he did give." "Don't let a tyrant rule you while there's honest men and true." The demonstrators want peace, "And our children shall be free."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1912 (Christchurch demonstration against militarism, according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ)
KEYWORDS: political New Zealand
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1906-1912, 1928-1930 - Sir Joseph George Ward (1856-1930) Prime Minister of New Zealand
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, p. 112, "We'll Set the Children Free" (1 text, tune referenced)
Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, pp. 110-111, "We'll Set the Children Free" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "John Brown's Body" (tune) and references there
NOTES [82 words]: A song from the election of 1912, which turned out Sir Joseph Ward's liberals, so the singers got what they wanted. It didn't keep ANZAC troops from serving at the Dardanelles, though....
The reference in the second line to "a Dreadnought he did give" I assume refers to the battle cruiser "New Zealand," laid down by the British Navy in 1910 and finished in 1912. It was paid for by New Zealand but served with the British Navy for its entire existence, including at the Battle of Jutland. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.3
File: BaRo112

We'll Sit Upon the Gate

DESCRIPTION: The singer complains, she makes tea for her old man, she gets grounds, and "water for the laddie with the trowsers on." Also, malt for her old man, hops for her, and "beer for the laddie ... we'll kiss the laddie with the trousers on"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: courting drink food nonballad father
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 202, "We'll Sit Upon the Gate" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 474)
Roud #1280
File: WT202

We'll Soon Be Free

DESCRIPTION: "We'll soon be free (x3), When de Lord will call us home." "My brudder, how long (x3), 'Fore we done suffering here." "It won't be long." "We'll walk de miry road Where pleasure
We'll Understand It Better By and By

DESCRIPTION: "We are tossed and driven on the restless sea of time.... In that land of perfect day, when the mists have rolled away, We will understand it better by and by." Even if lacking daily needs or faced with trials, hearers are promised eventual explanations

AUTHOR: Charles A. Tindley (d. 1933)
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (source: Morgan, Warren-EveryTimeIFeelTheSpirit)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad hardtimes
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Warren-EveryTimeIFeelTheSpirit, pp. 182-184, "We'll Understand It Better By and By" (1 text, 1 tune)
- ADDITIONAL: _Sing Out_ magazine, Volume 30, #3 (1984), pp. 8-9, "We'll Understand It Better By and By" (1 text, 1 tune, plus an article by Bernice Reagon about the author)
- Robert J. Morgan, _Then Sings My Soul, Book 2: 150 of the World's Greatest Hymn Stories_, Nelson, 2004, pp. 252-253, "We'll Understand It Better By and By" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #17224
RECORDINGS:
- Minnie Gracie Gadson, "We Will Understand it Better By and By" (on USSealsIsland03)
NOTES [35 words]: Charles A. Tindley, according to Morgan, was a Black minister, who suffered significantly from discrimination in his career but still managed to pen several well-known hymns including this and "Stand By Me." - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: SOWUIBBB

We're A' John Tamson's Bairns

DESCRIPTION: "John Tamson was a merry auld carle, And reign'd proud king o' the Dee... We're all John Tamson's bairns... There ne'er will be peace till the world again Has learned to sing wi' micht and main." The singer describes how he and the company celebrate AUTHOR: Joseph Roy ?

EARLIEST DATE: 1869 (broadside, Bodleian Firth b.27(54))
KEYWORDS: drink friend
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 199-200, "We're A' John Tamson's Bairns" (1 text)
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #139, p. 1, "We're A' John Tamson's Bairns" (1 text)
Roud #6321
BROADSIDES:
- Bodleian, Firth b.27(54), "We're a' John Tamson's Bairns" ("John Tamson was a merry auld carle"), The Poet's box (Glasgow), 1869
NOTES [117 words]: Broadside Bodleian Firth b.27(54) claims the song to be "from the pen of an eminent M.D. author of many poems and ballads which are justly admired. The tune is composed by D. M'Millan, Esq., well known to the musical world." - BS
There is a broadside, NLScotland, L.C.Fol.70(11a), "John Tamson's Cart," Poet's Box (Dundee), c.
1890, in which John Tamson nods off as he rides home from the fair. Usually his horse finds its way home on its own, but this time it too drops off. John's wife finds the horse and takes it home, leaving John to desperately try to figure out what happened.
I don't know that it's intended to be the same John Tamson, but there is something of the same feeling about the two. - RBW

We're All A-Singing

DESCRIPTION: "O we're all a-singing, a-sing-sing-singing, Oh we're all singing so happy and gay. We open wide our lips with a soft fa-fa, And merrily we skip o'er the tra la la la." Other verses mention weaving, sewing, sawing, dodging....

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1943 (Brown)
KEYWORDS: nonballad music playparty
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 95, "We're All A-Singing" (1 text)
Roud #7887
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Dodger" (lyrics, form)

We're All Cutting

DESCRIPTION: "We're all cutting our passage through the world." "Nature cut out man to cut his way through life." When a boy falls out with one girl, "he cuts her for another." The beau tries "to cut a figure." Ladies try "to cut each other out."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1847 (Hutchinson)
KEYWORDS: vanity nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 664, "We're A’ Cuttin'" (1 fragment)
ADDITIONAL: A.B. Hutchinson, The Granite Songster Comprising the Songs of the Hutchinson Family (Boston, 1847 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 35-36, "We're All Cutting"
Roud #6091
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "We're A' Noddin'" (tune, per Greig/Duncan3)
cf. "The Dodger" (structure, chorus (some words and tune))
NOTES [31 words]: Hutchinson has more cutting remarks: the coquette cuts "hearts to the core," widows are "for cutting one husband more," some "Cut out pieces, for the sake of ready cash," and so on. - BS

We're All Here (Do Thyself No Harm)

DESCRIPTION: "When Paul and Silas were in jail, Do thyself no harm, When Paul and Silas were in jail, Do thyself.... We're all here, we're all here, Do thyself no harm...."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, pp. 251-252, "We're All Here"
Roud #6703
CROSS-REFERENCES:
We're All Nodding

DESCRIPTION: "We all are nodding, nid-nid-nodding, And falling off to sleep." "Can't keep awake, we did our best, Heavy-like and weary, We have to get our rest." "It sure is late, we can't delay, We'll get our hats and bonnets and we'll all go away."

AUTHOR: Words: Jean Neal?

EARLIEST DATE: 1829 (Chambers)

KEYWORDS: nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) US(Ap,So)

REFERENCES (6 citations):
- Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast "Folk-Song in Buchan," p. 15, ("We're a' noddin") (1 fragment)
- Greig/Duncan7 1464, "We're A' Noddin" (3 texts plus a single verse on p. 530, 1 tune)
- Randolph 883, "We're All Nodding" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 392-393, "We're All Nodding" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 883)
- Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs, p. 60, "All Noddin" (1 text, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Scottish Songs (Edinburgh, 1829), Vol II, pp. 327-328, "We're A' Noddin"

Roud #3122

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Whigs Are A'Rinnin" (tune)
- cf. "Nid Noddin" (tune, per Chambers)

SAME TUNE:
- We're A' Cuttin' (File: GrD3664)

Gen. Scott A-Sleep ("O! they're all dreaming, dream, dream, dreaming") (Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, p. 189)

Quartz on the Brain ("We're all cranky, mad, mad, cranky, Most of us are suffering from quartz upon the brain") (by Charles R. Thatcher) (Hoskins-GoldfieldBalladeer-LifeAndTimes-Charles-R-Thatcher, pp. 182-184)

NOTES [33 words]: Cohen thinks this is the source for "The Dodger," and certainly the form is very similar; this song instantly reminded me of that. But that does not really mean that they are source and offspring. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.0

File: R883

We're All Surrounded

DESCRIPTION: "Martha wept and Mary cried. We're all surrounded. That good old man he up and died. We're all surrounded."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips)

KEYWORDS: shanty worksong

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, p. 6, "We're All Surrounded" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9164

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Marthy Wept (Mary Wept and Marthy Moaned)" (lyrics)

NOTES [178 words]: Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips gives this as an example of a Negro cotton stowing song that was adapted as a shanty. - SL

The reference to "Martha wept and Mary cried" is presumably a reference to the sisters of Lazarus.
who mourned over their brother in John 11. I don't have a good explanation for the "We're all surrounded" chorus (unless it's a mistake); it occurs to me that it might, just possibly, be a reference to Hebrews 12:1, where we are told that we are surrounded by a great cloud of witnesses (who might well include Martha and Mary). The problem, is, the King James version uses the verb "compassed about" rather than "surrounded" (the Greek means something like "having an encirclement"). There is, in fact, no instance of the English verb "to surround," in any form, in the King James Bible.

The first line, "Oh! Martha wept and Mary cried," is found in a song, "Carry the News to Mary," with words by Charley Howard and music by Walter Bray; see Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #275, p. 19. I do not know the relationship between the songs, if any. - RBW

File: Harl006

We're Coming, Arkansas (We're Coming, Idaho)

DESCRIPTION: The singer mentions reports of a fine fountain in Arkansas/Idaho. The family heads out toward this wonderful place of health and wealth: "We're coming, Arkansas/Idaho, We're coming, ---, Our four horse team will soon be seen, Way out in ---"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1864

KEYWORDS: emigration

FOUND IN: US(MW,Ro,So)

REFERENCES (10 citations):
- Randolph 343, "Eureka!" (3 texts, 1 tune)
- Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 279-280, "Eureka!" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 343A)
- Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 362, "Eureka!" (1 text); Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 579-601, "We're Coming, Idaho" (1 text plus a sheet music cover)
- Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, pp. 236-238, "Hurrah for Arkansas" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 129-130, "Hurrah for Arkansas" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 195, "Away, Idaho (We're Coming, Idaho)" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Larkin-SingingCowboy, pp. 86-90, "Way Out in Idyho" (1 short text with some unusual lyrics, 1 tune)
- Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 113, "Way Out in Idaho" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 156, "We're Coming, Arkansas" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 47, "Way Out in Idaho" (1 text)
- ST R343 (Partial)
- Roud #4760

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Wait For the Wagon" (tune)

NOTES [105 words]: The "Idaho" version was published in 1864 with Frank French listed as its author. Warner speculates that French rewrote an old Arkansas song to deal with the Idaho gold rush, though Cohen thinks French's version original.

The only useful thing I can add is that Arkansas versions seem to prevail in Texas and Arkansas and vicinity, while Idaho is mentioned in the versions collected elsewhere. and the latter versions seem to be at least as common, though they come from areas where collection efforts have been spotty. The implication is that the Idaho variant was probably more widely known. Though that doesn't prove much. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.5

File: R343

We're Coming, Sister Mary

DESCRIPTION: The singer recalls a cold night in winter when he was with (his young wife) Mary when a voice came through the window, "We are coming, sister Mary." (The performance is repeated for two nights), and the singer finds Mary dead

AUTHOR: original music: Henry Clay Work (Words by Work and/or Edwin Pearce Christy)

EARLIEST DATE: 1853 (sheet music published by Firth, Pond & Co. of New York)

KEYWORDS: death dream supernatural
We're Gonna Move When the Spirit Says Move

DESCRIPTION: "We're gonna move when the Spirit says move (x2), Cause when the Spirit says move, Then you move with the Spirit; We're gonna move." Similarly, "We're gonna singe when the Spirit says sing." "We're gonna talk" "We're gonna march"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973
KEYWORDS: political religious nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 305, "We're Gonna Move When The Spirit Says Move" (1 text)
Roud #12302
NOTES [19 words]: Listed in the Folksinger's Wordbook as a Civil Rights song, though I've met it as a sort of religious playparty. - RBW
File: FSWB305

We're Here Because

DESCRIPTION: "We're here because We're here because We're here because we're here."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: nonballad soldier
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 37, "We're Here Because" (1 text)
Roud #10528
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Auld Lang Syne" (tune) and references there
File: BrPa037B

We're Looking for the Kaiser

DESCRIPTION: "We're looking for the Kaiser, He does not come our way. We've searched the mighty ocean Right down to Chesapeake Bay, And when we get to Berlin, The Kaiser he will say... What a bloody fine lot Is the navy of today"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)
KEYWORDS: navy royalty derivative
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 82, "We're Looking for the Kaiser" (1 text, tune referenced)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Church's One Foundation" (tune)
NOTES [50 words]: Although the references to the Kaiser in this song are probably to Wilhelm II, it is conceivable that it instead refers to the German dreadnought battleship the Kaiser. Tawney-GreyFunnellLines-RoyalNavy does not mention this possibility, but the existence of the ship would have been well known. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1
File: Tawn063

We're Marching On to War

DESCRIPTION: "We're marching on to war, we are, we are, we are, We do not care what people say, nor what they think we are, We're going to work for Jesus who did salvation bring, We're hallelujah children and we're going to see our king!"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Randolph)
KEYWORDS: religious
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Randolph 632, "We're Marching On to War" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7560
File: R632

We're No Awa Tae Bide Awa

DESCRIPTION: "As I walked doon the Overgate, I met wi' Johnnie Scobie. I says, 'Man, wil ye hae a hauf?' "For we're no' awa tae bide awa (x3), We'll aye come back an' see ye." THey share a half, and another, and another, get drunk, and go home together

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1986 (Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee)
KEYWORDS: home drink
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gatherer-SongsAndBalladsOfDundee 80, "We're No Awa Tae Bide Awa" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #22217
File: Gath080

We're Off to the Wars (Arkansas War Song)

DESCRIPTION: "Come along, boys, we'll off to the wars... Yo ho, yo ho, in Dixie!" The singer promises to fight for "the 'Federate states," intends to talk about the girls, and lists his leaders who will "bring Montgomery and Lane to taw."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Allsopp)
KEYWORDS: soldier Civilwar
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Fred W. Allsopp, Folklore of Romantic Arkansas, Volume II (1931), pp. 224-225 ST FORA224 (Partial)
NOTES [312 words]: The references in this piece are, at best, confusing. The Confederate officers are clear: McCulloch is Ben McCulloch (1811-1862), who assembled the Arkansas troops which fought at the battle of Wilson's Creek (August 10, 1861); he would later be killed at Pea Ridge. One of the Confederate batteries at that battle was commanded by an officer named Woodruff. But who are "Montgomery and Lane"? There were two Union generals named Montgomery; neither could have fought McCulloch. Neither was there a suitable Union officer named Lane, though James Henry Lane (1814-1866) was a fiery Kansas politician.
My guess is that there are two errors here. One is an error of hearing: "Lane" is actually "Lyon," i.e. Nathaniel Lyon, the Union captain hastily promoted Brigadier General who ran the Union forces in Missouri. He cleared northern Missouri of Confederate forces, then turned south. Finding himself trapped by superior forces, he tried a spoiling attack at Wilson's Creek and was killed.
"Montgomery" is even trickier. My shot in the dark is that this is a confusion of the two Blair brothers. Montgomery Blair, the older brother, became Lincoln's Postmaster General. Francis P.
Blair, based in Missouri, was sort of Lyon's co-conspirator in saving Missouri for the Union: He raised the money and troops which Lyon used. Since Montgomery was the better-known Blair (among other things, he had argued Dred Scott's side in the famous slavery case), the southern poet might have thought it was Montgomery Blair, not Frank, who was operating in Missouri. In any case, this song sounds very much like something one of McCulloch's volunteers might have sung before Wilson's Creek. Were it of later date, we would presumably hear more of Earl Van Down, McCulloch's superior, and of Union commander Samuel R. Curtis, who won the Battle of Pea Ridge at which McCulloch was killed. - RBW

File: FORA224

We're So Glad To Be Here

DESCRIPTION: "We're so glad to be here, We're so glad to be here, We could be dead, in our grave, We're so glad to be here"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (USMississippi01)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
Fannie Bell Chapman, "We're So Glad To Be Here" (on USMississippi01)
NOTES [67 words]: The description is the text of the Fannie Bell Chapman song. On the recording it is sung before and after a spoken introduction to an audience leading to an evening of spirituals. The repetition of "so glad to be here" and the line "... could be dead ... in the grave" is also on Lee Williams and the Spiritual QC's, "Glad To Be Here" (2005, on "Tell the Angels: Live in Memphis," Malaco MCS 7034). - BS

Last updated in version 5.1
File: RcWSGTBH

We're Some of the Praying People

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "We're some of the praying people (3x), For my Lord told me so." Verse: "And must I be to judgement brought, to answer in that day?" (2x)
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, p. 16, "We're Some of the Praying People" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Am I Born to Die? (Idumea)" (lyrics)
File: Bart016A

We're Stole and Sold from Africa

DESCRIPTION: "We are stole and sold from Africa, Transported to America, Like hogs and sheep we're marched in drove." "See how they take us from our wives, Small children from their mothers' side," "O Lord, have mercy and look down Upon the plight of the African"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (recording, Addie Graham, according to Sing Out!)
KEYWORDS: slave hardtimes
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: _Sing Out_ magazine, Volume 38, #4 (1994), p, 30, "We're Stole & Sold from Africa (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [87 words]: According to Sing Out!, Addie Graham, who recorded what seems to be the only recording of this, sang it in an "Anglo-American" (i.e. White) style. And the song seems a little too carefully crafted to be a legitimate lament about slavery (someone who was actually imported from Africa would be neither a Christian nor such a good speaker of English!). The notes in Sing Out! suggest it is an abolitionist song. This strikes me as almost certainly true; the main question to
We're Traveling Home

DESCRIPTION: We're traveling home. "Millions have reached that healthful shore... But there's room for millions more... The way to heaven is free for all."

AUTHOR: words: Richard Jinkes (18c); music: B. F. White (c.1844) (source: White and King, Original Sacred Harp)

EARLIEST DATE: 1841 (Thompson-APioneerSongster)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
- Thompson-APioneerSongster 73, "We're Traveling Home" (1 text)
- Additional: George Pullen Jackson, Another Sheaf of White Spirituals (Gainesville, 1952), #359 p. 299, "Will You Go" ("We're traveling home to heaven above") (1 text, 1 tune)
- Benjamin Franklin White, E.J. King, et al., Original Sacred Harp (Atlanta, 1911 ("Digitized by Google") (correction and enlargement of 1869 edition copyright J.S. James)), p. 97, "Will You Go?" ("We're traveling home to heaven above") (1 text, 1 tune)

File: TPS073

We've Come to Judgment

DESCRIPTION: "We've come to judgment, O yes my Lord, In that great giving up morning; We've come to judgment...." "O where you going, sinner, with your head bowed down?" The sinner is warned of Hell and told to get with it or face judgment

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (Chappell)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad sin

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 88, "We've Come to Judgment" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #16935

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "In that Great Gettin' Up Morning" (lyrics)

File: ChFRA088

We've Done Our Hitch in Hell

DESCRIPTION: "I'm sitting here a-thinking Of the things I left behind." The singer complains of digging trenches, cooking, fighting rattlesnakes, and the rest of army life, and claims a front seat in heaven for the Third Wyoming

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1934

KEYWORDS: army soldier hardtimes

FOUND IN: US(Ro)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 552-554, "We've Done Our Hitch in Hell" (1 text)

Roud #15545

NOTES [85 words]: The irony of this song is that it appears the Third Wyoming never went into combat! Observe: There is reference to the digging of trenches. But only two American wars involved digging trenches: The Civil War and World War I. At the time of the Civil War, Wyoming wasn't a state (it joined the Union in 1890), and in World War I there were no rattlesnakes. In addition, there is no reference to combat. One hates to think what the soldier would have had to say if someone had actually bothered to shoot at him. - RBW

File: LxA552
We've Had No Beer
DESCRIPTION: "we've had no beer, We've had no beer today, We've had no beer! We've had no beer, No beer at all today, We've had no beer."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)
KEYWORDS: drink nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 34, "We've Had No Beer" (1 text)
Roud #10565
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Lead, Kindly Light" (tune)
File: BrPa034A

Wealthy Farmer's Son, The
DESCRIPTION: "Come all you pretty fair maids and listen to my song." A "blooming damsel" is walking the fields. She goes to gather flowers, and says she is true to her missing love. The singer draws out their broken ring; they marry
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1893 (Broadwood-EnglishTraditionalSongsAndCarols)
KEYWORDS: love separation reunion farming brokentoken ring
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Broadwood-EnglishTraditionalSongsAndCarols, pp. 26-27, "The Wealthy Farmer's Son" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1061
File: LEBC026

Wealthy Merchant (I), The
DESCRIPTION: "There was a wealthy merchant, in Charleston he did dwell, He had a pretty woman, and a tailor loved her well, Singin' roddy hida togger, singin' roddy hi go tay." The rest is said to be bawdy
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol2)
KEYWORDS: bawdy
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol2, p. 76, "The Wealthy Merchant" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Roud #7033
NOTES [69 words]: Bush maintains that this is a fragment of an otherwise-forgotten bawdy song. But if the informant forgot all the words, we obviously cannot be sure that he remembered what the song was about! It might be any of a number of songs that start with the lines, "There was a wealthy (merchant), in X he did dwell"; the lines are perhaps most typical of "Jack Monroe (Jackie Frazer; The Wars of Germany)" [Laws N7]. - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: BwV2076

Wear a Starry Crown
DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Away over Jordan With my blessed Jesus, Away over Jordan To wear a starry crown." Verse: "We are going (you must be saved, my mother's going, my father's going, the sinner ain't going) to wear a crown" (3x), To wear a starry crown"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (Barton-OldPlantationHymns)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious family Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Barton-OldPlantationHymns, p. 16, "Wear a Starry Crown" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: George Pullen Jackson, Spiritual Folk-Songs of Early America (New York: J.J. Augustin, 1937 (republished by New York: Dover Publications, 1964)), #178 p. 189, "Resurrected" or "My Father's Gone" or "Away Over Yonder" or "To Wear a Starry Crown" (1 text, 1 tune)
William Booth, Salvation Army Songs (London: The Salvation Army Book Department, 1911 ("Digitized by Internet Archive")), #653 p. 464, "Away Over Jordan" (1 text)
Roud #13973
NOTES [44 words]: The description is based on the Barton-OldPlantationHymns text.
Jackson: "Seaborn M. Denson ... musical editor of the 1911 edition of The Original Sacred Harp ... told me he had heard this song sung in camp meetings around Civil War times in northern Alabama." - BS
Last updated in version 4.0
File: Bart016B

Wearie's Well
DESCRIPTION: "In a saft simmer gloamin' In yon dowie dell, It was there we twa first met, By Wearie's cauld well." The singer recalls the lovers' meeting. Now "faith fades in your heart." She will marry another. "May thy joys be to come -- Mine live in the past"
AUTHOR: Motherwell (source: Whistle-Binkie)
EARLIEST DATE: 1842 (Whistle-Binkie)
KEYWORDS: courting love rejection nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #20, p. 2, "Wearie's Well" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Whistle-Binkie [, First Series] (Glasgow, 1842 ("Digitized by Microsoft")), pp. 98-100, "Wearie's Well" (1 text)
Roud #5757
File: Grg020

Wearing of the Britches, The DESCRIPTION: Singer marries a girl for money, not love; they struggle over who will "wear the britches." She spends all he makes, even though he beats her black and blue. Eventually she dies; "now at last her tongue lies still/And she must wear the wooden britches."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1825 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 28(157))
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer marries a girl for money, not love, and they struggle over who will "wear the britches." Although she's small, and he can beat her in a fight, she swears she'll wear them; he's a tailor but she spends all he makes, even though he beats her black and blue. When he goes drinking she comes after him, "cursing like a dragon"; she's thrown the teapot at him, putting him on crutches. Eventually she dies; "now at last her tongue lies still/And she must wear the wooden britches." He warns young men to marry for love and work for riches
KEYWORDS: marriage warning fight abuse death burial husband wife shrewishness
FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 215, "The Wearing of the Britches" (1 text, 1 tune)
Reeves/Sharp-TheIdiomOfThePeople 98, "The Tailor By His Trade" (1 text)
Roud #1588
RECORDINGS:
Paddy Tunney, "The Wearing of the Breeches" (on IRPTunney01); "The Wearing of the Britches" (on Voice15)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 28(157), "The Breeches" ("Come all ye young men wherever you be"), W. Armstrong (Liverpool), 1820-1824; also Harding B 25(275), "The Breeches"
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Struggle for the Breeches" (subject)
Wearing of the Green (I), The DESCRIPTION: The singer tells of the dreadful fate of Ireland, the "most distressful country," where "they are hanging men and women for the wearing of the green." The singer bids defiance, and notes that the grass on the martyrs' graves grows green.

AUTHOR: some versions by Dion Boucicault (1820-1870) (per O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland)

EARLIEST DATE: c.1800 (Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion but see the notes re: Zimmermann and Sparling to accommodate the Boucicault claim); 1865 (copyrights)

KEYWORDS: Ireland freedom death execution hardtimes

FOUND IN: Ireland US(MW)

REFERENCES (17 citations):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 69, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text)
Galvin-IrishSongsOfResistance, pp. 84-85, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text)
Zimmerman-SongsOfIrishRebellion 21B, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text, 1 tune)
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 33, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text, 1 tune); 35, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text, 1 tune)
Tunney-StoneFiddle, p. 17, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 fragment)
Dean-FlyingCloud, pp. 97-98, "Wearing of the Green" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2525, p. 171, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 reference); probably also #2526, p. 171, "The Wearing of the Green" (2 references)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 323, "Wearing Of The Green" (1 text)
Fuld-BookOfWorldFamousMusic, pp. 628-630, "The Wearin' o' the Green"
Behan-IrelandSings, #96, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text, 1 tune, modified) Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #27, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text)
DT, WEARGREN*

ADDITIONAL: Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), pp. 300-301, "The Wearin' o' the Green" (1 text plus a portion of the Boucicault version)

Roud #3278

RECORDINGS:
John McCormack, "Wearin' o' the "Green" (HMV [UK] DA-322, n.d.)
J. W. Myers, "Wearing of the Green" (Columbia 194, 1901) (Victor 4274, 1905)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 18(476), "The Wearing of the Green" ("O Paddy dear, and did you hear the news that's going round?")
H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878; also 2806 c.16(209), 2806 b.10(215), 2806 c.15(254), "Wearing of the Green" ("O Kitty dear ..."

LOCsSinging, as115040, "The Wearing of the Green" ("Oh, Paddy dear, then did you hear"), 19C; also as114610, "The Wearing of the Green"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Rising of the Moon" (tune)
cf. "Benny Havens" (tune)
cf. "Flunky Jim (Gopher Tails)" (tune)
cf. "John McBride's Brigade" (tune)
cf. "Green Upon the Cape"
cf. "The Army of the Free" (tune)
cf. "The Sealer's Song (III)" (tune)

SAME TUNE:
The Rising of the Moon (File: PGa035)
Benny Havens (File: R232)
The Drought (File: MCB158)
Magilligan (File: HH052a)
A Knot of Blue and Gray (File: RcAKOBAG)
John McBride's Brigade (File: Zimm092)
The Army of the Free (File: CSWF032)
The Sealer's Song (III) (File: BeDo129)
The Man Behind (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 86)
Nearly Sae Will We Yet (per broadside Bodleian 2806 c.15(254)) Sandy's Fight (Bill Wannan, _The Australians: Yarns, ballads and legends of the Australian tradition_, 1954; page references are to the 1988 Penguin edition, p. 36)
W. R. Rhinehart, "Klansman Round-Up" (100% K-40, rec. c. 1924)
A Hearty Welcome To Our Dandy Newfoundland Runners Who Won the Shield in the Halifax Marathon, Sept. 28, 1929 (by Johnny Burke) (Johnny Burke, _Burke's Popular Songs_, self-published; published, 1929 (a PDF is available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. [10]) Kelly Gang song ("Oh, Paddy dear, and did you hear the news that's going round, On the head of bold Ned Kelly they've placed two thousand pounds") (attributed to Joe Byrne of the Kelly Gang but not published until 1881) (Lyn Innes, _Ned Kelly: Icon of Modern Culture_, Helm Information Ltd., 2008, p. 85)
Ye Gentle Boy-Cat ("Says Frist to Pat, d'ye heal all that Loud talk that's going 'roun'?") (by "Pat of Molingar") (Foner, p. 236) Song Suggested by the consideration of the Militia Bill now before the Illinois Legislature ("Come, all you noble workingmen, and listen to my yarn; Of joinin' the militia each one of you I warn") (by John M'Intosh) (Foner, p. 299)

NOTES: 1197 words: Probably originally associated with the 1798 rebellion, although topical versions have emerged on occasion in Irish history. An 1802 printing of "The Green Upon My Cape" is clearly related but not really the same song.
The "Napper Tandy" of some versions is an Irish patriot, James Napper Tandy (c. 1737-1803), one of the few Dublin members of the United Irishmen to escape capture. Tandy is one of those irritatingly complex figures so common in Irish history (as well as a patriot, he has been called a drunk, and after campaigning for reforms in 1784, he fled to the United States in 1793, then to France in 1797, which is how he ended up involved with the whole invasion fiasco).
Tandy apparently wasn't easy to get along with; he and Wolfe Tone had major disagreements while in France, which doubtless hurt their chances to accomplish anything. Still, he eventually managed to convince the French to give him a single ship, the Anacreon, and a force of about 275 soldiers;
he was given arms and ammunition for many more -- he had, after all, declared that, if the French would just take him to Ireland, his presence would cause 30,000 men to rally to him.
On September 16, 1798, he landed with a company of Frenchmen in Donegal. He apparently expected to coordinate with General Humbert, but that invasion had ended a week earlier (see
"The Men of the West"), and the expected rising in Mayo had fizzled.
Upon confirming the news, Tandy got drunk with some local friends in Rutland, and was carried back to the Anacreon unconscious. The ship went home, and the last French invasion of Ireland was over.
Tandy was arrested (one might well say "hijacked") in neutral Hamburg late in 1798, sentenced to death, but turned over to France in 1802, where he died soon after.
Boylan, p. 379, says that "His memory is kept alive in the ballad 'The Wearing of the Green,' hinting that he never did anything else worth remembering. He quotes Sir Jonah Barrington:
"[Tandy]' acquired celebrity without being able to account for it, and possessed an influence without rank or capacity."
A final French expedition, with Wolfe Tone aboard, was also a failure, never even making it to shore; see the notes on "The Shan Van Vogt."
The charge that the English were "hanging men and women for the wearing of the green" is the sort of half-truth that often is heard during wars. Wearing green was not a crime and wouldn't result in execution by itself -- but green was a recognized revolutionary token; wearing it would certainly get the government's attention. Which could lead to trouble.
And, of course, ordinary soldiers, especially militia, were likely to be that much harder on possible enemies. It seems likely enough that a few people died for wearing green -- but not due to official policy. And anyone who wore green in those times was definitely asking for trouble. - RBW

The note to the Bodleian broadside cited is "Sung by T.H. Glenny, at Niblo's Theatre in the Great Sensation Play of 'Arrah-na-Pogue"

Dion Boucicault (1820-1890) was an Irish playwright. He wrote and acted in the 1865 hit Arrah-na-Pogue. "This, and his admirable creation of Con in his play The Shaugraun (first produced at Drury Lane in 1875), won him the reputation of being the best stage Irishman of his time". Source: "Dion Boucicault" quoted from Encyclopedia Britannica Eleventh Edition Volume IV on the Theatre History site. [For background on Dion Boucicault, see also the notes to "Cruiskeen Lawn." - RBW]

Sparling: [The Wearing of the Green (I)] "was a hash-up by Boucicault of an old variant [Zimmermann 21B], using most of the old words ... [in which] the land of refuge it is written from is France, and not America."

Zimmermann: "Boucicault is said to have written this version at the suggestion of his mother, who remembered some lines of the older version" (Townshend Walsh The Career of Dion Boucicault, p. 144). [This is also reported by William H. A. Williams, 'Twas Only an Irishman's Dream, University of Illinois Press, 1996, p. 109. On p. 110, Williams says that the new verses "were considered inflammatory, offending Queen Victoria, and were supposedly banned from the British stage. Needless to say, the song was a great hit in America. - RBW]

Hoagland: Boucicault's main change was to add a verse about the possibility of emigration to "a country that lies beyond the sea, Where rich and poor stand equal in the light of freedom's day." [In fact Boucicault added two verses to his version. - RBW]

There are other songs with the same title, including O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland p. 40 ("Farewell, for I must leave thee, my own, my native shore...") and O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland p. 130 by H.G. Curran ("One blessing on my native isle! One curse upon her foes..."). [The latter being indexed as "The Wearing of the Green (II)." - RBW]

The "old variant" includes specifically anti-Union sentiment dropped by Boucicault: "I care not for the Thistle [Scotland], and I care not for the Rose [England]."

Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 33 is the Zimmermann 21B "old variant"; Moylan 35 is Boucicault's "hash-up."

More from Moylan about Napper Tandy: "Napper Tandy was the secretary of the first Dublin Society of United Irishmen. He made his way to Hamburg after the failure of the rising but was arrested there at the instigation of the British representative, Imprisoned for two years, he was released in 1801 on condition that he left Ireland. He went into exile in France where he died, at Bordeaux, in 1803."

Broadside LOCSinging as114610: "The following is the celebrated song which created such intense excitement throughout Great Britain, and for the incorporation of which in his piece, Mr. Bourcicault' play of 'Arra\n na Pogue,' had to be withdrawn."

Tunney-StoneFiddle fragment has the singer start with the Napper Tandy/hanging men and women verse, followed by

So shoulder high your hurleys boys and grasp your rifles tight
The mangy bulldog let him bark; he's got no teeth to bite
When English law can paint the moon and put the Hun to flight
Then we'll shed our rebel coats and put the hurleys out of sight
"I learned that verse in America, he told me." - BS

Which sounds very much as if it comes from the First World War period, probably before the Easter Rebellion.

According to Samuel Eliot Morison, The Oxford History of the American People, Oxford, 1965, p. 780, "Of the 132 plays written by Dion Boucicault, only Rip Van Winkle (1865) in which Joseph Jefferson starred for over thirty years, and The Colleen Bawn, a romantic comedy of Ireland, are remembered." On the other hand, his daughter Nina Boucicault, when in her late thirties, would create the role of "Peter Pan" in the first theatrical production (see Robert Douglas-Fairhurt, The Story of Alice: Lewis Carroll and the Secret History of Wonderland, Belknap/Harvard, 2015, p. 306), so the Boucicault family arguably still managed to leave a mark on the theater.

- RBW

Last updated in version 6.1

File: PGa084
Wearing of the Green (II), The

DESCRIPTION: "One blessing on my native isle! One curse upon her foes!" In exile the singer thinks of Mary left behind and his parents buried in Ireland. The foe "might have let the poor man live." "But watch the hour that yet will come, For the Wearing of the Green"

AUTHOR: Henry Grattan Curran (1800-1876)

EARLIEST DATE: 1888 (Sparling)

KEYWORDS: exile separation Ireland nonballad patriotic

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 130, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text)

Roud #V30432

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 b.10(108), "The Wearing of the Green" ("One blessing on my native isle!"), unknown, n.d.

NOTES [20 words]: For information about the author see The Princess Grace Irish Library (Monaco) site entry for Henry Grattan Curran. - BS

Last updated in version 5.1

File: OCon130

---

Wearing of the Green (III -- Canadian Navy)

DESCRIPTION: "'I met with Uncle Percy, and he shook me by the hand, I said, 'How is our navy, sir, and is it still on land?' 'Tis the most distressful navy, faith, that ever yet was seen'"; headquarters is full of landsmen and deadbeats but has no real sailors

AUTHOR: J. P. Lunzer (source: Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)

EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead)

KEYWORDS: navy derivative Canada

FOUND IN: Canada

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead, pp. 86-87, "The Wearin' of the Green" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #29429

NOTES [666 words]: As Hopkins-SongsFromTheFrontAndRead states, the "Uncle Percy" of the first verse is "Commodore Percy Walker Nelles, RCN, who became chief of the Naval Staff on 1 July 1934. Nelles was born in Brantford, Ontario, in 1892 and was among the first group of Canadian cadets to join CGS Canada in 1908. After a brief exposure to battleships in 1912-1914, Nelles spent most of the [First World] war on British cruisers operating in the western Atlantic. During the early 1920s he held a series of staff jobs and completed both the intelligence and staff war courses in England. He then spend the lat 1920s as senior naval officer, Esquimalt, while trying to get back to sea. Finally, in 1929 he was sent overseas again for the RN's Staff officer Technical Course" (Milner, p. 70).

In 1930, he became executive officer of HMS Dragon and had the good luck to take charge of the ship when her captain died. He was the first skipper of HMS Saguenay (for which see "The Saguenay Song") when that first Canadian destroyer was commissioned. Promoted to captain in 1932, he became assistant chief of the Naval Staff in 1933. He ran the navy until 1943, and died shortly after the war.

Lamb, who served in the RCN when Nelles was in charge and once saw Nelles lead an inspection, described him as "a nice little man who looked a bit like radio comedian Ed Wynn and who had spent the greater part of his wartime career in Ottawa" (Lamb, p. 10). "A short, plump little man with very thick glasses, he was not exactly a warrior leader calculated to fire our blood" (Lamb, p. 11). Bercuscon, p. 144, charges, "If there was one man who, compared with his Allied peers, was least in tune with the ever more complex and technical nature of the anti-submarine war, it was Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles, Chief of the Naval Staff in Ottawa since 1934. Nelles was not at fault for the many shortages of vessels and trained men that had plagued the RCN since the outbreak of war, though he had been over-eager to take on more than his fledgling navy could handle.... A navy that was not prepared to give its men the very latest in equipment and training could not hope to pull its weight in the Atlantic battles. Nelles had constantly failed to ensure that the RCN kept up with its Allies in that regard." The numbers bear out this assessment: the RCN proved almost completely unable to catch and sink U-boats.
To be fair, the Mackenzie King government had consistently pursued a policy of ensuring that Canadian forces were separate and individual and not subsumed in a greater British war machine, which caused all branches of the Canadian military to be in over their heads -- e.g. the Canadian group in the British bomber force was for long the worst unit in the air army. It does seem, though, as if Nelles was the worst offender in that regard. Eventually Minister of National Defence for Naval Services MacDonald (who himself bore a big share of blame for the problem) decided the situation could not continue. "Nelles was moved out of the chief's post in January 1944 and replaced by Vice-Admiral G. C. Jones" (Bercuson, p. 144). This, unfortunately, created its own problems; "Given the bitter personal rivalry between Jones and [L. W.] Murray, who held the navy's most important operational command [in effect, Murray commanded the Atlantic forces], the RCN for the remainder of the war was something of a house divided" (Milner, p. 136). But at least the government was trying.

By then, ironically, the U-boat war had definitively shifted toward the Allies; Nelles was in charge during the entire period when the outcome was in doubt, and when a better officer might have made a huge difference. The song's description of the Navy is mostly right; the Canadian navy had never been large, and had only a half dozen destroyers and no larger ships as 1939 rolled around. It didn't really have the bloated staff described in the song -- but with so few actual seamen, any staff at all probably seemed excessive. - RBW

Bibliography

- Milner: Marc Milner, Canada's Navy: The First Century, University of Toronto Press, 1999

Last updated in version 5.0
File: Hopk086

Wearing of the Green (IV), The

DESCRIPTION: "Farewell, for I must leave thee, my own, my native shore." The singer's father is buried in Ireland. His mother weeps but would weep more if he were a traitor, like some others. Exiles love to sing "The wearing of the green" and think about return

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1855 (Edward Hayes, The Ballads of Ireland (Boston, 1859), Vol I)
KEYWORDS: exile farewell Ireland nonballad patriotic

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 34, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text)
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 40, "The Wearing of the Green" (1 text)

File: Moyl034

Weary Farmers, The

DESCRIPTION: "There's some that sing o' (Comar) Fair... But the best sang that e'er was sung... It was about the term... When we will a' win free." With their contracts expired, the farm hands set out to enjoy themselves and hope to improve conditions next year

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Ford)
KEYWORDS: farming work drink

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 202-204, "The Weary Farmers" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 391, "The Weary Fairmers" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Ord-BothySongsAndBallads, pp. 211-212, "The Weary Farmers" (1 text)
Weary of Lying Alone

DESCRIPTION: Singer hears a maid moan: I'm weary of lying alone. She is either 11 + 1 + 7 years old or, when she was 11 she had 7 sweet hearts but now has not 1. She would be a wife. She/he says there's a flower in the garden that should be plucked before it fades.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1778 (Carey)

KEYWORDS: marriage sex virginity bawdy

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South)) Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 144, "Taim Cortha O Bheith Im' Aonar Im' Lui" (2 texts, 1 tune)

ADDITIONAL: George G. Carey, A Sailor's Songbag (Amherst University of Massachusetts Press, 1976), #43 pp. 118-119 "A New Song" ("Come come pretty Sally and set you down by me") (1 text)

Roud #9384

RECORDINGS:

Elizabeth Cronin, "Taim Cortha O Bheith Im' Aonar Im' Lui" (on IRECronin01)

NOTES [252 words]: OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin is macaronic, alternating Irish and English verses. Some of the English verses match Carey's. The description combines OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin and Carey.

Also see Broadside EngBdsdBA 20113, Pepys 1.246-247, "The Mayden's Complaint for a Bedfellow or I Can Nor Will No Longer Lye Alone" ("Can any man tell what I ayle: because I look so weake so pale"), John White (London?), 1615?, accessed 08 Dec 2013, which ends "And Young-men all that see my case, / Take some pitty on my Maidan face: / Rid me of my cares and greefes each one: / And let me now no longer ly alone." The man's side also has a Pepys text: Broadside EngBdsdBA 20105, Pepys 1.232-233, "A Batchelers Resolution or Haue Among You Now, Widowes or Maydes" ("A Batchelour I haue beene long, and had no minde to marry"), unknown, 1629?, accessed 08 Dec 2013.

A verse in Carey is "The seas are deep I cannot wade them / Neither have I wings to fly / I wish that I had some little small boat / For to ferry my love and I, for to ferry my love and I...."

A close verse noted in Peacock's 1952 text that I assigned to "Carrickfergus" is "The ocean is wide and I can't wade over, / Neither have I wings to fly, / But if I had some old skipper boat-man, / I would ferry me over my love and I." The Sandburg text assigned to "Carrickfergus" has "The world's so wide I cannot cross it, / The sea's so deep I cannot wade, / I'll just go hire me a little boatman / To row me across the stormy tide." - BS

Last updated in version 3.2

File: 0CC144

Weary Pund o' Tow, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer bought his wife good linen for her to spin but she stalls: "I thought my wife wad end her life Before she span her tow" When he criticized her she broke a stick over his head. At last she left him, and he was happy to see her go.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1822 (Thomson's _Select Melodies of Scotland_, according to Chambers)

KEYWORDS: shrewishness marriage violence abandonment husband wife

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1867, "The Weary Pun, The Weary Pun" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 580, "The Weary Pund o' Tow" (1 text)

ADDITIONAL: James Kinsley, editor, Burns: Complete Poems and Songs (shorter edition, Oxford, 1969) #360, pp. 494-495, "The weary Pund o' Tow" (1 text, 1 tune, from 1792)

Roud #435

CROSS-REFERENCES:
Weary Soul

DESCRIPTION: "Weary soul, why you da come back? ... You went to de river An' you couldn' get across, So you went to de river An' you come back"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Elder-FolkSongAndFolkLifeInCharlotteville)

KEYWORDS: death river ritual religious ghost

FOUND IN: West Indies(Tobago)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Elder-FolkSongAndFolkLifeInCharlotteville, pp. 41-42,53, "Weary Soul" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Elder-FolksongsFromTobago 44, "Weary Soul" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [142 words]: The current description is based on the Elder-FolkSongAndFolkLifeInCharlotteville texts. Elder-Charlotteville has two very different explanations for this song (both are reflected in the keywords):
"[It is a] famous Tobago song of a ghost that returned because of unsettled quarrels.... It is a matter for shame if a villager's relative dies and is seen 'walkin' about the village.' The view is that in life he was so sinful that 'he has no restin' place'" (pp. 41-43).
"The sect known in the Caribbean as Spiritual Baptist sing this beautiful song to welcome the initiate (newly baptized) when he comes off the 'mourning ground' -- when he has mourned and made his spiritual journey -- went to the river and returned" (p. 53).
The line "went to the river and I couldn't get across" appears in other contexts. See, for example, "Went to the River"(l). - BS

Last updated in version 4.0

File: ElCh4153

Weary, Weary

DESCRIPTION: "Weary, weary, waiting on you" or "Willie, Willie, I am waiting." The singer will wait no longer. Three times she has whistled, or the whistle has blown. She asks, "Are you coming?"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1911 (Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)

KEYWORDS: courting playparty

FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond),Scotland(Bord))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 92, "Weary, Weary" (2 texts, 1 tune)

File: OpGa092

Weave Room Blues

DESCRIPTION: "Working in a weave-room, fighting for my life, Trying to make a living for my kiddies and my wife, Some are needing clothing... some are needing shoes, But I'm getting nothing but the weave room blues." Singer describes horrid conditions in textile mills

AUTHOR: Dorsey Dixon

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (recording, Dixon Brothers)

KEYWORDS: factory technology weaving work worker poverty hardtimes drink

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (5 citations):
Joyner-FolkSingInSouthCarolina, pp. 103-104, "Weave Room Blues" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, pp. 88-89, "Weave Room Blues" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: BdWePuTo
Weaver (I), The

DESCRIPTION: A weaver roves out and meets a pretty maid carrying a loom under her apron. Upon learning the man's trade, she asks him to weave upon her loom. The remaining verses feature sexual exploits euphemized as various weaving techniques and patterns.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1958 (Fowke-TraditionalSingersAndSongsFromOntario)

KEYWORDS: weaving seduction bawdy

FOUND IN: Canada(Ont)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 61, "The Weaver" (1 text, 1 tune)
Fowke-TraditionalSingersAndSongsFromOntario 13, "The Weaver" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, THE WEAVR*

Roud #2311

RECORDINGS:
O.J. Abbott, "The Weaver" (on ONEFowke01)

NOTES [61 words]: According to Fowke, the song would date from the pre-industrial era when handloom weavers traveled from town to town weaving yarn that housewives had spun. Fowke says the ballad was collected by O.J. Abbott from learned from a Dan Leahy in Marchurst, Ontario in 1890. A ten-stanza version appears in the 19th century Jones-Conklin manuscript of an American sailor. - SL

Last updated in version 2.6

File: FowM061

Weaver and His Shuttle, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer comes over a hill [or sets his loom on the banks o' brume] and meets Sarah Kelly [or McKellie].

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2)

KEYWORDS: bawdy weaving

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber,Bord))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan7 1330, "Sarah Kelly" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 196, "Sarah McKellie" (1 text)
Weaver and Serving Maid, The

DESCRIPTION: "I am a weaver (sailor, etc.) to my trade, I fell in love with a servant maid, And if I could but her favor win, Then I would weave and she would spin." His father says he should seek someone better. But he goes to her chamber, and eventually marries her.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1769 (Journal of the Nellie)

KEYWORDS: love courting weaving beauty father marriage

FOUND IN: Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 210-211, "The Weaver" (1 text, 1 tune)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 210-211, "The Weaver" (1 text, 1 tune)

File: HGam210

---

Weaver and the Factory Maid, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer, a hand-weaver, loves a woman who works in a factory. He visits her in her bedroom despite his family's scorn. All the girls have gone to weave with steam; "If you would see them you must rise at dawn/And trudge to the mill in the early morn"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (IRRCinnamond01)

KEYWORDS: love sex factory weaving family worker technology nightvisit

FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- DT, WVFACTGL WEAVFACT (both transcribed from the recording by Steeleye Span; the former is the better transcription)

RECORDINGS:
- Robert Cinnamond, "The Weaver and the Factory Maid" (on IRRCinnamond01) (fragment; only the first verse)

File: DTwvfact

---

Weaver and the Tailor, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer overhears a couple talking; "it was concerning love." The young man, a weaver, is trying to talk the girl out of her affection for a tailor. He describes all the tailor's faults. She gives in and consents to marry him. (They live happily.)

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1869 (Logan-APedlarsPack)

KEYWORDS: love courting dialog marriage apprentice

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 407-409, "The Weaver and the Tailor" (1 text)
- Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenryssSongsOfThePeople H199, p. 39, "The Tailor Boy" (1 text, 1 tune)

ST Log407 (Full)

Roud #13355

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Rocks of Bawn" (tune)
cf. "The River Roe" (tune)
cf. "Paddle the Road with Me" (tune)

NOTES [35 words]: Sam Henry discovered this piece with three different tunes in three different districts. It is not clear if it ever enjoyed popularity outside Ireland; Logan-APedlarsPack's text, while English, is a broadside. - RBW
File: Log407

Weaver John (The Weaver's Song)

DESCRIPTION: "Down by the river lives Weaver John, And a jolly old John is he; Maud is the name of his dear old dame...." They work at weaving as the mill goes "Whickety, whackety, click and clack." He bought her her wheel when they wed. The pets frolic as they work

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1959 (Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore)
KEYWORDS: weaving husband wife work animal
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, pp. 150-151, "Weaver John" (1 text)
Roud #4895
File: SaKo150

Weaver Loons o' Huntly, The

DESCRIPTION: "Nettle reets an' docken reets [nettle and dock roots?] Ti hale the swallin o' their queets [ankles] They are a set o' laithful breets [loathful brutes] The weyver loons o' Huntly"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan8)
KEYWORDS: weaving
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1888, "The Weaver Loons o' Huntly" (1 fragment)
Roud #13565
NOTES [33 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 fragment. Greig/Duncan8 quoting Duncan's informant: "There is an old love song about the Weaver Loons o' Huntly of which I have heard a verse." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD81888

Weaver's Daughter (I), The

DESCRIPTION: Singer is smitten by a weaver's daughter. He proposes. She demurs; her late mother taught her to wed for love not gold, and that her aged, blind father's heart would break. She vows that she and her father will not be separated until he lies in the grave

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1839 (broadside, Bodleian 2806 c.17(455))
LONG DESCRIPTION: Singer meets, and is smitten by, a poor weaver's daughter. He proposes, saying he will make her a rich lady. She demurs, saying her late mother taught her to wed for love, not for gold, and that her aged, blind father's heart would be broken. She vows that she and her father will not be separated until he lies in the grave

KEYWORDS: courting love rejection weaving family father mother money
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, pp. 191-192, "The Weaver's Daughter" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 76)
Roud #1277
RECORDINGS:
George Maynard, "The Weaver's Daughter" (on Maynard1, Voice05)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, 2806 c.17(455), "The Weaver's Daughter" ("Across the fields one sweet May morn"), J.
Catnach (London), 1813-1838; also Harding B 11(2017), "The Weaver's Daughter"
**
CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "The Squire and the Gipsy" (theme)
NOTES [71 words]: This sounds like the first half of the story. - PJS

I agree (and might even suggest "Doctor Stafford and the Weaver's Daughter" as the sequel), though there are several possible further courses for the narrative (she changes her mind, the father dies, the father dies but the suitor has changed his mind, the suitor murders the father, etc.). But there are songs where the story ends here, such as "The Squire and the Gipsy." - RBW

Last updated in version 3.2

File: RcWeaDau

---

Weaver's Life

DESCRIPTION: Description of hard life in a weaving mill. Follows the pattern of "Life's Railway to Heaven": "Weaver's life is like an engine/Coming 'round a mountain steep." Singer describes showing newcomers "breakouts" to discourage them from working in the mill.

AUTHOR: Probably Dorsey Dixon

EARLIEST DATE: 1938 (recording, Dixon Brothers)

KEYWORDS: factory weaving work technology

RECORDINGS:
- Almanac Singers, "The Weaver's Song" (recorded 1941, unissued at the time; on AlmanacCD1)
- Dixon Brothers, "Weaver's Life" (Montgomery Ward M-7170, 1937/Bluebird B-7802, 1938; rec. 1937)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
- cf. "Life's Railway to Heaven (Life Is Like a Mountain Railroad)" (tune) and references there

File: CSW090

---

Weavers' Garland, The

DESCRIPTION: Hard times. A weaver talks to his wife. He thanks her for her care. She tells him to be patient and think of Job. Their six children will all work. "God gives and takes away, Bless'd be his name"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: c.1792 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 4(112))

KEYWORDS: poverty weaving work hardtimes dialog

ADDITIONAL: James Maidment, Scotish Ballads and Songs (Edinburgh, 1859 ("Digitized by Google")), pp. 193-201, "The Paisley Wife" (1 text)

Roud #V6289

BROADSIDES:

NOTES [98 words]: Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland: "From an inquiry into the origin of these verses, the editor is inclined to fix the date about the year 1700-1, a few years after the passing of the 'Lustring act,' when, in consequence of a change of fashion, there was a panic in the silk trade, and the weavers of Spitalfields were reduced to a state of greatest distress. During other panics in the same trade, it has been customary with the London ballad-printers to reprint the Garland, and for the weavers, accompanied by their wives and families..."
Webfoot Land

DESCRIPTION: "I've reached the land of mud and rain, I've struggled long this land to gain."
Having reached the "webfoot land," "I sometimes wish that I had not." The rain is constant. He will head back east if he can find the money; he wants to see the sun

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1999 (Nash & Scofield, The Well-Traveled Casket, according to Cohen)
KEYWORDS: home hardtimes humorous

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia2, pp. 636-637, "Webfoot Land" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Tom Nash and Twilo Scofield, The Well-Travelled Casket: Oregon Folklore_, Meadowlark Press, 1999, p. 40, "Webfoot Land" (1 text, tune referenced)
Roud #4899
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Beulah Land" (tune) and references there
cf. "Saskatchewan" (tune, theme)
cf. "Dakota Land" (tune, theme)

Webster of Brechin's Mare, The

DESCRIPTION: When the webster's (weaver's) old mare declares she can work no more; when the man threatens her, she faints. He skins the horse. Awakening in the night, it comes to the door; a lad kills it fears he has done murder, then discovers it is a horse

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1815 (chapbook used by Logan-APedlarsPack)

KEYWORDS: horse clothes death humorous homicide

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Logan-APedlarsPack, pp. 402-405, "The Webster of Brechin's Mare" (1 text) Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 154-156, "The Webster of Brechin's Mare" (1 text)
ST FVS154 (Partial)
Roud #13121

File: VFS154

Wedded Waters, The

DESCRIPTION: Aberdeenshire rivers Gadie and Ury "trysted aye to meet Amang the woods o' Logie. Like bride and bridegroom happy they." The singer wishes the same for himself: "I looket syne, but cou'dna see My sworn love at Logie"

AUTHOR: William Thom (1789-1848)

EARLIEST DATE: 1844 (Thom (first ed?), according to Greig/Duncan6)

KEYWORDS: love nonballad river

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan6 1189, "The Wedded Waters" (1 text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: William Thom, Rhymes and Recollections of a Hand-Loom Weaver (London, 1845 (2nd edition, "Digitized by Google")), pp. 142-143, "The Wedded Waters"
Roud #6810

NOTES [34 words]: Those wishing to learn more about william Thom may consult the essay
"William thom, The Weaver Poet" in Alfred M. Williams, Studies in Folk-Song and Popular Poetry, Houghton Mifflin, 1894, pp. 166-188. - RBW
Wedding (I), The
DESCRIPTION: "Hurrah for the wedding." Give an "Hurray" each for the bride and groom and notable attendees as well. Drinking, dancing, eating and fun. Bride and groom "stole off At the dawning of day ... nobody missed them Till P.M. at one." A grand time was had.
AUTHOR: Brian Doherty (cousin of the bride)
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland)
KEYWORDS: wedding dancing drink food music party humorous moniker
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland, pp. 10-11, "The Wedding" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12485
File: Dib010

Wedding at Ballyporeen
DESCRIPTION: The singer asks the muses' help to describe the wedding. The guests are listed. After the ceremony, the great feast is devoured. The bride is nervous; her mother tells her to be happy; she'd marry again if she could. A happy if exaggerated occasion
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1825 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 17(329b))
KEYWORDS: wedding humorous party mother food
FOUND IN: Ireland Canada(Mar,Newf) Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast 47, pp. 1-2, "The Wedding o' Ballaporeen" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan3 619, "The Wedding of Ballaporeen" (3 texts, 3 tunes)
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H93, pp. 72-73, "The Wedding at Ballyporeen" (1 text, 1 tune)
Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia 140, "The Wedding of Ballyporeen" (1 text)
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, pp. 63-64, "The Wedding of Ballyporeen" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2528, p. 171, "The Wedding of Ballyporeen" (2 references)
Roud #3277
RECORDINGS:
Jack Swain, "The Wedding at Bally Poreen" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 17(329b), "Wedding of Ballyporeen," W. Armstrong (Liverpool), 1820-1824; also Harding B 28(183), Harding B 11(3505), Harding B 11(3506), 2806 b.11(38), Harding B 16(302b), Harding B 11(3964), Harding B 28(183), Harding B 25(2020), "Wedding of Ballyporeen"; Harding B 11(4075), "The Wedding of Ballpoyreens [sic]"
SAME TUNE:
Ballinamona Ora [pr Ballymona Orah] (per broadside Bodleian 2806 b.11(38) and Greig)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
Ballaporeen
File: HHH093

Wedding at Kouchibouguac, The
DESCRIPTION: The bride is "the primrose of Kishimaguac." The beef was from an ox that had died of old age and the rest of the food, was no better but, like everything else, was what "is common for supper in Kishimaguac" The usual wine, the usual songs, i.e., ho hum.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiramichi)
KEYWORDS: wedding music party wine food humorous
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
Wedding in Renews, The

DESCRIPTION: "There's going to be a happy time, I want you all to know, There's me and Joe and Uncle Snow Invited for to go" to the Wedding in Renews. The girls have goose grease in their hair, the men have "whiskers to their shoes." They will have a happy dance

AUTHOR: Johnny Burke (1851-1930)
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Burke's Popular Songs)
KEYWORDS: wedding humorous dancing
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (4 citations):
ADDITIONAL: Johnny Burke, _Burke's Popular Songs_, self-published, 1929 (a PDF is available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p.[7], "The Wedding in Renews" (1 text) Johnny Burke (John White, Editor), _Burke's Ballads_, no printer listed, n.d. (PDF available on Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), p. 19, "The Wedding in Renews" (1 text) Johnny Burke, _Burke's Christmas Songster 1926_, self-published, 1926 (PDF copy available on the Memorial University of Newfoundland web site), [no page number], "The Wedding in Renews" (1 text) Johnny Burke (William J. Kirwin, editor), _John White's Collection of Johnny Burke Songs_, Harry Cuff Publications, St. John's, 1981, #18, pp. 32-33, "The Renews Wedding" (1 text) Roud #12519
NOTES [230 words]: Another of Johnny Burke's crazy-party songs, along the lines of "The Kelligrew's Soiree." For a brief biography of Burke, see the notes to "The Kelligrew's Soiree." Philip Hiscock's notes to this song in Eric West, _Sing Around This One: Songs of Newfoundland & Labrador Vol. 2_, Vinland Music, 1997, p. 56, suggests that this began as a skit in one of Burke's "entertainments." Nonetheless it is true that Newfoundland weddings were notable for their extravagance (insofar as its poor economy allowed); according to Kevin Major, _As Near to Heaven by Sea: A History of Newfoundland & Labrador_, 2001 (I use the 2002 Penguin Canada edition), "A wedding turned into revelry for the whole community, a grad reason to take the mind from whatever hardship lay ahead. Any outport wedding had at its center, not the blushing couple, but as great a store of food and drink as the parents could afford or the luck of the hunt would provide. The tables at one wedding feast in northern Newfoundland, recounted by an astonished visitor in the late 1800s, held 'twenty-seven enormous puddings, seven beavers, several hares and ptarmigan, a corresponding supply of vegetables, some rum... and cake ad infinitum.' And every man, woman, and child in the place showed up, invited or not." Major adds that, because most of the houses were small, "The guests were usually served in shifts." - RBW
Last updated in version 6.0
File: JBPS007

Wedding of Bean Rock Hollow

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas on a night so windy, When it was wet and cold, There was a celebration...." "Old H.G. acted as Justice of the Peace." Captain Martin choking and needs the help of Doctor Hinds. (Someone) finds "the greenhorn a-laying by her side"

AUTHOR: Bill Gross, according to Arnold's informant Janie Barnard Couch
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Arnold-FolkSongsOfAlabama)
KEYWORDS: wedding humorous injury doctor
FOUND IN: US(So)
Wedding of Lauchie McGrath, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer calls on listen as he tells of Lauchie’s wedding, which "To tell you the truth it was liker a battle," as they eat bad food ("the look of the beef nearly gave us the fever") and various guests make disastrous attempts at song
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2010 (Graham-Joe-Holmes-SongsMusicTraditionsOfAnUlsterman)
KEYWORDS: wedding humorous food music
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Graham-Joe-Holmes-SongsMusicTraditionsOfAnUlsterman 79, "The Wedding of Lauchie McGrath" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #22785
File: GrHo079

Wedding Song (I -- Get a Little Wife)
DESCRIPTION: "Now some people think it's jolly for to lead a single live, But I believe in marriage and the comforts of a wife." "It's worth your while a-felling out to make it up again." They'll have a nice home. So get a table and chair, prepare a home, and marry
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Hamer-GreenGroves)
KEYWORDS: courting home wife nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hamer-GreenGroves, pp. 78-79, "Wedding Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #1155
File: HaGr078

Wedlock (I)
DESCRIPTION: "Dear lady, since the single state You've left and chose your mate," the singer will take the opportunity to lecture her. She should make her husband bless the day they married. She should never struggle for power but be humble and clean house
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1790 (Journal of the Dolphin)
KEYWORDS: marriage nonballad husband wife
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, pp. 325-328, "Wedlock" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #27551
File: HGam325

Wednesbury Cocking, The
DESCRIPTION: Stories of cockfighting at Wednesbury. The competition is fierce, and many are the addicts of the sport and of gambling on it. The song relates many incidents, concluding when "Jack Baker he whacked his own father, and thus ended Wednesbury Cocking"
AUTHOR: John Probin (see NOTES)
EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Graves, English and Scottish Ballads)
KEYWORDS: fight bird gambling sports chickens moniker
FOUND IN: Britain
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 85, "The Wednesbury Cocking" (1 text)
Wee Article, The

DESCRIPTION: "I 'm a jolly servant lass, my name is Mary Ann, I'm going to sing about a thing that calls itself a man; He wanted me his wife to be, he's only four foot four...." She reviles the short suitor, and details why she wants no part of such a man

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: courting rejection humorous
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H833, p. 257, "The Wee Article" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2739
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Wee Daft Article
File: HHH833

Wee Bittle East There Leeved a Man, A

DESCRIPTION: "A wee bittie east, there leeve a man, O siller an' sense no had riffie." He decides he must have a wife. West of there lived a wealthy man with three rich daughters. The wee man goes and declares his love for one. The ending is missing.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1873 (Harris Manuscript)
KEYWORDS: love courting
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lyle/McAlpine/McLucas-SongRepertoireOfAmeliaAndJaneHarris, pp. 39-40, "A wee bittie East there leeved a man" (1 text)

Roud #18023
NOTES [70 words]: Although not listed as incomplete, the Harris text appears a fragment: The suitor shows up at Miss Jean's door in all his finery, is "admired" by the people of the rich man's household, and allowed to come to the girl's chamber, where he declares her beauty -- and there it ends. I would assume that the man is made to do more and more embarrassing things until the servants finally reveal that they are putting him on. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2
File: HLMM150

Wee Bridelie, The

DESCRIPTION: "There was a little wee bridelie, In Pitcarles toun... There was few folk bidden to it,
And as few fowk did come." The smallness of the feast is described: No meat but a sheep without a tongue, etc. When the bride goes to bed, the groom refuses to follow

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1827 (Kinloch)
KEYWORDS: wedding humorous betrayal
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
   Kinloch-TheBalladBook XXVIII, pp. 84-85, (no title) (1 text)
   Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 149, "The Wee Weddin" (1 text)
   ADDITIONAL: Peter Buchan, Ancient Ballads and Songs of the North of Scotland (Edinburgh, 1828 ("Digitized by Microsoft")), Vol I, pp. 262-263, "The Wee Bridalee" (1 text)
Roud #8157
NOTES [115 words]: This strikes me as a sort of answer to songs such as "The Blythesome Bridal" and "The Ball of Kerrimuir." It's not clear whether that makes it traditional. - RBW

The three texts -- Kinloch, Buchan, and Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 -- reported about the same time, are different in form and words though they are recognizably the same song.

Buchan's text is a four line verse; Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 repeats the fourth line; Kinloch repeats the second and fourth. The wedding is in Auchendown, Pitcarles town or yonder town. The groom won't come to bed because the sheet is too small, or because "I wish this nicht hadna cum," or the bride "kent this day wad come." - BS

Last updated in version 2.6
File: KinBB28

Wee Crap, The

DESCRIPTION: This year's crop was so bad the barley and flax was not worth harvesting ("malt will be dear the year to the brewsters o our ale," "lint it was na gude"). The singer cannot afford help and will do the thrashing and cleaning horses's straw himself.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1)
KEYWORDS: farming hardtimes nonballad food
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
   Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1 63, "The Wee Crap" (1 text)
Roud #7177
NOTES [23 words]: Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1 p. xliii: "Crawfurd relates the situation it describes to an account of the dry summer of 1826...." - BS

Last updated in version 2.6
File: LyCr163

Wee Cup of Tay, The

DESCRIPTION: "As Jack from the market came the other day, His wife she sat drinking her wee cup of tay," Jack complains "I must work hard, not a shirt to my back" while she has finery and her tea. She attacks "what money you spend in whisky and beer." They argue.

AUTHOR: unknown
Wee Cutty Pipe, The (The Derry Pipe)

DESCRIPTION: Sam asks Bill if he has tobacco, then gives a long justification based on the use of tobacco by Adam, Pharaoh, Jonah, Noah, Belshazzar, and Jason and the Argonauts. Bill concedes the point, and will continue to bring in tobacco in truckloads

AUTHOR: James O’Kane

EARLIEST DATE: 1932 (Sam Henry collection)

KEYWORDS: drugs Bible

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H465, pp. 49-50, "The Wee Cutty Pipe" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #13363

NOTES [30 words]: The alleged Biblical references in this song are, of course, pure nonsense. Tobacco was not known in the Old World until introduced from the New; it is not mentioned in the Bible. - RBW

File: HHH465

Wee Drap o' Whisky, A

DESCRIPTION: "Come fill up a bumper and hand it round here." When weary the singer's pleasure is a kiss and "a drap more" with his lassie. He resolves disputes with "a drap mair" and never complains. After a half pint more he'll go home "till farther occasion"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan3)

KEYWORDS: drink nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 557, "A Wee Drap o' Whisky" (2 texts, 1 tune)
DT, WEEDRAP*

Roud #6033

ALTERNATE TITLES:
A Glass o' Guid Whisky

NOTES [59 words]: Bumper: [noun] "a cup or glass filled to the brim or till the liquor runs over esp. in drinking a toast"; [verb] "to fill to the brim (as a wineglass) and empty by drinking,""to toast with a bumper,""to drink bumpers of wine or other alcoholic beverages" (source: Webster's Third New International Dictionary of the English Language Unabridged, 1976). - BS

Last updated in version 2.4

File: GrD3557

Wee Drappie O't, A

DESCRIPTION: "O, life is a journey we a' hae to gang, And care is the burden we carry alang, But though grief be our portion... We are happy a' thegither owre a wee drappie o't." The singer notes tragedies of life -- and how they are relieved by fellowship and drink
Wee Duck, The (The Duck from Drummuck)

DESCRIPTION: "I once had a duck when I lived in Drummuck, I was quite in luck when I lived in that land." The duck, said to be related to (Nell) Flaherty's drake, is said to be very productive -- but now has been stolen. The singer will keep better guard hereafter

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Sam Henry collection)
KEYWORDS: animal bird curse thief theft
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H228a, pp. 19-20, "The Duck from Drummuck" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #5075
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Nell Flaherty's Drake" (plot, subject?)
NOTES [78 words]: If "Nell Flaherty's Drake" is about Robert Emmet, then this song presumably is about some later freedom fighter. The song mentions "the year forty-nine," so presumably 1849 (i.e. the aftermath of the 1848 revolt) -- but the leaders of that revolt, such as John Mitchel (for whom see "John Mitchell"), William Smith O'Brien (for whom see "The Shan Van Voght (1848)" and Thomas Meagher (for whom see "The Escape of Meagher") , were transported rather than imprisoned. - RBW
File: HHH228a

Wee Falorie Man, The

DESCRIPTION: "I am the wee falorie man A rattling roving Irishman. I can do all that ever you can." Sister Mary Ann "washes her face in the frying pan And she goes to hunt for a man." "I am a good old working man Each day I carry a wee tin can" with a bun and ham.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (_Rann Magazine_ Summer 1952, according Roud); 1870s (recorded by Anne Gilchrist, according Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame)
KEYWORDS: work food nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(Lond,North)) Ireland
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Hammond-SongsOfBelfast, p. 13, "The Wee Falorie Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-TheSingingGame 116, "Wee Melodie Man" (4 texts, 1 tune)
DT, WEEFALRY*
ADDITIONAL: Peter and Iona Opie, _I Saw Esau: Traditional Rhymes of Youth_, #48, "(Sam, Sam, Dirty Old Man)" (3 short texts, one in the body and two in the notes, showing much range but seemingly indicating that there is a floating verse on which several songs of this sort are built)
Wee Herd's Whistle, The

DESCRIPTION: "'Oh, he cut a happy sucker from the muckle rodden tree, He trimmed it and he wet it and he thumped it on his knee," and the herdsman plays the whistle. He forgets the "kylie"; he fails in school; at last the teacher burns the lad's whistle

AUTHOR: Charles Murray (source: Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads)
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Chambers' Journal, according to Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads); collected from Bob Beers 1963

KEYWORDS: music cattle
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Byington/Goldstein-TwoPennyBallads, pp. 43-44, "The Wee Herd's Whistle" (1 text, 1 tune, plus a copy of the original text in the notes on pp. 49-50)
Roud #11488

File: ByGo043

Wee House in the Wood

DESCRIPTION: "There it stood, the Wee-House-in-the-Wood," which inspires visions of folklore: English music, King Arthur, much that is gone, all revealed by a "phantom minstrel."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)

KEYWORDS: home music nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 266-267, (no title) (1 text)

NOTES [47 words]: There are many pieces in Thomas that I don't really trust -- but there is none I more suspect of being Thomas's own work than this (and "The Singin' Gatherin,'" which bears the same traits). It's anonymous, it's about Thomas's own home base, and it rather sounds like her style. - RBW

File: ThBa266

Wee Johnnie, the Hynd o' Rigghead

DESCRIPTION: Johnnie dresses up to court Jean, for he needs a wife to manage his life, and her dowrie. "I'm sure that she canna refuse me." She rejects his offer, which she thinks a joke, and he is chased away by her father and spaniels.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1843 (Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong)

KEYWORDS: courting dowry rejection farming humorous father dog
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan4 767, "Wee Johnnie, the Hynd o' Rigghead" (1 fragment, 1 tune)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, pp. 400-401, "Wee Johnnie" (1 text)
Roud #6126
Wee Little Piute
DESCRIPTION: "Wee little piute, hi yi ya, Jolting cayuse. mountain trail, Strapped to the back of your ma ma ma, Gazing away o'er the pony's tail." Images of what the child sees as it travels the trail
AUTHOR: Words: Albert R. Lyman / Music: Casse Lyman Monson
EARLIEST DATE: 1966
KEYWORDS: baby family Indians(Am.) travel nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 87, "Wee Little Piute" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11203
File: FCW087

Wee Midgie Meer, The
DESCRIPTION: There is a horse race at Easterkirk "between twa [English] lords and weel mounted" and [Scotsman] Willie on his mare. Willie wins in the mud which "'filed [dirtied] the gentles' face." "Lord Lovat he gaed mad at that Swore he wad ride nae more"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1908 (Greig/Duncan2)
KEYWORDS: racing England Scotland humorous horse
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #170, p. 1, "The Wee Midgie Meer" (1 text)
Greig/Duncan2 325, "The Wee Midgie Meer" (1 text)
Roud #5870
File: GrD2325

Wee Pickle Tow, The
DESCRIPTION: John Grumely brings tow for his wife to spin. A spark from her pipe lights it. She refuses to spin (Eve wore leaves rather than spin), or churn butter. And he can sleep with his back to her. Then, he says, they'll sleep in separate beds.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1906 (Greig/Duncan3)
KEYWORDS: shrewishness marriage dialog husband wife clothes
FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan3 476, "The Wife and Her Wee Pickle Tow" (5 texts, 5 tunes)
Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry, pp. 80-81, "The Wee Pickle Tow" (1 text)
Roud #5506
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "She's Aye Tease, Teasin'" (theme: the wife who won't spin, but sets the flax on fire)
SAME TUNE:
Mathew Macree ("Sin I furst work'd a sampleth at Biddy Forsyth's") (The Ulverston New Poetical Miscellany, p. 212)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Spinnin O'ot
The Rock and the Wee Pickle Tow
NOTES [114 words]: And, he pointed out, that he earns the money [Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry text].
"Norman Kennedy, weaver and singer, tells me that the fine long linen fibers are separated from the flax by hackling, leaving the short coarse fibers of tow, guaranteed to give the spinner pricked fingers and short temper." - BS
I can't help but note that John Grunm[e]ly is the husband in some versions of "Father Grumble" [Laws Q1]. This almost sounds like the "prequel" to that. - RBW
Greig/Duncan3: "From his mother sixty years ago. Noted 29th April, 1907." - BS
Last updated in version 3.5
File: HayU080

Wee Tailor from Tyrone, The

DESCRIPTION: Mollie agrees to marry a tailor. She becomes a lady's waiting maid. The tailor accepts the lady's[?] offer of marriage, money, and gentleman's life. The marriage, in the dark, is a sham. When the light is on he sees "the lady" is Mollie. She rejects him
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1973 (Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday)
LONG DESCRIPTION: A tailor courts Mollie and she agrees to marry him. She becomes a lady's waiting maid. The tailor receives a letter, supposedly from the lady, offering her own hand and ten thousand pounds. He'd rather be a gentleman than an apprentice so he agrees. She insists the marriage be held in the dark. The marriage is a sham. When the light is on he sees "the lady" is Mollie. She rejects him: "Ah but you thought you were a gentleman, and now you see you're none"
KEYWORDS: courting infidelity wedding rejection trick humorous money
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Morton/Maguire-ComeDayGoDayGodSendSunday 34, pp. 87-89,120,169, "The Wee Tailor from Tyrone" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2488
NOTES [71 words]: An interesting twist on the Eros and Psyche legend, isn't it? The same trick also occurs in the Bible, in Genesis 29, where Jacob thinks he is marrying Rachel, but her father instead slips in Rachel's older sister Leah. The difference being that the customs of the time allowed polygamy, so Jacob eventually had both of them. For full notes on the idea of the wrong woman in a bed, see the notes to "The Butcher's Daughter." - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: MoMa034

Wee Weaver, The

DESCRIPTION: "I am a wee weaver confined to my loom." Willy loves Mary. They roam by Lough Erne and Willy proposes. "So this couple got married and they'll roam no more"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (IRTunneyFamily01)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage weaving Ireland
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tunney-StoneFiddle, p. 81, "The Wee Weaver" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #3378
RECORDINGS:
Brigid Tunney, "The Wee Weaver" (on IRTunneyFamily01)
Paddy Tunney, "The Wee Weaver" (on Voice20)
NOTES [9 words]: Lough Erne is in County Fermanagh, Northern Ireland. - BS.
File: RcWeeWea

Wee Wee German Lairdie, The

DESCRIPTION: "Wha the de'il hae we gotten for a King but a wee, wee German lairdie?" Geordie had to be fetched from his "yairdie," and now fills the government with foreigners. He is warned against visiting the Highlands, and his disreputable traits cataloged
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1819 (Hogg, according to Whitelaw)
KEYWORDS: Jacobite royalty humorous gardening
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1714-1727 - Reign of George I (a cousin of Charles II and James II, and far down in the line of succession -- but the closest relative of the Stuarts to be safely Protestant)

REFERENCES (4 citations):
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, p. 520, "The Wee German Lairdie" (1 text)
MacColl-PersonalChoice, pp. 42-43, "The wee, wee German Lairdie" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, WEEGERM

Roud #2573
File: DTweeger

Wee Wee Man, The [Child 38]

DESCRIPTION: The singer meets a "wee wee man," who, despite his size, proves amazingly strong. He takes the singer on a tour to his home, and shows him the finest ladies he has ever seen -- but then disappears.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1776 (Herd)
KEYWORDS: magic home

REFERENCES (24 citations):
Child 38, "The Wee Wee Man" (7 texts)
Bronson 38, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 version)
Chambers-ScottishBallads, pp. 260-261, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 text)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume1 72, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 text)
Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 101, "A Fairie Sang" (1 text)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 188-189, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 11, "The Wee, Wee Man" (1 text)
Randolph/Legman-RollMeInYourArms II, pp. 587-588, "The Wee Wee Man" (2 texts, one of them the Brown version)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 135-136, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 text)
Quiller-Couch-OxfordBookOfBallads 11, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 text)
Grigson-PenguinBookOfBallads 11, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 text)
Gummere-OldEnglishBallads, pp. 293-294+362, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 text)
Montgomerie/Montgomerie-ScottishNurseryRhymes 198, "(The Wee, Wee Man)" (1 text)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishBallads, p. 462, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 text)

DT 38, WEEWEEMN

ADDITIONAL: Emily Lyle, _Faires and Folk: Approaches to the Scottish Ballad Tradition_, Wissenschaftlicher Verlag Trier, 2007, pp. 40-41, "A New Scotch Song" (1 text plus a print of part of the broadside containing it; also assorted excerpts)
Karin Boklund-Lagopolou, _I have a yong suster: Popular song and Middle English lyric_, Four Courts Press, 2002, pp. 150-151, "(The Wee Wee Man)" (1 text)
Walter de la Mare, _Come Hither_, revised edition, 1928; #315, "The Wee Wee Man" (1 text)
RELATED: Thomas of Ercildoune's Prophest/As I yode on a Monday between Wyltinden and Walle (Child's Appendix)
Ritson-AncientSongsBalladsFromHenrySecondToTheRevolution, pp. 35-44, "A Ballad on the Scottish Wars" (1 text)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse, #379

MANUSCRIPT: London, British Library, MS. Cotton Julius A.V, folio 180

COMPARE: Thomas of Ercildoun'e Prophecy (IMEV #365, DIMEV #620), not cited by Child
Roud #2865

NOTES [258 words]: Carterhaugh, also mentioned as the site of magic in "Tam Lin," "is a plain at the confluence of the Ettrick and Yarrow in Selkirkshire" (Scott). Child prints as an appendix to this ballad the poem "Als Y Yod on ay Mounday," found in a single copy in British Museum MS. Cotton Julius A.V, dated firmly to the fourteenth century (another part of the document has a reference to the year 1307). The same text is found in Boklund-Lagopolou, pp. 148-150. The relationship between the two is curious in a number of ways. There is no doubt that the two items go back to the same folkloric roots -- but "Wee Wee Man" seems to be purely Scottish, and "Als Y Yod" is in a very difficult Northumbrian dialect. Fowler, p. 279 n. 15, describes the Cotton manuscript, which is a curious mix of history (Robert of Brunne's chronicle) and magic (two sets of prophecies of Merlin plus "Als Y Yod," which is followed by additional prophecies), then a French tale, "Longespée taken by the Saracens." E. B. Lyle, in "The Wee Wee Man and Als Y Yod on y Mounday" (reprinted in LyleBallad), examines the nature of the parallels between the two, but does not reach any clear conclusions. Her suggestion is that both derive from some lost proto-romance does not strike me as compelling, though it is certainly possible. Lyle revisited the topic in a section in LyleFairies, pp. 36-43. This attempts to classify the known versions of "The Wee Wee Man" and group them in families. It also includes, on p. 38, a useful table of parallels between the ballad and "Als Y Yod." - RBW

Bibliography

- Boklund-Lagopolou: Karin Boklund-Lagopolou I have a yong suster: Popular song and Middle English lyric, Four Courts Press, 2002

Last updated in version 5.2

File: C038

Wee Wifikie, The

DESCRIPTION: The Wee Wifikie takes too much drink, and lies down to rest. A peddler steals her purse and cuts her hair. She awakens and finds herself changed. She thinks she is not herself. She tells her husband, who asks the minister, who reassures him all is well

AUTHOR: Alexander Watson ? Rev. Alexader Geddes ? (see NOTES)

EARLIEST DATE: 1797 (Scots Musical Museum)

KEYWORDS: husband wife humorous hair drink dog theft thief disguise

FOUND IN: Ireland Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (6 citations):

Henry/Huntingdon/Herrmann-SamHenrysSongsOfThePeople H714, pp. 513-514, "The Wee Wifikie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hayward-UlsterSongsAndBalladsOfTheTownAndCountry, pp. 49-51, "The Wee Wifiekee" (1 text)
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 23-26, "The Wee Wifikie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan2 287, "The Wee Wifikie" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, pp. 76-77, "The Wee Wifikie" (1 text)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 535, "There was a little woman" (2 texts, the first of which is "The Old Woman Who Went to Market (The Old Woman and the Pedlar)" but the second of which is this)

ST HHH714 (Full)
Roud #5857

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Whiskey Is My Name (Donald Blue)"
cf. "The Old Woman Who Went to Market (The Old Woman and the Pedlar)" (theme, lyrics)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Wee Wifeikie
There Was a Wee Bit Wifikie

NOTES [178 words]: Grieg/Duncan mentions a pamphlet (1921) by William Walker, presenting evidence that this song was written by Alexander Watson (c. 1744-1831) in the years around 1775. Ford, however, credits it to one Dr. Alexander Geddes (1737-1802), and is followed in this by the Opies. J. M. Bulloch, on p. 144 of W. A. Craigie, John Buchan, Peter Giles, and J. M. Bulloch, The Scottish Tongue: A Series of Lectures on the Vernacular Language of Lowland Scotland, 1922 (?) (I use the 1970 McGrath reprint), notes that the Watson manuscript in the British Museum uses "frae" for "from," even though this was not Watson's (or Geddes's) dialect. Make of that what you will.
The song, if composed, seems to have come somewhat unraveled in tradition; the audience is too often left asking "Why?" (Why, e.g., did the peddler clip the Wifikie's hair? Steal her purse, yes, but why risk being caught cutting her hair?)
The Opies compare this and "The Old Woman Who Went to Market (The Old Woman and the Pedlar)" to the Grimm tale of "Kluge Else" and to a tale in Asbjornsen and Moe. - RBW

Wee Willie Winkie Runs Through the Town

DESCRIPTION: "Wee Willie Winkie runs through the town, Upstairs and downstairs in his night gown, Rapping at the window, crying through the lock, Are the children all in bed, for now it's eight o'clock?"

AUTHOR: William Miller (source: _Songs for the Nursery_); "Air by Rev. W. B." (source: _Whistle-Binkie_)

EARLIEST DATE: 1841 (according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: nonballad children

NOTES [196 words]: Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes: "'Willie Winkie, as may be seen in Jacobite songs, was a nickname for William III (d.1702), and according to Robert L. Ripley the rhyme refers to that king." - BS

The Baring-Goulds also note that "Wee Willie Winkie was the nickname given to William Prince of Orange" (who became William III in 1689). But they doubt its political significance. And, if they are correct in attributing the poem to William Miller, they are almost surely right in questioning it. Who would be writing concealed verse about William III in the reign of Victoria?

It is noteworthy that Katherine Briggs, An Encyclopedia of Fairies: Hobgoblins, Brownies, Bogies, and Other Supernatural Creatures, 1976 (I use the 1977 Pantheon paperback), p. 429-430, doesn't even mention this hypothesis. And yet, she notes that the original was in Braid Scots ("Wee Willie Winkie runs through the town, Up stairs and down stairs in his nicht-goun, Tirling at the window, crying at the lock, Are the weans in their bed, for it's now ten o'clock?"). The Scots might have held resentment against William III, who overthrew the Stewarts, longer than the English did.

- RBW

Week After the Fair (I), The (Jock and Meg)

DESCRIPTION: Meg has no pity: John is hung over from drinking for a week at the fair with "dandy Katie" while she was left at home. John says Meg drinks also and carried on at home that week; he got her out of jail. He proposes they don't drink until New Year.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: before 1843 (broadside, Bodleian Firth b.25(295))

KEYWORDS: infidelity drink dialog husband wife

NOTES [196 words]: Greig/FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #7, p. 2, "Jock and Meg" (1 text fragment)

- RBW

File: HHH714

File: 002530
Week After the Fair (II), The

DESCRIPTION: The Fair has brought John and Meg to beggary's door. He reviews her escapades of drink and running around with other men. She says he ran around and pawned everything they owned. They agree to "tak' a drap and speak nae mair o' our faults at the Fair"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 19C (broadside, Murray Mu23-y1:047)
KEYWORDS: poverty infidelity drink dialog husband wife
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
Roud #5162

BROADSIDES:
Murray, Mu23-y1:047, "The Week After The Fair" or "The Discontented Pair," James Lindsay Junr (Glasgow), 19C
NOTES [39 words]: Apparently broadside Bodleian, 2806 c.11(221), "The Week After the Fair" or "The Discontented Pair" ("I'm grieved to think my wife Meg, this day we are so poor"), unknown, no date is this song but I could not download and verify it. - BS

Week's Matrimony, A (A Week's Work)

DESCRIPTION: Monday the singer marries; Tuesday his wife sees a girl frying his "sausage"; Wednesday he finds a man in bed with her; Thursday they fight; Friday they part and she hangs herself in sorrow; Saturday he buries her and finds another

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1839 (broadside, Bodleian Johnson Ballads 289)
KEYWORDS: adultery marriage fight suicide drink bawdy wife FOUND IN: Canada(Newf) Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Peacock, pp. 322-323, "A Week's Work" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 120, "Days of the Week" (1 text, 1 tune)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 665, "One Sunday Morn" (1 text)
Roud #1692

RECORDINGS:
Leonard Hulan, "A Week's Work" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Stan McGrath, "The Days Of The Week" (on ITMA/CapeShoreNL)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Johnson Ballads 289, "A Week's Matrimony"("On Sunday I went out on a spree"), J. Catnach (London), 1813-1838; also Firth c.20(135), Harding B 20(185), Harding B 11(4082), Harding B 11(4083), Harding B 11(4084), 2806 c.16(23)[some words illegible], Firth c.20(136)
[some words illegible], Harding B 11(4081), 2806 b.9(271), Firth c.20(134), "[A] Week's Matrimony[!]"

Murray, Mu23-y1:088, "The Week's Matrimony," James Lindsay (Glasgow), 19C
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "In Duckworth Street There Lived a Dame" (imagery)
cf. "Charming Sally Ann" (imagery)
SAME TUNE:
The Devil in Search of a Wife (per broadsides Bodleian Johnson Ballads 289, Bodleian Harding B
11(4084), Bodleian Harding B 11(4081))
NOTES [29 words]: Peacock makes A Week's Work the same ballad as The Holly Twig although the only similarity is that they both account for the days of the week and both start with a marriage.
- BS
Last updated in version 4.5
File: Pea322

Weel Aul' Man, The
DESCRIPTION: "On yonder hill and yonder howe" lives a wealthy farmer who wants "a bit wiffie o' his ain." He courts Jean. Her mother speaks out in his favor. Jean says courting her mother will not win her heart. Then he kisses Jean which does win Jean's heart.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan4)
KEYWORDS: courting farming mother
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan4 814, "The Weel Aul' Man" (1 text)
Roud #6211
File: GrD4814

Weel Like I a Drap o' Drink
DESCRIPTION: The singer likes "a drap o' drink" and "a cup o' tea" but likes "the laddies double weel And they hae proved the ruin o' me"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1914 (Greig/Duncan7)
KEYWORDS: courting drink
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan7 1411, "Weel Like I a Drap o' Drink" (1 fragment)
Roud #7262
NOTES [11 words]: The current description is based on the Greig/Duncan7 fragment. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD71411

Weel-Faured Maid, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer meets "a weel-faur'd maid ... comin' thro' the broom." She refuses to tell her name and claims she is too young to have a man. He gets ready to leave but she calls him back. They kiss, marry, and settle happily in Glasgow.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1905 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: courting wedding beauty youth
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan5 958, "The Weel-Faured Maid" (5 texts, 3 tunes)
Roud #6765
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Squire's Wooing
Comin' Thro' the Broom
NOTES [34 words]: This is like "Braes of Strathblane," "The Rejected Lover" and "The Slighted Suitor" (boy meets girl, girl rejects boy, boy prepares to leave, girl changes her mind, boy does what?) with a happy ending. - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD5958

Weeping and Wailing
DESCRIPTION: On judgment day there will be weeping and wailing among the damned: the rich man with his money, drunkard with his drink, and the whisky seller will end in Hell, praying too late to be saved.
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1963 (MJHurt04)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious
FOUND IN: US
RECORDINGS: Mississippi John Hurt, "Weeping and Waiting" [sic] (on MJHurt04)
NOTES [25 words]: Although the imagery here has many New Testament parallels, it probably owes the most to the Parable of the Sheep and the Goats, Matthew 25:31-46. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.0
File: RcWeeAWa

Weeping Mary
DESCRIPTION: "Are there anybody here like Mary a-weeping? Call to my Jesus and he'll draw nigh. Glory (x5) be to my God on high." "Are there anybody here like Peter a-sinking?"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1855 (Social Harp)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 128, "Weeping Mary" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #6680
RECORDINGS: Roswell Sacred Harp Quartet, "Weeping Mary" (Bluebird B-8582, 1940)
NOTES [109 words]: The reference to "Peter sinking" goes back to Matt. 14:28f. Jesus had been walking on the water, and Peter (in this account; not in the source in Mark) said, "Lord, if it's you, call me to come to you on the water." Jesus did, and Peter walked on the water for a few moments, but then started to doubt -- and sink. Jesus, of course, rescued him.
Lomax claims this is in the Sacred Harp. There is a song with the title "Weeping Mary" in the Sacred Harp, but it isn't the same thing. According to Jackson, the song is found in the Social Harp, though.
The title "Weeping Mary" has a complex origin; see the notes to "I Want to Die Like Weeping Mary." - RBW
Last updated in version 4.3
File: LoF128

Weeping Pilgrim
DESCRIPTION: "You may tell them, (father/mother/brothers/etc.), when you see them, I'm a poor mourning pilgrim, I'm bound for Canaan's land. I weep and I mourn, and I move slowly on. I'm a poor mourning pilgrim, I'm bound for Canaan's land."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1994 (Abernethy)
KEYWORDS: religious travel nonballad
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Weeping Willer, The

DESCRIPTION: The miller's daughter weeps because William joined the army. She writes a suicide note, plans to hang herself from the willow hanging over the water, and changes her mind. Rather than risk falling in such cold water she'll wait till the weather is hotter.

AUTHOR: Harry Clifton (source: Greig/Duncan6)

EARLIEST DATE: before 1884 (broadside, Bodleian Firth b.25(184))

KEYWORDS: grief love separation suicide humorous

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan6 1247, "The Miller's Daughter" (1 text)

Roud #6785

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Firth b.25(184), "The Weeping Willer" ("Down by the country side, lives old Gray the miller"), H. Disley (London), 1860-1883; also Harding B 11(4086), "The Weeping Willer"

NOTES [80 words]: Greig/Duncan6 is incomplete; broadside Bodleian Firth b.25(184) is the basis for the description.
The suicide note illustrates the tone of the song: "Take this to William Phipps, straight to him be tellin' His Susan died through suicide. P.S. - Please excuse bad spellin'." In the end she decides that, if she can't find a more faithful lover, "I'm half inclin'd to marry a man for money." - BS

For background on author Harry Clifton, see the notes to "The Good Ship Kangaroo." - RBW

Last updated in version 5.1

File: GrD61247

Weevily Wheat

DESCRIPTION: "Charlie, he's a nice young man, Charlie he's a dandy." Stories about Charlie's attempts at courting and his visits to town. The mention of "Weevily wheat" and lines such as "Over the river to feed my sheep" are common.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1911

KEYWORDS: courting nonballad playparty floatingverses

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE,So)

REFERENCES (36 citations):
Randolph 520, "Weevily Wheat" (7 texts, some fragmentary or excerpted, 1 tune)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 397-399, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 520A)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 67, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text plus a possibly-rewritten fragment)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 67, "Weevily Wheat" (2 tunes plus text excerpts); also p. 521, "Weevily Wheat" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Fuson-BalladsOfTheKentuckyHighlands, p. 164, "Over the River to Charlie" (1 text)
Cambiaire-EastTennesseeWestVirginiaMountainBallads, p. 140, "Weevily Wheat" (1 short text)
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol1, p. 28, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains, p. 41, "Charlie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 151-152, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 103-106, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text, 1 tune, plus some loose verses)
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, pp. 200-201, 202-203, "Weevily Wheat" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Linscott-FolkSongsOfOldNewEngland, pp. 262-263, "Over the Water to Charlie" (1 short text, 1 tune, primarily a version of this although it incorporates a single verse of "Over the Water to Charlie")
Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, pp. 200-200, "Weevily Wheat" (2 texts)
Wolford-ThePlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 102-106=Wolford/Richmond/Tillson-PlayPartyInIndiana, pp. 288-290, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text plus many additional stanzas, 1 tune)
List-SingingAboutIt-FolkSongsInSouthernIndiana, pp. 152-157, "Weevily Wheat"; pp. 158-164, "Over the River to Charlie's" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Beck-LoreOfTheLumberCamps 58, "(Shanty-Boy Dance Jingles: We won't have any weev'ly wheat)" (1 short text)
McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, pp. 58-60, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sackett/Koch-KansasFolklore, pp. 217-218, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 167, "Charlie's Sweet" (4 texts, 4 tunes)
Richardson/Spaeth-AmericanMountainSongs, p. 86, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 161, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, p. 286, (no title) (3 fragments)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 290-293, "Weevily Wheat" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Lomax-FolkSongsOfNorthAmerica 163, "Twistification" (1 text, 1 tune, with a counting chorus and modified verses)
Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 44, "Who'll be King but Charlie?" (1 text, 1 tune, with "Weevily Wheat" verses but obviously also some kinship to "Wha'll Be King but Charlie")
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, p. 125, "Charlie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheCumberlands, pp. 60-61, "[Charlie]" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, p. 72, "Over the River Charlie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Thomas-DevilsDitties, p. 69, "Prince Charlie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 96, "Over the water and over the lea" (3 texts)
Baring-Gould-AnnotatedMotherGoose #144, p. 115, "(Over the Water and over the lea)"
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, p. 161, "Charley, He's a Good Ol' Man" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin-TreasuryOfAmericanFolklore, pp. 813-814, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 36, "Weevily Wheat" (1 text)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Charles Bond, "Unpublished Folklore in the Brown Collection," Vol. XX, No. 1 (Feb 1972), pp. 15-16, "Miss Lucy, or Twistification" (1 text, with chorus "Roll on the floor (x3), Till life's roll is o'er" and verses "I went down to see Miss Lucy, Oh, I'd never been there before" and "As I was a-goin' down the road, I met a rabbit and I met a toad"; although the game "Twistification" is sometimes linked with "Weevily Wheat," the verses look more like "The Catfish (Banjo Sam)" and perhaps "Roll on the Ground (Big Ball's in Town)" or "Karo Song")
DT, WEEVWHT*
Roud #729
RECORDINGS:
Granville Bowlin, "Charlie's Neat" (on MMOK, MMOKCD)
Kelly Harrell, "Charley, He's a Good Old Man" (Victor 21069, 1927; on KHarrell02, CrowTold02)
Eunice Yeatts MacAlexander, "Over the River to Charlie" (on FarMtns1)
New Lost City Ramblers, "Charley, He's a Good Old Man" (on NLCR10)
Jean Ritchie, "Over the River Charlie" (on RitchieWatsonCD1)
Ritchie Family, "Charlie" (on Ritchie03)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Roll the Tater (Rolly Rolly)" (floating lyrics, meter)
 cf. "Fly Around, My Pretty Little Miss" (floating lyrics)
 cf. "Rosey Apple Lemon and Pear" (floating lyrics)
NOTES [305 words]: Certain authorities (e.g. Andrew Lang, according to the Opies) have conjectured that the "Charlie" of this song is Bonnie Prince Charlie. (Alan Lomax goes so far as to derive it from the Scots "Charlie Over the Water.") It would be hard to prove either way. Those seeking to find every version of this song should also check "Fly Around, My Pretty Little Miss," which I think might be another version of this song. But others disagree.... - RBW
Well, I'd say they're at least siblings; at least one version of "Weevily Wheat" has the same tune as "Fly Around, My Pretty Little Miss." - PJS
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs matches the Weevily Wheat pattern but includes the lines "cross the water to Charlie" and -- in the chorus -- "There's none like royal Charlie." In this sense at least it's close to Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 44. - BS
Consider the song attributed to Carolina Oliphant, Lady Nairne (1766-1845) at Charles W. Eliot, editor, English Poetry Vol II From Collins to Fitzgerald (New York, 1910), #335, pp. 564-565, "Wha'll Be King But Charlie?" (Carolina Oliphant, Lady Nairne). The Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 44 chorus shares lines in its chorus ("Come round the heather, ... You're welcome late and early, Around him fling [Nairne: "cling"] your royal king, For who'll be king but Charlie?"). ... The latter is usually called "Wha'll Be King But Charlie" (the title used in the Index) or "The News frae Moldart," and it is certainly about Bonnie Prince Charlie. And it does mix with some "Weevily Wheat" versions. (Almost everything does!) But it is definitely an independent song, and the tune
I've heard (admittedly from Silly Wizard, hardly an authoritative source) is distinct. Roud lumps a whole raft of "Charlie" songs, but that's more desperation than anything else. - RBW

Welcome (to Lyda Messer Caudill)

DESCRIPTION: "The banners of our county bright Are waving in the breeze; Now we are living in the light...." "In accents sweet proclaim the news... We have a worthy leader, Our superintendent dear." The singer hopes the school superintendent will lead well

AUTHOR: Edgar Hamm
EARLIEST DATE: 1939 (Thomas)
KEYWORDS: nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thomas-BalladMakingInMountainsOfKentucky, pp. 254-255, "Welcome" (1 text)

NOTES [41 words]: I can't say with certainty that this is the most trivial thing I've ever seen memorialized in song -- but, other than Edgar Hamm's other school song, "Inspiration (The Rowan County Teachers)," I haven't a better candidate off the top of my head. - RBW

Welcome Home (I)

DESCRIPTION: Call-and-response gospel song. "Welcome home, welcome home (x2), I wanna hear Jesus saying, welcome home. You been workin... Come on home, oh, child, sit down and rest a little while." "I been travelin' over hills." "Don't cry no more"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1980 (Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, p. 156, "Welcome Home" (1 text)

Welcome My Bonnie Lad

DESCRIPTION: The singer says "Welcome, my bonny lad, come when ye will" Her mother wants her to marry the rich laird and says "love will fly quickly when want's at the door." "What are his riches and broad lands to me?" If she marries any, she'll marry Donald.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Greig/Duncan5)
KEYWORDS: courting love money nonballad mother
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan5 997, "Welcome My Bonnie Lad" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #6733

Welcome Table (Streets of Glory, God's Going to Set This World on Fire)

DESCRIPTION: "God's going to set this world on fire... One o' these days." "I'm going to walk and talk with Jesus... "I'm going to climb up Jacob's ladder." "All you sinners gonna turn up missing." "God don't want no coward soldiers... Some of these days."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (recording, Florida Normal Quartet)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad floatingverses rejection death resurrection gods Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE,So) Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (12 citations):
Welcome Yule

DESCRIPTION: "Welcome be thou, heaven king, Welcome born in one morning, Welcome for whom we sing, Welcome Yule, thou merry man, In worship of this holy day." Stephen and John's days, New Year, Candlemass, and guests are welcomed

AUTHOR: John Audelay the blind? (see NOTES)

EARLIEST DATE: c. 1426 (Bodleian MS. Douce 302); printed by Ritson 1790

KEYWORDS: Christmas MiddleEnglish
FOUND IN: Britain (England)
REFERENCES (11 citations):
Greene-TheEarlyEnglishCarols, #7, pp. 6-7, "(no title)" (2 texts)
Sidgwick/Chambers-EarlyEnglishLyrics CXXXIV, p. 232, "(no title)" (1 text)
Ritson-AncientSongsBalladsFromHenrySecondToTheRevolution, pp. 120-121, "Wolcum Yol" (1 text)
Rickert-AncientEnglishChristmasCarols, pp. 121-122, "Welcome Yule" (1 text)
Dearmer/VaughnWilliams/Shaw-OxfordBookOfCarols 174, "Welcome Yule" (1 text, 1 modern tune)
Brown/Robbins-IndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #3877
DigitalIndexOfMiddleEnglishVerse #6189
MANUSCRIPT: (MSSloane2593), London, British Library, MS. Sloane 2593, folio 32 MANUSCRIPT: Oxford, Bodleian Library, MS Douce 302 (Bodleian 21876), folio 28
NOTES [1815 words]: This poses a real conundrum. On the one hand, Oxford, Bodleian Library, MS Douce 302 is a manuscript of the poems of the poet John Aud(e)lay (Audlay, Audley, Awdelay; not to be confused with the printer of the latter name who worked in the late sixteenth century) the blind, who churned out a great many pieces of this particular sort. On the other, it is also found (in rather different form) in British Library MS. Sloane 2593, an altogether better collection of carols with some folk links and no connection to Audeley. So did Audelay somehow slip something into Sloane, or did Audelay take a traditional piece and touch it up? There is really no way to tell. On the chance that the piece is traditional, I've included it.
Other than a few items found in a second copy, our entire knowledge of Audelay's work comes from the items in the Douce manuscript; even the few pieces which exist in other copies are listed as anonymous in those copies.
According to Audelay/Fein, pp. 4-5, the Douce manuscript was written by two scribes -- but in phases rather than the two scribes working on different parts of the book. One scribe, referred to as "A," wrote the basic text, leaving space for such things as titles and decorations. It would appear that he worked, to a significant extent, from already-written documents, not dictation, since there appear to be places where he left blank space for a better copy. The fact that blanks were left indicates that the overall arrangement of the work had been planned in advance by Audelay (and the arrangement, rather than the verse, seems to be what interests Middle English scholars the most, since there are few parallels to it; Robert J. Meyer-Lee, on p. 54 of FeinEtAl, calls it "the first fully conscious effort in English to triangulate authorship and authority). Once scribe A had finished. scribe B took over the project, making corrections to the text, adding titles, incipits, and explicits in red, and initials and other illuminations in red and blue. He also perfected and proofread the book and added several final items. On the evidence, both scribes worked with Audelay, not just from his papers. Based on their roles, one suspects that, although both were monks at Haughmond Abbey, where Audelay worked, scribe B was more experienced and more senior.
Not only is the Douce manuscript the only source for Audelay's poetry, it is also almost the only source of information about him (Audelay/Fein, p. 6) -- and much even of that is probably missing because of the loss of the beginning of the manuscript.
Of Audelay personally, we find that he refers regularly to himself, and usually says he was blind -- e.g. one of his carols says that it was made by "Your broder, Jon, the blynd Awdlay" (Chambers, p. 88). Another says "Thus prophesis the blynd Awdlay" (Chambers, p. 94). One of the Latin colophons in the Douce manuscript describes Audelay; Fein offers this translation: "This book was composed by John Audelay, chaplain, who was blind and deaf in his affliction, to the honor of our Lord Jesus Christ and to serve as a model for others in the monastery of Haughmond. In the year 1426 A.D. May God be propitious to his soul" (Audelay/Fein, p. 1). The assumption, then, is that he died in 1426 (and so must have been born in the mid to late fourteenth century), although it is possible that it was simply the date of the manuscript. At the time he wrote, he was based at Haughmond Abbey, Shropshire.
Our only other information about him is a mention in another source that John Audelay was chaplain to Lord Richard Lestrange in 1417 when Lestrange made a visit to London -- during which Lestrange assaulted another peer and ended up in the Tower of London and was forced to pay a heavy fine (Fein/Audelay, p. 6; more detail is in Michael J. Bennett's article on Audelay's life on pp.
Audelay clearly stayed with Lestrange after that; when Lestrange founded a chantry for himself in 1424, Audelay became the chantry priest (Meyer-Lee, on p. 64 of FeinEtAl). It is reasonable to guess that this was to allow the priest, who presumably knew by then that he was losing his sight and perhaps his hearing, to live a less stressful life. One would also guess that it was then that Audelay began to assemble his book, although it is likely that some of the poems are older. The first part, from the colophon, was finished by 1426. Perhaps the whole book was; we cannot tell. And the colophon might have been written because Audelay had died, but again, we can't be sure -- after all, he talked about himself a lot while he was still alive!

Chambers concludes (p. 94) that "On the whole I feel that Awdelay is rather remote from the main tradition of carol development." (I'd have to agree; what ordinary poet would write a carol about circumcision, even if it is the Feast Day of the Lord's Circumcision. Oddly enough, this appears to be Audelay's most popular carol with modern composers, Audelay/Fein, p. 17, mentions several settings and recordings.) FeinEtAl, p. 3, discussing his character, sees him "veering from prophet of doom to preaching egotist."

Robert J. Meyer-Lee calls his writings "profoundly ordinary" (FeinEtAl, p. 54) and calls his verse "rigorously uninteresting" (FeinEtAl, p. 55). "Trite" strikes me as a good word. Woolf, p 296, at least credits him with a "characteristic sweetness of imagination and feeling," and Fein (FeinEtAl, p. 4), calls him an "innovator in verse forms." Thorlac Turville-Petrie says he "overloads his stanza with more complicating features than any poet could control with entire success.... [His poem 'Three Dead Kings'] can claim to be the most ornate in the language" (FeinEtAl, p. 252). One of his favorites was a thirteen-line stanza (FeinEtAl, p. 9) that would have been very hard to set to music.

In his carols, he was fond of an almost-as-difficult seven-line form, although his most usual form was a six-line stanza, aaabBB (FeinEtAl, p. 16), which obviously isn't especially common in surviving carols.

The Douce manuscript looks as if it was Audelay's original amanuensis manuscript; it contains many corrections and revisions that sound as if they came from the author (Chambers, p. 92). It is somewhat damaged; the beginning is lost, and it is estimated that a quarter to a third of it is missing (Audelay/Fein, p. 5). The manuscript as it now exists contains some 62 poems that claim to be his work, although five have been found elsewhere (Chambers, p. 93). In general his work is pretty pedestrian -- orthodox, metrically correct, uninspired and uninspiring.

On the other hand, Audelay had a most un-medieval tendency to slip his name into his writings (Audelay/Fein, p. 1 counts 16 uses of his name in 35 pages of manuscript), making it easy to identify those pieces as his. Robert J. Meyer-Lee writes that his "rate of explicit versified self-naming far exceeds that of any other medieval English poet, including those inveterate self-namers, Audelay's contemporaries [Thomas] Hoccleve and John Lydgate" (FeinEtAl, p. 55). His name is not in this carol. But it looks to me as if Audelay used his name more often in the non-carols. (One possible reason for Audelay using his name so much, that I have not seen elsewhere: Wagner, p. 269, mentions a James Touchet, Lord Audley, who was justiciar of South Wales from 1423, later held other offices, and had lands in Staffordshire, Shropshire, and Cheshire. Lord Audley was clearly a Big Deal in the area where Audelay was writing his book. Spelling was a chancy thing in the 1400s; maybe Audelay wanted to make people think he was related to Lord Audley.)

Audelay's self-interest is so surprising (to me at least) to see one of his pieces clearly associated with the Sloane Lyrics (for this song) and other carol sources. Greene, p. 254, on this basis, says that "Audelay's original authorship of the carol is doubtful," suggesting that and the Sloane version are probably both modified versions of a (lost) original. Chambers, p. 93, thinks Greene is being "hypercritical." Julia Boffey thinks it likely that many of the carols were written by others and adapted by Audelay (FeinEtAl, p. 222). She also suggests that several that occur in both the Audelay manuscript and in Richard Hill's manuscript of a century later probably circulated as a group, since they occur close together in the Hill manuscript as well as the Douce manuscript. It seems certain that Audelay wrote at least some of his carols, though, because who else would write a carol about Henry VI, or even about obscure saints such as Saint Winifred? (FeinEtAl, p. 223).

Audelay's book includes 25 carols, in a separate section -- considered to be the oldest collections of English carols (Audelay/Fein, p. 15). Certainly it has one of the earliest references to CHRISTMAS carols. The beginning of the section (which may be an addition by Scribe B) reads:

I pray yow, syres, bothe moore and la [I pray you, sirs, both more and less],
Syng these caroles in Christemas [FeinEtAl, p. 11].

For a collection of Audelay's work, see Audelay/Fein. Much of the material in this book is also available online.
As regards whether Audelay wrote (as opposed to redacting) this piece, Oliver Pickering says that "Audelay's poetic abilities declined as his urge to save souls increased" (FeinEtAl, p. 131). The carols aren't so devoted to soul-saving, so maybe he could have managed them.

Greene, p. 254, says that the two distinct manuscript versions of this carol, Sloane and Douce, indicate two different ways of looking at the Christmas season: the Audelay version runs only through New Year, and hence the Twelve Days of Christmas through Epiphany; the Sloane version runs through the forty days until Candlemas.

This is not, in terms of manuscripts, the most popular carol associated with Audelay. One of his pieces (the circumcision carol, verse beginning "A babe is borne of hye natrewre"; burden beginning "What tythingis bryngst vs, messenger"; Greene, #117, pp. 74-75; Fein/Audelay #11, pp. 10-11), occurs in three manuscripts, Douce 302 (of course) plus {MSArchSeldenB26}, Oxford, Bodleian Library Arch. Selden B.26, folio 15 and {MSCamTrinityO.3.58}, Cambridge, Trinity College MS. O.3.58. But the latter two share many pieces and are clearly related; they share the same four-verse subset of the Douce text, although with a minor change of order. And none of the three has the connection with tradition that the Seldon manuscript of this poem does.

Even more noteworthy is "A Babe Is Born All of a May," which is in two very important manuscripts, the Sloane Manuscript which also contains this piece and the Richard Hill manuscript. If anything from Audelay had a traditional vogue, I think it is either this or that piece.

For more on manuscript Sloane 2593, see the notes to "Robyn and Gandeleyn" [Child 115]. - RBW

Bibliography

- Audelay/Fein: John the Blind Audelay, Poems and Carols (Oxford, Bodleian Library MS Douce 302), edited by Susanna Fein, TEAMS (Consortium for the Teaching of the Middle Ages), Medieval Institute Publications, Western Michigan University, 2009
- Chambers: E. K. Chambers, English Literature at the Close of the Middle Ages, Oxford, 1945, 1947
- FeinEtAl: Susanna Fein, editor, My Wyl and My Wrytyng: Essays on John the Blind Audelay, Medieval Institute Publications, 2009

Last updated in version 5.3
File: OBC174

Welcome, Royal Charlie (I)

DESCRIPTION: "The man that should our king hae been, He wore the royal red and green." He defeats the Hanoverians at Falkirk and Prestonpans. Since he has left a German rules and we "daurna brew a peck o' maut." Whelps sit on his throne. Charlie! drive them away.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1821 (Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2)

KEYWORDS: nonballad political Jacobites

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2 71, "Welcome, Royal Charlie" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
- Greig/Duncan1 136, "Welcome Royal Charlie" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #5817

NOTES [227 words]: The last verse includes the lines "Though every dog maun hae its day, The right belongs to Charlie." Is this the source for the "every dog will have its day" restatement of Hamlet V.i.273-274?

Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2: "There are many editions of this song, which is popular all over the country, both south and north."

For references to Falkirk and Prestonpans see "Tranent Muir" and "The Muir of Culloden." - BS

Many versions of this say something like, "Oh, you've been lang a-coming." This was a great complaint of the Jacobites: James the Old Pretender had briefly made an appearance in 1715 after the Fifteen had pretty well fizzled out, but no member of the Stuart family had appeared in Britain again until Bonnie Prince Charlie showed up in 1745. By then it was almost too late; the Jacobite cause was fading. Not that the Stuarts had much choice; James was more a liability than a help to his cause due to his extreme pessimism, and Charles could hardly lead the rebellion as an infant. Besides, the French and Jacobites needed the War of the Austrian Succession to distract the British government. All in all, it was a tricky situation for the Jacobites. But it did cost them -- George II, while no prize, was certainly more attractive than his father George I, and by 1745, most of those who had opposed the accession of George I were dead. - RBW

Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD1136

Welcome, Royal Charlie (II)

DESCRIPTION: "Arouse, arouse, ilk kilted clan! Let Highland hearts lead on the van, Forward wi' her dirk in han', To fight for royal Charlie" Auld Scotia's sons would rally around him. "Welcome to our isle again"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1817 (Scots Magazine, according to Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2)

KEYWORDS: nonballad political Jacobites

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2 72, "Welcome, Royal Charlie" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #30982

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 45(15) View 3 of 3, "Welcome Charlie O'er the Main" ("Arouse, arouse, each kilted clan!") J. Smyth (Belfast), 1813-1850; also 2806 d.31(4), "Royal Charlie"
NLScotland, RB.m.168(248), "The Landing of Royal Charlie," T. Birt (London), c.1840

NOTES [22 words]: Hogg-JacobiteRelicsOfScotlandVol2: "Copied from the Scots Magazine for February 1817, and has the signature 'F.C. Banks of Clyde.'" - BS

Last updated in version 5.1
File: Hogg2072

Weldon

DESCRIPTION: "Let's go down to Weldon, I think I heard them say (x2), Rally, rally, rally, I think I heard them say (x2)." "My girl lives in Weldon." "One and a half in Weldon." "Let's all get drunk in Weldon. "Fare thee well in Weldon."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1936 (Owens, Swing and Turn, according to Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty)

KEYWORDS: playparty travel drink

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Spurgeon-WaltzTheHall-AmericanPlayParty, p. 204, "Weldon" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #7928

File: SPurg204

Well I Couldn't Care Less

DESCRIPTION: "Well I couldn't care less for the killick of the mess Or the Buffer of the working party. I'm pulling off ashore at a quarter past four, I'm Jack-me-bleedin'-hearty."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1987 (Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy)

KEYWORDS: sailor ship escape derivative

FOUND IN: Britain

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Tawney-GreyFunnelLines-RoyalNavy, p. 48, "Well I Couldn't Care Less" (1 text, tune referenced)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Girl I Left Behind Me" (tune)

File: Tawn032
Well Met, Pretty Maid (The Sweet Nightingale)

DESCRIPTION: Singer invites girl to hear the nightingale; he offers to carry her pail. She demurs; "I've hands of my own." They agree to marry; now she's not afraid to go out walking or to "hear the fond tale of the sweet nightingale/As she sings in the valley below"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1776 (Journal from the _Ann_)
KEYWORDS: courting love sex marriage bird rejection seduction
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South,West))
REFERENCES (8 citations):
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 467-470, "The Sweet Nightingale" (1 text)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 45, "To Milk in the Valley Below" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Wt 494)
Purslow-TheConstantLovers, p. 106, "Well Met, Pretty Maid" (1 text, 1 tune)
Gundry-CanowKernow-SongsDancesFromCornwall, pp. 20-21, "Sweet Nightingale" (1 text plus a Cornish translation, 1 tune in two arrangements)
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 187-188, "A New Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hugill-ShantiesFromTheSevenSeas, p. 562, "Sweet Nightingale" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 89, "An Eos Whek [The Sweet Nightingale]" (1 text + Cornish translation, 1 tune)
DT, NITINGAL
Roud #371
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Now the Winter Is Over (The Ploughboy)" (form, theme)
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Nightingale
NOTES [231 words]: Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland's Cornish words are a revivalist translation from the English. The song has been collected from tradition several times, but positively shouts out a composed origin. Kennedy lumps it with "The Valley Below," but as the plots are notably different, I don't. They certainly share a common ancestor, though, possibly in Thomas Arne's opera "Thomas and Sally" (1761). - PJS
I doubt even that much, and the fact that Kennedy lumps them (on no basis at all that I can see) makes me doubt all his other references. The one thing I'll allow is his claim that the song has a very fine melody. I've used a title from JFSS because that's the way I learned the song.
It's very difficult to know what to do with songs of this type. Huntington thinks his text is a survival of the Corydon/Colin-and-Phyllis/Phoebe type. Purslow claims it was based on an aria from Thomas Arne's opera "Thomas and Sally," with Isaac Bickerstaff's words little change although Arne's tune has drifted. As Paul observes, it sounds more like a minstrel than a folk piece. But Theodore Bikel and Cynthia Gooding recorded something quite similar (under the "Well Met" title), and there are enough broadsides with similar form that I decided I needed to include the song.
The trick now is to decide which of these many pieces actually belong here, and which are orphan broadsides.... - RBW
Last updated in version 5.1
File: K089

Well of Spring Water, The

DESCRIPTION: Singer met a lass on her way to a well "who at once won my admiration" (more than his mother!). He declares his love. They fall into the well. They can't remember the rest that was said but married soon after. Their daughter Maureen is like her mother.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan)
KEYWORDS: courting love marriage children derivative
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Munnelly/Deasy-TheMountCallanGarland-Tom-Lenihan 6, "The Well of Spring Water" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #5215
RECORDINGS:
Tom Lenihan, "The Well of Spring Water" (on IRTLenihan01)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Can of Spring Water" (form)
NOTES [33 words]: There can be no doubt that this song derives from "The Can of Spring Water" but that is a seduction ballad with different details, lines and tone from this. Roud assigns the same number to both. - BS
File: RcWeSpWa

Well Rung, Tom!
DESCRIPTION: "Well rung, Tom boy! Well rung Tom! Ding dong! Cuckoo! Well rung, Tom. The owl and the cuckoo, the fool and the song Well sung, cuckoo; Well rung, Tom."
AUTHOR: Henry Purcell (c.1659-1695) (see notes)
EARLIEST DATE: 1923 (Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames)
KEYWORDS: music bird
FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 305, "Well Rung, Tom!" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Mi 737)
Roud #1342
NOTES [48 words]: The current description is all of the Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames text.
At least two sites claim Henry Purcell as the author (Laymusic and Swarthmore College Computer Society), and you can find the tune at the former site. That may not be authoritative but it's a starting point. - BS
Last updated in version 2.6
File: WT305C

Wells and Fargo Line, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer tells of "...the men who served their time For robbing mountain stages on the Wells and Fargo Line." Among the criminals who haunted the route were Major Thompson, Jimmy Miner, Old Jim Hughes, and Black Bart
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966
KEYWORDS: travel robbery prison
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Fife/Fife-CowboyAndWesternSongs 18, "The Wells and Fargo Line" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #11083
File: FCW18

Wells o' Wearie, The
DESCRIPTION: The singer leaves Edinborough to spend the afternoon with Mary Grieve at the wells of Wearie. Her mother has given him permission to discuss marriage. Whatever the future holds, "True glory and wealth are mine wi' Mary Grieve" "Gang wi' me"
AUTHOR: Alexander A. Ritchie (1816-1850) (source: Whistle-Binkie)
EARLIEST DATE: 1842 (Whistle-Binkie)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage nonballad mother
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast "Folk-Song in Buchan," p. 15, ("We're a' noddin") (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan4 904 "The Wells o' Wearie," Greig/Duncan8 Addenda, "The Wells o' Wearie" (3 texts, 2 tunes)
ADDITIONAL: Alexander Rodger, editor, Whistle-Binkie, Fourth Series (Glasgow, 1842), pp. 6-7, "The Wells o' Wearie"
Roud #5756
CROSS-REFERENCES:
Welsh Relation, The

DESCRIPTION: "I was born not far from Cornwall In a place called the Welsh Mountain." The singer and Mary ride a donkey, "You never did see such a big time before." They go to the railroad station and party with John and Shawn; the sound of the train frightens Mary.

AUTHOR: attributed to Tom Jones of Dodgeville, Wisconsin

EARLIEST DATE: 1940 (Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin)

KEYWORDS: animal travel train party

FOUND IN: US(MW)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 49, "The Welsh Relation" (1 text)

Roud #9084

File: Pet049

Went to the River (I)

DESCRIPTION: "I went to the river an' I couldn't get across, I jumped on a (log/alligator/nigger/possum/etc.) an' thought it was a horse."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Jekyll-JamaicanSongAndStory)

KEYWORDS: river floating verses

FOUND IN: US(SE,So) West Indies (Jamaica)

REFERENCES (5 citations):

Randolph 258, "Ease that Trouble in the Mind" (1 fragment)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 193, "Went to the River and I Couldn't Get Across" (1 fragment)
Scarborough-OnTheTrailOfNegroFolkSongs, pp. 184-185, (no title) (3 fragments plus an item entitled "Sister Cyarine" which has a chorus and might perhaps be something else)
Jekyll-JamaicanSongAndStory 130, ("Oh we went to the river an' we couldn' get across!") (1 fragment, 1 tune)

Roud #469

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Johnny Booker (Mister Booger)" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Limber Jim" (floating lyrics)
cf. "Mary Mack (I)" (floating lyrics)

NOTES [211 words]: Another of those ubiquitous floating verses, filed separately because it so often "appears" separately.

Randolph's version of this has a chorus: "I went to the river an' I couldn't get across, Ease that trouble in the mind, I jumped on a log an' thought it was a horse, Ease that trouble in the mind." But he has only a single four-line stanza, so it's not clear if the verse floated into something else or if there is a complete song. - RBW Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes 362, "My mother said that I never should" includes an "I came to a river and I couldn't get across" verse: "'I came to a river' has had a long life as a make-weight verse in American play-party and minstrel songs. It is first noted in 'Clare de Kitchen, or Old Virginia Never Tire' (c.1838)." (cf. "Charleston Gals (Clear the Kitchen)"

TakingOpie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes's lead, the Public Domain Music site has an entry from "Minstrel Songs, Old and New" (1883) pp 152-153 for "'Clare de Kitchen; or, De Kentucky Screamer' (1832) Words and Music by Thomas Dartmouth (Daddy) Rice, 1808-1860" with verse 2 "I went to de creek, I couldn't git across, I'd nobody wid me but an old blind horse; But Were Ye at the Fair?

DESCRIPTION: Were you at the fair/church, Did you see many people -- or did you come by the steeple -- did you see our goodman, Riding on a beetle/ladle?

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1828 (Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2)

KEYWORDS: nonballad bug

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Bord))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Lyle-Andrew-CrawfurdsCollectionVolume2 205, "Were Ye at the Fair?" (1 text)
- ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Popular Rhymes of Scotland (Edinburgh, 1870 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 19. ("Cam ye by the kirk, Cam ye by the steeple?") (1 text)

NOTES [106 words]: "Riding the beetle -- Those who are on foot, or shanks naigie, with a party on horseback, are said to be riding the beetle. 'War ye at the fair, saw ye mony people, Saw ye our gude man riding on the beetle?' Auld sang." (source: John MacTaggart, The Scottish Gallovidian Encyclopedia (second edition) (London,1876 ("Digitized by Google")), p. 409)

On the other hand, Chambers says, "There was a great deal of equestrian exercise in the old nursery, the knee being the ever-ready substitute for a steed"; Chambers's text ends "Riding on a ladle." - BS

Could this somehow be related to the Jacobite song "Came Ye O'er Frae France"? - RBW

File: LyCr2205

Were You Ever in Dumbarton?

DESCRIPTION: "Were you ever in Dumbarton, Where they wear the tartan (x2), little above the knee.... My love she is so neat and small, She won't have me at all (x2), But try to get her full and then she'll marry me... Oh, if I had her, happy I would be."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1971

KEYWORDS: courting clothes travel love

FOUND IN: US(MA)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 307-308, "Were You Ever in Dumbarton?" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #9421

File: Doe307

Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?

DESCRIPTION: "Were you there when they crucified my Lord (x2), Sometimes it causes me to tremble, tremble; Were you there when...." "Were you there when they nailed him to the tree?"

...pierced him in the side?" "...the sun refused to shine...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1899 (New England Magazine; see NOTES)

KEYWORDS: religious Jesus nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (7 citations):
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 768, "Was You There When They Crucified Jesus?" (1 short text, 1 tune)
ADDITIONAL: Charles Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns (Hallberg, 1982), p. 147, "Were You There?" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #11409

RECORDINGS:
Roy Acuff, "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord" (Columbia 20550, 1949)
Fisk Jubilee Singers, "Were You There?" (on Fisk01)
Minnie Gracie Gadson, "Were You Dere?" (on USSealsIsland03)
Roland Hayes, "Were You There" (Columbia 69812-D, 1939)
Uncle Dave Macon, "Was You There When They Took My Lord Away" (OKeh 45522, 1931; rec. 1930)
Wade Mainer, "Were You There" (Bluebird B-8273, 1939)

NOTES [208 words]: Jim Dixon points out to me that "Lyrics and music to WERE YOU THERE? appeared in an article "Recent Negro Melodies" by William E. Barton, D.D., in The New England Magazine, Vol. XIX, No. 6, February, 1899, page 714. It was the third in a series of articles; the two earlier ones were called 'Old Plantation Hymns' and 'Hymns of the Slave and the Freedman.' Barton doesn't name a specific source for WERE YOU THERE? but he mentions the Jubilee Singers in the earlier two articles.

"All three articles were collected and published that same year as a book called Old Plantation Hymns but the book seems to be nothing more than offprints from the magazine, with the page numbers changed. The book doesn't credit the magazine nor vice versa."

"The annual reports of the American Missionary Association show that the Jubilee Singers sang WERE YOU THERE WHEN THEY CRUCIFIED MY LORD? at five consecutive annual meetings, 1898 to 1902. So it seems likely that the Jubilee Singers were Barton's source."

All three sources above can be found on Google Books. The information is also found in Marilyn Kay Stulken, Hymnal Companion to the Lutheran Book of Worship, Fortress Press, 1981, p. 192. - RBW

Barton is a reprint of the articles cited by Jim Dixon. - BS

Last updated in version 6.0

File: FSWB367A

West Branch Song, The

DESCRIPTION: "Come fellowmen and lend an ear A melancholy tale to hear." "About one poor mortal." "He hired out with William Brown To help him drive his lumber down." "He started out to break a jam." He falls into the water far from a boat. McMann pulls out his body

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Gray-SongsAndBalladsOfTheMaineLumberjacks)

KEYWORDS: logger death drowning lumbering

FOUND IN: US(NE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Gray-SongsAndBalladsOfTheMaineLumberjacks, pp. 22-23, "The West Branch Song" (1 text)

File: Gray022

West Fork Girls

DESCRIPTION: "Lay around in the summer time, Stored up all my gold, Lay around in the winter time, Jesus, ain't it cold." Many floating verse: "Apples in the summer time," "Higher up the cherry tree." "You can talk to your sweetheart But you leave mine alone."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5)

KEYWORDS: love courting floating verses

FOUND IN: US(Ap)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol5, pp. 52-53, "West Fork Girls" (1 text, 1 tune)
West Palm Beach Storm

DESCRIPTION: "On the sixteenth day of September, In 1928, God started riding early, He rode till very late. In the storm, oh in the storm, Lord, somebody got drowned in the storm." The singer alludes to several tragedies and warns people to "get the Holy Ghost."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida)

KEYWORDS: storm death warning religious

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Sep 17, 1928 - the "Okeechobee hurricane," having already done great damage in the Caribbean, makes landfall in Florida near West Palm Beach. According to Wikipedia, the storm killed at least 2500 people in Florida and more than 4000 people overall.

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #48, "West Palm Beach Storm" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 323-324, "West Palm Beach Storm" (1 text)

Roud #4145

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Miami Hairikin" (subject)

NOTES [7 words]: This is item dG47 in Laws's Appendix II. - RBW

Last updated in version 3.7

File: CAFS1323

West Plains Explosion, The

DESCRIPTION: "In the little town of West Plains, In old Missouri state," the spring flowers are blooming and young people gather for a dance when the building explodes. Forty people are killed in the blast. We can't explain why, but "we'll meet them over there"

AUTHOR: Carson J. Robison (source: Henigan)

EARLIEST DATE: before 1935 (recording, Vernon Dalhart)

KEYWORDS: death disaster dancing

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1928 - the West Plains Dance Hall explosion

FOUND IN: US(So)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: Julie Henigan, "Ozark Ballads as Song and Story," article in Missouri Folklore Society Journal, Volume 27-28 (cover date 2005-2006, but published 2015), pp. 159-185; pp. 168-169, "The West Plains Explosion" (1 text, as sung by Iva Haslett)

Roud #15818

RECORDINGS:
Vernon Dalhart, "The West Plains Explosion" (Edison 11002)

File: Heni168

West River Railroad

DESCRIPTION: "We've got a little railroad And it isn't very wide. We put in twenty thousand And quite a lot beside." Few travelers take the train: "A sheriff and a parson, Three ladies... and a little red calf." After humorous incidents, all arrive AUTHOR: Mr. and Mrs. Julian Johnson ?

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads)

KEYWORDS: railroading train humorous money
West Virginia Farmer, The

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, the West Virginia hills, with their many rocks and rills," force the singer into a hard career of trying to scratch out a living. He must plow and harvest in the heat. His pigs die of cholera. When winter comes, he must find wood or freeze

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills)
KEYWORDS: work home hardtimes
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, pp. 109-111, "The West Virginia Farmer" (1 text, 1 tune)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 168, "The West Virginia Farmer" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, pp. 35-36, "The West Virginia Farmer" (1 text)
Roud #5422
File: CAFS1221

West Virginia Feud Song, A

DESCRIPTION: A story of the "Lincoln County crew." Ale Brumfield is shot, perhaps by Milt Haley, but Brumfield (who survives) blames "McCoy." Later, at George Fries's house, a fight begins and many are killed. The singer blames the fight on drink

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1916 (Cox)
KEYWORDS: feud death drink
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 40, "A West-Virginia Feud Song" (1 text)
Roud #465
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Rowan County Crew (Trouble, or Tragedy)" [Laws E20]
NOTES [54 words]: Cox views this as a reworking of "The Rowan County Crew," and Laws (in the notes to that song) evidently agrees. (Roud lumps them.) The resulting song is rare, and the Cox text is confused; it's not even clear who feuded with whom! The informants believed that the fight took place in 1890, near Hamlin, West Virginia. - RBW
File: LE20A

West Virginia Lad

DESCRIPTION: "I'm a West Virginia lad, raised on ramps and mush and bread, Wlth some meat of the rarest, purest kind. I know I am no fool, though I never went to school...." The singer adds additional detail about West Virginia life and girls

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1953 (collected from Roy A. West)
KEYWORDS: home food nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
West-Country Damosel's Complaint, The [Child 292]

DESCRIPTION: The girl begs William to marry her; if he will not, she bids him kill her. He callously tells her to live in the greenwood. She tries, but at last begs her sister for alms. The sister drives her away. Willie finds her dead and mourns his cruelty

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1695
KEYWORDS: courting abandonment poverty death sister love
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
  Child 292, "The West-Country Damosel's Complaint" (1 text)
  Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN2899, "When will you Marry me William"
Roud #3959
NOTES [40 words]: Child is of the opinion that this is a composite piece, with the first eleven stanzas being popular and the remaining thirteen being literary. As both the tone and the rhyme scheme change in the final stanzas, he is quite possibly correct. - RBW

West's Asleep, The

DESCRIPTION: "While every side a vigil keep, The West's asleep, the West's asleep." The singer laments the "slumbering slaves" in a land that demands Freedom and Nationhood. But a voice announces "'the West's awake!' 'Sing, oh hurra! let England quake!'"

AUTHOR: Thomas Davis (1814-1845) (source: Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815; Hoagland)
EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (Hoagland)
KEYWORDS: Ireland England nonballad patriotic
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (3 citations):
  Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 115, "The West's Asleep" (1 text, 1 tune)
  DT, WSTASLEP
ADDITIONAL: Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), pp. 472-473, "The West's Asleep" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Brink of the White Rocks" (tune, according to Hoagland)
cf. "The Men of the West" (subject: The landing of General Humbert) and references there

NOTES [120 words]: The 1798 rebellion was a very patchy thing, due in no small part to the arrests of nearly all the United Irish leaders well before it was supposed to come off. The biggest rising, in Wexford, was largely unplanned, but at least it was a rising. There was a lot of stirring in Ulster, though it accomplished very little. Connaught and Leinster, however, saw nothing of any significance at all. Until the French came. This song apparently refers to General Humber's activity (for which see especially "The Men of the West").
The O'Connors, mentioned in the song, were the hereditary kings of Connaught before the Norman invasion.
For the disastrous Battle of Aughrim, see the notes to "After Aughrim's Great Disaster." - RBW

Western Boat (Let Me Fish Off Cape St Mary's)

DESCRIPTION: "Take me back to my Western boat, Let me fish off Cape St Mary's." Singer recounts good times and wants to be buried in "that snug green cove where the seas roll up their thunder"

AUTHOR: Otto P. Kelland (1904-2004)
EARLIEST DATE: 1955 (Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, 3rd edition)
KEYWORDS: fishing sea lyric nonballad work death
REFERENCES (6 citations):
Doyle-OldTimeSongsAndPoetryOfNewfoundland, "Let Me Fish Off Cape St Mary's" (1 text, 1 tune): p. 39 in the 3rd edition, p. 48 in the 4th, p. 31 in the 5th
Blondahl-NewfoundlandersSing, pp. 88-89, "Let Me Fish Off Cape St Mary's" (1 text, 1 tune)
Mills-FavoriteSongsOfNewfoundland, pp. 36-37, "Let me Fish Off Cape St Mary's" (1 text, 1 tune)
England-HistoricNewfoundlandAndLabrador, p. 54, "Let Me Fish Off Cape St Mary's" (1 text, 1 tune)

DT, CAPSTMAR*

ADDITIONAL: Otto P. Kelland, _Anchor Watch: Newfoundland Stories in Verse_ (privately printed, 1960), pp. 7-8, "Let Me Fish Off Cape St. Mary's" (1 text)

Roud #7301

RECORDINGS:
Omar Blondahl, "Let Me Fish Off Cape St Mary's" (on NFOBlondahl01)

NOTES [565 words]: Cape St Mary's is now a sea-bird sanctuary at the southwest corner of the Avalon Peninsula [off Placentia Bay - RBW], about 100 miles from St John's - BS Although the printed editions seem to call this "Let Me Fish Off Cape St Mary's," I've assigned the basic title "Western Boat" on the assumption that most people know it from the recording by Gordon Bok. That was probably a mistake on my part; this song is extremely well-known in Newfoundland. That is probably due mostly to its promotion by Gerald S. Doyle, who encouraged Kelland -- he sponsored the recording of this song, played it on his "Gerald S. Doyle News Bulletin" on the radio, and of course put it in the third edition of his songbook (Webb, p. 85).

Author Otto Kelland was born in Lamaline, 1904, according to DictNewfLabrador, p. 185. He spent some time at sea as a steward and seaman before joining the Newfoundland Constabulary in 1924. He became warden of the St. John's penitentiary in 1939, and continued in that job until he retired. This song was reportedly written in 1947. It appears most of Kelland's books were published after he retired. His son, Otto Paul James "Jim" Kelland, became Newfoundland's Minister of Environment and Lands in 1989.

Other pieces by Kelland in the Index are "Captain Bob Bartlett," "The Dying Seal-Hunter," "Captain Abram Kean," and "We Will Always Have Our Sealers." The latter four are all in the Index based on their inclusion in Ryan and Small's collection of sealing poems, and probably are not traditional. This song, however, most certainly is traditional despite its recent composition.

The "western boat" of the title is not a boat on a western shore. It's a Newfoundland term for "a schooner-rigged fishing vessel of 15 to 30 tons" (Young, p. 185). StoryKirwinWiddowson, p. 605, says that their bows were shaped so as to make them good at dealing with ice, and cites the first use as from 1836; their citations show that the western boats were intended for relatively short voyages near land. That this is the intended meaning is confirmed by the mention of Cape St. Mary's, which is in southeastern Newfoundland.

According to Young, pp. 31-32, a "hagdown," also known as a "bawk," is a name for the greater shearwater or the sooty shearwater, members of the genus Puffinus. However, Strowbridge, p. 216, defines a hagdown as a "Placentia Bay person." Note that these two meanings do not entirely contradict, and either or both could be meant. StoryKirwinWiddowson, p. 235, cite both meanings -- but the material on the former is about five times as long.

A dory is a small, flat-bottomed boat, usually rowed although some can take a sail (Young, p. 66). A "Cape Ann" or "Cape Ann hat" is a rubber head-covering with a brim all around, with the brim being longer at the back to cover the neck (Young, p. 45). Strowbridge, p. 203, suggests that it should be green -- probably Lincoln Green, since it was sometimes called a "Lincoln." Capelin/caplin are a type of edible fish that came ashore to mate and often were netted there (Young, p. 45). Strowbridge says it is about seven inches long, has a narrow face, and has green ad brown-tinted sides and is silver below that. They were often used as bait for cod, so when the singer "fish(es) off Cape St. Mary's," he may well be gathering the bait for a longer voyage seeking Newfoundland's chief export and source of food. - RBW

Bibliography

• Webb: Jeff. A. Webb, The Voice of Newfoundland: A Social History of the Broadcasting
Western Life
DESCRIPTION: "I buckled on a brace of guns and sallied to Wyoming And thought I'd kill some Indians..." but the first Indian she meets is a college classmate of hers! She sees cowboys reading books. Everything has changed. "For Western life ain't wild and woolly now."
AUTHOR: "Bronco Sue" (source: Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: cowboy home
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 160-161, "Western Life" (1 text)
Roud #11299
File: ThLo160

Western Rangers, The
DESCRIPTION: Singer's sweetheart asks him to stay and marry. He leaves her in Labrador to join a troop fighting in Flanders. "Many a brave man" and "German crowds" are killed in the bayonet fighting. "With medals now I will return to the girl I love so well"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA-Leach)
KEYWORDS: courting marriage battle army fight violence war death derivative lover soldier
FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)
RECORDINGS:
Frank Knox, "The Western Rangers" (on MUNFLA-Leach)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Texas Rangers" (derivative, see Notes)
NOTES [140 words]: MUNFLA/Leach text is a derivative of "Texas Rangers" [Laws A8]. Leach collected another "Western Rangers" in Labrador (see Leach-FolkBalladsSongsOfLowerLabradorCoast 105) that Leach considered -- I believe correctly -- to be a localization of Laws A8. That text begins like this one -- "Come all ye western rangers bound to a foreign land" -- but the ranger fights Indians after "we marched from Manitoba down to the Rio Grande." The localization that Leach points out is the substitution of Manitoba for San Antonio. The MUNFLA/Leach text is more than a localization. For example, in this case the singer "sailed from bonny Scotland ... for Flanders." While "you could see those Indians" -- misspoken in this context, since the singer fought "where German crowds were killed" -- soldiers were wounded by a "glimmering glance of bayonet." - BS
Last updated in version 4.2
File: MunLWeRa

Westlin Winds
DESCRIPTION: "Now westlin winds and slaught'ring guns Bring autumn's pleasant weather." The singer describes the new season, and the farmer's harvest, and thinks of his beloved Peggy, "My fair, my lovely charmer."
AUTHOR: Words: Robert Burns
EARLIEST DATE: before 1785 (source: Kingsley); 1792 (Scots Musical Museum)
KEYWORDS: courting farming animal bird nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
WESTLNNWND
Roud #6936
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "I Had a Horse, I Had Nae Mair" (tune)
NOTES [128 words]: This is the second song listed in Kingsley's edition, which would seem to date it to August 1774, but I am not sure if that date is firm, so I didn't list it in the EARLIEST DATE." I have no evidence that the song went into tradition, either. But it has been printed a lot, and recorded at least a few times. Garnet Rogers, in particular, that he didn't have any clue as to what a "cushat" is (in the second verse, where many birds and their habitats are listed, we read that "through lofty groves the cushat roves"). The answer is found in Arnold Kellett, The Yorkshire Dictionary of Dialect, Tradition, and Folklore, revised edition, Smith Settle, 2002, p. 43: In the north riding of Yorkshire, and presumably points north, "cushat" is a name for the ring dove. - RBW

Last updated in version 4.1
File: RBuWeWi

Weston and His Clerk

DESCRIPTION: "It's of an old buffer I'm going to tell, A magistrate here whom you know very well" named Weston. His clerk, French, tells him there are hundreds of illegal grog cases. One cases results in the choice of a fine or prison sentence; others are warned AUTHOR: Charles R. Thatcher (1831-1878)?

EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (AndersonStory)
KEYWORDS: drink police trial humorous
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong, pp. 93-96, "Weston and His Clerk" (1 text, 1 tune)
NOTES [29 words]: For brief background on Charles Thatcher's career, see the notes to "Where's Your License?" For an extensive collection of his songs, see Anderson-StoryOfAustralianFolksong.

Last updated in version 4.1
File: AnSt093

Westward Ho! (Traveling Yodler)

DESCRIPTION: "I love not Colorado Where the faro table grows.... Nor seek I fair Montana.... Sweet poker haunted Kansas.... The Nevada rough has charms enough, Yet its blandishments I fly." "I'll build a cot on a corner lot And get rich as soon as I can."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)
KEYWORDS: travel home money
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 161-162, "Westward Ho!" (1 text)
ArkansasWoodchopper, pp. 24-25, "Traveling Yodler" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #8008
NOTES [41 words]: Arkansas Woodchopper credits this to Nick Manoloff, but it appears to predate Manoloff. Curiously, although the Arkansas Woodchopper included this in his book, it does not appear that he ever recorded it! Nor did anyone else that I can find. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.3
File: ArWo024

Wet Oregon (Oregon Girls)

DESCRIPTION: "I've reached the land of rain and mud Where flowers and trees so early bud. It rains and rains both night and day, For in Oregon it rains always." The singer wishes it would stop. Oregon girls with "soggy curls" reejct those who don't wipe their feet

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1970 (Suzi Jones, _Oregon Folklore_)

Last updated in version 4.1
File: AnSt093
Wexford Girl, The (The Oxford, Lexington, or Knoxville Girl; The Cruel Miller; etc.) [Laws P35]

DESCRIPTION: The singer invites the girl for a walk. They discuss their wedding. Then he takes up a club (knife) and attacks her. She begs him to spare her life. He beats (stabs) her to death and throws her in the river. (He has visions of hell.) He is hanged.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1796 (broadside, Bodleian Firth c.17(216); c.1700 (broadside, Bodleian Antiq. c. E.9(125))

KEYWORDS: wedding river homicide trial execution

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MA,MW,NE,Ro,SE,So) Canada(Mar,Newf) Britain(Scotland(Aber),England(Lond,South)) Ireland

REFERENCES (57 citations):
Laws P35, "The Wexford Girl (The Oxford, Lexington, or Knoxville Girl; The Cruel Miller; etc.)"
(Laws gives three broadside texts on pp. 104-112 of ABFBB)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #137, pp. 1-2, "The Butcher Boy"; #179, p. 2, ("Mary, my dear Mary") (2 texts)
Greig/Duncan2 200, "The Butcher's Boy" (6 texts, 3 tunes)
Porter/Gower-Jeannie-Robertson-EmergentSingerTransformativeVoice #68, p. 236-238, "The Butcher Boy" (1 text, 1 tune, incorrectly labelled as Laws P24 based on the title)
Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 44, "Ferry Hinskey Town" (1 text)
Palmer-EnglishCountrySongbook, #57, "Hanged I Shall Be" (1 text, 1 tune)
Hamer-GarnersGay, pp. 40-41, "The Wexford Murder" (1 text, 1 tune)
Randolph 150, "The Noel Girl" (7 texts plus 3 excerpts and 2 fragments, 5 tunes)
Randolph/Cohen-OzarkFolksongs-Abridged, pp. 108-111, "The Noel Girl" (1 text, 1 tune -- Randolph's 150A)
High-OldOldFolkSongs, pp. 40-41, "The Wax-Ward Girl" (1 text)
Abrahams/Riddle-ASingerAndHerSongs, pp. 65-67, "The Oxford Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Eddy-BalladsAndSongsFromOhio 104, "The Murdered Girl" (8 texts, 2 tunes, but Laws assigns the B text to "The Banks of the Ohio" and omits the others. It would appear that Eddy's A and C texts belong here)
Gardner/Chickering-BalladsAndSongsOfSouthernMichigan 19, "The Knoxville Girl" (2 texts)
Neely/Spargo-TalesAndSongsOfSouthernIllinois, p. 150, "The Waxford Girl" (1 short text)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore2 65, "The Lexington Murder" (3 texts plus 6 excerpts, 1 fragment, and mention of 3 more)
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore4 65, "The Lexington Murder" (3 texts plus 4 excerpts, 7 tunes) Chappell-FolkSongsOfRoanokeAndTheAlbermarle 63, "Nell Cropsey, III" (1 text, which despite its title does not mention Cropsey and appears to be simply a version of this song with perhaps some mixture with "Banks of the Ohio")
Morris-FolksongsOfFlorida, #180, "The Wexford Girl" 2 texts, 1 tune; the "A" text and tune being "The Banks of the Ohio" [Laws F5] and the "B" text "The Wexford Girl (The Oxford, Lexington, or Knoxville Girl; The Cruel Miller; etc.)" [Laws P35])
Hudson-FolksongsOfMississippi 30, pp. 141-143, "The Wexford Girl" (1 text)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-1ed, pp. 81-83, "The Oxford Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Owens-TexasFolkSongs-2ed, pp. 64-65, "The Oxford Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abernethy-SinginTexas, pp. 54-55, "The Waco Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Lomax/Lomax-OurSingingCountry, "The Lexington Murder" (1 text, 1 tune)
Scarborough-ASongCatcherInSouthernMountains, pp. 159-164, "The Wexford Girl; Hanged I Shall Be; The Prentice Boy" (3 texts, which despite the collective title are all called "Knoxville Girl"; 1 tune on p. 402)
Shellans-FolkSongsOfTheBlueRidgeMountains, pp. 68-69, "The Jealous Lover" (1 text, 1 tune, probably this but with some curious variants which hint at recomposition)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol1, pp. 73-74, "The Knoxville Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Burton/Manning-EastTennesseeStateCollectionVol2, pp. 16-17, "Knoxville Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brewster-BalladsAndSongsOfIndiana 36, "The Wexford Girl (The Cruel Miller)" (1 text)
Wolfe/Boswell-FolkSongsOfMiddleTennessee, 31, pp. 55-58, "The Knoxville Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart1 16, "Wexford Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Bronner/Eskin-FolksongAlivePart2 39, "Coal Black Hair" (1 text, 1 tune)
Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads, pp. 88-90, "Hang-ed I Shall Be" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 71, "The Miller's Apprentice, or The Oxford Tragedy" (5 texts, 5 tunes)
Greenleaf/Mansfield-BalladsAndSeaSongsOfNewfoundland 56, "Wexford City" (1 text)
Peacock, pp. 634-636, "The Wexford Girl" (2 texts, 2 tunes); p. 638-640, "The Worcester Tragedy" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Mackenzie-BalladsAndSeaSongsFromNovaScotia 115, "Waterford Town" (1 text)
Manny/Wilson-SongsOfMiriamichi 98, "The Wexford Lass" (1 text, 1 tune)
Leach-TheBalladBook, pp. 785-787, "The Lexington Murder" (2 texts)
Doerflinger-SongsOfTheSailorAndLumberman, pp. 288-290, "The Wexford Girl" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Friedman-Viking/PenguinBookOfFolkBallads, p. 225, "The Wexford Girl" (1 text+5 fragments of another text)
Warner-TraditionalAmericanFolkSongsFromAnneAndFrankWarnerColl 7, "The Wexford Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblersSongbook, pp. 150-151, "Knoxville Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Botkin-TreasuryOfSouthernFolklore, p. 737, "The Knoxville Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Kennedy-FolksongsOfBritainAndIreland 327, "The Oxford Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Abrahams/Foss-AngloAmericanFolksongStyle, pp. 115-116, "Knoxville Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cox-FolkSongsSouth 90, "The Wesford Girl" (2 texts)
Bush-FSofCentralWestVirginiaVol1, pp. 91--93, "The Wexford Girl"; pp. 94-96, "The Knoxville Girl" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Roberts-SangBranchSettlers, #15, "The Knoxville Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
MacColl/Seeger-TravellersSongsFromEnglandAndScotland 75, "The Wexford Girl" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cohen-AmericanFolkSongsARegionalEncyclopedia1, p. 265, "The Story of the Knoxville Girl" (1 text)
Silber/FolksingersWordbook, p. 224, "Knoxville Girl" (1 text)
Olson-BroadsideBalladIndex, ZN1624, "Let all pretending Lovers"; ZN3196, "Young men and maidens all, give ear unto what I relate"

DT 353, CRUELMIL* OXFRDTRG* PRETPOL2; (628), WXFRDGRL
ADDITIONAL: Harold Nestler, "Songs from the Hudson Valley" (article in _New York Folklore Quarterly_, Volume V, #2, Summer 1949), pp. 95-96, "Town of Waxford" (1 text)
Roud #263

RECORDINGS:
Blue Sky Boys, "Story of the Knoxville Girl" (Montgomery Ward 7327, c. 1937)
Ted Chestnut, "Knoxville Girl" (Silvertone 8156 [as Jim Burke]/Supertone 9260, 1928 [possibly as Ted Chesnut])
Cope Brothers, "Knoxville Girl" (King 589, 1947)
Charlotte Decker, "The Worcester Tragedy" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Mary Delaney, "Town of Linsborough" (on IRTravellers01)
Foster & James "The Knoxville Girl" (Supertone 9260, 1928) [also issued as by Jim Burke, possibly a pseudonym for Doc Roberts]
Marie Hare, "The Wexford Lass" (on MRMHare01)
John James, "Wexford Girl" (on MUNFLA/Leach)
Louisiana Lou, "The Export Girl" (Bluebird B-5424, 1934)
Asa Martin & James [Doc] Roberts "Knoxville Girl" (Conqueror 7837, 1931)
Lester McFarland & Robert Gardner, "The Knoxville Girl" (Brunswick 110/Vocalion 5121, 1927)
Arthur Nicolle, "The Wexford Girl" (on PeacockCDROM) [one verse only]
Aulton Ray, "Maxwell Girl" (Gennett 6205/Champion 15332/Challenge 335 [as Charlie Prescott]/Silvertone 5084, 1927; Supertone 9250, 1928; on KMM [as Taylor's Kentucky Boys])
Arthur Tanner, "The Knoxville Girl" (Silvertone 3515, 1926) (Columbia 15145-D, 1927)
Mildred Tuttle, "Expert Town (The Oxford Girl)" (AFS; on LC12)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Antiq. c. E.9(125), "The Berkshire Tragedy [sic]" or "The Wittam Miller" ("Young men and maidens all give ear"), unknown, c.1700; also Firth c.17(216), "The Berkshire Tragedy" or "The Wittam Miller," unknown, 1796; Harding B 6(100), Douce Ballads 3(1b), Harding B 6(101), Harding B 6(102), Firth b.28(40a), "The Berkshire Tragedy" or "The Wittam Miller"; Harding B 6(96), "The Berkshire Tragedy [sic]" or "The Wittam Miller"; Harding B 6(98), "The Wittam-Miller" or "The Berkshire Tragedy"; 2806 c.17(40), Harding B 28(224), "Bloody Miller" ("My parents educated, and good learning gave to me"); Firth c.17(110), Harding B 11(752), Harding B 11(753), Harding B 11(754), Harding B 11(755), [The] Cruel Miller", Harding B 15(74a), "Cruel Miller" or "Love and Murder"; Firth c.17(109), "Cruel Miller" or "Love and Murder!"

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "Camden Town" (plot)

ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Oxford Tragedy
The Expert Girl
Johnny McDowell
The Prentice Boy
The Cruel Miller
The Miller Boy
Never Let the Devil Get the Upper Hand of You (Carter Family version)

NOTES [368 words]: Ozark folklore links this to the murder of one Lula Noel, whose body was discovered by the Cowskin River in Missouri in 1892. The song, however, is obviously older.

Laws also lists this broadside in his catalog (it is, indeed, one of the texts he prints), but adopts his title based on common traditional usage.

Laws, in fact, draws a stemma, starting from the "Berkshire Tragedy," and listing a total of seven "recensions" (p. 119), though he considers the broadside to be merely of eighteenth century date. I have a problem with the whole reconstruction, though; It's too literary. Even if one assumes the original ballad was a broadside (and I think Laws assumes this more often than is justified), it does not follow that its entire history is found in the broadsides. The song is so common that one must suspect the larger share of the broadsides to be derived from tradition, rather than being the source of tradition. - RBW

In Peacock pp. 638-640 version A the girl is pregnant, as in Laws' text of "The Cruel Miller" (American Ballads from British Broadsides chapter IV, p. 111).

Broadside Bodleian Firth b.28(40a), printed in London between 1800 and 1811, has 22 8-line verses; shelfmark Antiq. c. E.9(125), with the same text as Firth b.28(40a) has an estimated print date of c.1700. These are all clearly recognizable as the same ballad, down to the "bleeding at the nose" line. - BS

The "Love and Murder" broadsides listed here should not be confused with the other numerous broadsides of that title, many of which are versions of The Cruel Ship's Carpenter (The Gosport Tragedy; Pretty Polly) [Laws P36A/B]. "Love and Murder" is a very common title for broadsides, which I suppose proves that cheap journalism is not a modern invention. - RBW] - BS, (RBW) Porter and Gower refer to [Jeannie Robertson's "Butcher Boy"] as "Laws P24" - but that "Butcher Boy" is a completely different song. RPG #68 is full-on "Wexford Girl." - DGE
Wexford Insurgent, The

DESCRIPTION: "The heroes of Wexford have burst through their chains." The Shelmaliers lead the attack and trail the retreat. The Sassenach dragoons "have been trampled to death ... O! long in fair England each maiden may mourn."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 2000 (Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815)

KEYWORDS: battle rebellion death England Ireland

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
1798 - Irish rebellion against British rule

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Moylan-TheAgeOfRevolution-1776-1815 71, "The Wexford Insurgent" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [96 words]: This anonymous, probably mid-19th-century piece, displays the marks of the drawing-room rather than the tap-room or cottage in its language.

Webster's Third New International Dictionary: sassenach: "a typical Englishman or something considered typical of England -- often used disparagingly by Scots and Irish." [Derived from the same root as "Saxon" -- an ironic description, given that the first invaders of Ireland were almost all Anglo-Norman barons and their French-speaking retainers. - RBW]

The Irish baronies of Shelmalier, East and West, are in County Wexford. - BS

File: Moyl071

Wexford Lovers, The

DESCRIPTION: Susan loves William Reilly, a Catholic farmer's son. Her father won't allow that and her mother arranges an ambush to shoot Reilly. Reilly is wounded but Susan throws him a pistol. They escape, eluding the law, and leave Wexford on a ship to America.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1951 (MUNFLA-Leach); c. 1867 (broadside, Bodleian Bod21861 2806 c.15(138))

KEYWORDS: courting love violence emigration travel farming manhunt escape money discrimination America Ireland father lover mother youth

FOUND IN: Canada(Newf)

Roud #30123

RECORDINGS:
Mrs. Ghaney, "Willie Riley" (on MUNFLA-Leach)

BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Bod21861 2806 c.15(138), "A New Song Called The Wexford Lovers" ("You tender maidens I pray draw near"), W. Birmingham(Dublin), c.1867; also Bod17267 Harding B 19(99a), Bod3997 Harding B 26(569), Bod3784 2806 b.9(226), "A New Song Called The Wexford Lovers"; Bod20769 2806 b.11(124), "The Wexford Lovers"

File: ML3WilRi

Wexford Massacre, The

DESCRIPTION: "They knelt around the cross divine, the matron and the maid... Three hundred fair and helpless ones... Had battled for their own." The three hundred have fallen at the hands of Cromwell's English. They pray Heaven will avenge the wrong

AUTHOR: M. J. Barry

EARLIEST DATE: 1855 (Edward Hayes, The Ballads of Ireland (Boston, 1859), Vol I)

KEYWORDS: Ireland battle death

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Oct 23, 1641 - Outbreak of the revolt which eventually becomes "The War of the Three Kingdoms." Catholics in Ulster rebel to earn religious liberty, but commit too many brutalities against Protestants to allow peace. To make matters worse, one of their leaders, Sir Phelim O'Neill, claims authority from Charles I (see P. Berresford Ellis, _A History of the Irish Working Class_, p. 42; C.V.
Wedgwood, _The King's War 1641-1647_, p. 26). Charles declares that O'Neill's commission is a forgery, but the forces arrayed against Charles in England refuse to believe this. Nov. 29, 1641 - Battle of Julianstown. A small force of loyalist troops is scattered by rebels. The "Old English" (English immigrants who arrived before the reign of Elizabeth), afraid of the rebels, feel compelled to join their revolt. The English are forced to raise large forces to suppress the movement. They raise the money for this by selling the rights to land expected to be confiscated from rebels. The English government is now committed to punishing Ireland -- and to blaming Charles for the troubles.

Aug 1642 - The English Civil War turns "hot," causing England to concentrate mostly on its internal affairs and leave Ireland to tend its own house.

Oct 1642 - "Confederation of Kilkenny." The rebels try (and fail) to form a united governmental and religious front.

1643 - Inconclusive fighting. The English Civil War draws off more and more English soldiers. All sides in Ireland alternate between fighting, negotiating, and calling on King Charles. In the coming years, Charles will make various deals (usually of toleration in return for troops), but none amount to anything. The Irish factions are unable to unite in any way. Assorted battles are fought, but none are decisive. The Irish have placed themselves in the worst possible position: Clearly opposed to the English, but without the organization to oppose them. As soon as there is a united English government, the Irish can expect to face its wrath.

1649 - The English execute King Charles and declare a commonwealth. England is at last united and ready to deal with Ireland.

August 1649 - Oliver Cromwell (the future Lord Protector of England) arrives in Ireland to regain control of the island. In theory, he is fighting Irish rebels; in practice, his chief opponents are royalists (as at Drogheda).

Sep 11, 1649 - Cromwell captures Drogheda. He backs this up with a massacre -- at the very least, the garrison and the Catholic clergy are killed. His enemies report that he slaughtered indiscriminately.

October 1649 - Cromwell attacks and captures Wexford.

May 26, 1650 - Cromwell leaves Ireland. In his absence, the struggle continues until May 1652, but the Irish/Royalist position is already doomed; they can neither agree on a plan nor find an acceptable leader. The closest thing they have to a commander, the Duke of Ormonde (1610-1688, a staunch supporter of the Stuarts who would be Lord Lieutenant under Charles II), flees to the continent in December 1650.

1652 - The English parliament passes its Act of Settlement. Cromwell will significantly alter the Act in 1653, but not in a way as to benefit the Irish. The Act is such as to deprive nearly everyone alive in Ireland of at least some property. The English send in settlers to take their places. The poverty which is to afflict Ireland for centuries dates largely from this incident.

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Galvin-IrishSongsOfResistance, pp. 96-97, "The Wexford Massacre" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [890 words]: There may have never been an English monarch who made more trouble for himself than Charles I (reigned 1625-1649). He ended up being the only English monarch ever to be executed (as opposed to being killed in battle) without being deposed first.

In the 1630s, as Charles I found himself in more and more trouble in England, he tried to strengthen his Irish position by offering the rights to Catholics known as the "Graces" (Cronin, pp. 70-71). They didn't really make the Irish happy, but at least his lieutenant Wentworth was a good administrator. But he didn't last; due to the troubles in England, he was recalled in 1639, and executed 1641.

The rebellion started in Ulster as the Catholics tried to throw off the Protestants who ran the plantation and made life nearly impossible for Catholics. The rebellion probably could have been quashed easily -- except that Charles I and parliament couldn't agree on what to do, letting things get out of hand. Charles negotiated with all parties, but -- being Charles -- he never took his promises seriously.

The 1641 revolt had resulted in the death of some Protestants (and of course the tales grew with the telling). Once Charles I was out of the way, Oliver Cromwell -- who had no mercy even on the English -- was appointed in 1649 to stamp out royalists and rebels in Ireland. Cromwell took Drogheda on September 11, 1649, and put the garrison, and the general population, to death. (Ironically, most of the population of Drogheda was English; Fry/Fry, pp. 154-155.) Garrisons which surrendered quickly were allowed to live, but soon after Wexford was subjected to the same treatment as Drogheda; Cromwell killed 2000 people there, including 250 women (Golway, p. 17; cf. Fry/Fry, p. 155). Cromwell left Ireland in 1650, but later saw to it that any who had not fervently supported him was punished, usually by loss of lands (The Frys compare the residue of Irish land to "an impoverished wilderness, rather like a South African homeland").

Exactly how much damage Cromwell did is hard to tell. The Frys state that "A third of the country's Catholics had been killed" (p. 156; compare Kee, p. 16). Cronin states that the surviving population "numbered no more than half a million"; the Frys also quote a figure of half a million. Ellis, p. 43, quotes Leyburn's comparison with the Mongol hordes and cites on pp. 43-44 Petty's statistics that, of an Irish population of 1,448,000, "some 616,000 perished by sword, famine, and plague. Of this number 504,000 were native Irish while 112,000 were colonists. A further 40,000 decided to leave Ireland to enlist in European armies... 100,000 Irish... were sold as slaves to the West Indies and other colonies." This of course is more than half the population of Ireland, which is impossible; I've never seen anyone else quote such numbers. But it still surely qualifies as the worst genocide of the era.

And Cromwell then imposed the 1652 Act of Settlement, which pushed the entire native population into Connaught (sending them "to Hell or Connaught" -- Golway, p. 28; Cronin, p. 74); Golway reports that, before the Act of Settlement, Catholics still owned 60% of the land; afterward, only 20%. And from the time the act was passed to the time it finally went into effect was less than three years -- and the initial law had allowed less time than that! (Fry/Fry, p. 157). Cromwell's mass deportation -- again, something not seen for thousands of years; the last to practice such a thing seems to have been the Romans with Carthage, and before that the Assyrian and Babylonian tyrants -- had the interesting effect of bringing together two long-separate groups: The native Irish and the "Old English" settlers who had arrived in Norman times suddenly found themselves on the same side -- and both opposed to the Protestants (Kee, pp. 15-16).

In his goal of making it impossible for Ireland to support the claim of Charles I's son and heir Charles II, Cromwell was entirely successful. "Even if Prince Rupert's naval skills had enabled Charles to land in Ireland at one of the remaining unoccupied ports, such as Waterford, the King would have found little for his comfort on arrival. Cromwell had reduced the royal forces to a series of pitiful, isolated and beleagured fortresses" (Fraser, p. 80).

Cromwell's other goal was to make the Protestants the dominant population in Ireland. But, of course, it didn't work; there weren't enough Protestants in Britain to occupy the land, so the same old situation prevailed; The Protestants owned the land, but their tenants were Catholic. The only effect was to reduce the tenants' rights to nothing: They could be displaced at whim. This of course assured that the tenants would spend everything they had to try to stay on their land.

Cromwell cannot be considered the sole source of the Irish problems, but he probably contributed more to them than any other man. Indeed, more than any other five or six, including even William of Orange. Little wonder that the Irish claimed that Cromwell carried about pictures of Satan, and that the story was told that he sold his soul to the Devil before the battle of Worcester in 1651 (since it turned out that he died exactly seven years after that victory). One account even tells of the portrait of the devil bowing to Cromwell (O hOgain, p. 133). - RBW

Bibliography

- Cronin: Mike Cronin,A History of Ireland, Palgrave, 2001
- Fraser: Antonia Fraser,Royal Charles: Charles II and the Restoration, Delta, 1980 (originally published in Britain in 1979 asKing Charles II)
- Fry/Fry: Peter and Fiona Somerset Fry,A History of Ireland, 1988 (I use the 1993 Barnes & Noble edition)
- Golway: Terry Golway,For the Cause of Liberty, Simon & Schuster, 2000
- Kee: Robert Kee,The Most Distressful Country, being volume I ofThe Green Flag (covering the period prior to 1848), Penguin, 1972
- O hOgain: Daithi O hOgain,The Lore of Ireland, Boydell Press, 2006

Last updated in version 2.5
File: PGa096
Wexford Schooner, The

DESCRIPTION: The singer dreams of Kelly shot on Tara Hill. Then he dreams of "a schooner down from Wexford town cast on Wicklow's coast." Captain Laurence Murphy and the crew, who "have met a watery grave," are named.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast)
KEYWORDS: drowning sea ship storm wreck sailor
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Ranson-SongsOfTheWexfordCoast, p. 61, "The Wexford Schooner" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #20518
NOTES [84 words]: Wicklow county is north of Wexford. - BS
I have this funny feeling that this refers to the 1798, with Kelly being "Kelly, the Boy from Killane," wounded at the Three Bullet Gate at New Ross. The wrecked ship may be the one by which Bagenal Harvey, the commander at New Ross, tried to flee; according to Thomas Pakenham, The Year of Liberty, p. 268, Harvey was captured in a cave, though Pakenham doesn't mention a shipwreck. But this is only speculation based on very little information from the song. - RBW
File: Ran061

Wha Saw the Forty-Second

DESCRIPTION: "(Wha saw/Saw ye) the forty-second? Wha saw then gaun away? Wha saw the forty-second Marching to the (Broomielaw)?" The singer describes the equipment (often poor) and the rations assigned to the soldiers of the regiment

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1922 (Greig-Duncan collection)
KEYWORDS: soldier travel nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (4 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1628, "Fa Saw the Forty-Second?" (2 texts)
Montgomerie/Montgomerie-ScottishNurseryRhymes 98, "(Who saw the Forty-Second)" (1 text)
DT, MARCH42*
Roud #13073
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Gallant Forty-Twa" (subject: 42nd Highlanders or Black Watch) and references there
cf. "Ellen McGiggin" (one verse)
NOTES [418 words]: The Forty-Second is the famous Black Watch, which fought in the '45 Jacobite Rebellion and the Crimea and beyond.
Six companies were raised in the Highlands in 1729 and designated the Black Watch (Brander, p. 203). In 1739 (Hallows, p. 202) or 1740 (Brander, p. 203), it was raised to regimental strength and numbered the 43rd Infantry. In 1751, this number was changed to the 42nd (Hallows, p. 202). In 1758 it was designated the Royal Highlanders (Brander, p. 203).
A second battalion was added in 1780 (Brander, p. 205). This was split off in 1784 and became the 73rd Regiment, though it later rejoined the Black Watch; since 1881, they have been the Black Watch (Royal Highlanders) (Hallows).
This recombination and reorganization, part of the Cardwell Reforms of 1881 (a set of changes which standardized the size of units, gave them a regular geographic base, and improved command arrangements; Chandler/Beckett, pp. 188-189), changed the character of the regiment, which until then had been a Highland force. The Black Watch's recruiting area was now designated as Fife, Forfar, and Perth, with Perth as the headquarters. These shires are almost entirely Lowland. So, while the regiment is still designated a Highland regiment, it isn't really (Brander, p. 199).
The companies which comprised the Black Watch had been raised starting around 1725 (Brander, p. 19); the name itself apparently came from the dark tartan they wore when they were amalgamated and given a common uniform.
Their record was quite impressive. Hallows lists their battle honors, which include (but are not limited to) fighting in the Carribean in the Seven Years War; much service in India; ten battles in the Peninsular Wars against Napoleon; Waterloo; battles in South Africa; awards for Alma and Sebastopol in the Crimean War; Egypt; the Sudan; in the First World War, the Marne, all three battles at Ypres, the Somme, and some troops were in Palestine; there are honors for Tobruk, El Alamein, Sicily, and Burma in the second World War, and beyond.

This may explain why the regiment is listed in the song as marching to various places. It certainly got around a lot! And few regiments were more famous.

I can't help but add that this greatest of British regiments, which held together despite service in the Crimea and the Sudan and so many other failures, has in the early twenty-first century been amalgamated into a "Super Scottish Regiment." The reason? People won't join the army because they refuse to go to Iraq. - RBW

Bibliography

Last updated in version 2.5
File: MSNR098

Wha'll Be King but Charlie

DESCRIPTION: "The news frae Moidart came yestreen... For ships of war have just come in And landed royal Charlie." Listeners are called to rally, for "Wha'll be King but Charlie?" Both men and women are roused to come "to arms for royal Charlie"

AUTHOR: Carolina Oliphant, Lady Nairne ?

EARLIEST DATE: before 1845

KEYWORDS: Jacobites royalty

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:

Aug 3, 1745 (new style dating) - Bonnie Prince Charlie arrives in Eriskay

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (2 citations):

Fowke/MacMillan-PenguinBookOfCanadianFolkSongs 44, "Who'll be King but Charlie?" (1 text, 1 tune, linked to this by title but with "Weevily Wheat" verses)

DT, WHAKING*

Roud #729

SAME TUNE:

The Man We Love So Dearly (concerning Andrew Jackson) (Lawrence-MusicForPatriotsPoliticiansAndPresidents, p. 242)

NOTES [236 words]: The "News frae Moidart" of the first line is a reference to the arrival of Bonnie Prince Charlie in Scotland in 1745. Properly he landed on Eriskay, but that island had too few people to use as a base, so he quickly transferred to Moidart. And there the Forty-Five Rebellion was born. For this see, e.g., Frank McLynn, Bonnie Prince Charlie: Charles Edward Stuart, 1988 (I use the 1991 Oxford paperback edition), pp. 128-129.

The statement that "ships of war have just come in and landed royal Charlie" is a bit exaggerated. Charles's original expedition consisted of two ships, the Elizabeth and the Du Teillay or Doutelle. The Elizabeth was a warship (though not a very large one), but the Du Teillay carried primarily cargo. And the Elizabeth was forced to fight the British ship Lion on the way to the Hebrides, and dropped out of the expedition. Thus, though one might argue that Charles had set out with "ships of war," he arrived in Eriskay with one ship which was not intended to fight. (See McLynn, pp. 127-128).

Nor did all the clans "declare to stand or fall for Royal Charlie." He managed to rouse many of the clans, including notably the Camerons and MacDonalds -- but Clan Campbell stood against him, and a rising without Clan Campbell had little hope. As events proved. As for the Lowlands supporting Charlie -- hah. A few came out; more supported the Hannoverians; most simply sat. - RBW
Whack Fol the Diddle (God Bless England)

DESCRIPTION: "We'll sing you a song of Peace and Love." "'God Bless England.'" When we were savages she raised us up "and sent us to heaven in her own good time." "Irishmen, forget the past." Soon we shall be civilized. "Won't Mother England be surprised."

AUTHOR: Peadar Kearney (1883-1942)

EARLIEST DATE: 1965 (ÓLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads)

KEYWORDS: England Ireland humorous nonballad political

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (4 citations):
- ÓLochlainn-MoreIrishStreetBallads, pp. 250-251, "Whack Fol the Diddle" (1 text)
- DT WHACKFOL*
- ADDITIONAL: Kathleen Hoagland, editor, One Thousand Years of Irish Poetry (New York, 1947), pp. 686-688, "Whack Fol the Diddle" (1 text)
- Frank Harte _Songs of Dublin_, second edition, Ossian, 1993, pp. 52-53, "Whack Fol the Diddle" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, "Whack Fol the Diddle" (on IRClancyMakem03)

NOTES [419 words]: Most of the charges in this song are, of course, true -- and, in fact, the final stanza has in some ways come true also; in the early twenty-first century, the Irish economy is growing much faster than the English.

I can't help but point out one irony, though: The Anglo-Irish conflicts were caused, more than anything else, by the problems between Catholic and Protestant -- and it was the English who made the Irish firmly Catholic! Celtic Christianity had been largely monastic rather than Episcopal, and had celebrated Easter according to a different calendar. It was England, at the Synod of Whitby, that forced the English Celtic church to follow the Catholic calendar, and the English invasion of Ireland was authorized by Pope Adrian IV to bring the Irish back into proper episcopal practice. The Irish have followed those English practices for over 800 years; it is the English who have abandoned them.

According to Hoagland, p. 784, Peadar Kearney (O'Cearnaigh; 1883-1942) was a member of the IRA and participated in a minor role in the 1916 Easter Rebellion. He also wrote the words to "The Soldier's Song" ("Soldiers are we Whose lives are pledged to Ireland; Some have come From a land beyond the waves"; in Gaelic, "Amhran na bhFiann"; composed 1907), one of the best-known rebel songs and a future national anthem, but a song which does not seem to have entered into tradition. Happily, since such a violent item would be reasonable as a military song but which is, frankly, completely unsuitable to be used as national anthem of a civilized country.

Other Keaney songs in this index include "Down By the Glenside (The Bold Fenian Men)," "Michael Dwyer (II)," "Fish and Chips (Down by the Liffey Side)," and perhaps "Erin Go Braugh! (I)."

According to Henry Boylan, A Dictionary of Irish Biography, second edition, St. Martin's Press, 1988, pp. 179-180, he was an uncle of Brendan Behan, who left school young to work on bicycle repairs during the day to support his evening work in theatres. He became a member of the Irish Republican Brotherhood in 1903, and wrote "A Soldier's Song" in 1907. He fought in the 1916 rising, was arrested in 1920 and held for a year, and after his release worked as a house painter. Little as I like his violent politics, it seems like a waste of a genuine talent.

According to Hoagland, the British banned the singing of three Kearney songs, "The Soldier's Song," this item, and "The Tri-Colored Ribbon." The effect, of course, was to make them more popular. - RBW

Whalan of Waitin' Awhile

DESCRIPTION: "Long life to old Whalan of Waitin' Awhile, Good luck to his children and wife." They never complain; "'It's no use of mooning, it might have been worse,' said Whalan...." Life is hard and nothing ever works, but the family will wait for success

AUTHOR: J. W. Gordon ("Jim Grahame"), according to Meredith/Tritton-DukeOfTheOutback

EARLIEST DATE: 1957 (Meredith/Tritton-DukeOfTheOutback)
Whaleman's Lament, The

DESCRIPTION: "'Twas on the briny ocean On a whaleship I did go; Oft times I thought of distant friends...." The singer relates the voyage around Cape Horn and describes how Captain and officers abuse the crew. He vows to go sailing no more.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1856 (Journal from the Catalpa)
KEYWORDS: whaler hardtimes abuse

REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 15-17, "The Whaleman's Lament" (1 text, 1 tune) Roud #2000

RECORDINGS:
* A.L. Lloyd, "The Whaleman's Lament" (on Lloyd9)

NOTES [42 words]: Huntington does not indicate what tune he used for this song; perhaps he made it up. (He can hardly have used a tune from other versions of this song, since he doesn't list any.) The metrical form, however, strongly suggests "Jim Jones at Botany Bay." - RBW

Last updated in version 4.2
File: SWMS015

Whalemen's Wives, The

DESCRIPTION: Cautionary song, warns whalemen of what their wives will do while they're "on the raging deep." Wives spend their husbands' half pay, pawn their belongings & run around with fancy men, only wanting their husbands back when their pockets are well lined.

AUTHOR: Captain R. W. Nye
EARLIEST DATE: 1945 (Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips)
KEYWORDS: whaler warning wife sailor

REFERENCES (1 citation):
* Harlow-ChantyingAboardAmericanShips, pp. 232-234, "The Whalemen's Wives" (1 text, 1 tune) Roud #9156
File: Harl232

Whaler's Lamentation, The

DESCRIPTION: Each of five whaling companies has a verse headed by their ship names. The verses lament destruction of their pier by storm. The chorus says "Davis Straits adieu this season, Greenland for a year goodbye" but the final verse claims the ships will sail.

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1815 (Greig/Duncan1)
KEYWORDS: sea commerce disaster storm nonballad whaler

HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Jan 12, 1815 - The Aberdeen North Pier used by whalers is damaged by storm (source: GregDuncan1)

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
* Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #86, p. 2, "The Whalers' Lamentation" (1 text) Greig/Duncan1 12, "The Whaler's Lamentation" (1 text) Roud #5803

NOTES [181 words]: Greig: "From Mr Walker, Aberdeen, I have got a copy of a whaling song which is dated 'Spring, 1815.' It looks like a libretto intended for dramatic rendering [but see the next note re 'The Storm']. The allusions in it had been understood at the time but to us they are just enigmas. It is interesting to note, however, that the four whalers referred to in 'The Diamond Ship,' given a week ago [Greig #85], are all mentioned here." The whaling season was not lost and the ships all sailed in February and March.

This song shares its opening line with broadside Bodleian Harding B 25(1842), "The Storm" ("Cease rude Boreus [sic] blustering railer list ye landsmen all to me"), D. Wrighton (Birmingham), 1812-1830, by George Alexander Stevens; this probably is a parody. In 1808, at Sans Pareil Theatre, London, "Woolf sang the famous "Description of a Storm" by George Alexander Stevens, which became such a familiar favorite at the Adelphi in subsequent years" (source: "The London Stage 1800-1900," Joseph Donohue and James Ellis, General Editors, at Eastern Michigan University site). - BS
Whalers' Rhymes

DESCRIPTION: "Along the coast the Magnet came, With Captain Bruce, a man of fame, But in his face there is no shame On the beautiful coast of New Zealand." Short tales of various people set "On the beautiful coast of New Zealand."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1884 (Dunedin Evening Star, according to Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ; Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook claims a date of 1840 but without documentation)
KEYWORDS: ship New Zealand nonballad travel food
FOUND IN: New Zealand
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Bailey/Roth-ShantiesByTheWay-NZ, p. 17, "Whalers' Rhymes" (1 text, 1 tune)
Cleveland-NZ-GreatNewZealandSongbook, p. 43, "Whalers' Rhymes" (1 text, 1 tune)
Garland-FacesInTheFirelight-NZ, p. 50, "(Whaler's Rhymes)" (1 text)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The King of the Cannibal Islands" (tune) and references there

Whalers' Song

DESCRIPTION: "There she lies, there she lies, Like an isle on ocean's breast... Let us share this mighty whale. There she blows, there she blows." The song continues with instructions and imperatives on taking the whale, for people need its oil
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1850 (Cheever, The Whale and His Captors, according to Huntington)
KEYWORDS: whaler travel
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 17-21, "The Whalers' Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang, p. 30, "Whaler's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2001
File: HGam030

Whalers' Song (I), The

DESCRIPTION: "There she lies there she lies Like an isle on the ocean's breast...." The crew spots a whale and pursues; they take the animal. They think about returning home to New England, and remind those who use the oil of the dangers whalers face
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1853 (Journal from the Lexington)
KEYWORDS: whaler home return
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Huntington-SongsTheWhalemenSang, pp. 17-20, "The Whaler's Song" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2001
File: SwMS017

Whaling Song, A

DESCRIPTION: "When spring returns with western gales And gentle breeze sweep... We spread our sails" to hunt whales. The singer lists the lands they pass on their way north. They find and pursue a whale, which fights a long fight. "With joyful hearts we see her die"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1858 (Ricketson, A History of New Bedford, according to Huntington)
KEYWORDS: travel sailor whaler death
FOUND IN:
Whaling Voyage, The
DESCRIPTION: "Come all you that have leisure And list a while to me, And I'll relate the dangers That wait you on the sea." The Adeline Gibbs leaves Fairhaven to round Cape Horn. and pass Chile, Hawaii, and Japan. They have little luck on the way
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 2014 (Huntington-TheGam-MoreSongsWhalemenSang)
KEYWORDS: whaler travel hardtimes storm
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Roud #27537
File: HGam058

Wharfdale Sword Dancer's Song
DESCRIPTION: "THe first that enters on the floor, His name is Captain Brown; I think he is as smart a youth As any in the town." Then come tailor Obadiah Trim, the Quaker; then the foppish knight, a vintner, a beautiful dame; they will dance "Jumping Joan"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1846 (Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland)
KEYWORDS: dancing nonballad
FOUND IN: Britain(England(North))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Dixon-AncientPoemsBalladsSongsOfThePeasantryOfEngland, Song #16, pp. 194-196,246, "Sword-Dancers' Song" (1 text)
Bell-Combined-EarlyBallads-CustomsBalladsSongsPeasantryEngland, pp. 392-394, "The Sword-Dancers' Song" (1 text plus portions of the sword-dance play including many additional lyrics)
ST BeCo393 (Partial)
Roud #610
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The Earsdon Sword-Dancer's Song" (theme) and references there
NOTES [34 words]: There are a number of songs of this type, which Roud generally lumps under his #610. But they are at the very least different recensions of the same source. See the cross-references for other exaples. - RBW
Last updated in version 2.8
File: BeCo393

What a Friend We Have in Jesus
DESCRIPTION: "What a friend we have in Jesus, All our sins and griefs to bear! What a privilege to carry Ev'rything to God in prayer." The singer describes all the ways in which God can help with life's troubles and burdens
AUTHOR: Words: Joseph Medlicott Scriven (1819-1886) / Music: Charles Crozat Converse (1832-1919)
EARLIEST DATE: Words written 1855, tune 1870 (Johnson)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE) West Indies(Trinidad)
REFERENCES (5 citations):
Warren-EveryTimeIFeelTheSpirit, pp. 264-265, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" (1 text)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 364, "What A Friend We Have In Jesus" (1 text)
DT, FRNDJSUS*
ADDITIONAL: Charles Johnson, One Hundred and One Famous Hymns (Hallberg, 1982), pp. 182-
183, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" (1 text, 1 tune)
Ira D. Sankey, _Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos_ [1200 Hymns] (London) Collins, 1921?), #319 (1880 #117), "What a Friend We Have in Jesus"
Roud #16213
RECORDINGS:
Caravans, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" (States S-128, n.d.)
Mississippi John Hurt, "What a Friend We Have In Jesus" (on MJHurt04)
Moving Star Hall Singers, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" (on USSealsland02)
E. R. Nance Singers, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" (ARC, unissued, 1930)
Old Southern Sacred Singers, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" (Brunswick 172, 1927; Supertone S-2117, 1930)
Frank Welling & John McGhee, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" (Broadway 8136, c. 1931)
Henry Williams, Henry Thomas, Margaret Wright and Edna Wright, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" (on WITrinidadVillage01)
SAME TUNE:
When This Bloody War is Over (File: DalC182)
Chinese Maiden's Lament (File: Tawn046)
Hymn to Cheeses (Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 12)
What a Friend We Have in Congress (on PeteSeeger39, PeteSeeger44)
Dump the Bosses Off Your Back (by John Brill; DT, DUMPBOSS)
NOTES [714 words]: According to Johnson, author Joseph Medlicott Scriven had two fiancees die shortly before marriage. He ended up writing this, in 1855, for his mother. According to Stulken, p. 469, it was first published in _Social Hymns, Original and Selected_ in 1865.
Stulken, p. 470, says that Scriven was subject to depression, and at one time tried to devote his entire life to Christian service (not a rare thing for the depressed). His death in 1886 was the result of drowning; it is possible that he committed suicide, but this cannot be proved or disproved. It is perhaps noteworthy that one of the women he hoped to marry also perished by drowning (Rudin, p. 50).
The 1819 date of his birth is the one I have most often encountered (e.g. McKim, p. 281), although Ira D. Sankey gave it as 1820, according to Julian, p. 1700, and Rudin, p. 49, accepts this date. Sankey also said that the song was "discovered" by a neighbor who was sitting up with Scriven while the latter was sick. Scriven had not intended to publish (another sign of depression, perhaps), but it would seem the neighbour's delight in the song may have changed his mind. Reynolds, p. 422, says that Scriven was born in County Down, Ireland, and in 1835 went to Trinity College, Dublin, but two years later joined the military, only to give it up due to poor health and return to Trinity, where he earned a degree in 1842. He moved to Ontario, Canada in 1844, and worked as a teacher and tutor, as well as devoting time to the handicapped and destitute. It was in Ontario that he drowned himself forty years later.
According to Reynolds, p. 238, the tune "CONVERSE, sometimes called ERIE, was composed by Charles C. Converse in 1868, and first appeared in _Silver Wings, compiled by Karl Reden_ (Boston, Oliver Ditson, 1870, No. 98), where the tune is credited to Reden, a pseudonym of Converse." (It looks to me as if "Karl Reden" is German for "Charles Converse," as "Wurzel" is German for [George F.] Root; Karl of course is German for Charles, and the root "Reh" (which still survives in English as an archaic word for "counsel") can mean "CONVERSation.")
Rudin, p. 50, claims an ironic coincidence: When Sankey was editing the hymnbook containing this song, his final decision was between two songs. One was this text, and the other was a song by Charles Converse, who wrote the tune for this one! Obviously Sankey chose "What a Friend...." Converse, according to Reynolds, p. 287, was born in Warren, Massachusetts, in 1832 and educated in Elmira, New York. He visited Germany in the late 1850s, where he studied music. He gained a law degree in 1861 (McKim, p. 281, says he graduated law school in 1861 but that he received his Doctor of Law degree in 1895; he had refused a Doctor of Music degree). In addition to hymn tunes, he wrote two symphonies and sundry oratorios and lesser classical works. He died in Highwood, New Jersey, in 1918. If he ever did anything worth remembering other than write this tune, I haven't found it.
McKim, p. 404, says that the hymn is extremely popular in Korea (i.e. presumably South Korean Christian churches) -- so much so that the Korean text has been included in American Presbyterian hymnals. - RBW
I believe the note to USSealsland02 mislabels two tracks. It assumes "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" morphs into a song called "I Love Jesus," which continues as "I Love Jesus" on the next track. The singing does not stop and the tune does not change. I believe that, as far as the singers are concerned, both tracks are the same song. As Dargan notes, the USSealsland02 tune is "Restoration" and not the tune usually associated with this song. The USSealsland02 version begins with the usual first verse -- "What a friend we have in Jesus ... All because we do not carry Everything to God in prayer" -- and continues with "I love Jesus" (3x) / "Yes I do." "Coming for to rescue me" (3x) / "Yes I do," and "We need Jesus"(3x) / "One more road" [see: William T. Dargan, Lining Out the Word (Berkeley: University of California Press, 2006), pp. 41, 47; Benjamin Franklin White, E. J. King, et al, Original Sacred Harp (Atlanta, 1911 ("Digitized by Google") (correction and enlargement of 1869 edition copyright J.S. James)), p. 312, "Restoration," especially the chorus]. - BS

Bibliography

- Julian: John Julian, editor, A Dictionary of Hymnology, 1892; second edition 1907 (I use the 1957 Dover edition in two volumes)
- Rudin: Cecilia Margaret Rudin, Stories of Hymns We Love, John Rudin & Company, 1934 (I use the fourteenth printing of 1951)

Last updated in version 5.2
File: FSWB364A

What a Leman Will Ye Gie Me

DESCRIPTION: What sweetheart will you give me if I give you a bride? I'll give you so-and-so with "gowd about his middle Wi' the siller shakin' frae his heels."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1907 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: courting marriage gold nonballad

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Greig/Duncan8 1587, "What a Leman Will Ye Gie Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #13076
File: GrD81587

What a Mighty God We Serve

DESCRIPTION: "What a mighty (holy) God we serve (x2).""He woke me up this morning, Started me on my way, What a mighty God we serve"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 2014 (USSealsland03)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):

RECORDINGS:
Rosa and Joseph Murray, "What a Mighty God We Serve" (on USSealsland03)
File: RcWAMGWS

What a Nose (Melindy's Nose)

DESCRIPTION: "Well, I fell in love with a nice young girl"; "O, Melindy was handsome, as fair as any lamb," but "She had a nose, a very big nose, But it wasn't half so funny as you might suppose." The boys say "Jumpin' Jiminy geez-whacks, look at her nose."

AUTHOR: unknown
What a Trying Time

DESCRIPTION: "O Adam, where are you (x3), O what a trying time." "Lord, I am in the garden." "Adam, you ate that apple." "Lord, Eve, she gave it to me." "Adam, it was forbidden." "Lord said, walk out the garden."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1867 (Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates)
KEYWORDS: religious food
FOUND IN: US
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates, p. 74, "What a Trying Time" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #12034
NOTES [202 words]: The notes in Allen/Ware/Garrison-SlaveSongsUnitedStates call this "a most compendious account of the fall." This does indeed sum up Genesis 3:9-24, with the sole exception that the Forbidden Fruit is nowhere called an apple. The evidence against identifying it with the apple is strong -- apples are rare in that part of the world, and they do not produce good fruit. (Even where the word "apple" is found in the English translations of the Old Testament, there is speculation that it applies to the apricot or the quince.) Most of the speculation I have seen suggests that the Tree of Knowledge was thought to be a quince or a pomegranate -- or, possibly, the Tree of Knowledge was a quince and the Tree of Life a pomegranite, since there are actual renderings of pomegranites of life in ancient art.

In the Middle Ages, the fig tree was the leading candidate (see Kenneth A. Bleeth in Larry D. Benson, editor, The Learned and the Lewed: Studies in Chaucer and Medieval Literature, Harvard University Press, 1974, p. 53), based mostly on the fact that Adam and Eve sewed their garments out of fig leaves -- although I suspect that Jesus's injunction "from the fig tree learn its lesson" also played a part. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.1
File: AwG074A

What Ails the Lasses at Me?

DESCRIPTION: The singer, is a "winsome" well-off farmer, with goods and credit, "and few I see gang oot more handsome." Lasses quickly take to wretches and sick men but deny him. He would take any girl, honest and free, if she would just write a note to him.

AUTHOR: Alexander Ross (source: Chambers)
EARLIEST DATE: 1829 (Chambers)
KEYWORDS: farming nonballad bachelor
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig/Duncan7 1393, "I Am a Young Bachelor" (1 text)
ADDITIONAL: Robert Chambers, The Scottish Songs (Edinburgh, 1829), Vol II, pp. 604-605, "What Ails the Lasses at Me?"
Roud #7250
ALTERNATE TITLES:
The Bachelor's Lament
NOTES [36 words]: Greig/Duncan7 from Greig quoting James M Taylor: "The date of this fine old song which I have heard sung on several occasions is probably 1778 as it does not appear in Ross's first edition of his poems in 1768." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: GrD71393
What Are You Going To Do When the Lamp Burns Down

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: "Oh poor sinner (x2), What are you going to do when the lamp burns down?" Verses: "God made man and He made him out of clay, Put him on earth but not to stay." "Satan's mad and I am glad, He miss one soul he thought he had."

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1901 (Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious floatingverses Devil Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute, pp. 140-141, "What Yo' Gwine t' Do When de Lamp Burn Down?" (1 text, 1 tune; pp. 136-137 in the 1901 edition)
Roud #12350
NOTES [106 words]: In Dett/Fenner/Rathbun/Cleveland-ReligiousFolkSongsOfTheNegro-HamptonInstitute's verses, every alternate line is "What are you going to do when the lamp burns down?" - BS
Presumably a reference to the parable of the "Wise and Foolish Virgins" (Matthew 25:1-13): Ten virgins go to meet a wedding party. All bring their lamps but the foolish ones do not bring extra oil. The bridegroom is delayed, arriving unannounced at midnight. Only the wise virgins have enough oil for their lamps so they can go and greet him. By the time the foolish virgins buy oil for their lamps they are so late that the bridegroom refuses to recognize them. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.0
File: Dett140

What Can A Young Lassie Do Wi' An Auld Man

DESCRIPTION: Jenny curses the money that caused her mother to sell her to an old man. She cannot please him. She will try to follow her aunt Kittie's plan: "I'll cross him, I'll crack him until I have brak him." "Oh, weary's my life with a crazy old man"

AUTHOR: Robert Burns
EARLIEST DATE: 1792 (see NOTE)
KEYWORDS: age marriage nonballad husband mother wife FOUND IN: Britain(England(South),Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong, pp. 429-430, "What Can a Young Lassie" (1 text)
Williams-FolkSongsOfTheUpperThames, p. 231, "What Can a Young Lassie?" (1 text) (also Williams-Wiltshire-WSRO Gl 137)
DT, WHATCANA
Roud #1295
RECORDINGS:
Jane Turiff, "What Can a Young Lassie Dae Wi' An Auld Man?" (on Voice15)
NOTES [222 words]: Musical Traditions site Voice of the People suite "Reviews - Volume 15" by Fred McCormick - 27.2.99: "I suspect however that he [Burns] re-created it from a traditional original, and my supposition is supported by the fact that he set it to a pre-existing air, which already bore the title of the present piece" [but Jane Turiff's version on Voice15 uses one of "The False Bride" tunes (for example, "I Loved a Lass" on SCMacCollSeeger01)]. - BS
The dating of this piece is slightly problematic. Ben Schwartz sent in a 1791 EARLIEST DATE based on the Burns Country web site. The Wordsworth Works of Robert Burns (p. 633) also dates it to that year.
The best reference I have, however, is James Kinsley's Burns: Complete Poems & Songs, which dates it 1792. That is, I think, based on its publication in volume IV of the Scots Musical Museum. My best guess is that the song was written 1791, published 1792 -- but I'm listing the 1792 date just in case. - RBW
Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong: "There is an old song, the burden of which is the same as the opening of the present -- 'What can a young lassie do wi' an auld man?'
From this Burns took the hint, and furnished the following expressive ditty for Johnson's Museum in 1790. The tune is very old."
I would go with RBW's dating in spite of Whitelaw-BookOfScottishSong. - BS
What Can Go Up the Chimney Down?

DESCRIPTION: "What can go up the chimney down, Go down the chimney down, But can't go up the chimney up?" Answer: an umbrella

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1948 (NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal)

KEYWORDS: riddles nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, (Peggy Cole and Sally Poole, informants), "Riddles," Vol. 1, No. 1 (Jun 1948), p. 28, "(What can go up the chimney down)" (1 text)
NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, Joseph D. Clark, "More North Carolina Riddles," Vol. IX, No. 1 (Jul 1961), p. 18 (#120A, B), "(What will do up the chimney down)" ("What can go up the chimney down") (2 texts, both of which appear simplified)

What Care I for the Laird o' Drum

DESCRIPTION: "What care I for the Laird o' Drum, And what care I for Gammie O? We'll stap wir wa's [Greig/Duncan8: take our way] ti the Mains o' Drum And hae anither drammie O"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1909 (Greig/Duncan8)

KEYWORDS: drink

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))

REFERENCES (2 citations):
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #61, p. 2, ("What care I for the Laird o' Drum") (1 fragment)
Greig/Duncan8 1928, "What Care I for the Laird o' Drum" (1 fragment)
Roud #13560

NOTES [60 words]: The current description is all of the Greig/Duncan8 fragment. - BS
"The Laird o Drum" [Child 236] tells of that lord seeking a low-born wife who was willing to work. In some versions, he had a previous wife who was costly and worthless. Could this be her answer? Or the comment of one of the girls the Laird turned down before finding one who satisfied him? - RBW

What Child Is This?

DESCRIPTION: In response to the question, "What child is this" whom Mary cradles and angels hymn, we are told, "This, this is Christ the king." The child's humble estate is described, and listeners urged to praise him

AUTHOR: Words: William Chatterton Dix (1837-1898)

EARLIEST DATE: 1871 (Bramley & Stainer); reportedly written c. 1865 (see NOTES)

KEYWORDS: Christmas religious Jesus nonballad

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (6 citations):
Jolly-Miller-Songster-5thEd, #222, "What Child Is This?" (1 text)
Fireside-Book-of-Folk-Songs, p. 238, "What Child Is This?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 379, "What Child Is This?" (1 text)
DT, WHATCHLD

ADDITIONAL: Ian Bradley, _The Penguin Book of Carols_ (1999), #95, "What Child Is This Who Laid to Rest" (1 text)

RECORDINGS:
What Could I Do If It Wasn't for the Lord?

DESCRIPTION: Chorus: ("What could I do"(5x) "without the comfort of his word? What could I see, ... say, How would I feel, ... pray, What could I do if it wasn't for the Lord?"") Verses end "What could I do if it wasn't for the Lord" (see notes)

AUTHOR: Thomas A. Dorsey

EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (recording, Sister Marie Knight)

KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
ADDITIONAL: _Great Gospel Songs of Thomas A. Dorsey_ (Milwaukee: Hal Leonard Corp, 1968), pp. 48-50 "What Could I Do If It Wasn't for the Lord" (1 text, 1 tune)

RECORDINGS:
Liddle Hines, "What Could I Do?" (on USMississippi01)
Sister Marie Knight, "What Could I Do" (Haven 517, 1947)

NOTES [168 words]: Verses describe Jesus as "my bread, my water, my life ..." and "my mother, my father ..." and say Jesus "makes me strong" and when "friend moves out, my Jesus moves in." - BS
All of those quotes are interesting. In John 6:35, Jesus says he is the "bread of life," and the whole communion ritual refers to eating the bread that is Jesus's body. Baptism is done in water; Jesus offers living water in the early part of John 4; Jesus's followers are born of "water and spirit/breath/wind" (πνεῦμα, hydatos kai pneumatos) in John 3:5; in John 7:38, believers' hearts flow with "living water"; when the soldier pierces Jesus's side in John 19:34, what flows from it is "blood and water." As for "life," references to Jesus as life are so frequent that we can probably content ourselves with John 11:25, "I am the resurrection and the life" (interestingly, three significant early copies of this verse omit "and the life," but Thomas Dorsey wouldn't have known that and likely wouldn't have cared). - RBW

What Did You Join the Army For?

DESCRIPTION: "What did you join the Army for? Why did you join the army? What did you join the army for? You must have been bloody barmy." Or "What did we join the army for... Skilly and duff, skilly and duff, Surely to God we've had more than enough."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1931 (Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang)

KEYWORDS: army soldier food

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Brophy/Partridge-TommiesSongsAndSlang, p. 45, "What Did You Join the Army For?" (1 text)

Roud #10566

CROSS-REFERENCES:

cf. "Here's to the Maiden of Bashful Fifteen" (tune)

File: BrPa045A

What Did Your Sailor Leave?

DESCRIPTION: What did your sailor leave? A baby. What did he wear? Blue jacket and white trousers. What if he comes ashore? We'll marry. Why are you weeping? He is far away. "Would that the wars were over, Sailors back on shore... Dear maid, how well she loved him"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1892 (Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle)

KEYWORDS: love navy war separation dialog nonballad baby lover sailor

FOUND IN: Britain(England(South))

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Reeves-TheEverlastingCircle 138, "What Did Your Sailor Leave?" (1 text)

Roud #2546

File: ReCi138

What Do the Colonels and the Generals Do

DESCRIPTION: "Colonel says that Kaiser William surely was a best, Dirty little job for Jesus." The colonels and generals spend their time figuring out dirty jobs for privates. "Fifty thousand privates died for democracy, Twenty major generals got the D.S.C."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe)

KEYWORDS: soldier hardtimes death

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Niles/Moore-SongsMyMotherNeverTaughtMe, pp. 221-223, "What Do the Colonels and the Generals Do" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #27898

File: NiMo221
What Do You Think o' Me Noo, Kind Sirs?

DESCRIPTION: "I am a young man, I live wi' my mither, A braw decent kimmer, I trow, Bu when I speak o' takin' a wife, She aye gets up in a lowe." He notes that someone is needed to care for the property. He courts Betty; she answers, "Who cares for you or your kye?"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1904 (Ford)
KEYWORDS: mother home age youth courting rejection humorous
FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber))
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Ford-VagabondSongsAndBalladsOfScotland, pp. 115-116, "What Do You Think of Me Noo, Kind Sirs?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Greig/Duncan4 898, "The Mither's Loon" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #6141
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "My Bonny Wee Wifie and I" (tune, per Greig/Duncan4)
NOTES [21 words]: Greig/Duncan4 quoting Gillespie: "Heard from girlhood, and first from Thomas Murdoch (carpenter) about 1857. Noted 1905." - BS
Last updated in version 2.5
File: FVS115

What Do You Think of My Darling?

DESCRIPTION: The singer lives on a small pension. His wife makes him do the nasty jobs around the house and "if I don't do it right it's a slap ... a kick or a clout" She drinks, gossips, is ugly and dirty. He prays "the devil like lightening might sweep her away"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Dean-FlyingCloud)
KEYWORDS: shrewishness marriage drink ordeal wife FOUND IN: Canada(Mar) US(MW)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Dibblee/Dibblee-FolksongsFromPrinceEdwardIsland, p. 102, "What Do You Think of My Darling?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Dean-FlyingCloud, p. 127, "The Shrew Wife" (1 text)
Roud #9602
File: Dib102

What Does the Deep Sea Say?

DESCRIPTION: The big boat is coming around the bend, doing nothing but killing good men. Vicksburg was a hilly town, until the Yankee gunboats blew it down. Cho: "What does the deep sea say?...It moans and it groans, it slashes and it foams/And rolls on its weary way"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1929 (recording, Vernon Dalhart)
KEYWORDS: battle Civilwar fight violence war river sea ship
HISTORICAL REFERENCES:
Nov 1862 - Union general Ulysses S. Grant begins his Vicksburg campaign. His first four attempts to reach the city fail
Apr 16, 1863 - Porter's gunboats run past Vicksburg, opening the way for Grant's final successful campaign
May 12-17, 1863 - Grant fights a series of minor battles which bring him to the defenses of Vicksburg
May 22, 1863 - Grant's attempt to take Vicksburg by storm is a bloody failure. The Union army settles down to a siege
July 4, 1863 - Lt. General Pemberton surrenders Vicksburg
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (1 citation):
DT, DEEPSEA
RECORDINGS:
Vernon Dalhart, "What Does the Deep Sea Say" (Velvet Tone 1960-V, 1929)
Bob Ferguson (pseud. for Bob Miller) "What Does the Deep Sea Say" (Columbia 15727-D, 1932; prob. rec. 1931)
Woody Guthrie & Cisco Houston, "What Did the Deep Sea Say?" (on WoodyFolk)
Lester McFarland & Robert Gardner, "What Does the Deep Sea Say" (Brunswick 483, 1930)
Bill Palmer's Trio, "What Does the Deep Sea Say?" (Bluebird B-5034, 1933)
Uncle Bud & his Plow Boys, "What Does the Deep Sea Say?" (Clarion 5418-C, 1931)

NOTES [31 words]: Digital Tradition assigns authorship to Woody Guthrie. Given the date of Dalhart's recording, this is pretty near impossible. The McFarland-Gardner record credits this to "Miller." - PJS
Last updated in version 3.5
File: DTdeepse

What Gives the Wheat Fields Blades of Steel?
DESCRIPTION: "What gives the wheatfields blades of steel? What points the rebel cannon?...
What breaks the oath Of the men of the south?... Hark to the answer: Slavery." The evils of slavery, and the poison and treason it causes, are described in detail AUTHOR: Words: John Greenleaf Whittier / Music: Martin Luther
EARLIEST DATE: 1862
KEYWORDS: slave slavery freedom political nonballad
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Silber-SongsOfTheCivilWar, pp. 285-286, "We Wait Beneath the Furnace Blast" (1 text, 1 tune)
Scott-TheBalladOfAmerica, pp. 236-237, "What Gives the Wheat Fields Blades of Steel?" (1 text, 1 tune)
CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God, (Ein Feste Burg)" (tune)
File: SBoA236

What Harm Has Jesus Done?
DESCRIPTION: "Tell me what harm has Jesus done you Sinners all hate him so." Jews nailed him to the tree and gave him a cup of vinegar which he drank. Gabriel in the morning will separate the "sheep on the right and the goats on the left"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1953 (Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs)
KEYWORDS: nonballad religious Jesus Jew violence execution dying Bible
FOUND IN: Canada(Mar)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Creighton-MaritimeFolkSongs, p. 174, "What Harm Has Jesus Done?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #2285
RECORDINGS:
Chas Owens and family, "What Harm Has Jesus Done?" (on MRHCritchton)
NOTES [188 words]: At the time of recording, Charles Owens was 99, living in a small colony of Negroes in the Maritimes; they are descendants of slaves, and Creighton theorizes that they brought this jubilee song with them from the U.S. - PJS
We should probably recall that the Romans, not the Jews, crucified Jesus.
The reference to Jesus drinking vinegar is a mistranslation, though "vinegar" is the word used by the King James Bible in all four references (Matthew 27:48, Mark 15:36, Luke 23:36, and John 19:29 all use the same word). The four Gospels also use the same word for the beverage (while disagreeing on the delivery method), but its normal usage is "sour wine" (which was less expensive than sweet), not "vinegar," though of course vinegar could be made from it. Still, the best translation would probably be something like "cheap wine." It was a painkiller -- and, in context, it might well hasten death, since alcohol is a diuretic, and dehydration is one of the main causes of death during crucifixion.
The parable of the Sheep and the Goats is in Matthew 25:31-46. In it, Jesus, not Gabriel, separates the souls into groups. - RBW
File: CrMa174
What Have You Got There?

DESCRIPTION: "What have you got there? Bread and cheese. Where's my share? Cat's got it. Where's the cat? In the woods. Where's the woods? Fire burned it. Where's the fire? Water quenched it. Where's the water?" And so the conversation continues, until a child laughs

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1903 (Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren)
KEYWORDS: play, party, food, animal, fire
FOUND IN: US(MW)
REFERENCES (3 citations):
Newell-GamesAndSongsOfAmericanChildren, #75, "Club Fist" (1 text plus excerpts)
McIntosh-FolkSongsAndSingingGamesofIllinoisOzarks, pp. 97-98, "Club Fist" (1 text)
Skean-CircleLeft-FolkPlayOfKentuckyMountains, pp. 19-20, "Club Fists" (1 text)
Roud #22887
File: Newe075

What He Done For Me

DESCRIPTION: Singer does not refer to Jesus by name. Each verse tells "What he done for me." Verse line examples: "You don't know like I know," "He picked me up and he turned me around," and "He took my feet out of the miry clay"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1942 (recording, Southern Harps)
KEYWORDS: nonballad, religious, Jesus
FOUND IN: US(SE)
RECORDINGS:
Mary & Amanda Gordon, "You Don't Know Like I Know" (on USMississippi01)
Sister Rosetta Tharpe, "What He Done For Me" (Decca 8639, 1942)
NOTES [119 words]: The USMississippi01 has this format: A line is lined-out, followed by response "what he done for me." That line and response is repeated twice by the chorus. The fourth line of the verse, sung by the chorus, is "You don't know like I know, what he done for me." An example of the lined-out line is "He sanctified my soul one day." Between verses there is spoken prose. The Sister Rosetta Tharpe recording is solo. The verse form is the same as for USMississippi01: (line, "What he done for me"(3x) "I never shall forget what he done for me" or "I never shall forget for he set me free"). Instead of spoken prose between verses there are verses in which the three verse lines are different; that is, not repeated. - BS
Last updated in version 5.1
File: RcWHDFMe

What Irish Boys Can Do

DESCRIPTION: "They insult an Irishman ... it happens every day." But the Irish are noble and hospitable. Think of Irish warriors, like Wellington and the 69th at Bull Run, and poets Lover and Moore. Think of Irish songs and plays. "Then, why slur upon the Irish?"

AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: before 1865 (broadside, Bodleian Harding B 31(102))
KEYWORDS: Ireland, nonballad, patriotic
FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (2 citations):
O'Conor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 23, "What Irish Boys Can Do" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2558, p. 173, "What Irish Boys Can Do. Answer to: No Irish Need Apply" (4 references)
Roud #V965
BROADSIDES:
Bodleian, Harding B 31(102), "What Irish Boys Can Do", H. De Marsan (New York), 1861-1864
LOCSinging, sb40474a, "What Irish Boys Can Do", H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878
NOTES [166 words]: Broadside Bodleian Harding B 31(102): The subtitle is "Answer to No Irish Need Apply." Printer H. De Marsan is at 54 Chatham Street
The reference to the Civil War dates and places this song:
"And then, too, in the present war between the North and South,
Let no dirty slur on Irish ever escape your mouth;
Sure, did you ne'er hear tell of the 69th, who bravely fought at Bull-Run!
And Meagher, of the seven days fight, that was in front, of Richmond,
With General Shields, who fought so brave for the Flag Red, White, and Blue?
And anything like a bayonet-charge the Irish boys can do."
For more on the Irish in the American Civil War see the Index notes to "By the Hush." [Also "The Irish Sixty-Ninth." - RBW]
For the general issue see "No Irish Need Apply."
Broadsides LOC Singing sb40474a and Bodleian Harding B 31(102): H. De Marsan dating per Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS
Last updated in version 5.1
File: 0Con023A

What is Home Without Love?
DESCRIPTION: A lonely rich man, passing a cottage window, sees a happy husband, wife, and baby. He weeps, "What is a home without baby To kiss, to tease and adore...." Alone in a mansion, with the wife who married him for his money, he repeats his lament
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (recordings, Roy Harvey)
KEYWORDS: loneliness marriage baby children family husband wife
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Rorrer-RamblingBlues-LifeAndSongsOfCharliePoole, p. 82, "What Is Home Without Babies?" (1 text)
ArkansasWoodchopper, pp. 8-10, "What a Home Without Love" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #15947 and 12395
RECORDINGS:
Arkansas Woodchopper [pseud. for Luther Ossenbrink], "What is a Home Without Love" (Conqueror 7881, 1931)
Boone County Entertainers, "What Is Home Without Babies" (Supertone 9492, 1929)
Loman D. Cansler, "What Is Home Without Love?" (on Cansler1)
Roy Harvey, "What Is Home Without Love" (Columbia, unissued, 1927)
Roy Harvey & The North Carolina Ramblers, "What Is Home Without Babies" (Brunswick 268, 1928) (Paramount 3267, 1931)
Monroe Brothers, "What Is Home Without Love" (Montgomery Ward M-4746, 1935; Bluebird B-6363, 1936)
Charlie Poole and the North Carolina Ramblers, "What Is Home Without Babies" (Columbia 15307-D, 1928)
Red Fox Chasers, "What Is Home Without Babies" (Supertone 9492, 1929)
SAME TUNE:
Recording: Howard Dixon & Frank Gerald (The Rambling Duet) "Woman's Answer to 'What Is Home Without Love'" (Bluebird B-7450, 1938)
NOTES [74 words]: Again, Cansler implies that this is in Randolph or Belden, but we don't seem to have indexed it, or I haven't found it. - PJS
It's not in Randolph, at least, and if it's in Belden-BalladsSongsCollectedByMissourFolkloreSociety, it's under an odd title and uses an unusual first stanza. When I indexed Rorrer-RamblingBlues-LifeAndSongsOfCharliePoole, I initially omitted the song because I couldn't believe such a piece of slop was traditional. - RBW
Last updated in version 5.2
File: RcWIAHWL

What Kind of Crowns Do the Angels Wear
DESCRIPTION: "What kind of crowns do the angels wear? The angels wear the golden crown, the golden crown, I'm bound to rest, I'm bound to rest... bound to rest with God." "What kind of robe do the angels wear?" "What kind of slippers do the angels wear?"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1952 (Brown)
What makes the wild cat wild?

DESCRIPTION: "What make the wild cat wild, boys, what makes the wild cat wild? (x2), I'll ask you again as a personal friend, what makes the wild cat wild?"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1922 (Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5)

KEYWORDS: animal nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 679, "What Makes the Wild Cat Wild?" (1 short text, 1 tune)

CROSS-REFERENCES:
cf. "The States Song (What Did Delaware?)" (the "personal friend" lyric)

File: BrS5679

What Month Was Jesus Born In?

DESCRIPTION: "What month was Jesus born in? Last month in the year." The song details Jesus’ birth in December and the humble circumstancs of his birth.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1941 (recording, Heavenly Gospel Singers)

KEYWORDS: Bible religious Jesus

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Courlander-NegroFolkMusic, pp. 58-59, "(What Month Was Jesus Born In?)" (1 text); pp. 245-246, "What Month Was Jesus Born In?" (1 tune, partial text)
Silber/Silber-Folk singersWordbook, p. 384, "Tell Me What Month Was My Jesus Born In?" (1 text)

Roud #13975

RECORDINGS:
Vera Ward Hall, "No Room At the Inn/The Last Month of the Year" (on NFMAla5) (on LomaxCD1706); "What Month Was Jesus Born In" (on ReedWard01)
Heavenly Gospel Singers, "When Was Jesus Born?" (Bluebird B-8907, 1941; on Babylon)
Pete Seeger, "What Month Was Jesus Born?" (on PeteSeeger12)

NOTES [110 words]: It should be noted that there is no Biblical evidence that Jesus was born in December; indeed, those scholars who have an opinion generally think he was born in spring. In any case, December was not always the "last month of the year"; in the classical Roman calendar, it was the tenth month, and even after this changed, it was remembered for quite some time. In addition, for much of the Middle Ages, the new year began on March 25 (approximating the equinox).

Even if we ignore all that, Jesus was Jewish, and would have used the Jewish calendar, which had no month of December. Nor was its (approximate) equivalent of December the last month of the year.

Last updated in version 6.1

File: CNFM245
What More Could Mister Hoover Do

DESCRIPTION: Mr. Hoover "give you a sack of flour. No lard, neither baking powder. What more could he do for you?"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight)
KEYWORDS: poverty hardtimes food nonballad political
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight, p. 8, "What More Could Mister Hoover Do" (1 fragment, 1 tune)

NOTES [108 words]: The current description is based on the Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight fragment. - BS
The assumption implicit in the keyword "political" for this song is obviously that "Mister Hoover" is President Herbert Hoover, who served from 1929 to 1933 and oversaw the beginning of the Great Depression and refused, due to his political convictions, to take major action to deal with the situation. He made some attempts at relief, but they were not sufficient. Hence, perhaps, his willingness to give a sack of flour, but not enough other materials to actually bake with the flour. I'm not sure that this is required by the fragment, but it makes sense. - RBW
Last updated in version 4.0
File: CaCa008

What My Mamma Told Me

DESCRIPTION: "'What my mamma told me is bound to come to pass, A-drinkin' and a-gamblin' will be my ruin at las', las', Will be my ruin at last. "Went up on the mountain, To give my horn a blow...." "Went down... To get me a bottle o' gin... Ma, he's drunk agin."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1950 (Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama)
KEYWORDS: drink mother warning
FOUND IN: US(So)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Arnold-FolkSongsofAlabama, p. 37, "What My Mamma Told Me" (1 text, 1 tune)
Roud #16316
File: Arno037

What Shall I Give to Thee?

DESCRIPTION: "What shall I give to thee? Darling, we must part, Something to hide away, Close to the heart. Give me an ivy leaf, fresh from the vine, Give me an ivy leaf, green as the pine." "What shall I give to thee? Life is so strange. All... surely must change."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1971 (Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, although the source is Gainer)
KEYWORDS: parting gift nonballad
FOUND IN: US(Ap)
REFERENCES (2 citations):
Gainer-FolkSongsFromTheWestVirginiaHills, p. 107, "What Shall I Give to Thee?" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Boette-SingaHipsyDoodle, p. 170, "What Shall I Give to Thee?" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Roud #5420
File: Gain107

What the Old Hen Said

DESCRIPTION: Singer hears an old hen, looking over her brood of chicks, exclaim that she loves them just as a cat loves its kittens, or a ewe its lamb. She calls them to her; they nestle in their "feather bed"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1930 (Flanders/Brown-VermontFolkSongsAndBallads)
What Was Your Name in the States?

DESCRIPTION: "Oh, what was your name in the States? Was it Thompson, or Johnson, or Bates? Did you murder your wife and fly for your life? Say, what was your name in the States?"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1927 (Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag)

KEYWORDS: migrant travel crime

FOUND IN: US

REFERENCES (3 citations):
Sandburg-TheAmericanSongbag, p. 106, "What Was Your Name in the States?" (1 short text, 1 tune)
Botkin-TreasuryOfAmericanFolklore, p. 861, "What Was Your name in the States?" (1 text, 1 tune)
DT, NAMESTAT

Roud #4754

RECORDINGS:
Logan English, "What Was Your Name in the States?" (on LEnglish02)

File: San106

What Will We Do When We'll Have No Money?

DESCRIPTION: Questions and answers. What will we do when we: have no money? hawk through town; marry a tinker? sell a tin can and walk with me man; marry a soldier? handle his gun; have a daughter? take it in hand and walk with me man.

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1985 (IRTravellers01)

KEYWORDS: bawdy humorous nonballad money

FOUND IN: Ireland

REFERENCES (1 citation):
DT, WHATWILL
Roud #16879

RECORDINGS:
Mary Delaney, "What Will We Do When We'll Have No Money?" (on IRTravellers01)

NOTES [64 words]: The format of each verse of Mary Delaney's version on IRTravellers01 is "What will we do when [question]? All true lovers, what will we do then? [Answer], And we'll yodel it over again." - BS

Despite which, there is no yodel in this version. Delaney was the source for the song as sung by the Silly Sisters (Maddy Prior and June Tabor), which will be familiar to many folk fans. - RBW

File: RcWWWDNM

What Will You Do, Love

DESCRIPTION: He: What will you do when I sail away? She: I'll be true and pray for you. He: If I were untrue?" She: "I'd still be true but ... could not bear it!" He: If, near home, my ship were lost. She: If you were spared "I'd bless the morrow ... welcome thee"

AUTHOR: Samuel Lover (1797-1868)

EARLIEST DATE: 1842 (Samuel Lover's novel "Handy Andy")

KEYWORDS: love questions separation sea ship dialog

FOUND IN:
REFERENCES (4 citations):
O'Connor-OldTimeSongsAndBalladOfIreland, p. 139, "What Will You Do, Love" (1 text)
Hylands-Mammoth-Hibernian-Songster, pp. 124-125, "What Will You Do, Love?" (1 text)
Wolf-AmericanSongSheets, #2565, p. 173, "What Will You Do, Love?" (2 references)
Roud #23097
BROADSIDES:
LOCSinging, sb40552a, "What Will You Do, Love?", H. De Marsan (New York), 1864-1878; also as103050, "What Will You Do, Love"
NOTES [56 words]: Just what we needed. A Riley ballad before the guy has even been gone for seven years to let the girl realize what a jerk he is. - RBW
Studying Nineteenth-Century Popular Song by Paul Charosh in American Music, Winter 1997, Vol 15.4, Table 1, available at FindArticles site. - BS
Last updated in version 6.1
File: OCon139

What Would You Do If You Married a Soldier
DESCRIPTION: What would you do if you married a soldier?" "What would I do but carry his gun" "...if he died on the ocean?" "... marry again." "... kettle boiled over?" "... fill it again." "... cows ate the clover?" "... set it again"
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1947 (OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin)
KEYWORDS: marriage death dialog nonballad animal soldier
FOUND IN: Ireland
REFERENCES (1 citation):
OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin 191, "What Would You Do If You Married a Soldier" (2 texts, 1 tune)
Roud #3051
RECORDINGS:
Elizabeth Cronin, "What Would You Do If You Married a Soldier" (on IRECronin01)
NOTES [12 words]: OCroinin/Cronin-TheSongsOfElizabethCronin: The chorus is mouth music. - BS
Last updated in version 3.2
File: OCC191

What You Doin' In Here?
DESCRIPTION: "What you doin' in here, ain't got no garments on (x3), Don't you know God's got his eyes on you?" "Some people moaning in the church, ain't got no garments on" "Some people pravin' in the church...." "Some people shoutin' in the church...."
AUTHOR: unknown
EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore)
KEYWORDS: religious nonballad clothes
FOUND IN: US(SE)
REFERENCES (1 citation):
Killion/Waller-ATreasuryOfGeorgiaFolklore, pp. 241-242, "What You Doin' In Here?" (1 text)
Roud #18149
NOTES [160 words]: The theology represented in this song is curious. It is certainly true that the Hebrew Bible is insistent in its condemnation of nakedness; few cultures had such a strong nudity taboo. And the Apocalypse (Book of Revelation) refers at several points to God giving people garments, e.g. 3:5, 25:6). On the other hand, James 2:2 vigorously attacks those who condemn a person for having dirty clothes, and Luke 9:3 and parallels tell the disciples to go out with just one, quite ordinary, garment. There is also a very confusing reference to nakedness in 2 Corinthians 5:3, but the King James Bible glossed over that, so the singers of this song would not have known what it said. Still, the bottom line is, clothes do not commend one to God. God will clearly give new and better garments -- but it is God who makes that judgment, not some narcissist in the pews of the church.

Yes, songs like this do make me cranky, and I am too academic for my own good. - RBW

Last updated in version 5.2

File: KiWa241W

---

What You Gon'eer Do That Day?

DESCRIPTION: "Venus, Venus, beautiful star, Beautiful star, beautiful star, Venus, Venus, beautiful star, Oh, what you gon'eer do on that day?" Similarly, "Rocks in the mountains, fall on me....." "Some to the right, some to de left...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1928 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: religious nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 649, "What You Gon'eer Do That Day?" (1 text)

Roud #11941

File: Br3649

---

What You Gonna Do

DESCRIPTION: "What you gonna do when Janie leave you... [She doesn't want him any more and he cries] what you gonna do..." "What you gonna do ... [she puts him down and leaves town] what you gonna do...."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1966 (Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight)

KEYWORDS: courting love parting separation travel nonballad

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight, p. 109, "What You Gonna Do" (1 text, 1 tune)

NOTES [62 words]: The tune is close to "Motherless Children" or "(Then We'll Need That) True Religion," Roud #15181 [recorded by Rev Edward W Clayborn]. Carawan/Carawan-AintYouGotARight: "Joe, he like all different kind of song -- spiritual and blues." It's also close to "Back to Jericho" in line structure and "what you gonna do," and the tune would also be close if it weren't minor. - BS

Last updated in version 4.0

File: CarCa109

---

What You Gonna Name That Pretty Baby?

DESCRIPTION: "What you gonna name that pretty baby? Gonna call it Jesus of Nazaree. Borned in a stall, laid him in a manger, Cattle all lowing...." "Go shout it on each high mountain... That Jesus is born." "Joseph and Mary went on a long journey."

AUTHOR: Leatha Eller

EARLIEST DATE: 1978 (Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices)

KEYWORDS: Jesus religious

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):

Rosenbaum-FolkVisionsAndVoices, pp. 16-17, "What You Gonna Name That Pretty Baby" (1 text, 1 tune)

Roud #4956

NOTES [48 words]: Despite some lyric similarities, this should not be confused with "Virgin Mary Had a Little Baby." This song is by Leatha Eller, and shows no signs of being traditional, though clearly based on traditional themes (some of them, such as the beasts at the nativity, being non-
What You Gwina Do When the World's on Fire?

DESCRIPTION: "What you gwina do when the world's on fire? I'm gonna jump in a hole o' water. What you gwina do when the water gets to boilin'? I'm gonna kick and squeal and hollo."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1919 (Brown)

KEYWORDS: fire

FOUND IN: US(SE)

REFERENCES (2 citations):
- Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 470, "What You Gwina Do When the World's on Fire?" (1 fragment)
- Brown/Schinhan-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore5 470, "What You Gwina Do When the World's on Fire?" (1 tune plus a text excerpt)

Roud #11789

File: Br3470

What-oh, She Bumps

DESCRIPTION: Skipping rhyme, "What-oh, she bumps, See how high she jumps, She jumps so high She nearly recahes the sky."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1972 (Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren)

KEYWORDS: playparty floatingverses

FOUND IN: Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren

REFERENCES (1 citation):
- Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 113, "(What-oh, she bumps)" (1 short text, most of which is found in other rhymes)

File: SuSm113

What'll I Do with the Baby-O

DESCRIPTION: Song describes various things to do with baby: wrap him up in calico, put him in his cradle, wrap him in the table cloth, throw him in the hayloft, hang him in the tree top, etc. Also, "How in the world do the old folks know I like sugar in my coffee-O?"

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1917 (Cecil Sharp collection)

KEYWORDS: drink food humorous lullaby playparty baby floatingverses

FOUND IN: US(Ap,MW,SE)

REFERENCES (12 citations):
- Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 228, "What'll we do with the Baby?" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Ritchie-FolkSongsOfTheSouthernAppalachians, pp. 26-27, "What'll I Do with the Baby-O" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Bush-FSoCentralWestVirginiaVol2, pp. 18-19, "What You Gonna Do With the Baby-o?" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Peters-FolkSongsOutOfWisconsin, p. 173, "What Will I Do with the Baby-O?" (1 short text, 1 tune)
- Cohen/Seeger/Wood-NewLostCityRamblerSongbook, p. 162, "What'll I Do with the Baby-O" (1 text, 1 tune)
- Pankake/Pankake-PrairieHomeCompanionFolkSongBook, p. 234, "Charlie, Won't You Rock the Cradle" (1 text)
- Silber/Silber-FolksingersWordbook, p. 407, "Prettiest Little Baby In The County-O"; 408, "What'll We Do With The Baby-O?" (2 texts)
- NorthCarolinaFolkloreJournal, John Foster West, "Folklore of a Mountain Childhood," Vol. XVI, No. 3 (Nov 1968), p. 166, "(Whatcha gonna do with the baby?" (1 text); article reprinted (with text reset) in Vol. LII, No. 3 (Nov 1968), p. 8
What's Become of the Punchers?

DESCRIPTION: "What's become of the punchers We rode with long ago?" There were hundreds of cowboy. Some died, some left, some got rich: "My old pardner made millions in Tampa, While I've got my saddle in soak!" The speaker will give up cowboy life also

AUTHOR: N. Howard Thorp

EARLIEST DATE: 1921 (Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys)

KEYWORDS: cowboy work abandonment

FOUND IN:

REFERENCES (1 citation):
Thorp/Logsdon-SongsOfTheCowboys, pp. 162-164, "What's Become of the Punchers?" (1 text)

File: ThLo162

What's Little Babies Made Of?

DESCRIPTION: "What's old women made of?... Reels and jeels and old spinning wheels, And that's what old women are made of," "What's little boys made of?... Piggins and pails and puppy dogs' tails." "What's little babies made of?... Sugar and..."

AUTHOR: unknown

EARLIEST DATE: 1844 (Halliwell, according to Opie/Opie-OxfordDictionaryOfNurseryRhymes)

KEYWORDS: nonballad children

FOUND IN: Britain(Scotland(Aber)) US(Ap,SE) New Zealand

REFERENCES (12 citations):
Greig/Duncan8 1709, "What Folk Are Made Of" (6 texts, 4 tunes)
Greig-FolkSongInBuchan-FolkSongOfTheNorthEast #150, pp. 1-2, "Fat Folk's Made o'" (3 texts)
Sharp-EnglishFolkSongsFromSouthernAppalachians 227, "What are Little Boys made of?" (2 texts, 2 tunes)
Sharp/Karpeles-EightyEnglishFolkSongs 79, "What's Little Babies Made Of?" (1 text, 1 tune)
Brown/Belden/Hudson-FrankCBrownCollectionNCFolklore3 143, "What Are Little Girls Made Of?" (1 text)
Lomax/Lomax-AmericanBalladsAndFolkSongs, pp. 303-304, "What Folks Are Made Of" (1 text, 1 tune)
Sutton-Smith-NZ-GamesOfNewZealandChildren/FolkgamesOfChildren, p. 134, "(Little boys are made of slugs and snails)" (1 text)
What's Poor Mary Weepin' For (Poor Jenny Sits A-Weeping)

